Members of the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe line up to vote Tuesday at the community center in Mescalero. The tribe re-elected President Wendell Chino.

Tribe re-elects Chino

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Wendell Chino, who has presided over the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe for 34 years, was re-elected Tuesday.

In an apparent vote of confidence for Chino's leadership, his entire slate of officers was returned to office.

Attempts to learn the official results of the election from the Tribal Office, were unsuccessful, and Elizabeth LaPaz, chairman of the Election Board, didn't return telephone calls to The News to provide the official results of the election.

However, Tribal Councillor Harlyn Geronimo, who was unseated in his bid for another term, said that Keith Miller was elected vice president, and councillors elected were Raymond Kirgan, Frederick Peso, Berlie Kanseah and Ray Mendez.

Geronimo, Jimmy Runningwater, Beverly LaPaz and Rockland Choneska were defeated in bids for council positions, and Silas Cochise was defeated in his race for vice president.

Chino was unopposed in his bid for re-election, after Joseph Geronimo made an unsuccessful attempt to run for president. The Election Board denied Geronimo's request to be placed on the primary ballot because he didn't follow the tribal election code in filing.

Geronimo mailed an unsigned letter announcing his intention to run for the office.

Chino campaigned on a ticket with the new vice president and four newly elected councillors, using the theme "Vote for Maturity," and calling on tribal members to vote for mature men, mature leadership, continued strong tribal government and experienced men.

Several members of the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe made statements Tuesday critical of the Election Board's refusal to use voting machines or to allow poll watchers.

According to at least a half dozen tribal members, voting machines were available at no charge from Otero County, but the Election Board opted to use paper ballots.

"You look back to George Washington, using pencils to vote; here on the reservation, we're still doing that," said Geronimo.

While members of the Election Board couldn't be reached to confirm their processes, Geronimo and several other members of the tribe said the Election Board is on duty throughout the election from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m., and then that same board retires behind closed doors to count the ballots.

Geronimo said the counting sometimes takes all night, with the results posted the next morning.

"I don't think the accuracy's there," he added.

At 7 p.m. Tuesday, the Election Board did close and lock the outside doors of the polling place and completely covered the windows on

Village of Ruidoso is seeking civic center architect

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Village of Ruidoso is seeking proposals on architectural services for a village civic center.

Village manager Frank Potter told a group of about 15 architects, in a pre-proposal meeting, the village has $668,000 to spend on the architectural services and the civic center. He said the village would like to build some kind of an events center for $600,000.

In the request for proposals given to the architects, the village outlined the guidelines it wants used in designing the civic center.

The civic events center will be approximately 12,000 square feet and capable of handling a maximum of 700 people. The building is to be flexible, possibly by the use of movable partitions. Even though the building will not contain a kitchen facility, provision is to be made for a food service area.

As part of the architectural services, the architects are to recommend the increments of how building could be expanded when the funds become available.

Potter said it is up to the architects to decide what the interior of the building is to look like.

He said the design of the exterior of the building would have to be coordinated with Lamb Architects, the firm designing the resort hotel and Golfscapes, the company doing the architectural work on the Sierra Blanca Golf Course. He also told the group they would be working closely with the Economic Development Advisory Board and Tracey Moran of the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Potter told the architects because of recent delays there were a lot of unknowns at this time, involving the exact location of the events center at the old airport site and the exact schedule of when construction would have to begin.

He said the project would have to be ready by the July 1, 1990, opening of the hotel and golf course. But he said the village is ready to get started now.

"We are ready to get cracking on it," Potter said.

Fonda Hazel, village purchasing agent, told the architects the RFPs would have to be back in by November 28.

In their RFPs, she said the architects have to provide sufficient information to allow the selection committee, possibly made up of the mayor, Village Council, planning administrator Cleatus Richards and Hazel, to evaluate the firm.

They must list the qualifications of the firm's staff, an evaluation from referenced clients, any related experience, the firm's ability to perform work within the time limitations and the proximity to or the familiarity with the area.

They must also provide a list of references including clients, contractors and financial institutions.

The Ruidoso Village Council will notify the architects to be interviewed personally.

A decision on the architectural firm should be made by the middle of December or before the end of the year.

Feds seize Hondo Valley house, property early today

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

George Lore told The News at 10:30 a.m. today that IRS and DEA agents just seized the 8,100 square foot home under construction in the Glencoe area.

Previous reports linking that property to Hector Tapia Anchondo, who was indicted on cocaine charges, were incorrect.

Lore, owner of the Ruidoso Building Corporation, explained Wednesday that he is the owner and the builder of the home.

Early today Lore said he witnessed federal agents at the property posting a notice. He said the agents identified themselves and told him they were seizing the property.

Lore suspects the seizure was related to the source of the money used to pay him for the house.

"None of my property was seized," said Lore, referring to his personal land and residence. The house under construction, while still in Lore's name, was being constructed under an agreement with Enrique Carlos Tapia Anchondo, Hector Anchondo's brother.

"I was building the house for his (Hector Anchondo's) brother, who wasn't even indicted," said Lore. "He didn't keep up with building payments so I took the house back. He owes me $420,000."

Lore also said the house and building permit were always in his name and never in either Hector Anchondo's or his brother's name.

Reports in the November 6 issue of The News linking the Lore house to Anchondo were also incorrect, said Lore.

The Ruidoso News first reported, Monday, October 9, that the property including the large home under construction was owned by Lore and was valued at about $225,000.

The News also reported that Anchondo's property was next door and was valued at about $56,000.

However, subsequent media reports linked the Lore property to Anchondo and said this property was seized by the IRS.

The notice of Lis Pendens filed in the county clerk's office lists the Anchondo property totalling 56 acres.

"That can't be right, because there's only 38," said Lore on Wednesday. Records in the county assessor's office indicate Anchondo is taxed for only 37 acres.

The property seized earlier by the IRS is the Black Bear Ranch, which is owned by Hector Anchondo, said Lore.

Ed Wagner, of the criminal investigation division of IRS in El Paso, confirmed this, as well as the seizure of property on Hull Road owned by James Romero McTague.

Wagner said an additional tract of 25 acres owned by Anchondo was seized by the IRS under Title 31 statutes.

Wagner, contacted early today, said this latest seizure was through the Albuquerque office of the IRS. A spokesman in that office couldn't be reached for comment at press time.

Other media reports said the total value of property seized by the IRS was about $534,500, which Wagner confirmed Wednesday.

Jose Vasquez rented the property seized by the IRS on Hull Road from McTague.

Tom Smith of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) previously said he was aware of an arrest warrant issued in California for Vasquez.

Grace Denton, from the U.S. Attorney's office in Los Angeles, California said Wednesday Vasquez is not wanted in that district.

"We've arrested everyone," she said.

Smith also said the DEA office in Albuquerque is no longer looking for Vasquez.

Wagner said Wednesday the property seizure was the result of a lengthy investigation into the cash transactions of McTague and Anchondo based on detailed information provided by a source.

"We've been investigating the financial transactions of the Tapias and the McTagues for well over a year and a half," said Wagner.

The IRS knew both the Tapias and the McTagues had acquired substantial assets, but was still uncertain about the source of the income.

"We knew (McTague) was a person of substance, but we had no clear idea of the magnitude until the 20 ton cocaine seizure in Los Angeles," said Wagner.

The street value of the seizure was well over $330 million, he said.

The earlier property seizures were made under the jurisdiction of Title 31 statutes which govern structuring procedures, said Wagner, however the authority for this morning's seizure isn't known.

Transactions more than $10,000 must be reported by banks, and attempts to avoid this reporting procedure over a period of time can involve money laundering, he said.

"They are attempting to conceal the source of the money," said Wagner. "In this case, the source was cocaine smuggling."

By accumulating cashiers checks in amounts of $9,000, or less, individuals attempting to hide the source of their income then make purchases to acquire real assets.

Because the payment of federal income tax was also possibly avoided, the IRS can also issue federal tax liens on the property, said Wagner.

The News asked Wagner if the IRS was likely to issue tax liens on the property in the future.

"Sure," he said.

Service club group considers village budget

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Village of Ruidoso's budget was the topic of discussion during a presentation at Monday's Lincoln County Service Club Council.

The crowd of citizens, village officials, reporters and a photographer from Parsons Production, who was paid by Barbara Duff, president of Service Club, to attend, heard two views of village finance.

Jim Baker, a private citizen, and village finance director John Varley each gave their own interpretation of the village budget.

Baker started off by saying he was not a candidate for any office and the budget study he had prepared was at the request of former Councillor Elmer Pirelli. He said his original interest in the village budget came after Councillor Al Junge made comments about the financial losses at the airport.

He said in looking at the budget he was only concerned with revenues and expenditures. He said he had found out a lot of nice things about the budget and some bad things.

Baker said he had to give credit to the village for serving the people. He said Grindstone Dam was costly, but was needed to hold the village's effluent water credit. He continued and said the Eagle Creek wells had contributed water to the village at a time when other areas were having to ration water.

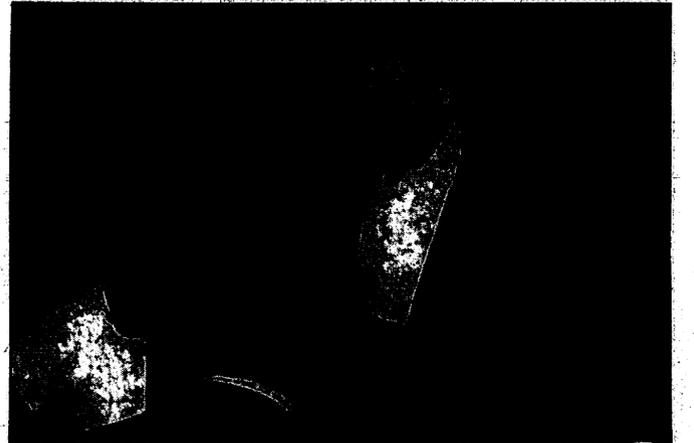

He said the village's computerized accounting system was being run by competent people.

Baker said the budget report the village is required to send to the Department of Financial Affairs (DFA) in Santa Fe was difficult for a councillor to understand and was misleading. He said the village management knows the report is difficult and they might want to keep it hard to understand.

"The less you disclose to the councilman and the public, the fewer the problems they have," Baker said.

He said the village was using a standard computer system and a fund accounting system by all municipalities.

Please see Service, page 2A

Jim Baker, a private citizen who last year prepared a special budget report for the village council, discusses the report and other village budgetary matters at Monday's Service Club Council meeting. Village finance director John Varley also spoke at the program and gave his rebuttal to some of Baker's statements. The meeting lasted one hour and forty minutes.

Service

"I don't like it," he said.

Baker said even though the accounting is monitored by the DFA, the ease that funds can be transferred make the monitoring useless.

He said not all funds are under direct village control and he said nowhere in the village's budget does it say there is a surplus or a deficit. He said the accounting system used by the village makes it look like the utilities don't make any money, when they actually do.

He said a half cent sales tax, which was approved to purchase the old airport, was reported as revenue for the new airport.

"The airport has not made a profit and it is not going to make a profit, although it is improving," Baker said.

He went on to say the airport would probably lose money this year and he asked where the money to subsidize an airline was going to come from.

He said property taxes have continued to increase and the village is depleting its cash reserves to pay back deficit spending which occurred last year.

"Last year, the village sustained a substantial deficit," he said. He further said last year's budget was approved with a deficit, according to conventional accounting.

"There clearly was a budget deficit," he said.

He said he saw no particular budgetary controls being applied by the village. He said this year the village has already spent $160,000 for property in the last quarter of this year.

"It is possible for another budget deficit this year," Baker said.

He also said the village has had a horrible time with legal expenses and he questioned the wisdom of giving village employees a pay raise under the current situation.

"You might question the prudence of a pay raise after suffering a $919,000 deficit," he said.

Baker said not all the increases in taxes were the village's fault. He said the state had increased state taxes by 54 percent.

He said his report had brought forth some statistics that were not previously available to the council. He said the village has $10 million in assets and that these assets should be on the village books.

When asked by someone in the crowd if the village realized there was a deficit in last year's budget, Baker replied he thought the top management realized it, but the council did not.

Finally, after 45 minutes of speaking and at the urging of Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., Baker yielded the podium to Varley.

Before, Varley could speak, Junge spoke up and asked permission to ask Baker a question.

Junge said he had learned a lot from Baker's report, but according to the budget, last year the village overspent right at $1 million. He said the two budget resolutions passed by the council in December and June, when added together come to $1 million. He said the money to cover the resolutions came out of the water, sewer and trash departments.

Baker responded that Junge was not stating the facts as he (Baker) saw them and called Junge's statements "totally and completely incorrect."

When Varley finally got to speak at the podium, village manager Frank Potter asked him if the DFA would approve a deficit budget.

Varley started off by first giving a definition of deficit.

"A deficit means you write a check and it bounces," he said. "That is not what municipal accounting is all about."

At that point, Varley was interrupted by laughter from certain members of the crowd.

After another question from the crowd, division head Leon Eggleston asked to speak and told the group the village may have spent some money out of the cash balance, but there has never been a deficit budget.

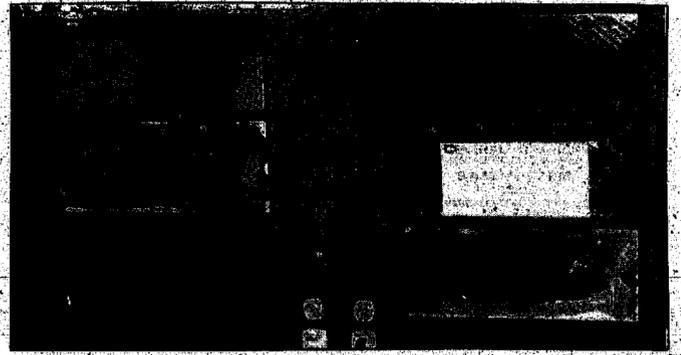

"The council has never approved a deficit budget," Eggleston said.

Varley said there were general operating transfers and debt service transfers. He said transfers were made for statutory reasons and also for general accounting.

Varley said the mid-year resolution was simply a review of where the village stands on expenditures and a change to evaluate incoming revenues. He said the final budget resolution was a cleanup resolution which brings the village into compliance with the law.

After a few more questions from the group to Varley, the meeting ended one hour and forty minutes after it started.

In the only service club business, Dick Weber and Roger Coble asked for help and volunteers from the Service Club Council to raise funds for Michael Malis.

Members of the Election Board of the Mesquero Apache Indian Tribe lock the doors and cover the windows to ensure complete privacy when counting the paper ballots from Tuesday's election.

those doors with some thick plastic material.

Geronimo and others were disappointed that poll watchers weren't allowed during the election and during the counting. They said the League of Women Voters in Albuquerque had agreed to send some poll watchers, however the request by Geronimo for poll watchers was apparently ignored or denied.

"In other Indian nations it's open," said Geronimo.

The small group raised other questions over the election, but their charges couldn't be verified since the officials in charge of the election weren't available to answer questions.

Finance director details village budget, spending

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Village finance director John Varley, in an interview Tuesday, defended statements he made at Monday's Service Club Council meeting and invited anyone to come to his office and look at his figures.

Varley also gave his review of the village's first quarter budget which ended on September 30.

He said his statement "deficit means you write a check and it bounces. That is not what municipal accounting is all about" was correct. He said there are definite differences between municipal accounting and commercial accounting. He said deficit is not defined as expenditures in excess of revenues.

"It is important, particularly in this town, to evaluate the general revenue budget in light of your expenditure budget," Varley said.

He also said everyone in municipal accounting uses transfers of funds.

"Transfers in government accounting are a fact of life," Varley said.

He said he would welcome anyone who would like to come by and look at the budget figures and he would show them where Jim Baker got his figures.

"I'll be glad to discuss it with anyone," he said.

Varley called last year's budget one of the hardest this village had seen in a long time. He said there were changes in the way things were done in last year's budget and a lot of difficult decisions were made.

"I don't think the council has anything to be ashamed of with last year's budget," he said.

Varley said that no significant over budget conditions exist in this year's first quarter budget review. He said in the strictest sense, over budget means that an expenditure has exceeded the total appropriation, not just for a given operating period. He said a department is over budget if the remaining budget is not sufficient to cover costs for the rest of the year.

Varley said that in mid-August, the village froze all departments' capital outlay in order to initiate greater control in the issuing of purchase orders. He said purchases were restricted to items essential to operations. He said they will probably remain frozen until after the first of the year and possibly until March 31.

In his report to the village council on the first quarter of the fiscal year, it shows various departments are over this quarter in their operations line-item. But, Varley said in looking at the report, it is important to consider that certain operations have to be performed in the warmer months of the first quarter and that some departments performed work earlier this year than they traditionally have in the past.

"It's all a matter of timing," Varley said.

In looking at the individual departments, the legislative department operation line-item is over for the first quarter by $3,647. Varley said the reason for this is the New Mexico Municipal League dues exceeded the budget by $1,532. He added there are sufficient funds in the department's operations fund for the remainder of the year.

The capital outlay portion of the legislative department was over by $10,088. He said this is because the village under budgeted the Ruidoso lapel pins they ordered at the beginning of the year and it will require a budget adjustment.

Varley says he made a budget adjustment of $160,000 in the capital outlay portion of the legislative department for purchase of the Blaugrand land at the old airport and across from the Police Department. He said the money for the acquisition was in the year's budget, but by opting to purchase the land early, instead of waiting until a later quarter, the village saved $8,000 to $10,000.

The executive department operating line-item was over by $15,096. Varley said this is for attorneys' fees for complex legal fees and computer programming fees. Varley said so far legal costs have amounted to $8,730 and will require approximately $26,000. He said the village will be submitting a budget adjustment for approximately $35,000 for complex legal services.

Varley's own finance department was under budget by $12,558 in the first quarter. Varley said some of that will soon be spent on the village's annual audit fee.

The Police Department shows to be under budget by $10,902 in the first quarter. However, the capital outlay budget was over by $3,285. Varley said this is because of the upgrade of the NEC computer at the department. He said this could not have been anticipated at the beginning of the year and will require a budget adjustment.

The operating budget for the Street Department was over budget in the first quarter by $35,824.

Varley said the Street Department operating budget included funds from the special gas tax fund, the legislature approved for street improvements. According to Varley, the expenditures as of now for the paying line-items are at almost 100 percent. He said these expenditures are at this level because the village acted on information from the state the production of the special gas tax would be at $140,000. The Department of Financial Affairs didn't agree with the amount and reduced the amount to $74,812. Street superintendent Charlie Armstrong has requested most of his capital outlay budget be transferred to operations, Varley said.

The library showed an over budget of $3,015 in its operating fund for the first quarter. This was due, Varley said, to expenditures for patron subscriptions that were not budgeted, greater spending than usual on books and the annual purchase of certain office supplies.

The Water Department operating fund was over budget $24,473 in the first quarter. Varley said this is due to the department's doing water main replacement in the first quarter rather than in the spring, when it has been done in the past.

The Sewer Department was over budget in the first quarter by $69,049. This was also due to early replacement of sewer lines and a contract for $46,045, which was issued last year, for raising the manholes in Ponderosa Heights. The contract was budgeted and all payments made, said Varley.

The airport, which has received criticism in the past for its losses, shows to be $16,068 under budget in the first quarter.

The Parks and Recreation Department budget showed an over budget of $5,865 in the first quarter. Varley said this is due to purchasing items for softball and the concession stands.

The regional wastewater plant operating fund was over budget by $16,209. This was due to the village's renting of a sludge press to catch up on water treatment and greater than expected costs in utilities and chemicals.

The Sanitation Department shows to be $4,972 over budget in the first quarter. This is directly due, Varley said, to the village transporting compacted garbage to the Roswell landfill.

Of the remainder of the village's 25 departments, most were either under budget or only over budget by insignificant amounts.

The village's second quarter of the fiscal year began October 1 and will end on December 31.

Hondo Valley landfill proposal disturbs Nosker's neighbors

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Will the Village of Ruidoso Downs get permission to operate a landfill in the Hondo Valley on property owned by Kenneth Nosker?

Downs Mayor Jake Harris and Nosker are gathering data and taking steps to obtain a permit for the operation planned for land just off U.S. Highway 70.

Meanwhile, a group of Hondo Valley residents are gearing up for a fight.

"We don't want a landfill in the valley," said several members of the group early this week. Issues that concern Nosker's neighbors include the site's proximity to the water table, to the Rio Ruidoso and to their homes.

Nosker already gave permission for the Village of Ruidoso Downs to dispose of solid waste on that property when that municipality was left without a landfill last spring. That dumping was declared illegal by the Environmental Improvement Division (EID), and Harris and Nosker were ordered to remove the trash that was placed there.

EID staff members have been unsuccessful in attempts to confirm whether or not all the garbage was removed, but Harris has said that all the trash that could be removed was hauled away.

Nosker was ordered to appear in District Court in Santa Fe on Wednesday on a possible contempt charge to show why he should not be held in contempt of court for violating a previous order of inspection issued by the District Court.

The inspection order was granted to the EID as requested by district supervisor Gary McCaslin to conduct an on-site inspection on Nosker's property to verify the removal of garbage dumped there illegally.

McCaslin secured a search order from District Judge Art Encinas on October 12 that allowed EID to inspect Nosker's property.

Nosker told The News he sought a stay against the order unless EID posted a cash bond to cover damage to his property sustained during the inspection.

In a copy of a sworn affidavit obtained by The News, McCaslin said when he arrived to serve the inspection order, a locked gate to the property was encountered.

"On Thursday, October 19, 1989, Mr. Nosker called me and stated that he did not want EID to enter his property and that if I wanted to enter, I would have to forcibly break the lock and open the gate," said McCaslin in the affidavit.

EID is considering an application for a permit to operate a landfill on the same site.

"We're still requesting additional information as is required," said Neil Weber, bureau chief of the special waste bureau of EID.

Harris applied for the permit on Nosker's property. Nosker was named as the operator for the site, according to the permit application.

Weber said it would be months before any substantial progress would be made in the application process.

"We still have many questions about technical information we are requesting," he said.

Weber also said the application will go to public notice for public comment at some point in the future.

Nosker, Harris and environmental engineer David Bollschweiler visited with Weber in Santa Fe last week.

Weber said the visit was to gather technical details.

Another step in the permit process will be to establish financial solvency of the landfill operator, said Weber.

Planners expand industrial zoning here

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Village of Ruidoso Planning and Zoning (P&Z) Commission approved and passed along to the Village Council a recommendation to rezone the old Gibson's building and a tract of land on Gavilan Road.

The commission, during a regular meeting Monday, unanimously approved a request by J.B. Close to rezone a tract of land, located at 200 Gavilan Road, from C-1 neighborhood commercial to I-1 industrial.

Close told the commission he wanted the tract rezoned because the adjacent properties were industrial and he felt it would be an asset to the community to have it as a commercial area.

Planning administrator Cleatus Richards said there were four property owners in the area who expressed opposition to the rezoning. He said their reasons ranged from a detrimental effect on property values, to the change was not in the best interest of the area and not compatible with current zoning, to simply not wanting industry in the area.

George Puckett of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County told the commission he thought the industrial zoning would be the best use of the property, that it would enhance the area and add to economic development.

"Personally, I feel an industrial area would be a benefit," he said.

Andy Hale, a resident of the mobile home park that is currently located on the tract of land, said many of the people who live there could not afford to move.

"It is just too expensive to move," he said.

In another unanimous vote, the commission approved a request by Maurice S. Cole Incorporated for the rezoning of the old Gibson's building from C-2 community commercial to the new designation of C-4 heavy commercial.

Attorney Bill Lipscomb, who represents Cole Incorporated, told the commission there was a prospective tenant for the building who would be doing some assembly of materials.

Puckett said the company would be making wiring harnesses. He said he was in contact with another company interested in the building. This company would manufacture printed circuit boards for electronics. He said he thought the building could be promoted as the Ruidoso Technical Center and that both industries would fit under the C-4 zoning.

Commission Chairman Robert Donaldson said he thought all C-4 and other industrial tracts should be given conditional use zoning to allow the village to screen the types of industries.

The commission also unanimously approved the initial zoning of both the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport and Wingfield Park.

P&Z recommended the Wingfield Park property be zoned mixed planned unit development (PUD-Mixed) and the airport PUD-Industrial. Richards said this zoning would be compatible with the Airport Master Plan.

The commissioners also approved and recommended to council Airport Hazard Zone Regulations for Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

These regulations cover the height and locations of businesses and industries around airports. Richards said the regulations had been approved by the Federal Aviation Administration.

In other business before the commission:

—Commissioners approved a front and side yard variance to Candace Garrett for construction of a airport at 126 Hart.

—Commissioners discussed with Greg Masters ways he should go about correcting an encroachment between two lots.

—Richards told the commission there would be a workshop with village councilors following the November 20 meeting. The workshop is to answer any questions the councilors might have about annexation and the building, zoning and subdivision code amendments.

The Capitan Lady Tigers volleyball squad advanced to the state tournament after defeating both Mountainair and Fort Sumner in the regional tournament Saturday.

Fort Sumner also advanced to the state tournament as the runner-up.

The first round of the state tournament is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. today (Thursday) with Sandia Prep versus Fort Sumner at Goddard High School in Roswell.

Capitan is scheduled to play at 3:15 p.m. today (Thursday) against Roy.

"Our match with Fort Sumner was as near perfect as any match could be," said coach Pam Allen.

The Lady Tigers beat Fort Sumner in three games, 15-2, 15-8, 15-5, with 60 of 63 from the service line.

"The girls were really up for that match," said Allen.

The coach said there were reports in the Fort Sumner press that the Lady Tigers received serves poorly and other criticisms, which made the girls mad.

During the match, Capitan was 100 percent from the service line until the last game when the team missed three serves.

Leslie LaRue had six service points in the first game with Fort Sumner, and Lora McKay had four. McKay had eight in the second game; Cindy Castillo had six in the third and Vickie Sedillo had five.

In the preliminary match during the regional tournament, the Lady Tigers defeated the Mountainair squad 15-8, 15-3, 15-6.

McKay had nine service points in the first game and LaRue had four; Castillo had 10 in the second and LaRue had 10 in the third. Allen said the girls played as a total unit throughout the tournament. Their concentration was good and they were prepared for extended play if necessary.

Local fans exhibited tremendous support and watched great volleyball.

The winners in the first round go to Roswell High School for the second round and Capitan is expected to play at 3:15 p.m. Friday, November 10.

The third place match will begin at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, November 11, and the championship match is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Allen expects to play Sandia Prep in the championship match.

"(They) better be ready," said Allen.

Classes from kindergarten through sixth grade shared New Mexico highlights as part of the award-winning celebration.

The classes also displayed the New Mexico flag in the gymnasium and also prepared and ate a New Mexico snack.

For the snack, each student received a flour tortilla, slice of cheese, two raisins and a toothpick. The toothpick was used to carve the cheese into the shape of the state of New Mexico. The raisins were placed to represent Santa Fe and Corona. The students then sang Happy Birthday to New Mexico and ate the snack.

Tiger Guard wins awards at Zia band festival in Albuquerque

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Capitan Tiger Guard marching band competed in Albuquerque and came home with four awards, plus a trophy for Outstanding Class A Marching Band.

Band director Dick Valenzuela said the group participated in the 1989 Zia Marching Festival conducted on November 4 in Albuquerque at the university stadium.

In addition to the trophy, the Tiger Guard was recognized with plaques for outstanding woodwind section, outstanding auxiliary unit, outstanding percussion and outstanding drum major.

Thirty-six bands from throughout New Mexico and Colorado competed in the event.

Although Capitan was the only Class A band present, the awards were earned, and not presented by default.

"The judges do not have to give awards," said Valenzuela.

For example, the Tiger Guard did not receive awards in some categories.

Many other Class A schools do not participate in festivals and competitions because directors may think their bands are too small, said Valenzuela.

"As long as they (the other directors) do not participate, we're still going to go and win," he said.

Valenzuela also said this was the second year in a row Capitan won the outstanding band award at the Zia festival.

This year's festival was also special because of a registration snafu. "It was the festival that almost wasn't," said Valenzuela.

The director said he completed the registration forms for the competition and mailed them early, but just prior to the festival, a Zia representative called and said they hadn't received one.

Had this phone call not been made, the Tiger Guard could have travelled all the way to Albuquerque only to be disappointed. Without their registration in hand, the festival directors would not have allowed the group to participate.

"It's a good thing I know them," said Valenzuela.

The group performed "Mirada," composed and arranged by Bob Cotter; "Olvidar," composed by Don Sebesky and arranged by Jay Dawson; "The Children of Sanchez," composed by Chuck Mangione and arranged by Dick Valenzuela.

Deer seasons open; information, tips are listed

HUNTING PERIODS FOR DEER RIFLE HUNTING

Hunters will have to choose one of three hunt periods:
 —November 4-5
 —November 8-11
 —November 15-21

In addition the state has been divided into 14 different regions. Hunters must pick one region and hunt only in that region, according to a news release provided by New Mexico Game and Fish. Game management and hunting regions should not be confused with each other.

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) has announced that hunter patrols will be in the field the weekend of each deer hunt.

The first weekend, four Roswell Resource Area employees patrolled the district. BLM law enforcement rangers will also be patrolling.

"We are in the field to help hunters gain legal access to public lands," said Ray Keller, BLM supervisory range conservationist.

"We also try to encourage the hunters to respect private property. People may forget their manners when they get carried away by the fever of hunting," he added.

"We're out there to remind them to be safety-conscious and to respect the land, both public and private," said Keller.

Here is a predicted success rate (by region) from a preliminary survey done by the Game and Fish on last year's rifle seasons: A, 20.2; B, 14.2; C, 14.5; D, 48.0; E, 13.3; F, 14.5; G, 18.8; H, 33.7; I, 16.3; J, 23.2; K, 21.1; L, 28.6; M, 34.2; N, 22.8.

The Department of Game and Fish advises all hunters to obtain a copy of the New Mexico Big Game Proclamation before hunting this year. This proclamation contains all the rules and regulations governing the hunts.

Big game seasons include rifle hunts for deer and additional elk hunts in December. Bear season has been cancelled in the Capitan mountains to protect a population reduced by deaths of hungry bears.

UPLAND BIRD, WATERFOWL SEASONS

Sandhill crane season continues through January 21, 1990, in eastern and southeastern New Mexico. Limit is three a day, six in possession.

Quail season will open statewide November 11 and run through February 11, 1990. Limit is 15 a day, 30 in possession. Bobwhite, scaled and Gambel's quail may all be hunted, with any combination counting toward the bag limit.

Mourning or white-winged dove season will re-open December 1 through December 30 statewide, with limit of 15 a day, 30 in possession.

Pheasant season will be from December 2 through 6, with a limit of three males a day, six in possession.

Season for lesser prairie chicken in the eastern part of the state is from December 9 to 17. Limit is three a day, six in possession.

1989 FEDERAL DUCK STAMP CONTEST

On November sixth and seventh in the auditorium of the Department of Interior in Washington D.C., 603 artists from 48 states will compete in this year's duck stamp contest.

That number will include three artists from New Mexico.

The first duck stamp ever sold was worth only $1 in 1934, but has recently been sold for a six figure amount. That's why there are so many prospective duck stamp artists.

According to Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan, the Federal Duck stamp program is a huge success.

"The revenue from the sale of Federal Duck Stamps goes directly into the Migratory Bird Conservation Fund and is used to purchase prime wetland habitat throughout the United States. These funds are the backbone of this country's efforts to acquire, protect and restore valuable wetland habitat," said Lujan.

Since the program started in 1934, more than 350 million Duck Stamp dollars have gone to preserve nearly four million acres of wetlands. Many of the more than 440 national wildlife refuges in the United States have been paid for entirely, or in part, by Duck Stamp revenue.

Duck stamps are on sale at U.S. post offices and many wildlife refuges.

WILDLIFE HABITAT IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

Three years ago, hunters, trappers and anglers began contributing toward habitat improvement projects, such as prescribed burns and watershed improvements. One million dollars has been collected in Carson National Forest, Lincoln National Forest and nearby properties of the Bureau of Land Management.

The Department of Game and Fish wants to know what the public thinks of this program. A meeting is planned at 7:30 p.m. today (Thursday), November 9, at the Civic Center in Alamogordo.

PRESCRIBED BURN

USFS has begun a prescribed burns project on the north side of the Capitan Mountains. A recent burn encompassed 800 acres and was from October 30 until November 2.

These controlled fires are planned to improve wildlife habitat and reduce the possibility of explosive forest fires.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Cy Jamison, Director of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), wants to remind everyone who uses the 272 million acres of BLM land in the 11 western states, to take care of it, it's yours.

Encouraging the public to show respect for each other as well as the land, Jamison wants to remind people in New Mexico of the Operation Respect program. This program is designed to assist the hunter in making this season's hunts more enjoyable. Contact the nearest BLM for more information.

REWARD

A $750 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of two men who killed a young Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep in the Pecos Wilderness October 21.

Anyone with information is asked to contact investigating officer Leon Redman or call the Operation Game Thief tip line at 1-800-432-GAME. Callers are not asked their names or required to testify in court.

LOST HUNTERS

Ben Hanson of New Mexico Game and Fish says that it happens every year. During the fall hunting seasons someone becomes disoriented and can't find their way back to camp.

Hansen explains that being temporarily confused is a situation that happens to everyone, including himself. Hunters are in a type of environment were they can't ask anyone which way to go.

That's why a hunter must be prepared with map, compass, survival kit, warm clothes and some extra food and water.

Liquor is not advised, it works to your disadvantage in cold weather. Drinking liquor dilates outer blood vessels, making you feel warm, while actually your body heat is ebbing away.

A hunter should have a map of the areas he plans to hunt. Knowing about the terrain is the first step toward unconfused hunting. Prominent landmarks near camp should be firmly engraved in the hunter's mind. Always keep yourself (and your compass) oriented with the landmark. Returning to camp an hour before dark is another wise decision.

Most sportsmen think they will never get lost, until a foggy or snowy day obscures landmarks. That's why a compass is a valuable tool. Sometimes it's not used because the hunter panics.

Don't panic! Stop, sit down and use your compass to orient yourself to camp.

If you have become lost, without a compass, then stay in one area. Don't wander around aimlessly, which could confuse you even more, tire you out and increase anxiety.

Ben Hanson explains that being lost is no problem if you're prepared.

A survival kit should include, a knife, rope, waterproof matches, a plastic whistle, a small mirror, a flash light, candles and extra water. Being able to build a fire and shelter is most important. A mirror or flashlight could be used for signaling members of your hunting party or rescue workers. Signals in the snow or bright clothing on tall trees could also help searchers locate you.

Without a survival kit, there are many ways to improvise. Shoelaces can be used for rope. Covering yourself with tree limbs, pine needles or leaves can insulate you from the cold.

When someone is found and has been overexposed to the cold, don't give the person alcoholic beverages. Bundle them up with dry blankets and give them warm fluids to drink. Hypothermia can cause death so do everything possible to bring the victim's core body temperature up. Get medical attention as soon as possible.

Hanson stresses that using your brains is the best way to survive when lost, and the quickest way to be found. Preventive steps are a sure sign that a hunter is using his head.

Get ready to exercise!

Athletic adults of Ruidoso, indoor winter sports can be fun and healthy. For adults that wish to enjoy basketball and volleyball, the time is now.

The Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department has announced that open gym is scheduled from now through March 29, 1990, at specified times at White Mountain Intermediate School.

Sports Theater bets hit $1/2 million

Bettors have wagered $513,699 on simulcast racing since the Sports Theater opened at Ruidoso Downs Race Track on September 16.

The Sports Theater drew its biggest crowd this past Saturday when all seven Breeder's Cup races were presented. Marketing director Mark Doth said 435 people wagered $50,616 Saturday.

As of Sunday, 3,320 people have visited the Sports Theater, wagering an average of $36,693 a day.

The Sports Theater opens at 11:30 a.m. Wednesdays and Fridays through Sundays, and on Mondays when there are special races available for simulcast.

Pari-mutuel betting is limited to horse racing simulcasts, but racing fans can also view, for pleasure, lots of other sporting events that are carried on the television monitors mounted throughout the theater and in the bar and restaurant areas.

The restaurant and bar are open whenever the Sports Theater is open.

"We're hoping for snow, now," said Doth, noting that a number of promotional plans hinge on when Ruidoso gets its first snow.

He said the Sports Theater will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, but will be open the rest of Thanksgiving weekend.

For further information on the Sports Theater, call the Ruidoso Downs Race Track at 378-4431.

MainStreet heads into busy season

A major bike race next April, Christmas open house, a Christmas promotion, a benefit garage sale and appointments marked a meeting of MainStreet Ruidoso directors Wednesday morning.

Herb Brunell, board president, recognized Village Councillor J. D. James as official village representative on the board. James was appointed to the position by Mayor Lloyd Davis Jr.

Brunell also appointed attorney Mike Runnels as honorary liaison member of the board.

Runnels reportedly has joined a law firm in the Albuquerque area but still maintains a residence here.

The board voted to support a proposed All-City Garage Sale, from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, November 19, at Ski West Center. This will be a benefit sale for Michael Malis, who needs a liver transplant.

Sharon Wells will chair a sub-committee dealing with a Christmas open house scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m. December 17.

MainStreet project merchants will have their doors open that afternoon for Christmas shoppers.

Possible special entertainment was discussed.

The board voted to provide $500 toward a special video Christmas advertising promotion featuring MainStreet merchants. Bill Hirschfeld, who heads the promotion committee, made the request.

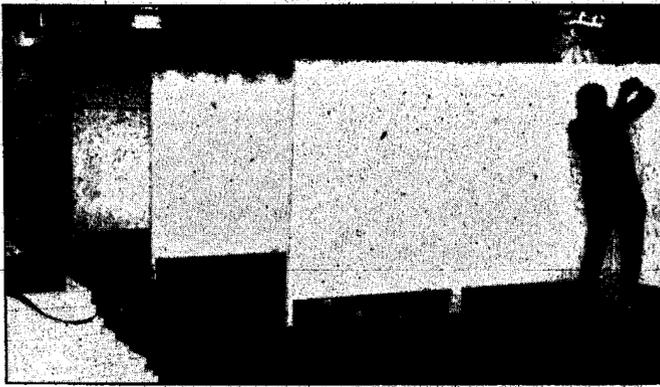

Jacqueline Bentley, reporting for Janet Reed, outlined plans to attract a major sponsor for the Tour de Ruidoso Bike Race, to be sponsored by MainStreet Ruidoso April 20-22, 1990.

Mary Maul, project director, reported that only two merchants have ordered Christmas lights. The deadline is Friday, November 10.

The board voted to wait until next summer to participate in the New Mexico Literature Exchange. The exchange distributes brochures for many organizations over a wide geographical area.

A general meeting of MainStreet Ruidoso members was called for Wednesday, November 8, to consider a change in the by-laws and to obtain input on streetscape plans.

By-laws had to be revised so that MainStreet Ruidoso can retain its tax-exempt status.

It's a jubilee

Workmen erect booth panels at Carrizo Lodge in preparation for the Christmas Jubilee, scheduled Friday from 4 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. This is the second year the Ruidoso Valley Greeters have presented this shopping extravaganza. There is a waiting list for booth space. Easy access to the second story of the hall is from the back where handicapped or elderly persons may be delivered by automobile for easy access to the Jubilee festivities.

Glencoe Birthdays
This is being sent to you on November Six, a bright and sunny blue sky Indian Summer Day. Just right for celebrating a birthday. This is the birthday of two favorite Glencoe folks: Mrs. Ula Gipson and Paul Alan Bonnell.

Let us have a few words first about Ula.

Happy Birthday To Ula Gipson

Ula Lee Gipson was born November 6, 1897, in Edwards County, Texas, to James Powell Perry and the former Mary Jane Brown.

In the year 1900, Ula and her father and mother and the youngest of her three brothers, Lewin, headed for Lincoln county—on the train. Meanwhile, here three elder brothers, Elzy, Pierce and Howard, drove a herd of Angora goats overland from Texas, riding horseback with a chuckwagon trailing along. At this time Ula was age three and Lewin about ten, and the other boys in their middle and late teens.

The journey went well except for trouble with quick sand while crossing the Pecos River. The herd of about a thousand goats made the crossing safely. And that fall the family settled above Angus on the Bonito. After about three years they sold the goats and the family moved over to Gallinas near Corona where they set up a sawmill. A little later the family homesteaded in the hills south of Glencoe.

Ula went to school in Roswell, Alamogordo and Silver City where she graduated from High School. On November twenty-three, 1921, she was married to Lloyd Siringo Gipson. They have a son, James Lloyd Gipson, "Jimmy."

Ula and Lloyd lived for a while in Colorado where Lloyd studied at Local Kiwanis Club gathers food and funds

The Thanksgiving holiday is quickly approaching and the Ruidoso Kiwanis Club is trying to make sure everyone has enough food for the traditional holiday feast.

The Ruidoso Kiwanis Club has put out containers at various locations to collect canned goods for the needy families of Lincoln County.

The baskets are well marked and located in 13 businesses and schools. They include the main post office, Lincoln Cablevision, Sierra Mall, both Safeway stores, Bennett's supermarket, Wal-Mart, KBUY Radio and all Ruidoso schools.

The Department of Human Service (DHS) will provide the Kiwanis Club with a list of names of needy families. If anyone knows of a family that needs help this Thanksgiving, they should call the Department of Human Service. DHS will send all the families on their list a card, and each family will have to present the card in order to obtain the food items.

The distribution center for the food drive will be the First Baptist Church of Ruidoso on Mechem Drive.

The Kiwanis will also be purchasing food items and would welcome any cash donations. Cash donations should be sent to the Ruidoso Kiwanis Club, P.O. Box 2103, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

Thanks to the generous support of local residents during the past two years, the Kiwanis members have been able to make it a happier Thanksgiving for a number of area families.

The Santacops organization is still collecting new clothes and toys for their giveaway program at Christmas.

Santacops has planned two fundraisers for Saturday, November 18. The group will sponsor a bake sale from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at Wal-Mart and a garage sale from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Elk's Lodge on U.S. Highway 70. Donations for the garage sale may be taken to the Ruidoso Police Department.

Contel Corner

Providing a Long Distance Choice

"Equal Access" is another slice in the deregulation pie. It lets telephone users decide which long distance company will carry their long distance call. Before, AT&T handled all long distance calls.

Some Contel customers have asked "When will I be able to use other long distance companies in my area?" That can only be answered by those companies. Providing equal access requires major modifications to the local telephone network. Before doing this costly conversion, local telephone companies must have long distance companies interested in the service so they can recover their investment. Currently, long distance companies are targeting large, urban markets.

Contel will inform its customers whenever equal access becomes available.

EDITORIAL

Three cheers just aren't enough to show our pride in the Ruidoso High School athletes and coaches who brought home district championships last weekend. We'd better make it four, since the Warriors are district champs in four sports—football, volleyball, girls cross country and boys cross country.

And it's not over yet. By their hard work and commitment, those young athletes have extended their seasons into the state playoffs. We can look forward to more great competition over the next few weeks.

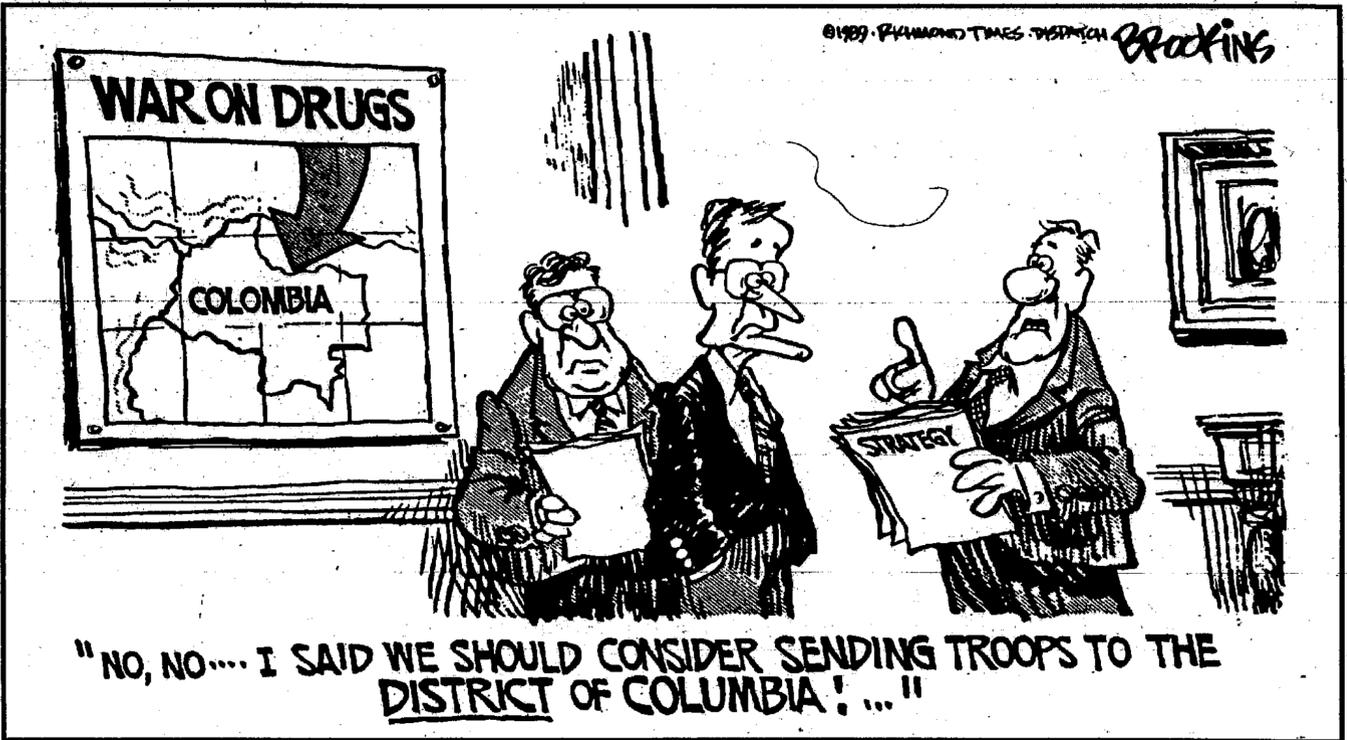

Those fighting Warriors have given this community something to brag about. Congratulations, Warriors, we're proud of you.

And speaking of pride...

Isn't it great to be a part of this community that has pitched in with all feet to help out young Michael Malis? That little boy's plight has brought out the best in just about everybody in town.

By the time the Malis family gets word that Michael's up for the liver transplant that doctors say will save his life, it's likely that every person in the area will have helped raise funds to help cover the mounting medical bills.

Churches, clubs, businesses and individuals are all working together to help save Michael's life. We're all pulling for Michael, and it's a good feeling to be a part of such a generous and caring community.—fj

Letters to the editor

DEAR EDITOR:
As a fairly new resident of Ruidoso, I am so proud of the citizens and local merchants who participated in and supported our Ruidoso Care Center Halloween Carnival.

Our family has lived here for two years and have been welcomed by the schools, our fellow lodgers, and community organizations. It is a very easy community "to settle" in. Everyone involved in the success of the Care Center fund raiser to be commended.

The Ruidoso High School Home Economics Department baked 1,400 cupcakes, the art department contributed decorations, Eddie Parker gave time and talents to sell popcorn, the Pal Students of the Middle School contributed to running our activity booths. Most noticeable was the "positive" giving attitude of our local merchants and restaurants! I would ask for one donation be answered with "Is there anything else I can do?"

To all the merchants and restaurants that I had the pleasure to meet, I know you have a future. Ruidoso has been blessed with many natural wonders, but also with citizens with caring hearts.

Case in point: The Immediate Malis Fund! God Bless all of you...

This year, the three elementary schools of Ruidoso cooperatively held a raffle sale to raise monies to support each school's activity fund. The raffle was very successful. Reporter's Round

By Richard A. Harrold

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

I wonder if Robert Frost was thinking about Forest Road 616 when he wrote about the "road less traveled."

The idea certainly crossed my mind while I experienced an adventure I will not soon forget.

If you examine a forest service map of the Lincoln National Forest, you will discover that road 616 is on the north side of the Capitan Range. It ostensibly runs south from State Road 248 through the Capitan Gap, then curves eastward to disappear somewhere in the vicinity of Shoemaker Canyon.

I assure you, the road does not disappear.

On a Tuesday morning, I drove my two-wheel drive Nissan out to the Capitan Gap road, off from U.S. highway 380. A petition of some hundred or so signers came into The News claiming that the road, number 56, was in deplorable condition and was not maintained regularly by the county. I went there for a firsthand look and discovered a road recently graded and in excellent condition.

The road quickly deteriorated as soon as I entered National Forest land, but this didn't surprise me. It is common practice by the Forest Service to leave roads which lead to wilderness areas in poor condition as a means to control access to and impact on the wilderness. Nonetheless, I continued up the mountainside to the Capitan Gap where I stopped to take pictures.

It was a perfect October day. Halloween, to be precise. The wind was light but steady, the sky a translucent bright gray. The dry smell of autumn was heavy and the crunch of pine cones and leaves beneath my feet was sharp.

I took pictures of the view looking north, of the jagged slopes to the west. I secretly wished I could capture in my negatives the sound of the wind, the croak of ravens, and the smell of autumn as it dried my nose and teared my eyes, but these things only I would know.

When I returned to my truck, adventure stirred my heart. The gate at the pass, which usually is locked, was open. Beyond it descended forest road 5648 down the north side of the range. Surely this road would eventually lead me to the highway after which I could circle back into Capitan, completing a loop.

Into Koprian Canyon I went, stopping occasionally to snap pictures of the smooth, rounded boulders and cliff walls where the canyon opened into the foothills and plain below. Eventually I came to road 616 and the real adventure began.

I had a choice. I could either go left or right. In any event, they both turned out to be ways seldom traveled.

First I went left. The road was wide but very rocky. After traveling a very long mile I encountered a locked gate. I returned back to the fork and went to the right this time. And so I drove, and drove, and drove...

But the road no longer went northward to the highway, but began to traverse the mountain range to the east. Maybe I was just circumnavigating private property and would soon head north. The road was still in fair condition. I only hoped I would not meet another gate because I didn't like the idea of returning the way I came.

And on I went, and the road became worse. In first gear I crawled over ruts that bounced my shocks in a topay-burvy-bouncy-boing-boing-WHAMI! My truck would bottom-out on the road. Other sections were strewn with softball sized rocks and all I could think of was my tires being chewed to bits and then resulting in ...

What if I did get a flat tire? Where was I? Of course I was equipped with those virtually worthless spares that look like an overgrown wheelbarrow tire. If I needed that, certainly it would go flat before I managed to get anywhere. How far would I need to walk to get to a ranch house or a main road?

Still I drove on. It was my decision to go forward. There was no turning back. Like life, I chose a route traveled infrequently, undoubtedly rich with hazards as well as rewards. Still the road proceeded eastward. And still, there were no others turning north...

The flat tire scenario crossed my mind again. I was experienced with wilderness areas and knew how to survive, but still, I did not eat that day and had no water. At least I had a warm jacket. But if the need arose, should I sit and wait to be found, or head into the uncharted forest? And if I waited, would anyone know where to look?

Eventually I began to cross streams as they tumbled down the canyons across the road. Well, at least I could find water. And Girardia too, probably.

There are times when a person questions the route in a life they take. Sometimes the way becomes rough, lonely, even dangerous. Frequently we ask ourselves "Should I turn back?" But then we would never know where the road could have taken us. Still, many of us turn back. We crave security, sameness, even boredom.

As I snaked around one corner into another side canyon, I went down a steep, rock-strewn hill ever so slowly and at the bottom I stopped. Outside of the truck I looked back up the hill and realized there was no turning back now. My two-wheel drive truck would never return up that hill. Now the possibility of being stranded became more real because if I encountered another gate, I would have no choice except to wait or walk.

On occasion, there were signs identifying the canyons I passed. Kyle Harrison, East Lucero, Ferris. It was comforting to see the signs because it meant there was an exit somewhere ahead. All I needed to do was avoid a flat.

But even when I crawled there were still the times the shocks bounced and jumped and being-boing-WHAMI! If I didn't get a flat, I might end up with a damaged oil pan.

Finally, when I reached Seven Cabins Canyon I came upon another fork in the road, and one of the choices went north. Ah, relief. But this section of road turned out to be by far the worst of anything I drove on. I passed a sign that faced the other way which read "Primitive road. Not recommended for passenger cars. Pickups proceed at own risk." Well, that was nice to know after I had already traveled the route.

The road descended into the piñon and juniper forest and was wide with ruts and boulders and it was about then I began to think about Frost's poem. I had taken a road less traveled and at times experienced doubt, even-subtle fear of the eager, but still I went forward, eager not only for the road to end but also to discover what lay ahead.

I passed a boulder at the side of the road with the word "YES" painted on its surface. Yes what? Yes, I was on my way out, or yes my idea was correct? Yes, this is the place, but if it is, what place is it?

Yes. Who knows why someone came up that terrible road to paint that word on a sandy brown boulder in large silver letters. Were they drunk and being juvenile? Was it some mystic leaving a cryptic message for someone like me to ponder, or was it someone merely bored with life and unaware of the beauty around them?

Yes. At last I saw concrete. Highway 248 at mile marker 35. The junction sign indicated it was the turn off for Seven Cabins Canyon. The journey was completed.

Though I never knew for certain road 616 would ever lead me to the highway, I had faith it would. And so I imagine the next time I run into difficulties with money, or my job, or with friends, or with life in general, I will have the faith that further on down the road, things will get better.

Yes.

November is diabetes month

November has been designated National Diabetes Month, and a nationwide outreach is planned by the American Diabetes Association (ADA).

More than 11 million Americans have diabetes and almost half of these don't even know it, said a news release from the ADA.

The Ruidoso/Lincoln County chapter of ADA will be conducting a blood screening at the Ruidoso High School on November 17 for those students and family members who wish to participate.

It is hoped half the students there will be screened, said ADA chapter president Betty Testerman.

The screening will be free of charge and students must have parental permission.

Altrusa is also helping to coordinate the screening.

For more information, contact Testerman at 257-7381, or Sue Ann Simon, chapter secretary-treasurer, at 257-2887.

About 6.5 million people have been diagnosed with diabetes, a disease in which the body fails to produce or respond to insulin, a hormone needed for daily life.

This condition can result in high blood sugar, which can severely damage the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, eyes and nerves.

Diabetes can be fatal, said the release. It is the leading cause of adult-onset blindness.

"It's imperative that we inform the public of the devastating effect diabetes can have if not detected or treated properly," said Sterling Tucker, ADA chairman of the board.

Symptoms for Type I, or insulin-dependent diabetes, include frequent urination accompanied by unusual thirst, extreme hunger, rapid weight loss with easy tiring, weakness and fatigue, irritability, nausea and vomiting. These symptoms occur suddenly and a doctor's attention is recommended immediately.

Type II, or non-insulin dependent, diabetes symptoms include blurred vision or any changes in sight, tingling or numbness in legs, feet or fingers, frequent skin infections or itchy skin, slow healing of cuts and bruises, drowsiness, and/or any of the previously mentioned signs for Type I.

The symptoms of Type II tend to appear gradually. A doctor's immediate attention is still recommended.

A CENTRAL ISSUE

Macular degeneration may be one of the less serious of the major retinal disorders, but it requires immediate attention nonetheless. It is characterized by a loss of central vision that results from small hemorrhages among the tiny blood vessels in the middle portion of the retina. It used to be that, once this condition was diagnosed, the patient would be given a pair of ultraviolet-absorbing sunglasses and told to stay out of the sun. Today, developments in laser surgery enable eye surgeons to destroy abnormal blood vessels with precision. To benefit from these new tools, however, it is necessary that the patient's condition be diagnosed before central vision deteriorates. Only a thorough exam is effective in this respect. The vast majority of people with macular degeneration do not require treatment. Laser is used only with certain types of this disorder. For further information, please call or schedule an appointment with your eye doctor. Dr. Delamater specializes in medical and surgical diseases of the eye. He is certified by the American Board of Ophthalmology. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and of the American College of Surgeons. His practice is located in Roswell, New Mexico. 834-0370

The Plant Corner

by Sally Black

DEAR SALLY:
I read and enjoy your advise on caring for plants very much. Would you please tell me how to care for a "jungle rose" plant? The leaves begin turning brown around the edges and then gradually die. Thank you, Evelyn Meeks Post, Texas

DEAR EVELYN & READERS:
This is as far as I can go without your help. None of my books have the "jungle rose" plant listed. I have asked many "old timers" and they don't know. So, please, if any of you know about this plant, let me hear from you. Evelyn, perhaps you could send a picture of your "jungle rose" plant. I will appreciate your help. Send information and questions to Sally Black, c/o The Ruidoso News, PO Box 128, Ruidoso 88345.

Benefits for Michael Malis

Doctors have said that six-year-old Michael Malis can't survive more than a year without a liver transplant. The Ruidoso child's name has been placed on a liver transplant waiting list at the Children's Hospital in Denver, Colorado, but the lifesaving procedure won't take place until his family can guarantee the funds to take care of the amount not covered by insurance. Medical expenses, already mounting, are expected to climb into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. The people of Ruidoso want to help the Malis family, and a number of events are being planned to raise funds for the Michael Malis fund.
