Two die in plane crash

A stunt plane carrying three men crashed Wednesday into an arroyo just off the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport runway.

Two men died and one remains in Lincoln County Medical Center as a result of that midday crash.

Detective Lanny Maddox of the Ruidoso Police Department said the twin engine Aerostar model 600 plane left the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport en route to Reno, Nevada, when it crashed at 11:52 a.m.

"In what is thought to be less than two minutes after takeoff, the plane crashed in a sparsely wooded area surrounding rough terrain located northwest of the airport," said Maddox.

Maddox said the plane was occupied by three adult males, and two of the passengers appeared to have been killed upon impact.

The third passenger, identified as Beldon Walden, 46 years old, of Hobbs, was thrown from the plane at ground level and survived the impact.

Walden, the manager of the Lea County Airport, was transported to Lincoln County Medical Center and was listed in critical condition Wednesday.

Zip Franklin, the father of Alto resident Jim Franklin, was killed as was Gary McMillan of Lubbock, Texas. Maddox said Jim and Auden Franklin are the owners of the planes.

New Mexico State Police have secured the scene, with investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration on their way to Ruidoso. Maddox said they should arrive today (Thursday).

"It appears that the pilot was en route to deliver the plane, described as an aerobatics stunt custom star, to an air show in Reno, Nevada," said Maddox.

At this point of the investigation it appears McMillan was the pilot, said Maddox.

Franklin was a passenger in the plane. His son, Jim Franklin, is a nationally known stunt pilot.

Maddox said he has the audio tape of the takeoff and it is being reviewed.

Emergency crews prepare to remove the bodies from the wreckage as State Police Officer Steve Standridge supervises the operation with an unidentified officer.

Mayor appoints Pat Espinosa

by CHARLES STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Patricia Espinosa, 28, a resident of Ruidoso for eight years and co-owner of Discover Travel Agency, was officially sworn in Tuesday as the new Ruidoso Village Councillor.

Espinosa was named to the council by Mayor Victor Alonso. She owns the travel agency with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Burns of El Paso. The new councillor also sells real estate with Sierra Blanca Realty.

Espinosa is married to Paul and has a four-year-old daughter, Katie.

In the workshop meeting preceding the council meeting, Alonso told the councillors that Joe Gomez had been a candidate for the councillor's position, but he felt Gomez was inexperienced and not ready for the position. He suggested the council could start him on a board like Planning and Zoning to get him experience.

Contacted Wednesday, Gomez said he met with the mayor about 30 days ago for an hour and a half.

Gomez said he probably lost favor with the mayor because he did not agree with 100 percent of the mayor's philosophy and intended to speak his own mind if appointed to the council.

Espinosa said Wednesday she has never served on a board, however she does have 11 years travel and tourism experience.

She said she plans to work with Dick Weber on his Sun Country Airlines project. She said she met Weber during one of his presentations at a real estate meeting.

Espinosa said she is traveling with Weber, Barbara Duff and Nancy Radziewicz Friday to a Tourism Association of New Mexico meeting.

County requires appointees to be registered voters

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Appointees to Lincoln County government boards and committees must live in the county and must be registered voters, County Commissioners said Tuesday.

"They certainly should be residents and should be voters if they're going to be involved in government," said Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer.

County manager Nick Pappas said he and county attorney J. Robert Beauvais had prepared a resolution stating that policy.

"Is this a result of an editorial in (The Ruidoso News)?" asked Commissioner Bill Elliott.

"Yes, it is," Pappas responded.

The issue came up recently when The Ruidoso News discovered that six-year County Lodgers Tax Board member Kay Dennis was not a registered voter even though registration was a requirement for membership on that board. She has since registered to vote.

Pappas said that although some of the ordinances creating boards state that members should be residents, the term "is kind of undefined."

The new resolution adopted by the commission Tuesday spells out that a person's primary home should be in Lincoln County and they must be registered to vote here.

Requiring a voter's registration takes care of two other questions on qualifications because a person must be at least 18 and cannot be felon, Pappas pointed out.

Spencer questioned whether a resolution of policy was sufficient when dealing with boards that have been created by ordinances.

Elliott said he didn't want to leave it up to the discretion of subsequent commissions. "There are a lot of political appointments," he said. Then he added, "Of course, this commission never does it."

Beauvais said the best approach would be to draft an ordinance amendment and advertise it for a public hearing in connection with all ordinances that need the regula-

Schools seek $5.5 million in bonds

by FRANKIE JARRELL

Ruidoso News Editor

Faced with increasing student loads that have four of five school buildings bursting at the seams, the Ruidoso Board of Education took steps Tuesday to ease that crowding.

The board, after reviewing a proposed master plan in previous meetings, set an election date for a $5.5 million bond issue. Voters will be asked on November 12 to approve a bond issue that will be used, in part, to build a new school.

Superintendent Mike Gladden announced that school enrollment is up this year. The board budgeted for 2,016 students, a modest increase over last year, and on September 10, there were 2,032 students in the system.

Gladden outlined the numbers grade by grade, indicating that Ruidoso Middle School experienced an 18 percent increase in enrollment. He said relocating the sixth grade to another building at some point would make room for the seventh and eighth grade classes.

He also predicted that enrollment will continue to climb until the 40th class day — the day on which funding is calculated for New Mexico schools. Last year Ruidoso Schools had 1,968 students enrolled on the critical 40th day.

The current enrollment figures contain a double whammy for the board — first, with the immediate need for new teachers and aides to keep the teacher/student ratio in compliance at all levels with state laws; and second, with the long-range view of more and more students with less and less space.

The board took aim at both issues Tuesday.

Members get a preview of museum show

Members of the Hubbard Museum will get a "sneak preview" tonight of the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse.

The multi-million dollar collection won't be in place in its new home until the summer of 1992, but members of the Hubbard Museum are invited to a Warehouse Reception from 7-9 p.m. today (Thursday), September 12, at the True Value Building at 721 Mechem.

Tonight's reception is just one of several events planned for Hubbard Museum members. It's the grand finale for this year, and just a taste of more things to come.

"We're planning another event to focus on the horse," said Tracey Moran, marketing director.

She also reminded members and prospective members that it's time to renew Hubbard Museum memberships or join for the upcoming year. Last year's memberships expire as of November.

Cost to join the Hubbard Museum is still $40 for an individual and $100 for a family.

The Hubbard Art Award for Excellence is taking a year off, but the Hubbard Museum is going strong as plans are under way for the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

The Museum of the Horse will be located in a 40,000 square foot building on the site of the old Chaparral Convention Center.

Director Gary Miller is working with space designers from Austin, Texas, on a plan to make the most of the space and show off the 10,000-plus museum pieces related to the horse.

The final collection will show the interactions between the horse and people through time.

Anne Stradling began collecting when she was just six years old and her home, the Schley family estate in Far Hills, New Jersey, became the collection showcase. She has continued to collect throughout her life.

Stradling, an excellent horsewoman, learned to ride in the New Jersey countryside and at the Formata School in Aiken, South Carolina — the polo capital of the world.

Stradling eventually left the stylish life of the Essex Fox Hounds and settled on a ranch in Arizona.

She lived there with her husband and daughter and continued to add to the remarkable collection.

The collection consists of thousands of artifacts from all over the world, including horse brasses from England; fine paintings, drawings and bronzes by master artists; delicately carved figures of the horse from China; wagon and horse decorations in brass and silver from Germany; saddles from Mexico and China; and a Pony Express saddle with the original tree.

Many family heirlooms and portraits are also included in the unique and extensive collection.

People who are interested in the collection should visit the New Mexico Museum of Natural History in Albuquerque. "Horse Tales: An Evolutionary Odyssey" is on display through February 9, 1992, and fea-

The Albuquerque exhibition is funded in part by the Hubbard Museum.

It explains the evolution of the horse, its biomechanics, the interactions between humans and horses, the origin of horse breeding, the disappearance and reappearance of the horse in art, and contemporary implements related to horses and folklore.

Downs trustee questions canceling scheduled meeting

A regular meeting of the Village of Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees was canceled on Monday, reportedly by the board.

Trustee Pam Bernard said the meeting was not canceled by the board, and she and at least three other members of the Downs Board of Trustees want people to know that they didn't cancel the meeting.

Village clerk Maurice Gudgel notified The News that the meeting had been canceled, saying several members of the board were "down in the back."

Bernard said the mayor called the meeting off. She also questioned the legality of canceling the scheduled meeting and said she would check with the village's legal adviser.

Mayor Bonnie Addy was out of town and couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday.

Lodgers board member quits

The Lodgers Tax Board of the Village of Ruidoso has lost its treasurer and another member of the five-person board is hospitalized.

Rex Beatty, operator of Forest Home Cabins on Main Road, told The Ruidoso News when queried that "yes," he has resigned. He cited a busy schedule as the reason.

Meanwhile, it was learned by Jay Frances, the other lodger on the board, is hospitalized in Kerrville, Texas, after undergoing an appendectomy.

Beatty as a member of the LTB automatically was a member of the newly created Regional Advertising Committee. His membership in RAB is terminated automatically.

Other members of the LTB are Mark Doth, chairman; Pat Morrison of Ski Apache and Ed Hyman, member at large.

The mayor will fill vacancies on municipal boards with village council confirmation required.

Travel writers visit Billy the Kid country

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor
"I'll have to come back here. All this greenery in the middle of the desert... well, it's not exactly desert," this was the comment of a visiting travel writer.

Speaking was Thomas B. Mechling, Washington Watch Editor, of Washington D.C. He is on assignment as Travel Editor of the Rockville Sentinel Newspapers, a six newspaper syndicate with a weekly circulation of 141,800.

Mechling and three other travel writers were being squired around Billy the Kid Country by the New Mexico Department of Tourism and co-hosted by the Lincoln County Heritage Trust, Billy the Kid Outlaw Gang and Recusos de Santa Fe.

Other writers are Anita Baker, feature writer at the Fort Worth, Texas, Star-Telegram, Sunday edition; Mary Frances Beverley, freelance writer for the Midland Magazine, Midland, Texas, and Ron Butler, freelance writer, of Tucson, Arizona.

In the host party through this weekend are Sharon Maloof, program officer and travel writer assistant, Department of Tourism and Mike Pitel, travel writer and historian for the same department.

The group started a Billy the Kid Country Press tour in Las Cruces Monday and stayed in that area through Tuesday.

Wednesday they arrived for lunch at the Inn of the Mountain Gods and were given a tour of Ruidoso, including the Old (Dowlin) Mill (Carmon Phillips place) on Sudderth Drive. They took in Bladder's Mill out Mescalero way, too. Lisa Storey, of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce staff, helped host the tour of Ruidoso.

Santa Fe hosted an opening reception and banquet of the Billy the Kid Symposium at the Swiss Chalet. They rubbed elbows with some of the 18 nationally renowned Kid experts attending a three-day seminar entitled "In the Days of Billy the Kid: Violence & Western Frontier."

Thursday's schedule included all-morning lectures at the symposium, also sponsored by the LCHT and Recusos de Santa Fe.

After lunch today, historic stops in old Lincoln town were visited, followed by a symposium barbecue in Lincoln.

Friday the group will check the place where John H. Tunstall was murdered, followed by a stop at the Hurd-La Rinconada Gallery in San Patricio.

Other stops include Roswell and Fort Sumner and Stinking Springs, the Grissom Ranch, followed by a meal hosted by the Billy the Kid Outlaw Gang.

Saturday's schedule includes "Kid" stops in Roswell and on to the Carlsbad Caverns.

Ruidoso Council cries "double taxation" over county franchise fee

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Councilor Bill Karn, confused about a proposed county franchise fee, accused Lincoln County Commissioners of planning to impose a double tax on Ruidoso residents.

During a council meeting Tuesday, Karn said that the county is proposing franchise fees for utility companies using county rights of way. The village is currently charging franchise fees.

Karn said those county fees would be passed on to the consumer and that would amount to double taxation for Ruidoso residents.

The county is drafting an ordinance that would give it the option of imposing a two percent gross revenue fee for use of county rights of way.

County attorney J. Robert Beauvais, contacted Wednesday, said the proposal doesn't include the incorporated areas of the county, thus Ruidoso residents would not be double taxed.

But Tuesday, the Ruidoso council unanimously approved a motion by Karn to have the village attorney draft a resolution against the county imposing a franchise tax.

Mayor Victor Alonso said the question is whether or not the county could apply or assess a franchise fee within a municipal incorporated area.

The Mayor looked at Village Attorney David Thomsen for guidance.

"You're shaking your head, you're nodding. You believe that's the case?" Alonso asked.

"This is the position the county appears to be taking," said Thomsen.

But Lincoln County Commission Chairman Sterling Spencer said Wednesday, that's an incorrect interpretation.

"No. If that thing goes through, the fee would only be charged against revenue collected in unincorporated portions of the county," Spencer said. "We don't want Ruidoso's money."

At Tuesday's council meeting, Alonso wanted more time to review the matter. He said discussion of the county's proposal should be a regular agenda item, with the publication of the franchise fee for everyone to examine and study.

"This is more than what we should try to handle under reports from municipal officials," Alonso said.

Karn disagreed, and the council voted in favor of his motion.

According to county officials, there are only three companies currently whose franchises are up for renewal, Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas, Lincoln Cable and Zia Natural Gas. The county hopes as other franchises come up for renewal to have the ordinance in place.

Village Manager Ron Wicker informed the council of a meeting scheduled with county manager Nick Pappas and representatives from Lincoln County regarding a meals on wheels program.

Wicker said Ruidoso would try to merge with the rest of the county that already has a program in place.

Wicker also gave a status report on the civic-events center.

"We received word from Don Gonzales of the Department of Finance Administration that they would be approving the award of bid by the end of the week," Wicker said.

With the approval, Wicker said planner Cleatus Richards has scheduled a conference with the architect and the contractor for 10:30 a.m. Monday, September 16, at village hall. The public is invited.

Wicker said the ground breaking ceremony for the center is set for 10 a.m. Saturday, September 28, at the site. He asked the council to prepare a list of people to invite. He said completion should be within 240 calendar days.

Last Tuesday, Councilor J.D.

James made a motion that a crosswalk be placed across from the post office on Sudderth.

Village manager Ron Wicker told the council that Police Chief Richard Swenor did not recommend that a crosswalk be created because it would lead to a false sense of security and that speeds might be too high in that area to be safe.

Wicker said a traffic count had not yet been completed.

The motion passed and the village was instructed to create the crosswalk.

Councilor Patricia Espinosa, who was sworn in at the beginning of the meeting, commented on the street dance held recently.

"I saw every single age group there," she said. "It was all handled very nicely, the police reports were good. It gave our teenagers something to do. I'd love to see more events like this."

The mayor thanked Espinosa for her comments.

Barbara Westbrook of the Arts and Film Commission presented a proposal for a Christmas Palette Program.

"We believe that the Christmas Palette Program would add a unique touch to the village image and enhance our artistic community and recognize the very talented artists in this village,"

Westbrook said. "And encourage awareness of the leadership of this community and you the council people toward the arts."

The program is designed for different artists, by way of an artist contest, to interpret their feelings of Christmas to be displayed on selected power poles along Sudderth, starting at the "Y".

Westbrook said Laguna Beach, California, has such a program that has been running for 14 years.

She said the palettes would be hung for five to six weeks, from Thanksgiving to New Years.

Westbrook said Jim Bassett of Texas-New Mexico Power was most agreeable about the program and would cooperate in any way.

She said contest entrants would be in early November with a deadline of November 14.

Councilor J.D. James requested Westbrook coordinate the idea through the MainStreet Board and then come back to the council with recommendations. Westbrook said she would meet with the board on September 19.

The council also requested that the shape of the wooden art objects be of a Christmas design.

Councilor Ron Andrews said the council should see some written approval for the use of the poles by Texas Power for liability reasons.

Councilor Karn said palettes would be more appropriate during the arts and crafts fair.

Councilor Barbara Duff felt that the program would not conflict with MainStreet's program if it stopped at MainStreet's border.

Councilor James reminded Duff that MainStreet's master plan is to encompass all of Sudderth.

In unrelated business, village manager Wicker asked the council to abolish the job description of the gymnastics coordinator job and create two jobs with the same money, enhanced by the summer budget.

He said one job could be weighted and called recreation coordinator, the other a part-time maintenance worker for the summer. The recreation coordinator would be responsible for the gymnastics program, tennis and other things, predominantly, to be used in the gymnastics area.

In concept, Wicker said he wanted to do away with the title gymnastics coordinator and assistant and create the position of recreation coordinator.

He said all the changes would not affect the current salary level.

The council voted unanimously to follow Wicker's advice and create the new job descriptions.

County

tion added. It could be done at the same time commissioners change standing committees into ordinance-created boards, a subject currently being researched, he said.

Elliott said he also wants the county to keep a close watch on attendance. The commission already has passed a policy that a board member can be removed after three absences, he noted.

While on the subject of boards, commissioners appointed Pete Gnatkowski to the County Fair Board, replacing Bob Byrd whose term has expired and who no longer wants to serve. Reappointed to the board for three year-terms were Jim Klees, Jr. and Darlene Bobb.

The commission also approved three $3,000 payments to the Fair Board for improvements to the county fairground in Capitan.

But they asked board member Ralph Dunlap to be sure no alcoholic beverages are served at the fairground without proper licenses and only in areas legally far enough away from the church across the street.

"I have been contacted by the Capitan police because someone was allowed to serve alcohol at a wedding," Beauvais said. "There was a keg of beer and the public was invited. We've been put on notice that it's a violation of the state liquor law and needs to be resolved."

Spencer said the fair board should put the regulations in bold letters on any contract to lease the fairground facilities.

In other business, the commission:

—Directed Pappas to draw up a purchase zone for acceptance of bids, essentially following the boundaries of the county. Commissioners said they prefer to buy from local vendors and dealers when at all possible and if prices are competitive.

—Approved a separate pay scale for new deputies to attract those with experience and encourage existing deputies to acquire more training.

A newly hired deputy with less than four years of experience and on probationary status will be paid $17,696. The pay scale would only affect the status of one deputy now on payroll, increasing her salary from $20,350 to $21,235 a year.

—Asked that a liability disclaimer clause be inserted in the commission's contract with White Mountain Search and Rescue, even though its activities and members are under the supervision of the State Police.

Schools

by hiring the needed staff and by endorsing a plan to build a new school and enlarge and improve the current facilities.

It was noted that the White Mountain remodeling and addition is just being finished, and both permanent structures are already full. Four classroom portables are in use at White Mountain.

Gladden reported that Nob Hill is full with three portables. He said the critical crowding problem is at Ruidoso Middle School. There, too, a double classroom portable was moved to the site this summer.

Even though Ruidoso High School, with 532 students, has plenty of room to grow in the core area; Gladden predicts a shortage of classroom space in the near future.

He also warned that the state may mandate all-day kindergarten, and if Senate Bill 106 (passed in 1986) is any example, the state may not provide the funds to make that addition. If the state makes that change the Ruidoso schools just don't have the space to handle it, said Gladden.

The board has had the master plan in hand for some weeks now, and agreed that the ongoing program of refurbishing, adding onto and building should continue.

Bonding counsel Charles Casey said the $5.5 million bonding would impact property owners in 1993 and 1994, but taxes would begin declining in 1995 because other bond issues would be retired. For instance, the tax increase on a $75,000 house would be $33.65 in 1993, and $73.25 in 1994, dropping to a $6.80 increase in 1995. After that, the tax would drop below current levels with the bonds to be retired in 2005.

Casey said plans call for selling the bonds in two phases.

One proposal for using bond proceeds calls for spending $3 million for a new building to allow sixth graders to be moved from the Middle School; $1.2 million for 6-8 classrooms and restroom facilities at White Mountain; $180,000 at the maintenance yard; $500,000 for equipment at all schools; $350,000 at the central office; and another $270,000 to refurbish at district schools using a priority list.

Gladden said that plan, modest in comparison to the $14 million approach recommended by the Coordinating Council, is open to study and debate.

Finances and overcrowding were related to the resignation of Ruidoso Middle School choir director Wayne Ellison, who gave 30 days notice through a letter to the superintendent.

Ellison listed lack of financial support for the choir and other fine arts classes as one reason for his resignation. He also listed among his reasons, no extra pay for extra hours involved in choir activities.

In his letter, Ellison said he had to move out of the choir room he has used for the past two years and into a portable building he shares with another class.

Other problems Ellison listed include the absence of any school board goal to improve the fine arts program, unsuccessful efforts to hire an accompanist, poor attendance at choir concerts and minimal parental support. Ellison said he's been assigned to monitor lunch instead of teach a class that period.

"I feel that I cannot teach properly if these problems are bothering me," said Ellison in his resignation.

The board accepted Ellison's resignation, as well as the resignation of a cafeteria worker who was hired by resigned before reporting for duty, Eileen Montoya.

The board approved hiring Joanna Ray to replace Ellison. The board accepted the recommendations of the superintendent and hired Judy Seals, first grade; Guadalupe Steward, Nob Hill aide; Fiata Montoya, 1/2 time DD aide at Nob Hill.

BLM makes a case for land swap

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County Commissioners asked for written assurances from the Bureau of Land Management about its plans to acquire 1,400 acres along the Rio Bonito and that's what they received Tuesday.

County Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer was handed a letter dated September 9 from State BLM Director Larry Woodard spelling out certain conditions to which his agency would agree in exchange for the commission's cooperation.

"I have a letter from Mr. Woodard who couldn't be here, addressing the issues and concerns that are still evident," said BLM Area Manager Sandra Allen.

Woodard wrote that if commissioners withdrew their protest to the exchange, the BLM would agree to the following conditions:

—The BLM will not sell or transfer any of its 330-acres of water rights out of the Rio Bonito Valley; will pay its share of the water assessments; will not interfere with existing water users on adjacent lands; and will put the water to "beneficial use" under the rules and regulations of the State Engineer.

—The BLM will observe existing Lincoln Historic Preservation Zoning regulations and will coordinate the preservation of cultural resources with the Lincoln Historic Preservation Board.

—The BLM will not use condemnation or eminent domain powers or actions for expansion of the riparian area, "unless specifically directed to do so by Congress."

—The BLM will not introduce endangered species into the area.

—Salt cedars are a pest which the BLM will control to enhance the riparian areas along the Rio Bonito.

—The BLM will continue to coordinate the future planning and management of public lands with the commission and other local officials.

The letter was the third written response from the BLM in the last month since the commission issued a resolution calling on the agency to suspend its acquisition efforts until areas of concern have been addressed specifically.

A letter received August 19 from Allen dealt with the BLM's management objectives for the acreage targeted for acquisition through an exchange for 30,000 acres of BLM land around Las Cruces, Los Lunas, Farmington and Carlsbad.

"The management objectives amount to our preliminary plan for the land," Allen said Tuesday.

"The response from people on the level of recreation is that they do not want intensive development except for perhaps some areas around Fort Stanton," she said.

Allen also sent another letter that focused on economic and environmental impacts.

Spencer said the commissioners would respond to those three letters within 60 days or earlier.

He questioned whether anticipated staffing levels would be high enough to properly manage the land.

"I feel one or two people could take care (of the area)," Allen said. "I see (the range technician) spending 100 percent of his time there."

Spencer said he still is concerned that assurances in letters from Woodard and Allen could be overridden by preferences laid out in the Roswell District Resource Management Plan due to be completed in 1993.

"The specifics of implementation could change, but I don't see the objectives changing," Allen said.

"I'd like to have Woodard make that statement and sign on the BLM letterhead," Spencer said. "I don't believe this, even if your intentions are good. I think the resource management plan could take priority."

Spencer and Commissioner Montroy Montes both questioned whether with an improved habitat and no hunting, herds of indigenous wildlife might increase dramatically, damaging nearby groves and orchards and consuming foliage that domestic cattle otherwise might be able to graze. An improved habitat also might draw an endangered species to the area even if the BLM did not deliberately introduce it, Spencer said.

Allen pointed out that no hunting now is allowed on the land anyway. If herds became a problem, the agency would work with the State Game and Fish Department. Endangered species would be the responsibility of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife agency. The BLM has no intention of altering the existing flora in the area, she said.

Commissioners had included on the agenda two ordinances aimed at increasing their legal stance in any determination about land in the county. But the commission was not able to take action on the proposed ordinances because they had not been advertised properly for public hearing.

Commissioners invited comment on the land swap proposal or the ordinances.

"We're trying to put the county on equal footing with federal and state agencies within the county," Spencer said. "This spells out how we want to be involved in planning processes."

Rancher Bill Hays from Ramon recommended that in stressing the commission's support of private land rights, wording in the proposed "interim land use" ordinance should be added stating the commission also intends to protect private rights within public lands. He was referring to grazing and other use permits.

During the meeting Tuesday, Max Kiehne of Bosque Farms submitted petitions in favor of the swap bearing slightly under 200 signatures.

Spencer said about 400 signatures had been received by the county in opposition to the exchange. But Allen said the preface to the petitions contained some erroneous information.

"Many who signed may have been dealing from an information base that was not accurate," she said.

Ken Anderson, a former Lincoln County resident now living in Las Cruces who plans to buy some of the land freed in the exchange, said he thought Lincoln would be more comfortable with the Rio Bonito land in public ownership than in private hands that might develop it.

"The BLM doesn't want to spend money where people don't want it because people are clamoring for it in other places," Anderson said.

"The real issue is what does the community want done with the land and is it better off in private or public ownership."

Local schools ask for public and parental input to assess needs

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Ruidoso Schools will soon be getting a report card.

The state requires all schools to assess their performance with a view to needs every three years, and this is the year for Ruidoso.

Superintendent Mike Gladden said during a School Board meeting Tuesday that needs will be assessed through a $750 contract with Cooperative Education Services.

A public meeting will be conducted at 7 p.m. Tuesday, September 24, in the White Mountain cafeteria. Gladden said eight groups, divided by categories, will identify eight to 10 of the school system's needs during that meeting.

Although invitations will be sent to the meeting, everyone is welcome, and Gladden hopes to have a dozen people in each of the eight groups.

The board is also asking for public input on schools.

The Legislature mandated that parents be given the opportunity to give input on school performance, and the Ruidoso Schools have prepared a survey to be sent home today (Thursday) with students, filled out by parents and returned to the school next Thursday.

The "Quality Education Survey" includes 10 questions from the state, two from the local board and five from the school sites. The results will be tallied and the information gained will be shared with the public.

Gladden urged parents to take time to fill out the survey and contribute to the report card of the local schools.

In other regular business Tuesday, the board:

—Heard that classes are moving in to the new rooms at White Mountain and that paving will be completed as soon as the weather cooperates.

—Heard a report on new fiscal reporting procedures enacted by the Central Office to keep board members better informed.

—Discussed adopting a policy on hiring married couples and opted to give the matter further consideration.

—Discussed and deferred action on a plan for a deferred compensation plan for employees.

—Approved an agreement with Sandia National Laboratories that will provide money, equipment and training to the schools as a benefit from Middle School teacher Jackie Brannum participating in a summer program there. Brannum, who took part in "Teachers Opportunity to Promote Science" (TOPS), will also receive a $500 stipend.

—Approved a number of budget adjustments.

—Adopted the Open Meetings Act.

—Approved an easement to the Village of Ruidoso for a fire hydrant at White Mountain.

—Set the next meeting for 7 p.m. Thursday, September 26, at Nob Hill.

—Recognized RHS student council members Jason Weill, Jennie Ames and Sharice Hall for attending the meeting.

Lawmakers convene to redistrict

The New Mexico Legislature is in session now dealing with redistricting.

Lawmakers more than a year ago began an elaborate process to redraw the boundaries of its members' districts.

During the special session, representatives and senators will adjust the districts of 112 legislators, 10 state Board of Education members and the state's three congressmen.

According to AP reports, the decisions made will have a significant effect on the state's political landscape well into the next century.

While the work is largely technical, political realities keep it from being effortless.

In a tentative plan unveiled last week, experts said they were forced by some areas' declining population and the need to increase minority representation to pit 12 incumbents against each other and to sacrifice Los Alamos to a new Indian-majority Senate district.

It's Warriors vs. Rocket time! Ruidoso faces toughest foe

The Ruidoso Warriors will compete against one of the best high school quarterbacks in New Mexico Friday in David Vigil.

Vigil combines a heady running game with the long ball. The Warrior secondary will have their concentration tested to the max.

Goddard, ranked third in the state last week, has a line that averages 220-pounds and is bigger than last week's Wildcats according to Warrior head coach Mike Speck.

Speck said the team had a good workout throughout the week and players are relatively healthy with the exception of a deep hip bruise to Aaron Ford.

He said Ford would be sitting out Friday's game, but he did have work for two new sophomore players, Earl Beck and Chad Jacobs.

Both will see a lot of action Friday, according to Speck. Beck will build time at defensive tackle, while Jacobs will play the middle linebacker's position.

Speck said the team did run through the recent bout of colds ravishing the schools and village. He said many players, including coaches and himself, have gone through two sore throats from two separate viruses.

The game plan, according to Speck, will take a more conventional turn, because Goddard runs more conventional formations.

He said much concentration this week was placed on avoiding penalties. The Warriors out-misced their opponent last week 120 yards to 30 yards.

He said many drills zeroed in on mental discipline and included a lot of practice on guarding against an opponent drawing you offside.

The Rockets lost to cross town rival Roswell, 14-0 last week.

FIRE

Volleyballers bounce bulldogs in 3 State champs look to repeat

The reigning state champion Ruidoso Volleyball Warriors kicked off their season bludgeoning some Bulldogs in Artesia last weekend 15-10, 15-1, 15-5.

Warrior Coach Jody Blanton's varsity squad only has three seniors this year, but they are big bangers. Kansas Miranda, Amy Wishard and Betsy Cull all start their final season.

The Warriors were brilliant on defense against Artesia, not allowing one sustained serve in three games.

Cicelee Makowski and Amy Wishard, on the other hand, each camped on the service line for long runs. Amy and Cicelee both had 95 percent accuracy in their collective 41 serves.

Miranda, Wishard, Makowski and Jeri Ann Keeton dominated the front line play.

Other varisty players include Cristy Jacobs, and outside hitter; Monica Martinez, a junior middle blocker; and Michelle Morris, a junior outside hitter.

Assisting Blanton in the coaches box this year is Patsy Page and Yeleena Temple. Managers this year are Melissa Richardson, Gail Floyd and Angela Alonso.

BULLETTES

Chapman knows football, wins $25

Ruidoso High Schooler Jeffrey Chapman broke a three-way tie to capture Week Two's upset laced Ruidoso News Football Contest, good for 25 simoleons.

Only three entries managed 15 winners. Past winner Alice Payne and top regular Daniel Sanchez managed to tie Chapman.

Chapman, however, hit the tie-breaker right on the nose, Lovington 34-0. Sanchez was second, 19 off the mark and Payne third, 20 away.

Out of 45 entries, 34 favored Lovington, 10 Ruidoso and one tie-breaker was left blank.

Biggest unfair game was the Socorro-Carlsbad contest. The form did not say it was Socorro, Texas. Who would have been dumb enough to take Socorro over Carlsbad unless he was smart enough to know it was a Texas team? Jeffrey did. Boy, and Jeffrey knows football.

We checked all entries with 14 and 15 wins. If we were to cheat and say everybody will be given credit for that game (We could do that; we make the rules) Jeffrey would still come out on top with his perfect tie-breaker. Congrats, Jeff.

Bob Luera, Richard Mound, David Lucero, George Chapman, Doyle Howell, Tim Sherlock, Susie Sanchez, and Daniel Sanchez (2) all knocked on heaven's door with 14 wins. All had Carlsbad.

Biggest upsets according to our guessers with losses were Artesia, Las Cruces, Carlsbad, Texas and the Giants.

Biggest locks, Tatum, Alamogordo, Notre Dame and Houston. Only one person picked Indiana over Notre Dame.

The worst entry, no names please, had only seven winners. He had no winners on the college and pro side of the form. That's hard to do. Should have a prize for the worst of the year.

The News has never had a perfect slate of winners and this week's games are so tough, that record will probably stick for at least another week.

Lot of old faces and a lot of new faces in the contest this week.

The breakdown: 15 winners for three guessers, 14 for 9, 13-12, 12-10, 11-2, 10-6, 9-1, 8-1 and 7-1.

CHAMPION FLAMINGOS

Flamingos, double softball champs.

The rock solid Flamingos overpowered all competition this year to capture both the 1991 Women's Softball League Championships and the City Tournament.

In League Championships, Fire nipped at the Flamingos heels for second place in league play. Lady Braves finished third, Bullettes, fourth; Leather and Lace, fifth; and Shady Ladys sixth.

At the City Tournament, Bullettes couldn't penetrate the Flamingos, but did manage a strong second. Lady Braves captured third; Leather and Lace, fourth; Fire, fifth; and Shady Ladys, cellar dwellers.

Members of the Winning Flamingos team are: Kody Coker, Debbie Sanchez, Ann Speck, Vicki Eckerd, Sue Keeton, Sheila Espinosa, Debbie Porter, Kim Hudman, Pam Topper, Sherry Latta, Kayla Scarfutti, Lisa Wright, Ginny Pollack, Cindy Kleine, Cookie Homma, Kim Sanchez and coach Tim Eckerd.

Bullettes team members are: Gwen Jones, Irene Sanbrons, Debbie Hobbs, Mildred Morris, Jana Townsend, Sherry Gowen, Darlene Bobb, Rosie Clees, Karen Stanbrough, Eilene McGuire, Jessica Hobbs, Vivian Griego, Linda Fuchs and Philip Townsend.

Wishard, Julie Montoya, Angie Romero, Celina Copeland, Leslie Rostro, Jennifer Jimenez, Toy Chaney, Trina Garcia, Monica Martinez and coach Ernie Herrera.

The Women's All-Star team featured players: Rosie Clees, Karen Stanbrough, Jana Townsend, Mildred Morris, Kody Coker, Sue Keeton, Sherry Latta, Vicki Eckerd, Terry Cohen, Annette Torres, Michelle Bookout, Christine Beringer, Rua Simpson, Deanna Swanner, Jody Blanton, Verica Saenz, Brigid Herrera, Patsy Page, Lisa Shaw, Mary Ann Almager, Geneva Varella, Lula Martinez, Christine Totillito and Sherry Padilla.

Cree filled for the Williams 80 golfers in oldest tourney

The 1991 Johnny Williams Partnership Golf Tournament at Cree Meadows is a guaranteed success this year with a full slate of 80 players.

According to golf pro Jack Warlick, there is only a waiting list available to play in the four-day event September 19 through 22.

Warlick said players are coming from California, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas to play in Cree's oldest tournament.

The format for the tourney is a 54 hole stroke play-best ball of two man team. All play will be flighted based on total team handicap. All flights will be on low ballgross.

Players must be 25 years of age or older to compete. No more than seven stroke difference in both players handicap. The Committee reserves the right to adjust any handicap before and during the tournament.

The entry fee is $270 per team, to be enclosed with the entry form. Carts are not included.

For a shot at playing, but being placed on the waiting list, call Jack Warlick at 257-5815.

Time for Ruidoso bowlers to sign up for winter leagues

Horses of the meet

See Me Gone, pictured above winning the All American Derby on September 1, walked off with unanimous honors as Quarter Horse of the Meet at Ruidoso Downs Race Track this season. See Me Gone is owned by Jean Chavers and trained by J.B. Montgomery. Thoroughbred Horse of the Meet honors went to Jose Poncho (pictured, below), a little black horse with humble beginnings. Owners R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred purchased Jose Poncho at the 1990 Ruidoso Horse Sale for just $2,300. The New Mexico-bred gelding is trained by Don Farris. Jose Poncho is pictured in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity win.

Special session funding is critical for Fort Stanton

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

If the New Mexico State Legislature doesn't allocate some money to renovate Fort Stanton Hospital and Training Center during its current special session, the future of the institution looks dim.

Fort Stanton Administrator Ervin Aldaz told Lincoln County Commissioners Tuesday, "You'll probably see me after the session. I'll either be smiling or crying."

"This 30-day session is critical. If they don't allocate money, it's almost a certain no, although we have a second chance during the regular 1992 session."

The money would be used to renovate cottages at the institution, which has been used since 1966 to serve clients with developmental disabilities.

As a result of a 1990 court order, those clients are to be moved into community-based programs. A special task force was formed to come up with alternate uses that would preserve the majority of the 225 jobs at the facility and would meet some need of the state.

The task force, headed by Aldaz, recently submitted a recommendation to the Department of Health that the institution be converted into a nursing facility for elderly with behavioral problems or who are indigent, with some beds reserved for a transitional living unit and respite care.

"It's going to be a difficult situation," Aldaz said. "The state is real short of money and Medicaid is in the red. This money would come out of Medicaid funds."

"The support from the community and state agencies has been phenomenal," Aldaz said. "Really, it comes down to (a decision) by the Legislative Finance Committee and the Governor's Office."

All but about 20 jobs would be saved with the conversion and many of those people took early retirement to help younger employees stay, Aldaz said.

In the interim and because of the court order that required the state to improve services, Aldaz said he has been able to provide some specialized services he previously couldn't afford.

Only minimal staff retraining would be necessary if the facility was converted, he said. Most have training in excess of requirements for a nursing home.

"Over 50 percent of our current clients have some form of psychosis as well as a developmental disability so (staffers) are equipped there," he said.

The proposal would not place Fort Stanton in competition with private nursing facilities because it would accept indigent clients, those with severe behavior problems and clients whose families want to have them close to home, Aldaz said.

To date no clients have been moved from Fort Stanton into community programs.

"Last spring, I thought we'd be moving clients out by this date, but now it will be in the next two years because of the appeals that have been filed by the parents. It's slowing the process."

A group of parents have appealed the federal court order in an attempt to keep Fort Stanton open.

In another matter, commissioners said they were concerned about the installation of a water line from Bonito Lake in a county right of way by Stirling Brothers of Farmington.

County Road Manager Bill Cupit said the county needs some assurance that the company will restore the road to its original condition when it is finished. Commissioner Monroy Montes said he was advised the company has taken up four to six feet of roadway.

County attorney J. Robert Beauvais said the problem is that a prior agreement with the county gives the company permission to be working on the right of way.

"They say they don't have the budget to replace the road to where it was when they started," he said. "They're in our right of way. If we can't get some assurance, then we can't let them to pull out of there. (If we wait until they're through), we lose our leverage."

"I already told them we'd close them down if they didn't comply," Cupit said. "We have a meeting (this week) and the written agreement will be there to sign. They've been doing a sloppy job and they don't need to be digging further if they can't clear up what's behind them."

He recommended the county insist on a five-year warranty for the road repairs.

Beauvais said the county also would have the option of filing for damages against the bond posted by the company.

Montes said Wednesday this incident is similar to problems with right of way installation work by Zia Natural Gas and Lincoln Cable in Alto earlier in the year.

"It points up the need for an ordinance to address these types of situations," he said. "We have a workshop Thursday and will be discussing the proposed excavation ordinance."

In another matter, the commission Tuesday accepted the roads in Raven Ridge Subdivision on a recommendation from Cupit.

"I wish more developers would take the time, go ahead and do it right like he did," Cupit said.

Council zeroes in on lodgers, hospitality taxes

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Village Council Tuesday approved three resolutions regarding taxes.

The council acted on the regionalization of the Lodgers Tax Committee; hospitality taxing; and authority for County Revenue Bonds.

Regionalization attempts to interlock lodgers tax boards of the area in a common effort to advertise.

Hospitality taxing centers around a one percent local option hospitality tax on establishments which provide services to tourists and visitors. That option, before enacted, would have gone before the vote of the public.

Alonso said that money from any hospitality tax should be used not only for tourism, but for economic development. He said tourism is an immediate need and economic development would be looking toward the future.

The council made a motion to reduce the one percent to a half percent, to eliminate the state's half percent.

The motion passed unanimously.

The third resolution provides a means for counties or regional authorities to issue revenue bonds without question.

Village manager Ron Wicker cited the example of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority's predicament of having to wait for a legal precedent in another part of New Mexico before it can issue bonds for its operation.

The resolutions were passed unanimously.

A resolution concerning guidelines and eligibility for expenditure of Lodgers Tax Funds passed unanimously after some lengthy discussion over the eligibility of Ruidoso pins.

Councilor J.D. James said he has gone on a vacation and taken a pocket full of the pins and handed them to people he's never seen before.

"I get to explain about Ruidoso. And some of them come up here. I'm a firm believer in them," he said.

Village attorney David Thomsen was concerned with the procurement code.

"If a group is going to buy pins for their own event and then come begging to the village for money, I don't believe we can compensate them anyway," Thomsen said.

The council decided to leave the resolution intact and purchase future pins with general funds.

In other council action, the board:

—Scheduled a public hearing for a Zone Map amendment for the KOR Campground for Oct. 8, at the regularly scheduled council meeting.

—Postponed the public hearing regarding insurance benefits for elected officials.

—Deleted the Amendment to the Chamber of Commerce Contract. Will be discussed during the next regular meeting.

—Heard Smokey Stover credit the Garden Club for much of the beautification work done at the "Y". Stover said the Rotary supplies a lot of money into the area and the Garden Club puts knowledge and love into the project.

—Endorsed the 1991-92 Parks and Recreation plan submitted by Smokey Stover as a vote of confidence in the concepts of parks and recreation improvements.

—Read into the record a contingency plan for water shortages presented in a letter of concern from Dan D. Swearingin.

One more board joins Ruidoso's trio of advertising, promotion committees

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor
The committee that will be the idea arm of the LTB, RAB and Chamber triumvirate had an initial meeting to organize and to plan promotion of Aspenfest activities, Tuesday.

The Lodgers Tax Board (LTB), the Regional Advertising Board (RAB) and the Chamber's Visitors Promotion and Service Committee are all interrelated.

Joan Bailey, chairperson of the Chamber group, told committee members that her committee is "responsible for brainstorming" and targeting markets.

LTB plus RAB plus CVPSC equals mass confusion advertising

"This committee will originate plans for advertising, which, in turn will go to RAB and eventually to the village council. LTB primarily deals with funding various Ruidoso area projects including approved projects of the Visitors Promotion and Service Committee."

The committee has funding approved by the village council to promote Aspenfest activities through advertising.

Tuesday at the initial meeting, members discussed "packages" involving promotions which could win free weekends in Ruidoso for visitors and staff members of radio stations.

A tentative plan would call for the Chamber committee to buy five prime time weekends as part of packages to lure visitors to the Ruidoso area. The lodgers would be asked to provide five free weekends later on "slow weekends" which would be offered electronic media staffs in exchange for spots promoting Ruidoso area activities.

Also some radio time would be purchased direct.

Inclusion of free donated meals as part of the packages also was discussed.

Aspenfest will be promoted — primarily in the "maintenance market," an area within one day's drive of Ruidoso. Later, ski season will be promoted in the "reach market" as well, extending to far away known areas where skiers originate.

The committee agreed that Aspenfest posters will be produced stating the times and locations of Aspenfest events.

Aspenfest is an identifiable period of time running from the end of racing to Thanksgiving, with various events scheduled including the Cowboy Symposium.

Aspenfest weekend, the first weekend in October, with parade and such, is a part of the overall Aspenfest period.

Bailey told committee members that her committee will be doing "an agency review" also. The Phil Price Advertising Agency in the past has been retained to promote Chamber of Commerce and Ruidoso activities through advertising in periodicals, newspapers, radio and TV and through news releases.

RAB recently used the Mithoff Agency in El Paso to shape up three-page, full-color advertisements for the New Mexico Magazine Vacation Guide and the Sun Country publication.

Members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Visitors Promotion and Service Committee are Bailey, Larry Goodman, Mike Warren, Jerry Mattox, Karen Jones, Jacqueline Bentley, Jerry Wright and Dave McIntosh.

MEET THE ARTIST ANN HARDY

Champagne Reception
Sat., Sept. 14 / 1 to 7 P.M.

Ann's love and fascination for art has evolved from oil painting as a teenager, to a serious profession. It was her family urging her to "put something live" in her paintings, that proved instrumental in the development of her unique primitive style. Her landscapes are alive with animals, people and Americana festivities in late 19th and early 20th century romantic settings, with careful attention to historic detail. After years of associating with artists, attending painting seminars and researching art techniques, her approach to painting is, in Ann's words, "at the outset abstractly conceived, with the end result primitive or realistic."

The Silver Lining

Paul Jones gets a birthday surprise

Paul Jones Receives Honor

On September 7, I went up to the home of Paul Jones to wish him a happy birthday, and he showed me a handsome plaque with the picture of a windmill and tank at the top and these words at the bottom: "Paul Jones, Farmer of the year for 1991."

This memento was presented to him by the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District. The picture was painted by artist Lorene Caywood of Capitan.

Paul has been devoted to the land all his life as a farmer and rancher, and it is fitting that he received this honor on the occasion of his birthday.

Then, the next day, Sunday the ninth, all of us at the service at Saint Anne's Chapel, went up to the home of Paul and Nellie Ruth Jones where we had a fine dinner and grand visit, giving Paul a little send-off for his birthday.

A Day of September Charm

Sunday, September 8, dawned bright and clear after a day and night of rain two days before. All the mountain world throughout the day was in a mood of happiness. All the fields and hills and vales were shining green, and the sky above was clearest blue with pure white billowy clouds floating overhead. The heavy rain had washed the sky so that the hills seemed close to you and the clouds also close overhead. An extra touch of green had been added to the hills and vales. Mother Earth was in a joyful September mood which reached your heart and lightened your step.

by
Dain Storm
The Ridge
Runner

You looked out over the enchanted world, remembering other days like this when earth and sky held you in a special spell of happiness.

Then, just after sundown, the bright white clouds so clearly outlined in the pure sky caught the last rays of the sun now down behind the horizon. They were clouds of gold. Then from over the west came a flood of light golden light extending all across the sky and reaching over to the clouds in the east and the Vale, which had been cast into sundown shadow, suddenly became lighted up by the light from the heavens, and all the world was in golden gloaming.

Day of Light Cloud

And now in midafternoon of September 9, you are in a world of green and gray, all day the sky has been overcast with a thin layer of light cloud through the sun barely appears dim and silvery, casting the world into a half light. Yet the fields shine bright with emerald green, and the scarlet trumpet on its tall stalk is bright among the green. The gramma grass is showing a golden trim on its little purple banners where the pollen is beginning to form.

The sunflowers, brighter than ever this year on tall stalks by the wayside, are smiling brightly with their golden faces, little copies of their namesake, the sun, on this cloudy day.

The Tiniest Calf

Back through the summer a favorite young cow called Muley had her first calf, a tiny heifer. That is what I called her; "Little Tiny."

Somehow she received a severe wound in one hind leg, which finally healed after much treatment. Still, she limped in walking.

However, through the magic of this wonderful year of good grass, Tiny began to lose her limp. Tiny and her mother have been gone for a week or more back in the hills.

And today, about noon, her mother came down. She called and called. Then, finally from the top of the hill away to the south past the flag, came the little calf voice that you could just barely hear.

In no time at all, here was Little Tiny drinking her milk. She must have run all the way down. And there is no limp now. Tiny is a champion runner.

Right now she is lying down close by her mother, her snow white face half hidden in the deep green grass — a perfect picture — the very spirit of fond affection between mother and child.

Let us thank the Lord for a beautiful September and all our other many blessings.

Ruidoso couple helps build second People Care home in Roswell

A group home for the mentally ill, one of two planned, side by side, was officially opened in Roswell last week.

Ruidoso people, Bill Jones and his wife, Frances, of Ruidoso, were instrumental in originating the homes and in renovating them for use.

Bill Jones is president of People

Care, Inc., which opened the first home for three mentally ill women and a supervisor. An adjacent home will house 10 males residents once it opens in about three months.

The home for women is called "Greystone," the one next door "Three Gables."

Jones and his wife founded People Care Inc., after searching for a home for their mentally ill daughter.

People Care purchased the then abandoned properties in Roswell after the collapse of Valley Federal Savings Bank and after the federal Resolution Trust Corporation took over the property.

Ron Young, 29, of Ruidoso is looking forward to living in the larger facility when interior construction is complete.

Young, according to an article in the Roswell Daily Record, has donated several days of work helping to building the home.

He is a former Lubbock disc jockey who has slowly been recovering from a mental problem he encountered when he was 25.

Tigers try to tame tough Tatum team

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Capitan Tigers "improved 100 percent" in their second appearance on the playing field this season, said head football coach Pat Ventura.

Although the Tatum Coyotes took the home game 26-6, it was no rout. The Tigers rolled up fewer penalties and played a smarter game than last week. The performance was marred primarily by three intercepted passes inside their own territory.

"We threw five intercepted passes," Ventura said. "Three resulted in touchdowns by Tatum. They were all inside our end and they only had to drive 30 yards or so."

"Our defense made a few mistakes early and Tatum had two touchdowns right away."

The score at halftime was 12-6.

The Tigers posted their touchdown of the night when Orlando Baca threw a 30-yard pass into the waiting hands of Weldon Smith in the end zone.

Three penalties, two on defense and one on offense, cost the Tigers 35 yards.

Tatum's speed and passing game were tough to combat, Ventura said. "They were so much taller than our kids. We controlled their running game very well in the second half, but by the fourth quarter, our boys were getting tired."

Ventura lauded the playing of Ernie Gallegos, who was moved from split end to line tackle.

"He did a good job offensively and even defensively," Ventura said.

He also praised the performance of the junior varsity team in its game with Tatum.

"The score was zero-zero until 44 seconds left in the game. We threw an intercepted pass and they ran it in," Ventura said. "We played all seventh and eighth graders. We found out after the game, they used all 10 of their freshmen and our kids held them. We have some good talent coming up. They played real well."

The Tigers will next confront last year's state champs at Texico.

"They're pretty tough," Ventura said. "We'll work quite a bit on our passing game this week. That's where we're getting beat and that's where our opponents are scoring."

Practice also will focus on the fundamentals, he said.

"Our kids are pretty green and we're going to have to go back over some of the fundamentals to make sure they stick."

Tigers catch Coyotes

The Capitan Tigers vanquished the Tatum Coyotes last Friday in a clean sweep from seventh grade through varsity in the first volleyball games of the season.

Coach Pam Allen said her young team played like pros. "I felt our junior varsity played well once they got over the initial 'in high school' stage fright," Allen said.

They stomped the Tatum team 15-10 and 15-5 with Amy Cline serving up five straight points in the first game and Michelle Payton four points. Cline repeated her performance in the second game and Letty LaRue joined in with four serve points of her own.

Varsity players showed their tiger tenacity by winning the first game 15-10, slipped a bit to lose the second game 8-15 and then bit hard to stay in there for 15-4 and 15-9 wins.

"After playing so poorly in the second game and being down 0-4 in the third game, we came back and won 15-4," Allen said. Anita Aldaz, who racked up eight points serving in the first game was credited with five straight in the third game.

"Offensively our kids executed change up shots, handled placement and speed as well as most senior players," Allen said. "I'm very happy with our offensive frame of mind."

"The defense blocking also was good. We did not serve well, but we can fix that and now we know what we have to focus on."

Two other high servers were Tycie Traylor and Kelly Cox, who slammed seven home in the fourth game. Traylor notched five straight in the third game and four in the fourth game.

"We lost our entire starting lineup from last year. It was interesting to me to see what we could do. The kids worked extremely hard. The mistakes they made were only because they were young."

"I feel we're going to have a highly successful season," Allen said. "At this point, everybody is doing a solid job. There are no superstars, but we're a solid team and that's really pleasant."

Allen said she's being helped this year by Sherry Gowen, who was part of the 1988 championship team from Capitan.

And she heaped special thanks on Jennifer Eldridge.

"She's our one senior and she's giving solid leadership, not only during the games but through her work ethic and her desire to excel," Allen said.

Capitan's younger teams continued their winning streak Tuesday, banishing the Ruidoso Warriors' seventh, eighth and junior varsity teams.

The seventh grade Tigers won their first game 15-3 and repeated the performance for a second 15-3 score. Andi Griego slammed five serves home in the first game, Andra Fish pounded in four. In the second game, Mandy Aldaz traumatized her opponents with seven winning serves.

The eighth graders decided they liked the scores of their younger counterparts and also posted two 15-3 wins.

Michelle McGarvey torpedooed seven straight serves and Dottie Boyd delivered the other eight in the first game. McGarvey matched that number eight in the second game and Boyd delivered four serves.

The junior varsity team trampled the Warriors 15-0 and 15-6, with Pam Pacheco racking up four points from the service line and Letty LaRue notching six.

Kathy Campbell and Stacie Sidwell each hit five straight in the second game.

"Coach Norman Cline's junior high players did extremely well, passing, setting and hitting," Allen said.

Allen noted dramatic improvement in serving on the junior varsity team.

"Out of 39 serves, only five failed," she said.

Capitan trustees go looking for water rights

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Capitan Board of Trustees must lease about three months of water rights or face a $10,000 fine and a penalty against future water allocations.

But trustees postponed action Monday on one offer of rights. They want to look around for a better price.

The village receives an allocation of a predetermined amount of acre feet of water in five-year cycles under an agreement with the State Engineer's Office. It's up to the village to find sources for the water rights.

The current five-year cycle will end on October 31, but the village ran out of allocated water rights in July and has to make up the difference, village attorney J. Robert Beauvais told the trustees Monday.

"The state brought it to the village's attention during the summer that we would exhaust our rights by about 30-35 acre feet of water," he said. "Unless we add additional water to the system, we could be subject to a $10,000 fine and a double assessment penalty so we'd start 60-acre feet short on our next five-year cycle."

Beauvais identified one possible source of water rights as the Lincoln Valley Land Co., which currently is negotiating with the Bureau of Land Management to swap some of its land along the Rio Bonito for other tracts throughout the state.

"The company has rights that have not been used this year," Beauvais said. "If (President Ron Green) had used any portion of those rights, we could not temporarily divert them to Capitan. They would be retired for the whole year."

"He'll lose this year's appropriation if he does not use it. Irrigation is over for this year, so it is unlikely that anyone would protest this lease (of water rights)."

Green has offered 46.15-acre feet of water rights (contained on 14.2-acres of land) for $10,000, Beauvais said.

"Where did he come up with the $10,000 figure?" Trustee Norm Renfro asked. "He came up with the same number as the state would fine us. Is that because he thinks he's got us by the I think we should look around."

Beauvais said the state engineer seems to think the price is fair.

"Would it be any cheaper to use the water from Bonito Lake?" Renfro asked.

"Those rights are owned, too, their just impounded behind a dam," Beauvais explained. "You'd just have to find someone who didn't use their rights this year."

If the village buys more water rights than it uses by the end of the cycle, those extra acre feet of water will not be carried over as a boost in the next five-year cycle, he said.

"But if we don't transfer enough, we'll have to go back and do it again," Beauvais said. The village will not benefit from credit given when effluent is discharged back into the basin which contains the original source of water because it would be drawing water from the Hondo basin and discharging in Capitan.

"(Buying more water rights) is considered a cost of business and can be passed through to the customers," Beauvais said. But trustees said they weren't interested in raising rates. Mayor Frank Warth said there should be enough cushion to avoid that option.

Resident Dorothy Smith questioned why the village has run short of water rights in a summer with heavy rainfall.

Beauvais explained that the shortfall is calculated on five years of water use. The extra draw could have occurred during a previous dryer year, he said.

The outlook for the next five years looks more promising because the village will be hooked into a new source of water rights from Eagle Creek, he said.

Renfro said he couldn't understand why the state "would want to penalize us just because we ran out of water early."

Beauvais said the state doesn't distinguish between categories of users whether they're farmers or municipalities. State officials are working with the village, he said.

"Our allocation probably will not be approved until after we actually start to use the water," Beauvais said.

"The law protects our water rights from others too," said Trustee David Rouleau. The state allows the village 700 acre feet of water rights for each five-year cycle.

"The state engineer has made it clear he wants this resolved soon," Beauvais said.

Another option would be to buy the water rights for $50,000 instead of leasing them for three months at $10,000, he said. Entities such as the city of Alamogordo are buying up all the water rights it can find to put in the Bonito Lake and pump to the other side of the mountain, Beauvais said.

Resident David Woods urged the board to advertise that it's looking for water rights.

"If I had rights, I'd be mad if I found this had been done undercover," he said.

"What's been undercover?" Warth responded. "This is a public meeting. We're just trying to avoid a fine and double penalty."

In other business, Warth told the trustees that a price of $50,000 has been negotiated with owner Nettie Fuchs on 17.93-acres of land to be used for the village's constructed wetlands effluent treatment project.

The trustees hired Troy Padilla as a new water department employee and Dorothy Smith was reappointed to the village planning and zoning board.

The board renewed its lease for one year with Curt Temple for the operation of the Smokey Bear Museum after receiving assurances that the hours would be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. Temple pays $75 a month plus 2 percent of his gross sales.

Beauvais said the board is not locked into the terms of the previous lease agreement just because Temple wanted a second year.

Renfro said he'd received several complaints about the museum not being opened.

The trustees also approved a new garbage collection system. Containers must be placed at the street curb or in the driveway of a home or business. Although putting the garbage in the alley keeps it out of sight, it also presents an obstacle to maintenance and makes it easier to ignore when dogs get into the cans and scatter trash, said village Public Works Superintendent Terry Cox.

Trustee Gilbert Montoya, who voted against the ordinance with Albert Montes, said most people in town prefer keeping the garbage out of sight in the alleys.

Woods said he felt residents would be getting less service for more money.

"If we leave it in the alley, then we have to come up with more money to maintain those areas," Warth said.

Third time's the charm for Capitan

Congratulations were sent by the Capitan School Board Tuesday to the coaches of the girls' athletic program.

For the third year, the inspired coaches and girl athletes have won the Class A All Sports Trophy from the New Mexico Activities Association.

Principal Darrel Stierwalt said it's possible the school will be allowed to keep the trophy, a departure from normal procedure, because of its outstanding record.

School Board adopts drug testing for Capitan school bus drivers

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Bus drivers for the Capitan School District may be tested for drug use under a new drug/alcohol policy approved by the School Board Tuesday.

"It's only a matter of time until this is mandated," School Supt. David Lock told the board. "The state recommends that all drivers be tested."

"Frank (Silva, owner of the Capitan Transportation Company) came to me. He worked with the drivers and this policy will be in compliance with requirements."

The policy specifies that urine or blood testing of employees of the transportation company may be utilized to identify those who are using illegal drugs or abusing legal drugs or alcohol.

It provides that they may be tested before hiring, following any on-duty accident or unusually careless incidents and if a "reasonable suspicion" exists that the employee is under the influence of a controlled substance.

Refusal to submit a sample within three hours of a request will be grounds for termination.

The transportation supervisor and superintendent of schools will receive all reports of positive test results. No laboratory results will appear in the employee's file with the transportation company, but would be placed in the employee's school district file.

"Who will supervise this?" Board President Preston Stone asked Lock.

"Direct supervision is up to the bus contractor," Lock said. "If a sample comes back positive, the school superintendent becomes involved."

In another matter, the Capitan school system will take a new approach to discipline under a revised policy approved by the board.

Elementary Principal Jerry Newsom told school board members the policy was aimed at giving students more opportunity at self-discipline, eliminating punishments such as keeping students inside at recess and decreasing reliance on corporal punishment (spanking).

In the past after a first offense, a child's name would be posted on the board and the child would be kept indoors. But under the new policy, an offender only would be given a warning, Newsom said.

"After the second offense, we would write a letter telling the parents that their child has been suspended, but we won't mail it," Newsom said. "We will put it on his desk so he can read it."

"After the third time, the student would be placed on in-school suspension. The period of time would be determined by the type of offense."

Newsom said, "We're trying to give students a chance to change behavior."

If those steps fail to spur some improvement by the students, spanking and more parental contact may be used, he said.

The revised policy approved by the board also will leave it up to a school bus driver to notify parents and the school superintendent when a student, who has committed an offense, is suspended for one day from bus riding privileges.

Newsom said instead of sending home a list of classroom rules with students, schools will give them to parents on request.

In other business, the board:

—Approved a joint powers agreement with the Ruidoso school district for two students with developmental disabilities to attend there. The agreement means that Capitan still will receive some financial reimbursement for the students who live within the district.

—Approved the appointment of Sherry Gowan as assistant volleyball coach. She will be employed under a one-year waiver from the requirement for a degree and certification. Stone questioned whether the former Capitan student and star volleyball player would have a problem coaching with relatives on the team. But High School Principal Darrel Stierwalt said the coaches and players seem comfortable with the situation.

—Moved the dates for Spring Break from the week of March 16-20 to the week of March 23-27 in response to requests from teachers.

—Removed the teachers lounge at the high school from the list of approved places for smoking because of allergy and health complaints by other employees who work nearby. The cafeteria office was substituted.

—Heard a report that enrollment for the district hit 500 students three weeks into the session. That's about 17 higher than expected, Lock said. The official count by the state will not occur until the fortieth day of school. The district now has 132 high school students. The cutoff number for 1A schools is 150 students, Lock said.

—Heard that Lock plans to ban food and drink from the Capitan school gymnasium in an attempt to keep the area clean. "We'll put chairs and tables in the halls as has been done before, but we'll wait to put the policy in effect until we have signs ready," he said.

—Were told a community drive will be mounted next week to sell season tickets for athletic events to help pump revenues into the school athletic activities fund.

STAY IN TUNE

It's no surprise to most car owners that worn out spark plugs will cause an engine to run poorly. One misfiring plug can seriously affect a vehicle's performance, especially one with a four cylinder engine.

But spark plugs are only part of the story. Ruidoso Ford would like to remind motorists that all ignition components, as well as the fuel and the emission control systems, require periodic diagnostic checkups and maintenance for best performance and lowest exhaust emissions. Give them a call.

Five years later... Capitan board may enact zoning ordinance

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Five years after forming a planning and zoning board, the village of Capitan finally is on the verge of enacting a zoning ordinance.

Although board chairman Bernie Reimann advocates zoning and has played an important part in putting together the document, he also wants village residents to realize their lives will be affected if the ordinance is approved.

He's dismayed by the lack of public interest and participation in the meetings where the proposed ordinance has been reviewed.

"At the last board meeting, we discussed creating the neighborhood commercial zone category, which would cover the downtown area, and there was a total of three people (at the meeting)," Reimann said. "Luckily, they were interested and contributed nicely to the discussion."

One woman had just moved to Capitan, another attending a contractor who owns a significant tract of land.

But people who have livestock on small parcels should be paying attention because they could be affected by the ordinance, Reimann said. The ordinance would place restrictions on building construction and additions, setbacks from property lines and the required number of parking spaces for businesses.

The proposed zoning ordinance will be submitted to the village Board of Trustees as soon as Village Attorney J. Robert Beauvais has a chance to examine it and point out any areas that need to be revamped.

"The main thing is that with any type of zoning, obviously there is a tradeoff of orderly growth versus individual rights of the landowner," Beauvais said earlier this week.

"The people who may be most af-affected will be on the periphery of the town because the trustees also are trying to enter into an extraterritorial zone with the county because those are the areas where future annexations would occur."

Zoning is tied to the development of utility access and protects property owners by controlling objectionable activities, Beauvais said.

The zoning board members have written the neighborhood commercial category broadly enough to accommodate any feasible activity in a town the size of Capitan, he said.

And everything already in existence, even if it does not fit the prevailing zoning category applied to its area, would be "grandfathered" into approval as a non-conforming use, Beauvais pointed out.

Once the proposed ordinance has been dissected and passed by Beauvais, "the council will have a chance to make suggestions, improve it or reject it," Reimann said.

STRUCTURE

"When I became chairman, my idea was that all of the ordinances (accumulated from other areas for guidance) really do not fit a small village," Reimann said. "I urged the village council to go through the entire system and adapt it to Capitan."

The ordinance we're drafting is a combination, based on what a small village needs. We have dropped some of the zoning categories and enhanced others."

Residential use has been broken down into five designations: straight residential, R1; rural suburban, RS, that would include farms, ranches, low density developments and single-family residential developments; higher density, R2; residential-mobile home subdivision, RMS, (usually singlewide with temporary installation); and residential mobile home park, RMP, (more permanent and often doublewide). The last option is at this point only a contingency, Reimann said.

"We don't have anything like it yet," he said.

The category called Neighborhood Commercial would cover the entire downtown area and include stores where owners live on the second floor or in houses or mobile homes nearby.

"We did that to preserve the identity of our little village," Reimann said. "It gives us a wide range of possibilities."

Industrial use is the final and seventh category and is aimed only at light industry.

Reimann also is working on a zoning map to go with the ordinance.

He spends several days a week visiting specific areas of the community and gathering input from residents there.

"The main aim is to maintain the character of this village and to some extent, curb unwanted developments," he said. "With a little community like this, you can't do zoning in broad categories."

ZONING HISTORY

Dorothy "Duffy" Morton is one of the original members of the planning and zoning commission, which was created in 1984.

"David Cummings was mayor and was concerned about the development of the village, the new subdivisions going in and annexations," Morton said. "Initially, we were an ad hoc committee. Within two years, we came up with a subdivision ordinance and it set up the machinery for a zoning ordinance and the creation of the commission."

In 1986, five members served on the commission, but the membership later was expanded to seven.

"We needed a master plan and got it written, then we started on a zoning ordinance. Zoning is an alien concept in the Southwest, but people need to realize if their neighbors conform, it will increase their property values."

EXTRATERRITORIAL

Reimann said another vital ingredient to ensure good planning and orderly development for Capitan is the creation of an extraterritorial zone around the village, similar to the one that surrounds Ruidoso.

A request for an extraterritorial zone has been submitted to the Lincoln County Commission.

A board comprised of two elected county officials and one elected village official would have to be appointed to hear rezoning and development requests in that area.

Since the one-mile zone would include most of the land anticipated for eventual annexation to Capitan, it is necessary to be able to control growth patterns and development there, Reimann pointed out.

What if nobody could read?

Sunday, September 8, was International Literacy Day, and the newspaper industry has special reason to make note of this day. For, if people can't read or if people quit reading, then newspapers are out of business. But newspapers aren't alone.

23 million people in the United States and 4.5 million Canadians are functionally illiterate.

This means that because they can't read well, about 28 million North Americans are unable to complete everyday tasks successfully. That means those people can't do things like fill out a job application, follow written instructions on medicines and cleaning supplies and read notes from schools involving their children's education or their own jobs. Reading is involved in filling out forms, writing checks and following maps and bus schedules.

The large numbers of people who can't read are alarming enough, but there's more bad news. According to a report in the Washington Post, the reading and writing skills of the high school class of 1991 are the poorest in the history of SAT (College Board) examinations. "The million or so kids who took the test tend to be the cream of the crop — A and B students. It is a fair presumption that their untested classmates (about 1.5 million) are even less book-ish," continues the Post's report.

"The implications for our democracy are frightening; even now half the electorate fails to vote in presidential elections, the same percentage that reads newspapers rarely if at all," continues the Post.

Illiteracy will continue to impact far more businesses than those directly involved with the printed word — illiteracy hurts the entire nation and places an unnecessary burden on the economy with people unemployed, unemployable and feeling hopeless.

But there's hope. Right here in Ruidoso, Altrusa provides free, private and confidential tutoring for people who can't read. The Ruidoso Public Library offers many programs designed to make reading fun, and those programs will pay off in a future filled with adults who, not only know how to read, but also like to read.

The Ruidoso News salutes Altrusa for its Literacy Program and the Ruidoso Public Library for its ongoing efforts to keep people reading. The News, in cooperation with Altrusa and the Library, will be distributing a special literacy section on Monday, September 16. Watch for it.

Meanwhile, keep reading.

Political Commentary

Let's take Columbus off the shelf

Controversy has already begun over the New Mexico state government's ambitious plans to commemorate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyages.

Twenty-five members make up the Quintecentenary Commission, as it's called, which will be in charge of the activities. Tourism and cultural affairs officials will advise the commission.

For many Native Americans, Columbus is the symbol of colonialism, which has proved so disastrous for the people who have been here longer than anyone else.

"We are fighting against forces that everybody should be against. Columbus just becomes a symbol of those forces to us, because he is the one who brought them to our shores," Rick Hill, director of the museum of the Institute of American Indian Arts, was quoted as saying.

Some commission members, on the other hand, see tourism possibilities in the commemoration and would like to focus on the positive aspects of the interaction between those who came and those who were here.

The controversy over the state government's plan to commemorate the voyager is sure to grow as the magic year 1992 approaches. If we're lucky, all the attention paid to Columbus will help us to get the plaster cast of Columbus down off the shelf and make him into someone real.

Historian Howard Zinn, in his "A People's History of the United States," has pointed out that "When we read the history books given to children in the United States, it all starts with heroic adventure — there is no bloodshed — and Columbus Day is a celebration."

Zinn sums up the traditional historians' view of Columbus by quoting from "Christopher Columbus, Mariner," written in 1954 by Samuel Eliot Morison, a Pulitzer prize winning historian.

Morison didn't let Columbus off the hook for the subjugation of the people he came upon, finding Columbus guilty of "genocide."

But Morison accentuated the traditional view of Columbus, writing that "He had his faults and his defects, but they were largely the defects of the qualities that made him great — his indomitable will, his superb faith in God and in his own mission as the Christ-bearer to lands beyond the seas, his stubborn persistence despite neglect, poverty and discouragement."

Zinn, whose book was published in 1980, takes a more up to date approach. He relied for much of his information on accounts by Bartolome de las Casas, a priest who took part in Columbus' conquest of Cuba. Zinn quotes the priest as recording that "Endless testimonies...prove the mild and pacific temperament of the natives...But our work was to exasperate, ravage, kill, mangle and destroy; small wonder, then, if they tried to kill one of us now and then."

Zinn makes it clear that in telling the history of the Americas there is plenty of blame to go around.

Recounting the history of the early English colonies Zinn writes, "Not able to enslave the Indians, and not able to live with them, the English decided to exterminate them."

As early as 1585, Zinn recounts, members of an English settlement burned an entire Indian village because one of the villagers had stolen a small silver cup.

Today, leaders of governments sometimes try to portray their predecessors as mythical figures, hoping that people who glorify past leaders will glorify present ones as well. Most people, however, don't put their leaders on nearly as high a pedestal as the leaders would like.

The accounts by Zinn and others of the destructive side of the famous doesn't diminish their vision or tarnish their courage; it just makes them human.

It's time to make our heroes real.

What's this? You be the jury...

Karen Andre has been arrested for murder — that's according to a news release provided by Ruidoso Little Theatre.

Carl Mori, director of RLT's upcoming production of Ayn Rand's "Night of January 16," is looking for 12 good folks to decide the fate of the accused.

When "Night of January 16" takes to the stage at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, September 26-28, October 3-5, and October 10-12, and at 2 p.m. Saturday, October 5, a jury of 12 will be selected from the audience to sit in the case of the State vs. Karen Andre, played by Tracey Moran.

Members of the audience will have a chance to sit on a jury and hear evidence in the murder trial with Andre accused of killing Bjorn Faulkner.

"Night of January 16" will be presented at Cree Meadows Country Club, where guests may come early and have dinner before the production.

For dinner and theater reservations, call 257-9186.

The accused, Karen Andre, will be played by Tracey Moran during Ruidoso Little Theatre's production of "Night of January 16." You may be selected to sit on the jury to decide her fate in the Ayn Rand play.

Caravan heads to Lake Lucero

An auto caravan to White Sands National Monument's Lake Lucero, the source of the white sands, is scheduled for Saturday, September 28.

Reservations are required, and can be obtained by calling Monument Headquarters at 479-6124. The caravan is limited to 30 vehicles.

The trip will begin at 10 a.m. at the Small Missile Range Gate intersection with U.S. Highway 70/82, 25 miles west of White Sands National Monument Headquarters, between mileposts 174 and 175.

Park rangers and military police will brief the group on regulations that apply during the trip. The caravan will proceed over paved roads, through the White Sands Missile Range, to the trailhead to Lake Lucero.

About two hours at the lake area allows time for the 3/4 mile conducted walk to the lake, snack, photograph taking, and then return to the vehicles.

Back to school

Sheri Cantwell, summer intern at The Ruidoso News this summer, got a cake and a big sendoff when she left her newspaper job behind and headed back to the books at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces. Cantwell, a senior at NMSU, joined the editorial staff for the summer as a news reporter covering the county and education beats.

The Plant Corner

On turning a curse into a blessing

DEAR SALLY,

As promised I enclose a copy of information about "KUDZU," the line that has taken over sections of the south. The "growth" in your home reminded me of Kudzu as it is so vigorous.

Nathan and I did enjoy meeting you, the Plant Lady, and visiting in your home. I hope to bring Jennie soon for you to meet and get to know.

Best Regards,
Paul and Nathan Jones
Austin, Texas

DEAR PAUL AND NATHAN,

Thanks so much for the article about Kudzu. I found it so interesting, I'm going to print excerpts for The Ruidoso News readers.

Plant Characteristics — Kudzu is a woody perennial vine that easily climbs to 65 feet. Compound leaves bear three large broad densely hairy leaflets that may be entire or deeply lobed. The fragrant flowers are purple, and the hairy linear pod is red or brown. Kudzu currently grows in East Texas along roadsides.

The kudzu vine provides a dramatic example of the potentially disastrous consequences of transporting plant species to non-native lands! An honored ornamental and food plant in its native Indochina and Japan, Kudzu came to the US in 1876.

Americans began using Kudzu in the Southeastern US as an ornamental shade vine. Between 1910 and 1935 it became widely used in the South as livestock fodder and pasture.

by

Rich in protein and chlorophyll, the vine compares with alfalfa in nutritive value. American farmers considered the vine the answer to a prayer.

But by 1955, the blessing had become a curse. The fast-growing vine had spread beyond its desired boundaries, covering crops and pastures and destroying valuable forests. A single vine can cover 100 feet or more in a season. The vines quickly cover all other vegetation in their path, killing trees by blocking out light and pulling down trees and telephone poles.

Today Kudzu covers over one million acres of farm, forest and pasture in the Southeastern US. The vine has spread into East Texas, where it may soon present a serious problem.

Fortunately, the severe winters of the northern US and the droughts in the Southwest, have restricted the spread of the vine only to the warm, moist regions of the US.

Although Kudzu has become so despised in the US, the Oriental peoples rely on Kudzu as a food and fiber, in addition to the ornamental and forage uses. They eat the young, tender flowers, leaves and shoots, adding them raw to salads or boiling them for soups, teas and casseroles.

Older foliage becomes too fibrous for eating. Stripped of the tough outer bark, the tenuous roots may also be boiled and eaten.

The roots, which are highest in starch in fall and winter, may reach seven feet in length and can weigh more than 400 pounds.

Japanese Arrowroot, a cooking starch, is extracted from the tubers and is used as a thickener for soups, a coating for fried foods, an ingredient of noodles, a gelling agent and a medicine.

The stem fibers of the vine furnish threads for fishing line, baskets and textiles. Fine artists' paper, wallpaper and cloth for kimonos all have been manufactured from the fibers.

Kudzu has the same potential for use in the US as anywhere. Researchers at Vanderbilt University have proposed that the root starch be used in the fermentation of baker's yeast and Ethanol fuel.

Perhaps we can transform the curse back into a blessing by taking advantage of the many valuable products that the plant can furnish.

Past Tense

Thirst gets the best of traveling doctor

One cold day in January 1913, a fellow with a dark complexion wearing a black hat pulled down over his ears, a dark coat with sleeves reaching to within six inches of his wrists and coattails extending just below his knees rode into Capitan.

The man's feet rested in saddle stirrups below the horse's belly about three feet from the ground. His pants were wrinkled and the horse showed it had been ridden from a long distance.

The way the man sat in the saddle reminded people of the character in the story of Ichabod Crane, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

The man inquired at the store where he could find room and board. The Benett twins were at the store and told him they lived three miles north and their mother occasionally took in boarders at their home.

About a week later, the mail hack driver delivered to Mrs. Benett's mailbox a large wooden box he had received at the railroad depot for Dr. Walker. In it was a sizable valise containing an assortment of pills, various instruments plus a pair of forceps and a hypodermic syringe.

According to his credentials, Dr. Walker was a medical graduate from one of the mid-western universities and had worked with some noted surgeons before he was stricken with tuberculosis.

It soon was known throughout the country that a circuit doctor had established his office on Little Creek. His business did well, especially in the local villages. He liked Capitan and Lincoln for two reasons. The population was larger in those towns and he could always find (after attending a patient) a place where he could quench his dry throat after a hot dusty ride.

The Colera Coal Mines were terminated in 1904. Immediately after they shut down, employees, equipment and buildings were shipped to Dawson, N.M. The employees who wanted to stay started working at the Marine Hospital or homesteaded on a portion of Public Domain the government had opened on the prairie land 15 miles north of Capitan. By

by Herbert Travis
Historian

1914, eighty families lived within a radius of 20 miles from the center of the area where a store, post office and a school had been built. At first the settlement was called Paradise Valley. Later, the post office was named Deseo.

The doctor reasoned it would be profitable to settle in the middle of the area if he could find open land. After scouting with the help of a homesteader by the name of Calvin Hare, he located 40 acres about 1 1/2 miles from the school house.

He filed on it, built a two-room frame house, one room above the other. The lower room served as an office, living room, dining room and kitchen. The elevated room was the bedroom and was accessible by a ladder from the inside of the lower room.

After four or five months, the neighbors decided it was to their advantage to fence his 40 acres rather than have to be constantly looking out for Brownie, the doc's horse.

By 1915, the doctor was caring for sick people in the area of Corona, Capitan and Arabella.

Frequently, he was gone for two days on his trips. He was especially proficient with pneumonia cases, which were prevalent at the time. He was good at setting broken bones and was adept at delivering babies.

His only vice was his addiction to alcohol. As far as I recall, however, he attended to his patients before imbibing. Usually he would drink at a nearby saloon and when the bartender closed the place, he would help the doctor on Brownie and the horse would take him home.

On one of these trips home during the winter with snow on the ground, the doctor was in need of a bracer. He rode up to the wood pile where my father was cutting stove wood and said, "Neighbor, don't you keep a bottle of snake medicine at your house?"

My father said, "Why yes, doctor. Have you been snake bitten?"

"Well, no," the doctor replied. "But I saw a snake and it licked its tongue out at me."

Many times the doctor would be too tipsy to unsaddle Brownie after arriving home. The little horse would remain in the enclosure until the doctor sobered up or a neighbor noticed he was saddled, went over and unsaddled and watered him.

The doctor served the people from 1914 until February 1917, when a family who lived in Rabentone sent for him to attend a child sick with pneumonia. According to the parents of the child, he arrived at their place about 5 p.m., attended the sick child and left for home — or the cantina. The fellow who ran the bar closed at 11 p.m. and tried to get the doctor to stay the rest of the night with him.

The doctor insisted he was able to ride and that he had to go home. The bartender helped him on the horse, checked the saddle cinches, tied a knot in the end of the reins to where the horse would have ample room for maneuvering his head without being too tight on his mouth.

The third day, a neighbor noticed Brownie with his saddle still on at the tub where the doctor watered him.

A search party started backtracking the horse's course toward Rabentone. They found the doctor lying in a small arroyo about three miles east of the settlement. He was frozen. A Coroner's Jury ruled the doctor had been dead three days and that he met his end from a fall off a horse and by freezing to death.

He was taken to a neighbor's house where he was prepared for burial the next morning. A neighbor, probably Jeff Gardenhire, built a pine coffin and the community buried him in Encinosa Cemetery.

Several months later, the sheriff of Lincoln County sold the personal belongings of the doctor at a public auction.
