Schools expect to grow

The Ruidoso Board of Education adopted an almost $10 million dollar budget based on a projected increase in enrollment.

The $9,981,709 total package is based primarily on a 44.5 student increase in enrollment over this year's 40th day count, said incoming superintendent Mike Gladden during a special meeting of the board.

This projected enrollment increase combined with the state increase in the equalization guarantee plus the training and experience index in the district, work together to mean almost $500,000 more for the district.

Optimism over next year's enrollment is so high that more students are expected than what is projected, said Gladden.

But board members remained cautious.

"I will be a little bit nervous until the 40th day," said board member Rod Adamson.

The enrollment projection of 1,882 students was calculated in October and reflects an expected 2.4 percent growth in the district.

Part of the optimism over the projections is because the loss rate this last year is lower than in years past, said Gladden.

Also, the 3.5 percent student loss this year occurred primarily in the high school, indicating greater stability in the lower grades.

Adamson wondered where the students were coming from because it was his impression people are still moving out of town.

Adamson also asked if some of the increase was expected from students transferring from the Tularosa district because of the fire at Mescalero Elementary.

Some transfers may be expected from Tularosa, but the projected increases are primarily based on changes inside the district, said Gladden.

The outcome of a law pending that would make money available to low income families for transportation of their children to another district will affect how many students can be expected from the Tularosa district.

However, if the Ruidoso district doesn't have the facilities to handle these transfers, they do not have to be accepted, said retiring superintendent Sid Miller.

"We realize this is a risk, but we feel it is a good risk," said Gladden.

The budget also allows for what the central office reports as a 7.1 percent employee salary increase, plus the step increase on the matrix for experience, resulting in a total average salary increase of 8.39 percent, or $2,370.

The average salary then increases from $28,256 to $30,626.

However, the high average salary is largely due to the large number of teachers in the district with an average level of experience at slightly more than 15 years.

For example, of 98 teachers in the district, 67 are in salary ranges above the average of $30,626. That means 31, or approximately only 30 percent of the teachers are in salary ranges below the average.

Police officers honor their dead

The mournful sound of Taps echoed against the mountains.

A volley of seven guns rang out three times, and a single rose, delivered by a riderless horse, was placed at the base of a wreath.

Law enforcement officers from Lincoln County and Mescalero took a moment on Tuesday to honor and remember, in a special service at the Ruidoso Public Library, those officers who gave their lives in the performance of duty.

The noon service was part of an observance of Police Memorial Day, and was sponsored by the Sierra Blanca Lodge #26 of the Fraternal Order of Police.

Chief William Newman of the Ruidoso Police Department served as the master of ceremonies for the service and introduced the speakers: Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonso; Chief Skip Hazel of the Ruidoso Downs Police Department; Captain William Relyea, commander of the New Mexico State Police District Eight; Chief Randy Spear of the Capitan Police Department; and Sheriff James McSwane of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

"As a little kid, I asked my father what policemen were and he said those are your friends," said Alonso. "It is something to this day I carry with me."

Alonso said, as an individual and the chief executive of the village, he wanted to thank the officers present for serving their communities and risking their lives.

"A policeman oftentimes is someone you don't think too much about till you need him," he said. "I'm thankful you all are here to represent those people who put everything on the line."

Hazel told the crowd of about 80 officers and members of the public, the law enforcement officer's job in never ending.

"We do a job that is an endless, thankless job," he said.

Reylea called the community of law enforcement a family and a brotherhood. He said it doesn't take long for a man or a woman who becomes a police officer to join that family.

"When we lose a member of that family, just like any family, it hurts," Reylea said. "I think that is what we are here for today. We are here as a family to respect the officers who have worn these uniforms and lost their lives in the line of duty."

Spear reminded the officers that the fundamental duty of a law enforcement officer is to serve mankind, to safeguard life and property, to protect the innocent against deception, the weak against the oppression and intimidation, and the peaceful against the violence and disorder. He said this is the code every officer swears to abide by.

"Each day, all officers give their lives on the line to protect others like yourself," Spear said.

He urged the crowd to begin today to show the officers who keep their communities safe, the respect they deserve.

Sheriff James McSwane spoke about Deputy Tommy Bedford, who was killed in Nogal Canyon on October 8, 1979, by two assailants.

McSwane said he found the news of Bedford's death hard to believe when he heard it at home. He said law enforcement personnel joined, at the time, in the largest manhunt in New Mexico history to find the killers of Tommy Bedford.

Bedford was shot five times on October 8, 1979, after he stopped two persons who fit the descriptions of a pair being sought as a part of a burglary investigation in Lincoln and Torrance Counties.

McSwane said the day before his death, Bedford was dispatched to Nogal Canyon on a

Feds fund a regional drug prosecutor, appoint Scot Key to head operation

by BRIAN BLALOCK
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Twelfth Judicial District Attorney's office has received a grant from the Federal Government to implement an Innovative Drug Prosecution Program.

Assistant district attorney Scot Key will be heading up the year long program which will provide a cohesive unit to prosecute all drug cases in Otero and Lincoln counties, which make up the Twelfth Judicial District.

The district attorney's office received $89,120 in federal funds after applying for the grant at the first of the year. The grant does require 25 percent matching funds from the DA's office.

Key said he will be transferring to the Otero County offices to begin the program on June 15. Assistant district attorney Viola Rhodes will be taking Key's place as prosecutor in Lincoln County.

Key will be responsible for prosecuting drug cases involving the United States Border Patrol, the New Mexico State Police, the Alamogordo Department of Public Safety, the Otero County Sheriff's Department, the Ruidoso Police Department, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department and all smaller law enforcement agencies' arrests.

As part of the Innovative Drug Prosecution Program, Key's duties will also include the coordination of cooperative investigations and acting as a liaison between the different law enforcement agencies. He will also be responsible for the development of new programs within the district, the development of a database to better evaluate the needs of the Twelfth Judicial District, and the continuation of educational assistance to law enforcement including the Continuing Legal Education program already instituted by the DA's office.

Most importantly, he will be responsible for developing the "team concept" in investigations and prosecutions.

"Our effectiveness will be that much better with a specialized attorney," Key said in speaking of the program. "We think it is going to be real exciting."

Key said the program will require one administrative assistant, who will use a computer to establish a statistical database to assess the direction of investigations and prosecutions. He said the data will also be used to develop a report to try and get a two year extension of the program when the current one year period is over.

Key said the Twelfth Judicial District has seen an increase over the past couple of years in drug trafficking.

Otero County's two Border Patrol checkpoints have seen a dramatic increase in drug seizures and arrests. The Border Patrol station near Alamogordo made more than 120 narcotics seizures of illegal drugs valued at more than $8 million in the 1989 fiscal year.

The Twelfth Judicial District leads the State of New Mexico in the number of preliminary hearings despite being toward the lower half in population and the number of attorneys with the DA's office.

In 1989, the Twelfth Judicial District also saw a dramatic increase in "sales" cases with two undercover operations resulting in an excess of fifty Grand Jury indictments.

Key said the his first duties within the program will be to prosecute already existing drug cases. Priority will be given to cases where the defendants are currently incarcerated.

Another one of Key's responsibilities will be coordinating undercover operations between law enforcement departments within the district. He said such operations could be underway by as early as July 1.

Key said the heads of all the law enforcement agencies within the district have supported the new program.

burglary call. It was Bedford's first time in Nogal Canyon. McSwane said Bedford told him later that day, he wanted to find a place and retire in that canyon.

"The day of his death was a regular day off for Tommy Bedford," McSwane said. "He traded his day off with me. I honestly believe that not only did we trade days off, we may have traded places on October 8, 1979."

At the time of his death, the 27-year-old Bedford had only been with the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department for four months. His number, Lincoln Eight, has never been assigned to another officer.

"He will be remembered for his loyalty to law enforcement, his compassion for mankind," McSwane said. "He will be remembered as a law enforcement officer who served Lincoln County with pride and honesty. He was trusted, respected and loved by all that knew him."

Following McSwane's comments, Lincoln County deputies led a riderless black horse across the lawn and placed a single rose, in honor of Bedford, at the foot of a purple wreath.

An honor guard from the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) fired a 21-gun salute and Ruidoso High School students Rod Pior and Paula Hightower played "Taps."

FOP vice president and service organizer Officer Laura Standridge said the ceremony was a nice tribute to, not only Bedford, but all officers. She said this was the second such service in Lincoln County. Last year, the Ruidoso Downs Police Department had a service on the spur of the moment, but Standridge said the FOP wanted to have an organized service for everyone. She said the service went well and the horses all behaved.

"Everything was just beautiful," Standridge said.

Eighty-eight law enforcement officers have lost their lives in New Mexico while in the line of duty. Their names are inscribed on a monument at the Police Academy in Santa Fe.

In addition to Bedford, six other members of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department have lost their lives. Those six all were killed in the 1880s during the Lincoln County Wars.

time in Ruidoso, but be careful with fire," he said.

Fire danger in the Lincoln National Forest is currently listed as high, according to District Fire Officer Steve Makowski of the Smokey Bear Ranger Station. He said recent high winds could put the fire danger up to very high.

Firefighters, including the Smokey Bear Hot Shot crew, are currently battling a forest fire in the Guadalupe Mountain section of the Lincoln National Forest. The fire, which was determined to be caused by man, was spotted on Sunday and was fanned out of control by high winds on Monday and Tuesday. So far, the fire has spread to over 3,500 acres of forest land.

Makowski said heavy fuels, such as trees and logs, are extremely dry due to the lack of moisture between October and December of last year. He said, so far, there are no fire restictions in effect in the forest, but he urged campers in the forest to use caution.

He said campfires should be in a three-foot area that has been cleared of all combustible materials like pine needles. He said a campfire should never be left unattended. Makowski said when putting a campfire out, water should be poured over the coals and then a shovel used to turn them over.

"Campfires should not be covered with dirt and left," Makowski said. Wind can uncover the hot embers and start a fire.

He also urged smokers to use care when smoking in the forest. People should sit down and smoke in a cleared area and make sure their cigarettes are extinguished.

middle of the income range, is $28,000. Because so many teachers have more years of experience, placing them in higher income ranges, the average is influenced toward the top end of the salary scale.

This is good for the district because this experience level increases the district's training and experience index, which provides a little more money to the state funding equation.

The funding will be based on the student count on December 1, 1990, for the next school year, rather than in October.

This will present a challenge to the district to keep students, particularly high school students, enrolled until the December 1 count.

If the enrollment is less than projected, cuts in the budget will have to be made. If the enrollment is higher, then the budget will increase correspondingly.

The new budget also reflects an addition of four full time equivalent (FTE) employees, including three teachers.

One of the teacher FTEs was gained by a large reduction in the line item for Other Textbooks, which was reduced from $29,663 to $4,851.

Board member Adamson asked if there would be enough money to purchase textbooks he had heard were needed for the next year.

For example, there was a need for new English books at the high school at a cost of about $35,000, said Adamson.

There was also a need for new texts at White Mountain Elementary School. Can the budget afford both, asked Adamson.

"We will do whatever possible to get all the texts necessary," said Gladden.

The new superintendent also said if the high school request cannot be trimmed, the the money will have to come from somewhere else in the budget.

The FTE position of assistant superintendent will be eliminated and replaced with a principal position at the middle school.

The negotiated salary for the new superintendent will be $53,295, the same as the retiring superintendent's salary.

This represents a 9.5 percent gain in salary in real terms for the new superintendent.

Other areas showing substantial increases in the budget were in four series for operations and maintenance of plant, particularly in Other Purchased Services and General Supplies and Materials.

The 4,390 line item was increased from $56,305 to $120,646 and the 4,400 line item was increased $30,517 to $104,238. This increase the entire four series from $616,758 this year to $847,599 for next year.

These increases were made to "wean" the maintenance area off of Senate Bill 9 monies in the event the mill levy is not renewed, said Gladden.

The district recently passed the SB-9 mill levy in February, and the tax is good for the next two years.

In other business during the special meeting the board:

—Approved budget adjustments and cash transfers.

—Called for bids for non-GSA computer equipment.

—Accepted recommendations to hire Ann McCoy and Susan Weiland as 2nd grade teachers, and Lynn Weiland as a physical science teacher and coach at the high school.

—Accepted the resignation/retirement of Tom Hansen as principal at the high school.

—Approved the Chapter 1 proposal.

The next regular meeting of the Ruidoso Board of Education will be 7 p.m. June 12.

Lodgers tax board OKs CVB budget

The Village of Ruidoso Lodgers Tax Advisory Board approved the Convention and Visitors' Bureau's (CVB) preliminary budget during a special meeting on Monday.

The board voted to make a recommendation to the Village Council that the CVB be funded at 75 percent from the lodgers tax. The Council had wanted to change the CVB's contract to read that the chamber will get an unspecified percentage of the lodgers tax rather than a full 75 percent.

The board recommended that the CVB receive $97,300 from the occupancy tax and $43,500 from the Economic Development fund.

The board also heard a request from Chuck Reynolds for $1,800 for the Lincoln County Barbecue War Association. The board decided to get more information on finances from last year's event before making any decisions.

Another request for funding was made by Paul Crown on behalf of the Ruidoso Chili Society's New Mexico State Chili Cook-off. The group was requesting $4,675 for their ninth annual event. After considerable discussion by the board, a motion was made and approved to recommend $1,000 be made available to them.

The board will recommend to the Village Council the following organizations or events receive the following fundings:

—Apache Trails, $1,000
—Aspenfest, $5,000
—Connoisseur Classic, $2,000
—Golden Aspen Ralley, $3,000
—Lincoln Heritage Trust $1,500
—Octoberfest, $2,500
—Ruidoso Retirement Services, $5,000
—Ruidoso Valley Greeters, $1,500
—Springtime in the Rockies, $3,000
—Sun Country, $2,000
—Tour de Ruidoso, $3,000
—New Mexico Chili Cook-off, $1,000

The recommendations will be considered by the Village Council during regular budget workshops in the next few weeks.

The Lodgers Tax Advisory Board decided to adopt several new guidelines for the future. Some of the concerns which will be addressed are that follow-up reports and financial statements are not being returned to the board within the specified 30 days after the event as agreed to by the fundees. This failure will affect any future requests.

The board would like full income statements from the previous years as well as an actual working plan for the expenditure of the funds submitted from the organization making the request.

The board would like to see competitive bidding procedures be followed to better insure the most efficient use of the funds. They asked special attention be made to the higher dollar costs such as printing and ageney fees.

Any detrimental effects associated with any special event are asked to be noted.

The board would like to see presentation of requests for funds be made throughout the year instead of all at once.

The board would like to see all requests for funds and all pertinent information be presented to them in a particular format and presented in such a timely manner as to give the board sufficient time to evaluate and hold such workshops or special meeting as may be necessary before making any recommendations to the council.

It is the intention of the Advisory Board to help new activities and promotions getting started in the community and to provide funding for the advertising of events that will attract people to come to Ruidoso and participate in the economy. The board also wants to help promoters of such events on their way to becoming self-sufficient.

The Advisory Board also wants to establish a working relationship that will be beneficial to the council and the community.

To that extent, there will be a workshop between the Ruidoso Village Council and the Lodgers Tax Advisory Board, before the next regular meeting on June 19.

World's richest art award will be presented at gala on June 2

It's the biggest single award ever to be offered to one artist — $250,000 ... a quarter of a million dollars — and it's happening right here in Lincoln County.

John V. Hall, director of the Hubbard Museum and the Hubbard Art Award for Excellence, said this week that reservations are coming in now for the big gala celebration, art show, art auction and award ceremonies June 1-2, at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

"It's the only award in the world of this magnitude and this amount," said Hall, who is putting together the finishing touches to what he expects to be one of the biggest events ever to hit this area.

R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard of Fort Worth, Texas, partners in the Ruidoso Downs Race Track, have made a huge financial and emotional commitment to the Hubbard Art Award for Excellence, but it's also going to take community involvement.

"I hope that the people of Ruidoso will get behind this type of event and make it such a success it won't have to be moved to another locale," said Hall, who has spent a lot of his time lately working out the details of getting hundreds of artists and their guests from all over the United States to Ruidoso for the awards weekend.

Hall admits that the logistics of getting people here is somewhat of a nightmare. But he adds that he's taken the challenge because the Hubbards want the Art Award to stay right here at their racetrack.

Besides wanting to support realistic art through providing the large cash prize to the winning artist, Hubbard has said repeatedly that he'll use the art award, his art collection and an annual tour to promote Ruidoso.

Hall said that Hubbard has signed a contract on the old convention center building where the art will be displayed during the weekend and at a special showing June 5 for Hubbard Museum members.

That "Members Only" show will take place from 6:30-8:30 p.m. June 5; in the display hall, and will allow museum supporters to view the 80 pieces of art that will be judged. Cocktails and a buffet will be served that evening.

Right now, businesses can begin to promote the Art Award by displaying the promotional poster. Copies of the poster are available free at Ruidoso State Bank and Sun World. Hall encourages every business in town to pick up a free poster and display it until the award.

A slick catalog, with color slides of the art entries, will be available for sale during the Art Award festivities. Hall said the 12x12 106-page catalog, printed in English, Russian, German and Japanese, will be on sale for $25, with a $5 handling fee. Hubbard Museum members will get a 20 percent discount.

All 80 entries for the unprecedented $250,000 Hubbard Art Award for Excellence competition are now on display and already have won acclaim from one of the judges for the June 1-2 event.

"This is the best survey show of contemporary American art I have ever seen," said Fred Meyers, director of the Gilcrease Museum, when he viewed the exhibition.

"The artists seem to have pushed themselves to a new synthesis of their own styles; they have made an effort here to do their absolute best work," he added.

Meyers is one of the five judges who will select the top five contenders for the Hubbard Art Award.

Other judges for the show are: Nina Zucker, former chairman of the United Nations Art Council; Tair Salakhov, First Secretary of the Union of Artists in the Soviet Union; Michael Duty, director of the Eiteljorg Museum in Indianapolis, Indiana; and well-known art collector Mark Fleischner, president, CEO and chairman of Franchise Finance Corporation of America.

The creators of the award, R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard, will make the final selection of the winner from the top five nominees.

Meyers and Zucker made their choices when they were in the area recently, and their votes were given to the accounting firm of Dean, Noltensmeyer and Barraclough where they will be secured until the other three judges have voted. The accountants will then present the Hubbards with the judges' top selections.

The winner of the $250,000 purchase prize will be announced June 2 at a presentation gala hosted by ABC-TV's Sam Donaldson.

Art collectors, on hand for the presentation, will also have a chance to bid on the art, which will be offered at auction. Hall said the artwork will be valued at from $800 to $30,000.

Tom Hansen is retiring after 18 years at RHS

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Tom Hansen is retiring at the end of his current contract after 18 years as principal of Ruidoso High School.

And it's not because he doesn't like kids anymore.

The administrator joked about a rumor he heard from one of the students that claimed he was quitting because he doesn't like kids.

"I'm not mad at anyone," he said.

After 25 years in education, Hansen believes it's time to retire and explore other interests.

He did acknowledge his role of principal had taken him away from the kids long enough.

"I'm tired of pushing paper," he said. "I really like the kids."

Although he has not always been on the same wavelength with the school board or central office, Hansen said he is not leaving the system unhappy either.

"This is a great opportunity for the board to get someone in here more in line with their philosophy," said Hansen.

Major accomplishments Hansen is proud of include his involvement in the planning of the new high school and the initiation of the honors program and five-point incentive system.

Providing the higher level classes wasn't enough because many students avoided them to pad their grade point averages, said Hansen.

By changing to a five-point grade system from the more common four-point, students were encouraged to attempt the higher level course, providing them with better preparation for college, he said.

Hansen's background in architectural drafting was also very helpful in planning the new high school.

Through the formation of a committee, Hansen and others were able to solicit input from teachers and other staff into the design of the new building.

This approach allowed staff to share ideas on how their own teaching and professional needs can best be met, said Hansen.

Hansen's list of accomplishments during the last 18 years is long, but includes highlights such as a full time art teacher added to the program in 1974; the first faculty handbook at the high school in 1972; the first on-site budget developed in 1974; chemistry and physics taught every year instead of every other year; calculus added in 1983 and a bilingual program added in 1987.

But being a principal isn't always so serious.

One of the more unusual events in the school year is Slave Day in which students "buy" Hansen for a day, making him dress the way they want and telling him to do some rather bizarre things.

For example, one year while still at the old high school, Hansen's owners had him dress in white long-handle underwear and be on roller skates for the entire day.

A visitor came to the school and asked him, in a somewhat disconcerted manner, where the principal's office was. He gave the directions, but as an after thought, the visitor inquired if he knew who the principal was.

"Can you imagine what they must of thought when they discovered I was the principal?"

And being a principal for 18 years would make you think you've surely seen it all.

Not quite.

One day a woman came into school to check on her son's attendance. It turned out that same day her son was skipping school.

She waited all day and at the end of the last period, sure enough, her son turned up to get a ride home.

The last Hansen saw of them as the two walked out to the car was the mother taking off her shoe and continually hitting her son with it all the way to the car.

In his letter of resignation Hansen complimented the high school staff, saying its members are without peer and dedicated to their task.

He also made a special thanks to former superintendent Pat Valliant for his leadership and guidance throughout the years.

Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees is still shorthanded

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Pro-tem Bonnie Addy took charge Monday in the absence of Mayor Bones Wright. As usual, the board was meeting shorthanded.

For the past few years, the Ruidoso Downs Board has been plagued with resignations and absenteeism.

This new board is no exception, with two members already quitting since the March election. Wilma Webb and Ben Jeffrey were both elected, and both have quit, Webb to take the job of village clerk and Jeffrey for personal reasons.

Wright, who was ill Monday, has already appointed Margie Morales to fill one vacant slot, but couldn't get the board to act on his choice of Joe Blaney to fill the other vacancy. Blaney was at the meeting Monday, but the question of his appointment wasn't discussed with the mayor absent.

In the informal meeting, characterized by lengthy exchanges between the board and members of the audience, the board heard a lot from volunteer firefighters at the meeting.

Fire Chief Mark Hazel asked the board to instruct the dispatcher to page his members on all accidents with injuries.

"We can't roll until we're called," said Hazel, noting that the $3,000 EMS grant his department gets will be endangered if the firefighters aren't called to assist at accidents. He said the department responded to 75 accidents in 1988 and only 29 in 1989. The board agreed to write a letter instructing dispatchers to page the fire department out to serious accidents.

Hazel also had something to say about a fire that may or may not have been a controlled burn.

"It was not a controlled burn," said Trustee Alice Allison, who called the Fire Department when the fire, apparently started without a permit by a property owner, endangered surrounding property. Hazel said his firefighters were treated rudely, "cussed out" and asked to leave.

He said the controlled burn permit ordinance should be strictly enforced.

Hazel then got permission to take the fire engine to Fiesta Primavera this Saturday at White Mountain schools. He said he would obtain a hold harmless agreement so that firefighters can give schoolchildren rides on the engine.

Hazel also told the board that his department responded to a gas spill Sunday and learned Monday from the Environmental Improvement Division that the methods used to clean up the spill were not legal. Hazel told the board his department needs some bags of sawdust for such calls.

Trustee Jim Rethmel told Hazel that he is concerned about broken fire hydrants. Hazel said his department is remapping the hydrants, identifying problems and repairing the hydrants.

Also Monday, trustees spent a lot of time discussing changes to the Sanitation Ordinance and talked with representatives of Ruidoso Downs Fire Department about the expected increases in garbage pickup rates. Village attorney Gary Mitchell presented a proposed ordinance that will be the subject during a special meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, May 21.

In other regular business Monday, the board:

—Approved a temporary liquor permit to be used at the old convention center during the Charlie Daniels concert May 26.

—Tabled consideration of an audit proposal and amendments to a village business license ordinance.

—Approved a cafeteria plan of benefits for village employees.

—Heard a report on the pavilion.

Gentlemen:

In Jan. 1988 my brothers were involved in a vehicle accident which left one of them dead. My surviving brother was the driver of the vehicle that caused the death. Since alcohol was involved it became a criminal case which was heard before Judge Gerald Dean. My surviving brother has not had a drink since that time. He is working and raising his family. There could have been many other outcomes. My family is eternally grateful to Judge Dean for the compassion and sense of fairness with which he handled this case. He never lost sight of the fact that his duty as a judge was to enforce the laws to protect all of us as citizens. At the same time he tried to see how to best handle this case so that if any good could be gained from this tragedy, the opportunity was given. When it is you, your family, or your friend who comes before a judge, let me assure you Judge Dean is the kind of judge you want. He looks at the whole situation and within the confines of the law tries to assess what is best for the person in the courtroom as well as insure the protection of all other citizens. I encourage you to take the opportunity on June 5th to vote for Judge Dean.

Three cheers for spring sports, athletes

by
Brian Blalock
Sports Editor

People don't realize the efforts we go through to put out The News every Monday and Thursday.

When we get one edition out, we immediately start to work on the next one.

Since I took over the sports duties at the first of the year, I haven't had a whole lot of time to sit down and just write about sports. I made the promise to myself, when I got the time I would not only write about sports, but thank the people who helped me survive through the first part of the year.

Three cheers should go out to the Ruidoso High School spring sports teams. If you missed your chance to get out and see the track team, the tennis team or the golf team, too bad! You missed some great high school action.

Coach Ronny Maskew and his coaching staff deserve a pat on the back. They took a bunch of underclassmen, a few seasoned seniors, and molded them into a track team that was competitive all year.

The Warrior Track teams should be even more competitive next year, as Coach Maskew only loses 10 seniors on both the girls and boys teams.

Coach Maskew deserves special thanks from me for always being available for interviews, and always getting me the results of the track meets.

The Warrior Tennis team may have been a disappointment to some, but they played their hearts out against some really good competition.

The good thing about the tennis team is they are young and going to get better. There is not one senior among the bunch. If the players stick with it, we are going to see some great tennis out of these kids.

I want to thank Coach Tracey Edwards for getting me the results of all the tennis matches.

Talk about promise, the Ruidoso Warrior Golf team has got it. This year the boys finished third in the district with a team made up of three sophomores, a freshman, and an eighth grader. As Coach Ridge Bowden said, "we're going to be good for an awfully long time."

The girls team shows a lot of promise as well. Like the boys team, it is primarily made up of freshmen and sophomores.

Each year, Ruidoso puts on the largest and probably the finest high school golf tournament in New Mexico. If you have the opportunity next year, get out and watch some of this tournament. You'll see some great high school golf.

Special thanks go out to both Coach Bowden and volunteer coach Kent Beatty. Throughout the season, despite computer problems and our deadlines, Beatty made sure we always had the golf results.

The spring sports look good in the coming years.

Speaking of spring sports, the public has an opportunity to show these youngsters just how much they mean to this community. The Spring Sport Banquet will be at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday) at the Ruidoso High School cafeteria. The public is invited and all are asked to bring is a dessert.

Whether people know it or not, we just witnessed one of the greatest ironies of all times in sports.

Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley was named the NBA Coach of the Year on Monday and his team was eliminated from the playoffs by the Phoenix Suns on Tuesday.

Now you would think that a man who had coached four world championship teams in his nine years of coaching would have received Coach of the Year for one of those championship years, right!

Wrong, he receives the award in a year where his team is eliminated. The other irony in all this is the team that eliminated Riley's Lakers is coached by Cotton Fitzsimmons, last year's Coach of the Year.

Last year, Fitzsimmons' Phoenix Suns were eliminated from the playoffs by guess who. Pat Riley's Los Angeles Lakers, who went on to loss the NBA Championship to the Detroit Pistons.

Detroit's coach, Chuck Dailey has never been named NBA Coach of the Year.

We're Problem Solvers

At Coldwell Banker SDC, Realtors we decided to change that. For openers, we don't let you take the brunt of the problems associated with buying or selling a home. Real estate transactions are always accompanied by problems, and we are problem solvers.

We listen. Our agents are attuned to the difficulties you might be having. We recognize that selling a home and moving are times turmoil, and that one of the basic foundations of your life - where you live - is changing.

We've helped many people like you cope with these difficulties. But we, never assume we have heard all the possible problems. So, we listen to you.

When you enlist our help, you're not just getting a team that buys and sells homes. We do that, of course, quickly and well. But we never lose sight of the basic fact that we deal with people, and people have problems. So, we became problem solvers.

Of course, there's no solution like avoiding problems. Our highly skilled agents have developed an offensive, rather than a defensive approach to problem-solving. As a result, we have fewer problems to solve for our clients.

But, when there is a problem, we're the best there is solving it for you.

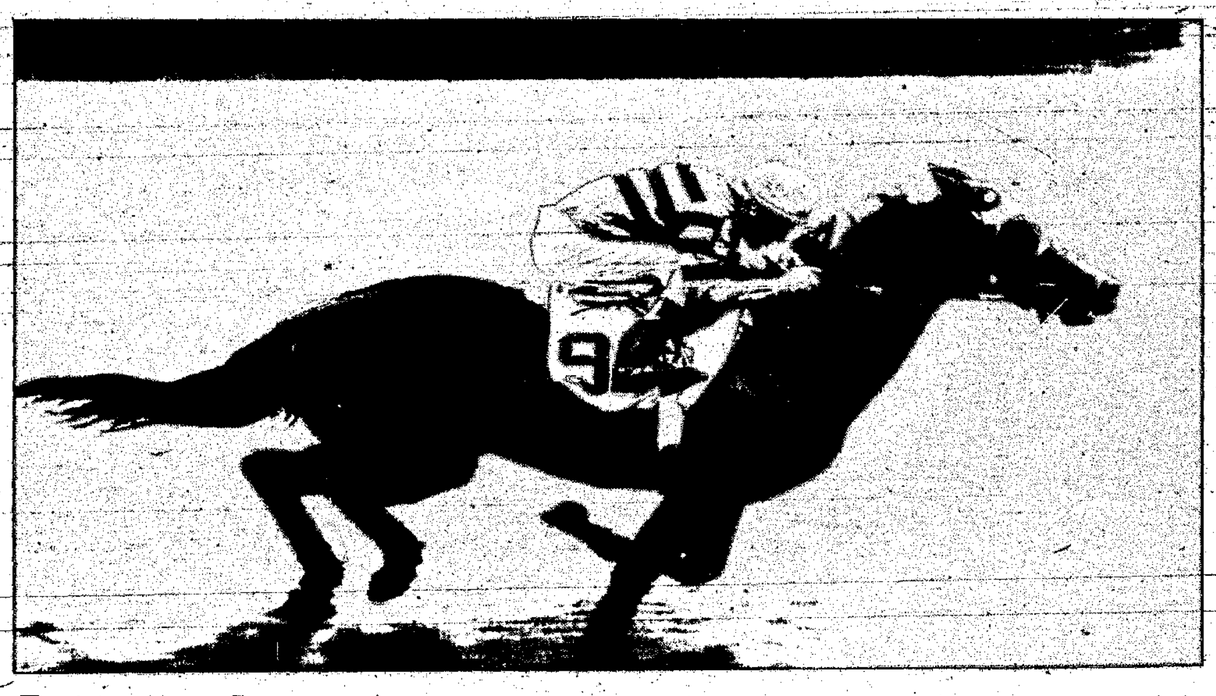
Preakness simulcasts Saturday

Unbridled, a cruising winner of the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, seeks to add the second leg of the thoroughbred Triple Crown to his resume Saturday in the 115th-running of the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Race Track in Baltimore, Md.

Race fans here are afforded the opportunity to watch and wager on the Preakness Stakes. The second jewel of the Triple Crown will be simulcast as the seventh race on a 14-race card. Approximate post time for the Preakness is 3:33 p.m. MDT.

Mister Frisky and Summer Squall, the betting favorites in the Kentucky Derby, are scheduled to battle Unbridled again. Summer Squall was second in the Kentucky Derby, and Mister Frisky checked in eighth after contesting a hot early pace. The loss was the first ever for Mister Fisky, who had won the first 16 races of his career.



Jet speeds

Jet Go Girl, with Jacky Martin aboard, logs the fastest qualifying time on Thursday in the first round of the Kansas Futurity trials at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Jet Go Girl is owned by George and Faye Houser and trained by Jack Brooks. Oh Lil Buddy ran second with Sail On Gossip was third.

Young thoroughbreds are ready to run here

Juvenile thoroughbreds are in the spotlight Friday as four heats of trials for the $15,000-added Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, a race reserved for New Mexico breds, will be held in the fifth, seventh, ninth and tenth races.

Heading the trials is F.H. Hall's Mount Capitan, who accounted for the Riley Allison Futurity consolation in his most recent outing at Sunland Park.

Mount Capitan, a son of Dawn Of Creation, scored an impressive 2-length victory in the Riley Allison consolation and ran the five furlongs in a respectable time of 59.3.

Trained by Doyal Roberts, Mount Capitan has won two of three lifetime starts and has compiled earnings in excess of $7,000. Mount Capitan will run in the 10th race.

Also slated to face the starter in Friday's trials is Ego Ideal, the lone New Mexico-bred horse to earn a berth in the Riley Allison Futurity on May 6 at Sunland Park.

Ego Ideal, owned by Kidd & Leachman of El Paso, Texas, finished seventh in the Riley Allison Futurity after contesting the early lead. Ego Ideal is still a maiden, but finished third in a fast heat of the Riley Allison trials to earn a berth in the finals. Ego Ideal, trained by Dallas Barton, will run in the ninth race under jockey Carlos Rivas. Another top contender in the trials figures to be C.E. Alexander's Jolley Ego, who finished second behind Mount Capitan in the Riley Allison consolations. The son of Bold Ego is trained by Gerald Marr and regular pilot Victor Escobar is in the irons.

The Rio Grande Kindegarten will have its sixth-running May 28, and the 10 fastest times from the trials will qualify for the finals. The stakes record for the five-furlong dash is 59 seconds flat, set by Masked Parade in 1988.

The thirteenth and fourteenth races Friday will be simulcasts from Hollywood Park.

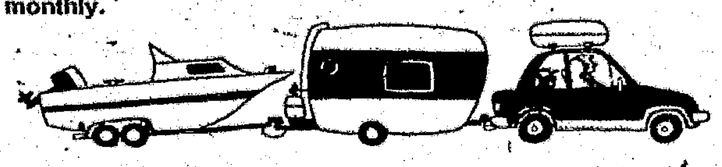
CAR CARE TIPS
Presented By
RUIDOSO Ford Lincoln—Mercury

FLUID LEVELS
A variety of fluids are your car's life blood. Oil, which protects and lubricates the internal parts of the engine should be checked weekly.
Coolant loss can result in engine overheating. Change coolant annually to insure a clean cooling and heating system.
Power steering and brake fluid should be checked along with other fluids. If there is an abnormal amount of fluid leak, have the system checked.
Transmission slippage can be due to low fluid. Check fluid monthly.



NOTE: IF YOU ARE A "SEVERE SERVICE" DRIVER (TRAILER TOWING OR OTHER ABNORMAL LOADS) CHECK YOUR OWNER'S MANUAL FOR SPECIAL SERVICE REQUIREMENTS. CONSIDER INSTALLING AN AUXILIARY TRANSMISSION COOLER.

VITAL STREAK:
Could be the budding superstar of the powerful Jack Brooks stable. Only a roaring headwind kept this son of Streakin Six from qualifying for the May 27 Kansas Futurity. Still, he should be the favorite for the consolation race. Despite breaking a bit sulggishly from the gate, Vital Streak expolded to the lead in his trial heat and completely dominated a field. His best days are on he horizon.

OH DR. AH:
Had a tough trip in his return Saturday after a long layoff as he steadied entering the far turn to virtually lose all chance in a $10,000 claiming race. A better trip and a little drop in class could put this sophomore in the winner's circle.

FEARLESS ACE:
Rapidly approaching a winning effort. Dueled head-and-head with razor sharp Northern Hawaii in her last, but still hung around for second place after reeling off some nice fractions. This filly has a touch of back class and might even be able to handle a rise to the $8000 level.

PRINCE KOKOMO:
Chased a rabbit for a half-mile in his last before fading badly in the stretch. This son of Imacornishprince has lots of lick, but needs to develop some stick. He should soon find a maiden field he can wire.

RANASEK:
annihilated a good allowance field by unleashing an explosive move on the turn in his last and drawing off under a hand ride. Expect Ranasek, a winner of three of four lifetime starts, to start tackling the best sophomores on the grounds in the near future.

A reception tea was conducted at the Capitan Elementary School for Luella Roberts who is retiring at the end of this school year after 29 years total teaching, 10 years completed in Capitan.

Head of Capitan schools chooses to cut his own raise

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The superintendent of Capitan Schools independently reduced his pay increase.

Capitan superintendent Scott Childress scheduled himself a five percent pay increase along with the five percent increase provided other district staff when the district budget was first turned in for review by the State Department of Education.

But before the budget was presented for final approval to the school board, Childress went back on his own and reduced his pay increase from the original five percent to three percent.

The superintendent's salary will be $50,614 during the school year 1990-91 rather than the $51,597 previously budgeted. The salary during 1989-90 was $49,140.

The board approved what was characterized as a lean budget with the total operational expenses budgeted at $2,130,478 for 1990-91.

The total estimated resources are expected to be $2,877,026.

A decline in enrollment is projected for next year, which resulted in some personnel and program cuts.

Spanish was to be cut as previously reported, but high school principal Bill Stowe negotiated with music instructor Dick Valenzuela, who agreed to teach Spanish.

After a closed session, the board agreed on fall coaching positions. James Fowler will be the head football coach with Norman Cline as his assistant. Pam Allen will be the volleyball coach.

Fowler has 25 years experience in teaching and coaching football, said Childress.

Board president Preston Stone said the board will continue to maintain an athletic program.

Marie Griego approached the board regarding a decision made by high school principal Stowe affecting her son, Rodney Griego.

During the spring, Rodney skipped school with a group of other students with his parents' knowledge. When it was determined by the school that Rodney's absence was unexcused, he received zeros for the day and was referred to the juvenile probation office (JPO) along with the other students.

Griego said she was not upset with the zeros so much as her son being referred to the JPO when, as far as she was concerned, she was aware of her son's activities.

"Now my son has a record," she said.

Rodney Griego has been an honor roll student.

She questioned the decision in light of the fact that on "Senior Skip Day," seniors are given zeros for not attending, but are not referred to the JPO when the administration knows the students are truant.

Griego acknowledged the "Senior Skip Day" is a tradition, but is not mentioned in the student handbook.

"I don't feel it is right," she said.

Stone replied for the board and said the board supports the administration decision.

"We feel there was definite continuity thoughout the situation," said Stone.

In other business the board:

—Heard a report from Sydney Hammontre on two students participating in Project Uplift a program to help students make career decisions in areas of high technology. The students visited Sandia Labs as well as other companies and military bases to observe high tech equipment such as lasers and super computers.

—Heard a report from Mary McIlwain on the performance of elementary students at the Odyssey of the Mind competition recently conducted in Albuquerque. The board agreed to direct the superintendent to make $500 available to the group so the students may participate in the international competition in Iowa.

—Approved De'Aun Willoughby for the 1989-90 audit.

—Awarded the Jesse E. Fay Memorial Scholarship to LaShauna Tillotson. The scholarship amount is approximately $880.

—Accepted the resignation of Karen Roybal.

—Approved the non-certified personnel recommendation for 1990-91.

The next regular meeting of the board is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 14.

Mayor supports tax increase for economic development in county

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The mayor of Capitan will write a letter to the county supporting a tax increase based on a show of hands poll taken during Monday's meeting of the trustees.

Mayor Frank Warth asked the audience of about 25 if they would support a half-mill levy tax to support the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDCLC). A little more than half the audience raised their hands.

Currently EDCLC is supported by a 3/16 mill passed by the county commission. At the time the tax was passed, a requirement was attached by the county commission that EDCLC would provide regular reporting of its finances and the group would begin to seek private monies.

A further stipulation was that EDCLC would not ask for a renewal of the 3/16 mill, but that requirement was dropped from the resolution at the time the commission voted.

Dorothy Smith reported for EDCLC at the Capitan meeting and said the group attracted four companies into the county, providing 52 jobs and a collective payroll of $455,000.

After counting the show of hands from the audience, Warth said he will write a letter to the county commission supporting an increase in the current 3/16 mill to 1/2 mill.

Warth did not formally ask for input from the board of trustees, nor did he request direction from his fellow elected officials.

School board member Ken Cox asked for information about the task force set up in the village to deal with drug and alcohol issues with local youth.

Cox was concerned about the presentation of the issue by the news media, especially about a television spot that recently appeared on a television newscast.

Reaction to the television spot was mixed, some believing the video provided a positive perception of the community while others believe it was negative. Most of the people at the meeting apparently had not seen the report.

The actual problem with drugs and alcohol in Capitan is very small, said Cox. He requested the media specifically mention this, although he acknowledged a problem does exist and needs attention.

"We cannot wear blinders," said Cox.

Some discussion occurred that a policy needs to be established to control what village employees tell the media.

"We will instate a policy to control statements made to the media," said Warth.

"We need to discuss that," said village attorney Don Dutton.

It may be premature to discuss such a policy until the board is properly informed of all the constitutional ramifications, said Dutton.

"Nobody's going to be muzzled," said Dutton.

Trustee Norman Renfro reported on the last board meeting of the Capitan-Carrizozo Gas Association, noting a joint powers agreement is in the works between Capitan and Carrizozo for equipment sharing.

The board is still waiting for an Attorney General's opinion as to who has the final say to sell the association.

Regarding previous negotiations between the association and Zia Natural Gas, those talks have ended with no indication they will resume, said Renfro.

"The association is not for sale," he said.

Regarding public notice of the meeting, the day and time were published as notices at the Capitan and Carrizozo post offices and at the association office. No notice was published in local newspapers.

Plans exist to publish meeting days for the next twelve months in local newspapers in a legal advertisement.

In other business the trustees:

—Approved the appointment of Gilbert Montoya to the safety committee.

—Approved the minutes of the last regular meeting and for a public hearing regarding a beer and wine license at the Café Olé.

—Approved the accounts payable.

—Approved the appointment of Mayor Warth to the board of directors of the Water Defense Association.

—Approved Roy Woodard as auditor for the village.

—Approved a budget increase of $8,742 for the fire department.

—Approved a budget transfer from the water construction fund to pay for a diesel generator.

—Approved the annual fee of $200 for membership in the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District.

It's Fiesta time!

Get ready because it's fiesta time again!

The annual White Mountain Fiesta Primavera is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 19, at the White Mountain Schools.

A new addition to the program will be a cage to accept recyclable items. The money generated from this, as well as the other activities, will be used for programs at the elementary school.

Even if you don't stay for all the fun games and great food, everyone is encouraged to bring recyclable items to the cage, such as aluminum, glass, car batteries, newspaper, radiators, lead, tin cans (labels removed, flattened), copper and brass.

And as long as you're there, check out all the great activities and games put on by the elementary school students.

Activities will include a dunking cage in which the principals will be the dunkees, a petting zoo; a wet-sponge throw, a T-shirt sale, spacewalk, and refreshments such as snow cones, popcorn and a cakewalk.

Even llamas!

So come on out and help support the White Mountain elementary and intermediate schools by having some fun and bringing things to be recycled.

See you there.

The Silver Lining

Valley gets dressed up for Mother's Day

by

Mother Earth Celebrates On Mother's Day

On Mother's Day all the mountain world was helping Mother Earth celebrate this special sacred day. In the yard the lilacs, purple Iris, white Bridal Wreath, and the little yellow Rose all sent messages of endearment all through the sunny day with their bright colors and fragrant aromas. The mountain fields were covered with purple blankets of the Wild Verbena mingled in patches here and there with the pink and white Mountain Daisy, the Salmon Colored Mallow, and the Indian Paint brush, pride and joy of the American west. The songs of the birds were hymns of love to our mothers on earth and in Heaven.

In Saint Anne's Chapel flowers for the altar were brought from their yard gardens by Eleanor Shockey and Nellie Ruth Jones. During prayers of the people, Nellie Ruth led us in mentioning the name of our mothers in asking God's blessing upon them.

In giving thanks for the birthdays, it turns out that the birthdays of Sonny Sanchez, Raymona McAdams, Irene Nosker and Doug Conley all fall on the seventeenth of May. Roberta Burkstaller's birthday is the 18th. The wedding Anniversary of Bill and Mary Baucum is within a day or two.

I think it would be great if all these birthday and anniversary mates would send each other congratulations and form a little birthday club.

After the services, the Reverend Anne Gaddy and her husband, Rudy, invited me out to dinner. Then in the afternoon I went down to visit the Felix Gonzales family, where there were members of the Gonzales and Curry families in a happy reunion.

Happy Birthday To Bob Lambert

Going back to the birthdays, the seventeenth of May is also the birthday of Bob Lambert, also known as "The Arizona Kid." He was born on this date in Ballard County, Kentucky, in 1909. When he was nine years old he and his mother came west to Arizona for his mother's health. Bob's mother once told me that on the train she talked with a man who turned out to be Zane Grey, whose stories of the American West will ever remain the world's favorites.

And Bob began a life that would remind you of one of the immortal Grey's best stories. When they arrived near Phoenix, Bob's mother's health began to improve rapidly and she began to cook for ranches near by. Bob went along and helped his mother.

"Here is where I got my start," says Bob. "And I was a cowboy for 35 years and worked on ranches all over Arizona.

At age 15 he began his career as cowboy, and recalls: "We got $50 a month and church and had the whole outdoors to sleep in."

Bob can take you back into the early days — mountain lions, wild cattle, wild horses and burros. He tells of the mustangs following the burros as they dug for water in the dry streambeds, and of catching mustangs and necking them to tame burros who led them into camp.

After many years as a cowboy, Bob says: "I finally saved up $1,000, something practically unheard of, and made a down payment on a ranch."

Bob's star of good fortune shone down upon him brightly when on July 28, 1945, he was married to the former Betty Vine, in Prescott, Arizona. For years they lived the happy ranch life.

My Saddle Turned Green

After many years in Arizona, Betty and Bob decided they would like to try a country where it rained a lot. And Bob wanted to see his home state of Kentucky. They lived awhile in Missouri where they were delighted with the abundant rain, lakes and springs and streams and wild berries and tall grass.

"After awhile," Bob says, "my bones began to ache and the chiggers and mosquitoes ate me up, and my saddle turned green, and my dance boots turned green in the closet (with mold)."

Heading west again, Bob remembers: "When we got into Eastern New Mexico I saw a windmill, and I was so happy to see it that I got out and lay down under it just to near it squeak."

God's Country

Bob and Betty had heard of the Ruidoso Valley from Bill Dick and Dude Browning, Valley natives who were working on ranches in Arizona.

Twenty years ago they settled where they are to this day, two miles east of the Fox Cave, established the Canyon Trading Post. (Betty's father had owned trading posts on the Navajo reservation. And she is a gifted painter of Navajo people and scenes of Navajo country.)

Bob and Betty say: "This is just what the Browning boys said it is: God's Country."

Bob has often said: "When you are out living the life of a cowboy, you feel very close to God."

Bob and Betty have a deep reverence for all God's creatures and often come to the rescue of birds and little animals in trouble. One time some dogs trapped a baby chipmunk under some boards and broke its leg. Betty found a doll bottle and fed the little fellow milk mixed with sugar. He was a great favorite around the Lambert home for a long time.

Another time a baby sparrow was blown from the nest in a rain and hail storm. Bob rescued the bird and Betty says:

"I would mix up baby cereal, and then imitate the mother's voice. The bird would open its mouth and take the food ... Bob made a splint for its broken leg out of a popsicle stick, and he became a wonderful pet."

They named him "Spare Ribs" and Spare Ribs would fly down from his perch in his cage and light on Bob's shoulder, and then go into his pockets and all around, looking for tidbits of grub.

Besides Indian jewelry and Indian art and many other souveniers of the Southwest, the Canyon Trading Post is famous for good grub.

"I can cook when there is nothing to cook with," says Bob.

Bob's next door neighbor, Mrs. Clara Guthries says: "Bob makes the best pumpkin pie you ever ate."

Bob, who has a pioneer code of never turning anyone away hungry, accuses me of showing up at his place always at dinner time. However, that may be; Bob and Betty always give me a hearty welcome, and Bob smiles when I brag on his chuck.

Bob and Betty are a great blessing to us, and we wish Bob many happy returns of the day and all God's Blessings.

Congratulations.

Commissioners get mired in minutes

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Commissioners spent close to an hour on the minutes during Monday's regular meeting.

Normally a routine agenda item, the content of the minutes of the April 23 meeting of the county commission were disputed during Monday's regular meeting.

Commissioner Karon Z. Petty initially wanted John Vega's comments struck from the record because she believed it to be inaccurate. Vega blamed the county for a one-vehicle rollover that damaged his truck.

Rather than try to amend the section where Vega alleges the county is responsible, Petty suggested it be deleted because the accurate conversation remained on tape.

Commissioner Robert E. Hemphill informed Petty the tapes are destroyed after one year, and if the text was deleted, it would be lost from all record.

Also, county clerk Martha McKnight-Proctor assured the commission the text was taken directly from the tape.

Petty then moved the issue be tabled until the tape could be heard.

Later in the meeting, Petty agreed to a motion to approve the minutes as presented. However, Proctor was concerned by Petty's comment that the minutes as presented were not accurate, and after the commission came out of a closed session, she retrieved the tape from the April 23 meeting for the commissioners to hear.

All the commissioners and county manager Nick Pappas listened to the tape and followed the text of the minutes as presented by Proctor and everyone except Petty agreed the minutes followed the taped conversation verbatim.

She maintained the tape and the typed minutes did not reflect accurately what she said actually occurred during the meeting.

Another lengthy discussion occurred over a planning and zoning issue.

Greg Masters' request for a turnout on Airport Scenic Drive was eventually granted, but not before other factors such as specifications, the number of turnouts to be allowed, what process to follow, and whether or not the request was justified were discussed.

One issue raised was the recommendation to approve the request made by the county planning and zoning (P&Z) was passed by a two-to-one vote on a nine member commission.

Five members were present at the P&Z meeting when the request was made, but one abstained because she owns property in the subdivision involved, and the chairman, Patsy Sanchez, abstained because she was under the impression she couldn't vote unless there was a tie.

The question if the request was justified was also raised.

P&Z recommended granting the request because the group felt there was no other alternative. This was because the lot where the access was to be granted was "landlocked" without an easement after a replat by a previous commission.

The inferred intent of the commission then was to allow that lot access to the new airport road after completion.

P&Z member Ben Hall, however, noted all the lots along there were in common ownership, which meant the owner could create his own internal access without having to go to the airport road.

Masters said the lots will not remain in common ownership, and the request simply was to cut the fence to one lot and create a turnout.

The commission first agreed that all turnouts must meet or exceed specifications established by the state, and then granted Masters permission to create the turnout.

The commission allowed county manager Pappas to proceed to surplus listed county property with the Department of Finance and Administration to conduct an auction to sell the surplus property.

Most of the equipment is from the county road department, and includes several pickup trucks between the late 1960 and early '70 model years, and with mileage between 150,000 and 200,000.

Pappas explained minimum bids will not be requested so as to attract more people to the auction, increasing the potential to generate the income desired by the county.

Commission chairman Rick Simpson noted the auction conducted last year raised more money than was anticipated.

The commission also agreed to add the 13 green boxes and truck transportation systems from the old solid waste disposal system to the list of items to be surplused.

In other business the commission:

—Approved the minutes from the solid waste conference conducted in Ruidoso.

—Accepted the treasurer's report for April 1990.

—Awarded the bid for a mechanic's truck to Monette Ford Inc. of Socorro for $15,836, in spite of it being $6 more than the bid from Richardson Ford Sales, Inc. of Albuquerque. This was because Monette had an earlier delivery date, and the truck is urgently needed. The long-term cost of maintenance on warranty items was also a consideration with the closer dealer.

—Approved an amendment to a contract with the Eastern New Mexico Area Agency on Aging.

—Approved a joint powers agreement with the New Mexico Highway Department to provide money for youth employment during the summer as part of Keep New Mexico Beautiful.

—Approved the replat of Tract 1, Block J, Middle Cedar Subdivision as recommended by the county P&Z.

—Allowed the county manager to proceed with advertising for public hearing on a proposed ordinance establishing an advisory commission for the Zia Senior Citizens Center.

—Allowed the county manager to proceed with advertising for public hearing on the proposed personnel policy manual for the county.

—Endorsed the promotion of the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium.

—Adopted resolution 78-74 which defers taxation on employee retirement funds until those funds are withdrawn.

—Postponed adoption of the new purchasing policy until after review by all department heads and elected officials, and after discussion at the next work session.

—Approved resolution 78-75 for the employees' deferred compensation program.

—Approved a budget increase, the payroll register and the accounts payable.

—Approved moving the temporary, part-time sheriff dispatcher into the full-time position vacated by the present dispatcher who is on a leave of absence, and not to take effect until the present dispatcher uses compensation time, and to be temporary change only until the leave of absence ends or until the position is advertised if the current dispatcher does not wish to return.

—Heard an update from Pappas regarding the county fairgrounds. Because of a requirement made by the state, completion of the new bleachers in time for the Smokey Bear Stampede will be close because no costs may be incurred until a signed agreement with the state exists.

—Heard a report from commissioner Hemphill regarding solid waste disposal in the village of Corona. Hemphill said if the county can come up with $5,000 each year, Corona can match the money to purchase dumpsters for residents outside the village.

—Requested the topic of a transportation district be placed on the agenda for the next regular meeting. Hemphill said his questions were answered, that the district does not have the power of eminent domain, nor does it have the authority to tax.

—Heard a report from Pappas that all the affidavits approved by the commission have been filed with the appropriate subdivisions under concern.

—Conducted a closed session.

Mayor reports on state of the village

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

The lake behind Grindstone Dam is filling up and leakage is only 10 percent what it was formerly. The leakage, 130 gallons a minute, is being pumped back into the lake.

This is what Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonso told members of the Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions Club, Wednesday noon.

Alonso also said that with no treatment plant at the lake and no transmission lines, the only current use of the lake is for recreational purposes. He said the village is currently looking at what recreation can be allowed.

Environmentalists will be involved, he said.

The mayor touched on a number of subjects having to do with municipal government. He said the village faces a shortfall of some $500,000 this year because property has been assessed at lower rates this year than last.

Property taxes going into village coffers will be 18 percent less this year, he said. Property in the village last year was evaluated at $145 million but the figure for this year is $119 million.

Some good news, he said, is that R.D. Hubbard, owner of Ruidoso Downs Race Track, told him activity at the track is up 40 percent.

He said track manager Rick Hanson says that, counting off-track betting, handle is up 60 percent.

Friday village officials and other interested parties will meet with Mesa Airlines officials to discuss possible airline service to Ruidoso via Albuquerque and El Paso.

The mayor said he is opposed to heavy subsidies to support service, that the private sector should be canvassed for support.

He said Mesa wants a guarantee of $600,000 for the first year. This would mean that any revenue less that that would have to be subsidized.

Alonso suggested that perhaps the Chamber of Commerce, Mescalero Apache tribe and the racetrack could pick up the tab for any subsidy.

He said the village's expense of $250,000 over revenue at the Sierra Blanca Regional airport is enough expenditure of public funds regarding aviation and possible airline service.

"Hopefully, Friday, Mesa will have something to offer," he said.

The mayor told of "composting" at the Ruidoso liquid waste plant. He said pine needles will be mixed with sludge from the plant to form compost or fertilizer.

He said he has appointed a recycling advisory group, but has sent them "back to the drawing board."

The group recommended a machine which would sort trash and garbage automatically.

The system would cost $2 million. But, residents wouldn't have to change their "wasteful ways" at all. He indicated that there has to be citizen involvement for recycling to be effective.

Asked if the village's financial crunch could be alleviated by annexing the Alto area, the mayor said tax rates currently are lower there than in the village.

He said that when rates are more equal, residents in the Alto area might be more amenable to annexation.

He said Alto is facing a water crisis and additional expense for solid waste disposal which could make annexation more attractive in the future.

Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonso makes a point when addressing Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions Wednesday at Ruidoso Inn. The mayor was peppered with questions about village affairs.

Servies seeks office

Ronald Servies announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for probate judge in the June 5 primary.

A retired educator, Servies is also a World War II veteran.

He was a teacher, counselor, supervisor, principal and superintendent. He is also retired from the New Mexico National Guard.

Servies has lived in Lincoln County for 12 years. His wife, Lucy, is the principal's secretary at Ruidoso High School. He has four children and two grandchildren.

"If elected I will strive to keep probate costs to a minimum for the heirs and beneficiaries by helping the executor or personal representative of the estate as much as possible, within the boundaries of the law," Servies said in a prepared statement.

"Also, I will try to expedite the probate procedures in an orderly manner and in the least amount of time that is prudent and lawful."

Powwow dancers wow the crowds

The Indian Clubs of Ruidoso and Tularosa high schools got together to sponsor a big powwow with big prize money last weekend in Mescalero.

Jim Dickinson, sponsor for the RHS Indian Club, said the two small groups did a great job of planning, promoting, coordinating and carrying off a really large event that drew dancers from a four-state area.

"It was big as far as powwows go," said Dickinson. Tony Tafoya sponsors the Tularosa Indian Club.

Both clubs contributed funds and labor, with RHS running the dance events and Tularosa running the concessions for the two-day powwow.

"Everybody helped on the cleanup," said Dickinson.

He said close to 100 dancers, wearing their beautiful, colorful costumes, took part in the powwow.

Billy McClellan of the Iowa/Sac-Fox Tribe in Oklahoma won first place in the major category, men's fancy war dance. He was presented the major cash prize a jacket, trophy and quilt. Paul Pacheco Jr., a Sioux Pueblo from New Mexico, took second with Stan Prettypaint, a Crow from Montana, taking third.

Henry Stoneroad was the master of ceremonies for the event with Simon Simms acting as arena director.

Red Leaf Takoza and Leonard Cozad Jr. were the head drums with Sunn Land, Red Elk Singers, MGM Singers, Zuni Knifewing, Eagle Spring, Swift Eagle Singers and Seven Star Nation joining the event as visiting drums.

"To have that many drum groups is pretty impressive," said Dickinson.

Head dancers for the various categories included George Klinecoe of Mescalero, Leo Calabaza of Santa Fe, Stan Prettypaint, Kelly Ross, Billy McClellan Phyllis Platta of Mescalero, George Klinecoe Sr. of Mescalero and Roxanne Pacheco of Mescalero.

The dancing started on Friday and continued through Saturday evening.

"The kids worked hard and long," said Dickinson. He said all the money raised went into the event, which was the second Indian Club powwow sponsored by the two area high schools.

The Kaydahzinne family also helped sponsor the event as a memorial to their son, Guymon, who was a student at RHS before his death last year.

The powwow this weekend, sponsored by the Ruidoso and the Tularosa High School Indian Clubs, was an excellent opportunity to see big and little Native dancers in beautiful costume representing many western tribes.

Shartell Lester, the Ruidoso High School Indian Club Princess, dances into the arena during the grand entry Friday, followed by Grandma Princess from all tribes, then Miss Mescalero Pam Kadayso and Claudia Adams, the Mescalero Red Shield Powwow Princess.

Artist questions 1990 art festival selections

The Ruidoso Art Festival won't be the place to check out the works of many local artists this year. Or, maybe it will.

There's some disagreement over how many "locals" will be in this year's big show.

Of 132 artists picked by the jurists for the 1990 Art Festival, 10 will be from the Ruidoso area, according to event chairman Ron Wall.

Five of the locals who applied didn't get in initially; three were put on standby. Those three were later admitted.

But Kire Cole, one of the two on the rejection list, said she was originally told only three locals would be in the show. The alternates were apparently added after Cole went to the Art Festival Committee and complained over the process that eliminated what she believed was a large group of locals.

Wall said Kire Cole and Paul Crown are the two locals whose applications were eliminated by the seven-member jury.

The 1990 Ruidoso Art Festival will include 59 artists from Texas, 13 from Arizona, six from Oklahoma, four from Colorado, four from California, two from Kansas, one from Missouri, one from Arkansas, one from Minnesota and 34 from New Mexico. Of the New Mexico artists, nine are from Albuquerque and six from Las Cruces and three from Santa Fe.

The Ruidoso Art Festival is a major fundraiser for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, and a group of local artists is asking the festival committee why the chamber isn't providing more support for local artists.

Even though most of the artists who applied this year eventually were admitted to the show, Cole said this problem is not new, and some local artists don't even apply for admission to the Ruidoso Art Festival.

Whether an artist is a local or not is not a consideration during the jurying process, according to Wall.

"Many of the local artists that I have spoken with did not bother to apply because they felt they would be rejected because they are locals," said Cole.

Cole is circulating a petition calling for massive changes in the way artists are selected for the Art Festival.

The petition reads: "Because our Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is not supporting its local Lincoln County artists by excluding a major part of them from their so-called 'Ruidoso Art Festival' held annually in July; we, a local group of concerned citizens feel it necessary to petition the chamber to change the jurying process for the show to allow a greater number of local artists to participate."

Kire Cole and Vicky Conley met last week with the committee, but Cole said they left with as many questions as they had when the meeting began. Cole, who has a bachelor of fine arts in studio arts, has a studio-gallery in Ruidoso. She said she exhibited in the 1989 Ruidoso Art Festival where she had sales of $3,500.

Cole wants to know why she was rejected by this year's art exhibitor jury, and so she did some research. Cole said she talked with Wall and learned that he has never attended a Ruidoso Art Festival.

"It's a juried show, and the whole essence of a juried show is you do it as objectively as possible," said Wall, who said the jurists for this years show have excellent credentials. Their names are kept confidential, but Wall said he knows the jury includes a good cross section of people.

Wall said the jury looks at slides, rates the artists on a very simple numerical basis and then tallies those numbers.

"It seems that the jury ratings were pretty consistent," said Wall.

"You feel it's done as good as possible, you can't change it after it's done," said Wall.

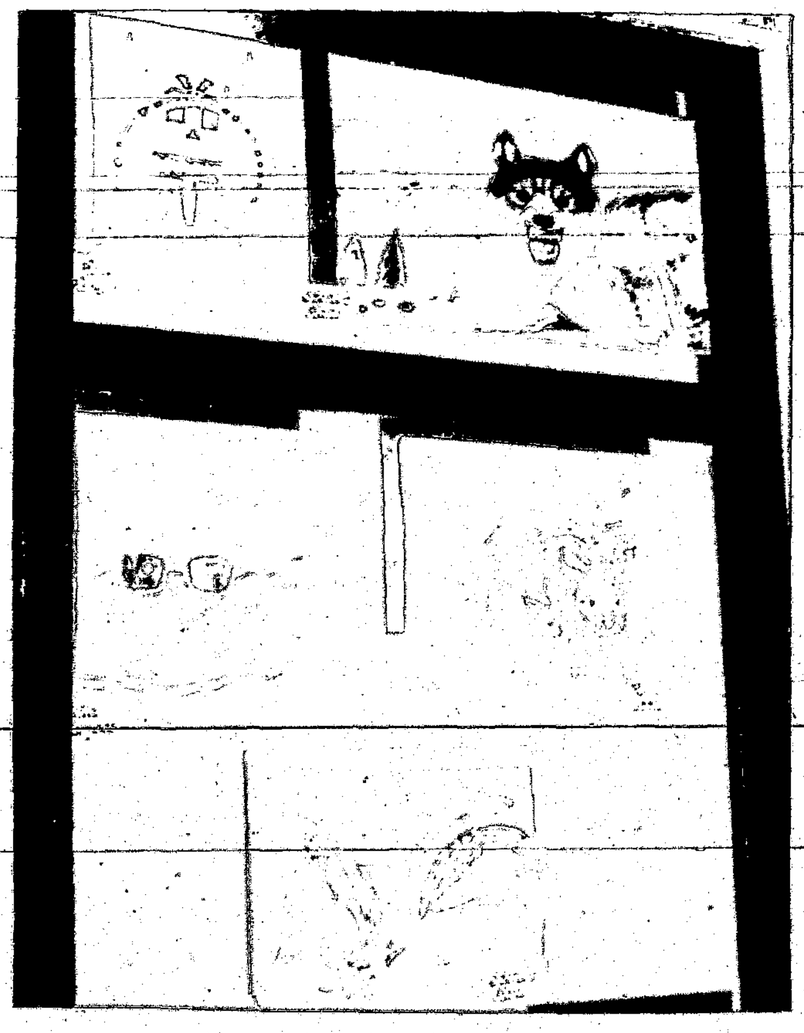
Cole wants to know what criteria was used by the jury, and she wants to know the jurists qualifications. Cole said she met with A.D. Powers, chairman of the jury committee, on May 2, and she wasn't satisfied with the information he gave her about the jury.

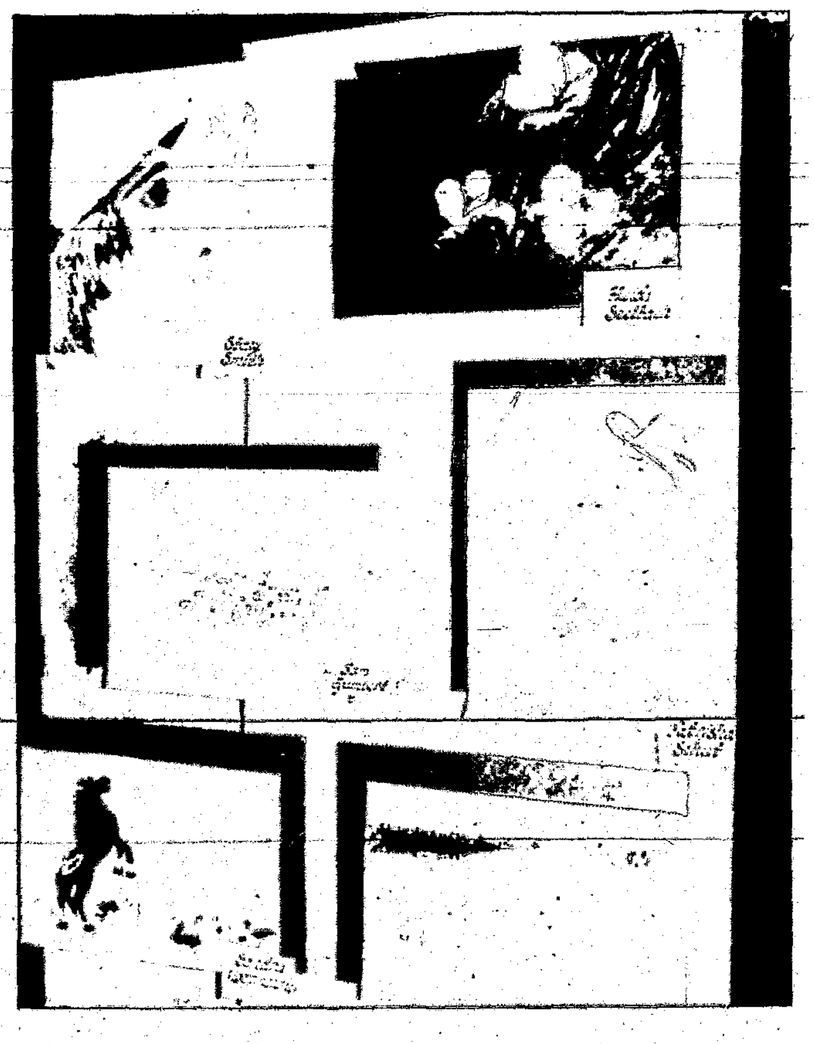
Cole said she learned that the jurying process is done by percentages in each category. For instance if there is just one entry in a category, then that applicant is automatically accepted.

Wall confirmed that the selection is done by categories.

"Some artists have found a way to automatically be accepted into the show by applying in a certain medium whereby they are the only applicant in that particular medium," said Cole. "Then, by, well say, Saturday, they are selling some of their painted clothing which they were not juried for. Then by Sunday, they have an entire rack of clothes set up as well as other items that were not juried," she added.

Cole said she asked the committee to re-evaluate the whole jurying process, suggesting that local artists be juried separately, or some such plan. As an alternate plan, she suggested giving local artists an extra point in the grading process, or only jury a local one time, and then let them remain year after year as long as they remain local residents.





Spring art in the mall

Examples of art work by students at local schools is on display at the Sierra Mall as part of the Springtime in the Rockies celebration. Second and third graders under the direction of Betty Day displayed their work, as did high school students under the direction of teacher Karen Reeder.

Opinion

Editorial

Springtime in the Rockies, the event, is getting mixed reviews. But we believe it has enough promise to be worth keeping in this resort's year-round plan for tourist activities. The Lincoln County Hospitality Association, the small group that bravely took on this big project, learned a lot.

Springtime in the Rockies, the season, didn't cooperate very well for this inaugural celebration, and maybe that's why attendance was low. Maybe the event should begin a week later next year, giving the mountain a little more time to get warm.

We're not sure law enforcement officers should get involved, but the practice of welcoming visitors could be accomplished just as well with volunteers from the New Mexico Mounted Police or a reserve group.

Springtime in the Rockies did log two major accomplishments, first, by handing the promising spring event on to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and second, by persuading the chamber to stay open on Saturday, something we have advocated for years. We believe those two things will be good for the event, the chamber and the entire area.

Congratulations to the Lincoln County Hospitality Association for a job well done. We're looking forward already to next year's Springtime in the Rockies, the event as well as the season.

Grab a broom to lead one state party

Paul Bardacke...

...Set off a few mines recently when he commented — on the record — that the Democratic State Central Committee (who are mostly unabashed Bruce King supporters) are "not in the mainstream of the Democratic Party in New Mexico."

Dorothy Watts of Otero County was very unhappy with Bardacke's characterization. And worse, Dorothy is articulate.

"I have been in the mainstream and lower echelon and worked my heart out for the Democratic Party for 14 years," she told me heatedly. "I've never seen Paul with a broom, a spoon or a pencil — the primary tools that people like me use. We write the invitations, we cook the beans and we sweep up when it's over. If it wasn't for me and all others like me, the Democratic Party would be in name only. I'd like to see him try to get elected without us."

Yeah, but has she seen Bruce King with a broom? I asked.

"Absolutely," the devout Kingite replied. "At the southern district Democratic Hall of Fame dinner in Las Cruces last fall. Everyone was frantically trying to get the hall cleaned up and he just grabbed a broom and started pushing it like everyone else. I remember thinking then, Bruce King's motto could be - 'Whatever It Takes'."

Henry Rothschild...

...The attorney for the State Transportation Authority, was amused on a recent visit to Lincoln County.

The folks down there are thinking about reviving the old Iron Horse Railroad line as a tourist attraction.

"The county commission voted it down — I think they felt the original, $100 million proposal was little grandiose," Rothschild reported to the state panel.

"Also," he added with a chuckle, "There seems to be a real fear in Carrizozo that Ruidoso would have a railroad and would therefore demand the county seat, under the old 1915 law that a county seat can only be moved to a town with a railroad."

"It's kind of interesting as I travel the state to see all these old ghosts appear," Rothschild added..

**** **** ****

Well, I Don't Know What He Thinks is So Funny...

...I'm from that southern country, and I can tell you, those folks in Zozo are not being paranoid, they have reason to think twice about Ruidoso's ambitions.

And furthermore, if that proposed railroad went anywhere near the village of Lincoln, they'd have even more serious worries.

According to the Lincoln oldtimers, that 1915 law was the way Carrizozo just flat stole the county seat away from Lincoln — by pointing out that Zozo had the railroad and not Lincoln.

I have the greatest respect for Henry's legalizing, but he needs to realize that in New Mexico, what he thinks is ancient history was just a short time ago. And it has a way of bouncing back at you...

Reporter's Round

Oops, there goes another rubber tree!

Just when you think you know everything, someone else comes along to shatter all your perceptions of how you think things really work.

My experience at the Sixth Town Hall in Gallup, where environmental issues in New Mexico were discussed, was no exception.

Take the age-old antagonistic relationship between ranchers and environmentalists. Unfortunately, it's still there. But there was one gentleman in the same discussion group as I who came out and said the two groups doing the most damage to the environment are the ranchers and the environmentalists together.

And when this gentleman suggested a new approach to land management, both environmentalists and ranchers alike looked aghast because the man advocated something which sounds like over-grazing!

What's next? I'll tell you.

An owner of a McDonald's came out with the suggestion it may be better to stick with polystyrene foam containers in the fast food industry because at least polystyrene is recyclable.

If the fast food industry went to paper containers, she noted the paper would have to be coated, rendering it nonrecyclable and thus becoming an additional burden on our already over burdened landfill facilities.

Also, the bad thing about polystyrene is its how big the impact consumer choice will be in the development of a recycling market.

Currently there's not much of a market for recycled material. But once consumers show a distinct preference for recycled materials and recyclable materials, and choose products without non-essential packaging, the industrial world will wake up.

Good intentions or no, the business world will not change unless there's money in it.

So what can we do? I suggest putting pressure on the two biggest consumers of paper in our world; the schools and government. By encouraging these entities to purchase recycled paper, and to recycle their own, a tremendous reduction in the single largest portion of solid waste can be realized.

And the other thing is we can all get ready for some price increases. Protecting the environment will not be cheap. But if the price increases are in the market place, rather than in the form of higher taxes, I believe we will be better off in the long run. At least then we can still exercise our power of choice.

most positive attribute. It never decomposes, which means it never gets into the groundwater. Whereas treated paper can leak dioxins eventually.

So, take your pick. Does one have a true advantage over the other?

One thing is for sure, I think. People need to re-evaluate their lifestyles. Not necessarily lowering their standard of living, but at least taking the time to assess what conveniences are worth keeping and which ones are better off discarded.

If there was agreement on anything at the Town Hall (and there was generally a lot of agreement) the strongest consensus was reached over the need to educate people and

The Plant Corner

Caladiums thrive indoors & outdoors

by SALLY BLACK
Ruidoso News
Plant Specialist

DEAR SALLY:

Is the Caladium an outdoor plant or can it be grown in containers inside? I love the fancy-leafed plant of many colors and would like to try growing them. Please give me the necessary growing instructions. I read your Column and want to thank you for the many growing tips.

Cherrie

DEAR CHERRIE:

You are right, the Caladium is a beautiful plant, and really rather easy to grow. They are native to tropical America. Outside they need to be protected, they need warm shade not more than 80 degrees. Keep inside in pots in winter and put out on sheltered patios or decks in summer. The Caladium goes through a 4 to 5 month annual rest period during which the leaves wither away. When the foliage begins to wither (7 or 8 months after growth began) gradually withhold water until the foliage shrivels completely. Allow the soil to become dry, then knock the plant out of its pot and shake the soil off the roots; pull away any dead tops. Dust the tubers with a combination fungicide-insecticide; store them in dry peat moss perlite or vermiculite at about 60 degrees for 4 to 5 months, then start repotting them for new growth again. Propagate by dividing the tubers just before replanting. To start tubers into new growth press them in 1" deep, bud side down, into damp peat moss or vermiculite. When leaves appear, place in pots.

Soil—Use regular potting soil mixed with 1/3 peat moss and 1/3 sharp sand, with plenty of plastic doodads in the bottom to allow for good drainage. Fill pot halfway with mix, stir in a heaping teaspoon of fish meal. Add 1" mix and set tuber in with knobby side up, cover with 2" of mix. Water thoroughly.

Water-Keep soil moist, not wet, and well-drained. Provide more moisture as new leaves develop. Small frequent waterings are best and never allow to stand in water in the drip tray to become soggy. This will rot the tuber.

Light—Caladiums do best in bright indirect or curtain-filtered sunlight; if only artificial light is available, provide at least 400-foot-candles.

Temperature—Night about 65 degrees and day about 85 degrees are ideal. They will tolerate a little wider range.

Fertilizer—Feed every 2 or 3 weeks with a liquid fish fertilizer, starting when new leaves appear all during growing season. This fish fertilizer provides a large, arrow or spearhead shaped, brightly colored leaves.

Pests—This plant does attract slugs and snails- Keep some bait in the drip tray for them.

I have heard these plants of the red colors called the "ace of hearts"

For year-round beauty, despite the semi-annual dormancy, start second plants approximately 6 months after the first.

Good luck.

Hondo students visit Santa Fe

Spanish II students at Hondo High School had their first annual trip to Santa Fe this year.

According to a news release, their instructor, Lynda Sanchez of Lincoln, took her students on a whirlwind tour of this state's fascinating capital. A special treat also included a visit to the internationally known Santuario de Chimayo.

The class departed at 5 a.m. and arrived at the capitol building around 9. A brisk walk from there took them to the oldest church in the United States, the La Fonda hotel, the Chapel at Loretto, Fine Arts Museum, Palace of the Governors and other places of interest in the "city different." A special lunch was planned and time was allowed for shopping.

By the afternoon, students boarded the bus once again and headed north to a lovely Hispanic village known for its special shrine, El Santuario di Chimayo. The church was constructed over an ancient Indian religious site. Indian peoples had come to this area for centuries to collect holy earth that healed individuals of many illnesses.

When the early Spanish colonists noted this activity, legend has it that they saw bright lights and when they went to the spot where they observed the lights, a cross was found buried in the earth. Many determined this to be a sign that a European church should be constructed. It was built more than 176 years ago.

Today, according to Sanchez, the site is visited by thousands of Pilgrims during Holy Week. Students were very interested in the stories of those who have been helped or cured by their pilgramages to this village.

"I always like to take my students to these places, as few from our region have had the opportunity to see some of the major historical monuments and places where New Mexico history took place and is still in the process. They were also exposed to many aspects of our state's Hispanic and Indian Heritage," said Sanchez.

Ruidoso teachers study earthquakes

Linda Skellett and Nancy Leslie, teachers at White Mountain Elementary School, attended a national workshop recently in Santa Fe.

Skellett and Leslie were among 36 educators from New Mexico, California and Puerto Rico gathered at the newly operational Science and Math Learning Center in Santa Fe for a two-day train-the-trainer workshop on earthquake science and safety topics.

The workshop, conducted by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in Washington, D.C., was cosponsored by the Educational Outreach Office at Los Alamos National Laboratory, New Mexico Department of Education, New Mexico Bureau of Mines and Mineral Resources, New Mexico Institute of Mines and Technology, and New Mexico Department of Public Safety.

The primary purpose of the workshop was to introduce and demonstrate the use of "Earthquakes-A Teacher's Package for K-6," developed for FEMA by the National Science Teachers Association. The Teacher's Package consists of multidisciplinary, hands-on activities covering such information as how to design lessons to reflect the earthquake history and risk in various areas; how to help children cope with fears and anxieties related to disasters; how to increase the capability of the school community to respond safely and effectively during the critical hours following a damaging earthquake.

Workshop participants were treated on the first day to a special presentation on earthquake legends from around the world given by a fourth grade class from E.J. Martinez Elementary.

Instructors for the May 4 and 5 events were teachers, administrators, and geologists from Illinois, Missouri, South Carolina, and New Mexico, who combined teaching skills with scientific expertise to provide participants with an experience that is easily modeled in the classroom.
