New county commissioners get right down to business

by CHARLIE CHITWOOD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lincoln County Commissioner's new regime went right to work yesterday, meeting less than three hours after taking the oath of office.

Bill Elliott, Monroy Montes and Stirling T. Spencer spent the better part of the afternoon special session setting the rules for their commission meetings and making appointments to the various county authorities, commissions and committees that fall under their jurisdiction.

Spencer was named to the chair of the commission, with Elliott selected as the vice chairman.

County manager Nick Pappas and County attorney J. Robert Beauvais were both retained by the new commission, but road superintendent Tommy Hall was informed that he will not be re-appointed to his position.

In Hall's case, the commissioners were split in their vote on the appointment. Commissioners Elliott and Montes voted against the appointment while Spencer cast the lone vote in favor of Hall.

"I'd like to open it up (the position) and see what other talent is available," said Montes, the District I commissioner. "I would like to see if we can get the roads up to a standard where we don't have to do so much work on them."

District III Commissioner Elliott remarked that the commission will get the best man they can for the money they have to offer.

"I think we can get someone better to do the job in the Road Department," he said.

Elliott expects the hunt for a new road superintendent to take approximately two months.

Spencer said that he went through the records of the past few years to try to come up with some sort of evaluation. In the end, he voted in respect to the wishes of his constituents.

"My district felt like it was getting good road service," Spencer said. "I would have liked to have seen how he performed under the direction of this commission before making this type of decision, though."

Until a replacement is found, Joe Vega Jr. will act as the road superintendent.

The board of commissioners also changed the date of regular meetings to 9 a.m. every third Tuesday, switching from the Monday afternoon meetings of the last commission. The first regular meeting has been changed, however, to Friday, January 18.

The commissioners appointed board members to 12 entities as well.

Maggie Bohks was re-appointed as the civil defense director for Lincoln County. The appointment is good for another two years.

Monroy Montes was selected to fill the commissioner's seat on the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County, and will remain there for two years.

Bill Elliott and Monroy Montes were both named to the Extraterritorial Zoning Authority of the county, receiving two year appointments to the board.

Elliott also received a two-year appointment to the Lincoln County Medical Center Board of Directors.

Reappointed to the Lincoln County Lodgers Tax Committee were Kay Dennis, Carolyn Cantrell and Richard W. Seeley. LaRue Wetzel was also named to the committee with a two-year commitment.

The Lincoln County Fair Board received several new members. Jody Roberts and Darlene Bobb replaced members Betty Lou Joiner and Rick Simpson with Stirling Spencer taking the commissioner's spot on the board. Ralph R. Dunlap, Scott Shafer and Omer L. "Hoot" Gibson were each re-appointed for two more years.

Joining three incumbents on the Lincoln Historic Preservation Board for two years are Agatha Long, who will be the member-at-large. Cleis C. Jordan, Bill Morris and A.D. Powers will all retain their positions on the board.

Martha McKnight Proctor received extra duties to go with her county clerk's job when she was named the county's representative to the New Mexico Association of Counties.

Walter C. "Dub" Williams and Bill Carrigan were both re-appointed to two-year terms on the Property Tax Protest Board, and Bill Elliott and Nick Pappas took seats on the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District for two years.

Monroy Montes was named to the commissioner's seat on the Water Defense Association Board as well as the Zia Senior Citizens Advisory Commission for two more years. Joining him on the Zia commission is newcomer Inez Tanner. She replaces resigned board member Sid Miller.

Stirling Spencer and Bill Elliott were each named to the Solid Waste Committee and the Special District Commission on Solid Waste.

Several committee and commission board appointments were tabled until the regular meeting on January 18. Boards to be filled at that time are:

—The Extraterritorial Zoning Commission.

—The Joint Powers Agreement Committee (El Paso Water).

—The Lincoln County Personnel Board.

—The Planning and Zoning Commission.

—And, the Regional Waste Water Joint Use Board.

Appointments to these boards were held up until some of the candidates could be contacted about their willingness to serve on the boards.

Tina Powers of Ruidoso Downs holds her son, Matthew John Hernandez, born during the new year. Dr. Arlene Brown (at right) delivered the infant just after high noon New Year's Day at the Lincoln County Medical Center. Matthew has the honor of being the first baby born in the county during the new year. Sergio Hernandez is Matthew John's proud father.

Welcome, New Year's Baby!

Matthew John Hernandez, six pounds, 15 ounces, will hereafter celebrate his birthday on January 1, New Year's Day.

The infant was born to Tina Powers at 12:12 p.m., Tuesday, January 1, at the Lincoln County Medical Center. He is the first baby born in Lincoln County during 1991 and is eligible for prizes provided by some local merchants.

The father is Sergio Hernandez, an employee of K-Bob's in Ruidoso.

Dr. Arlene Brown was the delivering physician at the holiday birth. The infant was due to arrive in this world on January 13.

Teresa McCollum, R.N. unit supervisor, was in attendance when the baby was born.

Powers says she has been a resident of the area for 10 years; she and Hernandez reside in a trailer park in Ruidoso Downs.

Probate Judge J.O. "Bud" Payne as they are sworn into office Wednesday. (See story, page 2A.)

False alarm leads to a happy ending

The kind of police call no one wants to hear blared out over the scanner early today (Thursday). Child's clothing had been found floating in a break in the ice at Innsbrook Pond.

Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor said the fire department, Emergency Medical Service ambulance and the police all responded to the area and divers were called.

Swenor said the fire department's ladder had been dispatched over the hole and workers were set to use the long hooked pike poles when officers scanning the area found the parents and talked to the little girl.

The parents, visiting from Mexico, said their nine-year-old had fallen through the ice yesterday, Wednesday, and her brother had helped her out of the water, leaving her boots and gloves behind.

Swenor said the Spanish name of the little girl was imprinted on the glove which gave the officers the clue that was helpful in their successful search.

The little girl apparently suffered no injuries from her accident.

Newly-elected officers take the reins

by CHARLIE CHITWOOD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

There was a whole lot of swearing 'goin' on in the Lincoln County Courthouse yesterday morning.

November's general election winners took their oaths of office before District Judge Richard Parsons and enjoyed a brief reception in their honor.

Judge Parsons took a moment before the swearing-in ceremony to express his feelings about working with such a small government community. Noting that the groups are made up of various personalities and backgrounds, he said that the most common bond among the officers is that "the people want to be here."

New county commissioners Monroy Montes, Bill Elliott and Stirling T. Spencer led off the ceremony, raising their right hands and swearing "so help me God" that they would serve the community and uphold the Constitution to the best of their ability.

The trio replaced Rick Simpson,

Robert E. Hemphill and Karon Z. Petty.

Magistrate judges J.R. "Jim" Wheeler and Gerald Dean Jr. were joined by new Lincoln County Probate Judge J.O. "Bud" Payne in taking the oath of their respective offices. Wheeler was re-elected to the Division II magistrate's bench while Dean was voted back to his Division I magistrate's seat. Payne replaces Jack Page in the Probate Court.

County Clerk Martha McKnight Proctor also renewed her oath of office, along with her staff of clerks and assistants.

Janice S. Ware stepped forward and accepted the county treasurer's oath of office, replacing Shirley Goodloe. The office staff of the treasurer's department also renewed their oaths.

Julia Samora has retired as the Lincoln County Assessor, and taking her place is Pat Serna. Serna, along with her staff of fellow workers, took their oaths before Judge Parsons.

Lincoln County Sheriff James C.

"Jay" McSwane was re-elected by Lincoln County voters, and along with a host of his deputies and dispatchers, took the oath to protect and guard the citizens of Lincoln County.

County EMS coordinator Maggie Bohks, finance administrator Mignon Sims and administrative assistant Martha Guevara also took their oaths to continue to serve, but missing was County Manager Nick Pappas.

Pappas is currently resting at a hospital in Roswell. According to reports, Pappas will remain at the hospital for a few more days, then return home to Nogal for 10 days of rest.

Martha Guevara will act as manager until Pappas' return to office.

The reception set up in honor of the new inductees was sponsored by the Lincoln County League of Women Voters.

The new commissioners met shortly after the ceremony and made committee appointments to county boards.

District Judge Richard A. Parsons was busy yesterday swearing in Lincoln County officials and their staffs. (Clockwise, from above:) Sheriff James McSwane and deputies take their oath to uphold the law. County Clerk Martha McKnight Proctor and her staff of clerks, County Treasurer Janice S. Ware with her deputies, new Tax Assessor Pat Serna and her deputies, and District Court Clerk Margo Lindsay and assistants are sworn into office.

Ruidoso students get back to the books next Monday

Ruidoso High School students, along with all students in the Ruidoso Municipal Schools, will go back to school on Monday, January 7.

RHS will begin the spring semester of 1991 as usual on that day, but with two exceptions, according to a news release provided by counselor Jean Forester.

First, the fifth period final exam that was scheduled for Friday, December 21, will be given Tuesday, January 8. School was canceled that day because of heavy snowfalls.

Although classes will be held according to regular schedule on Monday, January 7, all students will first report to a special homeroom class at 8:35 a.m.

However, on Tuesday, students will attend periods one through four, go to lunch, and then return for the fifth period final exam at 1 p.m.

Some students will be receiving revised second semester schedules, and the special homeroom period was planned to facilitate this distribution.

According to the news release, the homeroom will be alphabetical, according to grade level, as follows: 9th grade, A-F, Ames, C209; G-L, Durham, V201; M-R, Neal, S203; S-Z, Wilkinson, C112.

10th grade, A-F, Arthur, C103;

G-L, E. Davis, C201; M-R, Overdorf, S202; S-Z, Weiland, S201.

11th grade, A-F, Reeder, FA101; G-L, Tully, C204; M-R, Roberson, C202; S-Z, Maldonado, C206.

12th grade, A-F, Farrington, C104; G-L, Parker, V202; M-R, D. Davis, S204; S-Z Morris, C105.

A bell will ring to end the short homeroom period and students will go to a shortened first period class.

Every student will receive a copy of his or her schedule, but not every student will have a revised schedule. In 75 percent of the cases, spring classes will be the same as fall semester classes.

MainStreet planners will speak during three meetings Monday

After input from MainStreet Ruidoso merchants and others at a previous public hearing, city planners will stage a second hearing at 9 a.m. Monday, January 7, at Cree Meadows Country Club in the North 40 dining room. A team from Carter & Burgess, Inc., engineers, planners and surveyors, of Fort Worth, Texas, will be here for the hearing, Monday, and to meet with the Planning and Zoning Commission and with the village council, Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening, respectively. The planners were retained in 1990 to prepare and present a development plan for the MainStreet Ruidoso project area or "downtown" business district of Ruidoso.

Light refreshments will be served at the hearing, Monday, Mary Maul, MainStreet project director, says.

'Zozo man is killed in train accident

The New Year in New Mexico got off to a rough start Tuesday with two separate accidents that occurred three minutes apart.

One man was killed at 10:20 p.m. in a Sandoval County accident, and in Carrizozo, an Oklahoma man was killed when his van was struck by a Southern Pacific train.

Alva Clinton Twombly, 47, of Texhoma, Oklahoma, was dead on the scene Tuesday night at 10:17 p.m. Twombly was thrown nearly 100 feet from the van when it was struck, but a preliminary examination revealed only broken ribs and a few lacerations.

Investigating Officer Gus Martin of the Carrizozo Police Department noted the possibility that Twombly suffered a heart attack before the train hit him. Twombly's blood alcohol content was .32. A person with a blood alcohol content of .10 is considered legally drunk in New Mexico. Martin remarked that further tests are being conducted.

Martin said that Twombly apparently wandered lost through town, trying to get back to his room at the Four Winds Motel. When he got over to the old train depot, he tried to cross the tracks and got stuck.

Tire marks next to the tracks indicated that he attempted to get the vehicle off the rails before the train, traveling 60 miles per hour, struck Twombly's van in the left front, ejecting him and flipping the vehicle twice before it landed upright.

Joe Skeen will keynote EDCLC annual meeting

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor
U.S. Rep. Joe Skeen has a difficult topic to speak on at the annual shareholders meeting of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County January 11.

A luncheon meeting to which the public has been invited is set for noon at Cree Meadows Country Club, Friday, January 11. Skeen will be the principal speaker.

Skeen has been asked to speak on New Mexico's role in economic development in the light of international developments.

Saddam Hussein hadn't been given a January 15 deadline to vacate Kuwait when Skeen was asked to speak on that subject.

Tickets at $9.50 each for the luncheon are available through the EDCLC office, 258-5367, or from any EDCLC director.

New officers will be elected at the Friday luncheon. George Puckett, executive director of the EDCLC, said Wednesday ticket sales are going well.

Don Shaw, president of the EDCLC, said he will place emphasis on creating a favorable climate for economic development in his presentation, Friday.

At a recent board meeting, Shaw said that the EDCLC in its few years of existence has created an atmosphere conducive to attracting new business and light industry to Lincoln County.

He indicated that the public needs to know that because of that climate, several light industries and/or businesses have moved here and enhanced the economy of the entire county.

Three directors will be elected and installed at the luncheon meeting.

Persons who are candidates are holdover officers or directors, Shaw and Scott Shafer of Carrizozo.

Other candidates are Jim Bassett, Steve Stroud, Paul Crown, David King, Lee Griffin, Glen Crane and Rose Peebles.

At a recent open house, EDCLC had representatives of industries on hand to explain their operation and display products.

Industries with displays included Apache Futures, Juma Farms, Micrographics and Warp Speed.

Late in the year Warp Speed, light pen manufacturer and marketer, announced a contract with Methodist Hospital in Lubbock to provide, along with IBM, computers and light pens in the amount of nearly $420,000.

Apache Futures says it expects to have sales of $5 to $6 million this year. That company has service teams which fan out across the country doing warranty work on transit buses and doing maintenance on bus fleets among other services.

Juma Farms has a shop in Carrizo Canyon where wooden letters and other wood products are manufactured.

Micrographics specializes in printed circuit design and fabrication.

One of the major events during 1990 sponsored by EDCLC was an economic development seminar featuring the former mayor of San Antonio, Henry Cisneros, and other speakers including Bill Brainerd, mayor of Roswell who had a success story to tell.

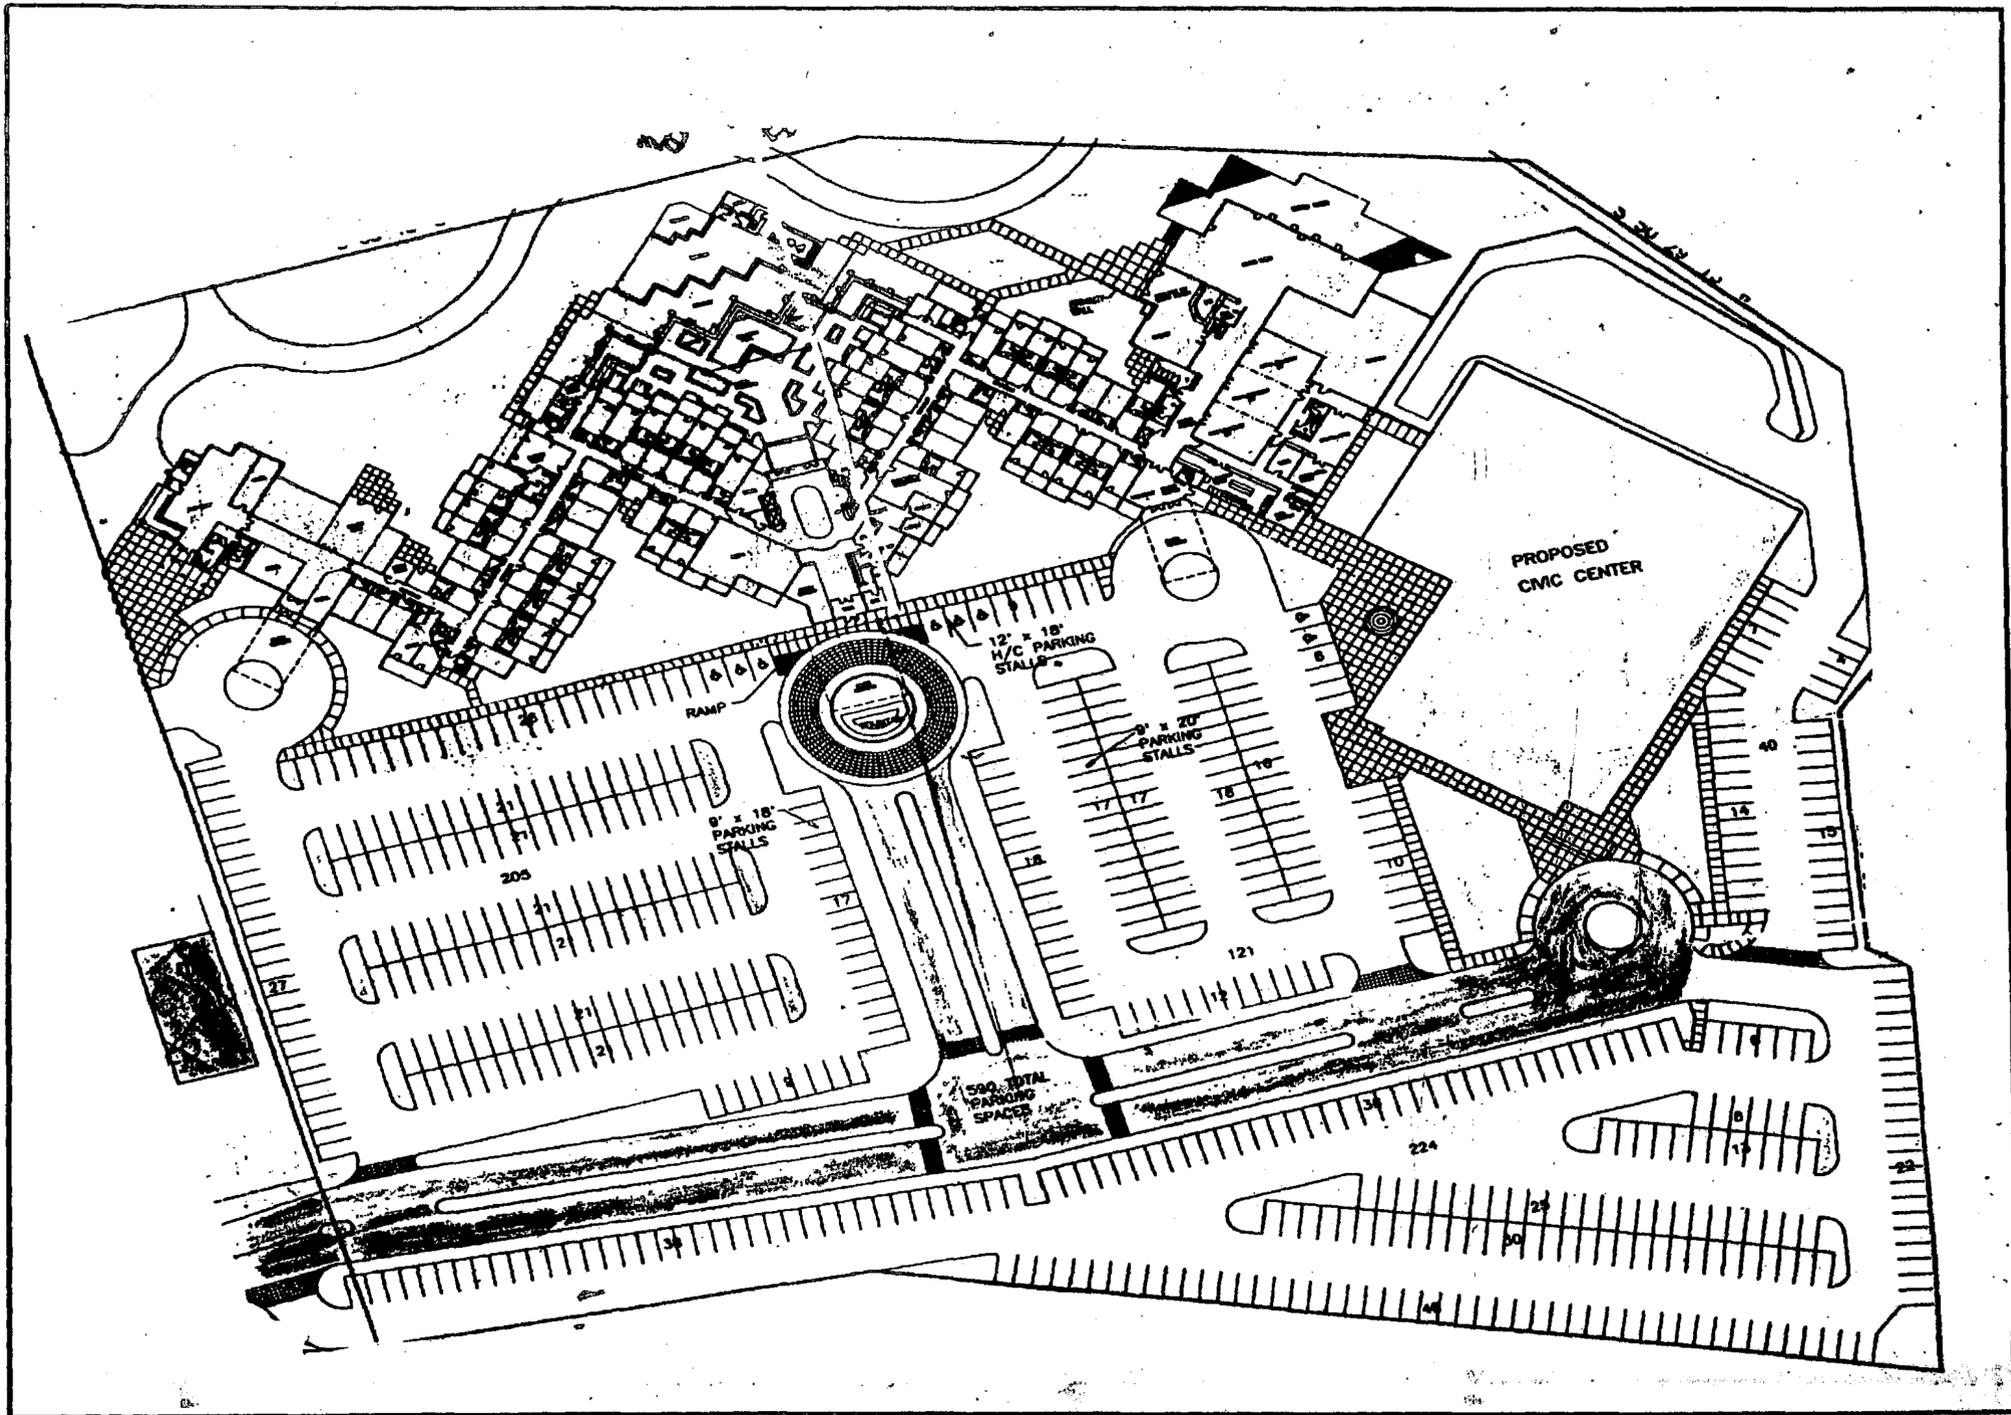

Also during the year, Shaw announced a system which would put more development responsibilities on committees within EDCLC.

He announced a plan for 12 functioning committees to augment the work of the EDCLC staff of Puckett and Anita Sanders, assistant.

Each committee will have a director assigned to act as liaison between a particular committee and the board of directors and staff.

In place, on paper

Plans for the proposed Sierra Blanca Resort and the Ruidoso Civic Events Center are positioned on a huge map of the new golf course in the front corridor of village hall. Recently, the concrete floor of the golf cart shed was poured. It is located to the left of the 590-space parking lot. The sprawling hotel will feature an adobe appearance and contain 220 rooms with 2,400 square feet of meeting space. The hotel's kitchens are located near the civic center which will have an adobe-style front that will be compatible with the hotel's architecture. The civic center's main room will cover over 13,000 square feet. A huge portable wall will block off 7,800 square nearest the hotel that will convert into a finished banquet room or be further divided into meeting rooms. The center will service the hotel with its convention trade and the village's interest in the trade fair market. Huge loading docks will be located behind the center and hotel's kitchen area.

Capitan Tigers take on Hagerman this Friday

Capitan basketball returns to the court tomorrow evening as Hagerman travels to the Tigers' Den.

The boys junior varsity game begins at 4 p.m., followed by the Lady Tigers' varsity match and the varsity Tigers' game.

The Capitan boys head into tomorrow night's game with a 1-4 record and their only victory against Carrizozo's "B" team at the Floyd Invitational Tournament.

Pat Ventura's squad has been practicing over the holidays, learning how to play underneath the basket and how to really work the boards. The Tiger's rebounding improved noticeably during the tournament, but there is still a long way to go.

Capitan's offense hasn't had the trouble scoring that some thought they might at the beginning of the season. Leading the Tigers in scoring are Bobby Griego (14.2 points per game) and Nathan "Nato" Roybal (12.8 ppg). Kyle Traylor (8.0 ppg) and Trevor Cox (7.2 ppg) have also contributed and Charlie Tracey (5.0 ppg) is showing steady improvement each game.

Over in the Lady Tigers practices, Coach Norman Cline has been trying to introduce the ladies to the bottom of the bucket.

Cline said earlier that he is fairly satisfied with the team's defensive efforts, but that the offense just isn't clicking yet.

Leslie LaRue might act as guide for the girls on the court, however.

LaRue is averaging 16.5 points per game for the 2-4 Lady Tigers and hasn't missed double figures yet. In support, however, only Karie Cox (8.0 ppg) and Cindy Castillo (7.0 ppg) have scored more than 10 points in a game.

Cline noted that the girls got off to a slow start last year, too, due mainly to the late start of practice. Success in volleyball delayed the start of basketball practice, and the first game was here before they knew it. "We'll be ready for the district matches," Cline reminded.

Next week, Capitan hosts the annual Smiley Bear Tournament played in both gyms at the school. First round games begin Thursday morning and the championship match will be played Saturday evening.

Candidate withdraws

by CHARLIE CHITWOOD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan's Board of Education race got one runner short yesterday when Blair D. "Brandy" Flanagan withdrew his name from the ballot.

The January 2 withdrawal coincided with the last date a hopeful may declare as a write-in candidate. No other candidates filed yesterday at the County Clerk's office in Carrizozo.

Flanagan's withdrawal from the Position V race leaves Robert E. Sims and Jack A. King to vie for the post. Incumbent Hollis Fuchs has decided not to run for the office again.

In the other race to be contested, incumbent Thomas R. Trost is looking to retain his Position III seat against challenger Terry L. Cox.

If elected, Cox would likely join his brother Kenneth A. Cox on the board. Ken Cox is seeking reelection unopposed for the Position IV spot.

Board president Preston Stone and member Ron Roybal each have two years remaining in their positions.

Also to be decided in the February 5 elections will be a capital improvements tax question. At this year's state evaluation of the district, it was recommended that the district look hard at re-aligning the classes. The change, however, would require some physical changes at the school.

Students try out for CHS mock trial team

Capitan High School students will have their day in court defending and prosecuting Laura Palmer for first degree murder and child abuse in the cocaine-related death of her newborn child.

Capitan's lawyer coach Don Dutton listened to opening statements and examined prospective witnesses for membership on the 1991 mock trial team that will try the fictitious case. The State of New Mexico is prosecuting Palmer, of Twin Peaks, New Mexico, with the death of her own child. Earning their way onto the team this year are seniors Cindy Castillo, Erin Keller and Angela Schryer, juniors Shane Foglesong, Lori Longbotham and Daniel Parker; sophomore Lisa McCarty and freshman Anna Auchmoedy.

Capitan's Mock Trial Team has been to the state competition for the last four years, and last year was the only Class A school represented. Regional rounds of the competition begin in March.

Lincoln county conservation specialists attend state meet

These people were talkin' dirt! Lincoln County conservationists John and Mary Cooper of Arabella and Howard and Mary Shanks of Capitan recently attended the New Mexico Association of Conservation Districts' annual meeting in Clovis.

Mary Shanks, who was elected at the meeting as the association's Auxiliary president, was also presented the Auxiliary's Distinguished Service Award for her development of Project Soil, a conservation education program for elementary school students.

Shanks' program was instituted in the Capitan School District where she teaches.

Robert Wetherbee, president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, made the keynote address at the meeting and challenged members to create strategic plans to better represent the concerns of the people they serve.

"You must be poised to seize the opportunity to assist New Mexico's farmers, ranchers and other land users as we move in the decade of environment," Wetherbee said. "Because Federal support of conservation programs will be increasingly targeted to areas of greatest need, state and local programs must be expanded to fill in the gaps."

Speaking to the crowd of nearly 200 representatives of New Mexico's 47 soil and water conservation districts, Wetherbee stressed that local programs have a proven track record of meeting the conservation needs of agricultural producers and land users as well as those of local units of government.

All American jockey is big money winner

On December 19, at Los Alamitos, Kip Didericksen — buoyed principally by his win aboard Refrigerator in the $2 million All American Futurity — set a new single-season earnings record (by his mounts) of $2,629,404.

The previous record of $2,622,431 was set in 1985 by Kenneth Hart.

At just 24 years of age, Didericksen is already becoming a fixture in the record books as he was the nation's leading quarter horse rider in 1986 and 1989.

This year he is well on his way to earning his second consecutive title and he is the only jockey to win in one year, both the Grade I All American Futurity and the Grade I Champion of Champions — the two most prestigious events in quarter horse racing.

A native of Preston, Idaho, Didericksen began his riding career at the age of 16. He won his first race at Boise, Idaho, and later rode in the Montana and Washington racing circuits. In the fall of 1984, Didericksen moved his tack to Los Alamitos in California, where he has led the jockey colony.

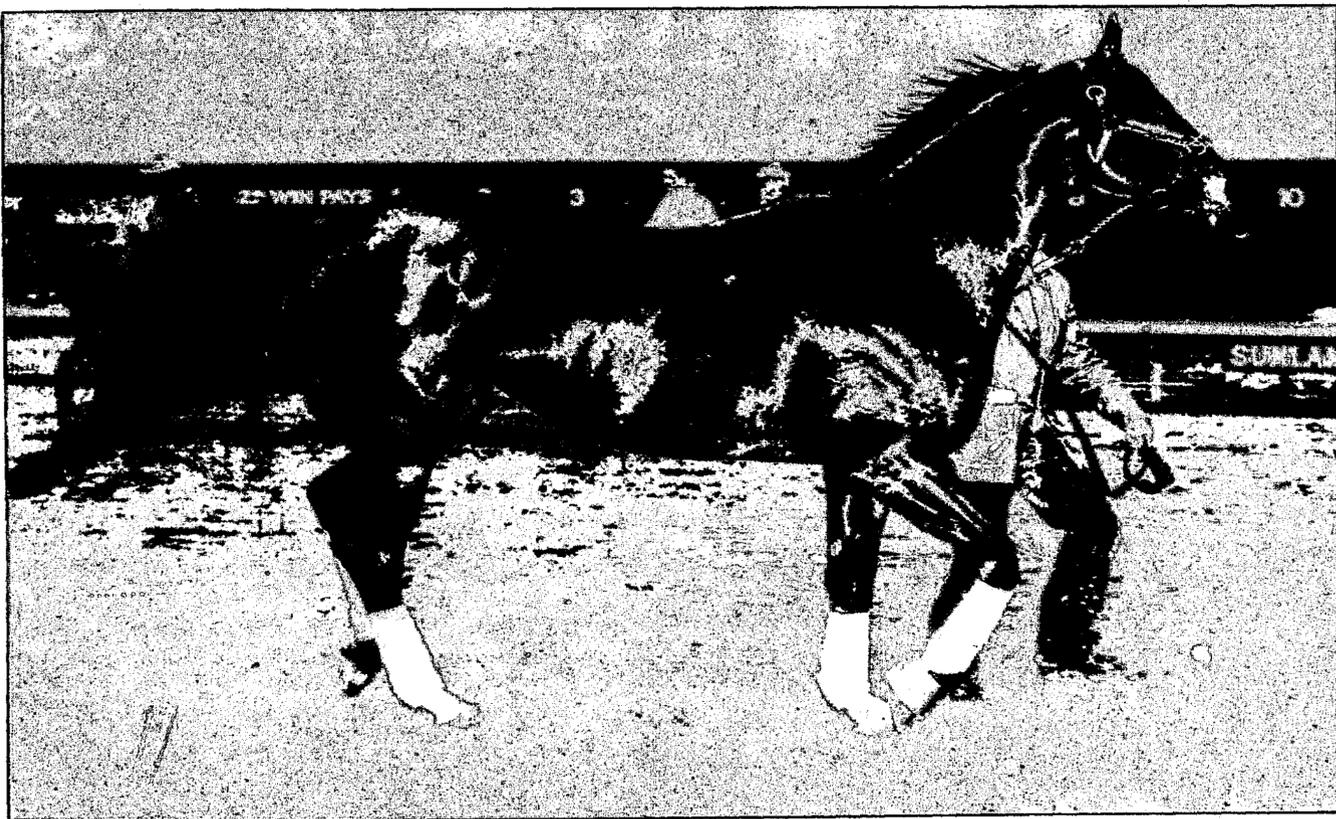

He captured his first grade I race in 1986, when he won the Rainbow Derby at Ruidoso Downs aboard Corporate Bug.

While his career riding statistics are impressive, Didericksen also can boast big numbers in another category. At 5'9", he is one of the nation's taller jockeys.

ican Futurity aboard Refrigerator (at left). Didericksen recently set an all-time season winnings record.

Fast and bold

Bold Ego, the Grade I stakes winner of $511,648, makes a ceremonial turn around the track at Sunland Park on Bold Ego Day December 16. Mares, three years and older, competed that day in the $6,500-added Bold Ego Invitational Handicap named in honor of the influential sire.

State OKs 79 racing days for Ruidoso Downs

In the last two New Mexico State Racing Commission meetings, Ruidoso Downs Race Track received final approval for its 1991 racing dates and stakes program.

The 1991 racing meet will open Thursday, May 9, and run 79 days. The traditional closing day will be Labor Day, Monday, September 2.

The stakes program will offer a total of 53 added-money events, including consolation races. There are 25 stakes opportunities for quarter horses which are highlighted by the $2.5 All American Futurity and 22 for thoroughbreds which are highlighted by the $125,000 estimated Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity. In addition, there are five $10,000 added 870- and 1,000-yard stakes races for both quarter horses and thoroughbreds and one $10,000 added race for paint horses.

The total amount of added monies available for quarter horses is $237,500 and includes nine Grade I events while the added money for thoroughbreds is $377,500.

An additional stakes race has been added for thoroughbreds which is the $10,000 added Juvenile Thoroughbred Classic. It is for two-year-olds going seven and one-half furlongs and will be run September 2.

"We feel that we have an outstanding and balanced stakes program for this area of the country," said Ruidoso Downs General Manager H. Rick Henson.

"You will continue to see the nation's best quarter horses and the southwest's finest thoroughbreds complete."

The stall application deadline for the 1991 meet is March 18.

Stakes nominations up

Stakes nominations for most of the thoroughbred futurities at Ruidoso Downs Race Track have shown an increase of almost 10 percent.

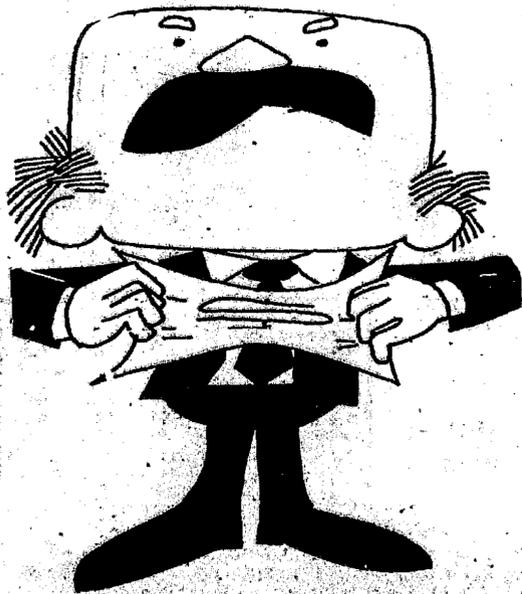

The Double actually makes horses eligible for two separate races — the Rio Grande Kindergarten and Rio Grande Futurities — and is restricted to New Mexico bred. They are each valued at $50,000.

The Norgor Futurity had the highest increase of more than 17 percent while the Kachina Stakes, which is reserved for two-year-old fillies, showed a decrease of a like amount. Each race is valued at $100,000.

The Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity had the next highest increase with more than 16 percent. The Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity is the richest of all the thoroughbred futurities at Ruidoso Downs and is valued at $125,000.

Warriors breed a better brand of basketball

The Copper Country Classic in Silver was another 1-2 tourney for the Ruidoso Warrior basketball team last weekend, but with an improved twist, finishing in the winner's bracket instead of the consolation bracket.

Ruidoso head coach Norm Wright will not be satisfied until the Warriors are solidly in the winner's column, but he is pleased with the statistics he has recorded that show a marked improvement in the squad since the season began.

Wright measures team progress like never before at Ruidoso High School, accurately recording every action defensively and offensively on both an individual and team performance.

When Wright gauges past stats against present game performances at the Copper Classic, the results may be similar to past tournaments, but the improvement of his players is also evident.

The Warriors opened with Douglas and whipped this Southern Arizona team by 25 points, 78-53, to keep Ruidoso in the winner's bracket for the rest of the tournament.

At Poe Corn in Roswell several weeks ago, the Warriors lost the first game and their lone victory was from the consolation side of the tourney.

The Warriors jumped to a quick six-point lead against Douglas and maintained that lead to finish the quarter leading 18-12. Ruidoso managed to gain another point over the next frame and walked into the locker room at half time leading 32-25.

The Warriors pressed Douglas in the second half and capitalized on turnovers to put together their best back-to-back quarters of the season.

Quarters three and four were all Cody Willard and Mashon Swenor in scoring. Willard finished with a game high 24. Swenor was a bucket behind at 22 points.

The Warriors rebound strength was in Heath Huey, 9; Swenor, 8; and Manny Guardiola, 8.

Willard also led the teams in assists, 9, and steals, 6.

Swenor's 10-18 was the best shooting percentage on the squad.

Boone Denny drew several charges, something unheard of at Ruidoso the past several years and an indication that this team has discovered the advantages of good footwork.

Wright has a system of checks and balances that allows each player to fairly judge his own game and accurately measure his progress, adding and subtracting points for different game actions.

Willard, Swenor and Huey received the best grades in the Douglas game. Huey was the best defender.

As a team the Warriors shot 28-55 or 51 percent on 2-point tries. Wright considers anything over 50 percent in high school as acceptable. The Warriors were 4-16 or 25 percent in their 3-point attempts and Wright felt that was too low.

"You need to make 33 percent of your 3-point shots in order to balance a 50 percent 2-point performance," he said.

The Warriors were also cold at the charity line shooting only 10-23 or 44 percent of their free throws. Wright wants to boost the team's free throw shooting accuracy to 65 percent.

The victory threw the young Warriors against one of the elite district 3-A basketball squads, Silver City.

Silver has six players that are 6-4 or taller and the veteran, physical squad started out with a hard full court press.

The Warriors were down 14-9 after the first period. Willard sank three baskets to lead the Warriors. Silver had six different players score for their balanced attack.

The aggressive Colts pulled away in the second quarter, aided by a perfect 5-5 by Fred Flores at the free throw line.

The 19-point splurge gave the Colts a comfortable halftime lead of 33-16.

The tough press and dominating height finally wore the Warriors down in body, but not in spirit because the physical shoving around they received made them angry for the first time this season.

The second half still belonged to the Colts, but not without a new aggressive approach by the Warriors that could lead to a positive, higher level of play in the future.

Willard with Swenor topped all Warriors with nine rebounds each. Huey and Guardiola each collected six boards. The team gathered 44 rebounds total, which was commendable considering the size of the Colts.

Charges were collected by Dan Holt, Huey and Robert Sayner.

Wright said team department on both sides was not of the best and at times the Silver crowd appeared a bit unruly.

The Warriors were super cold at the charity toss with an 11-28 performance, while the Colts shot a respectable 13-20 for 65 percent, free throw shooting.

Silver, ranked seventh in the state, won the tilt 71-44 and will play the Warriors again in Ruidoso in early February.

The Warriors final game was for the third place trophy against Chihuahua, Mexico.

In all of the Warriors previous games, they have either blown out their opponent or were themselves destroyed. Chihuahua was their first experience with a nip and tuck contest and they lost the thriller in overtime, 63-60.

Willard played a superb game, garnering 25 points, many on layups.

Defensive whiz Huey picked nine rebounds off the boards and Swenor controlled seven rebounds.

Syrus Wheeler led the Warriors in assists with five.

Quick Dan Holt picked up another charge.

Huey hit two clutch free throws to tie the game in the final period. The game changed hands dozens of times. The Warriors led after the first frame, 18-13, but Chihuahua came back to lead at halftime 37-35. The game was knotted at 44-44 at the end of three, and 57-57 at the end of four. Chihuahua outscored the Warriors 6-3 in overtime.

Denny, a top playmaker for the Warriors did not play because of an injury sustained in the Silver game.

Willard's 9-11 shooting in 2-point land was the hottest hand in the tournament for any team. The Warriors team shooting was still a bit light, 17-37 or 46 percent, and 4-18 in 3-point land is still not up to Wright's idea of average. The Warriors did manage 14-21 free throws for a 67 percent average, and that improvement made Wright happy.

The Warriors will face the Goddard Rockets at home on Thursday, January 3, in a make up game that was canceled because of a snowstorm.

Wright said he was looking forward to the Goddard game because it has been more than a month since the two teams played in Roswell. The Rockets had jammed their gym with students let out of school early for the event. Wright said he was hoping for a large Ruidoso crowd.

Barbary sheep season is open

Big game hunters looking for a real challenge should get out and try to bag a Barbary sheep. The season for Barbary sheep began in the southeastern part of New Mexico on December 29, 1990, and runs through January 27.

Barbary sheep are not a native game animal, they were released into New Mexico by the Department of Game and Fish back in the 1950s in the Largo and Canadian River canyons.

However, the Game Department cannot claim to be the first to introduce these hardy animals into the state. The first Barbaries escaped from a Class A park on the McKnight Ranch in the Hondo Valley.

From these small beginnings, Barbary sheep have done very well and their numbers have increased. They may be, and have been, found roaming almost everywhere in the state.

Their expanding population has also caused some problems. They have spread into areas where they aren't welcome and are competing with native animals such as mule deer and bighorn sheep.

Therefore, there are several different hunts for these animals to try to control their numbers.

The B-1 hunt is a trophy hunt in Unit 47, the Canadian River Canyon. This hunt has an unlimited number of permits and runs from December 29 to January 27. The bag limit for this hunt is one Barbary sheep of either sex with horns at least 16 inches long.

The B-1 hunt is open in most areas around the state, but there are some closed areas that are listed in the Big Game Proclamation.

The B-2 season is also open from December 29 through January 27, in the eastern part of the state.

The western part of the state has a year-long hunt in several units also listed in the Big Game Proclamation. These units are outside the primary ranges of Barbary sheep and animals will normally be found in small, widely scattered groups.

Numbers of licenses are unlimited for the B-2 hunt and the bag limit is two Barbary sheep of either sex.

The B-3 hunt is in Unit 2, the Largo Canyon near Farmington. Dates for this hunt are December 29 through January 27. Numbers of licenses are unlimited for this hunt and the bag limit is one Barbary sheep of either sex.

Licenses to hunt Barbary sheep may be purchased from any Game Department office. They may also be obtained by mail. Just fill out the form on the back page of the Big Game Proclamation and send it along with the proper fee to the address listed. The cost of a Barbary sheep license is $38 for residents of New Mexico and $303 for non-residents.

Hunters who plan on going after a Barbary sheep, shouldn't expect an easy hunt. These sheep like rough, rocky terrain and are very difficult to spot. They blend in with their surroundings extremely well and a good set of binoculars is really an asset.

Plan on doing a lot of hiking, so take a good pair of boots. Take along a hard-hitting rifle also. A mature Barbary ram can weigh as much as 300 pounds and they are often difficult to bring down.

Barbary sheep provide a difficult and challenging hunt.

Ski whiz makes state rankings

White powder buff Sean Donaldson, 9, of Ruidoso placed fourth among New Mexico's 7-9 year-old skiers, for the 1989-90 ski season.

Donaldson received his ranking from the National Standard Race (NASTAR) for his racing performance last year, according to NASTAR Commissioner Bob Beatie.

Donaldson's handicap is 45 by NASTAR ratings. A handicap is the percentage difference between a skier's race time and the theoretical time of the fastest NASTAR racer, U.S. Ski Team member Bob Ormsby.

Donaldson's handicap means he raced within 45 percent of Ormsby.

Donaldson is the son of Robert and Darcy Donaldson.

Ski deep in snow

New Mexico is off to one of its best ski years ever after a series of early season storms left the state's ski areas deep with snow.

Mid-season conditions or better exist at all areas and provide for some of the best skiing in the country, according to Ski New Mexico.

Taos Ski Valley currently has the highest recorded midway base depth in the continental U.S. at 90 inches according to Sno Country Reports (802-457-3838) a national snow reporting service. Weekly storms and winter temperatures have combined to keep the area covered with new snow and preserve what's already on the ground.

Not far behind are Santa Fe Ski Area with a 74 inch reported midway base depth and Sandia Peak Ski Area in Albuquerque with 64 to 68 inches at midway. Red River reports 56 to 58 inches midway, Angel Fire has a 44 inch base, Ski Apache in Ruidoso reports a 35 inch packed base at midway, Sipapu Ski Area has a 48 inch base, Pajarito ski area outside Los Alamos reports 28 inches of base, and Enchanted Forest cross-country ski area outside Red River has 35-55 inches on their trails.

With storms predicted this week, the skiing just continues to get better and gives New Mexico some of the finest ski conditions not just in the West, but anywhere.

"Now that's a Happy New Year," continues a news release provided by Ski New Mexico.

SERVICE COOLING SYSTEM FOR WINTER
One of the best investments you can make in car care is cooling system service. Sure, the price of anti-freeze has gone up, but the cost of flushing and fresh anti-freeze is minor when compared to engine repairs due to a freeze-up. Further, even in winter a neglected engine can overheat, according to Ruidoso Ford, Lincoln, Mercury. They recommend that complete cooling system service should include inspection and, when necessary, replacement of belts, hoses, radiator pressure cap and thermostat.

U.S. Forest Service closes four roads

Four forest roads will be closed during the 1990-91 winter season on Lincoln National Forest.

Cloudcroft District Ranger Max Goodwin said forest roads 640 (Atkinson Canyon), 63 (Lower Karr Canyon), 247 (Upper Russia Canyon), and 5661 (Pumphouse Ridge) are subject to closure.

Competition for use of these roads occurs during the winter between 4x4 vehicles and snowmobile groups. The snowmobile recreators have obtained special use permits and have volunteer agreements to help with management of these areas.

"Most 4x4 vehicles have difficulty maneuvering in deep snow," said Mary Cousler of the District's recreation staff. "And many of the would-be explorers get their vehicles stuck on roads that are groomed and permitted to snowmobile outfitter-guides."

Does this mean the end of winter driving on Cloudcroft Ranger District for 4-wheel drive vehicles?

"Absolutely not," says Ranger Goodwin. "There are miles and miles of roads on the District that are open to vehicle use in the winter months. The idea is to protect the resources, minimize conflicts between these groups, and still provide opportunities for both snowmobiles and 4x4s to enjoy winter recreation."

The roads will be closed after the first heavy snowfall, and opened up again in the spring. Calls of inquiry will be accepted by Mary Cousler at Cloudcroft Ranger District, (505) 682-2551.

Travel maps identifying forest roads are available at all ranger district offices and the Supervisors Office in Alamogordo.

TROY GORDON

Sailor is following a family tradition

When you're born and raised in a small town like Lanesville, there's not much chance you'll grow up knowing much about the Navy.

That is, unless you know someone who served as a sailor.

Troy Gordon, the son of Gerald Gordon of Ruidoso, grew up hearing stories about the Navy. His father and stepfather were both in the Navy. So it's no wonder that he now serves in the Navy as an electronics technician third class aboard the guided-missile cruiser USS Josephus Daniels (CG 27).

Gordon is responsible for maintaining and operating the satellite communication (UHF) equipment aboard the Daniels.

"The Navy gave me the schools to learn what I needed," says Gordon. "I know equipment pretty well. When something breaks, it doesn't take long for me to get it back up and running."

"When I tell people I work with satellite communications, they seem to think it's really complicated," reveals Gordon.

"But it's really quite simple actually. Talking by UHF is similar to talking on a CB radio, except you use satellites to achieve a greater distance."

"I met my wife, Kelli, just before I came in the Navy," says the 22-year-old Gordon. "She really didn't want me to go into the Navy and leave her right away, but I had to live up to my commitment."

Separation is a part of being in the Navy. When a ship leaves for a deployment, the family stays behind.

Gordon just recently returned from UNITAS 90, a 5-month deployment to South America. During the deployment, he had the opportunity to see some of the finest liberty ports in South America, such as Manta, Ecuador; Valparaiso, Chile; Montevideo, Uruguay; and Rio De Janeiro.

Gordon also transited the Panama Canal, the Straits of Magellan, and crossed the equator in both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans.

"I like seeing all the different countries," says Gordon. "I saw a lot of different cultures in South America."

Gordon also says that he liked this cruise in particular because it didn't conflict with his Christmas plans.

"It was nice getting home before Christmas," says Gordon. "I think that being home for the holidays sort of makes up for some of the time I was away before."

Gordon says it's too early to try and make a call about whether he'll stay in or get out of the Navy when his enlistment ends in November of 1992.

"I'll have to wait and see," says Gordon. "My wife and I will definitely make that decision together. But no matter what our decision is, I'll always be thankful for the experiences I've had in the Navy."

The Silver Lining

Chinook wind blows in with a song

The Chinook Wind

After breaking the record for cold, at four below, here in the Vale for December, back of Christmas Eve, the weather Spirits decided to give us a little change. The north wind stopped dead in its tracks, and here came the west wind due on the 27, singing down the valley its loudest song, carrying a full load of warm rain. The temperature rose up to 60 and you could see the snow melting before your eyes. The mountain meadow south of the house, which had been a solid snow pack, became a field of melting snow patches surrounded by miniature lakes, swamps and tiny rivers.

Hiding under the piñon and cedar trees, and clinging to the shady glens canyons, the snow hung on for dear life while the driving wind increased to a gale, driving the rain in sheets before it. The rain eased off on the 29, and the wind increased — roaring and calling its fair weather song. By evening there was not a speck of snow to be seen from hill top to hill top all up and down the valley.

In the early morning of today, December 30, a cold blast came in from the north where they are in the deep of winter — however the bright sun shining in a clean washed blue sky does not give the cold much chance to dominate the mountain world, and it is 54 in the shade.

The snow did a world of good, melting into the ground; the mountain has held on to its snow, shining in its silver white glory.

Now, a little after 2 p.m. the wind has changed is blowing straight out of the south. It is like a day in Indian summer.

A band of piñon jays flew in just then, singing and calling out their happiness in this sunny interlude in the early winter.

There is a robin now, joining the piñon jays at the feeding table. The robin is a messenger of more snow on the way.

Visit With Helga

"The Nordic Queen"

In mid morning of December 29, a voice came of the phone saying "Hello, Governor." It turned out to be Pete Nolopp, brother of Helga Haake, "The Nordic Queen."

He and his wife, Darlene, had come from San Bernardino, California, by way of Albuquerque, through some of the record-breaking zero weather.

Up at the Haake home by the riverside, were Helga's daughter Nancy Crownover and her husband, Hugh, up from south Texas, with their children Mattie and Marvin.

Pete and Darlene came by Albuquerque to visit Darlene's Mother, Mrs. Dora McMillian Garcia, and hope to go by again on their way back to California. They left their children Michelle and Pete Jr. in California where

Happy Birthday To Pete Nolopp

Pete was born January 4, 1939, in Leipzig, Germany, to Peter and Ellie Nolopp. He came to the United States in 1958, and in 1961 he worked for Floyd D. Haake construction company which rebuilt the highway through Ruidoso and also the old Ruidoso Airport runway.

Pete now works for a structural steel company in San Bernardino. It was a very happy reunion at the Haake home, and we wish Pete many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

Ruben And Adelina Sandoval Pay A Visit

In mid afternoon, Ruben and Adelina Sandoval, came over during the sunny weather to pay a visit to the Storm home. Along with them were five little dogs, two of which belong to their daughters. I greatly appreciated the visit from their fine friends and their good little pets.

Church Service At Saint Anne's Chapel

For the services last Sunday, at Saint Anne's Chapel, the Reverend Jan Davey preached a sermon on the Gospel according to Saint John: "In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God and the word was God. In him was life and the life was the light of Men."

And from the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Galatians: "...God has sent the spirit of his Son into our hearts."

Lay reader Nellie Ruth Jones in the Prayer of the People, gave thanks for the birthdays of Patricia Covington, Virginia Williams, Kate Skellett, Cathy Jones, Marc DelHotal, Jenny DelHotal Cox, Gene Hayden, Bob Whiteley and Tiffany Collins.

Also for the anniversaries of Neale and Tiffany Collins and Robert and Phyllis Boverie.

It has been a blessed year for Saint Anne's, Saint Matthias, Carrizozo, Saint John, Lincoln; and Church of the Holy Mount, Ruidoso.

Dave and Della Bonnell Are Now Grandparents

This is being sent to you on New Year's Eve, one hour after mid day. This morning I heard some good news from Glencoe Postmaster Della Bonnell. On Christmas Day Dave and Della went up to visit their son, Paul; and were present at the birth of their first grandchild, little April Janine Bonnell, born on Christmas day to Paul and Marie Bonnell. Della said the little Christmas angel was a very precious Christmas present.

We congratulate Dave and Della on this blessing from Our Lord, on Christmas Day. And we wish little April Janine many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

New Year's Eve Full Moon

On the evening of the 30, the western sky was all gold and rose and purple all across the valley from hill to hill. These colors lifted up the sky forming the glowing light which reflected down and colored the mountain meadow with sunset colors.

Then you glanced over to the east and here was the round silver moon, already quite a ways up into the sky over the mountain, shining in the Gloaming. Twilight faded into dusk an dearly darkness; and the silver of the moon turned to gold, sending a mellow golden chart of moonlight all down over the shadowed forms of the piñons and cedars.

New Year's Eve Mountain Sunrise

This morning, New Year's Eve, the sun just down behind Sunrise Mountain, gave signals that it was on its way up, by turning the piñon trees into trees of shining silvery light. The tip of the sun now reached the mountain top and the piñons turned to trees of golden fire, shimmering, pulsating, glowing more fiery still.

Topping the piñons the sun shone shown into the vale with rainbow shafts, turning the frosty meadow into a field of rainbow colors.

All under the sun's pathway down the mountainside was touched with purple and rose. These colors spread to the mountain sides all to the south and west.

The mountain world stood glorious and sacred in a New Year's Eve greeting from the heavens. And your heart rejoiced with Mother Earth, at this blessing from the sky — this promise of wonderful New Year.

I wish you the happiest year of your life. And let us all be thankful to God for our blessings.

It's about time to get a new mirror

I'm with Garfield.
"Time to take a look in the old mirror and do some assessing," said the cantankerous orange cat in a cartoon published last week. "Yup ... time to make some changes," continued Garfield.
Uh oh. Old Garfield reminded me that it's time, once again, to reassess, make New Year's resolutions and change my ways. Every year about this time I, too, take a look in the old mirror and resolve, once again, to go on a diet right after the first of the year.
But, in the last frame, Garfield said it all: "Time to get a new mirror."
Great idea! I took a look and I'm in the market for a new mirror, too. That would surely be easier than changing my eating habits.
Garfield's philosophy has a lot to say about changing how we see things. If you don't like the way it looks, change the way you look at it...
That kind of philosophy reminds me of Scarlet O'Hara's view of dealing with life. Garfield and I, like Scarlet, worry about things tomorrow.
And, speaking of tomorrow. This year, Bud and I aren't starting our diet right after New Year's. We've got some very good reasons to put it off.

First, we set the day after Christmas as D-Day. But, that is our anniversary, after all, and we were driving back from Austin, so, of course, we had to stop in Tatum for an anniversary celebration complete with hamburgers and greasy French fries.
Have you ever tasted the homemade pies at the Steak House in Tatum? Who could resist?
So, how about setting D-Day for the day Chuck heads back to school in Las Cruces? After all, wouldn't it be rude to start on a diet while our slender son is here for the holidays?
Besides that, D-Day includes aerobic exercises in front of the television with Richard Simmons. I really don't like to hear Chuck's comments when my exercise routine makes the house shake.

And so, D-Day can certainly wait until January 8.
But, on January 12, I'm going to a week-long seminar in Reston, Virginia. I've never been to Reston, but I've heard the food is just wonderful. (Don't ask me where I heard it, but I'm pretty sure I did.)
I'll be too busy to spend an hour a day with Richard Simmons, and I'll be dining out every night.
"So, I guess we re-evaluate our lifestyles beginning on January 18, when you get back from Virginia," said Bud, adding, after a short pause, "but we'll need to have a nice dinner after I pick you up at the airport in Albuquerque..."
But Bud's birthday is January 20, and it surely wouldn't be fair to him to start a diet before he has a big birthday dinner and birthday cake.
That's it. Right after Bud's birthday, we'll start exercising every day, eat right and cut out desserts.
Of course, I think George Washington's birthday is some time in February, and I ALWAYS have to bake a cherry pie in his honor.
After all, he was our first president.
And, there's always that new mirror ... and, of course, tomorrow.

Letters

DEAR EDITOR:
As SantaCops coordinator, I am writing today to tell all contributors and participants of the SantaCops Project the results of the miracle of Christmas that they all had a part in making possible.
Before SantaCops deliveries "officially" began, several families in need were given baskets of food. We lost count as seemingly hundreds of coats were given away and a few other families in need were given butane to heat their homes when the last snow and bitter cold hit the Village.
SantaCops did make Christmas deliveries to 236 families in the communities of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan, Carrizozo, Corona and the Hondo Valley. In addition to this, 15 residents of the Ruidoso Care Center were provided with Christmas gifts from SantaCops.
Over the next coming weeks, certificates of appreciation will be mailed out to all of the SantaCops helpers and, as time permits, I hope to be able to speak to service clubs and major contributors concerning the extraordinary support shown to this project. If I begin listing contributors in this letter, I will surely leave someone out and I certainly would not want to do that.

All contributors who gave to SantaCops did so with a sincere desire to help someone less fortunate, so I do not believe publicity is an issue to be dealt with at this time.
As anyone who worked closely with this project will tell you, there is no better feeling than knowing that you made the season a little brighter for someone.
After functioning as the SantaCops Coordinator for three years, it is gratifying to me to see the Spirit of Christmas come full-circle.
This year, several families that SantaCops helped in the past came forward to help put this year's project together. Children who had been given coats in the past came to the workshop wanting to donate those coats back to us to help some other child. Three families that were on our SantaCops list this year to receive assistance were at the workshop daily helping to put Christmas packages together for other families.
Kids from grade school age to high school age gave their personal allowance money to SantaCops to help others. Elderly people living on a fixed income scrimped and saved enough to make a donation to help someone else.

Several individuals who did not have money to contribute gave freely of their time and talent to help make this year's project a success.
I have read and heard of other communities that were having a hard time making their usual Christmas projects work because of tough economic times, but that simply is not the case in the Ruidoso-Lincoln County area.
I get very choked-up and emotional when I think of all the concern Ruidoso shows to members of its community and the surrounding areas of Lincoln County. Each and every one of you should feel the warmth of satisfaction from a "job well done."
In closing, I would like to thank everyone who in any way had a part in making SantaCops a tremendous success. Special thanks and appreciation go to Bill Newman for introducing me to the joy of SantaCops. Three years ago, it was at his "chiefly" suggestion that I coordinate SantaCops ... today it is the greatest blessing of my life.
Sincerely,
Cynthia L. (Lou) Wardwell,
Corporal
Ruidoso Police Department
SantaCops Coordinator.

The word on Lincoln attractions is getting around

EDITOR'S NOTE: The word is out on Lincoln, and in particular on Sally Black's new bed and breakfast operation. The following story, written by freelance writer Bob Thomas, was printed December 9, in The Arizona Republic. It is reprinted here with permission of the author.

by BOB THOMAS
Special to The Arizona Republic

To say that Sally Black's bed-and-breakfast inn is unusual in this old Western town is like saying that Billy the Kid was pretty quick on the trigger.

Black, a West Texas product like so many of Lincoln's storied cowboys and gunfighters, has a B&B so different from other inns that it is in a class of its own.

And compared with the century-old adobe buildings that line Lincoln's only street, Black's home is light-years different.

Wintery Jungle
Two weeks ago, on a cold night that iced over ponds and frosted the sun-dried grass beside the Rio Bonito, I stepped through Black's front door and stopped dead in my tracks.

It was as if I had stepped into a summer garden, a green jungle of plants, flowers and trees.

Broadleaf ivy snaked across the rafters and hung from the walls. Big figs trees scraped the two-story-high skylight. Banana trees, one with a nearly-ripe stalk of bananas, were mixed in with bougainvillea, geraniums and palm trees.

Various flowering plants were everywhere — hanging pots, in planters, in bunches at the end of the hall, in every room and up in the loft, overlooking the open kitchen, dining room and the big living room with its river-stone fireplace.

"They call me the plant lady," said Black, who writes a column about plants in the local newspaper (The Ruidoso News).

"When I moved here six years ago from El Paso, I wanted to build a house specifically for my plants. I grew up on a Texas farm and I've always had plants around me."

Huge Skylight Featured
Atop her 4,000-square-foot house, an 8- by 60-foot skylight runs the length of the roof's apex. It is so high up that Black has to hire tree trimmers to climb up and keep tree branches under control.

"The leaves rub up against the cold surface of the skylight, die and fall off," she said. "If I keep the trees trimmed back, there's very little leaf fall. And being inside, I rarely see any of the insects you would if they were outside."

"What I like about the house is the contrast. You have freezing weather outside and when you walk in the door, you see a jungle. I can pick a banana right off the tree, fat and sweet bananas, as sweet as sugar."

"I talk to my plants," she admitted. "I tell them, 'If you die on me, I won't replace you.' But I rarely have a plant die ... I don't allow smoking in the house, because smoking hurts plants just like it hurts humans."

The house is filled with expensive-looking furniture and knickknacks, built-in TVs and bookcases, family photos and an extensive selection of paintings and other artwork.

Loft Serves Two Purposes
The loft, reached by a circular staircase, is Black's office and "camp-out" sleeping quarters for her grandchildren when they visit.

Black's personality and home reflect traditional Texas hospitality. She constantly tells her guests to relax, bringing them coffee, hot chocolate, snacks or crisp, home-grown apples.

After a disastrous second marriage, Black decided to turn her home into a B&B — not only to help pay the bills, but for the company.

There are two bedrooms for B&B guests, each with its own bathroom. Mine had a big brass bed piled high with a billowy comforter.

In the morning, Black prepared for me her specialty — thick Belgian waffles with a choice of home-grown toppings: apple, cherry, raspberry, apricot or peach.

Big Breakfast
It was a big breakfast, but Black, worried it was not enough "for a long day," kept pushing little tidbits on me and wanting to cook another serving.

When I couldn't drink any more coffee, she dug up a little plastic thermos bottle and poured the rest of the coffee pot's contents into it.

"It only cost me a dollar, and I want you to have some hot coffee while you're driving," she said, refusing my demurrals.

I teased her, asking whether she always treated her guests that way. "Yes," she said. "I like to treat folks that come to my home as I would very good friends. That's the way I was brought up and that's how I think most people like to be treated."

Before I left, Black insisted on showing me the rest of her 2.2-acre spread that lies below the town and highway, bordering the creek called Rio Bonito.

Proud of "Babies"
And she wanted to show off her

"babies."
Besides a female Dalmatian she keeps inside "because she has short hair and is recovering from brain surgery," Black has a big, furry Alaskan malamute, a horde of white cats that live in the furnace room, a peacock, chickens, a cock and hen pheasant, a covey of bob-white quail and white pigeons with feathery "boots" on each leg.

The birds have their own flyway, fenced over to keep out the cats. There's also a flock of wild mallard ducks that lives on the creek. She calls them by clapping her hands and calling out, "Here baby ducks."

And lastly, there are her pet trout — two 20-inch rainbows she believes are a mated pair and responsible for producing the annual hatch of baby trout in the creek.

"I tell my guests they can fish for trout, but if they hook my big fish, they must turn them loose because they are the mother and father to the babies."

Sally Black, who has a way with plants, animals and people, has a word with Miss Lily, artist Linda Miller's angora goat.

Lincoln plans "Meet the Artists"

Lincoln County artists are getting another opportunity to display their works in coming months at the Lincoln "Meet the Local Artists" series.

Beginning in February and running for three consecutive months, Lincoln will host a "Meet the Local Artists" series. Resident Gary Morton will lead off with a display of some of his contemporary cowboy art at the Dr. Woods' Annex in Lincoln, from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. February 2.

Each artist will appear on the first Saturday of the succeeding months. Other participating artists include watercolorists Walter Henn and Russell Waterhouse.

Corresponding exhibits during February, March and April will feature quilts (at the Old Community Church), washboards (at the Casa de Patron), and a collection yet to be announced. A catered lunch will be available for the public during the "Meet the Artist" series.

The town's two principal museums are open daily from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. The Old Courthouse is open seven days a week.

The schedule for the Historical Center is trickier; open six days per week, and closed on Mondays during the off-season. However, the Historical Center slide show is well worth seeing; it will make some sense out of the confusing Lincoln County War!

Both museums contain artifacts and displays from the days of the Old Wild West, not a little of it related to one William H. Bonney, aka Billy the Kid.

Though some of Lincoln's summer attractions are not regularly open during the off-season, special arrangements may be made for groups; call 653-4372 for the Tunstall Store and 653-4025 for the Dr. Woods' House. (Both major museums will be closed New Year's Day.)

For additional information, please contact: Lincoln County Heritage Trust, P.O. Box 93, Lincoln, NM 88338. Or call (505) 653-4025.

Make your own soap that floats

DEAR SALLY:
Last summer, or maybe it was the summer before last, you mentioned your grandmother use to make her own soap and took great pride when her soap would float. Do you know what she did to make her soap float, you know like the modern day Ivory? Also what made some off the old fashioned soap whiter than the usual yellow color.

Thank you so much,
Gretchen M.

The Plant Specialist

DEAR GRETCHEN:
I can still remember soap-making days at my grandmother's. On a nice warm day in early spring, a fire was built under the old cast iron pot which hung on a metal rack in the back yard. Lots of wood was stacked near the pot to keep the fire going as this would be an all-day job. I remember the soap mixture had to be stirred, in shifts, almost constantly, keeping the sides off the pot scraped down and not allowed to collect on the bottom and stick. The stirring paddle was special, having a regular handle but the end was thin and about 4" wide, rather like a boat oar. This was for all the scraping that had to be done.

To make the soap, wood ashes were saved during the winter. The wood ashes were put into a barrel, water was poured through the ashes and allowed to trickle out through a hole near the bottom. This brown liquid, or "Lye," was then boiled in the large pot with fats and grease saved from the year's cooking and butchering. The mixture was cooked slowly until it thickened to form a soft, jellylike, yellow soap.

The mixture was poured into wood frames and when cold it was cut into bars and wrapped in wax paper and stored in a cool, dry place to be used all year.

I do recall my grandmother said the more the mixture was stirred the more air got into the soap and that is what made it float.

Also when she wanted a nice white color she would buy store bought white "Lye" for the mixture rather than using the wood ash liquid.

You can make your own scented semi-liquid

To make a hard soap, grate a bar of unscented, pure soap. Add about 1/2 cup of water in which you have steeped to tablespoons of your favorite herbs and strained. Mix well until it takes on the texture of molasses. Place into molds or roll it into a ball with your wet fingers. Allow to dry for about a week. If you make into balls, turn them often to keep them evenly round.

To make the soap smoother, you can heat the mixture in a double boiler over water.

Or, you can come over to Lincoln and buy this pretty and delightful herb-scented soap. Ask anyone here, they can point you to the way where the soap is made. You will enjoy using it in your home or for gifts.

Send questions to Sally Black, c/o The Ruidoso News, P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, N.M. 88345.
