Councilors will pick architect

The search for a new architect to design the municipal civic events center continues, with plans to make a final selection at 9 a.m. Friday, September 7, at village hall. Ruidoso village manager Charles Norwood said that members of the Ruidoso Village Council completed the rating process and narrowed the field from the 11 architectural firms that made proposals down the three finalists. The three finalists are being interviewed by a committee consisting of Norwood, State Representative Ben Hall, Mayor Victor Alonso and councilors Al Junge and J.D. James. Those finalists are Nolan and Associates of Alamogordo; Stanley J. French and David Smith of Ruidoso; and Leadshill, Herkenhoff of Albuquerque. "The three here are very outstanding," said Norwood. The village is striving to keep to its plan of opening the civic events center next summer, in spite of a recent change in design firms. Mayor Alonso also has asked the Lodgers Tax Advisory Board to research all about civic events centers, comparing sizes and operational procedures in centers in other places. That committee, led by Ed Hyman, made a preliminary report to the council last week. Jim Colbert, whose company is designing and developing the Sierra Blanca Golf Club on the old airport land where the civic events center will be built, said last week that the course will open in November. Colbert, who played through the

Rains rushed through culverts and drainage ditches, under bridges and across roadways on the way to the Rio Ruidoso during heavy rainfalls that soaked the Ruidoso area all day Wednesday. Rainfall was measured at close to two and a half inches for the day, close to the area record.

Rains douse area

It was a wet Wednesday in the Ruidoso area, with rainfall approaching record levels. According to Ruidoso meteorologist Bill Hostetter, 2.49 inches of rainfall was recorded in Ruidoso and 2.31 inches in Ruidoso Downs. A weather-watcher in Alpine Village recorded 2.16 inches and in upper Cedar Creek, 1.80 inches were totaled. The Forest Service work office in Capitan reported 0.59 inches for Wednesday, but 1.21 inches were recorded at the Guck residence in Nogal. A flood watch was in effect yesterday. ## Don't throw that away! Recycle! Packaging: the source of most trash

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News
Part One in a series

Nita Wheeler hasn't dumped garbage in three months. "I don't have any," explains the Angus homemaker with a smile. "Glass, plastic, aluminum and tin cans go to Republican women for recycling, newspapers go to the Humane Society, and food waste goes into disposal. There isn't much left."

Wheeler doesn't know it, but she's on the cutting edge of environmental awareness in Lincoln County. With the recent closing of the county's Class I (household waste) landfill and the proposed September 7 removal of the county's dumpsters, residents outside municipalities are re-examining their trash disposal habits.

Even some in municipalities are wondering how long indiscriminate trash-throwing can continue.

Having one's garbage hauled to the next county is only a band-aid solution to the fact that everywhere Americans are burying themselves in their own trash. Last year's "Garbage Barge" plied the coasts looking for a place to unload; it was a harbinger.

A better long-term solution might be for everyone to reduce that which goes into the family-or business-garbage can. This three-part series will offer practical, easy solutions a person can use right now to reduce the amount of solid waste hauled to the dumpster. It's easy; just ask Nita Wheeler.

Where Does Garbage Come From?

Packaging comprises the bulk of household or business garbage. Peek into downtown dumpsters and you'll see huge boxes. Look in your family's wastebasket and find sacks, cans, bottles, jars and boxes. Everything from cereal to motor oil, from toys to tools, from building materials to furniture, comes in a plastic, glass, cardboard, aluminum or "tin" can, box, jar or sack.

All these useful wrappings become instant trash as soon as the package is opened or the product used up. Eliminate packaging from trash and therefore eliminate most of the garbage that goes into dumpsters, public or private.

How? Recycle First. Locally, a Ruidoso village committee has been formed to study the possibility of recycling, says Village Manager Charles Norwood. "In addition the proposed Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority could be a vehicle for recycling.

"Until these proposals become reality, however, those who want to recycle have options out-of-town. Glass bottles and jars, some plastics, aluminum and "tin" cans, cardboard and newspaper, as well as scrap metals such as aluminum, iron, steel, brass and copper — even car batteries and radiators — can be turned in for recycling in communities only an hour or so away. Alamogordo supports one recycling center; Roswell, three.

In addition, a mobile buyer for Roswell's Reynolds Aluminum comes to the area four days a week from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Tuesday and Wednesday his pickup truck and trailer are in Capitan near the park. On Friday and Saturday, look for him in Ruidoso Downs on U.S. Highway 70 across from Village Hall. He currently pays 30 cents a pound for aluminum cans and 25-50 cents for scrap metals, depending on type. He takes nothing else.

To recycle glass, tin cans, plastic, newspaper, cardboard, car batteries or radiators requires a trip to either Roswell or Alamogordo. Since many area residents travel to or pass through these towns on business or pleasure, stopping at the recycling center on the way is easy.

A Simple System

Getting your recyclables organized is easy, too, and one doesn't handle or store smelly garbage. Veteran recyclers commend a system that's as simple as the old throw-away habit.

P&Z OKs fence for golf course

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor
Flags broken or missing, stolen cups, divots in greens, this type of vandalism on the golf course being developed on the old airport site resulted in a request for a fence, Tuesday.

Representing the golf course, Sierra Blanca Golf Club, Dale Hix requested permission from the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission to install a five-foot chain link fence around the three-mile plus perimeter of the course.

Hix told commission members that vandalism over the Labor Day weekend and safety considerations for joggers promoted the request.

After much debate on the merits of galvanized steel as opposed to coated steel, the P&Z chairman, Robert Donaldson broke a tie vote to allow a "colored" coated chain link fence.

David Harding moved that the golf course developers be allowed to erect a coated fence no higher than five feet "to be landscaped in prominent areas.

The motion included a provision that the golf course developers maintain space between a perimeter jogging trail and the fence which could amount to 50 feet in places.

Voting to allow the fencing were Harding, Eddie Nichols and Doug Siddens. Opposing the move were Scott Ingram, Jeff Maul and Tim Hoyt.

Aesthetics figured strongly in the opposition.

Harding's motion also included a proviso that if the coated fencing doesn't meet with the approval of the developers, the developers should negotiate with the village council.

Donaldson pointed out that if the developers aren't allowed to install a fence, the village may have to put up 2,000 feet of fencing in certain areas seven to eight feet high.

That would protect joggers from injury from flying golf balls and keep school children and others off the course.

It also was pointed out that the village probably may have to fund extending the height of the authorized five-foot fence to seven or eight feet in certain areas.

Hix said "bare" shiny chainlink fencing may stand out like a sore thumb for a week, then it begins to blend in to the background to where it isn't noticed.

He said coated wire begins to deteriorate after five to ten years while naked chain link fencing has a life of 18 to 22 years.

Ultimate cost and maintenance cost are factors, he said.

Donaldson said he would like to see some color, green, on the fence-ing "to blend in." Because of covenant restrictions and protests, veterinarian C. Warren Franklin was denied his request to establish a veterinary clinic at 1216 Mechem on Lot 3, Second Addition to Airport West.

Eighty-four percent of property owners within 200 feet protested the establishment of the clinic.

In a letter to the planning commission, Bill McCarty, vice president of White Mountain Development Co. Inc., cited restrictive covenants.

"This company, as developer of Second Addition to Airport West, hereby protests the conditional use ... for purposes of a veterinary hospital."

McCarty quoted a paragraph in the covenant:

"No fowl or animals other than household pets shall be kept or maintained in said commercial area. All dogs kept or maintained in the commercial area shall be kept in a suitable enclosed yard or on leash and not more than two adult dogs may be kept on any one lot." He said in the letter that the proposed use is in direct contradiction to the provision.

Donaldson pointed out that if there were no other objections, "runs" for animals would have to be totally enclosed.

Donaldson told Franklin that "the ordinance does not allow us to grant a variance."

In other business, Cleatus Richards, village planning administrator, said work has been started on a Hull Road traffic study.

John Shaw, engineer, told commissioners the problem with a portion of Hull Road is mainly "economic."

Danger to drivers exist because of a "blind hill" near the intersection of Hull and Cree Meadows Drive.

Moving Cree Meadows south 100 to 150 feet would help solve the problem, Shaw said.

"I can't see closing Old Lincoln Road," Shaw said. He said stop signs are not the answer. On icy days, traction would be lacking to get moving again, he indicated.

"Raising a dip" is another suggested approach. Weed control was mentioned.

Donaldson said Hull, Paradise Canyon and Gavilan Canyon will become detour roads when construction starts to four-lane Mechem Drive. The state, Richards said, sometimes will assist in developing alternate routes when major highways are blocked or traffic restricted because of construction.

Richards said construction could start by September of 1991 on Mechem.

Hubbard art is headed for USSR

The Hubbard Museum just completed a great season, according to executive director John V. Hall. He said people from all over the world visited the art collection at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Hall said the collection of art, from the Hubbard Art Award, will now head for Russia and Germany for an international tour before the art is disbursed to the buyers.

He said the collection was a "once-in-a-lifetime" event, since this art will never be exhibited together again. Hall is on his way to Russia and Germany, and is working on another international tour for the 1991 Art Award winners.

Hubbard Museum members will get together at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, September 8, for the final "Members Only" presentation for this season.

Hall said Alvin G. Davis, general manager of the Ranching Heritage Association of Lubbock, Texas, will be the guest speaker for this "Members Only" event. Davis has led the non-profit support group for the Ranching Heritage Center at Texas Tech University for the past 10 years.

A cowboy poet, Davis uses the pen name of Tex West. His book of cowboy poetry was published by Hardin Simmons University Press in Abilene, Texas. He has presented his cowboy poetry monologues in seven states.

Davis is also a western sculptor, writer, rodeo announcer and administrator.

The Post, Texas, native raised and showed appaloosa, paint and quarter horses for many years, and during those years his horses won regional, state and national championships. His articles on rodeos, horses and other western subjects have appeared in numerous publications.

"A Day in the Life of a Cowboy," his latest book, is going to press for release next month. It was written for young adults.

Davis graduated from Texas Tech University and also attended Texas A&M University.

"Carlsbat" is high on New Mexico

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor
What is the one ingredient which ensures success for a person in sales?

Enthusiasm! That's the key word. Add versatility to that and you have an unbeatable combination.

And perhaps it's a willingness to become a "bat" for short periods of time to sell the attributes of one of New Mexico's attractions. Read on!

Nancy Radziewicz of Ruidoso and her company, New Mexico Connection, is constantly selling New Mexico nationally at trade shows. New Mexico Connection, a private company, has many clients, most of them Chambers of Commerce and tourism organizations across New Mexico.

Radziewicz takes her thousand pounds of literature from her many clients to 10 or 12 major trade shows mostly in the west each year. She sets up a booth and, perhaps for 10 days, hawks the wares of her clients through literature and by personal contact. She is a veritable cornucopia of information about New Mexico.

Her clients include such entities as the Civic and Activities Center, city of Truth or Consequences; Cibola Convention and Visitors Bureau; White's City at Carlsbad Caverns National Park; Deming Economic Development Corporation; most Chambers of Commerce and 35 businesses in Ruidoso.

Strangely enough, Ruidoso's Chamber of Commerce is not included in her current list of clients although in years past she has represented the Chamber.

She is constantly selling Ruidoso through other clients, regardless.

New Mexico's own "Carlsbat" supplements the work of the New Mexico Department of Development and Tourism.

Letters from clients confirm that her enthusiasm and professionalism make her a super sales person.

She and Barbara Downs frequently appear as Woodsy Owl and Smokey the Bear at functions. Nancy has worn a bat costume to promote the Carlsbad Caverns and White's City at a number of trade shows.

But, did she appear at Bloomingdale's in her bat costume as requested by that department store?

Jack White Jr., president of Cavern Inn Motel and White's City promoter, contacted Radziewicz and asked her if she would take her bat costume to Bloomingdale's in New York City and represent White's City and the Carlsbad Caverns.

"He said he's paying all my expenses," Radziewicz said. She said it took some fraction of a second for her to say "yes."

Bloomingdale's had a month-long New Mexico promotion, mostly featuring food products and other products unique to New Mexico. This was in June and the early part of July.

The New Mexico Connection sparkplug hurried to Bloomingdale's and did her job, alas, without wearing the "Carlsbat" costume.

Bloomingdale people thought it was a little too "circus-like," Radziewicz said.

But Bloomingdale's was sorry.

After the initial big splash when the New Mexico promotion opened with the Flying J Wranglers, the Indians, cowboys, etc., up front, customers began to dwindle a little at Bloomingdale's. Apparently traffic in the department store during the opening days of New Mexico month was terrific.

The "Carlsbat" consequently received an urgent call from Bloomingdale's. Would she please come back and keep the full Southwestern flavor going.

Bloomingdale's had hired people to be "Indians" and "cowboys" after the real ones had departed. They wanted to keep the New Mexico promotion flying high. And they needed Nancy.

Back in April he wrote a column commenting on a memo to New Mexico businesses from the New Mexico Tourism and Travel Division.

The memo said that businesses represented at Bloomingdale's would do well to dress "New Mexican."

"... for example ... a representative from Carlsbad could wear a bat costume."

Arnholz took off on that and with tongue in cheek wrote such comments as this:

"And if we find one and send a guy to New York dressed as a bat, will he have to wear a rabies tag?"

Soon after that column appeared, Radziewicz phoned Arnholz. She told him she was the "bat lady."

Arnholz wrote: "When 75 New Mexico businesses visit Bloomingdale's in New York City from June 12 to July 8, she'll be there. But don't anybody worry? She's a pro. Were not sending an amateur bat. This woman's been around the cave ... the batsuit has some miles on it. It's seen Houston, Anaheim, San Antonio, Dallas, Phoenix, Los Angeles, Tucson and San Diego."

Radziewicz loves her work, obviously.

Her enthusiasm becomes evident in letters she has received from clients:

"... Your enthusiasm and knowledge certainly show in the productivity of your company" and "your energy and enthusiasm are catching and our tape sales and packet inquiries have gone up as a result" and from Ruidoso Downs Race Track, "Your enthusiasm for the Land of Enchantment is a valuable asset to the state of New Mexico" and from Ski Apache Resort "Just a note to let your firm know how much we appreciate the terrific job you have done ... over the last two contract years ... This not only helps Ski Apache but also the businesses in the town of Ruidoso."

There are many more. Sharon Maloof, special events coordinator for the New Mexico Tourism and Travel Division, wrote Jack White;

"... we would like for you to know how much we appreciated Nancy Radziewicz for her hard work she put into the Bloomingdale's promotion by promoting Carlsbad and the State of New Mexico in the tourism booth ... I could not have done the work without her ... we distributed 67,000 brochures at the New Mexico Tourism Booth ... You are so lucky to have her work for Carlsbad."

Enthusiasm and versatility — they are the key.

But then, Radziewicz has a good product to sell.

She'll be selling New Mexico in Anaheim at a Sports, Vacation and RV Show, at a Sports, Boat, RV and Travel Show in San Antonio, at a travel show in Dallas/Fort Worth, the same in St. Louis, another in Phoenix and more in Los Angeles, Tucson, San Diego and Minneapolis this season.

In September she goes to Monterrey, Mexico. Going with her will be Kathleen Michelena, Convention and Visitors Bureau, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. They will share a booth.

With her bat wings at rest, "Carlsbat" Nancy Radziewicz of Ruidoso shows what it means to be an envoy for Carlsbad Caverns and White's City.

And, no doubt, Nancy will have her bat suit along. Among things she will be promoting will be the Albuquerque Balloon Festival. She may be wearing a Mescalero Apache ceremonial shawl. She'll have included in her 1,000 pounds of literature, pamphlets on the Cumbres Toltec narrow gauge railroad out of Chama. At the bottom of her suitcase will be four large packets of enthusiasm. That's her major stock in trade.

NANCY RADZIEWICZ

Recycle

First, tape a reminder list of what's taken at each center — or this article — in a handy place, such as over your garbage can. Next to it place several bags or boxes, one for each commodity. (Plastic or paper shopping bags do nicely.) Rinse or wash, then pitch glass bottles and jars in one, aluminum cans in another, "tin" cans (which are really steel) in another, plastics in the other.

Stack newspapers and flattened cardboard next to them. This system works for offices and restaurants as well as homes. Since everything is rinsed, nothing smells while awaiting the trip to the recycling center.

Who Takes What For How Much

Choose from four recycling centers, but be aware that each buys different commodities at different prices. And prices fluctuate according to market demands. If unsure who's paying how much, call first.

Basin Pipe & Metal (BPM) on Highway 54 north of Alamogordo buys more commodities than anyone in the area. In addition to the ubiquitous aluminum cans (35 cents a pound, crushed or whole), BPM buys tin cans, some plastics, and certain glass at varying prices.

Nita Wheeler sends her recyclables here via Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County's recycling program (more about that in a future installment). BPM also buys several scrap metals, car batteries and radiators. They do not accept cardboard or paper of any kind.

Green, brown and clear glass bottles or jars that were used for food or beverage storage—but not glass such as old windshields or pottery—fetch 1/4 cent a pound. The glass must be rinsed or washed, labels and tops off, and separated by color.

BPM buys tin cans (washed or rinsed, labels off) and certain plastics at 1 cent a pound. To determine if a plastic container is acceptable, turn it over and look on the bottom for the raised recycle symbol—a triangle made of three curved arrows—and a "1" or "2" in the center of it. These are generally milk jugs, large soft drink bottles, detergent and household cleaning product containers.

If the recycle symbol is not there, or if there is another number in the center, BPM also does not buy it.

BPM also buys scrap metal such as old plumbing fixtures, screen doors, or lawn chairs at varying prices, depending on the metal itself and its condition. Scrap metals bring a better price if clean and free of non-metal debris. Prices range from 1 1/2 cents per pound for iron and steel to 60 cents for copper, brass or aluminum, depending on which metal it is and its condition.

Car batteries and radiators fetch 25-75 cents each. BPM is open 8-5:30 Monday through Saturday, telephone 437-6272.

Roswell offers two centers, Whitcamp Salvage and Reynolds Aluminum.

Whitcamp Salvage operates in two locations, one on South Atkinson and the other on the Dexter highway. Both buy aluminum cans for 35 cents a pound, scrap copper, brass and aluminum from 30 cents to 70 cents a pound depending on the metal and its condition (they do not buy iron or steel) and car batteries for $1 each.

Whitcamp accepts glass, newspaper only (no glossy or telephone books) and corrugated cardboard (no cereal boxes and the like) only as a donation. They do not accept plastics or tin cans.

Whitcamp Salvage is open Monday through Friday from 8-12 p.m. and 1-5 p.m. Only the South Atkinson location opens Saturday from 9-3:30, telephone 622-6716.

Reynolds Aluminum at 1100 E. McGaffey buys aluminum cans at 34-40 cents a pound depending on the weight. Scrap aluminum, brass and copper pay between 25 and 75 cents depending on the kind of metal it is and what quantities are brought. They accept flattened corrugated cardboard and separated glass only on a donation basis. They do not accept newspaper, tin cans, or plastics. Bill Karr, manager of Reynolds Aluminum in Roswell, reports that a feasibility study is being done to accept plastics in the future.

"Our chief responsibility is recycling our own products," he says. "Last year we recycled more aluminum than we manufactured," a fact of which he was obviously proud. He believes more product manufacturers such as glass or plastics, should institute recycling programs of their own. Reynolds is open Monday through Saturday from 8:30-5 p.m., telephone 622-5696.

Why Recycle?

At prices ranging from 1/4 cents a pound for everything from glass to scrap copper, one might say, "Why drive all the way out of town just to recycle; it isn't worth it." Bill Karr emphasizes, "Recycle for recycling's sake, not just for the money. Consumers should demand recycled products, too. We all have to be responsible for what we purchase and throw away."

Nita Wheeler agrees. "It gives me a good feeling to know that I'm not filling up a landfill."

After packaging — bottles, jars, and cans — and perhaps cardboard and newspaper, have been eliminated from your trash can, there isn't much left. Next installment deals with food waste, household discards, and more reuses for newspaper.

"The state is going back to acquisition (right of way) by phase," Richards said.

On another highway front, Richards said engineer Shaw is working toward solutions to a flooding problem in front of the Sierra Professional Building on Mescalero Drive.

Richards said District Highway Engineer Lou Medraño claims former Ruidoso Mayor George White agreed for the village to maintain Mescalero Drive in a tradeout years ago.

Under the tradeout, Richards said, the highway department put in two traffic lights.

But, he said, the flood area is in the highway right of way.

Richards said there was a drainage line put in, but a motel expanded and blocked it.

With no objections evident, the commission approved vacation of plat in Deer Park Meadows. Lots in Units 11-21 are involved.

Robert G. and Ann H. Scribner asked for the vacation of plat.

The request included permission to replat three lots.

Village attorney John Underwood "determined everything is in order," Richards told the commission.

Fiddlers win cash prizes

Some people were pickin' while others were just fiddlin' around, but either way there was a lot of music going on.

The All American Festival included a fiddler's contest that attracted musicians to show off their skills with both the fiddle and the guitar.

Fiddlers, as opposed to violins, have only four strings. And as we all know, guitars have six strings, but if you were at the contest Friday, you would've seen Alfred Muladew from Dallas, Texas, playing his tenor guitar, which has only four strings.

Winners for the inaugural event include Bart Trotter in the open division ($1,000), J.W. Taylor in the senior division ($400), Carla Shivers in the ladies division ($400), Robert Weeks Jr. in the junior division ($100) and Anthony Mature in the accompanist division.

Child is injured in accident

A four-year-old Ruidoso Downs child was transported by ambulance to a Roswell hospital after he was hit by a village pickup Wednesday.

Joe Quincio is in stable condition at Eastern New Mexico Medical Center South in Roswell with injuries he sustained.

Ruidoso Police are investigating the car-pedestrian accident that reportedly occurred when the child rode his bike into the street.

The Village of Ruidoso Downs pickup that was involved in the accident was driven by Billy J. Page.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Office received a complaint of a possible flood west of Lincoln. The cal-

However, there were no flood damages reported.

course Sunday with a party that included Governor Garrey Carruthers and Ruidoso Downs Race Track owners R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred, said the course played well, and will be ready to open.

A Radisson Resort Hotel will also be a part of the development, and plans for that hotel have been reviewed by the village. A building permit hasn't been issued yet.

The fourth part of the multi-million dollar resort development will be a performing arts center that is being donated by Dr. A.N. Spencer and his wife, Jacqueline Spencer.

During a meeting recently, the Spencers said the center will include a small auditorium with a large outdoor amphitheatre area. They revealed plans to establish a fund to maintain the center in the future.

BETHANY SANCHEZ

Youngster to perform at the Fair

Bethany Rey Sanchez, eight-year-old vocal entertainer, will be singing at the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque, this weekend.

She is the daughter of Reyes and Yvonne Sanchez of San Patricio. She has recently recorded her first Spanish/English cassette tape entitled "Zon Amos - Bethany Rey con La Raza" which is being played on various radio stations throughout New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma.

The youngster has competed and entertained throughout New Mexico and Texas. Bethany Rey also entertained at the All American Festival Pageant.

Remember when Ruidoso was a college town?

by VIRGINIA MEYER
Special to The News

A college in Ruidoso? Why not? It's happened before and very successfully.

Of course, it was 50 years ago and nothing was as complicated then as it is now.

In 1940, Eastern New Mexico College (as it was known then) conducted a six-week summer session in Ruidoso with headquarters at the Ruidoso High School, a building which now houses the Ruidoso Athletic Club (RAC) next door to the Ruidoso Police Station on Wingfield Drive.

The faculty consisted of teachers from Eastern in Portales and Texas Tech in Lubbock, Texas, with local educators and artists under the direction of Dr. Alfred Crofts, professor of English at the Portales campus of Eastern.

Some of the others were Dr. H. E. Mehrens, Portales; Dr. E.N. Reed, professor of botany at Texas Tech; Mrs. Paul Romano, art teacher and wife of the noted muralist; and James Carpenter, superintendent of schools in Carrizozo at that time.

Students came from many points in New Mexico and Texas with at least one from Kansas. A number of teachers, including two Catholic nuns from Lincoln, came to the tall pines to renew credits and further their educations.

Many of the students were attending college on limited funds in those post-depression days and literally "worked their way through."

According to a newspaper article of that time:

"Students overrun the town. Ed Smith of Dexter is a restaurant dishwasher; Roberta Towse of Portales is secretary, librarian and registrar at the school; Ira B. West is a bellhop at Navajo Lodge; Delbert Suggs works at Barretts grocery; Frank Jones of Corona works at Moore's service station; Virginia Lee Boyd and Marda Vae McCain of Clovis wait tables at Butler's Cafe."

There were no dormitories. Students solved the housing problem for themselves, and in some cases the conditions were quite primitive 50 years ago, such as the cabin three girls shared with a "path but no bath." That cabin, which has been added on to (with plumbing) and refurbished, is still standing today at 103 Grindstone.

The accommodations were not plush, but the students didn't mind. They were interested in getting an education so they could be teachers, anthropologists, journalists, forest rangers, artists, historians, just to mention a few.

And where else could they find a better place to go to college than in Ruidoso where it was cool in the summertime? They could be close to the lore and artifacts of ancient Indians and they could spend long days in class, in laboratory work and in exploration of the historic region.

Not all learning took place in the classroom or on field trips, however. It's even been rumored that there were occasional dances at the Lodge, poker parties, picnics and other social events to relieve the monotony of study and work.

One student who "slung hash" all summer was heard to say, "I've learned more psychology this summer waiting on the tourists than I ever did in a college course last winter."

For one of the students, Walt Robinson from Portales, summer school in Ruidoso was in a sense "coming home." His maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wingfield, lived in the house where the Blue Goose is now located on Sudderth Drive.

Christopher Robinson, a local physician who is now chief of staff at the Lincoln County Medical Center, is Walt's son.

A college in Ruidoso? Why not? It worked then and it could work again if people are really interested in helping Ruidoso grow in knowledge as well as recreation.

A student relaxes on a bench between two trees in front of her cabin in the pines. The location is on Grindstone Road looking west.

Students are pursuing various projects in a university class 50 years ago in what was then the high school building. Dr. Alfred Crofts directed the school.

Warriors take on topranked 'Cats

by NORM WRIGHT
Special to The News

This week's Associated Press AAA football poll ranks Lovington, Roswell, Goddard and Artesia as the top three teams in the state, in that order.

It just happens that those are the first three teams on the Ruidoso High School football schedule this season. No one can say the Warriors don't like to challenge themselves.

Perhaps the biggest challenge will come tomorrow night in Lovington as the Warriors take on the top-ranked Wildcats. Last year the Wildcats defeated Ruidoso 14-12 in Warrior Stadium. Lovington then went on to the state finals, where they lost to Goddard 6-0 in double overtime.

Last Saturday the Wildcats traveled to Las Vegas to play Robertson High School, whom they defeated 39-6. The night before, Artesia defeated Ruidoso 27-19 at Warrior Stadium.

Lovington has an experienced team, with numerous starters returning from last year's runner-up team. They have good size in their lines, yet they also have excellent team speed.

The Wildcat offense lines up in a "slit-I" formation and mixes the run and the pass well. The 'Cats run the option a lot, and their primary running threat is their 5'11" 160-pound junior tailback, Ricky Session.

Their passing game is dangerous. Quarterback Abran Barela, a 5'11" 155-pound senior, throws mostly drop-back or sprint-out passes.

On defense, Lovington lines up in a 5-2 alignment or a "split-six" with a single linebacker called a "monster." There is a lot of quickness on the Wildcat defense.

Going against this impressive opponent is a Warrior team that has confidence in itself despite the loss to Artesia.

According to head coach Mike Speck, the team has had a very good attitude in practice this week and has been working hard. The players realize that if they had not made some avoidable mistakes, they could have defeated Artesia, and they are determined to eliminate costly errors this week. The Warriors know they "have a long way to go," in Speck's words, but they believe they can "be a great team."

Injuries are a problem for the Warriors. Senior two-way starter Kief Johnson suffered a shoulder separation in the Artesia game. It has not been determined how long he will be out of action, but it is certain he will not play tomorrow night. Taking his place at fullback and middle linebacker will be sophomore Wally Murillo, who also replaced Johnson in the second half of the Artesia game.

Another sophomore who will make his first start for the Warriors will be Roger Kahze, an offensive center who recently transferred from Tularosa. He will replace Keith Henson, who suffered an injury Saturday at his home.

Lovington will be the favorite in this game, of course. But Wildcat coach Jerry Brown knows that it would be a big mistake to underestimate the Warriors.

Ruidoso coaches and players are thinking upset, and the game promises to be even more exciting than the season opener against Artesia. Warrior fans are urged to follow their team to Lovington and provide the support and enthusiasm that the guys desire and deserve.

The Warriors pictured below were named players of the week after Friday's game.

Football fans take their pick

Ronald Servis is the winner of the first round in this year's Ruidoso News football contest. Servis, a winner in past year's contests, missed just three games out of the 20 selections, to win a $25 prize. He was among 43 contestants for the first week, and the only one to miss just three. Five people missed four, four missed five, five missed six and 11 missed seven. The contest included an accidental curve in the North Carolina versus Miami, Ohio game, since the entry blank left off the "Ohio," and most contestants assumed the team was number one ranked Miami, Florida. The Ruidoso News will continue the weekly contest throughout the Ruidoso High School Warriors football season. The guest selectors for this year's contest include RHS principal Mike Kakuska who is new to the area, but already a true Warrior fan. Kakuska has declined to make a guess on the tiebreaker each week, because he doesn't want to guess his team's score.

Other "pickers" this year are Dick Gosdin, president of the Warrior Booster Club; James Atwood, president of Ruidoso State Bank; Barbara Duff, mayor pro-tem for the Village of Ruidoso; and Chris Carusona, owner of Ruidoso Ford. Chuck Stallings, who will be rejoining the staff of The Ruidoso News within the next couple of weeks, is also one of this year's selectors. "I never give anyone a point against the Warriors," said Stallings making his tiebreaker selection last week.

Cross country

The Ruidoso High School cross country team, coached by athletic director Ronny Maskew, opens its season this weekend in Brownfield, Texas.

Signups begin for gymnastics classes at the Activities Center

Signups are now under way for the Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department's gymnastics program. Classes are available for both recreational and competitive gymnastics. "At the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Activity Center, we strive to promote sound child development through gymnastics by providing learning experiences geared toward an individual's ability to progress," reads a news release. Progressive gymnastics and dance have always been one of the most exciting ways for young children to learn about movement, continues the release. "In addition, the principals of sensory development and perception used in our gymnastics program make it an excellent stepping stone to any type of athletic endeavor." Classes are still open for children ages 18 months and over. For more information, call the Activities Center at 267-5030.

Southwest Classics heads additions to Sunland card

SUNLAND PARK—The $50,000 estimated Southwest Classics Futurity is one of the new wrinkles in the upcoming Sunland Park season. The 350-yard test for two-year-old quarter horses debuts on Sunday, November 4. Much of the $50,000 purse will be generated by nominating and sustaining payments from the Quarter Horse Breeders' Classic fund. The newest improvement to the thoroughbred program is the $10,000-added Sunland Juvenile Mile. The owners of 43 two-year-olds paid the $200 August 15 nominating payments. Harold Payne, director of racing, is pleased with the acceptance of the new race.

"The Sunland Juvenile provides an excellent opportunity for two-year-olds to run a route. We may split the race into two divisions to handle the large amount of starters," said Payne. The Sunland Juvenile Mile debuts on Saturday, December 1. This year's nominations are up for the $130,000 estimated Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Futurity and the $50,000 estimated Sunland Park Fall Quarter Horse Derby. Phase Six of the Sunland Park capital improvement plan is a big plus for racing fans. Sunland Park spent more than $237,000 in facility improvements this summer. The parking lot, forecourt, barn area and walkway have been repaved. The infield will be surfaced with a Southwestern style crushed red rock composition. New perimeter fencing will be constructed before the start 1990-91 season. In addition, a new video game room will be installed in the enclosed forecourt area, and a separate lounge area is being built for the horsemen. Opening Day is Saturday, October 13. Racing continues for 111 days through May 5. Sunland Park switches to a Thursday through Sunday racing format for the first time. Holiday racing is planned for New Year's Eve, Monday, December 31; New Year's Day, Tuesday, January 1; Martin Luther King Day, Monday, January 21; and Presidents' Day, Monday, February 18.

Alwan takes publicity post at Sunland Park

SUNLAND PARK—Eric Alwan, a familiar face in Southwest racing circles, has been named Sunland Park Publicity Director. The announcement was made by General Manager Skip Sherman. The 26 year-old El Paso native and graduate of Coronado High School has already spent more than 15 years in horse racing. At the age of 11, Alwan attracted national attention as the "World's Youngest Handicapper."

His grasp of Thoroughbred trivia netted $16,000 on the syndicated game show, "The $128,000 Question." He appeared on "Good Morning America" with David Hartman, "Saturday Night News" with Ted Koppel, "The Tomorrow Show" with Tom Snyder and "To Tell The Truth." Feature articles were written about him in the New York Times, Los Angeles Times, Chicago Tribune, Kansas City Star, Houston Chronicle, New York Daily News, Daily Racing Form, National Enquirer and People Magazine. For some 12 years, Alwan wrote the Eager Beaver tip sheets sold at both Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs.

Alwan completed his college education at Rice University in 1987 with a bachelor's degree in the behavioral sciences. He worked as assistant publicity director for Sunland Park during the 1987-88 season. In 1989, Alwan moved to Paducah, Kentucky, to direct the marketing program for Bluegrass Downs. He doubled as track announcer for the quarter horse track. Alwan rejoined the Sunland Publicity Department a year ago. During the 1989-90 season, he hosted the Sunland Park Inter-Track TV program and the nightly race re-cap program on Paragon Cable in El Paso, as well as handling other publicity assignments. As a result of his long involvement in racing, Alwan arrives at his new post with a unique understanding of the media and their needs.

ERIC ALWAN

He authored Sunland Park's informative 1990-91 Media Guide, which is now available for the media. Sunland Park's 1990-91 season begins Saturday, October 13, and covers 111 race days through May 5.

28-0 loss during Tiger season opener to Eunice isn't all bad

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

In spite of a 28-0 loss, the Capitan Tigers had some pleasant surprises for fans.

"Everybody got a good lick in the game they'll remember," said head coach Jim Fowler.

The Eunice Cardinals came to Capitan and soundly thrashed the Tigers in a 28-0 shutout, but it took the Cardinals a while before they could finally fly.

The Tigers began strong and recovered a few fumbles, but were unable to convert the turnovers into points.

Still, the first quarter was scoreless, and the Tiger offense was showing some potential.

Quarterback Dan Seay showed everyone he could throw the ball and scramble in the backfield when necessary. Once Seay's receivers learn to hold onto the ball, the Tigers could unleash a mighty offensive weapon with an air game later in the season.

But as predicted by coach Fowler, mistakes played an important role in the game.

Critical fumbles at the snap, bobbled punt receptions, interceptions and lining up offside stepped many an advance for the Cardinals early in the game, and for the Tigers throughout the game.

"We still need to work on timing with the offense," said Fowler. "But I'm very pleased with the effort everyone put forward."

Also predicted by Fowler, Eunice was able to complete passes, advancing the ball quickly downfield and scoring easily.

"Eunice has a pretty good ball club," said Fowler. "I think (the Cardinals) looked pretty sharp."

In spite of all that, however, the Tigers look different. With continued improvement on both the offensive and defensive line, the Tigers have a real chance at taking off in the season.

The team is working on a coordinated defense and improvement is expected.

Fowler noted Paul Whipple worked hard in spite of the fact he's a new player with the team. The Tiger defensive ends did well also.

"We have a lot of players who haven't played football in a while," said Fowler. "We didn't quite get everyone a chance to play, but we substituted freely in the second half."

The colors are saluted before the start of Capitan's football game versus the Eunice Cardinals. Below, assistant coach Pat Ventura discusses defensive strategy with some Tiger players. Capitan is trying to develop a coordinated defense.

Lady Tigers are on the road for a while

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lady Tigers will be in Tatum for their first volleyball match Friday, starting a series of road trips before their first home match during the Capitan Classic September 28 and 29.

The girls performed well during a scrimmage Saturday against 3A and 4A teams, and coach Pam Allen expects a good season.

Allen noted the squad did well with serves throughout the day. Hitting, setting and blocking went well also, she said.

Floor movement during defense is still improving, but this, too, got better during the scrimmage, said

Allen. The Lady Tigers out-performed both Moriarty and Socorro, both 3A teams, said Allen. Roswell Goddard was also on hand, a very strong team with nearly all seniors in the squad, said Allen.

Tatum's team is huge, but also young, said Allen. Although not in the same district, Tatum is in the same region as Capitan, which means the two teams could possibly meet again during regional playoffs.

The Lady Tigers are entering the 1990 season with a winning record that took them to the state playoffs last year.

Smokey Bear is meeting topic

Smokey Bear and Capitan will share the center of nation-wide attention during the next few years as a campaign on fire prevention history is started by the Forest Service.

Representatives of state and federal agencies will be present to discuss the Smokey Bear campaign during a meeting of the South Central Mountain Resource Conservation and Development Council scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday, September 11, at the Lincoln County Fair Grounds in Capitan.

An announcement concerning the future management of the Smokey Bear State Park will be made by Jim Norwick, director of the state forestry and resource conservation division, and Noe Villarreal of the State Parks and Recreation division in Santa Fe.

"The whole purpose of the meeting is to kick off a campaign to focus a lot of attention on Smokey Bear and related activities," said Clem Weindorf, chairman of the resource conservation council, in a news release.

"We also hope to get a lot of community involvement to generate ideas that will result in some good, positive things for Capitan and the entire area," said Weindorf.

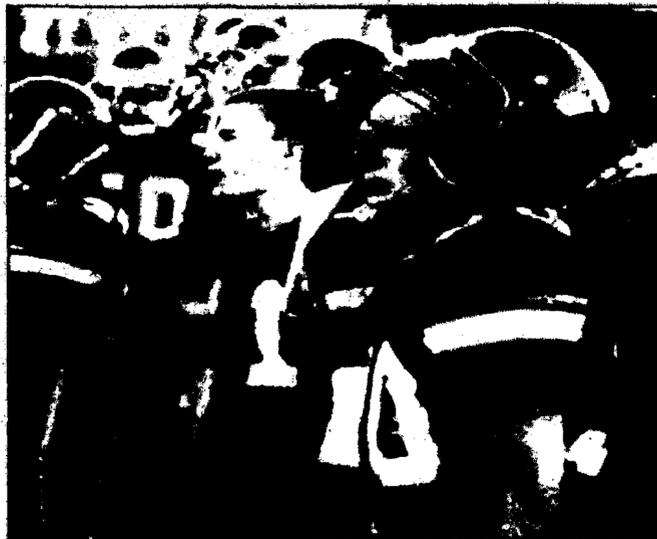

Merle Glenn of the Forest Service will outline plans for the 50th birthday celebration of the Fire Prevention Program in Smokey's hometown, Capitan.

The event is expected to draw national attention and is planned for August 9, 1994. However, national activities are expected to occur throughout the year leading up to the celebration.

Ideas already being considered include a large statue of Smokey and possibly a museum of fire fighting history.

Local resident Dorothy Guck will also present a historical view of Smokey.

The meeting is open to the public and local residents are strongly encouraged to attend.

Two Capitan Tigers express their displeasure over a defensive interference call early in the game.

Sessions on spirituality are on Mondays and not on Tuesdays

Sessions conducted by Dr. Birgit LaMothe on spirituality reported in the Thursday, August 30, issue of The Ruidoso News, were incorrectly reported to continue on the six consecutive Tuesdays after the first session, Monday, September 17.

The sessions will begin September 17, but the following sessions will be conducted on the six consecutive Mondays following the first one.

For more information, contact LaMothe at 354-2761 or at 257-6149.

Weekend revival is coming up

A weekend revival is scheduled for September 13 through 16 in Capitan, sponsored by the Trinity Southern Baptist Church.

The Rev. Pat Bush, of Hurst, Texas, will be the evangelist during the revival scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 13, 14 and 15, and for 11 a.m. Sunday, September 16, at the Trinity Southern Baptist Church on Highway 48 south of Capitan.

The Rev. Floyd Goodloe is the pastor for the Trinity Southern Baptist Church.

Organizers extend their invitation to anyone interested.

Lincoln Forest reviews predator control policies

by RICHARD A. HARROLD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lincoln Forest is analyzing a program that puts itself at the center of a recurring controversy: predator control.

Because the Forest Service is mandated by law to provide for multiple uses of its land, the question it faces regarding predator control is how and when.

But talk to groups representing both sides of this barbed fence, the question becomes how much.

"We're always in the middle and we'll always have some side mad at us," said Russ Romme of the Lincoln Forest in Alamogordo.

The current stage of the predator control program analysis includes specific site analysis of the program in selected areas of the Lincoln Forest.

The six areas selected for the analysis include a section in the Smokey Bear district northeast of White Oaks, two areas in the Guadalupe district (the north end of the district and an area west of the Guadalupe Mountain escarpment), two in the Mayhill district (east of Mayhill and another south and east of northern Bluewater Canyon) and one in the Cloudcroft district west of Forest Road 162 and west of the Westside Road and Forest Road 91.

The analysis began as an in-house project about two to three months ago, and expanded to include public comment, said Romme.

After reviewing this comment, the six areas were selected for more specific analysis because they include areas where requests for predator control are expected, said Romme.

Citing a vague statement in the Lincoln Forest Plan, Romme indicated predator control is part of the plan and will occur.

The single-line statement in the plan reads, "allow predator control measure where livestock losses are documented."

"It doesn't provide for much guidance," said Romme.

Currently, grazing permit holders who experience losses from animal depredation report this to the district ranger who then compiles a yearly report.

This report is then turned over to the Animal and Health Inspection Service (APHIS) division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This department, more familiarly known as ADC (for Animal Damage Control), then carries out the actual predator control.

"If (the predator activity) creates a resource conflict, then we can request APHIS to ameliorate the problem," said Romme.

Depending on the target predator, this means ADC goes into the field to trap and/or kill the target animal.

This is where the debate becomes heated.

Ranchers can suffer significant financial loss from depredation of their herds, particularly of younger animals.

For example, in its 1989 annual report, ADC reported the livestock loss for that fiscal year totaled $1,707,299 from 14,503 head lost, including poultry, to predation.

To combat this predation, ADC spent $1,624,750 to kill 5,984 coyotes, 23 black bears (all killed in Lincoln County), 729 striped skunks, 2,938 feral pigeons, 80 beaver, 28 porcupine, 30 pack rats and many other target species.

The size of these numbers is what has some individuals and groups worried. Also, many environmental groups and some ranchers as well, are concerned about the kill totals for non-target species.

Non-target species are those animals either trapped or killed through predator control activity that were not intended victims.

For example, although only 28 porcupine were killed as target species, ADC reported 235 porcupine killed as non-target species.

Also, 142 gray fox were killed as non-target species while only 21 were killed as target species.

The coyote is never considered a non-target species by ADC.

In the middle of all this is the Forest Service, hands tied by a federal law known as the Multiple Use and Sustained Yield Act.

This Act requires the Forest Service to manage its lands for wildlife purposes and for livestock, timber, mining and recreation, somehow striking a balance between these often conflicting uses.

The purpose of the present analysis is to review the current program, finding out better ways to implement predator control.

This means keeping tabs on ADC activities as well, because the Forest Service is mandated to provide habitat for all animal species, predators included.

"We are in no way interested in eliminating all predatory species," said Romme. "That is an out-moded way of thinking that is unfortunately still in existence in some areas."

The Forest Service is accepting public written input until Wednesday, September 12, regarding any other the areas currently being evaluated.

Input needs to address how to implement predator control in a more efficient and safe manner, both to human health and for wildlife considerations.

Like it or not, predator control is going to stay.

Birthday greetings to Paul Jones

by Dan Storm
The Ridge
Runner

Happy Birthday To Paul Jones

This is being sent to you just before high noon on a cool and peaceful day, on September 4; the birthday of our brother Mark, and will reach you on September 6, the eve of the birthday of Paul H. Jones.

Paul was born on September 7, 1926, to Tom Jones and the former Ola Casey, in the Ruidoso Valley close to his present day home in "the Narrows" just down from the Fox Cave.

Both his parents were members of pioneer families, his mother a pioneer educator and former county school superintendent of Lincoln County.

Paul attended school in Ancho, Carrizozo, Stetson in Ruidoso Downs, and the New Mexico Military Institute. He is a veteran of World War II, and the Korean War, and has been awarded several decorations including the Purple Heart.

Paul's star of good fortune shone brightly on August 14, 1953, he was married to the former Nellie Ruth Lucas. They have three children, Annette Jones, Debbie Sanchez, and Cathy Jones, and three grandchildren: Jim Paul Whipple, Benjamin Coe Sanchez (named after his two grandfathers Ben Sanchez and Frank Coe) and Joe Marie Sanchez.

Paul and Nellie Ruth were married in the Church of the Holy Mount, on the date mentioned above, by Father Charles Davis. They are the first couple to be married in the church.

Paul is a lifelong rancher who still rides the beloved hills south of his home, and he is a true Westerner-true to his word and his friends, and always ready to help neighbor or stranger alike. Along with his wife, Nellie Ruth, he is a devout member of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County.

Nellie has recently retired from 34 years of teaching in Ruidoso Schools and their daughters, Debbie and Cathy, are teaching in Ruidoso following the tradition of their mother and grandmother.

Paul is a true American and Christian gentleman, and we all wish him many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

Anniversaries

At the services at Saint Anne Chapel last Sunday, the Reverend Anne Gaddy preached an inspiring sermon based upon the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Romans in which he told us to use the gifts given us by Our Lord to carry on the work of Our Lord. In the Prayers of the People read by Lay Reader Nellie Ruth Jones, thanks were given for the birthdays of: John Penn, Ruth Wardlaw, Shirryn Williams, Vicki Conley, Gary Thompson, Carmen Taylor, Patricia Gunter and Paul Jones.

Also for the wedding anniversaries of John and Mary Cooper, Doug and Shirley Stephenson, Ron and Cathy Annala, Bill and Sandra Webber, and Alden and Jane Deyo.

And thanks also was given for the ministry of Toole Littlefield.

Friends Called Home

We all send up a prayer for the loved ones of Ava Dell Jennings, Dessie Sawyer, Leroy Lewis Coonie and Delbert McDaniel; and we ask them to be grateful that their loved ones, who have been called Home by Our Lord, are safe and happy in Heaven.

Mother Earth Rejoices On Labor Day

On Labor Day, Mother Earth was wearing her brightest smile, wearing her shining emerald gown adorned with flowers of all colors of the rainbow.

The warm and mellow breeze from the east carried to you the fragrance of hosts of flowers, mingled with the flavor of apples pears and plums ripening and weighing down the branches with the heaviest crop in years. The weather Spirits put together a special day for all of us on this great American Day. There was the spirit of joy and thankfulness in the air. In late afternoon the highway was filled with the joyful parade of folks going back to the low country with happy memories of our Mountain Land. And all morning the happy parade has been streaming by. We pray for a safe journey for all these friends, and ask them to remember this is their mountain home where there is always a wide and cheerful welcome. The pines and the pinons are always calling us back to the land of the Pinon and Pine.

Let us thank God for all our blessings.

Editorial

Altrusa Club of Ruidoso and its members are to be congratulated for helping F.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard throw the biggest and best Charity Celebration this town has ever seen. It was a great party, and like the gift that goes on giving, the folks who contributed to the party can be assured that they will be helping the needy in Lincoln County throughout this year.

When the Hubbards offered the opportunity for some community group to help with and benefit from the big gala event, Altrusa took the challenge. It was a natural for this group of professionals who have for years raised funds to go back into the community.

Altrusa Club of Ruidoso, looking to help as many people and groups as possible, has formed the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso Foundation so that donations to the group are now tax deductible.

Now that the sell-out party is over, the challenge continues as the Altrusa Foundation takes on the responsibility of distributing the charity funds where they can do the most good. We salute Altrusa for taking the challenge and continuing its commitment to help the people of Lincoln County.

Capitol Comments

About those workers comp reforms...

Remember All Those Plans...

...Of the Workers Compensation Task Force to take some of the medical practitioners off the workers' comp gravy train.

Well, Hal! It is to laugh. The draft bill was unveiled here last week. They haven't subtracted, they've added—even acupuncturists and nurse/midwives.

They've got everybody on the train now except the Indian shamen, and their exclusion must've been just an oversight.

Or it's that they haven't yet formed an American Medicinemen Association and hired the likes of Odie Echols to lobby for them...

Whatever The Task Force Comes Up With...

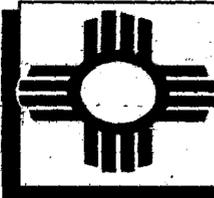

...Will just be a starting point for the Legislature, of course.

With this draft bill the lawmakers are gonna need to start with a shovel.

The problem is, the task force has all these vested interests trying to stare each other down and co-chairmen convinced they need unanimity on every detail.

Why not just say the majority rules? Seeking unanimity on every vote just gives each vested interest group the ability to spike the other guys' wheels. It's like the UN Security Council—one "no" vote and you're back to the drawing board.

And sure enough, they've got themselves a bill that is completely watered down because that's the only bill everyone is willing to adopt...

by
Kate McGraw
Santa Fe
Columnist

I've Read the Bill, Front to Back...

...And I say it'll cost more than the system we've got now.

The director has nominal authority to establish a fee schedule on medical costs, but the fees must be 60 to 80 percent of current charges, and are revised every year.

There's no state fund to provide any competition for the insurers.

And the determination of permanent partial disability—and that's where the biggest cost is, folks—goes on for five pages.

Looks to me like if you get a hangnail and think it interferes with your ability to do your job, you've got it made.

Seems a little sad. Three months' work and they produced a mouse. Speaking politely.

Meanwhile, The State Risk Management Division (RMD)...

...The insurance division, is establishing a new, in-house legal bureau at the mandate of the 1990 state Legislature (regular session).

The Legislature gave the RMD $500,000 to establish the legal bureau, which sounds like a lot until you realize the lawmakers took away $1 million the insurance division had been using to hire outside attorneys.

Two of the five new in-house attorneys have been hired, RMD Acting Director Taylor Hendrickson told me. They are Steve French and James Foley. They'll be working out of the Bataan Building for the time being, because the new Legal Bureau offices in the Montoya Building aren't finished.

Bob Stovall...

...The general counsel for the state Oil Conservation Division, just got back from the Soviet Union. He went over there on a two-week Rotary Club trip.

They're establishing a Moscow Rotary Club. My dears, the times, they are a-changin'. Ol' Karl M. must be rolling in his grave...

Anyway, Bob reports everyone he met in the USSR was excited about the possibility of better relations with the United States. He says a major stumbling block, the lack of an exchangeable currency, will be cleared away soon.

And he noted that the meetings between Americans and Russians in Minsk were much less formal and structured than the meetings in Moscow. Seems like the further from the capital, the more down-to-earth the people are, he said.

Just like here.

LETTERS

DEAR EDITOR:

There are principal differences in the mode politicians and scientists think. The politician, although he or she may have the background of a science education or may have even worked in a field of science, depends to a considerable degree on the opinions and subsequently the votes of his or her constituency. And those votes are the result of a combination of factors, such as self interests, hanging-on to preconceived political philosophies, emotions, common sense, and not the least ignorance, particularly today at time of "disarmament education in mathematics and sciences" [the part in parenthesis is the title of an article in Science]. The scientist, on the other hand, depends on his or her original research findings, on findings by other scientists as documented in the pertinent peer reviewed literature and on his or her training and experience. The measured values are the basis of the scientist's critical evaluation of research findings. Where others may argue about the hue of a certain color, the scientist measures and determines the wave length or the combination of wave lengths and their intensities, and that is it, no arguments. Are errors possible? Of course they are: Both politicians and scientists are after all humans.

In the light of the differences of thinking the remarks by Lincoln County Commissioner Karen Petty have to be understood when she writes: "In spite of the fact that Ruidoso, Capitan, surrounding areas and the Landfill Advisory Committee (with Dr. Reimann's assistance), all say Lincoln County cannot afford a Class A landfill (. . .), I disagree. I believe we need a landfill, we can afford one, and the future benefits will outweigh the present "fears."

The recommendations which I have made were based on

1. the assessment of the costs to operate our landfill in Capitan according to the new Solid Waste Management Regulations EIB/SWMR-2. These are the rules according to which we have to play to which

2. the publication entitled "Economic Impact of Proposed Solid Waste Regulations" by Anna Weigner Lamberson, Ph.D., Bureau of Business and Economic Research, University of New Mexico, Oct. 1988.

3. Solid Waste Management Regulations EIB/SWMR-2, State of New Mexico, Environmental Improvement Board, April 14, 1989,

4. the Permit Application to Operate a Solid Waste Management Facility, Revised May 12, 1988, New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division.

Further information on the subject supporting my recommendations were meetings such as a "Solid Waste Management in New Mexico — A Short Course" sponsored by the New Mexico Municipal League and Molzen-Corbin & Associates, with participation by the New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division, Roswell, New Mexico, April 24, 1990, and elsewhere at different dates. These covered the imposed regulations and researched ways of how to deal with them. They were not opinions, they were facts.

My own conclusions coincide with those of Dr. Lamberson who writes (p. 2): "The most important variable affecting compliance cost is size of the community. By moving from the largest to the smallest landfills, per ton costs increase by 40 times. The conclusion drawn is that the proposed regulations will provide an economic incentive for regional landfills, as small communities may find compliance costs prohibitive."

It is refreshing to see that the political leaders of our incorporated communities in Lincoln County have recognized these facts and are going ahead with combined forces to find a solution for our solid waste problem.

Sincerely,
Bernhard E. F. Reimann,
Dr. rer. nat.
Capitan

Jacquelyn Kammerer Cattaneo, a Gallup change program. Cattaneo was in Ruidoso artist, is shown in the Soviet Union where for a show and reception on Labor Day at she participated in an educational ex-Dallas Fine Arts.

Local gallery showcases the works of well-known artist

Jacquelyn Kammerer Cattaneo, who recently returned from a show in the Soviet Union, was in Ruidoso over the weekend for a reception and show at Dallas Fine Arts.

The Gallup resident participated in an educational exchange program after she was invited by Scarsdale, New York artist and teacher Dora M. Cox.

Cattaneo was part of the first group of this type, and was among a dozen artists, all women, who spent four days in each of three major Soviet cities: Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev. In addition to meeting their Soviet counterparts in workshops and exchanging ideas, the U.S. artists viewed the works of nineteenth and early twentieth century artists Ilya, Repin, Serov and Shishkin.

According to a news release, they were further honored by being the first U.S. delegation, of any type, to meet with the politically powerful Soviet Women's Committee. The committee invited Cattaneo and other selected artists from the group to return with their art for an extended tour of the Soviet Union. They are now awaiting the official invitation from the government.

In the spring of 1991, Cattaneo will visit China. Two of the cities on her itinerary are Singapore and Beijing.

Cattaneo was the only member of the group representing the Southwest. A native and lifelong resident of Gallup, the color and dynamism of the Navajo and Zuni cultures influence her art. She is best known for her portraits of native New Mexicans.

Cattaneo's work is still on display at Dallas Fine Arts, 2550 Sudderth Drive, in Ruidoso.

Episcopalians say farewell to a long-time congregation member

Last Sunday the Church of the Holy Mount said farewell to long-time member Mildred H. "Tookie" Littlefield who is moving to Lamesa, Texas after a 33-year residence in Ruidoso.

She was honored at a regular Sunday service at Church of the Holy Mount. During a reception after the service, she was given a silver cross and a card signed by her fellow parishioners.

In addition, a framed print entitled "Communion" by C. L. Goldrick was given to the Church by David and Kathy Travis in memory of her late husband, Jimmie Littlefield.

Tookie Littlefield has been active at Church of the Holy Mount for many years, especially as a member of the Altar Guild and in preparing the annual "Christmas in July" Bazaar.

She says that she will be back in November to celebrate her 90th birthday.

Volksmarchers converge on Ruidoso

Men, women, and children of all ages throughout the United States are putting their best feet forward to celebrate the first Annual National Volkssport Week that started September 1.

Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club Mountainmarchers, a member of the American Volkssport Association, will sponsor a walk Saturday and Sunday, September 8 and 9, starting at the Woman's Club on Evergreen Street.

Start time is 8 a.m. both days, and walkers must be checked in by designated trail, and checkpoints. Participants go at their own pace but must complete the walk by the announced finish time.

This is the tenth of the Ruidoso Mountainmarchers has sponsored. Each event brings many walkers from clubs in Las Cruces, Alamogordo, El Paso, Roswell, and Albuquerque, plus many out-of-state walkers.

The local club encourages Lincoln County to participate in this event and "Walk For The Health Of It".

More than 60 Volkssports clubs from Florida to Washington to Maine to Hawaii will host events to promote Volkssporting in America during this week.

The term Volkssport literally means a sport of the people. Participants are from the general public and this means everyone: mom and dad, grandfathers, grandmother, aunts, uncles, children and even your pets.

Anyone who pays the registration fee and completes the event (at their own pace) is declared a winner and receives the award and IVV certification stamp for their efforts. If you want to participate but not receive an award, you pay a small fee and earn the IVV certification stamp only, or if you wish neither award nor stamp you can participate free.

Care center chief

Joe Treviso, new director of the Ruidoso Care Center, addressed Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions on aspects of Alzheimer's disease recently. He told of the 22-bed Alzheimer's unit at the care center. He recently moved to Ruidoso from a care center in Fort Sumner. "Oriental Day" at the center here was being observed the day he spoke to Lions.

The Plant Corner

Start now to rebloom poinsettias this year

DEAR READERS:

It can be done, I have done it, but it ain't easy. I've had several requests about how to rebloom a poinsettia and if I don't do it now it will be too late for the plants to bloom for Christmas.

Given all the proper growing conditions, such as temperature, light, water, fertilizer and soil conditions, the most absolutely a-essential factor, to get poinsettias to bloom at Christmas is to "ensure" that you don't accidentally throw off the natural, short-day, photo-periodic response.

The first part of September, move the plant, if necessary, to ensure uninterrupted, 14 hour-long nights. Be certain not to admit any light, even briefly, as this will disrupt the blooming process. Poinsettias need 14 hours of darkness to trigger the onset of blooms. If you must turn on the light in the room with the plant, first cover it with a cardboard box or double brown paper bags. Just be sure you do not forget to remove the cover in the morning so the plant gets its necessary 10 hours of good, bright sun light daily.

To force the green, the plant must be confined to total darkness, uninterrupted, even for a moment, for five to six weeks. After this time flower buds will already have begun to initiate within the "terminal growing point" and you can forget all the light exposure

Sally Black
The Plant Specialist

hassle. After the six weeks darkness period maintain good bright light and avoid rotating the plant.

Rotation can cause the buds to drop. Try for a south or west exposure with an overhead sky-light or bulb to avoid rotation.

Given this treatment, your poinsettia should show color well before Christmas.

The poinsettia remains on the dangerous plant list by the Poison Control Center of the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, Texas. So exercise caution and keep the plant out of reach of small children and pets. Sensitive individuals may experience blistering of the skin or dermatitis due to contact with the milky sap. If ingested it could produce nausea and diarrhea. There are no records of a fatality but no need to risk small children and pets.

Soil—Must be absorbent, fast drainage and "never" allowed to become completely dry or soggy wet.

Water—Keep slightly moist at all times. Overwatering as well as under watering and poor drainage will cause rot and buds and leaves to drop. Small daily waterings are best to maintain a constant moist condition.

Light—The poinsettia needs from 4 to 6 hours daily of bright sunlight.

Temperature—Should never fall below 35 degrees and can tolerate heat up to 90 degrees. Will do best to maintain constancy.

Fertilizer—After the rest period use a high phosphorous fertilizer cut to one-quarter package recommended use every two weeks until the blooms appear.

Pests—Mealy bugs, mites and aphids are some to watch for, however, with good plant keeping and fresh air circulation the poinsettias are very hardy plants and pest resistant.

Given proper growing conditions the plant will have more and larger blooms the second year. If you have the time and patience this is all just great, otherwise, do as I now do - toss the plant into the dumpster when the blooms fall and go to your favorite nursery or shop and buy lovely new plants just before Christmas. Nursery plants have been grown by experts and are by yours with no hassle.
