Local fruit supply safe, say grocers

Village grocers removed all Chilean-grown fruit from shelves after it was announced Monday that two grapes shipped to the United States were found to be tainted with cyanide.

Ted Bennett of Bennett's Shur-Sav said his store was affected the most by removal of grapes and nectarines. Plums and peaches have also been removed, but they are not high-sales items this time of year, according to Bennett.

Although, the removal does not have a big economic impact of the store, Bennett says the scare has made people afraid to buy apples and pears, even though Chile does not supply apples and pears to this area.

Bennett's pulled the fruit from the shelves after notification from the Environmental Improvement Division.

Bennett says Mexico begins to ship grapes around Easter.

"I feel sorry for the Chilean growers," Bennett said, adding that pulling all fruit in the country because of two tainted grapes might be an extreme measure.

Bennett said almost all soft fruit this time of year comes from Chile.

Loyd Fannon, manager of the Safeway on Mechem, says he voluntarily pulled fruit from shelves Monday night after the news of the tainted fruit came out. He also pulled grapes, peaches, plums and nectarines. He said it has not had a major effect on sales, but quite a few people have called to question him about the measure.

Fannon had no idea when the fruit will be put back on the shelves and said Safeway will follow whatever guidelines the government sets.

"There are nuts running around who create problems for others, so there's not much we can do except take it off so others won't get hurt," Fannon said.

In the meantime, if consumers have an urge for fresh fruit, California Kiwi and Mexican raspberries are available. Also, on the shelves are apples, pears, citrus fruits and bananas. If fruit is on the shelf in Ruidoso, it doesn't come from Chile, so consumers need not worry about accidentally getting Chilean-grown fruit, according to Ruidoso grocers.

Area firefighters help fight Big Bend blaze

by MOLLIE WARREN
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Two crews of firefighters from Mesalero were sent to Big Bend, in Texas, Saturday to fight the worst fire in the history of the park.

Leland Pellman, forestry technician, for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, said 43 people from the Mesalero Hot Shots and Mesalero #3 were sent to fight the blaze. Three members of the crew are overhead (management) specialists, Pellman said.

Jim Paxton, fire information officer, said the fire started at 1 p.m.

Saturday, March 11. The Park Service mobilized a crew of 14 to attack and found the blaze burning vigorously. The Mesalero crews arrived that night.

Sunday morning the New Mexico Instant Command team took over the fire. The command team is an interagency fire team which includes staff from the United States Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Indian Affairs and the New Mexico State Department of Forestry. Tuesday

Scheduled air service is offered Village Council

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Steve Hightower of Mountain Aviation asked the Ruidoso Village Council, during a regular meeting Tuesday, for a subsidy to provide scheduled air service to the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

Councillors listened, but didn't act on Hightower's request for $116,000 to provide two flights a day Friday through Sunday to El Paso International Airport. Hightower, who has operated a charter service based in Ruidoso for the past nine years, said he'll offer expanded service May through December.

"We are probably a long way from having major airline service... we can have service," said Hightower. He said the guaranteed subsidy he's requesting doesn't guarantee his company a profit, and leaves plenty of incentive for him to work to expand and improve his services.

Noting that a lot of travelers have had bad experiences, Hightower said he is willing to sign a performance clause guaranteeing he'll operate on time 90 percent of the time or better. He said he'll maintain a desk at the regional airport full-time and counter space in El Paso and provided references of companies he contracts his service to now.

Besides the benefit of having scheduled air service, Hightower said his business will further benefit the village by the dollars that are turned over. He said he'll be purchasing $50,000 in fuel from SBRA and spending about $20,000 on regular scheduled maintenance and $3,000 in landing fees. He said his company will also provide new jobs.

"I feel that a subsidy and an air service that is legitimate and maintains a schedule as published... benefits us all," said Hightower, urging the council to identify the funds in next year's budget to provide the subsidy.

Hightower said he's also looking for other sources of funds, and if they are identified his request to the village will be decreased.

Hightower also said ground transportation is critical to the success of air service, and told councillors the village already has a 15-

Travelers can't wait to drive on new airport road

by DORIS CHERRY
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The long-awaited Sierra Blanca Regional Airport (SBRA) access road soon will be completed.

According to New Mexico State Highway project supervisor Louis Najar, the final paving of the access road began Monday.

Twin Mountain Rock Construction Company started the hot mix plant Monday and began the paving process.

The first phase of the paving project was delayed last year because the asphalt mixture did not meet specifications. Once that problem was solved, the first two layers of the four-layer pavement were laid. However, Twin Mountain was unable to complete paving because temperatures fell below the required 50 degrees.

Although the road was closed, motorists began driving on the pavement. Najar said motorists should not drive on the road now, as crews and machinery are in the process of paving.

However, flagpersons will be stationed on each side of the machinery to warn any motorist, Najar said.

Paving will continue as long as temperatures remain above 50 degrees and winds below 15 miles per hour, Najar added. The contractor cannot pave if the wind chill factor drops the temperature below 50 degrees.

Although the project is scheduled to be completed by April, Najar said it could be finished earlier, if weather conditions permit. After the pavement is completed, the road will be stripped and guard rails installed.

The highway will be officially opened after inspection and approval by the county, New Mexico State Highway Department and consulting engineers Bohannan and Huston of Albuquerque.

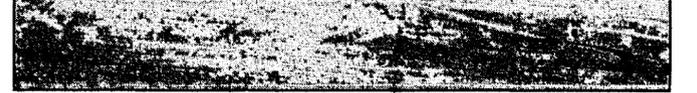

The commission of Bill Elliot, A.W. Gnatkowski and Ken Nosker initiated the multi-million dollar project with the September 9, 1986 signing of the joint powers agreement between the county and engineering firm Bohannan-

Houston. The same commission signed another agreement with the state for a location and preliminary engineering study on September 15, 1986, but the overall project has spanned three separate commissions.

The State Highway Department notified former Lincoln County commissioners John Allen Hightower, Ralph Dunlap and Bill Karn in August 1987 they could advertise for construction bids for the highway project. On January 21, 1988, the state notified the county that Twin Mountain Rock Construction Company won the contract to construct the highway at a cost of $4,335,030, financed by the state.

The new stretch of road is expected to open under the administration of commissioners Bob Hemphill, Karon Petty and Rick Simpson.

Meanwhile, Najar warns motorists to stay off the road until it is officially opened.

Lawmakers give gambling 50-50 odds

Ruidoso may be closer than ever to having legalized gambling.

After years of seeing various gambling and lottery proposals squelched in the New Mexico Legislature, gambling proponents were able to keep a video gaming bill alive in the state house Wednesday in a 32-32 tie vote.

Mike Runnels, Village of Ruidoso lobbyist, said the bill, sponsored in the Senate by Manny Aragon is on the table for reconsideration.

The measure calls for legalized video gambling in four state locations, including Ruidoso. The Senate OK'd the proposal, and it's being sponsored in the house by Representative Mike Olguin of Socorro.

"They're going to try to pull it off the table and vote on it," said Runnels in a telephone interview early today. "Until they have the votes to pass it, they won't bring it off the table," said Runnels.

Governor Garrey Carruthers has opposed past gambling proposals, but sources in Santa Fe say he will neither sign nor veto the Aragon bill if it passes the house. If the legislation had passed both houses and reached the governor's desk before Wednesday at noon, his failure to sign or veto would have resulted in the measure becoming law.

But, at this point, the same action would result in a pocket veto, killing the proposal.

Board approves school principals' contracts

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
The Ruidoso Board of Education rehired all the Ruidoso schools principals, elected new board officers and took care of regular business Tuesday.

After a lengthy executive session, the board approved 1989-90 contracts for Roger Sowder, principal at Nob Hill School; Frank Cannella, White Mountain Elementary School; Don Weems, White Mountain Intermediate School and Tom Hansen, Ruidoso High School. The board also approved continuing the contract of special education director Karen Tillman and the contract for associate superintendent Mike Gladden, acting as Ruidoso Middle School principal.

Once newly elected board members Rod Adamson and Lynn Willard were sworn-in, the board re-elected Stormy Edwards as president, Don Swalander vice-president and Lynn Willard as secretary. Throughout the meeting, which involved reports about school activities from each principal, resignations and other business, audience member Frank Sayner, who was not listed on the agenda, was silent. When the board reached the point in the agenda for the executive session, Sayner spoke up to complain about not being placed on the agenda to voice his concern for the selection criteria for the next athletic director (AD). He said he contacted a board member many days before the meeting about speaking on the subject and he was a "little upset" about not being on the agenda.

Miller said he misunderstood Sayner when he talked with him earlier, and thought Sayner had discussed his problems with a board member and did not wish a forum at the meeting. Miller also said he had no idea what Sayner wanted to discuss. He assured Sayner no decisions have been made about selecting a new AD.

"I want to hear what you came here to say," Edwards said. Sayner first expressed his unhappiness over the resignation of Cooper Henderson.

"Now, let's measure what went wrong."

Henderson's leaving was not because of better money or a better place to live, Sayner said. In his assessment, personalities played a factor in the resignation.

The starting point for selecting a new AD is "at this table" (the board and superintendent), he said, and the attitude at the table is important.

Sayner continued, Cooper's loss was due to "infighting and name calling" between different groups, as between athletes and science students.

"The attitude begins here," he said.

The board needs to consider a new head football coach, who does not have to be an AD, who has moral and ethical standards and qualities which will instill pride. He should also have compassion and discipline, Sayner said.

An AD should report to the superintendent on athletic matters and report to the high school principal on curriculum matters, Sayner suggested.

Edwards said they would consider the suggestions and apologized for Sayner not being on the agenda.

Before Sayner spoke, the board changed the wording on the AD job description. The new wording changes to whom the AD reports and voting rights on the New Mexico Activities Association. According to the new description the AD will vote only after consultation with the superintendent and high school principal.

Other action taken by the board included:

Ruidoso schools administrative secretary Jan Mullican swears in newly elected board member Rod Adamson.

—Acceptance of resignations of Cooper Henderson as head football coach and athletic director and Churchill Cooke, music director.

—Discussion about the Old Airport Site Development Impact Committee. OASDIC will meet in one month to compile data about the extension of Warrior Drive and the impact on White Mountain schools.

Miller said the school will not lose 20 acres to the development, only 1.2 acres. Although the school comes first and then cooperation with the village comes second, he emphasized the administration does not support or oppose the development. The purpose of the committee is to give positive and negative impact of Warrior Drive extension and other development in the Hubbard proposal, Miller said.

He invited community input to the school problem.

—Approval of checks, after discussion by Adamson to select someone to inspect and document construction projects.

—OK for a $5,834 budget increase for the three- and four-year old program.

—Call for proposals for school auditor for 1988-89 fiscal year.

—Approval of a school board and administration retreat.

—Tabling the consideration of proposed board policies concerning vacation and sick pay and workman's compensation until after the state legislature convenes.

—Reports on each school's activities from each principal.

—A favorable report about the successful in-service day March 1, at Ruidoso High School, with plans beginning for next year's.

The next regular meeting is April 11.

Newly elected Ruidoso Board of Education member Lynn Willard takes the oath of office from administrative secretary Jan Mullican at the board meeting Tuesday.

Local weatherman explains Aurora Borealis

by BILL HOSTETTER
Special to The News

The Aurora Borealis or northern light display visible over New Mexico and much of the southern U.S. on March 11-14 is the result of major eruptions on the sun (solar flares), and their stimulation of the higher levels of the earth's atmosphere (60 miles high) by electrically charged particles.

These particles traveled the 92.4 million miles from the sun at speeds up to 4.6 million miles per hour, and represent the approach of solar activity to an expected 11-year maximum in 1990-91.

The giant solar flare of March 9, was 36 times the size of the earth, and may be the largest ever observed to date. One of the previous largest was seven times earth-size, occurring on August 7, 1972.

The Earth's magnetic field reacts to these explosions of solar energy with major world-wide variations called magnetic storms; the current one beginning at 6:28 p.m. Sunday, March 12, and reached a maximum on Monday, March 13. Previous major magnetic storms in recent years occurred on May 6, 1988, and February 8, 1986. The greatest on record was on September 18-19, 1941.

Other significant effects of solar storms are on radio and telephone communications, navigation compasses, and most long runs of conducting wire such as electrical power systems. Flare-produced electrical currents also cause corrosion of metal pipes. Some influences are more subtle and still in the investigative stage; for example, the effects on immediate and long-range weather trends and navigation ability of animals in nature.

A previous Aurora, visible over New Mexico from Albuquerque, occurred on September 11-12, 1985, and was followed in 81 days (or three rotations of the sun at active latitudes) by the Mexico City earthquake of April 30, 1986.

The most recent northern light display was on August 25, 1987, visible over much of the northern U.S. and followed in 54 days (or two rotations of active solar areas) by October 19, 1987, Black Monday (the stock market Dow Jones Average plunged 508 points.)

passenger van at the airport that could be used for that purpose.

Also Tuesday, the council approved a resolution proclaiming "Cooper Henderson Week" and a resolution supporting Hollywood, Florida, in its efforts to block Hollywood, California, from trademarking the towns' mutual name.

Ruidoso High School athletic director and head football coach was on hand to hear Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. proclaim this week as his week. Henderson has taken a job as head football coach at Artesia High School.

Henderson and his wife and children were on hand to accept the tribute.

Leon Eggleston, who represented the village in a "Hollywood Summit" recently in Florida, presented the resolution supporting the drive to save the Hollywood name from being cornered by the California Hollywood. He said if the trademark effort is successful, anyone who uses the name for any purpose will have to pay a fee.

"It shocks me that anybody would be asinine enough to try to trademark the name of a town," said Councillor Larry Simon.

Also Tuesday, Councillor Al Junge talked about the proposed civic center, the teen center and The Ruidoso News.

Reading from an editorial written by publisher Ken Green and published in the March 2 edition of The News, Junge noted that those who run for office are characterized as gadflies or incompetents. Saying he is a gadfly, Junge speculated that makes the rest of the council incompetents.

"(I) suggest to Mr. Green that he run for public office," said Junge.

On the civic center, Junge and Councillor J.D. James assured the audience that the center is not tied to any other development, and will be built regardless of what else happens.

Junge was critical of the administration's handling of Kiwanis Club's efforts to develop a teen center in an old hangar. He said the council instructed the administration to work with the club, but the center still is not open and teens are spending their time in the Pinetree Square parking lot.

"I wish the kids were politically astute enough to go down and park and leave their trash in the Senior Citizens (Center) parking lot," said

Jerry Wright whose place of business is in Pinetree Square. He said the young people who hang out in the parking lot leave trash to be picked up by people coming to work the next day.

In other regular business Tuesday, the council:

—Approved a change of ownership for a liquor license at Three Bee's Market, 1137 Mechem Drive.

—Approved a Main Street Ruidoso request to use public right of way for hanging banners.

—Approved a change in the agenda deadline for the April 11 meeting.

—Awarded bids on water pipe fittings and accessories.

—Approved a request for bids on Ruidoso pins, but failed to agree on funding for the pins.

—Approved a mid-year budget resolution with Junge casting the sole negative vote. Junge wanted to know why it was eight months before the council was informed of what he called a half million dollar deficit. Junge questioned why departments are allowed to overspend. "We're running very well on the budget items," reported village manager Frank Potter.

—Approved a request by Councillor Jess Stinson to purchase ribbon for the Ruidoso Valley Greeters to use in ribbon cutting ceremonies for new businesses. Davis said the greeters have been using crepe paper.

—Heard Don Shaw, a member of the Municipal Airport Planning Board, ask for a reaffirmation that the board is the entity charged with marketing the old airport land. Shaw asked for $15,000 to use for marketing.

—Retired into executive session over acquisition of real property and pending litigation. Included in the executive session were the mayor, councillors, village clerk Tammie Maddox, village attorney John Underwood and Potter. Also in the meeting were water attorney Neil Stillinger and Water Defense Association executive director Hubert Quintana.

—Reconvened and voted unanimously to lease the Blaugrund tract (next door to village hall) from April 1 through June and continue to negotiate to purchase the land.

Davis said the land, owned by United New Mexico Bank of Albuquerque, has Mexico no application to anyone other than the village or schools.

What's in a name?

Would little Hollywood, NM really be the same by any other name?

by MOLLIE WARREN
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Residents of what used to be Hollywood, New Mexico, are a little miffed and a lot confused over Hollywood, California's attempt to trademark the Hollywood name.

"Maybe we need to sue them for using our name," quipped Bob Vuicich, owner of Hollywood Auto Parts.

When representatives from a dozen Hollywoods all over the nation got together early this month in Hollywood, Florida, Leon Eggleston represented the little unincorporated Hollywood that is a part of the Village of Ruidoso on the border of Ruidoso Downs. Eggleston said there's a lot of kidding about the move by Tinseltown to corner the famous name, but added if the trademark attempt is successful it will be an expensive proposition to continue to use the name.

Marie Vaughn, who, along with her husband, Rex, owns Hollywood Inn, says they would probably just change the name of the tavern and liquor store if they were required to pay for use of the name.

Jack Fowler, owner of Hollywood Food Mart, said his store would be "Jack's Food Mart" if the trademark effort is approved.

Joetyne Wright, whose father was the second postmaster of Hollywood, estimates that about 50 families once considered themselves Hollywood residents. Wright and her father, Elger "Brother" Miller, are experts on the history of the tiny little town.

Brother Miller was postmaster from 1933 to 1946, immediately after Hollywood's founder, George Friedenbloom. Friedenbloom, a transplant from Hollywood, Florida, founded Hollywood, New Mexico, in 1926.

Miller was appointed postmaster after an election changed the party in power. Friedenbloom didn't want to relinquish his post and wouldn't surrender the books to Miller. The U.S. Marshal had to take the books by force after a court order was issued.

It wasn't the only time he was involved in controversy, according to Miller. He ran for Ruidoso Downs mayor in the early '60s and won. The opposition latched him out of city hall so he rented an office down the road.

The village completed its water system while Miller was mayor. He had promised to secure funds for the system after the village failed to get the needed money. Miller said his opponents didn't believe he could do it, but a friend put him in touch with a bonding company in Missouri that wanted to loan money.

"My mother always told me you can do anything legal if you set your mind to it," Miller said. He returned from Missouri with the needed funds.

The years Miller served as postmaster were interesting ones, too, according to Maidie Miller, Brother's wife. Many people coming through the area wanted postcards with the Hollywood postmark. Since postmasters at that time were paid according to how many postmarks were issued, the fascination with 'Hollywood' helped out the Millers.

At the time, Mrs. Miller said, postmasters were required to own their own building. Friedenbloom had a small building close to where the Hollywood Inn is now. When Miller took over, he bought an old sawmill, located next to where C&L Lumber is now. The post office was located in the front part of the building and the Millers lived behind.

A family named Craigen had built the sawmill. Two spruce trees were planted in front of the house. The trees are huge now and still stand beside C&L Lumber, owned by Mrs. Wright and her husband, C.L. "Bones" Wright.

Mrs. Miller said the trees almost fell victim to U.S. Highway 70 when it was built, but protests from citizens saved them.

Mrs. Miller worked much of the time while Miller fed cattle. Joetyne helped out from the time she was 13 until she was 17. Ironically, when she married and tried to get a job working for the postal service in Wisconsin, she was told they didn't hire women.

Mrs. Miller said the post office serviced an area from around the Skyland area (near Carrizo Creek and Sudderth) east to the Biscuit Hill area, past what is now Ruidoso Downs. Ruidoso had a post office at the time but the nearest post office to the east was Glencoe.

In 1971, the post office lost its designation when it became a sub-station of the Ruidoso post office.

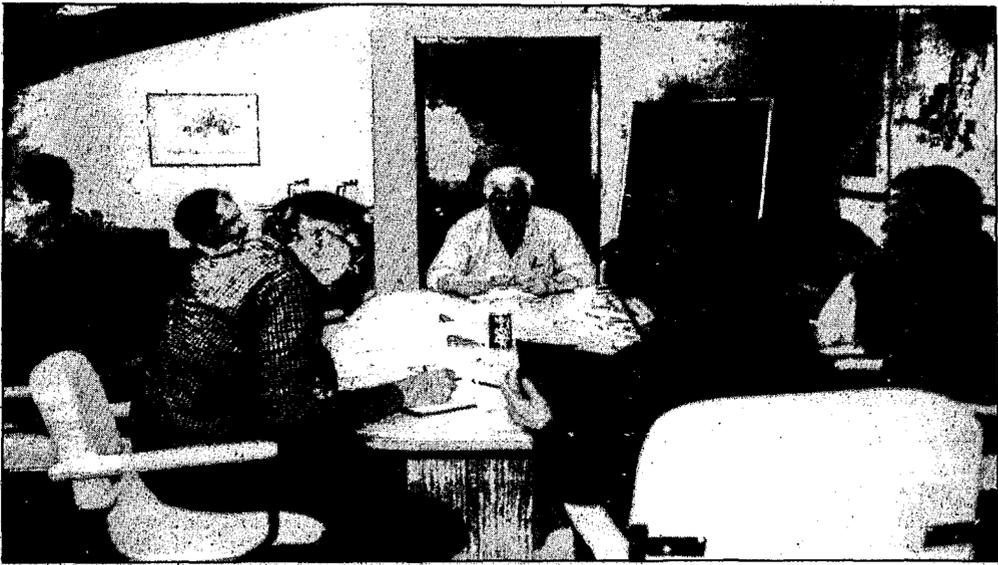

But Hollywood, that's Hollywood, New Mexico, remains a link between Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

Maidie and "Brother" Miller reminisce of his days as Hollywood postmaster.

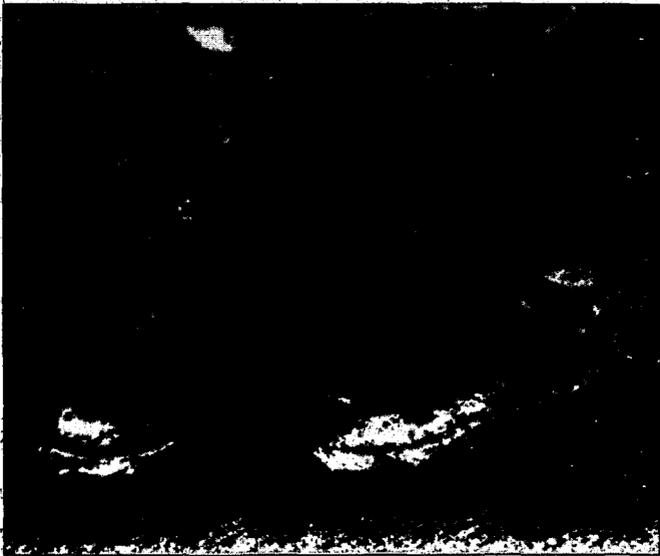

Elger "Brother" Miller and his wife, Maidie, when Miller became postmaster for Hollywood, New Mexico, bought the old Craigen sawmill in 1933.

Downs mayor assures neighbors—no annexation

by MOLLIE WARREN

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Ruidoso Downs neighbors had their worries over annexation put to rest Monday.

During a regular meeting, the issue of annexation of property outside Ruidoso Downs was officially put to an end when Cathy Ames read a letter to the village trustees and requested a motion to record the letter as a matter of public record.

The letter stated that a majority of the landowners involved are against annexation and asked that annexation not be considered again unless a majority of those owners petition for it.

Mayor Jake Harris signed the letter and assured upset residents of the area that the letter will be entered into the minutes and put on file. Harris said the issue of annexation will not be brought up again unless a majority of the residents request that such action be taken.

Although some residents came to the meeting prepared to argue the issue again, the signing of the letter seemed to satisfy the people who packed the boardroom and the trustees continued with other business.

Also, a request by Trustee Wilma Webb to terminate the contract of village attorney Richard Hawthorne was tabled.

The trustees voted that Webb had a conflict of interest and could not vote, if a vote on the termination was taken. Webb has filed a lawsuit against the village for wrongful termination of her job as village clerk, the job she held until she was terminated by Harris.

Webb served with Mayor J.C. Day and during the short time C.L. "Bones" Wright was mayor after the 1986 election. After several recounts, Harris was declared mayor and appointed Janice Polk as village clerk.

Trustee Wright had complaints that Hawthorne does not keep the trustees informed concerning legal actions being taken against the village.

"Well, first of all I work for the mayor," Hawthorne replied, which brought loud protests from trustees and the audience. Hawthorne then said he works for the village, but he reports to the mayor. He said if any trustees have questions, he will answer them. Wright disagreed.

In the municipal court report, Municipal Judge Harold Mansell and his alternate, Debbie Floyd, presented a letter protesting criticism they, along with court clerk Kathy Otero, had received through an anonymous letter received by the trustees at the last meeting. Mansell and Floyd have retained an attorney because of what they consider to be defamation, according to Mansell.

The Municipal Court and Village have been involved in an ongoing dispute over court revenues.

Mansell has said in previous meetings that the Ruidoso Downs Police officers are sending tickets to the Magistrates Court, which costs the village money. Harris, in a previous meeting, implied that the police department might not be satisfied with fines being levied by the judge against certain individuals.

In other regular business, the board voted to approve:

—Resolution 89-3, seeking CDBG grant funding to complete the sewer system.

—Resolution 89-1, increasing the lab fee charged suspects in drug cases to $75. The state increased the fee last year. Cities must charge suspects more or pay the bill themselves.

—Open meetings Resolution 89-2.

—A new contract for the building inspector, giving the inspector 90 percent of fees for the first $100,000 in construction and 60 percent of the fee on construction over $100,000.

The trustees tabled:

—Bids on wiring of the municipal building.

—Bids on roofing of the municipal building.

—Lodgers tax.

Also, the trustees voted to decrease Frank Thompson's $400-plus water bill to $50. Vandals apparently turned on the water meter for an unoccupied mobile home and after frozen pipes thawed, the home was flooded.

Area

there were 200 firemen, 10 crews and 50 overhead (management) people at the site.

Also in use were two helicopters and an air attack plane. A U.S. customs helicopter was in service until Monday afternoon moving fighters and equipment back and forth and doing water drops.

The Blue Creek fire was managed and is under investigation.

Sunday, the park service closed trails in the Chisos Mountain area. The trails were reopened Wednesday, according to Ed Wood, a ranger from Alamogordo, who was at the scene. The rest of the park was not closed. All campgrounds are open and there has been no threat to homes or people.

"One thing good to come out of this," said Paxton, "is the inter-agency cooperative effort. These are a bunch of good folks."

A pair of Peregrine falcons are nesting about one and half miles east of the fire. Concern for the birds has restricted helicopter operation, according to Paxton.

"They are in good shape and still on the nest. They are in no danger, now," Paxton said.

According to Wood, the fire was contained at 3 p.m. Tuesday and considered under control three hours later. Local park officials assumed control at 1 p.m. Wednesday. Two crews, Mescalero #3 and Acoma #1, will remain available for duty at the park.

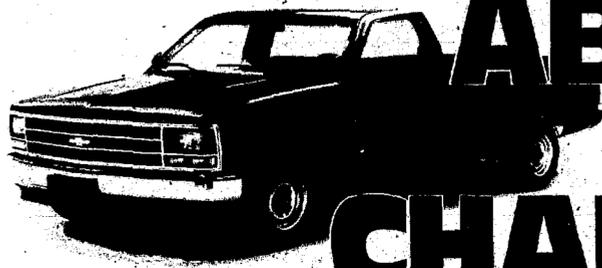

Other crews were dispatched Wednesday for the Guadalupe Mountain fire near the New Mexico-Mexico border.

Four rangers from the Smokey Bear station in Ruidoso were at the fire site. They are Steve Makowski, fire management officer; Jim Snow, tanker operator; Sam Tobias and Jim Rogge. The four are members of the class 2 interagency management team. According to Wood, also a member, the team was leaving Wednesday for the Guadalupe fire.

Wood said rehabilitation measures will be taken as needed on firelines. Natural vegetation will gradually erase effects of fire and firefighting efforts.

The Guadalupe fire was raging over 1,500 acres, Wednesday. Wood said four crews, the class 2 team and six engines would arrive Wednesday evening. The fire, which started Tuesday, is burning in park service land, Bureau of Land Management land and forest service land in and near McKittrick Canyon and on Camp Wilderness Ridge.

Lodgers group looks to new year budget

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
The Ruidoso Lodgers Tax Advisory Board (LTAB) is looking for non-profit groups to fund in next year's budget.

Meeting Wednesday at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center, the board discussed next year's budget, and agreed to solicit requests from eligible organizations. Requests must be made on the special form available at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center, and all forms must be returned before the next regular meeting on April 19.

LTAB has a policy of approving requests to non-profit groups only, and all requests must be for promoting and/or advertising the Ruidoso area.

Member Dick Weber suggested any private groups wishing to receive lodgers tax funds should approach the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, which can request funds from LTAB.

Meeting with a quorum Wednesday, members Mike Warren, Bobby Parsons and Weber reviewed a revised treasurer's report.

At their last meeting in January, LTAB requested Ruidoso financial adviser John Varley devise an easily-read report form showing the collections, payments and outstanding bills for all groups receiving lodgers tax money.

LTAB members complimented Varley on the form he presented that showed this year's LTAB budget to be nearly 100 percent expended.

Due to recent problems with lodgers tax funds in other New Mexico cities, Varley said he plans to meet with village lobbyist Mike Runnels and village clerk Tammie Maddox to develop guidelines to stay within state statutes on lodgers tax.

At the meeting Wednesday, the Lincoln County Heritage Trust requested $1,500 for reprinting Lincoln brochures and the Ruidoso Noon Lions Club requested $1,500 for the Mule Races.

LTAB will decide on requests at the May 16 meeting.

In other regular business, the board:

—Accepted $279 from Mildred Crocker on behalf of the Christmas Jubilee, to repay the village for a bill which was more than the $1,500 budgeted for the event.

—Heard a report from Convention and Visitors Bureau director Tracey Moran on recent activities.

The next meeting is at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 19, at the administrative center.

Jury panel gets early release

The jury panel called to hear a check case early this week in Carrizozo got an early release.

According to assistant district attorney Scot Key, Judge Robert Doughty, during his "voir dire" to the 45- to 50-member panel, asked if anyone knew the parties to the action. Key said Ralph Petty Jr., who happened to be a member of that panel, raised his hand, stood, identified himself and informed the group that the defendant had written him a threatening letter.

Petty, who confirmed making the statement, said the judge then declared a mistrial.

Key said Doughty dismissed all the prospective jurors since they couldn't sit fairly and impartially after hearing that statement.

Key said the case was the State versus Robert Ray Edmondson. He said defendant is charged with two counts of forgery and 11 counts of worthless checks in a "check kiting scheme" involving eight different banks. Key said those banks include The Bank of Ruidoso, Ruidoso State Bank and all their branches.

The bands performed music for which they rehearsed only that morning and received high compliments from the directors.

Luis Delgado, director of bands at Sandia High School, conducted the advanced band; Keith Jordan, director of bands at La Cueva High School, conducted the intermediate band and Tim Dressell, associate director of jazz bands at University of New Mexico performed a tuba solo. The directors also were judges at the solo ensemble Friday.

A valuable party favor

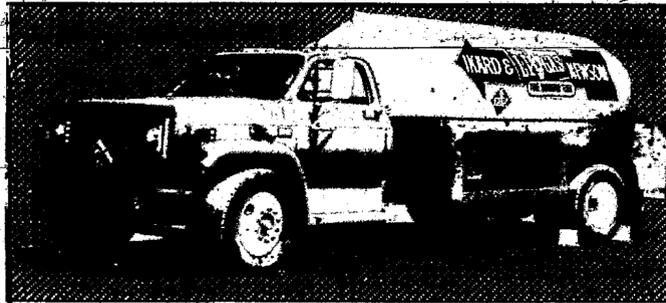

The next time you attend a children's party with metallic balloons, give the guests a valuable favor. Tell them that it's dangerous to float the balloons near power lines.

If the balloon floats into a power line, it could cause a fault in the power system. Worse, it could injure anyone who touches the balloon or its string since the metal in the balloon conducts electricity and could turn the string into a conductor.

Trustees approve purchase of new town hall

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan soon will have a new village hall.

After a short executive session during the regular town meeting Monday, Capitan Village Trustees Myrl Ray, Jack Pogue and David Rouleau authorized village attorney Don Dutton to begin the process of acquiring the Allen Property as a site for a new village hall.

Capitan Mayor Benny Coker said the property, which includes a 40-by-40-foot building and six lots, was offered to the village for $50,000. The building was constructed for the Allen Westernwear store and also housed the former Sagebrush and Old Corral's and most recently the Cattle Country Gallery. The property is large enough to accommodate expansion of the building for a meeting hall, Coker said.

No time-frame was set on the acquisition.

Also at the meeting, trustees approved a request for $2,500 from Water Defense Association (WDA) executive director Hubert Quintana. The money will help defray legal fees incurred during the recent water rights dispute with the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

Quintana reviewed the historical facts behind the recent decision in favor of WDA and the historical facts which led to it. Getting to that decision was more costly than expected, Quintana said.

To date, WDA's defense cost more than $700,000 in local and state government funds and private donations, Quintana continued. He said the tribe spent more than $6 million.

Chaves and Lincoln counties, Roswell, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs have appropriated funds to help WDA "get caught up" with expenses, Quintana said.

If the case goes to an appeals process, WDA legal costs are covered by $225,000 appropriated by the state legislature, he said.

Coker, a WDA board of directors member, said the contributions are strictly for legal fees, as salaries for Quintana and his staff and office costs are paid by a separate, unnamed, private donor.

"It costs lots of money in this battle of protecting our rivers and streams," Coker said.

In other business, trustees: —Heard a filter plant update from village engineer Jack Atkins. Village crews and Atkins opened the filter and removed the existing media. Presently, they are waiting for estimates on new media, control panels and sand blasting the interior. Once sandblasted, Atkins said he will determine the extent of problems.

Atkins said pressure valves were in good condition, needing only new pistons and seats. He complimented village employees Terry Cox and Dan Davenport for their good work.

He also said the manufacturer of the village well pump motor will replace the one which recently shorted out, at no cost to the village, as it was still under warranty.

—Awarded the used dump truck to high bidder Thunderbird of Roswell for $1,850 and the 1978 Dodge truck to Bob Smith of Lubbock, Texas, for $801.

—OK'd Capitan Police Chief Randy Spears' application for $17,600 for the annual Law Enforcement Protection Fund. The funds will finance a new police car, advanced training, equipment and supplies.

—Approved an insurance "rider" and traffic control for the Capitan Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July Parade.

—OK'd a request from the Capitan Cemetery Board to purchase side curtains for the cemetery canopy for $745. The canopy is available for funerals at Capitan Cemetery at no cost. They also complimented the board for their maintenance and improvements at the cemetery.

—Passed a resolution requiring the village to open and close all graves, and to supervise when families request hand-digging to satisfy traditions.

—Approved Resolution 89-4 authorizing application to the New Mexico Community Development Council for Community Development Block Grant funding assistance to construct a new waste water treatment facility.

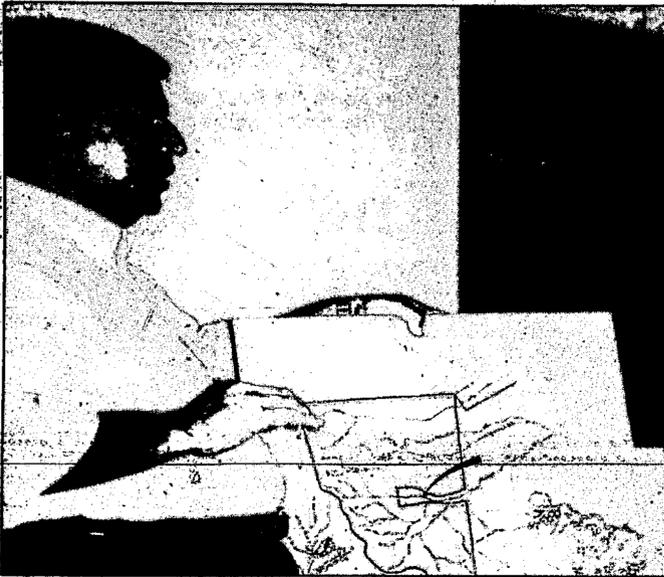

—Heard Coker assign Pogue to work with village clerk Janet Keel on the streets budget, trustee Norman Renfro on general budget, Rouleau on police and Ray on water, in preparation for the upcoming budget workshop. Department heads also will work on the different department budgets.

—Discussed possible involvement with the chamber to keep the Smokey Bear Historical State Park open more hours. Coker said he will propose a meeting with State Representative Dick Knowles after the State Legislature convenes.

—Heard Keel report the village received $30,000 from Small Cities Assistance three months early. The money goes into the general fund.

Capitan trustees (from left) Jack Pogue, Benny Coker are happy about the acquisition of a new village hall. Myrl Ray, Dr. David Rouleau and Mayor

Mock trial team does well

"Not guilty," said the jury.

And thus Pat Garrett was acquitted of the manslaughter charge of a fatal hit and run accident after a Halloween drinking party. An action which led to a first-place win for the Capitan Mock Trial team at the regional competition.

Garrett, portrayed by Capitan High School's Cindy Castillo, was the fictitious defendant in the regional round of the 11th annual New Mexico High School Mock Trial Competition conducted at the Chaves County Magistrate Court office in Roswell Saturday.

Capitan's mock trial team competed with teams from Dexter, House and Portales in two courtroom sessions, with each team taking a turn as the prosecution and as the defense for Garrett.

In the afternoon session, Capitan defense attorneys, coached by Bill MacVeigh obtained an acquittal on both charges for Garrett against prosecutors from House.

Defense attorneys Danielle Riska and Nanette Boyd successfully argued that Garrett was not the driver and the statute on rendering aid only applies to drivers of vehicles involved in an accident.

That morning, Capitan got a pair of convictions against Dexter and House.

Capitan's student prosecution lawyers were Gina Griego and Erin Keller. Castillo, also portrayed witness police officer Martinez.

Tug Bowden played Miko Galhardi, the foreign exchange student Garrett said was driving the car, and Chris Lincoln who gave the party.

Angela Schryer played eye witness Lew Wallace and Kerri Runnells portrayed character witness Terry Herrera, Garrett's friend.

Capitan won the regional trials last year and advanced to state where the team finished third behind Dexter.

Points are awarded for the opening and closing presentations by each side, direct and redirect examination of the witnesses and for the performance of the witnesses under oath. The scoring system does keep the best teams competing against each other, MacVeigh said.

"I feel we did real well. I know we beat Dexter. We were the only team which won a decision on the prosecution against Dexter," MacVeigh continued.

The coach said he thought the team's performance improved from last year, and credited much to the volunteer training by attorneys Robert Beauvais and Sandy Porter of Parsons and Bryant Law Firm in Ruidoso.

Teams which score convictions or acquittals do not necessarily advance to state competition, but MacVeigh said he believes his team has an excellent chance to go to trial in Albuquerque, April 7-9, in the district and municipal courtrooms.

Capitan's Mock Trial Team plans to meet Socorro in the district court this spring.

Mock trial competition is not based on school classification such as Class A, as in sports.

"It is a thinking competition," MacVeigh said.

School board members sworn

by DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan Board of Education elected Preston Stone as board president, Tom Trost, vice president and Ken Cox, secretary at a regular meeting Thursday.

Officers were elected after newly-elected board members Stone and Ron Roybal were sworn in by superintendent Scott Childress.

The board also approved Henry Sanchez as a volunteer track coach and Karen Payton as the superintendent's secretary.

Childress said Sanchez, retired track coach from Albuquerque Highland High School, offered his assistance to the Capitan boys and girls track teams. He was named the U.S. track and field coach of the year (for high school) while coaching at Highland in 1982.

Sanchez graduated from Capitan High School and lives in Lincoln. Payton will replace Francis Traylor who will replace retiring business manager Joan Pumphrey at the end of the school year.

The board also approved a proposed Community Based Program for special education students.

Special education teacher Blane Miller explained the proposed program for developmentally disabled (D-level) students in Capitan schools which will offer a transition from school to community with on-site job training for 16- to 21-year-old students from Fort Stanton Training School and Hospital.

Students will train for jobs which they are capable of doing, such as cleaning motel rooms or similar jobs at other businesses, with teacher assistance, Miller said.

The proposed program grew from parents' and guardians' concerns about students' transition from school to the adult world. Although currently not mandated by state law, state superintendent of public instruction Alan Morgan established a task force two years ago to create the program, in case legislation is enacted, Miller said.

The proposed program will entail cooperation between the New Mexico Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR) and the schools to teach "survival skills" to D-level students, Miller continued. Curriculum must be relevant and tied to community demands, with an assessment and evaluation procedure built into the program.

Miller, who took a course on the program last year, prepared the proposed Capitan program with a consultant and is "set to go" next fall.

"They (special education students) are not pencil and paper people, they are special people," Miller said.

The current Capitan special education program, which includes two periods in vocational training in the cafeteria and athletic rooms and emphasis on survival skills, meets state regulations. Capitan schools were sued two years ago because special education students were attending only half-days, Miller said.

Now students attend full days and some attend regular classes. Three students graduated in the one and a half years of full-day instruction.

"These kids have come a long, long way in a year," Miller said. Now they will take a step beyond by learning skills in the community.

If the legislature mandates the program, funding will be available from DVR, Miller said.

In other regular business, the board:

—Approved a $1,000 budget transfer from athletic to activity expense to defray costs incurred by activities such as Future Farmers of America, Future Homemakers of America and Mock Trial. Childress said the athletic fund was doing "real well" because of the large amount of football receipts.

—Learned that students will be dismissed at 12:30 p.m. Friday, March 17, to allow for a half-day teachers' in-service training about new English textbooks.

—Approved a calendar change for parent-teacher conferences from the Friday, March 31, to Tuesday, April 4. Students do not attend school that day.

—Listened to a report from elementary special education teacher Mary Lee Daniel about special education student Delaine Fredekind's upcoming trip to the International Special Winter Olympics at Lake Tahoe, Nevada. She explained the criteria for Special Olympics, as well as her own and Fredekind's involvement with the program. She said donors have contributed more than $2,000 toward the trip. More than 1,400 athletes from 20 countries will participate in the winter games.

—Learned that co-educational basketball intramurals for elementary students are scheduled to begin soon. Students will practice after class and games will be played Saturdays.

—Congratulated second grade teacher Mary Shanks, who was selected the New Mexico Soil Conservation 1988 Earth Team Volunteer for the fourth grade soil curriculum she developed.

The next board of education meeting is scheduled at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 14.

Henderson's successor to be named Friday

by CHARLES STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Sports Writer
The new Ruidoso High School head football coach and athletic director will be named by Friday, according to Sid Miller, school superintendent.

Miller said it hasn't been determined if the head coach and athletic director will be a combined position.

The dual positions were made available with the resignation of head football coach and athletic director Cooper Henderson who has accepted the head football coaching job in Artesia.

Miller said six candidates were selected from 27 applications for the head football position.

Mike Speck, defensive coach under Cooper Henderson, and Billy Henson of Animas, the coach with the nation's longest winning streak, are among the six finalists.

Miller said the candidates, for the most part, all had winning records and several had experience as athletic director. He said their teaching ability, references and how they have related to their community in the past were all considerations.

Miller said the teaching needs were in the basics of science, English and math, but added principal Tom Hanson has teachers he can shift that allows flexibility to the selection board.

"We may want to put them in physical education," said Miller, "but mainly we are looking at good teachers."

Other than Speck and Henson, the board selected Ted Hearn from Deming; Glen Johns from Goliad, Texas; George Janes from Hatch; and Doug Ragsdale from Kerrville, Texas.

Miller said the six candidates are being considered primarily for the football coaching position, adding that both positions would be named by the end of the week.

"Our recommendation for coach and athletic director and whether they will be a combined position will be determined by Friday," Miller said.

"We are going to make the best choice possible for the whole school climate," Miller said. "We feel very comfortable that we will have the coach and/or the athletic director that will make the whole school program a very good one, athletically and academically."

Speck has been with the Ruidoso Warriors for five years and was last year's defensive coordinator and Henderson's right-hand man.

Henson coached Class 2-AA Animas to a state championship this year and has enjoyed 53 games without a loss. The last Animas loss was in October of 1984.

Henson was a successful coach at Capitan, Roswell, Carlsbad and in Texas. He was an all-state football player for Carlsbad in the sixties.

Ragsdale successfully coached Goddard in the early seventies. Ragsdale is the principal of Kerrville High School, but has been that school's football coach before he became principal.

Ted Hearn has been a successful head football coach at Deming. Prior to Deming, Hearn coached at Moriarty and Santa Rosa.

George Janes has enjoyed fanastic success while he was in Silver City where he won ten consecutive district championships. Unfortunately for Janes, he left Silver City for Hobbs where he won only two games in three years. Last Spring he moved to Hatch. Sources say he was recently offered the Deming job, but declined.

Glen Johns was replaced as athletic director in January at Goliad High School in Goliad, Texas. In Johns three years at Goliad, he broke even the first year and had losing seasons his last two years. As AD he taught no other classes and now works with elementary PE and assists the power lift team.

Prior to Goliad, Johns coached at West Hardin and had a reputation for bringing losing teams to a winning program.

When I grow up....

"I'm gonna be just like Cooper Henderson," the impressionable pair of eyes seem to be saying. Coach Henderson leaves this week for the head football position at Artesia to bring the Bulldogs back to life.

Run, run, run: Warriors find it fun!

by CHARLES STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Sports Writer
On a clear sunny Tuesday, Ruidoso head track coach Ronny Maskew was on his hands and knees adjusting starting blocks while lecturing his front line of sprinters.

"Does anybody have any idea why we're moving these starting blocks another foot and a half behind the line?" he asked. "It's because you want to get to your top speed as soon as possible. You don't want a bunch of short choppy steps. That's what they used to do. We don't do that any more. The sooner you take the long strides the sooner you get to your top speed."

Maskew had their attention as he walked 20 yards down the track.

"That may mean at this point down here you're behind. I'm not concerned about that. What I'm concerned about is that you're ahead at the finish line."

Maskew then finished his point with an example.

"Has anyone watched Carl Lewis run. He's a man who doesn't use steroids. He always starts out behind, doesn't he? But I guarantee you in about 70 yards he's catching those runners and passing them. That's what we want to do, get to that full running stride as soon as possible."

Maskew then turned and walked down the field.

"Relax! Relax!" he shouted to some long distance runners measuring laps.

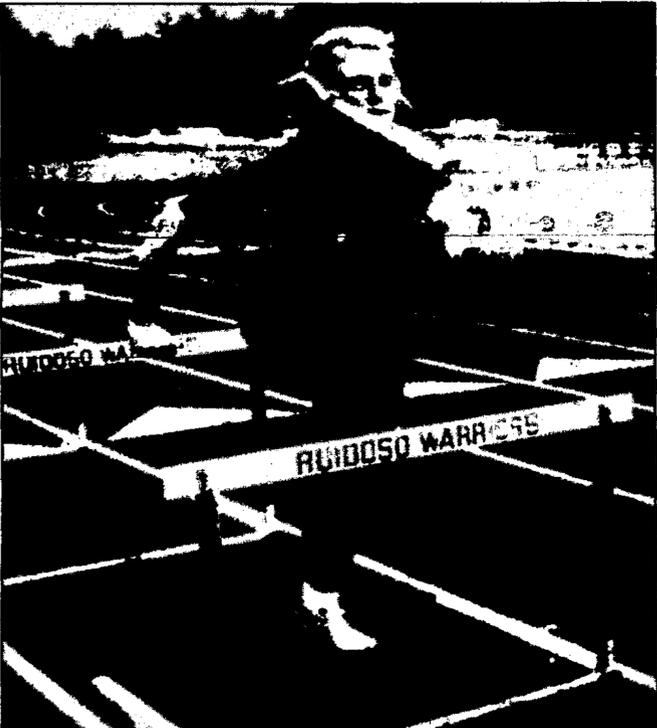

Everyday since track and field has begun new faces appear on the practice field as more students, feeling a kinship, join the team to test their potential, enjoy the outdoors and be with one another.

The giant West Texas Relays was an eye opener for Maskew. Some areas needed work. Some areas were a pleasant surprise.

"The kids are working a lot harder this week than last," said Maskew. "We worked hard on the sprints yesterday. There seems to be an increase in intensity. I expect to see a lot of improvement at Carlsbad this Saturday."

Maskew coached his cross country team to a district win this year and he clearly feels the Warriors have a good chance to repeat as track and field champions.

Two new faces on the field this week are James Atwood, Ricky Brazell. Atwood, attempting the pole vault for the first time ever, cleared the bars by several feet. He joins Micah Whitlock as the other team vaulter.

High stepping Missy Gosdin is in excellent form in hurdle practice as she "walks" the gates to prepare for the 300M.

Long jump coach Bode Williams measures a 20-footer of freshman Jose Marquez. Tracy Gann's RHS record, 20-7.

The effort of hurdler Linder Rad shows on every muscle of her body as she slips the boards. Rad also runs relays.

Missy Gosdin, left, and Rachelle Holstein are smiling. Both ran a 150 three seconds faster than the coach allowed.

JOCK TALK

By Charles Stallings

Remember! Tonight is Cooper Henderson and family appreciation night at the high school cafeteria. Bring a dessert. Let's make Henderson rue the day he left Ruidoso. Be maudlin, sappy, make up sentimental stories that didn't happen and lay that sweet syrup on this man and his family.

Here is an example. I remember the time Cooper Henderson ran two miles to get me a fire extinguisher to put out a blazing fire in my truck. See? It was really less than a mile, and I was having fun watching the blaze.

Tonight, 7 p.m., school cafeteria, say goodbye to a friend.

On April Fool's Day the White Sands Missile Range personnel will conduct their bi-annual tour for the public to the detonation site of the first atomic bomb site, called the Trinity Site. The second tour is scheduled for the first Saturday in October.

Elvin Harkey, 82, of Ancho witnessed the blast on July 16, 1945. Elvin told me that at the time of the blast he was flagging down a passenger train to see his boy off to World War II.

He said at the moment the cloud went up it seemed like lightning was coming from two different directions although it was a perfectly clear day. He said the engineer stopped the train and started walking away.

"I'm getting out of here, something strange is happening," Elvin recalls the engineer saying.

Elvin said the cloud was so beautiful he called his wife and they both sat out on the porch and watched it for an hour.

Elvin said the blast came as a surprise to him and everyone else he knew. He said it was probably good for everyone that there was no wind to cause a drift because of what it did to the animals. He said the back of a lot of cows had what he thought was white stuff.

"You kept wanting to brush that white stuff off the cow's back," Elvin said. "But it was actually the hair that turned white, same thing happened with cats and other animals."

The strange happening never caused Elvin to leave the area. It took him too long to get here.

"When I was a boy, we left a little town near Plainview, Texas, and headed for New Mexico by covered wagon pulled by two mules. We left in May and reached Ancho by Christmas," Elvin said. That's 275 miles in seven months.

Last week at the West Texas Relays a 5'6" high jumper cleared the bars at 6'8", one foot and two inches taller than his own height. That's remarkable.

Avena Dancer waltzes over the wire to win Friday feature

Avena Dancer raced powerfully through the stretch and was never seriously threatened to take a convincing win in Friday's feature race at Sunland Park.
Giving leading jockey Mike Lidberg his third riding win of the day, Avena Dancer went five and 1/2 furlongs in a time of 1:05.4 to return $12.20, $6.00, $3.40.
Street Chick and her rider Joe Martinez tried to rally in the stretch, but was second best to pay $4.40, $3.20.
Angel For Tonight was the longest price on the toteboard in the seven-horse field and, at 18 to one, hung on for third to pay $5.00.

The favorite in the field, Caged Bird, tired in the final furlong to finish fourth.
Sharing riding honors with Lidberg were Joe Martinez and apprentice Lynette Fincher.
Martinez kept pace with Lidberg by also completing the hat trick getting wins in the 4th, 8th, and 10th races.
Fincher entered the win circle for the first time on a recognized race track when she piloted Control John to a come-from-behind upset win in the 12th race. The victory will be one to remember as Control

John made a bold move on the outside and just got up in the final stride to win at 53 to one odds and pay $109.20 to win.

Real Bitty Bar caught his stride and went on to beat Real Black Win in the $10,000 New Mexico Horse Breeder's Association Sale Stakes at Sunland Park Track Sunday. Real Bitty Bar was timed in :20.19 for 400 yards. Lute Proctor and was timed in :20.19 for 400 yards. The winner is owned by John Clemmons of Roswell.

Real Bitty Bar is a really big winner

Real Bitty Bar veered to the inside at the break and was thrown offstride, but the three-year-old got it all back together quickly and caught his best stride to pull off to a one length win in Sunday's $10,000 New Mexico Horse Breeder's Association Sale Stakes at Sunland Park.

Contested at 400 yards, Real Bitty Bar was timed in :20.19 and beat nine other New Mexico-bred sophomores under Lute Proctor to pay $7.00, $4.80, $4.20.

The son of Real Jet Wind out of Itty Bitty Bar is owned and bred by Roswell resident John Clemmons and is no stranger to stakes competition. The colt finished third in a New Mexico-bred State Fair Futurity last year and a close up second to Slip Into Mink in the Sparkling Moolah Handicap this past February, both at Albuquerque.

Trained by Jim Clemmons, Real Bitty Bar won his second career race to pocket $6,000 and push his career earnings mark to $18,348.

Ben Tapia's Real Black Wind broke first from the gate, but was caught midway through the dash and finished as the runner-up to pay $8.20, $6.40.

Dash's Threat was one half of a Lonnie Barber-trained entry and the runner finished third to pay $5.40 to show.

The Petree Farms' Smooth And Perfect went off as the favorite but didn't break well and finished fifth.

Racing resumes Wednesday, March 15, with a Tri-Super carry-over of $38,524. First post time is 12:30 p.m.

Blue Hoss, owned by Mollie Kelly and Lorann Mattox, surprised a quality field of thoroughbreds to win the feature race at Sunland Park Saturday. Ridden to victory by Glen Murphy, Blue Hoss was clocked at 1:05.1.

Blue Hoss upsets the favorite Saturday

Blue Hoss broke on top, then patiently dropped back behind the winner before exploding in the stretch to take an upset victory in Saturday's feature race at Sunland Park.

Rated perfectly by rider Glen Murphy, Blue Hoss beat a quality field of older thoroughbreds by running a 1:05.1 at 5 and 1/2 furlongs. Even though he had won the Texas Derby last December at Sunland, fans let the four-year-old stakes winner go off at 10-to-one odds and pay $22.40, $9.00, $5.00.

The one-length victory was the jet-black gelding's seventh career win for El Paso owners Mollie Kelly and Lorann Mattox.

Poly's Director looked like the winner until succumbing to Blue Hoss's kick in the final furlong and placed second to pay $12.20, $8.00.

Third place belonged to Irish Star Buck, $3.60.

Miss Native Cash, with Kenner Lidberg aboard his third winner, won the quarter horse feature dash by outrunning a field of fillies and mares at 400 yards. Timed in :19.91, the four-year-old won by a longshot Baby Be Gone.

The track's Tri-Super wager did not have a winner on Saturday and the carryover was at $33,173 for Sunday's racing.

White Sands sets tour

The Plant Corner

by Sally Black

Dear Sally: Why do you write more about foliage plants than blooming plants? I like plants that bloom better. Thank you, Robert.

Dear Robert: Easy answer—"light."

Blooming plants must have sunlight or its equivalent to make the flowers. I'm sorry but many folks just will not use adequate supplemental light. It would be interesting to make a check to how many have attached a fluorescent tube grow-bulb directly above their plant, if there is not an over-head sky light.

Also, as I have written, some fruit bearing trees need spotlights on three sides plus southern or western exposure. When HE said, "let there be light" HE really meant it.

The solution for growing blooming plants is quite simple, proper lighting.

More people have less time and inadequate lighting for growing house plants, so they continue growing foliage plants. The lower the light plant is grown under, the less water and food is required.

Another problem in growing flowering plants in the home is the heat factor. If the plant is anywhere near the source of heat, especially the forced-air type, it will cause the bud to dry and drop.

Flowers loathe tobacco smoke polluted air. Smoke settles on the bud and makes it unable to open.

It would be a good idea for all architects to keep in mind the plants' needs and design our homes and office buildings appropriately. Architects almost always put the "heat vents" under or near the windows. I understand about the windows being the "cold spot" in the room, but I say a few feet away from the window would save our plants.

Plus the cost would be minimal for extra lighting if done at building time. If you plant to build or remodel be sure to check with your builder about heat vent locations and plant lighting.

There is a very good book about this subject "Interior Plantscaping" by Richard L. Gains. Lots of good ideas, I'm sure you will enjoy. This book deals with some decorators who place plants for "effects" without having any idea what light is needed for a healthy growth.

One should never give a blooming plant as a gift not knowing the available light in which to grow them. If uncertain about proper light, give a plant of the more low light type. A good rule of thumb is to choose a plant for the light in which it will be placed for growing.

Bear in mind, however, when lighting plants for effect for a particular occasion, it is better to err on the side of too little light rather than too much. Harsh lighting that is overdone is much less effective than softer lighting provides.

Should adaptability be an important advantage as far as lighting is concerned, it is advisable to use spotlights that can be adjusted much more readily than fixed lighting. Spotlights can be used to augment the more permanent lighting and may be used to highlight particular plants in the room for a particular purpose. But it is important that such light should not be placed too close to the plants as there is every possibility that foliage will be damaged by the extra heat that is generated.

It is worth the trouble and expense taken to ensure that plants are provided with proper lighting. There is nothing less pleasing than the sight of a dust-covered plant fighting a battle to survive in a corner of a room that is badly lit and too close to a hot air vent.

I could say here we could use a "thousand points of light" but I think that has already been said.

Airport planners frustrated over lack of village funding

by DORIS CHERRY
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Municipal Airport Planning Board (MAPB) members expressed frustration over not receiving funds to market the old airport site during a regular meeting Wednesday.

With chairman Frank Kolb and member Rick Evans absent, member Don Shaw chaired the meeting and reported on the Tuesday night Ruidoso Village Council meeting.

Shaw appeared before the council asking for a reaffirmation that the planning board is designated as the entity responsible for marketing the property.

"Presently, we are seeing uncoordinated activity by private citizens, including classified advertising in a major metropolitan newspaper and individuals making contact with various hotel groups," said Shaw before the council Tuesday. "The MAPB feels strongly that the effort needs to be expended in a professional manner with coordination with other groups and individuals with economic development interests," he added.

Shaw said the master plan calls for $15,000 in marketing funds, and he repeated a previous request that the council allocate those funds.

Although councilors agreed the MAPB is the designated group to market the airport tract, they didn't vote Tuesday to provide funds.

"The council still does not understand the goals of this board," said MAPB member Herb Brunell Wednesday.

Shaw said MAPB will have to proceed as best as it can and will name the site by the next meeting, an action requiring no funds.

After digressing from the funding subject to hear a report from planning director Cleatus Richards about a meeting with the Ruidoso Board of Education, MAPB members returned to the subject of funding.

Shaw said he was concerned if the village does nothing and a year from now a $2.5 million asset is just "sitting there growing grass."

Village Councillor Al Junge said not everyone agrees on what needs to be done. He agreed MAPB did not "get a fair shot" at the council meeting. Shaw said a certain percentage of the community is saying MAPB has not marketed for any other use of the airport land.

"We are still actively looking for uses for that land," he said. "We shouldn't just stop cold, because a concept proposal is in the works," Shaw continued.

Discussion led to marketing the proposed hotel, which Shaw said will not be marketed by the golf course developer. He said it would be only "prudent" to have a marketing plan in place for a variety of things.

Brunell said the council seems to find funds in other "magic" places, if funding was available, he said MAPB could advertise the land's availability for other uses than the current proposal.

Richards briefly discussed the proposals presented to the Ruidoso Board of Education, which will trade small areas of land on the White Mountain School tract for land on the adjacent McCarty Tract. The proposal to extend Warrior Drive will take about 1.2 acres of the school tract.

Ruidoso Board of Education will appoint a special committee to review the proposal and meet with village officials. A fence will be erected between the street and the ball field behind the school, if the extension is constructed, Richards said.

The village has not contacted McCarty, but Richards said the street extension will "improve the appearance" of his (McCarty's) property. To construct the street, a certain amount of the property will have to be condemned, Richards acknowledged.

Shaw directed Richards to invite McCarty to the next meeting on March 29.

Member Wayne Townsend questioned if the Warrior Drive extension will interfere with the teen center in the old hangar. Richards said the facility can still be used until the land is needed for other purposes.

The Blaugrund Tract was considered in executive session at the village meeting Tuesday, and councilors voted to lease the tract to enable purchase by September, Junge said.

In other regular business, the board discussed the water proposal for the golf course. Shaw said the developer will pay for the engineering study to investigate the extent of water available. Brunell's concern about priorities on water use in case of water shortages, prompted Junge to invite him to speak at the next council meeting.

The board meets next at 2 p.m. Wednesday, March 29.

Herb Brunell makes a point during an airport planning board meeting Wednesday.

Sheriff commends deputy

Lincoln County Sheriff's Department deputy Orlando Montes is credited with saving a life on March 9.

Montes, during a routine call performed CPR on an individual until emergency medical personnel arrived. The patient was listed in stable condition in Albuquerque Tuesday.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Department and Sheriff James McSwane, in a formal letter, commended Montes for his actions.

According to the letter, Montes and Ruidoso Downs officers Bobby Angermiller and Bob Layher, responded to the March 9 call.

"The importance of all departments working together can always have a positive effect on, not only the officers, but the departments as a whole," said McSwane in his letter of commendation.

McSwane also reported other sheriff's activities which included investigation of a burglary of an Alto Post Office box.

Postmaster Sherry Hobbs reported the theft of Louie Lama's post office business box, March 11. The box apparently was forced open by a small, round object, such as a screw driver, and the contents removed, said McSwane.

Investigator Paul Wersich

dusted for fingerprints, with no results, McSwane said. Federal postal agents were notified, McSwane added.

An investigation is continuing of a burglary reported by Sherry Estavillo in Agua Fria Estates, March 9. Deputy Gilbert Sambrano responded.

The sheriff also warns business persons to watch for counterfeit $20 bills. Two bills believed to be counterfeit were reported by a business in Carrizozo on March 8, McSwane said. Those bills are being examined.

The Silver Lining

Saint Patrick's Day

This is being sent to you on March thirteen, and will reach you on the eve of Saint Patrick's Day, a sacred and joyful day in honor of the patron saint of the emerald Isle. This day is special, not only in Ireland, but also in the United States and worldwide.

After a late start, the warm weather has picked up the last few days helping Mother Earth be ready for the special day. All in one day the lilac leaves are out in brilliant, shining new green. Down near the river the Shamrock leaves are beginning to appear. New apricot blooms are shining like tiny stars in the daytime on the trees.

Down around San Patricio, the weeping willows are out in new leaf cheering the valley amidst the apricot and early plum blossoms.

When the old historic church was being built, a young Irish priest happened through the country. At that time the valley was unusually green and beautiful; so this priest said:

"This country is as green as Ireland. Why not name the church after Saint Patrick. And so it became. On Saint Patrick's Day there will be mass at 5:30 at the Church of Saint Jude - carrying on the long tradition of celebration at the old Church of San Patricio.

The Holy Child

Saint Patrick was born about the year 389, in what is now Wales, when England was occupied by the Romans. His grandfather and father were both clergymen, and Patrick showed signs of his destiny in early childhood. When he was about sixteen years of age he was carried off by a band of Irish pirates and carried to Ireland where he became a shepherd. He began teaching Christianity to his captors, who developed a great fondness for the youth and took his teachings to heart.

After six years, in a sacred vision he was urged to escape. He made his way to the coast and got on board a boat carrying Wold Hounds to the coast of France. Finding his way to a monastery in Gaul he began studying. He soon began hearing voices in his mind from Ireland saying:

"We pray thee, Holy youth, to come and walk again amongst us as before."

After many turning points in his life, Saint Patrick was sent to Ireland. Here he introduced Christianity to the people, and the Faith took root and spread throughout Ireland, and from there to Northern Britain and the rest of the world.

Through the work of Saint Patrick, Ireland became a stronghold for the Christian faith.

The story of the Irish in American began in the 1840's when a potato famine spread dire poverty and hunger through the land. They came to the United States by the thousands - surly some of the most grateful people in history to arrived in a new home. Since that time they have played a brilliant role in our history - building railroads, serving in the cavalry, and spreading happiness and cheer with their kindness of heart, their devout nature and their goodwill. Their songs and legends became American treasures.

Many presidents have carried Irish names including McKinley, Kennedy and Reagan.

A Family Of 'The Auld Sod'

Among the many families here among us of Irish descent are Mel and Monica O'Reilly.

When I first met Mel about seventeen years ago, I thought Mel's name was a contraction of the name "Melvin."

It turned out that he is named after Saint Mel, an Irish saint that legend says is a cousin to Saint Patrick. Before traveling to this country, Mel's father, Thomas O'Reilly, was living at Longford, County Longford, Ireland. Here stands the historic Saint Mel Cathedral. Also Saint Mel's College is here. Mel's father attended college at Saint Mel's.

When he came to the United States in 1920, Thomas O'Reilly married the former Catherine Frances Doyle, whose parents had come from County Clare, Ireland.

They raised twelve children, Mel being the sixth. He was born August five, 1947, in New York City.

It was Mel's happy destiny to arrive in New Mexico, in the true tradition of the Irish to move ever westward. On September eleven, 1971, in New York, he was married to the former Monica Anne McCormic, a native of Carlsbad, the daughter of Don McCormic and the former Dorothy Cox.

They have three sons: twins, Mel Dylan and Colm Brian, born in Ruidoso New Years Eve, 1972; and Patrick Brendan, born in Ruidoso November 16, 1975. It seems only yesterday the O'Reilly family came down and helped put up the flagpole that was a gift from Ken Green.

And so the proud Clans of O'Reilly and McCormic, honored in the Emerald Isle, are here among us as a beloved true American family. They dearly love Ruidoso and all our mountain world.

We are all Irish at heart on Saint Patrick's Day, so let us have a verse of two of a favorite Irish song:

"By Kilarney's lakes and fens,
Emerald Isles and winding bays,
Mountain paths and woodland dells,
Memory ever fondly strays.
Bounteous Nature loves all lands.
Beauty wanders everywhere
Footprints leaves on many strands
But her heart is surely there.
Angels fold their wings and rest
In that Eden of the West
Beauty's home, Kilarney, Ever fair, Kilarney."

Commissioners get EDCLC update Mon.

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

The Lincoln County Commission heard a detailed report Monday from George Puckett, executive director of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDCLC).

During a regular meeting, commissioners heard Puckett list accomplishments of the group that receives major funding through the county. Those accomplishments range from organizing and forming committees to attracting two small businesses to the area.

Puckett said the quality of life in this county facilitates attracting businesses. He said not all efforts will be directed at attracting new businesses.

"An important function of any economic developer is the facilitation of expansion of existing businesses. A job created by a local enterprise is just as valuable as an imported one," he said.

Puckett said EDCLC is working on a plan to offer college credit courses in Ruidoso, perhaps as soon as next fall.

"We need to develop a new attitude in this county," said Puckett. "We have licked our wounds long enough. It is time to roll up our sleeves and get to work and prove one more time that when the going gets tough, the tough get going," he concluded.

In other regular business Monday, the commission:
—Heard a report from road superintendent Tommy Hall.

—Rescheduled a board of finance meeting for 1 p.m. March 22.

—Conducted a public hearing over a Community Development Block Grant application to conduct a recycling study.

—Conducted a public hearing over a public housing ordinance the county will be required to adopt if a CDBG request is successful.

—Tabled a recommendation by the Planning and Zoning Commission over Mountain Lakes Subdivision.

—Approved a contract with the State Agency on Aging.

—Accepted, but noted discrepancies, in an EMS Fund Act application.

—Adopted civil defense/hazmat requirements.

—Accepted the Treasurer's Report, the payroll register and the accounts payable register.

—Approved an application for the Lincoln Fire Department to get compensation for volunteer firefighters when they reach retirement.

—Learned from Chairman Bob Hemphill that 18 instead of 20 applications are being reviewed for the county manager post. He said Laura White and Carl Davidson sent resumes and request applications, but never officially applied for the job.

—Got an invitation to the Carriozo Little Theatre melodrama to benefit Lincoln County senior olympians.

Opinion

EDITORIAL

Ruidoso won't soon forget Cooper Henderson.

He hit town five years ago and took over the young Ruidoso High School Warriors football team that had finished its last season without a win. Things didn't look too good for Warrior football.

But, by the next fall, the soft-spoken young coach had whipped his team into shape and led them into the state play-offs. It took Cooper another year to produce a state championship team.

While the self-disciplined and highly-organized coach was building a winning team by teaching the basics of football, he also was striving to teach some lessons in setting goals and carrying them through. Coach Henderson is just as interested in turning out strong, well-balanced young people who will become good and respectable citizens as he is in training quarterbacks and tackles. He stressed academics and high standards in every area for the members of his winning teams.

Meanwhile, the citizens of Ruidoso got behind those winning Warriors. Folks were drawn almost magically to Horton Stadium each Friday during football season. Blue and gold became the color of choice, and the optimistic spirit of Henderson's gridiron heroes spread through the town like a shining light.

Henderson will be missed, but he's left a legacy that Ruidoso won't soon forget. Ruidoso High School athletes stand tall and proud these days, and that pride, instilled by the dedicated coach and athletic director, will remain with the Warriors and with their fans—win or lose.

Good luck in Artesia, Coach! We hope your Bulldogs do nearly as well as your Warriors! You will be missed.—fj

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:

During the two public meetings, held in February, concerning the proposed golf course, I submitted written questions concerning the golf club venture and the availability of adequate water supplies and the overall impact on Ruidoso. I asked that the ensuing answers be based on substantiated, verifiable evidence. These letters were hand delivered to members of the Village Council and the Municipal Airport Planning Board. As of this date, March 8, I have not received any answers, verifiable or otherwise. Therefore, there are questions about available water for the "Hubbard Golf Course Project" which should have some official answers from the State Engineer.

Mr. Potter, the Village Manager has alluded to surface and underground water-rights, which I presume could be assigned to the project. During the last Village Council meeting, he correctly stated that underground water belongs to the public, but failed to advise that it was under the direct control and supervision of the state engineer. What water rights will be assigned to such a project? Most certainly, Mr. Potter, who has assured the developer the availability of water, should tell the people of Ruidoso what they are.

The only underground water we are able to learn about, which is owned by the Village, are the wells in the Eagle Creek Well Field. These rights are junior water rights and are subject to a beneficial use clause in the "offer of judgment" from the state engineer, which the Village accepted. This clause indicates that if these water rights are not put to beneficial use by November 1990 that they could be in jeopardy.

If the state engineer has put his stamp of approval on some reasonable use of public water for this project, then the people of Ruidoso should be informed. On the other hand, if there is some secret plan to trade some of Ruidoso's good senior water rights for this purpose, and leave Ruidoso dependent upon the questionable Eagle Creek Well Field, then, I don't like it, and will hope that others will join me in a formal protest with the state engineer, requiring proof in court that Ruidoso's water supply is not impaired.

Sincerely,
Genevieve Sewell

DEAR EDITOR:

As a new restaurant, we have been in business in Ruidoso for almost a year now, and have met with positive results in many areas. The citizens of Ruidoso, as well as the tourists, have been very supportive of us, and we have appreciated everyone's patronage. However, there is a situation that needs to be addressed, and since the Police Department has chosen to permit the following to occur, we feel it necessary to make others aware, as it might be your children.

I would like to state here that 99% of the kids out here are law abiding, and will cooperate with the authorities if the 1% of the troublemakers are dealt with.

1. Minors drinking alcohol.
2. Urinating and Vomiting on parking lot/sidewalk.
3. Physical threats to employees: Several times in the past, kids have been asked to move their vehicles as they were obstructing traffic. Not only do they refuse, but on several occasions, they have made verbal threats to our employees.

4. Obstructing traffic flow, double parking. We have counted up to 300 cars in our parking lot at one time! (The lot usually has a capacity of around 70.) There is no way a customer can enter or leave most of the time. So they drive somewhere else.
5. Littering - Our routine on weekend mornings is to pick up beer cans, bottles, vomit, broken glass, and other trash left from the night before.
6. Theft of property.
7. Spinning tires, high rates of speed in parking lot. An 11-year-old child ran from our store to his car, and a speeding car almost ran him down. His mother saw this in time to scream and stop him.
8. Intimidating customers (foul language, blocking traffic) These kids come in several times a night wanting to use our restroom. They impede customers coming and going. They are rude to them.

9. Kids darting in and out of traffic-at night-with cars driving at high rates of speed.
10. Fighting
11. Damage to employees property. Vandalism

Last summer, the police were asked to clear our parking lot of kids, and they did, for awhile. They then informed us that they could no longer do this as the parking lot did not have a "Customer Parking Only" sign posted, and we were on private property. Our landlord put two of them up, and the police resumed clearing the parking lot. Now they are still often refusing to answer our calls for help. An officer told us, "We don't have time to keep running down and clearing out your parking lot. We have 10,000 people in this town. Why don't you look out for your own damn store. We're too busy."

I know Ruidoso has 10,000 people. The crew and management here are some of them. So are the children that are getting into God knows what in our parking lot. If the Police Department cannot enforce the above VIOLATIONS OF LAW, what are they doing? All we are asking is that the Police Department make a serious attempt at helping us made this town a safer place to live by a reasonable increase in their patrols here. As of now, they are promoting alcohol abuse, reckless driving, and causing our loss of business. This letter is one more attempt in getting them to do their job. It will not be our last until this problem is dealt with. Let's not wait until disaster strikes before something is done.

Don Cook,
Owner, Domino's Pizza
Ruidoso

DEAR EDITOR:

In reading the numerous letters written regarding the airport land it seems to me that a stranger to our area could easily get the wrong picture of the finest playground in the arid Southwest, namely Ruidoso, New Mexico. From all the hue and cry one would think our kiddies are being abandoned in some desert more or less.

Are our kiddies hungry? If so we have Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonalds, amid a host of others. And yes, a pizza parlor! You name it, we got it. And a wonderful doughnut shop!

Do you wanna bowl? Take your choice. And lo and behold a miniature golf course is yours for the asking. Horseback riding? Yes, and as far as you wanna go.

Our skiers flock here in a cloud of dust, not 18" of snow, and icy roads. Is that bad, or is it good?

Wanna go hunting? You name it, we got it. You can lose yourself in the Mescalero Apache Reservation in a short 30-minute drive from Ruidoso, and you will swear the clock has been turned back 100 years!

And always remember, if you come from deep in Texas, or maybe not so deep, where it is necessary to have air conditioning to survive, do not lie under a friendly pine tree without a goodly blanket over you. You can get chilled to the bone in the heat of the day.

And forget your smog, you and the kiddies, we no have got! The air here is pure as an angel's undergarments.

We do not have a mall, but we got Wal-Mart! Way out here in the back woods. Imagine that.

And in case you get bruised up in skiing, horseback riding or whatever we got a pretty fair Medical Center to patch you up.

Like horse racing? We got 70 days of it, climaxed by the World's Richest Horse Race! When you attend the races be sure and take your jacket. Just a grief shower and you can get chilled to the bone. Now I ask you is that a sin?

Wanna go fishing? We got fishing galore. Try it.

Wanna fly in here now? We will soon boast the finest airport of its kind in the entire state of the southwest. Is that bad?

Not bad, not bad at all!
Jim Tully,
Ruidoso

DEAR EDITOR:

The Architectural Control Committee would like to make clear that Jimmy Neeley is still building inspector of Alto Village, though he has been terminated as building inspector of Ruidoso.

He has held the position here for five years. The quality of construction is considerably higher than it was before he came, and we and our homeowners are very grateful for his expertise and for his protection of our interest. We have never received a complaint from any building contractor.

We have found Jimmy to be firm in his expectations that the building codes be followed, but always patient, courteous and helpful in dealings with both owners and contractors. His overall performance has been excellent.

We consider him to be a person of integrity, intelligence and dependability. He has contributed a great to this whole area. It will be the residents of Ruidoso and Alto who will be the losers at his departure.

Reporter's Round By Doris Cherry

Ah, spring. Ahhh...chooo!

Indeed, spring has sprung. My nose can tell, to the exact day, when the male juniper trees decide the weather is balmy enough to begin their annual cycle of torment to all of us sensitive to their grains of pollen.

Each grain is microscopic, however, when the grains puff out of the trees in mass, the pollen appears as a yellow cloud...of misery for me and many other sensitive persons. Examined under a microscope, the grains appear as hooked cones.

No wonder sensitive noses and eyes suffer.

As the weather began to warm recently, the difference between the male and female juniper trees became quite apparent. The males, with their cones swelling, began getting redder, until they achieved a rust color that would make the uninitiated believe they were dying.

Far from death, in fact, pollen is the essence of life, so to speak.

When the juniper trees, covering millions of acres in Lincoln County, begin to pollinate, the little puffs soon turn the entire sky to a very pale yellow, resembling a dust storm, with no wind.

Last week pollen levels must have been at their highest ever. My eyes and nose watered... my children seemed to cry for no apparent reason... other people were seen holding tissues to their noses...

Stores must be selling record numbers of tissues and antihistamines. Customers in a local pharmacy were purchasing such hay fever medications and the pharmacists said they were doing a good business.

According to a published report, the juniper count on one day last week in Albuquerque exceeded the count for the entire month of March 1988. A nurse at UNM's Medical Center said she had never seen the count so high.

And that was in Albuquerque, somewhat distant from the juniper forests of the Sandia Mountains.

Just imagine what it must be like here, in the midst of our vast juniper forests.

I theorize the high count comes from the large amount of rain which fell on the juniper forests last summer. With all the rain came all the new growth on the trees. And on the new growth are the little juniper cones.

The cones are something like pine cones, only much smaller, and they grow in clusters. The prodigious pollen counts must be to ensure the propagation of the species.

I see no danger in the species failing, especially when producing the extreme amount of pollen.

This fall, the female trees will probably produce a bumper crop of little purple juniper berries. These "berries" are not very juicy, however birds, skunks and coyotes eat them. I've been told humans consumed them also, during prehistoric times, and juniper berries flavor at least one alcoholic beverage.

March normally is the month for juniper pollination, with the cycle lasting about three weeks. The recent very warm weather brought the pollination cycle on full-blast.

Maybe the high winds will tear the pollen from the little cones until nothing is left, except all the residual pollen and dust left on the house plants, furniture, curtains...

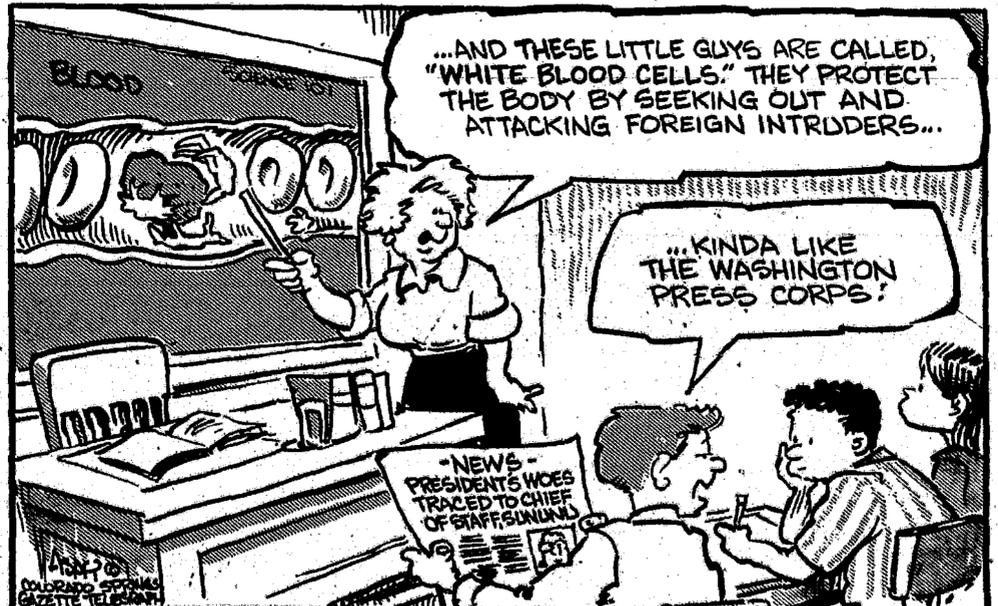

Ah spring...ah spring cleaning. Anyway, Happy Saint Patrick's Day. Ah...chool!

DECA members describe 'Free Enterprise' system

by MOLLIE WARREN
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Students from Ruidoso DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) presented a program on Free Enterprise at the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club Wednesday.

Charlotte Jarratt, the club's free enterprise chairman, coordinated the program.

Roger Marshall Jr., Mark Reynolds and Billie Strohmeyer presented the program.

Marshall distributed questions on free enterprise to audience, and discussed the answer to each question. Many participants were surprised to learn that the average business makes only zero to five percent net profit.

Reynolds spoke to the group on economic systems in the world, saying capitalism, which is practiced in the United States, leaves citizens the right to make decisions concerning business and make profits. The United States has the second highest per capita standard of living in the world, according to Reynolds. Sweden's is higher. Reynolds gave pygmies in Africa as an example of the traditional economic system. Standards remain unchanged and there is no profit.

In communism, as in the Soviet Union, jobs are assigned when a person gets out of school. The citizens can make no personal profit.

In socialism, as in Great Britain, there is some free enterprise, but many services are government-sponsored. Taxation is high in order to pay for the many government services. He said that the United States is moving toward socialism and away from free enterprise, with all the government programs in force.

Strohmeyer, last year's state DECA president, spoke to the group about Japan's capitalism versus United States capitalism.

She said that Japan has progressed further than the United States in the past few years, but they have made employee sacrifices in the process.

She said Japanese employees lack self-esteem and that the trend is to work for the good or the corporation and not the employee. She said Japan capitalism is 'near-perfect,' but the suicide rate has increased from 17 percent to 26 percent in the last 10 years.

"Is it really worth it?" Strohmeyer asked.

The Japanese work 15 to 18 hours a day with hardly any time for family and little personal reward other than keeping up with the standard of living, according to Strohmeyer.

Strohmeyer said that local DECA representatives just returned from the state convention where they won several awards. She praised Eddie Parker, the group's sponsor.
