Ruidoso Downs runs recordbreaking weekend

Big crowds betting big money teamed up to break records at Ruidoso Downs Race Track this weekend.

The twin-trifecta carryover pool grew to $243,038 Sunday as no one correctly selected the winning combination. The carryover pool is the largest in Ruidoso Downs history, exceeding Saturday's record $185,448.

Also Sunday, Go Street Music, the defending champion, won the $7,600 Big Profit Allowance Stake for her second July stakes win.

Sunday marked the conclusion of a very successful weekend at Ruidoso Downs. Sunday's crowd of 6,662 wagered $796,222. For the weekend, 22,681 fans wagered $2,638,115, an improvement of 62.3 percent in handle, and 35.2 percent in attendance.

For the 1989 season, Ruidoso Downs has improved dramatically over 1988's figures. The attendance has improved 27.3 percent, while handle is up 26.3 percent.

The big weekend began Thursday with the biggest Ladies Day of the season. The Turf Club offers a Thursday event with $5 of each ladies' ticket going to different charities.

On Thursday the Turf Club took in $710 for the Family Crisis Center, and next Thursday's proceeds will benefit the Ruidoso Altrusa Club's literacy program.

Thursday's attendance was up 29.5 percent of 1988, with the handle up 61.6 percent. The crowd of 4,105 wagered $433,045 Thursday.

On Friday the increase continued with a crowd of 4,935 betting $583,390. The attendance for that day so up 43.8 percent over 1988, with the handle up 77.8 percent.

Saturday's crowd also set records with 6,979 race fans put. Please see Ruidoso Downs, page 2A

Rain doesn't dampen spirits at 18th Ruidoso Art Festival

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

Exhibitors came to the 18th Annual Ruidoso Art Festival from Los Angeles, St. Cloud, Minnesota, Cloudcroft, Capitan, Arkansas and from many, many points in Texas.

However, it was an Oklahoma artist, Bill Jaxon of Oklahoma City, whose western paintings provided him with a Best in Show ribbon.

Judges Friday afternoon spent hours and hours checking every booth to come up with a Best in Show and 10 top booths.

Judges had to sort out booths featuring colorful puppets, weaving, pottery, ceramics, jewelry, hand-painted silk scarves, embossed etchings, bronze pieces, dolls, Bamboozle Flutes, knives and stone carvings, among other works of art, to come up with 10 winners.

The 132 Art Festival booths were in six huge tents which kept the rather frequent thunder-showers at bay during the event which ended Sunday night.

Ronnie Paulger, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce president, was all smiles as he counted the gate for Friday. The take was $7,400.

He kept smiling through Sunday night as visitors were undeterred by the rain, carrying umbrellas and checking out all the attractions at the festival.

The 10 top booths as determined by a panel of judges headed by Paulger were as follows:

—Fred and Betty Vance of San Antonio, Texas, stoneware and ceramics.

—Pat McAllister of Eureka Springs, Arkansas, paintings of Indians, horses and western scenes.

—Robert Trisco of St. Cloud, Minnesota, jewelry and sculptures.

—Susan Godfrey of Dripping Springs, Texas, hand-woven furniture using a process involving Punjabi techniques from India.

—Judy and Suzanne Bateman of El Paso, Texas, hand-painted silk scarves.

—Charlotte Krystinik of Arlington, Texas, embossed etchings, woodcuts, mixed media.

—Lorene Caywood of Capitan, paintings, birds, Indians, southwest scenes.

—Cindy Burleson of Austin, Texas, bronzes and stone carvings.

—Jay Collins of El Paso, Texas, lath art.

—Ron Tracy of Yorbulinda, Texas, inlaid ceramic pieces with cutouts.

Pro golfer tees off in Ruidoso area

by BRIAN BLALOCK

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The man who designed and proposed will operate the proposed golf course on the old municipal airport property says he wants to start off on an even footing in Ruidoso and become a part of the community.

Former professional golfer and now golf course designer Jim Colbert was in the Ruidoso area this past weekend, meeting with stockholders of his company Jim Colbert Golf Incorporated.

Colbert said the financing for the proposed golf course is ready and all the other details are just about wrapped up.

His visit to the area was not all work.

Colbert played a couple of rounds of golf at the Inn of the Mountain Gods and attended the horse races at Ruidoso Downs on Saturday. He took some time to sit down and talk with The News about Ruidoso, the proposed golf course and golf in general.

"We're betting on the community to grow," said Colbert as he sat Saturday in the press box at Ruidoso Downs.

He said there are many positive things about to happen in the Ruidoso area. The success of the race track, the Hubbard Art Collection, the proposed hotel and civic center are all reasons he wants to be involved in the community.

"I've got an interest in this too," he said.

Colbert indicated he and his wife are considering buying property in the area and staying part-time here during the summer.

"I like the cool mountain air, you know it's 104 in the desert right now," he said with a smile. Colbert makes his home in Las Vegas, Nevada.

It is from Las Vegas that he runs his company, Jim Colbert Golf Incorporated, which designs and operates golf courses.

The company has nine shareholders, six of which are employees. Colbert said the thing which makes his company successful is his people come from within the golf industry. He said they are highly motivated people with similar interests.

Colbert Golf operates 25 courses throughout the United States, from California to South Carolina. However, Colbert says each course and community is unique.

Colbert said his company, Jim Colbert Golf, is not like the other two golf design companies. He said when Colbert Golf designs a golf course it adjusts the design to the facilities and the community instead of the other way around.

He seems truly excited about the proposed golf course project.

"This will be our first true resort type golf course," said Colbert. "It's going to be a links type golf course, where it kind of goes out and comes back in by the nature of the property. It's going to be a natural type golf course, with some lakes on it. We'll use some native type grasses and make it a links type golf course. Even though we are in the mountains, you've got a fairly level piece of property."

Colbert just returned this past week from the British Open at Troon, Scotland. He was there doing his other job as a commentator for ESPN on their golf telecasts. He said the condition of the links course at Troon and several other course in Scotland was terrible because it hadn't rained there in 14 weeks. He went on to say, while the proposed golf course in Ruidoso would have a design similar to the ones in Scotland, it would be different because of the trees on some holes and the wetter conditions here.

"It will be different," he said. "First off in the fact it rains here, of course it normally does over there too. But we'll have a full irrigation system, which we'll use."

He said no one wants to play on a course which is dry and not green. He added Colbert Golf has a reputation of maintaining and operating quality golf course in good conditions.

Colbert said he keeps an eye on the operations of each of his

It started with Vail—Colorado trails system extends more than 60 miles

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor
(Second in a series)

It was almost an accident when Colorado began the multi-purpose trail system that has become a major summer enhancement to what was once a winter resort.

It started in Vail in the early 1970s.

Bikers wanted to know where they would ride when the federal government transformed an old state highway into a new divided interstate—with no biking allowed. The Federal Highway Administration, through the Federal Aid to Highways Act, built the Vail to Copper Mountain segment of the trail, finishing the work in 1979.

That trail, in addition to the Ten Mile Canyon trail, connected Eagle County, where Vail is located, to Summit County, where Copper Mountain, Keystone, Dillon, Silverthorne, Breckenridge and Frisco are located.

Getting the whole project together, through public hearings, right of way acquisition and such, was no easy task, and required a great deal of cooperation among the various counties, municipalities, federal agencies and area residents.

But, by 1980, the Vail Pass-Ten Mile Canyon Recreation Trail was designated a National Recreation Trail.

Part of that trail is located between the interstate highway, and part is on an old railroad right of way.

The Vail Pass-Ten Mile Canyon National Recreation Trail is 26.5 miles long and traverses Vail Pass at an elevation of 10,603 feet above sea level. The Vail to Vail Pass segment is 14.3 miles long and has an eastbound elevation gain of 2,453 feet. The Vail Pass-Copper Mountain segment is 6.2 miles with westbound elevation gain of 1,506 feet.

And when bikers, joggers, walkers and other outdoor enthusiasts took to the asphalt trail

Biking trails in Summit and Eagle counties are marked, mapped and equipped with rest areas that include further directions and copies of trail rules.

Fast Trick edges out Wide Blade to take the $10,375 Hondo Valley Handicap Saturday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Eugene O'Neill rode the Eddie Milligan trained horse over the line for the colt's second victory.

Fast Trick takes two

Fast Trick won his second race in as many starts here this season Saturday in the $10,375 Hondo Valley Handicap.

The colt, owned by John T.L. Jones and B.J. McCoombs of Lexington, Kentucky, is trained by Eddie Milligan and was ridden to victory by Eugene O'Neill.

It was Milligan's and O'Neill's first stakes victory at Ruidoso Downs, and Milligan's first in his year-old training career. Milligan, former jockey from Louisiana, retired from the saddle one year ago Saturday. Favored at 4-5, Fast Trick has won 4-of-6 career starts. Fast Trick broke well, fell off the pace by two lengths on the turn, and caught Wide Blade in the stretch.

"The strategy was to do what he wanted," said Milligan. "I was concerned on the turn, but he's the top three-year-old colt that I have."

O'Neill said the early pace was too fast.

"I felt they were going too fast," he said. "I wanted to have something for the stretch."

Wide Blade, under Mike Lidberg, was second; while Jae Ego, who won the Norgor Derby here in June, was third. The time for the 5 1/2 furlongs was 1:05 2/5 on a sloppy track.

ting down $825,458 on the full racing card.

The racing handles are enhanced this season by the simulcast betting at Sunland Park Racetrack. And the records continued through Sunday as the twin trifecta carryover set records.

After $153,574 was wagered on the first-half of Sunday's twin-trifecta only 43 tickets carried a second-half exchange. The next racing day is Thursday, with a 1 p.m. first post time, and the pool is expected to exceed $300,000.

Go Street Music won the Grade III July 3 Jet Deck Handicap, and was second in the July 23 Grade I World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic. She was also third in the Grade I Rainbow Silver Cup in June behind Dash For Speed.

Go Street Music broke slowly and ran in tandem, while lugging in, with Mito Native to the wire. The margin of victory was a nose. Go Street Music paid $4.00 to win, and ran the 550 yards in 26.95 seconds.

Ladies Day

Models Cynthia McMorris and Deborah Bousquet are shown with Turf Club guest Reva Tallman (right) during Thursday's Ladies Day activities. The models are wearing clothing from Shara's in The Gazebo, while Tallman is on hand to represent the Family Crisis Center, the beneficiary of Thursday's Ladies Day ticket sales. The Turf Club will donate $710 to Family Crisis Center after Thursday's biggest Ladies Day of the season. This Thursday's Ladies Day will benefit the Altrusa Club's literacy program.

Texas track captures Black Gold Futurity

Trinity Meadows, the only horse track licensed for pari-mutuel racing in the North Texas area, has acquired the first national racing program in Texas by capturing the Black Gold Futurity, Jimmy C. Bradley, president of Trinity Meadows Raceway, Inc. said. Bradley and partners, Jack Johnson, Fred Currie and Black Gold Futurity owners Don Rigby, president, and Ray Whitmire, vice president, from Sallisaw, Oklahoma, signed the contract at Trinity Meadows Raceway on Wednesday, July 26. The program, which runs from 1990 through the 1993 season, is one of the top ranking programs of its kind in the nation, comparable to the All American Triple Crown in Ruidoso, according to a news release. The winning horse in the Trinity Meadows Raceway program will take home a half million dollar purse. The Black Gold program is a coup for Trinity Meadows as the program represents some 1,000 additional horses each year for the track and it will bring in an estimated $15 million to the purse over the duration of the contract. Trinity Meadows competed with tracks all over the country for this prestigious opportunity. "With so many tracks licensed, a race horse shortage is a reality facing all of us in Texas," Bradley said. "Our horses have been racing in California, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas for so long, that it will take a couple of years to get geared up down here. To acquire this contract is a dream come true." Bradley added that this contract will ensure the number of horses required to keep Trinity Meadows in the black.

Wicked Wind blows over the finish to win Rainbow Derby

Wicked Wind, who was eighth in the Rainbow Derby in his last start, drew away from the field to win the $3,800 allowance for his second win in three 1989 starts. He ran the 440 yards in 21.96 seconds. Wicked Wind, trained by C. Dwayne Gilbreath, paid $3,800 to win. "We got high hopes for her," said Gilbreath. "She was fresh and needed a work, so we decided to run her." Chasing The Dream, a two-year-old colt, won his second race in three career starts in the featured $4,300 allowance. In his other start, he was second in an allowance. Trained by Doyal Roberts, Chasing The Dream was a narrow winner over Captain Drake. He paid $5.60 to win, and ran the 5 1/2 furlongs in 1:05 3/5. "I thought he'd win today," said Roberts. A crowd of $4,935 wagered $583,390 on Friday's card. The attendance was an improvement of 43.8 percent in 1988, and the handle was up dramatically 77.8 percent.

Payne takes on new duties at Sunland Park Racetrack

Former Ruidoso Downs Race Track Racing Secretary Harold L. Payne was appointed to serve in the newly-created post of Assistant General Manager during the 1989-90 season at Sunland Park Racetrack. Payne served on the Ruidoso Downs staff as Racing Secretary in 1985, 1986 and 1988 and is currently the Steward this season. The 38-year-old native of Lubbock, Texas, will continue his duties as Sunland's Director of Racing, while serving as second in command to the track's new General Manager Skip Sherman. "Harold Payne has been a valued member of the Sunland park staff since 1974. We are pleased to announce his appointment to the Assistant General Manager job," Sherman said. "His knowledge and experience in nearly every phase of the Sunland operation will help us continue our progress into the 1990s." Payne is a 1972 graduate of Texas Tech University. He worked at Sunland Park from 1974 through 1982. In 1984, Payne rejoined the Sunland staff, serving as director of racing since United Tote purchased the track from the Ruidoso-Sunland Group in November of 1986. During his career at Sunland Park, Payne has served as steward, assistant racing secretary, paddock judge and placing judge.

Texas couple to marry in the winner's circle

RUIDOSO DOWN-Saturday, August 4, Peggy Belyeu and Mike Carpenter will get their picture taken in the winners circle but there won't be any horses around. That's because Peggy and Mike will become Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter and the photo will be of their wedding. Both from Lubbock, Texas, Peggy has been coming to Ruidoso Downs race track for more than 13 years and Mike about six years. When they were discussing where they would like to get married Mike asked Peggy what appealed to her most. Peggy responded that probably her most favorite thing to do was going to the horse races at Ruidoso Downs. "I've been coming to Ruidoso Downs for years," said Belyeu. "It really is my favorite thing to do and since both of us love horse racing, this was the perfect spot for us to get married. I especially love watching and betting on the Quarter Horses since the quality here is the best in the world." Peggy is a medical technologist at Highland Hospital in Lubbock, and has been there for about 10 years. Mike, on the other hand, has been a glass blower for Texas Instruments for two years. Officiating over the wedding will be Ruidoso Downs Race Track Chaplain Ken Swenson. Chaplain Swenson, most recently an Assembly of God minister in Phoenix, Arizona, joined Ruidoso Downs earlier this year to spearhead substance abuse and "backside" benevolence programs. This will be his first wedding at Ruidoso Downs and, in fact, it will be the first wedding ever at the mountain oval. The programs Chaplain Swenson is organizing are run entirely from private donations from the Ryan Family Foundation and the R. D. Hubbard Foundation. Any one wishing to donate additional funds to these causes can do so by writing Ruidoso Downs Chaplain Ken Swenson, P.O. Box 449, Ruidoso Downs, NM, 88346 or call (505) 378-4431 extension 264.

Payne brings in three winners in the Rio Grande Futurity Trials

Two divisions of the Rio Grande Futurity Trials were run Thursday to determine the finalists for the Sunday, August 6 final. Larry Payne rode three winners, all at six furlongs, at the tiny mountain oval. Aces And Faces and Tricky Stuff won divisions of the Rio Grande. The top six horses in each trial earned berths in the final. Prior to Thursday's race, Aces And Faces was sixth in the June 3 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, and was fifth in the May 6 Riley Alison Futurity Consolation at Sunland Park. Trainer T.E. Davidson said the gelding had been ill and had had luck. "He's just now coming into form," said Davidson, who won the Norgor Futurity earlier this season with Adios Mundo. "Last week he got boxed in on the turn. We expect him to run well in the final." Aces And Faces has two wins in eight career starts. Last week, he was seventh in an allowance. Aces And Faces broke his maiden on February 19 at Sunland Park, and ran the six furlongs in 1:14 3/5 on Thursday. Perfect Creation, San Rama, Creative Story, Real Choked Up, and Benmatt also qualified for the final. Tricky Stuff, who paid $55.60, $43.00, and $9.40, won his trial in 1:13 4/5. It was his first career win in six starts. The 2-5 favorite, Hookenonthehighway, finished fourth. Tricky Stuff was seventh behind Hookenonthehighway in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity on June 3. The Thrill Is Back, Street Sweeper, Hookenonthehighway, Evelyn's Blade, and Honey's Role also qualified for the August 6 final.

We so appreciate all the customers and new friends we've gained through the gallery, but it's time to pursue goals that have been "on the back burner" too long! Classes begin very soon, and will require all my attention. I'd much prefer to sell the gallery to someone who believes as strongly as I do in Ruidoso's future, but if that's not to be, we'll sell you just the parts you want!

You'll find Ovella Estes at her Ruidoso home with her nose in a book on weekends more often than not over the next two and a half years. The books won't be fiction.

During the week, she'll be doing the same thing, only it will be on the campus of Eastern New Mexico University.

Estes, who is primary stockholder in The Artisan's Shop and Gallery, will be acting on a 20-year urge when she returns to college this fall to work toward a bachelor's degree, probably in marketing or finance.

"Education is more primary than a degree," Estes says. She says a degree, however, can open doors of opportunity.

Her husband is very supportive of her desire to complete a degree.

"Just so she comes home on weekends," Delton K. Estes, social studies teacher at Ruidoso Middle School, says.

The couple has two children, John, 13, and Jamie, 9.

Ovella Estes, in addition to working full time at the gallery, is a sales associate with Century 21.

"I will maintain my real estate license," she says.

The fact that her mother and stepfather, Robert and Sue Dunn, live in Portales, and that she grew up there will make the transition from business woman to student somewhat easier.

Estes will not be a hum drum student.

"I want to go into class and set the curve," she declares with a gleam in her eye. "I'm ready to go. When you make up your mind, you are ready to act," she says.

Estes hopes to have the Artisan's Shop and Gallery stock liquidated and all fixtures and framing equipment sold by August 6.

"I want some vacation time with my family," says Estes, who has had the Artisan's Shop for four and a half years.

She and her husband came to Ruidoso almost 17 years ago from Arizona after Delton completed a tour of duty in Vietnam. He has malaria, and must live in a cool climate, explains his wife. After Delton was drafted, Ovella says she chose not to go to school.

"But, I intended to get a degree 20 years ago."

The Artisan's Shop and Gallery building is owned by long-time residents, Dave and Kathy Travis. One employee, Melodee Blaylock, will be affected by the closing.

When the class bells ring in a few weeks at ENMU, Ovella Estes will be there.

"I'm going with a real open mind," she says.

There's little doubt that a very determined woman will make her mark in Roosevelt County.

Mesilla Trading Co. is added at Timbers Mall

Patrick and Lorrie Dablow, who have opened the Mesilla Trading Company in The Timbers Mall, are hoping to build a thriving mail order business featuring New Mexico products.

Mesilla Trading Company features Southwest arts and crafts and gourmet food baskets, plus many New Mexico food specialties such as smoked pecans, Taos honey, red chili honey and Timber's (no relation to the shopping center), World Champion Spices.

Other products include porcelain dolls made by a New Mexico woman, wood carvings and unique stuffed animals.

A unique feature of the business is that customers can taste products such as mesquite jam and other specialties of the shop.

The Dablows also have the Mesilla Trading Coppany in Las Cruces.

One aspect of their business is that they are using the Mesilla Trading Company operations to test their New Mexico-produced products for inclusion in their catalog.

Mesilla Trading Company will ship orders anywhere in the world. The Dablows are in the process of putting together their mail order catalog.

The Dablows moved to Las Cruces from Los Angeles where they were in the photograph business. They grew tired of smog and crowded conditions.

The couple has two children, Erin and Andrew.

Opens office

Gary George, who has been in real estate for seven years in Ruidoso, has opened Showtime Real Estate Inc. in Terrace Plaza at 445 Mechem Drive. George offers general real estate services. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. Phone number is 257-9808.

Savage Arts shop added to Davis holdings here

Owners of Old West Traders, Willard and Joan Davis, have expanded their business interests in Ruidoso. The shop is located at 2537 Sudderth Drive.

With their daughter, Juan, and Juan's friend, Julie Gonzales, they have purchased Savage Arts, 2609 Sudderth Drive, from Dennis and Anna Stephens.

Juan Davis will manage Savage Arts, while her parents will be operating Old West Traders. Old West Traders has been in its present location, next to Winner's Circle since May. It formerly was located in the Gazebo Shopping Center, and before that it was in the same block it is in now, where Hamburger King is now located.

"I hope this is permanent," Willard Davis said. Old West Traders specializes in authentic Indian, Belgian and Peruvian rugs, Kachina dolls, unique pottery and rustic furniture like the wagon wheel table on display.

Savage Arts has an exclusive brand pottery made by a Kiowa Comanche family of six. The shop has an exclusive right to sell it in

New Mexico. Savage Arts also has framed paintings and prints, including Remingtons, bronze sculptures and many gift items.

Juan Davis has been in law enforcement in Waxahachie, Texas, but recently resigned her job to move to Ruidoso. Her arrival was expected within the week. She has served as a deputy sheriff and as a parole officer.

"She just got tired of it," her mother said.

Her mother explained, when asked, how she came to name her daughter Juan. She said she had a good friend named Juanita who was called Juan. She didn't want her daughter called Juanita, so she just named her Juan after her friend.

Joan Davis is part Cherokee; her husband is part Choctaw. They go back a long way in the Ruidoso area. They trained and ran horses at Ruidoso Downs back in 1956 or 1957.

Both businesses will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week.

Warriors show strong defense in "odd" game

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Happiness is a good defense, and Ruidoso High School head football coach Doug Ragsdale says he has plenty to be happy about with this year's fighting Warriors.

The Warriors traveled to Las Cruces last weekend to participate in a 16-team "pass away," an all passing scrimmage.

Ragsdale returned with a basket full of kudos for the dozen players who made the trip.

The Warriors played three games. The first two games were against Class AAAA squads, Mayfield and Sandia. The last game was against Goddard.

Where other Class AAA teams were bombed into dejection by the state's powerhouses, the Warriors held Mayfield to two touchdowns, Sandia to two touchdowns and Roswell's Goddard to a single touchdown.

Ragsdale pointed out the unusual strategies of the all pass game.

"Since you were not allowed to run, I'm sure defenses were employed that you may not see in a regular game," he said.

Ragsdale said there were other plus marks that will set the tone for a banner Warrior year.

"As enthusiastic as I am at the spirited showing of the team, I was equally impressed with the results of our coaching staff at the special clinic Friday. I have never seen such enthusiasm and eagerness. We have an excellent coaching staff. It fired me up. I can't wait for the season to begin."

Manny Guardiola and Rick Ragsdale took turns quarterbacking the Warriors.

Guardiola, a sophomore and long ball threat, hit brother Jesse for a long bomb and a touchdown against Goddard.

Junior Rick Ragsdale, a high percentage short pass thrower, moved the ball well down the field against Sandia.

Coach Ragsdale said varsity experience will strengthen both quarterbacks.

Ragsdale was elated over several defensive plays.

Wide out junior Jamie Candelaria had several good games with a couple of key interceptions and a good job of preventing the deep pass according to Ragsdale. While on the offense, he exhibited a good pair of hands with a half dozen receptions.

Ragsdale said the other wide out, Alfred Rue, not only performed with great intensity offensive and defensively, but showed remarkable senior leadership in all of the games.

Tight end Jesse Guardiola was another pleasant surprise for coach Ragsdale who said that by the end of the day, coaches were double teaming Jesse. Ragsdale said Guardiola not only has a good pair of hands, but he is a good running threat with superb moves after he has caught the ball.

The relationship of snapper to quarterback is one of perfect timing. Warrior center Pete Baca didn't make the trip. Ryan Wright stepped in at the position and proved to be a skilled player, said Ragsdale. Ragsdale also commented on Wright proving to be a team motivator.

Junior James Atwood stopped the opposition for four or five big defensive plays. Ragsdale said his talented move that caused an incompletion against Goddard "took the wind out of their sails and turned the momentum our way." Ragsdale said he was especially pleased with Atwood's quick feet and aggressive tendencies.

Senior Ralph Gonzales played a tough defensive corner back for the Warriors. Gonzales has picked up a few pounds from his 135-pound weight of last year and should see plenty of varsity action.

The core of the Warriors defense in the pass all games was senior Zack Chaves, senior R.J. Darden and junior Kief Johnson. Ragsdale said he was "tickled to death" with the play of these three players.

"They gave us the type of mobility necessary for an outstanding season and their heads up play displayed the type of leadership that was most pleasing to all of the coaches."

Wide receiver and free safety Shane Barnett, a sophomore, grabbed a couple of fine catches for the Warriors. Ragsdale said the multi-talented Barnett also showed very good promise as a defensive back.

Ragsdale said full workouts for the Warrior football team will begin for grades 10, 11 and 12 at 8 a.m. August 7 at the high school.

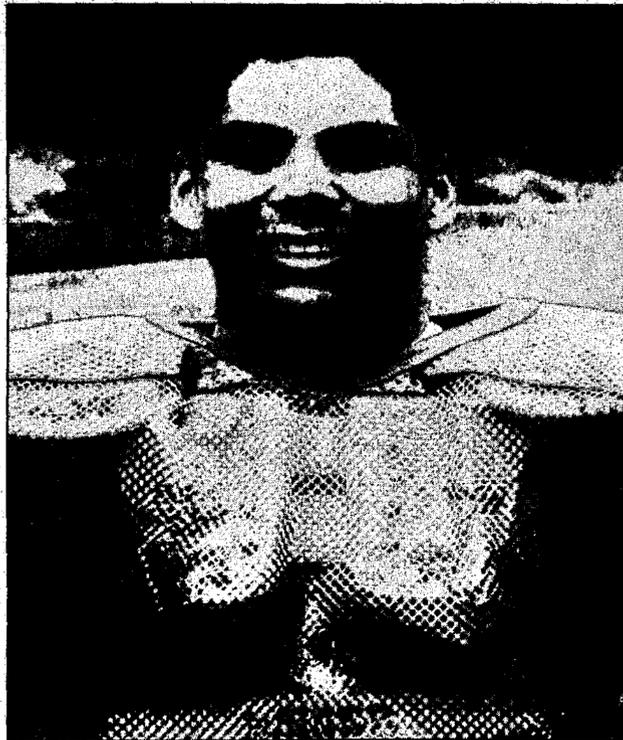

"I would like to strongly remind all athletes to be at the high school gym at 7 p.m. Monday, August 3, for their physical," Ragsdale said.

The physical is open to all Ruidoso, Hondo and Capitan high school student athletes regardless of their chosen sport. The examinations are free, courtesy of local doctors.

Ragsdale said the junior varsity will scrimmage at Horton Stadium on August 17. Another scrimmage is scheduled against Sandia at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, August 19, at Wilson Stadium in Albuquerque.

Regular season ticket holders have from Wednesday through Friday, August 9-11, for first choice at this season's slate of games. Tickets can be purchased from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the high school during those three days.

Ruidoso has six home games this year. Season tickets cost $30. Season ticket holders get first choice at post season game tickets.

Favorite son Johnson plays Snowcapper

Charley Johnson was an ironman in his 15 years with the National Football League. Johnson had 12 operations on either his shoulders or knees. Both have healed sufficiently for

Johnson to play golf and he was burning the greens with his play at the recent "Snowcapper" tournament in Alto.

Johnson, 50, was a stellar quarterback for New Mexico State University from 1958-60. His greatest thrills in Las Cruces included two Sun Bowl Most Valuable Player trophies and the Aggies' 11-0 season in 1960.

Nearly 29 years after Johnson's last game in Las Cruces, he still holds some school records: 40 career touchdown passes, a season-low six interceptions, highest completion percentages for a season (54.8) and career (53.9).

Johnson's football career took a giant leap after NMSU. He played in the NFL: St. Louis from 1961-69; Houston 1970-71; and Denver 1972-75.

Oddly enough, Johnson received just one scholarship offer after graduating from Big Spring, Texas, in 1957, and that scholarship was for basketball.

NMSU recruited Johnson after seeing him play basketball for Schreiner Institute in Kerrville, Texas.

"I was just happy to have an opportunity to keep playing sports," he said. "I'm not surprised I didn't get a scholarship offer for football. At Big Spring, we ran an option offense and I wasn't a real good running quarterback."

"Sports Illustrated did a story on us and we got even more publicity when we beat Arizona State 27-24 in Tempe. We were ranked as high as 15th in the country in 1960."

Johnson's success culminated in his NFL career. He was named the All-Conference quarterback in 1973, but the 12 operations an age finally forced him into retirement.

Johnson has another reason to remember New Mexico State. He married his wife of 31 years, Barbara, while he attended school in Las Cruces.

Today, Johnson is an oil and natural gas executive in Houston.

"My business is so tied with oil and gas prices. It's been a tough eight years," he said.

However tough, Johnson was hitting the long ball in the Snowcapper and his pressure putt on the ninth hole kept his team in the running for the money.

"After I went to college, Warren Woodson took over as (NMSU football) coach and developed a passing offense. I give him 99 percent of the credit for my development as a football player."

The Woodson-Johnson combo proved formidable with several Aggie victories from 1958-60. NMSU was 25-0 during that span and beat North Texas State 28-8 and Utah State 20-13 in consecutive Sun Bowls.

"Coach Woodson designed an offense where we'd throw the ball 20 times a game, seven in the first quarter. We had specific rules for quarterbacks. At the time, we got a lot of national publicity."

Ruidoso area fishing report

The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish reports July's fishing activity for the state.

In the Ruidoso area, a few trout are being taken on powerbait at Alto Lake.

Fishing is fair at Bonito Lake. Some trout are being taken on powerbait and lures. Lures are best in mornings. The lake was stocked last week.

According to the fishing report, the best and nearest place to fish in the state is at the Mora-Pecos River where fishing has been good using spinners, flies and grasshoppers for trout. Crews stocked 700 10 3/4-inch rainbow trout last week.

Charley Johnson gives the victory sign as he and his partner finish the ninth hole with a spectacular birdie. The pro-football great played in Alto's "Snowcapper" tournament.

Taking out the trash is getting to be a messy business

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ever since May 14, 1989, the subject of solid waste disposal has become a major concern for not only Lincoln County, but for all of New Mexico, because this is when the "infamous" new regulations took effect.

These new regulations were imposed upon the operation of landfills and other solid waste disposal facilities by the Environmental Improvement Board, a governor-appointed panel of private citizens.

Since the regulations' development, counties and municipalities all over New Mexico have joined together to sue the state over their implementation.

What is everyone so upset about? How did this come to be? How does this affect Lincoln County? And how will it affect the private citizen?

The answers to these, and other questions, are not clear to everyone, but one thing is certain; these regulations are already having a significant impact on Lincoln County, and their presence is a mere shadow of what may become law from the federal government.

The purpose of this article is to describe the chronological history of the development of the new regulations.

How Lincoln County has reacted, and what lies ahead in the future for our solid waste disposal needs, will be addressed in other articles to appear in this series.

The new regulations were created by the Environmental Improvement Board (EIB), made up of five private citizens appointed by the governor.

EIB was created in 1970 through the Environmental Improvement Act, which gave the board the power to create regulations governing many areas of environmental concern.

Everything from solid waste disposal, radioactive waste, kitchen cleanliness in the food service industry, water quality in public swimming pools, to air quality is regulated by this board.

Members of the board serve for staggered five-year terms and can represent any number of concerns.

EIB began the process of developing the regulations about two years ago and had a first draft ready by November 1988.

This first draft was sent to the counties and municipalities for comment, as well as four other drafts afterwards.

A public hearing had also been conducted in November 1988 on the proposed regulations.

The process was interrupted when the state legislature began introducing bills to regulate solid waste disposal, but the final bill sent to Governor Garrey Carruthers was vetoed.

EIB resumed its work and by April 14, 1989, county and municipal governments throughout the state had the final draft with an order to implement in 30 days.

The reasons for the new regulations are many, but two stand out.

One, prior to the new regulations, for all practical purposes, New Mexico had no regulations at all.

This made the state vulnerable to outside sources of garbage, especially from east coast states.

States there are literally running out of places to put the enormous amounts of solid waste they generate everyday, which has led to such proposed landfill sites as the 20,000-acre-plus site for Hildago County.

The bottom line in such cases is if someone can buy enough land to open a landfill, as long as they follow the guidelines then in practice, there is no way to stop the process.

Prior to May 14, an operator of a landfill needed only to register the site. There were no provisions as to where and what went into the hole. It wasn't even necessary to have someone at the site to inspect what went in.

If someone had a highly toxic or radioactive substance to dispose of, all they needed to do was roll it up in an old carpet and drop it off at the local dump.

If the substance got into the drinking water supply, well ...

With the new regulations, something like that cannot be so easily done.

The second reason was progress made by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in the generation of regulations, which would supersede anything any state could develop.

It is believed by many in the solid waste field that within 10 years, newer, even more strict guidelines will be imposed by EPA, and may even include mandatory recycling.

Already, EPA has succeeded in increasing regulations governing the amount of toxic substances in sewage sludge, which many municipalities sell as fertilizer.

In any event, it was felt New Mexico needed to have some form of guidelines to be prepared for the day when the federal government begins to call the shots.

The reaction to the new regulations, in some instances, was pandemonium, for it became immediately apparent it would be very expensive to comply with the regulations.

For example, under the new regulations, once a landfill is closed, monitoring wells must be in place to see if toxic leachate gets into the ground water, and this monitoring process must continue, at the landfill operator's expense, for a minimum of 25 years.

Hence the Municipal League and the New Mexico Association of Counties lawsuit filed in the state Court of Appeals in Santa Fe.

The basis of the lawsuit is from a constitutional amendment in New Mexico from 1984 which says the state government must either provide the monies, or a method to generate the monies necessary to comply with any rule or new activity the state requires of local government.

The lawsuit claims the imposition of the new landfill regulations falls under this constitutional amendment, and local governments should not have to comply until the state comes up with the funds.

The governor expressed dismay when the suit was filed.

"The citizens of New Mexico are very concerned about protecting our environment and the quality of our scarce ground water," Carruthers said in an Associated Press article which appeared May 11.

"Environmental protection measures involve costs for all participating parties. In the interest of protecting ground water resources we must move forward with implementing these rules and regulations," said the governor.

"We are not challenging the content of the regulations," said Bill Fulginiti, executive director of the Municipal League.

"We think they are fine. We support them," said Fulginiti.

What the League contends is the state cannot legally make local governments comply with the regulations unless money is made available.

Lincoln County filed its own lawsuit in District Court in Alamogordo, which has placed the county in a unique position.

How this was done, and how Lincoln County prepared itself for the regulations will be the subject of the next article in this series.

EID wants proof that dump is gone

A dispute between the Ruidoso Downs mayor and state environmentalists may not be settled.

It was learned that the Environmental Improvement Division (EID) sent a certified letter to Ruidoso Downs Mayor Jake Harris last week asking for verification that the garbage Ruidoso Downs dumped on the Nosker Ranch has been completely removed.

Harris said Friday he had not seen that letter. The letter required a return receipt to verify it had been delivered; however, Gary McCaslin, district IV manager for EID, said Friday he had not seen the return receipt.

"I cannot, at this time, state that full compliance with EID's cleanup order has been achieved," said Gary McCaslin, in the letter dated July 21.

That letter refers to solid waste from Ruidoso Downs that was dumped on Ken Nosker's property in the Hondo Valley, creating what EID calls an illegal dump site.

Ruidoso Downs began to dump on Nosker's land in late May after the village's sanitation trucks sat full, unable to collect more refuse.

Ruidoso Downs had no place to empty their trucks because the Fort Stanton landfill, operated jointly by Lincoln County and the Village of Ruidoso, was closed by those two governing bodies.

Nosker's land was not registered as a landfill site, nor does Nosker have a permit to operate a landfill site under the new regulations issued by EID.

However, Nosker said in several public meetings that he believes his land will meet the new requirements.

In the letter from EID, McCaslin said it was necessary for an on-site inspection to occur before backfilling or grading was begun to verify complete removal of the refuse dumped there.

Both Carl Stubbs and James Edwards from the Ruidoso EID office inspected the site on June 26, but backfilling had already been completed, said the letter.

Nosker, Harris, and David Bollschweiler have all said the garbage has been removed.

Harris said he received a bill for approximately $1,100 from McCarty Construction Company for the removal of the refuse, based on a fee of $6 per yard.

Patsy Oaxaca, bookkeeper at the time in the County Manager's office said the county charged for eight loads brought to the temporary landfill site by McCarty for Ruidoso Downs, the last charge made on June 21.

To verify whether or not all the garbage was removed, McCaslin suggested that holes be drilled at the site three to four feet in diameter over the area backfilled on Nosker's ranch, and that an EID representative be there to witness the entire process with permission to photograph.

McCaslin gave three reasons in the letter for believing full compliance has not been achieved.

"Absolute documentation of the quantity of waste placed on the Nosker Ranch is presently not available."

"EID staff had no opportunity to inspect the site prior to backfilling and grading."

"Witnesses to the input and removal processes state that the cleanup is not complete."

The Dreamer by Dan Storm

The Good Rain And Lincoln Days

It has gotten to be an old saying now that when we begin to practice for the "Last Escape of Billy the Kid" the rains begin. I was over at the practice on July twenty, and we went through two or three scenes when lightning began flashing to the west. Soon the drops began pattering on the dry ground, and lightning began flashing and thunder booming overhead. The rain was not heavy—just enough to send us to cover. We waited while the lightning and thunder became brighter and louder and the rain kept on light for awhile and then just a drizzle. The rain kept playing "now you see me now you don't" with us till we finally called it a day around nine-thirty.

We all said that this was great—that it was just like always: we begin practicing and the rain stops us. Hooray for the rain, and we all left in high spirits.

Down the road toward Hondo it almost cleared up, but this was just a ruse of a rain storm that was hiding just down the way ready to bush-whack me. About at the Bonito Bridge a strong gale of wind whipped around a bend and a great blinding flash of lightning down near the road, tried to get inside the pickup, at the same instant the thunder said "ker-rip-bang." While I was half blind and deaf, a rush of large drops came flying on the strong wind, "splat! splat! splat! splat!"

Before you knew what was happening, like something long forgotten during the burning drought, the rain was driving straight toward you, coming in sheets pounding on the windshield. Now the windshield-wipers could not handle the airborne flood. Like a tidal wave of the air the flood of the sky made a stream of the highway, driving towards you so that your lights could hardly show the way. You slowed down almost to a stop, asking yourself "is this real?"

The bright luminous lightning flashed in wide bursts lighting up the world like broad day, showing the flooded air around you, and followed instantly by the ear-splitting thunder. It was as if the clouds from on high had come down to you and you were driving through the sky just as it was releasing its rain.

I said to myself, "My name is Storm, and I love this. Thank you, oh thank you, Dear Lord."

I have been through many a hard rain, but none that moved more suddenly without warning. It rained hard on over to the highway and began to diminish toward home. Still it was great to drive home on the little road that had been powder dry for so long now, flooded and sloppy. What sweet lullaby music was the rain on the roof, all night long.

Cuarto Centennial
Back in 1940, local celebrations were held all over New Mexico celebrating New Mexico's four hundredth birthday, or Cuarto Centennial.

Here in Lincoln County, Wilbur Coe and his wife, Louise, planned "A Day in Old Lincoln." This was in honor of the pioneers of the Southwest. It was a reunion of old timers from all over; and in those days there were many left who had taken part in the colorful days. As one feature of the day there was a pageant.

Two Hollywood script writers were employed: Blanding Sloan, a veteran western writer, and a younger fellow, Mark Hamilton. Most of their material was taken from a book written in 1925 by Walter Noble Burn, entitled "The Saga of Billy the Kid." Burns, for his book, had drawn extensively on memories given to him by Frank Coe, Wilbur's father.

In the first pageant the streets of Lincoln served as a stage and Peter Hurd was the first Billy the Kid. The Lincoln Days were discontinued during World War II and revived in 1949.

Fortieth Anniversary
It has been forty years since Wilbur Coe said to me, "Danny, you have to come over to Lincoln and help us bring back our Day in Old Lincoln." Since I will be eighty this fall, this means I have been playing "Old Buckshot" half my life. I missed only two shows, one time when I went to Europe with my father; and again when I went to Houston for the funeral services of Mark's wife, Fernie Sweeny Storm.

The pageant is in a class by itself; there is nothing like it in the entire world. It takes place on the exact spot where the history that it traces was enacted. Many of the actors through the years have been descendants of the pioneers who figured prominently in the early day colorful history. There is a certain magic in the show that brings the old days back to life.

Authors Will Autograph Books
On the morning of the Pony Express race in White Oaks, there will be the grand opening of "The Birdsong Crafty Gift Shop."

As a feature of the opening ceremonies, Louise Coe Runnels and Herbert Lee Traylor will autograph copies of their book, "The Saga of Sierra Blanca."

And Cara Mae Coe Marable Smith will autograph copies of her book, "The Coes Go West."

School Board approves reroofing bid

The Ruidoso Board of Education accepted a bid to purchase a used pickup truck during a special meeting Thursday.

The $5,970 bid is from Sierra Blanca Motors for a 1988 GMC four-cylinder pickup with 19,041 miles.

The vehicle comes with a six-year power train warranty and will be paid from the capital improvement fund, said superintendent Sid Miller. It will replace a truck that is out of service because the transmission went out.

The contract bid from Allen Roofing Company for the reroofing of the sixth grade building at the middle school was accepted after it was determined it was legal.

Allen Roofing was the low bidder for the contract, and was also the firm which wrote the specifications for the bid.

Miller said the attorney reported it would be legal to accept the bid because the specifications were standard and had not been made so specific as to exclude other bidders.

There were four bids for the reroofing contract.

Miller said regulations indicate the school cannot hire an employee on a bid contract, but there is nothing to indicate the school could not accept a bid from a private firm when that same firm wrote the specifications for the bid.

The board on June 13 rejected the one bid then received for the reroofing of the sixth grade building because it was considered too expensive.

Allen Roofing did not bid on the contract during the first advertising period for bids.

The next regular meeting of the board of education is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 8, at the administration office.

courses. He said he comes in on occasions and plays several rounds of golf with local players and the local golf staff. But, he said he tries to stay out of the daily operation of the courses, particularly if a course is making money.

"The better the place does, the less you have to do to it," Colbert said. But he added, if the course doesn't make money, he wants to know why.

Colbert said he designs courses which can be changed for different levels of play. He said his courses have a degree of difficulty for the professional but are made for the amateur to play. He added the proposed golf course in Ruidoso will be for the amateur to play.

"It will be playable similar to the Inn of the Mountain Gods, in that there is not a lot of bunkering in front of the green," he said. "We'll leave the front of the greens open."

"The financing is in place and the design is close to being finalized," he said. "The routing has been done, in other words, how the golf course goes, but now you have to do the individual hole design."

Colbert continued by saying, Golfscapes of Arlington, Texas will do the actual construction of the golf course. He said that is their job, but he said Colbert Golf will hire local landscapers to help with the native grasses.

"We let the architects build the holes, but the final decision on the hole design is mine," Colbert said.

He said he will decide exactly where the bunkers will be placed and what kinds of grasses will be used. He added he will not be trying to make the course more difficult.

"This may sound funny, but I have a tendency to soften holes," he said.

The 48-year-old Colbert is definitely a man who knows golf. He first turned professional in 1965, after playing collegiate golf at Kansas State University. He has won eight PGA tournaments in his career, including the Greater Milwaukee Open, the 1980 Tucson Open and his last victory, the 1983 Colonial National Invitation in Fort Worth, Texas. He earned a total of $1,553,000 in his career. Colbert is still a member of the PGA Tournament Policy Board.

The last tour event he played was the 1987 U.S. Open at the Olympic Country Club in San Francisco, California. He said he played with a brace on both knees and an inoperable back problem. He said he decided to take time off to see if the back problems would ease even though he still had a year and a half exemption on the tour.

Colbert said his current job with ESPN allows him to stay near the fringes of the PGA tour and has helped him with the transition from player to broadcaster.

"I think being a commentator has helped me make that transition," he said.

He added there is a lot of camaraderie among the PGA players and being a commentator gives him an opportunity to stay close to the players.

The symbol of Jim Colbert and Jim Colbert Golf Incorporated is the floppy golf hat. It is on everything, his company stationery, his own golf bag, his stockholders' golf bags and even the golf shirts and sweaters he and his stockholders wear.

Colbert said he began wearing the floppy golf hat when he was 16 and got sick from too much sun. He said at the time, the floppy hat provided the most shade and cover for his face and head. Colbert said it is rather silly looking and it is funny for all things he has done on the PGA tour, he is remembers for his hat.

In his duties as commentator for ESPN, he has the opportunity to see a lot of tournaments and players. He said right now, who's the best player for this year is still up for grabs.

"As far as this year, the game is still on the table," Colbert said.

He said U.S. Open winner Curtis Strange had to be considered. But players like British Open winner Mark Calcavecchia and Steve Jones, who has won three tournaments already this year, are also playing good golf.

"As for the international players, you have to put Nick Faldo at the top," Colbert said.

He said Greg Norman, who is probably the most recognizable golfer in the world, along with Seve Ballesteros, hasn't been able to get going this year.

In little less than two years, Colbert will be eligible for the PGA Senior's Tour. He said he would like to try and play on the Senior's Tour if his back would allow him to play on a competitive level.

"I'd like to, I'll spend the next six to seven months finding out if I can," he said.

Colbert said the Senior's Tour has been beneficial to the game of golf and helped with the boom in the golf industry. That boom is one reason developers believe a public golf course will do well in Ruidoso.

He said he and his company want to be involved with the community since they will be operating the proposed golf course on the old municipal airport.

"Let us start even and show you what we can do," Colbert said in conclusion. "We want to be an integral part of the community."

Former professional golfer and ESPN commentator Jim Colbert was in the Ruidoso area this weekend discussing the proposed golf course on the old municipal airport property.

Rain didn't slow the 18th Annual Ruidoso Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend, with big crowds viewing the art displayed under the big tents. Fred and Rose Knapp of Fredericksburg, Texas, didn't place with their colorful puppets, but they had a crowd of children around their booth every time they put on a demonstration.

Food booths, all under plastic, were doing a thriving business at all hours of the morning, afternoon and evening.

Rotarians had their sleeves rolled up, and Altrusans were out in force. The Jaycees, reportedly had 35 members participating.

There were other booths.

There was a carnival atmosphere prevalent even when the umbrellas were unfurled for serious use.

Parking was handled with a great deal of ease this year.

Las Cruces artist transforms gourds into objects of beauty

by CAROLYN SHORT
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

It's not uncommon for an artist to find an object out of someone's trash can or pry something out of the parking lot asphalt to make a piece of artwork out of it.

But how many can transform something worth keeping—much less artistic—out of an organic sphere commonly known to farmers and passers-by as "stink gourds?"

New Mexico native Sandy Short has managed to do just that, although she prefers to call them "buffalo gourds."

Armed with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from New Mexico State University and a desire to find a unique outlet for her talents, she founded the concept of hand painted gourds.

"I used to go out in the desert and just look for stuff," Short said. "The gourds were always everywhere. I just started picking them up."

Seven years later, she is at the helm of a very promising career doing exactly what she loves to do: doing her artwork and making a living at it.

She literally has thousands of designs which have continued to grow and change with every gourd she sets her brush to.

Because her roots are set in the Southwest, her designs reflect her attitude and surroundings. One of her most popular designs is a simple grouping of chile ristras.

"I'm a native of Las Cruces and chiles are really popular there," Short said.

She also has a natural talent for depicting the simple lifestyle of the old Southwest. Some of her gourds bear little vignettes of flavorful Southwest history.

"I've always been interested in the Indians and their culture," Short said. "I have a lot of respect and admiration for them as a group."

Short added that among her Indian designs, she enjoys painting kachinas the most.

"There are so many of them and they're all so different," she added.

But why the gourd?
"It's like borrowing a piece of the desert and the Southwest," Short said.

She added that the gourds, usually about four to six inches in diameter, are much easier to market than a large painting on canvas.

"Many people buy them for Christmas ornaments or just to add a little bit of Southwest to their home," she said. "And because they're so light, I can ship them all over the United States."

Currently, her business has transformed into a family affair. Short said her parents, Robert and Cora Short, have been supportive and helpful in getting her career off the ground.

"They help me gather the thousands of gourds I need," Short said. "They take care of the preliminary stuff like cleaning them and getting them ready to paint on. I guess I get the easy part."

But painting all those gourds can't be easy.

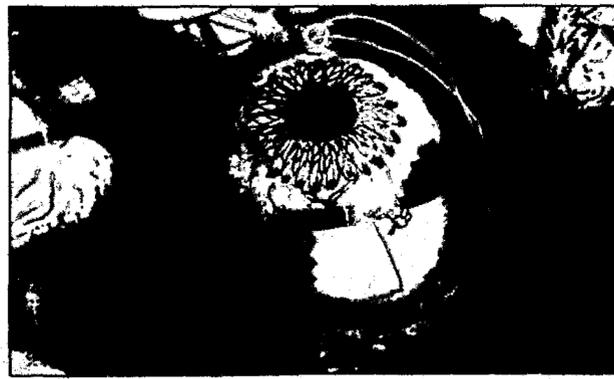

"I sometimes sit there and paint from 10 in the morning until two in the morning the next day," she said. "But I love it."

Short was recently named among the top ten artists at the Ruidoso Art Festival and she's scheduled to be in Prescott, Arizona, for her next art show.

Although she's not sure exactly where she's headed with her unusual form of artwork, she doesn't mind being touted as "the gourd lady."

"I'm glad to be able to give something back to the area where I grew up," she said. "And as long as people are enjoying my artwork, then I'll keep doing what I do."

Artist Sandy Short chooses the native buffalo gourd as a unique artistic expression of her talents. # It started with Vail after its dedication in 1980, they weren't ready to call it quits after just 26.5 miles. Summit County planners soon figured out that continuing the trail from Copper Mountain into other areas would be a great recreational benefit.

Planning began in 1977 for the Blue River Bikeway, as an alternative method of getting from Breckenridge to the south end of Lake Dillon. The trail, built by the state and county, parallels State Highway 9.

In 1978 plans were formulated to build a bikeway that would connect the Vail Pass-Ten Mile Canyon Recreation trail with the Blue River Bikeway. This would create a paved recreation trail from Breckenridge to Vail, a distance of 35.9 miles.

Although Summit County has what is considered the premier trails system in the United States, the leaders are not ready to stop yet. Surveys and studies have proven the economic impact the trail system is having on the area, so county commissioners have determined that the completion of a paved trail system linking all towns and resorts in the county and encircling Dillon Reservoir is a high priority for summertime recreation.

The county has become a model through its planning and implementation of a public service to extend the winter resort season through the summer months. In months where some of the towns used to all but close up, ski shops are taking advantage of the boom in biking and roller blading to expand their businesses.

The economic impact will be fully detailed in upcoming segments of this series on the Summit County trails system.

EDITORIAL

Skateboarders in Ruidoso have taken to the public roadways, endangering themselves and adding to the liability and stress level of area drivers.

It's illegal to skateboard in the streets, but in the busiest season of the year, the Police Department isn't in a position to place a high priority on chasing down skateboarders.

According to Ruidoso Police, when dispatch receives a complaint of skateboarders on the streets, an officer responds, and if the offenders can be located, they are admonished and reminded that their skating is not legal on public roads. Chief William Newman said no youngsters have been taken into custody, and no parents have been contacted about the problem this summer.

"It's a very dangerous situation for the kids, no doubt about it," said Newman. He said within the past year one youngster was struck by an automobile while skateboarding on Rowan Road. Luckily, that child wasn't badly injured.

But the problem is getting worse. One very young skateboarder came within just a few feet of being run over as he jumped onto his board in front of a car on the Baldy Drive hill yesterday. Skaters are making a game of racing to beat cars on Sudderth and Mechem drives. Hull Road is also a popular spot for skateboarding.

Newman and several other people have said the answer is to provide a place for the youngsters to skateboard. That may be the ultimate answer.

Meanwhile, the youngsters need to be convinced that public streets are no place to skateboard. It's illegal, and it's dangerous.

And that's where their parents come in. We would call on parents and family members to get their young skaters off the public streets before a tragedy occurs.-fj

Capitol Comments

by Kate McGraw

There's A Small Feud Brewing...

...Between the governor and the City of Santa Fe Police Department. Seems the gov wants the police to clear all those skateboarders off the capital complex sidewalks and ramps.

I don't skateboard myself, surprising though that revelation may be to you, but I can see that the various expanses of concrete and bricks, many of them on a grade, would be irresistible to them.

And personally, I've never had any trouble avoiding the little dears - I'm still pretty nimble, in spite of my advanced age.

But Gov. Garrey Carruthers has written to Santa Fe Police Chief Ray Cisneros asking that the boarders be removed. They're noisy and a safety hazard, he sez, and terrorizing the tourists.

Cisneros, not surprisingly, has responded that he doesn't have the manpower to put police on the Capitol grounds and the Bataan Building grounds 24 hours a day to run skateboarders off.

So now the gov's in a huff.

Meanwhile, There's Some Self-Appointed Miss Grinch...

...At the State Education Building who goes out once or twice a day and runs the skateboarders away herself. Tells them to get off the shared patio and ramps between the Batann and Education buildings, because "there's a city ordinance against skateboarding here and you could go to jail."

To quote the city attorney: "Huh?"

Maybe somebody should tell the lady that impersonating a lawyer is against the law...

Oh, Well, We Gotta Have Much Ado...

...Somehow, during the sultry summer months. A much more important feud is the hush-hush one brewing between the Legislature and the administration over the allocation of office space when everybody moves out of the Capitol next spring.

The battle is over that complicated scheme of the Corrections Department to end-run the appropriations process for a new building.

Here's the plan: a private corporation will build a new Corrections Department headquarters and guard training academy on Santa Fe County land, using industrial revenue bonds, and then rent it to the state.

During the session, my legislator-informants tell me, the governor and his aides agreed, point-blank, that their moving to the PERA Building for the capitol remodeling, and the Human Services Department moving out to make room for everybody, would not be tied to the Corrections Department proposal.

Now it seems they've changed their minds. It's a promise-is-not-a-commitment time again...now the governor's office saying is the lawmakers don't approve the Corrections Department proposal, well, maybe the governor and the Human Services secretary will just have to rethink the use of the PERA Building...

Of Course, Since The Legislature Owns The Capitol...

...Presumably the lawmakers - the Legislative Council, that is - could just tell the governor to go find his own interim offices.

But that would mean the Legislature would have to find (probably rent) offices for its Council Service, Legislative Education Study Committee staff and Legislative Finance Committee staff.

At that, it might be cheaper than the price of crow...
