Lodger's tax treasury bolstered by thousands

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

The Lodger's Tax Committee and the Village of Ruidoso have $29,000 "extra" in one chunk to spend on promoting Ruidoso.

Three of the five members of the committee met Tuesday in a regular meeting and learned that $29,000 will be credited to the lodger's tax committee fund to show up on February financial statements.

The $29,000 is the result of a concerted effort under the guidance of Dave Thompson, village attorney, and by Village Clerk Tammie Maddox to bring delinquent accounts up to date.

Ruidoso Inn on Highway 70 Ruidoso was $29,000 in arrears — since 1988. The Inn apparently had gone through a bankruptcy proceeding under former owners. That was a part of the collection problem.

Other delinquent accounts have been collected this fiscal year, but nothing like the $29,000, Maddox indicated.

The lodger's tax is a three percent tax on gross receipts taken in by lodging establishments.

Certain state guidelines rule how the money can be spent. The main expenditure in Ruidoso is in media advertising.

Portions are allocated to various organizations in the village to advertise their events.

For this year, organizations or events which have benefited include the following:

—Chili Cookoff, $1,000; Springtime in the Rockies, $3,000; Aspenfest, $5,000; Connoisseur Classic, Retirees Promotion, $2,000; Golden Aspen Motorcycle Rally, $3,000; Apache Trails, $1,000; Lincoln Heritage Trust, $1,500; Oktoberfest, $2,500.

Also Ruidoso Valley Greeters, $1,500; Sun Country, $500; Lincoln County BBQ War Assn., $1,000; Lodger's Tax Committee advertising, $2,100; White Mountain Challenged, $100; Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium.

Sign for Ruidoso, $800; Parks and Recreation, $1,500; Ruidoso Lapel pins, $3,500.

Lodger's tax income for the first six months of the fiscal year added to $90,148; total collections for 1989-90 (12 months) was $155,467.

The total for 1988-89 was $137,557.

Organizations applying for lodger's tax funds must provide receipts and/or tear sheets to prove advertising and promotion expenditures.

The committee Tuesday allocated $3,995.33 to the Lincoln County BBQ War Assn. This brings the association up to the $1,000 originally allocated.

The $1,500 approved for the Chamber of Commerce Greeter's was allocated.

A quarterly report and projection of expenditures by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce was received from Jerry Watts, executive director.

LTC members approved a disbursement of $10,000 to Retirement Services. The money had been committed previously.

The committee requires financial reports on expenditures and planned expenditures from recipients.

The LTC recommends expenditures to the village council which has the final authority to determine how money will be spent.

Committee members Slover Cape told other members he wanted to make a statement.

"I would like to see the lodger's tax money spent out of town to bring people here rather than spend the money here," he said.

He said Tuesday only 500 lift tickets were sold at the ski area and asked, "What's wrong?"

He said the snow is good, "the weather is good and decried 'empty street' in Ruidoso, but admitted this time of year is historically 'slow'."

Cape said he opposed funding the retirement services and the Greeters, but seconded motions for payments because the money already had been committed.

Member Mark Doth pointed out that Greeters advertise the Christmas Jubilee in many area towns, that the advertising money they spend is spent out of the village.

Jay Francis, who presided at the session, says he tends to agree with Cape, that money would be spent away from Ruidoso to bring more people into town, especially skiers.

The committee worked on guidelines to be followed by entities requesting funds.

But, any vote was delayed until the full committee can meet.

The chairman of the committee Ed Hyman had surgery recently, and member Pat Morrison was absent because of a family emergency.

High speed chase ends in arrest

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A harrowing chase up and down the mountain at speeds in excess of a 100 mph ended in Glencoe with the arrest of Daniel Orr of Tahoka, Texas.

State police officer Mike Howard, working an accident at the 277 milepost on Highway 70, noticed a blue Chevrolet pickup swerving west toward Ruidoso Downs. He put out a bulletin.

Sheriff's Deputy Orlando Montes responded and met Orr near Biscuit Hill.

Montes turned on his flashing lights and followed Orr for two miles before he was able to get him to stop.

Montes approached the driver's side of the pickup. Orr took off, brushing Montes into a spin.

Montes called for backup. Ruidoso Downs officer Bobby Angermiller was in the vicinity and both officers took off in a high speed pursuit.

HORSES MILL ABOUT THE SNOWY FIELDS OF RUIDOSO DOWNS

MainStreet cost figure is provided

A price tag has been placed on major improvements to the project area of MainStreet Ruidoso.

Carter and Burgess, city planners preparing a master plan for the project area in midtown Ruidoso, estimated costs should run about $871,000 including construction documents and a 15 percent contingency fund.

Work to be covered in that amount would include demolition of existing sidewalks, new concrete sidewalks with curb and gutter, street crossings with special paving, storm drain improvements, underground conduits and wire, street lights and pedestrian lights.

The board of MainStreet Ruidoso, meeting Wednesday, indicated the money will be sought from the 1991 Legislature with Rep. John Underwood and Sen. James Martin to carry the bills.

The board also set the date for the annual MainStreet Ruidoso meeting. It will be March 21 in the evening. The location will be announced.

Schools closed

Ruidoso Schools sessions were closed today because of the heavy snow. The weather station predicted as much as five inches of snow for the area.

Moderate temperatures could clear the roads by mid afternoon. Below freezing temperatures are expected for tonight.

Instructual center moves toward vote

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Special to The News

Every few years, the idea of starting a college campus in Ruidoso seems to surface and then die, but this time supporters are closing in on the goal.

Voters will have the final say February 5 on the latest effort by approving or rejecting a proposed one mill property tax levy to help support the university extension operation. Classes could start as early as the fall of this year.

Candidates for the Ruidoso School Board were briefed Tuesday about plans for the campus since the board would be responsible for overseeing its operation.

"Two years ago, the idea came up again and we asked Eastern New Mexico University (ENMU) for its help with a feasibility study," said steering committee co-chairman Rod Adamsop, who also is a school board member.

The study indicated overwhelming support for an instructional center from students, businesses and senior citizens, he said.

With the help of Chester Houghtwaugh, planning and analysis coordinator of ENMU, and Dr. Everett Frost, vice president of planning and analysis, a budget and sample course offering were drafted.

The proposal already has passed the scrutiny of the state. Now it's up to the voters within the Ruidoso school district.

One mill would provide 55 percent of the money needed for one year's operation, Adamsop said.

A mill is equal to $1 for each

$1,000 of taxable property value.

For example, the owner of a home valued at $60,000, but with a taxable value of $20,000 would pay $20 a year toward the campus operation.

Of the total estimated budget of $240,000, the millage would generate about $134,000, the state would contribute $84,000 and an estimated $28,000 would come from student tuition.

Tuition for each credit hour would be $17-19. The center would require the equivalent of 48 full time students to financially survive, which equates to about 180-200 part time students.

That may not be possible the first year, but if ENMU is the sponsoring university, it would plan on a few years of "nurturing" until the center was well established, Houghtwaugh told the candidates. Besides financial help, the university would provide some administrative services initially and a computer payroll.

But if Ruidoso can just attract the local students who now have to drive to Alamogordo for college classes, it will make its quota, he said.

The taxing unit would be confined to the Ruidoso school district. Students from outside the district would have to pay a higher tuition.

Co-chairman Sandy Gladden explained that other districts were not included because they then also would require a vote on millage and that could slow down or stop the project.

If additional districts want to join later, a mechanism has been built in that would allow them to contribute their own one mill levy. Their students would then pay the same tuition rate as Ruidoso students, she said.

The committee has stayed away from calling the campus a branch operation, because state officials get nervous, Gladden said.

"It's important to legislators that we won't be knocking on their doors in a few years for a big appropriation to construct buildings," she said.

A moratorium on branch campuses only recently has been lifted after a four years freeze due to the lagging economy and the shrinking pool of college-age children.

"We would be an off-campus instructional center," Gladden said.

To eliminate the need for new buildings, the campus would utilize existing district school facilities and proposed new municipal buildings, Gladden said. Both entities would be reimbursed.

"I see the center as an economic tool for the community," Gladden said. Courses and class times could be designed to accommodate seasonal industries and training demands in tourism-related businesses, she said.

"If an industry needed specific training for its personnel, we could handle it," she said. "Real estate appraisers have to go to school periodically. We could offer the courses here."

Classes in personal development, nutrition and retirement plans could be scheduled for senior citizens. Gifted and honor students could take high school and college courses simultaneously.

Vocational programs in trades such as heating and cooling are a top priority, as are computer training courses, Houghtwaugh said. The center may have to wait a year or two before the latter can be offered because it will require the purchase or leasing of equipment, he said.

Federal dollars also may be funneled into the center through courses for welfare recipients who are being encouraged to resume their educations.

Mickey McGuire, a steering committee member, said Ruidoso should be able to attract students during the summer from communities at lower elevations who would relish getting away from hot climates while taking courses and working a seasonal job.

Credits accumulated at the center would be transferable to ENMU and other universities in the state, Houghtwaugh said.

Ruidoso School Supt. Mike Gladden said the center would be a big drawing card for new industries and businesses when they are evaluating the community for possible relocation or construction of a new facility.

The creation of the center would provide part time positions for area teachers, who could moonlight as instructors for evening classes. Local people also may be hired for three clerical positions and two permanent teacher/administrative posts, Gladden said.

An agreement with a university cannot be signed unless and until the millage is approved, Houghtwaugh said.

Chamber directors cover much ground at session

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor

Exposure to the air transportation survey report prepared by the transportation committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce was a highlight of a Chamber board of directors meeting, Wednesday, January 9.

(See separate story in today's edition of The Ruidoso News.)

Directors and staff covered a lot of ground at the two-hour session. Ground covered included approving a resolution seeking new taxing authority from the state to promote the coming civic events center to hearing reports on the April Connoisseur Classic III plans and guaranteeing a stop-gap loan for the retirement services division of the Chamber.

Reporting on the Connoisseur Classic plans was Frankie Jarrell who outlined events and dates for the events. Dates are April 6, 7 and 8.

It is considered the kick-off event for Springtime in the Rockies.

The executive committee for the events will be working through a number of subcommittees in planning, a report to the board said.

Connoisseur Classic III will also be enhanced this year by the addition of a full-blown art exhibition, where galleries will have a chance to rent spaces in the location where the Grand Tasting, Springtime Celebration and Champagne brunch will be staged. This will add a new dimension to those events and bring in some money for charity, Jarrell reported.

Chamber directors agreed to support a Camp Enchantment for young people with cancer to attend a summer program at the School for the visually Handicapped in Alamogordo each year.

Ruidoso will host the 80 youngsters and 20 staff members for a day and a half or so, Mark Doth said.

He said the advertising committee of the Chamber had agreed to support the function.

Board member Don Dutton said he approves of the project, but that no committee of the Chamber should commit the Chamber to anything without executive committee approval.

Doth and the chairman of the ad committee, Craig Rawlings, reported that any ad committee involvement would be volunteer work by committee members. No funds or time has been committed, they said.

Jerry Watts, executive director of the Chamber, said by-laws require that any commitments by committees be cleared by the executive committee.

The cancer patients will have a dinner at the Flying J Ranch, a breakfast meeting with jockeys at the race track, taken to the Ski Apache area and will have other entertainment while here, Doth reported. Dates are July 17-18.

Danny Sisson, president of the President's Club of the Chamber, said the club is percolating. He said 13 new members have been recruited for the chamber during the three months preceding January 1. Dues in the amount of $2,895 have resulted, he said.

He said turnover until recently in the club has been heavy.

He indicated a number of members dropped out after being given assignments. He said present membership is made up largely of younger members who moved to Ruidoso fairly recently.

Board members applauded his no-nonsense approach to running the club.

Members heard a scholarship report from Brenda Bruckner and an invitation from George Puckett, executive director of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County.

He invited board members to hear Robert O. Anderson at the annual meeting of EDC, last Friday night.

Under state law, an entity such as the retirement services division of the Chamber must spend money to receive matching funds from the state.

The board approved guaranteeing a loan of $8,000 to retirement services pending receipt of matching funds.

Watts presented a rough draft of a proposal requested by the village involving marketing and/or managing the civic events center when built.

The proposal will be refined between now and a January 23 meeting of the board. The board at that time will approve the proposal or revise it. A deadline of February 1 is in place.

In the draft of the proposal, the Chamber indicates it would like to market the facility but not manage it.

The proposal also called for an increased and reorganized Chamber staff and remodeling of Chamber facilities.

A dramatic increase in the number of calls handled by Chamber staff from potential visitors was mentioned as one facet of the need for increased staff. Inquiries were 13,994 more in 1990 than in 1989, Kathleen Michelena, CVB director, reported. She said it is hard to keep a receptionist because of telephone pressure on the receptionist and, in addition, on the staff.

Ron Andrews, in asking approval for the resolution seeking new taxing authority, said Ruidoso is near the maximum on taxing ability.

The form any taxing authority would take is left to the judgment of the legislature.

It could be a tax on real estate transactions, an increase in the lodger's tax, a local option liquor tax, a new hospitality tax, return of a portion of the state's gross receipts tax to the village or another form.

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Addy appoints new trustee Stevens

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor

With the appointment of Karen Stevens to the board of trustees at Ruidoso Downs, the board is at full strength for the first time in a long time.

Mayor Bonnie Addy nominated Stevens Monday night at a regular meeting of the board of trustees. The vote was confirmed by a unanimous vote of the board.

Stevens is an 18-year resident of Ruidoso Downs. She is the wife of Danny Stevens, a dirt contractor. She has had municipal experience as a deputy city clerk, Mayor Addy told trustees.

After a 39-minute executive session to start the Monday night meeting off, trustees faced a rather lengthy agenda.

Mayor Addy said she called the executive session to discuss personnel, but it was obvious that part of the discussion in the closed session was to hopefully ease friction between the mayor and one or more trustees.

Trustees agreed to enter into a coalition with the Hubbard Foundation to seek public funds from the 1991 Legislature to fund a feasibility and impact study regarding, in essence, making Ruidoso Downs an art and museum center through the coalition with the Hubbard interests.

R. Dee Hubbard owns the Ruidoso Downs Race Track and is involved in promoting the Hubbard Art Museum, Museum of the Horse and Cowboy Symposium.

Any funds obtained would be administered by the village of Ruidoso Downs.

Trustees gave approval to the Ruidoso Downs Ladies Auxiliary to again stage the Arts and Crafts Fair in August.

A Fair Housing Ordinance was adopted to put the village in compliance with CDBG (block grant) guidelines. The lengthy ordinance is on file at village hall. It defines unlawful practices, discrimination in the sale or rental of housing, exemptions, enforcement and other factors.

Trustees also adopted a resolution condemning a piece of property considered dangerous to the public welfare.

The owner of what formerly housed Apparel Well Service and Pecos Valley Pellet Company, Robert Keeran of Albuquerque, has been advised to demolish the structure.

The building is located at 217 E. Highway 70 in Palo Verde Subdivision.

One trustee recalled that the building once was a post office.

Trustees agreed to hire a temporary grant clerk; funds under a CDBG administration fund already are in hand. The grant involved is the $132,000 grant for a senior center.

The clerk will serve as long as earmarked funds hold out.

Snow removal on a street at Inspiration Heights Apartments came under scrutiny. The road in question apparently is half in the village

The Ruidoso Downs board of trustees added a member which resulted in a full house, the first in a long time. Meeting Monday with every seat full were (seated from left) Ray Fredrickson, Jackie Branum, Mayor Bonnie Addy, Margie Morales, Charlotte Craig and Alice Allison. Standing are the new member Karen Stevens and Jim Rethmel. Stevens has been a Ruidoso Downs resident for 18 years.

Village clerk Maurice Gudgel swears in new trustee Karen Stevens at the trustee meeting, Monday night at village hall in the Downs.

Little Theatre season opens March 9

Ruidoso Little Theatre has announced its 11th season with four new productions running from March 9 through September 12, at Cree Meadows Restaurant, according to Ruidoso Little Theatre member Karen Barrow.

"This year's productions are mostly comedies," said Barrow. "Our audiences have requested lighter entertainment throughout our history so we've responded to their likes."

The season kicks off with Noel Coward's Waiting in the Wings, March 7 with performances March 7-9, 14-16, and 21-23. Directed by Cem McClellan, Waiting in the Wings centers around the acting profession. Set in a home for retired actresses, the story reinforced the importance of camaraderie in old age.

Greater Tuna by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard will have performances May 9-11, 16-18, and 23-25. Directed by Dan Barrow, this Off-Broadway hit consolidates all its characters into two actors representing the entire population of Tuna, Texas, "the third smallest town in Texas," in a tour-de-force of quick-change artistry.

Another Noel Coward standard,

Blithe Spirit, will be performed July 18-20, 25-27 and August 1-3. Directed by Ruidoso Little Theatre founder Betty Bennett, this production involves the entrance into the spirit world by a twice-married man who unintentionally encounters his late wife. What follows is a hilarious conclusion to this classic farce.

The final performance of the season will be Night of January 16th by Ayn Rand with performance on September 26-28, October 3-5 and 10-12. Under the direction of Carl Mori, this play centers around a murder trial which concludes by actively involving the audience as jurors, rendering an honest, yet unplanned verdict.

Curtain time per performances is 8 p.m. with a one matinee per production beginning at 2 p.m. Adult admission is $6 per person and student and senior citizen admission is $4. Season tickets include admission to each of the four scheduled season plays, the Betty Awards and one Ruidoso Little Theatre membership. A special menu is also available for those wishing to enjoy the complete dinner theatre experience with dinner beginning at 6 p.m.

Wheel deep in snow

Days of chugging a heavy wagon bed around are over for this wheel that now settles for being an art object for falling snow.

Lake Lucero trip through White Sands

An auto caravan to White Sands National Monument's Lake Lucero, the source of the white sands, is scheduled for Saturday, January 26, according to Dennis Ditmanson of the National Park Service.

Ditmanson said reservations are required and can be obtained by calling Monument Headquarters at 479-6124. The caravan is limited to 40 vehicles.

The trip will begin at 2 p.m. at the Small Missile Range Gate intersection at U.S. Highways 70-82, 25 miles west of White Sands National Monument Headquarters, between mileposts 174-175.

Park rangers and military police will brief the group on regulations that apply during the trip.

The caravan will proceed over paved roads, through the White Sands Missile Range, to the trailhead to Lake Lucero.

Approximately two hours at the lake area allows time for the 3/4-mile conducted walk to the lake, snack, photograph taking and then return to the vehicles.

The caravan will then be escorted back to the starting point on U.S. Highway 70-82, arriving there about 5 p.m.

All vehicles should have a spare tire and sufficient gasoline for the and one and $100 the third time and a court appearances beyond that.

Discussion was delayed until the January 28 meeting on a proposed zone change from R-1 to PD-C for property owned by Johnnie Burke. Burke proposed a three-year improvement plan for the property where he proposed a mobile home park.

The three-year plan includes underground utilities, a minimum lot size of 5,000 square feet, oiled streets and storage shed for each space.

At a special meeting last week, trustees approved a plan for paying village employees every two weeks instead of on the 1st and 15th of each month.

35-mile round trip to the Lake Lucero trailhead. Each person should have sufficient drinking water, a snack if desired, sunglasses, stout walking shoes and suitable dress for the weather. Cameras may not be used while passing through the missile range, but are encouraged for use while at the monument lake area.

All persons will need to be at the Small Missile Range Gate intersection by the departure time of 2 p.m. No vehicles may join the caravan once it leaves for the lake.

Ditmanson said that demand for trips to Lucero have pushed the formerly once a year trip to once a month.

Persons making reservations for the trip should give the park their telephone number in the event of a cancellation.

Ditmanson said persons unable to make the trip after making reservations should notify the park number so that a replacement can be called.

Asked if the current mid-east problem would affect the trip through the sensitive missile range, Ditmanson said, "It never has before."

Poor connections is major complaint over Mesa service

Poor connections in Albuquerque and El Paso were the major complaint of Lincoln County residents who responded to a survey on Mesa Airlines service in Ruidoso last year.

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber transportation committee, headed by Ronnie Paulger, prepared a survey to give Mesa "grades" on various aspects of service.

Fifty-seven percent of the 47 responses on El Paso connections said the connections were "poor."

Some 54 percent felt the same way about connections in Albuquerque.

On a scale of one to five, Mesa scored somewhere between one and three from people who had second-hand knowledge of service.

On the size of the airplanes, the majority gave a three to the airline. The same was true on ticket prices.

The majority felt baggage handling was good to excellent.

On overall satisfaction with experiences, there were an equal number saying service was poor with those who said it excellent. A few more said their experiences were good.

Availability of land transportation and quality rated about a "C" grade.

Most people prefer a 7 a.m. departure time and a 9 a.m. arrival time. In the afternoon, more people wanted a 5 p.m. departure time and 5 p.m. arrival time.

Eighty-five percent of the 130 responses about value of air service agreed that airline service is vital to Ruidoso's future.

Seventy-one percent said they would agree to a subsidy program, while 29 percent said no.

Percentages agreed to different types of subsidies were as follows:

—Private funding of all subsidy, 10 percent.

—Public funding in the same manner used for funding police, fire, etc., 26 percent.

—Would agree to a special tax for funding of air service, 28 percent.

—Would agree to special public-private subsidy, 30 percent.

—Would agree to pledge personal dollars, 3 percent.

The majority of those polled (53 percent) felt that one-way ticket prices should be from $30 to $40.

Some 42 percent felt $41 to $50 would be fair, while five percent would go for a $51 to $60 price.

The survey asked for comments.

"This would seem to be an excellent time for the village of Ruidoso to 'join' forces with the city of Roswell in their quest to get American Eagle to begin service here. American Eagle being a more qualified professional airline," was one comment.

"Consistency is vital. We have many female customers who would use it if they knew it would be here when they are ready to go home," was another.

Others were:

—Needs a schedule that allows people from Dallas/Ft. Worth area to have good connections. ... needs more advertising.

—Air service on a scheduled basis will never work! The town cannot afford the subsidy! The economic impact is not worth the cost.

—Any subsidy should begin NO SOONER THAN when Ruidoso's Convention/Events Center is fully operational. When it does begin, it should be done with enough forethought and planning so that it can last for years if necessary, i.e., NOT 6 months on, 6 months off.

—Flights to Albuquerque and El Paso should be scheduled so that passengers can arrive early enough to take care of business and return about 5 p.m. the same day. No stay-over would be necessary.

Some people who responded thought gross receipts taxes should be used for a subsidy. One person said no public funds should be used as a subsidy.

"You should concentrate on getting something to attract people like gambling or entertainment, like Branson, Missouri — then people will come. If people want to come had enough the airlines will service our area without your help," one person said.

Another called for more extensive marketing and more public awareness.

The Silver Lining

West winds sing down the valley

The Cold Snow

This is being sent to your right at mid day, on January 14, right in the "deep of Winter", and yet it is a mild day for this time of year. Under a sky with clouds moving overhead driven by a west wind, the temperature is 44 in the shade.

How the clouds have rolled by for a while and the bright sun shines down upon golden hills on the sunny side of the world, and on the white snow patches all on the shady side.

This last snow was unusually cold, and everywhere on the mountain meadows and the south side of the valley, and under the pines and cedars all along the mountain side. The west wind keeps singing down the valley, carrying a warm breath from the deserts away to the west.

And yet the patches of snow refuse to budge an inch, as they cling stubbornly to the ground, waiting to be reinforced by the next snow, which is showing signs of building up over in the Eastern sky.

Now the sun has come out brighter still, and the temperature has gone up to 50. And we have a Spring-in-winter day. And still the sparkling drifts of snow refuse to release one drop of snow-melt water. This is one of the coldest snows I can remember, and it is all to the good. For one thing they let us know that winter is still here with us, and for another, they will combine with the next snow to make a good snow pack.

Later on there will be sunny days and by

warm spells between the cold snaps. We must be very careful during these mild spells not to go into the mountains alone; and be sure to be prepared for cold weather.

Special Services

At Saint Anne's Chapel
Special services were held last Sunday at Saint Anne's Chapel celebrating the baptism of Our Lord by Saint John the Baptist.

Father John Penn preached an inspiring sermon based on the gospel according to Saint Mark: "And a voice came from Heaven, 'Thou art my beloved Son; with thee I am well pleased.'"

Nellie Ruth Jones in the prayers of the people, gave thanks for the birthdays of Bran Nalder, Claudia Dick Hall, and Lisa Delhotal Nasin.

Also for the anniversaries of Hermie and Roberta Burk, and Doug and Vicki Conley.

And the baptism of Louis, Roger, and Richard Phillips.

Second Calf

This must be the year of early calves. The little heifer, Epiphany "Eppie" showed up with her mother on the 12 of January. And after nightfall a young cow we call "Gotch Ear" appeared out of the hills and began calling. After about a half hour, her calling ceased.

Then the next morning down at the barn, here was Gotch Ear with a little bull calf the same size as Eppie. Eppie welcomed her little half brother by inviting him to run a race with her. And they went jumping and running with all the pure happiness of early childhood.

After a while the little bull went down to a sunny spot in the middle of the field, in a slight depression in the ground and, lay down. Here he stayed most of the day, dozing and soaking up the sun.

Toward evening he came up to the barn, and he and Eppie went running and playing again.

This morning the little bull was in his same spot in the field. He came up to the barn where his mother was waiting and drank his milk. Then he went back to his favorite spot and went to sleep.

I call the little fellow Sleepy John. He is very tame and gentle and perfectly marked, and is growing rapidly. He is the companion and protector of his little half sister, Eppie. They are the picture of childhood happiness.

Let us thank God for the miracle and the blessing of new life, revealed in little calves; and all our many other blessings.

Capitan village trustees increase renter water deposits

In an effort to curb the number of delinquent water bills in Capitan, the Village Board of Trustees has approved new "get tough" utility regulations.

But action was delayed by the board Monday on a proposed increase in water and sewer rates until trustees can determine where and to what extent losses are occurring in the water operation.

Beginning February 1, a renter will have to pay a $100 utility deposit, which is double the $50 deposit paid by people who own their homes.

If tenants are delinquent in payment for two months, the village will notify the owner of the property.

"This change is to protect the property owner from renters who skip without paying," said Mayor Frank Warth. "The owners ultimately are responsible for all water bills."

The property cannot be rented to a new tenant until the outstanding bill is paid.

The $100 deposit could be split into two payments to lessen the financial impact when people first move into a new residence, trustees agreed. For extra backup, they instructed utility department personnel to record the driver's licenses of applicants.

The trustees also agreed to set a policy on collection of delinquent bills to ensure that accounts don't drag on for years. Currently, the village is carrying about $70,000 in overdue bills, a large portion of which are in the form of liens filed against property. Each month an account is delinquent, a $5 charge is added.

The new regulations provide that the village may draw against a deposit to cover a delinquent bill.

The trustees said accounts should not be allowed to go more than two months in arrears before sending a notice that the meter will be disconnected. The deposit should then cover any overdue amount.

But if the bill is not satisfied, a lien will be filed against the property. If the lien is not paid within 60 days, the village will move to foreclose on the property.

"In the past, you have never enforced the provision for liens, so it has been viewed as not having any teeth," said Village Attorney J. Robert Beauvais. "It's inconceivable that anyone would let a house go (instead of paying) a $200 bill."

But if a foreclosure did have to be filed, the village would be able to recoup the utility bill and all expenses connected to the legal action from the proceeds of the sale, he said.

Beauvais said the tougher lien policy should be written into the ordinance to eliminate any preferential treatment. "That way it's automatic and not left up to anyone's discretion," he said.

The village system serves about 250 sewer customers and 500 water users. Those customers will be in line for a deposit refund after they have received service for four years and if they have paid their utility bills on time.

The new ordinance provides for the refunds, but there may be a problem for customers who signed up before 1985, Warth said. The village records only go back that far. People will have to present their deposit receipts if they were on line before that time, because years ago many people paid no deposit, he said.

"Oh come on," chided Juanita Magnone, one of the 35 residents at the public hearing. "That's dirty pool if you paid it and you don't keep a record of it."

She said she has been a customer since 1976.

"We can't give money away without some type of justification," Warth said.

Capitan resident Diane Riska said she came to the meeting to try to convince the trustees not to increase the water rates. They are too high already, she said.

The trustees pointed out that the rates have not been increased since 1982 and maintenance costs have gone up in the last few years.

"The auditor has told us that we have been losing money on water for the last two years," Warth said. "We have to look at the system item by item to identify where."

Trustee Norman Renfro said the village should find out the actual cost of producing 1,000 gallons of water, project future costs, and then set the new rates based on those figures.

Childress contract extended

After a two hour executive session behind closed doors, the Capitan School Board Tuesday agreed to extend the contract of School Supt. Dr. Scott Childress for another year.

But the decision was not unanimous. Board member Ron Roybal voted against the motion.

"My number one priority as a board member is the children of the Capitan School District," Roybal said Wednesday in a prepared statement. "At this time, certain issues concerning the district are not being addressed. As a board member, I looked at the direction the system is headed and I feel a change is needed."

Roybal, who has served on the board for two years, refused to be more specific about the issues bothering him.

"I can't give examples," he said. "I can't discuss personnel. I don't want to elaborate. This is a small enough town, if people have problems in Capitan, they can come and talk to me."

The board's action will give Childress a two year contract with the district. It will expire June 31, 1993. His current annual salary is $50,500.

Childress also declined to discuss the apparent disagreement on direction. "I don't think it would be in the best interests of the school district to make any comment."

In other personnel moves, apparently discussed during the executive session, the board voted to accept the resignation of James Fowler as boy's track coach and to appoint Pat Ventura to handle the spring track season.

Board members also named Ventura head football coach for 1991-92. Fowler served in that post in the 1990-91 season.

Capitan's audit healthy

Outside of its utility operation, the Village of Capitan appears to be financially healthy, auditor Keith Harrington told village trustees Monday.

But that's a qualified opinion because there's no way to determine whether the acquisition and sale of property was handled correctly in the past. No records were kept, he said.

"They haven't maintained detailed property records since the village started," Harrington said. That situation was corrected last year and records now are being kept, but from an auditor's point of view, it's impossible to determine exactly what occurred in the past, he said.

"It would be too expensive to go back" and try to reconstruct the records, he said.

The only other recommendation listed by Harrington in the annual village audit was for improved controls of accounts receivable.

After reviewing the audit, which already had been accepted by the State Auditor, the trustees discussed cracking down on trucks hauling unsecured garbage.

"Debris is falling off and there is nothing we can do at present because we find out after the fact," Mayor Frank Warth said.

Village Attorney J. Robert Beauvais suggested amending the village's existing ordinance on littering to give the gate attendant at the landfill the authority to cite drivers who have unsecured loads.

The ordinance now requires the village law enforcement officer to witness the littering before a person can be given a citation.

Trustee Gilbert Montoya said the village wants to be careful that it does not discourage people from using the landfill "because it's business for us."

He proposed that letters be written to customers asking that they secure their loads when transporting trash and garbage.

MV Dept. open four days

If you need a new car or driver's license, next week is the time to pay a visit to Capitan Village Hall on Lincoln Street.

Netta Nolen, Motor Vehicle Department clerk, will be waiting with a brand new Wang computer to issue driver and vehicle licenses.

To allow Nolen time to become familiar with the new system, the office will be opened four days next week instead of the usual two-day schedule.

Nolen will be there to help from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1-4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

"This new computer will tie Capitan into the records in Santa Fe," Nolen explained.

More Capitan students, more dollars

Higher than anticipated enrollment has improved the financial condition of the Capitan school district, School Supt. Dr. Scott Childress told the School Board Tuesday.

The enrollment has jumped from 468 to 490, but more students also mean higher operating expenses, Childress said.

"The budget was extremely tight last spring, but since our enrollment is up, we have an additional $81,000 we can put back into the budget," he said.

About $38,000 of that money the board agreed to funnel into areas of the budget that were dipping low.

"We hired a few teachers we didn't have in the initial budget and that category is showing red at the moment," Childress said. An additional special education teacher is scheduled to be hired at a salary of $11,000.

Other areas that bolstered by the board were operation and maintenance of the plant; employee social security and group insurance, and non-instructional and other athletic activities.

That last category started the year with $27,000 and was down to $3,000, Childress said. The board added $5,000, which will be used to cover athletic expenses such as meals, lodging and travel.

Those items usually would come out of the athletic fund, Childress said, but it is down to $600 because of low gate receipts.

"It has never been so low before," he said. "We have had a bad year athletically, but it didn't all start with this year."

Cable rate going up soon

Cable television subscribers in Capitan will be paying more for their basic service next month.

Lincoln Cablevision serves about 265 customers in the village, a company representative said. Their monthly bills for basic service will increase by 5 percent from $13 to $13.65.

"Nothing can be done, they're unregulated by federal law," Mayor Frank Warth said Monday after reading the notice during the meeting of the village trustees.

"But maybe there are some changes coming," he said. "There is a committee in the legislature now to re-evaluate cable television regulation."

E-911 Program

In 1989 the New Mexico Legislature passed a law that set up a mechanism for funding a state-wide emergency number. It became known as the E-911 Act. The act allows each local governing body (municipalities and counties) to pass an ordinance to establish a 911 system. The local phone company is then obligated BY STATE LAW to collect $.25 from each telephone customer (except for those on the Low Income Telephone Assistance Program—LITAP). The telephone company turns this $.25 surcharge over to the State of New Mexico where the funds are retained. Local governing bodies (counties and municipalities) may then apply to the local government division of the State Department of Finance and Administration to draw from these funds to set up their own local E-911 system.

State wants solid waste check

Legislation that would give states the authority to reject solid waste from other areas has been introduced under the co-sponsorship of U.S. Senator Pete V. Domenici, (R-NM).

The legislation is part of a fight Domenici has been waging against interstate dumping of solid wastes.

He co-sponsored identical legislation last year. It passed the Senate, but was killed in the House of Representatives.

"By ensuring such states' rights under federal policy, we are allowing states to protect themselves from literally being dumped upon," Domenici said. "States need to be able to control the flow of waste across their borders."

The legislation will be part of the solid waste management debate over re-authorization of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

The senator is spearheading a drive to organize the leaders of Western States to help push the initiative through Congress.

In addition to providing the ability to reject solid waste from other states, the legislation would establish differential fee systems to allow communities to recover costs or to receive economic incentives if they agree to accept wastes from other states.

The bill is co-sponsored by Senator Dan Coats, (R-Ind.).

New Mexicans, who clearly do not want to be the dumping ground for the East Coast, have been threatened by the possibility of huge landfills being located within our borders, landfills that will be filled with solid waste generated, not by New Mexicans, but by residents of Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states," Domenici said.

Although he is aware of the need to address the problem of increasingly limited disposal options for many states, he does not believe some states should be able to force their garbage on others, he said.

"The entire debate on solid waste crisis is grim," Domenici said. "This nation needs to move away from generating so much waste and to embrace recycling and other programs to reduce the amount of trash we send to landfills."

"I was going in excess of 90 miles per hour and the suspect left me like I was tied to a tree," Montes said.

As the two officers approached Ruidoso Downs, they observed that Orr suddenly decided to make a U-turn and head back down the valley. Montes said Orr nearly hit two bystanders on the curb as he made his turn.

The high speed chase picked up speed as the trio raced down the mountain curves. It didn't end until Orr was finally forced off the road near Glenwood, 10 miles later.

Montes said Orr was incoherent and "very drunk." Orr was placed under arrest for DWI.

Montes said he found a loaded 357 Dan Wesson pistol in the front seat of his pickup.

Orr later was charged with evading, obstructing and resisting a police officer and a number of traffic violations. He was booked in the Carrizozo county jail.

RHS Warriors sweep Artesia at home - split on road

The girl squads of the Ruidoso Warrior and Artesia Bulldogs squared off in back to back games to prove once again what home field advantage means in basketball.

Warrior head coach Jody Blanton's Warriors were beaten by the Dogs last Thursday in Artesia in a very tight game, 47-45.

Those same Warriors at Ruidoso Saturday, held the girl Dogs without a single point in the first quarter while trouncing the enemy 48-29.

Coach Dennis Davis's JV squad fared better with back to back victories including a thrilling overtime victory at home, 41-39.

Davis's JV team apparently didn't believe in home court advantage and creamed the Dogs in Artesia, 46-26.

VARSITY

The varsity tilt in Artesia was a close contest all the way with the Warriors outscoring the Dogs in the final frame 12-9, a bucket short.

The varsity provided a beautifully bounced scoring attack in their loss to Artesia. Jennifer Parker, DeAnna Swanner and Amy Wishard all scored 10 points each. Diana McMasters plunked in eight points and Kansas Miranda found the hoop for six points.

In Ruidoso, Wishard held the hot hand with 14 points, eight in the Warrior's 16 point second quarter.

Only the Warriors cold 8-26 free throw shooting prevented the game from being a greater rout.

Other scorers were Swanner, 10; Miranda 8, Candace Muniz, 6; Parker, 4; McMasters, 4; Jerie Keeton, 1; and Tabatha Parnell 1.

JV

Overtimes are always fun when the Warriors win and Davis had his JV'er's hyped in the fifth quarter dumping six points to the Dogs four.

When Keeton grabbed a long pass and sank the layup, the Warrior defense took over the final seconds to seal the victory.

The Warriors overcame a third quarter scare when the Dogs capitalized on a Warrior cold shooting hand, three points for the quarter, to tie the tilt at 25-25. Both teams scored 10 points in the fourth frame.

Parnell led the Warriors with eight points, followed by Keeton, 7; Cicilee Makowski, 6; Adrian Ames, Barb McWhorter and Martina Martinez all hit 4; Kim Floyd and Michelle Morris scored 3 each; and Sarah Dix was good for a bucket.

The JV wipeout of the Dogs in Artesia was reported in Monday's paper.

The Warriors A-B-C team will travel that long and lonely road to Cobre this Friday for a game against the Indians. The first game will begin at 5:30 p.m.

Hunter Jeromey Hoover honored for safety

For thinking safety first, Jeromey Hoover, 12, was honored by the Ruidoso Hunters Safety Instructors at a ceremony in the Ruidoso Police Station last Saturday.

The young Hoover, who completed the New Mexico Hunters Safety Course last October, had accompanied his father and his brother to the Nogal Canyon area this past deer hunt.

"Although Jeromey didn't bag his deer, he did do something which really impressed his father and the Ruidoso hunters safety instructors," said Pete Esquibel Jr., president of Ruidoso Hunters Safety. "In our course we cannot possibly teach anyone how to be a good hunter in a one week's course lasting only a few hours a night. So what we strive to do is impress upon all of our students, young and old, is to think safety first."

Esquibel said Jeromey's father recently told him a story about the hunt, and thanked the instructors for their work.

Jeromey had spotted a legal buck deer on a hillside approximately 200 yards away. He surveyed the situation. The buck was on the hillside which gave a good backstop for the projectile and it was within range. After shouldering his rifle, Jeromey noticed a speck of fluorescent orange on another hill. Jeromey put his rifle down and concluded, that the shot at this angle could possibly ricochet towards the other hunter. He decided that the shot was not worth the chance of someone getting hurt, and refused to fire at the deer.

Esquibel said hunters experience this situation many times in a hunting career, and whether another hunter feels the shot should or shouldn't have been taken is a judgment an individual must decide.

"In this case, a 12 year old young man made a decision to consider safety first and we are very proud of him," Esquibel said.

For Jeromey's actions, he was awarded a certificate of appreciation and a cap, courtesy of Rick and Mary Jo Riddle of Noisy Water Artwear, which read "Safe Hunter".

Ski team competes in Rockies

The Ruidoso Ski Team's J1 and J2 boys traveled to Winter Park, Colorado for their first USSA Rocky Mountain UVEK Series Race. Along with their coach Tim Royer.

Chad Hairston, Juan Carlos Elizondo, Brian Ricci and Kevin Balatche participated in a three day race, giant slalom and two slaloms.

Chad Hairston, from Ruidoso, started the giant slalom in 80th place and moved up to finish 51st. He moved into higher places in the slalom both days.

Elizondo, from Juarez, moved up 51 places in his first day of slalom and raced consistently the other race days.

Ricci from El Paso returned to the team after being inactive. He finished all three days with strong consistent runs.

Balatche of Mescalero is new to the team this season. He finished the third day slalom with outstanding first and second runs.

The Ruidoso Ski Team will be at home this Saturday, January 19, for the Fun Race they are sponsoring. The team will then travel to Glenwood Springs, Colorado, for the Ski Sunlight. The younger members on the team, JIII, JIV and JV, will be in route to Sandia Crest in Albuquerque on January 26.

The Ruidoso Ski Team has been around for over 15 years.

Anyone that can competently ski Capitan Mountain would be a good enough skier to join the team.

Currently, the ski team roster runs between 30-35. Members are from the Ruidoso area, Artesia, El Paso and Juarez.

Wharton said the emphasis competitive racing. We have two coaches, Hubert Seigmann from Austria and Tim Royer from California. Both coaches competitively raced on ski teams as children and now both are certified with the United States Ski Team Association as coaches.

Wharton said there are five categories in both girls and boys skiing. JV is for the 8-10 years old, JIV is 11-12, JIII is 13-14, JII is 15-16 and JI is 17-18.

Wharton said there is three different training plans.

Plan "A" is weekday and weekend training with the coaches. Plan "B" is weekend only. Wharton said many out of towners choose this plan. Plan "C" is weekdays only.

Within the categories a racer can choose to be licensed or unlicensed which determines the kind of race entered.

Within New Mexico the ski clubs sponsors run races that are open to all unlicensed and licensed skiers. The qualifying races in the Rocky Mountain Division, which includes the Ruidoso team, is only opened to the licensed racers. Many of these races are held in Colorado and a few are in New Mexico.

Deer hunts curtailed

The New Mexico State Game Commission has adopted regulations that will curtail considerably the season for rifle deer hunters in south central and southwestern parts of the state.

The regulations were adopted because of complaints about the reduced number of deer in the southern part of the state. The shortened seasons are designed to reduce hunter numbers and readjust some hunters to other areas, lessening the impact in popular deer areas in south central and southwestern New Mexico.

Nine different hunting periods have been established by the commission. Hunts on much of the northern part of the state and in a portion of the southeast will remain the same as last year with three hunt periods of two, five and seven days. The season dates are November 23, November 6-10 and November 13-19.

But in most of southern New Mexico, seasons were cut in half.

For more information, contact the Game and Fish Department or local license vendors.

The commission also changed the bag limit for all rifle, bow and muzzle-loader deer hunts to fork antlered deer, which possess antlers with a fork at least two inches long. The change was aimed at promoting bigger bucks in deer herds.

In spite of objections from the Department of Game and Fish, the commission voted to change to a draw system for deer licenses in two years. All hunters will have to apply for a hunt area and be successful in a drawing to receive a deer hunting license.

The first deadline for special hunts for next season will occur in February. The application deadline for depredation hunts and spring turkey hunts on Valle Vidal is February 4. Application forms soon should be available at license vendors.

KEEP THE PRESSURE ON

NEW CARS' COOLING SYSTEMS:
Note: Never remove a pressure cap from a hot radiator. You could be scalded by steam. Allow the engine to cool before adding a 50-50 mix of antifreeze and water. Then determine the cause of overheating and take corrective measures. Smaller cooling systems have less capacity and have less reserve. Keep your recovery tank topped off.

A clean cooling system works better and lasts longer, says Ruidoso Ford, Lincoln, Mercury, who recommend flushing, pressure testing and refilling with fresh antifreeze at least every other year. When one of the new type aluminum radiators with plastic top tank deteriorates due to neglect, repair or replacement is likely to be more expensive than the traditional copper/brass radiator.

A long look back at the 30's - 40's from the 90's

by DIANNE STALLINGSS
Special to The News

Young boys growing up in Ruidoso in the 1930s experienced a type of freedom no longer possible today, even in a small mountain village.

"It was ideal," said the Reverend Wayne Joyce, pastor of Ruidoso Baptist Church, while thumbing through a pile of old photographs. "You could run around all you wanted, go horseback riding or fishing. We knew real freedom."

He was unaware of most of the world outside Ruidoso, except that visitors who lived in other places flooded the village each summer, complaining about the heat in their hometowns.

"I didn't know there were any cities at all until I was 15 or 16 and Dad took me to El Paso," Joyce said. By the time he was 17, he was in the U.S. Navy, a jolting initiation into life outside of his cozy environment.

Photographs Joyce has collected from those early days show only a dirt road where four-lane Sudderth Drive now runs. Commercial construction was confined to a small portion of the west end of town starting at The Wild Snail building and extending just beyond the Pioneer Eagle Drive intersection. Pioneer Ike Wingfield, who operated the Wingfield Dairy in the Grindstone area, lived in the building that now houses the Blue Goose Restaurant and catering business.

School classes first were conducted in a series of old cabins, but were moved in about 1936 to a structure where the city police station now stands, Joyce said.

"Three or four grades were grouped together," he said. "Marie Rooney was one of my first school teachers. Her father was Jack Hull and they built the Adobe Plaza."

Like many before and after them, the Joyce family moved to Ruidoso from west Texas because Joyce's father, Coleman George Joyce, suffered from asthma. When they arrived, the town boasted a population of about 150 people.

Although his father was a carpenter, most of the time he earned his livelihood in law enforcement, serving as a deputy, game warden and village marshal.

The younger Joyce chose a career in the ministry. After earning a degree in divinity from the Arlington, Texas, seminary, he accepted assignments in Texas and Oklahoma, but kept returning to Ruidoso for his health and his friends.

He developed and has been pastor of Ruidoso Baptist Church since it was formed 32 years ago.

But it's the days of his boyhood youth that evoke the warmest memories of Ruidoso.

"I used to play inside the old grist mill (still standing today as a shop on Sudderth). It already was abandoned. There was nothing on the street, just a field and trees. We rode horses where all the buildings are today."

Davis Bowling Alley, Pack Drugs, the Apache and the Pueblo theaters, a skating rink and several riding stables lined the main road between grocery stores and other shops. Three or four lumber mills also operated, fed by unrestricted timber operations on the surrounding forest.

At the junction of the road into town with U.S. 70, a large billboard greeted visitors.

"Shorty Mort painted the sign. It said Ruidoso, a year-around playground," Joyce said. "I was a boy scout and he was the associate scout master and I helped him set up signs all up and down the valley," Joyce said. "For that sign, he had me smear paint all over the bottom part of the sign, mostly browns, reds and grays. Then he outlined the colors and made them into mountains. They looked great."

Ruidoso was unique because of the streams that flow through and around the village. But Rio Ruidoso brought headaches for some local families in 1941 when it overflowed its banks and ripped through town.

"It rained for two solid weeks night and day," said Clayton Bennett, owner of Bennett's Indian Shop on U.S. 70. "When the ground was saturated, it came off the mountains. You couldn't drive into Ruidoso or to Roswell because the bridges were out."

Bennett said he doesn't remember anyone being injured.

"I went down with my mother in our Model T three or four days after and there still was plenty of water," he said.

Joyce's photographs show the tremendous force of the rushing water. Front lawns of cabins were decimated, the soil was washed away around wells, exposing the bare casing.

"That's why the racetrack is where it is," Bennett said. "That was farm land owned by the Miller family and after the flood, they couldn't raise cabbage anymore."

Joyce said the Ruidoso Downs racetrack started small, just a bunch of ranchers who liked to race their own horses and built a cluster of little barns.

As the racetrack developed, so did other types of entertainment, recalls Bill McCarty, owner of McCarty Paving Co. and son of Ruidoso's second mayor.

"In the early 1940s, the town had bars, dance halls and wide open gambling," he said. "Only a few resorts had that."

W.A. Hart, who owned a grocery store in the early days, installed the first power plant for the village down by the river, Joyce said.

"My family didn't have power until after I came home from the Navy," Joyce said. "It was available before that, but no one had the $100 it cost to run the lines to their homes to get it."

Most people used kerosene lamps for light and wood stoves for cooking and heat.

Hart also was involved in the Round Up of Pioneer Caravans as part of a celebration called the Coronado Quatros Centennial, commemorating the Spanish explorer's trek through New Mexico in 1540.

A large trench was dug near the present day site of the town library to barbecue hundreds of pounds of meat. Bands played and people danced, Joyce said. They applauded a chuckwagon pageant and cheered rodeo riders. A makeshift corral was erected where The Ruidoso News now stands.

Ruidoso already was a resort community when the Joyces moved there in 1927.

"People came to camp, fish, ride horses and get away from the hub bub," Joyce said. "That's changed somewhat now. I don't regret that Ruidoso has become so popular, but I miss a lot of things. I miss riding horseback to the top of Sierra Blanca two or three times a week.

We'd take parties of from 20 to 40 people straight through Upper Canyon to the top, winding back and forth across the river.

"We'd stop at the slope, leave the horses and walk the last quarter of a mile to the top. It was too tough for the inexperienced, so some would stay back."

That route across the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation now is closed, another mark of the changing times.

A 1941 flood of the Rio Ruidoso ripped away the dirt around wells to expose the through town, uprooting trees and washing bare rock casing beneath.

Trees, above, are still evident in the village's downtown area. Pits of beans, beef smoke over a fire trench for the Round-Up of Pioneer low, cook atop burning coals while Caravans in 1940.

Another view of mainstreet Ruidoso looking toward the East when taverns and gambling ruled the roost.

Reverend Wayne Joyce helped sign painter Shorty Mort prepare this art deco greeting for visitors as they entered town from the junction with U.S. Highway 70.

...MEANWHILE, AFTER RECEIVING A SHIPMENT OF AK-47S FROM AN ANIMAL ACTIVIST GROUP, THEIR OPTIONS BECAME CLEAR...

Editorial

The State Highway Department is looking into the mixed messages being sent at the corner of Sudderth and Carrizo Creek roads.

That's the corner where the state says "no right turn" right beside a billboard that directs drivers to the Inn of the Mountain Gods resort — to the right.

The solution at that corner is simple: improve the road to make provisions for a right turn on that corner. We believe the Inn's billboard should stay, but we don't believe it's right to confuse visitors with a "no right turn" sign.

This is a resort area, dependent on the goodwill of visitors who are attracted here for the climate, for skiing, for horse racing and for other mountain recreational activities. Some of them are attracted here by the Inn of the Mountain Gods' national promotions. One way to keep visitors happy and coming back is to make it easy to get around and easy to find their destinations.

We're asking the Highway Department to replace the mixed messages at that corner with a softened curve that will allow a safe right turn and easy access to one of this area's major tourist attractions.

How about it?

Letters

DEAR EDITOR:

Three cheers and a great big THANK YOU to Bobby McGee at the Incredible Restaurant and Ernie at Alto Alps Country Store. They helped me get my car started in sub-freezing temperatures on New Year's Eve. They personify the generous spirit of Ruidoso and Alto.

It certainly made for a memorable New Year's Eve.

Thanks again to these two gentlemen!

Policy

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed, however the author's hometown will be included.

The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Libelous letters are not protected by the rules of privilege or fair comment and will not be printed.

Letters will be edited for spelling and grammar to the extent possible without impairing their flavor or changing their meaning.

We try, whenever possible, to allow people and/or businesses mentioned in a letter the opportunity to respond, usually in the same or the next edition.

Letters must be original and exclusive to The News. No open letters to public figures, copies of letter or poetry will be printed as a letter to the editor. In most cases, thank you messages are printed in the Classifieds under "Card of Thanks."

Chuck gets chummy with the IRS

Brrrrr-ing! Brrrrr-ing!

"Hello?"

"Chuck?"

"Yeah."

"Chuck, it's us."

"Oh no, not the IRS again."

"You bet, Chuck. We want more of your you know what."

"But I gave you all my accountant said to give."

"He was wrong, Chuck...major wrong."

"I sent in the late penalty, right?"

"Yes."

"I sent in the interest, right?"

"That was my car keys."

"Sounded like money to us."

"Look, last year you took 30 percent of 15 years worth of my life savings on rules you decided to change at the last minute."

"So?"

"So why weren't those years grandfathered in?"

"We don't do that."

"Then nothing's safe?"

"You got it."

"That's hardly fair. What ever happened to my right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?"

"We have a better saying now, Chuck...Till death do us part."

News Analysis

King appointments are "done and gone"

Will the "new" Bruce King please stand up?

You remember: The Governor who was going to do things differently in his third term in the statehouse, and appoint to his cabinet the very best people he could discover. The longtime politician who had learned a lot in the last eight years, and whom we elected by a landslide because he seemed to combine both experience and innovation for the hard times ahead.

In these first crucial days of the new administration, important seats in the cabinet are still unfilled, despite the fanfare with which Bruce King and first lady Alice took "personal" charge of the transition and major appointments.

As it is, the new secretaries have been praised by some in the media for their nice variety. They are said to include thus far a respectable sprinkling of women (three), the perfect ethnic mix of Hispanics (five) and Anglos (five), and fewer obvious King cronies than expected (three to the naked eye). Yet beyond that insulting analysis by quota, it's an unpromising cabinet in several individual cases, and very disappointing in the generality.

Only former Representative Dick Minner at Taxation and Revenue brings clearly the sort of freshness, knowledge and thoughtfulness the Governor promised.

Recycled from King's first regime, Human Services secretary Richard Heim pronounced himself ready for business as usual, scant sensibility to the vastly changed landscape of pinched governments and runaway human needs in the 1990s.

At Finance and Administration, Ray Marr is another rerun who has played prior to inauguration the old game of now-you-see-it, now-you-don't, with the trumpeted shortfall in state revenues, talking about the usual accounting manipulations rather than authentic reform to meet our all too tangible fiscal crisis.

For General Services, Laura Threest's decisive qualification could not have been her demonstrated gifts in managing a large, thorny, expensively inefficient government bureaucracy (none visible), but rather her close friendship with Alice King.

To the ever-troubled Corrections and Highway Departments, King has named two career bureaucrats, former warden Eloy Mondragon and highway engineer Louis Medrano, two able, decent men who are probably no match for the messes into which they now must wade. Under normal circumstances, both might have been perfectly adequate to the tasks. But in a New Mexico where scandal or abuse run so deep in those agencies, neither appointment shows the Governor's appreciation of the depth of the problems, or a serious commitment to clean them up.

Yet the most disillusioning and disturbing King patronage by far has been the nomination of bureaucrat Robert Portillos, now superintendent of the male reformatory at Springer, as secretary of the vital new Youth Authority.

New Mexico's young offenders — most of them from poor families and at times as many as 65-75 percent Hispanic — have long existed in a dark, unseen corner of the state's correctional system. While media and public attention has been given, however fitfully, to the chronic crisis in adult corrections, institutions like Springer go on largely out-of-sight, out-of-mind.

Some criticized, for example, his renaming of incumbent Anita Lockwood as Secretary of Energy and Minerals — another careerist who in the Republican regime gave only token attention to alternative fuels and energy independence, the sort of official neglect for which we are now paying dearly in the Persian Gulf and at the gas pump. But the Governor was unmoved by small details.

"That one's done and gone," King said somewhat testily of the Lockwood appointment.

If the new cabinet runs true to form, it just may be the epitaph as well on the chance for constructive change in Santa Fe.

To have named Portillos without a thorough airing of musty old Springer, however, represents the musty old King heedlessness. Was this what Alice King meant when she promised this was going to be a government serving the needs of children? We can only hope the Legislature now does the Governor's background check for him, for the sake of the Youth Authority — and the boys at Springer.

Otherwise jovial Bruce King does not accept gratefully such questioning of his appointments.

Book battle event slated at library

The friends of the Ruidoso Public Library are sponsoring a program, "Battle of the Books" Saturday, February 9 from 8:30 to 12:30 at the Mid School Library.

The "Battle of the Books" is designed to encourage reading among the young people of our community. The program involves students of the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades. The students are encouraged to read books from a list prepared by the mid school librarian and the public librarians. The day of the competition, teams will be made up from the registration of students, with two students from each grade. The students will be asked 25 questions during each elimination. The answers should be the title of the book, with extra points for the author, also.

Each student registered for the "Battle of the Books" will be given a T-Shirt with the books logo, and each winning team member will receive a medal. We will also be offering the students and volunteers refreshments during the morning, such as a continental breakfast.

We need volunteers to help make this program a success. The volunteers will be used as timers, scorekeepers, and to present the questions prepared in advance.

For more information, please call the Ruidoso Public Library at 257-4335.

Assistant Ruidoso High School Principal Doyle Howe' congratulates Sharice Hall for being selected for a statewide seminar next summer. The award is made to a sophomore student each year by the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club.

Sharice Hall selected for leadership seminar

Sharice Hall, sophomore at Ruidoso High School, has been selected to attend the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar in June of this year in Albuquerque.

The Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club each year provides $150 for a student to attend the seminar, set for June 7-9.

Hall is the daughter of Terry and Vickie Hall of Alto. She was chosen on the basis of her scholarship achievements and leadership qualities.

The purpose of the seminar is to create an opportunity for sophomores from all over New Mexico to further develop leadership abilities and promote greater pride and understanding of America's free enterprise system.

"The objective is to encourage a positive attitude toward the business world and how a student can become a contributing leader in society," according to a letter to high school principals from New Mexico Leadership Seminar officials.

Some 110 out of a possible 139 New Mexico High School were represented in 1990.

A Checkout Dilemma: Plastic or Paper Bags?

Making the best choice is not clear cut when you consider the environmental pros and cons:

Paper Bags — come from trees, a renewable resource; can be reused; and are recyclable in most communities. But, making paper uses a lot of water and creates air and water pollution.

Plastic Bags — can be reused many times; can be recycled in our Furr's supermarkets; and take up much less space in a landfill than paper. But, plastics production uses petroleum or natural gas, finite resources, and many of the chemicals used are highly toxic, creating air and water pollution.

If both are thrown away after use, there is probably not a major advantage for either one. So perhaps your decision should be influenced by what is recyclable in your community and/or how you choose to reuse either bag.

And one alternative would be, if you are only buying one or two items, tell the clerk, "No bag, thank you." But keep your receipt.
