Lujan visits county

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Gusty winds blew across the malpais Wednesday as U.S. Secretary of the Interior Manual Lujan Jr. swept into town for the dedication of Valley of the Fires Recreation Area.

While banners flapped and papers flew, officials from the Federal Bureau of Land Management (BLM) welcomed Lujan, his entourage and representatives of Transwestern Pipeline Co. to the recreation area, which sits on an island of rock surrounded by the lava flow.

In front of a crowd of Lincoln County and Carrizozo politicians and residents, Lujan predicted that the 10,000-acre tract of lava will be turned into a wilderness area.

"The BLM made that recom-

Council limits boards to locals

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

In a reversal of opinion by a majority of the Ruidoso Council, only village residents will be allowed to sit on appointed boards.

Several council members had proposed opening boards to non-residents, stiffening attendance rules and dropping a requirement that members of the Lodgers Tax Committee be registered voters.

But Tuesday, the council unanimously agreed to allow Mayor Victor Alonso to decide when members of appointed boards should be removed for excessive absences. They voted to stay with a voter's registration requirement for the Lodgers Tax Committee.

And, in a split vote, the council agreed that members of appointed boards should be residents of Ruidoso.

Jerry Shaw, former Ruidoso councilor, spoke in favor of keeping only Ruidoso residents as board members.

"We, as voters who live within the village limits, have the first right to serve on boards and commissions," she said.

"Yes, there's talent in Alto and there's also talent in Ruidoso Downs. But Ruidoso Downs is an incorporated village and it has its own boards and commissions. Alto also has boards and commissions. I don't think anyone in Alto would want Ruidoso Downs serving on their architectural review committee.

"If there's that much talent, let's annex Alto. Then they can also pay for the services residents of Ruidoso pay for," Shaw said.

Members of boards and commissions become future village councilors, she said, but non-residents can never run for village councilor or mayor.

Businessman Michael Radziewicz said voters put the council in office. The committees decide tax dollars. Outsiders coming in could call decisions not in the best interest of the community.

"I feel there is a wealth of people

Police say "drive to the right"

Left lane drivers beware! Ruidoso police are not happy about people who live in the fast lane, the left lane on Sudderth Drive, and stopped several drivers last week to warn them to move over.

Police Chief Richard Swenor said a higher than usual number of accidents occurred in the village recently along Sudderth Drive. He said the accidents were not at intersections, but in the wrong traffic lane preceding their accident.

"People driving on the undivided four lane roadway have a tendency to drive in the 'fast lane' or inside lane," Swenor said. "The laws require people to drive in the right or outside lane except when overtaking and passing another car going in the same direction or when executing left turns."

Swenor said Ruidoso experienced a total of 198 motor vehicle accidents in 1990 involving 312 drivers. In comparison, 1989 reflected 244 accidents with 390 drivers.

The police chief said Ruidoso's high accident areas are Sudderth Drive, 54; Mechem Drive, 26; Hull Road, 13; Paradise Canyon Drive, 10; US Highway 70, 12; and Lesser roadways of Gavilan Canyon Road, Grindstone Canyon Road, Crown Drive, White Mountain Drive and Main Road.

Last year's highest accident month was August (32), the highest days were Fridays and the highest time periods were from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The highest accident drivers' age was 15-17 (42) and 30-34 (39) with the latter group being responsible for the highest number of injury type accidents.

Councilor Al Junge demands fair treatment for water users

As a result of a councilor's tenacity, utility hardships for some Ruidoso residents may be eased.

During a meeting Tuesday of the Ruidoso Village Council, Mayor Victor Alonso commended Councilor Al Junge for his 10-month fight to change a municipal code he thought was unfair to several village residents.

Junge left the meeting early on an urgent call and was not present for the mayor's audits.

The mayor said Junge's persistence led the council to change an ordinance to redefine the word "unit." The change will help residents who have been double charged for uninhabited guest type homes.

"Had it not been for Junge's tenacity and stubbornness in pursuing the matter, it probably wouldn't have reached this far," Alonso said. "He kept after it, with it, finally got it to a point where all of us understand it. Even though he is not here, a pat on the back is due Councilor Junge for his tenaciousness to get the job done," Alonso said.

Councilor Andrews expressed his concern that the ordinance should be fair to both residents and the village.

With some rework by village attorney David Thomsen and Andrews, the ordinance will be considered for passage by the board on May 28.

In other business, Villager Manager Ron Wicker said Ruidoso's spring clean up was a very big success.

"I wasn't here for previous spring cleanups, I'm sure they were successful, but the one that we had was very successful," he said. "It was so successful that the pile of trash at the chamber of commerce parking lot surrounded our truck and we weren't able to get the truck out that Monday."

Wicker said the program was important to the community and perhaps should be scheduled for twice a year.

Alonso said a different area may be considered, but the high visibility of trash piles at the chamber before the tourist season didn't bother him.

He said the visibility reminded people to go out and clean up.

"If it takes a pile of trash in a strategic location to create awareness, then I don't have a problem with that," he said.

Council strikes out on requests to the State and R.D. Hubbard

by CHUCK STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The village council drew a couple of blanks when it fired inquiries to the state about Highway 48 construction and to R.D. Hubbard for financial assistance.

Mayor Victor Alonso told council members Tuesday that he had contacted Lou Medrano Secretary of the State Transportation Committee to inquire on the status of State Highway 48.

Medrano said that no determination would be made until all of the local responses have been collected and read, Alonso said.

Several members of the council were critical of the highway department's response to past requests.

Ruidoso Police Chief Swenor said he has asked for street lights every six months for some of the busier Ruidoso thoroughfares. Swenor said he is routinely turned down.

Councilor Bill Karn was not pleased with the state's attitude.

"It's amazing how the State Highway Department can see that we need a five-lane road with a suicide lane in the center and yet they can't give us a traffic light," he said.

Councilor Ron Andrews said the Police Department also asked for traffic lights for Sudderth at the Gazebo shopping center, and was told the traffic wasn't heavy enough to warrant a light.

"We don't have traffic anywhere in town heavy enough to warrant a traffic light, but we do have traffic heavy enough for an $8.5-million dollar five-lane highway," Andrews said.

Village manager Ron Wicker said the village had to show traffic by volume or accidents preventable by the placement of a traffic signal.

"The best way to accomplish this is to make our own study, and then present a valid traffic signal need to them," Wicker said. "They don't have to do the study. They just have to answer to what you've done."

Councilor Al Junge said the idea of traffic lights was discarded in the past for fear of the backup that might occur within the village downtown. Junge said he didn't know if that theory would hold true today.

Mayor Alonso said a traffic study by the village may answer some of the questions posed by the council.

A motion passed to instruct the village manager to conduct traffic counts.

In other business, the mayor read a response to the council from R.D. Hubbard who is financing the Radisson Resort Hotel at the Sierra Blanca Resort.

The hotel will be adjacent to the civic/events center on municipal land.

Alonso said when the council reached a compromise with R.D. Hubbard so that his hotel could take advantage of the meeting rooms in the new civic-events center, Hubbard told the council he would help the village obtain additional money in Santa Fe.

"Unfortunately, there wasn't much funding in Santa Fe," Alonso said. "This council felt the modifications to the center were substantially due to the requirements Mr. Hubbard placed on the center," he said.

The council sent a letter to Hubbard reminding him of his pledge to help.

The reply read to the council by Alonso was to the point. Although he appreciates the problem with the architects, Hubbard wrote that the problem appeared to be between the architect and the village. The letter did not include a recommendation.

"The council probably expected as much," said Alonso. "This confirms the expectations we met."

Alonso said the council will have to reconsider how to pay the $13,000-plus costs.

In other business, the council:

—Approved a new restaurant license for beer and wine for Virginia Smith of the Homestead Cafe.

—Proclaimed youth government day on May 8 in honor of the support of the Ruidoso Elks Lodge 2086.

Village lodgers tax collections are up

The Ruidoso Lodgers Tax Committee received a year-end boost by the village council, but a commitment to clean water compliance will prove costly.

The Ruidoso Village Council Tuesday increased the Lodgers Tax Fund budget to cover an additional $27,000 expected before the end of the fiscal year. The money represents payments of delinquent lodgers tax fees.

But the council postponed a request from lodgers tax chairman Ed Hyman to approve any expenditures for the 1991-92 fiscal year until the upcoming budget review.

The council also approved a resolution expressing the commitment of the village to comply with Clean Water Regulations, and its further commitment to action steps to achieve that compliance.

Those steps include:

—Making application to the New Mexico Wastewater Facility Construction Loan Fund for the renovation of the Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant and further repair and replacement of sewer lines.

—Repairing broken and leaking sanitary sewer lines.

—Renting the necessary equipment to reduce the volume of wastewater sludge.

—Developing a plan for disposal of dried solids.

—Expanding the plant to accommodate increased population and tourism over the next 5-10 years.

Budgets take the center stage

Budgets are on everybody's mind at this time of year. The Capitan Board of Trustees is scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. Monday to hash out the village's priorities for the coming year. It meets at village hall.

The Lincoln County Commission's regular board meeting will start at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the county courthouse in Carrizozo. The subject of money is bound to come up. The commission spent last Wednesday and was set to meet again today to review anticipated revenues for 1991-92 as well as budget requests from department heads and community groups.

The Capitan School Board will tackle its budget at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 9, in the board room of the school complex.

Glencoe-Palo Verde-San Patricio firefighters meet

Glencoe-Palo Verde-San Patricio Volunteer Fire Department is recruiting new members and will meet Tuesday, May 7, at the fire station across U.S. Highway 70 from Nosker's Meat Market in Glencoe. Anyone interested who lives in those areas is invited to attend.

Fire restrictions apply in the Lincoln National Forest

Fire danger is very high in the Lincoln National Forest and restrictions are in effect.

Building, maintaining, attending or using a fire, campfire, charcoal brioler, hibachi or a coal or wood stove is not allowed except in Forest Service developed camp and picnic grounds.

Smoking is not permitted, except within an enclosed vehicle or building, a developed recreation site or while stopped at an area at least three feet in diameter that is barren or cleared of all flammable material.

As Smokey Bear says: "Only you can prevent forest fires."

State seeks written comments on the Mechem Drive project

The State Highway Department is collecting input on the project to improve three miles of the existing two-lane Mechem Drive (NM 48) beginning at Sudderth Drive.

The proposal was the subject of a public hearing April 24. Written comments will be accepted through Monday, May 8. They should refer to Project RS-1226(12) and be mailed to Public Involvement Coordinator, NM State Highway and Transportation Department, PO Box 1149 Room 115, Santa Fe NM 87504-1149.

Farmers plant peanuts

New Mexico's farmers are expected to plant 25,000 acres of peanuts in 1991. If realized, this will be the highest acreage ever planted in New Mexico.

Sorghum intentions exhibit a 43 percent increase to 200,000 acres. Corn plantings are expected to remain unchanged at 85,000 acres. Wheat planted acreage is estimated at 550,000 acres, up 6 percent from 1990.

—Increasing operation of the plant to 16 hours a day. Wicker said some staff would have to be added.

—Staffing the operations with persons that meet the certification requirements specified by the New Mexico Environment Department.

Mayor Victor Alonso emphatically acknowledged the council recognized the village had a problem and understands the seriousness of complying with the state.

Alonso also said the village was very fortunate to have hired a manager like Ron Wicker who was so well versed in utilities.

"I get the feeling that we are on the way to getting something done rather than just talking about it," Alonso said to Wicker. "I appreciate your work on this."

In other regular business Tuesday, the council:

—Proclaimed the week of May 5-10 as Tourism Week.

—Thanked Bob and Inez Tanner for furnishing refreshments during the council break.

mentation to Congress and the Department of Interior will support that," Lujan said. "This is a really unique environment. They call it the malpais, the badlands, it has its own special place in nature."

The lava beds may look barren but they support a healthy population of mule deer, wild sheep, eagles and bobcat as well as a variety of plants, he said.

For the past year since the BLM took over the park, officials from the Roswell district have worked on planning and improvements, said Fran Cherry, district manager. The improvements include the newly built administration building and small attached visitors center, rebuilt picnic sites that now are handicap accessible and changes on the 1 1/4 mile nature trail.

BLM State Director Larry Woodard introduced Lujan, referring to him as President George Bush's point man for the May campaign of "Take Pride in America."

"I hope you also take pride in New Mexico, especially at budget time," Woodard told Lujan, who is from New Mexico.

Lujan surprised the state director with a "Meritorious Executive" award from Bush in recognition of Woodard's leadership.

Dr. Ray Powell from Gov. Bruce King attended the dedication to read a proclamation from the governor.

The big bang of the day was delivered by Douglas V. Krenz, vice president of business development for Transwestern Pipe Line Co.

With the Enron Foundation, Transwest contributed $50,000 to support the enhancement of this beautiful facility," Krenz said. Transwestern is a 4,000-mile natural gas transmission system extending from west Texas and southern Oklahoma to the California border.

Lujan said he is looking throughout the country for partnerships in caring for the land under BLM stewardship.

"I've thought for a long time that government alone can't do it," he said. The BLM is responsible for 270-million acres. More than 60-million visitors a year use portions of that acreage.

in Ruidoso in retirees and others who are waiting to serve on a committee. They just have to be called and sought out," Radziewicz said.

"The council should have a committee to seek out residents with special skills and expertise that could best serve the voters and council of Ruidoso," he said.

"You're giving out votes to people of other communities that can't vote for you," he said.

Councilor Ron Andrews said he asked the attorney to draft the ordinance with proposed changes for two reasons.

"We're a small community. It seems when we go looking for active commission members, we have a very small population to pick from. A lot of the same people are on different committees," he said.

But people outside of the village who serve on committees should own property or businesses in Ruidoso, making them taxpayers, he said.

Councilor Barbara Duff said the council has been openly asking the public for input for a year.

"It's amazing how little interest has been shown," she said. Duff commented on searching for residents with beneficial backgrounds. "It isn't as easy as it seems," she said.

Mayor Victor Alonso said some of the people nominated to serve on committees are not always acceptable to the council. Others are highly qualified, but are barred because they are non-residents.

He cited a recent example of a person from Alto who showed enthusiasm to help Ruidoso with youth programs. He said this parent was not a resident of Ruidoso and could not be on a board.

"Sometimes, I feel we should go with the movers and shakers who have these ideas," he said. "I don't think political will or purse strings of the village will be adversely affected. These boards are advisory in nature. Your elected officials are still ultimately responsible. Regionalization is a concept that is catching on."

"I think it's normal to react the way I've heard the comments in a fairly negative provincial way. This is our province and let's keep it our province."

He said the trend is to work across local boundaries.

Resident Dick Shaw of Ruidoso said he felt that the council doesn't always appreciate or listen to its volunteers. He said the council could benefit from an advisory board by sometimes listening to their advice. He said board members should be encouraged more.

"Once an advisory board submits written and verbal reports, do something about it," he said.

Councilor Al Junge said, "I feel that our committees have a lot to say of how money is spent and how things are done in the city. It's their taxes and their city. I think members should be city residents."

Junge then made the motion that invalidated the open membership clause and returned the ordinance to the old wording that read residents only.

Councilor Bill Karn seconded Junge's motion. Councilor Jess Stinson was absent from the meeting. The motion passed. Councilor Andrews was the only "No" vote.

Shaw said the council was being too strong in their demands for automatic resignation of board members for missing three meetings in any calendar year, no excuses accepted. She cited funerals as an example of a crisis that should be excused.

She said if you're going to apply the requirement to boards and commissions, the councilors should set an example themselves.

Karn made a successful motion to amend the ordinance to read, "Any member of the board, other than a councilor, who is absent for three meetings in any calendar year may be deemed by the mayor to have resigned from the board."

The language softened the council's position on automatic resignation and allowed a judgment call by the mayor.

Shaw also said she didn't want anyone to serve on the Lodgers Tax Committee that wasn't a registered voter.

"If they're not interested enough in this community to be a registered voter, they shouldn't be spending community funds," she said.

Councilor James then made a motion to reinstate the phrase "registered voters" for the Lodgers Tax Committee. The motion passed unanimously.

A vote was then taken on the ordinance that essentially created an Arts and Film Commission and a Transportation Board. The motion carried unanimously.

Billy buffs saddle up for the summer

Lincoln and DeBaca counties, the hub of New Mexico's Billy the Kid country, have filled their calendars with exciting events this year for Billy buffs.

Those who want to follow in the footsteps of one of the Old West's most notorious outlaws should jot down dates for vacation and weekend planning.

Starting June 7-8, Fort Sumner will host its Sixteenth Annual Old Fort Days. Visitors can view the Kid's grave and site of the former military post where he was shot and killed by Lincoln County Sheriff Pat Garrett on July 14, 1881.

Commanding center stage is the frenetic Billy the Kid Tombstone Race, an offbeat competition that commemorates the quick recovery of the Kid's tombstone in February 1981, the third time the 100-pound granite marker had been stolen in three decades.

Last year, nearly 1,000 spectators watched as 72 contestants lugged 80-pound replicas of the Kid's tombstone across a 100-yard, obstacle-laden course.

The entry fees are $15 in advance and $20 at the gate. Contact the DeBaca County Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 28, Fort Sumner, NM, 88119 or call Mary Ann Cortese at 505-355-7218.

South of San Jon, Caprock Amphitheater will stage a fifth summer under the stars of Don McAlavy's outdoor musical drama "Billy the Kid" from June 13-August 17.

An hour and a half before the 8 p.m. performances begin every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, a barbecue will be served. The package for adults is $13 and for children $6. The play ticket by itself is $8 for an adult, $7 for a senior citizen and $2.50 per child.

Contact the New Mexico Outdoor Drama Association, P.O. Box 337, San Jon, NM, 88434, or call 505-576-2455.

Next on the calendar is the Fourth Annual Billy the Kid-Pat Garrett Historical Days in Ruidoso, July 13-14.

The high point of the outlaw gang's family reunion-like get-together is a cooking contest with the unlikely name of the Stinking Springs Stew Cookoff.

The day-long cooking contest at Cedar Creek Campground is based on a historical incident in December 1880. Garrett and his posse captured the Kid and his gang at a rock cabin called Stinking Springs, 17 miles east of Fort Sumner, by enticing the hungry Kid and his pals to surrender to the aroma of meat stew simmering above an open fire.

Registered contestants individually or in teams are required to cook the same basic ingredients over a wood-smoke fire, right down to the actual seasonings used more than 100 years ago.

Guided tours to related historic sites are coupled with a Billy the Kid look-alike contest.

Contact outlaw gang director Marilyn Bowlin, P.O. Box 2257, Ruidoso, NM, 88345, or call 505-257-2227 or gang headquarters at 505-355-9935.

The historic village of Lincoln will open its streets to visitors for the 23rd Annual Old Lincoln Days August 2-4. They can stroll past 26 of the 44 homes and buildings that witnessed the Lincoln County War of 1878 and the Kid's daring escape from jail there in April 1881.

A 10-minute video at the Lincoln County Heritage Trust's visitor center will help orient first timers to the village. Its museum wing displays several of the Kid's artifacts.

The fee for touring the visitor center and five museums is $4.50 per adult. Children, 15 and under, are free. Overnight stays are available at two historic properties. Contact the Trust at P.O. Box 98, Lincoln, NM, 88338 or call 505-653-4025.

Topping off the season, the Trust will present a Billy the Kid Symposium Sept. 11-14 at Ruidoso's Swiss Chalet on State Highway 37. Entitled "The Days of Billy the Kid: Violence & the Western Frontier," the symposium will draw 20 nationally renowned authors and historians as guest speakers, panelist and tour guides on field trips to several of the Kid's haunts.

The symposium is open to the public.

Ruidoso Downs village hall moves

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor

"It's a dream come true," said Ruidoso Downs Police Chief Gordon "Skip" Hazel, as he surveyed the spacious dispatch room in the new village hall at Ruidoso Downs.

It isn't a new city hall, exactly, because the building being occupied by village offices and the police department is the former Redmens Club.

In fact, a sign outside still says "Valet Parking." No one has had time to pull that sign down.

Hazel said he has been in law enforcement for seven years at the Downs and has dreamed of getting out of the old village hall.

Although village offices were moved last week, partitioning and construction work is continuing in remodeling the old night spot which retains some degree of opulence.

From operating out of a shoe box so to speak, village hall employees now have room to spread their wings and fly — for some distance without hitting an obstruction.

To a degree, it's like moving from poverty flats to the mansion on the hill.

The mansion in this case has a view of the Capitan Mountains and of Sierra Blanca. It's located high on a hill overlooking the valley below.

Maurice Gudgel, village clerk, from her wallpapered office, said, "I'm glad I've gotten my people out of there," referring to the old village hall.

The old village hall had serious structural and sanitation problems, occasioning a search some time ago for a suitable building for a temporary or permanent new village hall.

The New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration had approved an emergency grant of $15,000 to move village hall and pay rent for a time.

"We're still within budget," the village clerk said. She said the village obtained a "most advantageous" bid on remodeling work.

The police department will start moving from cramped quarters today from the old village hall. Moving of the radio tower started yesterday.

The shop at Ruidoso Downs will remain where it is so that mechanics will have some place to work.

Rolling equipment, however, will be "stored" at the new village hall in a spacious parking lot.

Gudgel said the highway department is preparing new signs to point to the new village hall from U.S. 70. Signage is important because of the relatively remote location of the structure now undergoing renovation.

The Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority has a spacious office in the building. The municipal judge also has space adjacent to the dispatching radio room.

Because it was the Redmens Club, one whole wall of the radio room has a huge drawing of an Indian head — in red. It's impressive.

"We're going to leave it," Hazel said. The mayor's office and the board room both have attractive rock fireplaces, a holdover from when the Redmens Club was one of "the places to go" for night life in the Ruidoso area.

Huge ovens remain to be moved out from what was the kitchen. Walk-in cold storage units will remain, apparently, and can be used for storage.

Marbled walls in the restrooms are in stark contrast to restrooms in the old village hall where a sack of lime was kept to help take care of the sanitation problem resulting from a crumbling sewer system under the concrete floor.

Estimates to "patch up" the old village hall ran as high as $35,000.

The next board of trustees meeting, to be conducted in the new building, will be at 7 p.m. May 13.

"It'll be a long one," Gudgel said. The Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, May 6.

The Lodgers Tax Committee will convene at 6:30 p.m. May 20. Those two entities were created recently.

Dennis Riddle commented on the move and the way things are progressing in Ruidoso Downs:

"This will be the greatest little city in the west in five years."

Contractor for the remodeling project is A.A. Behringer. Bill Kelly is electrician.

Village employees are doing much of the work inside the building, also.

There really is no valet parking.

Ruidoso Downs Police Chief Skip Hazel and Village Clerk Maurice Gudgel talk over details involving the future radio room at the new village hall. The village has taken over the old Redmens Club. Note the drawing — in red — of an Indian on the back wall.

US Postal Service salutes volunteers

Dusty Cocchiola named Volunteer of the Year

Ruidoso postmaster Bob Chamberlain named D.J. "Dusty" Cocchiola as Ruidoso's Postal Volunteer of the Year.

Cocchiola, a window clerk for the Ruidoso Post Office, was presented with a certificate of appreciation signed by U.S. Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank during a ceremony at the Ruidoso Post Office Friday.

The award and similar presentations were made at postal facilities throughout the nation to honor the spirit of volunteerism during National Volunteer Week, April 21-28.

Cocchiola, a six-year postal employee, is being honored for his work for various community organizations during the past several years.

His activities include coaching

Little League football and baseball. He also has served as umpire and referee for the Little League program. Cocchiola has worked with the Sierra Blanca Handicapped Skiers Association since 1987, and is a member of the National Ski Patrol.

"Through his dedicated service, we feel Dusty truly represents what volunteerism is all about," said Chamberlain in presenting the award.

He said the Ruidoso Post Office, like all post offices and thousands of postal employees nationwide, is committed to volunteerism and community service.

The Postal Service joined with ACTION, the federal domestic volunteer agency, in paying tribute to volunteers nationwide.

Bradley is volunteer of year in Ruidoso Downs

For service to his community beyond his post office duties, Wayne Bradley was honored by the Ruidoso Downs postmaster and the postal service, Monday.

Bradley was named postal volunteer of the year. A certificate of appreciation signed by Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank was presented the surprised Bradley by Shirlene Fitzner. She is postmaster of the Ruidoso Downs Post Office.

Fitzner cited Bradley's service to his church as board chairman and his work in transporting handicapped skiers to the ski run.

She said Bradley often spends his lunch hour taking a family that has no transportation to buy groceries.

The award and similar presentations made at post offices throughout the country were intended to honor the spirit of volunteerism during National Volunteer Week just ended.

The Ruidoso Downs Post Office, like all post offices and thousands of postal employees nationwide, is committed to volunteerism and community service, Postmaster Fitzner said in a release.

"Through his dedicated service, we feel Wayne truly represents what volunteerism is all about.

Bradley has been a window/distribution clerk at the Downs Post Office for three years. He has been with the postal service 14 years, in Lubbock, Ruidoso and now Ruidoso Downs.

"One of the most important things about Wayne is that he always has a smile to greet everyone who comes into the post office and goes more than a mile to do his part of work at any time," the postmaster said.

Bradley is married to Mary Bradley who operates the Village Bookie. They have two sons, Kenneth of Dallas, Texas, and Shelby, a student at the School of Mines in Socorro. One granddaughter is their pride and joy.

Capitan

Childress resignation is official

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The resignation of Dr. Scott Childress as superintendent of the Capitan school system became official Monday.

Childress had advised the School Board of his intention to resign last week. In a special meeting Monday, the board accepted his resignation.

His contract with Capitan will expire June 30, but using earned vacation time, Childress' last day of work will be June 3.

He will take over as superintendent of the Animas School District on June 10.

In his letter, Childress thanked the board for the opportunity to work with "one of the finest group of teachers I have seen in any school district" and "with a highly supportive community."

He thanked the board for the opportunity "to provide a vision and direction for the education for the students of the Capitan schools. They are excellent kids."

He ended by thanking the board for its support.

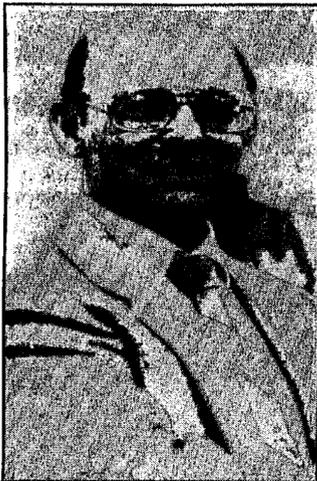

"Together we have made this one of the best school districts in the state," Childress said.

As a postscript, he added that his decision was not based on recent action by the board rejecting Childress' recommendation to reemploy teacher James Fowler. The board later rescinded that action, Fowler resigned and the board accepted his resignation.

Board Chairman Preston Stone

thanked Childress for his work. "I appreciate as a board member, a parent and as a member of the community all the time and diligent effort you put into the system," Stone said. He added that Childress was leaving the system in much better shape than he found it four years ago.

Three other board members previously had expressed their regret at Childress leaving. But member Jack King said he was not surprised because he knew Childress had applied elsewhere. After the meeting, board member Roy Roybal, who earlier this year cast the lone vote not to extend Childress' contract, said he also wasn't surprised by the resignation.

"(Childress) has applied for several other jobs that have come up, so it's not like it's the spur of the moment," Roybal said. "The reason we know is because board members from other districts call us and sometimes (Childress) told us. Superintendents always are looking for greener pastures to try something different."

That was one of the reasons he did not support extending Childress' contract, Roybal said.

"If a superintendent is going to work for you, he needs to concentrate on the school system. I want to know he's going to be here and stay here."

The board already has received one application for the soon-to-be vacant position of superintendent.

At the meeting, board members approved a letter outlining the qualifications for superintendent and the selection procedure.

The board set the minimum annual salary at $48,000, but noted it is negotiable upward depending on experience. Childress was paid $50,614.

The board will review applications May 16 and will schedule interviews May 23. The deadline to submit an application is May 15.

In response to questions from

King, Childress assured the board that it will finish out the current fiscal year (ending June 30) with a balance of $70,000 or more. The budget for next year also appears to have a comfortable margin.

"We'll be in good shape next year," Childress said and staffing levels should be back up to the number employed two years ago.

The board will review the budget at a 5 p.m. meeting May 9.

He has not included in the budget additional teachers that may be needed if as many as 26 seventh graders are retained at the end of the year, Childress said.

High school principal Bill Stowe said retention of students has never been a problem before, but 26 were in jeopardy at the end of the first semester.

If the number is reduced to four or five by the end of the year, those students could be absorbed into existing classes, Stowe said.

Board members voted to put a freeze on any major expenditures until a new superintendent is hired.

"I haven't any problem with that at all since it will not affect signing purchase orders to end out the school year or the normal daily operation now and during the summer," Childress said. "I think it's a good idea. A different superintendent might have different priorities."

The board directed Childress to review purchase orders with the district business manager.

Glen Crane with Lela Easter Real Estate in Ruidoso briefed Capitan senior law students last week on the fine points of buying a home. The students stopped at Sierra Blanca Motors to review the process of purchasing a car.

Law you can use is topic for field trip

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Law in theory and law that affects the dollars in your pocket often are two different things.

Capitan teacher Bill MacVeigh brought the senior students in his law class face-to-face with the practical side of contracts last week.

"They need to learn how to intelligently purchase the two big ticket items in their lives, a car and a house," MacVeigh said. "We want to look at all the legal aspects and what to watch for in the way of unethical practices."

This is the second year MacVeigh has taken his law class into the real world of business. Many will be faced with renting apartments or buying cars within a few months after graduation.

Last week, the students and MacVeigh stopped at Sierra Blanca Motors in Ruidoso, where Joe Gomez and Billy Mitchell ran through the process of buying a first car.

The tips included what to ask the salesman before you sit down as the table to negotiate a price as well as how to decipher the fine print in the contract.

For the next session, real estate salesman Glen Crane from Lela

Easter Real Estate, met the class at 203 Kansas City Drive in Ruidoso.

Crane certainly was up to the task. Listening to his advice would have been a valuable experience for most adults, even on their second and third home purchases.

He handed out a list of terms for students to research and he broke down the steps of shopping for a home.

One sheet detailed a formula for financing a home to help determine whether a person would qualify for a loan or is ready financially to take on the responsibility of a home.

Under things to consider, Crane cautioned that the price of the home is only the start. Besides the monthly mortgage, furniture must be purchased, utilities hooked up and paid by month, there's annual insurance premiums and property taxes.

One of the biggest questions to consider is the resale value of the home since the average American family moves every five years, he said.

His parting shot was to remind students to make informed choices, "Don't let your heart overshadow your mind."

Capitan doubles size of police force

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Before the summer season arrives, the number of police officers patrolling the Village of Capitan will double - to two.

In a special meeting Monday, the village Board of Trustees voted to hire another full-time officer to help patrolman Tom Hammontre. He's been working alone since a part-time officer quit in March. Several businessmen have complained about the lack of coverage.

The job of filling the holes in local law enforcement has fallen to Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane and his deputies.

And every time his officers respond on their off hours, it comes out of his county budget.

That budget already is stretched in paying for the operation of the county jail, a dispatch center, service of court papers, transportation of prisoners, as well as to pay the salaries of 13 deputies and the maintenance on patrol cars, McSwane said.

Those 13 deputies cover 4,500 square miles and several communities. Only two patrol at night, he said. McSwane recommended the trustees hire a village police chief.

"Part-time people have a problem maintaining their certification and training," he said. "A chief, on the other hand, is obligated to provide law enforcement for the village. He would be under the control of the trustees and mayor because it's an appointed position. And there's a requirement that the chief live in Capitan. It would be better from my department's point of view."

Hammontre lives about 10 minutes out of town, although he plans to move into Capitan by June 1.

"He's an employee and you can only expect so much out of an employee," McSwane said. "The sheriff's department will provide investigative manpower for Capitan and will assist in every way possible."

"My only concern is to provide good law enforcement coverage for Capitan and Lincoln County."

Last month, the trustees had decided to hire a part-time officer. McSwane said Monday he believes they mistakenly thought the caseload in municipal court reflected the total law enforcement activity. He noted that many of the more serious cases go to magistrate or district court.

Hammontre said a part-time officer would not answer the need because the person would only work on his days off.

"I'd still end up having to choose between patrolling at night or day, because I can't do both," Hammontre said. "It's up to the village if you just want me to work nights."

McSwane said a part-time officer would not be able to give the service people want. "If you hired a chief, there's no such thing as a 40-hour week," he said. "He is responsible for law enforcement in Capitan period."

Even if the person hired is only a patrolman initially, "You may get a more highly qualified individual if you offer the possibility that in the future, he could be appointed police chief," McSwane said.

Just having another officer patrolling should deter some crime, said Municipal Judge Jim Stewart.

The main concerns of the trustees Monday appeared to be the annual budget and speed in hiring.

"The busy season is coming on and we don't have time to wait," said Mayor Frank Warth.

McSwane estimated it could take as long as a month to get a new officer on board.

"We need to decide how much we want to protect the city and work the budget out later," Warth said. "We have to start moving so we're covered for busy season."

Trustee Alfred Leroy Montes said he's reluctant to spend money for a chief because Capitan's taxable property value went down this year and that will affect the budget adversely.

Warth and Montes will review the applications for the job of police officer and will narrow the field to three or four individuals. The board then will schedule interviews, starting at the budget workshop at 6 p.m. Monday, May 6.

"The next four to five months will be the busiest," said Trustee Norman Renfro. "We definitely need more help."

Students win awards

Seventeen Capitan students brought home a barrel full of gold, silver and bronze medals from the recent 1991 State Leadership Conference.

They competed with 73 other chapters and more than 800 members from across the state.

Stacey Gowan won two gold medals for chapter banner and baked goods and a silver for life situations.

Letty LaRue captured two gold medals for chapter banner and for illustrated talk, also placing third in the state in that category.

Dottie Boyd was close on their heels with a gold medal for life situations, and two silvers for job interview and baked goods.

Michelle McGarvey was awarded a gold medal for life situations, a silver for baked goods and a bronze for Little Friends.

They other winners juggling medals of various colors were:

—Sherrie Dockery, gold for life situations and two bronze for job interview and baked goods.

—Bobbie Jo Disinger, gold for life situations and two bronze for Little Friends and baked goods.

—Pam Pacheco, a gold for chapter banner and a silver for life situations.

—Mitzi Dobbins, a silver for life situations and a bronze for job interview.

—Anna Auchmody, two silvers for life situations and for baked goods. —Angie Hutchinson, a gold medal for decorated cakes and a bronze for Little Friends.

—Tammi Peralta, gold for baked goods and a silver for decorated cakes.

Gold medals for baked goods also went to Helen Luna, Jessica Newcomb, Brandi Peralta and Mickie Griego. The decorated caked category resulted in two silver medals for Christy Zamora and Crystal Dalton.

Three Capitan women, Inez Marrs, Debbie Pacheco and Edith Dobbins accompanied the students to the state competition and served as judges at the Star Events competition.

Happy birthday, dear Smokey

The village of Capitan will be celebrating the birthday of its big furry friend May 9.

Since Smokey Bear doesn't like fires, no candles will be burning. But school children, firefighters, the Lincoln County Posse and many local business people and government officials will be on hand to congratulate Smokey.

At 9 a.m. awards will be presented to the winners of the Smokey Bear Coloring Contest at the State Park. The contest was sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service for students in grades kindergarten through second.

Smokey will be there to shake their hands and students also will tour the park.

A Smokey Bear parade is scheduled for 1 p.m. from the school complex down U.S. 380 to village hall. Special guests in the parade will include Dorothy Guck and Ray Bell.

An open house and reception is planned for 4 p.m. in village hall on Lincoln Street. The public is welcomed.

The birthday celebration is sponsored by the village, the New Mexico State Forestry and Resources Conservation Division, the U.S. Forest Service, the Smokey Bear State Park, the Smokey Bear Museum and Friends of Smokey.

Capitan play opens tonight

Tonight students in the Capitan drama class will present their last production of the school year.

Under the direction of Molly Weber, the students will perform a two-act comedy entitled "Girl Chase" and a one-act play, "Halcyon Days."

The performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Capitan school multi-purpose room. Tickets will be $3 for adults and $2 for children at the door.

Earlier this year, the class earned an honorable mention at Eastern New Mexico University's drama festival in Portales. "Out of 25 school participating, only 10 awards were given and we won one of them," Mrs. Weber said.

Obituary

Bette Jane Burford

Bette Jane Burford of Ruidoso died Monday, April 29, in Lincoln County Medical Center. She was 65.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. today (Thursday) in the First Baptist Church with the Reverend Dan Paxton of Cedar Falls, Iowa, formerly of Ruidoso, officiating. Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Ruidoso.

Mrs. Burford was born September 22, 1925, in Sioux City, Iowa, to Theodore and Beatrice Neste who preceded her in death.

She moved to the Ruidoso-Roswell area 42 years ago from Fort Worth, Texas. She married Jack Burford September 18, 1945, in Fort Worth. She was an interior decorator.

Survivors include her husband, Jack Burford of Ruidoso; two daughters, Beckie Su Hughes of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and Cinda Lu Fulmer of Lenexa, Kansas. She is also survived by four sisters and three grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to The Shawn Bachelor Fund, North Baptist Church, 3600 Michaux, Houston TX 77009-6098 or to the Happy Hill Children's Farm, Star Route Box 56, Granbury TX 76048.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel in Ruidoso.

The Silver Lining

Dan remembers his father's birthday

Birthday Of Our Father

This is being sent to you on April 29 and will reach you on May 2, the eve of the birthday of the father of the Storm brothers.

Lynn Whippo Storm was born May 3, 1879, in Rochester, Pennsylvania, to Francis David Storm and the former Althea Ellen Reno.

At an early age he was brought to Denver, Colorado, where he went to East Denver High School where he met his wife-to-be, the former Bertha Catherine Kennedy. They were married in Denver on May 30, 1906. Four sons were born to this union: John, Marcus, Joseph, Lynn and an infant son who was called Home at birth.

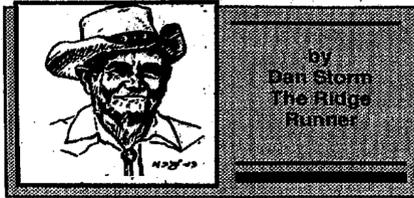

He attended the Colorado School of mines and graduated with honors as president of the class and class poet in 1902. The family went twice to Alaska, first to Valdez where he was prospector, mining geologist, and government surveyor; then later to Juneau where he was mine superintendent of The Perseverance Gold Mine.

After Alaska we lived in Oregon, and then for a year in Mexico where Father made tests of silver mines and worked for silver company in Copala, in the state of Sinaloa.

Back from Mexico, in Texas he met one of his old school of mines classmates who persuaded him to become an oil geologist. He was a geologist for the Sun Oil Company for 25 years during which time he wrote studies that are still used in universities.

After working 10 years past the retirement age until the age of 75, he retired to Glencoe where he became active in Saint Anne's Chapel and devoted himself to writing. He was a poet at heart and wrote children's stories, and poems, and stories of Alaska and Mexico, along with a book-length history of the Ice Ages.

His brother, Jerome, said of our father: "When they get Lynn, they get brains and they get honesty." The School of Mines Magazine said: "Lynn Storm was universally liked and admired."

Some of our fondest memories are the songs our father sang to us to the accompaniment of the little portable church organ which traveled twice to Alaska and to Mexico, and which has an honored place today in the home of Brother Lynn and his wife, Maxine in Dripping Springs, Texas.

Today on the approach of his birthday, I feel the spirit of our Father blessing me with love, from Heaven.

Church At Lincoln

Last Sunday, members of the Episcopal churches from all Lincoln County met in Lincoln at "La Iglesia de San Juan Bautista" (Church of Saint John the Baptist).

Father John Penn preached a sermon based on the Acts of the Apostles, in which he said that as Christians we should reach out with love to all people everywhere.

Father Penn and the Reverend Jan Davey presented John and Shawna Shrecengost with crosses in tribute to their faithfulness as Acolytes for the church.

In the Prayers of the People the Reverend Jan Davey gave thanks for the birthday of Kenneth Nosker and for the wedding anniversary of Kenneth and Irene Nosker.

A special charm of the service was the singing of the children's choir from Church of the Holy Mount.

Fathering of Four Generations

After church last Sunday I went by the home of Aristeo Chavez in San Patricio where descendants of himself and his wife, Christina, were gathered for photographs of four generations. We will have more on this later.

Jack Frost Pays A Visit

Not long after nightfall of the 28th, Jack Frost flew in on the north wind, and then in the early morning of today dropped the temperature to 22.

The golden April full moon shone down all night casting the world in a golden glow to celebrate the closing days of beautiful April.

The leaves on the large apple tree had grown rapidly the last few days — and must have acted as a protection for the young apple blossoms. Because the blooms and the very young apples seems to have survived the cold snap. There is an old saying that a frost that comes in the night of a full moon does not hurt the fruit blossoms near as much as does a freeze in the dark of the moon.

Anyhow the apples here at the place are all right up to now.

Although the spring weather has been snow and often stopped in its tracks, still it has been a colorful April, with the Cottonwood leaves especially rich and green this year.

So now we are over into May the month of flowers.

The Youngest Calf

The youngest calf, named Blue Bird Johnny, because he was born on April 15, Brother John's birthday, near the Blue Bird Tree, is full of the joy of life.

Every evening he goes from one calf to the other challenging them to a game of butting heads, taking on calves twice and three times his size. After each bout, he goes running in circles, kicking and jumping, the center of attraction and the pride and joy of the herd.

Let us thank God for the arrival of Flowery May and all our other many blessings.

Sports

Take in the Kentucky Derby at the Downs Sports Theater

RUIDOSO DOWNS—The biggest day of the year at the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater — the first Saturday in May — figures to be even better than usual as a wide-open field vies for victory in the 117th Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Doors open at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Sports Theater. First post has been moved up to the special time of 12:30 p.m. Kentucky Derby post time is approximately 3:32 p.m. MDT.

Once again, the Sports Theater will offer simulcast wagering on the most prestigious thoroughbred race of the year, not to mention an eight-course Mexican buffet and Kentucky Derby souvenir glasses. The Mexican buffet, which costs $5.95, includes cheese enchiladas, tacos, chile rellenos, beans, corn bread, rice, chile con queso and guacamole and chips.

The Kentucky Derby is one of the most contentious in recent memory, especially after 2-year-old Champion Fly So Free suffered his first defeat of the year in the Blue Grass Stakes on April 13.

Fly So Free, from the stable of Scotty Schulhofer, could end up the favorite in Saturday's 1 1/4-mile race, despite his second-place finish to Strike The Gold at Keeneland. Fly So Free, a Kentucky-bred son of Time For A Change, has captured seven of 10 career outings.

Strike The Gold, trained by Nicholas Zito, has blossomed in his last two starts. After winning just one of his first six starts, the son of Alydar stunned Fly So Free by 3-lengths in the Blue Grass Stakes, and he figures to be well-regarded in the Derby.

Hansel, the rapidly-improving son of Woodman in the stable of Frank Brothers, also figures to receive heavy support in the Derby. Hansel captured the Jim Beam Stakes in track record time, and encored with a smashing 9-length victory in the April 21 Lexington Stakes.

The West Coast's best prospect, Dinard, a sharp winner of the April 6 Santa Anita Derby, was scratched from Derby consideration after suffering an injury last week. Forging to the forefront from the West Coast now are Olympic, game winner of the recent Arkansas Derby, and Best Pal, runnerup to Dinard in the Santa Anita Derby.

The Links lists summer rates and qualifications

The Links at Sierra Blanca, Ruidoso's new golf course built on municipal land that will soon be the Sierra Blanca Resort, is gearing up for summer.

The Links, as promised in planning meetings before it was built, is offering special discounted rates for village residents. The cost will be even lower for resident senior citizens.

Links manager Jeff Miller explained just what that means.

"Beginning May 4, an 18-hole green fee will cost $32," said Miller. However, for a year-round resident of Ruidoso, the 18-hole green fee will be $24, he added.

Resident seniors, golfers who are 62 years of age or older, will be entitled to a $16 18-hole green fee rate.

To take advantage of those discounted green fees, Ruidoso residents may only reserve tee times 24 hours in advance.

Miller further explained how a resident may qualify.

"To qualify for the resident rate, you must be a year-round resident of the Village of Ruidoso and must present a resident verification card to the pro shop," said Miller.

To obtain a resident verification card, simply present to the Links staff at the main office a valid New Mexico drivers license bearing a Ruidoso address. Verification cards will be issued between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the office located in the building that formerly was a Ruidoso fire station at 103 Sierra Blanca Drive. It's the first building on the left off of Mechem Drive.

"If you do not qualify for a resident identification card, The Links is offering a 10-round play ticket which entitles the bearer to 10 rounds of golf for the price of eight rounds," said Miller.

The cost of this 10-round ticket is $256, a savings of $64. These tickets also are available at the main office.

For further information, stop by The Links at Sierra Blanca or call 258-5330.

Sunland Park counts down for the season

SUNLAND PARK—Egocentric continued his unbeaten ways at Sunland Park by winning his trial effortlessly for the Riley Allison Futurity on Thursday, April 18.

The brilliant son of Bold Ego won his heat by 7 lengths with Lewis Germany in the saddle. Germany nursed his charge to an easy win. His mount appears to be the early favorite for the $138,300 finale to be run on Sunday, May 5.

The fast starter won his first race at 4 furlongs in 45 and 1/5 seconds on April 5. The clocking is a seasonal best. He has never been challenged in two career starts. The talented sprinter comes from a winning Bold Ego tradition.

Egocentric is owned by Dr. Joe Kidd and Robert Leachman of El Paso, Texas. Dr. Kidd was a part owner of Bold Ego, who ran 2nd in the 1981 Preakness Stakes. Egocentric is trained by Dallas Barton.

Dallas Barton's father, J.D. Barton, was also a part owner of Bold Ego.

Joy Baby, A filly from Louisiana, is another major threat for the Futurity.

The unbeaten daughter of Storm Cat won her trial by an impressive

3 and 1/2 lengths for trainer Caroline Dodwell. Joy Baby captured the Jean Lafitte Futurity at Delta Downs in Vinton, Louisiana last month.

Her dominating trial win and $71,000 plus bankroll should generate a sizeable amount of attention at the Sunland betting windows.

King's Creator showed an early burst in his heat by defeating the highly regarded Goldgusher.

Mels Deal also notched impressive trial win by coming off the pace.

He may have the best stretch kick among the field of ten two-year-olds.

Here's the list of finalists: Egocentric, Pauperette, King's Creator, Goldgusher, Joy Baby, Mil Amores, Angel's Appeal, Apache Summit, Mels Deal and Hug And Love.

On Saturday, Sunland Park will simulcast the $800,000 estimated Kentucky Derby from Churchill Downs. An extremely competitive field is anticipated for the 1 and 1/4 mile classic.

Inside The Outdoors

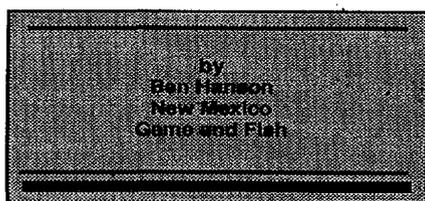

Being a good samaritan can backfire

The warm spring weather has awakened an age-old instinct in many of our wild animals. Birds are pairing up and selecting material for nest building. Larger animals are also looking for a particular area. It is the time of year for them to have and rear their young.

If this year is the same as in the past, folks will be bringing in a variety of wild babies to game department offices. There will also be reports of people who have picked up young wild animals. Before anyone picks up one of these wild critters, I would like to point out a few things.

Those young critters are cute, cuddly animals and you may think it would be neat to try and raise one. These folks pick up the critter and take it home. There are also people that are being good samaritans thinking the young animal has been orphaned or abandoned by it's mother. They pick up the animal and bring it to our office. But, wild animals are wild and should be left that way, if at all possible. That's why it is against the law to possess wild animals without a special permit.

In the first place, few people have the knowledge and skill, along with the time, to properly care for a wild animal. In the past, we picked up an elk calf that a man in northern New Mexico was trying to raise. The elk was in such bad shape that a veterinarian had to work hard just to save the animal. In the Roswell area four antelope fawns were brought in one spring. All four died even though they were being cared for by a professional. This points out that it is extremely dif-icult to raise wild animals. They are often better off where they are, out in the wild.

OK, let's say you get lucky and manage to rear the young critter. As it grows up it is no longer that cute and cuddly young critter, but is rapidly becoming a full grown wild animal. It takes more time to care for and requires a larger living area. Also, some animals are not meant to be domesticated.

A case in Roswell a few years ago provides a classic example. A family found a young raccoon and took it home. They put a collar on it and kept it in the back yard on a chain. When the raccoon grew up it became so mean that they couldn't get near it. They couldn't even loosen it's collar. As a result, the collar got so tight it actually grew into the skin. This was reported to the Roswell Humane Society who picked up the animal and paid a veterinarian to care for it. He had to cut the collar from it's neck and stitch the skin back together.

So, what do you do with an animal once it becomes unmanageable or a nuisance? If you turn it loose, as many people do, it has little chance to survive since it has never learned how to live in the wild. If you take it to the Game Department you have violated the law by possessing the animal and will receive a citation. Neither of these options is very promising. The best thing would have been not to have picked up the critter in the first place, right?

Many of the same things hold true for animals brought in by good samaritans. Once again, wild young animals are very difficult to raise and if they do grow up, most animals can't be released back into the wild. It is very hard to teach an animal that has never lived in the wild how to survive. This was pointed out dramatically by the movie "Born Free" where they show the unpredictability of a pet animal facing life in the wilds. Therefore most of these animals will probably spend the rest of their lives in a zoo.

The best thing to do if you find an animal you think is orphaned or abandoned is to contact the Game Department and let us make the decision. Often, in this situation, the mother has left her baby in what she thinks is a safe place while she feeds and will return later to claim it. Even if you know for certain the mother is dead or gone, let a conservation officer take care of the young animal. This will eliminate any problems.

Think about it if you happen to find a young wild animal. Your actions may not only affect you, but also the animal you think you are rescuing.

Bloody murder mars old Bonito City history

Mass murder recalled on anniversary

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The peace and serenity of the small mining town of Bonito City was shattered in the early morning of May 5, 1885, when shots echoed through the valley and the settlement became the backdrop for a bloody massacre.

A quiet and well-liked laborer named Martin Nelson, spurred by greed, madness or unrequited love gunned down four members of the Mayberry family and three other bystanders.

The scene of the killing spree now lies under the waters of Bonito Lake. But the bodies of several of the victims are marked by a common gravestone in the old Angus cemetery, a reminder of a grim chapter in Lincoln County history.

Over the years, several articles have been written about the murders, but details vary on the sequence of the deaths and the motives attributed to the murderer.

With the 106th anniversary of the tragic incident approaching, The Ruidoso News took a look at those differing accounts.

Founded in the 1870s based on the lure of gold in the surrounding mountains, Bonito City consisted of about 500 residents in 1885. Some of the early families were the Zumwalt, the Skinners and the Bournes.

Nellie Mayberry was the only member of her family to survive the early morning killing spree in Bonito City.

and a Dr. R.E. Flynn, said to be from Cincinnati, Ohio.

One of the earliest versions of the murders was contained in a booklet titled "Mayberry Murder Mystery of Bonito City," written around 1938 by A.L. Burke, then editor of the Carrizozo Outlook. Burke wrote that his account came directly from the wife of the Reverend John H. Skinner, the only surviving witness to the bloody scene.

Burke speculated that Nelson went berserk on May 5, waking about 1 a.m. and heading toward the upstairs bedroom shared by the two Mayberry brothers. He tapped softly and when Johnny opened the door, Nelson shot him with a .38 caliber rifle, then clubbed the bleeding boy when he tried to resist and shot him again.

Nelson's next victim was young Eddie, who was shot once and killed as he sat screaming in bed.

When Dr. Flynn rushed to the boys' defense, he was shot in the head, bludgeoned and his body was thrown on top of the others.

Mayberry was climbing the stairs from his bedroom below when Nelson shot him through the heart. He then turned his gun on Nellie, shooting her in the side and leaving the young girl for dead.

As Mrs. Mayberry, clad in her nightclothes, tried to help her family, she was shot in the chest. She struggled downstairs and outside, leaving a trail of bloody footprints on the steps.

Burke wrote that the occupants of a nearby cabin refused out of fear to open their door to the dying woman. Martin followed her and killed her with one more bullet, then threw her body into an irrigation ditch.

Pete Nelson, who was not related to the murderer, ran from his saloon and tried to wrestle the rifle away from the younger man. He was shot and killed. His head was bashed in with the rifle butt.

Leaving the body lying on the street behind him, Nelson next turned his weapon on Herman Beck, who had opened the door of his grocery to find out what was happening.

Other versions place Beck's death later in the morning when Nelson returned to town. In one rendition, Beck was guarding the Mayberry home and was shot in the back by Nelson.

Either way, all agree that Nelson met his end later that morning when daylight broke through the pine trees.

Burke wrote that Charlie Berry, Rudolph Schultz and Don Campbell were standing in the street talking about the horror that had occurred a few hours earlier when Nelson returned to town from the mountains.

Berry didn't hesitate, firing a shot through Nelson's heart. The killer's rifle discharged harmlessly into the air as he fell to the ground.

A slightly different account appeared in a 1971 article written by Phillip J. Rasch for True West Magazine.

Rasch described Flynn as a physician who owned a drug store in Boston.

Without attributing the source of his information, Rasch wrote that because of ill health, Flynn had spent the winter of 1884-85 in Santa Fe in a boarding house owned by Mrs. E.N. Cone. He accompanied his landlady to open a summer boarding home on the Rio Bonito and stayed to watch the place when she was called back suddenly to Santa Fe.

In Rasch's version, Flynn shared a bedroom in the Mayberry boarding house with Nelson, who came to Bonito City from Nebraska about four years earlier.

The murders began about 3 a.m. when Nelson attempted to rob his roommate. The shot that killed Flynn brought the Mayberry family to the door and Nelson promptly shot the boys and their father.

Mrs. Mayberry, who Rasch said was pregnant, was shot twice by Nelson. With her daughter's support, the wounded woman managed to slip downstairs and outside. As the two ran from the hotel, Nelson shot again, fatally hitting the mother and wounding the young girl in the side with the same bullet.

He overtook Nellie, saying, "I might as well send you to hell with the balance of 'em."

Rasch wrote that Nelson spared the young girl's life only after she promised to watch when he was hanged for the crimes. But he didn't turn his rifle away until he had taunted, "Your father, mother and brothers are dead; wouldn't you rather die and join them in heaven?"

As neighbor Herman Consbruch, who later became postmaster at Bonito City, cradled the dying Mrs. Mayberry in his arms, she gasped, "Oh, he killed us all," Rasch wrote.

Other stories of Mrs. Mayberry's death scene have her staggering from the hotel alone screaming, "My boys. Martin killed my boys."

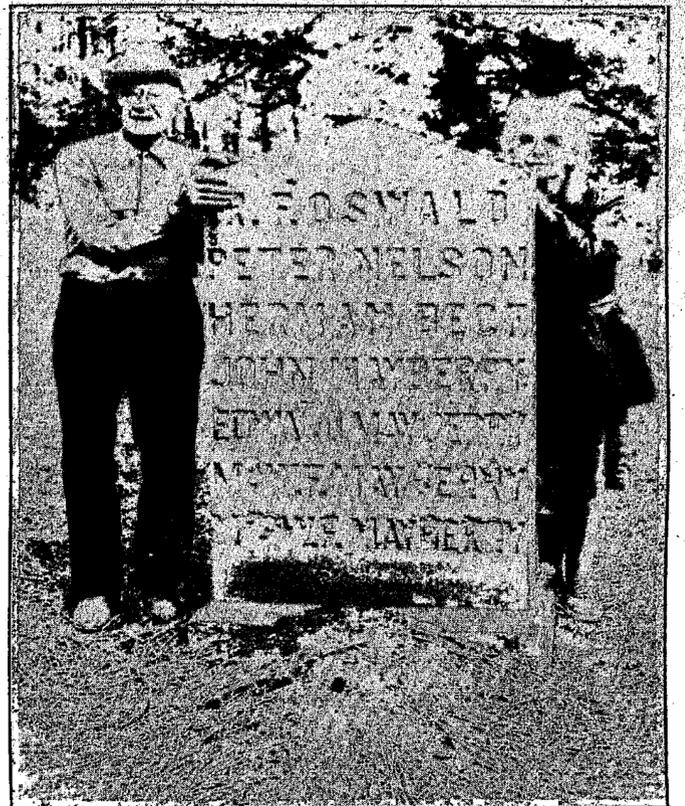

As Rasch recounts, Nelson fled to the mountains where he stopped at the Rademacher home and demanded breakfast, promising not to kill his hostess if she fed him. He boasted that he planned to return to town to finish the grisly job he had started earlier.

A motive more intense than greed was attributed to Nelson by Chloe Peters of Angus, a descendant of the Zumwalt and Skinner families.

"My grandmother and grandfather, John and Pinkie Skinner, were friends and neighbors of the Mayberrys," Mrs. Peters said during a recent interview.

"They were in town when the murders occurred. He preached the funeral and she took care of the girl after the murders until the uncle took Nellie back to Iowa."

As Mrs. Peters recalls the story told by her grandparents, Nelson might not have intended to shoot Nellie when he encountered her with Mrs. Mayberry in the hotel.

Gilbert and Chloe Peters tend the graves in the Angus cemetery. The stone marks the site of the mass burial of the Bonito City murder victims. No one apparently knows how R. F. Oswald also happens to be buried there.

It may have been jealousy and spurned affections that fueled his madness that day.

When Nellie found shelter in the cellar of a nearby home, Nelson followed her and exclaimed, "Oh Babe, I didn't mean to kill you," according to a story written in 1980.

No one will ever know for sure why Nelson started killing people that day, Mrs. Peters said. "He may have just come out shooting," she said.

Mrs. Peters also offered a different version of Nelson's death. As she remembers her grandparents' account of the incident, Herman Beck was responsible for ending Nelson's bloody spree. Beck was guarding the Mayberry house later that morning when he spotted Nelson coming back into town.

"I'm sure my grandparents told me that both men shot at the same time and they both fell dead," she said.

According to Burke, the morning after the shootings, the seven victims were laid out in a row in Pete Nelson's saloon. In deference to the slain, the killer's body was placed in a separate room.

Reverend Skinner sent Robert Bourne and Rich Reeves to find Sheriff John W. Poe, who owned the VV ranch.

But the sheriff wasn't at the ranch or in the county seat of Lincoln, and the men returned instead with his deputy and Thomas Henley, who lived farther down the river.

The Mayberrys, Peter Nelson and Herman Beck were buried on a hillside outside of Bonito City.

Nelson's corpse was deposited in a hole at the bottom of the hill. It was buried head first to ensure that his spirit would not rise and walk the earth.

Meanwhile, Dr. Flynn's body was embalmed by an undertaker who came down from Santa Fe and then it was shipped back to his home.

For the next 15 years, the Mayberry Hotel stood empty as testimony to the bloodbath. Children and the superstitious considered it haunted. They claimed the bloody bare footprints of Mrs. Mayberry could still be seen and that groans and muffled shots could be heard coming from the empty windows on moonless nights.

When the town was dismantled about 45 years later to make way for construction of a dam and the creation of Bonito Lake reservoir, the remains of the six victims were moved to the cemetery in Angus. A marker about five feet high designates the mass burial site.

Martin Nelson was buried just outside the graveyard boundaries.

Like the rest of the cemetery, the grave of the victims is well-tended. Mrs. Peters, her husband, Gilbert, and other volunteers, spend many hours every year to ensure the cemetery doesn't fall into disrepair.

But the large stone marker itself presents a mystery. The first name carved at the top of the stone is R.F. Oswald, however his name never is mentioned in any of the stories about the murders.

Mrs. Peters believes Oswald may be one of the victims from that night who somehow eluded history writers. Or his body might have been moved from the same hillside as the other six and was included in the collective grave because he had no relatives in the area.

"I guess we'll never be sure," she said. "There's nobody around anymore who knows."

The Reverend John Skinner and Pinkie Skinner, the grandparents of Chloe Peters, were friends of the slain Mayberry family.

Supplies were hauled in by wagon and mule south from Las Vegas or from the major trading points of White Oaks to the west and Lincoln to the east.

The town boasted a saloon run by Peter Nelson, a general store, a school, a post office, many log and plaster homes, some temporary tent lodgings and a two-story boarding house operated by Mr. and Mrs. W.F. "John" Mayberry.

The couple had three children: Johnny, whose age has been listed as 19 and 17 in different stories; Eddy, who may have been 13 or 7; and Nellie, who most agree was about 14.

On the night of the murders only two guests were in the hotel, the 24-year-old Swede named Nelson

The old Mayberry boarding house stood undisturbed for 15 years as a silent reminder of the 1885 murders.

Woman's Club wins state awards

RUTH MCCRAW WITH WINNING JACKET

Members of the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club are all smiles after bringing home a slew of awards from Roswell.

Nine members of the club attended the 79th annual New Mexico Federated Woman's Club convention in Roswell, April 26-27.

The club's scrapbook won first place. A number of art awards were brought back to Ruidoso including best of show by Ruth McCraw.

McCraw had entered a long denim blue jacket which caught the eye of judges immediately.

The jacket also won first place and best of category.

Edna Falls had two first places; firsts were brought home by Odell Burrows and Bobbie McDonald.

Martha Demaret had two firsts, a second and a third.

Jennifer Graham's Penny Art at the Ruidoso Middle School captured an honorable mention.

Ruidoso Realtors golf to raise money for charity

The annual benefit golf tournament, sponsored each year by the Ruidoso Board of Realtors, will begin at 1 p.m. Wednesday, May 8, at the Innsbrook three-par course.

Proceeds will benefit Casa Esperanza in Albuquerque and the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation "For Youth Division."

The benefit will include the golf match, a gin rummy tournament and a fajita dinner at the Texas Club.

An awards ceremony is set for 7:30 p.m. at a banquet.

The Casa Esperanza complex provides housing for families who live out of town and who have a member in the hospital for an extended care. Charges are minimal.

Casa Esperanza has been a project of the New Mexico Board of Realtors for many years.

Construction is set to begin this year with a completion date in 1992.

Realtors contribute

Eariene Phillips, president of the Humane Society of Lincoln County (in striped jacket), accepts $300 in cash from Marcia Silver, representing the Ruidoso Board of Realtors. The money came from a white elephant auction staged at a Realtors' meeting. Randy Basch, animal shelter director, (left) holds Sparkies, Pet of the Week. Other Realtors looking on are John Winniford and Glen Crane.

Republican women hear all about WIPP

"We know more now than we did before," agreed the audience after hearing a Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP) overview Tuesday sponsored by Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County (FRWLC).

Marty Gonzales of Westinghouse Electric's public affairs office presented a slide program to the public following FRWLC's business meeting.

Among facts learned:
1. WIPP is a research and development facility only. As stated in its mission, purpose of the facility is to "demonstrate the safe disposal of radioactive waste resulting from defense activities and programs of the US ..."

2. Sponsored by the US Department of Energy, WIPP is managed and operated by Westinghouse under contract. On premises, Sandia Labs conducts experiments for the entire project. The Environmental Improvement Division supervises the project.

3. Radioactive waste comes from defense plants around the country. Initially for this project, waste will arrive from three plants, one each in Idaho and Colorado and Los Alamos National Labs in this state. This waste apparently will consist primarily of protective gear discarded by plant workers.

4. Proposed disposal test sites lay 2,150 feet below ground level in a large salt formation below mud and siltstone. Sites are partitioned into several "rooms," each separated by 100-foot salt pillars.

5. This salt area was selected because of its geologic stability and lack of aquifers. In addition, salt behaves like plastic under pressure, "heals" crack or fractures, and possesses good thermal characteristics, all of which are important to this mission, said Gonzales.

6. WIPP's construction phase has ended and the five-year testing phase begins shortly. During this phase, one or two shipments of radioactive waste will be received at the site, located 26 miles south-east of Carlsbad. Shipments will probably travel south on Interstate 25 to NM 285, then via NM 380 to the site on US 62-180. Final routes are being negotiated, said Gonzales.

Waste travels in a Trupact II, a huge insulated stainless steel-skinned container which holds 14 55-gallon drums of waste. Sandia Labs subjected Trupact II to many stress and heat tests, including impact, fire and simulated vehicle accidents. Trupact II passed all these with no leakage, said Gonzales.

Trucks carrying Trupact II maintain constant communication with the defense plant that sends the material and WIPP via a satellite network and mobile phone backup.

All waste-bearing containers will be bar-coded at the plant before entering WIPP for identification and inventory. "That way we can locate and remove if necessary any individual barrel," explained Gonzales.

During this five-year testing phase, all aspects of the radioactive waste's presence will be monitored. Some aspects include changes in ground water, vegetation, worker health and safety, container stability and the weather.

Because this is an underground operation, safety is utmost, insisted Gonzales. WIPP maintains fire equipment and an ambulance both above and below-ground. In addition, two mine rescue teams practice constantly and all personnel going below-ground must first pass a 40-hour mine safety class. "We logged our third 1 million-man hours without accidents," declared Gonzales.

Following this five-year test phase comes a 25-year test and storage phase during which waste will be stored and constantly monitored.

"If it is determined that this method of radioactive waste disposal is not feasible, then it will be removed from the Carlsbad site and temporarily relocated until a feasible solution is found," promised Gonzales.

She concluded by inviting groups interested in hearing about WIPP to contact the public affairs office of Westinghouse in Carlsbad. "We want the public to know what WIPP is."

Brave little flowers welcome spring

DEAR SALLY:

You have written about Iris and the lovely Easter Lily, would you please write about my very special flower, the jonquil or is it Daffodil? I don't know the difference, if there is a difference, what is it? I would like to plant some jonquil bulbs in different size containers to have spring blossoms next year. Please help me out here and I'll be most grateful.

Edith H.

DEAR EDITH:

Without a doubt, daffodils, jonquils, narcissus, or whatever name you choose to call them are the whole world's favorite bulb and that includes me. On March 4th this year I saw my first daffodil bloom, that little yellow face looking up at me, protected from a hard wind, was truly a sight to behold. I couldn't help thinking that it took a lot of courage to be the very first little plant to show its face in this harsh windy weather. Same as it takes courage for many of us to step out and show the world our faces. It was Dorothy Bernard who said, "Courage is fear that has said its prayers." Don't know how on this good earth I got so far off the subject.

Narcissus are natives of the Mediterranean area, Central Europe, Japan and China, and have become so interbred that confusion exists over names. But by any name these cheerful and often fragrant flowers play important roles in landscaping, container growing indoors and out.

Most varieties have one flower per long stem and come in many colors, yellow, orange, white, pink and combinations of all colors.

If planting outside in beds, the preparation of the bed is very important. Bulbs are safer from ground-dwelling animals if planted in raised beds and raised beds also provide the fast drainage essential for most all bulbs.

If you dig your bulbs and store for the winter, after digging bulbs, shake off loose soil and dry them for about a week in a shady, protected spot with good ventilation. Then brush off any remaining soil, and dust with a fungicide to help control rot and other disease. Store the bulbs in dry peat moss, perlite, vermiculite, or sharp builders sand, in a porous bag or a shallow tray. This keeps them from drying out, yet allows them to breathe. Store them in a cool (35 to 50 degree), dry place where they will not freeze.

Offsets may be divided from the parent bulb every 2 or 3 years in July. Plant the following spring it may take a couple of years for them to bloom.

Once they have bloomed and the leaves have turned yellow, the bulb has removed the nutrients and protein for use the following season and the yellow leaves may be carefully removed in preparation for the next season.

After planting, do not allow the bulbs to dry out. When plants are a few inches tall, begin watering to keep evenly moist through the growing and blooming period. Bulb roots grow deep, water deep not just surface sprinkling. Continue watering after blooms fade and leaves turn yellow.

Fertilizer is important, after the initial spring feeding, apply 1/2 the label amount once a month until foliage, begins to yellow, then begin feeding again at first sign of new growth in spring.

A porous soil, fast draining of with extra sand and a little limestone and bone meal added and planted about 4" deep, clay pots are considered best for bulbs but I think plastic pots hold the moisture better if you put plastic chunks in the bottom for good drainage. Usually start your pot planting in late fall for spring blooms.
