Miller is still in jail

Ruidoso businessman Merle Miller, arrested last Friday on a drug charge, has not met the 10 percent required of his $100,000 bond as of Thursday morning and is still confined to the Lincoln County Jail.

Miller was charged on two counts of cocaine trafficking and a charge of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. He was arrested during a raid at his home at 101 Eagle Drive.

The six-month investigation and bust gained a list of cocaine buyers according to Ruidoso Criminal Investigations Commander Lanny Maddox. He said names of persons from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Alamogordo were found.

Since his arrest, Miller's bank accounts have been frozen and forfeiture proceedings have been initiated on his personal property according to Maddox.

He said the Federal Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms are looking into firearms violations which carry an automatic five-year federal sentence which is not related to the state charges.

Running the fastest qualifying time for the $150,000 Rainbow Silver Cup, Sweet N Special lunges a nose in front on the outside to win her trial heat. The four-year-old filly ran the 440 yards in 22.06 and will be one of the top contenders in the Rainbow Silver Cup Finals Sunday, June 9, at Ruidoso Downs. Sweet N Special was ridden by Jacky Martin and trained by Jack Brooks for owner Walt Fletcher of Lakin, Kansas.

Racetrack lights up Fridays

Beginning June 14, and continuing for six consecutive Fridays, Ruidoso Downs will simulcast entire Friday night horse racing cards from Hollywood Park in California.

The nine-race card will be simulcast to the Ruidoso Downs Turf Club and admission is free. There will also be a specially-priced buffet and bargain prices on drinks. The simulcast program will begin at 8 p.m., approximately 30 minutes after Ruidoso's final live race.

Ruidoso Downs' live racing will have a special 2 p.m. first post time on June 14, which features the Rainbow Futurity Elimination Trials.

Regular simulcasts from The Downs at Albuquerque and Santa Fe will continue all summer in the Sports Theater every Wednesday through Aug. 21, with the exception of June 12. A special simulcast program will be offered Monday, June 10, however, from The Downs at Albuquerque.

This weekend's full racing card begins at 1 p.m. today (Thursday) and continues with 1 p.m. post times Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Garbage officials dismayed over low appraisals for sanitation equipment

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

That sound of choking coming from Ruidoso Village Hall is city officials trying to swallow the low appraisal figures submitted for the municipality's garbage collection equipment.

"Obviously, Ruidoso is in a state of shock," Mayor Victor Alonso told fellow members of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority Monday. "The appraisals came in at about half of what we expected. If it seems like we're backpedaling, it could be because we're still choking."

"Ruidoso is interested in selling, but it's not a fire sale."

The village is one of seven members of the authority along with the county and five other municipalities. Part of the initial agreement among the government entities when the organization was formed was that the authority would purchase existing needed equipment from its members.

Appraisals from two different firms put the value of solid waste equipment and property owned by Ruidoso at $682,233. Alonso, who is chairman of the authority, and Al Junge, Ruidoso councilor and authority member, had expected an appraisal in excess of $1-million.

Ruidoso wasn't alone in its disappointment.

County Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer said he would rather keep a D-6 bulldozer listed under county-owned equipment rather than accept the low appraisal of $16,000 from John Blatnik & Associates. West America Business Brokers submitted a higher figure of $26,927, but was consistently lower than Blatnik on all other items.

"If both parties feel good about opting something out, I see no problem," Spencer said. "But if there is some contention, the equipment should go as a block."

Capitan's landfill property was valued at $32,500 to $35,200, but the appraisals were based on the cost of unimproved land and did not take into account the cost of excavation of the landfill pit for burial of construction trash. The total of 17 acres also covered a landfill that already is closed. The new landfill sits on a 10-acre site, Spencer pointed out.

Part of the problem with the Ruidoso appraisal was the low value allocated to a garbage compactor, depreciated down to $61,915-$69,000.

Junge pointed out that the compactor cost Ruidoso $172,000 and contended it would last for at least another 10-15 years.

And Alonso stressed that Ruidoso is bringing to the authority a collection system that already is earning a monthly profit.

That should be considered separately from the equipment, Spencer said.

"Each entity should bring its equipment or real estate to the table at the next meeting with a pricetag and how it is to be depreciated," Spencer said. "I hope by the next meeting we can get it out of the way and move on."

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Bonnie Addy said the authority might have to follow depreciation guidelines established by the Internal Revenue Service.

Capitan Mayor Frank Warth, an authority member, said the organization must stick to the market value in setting purchase prices for equipment.

"They're only interested in market replacement value," said Jim Edwards of the State Department of Environment. "They don't care what you paid for it."

Addy questioned how the State Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) would look at the authority paying a price for equipment higher than the appraisals.

County manager Nick Pappas said it shouldn't be a problem.

"It's when you get less than the appraised value, not more, that the DFA comes back with questions," he said.

Alonso said he intends to ask the full Ruidoso council to review the appraisals and help pinpoint an acceptable figure to bring back to the authority at its meeting June 17 in Capitan.

The other members agreed to do the same with their boards.

Fire rages through the Gavilan area

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Smoke billowing up from the Gavilan Canyon area Tuesday evening prompted several calls from alert citizens and a response from three agencies.

Bonito Volunteer Fire Department (BVFD) New Mexico State Forestry (NMSF) and the US Forest Service (USFS) found brush and grass in flames in an unoccupied area near Roblito Ridge on the east side of Gavilan Canyon about 6:30 p.m.

Access to the fire proved difficult, for the burning area was approximately 200 yards uphill from the nearest road, Larry & Benita Place.

Two 4x4 fast-out units from the USFS and BVFD were able to drive closest to the scene, about 500 feet downhill from it.

Using a shuttle system, larger trucks fed water to those units, whose personnel used a combination of water and ground tools to contain the fire to an area of approximately 1/2 acre.

Crews stayed on the scene until nearly 10 p.m. putting out hot spots, then monitored the scene all night and the next day, Wednesday. At press time, no further outbreaks had occurred.

Neighbors said the property belonged to Telma Joyce, who was not present.

Although a definite cause was not immediately known, neighbors mentioned seeing "kids in the area."

Tuesday's fire was in the same vicinity as another brush fire that occurred several months ago, also of unknown cause.

Fires raged through the Ruidoso area earlier this week, with firefighters called to two structure fires and a grass and brush fire. Chief investigator Paul Nay of the State Fire Marshal's office uses a hydrocarbon detector, called the "sniffer" in the rubble of a burned house. The presence of hydrocarbons at a fire indicates the use of an accelerant, such as gasoline.

FDIC attempts to bypass village regs

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Federal Deposit Insurance Company (FDIC) is attempting to bypass village regulations that require detailed development plans to be approved by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning board.

A pending sale by the FDIC of a 28-acre tract near Grindstone Dam would create a subdivision code violation by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Department and set a precedent according to Planning Director Cleatus Richards.

James Townsend, who leases the land for his riding stables from the FDIC, is trying to purchase the tract, a part of the foreclosed Grindstone Properties.

Since the land is a part of a larger tract known as the Dorman Inc. Properties held by the FDIC, the proposed replat constitutes a subdivision and is subject to Village regulations.

The FDIC, however, is unwilling to invest any money into a property that it is trying to sell. Gary Caughron, agent for the FDIC, indicated the agency could not do anything speculative.

Richards disagrees with that policy and says if the FDIC wants to sell the property, and in the interest of fairness and compliance, they should follow the same procedure as any other subdivider.

P&Z Chairman Robert Donaldson also was concerned about selling the property in a piecemeal manner. The entire 268 acres is zoned Planned Unit Development (PUD).

Village attorney David Thomsen recommended the property be rezoned to R-1, but Donaldson felt that such a designation would take control away from the village.

He was concerned that if Townsend sold the property under R-1, the planning department

Downs P&amp;Z loses 2 members

The newly-formed Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z), organized in February, is losing members faster than village leaders can find them.

Monday night, just before the P&Z's fourth meeting was to begin, the commission's chairperson, Debbie Sturdivant, handed over her resignation papers.

"It was nice serving with you," she said to member Ronda Dvorak, as she stated her leaving as personal reasons.

Karen Stevens, village trustee, has also resigned recently from the commission.

"They didn't realize the extended time and effort it would take (to be on the commission)," said Bill Heineken, code enforcement officer.

The search to replace the resigned members started early Tuesday morning. Heineken said he was looking for people interested in P&Z, but didn't have anyone lined up yet to volunteer.

The resignations of Stevens and Sturdivant left the commission with four members, including Heineken. The standing members are Dvorak, Robin Surgeny and Shelley Barnes.

The next P&Z meeting is scheduled for the first Monday in July.

Interpretive walks planned

A series of interpretative walks in the Lincoln County National Forest will be offered starting at 2 p.m. June 9.

Dave Dale, who formerly conducted interpretative programs for the Sandia Ranger District and the Rio Grande Nature Center, will lead the walks.

Participants should meet at the Smokey Bear Ranger Station, 901 Mechem Drive in Ruidoso. The program is free to the public and is one of several on nature and the environment scheduled for the summer.

June 22-23, Dale plans an evening campfire talk and an early morning hike at South Fork Campground.

For more information about the program, call the district office at 257-5245.

BLM offers Rio Bonito land

The Roswell Resource Area of the Bureau of Land Management has completed the plan amendment to allow acquisition of lands along the Rio Bonito from the National Forest boundary between Sections 15 and 16, Township 10 South, Range 13 East, and its confluence with the Rio Ruidoso in section 4, T. 11 S., Range 17 East.

According to a news release, the lands along the Rio Bonito have management potential for recreation, riparian areas and wildlife habitat for upland game, big game and fisheries. In addition, the acquisition of the lands along the Rio Bonito would provide an opportunity to enhance the protection of the historical and cultural values within the Lincoln Historical District.

A copy of the plan amendment is available upon request by contacting Sandra Allen, area manager, BLM, Roswell Resource Area, P.O. Drawer 1857, Roswell, NM 88202-1857, or call 624-1790. The public protest period for this action will extend through July 1. Any protest must be filed with the Director (760), Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets, Washington, D.C. 20240. Protests must be postmarked no later than closing of business July 1.

NM showcases new products

Plans are under way for the 1991 New Mexico Products Showcase, an annual event sponsored by the Economic Development and Tourism Department. The Showcase will be June 6-8 at the North East Hall of Albuquerque's new Convention Center, beginning with a buyers' preview evening on June 6.

The trade show, a major component of the department's Buy New Mexico program, showcases the great diversity of products manufactured or produced in the state, according to a news release. It provides the opportunity for New Mexicans to buy homemade and homegrown products. It also gives businesses the chance to display their products to local and national buyers.

This year's show is scheduled to coincide with the INC. 500 Conference, which is expected to bring up to 1,500 top CEOs to New Mexico.

White Sands expands its hours

White Sands National Monument will expand its hours and activities beginning Saturday, May 25. The Dunes Drive will be open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily and the Visitor Center will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Ranger-guided nature walks and evening slide programs and films will be scheduled daily throughout the summer. Program schedule for the week of May 25.

Firefighters from six departments join forces to stop structure blaze

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Inter-agency cooperation proved successful in suppressing a fire Monday evening in Alto.

Six departments united Bonito Volunteer Fire Department (BVFD) in quelling a structure fire that burned the Phil Turner residence in Little Creek Subdivision.

New Mexico State Forestry, U.S. Forest Service and the departments of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan and Nogal provided personnel and water shuttle to the fire that was reported at about 6:15 p.m.

When firefighters arrived, they found the one-story frame residence nearly engulfed. A pickup truck and motorcycle adjacent to the house were also afire.

One observer reported seeing flames above the trees a mile away and another reported seeing smoke as she left Carrizozo. Neighbors said they were unsure if the house was occupied at the time of the fire. One reported breaking bedroom windows in an attempt to find anyone inside but the heat drove him away, he said.

Turner was later located out of town.

The fire was contained at approximately 8 p.m. Firefighters confined damage to the structure and vehicles only.

"Fortunately there was no wind," said one firefighter.

Crews stayed on the scene until all traces of smoke and heat appeared to be gone at about 11 p.m. After barricading the scene, BVFD monitored it periodically during the night but no further outbreaks occurred.

At 8 a.m. Tuesday, BVFD found a trace of smoke in what had been the kitchen area and quelled it.

The cause of the fire remains unknown and is under investigation.

The owner of the house is reportedly John Taylor of Las Cruces who was unavailable for comment.

Cruces who was unavailable for comment.

Firefighters investigate and clean up at the scene of what remains of the Phil Turner residence in Little Creek Subdivision of the Alto area. The structure burned Monday evening. In the picture are Sheriff's deputy Connie Hopper, Bonito Volunteer Fire Department member Horatio Puckett and BVFD lieutenant Lester Lanelli.

Garbage fees get go-ahead for the county

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

For the first time, Lincoln County residents may be directly billed for their garbage collection and disposal service.

They probably will pay less per month than residents of the county's five municipalities, but their level of service also will be lower.

County Solid Waste Director Gene Green told members of the Solid Waste Authority Monday that meetings should be scheduled in early July to explain the new fee system and approach to collection, and to solicit feedback on where more service is needed.

"It's always been my thought that we may need to take this dog and pony show on the road," said Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonso, who serves as authority chairman. "We need to go to the customer base instead of asking everyone to drive to Carrizozo."

The board agreed to set meetings across the county over a two to three day period.

"I know county residents never had to pay before, but I think they are willing," said Commissioner Bill Elliott, a member of the authority. "Those with farms or ranches will opt out. But we would lose money trying to collect their garbage anyway."

The cost of collection previously has been included in the county's annual operational budget.

County Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer, who serves on the authority, said several residents of remote areas told him they don't need the service and don't want to subsidize it for other residents.

Others said the existing level of service should remain in place until a need for an increased level is demonstrated.

Green said he has projected a monthly fee of $5 for residents of unincorporated portions of the county. That is based on a $12,500 estimated cost of service per household, plus 20 percent to cover overhead for a $15,000 total. Divide that figure by about 3,000 customers and the cost would run $60 each a year or $5 a month.

Alonso pointed out that at $5, county residents would be paying less than municipal residents. But Green said level of service also would be substantially lower than in villages and that some people will have to drive miles before reaching a dumpster.

Green said he used figures from the county assessor's office for his projection of about 3,707 homes in the unincorporated sections of the county.

He is assuming that about 20 percent of those customers will ask for an exception/variance, Green said. He included a draft of a proposed policy that would limit variances to owners of a minimum of 300 acres of land and a site suitable for disposal of solid waste.

The land owners already must have established a precedence for disposal on their property.

With a balance of 2,966 customers after variances are granted, Green estimated the county would need 318 more dumpsters than the existing 176, primarily in areas around Agua Fria, Ruidoso Downs, Carrizo Lodge, Hondo Valley and Glencoe.

Joe Lewandowski, general manager of Southwest Disposal Corp. based in Alamogordo, warned authority members that they will meet resistance from Alto residents to any reduction in service. His company serves that area and handles other private contracts in the county. He pointed out that Alto subdivision's covenants prohibit trash or trash containers in sight at any time, including collection days.

His employees have to find underground trash bins or go behind homes to collect garbage and that takes time and costs more money, he said.

"That's something we should help them change," Alonso said. And if they are not willing to compromise, it's a good argument to allow a private company to continue to serve the area, he said.

Lewandowski suggested that instead of trying to come up with a uniform monthly rate, the county should be divided into districts with different fees based on the level of service and any special conditions.

He said he intends to present a proposal to the authority at its next meeting on June 17 in Capitan. His experience could save the county a great deal of time and mistakes, he said.

As a point of clarification, Lewandowski noted that his company is not responsible for Carrizozo's high collection rate of $12 a month.

The company charges $6 a month for collection, $1.50 for the cart, $1.50 for cost of the transfer station and $3 goes directly to the village as income, he said.

He also contended the authority's proposed recycling program won't work in Carrizozo like it may in other Lincoln County communities, because residents already pick out all recyclable materials.

Alonso said Ruidoso residents also could have lower rates, but the extra money generated by the village's collection system is used for other programs like parks and recreation.

In other business, the authority—Received a report on the Capitan landfill. Board Attorney J. Robert Beauvais said he has sent a proposed agreement to Louis Rose, general counsel for the State Department of Environment, for review. It contains a certification by Capitan that no hazardous waste was deposited in the community's closed landfill. After a new inspection by the state, a waiver of liability would be issued to Capitan, allowing it avoid 1989 closure requirements that could cost as much as $150,000.

—Selected Sherman and Howard of Albuquerque as bond counsel for the sale of about $1-million in environmental services gross receipts (sales) tax bonds to finance equipment acquisition. The company was hired for a $15,000 fee and $1,000 in expenses. The other company under consideration was Modrall, Sperling, Roehl, Harris & Sisk of Albuquerque and Las Cruces.

—Announced that Green's new office will be located in the old Texas-New Mexico Power building on Sudderth, which may also become the authority's recycling center.

FDIC

would have no say in the future development as long as it fit R-1 guidelines. Donaldson said a PUD rating allows the planning board to rule on each new enterprise for the prime property.

Donaldson said the council was aware that Townsend had leased the property for two years and Townsend's proposal of a fake western town was merely a continuation of his existing enterprise.

He said that the board's recommendation Monday to approve the sale of the property was contingent on the FDIC signing a plat before the sale is final.

Donaldson said it was unfortunate that the property had not been platted properly several years ago when the Dorman tract was first developed. He remembered it as a well-thought-out plan gone sour quickly with the oil bust.

Donaldson said he was shocked to find there was no legal access on the property to Grindstone Dam. The Townsend property is also landlocked. That appears to give the village a good bargaining position to open legal access to other portions around the lake, other board members said.

The FDIC is obligated to liquidate the property. The sale of the 28 acres is the initial effort to do that. A replatting is required by village regulations.

"Anytime you start a replatting of property, you fall under the village's subdivision regulations. That means frontage on a dedicated public right of way for the lots you are creating. There also is drainage, grading, extension of utilities and other considerations that are mandated under our village code regulations," Richards said.

"The FDIC apparently has no ability to make any of those improvements on property. They are just a holder of property to dispose of it as is," he said.

Richards said when the FDIC approached the planning commission to cut off this first piece for sale, the plat as presented could not be approved by the board because the FDIC was not willing to plat the roadway and make necessary improvements.

"We will have a difficult time in dealing with the FDIC to allow them to liquidate while maintaining the village's design subdivision regulations," Richards said.

After the Monday meeting, Caughn said he would talk to FDIC again. Richards said he thinks the FDIC is amenable to making some street dedications, and making the purchaser responsible for the improvements.

The planning director said the P&Z board does not have the authority to approve any FDIC arrangement. He said it will all be recommended to the Village Council for them to set conditions for the FDIC.

In other P&Z action, the board recommended to bring a request by Randall Mullican for a zone map amendment to the village council for approval.

Mullican said he does not consider the lots to be marketable for commercial use and wants to put three mobile homes on the property.

All property owners within 100 feet of the lots have been notified, according to the planning board. A.J. Phillips of Brownfield, Texas, was granted a 10-foot rear yard variance for a deck at 1703 Carter Drive.

Rita Licano of 108 W. Hart requested front and rear yard variance to construct a new residence.

As lot size is substandard and lot topography is adverse, the planning staff recommended approval of the variances as requested to allow reasonable use of the property.

A.D. Powers of 714 Meechem requested approval for a 14-foot by 45-foot addition which would require an additional four parking spaces for retail use.

Powers said the primary business is a gallery operation with incidental retail sales.

The board approved the plan with the following conditions:

1. That portable storage buildings be moved to adhere to the 20-foot front yard and 10-foot side yard setback requirement; location to be approved by the planning staff prior to building permit issue.
2. That storage of construction material on subject property be terminated except for that required to construct the proposed addition, but only during addition construction.

Greeting the Mayor

Court clerk feels right at home

by SHEFI CANTWELL
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer
 Lorena LaMay found her way back home a few weeks ago when she returned to the Ruidoso Police and Courts Complex as the new magistrate court clerk.
 "I never understood what went on, on the other side of the fence," she said. "I always wondered what happened to Joe Blow after we booked him."
 LaMay was employed as a Communications Detention Officer for the Ruidoso Police Department from 1977 until 1988. She left because of family obligations. Two years later she decided to try for the bailiff position. Most likely became the first woman bailiff in Lincoln county, she said.
 She spent two years as the bailiff for District Judge Richard A. Parsons in Carrizozo.
 LaMay, after 12 years as an officer, is ready to explore another aspect of the process.

 Although the former officer is glad to be back working in Ruidoso, she said she'll miss hearing and "getting involved" in the interesting court testimonies.
 She likes her new job, however, because it keeps her busy.
 "You don't have time to bat an eyelash," she said, pointing to all the paperwork surrounding her desk.
 LaMay isn't the only one happy about her return. Magistrate Judge J.R. "Jim" Wheeler is thrilled to have someone with her experience.
 "She is easy to train because she has been around forever."
 The new clerk may know the procedures, but to her it's a whole different ballgame than being a police officer. But she is familiar with her responsibilities because of the closeness of the departments.
 During her years of the police station side, LaMay filled in for all different positions.
 "My job was jack-of-all-trades," she said.
 LaMay feels that becoming a bailiff helped tremendously because of all the legal issues she was exposed to.
 "Judge Parsons was an excellent teacher and boss," she said.
 When asked if this might be her last career move, LaMay replied, "they're going to have to retire me from this position."

Area golf courses thrive

Nowhere in the United States can the game of golf be played in such a picturesque setting as the Ruidoso area.

Golf enthusiasts can select from one of the Ruidoso area's many golf courses and enjoy the mountain-cape scenery. Visitors and locals play on some of the country's most challenging courses year-round, ac-ording to a news release provided by the Ruidoso Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Ruidoso has the Southwest's most delightful climate and draws visitors all four seasons with summer nights in the high 50s and afternoons in the 70s. Fall brings ideal Indian Summer days, and winters average 40 degrees intown and cooler weather at nearby Ski Apache Resort.

The Links at Sierra Blanca
The Links at Sierra Blanca is New Mexico's newest golf course.

The Links opened in March 1991 and was nominated to Golf Digest as best new public golf course for 1991.

This 18-hole, berm-studded course stretches 7,003 yards from the championship tees and 6,505 yards from the regular tees.

Links manager Jeff Miller says the course is uniquely designed to be a challenge for the avid golfer and enjoyable for the beginner.

The Links plays a par 72 and is managed and operated by Jim Colbert Golf, Inc., of Phoenix, Arizona.

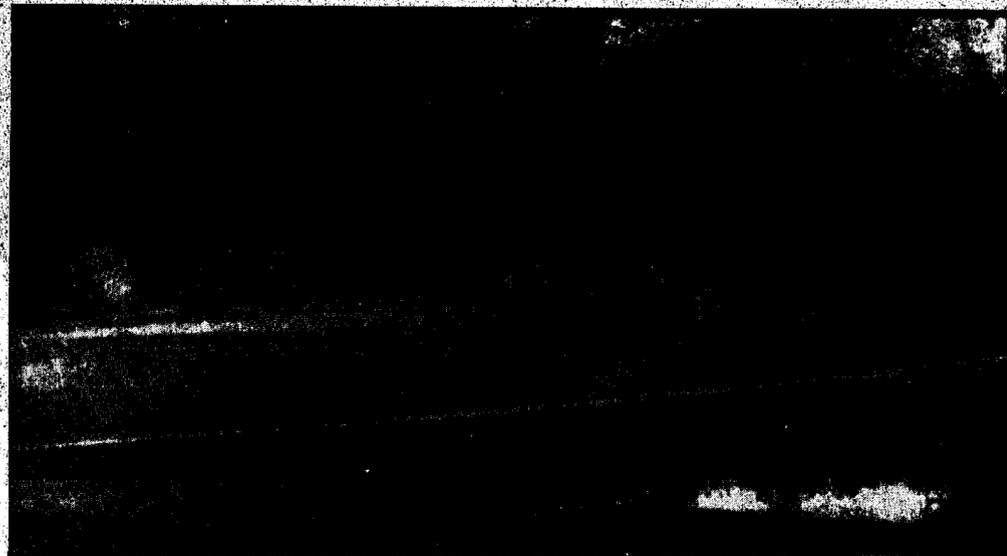

An all-turf, driving range with sandtraps is capable of handling 35 golfers.

"The toughest hole is the number seven's monster 581-yarder," says Dode Forester, Links golf pro.

The Links is located on the old Ruidoso airport site, off Mechem Drive.

Inn of the Mountain Gods
The Inn of the Mountain Gods, a world-class resort hotel, is recognized as one of the country's finest golf resorts.

The Inn of the Mountain Gods opened in 1976 and is ranked among the top 20 courses in the nation. This championship course is owned and operated by the Mescalero Apache Indians and is lo-ated on the Mescalero reservation off U.S. Highway 70 in Mescalero.

A GAME OF UPS, DOWNS AND WATER

Golfers will often see deer, elk and other wildlife roaming throughout the 6,416-yard course.

Although the course at the Inn is not long, it is challenging, according to local resident golfers.

The 70.1 rated (for the men's regular tee) course is designed to reward good shots and penalize bad shots. An adventurous shot into the trees means a bogey, or worse, for most players.

The Inn's par three holes are longer than those at most courses, the shortest being 197 yards. Two of the par three holes require the golfer to hit over water, with not much room to bail out. The par four #10 has the golfer playing from the tee onto an island fairway and a peninsula green.

The 514-yard, par 5, first hole is rated as the number one handicap hole.

Cree Meadows Country Club
Cree Meadows Country Club, Ruidoso's third public golf course, is situated in the heart of Ruidoso.

Majestic Sierra Blanca peak is visible from every hole on the course.

Cree Meadows, opened in 1947, is a challenging course, rated a 67.9. Cree plays a par 71, and measures 5,700 yards from the blue tees.

Cree Meadows is an ideal course for seniors because of its shorter length and flatter layout. The front nine is short, with several birdie opportunities.

The back nine is longer and more exacting. The 348-yard, par 4, eleventh hole is rated as the number one handicap hole on the course.

Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club
Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club is a private course located just north of Ruidoso on Highway 48. It is open to club members and their guests.

This scenic mountain course measures 6,435 yards and is rated at 70.5 for the regular men's tees and plays to a par 71.

Alto's back nine was designed by the world-renowned golf architects Pete Dye and Ron Kirby and offers one of the most challenging courses in the Southwest.

Fun for all
No matter the skill level, Ruidoso has a golf course for every golfer.

Inside the Outdoors

Warm weather brings out the bears and other hibernating critters

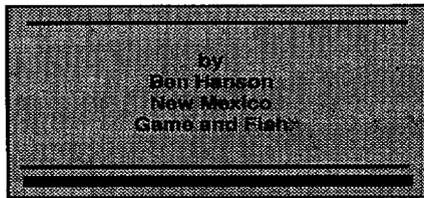

Warm weather has a lot of people stirring around out in forested mountains. It also has awakened some critters that have been taking a long winter nap. The first that comes to mind is the black bear.

The black bear, the State Mammal made famous by Smokey Bear, actually is more commonly brown here in New Mexico. Black bear is simply the name of the critter, but they can be any color, black, brown, red or blonde. The true brown (grizzly) bear is an altogether different animal, a relic of history here in New Mexico.

The black bear is just a small, distant cousin of the brown or grizzly bear. It is a much more adaptable animal and frequently lives in close proximity to human civilization. The black bear inhabits the major wooded and/or mountainous areas from coast to coast and from Alaska to Central Mexico. They are listed, taxonomically, as carnivores, however they'll eat anything from carrion and garbage to insects and vegetables. Occasionally they've been known to prey on elk calves.

Realistically they could be classed as opportunists. Whatever smells good, to them, they'll try.

How big are they? Well, putting aside all the reports from people frightened by huge bears standing 10 feet tall and weighing a ton, they aren't all that big. The average wild, free ranging black bear weighs from 100 to 300 pounds. But, like people, give an old male easy to get, fattening food for a year and he could top 450 pounds!

A black bear hit by a car near Albuquerque a few years ago weighed almost 500 pounds!

How strong are they? Strong enough to flip industrial grade boulders like kid's marbles.

They can be very large, but usually are not. They are always very strong. They have poor, nearsighted vision, but an excellent sense of smell. These physical attributes fit well with their wandering, catch as catch can ways. An interesting side light to this is that their young are born during the winter hibernation period and weigh only 7 to 12 ounces!

The few encounters I've had with bears in the wild have been uneventful. When they've noticed me, some never did, their hind legs outraced their front legs trying to get away from me. I did say in the wild.

When they wander into campgrounds, the city (I mean practically downtown Albuquerque), or someone's back yard, they can be as hardheaded and belligerent as a rock. Add to that innate stubbornness an empty stomach and you have an accident waiting for a place to happen.

The best way to solve this problem is try to avoid it in the first place.

When camping store your food away from your sleeping quarters and don't feed the bears or leave garbage laying around. Also, leave the smelly perfumes at home—those mystical attractants of the opposite sex might bring in a real hunk.

Bears are neat critters, but it is wiser to keep them where they belong, out in the forest, and us at a distance. A situation desirable to both species. We have no business creating close encounters by treating them like begging pets.

Lake Lucero, a mirage in the desert, promises cool relief it can't deliver

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

From a distance, the shimmering surface of Lake Lucero invites weary travelers to shed the unrelenting heat and bask in its cool waters.

That was the deceptive promise offered to pioneers crossing the Tularosa Basin for nearly two centuries.

But just like visitors to Lucero today, as travelers drew close, the water turned into glittering deposits of selenite crystals left behind on the dry lakebed.

An integral step in the 200-million-year geological creation of the white gypsum sand dunes that sprawl across 230 square miles south of Alamogordo, Lake Lucero's former majesty still stars the imagination.

Once a month, the National Park Service conducts a tour of the lake area against a backdrop of the San Andres Mountains. Visitors also can see the scant remains of the old Lucero family homestead.

The lake lies in the southwest corner of White Sands National Monument, 16 miles from the visitors center.

Last month, Ranger John Mangimeli headed the tour. Before starting down the three-quarters of a mile path to the lakebed, he outlined a few precautions.

Visitors should not wander far off the pathway or pick up objects on the ground, he said. Since the lake is nearly surrounded by a practice missile range, unexploded bombs may be partially hidden under brush or soil.

With cautions out of the way, Mangimeli explained that the process taking place in the basin is unique and does not occur anywhere else in the world.

Even though Lake Lucero is billed as the source of the white sand dunes, the lake only fine tunes the creative process.

"The origin really is the light colored rock, limestone and gypsum, you see in the San Andres Mountains," Mangimeli said.

"Gypsum is different from all other materials," he said. "While it takes years for other rocks to break down, gypsum is soluble and will dissolve in rain or snow as fast as the water runs down in streams or underground water transports it down."

And there's plenty of moisture in the San Andres Mountains and in the nearby Sacramento Mountains, unlike many areas of New Mexico, he said.

But sand dunes have not formed on the other side of the San Andres because the gypsum is taken by the Rio Grande River and washed into the Gulf of Mexico, and from there to the ocean "where it came from to begin with," he said.

Gypsum washed down from the east side of the Sacramento flows into the Pecos River and also makes its way to the Gulf.

"But no river runs out of here," Mangimeli said, indicating the basin with a sweep of his arm. "Every drop stays here and runs to the lowest point it finds. That's Lake Lucero. Then it just sits there as the water evaporates, leaving the gypsum behind. It's like a giant evaporation pan."

A rough fence, stone trough and dismantled windmill mark the old Lucero homestead.

That's why Lake Lucero was included within the White Sands National Monument when it was formed in 1933, "because it was such an important link in the process of creating the dunes."

The lake was devoid of water the day of the tour.

"In fact, there hardly ever is any water," Mangimeli said. "Usually there are just a few pools a few inches to a foot deep after a heavy rain, generally in the summer."

Sometimes, water is visible because the lake is fed by the underground water table, high from the Sacramento range runoff.

Because of heavy cattle grazing activity by the Lucero family, as many as 2,000 head at a time, much of the native vegetation from the 1800s is gone, he said.

"We've been told that desert grasslands were belly high to a horse," he said. But ranchers overgrazed because "they came from moister areas where grass recovered faster and grew faster."

When the grass was gone, mesquite, creosote and tumbleweed (introduced from Russia via the Dakotas) moved in to take its place. Snake root also thrived because the cattle didn't like it.

But even those species start to disappear near the dry lake because of a change in the soil. Only salt-tolerant grasses can handle it, Mangimeli said.

The water pumped from wells in the area probably was high in gypsum and only marginally fit for animals, he said.

Jose and Felipe Lucero obtained 160 acres in 1897 on the south shore of the lakebed. A small living unit was constructed at the rim of the lake and their ranch house was built farther south. At one point, the ranch probably encompassed as much as 20,000 acres, according to a pamphlet prepared by the National Park Service and the Southwest Parks and Monuments Association.

A large portion of the basin was transformed into a bombing range during World War II when the cattle industry was in decline. Deep gullies lead into the lake, their bottoms littered with icicle-like selenite crystals as long as 18-inches and brown from impurities.

The crystals form in layered plates at the outer edge of the lakebed, but as they are tumbled by the wind and beaten by the rain, they break down into cornflakes. By the time they reach the dunes, they are grains of sand.

The bits of sand are white, not clear like harder quartz sand grains.

"When you take the water out of calcium sulphate, it becomes plaster of paris," Mangimeli said. "Essentially that's what happens to the dunes."

But when nature adds moisture, the color returns.

"When it snowed last winter, the dunes turned brown because they absorb so much moisture," he said.

The dunes are easy to walk on because they contain so much moisture under the top 2-3 inches of sand, Mangimeli said. "Underneath, there is solid mound of plaster of paris, rock hard."

Visitors to the dunes can remove their socks and not burn their feet even in the hottest weather because the dunes reflect the sunlight and the sand stays cool. A danger does exist for taking home a sunburn, however, he said.

The wind, in its continuing role of shaping the dunes, also moves them.

"The dunes are moving so fast we can't maintain paved roads," Mangimeli said. "A snowplow just clears a new road every time the wind blows. Sometimes it is narrowed to one lane. We have to make new maps every few months."

The dunes often are accused of being the source for the haze of white that sometimes blows across the basin and into the Sacramento Mountains, the ranger said.

But the real villain is a 30 mile alkaline flat, where dust is easily scooped up by the wind, he said.

The geological process behind the dunes began with the deposit of gypsum in this area during the Permian Period. An ancient sea extended into southeastern New Mexico and when it retreated, calcium sulfate gypsum was left behind in small lagoons and bays.

According to the association pamphlet, accelerated evaporation took place, separating the gypsum from the salt water. A gypsum strata was formed as thick as 650-feet. Seventy million years ago, the formation was uplifted, forming a gigantic dome.

Then about 10 million years ago, faults developed within the plateau and a section 100 miles long and 30 miles wide collapsed, forming the Tularosa Basin.

The cliffs on either side of the basin contained exposed deposits of gypsum, limestone and shale, leaving them unprotected against the effects of erosion from wind and rain.

About 30,000 years ago, a great prehistoric lake called Otero was at its peak in the basin. Its waters were heavily laced with dissolved gypsum washed from the faces of the cliffs. Ten thousand years later, it slowly began to dry up as the climate shifted from cold and wet to warm and cold.

As the water evaporated, the crystals began to form. According to the pamphlet, experts believe the dunes were formed from the eroded particles of selenite coupled with minute gypsum fragments that separated from the clay on the lake bottom.

Still, the dunes may never have formed if a prevalent southwesterly wind pattern had not developed about the same time. The wind separated, broken down and carried the tiny fragments.

Being heavier than dust, the gypsum collected into the dunes instead of being blown away.

"So years after it's gone, the lake still is doing its work as larger crystals are broken down," Mangimeli said.

The barren lakebed today covers about 20 square miles and is divided into two parts. The main section that is part of the tour runs east to west, but another portion lies farther south.

The tour begins at the entrance to the White Sands Small Missile Range between mileage marker 74-75 on U.S. 70. A caravan of cars follows the ranger across the range to the lake. Allow about three hours for the entire visit. And be sure to arrive at the gate well in advance of departure time or you'll be left behind.

Tours are scheduled for June 30, July 27, August 25, September 28, October 27, November 30 and December 29.

To make reservations for the 35-mile round trip tour of Lake Lucero and to find out the departure time, contact the White Sands Monument visitors center at 605-479-8124.

Selenite crystals, formed when the water of Lake Lucero receded, litter the dry lake floor. The San Andres Mountains, on the west side of the lake, overlook the trail as hikers head back to the road.

Mels Deal debuts

B.C. Abbott's Mels Deal, second behind the promising Egocentric in the Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park, tops the entrants for Friday's four divisions of the Norgor Thoroughbred Futurity trials.

The top four finishers from each of the four trial heats advance to the June 23 Norgor Futurity, a 5 1/2-furlong test with an estimated purse of $100,000. The trials will be held in Friday's second, sixth, eighth and 10th races.

Mels Deal has been quite impressive in his brief career. He has finished second twice behind Egocentric, and was a winner in his only other trip to post. The California-bred son of Come On Mel was a fast-closing second behind Egocentric in the May 5 $130,000 Riley Allison Futurity.

Mels Deal is trained by four-time winner of this race, Bob Arnett, and figures to be a prohibitive favorite in Friday's second race. Arnett's previous Norgor Futurity winners include My Kinda Loom (1985), Classy Loom (1983), Sundays Payday (1982) and Pride Of Loom (1981).

Friday's sixth race is headed by Boyce and Reeves' Goldgusher, a Kentucky-bred son of Fast Gold. Despite a disappointing eighth-place finish in the Riley Allison Futurity, Goldgusher appears to have a bright future.

Goldgusher debuted at Sunland Park March 16 and powered away to a 4-length victory. The bay colt was second in the Riley Allison trials before his disappointing effort in the finals. Goldgusher is trained by Brent Davidson.

A pair of colts — Kirby Lonsdale and Capitalimprovement — both of whom were quite impressive in their debuts, head the eighth race.

Vera Montgomery's Kirby Lonsdale drew away to a 2-length victory in his debut April 21 against straight maidens at Sunland Park. The dark bay son of Strike Gold is trained by Brent Davidson.

W.L. Clifton's Capitalimprovement scored probably the most impressive maiden victory of this meeting so far when he romped to a 6-length victory May 19. The Virginia-bred son of Dixieland Band is trained by Bill Leach, who captured the Norgor Futurity in 1988 with Clever Leader and in 1979 with Cut Shot.

Friday's 10th race features the May 27 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity one-two finishers — Jose Pancho and Mr. Fuzz.

R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred's Jose Pancho scored a gutsy 1-length victory in the $52,750 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, a 5-furlong test reserved for New Mexico bred, in only the second start of his career.

W.T. Stradley's Mr. Fuzz, despite a wide trip, closed well through the stretch to finish second in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity. The gelded son of Mr. Inspector has finished second in all three of his career starts.

Friday's 12th and 13th races are both simulcasts from Hollywood Park.

Sizzling!

Refrigerator burns up the track to win the $268,642 Kansas Derby Sunday at Ruidoso Downs. The three-year-old gelding is trained by Dwayne Gilbreath and was ridden by Kip Didericksen. Refrigerator ran the 400-yard distance in :19.86 seconds for his ninth career victory in 11 starts. The millionaire horse, winner of last year's All American Futurity, is owned by James Helzer of Arlington, Texas.

Valid Proposal heads field

Terry Bell's Valid Proposal, second in last year's Grade 1 Kansas Futurity, heads a full-field in Thursday's featured race at 400 yards.

The allowance race, which is reserved for 3-year-olds, offers a purse of $5,500.

Based on his sparkling record as a 2-year-old, Valid Proposal should assume the favorite's role in this spot.

Valid Proposal, a black son of On A High, made his 1991 debut here

May 16 in the Kansas Derby trials. Although he failed to qualify, he still turned in a big effort to finish fourth behind Love This Candy and stablemate Strait To The Bank, both Kansas Derby finalists.

From the shrewd of leading quarter horse trainer Jack Brooks, Valid Proposal was a gem of consistency here last summer during his juvenile campaign. He finished first or second in all seven of his outings over this track.

Horses To Watch

AIRMOBLE—Took the overland route in a two-turn test last trip and still ran a decent race to be fourth. This old veteran no doubt has a few wins left in him. A better post position should lead to a better trip next outing, and a victory is certainly within reach.

EASY GO GEM—Was wistful of all in an $70-yard test in his last outing, and was still closing ground through the stretch. This 3-year-old fits "hook" racing like a glove, and figures to visit the charmed circle in the near future.

BOUND AWAY—Broke very slowly from the rail in a 5 furlong baby race last week. This Maryland-bred daughter of Bounding Basque still closed rapidly through the lane, despite her tardy start. The connections are rock solid here. Diploma day is right around the corner.

WOODYOUWAVE—Checked, checked and checked again in his last outing. This 4-year-old gelding showed some ability despite the problems. He figures tough to beat in his next trip to post.

NOT SO INNOCENT—This filly has a blazing turn of early speed, which she put on display in a handy victory here last week. If the competition remains reasonable and if the distance stays at 5 1/2 furlongs or less, she could be very tough right back.

Track Talk

What's in a name? ask Talent Connection

Talent Connection had things pretty much his own way here in the summer of '90.

The spirited son of Full Choke captured two juvenile stakes and walked away with Two-Year-Old of the Meet honors, not a minor accomplishment for a New Mexico-bred thoroughbred.

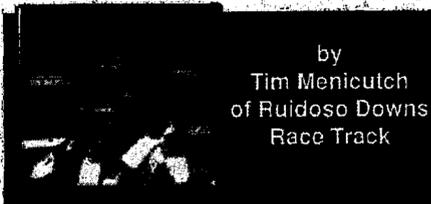

In 11 previous outings prior to this year's May 24 Norgor Derby trials, Talent Connection had only been beaten to the wire on three occasions. And in each of those losses, the gritty bay gelding had a legitimate excuse.

That was not the case, however, in the derby trials. For the first time in his life, probably, Talent Connection was outrun. Talent Connection fired his best shot at Cagney And Lace in the second division of the trials. He fired a blank.

Cagney And Lace, a half-brother to one of the finest race mares ever to step foot on the Ruidoso Downs' oval — Just Like Lace — was simply too quick for the competition in the trials.

Cagney And Lace carved out blistering fractions of 21.4 and 44.1 to discourage the competition early, and then finished with energy in reserve under a hand-ride by jockey Bobby Don Harmon.

Cagney And Lace was 2-lengths better than Talent Connection on that day. If Talent Connection hopes to become the third horse in history Saturday to win the Norgor Derby after capturing the Norgor Futurity, he is going to have to turn it up a notch, or at least hope that Cagney And Lace turns it down some.

by

Cagney And Lace hinted of his impending ability in last summer's $116,000 Ruidoso Futurity when he finished second to the classy Next Step. The son of Dam Lacey Number One and out of the superb dam Lacey Image, however, has put it all together in his sophomore campaign.

In five trips to post this year, he has only been beaten once, and that was kind of a fluke loss. Cagney And Lace was well clear of an allowance field in deep stretch at Sunland Park, but was collared late by a ferocious late run from Mount Capitan.

Other than that, Cagney And Lace is unbeaten in five trips to post in 1991, including a powerful win in the Duke City Handicap at Albuquerque. His combination of speed and stamina certainly make him the horse to beat in Saturday's $12,500-added race.

DOWN THE STRETCH: Friday's Norgor Futurity trials feature the much-anticipated return of Capitalimprovement, who was a stunning 6-length winner in a maiden heat here May 19. The Virginia-bred son of Dixieland Band, from the stable of Bill Leach, could be any kind. He cleared the field in his debut with ridiculous ease, and was geared down several notches by jockey Glen Corbett down the stretch ... As luck would have it, another one of the more highly-regarded 2-year-olds on the grounds, Kirby Lonsdale, drew into the same division of the Norgor trials as Capitalimprovement. In his only start on April 21 at Sunland Park, Kirby Lonsdale drew away from a field that included some pretty fair juveniles.

This Kentucky-bred son of Strike Gold, from the stable of Brent Davidson, is also a runner ... After watching last Sunday's Kansas Derby, don't you get the feeling that Refrigerator is pretty much in a class by himself among the sophomore division.

Ruidoso Downs Race Track's betting on a great season

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Through Memorial Day weekend, the Ruidoso Downs Race Track recorded a 12.87 percent increase in handle from last year's $4,801,892 with an 11.58 percent increase in attendance.

Mark Doth, marketing director for the racetrack, reported that the track is doing well, but not as great as everyone thinks.

The track makes money in two ways, Doth explained — by the handle and attendance.

However, the handle is a figure of how much money is bet, not how much the track is making, said Doth. A lot of people see these figures and assume the track is making that much money.

Actually the only relation between handle and the track's profit is that as the amount of money spent increases there is a chance for more profits.

Since R.D. Hubbard took over the track from the Jockey Club in the fall of 1988, there has been a steady increase of handle each year, Doth said.

In 1988 the racetrack's handle was $3,197,785 from opening day through Memorial Day weekend. This year it was up to $5,413,857 for that same period.

The 1989 racing season has seen the biggest increase so far, Doth said, with a handling rate of $38,600,272 and an attendance of 349,633 people. Handle through Memorial Day weekend of that year was recorded as $3,710,881.

Even though the track made $87.69 per person capita, down from last year's $101.41, this seems to be the best year thus far, according to the records.

The per person capita is dependent on the education of the bettor, Doth said. The more informed and experienced the bettor, the higher the capita will be.

The racetrack makes a profit from a lump percentage off the top of the handle figure. There is an average of 80 percent return to winners, Doth said, and then two percent goes to state. The rest is split between the track and horsemen.

Another factor impacting the track's profits is the amount of in-track simulcast, wagering. This is when racing fans at other racetracks, such as Sunland Park, bet on Ruidoso races via satellite.

This is a fairly new process that started in 1989, and is increasing rapidly, said Doth. This is because of the convenience to the market living near that track, he said.

The host track still takes out 20 percent of the handle; however, it is split four ways among the two participating tracks and their horsemen.

With out-of-state simulcasting, the 20 percent is split 60-40 between the two tracks, Doth said.

We saw a lot of beginning bettors at the information desk during the Memorial Day weekend, said Doth.

"This is good for the sport all around," he said.

The stars come out for area Bluegrass Festival

Musicians are tuning up for the Springtime in the Rockies Bluegrass Festival, set for June 15 and 16, in Lincoln County.

Top entertainers in the field will be performing at the rural location for the event, a mile off the Bonito Lake road about two and a half miles before the Bonito Dam. The location will be well marked.

Performers will include the Osborne Brothers (of the Grand Old Opry), Alan Munde and Country Gazette, Reno Sparks plus special guests.

The special guests will include a soloist who will bring his banjo and guitar from New Orleans. He is Patrick Flory. The Capitan Gap, whose members belong to the Southeast New Mexico Bluegrass Association, will be on stage also.

Hours will be 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday, June 15. Sunday's hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Showtime will be 1 to 8 p.m., Saturday and 1 to 6 p.m., Sunday.

Sunday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., a camp meeting featuring gospel music will be featured.

The Bluegrass Festival is sponsored by the non-profit Rocky Mountain Music Enterprises. Jerry Perry of Ruidoso is publicity person.

To meet expenses, a two-day fee of $20 is charged. Saturday only will be $13, Sunday, $10.

Primitive camping will be allowed on site, but RV parks are nearby, Perry says. Bluegrass music enthusiasts are invited to bring lawn chairs or blankets. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Stars who perform at the Springtime in the Rockies Bluegrass Festival are well known on the Bluegrass circuit.

The Osborne Brothers will be headliners along with Alan Munde and Country Gazette of Levelland, Texas, and Reno Sparks.

Ever since they joined the Grand Old Opry in 1964, the Osborne Brothers have reigned as one of America's most popular bluegrass bands. Their best known song is "Rocky Top."

It is singing which has been the key to their popularity.

Reversing the usual format in country and bluegrass music in which the lead person is usually a guitar playing singer, the Osbornes are a rare group in being headed by players of instruments whose more usual role is accompaniment.

Even so, while both brothers happen to be brilliant and recognized instrumentalists, it is singing they do with flair.

The Osborne Band consists of Bobby Osborne, on mandolin and singing the high lead; Sonny Osborne on banjo and singing baritone; Jimmy Brock on bass and Paul Brewster on guitar.

The Silver Lining

Three cheers for the red, white and blue

Flag Day Ceremonies At Elks Lodge

Last week I met Chub Hall up town and he gave me the news that the Elks Lodge will present their annual Flag Day ceremonies Sunday, June 9, beginning at 1 p.m. Flag Day is on June 14. However Sunday the 9 was selected so that the whole family may attend.

The history of our flag will be traced along with some of the accomplishment under the red, white and blue; with the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, and the surrender of the British General Cornwallis to George Washington's army at Yorktown, Virginia, October 19, 1781.

Chub and his brother Tommy and other members of the Elks will speak to the gathering. A tribute to veterans of all wars will be given; and the public is cordially invited.

After the ceremony there will be an old style family picnic.

We Are Proud Of Our Graduates

Our hearts swell with pride at the fine group of young American ladies and gentlemen who were graduates this year from Ruidoso High School.

Many of them are children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of life long friends of mine. It is especially good to know that members of the Mescalero Indians are among this splendid group.

It seems only yesterday that Cody Willard, as a small child used to call me "Mister Thunder."

ago when they brought down an Indian drum Geraldine had repaired—and waited for me most of the day.

Geraldine was a devoted wife and mother, and a Christian lady; and take comfort in knowing she is happy in Heaven with Our Lord.

Mother Earth Welcomes June

This is being sent to you on June 3, and Mother Earth is rejoicing all through the Mountain land.

A verse from favorite American poet James Russell Lowell comes to mind.

"What is so rare as a day in June?
Then if ever come perfect days
And Heaven tries Earth if it be in tune
And over her softly her warm ear lays
Whether we look or whether we listen
We hear life murmur and see it glisten."

This is the month when Spring meets summer, the time of long days when all life begins to reach high tide. These moonlit nights lately cast the night-time world in a golden glow of enchantment, touching the white flowers with some of their magic light while the crickets sing and strum their serenades.

Today just after high noon the song of the meadow lark echoes across the mountain meadows. The leaves on the river trees are out in full size casting a tunnel of deep shade over the shining river running through.

Let us thank God for the beginning of glorious June.

Capitan

It's all about relaxation and fun

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
If you thought a band of RVs was taking over Capitan, you were right ... but the traveling band didn't mean any harm to the little town.

Good Sams of New Mexico presented its annual Spring Samboree at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds in Capitan during the Memorial weekend.

Raising money, playing games, attending seminars, socializing and playing more games was on the agenda for the 13th annual meeting.

Twenty-one of the New Mexico chapters and various others from Texas, Arizona, Colorado and California showed up with their families and dogs to spend four relaxing days in the cool mountain air that Capitan provides.

"There is even a couple traveling from South Carolina that joined us," said Art Dempsey, New Mexico state director of Good Sams, who is from Roswell.

According to the many different vacationers, Capitan is a nice place to get away from the news of the world, a place where someone can relax, but yet is close to a lot of action in Ruidoso and the Downs.

During the reunion, each chapter sold tickets for various art items. The goal was to raise money for programs that train dogs for the deaf. Last year for the program raised $20,000 for the program.

The fundraiser is just one of the projects that Good Sams does during the year, said Joyce Cordery of Mesilla Valley Sams in Las Cruces, who donated one of her handmade necklaces for a drawing.

Some of the events planned were a slide presentation of the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant by Dell Greenwood, a golf and skip-bo tournament, a woodcarving workshop, a seminar of the pros and cons of keeping firearms in your RV, and a dance.

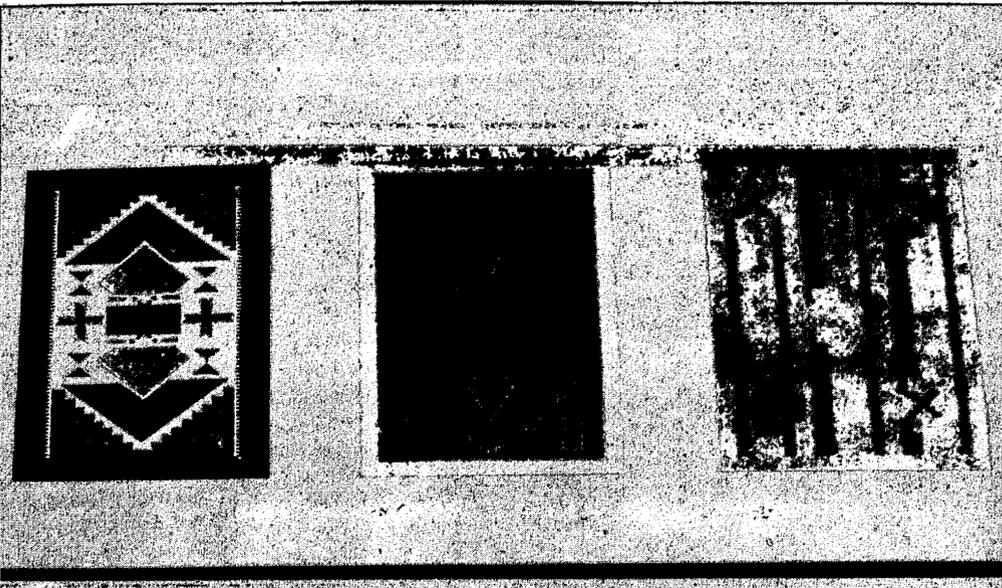

Good Sams is an international organization for recreational vehicles. Dempsey said there are more than 8,000 chapters in the world, including Canada and Europe.

The New Mexico Good Sams holds a samboree twice a year, once in Capitan and then at Red Rock State Park in Gallup during the fall.

Patterns

Rug-like designs decorate the upper wall of the Capitan school district library compliments of students in instructor Jerry Rice's art classes. Librarian Jacque Childress said Rice hopes to produce enough designs next year to completely encircle the library. They range from the traditional to abstract.

Only six-minutes til agreement

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
The little Village of Capitan will see an increase in their sales tax beginning in January of 1992.

The decision was approved during a special council meeting of the Capitan trustees last Thursday night. The six-minute meeting was held to "basically vote on items already agreed upon," said Mayor Frank Warth.

A reclamation by the State Legislature of one-eighth of one percent of the state gross receipts tax of villages resulted in less money for Capitan.

The trustees passed the one sixteenth of one percent sales tax to try to recoup some of the lost money. This gives the village $702 for the general fund, said clerk Jan Starnes.

The trustees also voted on the payment of dues to the South-eastern New Mexico Economic Development. The cost of membership is $250. Mayor Warth commented on the committee's election of "a very good new executive director, Tony Elias."

In other business, trustees clarified a mix-up with resident

Charles Mespelt about the date when the village could take control of the hazardous land located next to his property. Mespelt is concerned about a possible fire situation occurring and was steamed that nothing has been done about the land.

The land is owned by a woman in Florida. Mayor Warth explained to Mespelt that according to a letter written by the village attorney to the owner, Capitan couldn't do anything with the land until the next regularly scheduled meeting.

"The drop dead date is June 10," he said.

DERMATOLOGY
NOTES
 ACTINIC KERATOSIS is the term used for a roughening of the skin caused from years of sun damage. These "bumps" on the skin are more easily felt than seen since they are flesh colored. They occur more often on the arms and faces of red-headed, freckle faced, or otherwise fair skinned people. They are easily removed with an anti-cancer medication applied daily to the skin for two weeks or frozen off. Most of them will go away by themselves if you stay out of the sun or wear long sleeves for several months. Its not a bad idea to remove those that do stay after using lotion and avoiding the sun because skin cancers develop more commonly in areas of sun damaged skin than from normal appearing skin.

Our faith has been restored

Just when it seemed that the laws of the state, like this nation's Constitution were just a few words to be scoffed or ignored, our district attorney and his investigator came through and took a stand for compliance to the very letter of the law.

District Attorney Bert Atkins and investigator Leandro Vega restored our faith when they took a stand for strict compliance with the state Open Meetings Act. When the Ruidoso Village Council violated that act, it would have been an easy thing to ignore — no money changed hands, nobody was hurt, no felony crime was committed. But Atkins took the council's disregard for the law seriously enough to conduct an investigation, report to the attorney general and visit the Ruidoso Council.

The Open Meetings Act — the one that places the operations of our elected officials in the sunshine — stands with respect for the law and the public. Complying with that law calls for knowing those limited exceptions to open discussion and knowing how those limited exceptions are to be used (knowing the right words) while still balancing the public's right to know.

A letter to the village attorney from Daniel Yohalem, director of the AG's civil division, ended this way: "We will, of course, expect strict compliance with the Open Meetings Act in the future. Ensuring public access to public policy-making bodies is an important protection for our governmental processes."

We take the Open Meetings Act very seriously, and feel better knowing that the highest law enforcement officer in this district, the DA, also has high regard for that law.

On getting what you pay for

TO THE EDITOR:

At a recent council meeting, Councilor Junge lashed out at the gasoline distributors for raising their prices at the pump.

At the same meeting, he spearheaded a motion to increase the council's salary.

Perhaps like Mr. Junge, the gasoline distributors believed their services were worth more. At least with gasoline we can always run down to Alamogordo and get it cheaper, can't we, Mr. Junge?

On The Record

Make sure the word fits the meaning

You know you're on a diet when you wolf down two pieces of communion bread.

It happened to me Sunday, just a week into my "new way of eating." I looked down, and there in my hand were two tiny little squares of bread.

"It was an accident, Bud," I whispered as I stuffed the bread in my mouth.

"Sure," said Bud, scooting down in the pew to put a little distance between us. I don't think he believed me.

You see, Bud knows how hard it is to go on a diet. The very word brings out the worst in me. It's better not to say the dreaded "D" word. I say it, and next thing you know I'm counting calories and growling at anybody skinny who dares to speak to me.

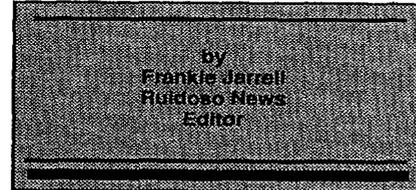

"Please, please, don't take two cups of communion grape juice," begged Bud, leaning over to whisper in my ear and looking a little anxious. (I didn't.) He really didn't need to worry, because grape juice isn't one of those diet "no-no's" like bread is.

Dieting — eating healthy, exercising and changing lifestyle patterns ... that's what it's all about, and the "D" word is just one of those roadblocks to progress. Call it behavior modification, call it starvation, call it exercising your will power, but whatever you call it, it's still a diet.

Words don't make much difference.

...kind of like breaking the law.

One of my favorite village councilors told me Saturday that the council didn't really violate the open meetings law, in spite of what the AG and DA told The Ruidoso News.

He didn't like my headline — which was so much like the headlines over AP stories in the El Paso Times and the Albuquerque Journal that he probably didn't like their headlines either.

"Councilor Andrews just used the wrong words," he said, adding that he and the council didn't "violate" anything.

"But that's what that law is all about," I replied. "Saying those right words that cite an exception to the law."

My councilor buddy didn't like the word "violate," preferring some less offensive way of explaining the goof ... like "just used the wrong words."

But, I like the way he thinks.

Like, if I was speeding down the highway, breezing along at 80 in a 55, I'd know just what to say if a State Police officer stopped me.

"I didn't break the law officer, I was just going the wrong speed — you see, I meant to go 55, but it looks like I had the wrong number — like about 80."

The same philosophy would work for a youngster caught with his hand in the cookie jar.

"Did you get a cookie?"

"No, mama, I didn't."

"Than what's that in your mouth?"

"Well, that's a cookie ... no, I didn't tell a fib, I just used the wrong word ... maybe when I said 'no' I meant 'yes.'"

That works for me, and it's given me a brand new lease on life in the diet lane.

For instance, at the Hubbard Art Award Saturday night — a sit-down dinner with salad, steak, baked potato, green beans, bread and butter and cheesecake. It was a D-Day, so I was thinking carefully about what I ate.

The bread — it looks like a carrot to me, I told myself. So, I put a little diet margarine on that carrot and ate it.

And so it went through that low-cal meal — with the right words nothing is fattening. As everybody else referred to the cheesecake we had for dessert, I was enjoying "yogurt" that looked and tasted like cheesecake.

Funny though, it seems like the weight's not dropping off too fast. But, if I just use some different numbers I won't be overweight at all.

It all depends on how you say it.

Political Commentary

We created a border with ourselves

Last summer, six desperate women chained themselves to industrial sewing machines at a place called "Diana's Fashions" in El Paso.

Despite repeated pleas, they had not been paid even the usual paltry wages for long hours of tedious labor. The protest got little attention. By one account, it was "business as usual" in the border sweatshops, where a recent Labor Department investigation found workers were owed more than $85,000 in back pay.

The women were part of an historic drama unfolding in our own backyard. It's a story of foreign policy and tides of international capital, of some prominent New Mexico political figures, of the suffering of neighbors, and, not least, of our own future — though we may not yet sense how much.

New Mexico shares, of course, one of the unique frontiers of the world, part of the 2000 miles that is the planet's longest border between rich and poor, a thin line bristling with helicopters, chain-link, and guard dogs, separating industrialized wealth and third world want.

On the other side, Mexico from 1940 to 1970 practiced a proud jealous nationalism in its economy, overlain by a one-party dictatorship that was half joke, half horror. By the 1970s, despite real growth and semi-modernization, industry was stagnant, agriculture in decline. There would be no more tragic symbol of the failed Mexican Revolution than the poisonous pollution and congestion of its desecrated capital, Mexico City.

Under pressure from foreign banks and indigenous big business, the Mexican Government turned to radical "liberalization" of the economy, privatizing public enterprises, and, most of all, imposing new austerity on an already struggling population.

by
Roger Morris
Ruidoso News
Syndicate

The results have delighted bankers and political contributors — deficits down, profits up. But for the vast majority of Mexicans, the price has been spreading, deepening poverty — public spending on education and health cut in half, a 40 percent increase in the concentration of wealth, a 60 percent fall in the buying power of real wages, half the workforce unemployed or underemployed. The United Nations now officially considers Mexico one of the most malnourished countries in the Americas, a "high risk" society on the brink of incalculable new economic and political turmoil.

The US already accounts for 63 percent of foreign investment in Mexico, and 70 percent of both its imports and exports. Now comes the vaunted Free Trade Agreement, with its "fast track" effectively by-passing Congress to open Mexico to further investment, all part of a decade long trend in the Reagan-Bush era toward a new transnational corporatism and global division of labor. Wealthy investors like Mexico provide the cheap labor. And everyone — well, not quite everyone — lives happily ever after.

The showcases of the new order will be the already flourishing maquiladoras, the ubiquitous border plants where they can process exports at 82 cents an hour (even cheaper than Singapore of Hong Kong), and where it's hardly noticed if women chain themselves to the sewing machines. The maquilas in fact, promise a whole new vista for New Mexico at our prospective border crossings at Santa Teresa and Sunland Park — discreet windowless factories, "fabriquillas", and workers' barracks on the Mexican side, graciously segregated from managerial homes and country clubs just across the boundary in the land of the free.

So what is New Mexico to make of all this? Our intrepid Congressional delegation is behind it with bipartisan boosterism.

Prominent state officials avidly promoted new border crossings while privately investing in the larger scheme. Only last week, GOP Senator Pete Domenici urged the Mexicans to speed the opening of frontier points, to get on with letting us take up the burden and bring the blessings of high-dividend civilization.

It is all enough to make the robber barons blush. Beyond the painful question of the loss of so many American jobs in this greedy run for the border, who will really benefit? The Mexican people? US consumers? Are they trading products — or misery?

Is it a new economics — or the old effluence of social-political exploitation? What about environmental standards evaded? Toxic waste no one polices? Hungry children or unpaid mothers that no one heeds?

Meanwhile, it is our New Mexico that is only short miles away, directly and inevitably in the path of the environmental, the economic, the political, and the human fallout.

In the end, it is, as it always was, a border with ourselves. How we treat our neighbors in Carlsbad or Chihuahua, Ruidoso or Juarez, Santa Fe or Santa Teresa, is a sure mark of the who we are as a people.

We are all chained to those sewing machines. We just don't feel it yet.

Singers celebrate their faith

An internationally known Christian music ministry from Visalia, California, will perform at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 13, at St. Eleanor's Catholic Church in Ruidoso.

Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers will present a two-hour concert of contemporary Christian music. According to a news release, the program is a beautiful blend of inspiring music, praise and worship, along with the preaching of the Word.

The 10 singers are backed up by a 12-piece orchestra as they present a selection of contemporary gospel songs, smooth choral arrangements, liturgical music, praise songs and worship choruses.

Various group members will share a word of personal testimony, and a short documentary film of the Celebrant Singers overseas ministry will be presented, continues the release.

In addition, Stemkoski or one of his associates will bring a special message and pray for the needs of the people.

Members of the group come from many different parts of the United States and Canada. They are chosen from hundreds of nationwide auditions.

"These talented and committed young adults have dedicated their lives to sharing the Gospel of Christ around the world," continues the release. They are not salaried, but rather are responsible for raising approximately one-third of their travel expenses. The remainder of the travel costs is raised by free-will offerings, record sales, and partners of the ministry.

Celebrant Singers founder and director, Jon Stemkoski, has conducted services in all 50 states, Canada, Iran, Latin America, Egypt, Hong Kong, India, Sri Lanka, and all parts of Europe—including Communist Eastern Europe.

He spent several years singing with and directing the Continental Singers, and served as administrator of Campus Musical Resources at Oral Roberts University prior to founding the Celebrant Singers.

While similar groups traditionally have had an exclusively Protestant audience, the Celebrant Singers is the first full-time contemporary Christian singing group to have a widespread ministry among America's 50 million Roman Catholics. Since 1977, they have provided special music with the liturgy, and given concerts in hundreds of Catholic parishes throughout the world.

Recently, Celebrant Singers were involved in an extensive four-month outreach throughout India, France, Italy, England, and Northern Ireland. They also ministered in Colombia, where they shared in services before some of the top military men of the country.

In 1984, while in Rome, the Celebrant Singers ministered in St. Peter's Square before an Easter-week crowd of over 120,000 people; Stemkoski and the Celebrants also had a private audience with Pope John Paul II.

Currently, they are on a "report" tour through North America. Traveling from 100-500 miles daily, they will present nightly services to nearly a quarter of a million people.

The Celebrant Singers have recorded five albums. Their most recent recording is entitled "Still Standing."

The public is invited to attend "Give Him Praise" with Jon Stemkoski and the Celebrant Singers at St. Eleanor's Catholic Community in Ruidoso.

The Plant Corner

New Crepe Myrtle can stand cold

DEAR SALLY:

I know yours is an indoor plant column, however, I also know, from reading your columns, you make exceptions. I would love to have some help about my old favorite plant, the Crepe Myrtle. Do you know if this plant would grow and bloom in containers? I know the Ruidoso climate is too cold to plant outside in beds but perhaps there is a way I don't know about.

My friends and I read your column before we read Ann Landers or our horoscopes, so you can see your advice ranks way up there.

Marilyn and Card Buddies

DEAR MARILYN:

True, the Crepe Myrtle is traditionally grown in the southern, warm climates. A new hardy Crepe Myrtle has been developed for colder climates. This new hardy plant just might survive our Ruidoso climate but, just to be safe, plant it in a container that can be easily moved inside from the deck or patio for the winter. Use a large 24-inch wide clay colored plastic pot, if you want a larger plastic pot, stop by Jerry Gilmer's El Mercado pottery shop on Sudderth Drive across from Ruidoso

State Bank. Jerry will be glad to order almost any size for you and you will have the opportunity to see the most unique collection of clay pottery in the Southwest.

Soil—Fast drainage is absolutely essential but also must retain moisture. Mix your own by using equal parts of regular potting soil, river sand and peat moss, to this add about one gallon of Vermiculite to hold in moisture and provide a means for oxygen to get to the roots. Now put plastic chunks about six inches deep in the bottom of the pot and add the soil mixture to a couple of inches below the pot rim to make for easy watering.

Water—Keep soil just barely moist all the time and give the plant a deep watering and leeching spring and fall to leech out the salts and other build-ups. With this soil mixture the soil will be moist for weeks in a cool inside temperature.

Light—Inside the plant must have about six hours of sun. On the patio or deck full sun can be used. Inside give your plant a south or west exposure with a Gro-bulb mounted on the ceiling directly above the plant. The Crepe Myrtle must have proper light to thrive and bloom. You can put a timer on your Gro-bulb for the winter and your plant will love the little extra warmth from the bulb.

Temperature—In the winter if the thermostat is set to keep the piper from freezing the plant will do fine, do not place the plant too close to glass to prevent heat scald.

Fertilizer—Mildew is a serious problem so watch for this and treat promptly using as directed on manufacturing package.

The Crepe Myrtle is a fantastic blooming plant with fluffy flowers looking like crepe paper. They bloom in mid-summer, make a nice tall plant and last for years if properly cared for. Prune in dormant season to increase flowering wood the next summer and to control the shape.

Two sisters compete for Miss Teen

Michelle Morris, 16, a junior at Ruidoso High School, and Danielle Morris, 15, her sister, a sophomore, will represent this area in a teen contest.

Michelle has been designated Miss Ruidoso and Danielle, Miss Lincoln County, and will compete June 9-11 in the Miss Teen New Mexico Contest in Las Cruces.

The girls are the daughters of Mike and Karen Morris of Ruidoso. Both young ladies say they have participated in other pageants like Cinderella and Kids of America.

Thirty-nine teens will be competing in the Las Cruces event. They will be judged in evening gowns, swim suits and on the results of interviews.

The girls will gather at the Hilton Hotel on Sunday, June 9, and will have a run-through Monday night with the pageant following on Tuesday at 7 p.m. Helen Kovak, who stages the Miss New Mexico contest at the Inn of the Mountain Gods every year, also is directing the Miss Teen of New Mexico contest.

Thompson takes "little pots" to Dallas artfest

Ruidoso artisan Dale Thompson introduced Dallas-Fort Worth to his unique pots during the 21st annual Artfest in Dallas, Texas, last month.

More than 60 visitors to his

"Tma Little Pot" booth purchased the one-of-a-kind miniature laminated wooden bowls. Thousands more "oohed" and "aaahed" over the dainty little bowls, that were unlike anything else at the big art festival.

Thompson was among only 300 artists and craftpersons selected from the more than 1,100 who applied to the 21st Artfest.

"Tma Little Pot" caused an immediate and unanimous vote of acceptance to the show, according to one of the jurors. The uniqueness of size and design captured the attention of everyone.

"The Artfest '91 was my debut, I guess," said Thompson who crafts the tiny bowls in his home workshop as a hobby. He is assistant manager of the Furr's Supermarket on Mechem Drive.

"It was more successful than I had dreamed it could be," he continued. "I know 'Tma Little Pot' is unique and different but I couldn't imagine so many people wanting them."

Thompson said he enjoys designing and creating each pot — layering them with various types and tones of woods, bones, and even sterling silver.

"I don't think I would have done an art show without friends supporting me," said Thompson, grateful for that help and support.

Because of the sales and exposure at the Artfest '91, Thompson has been approached by the Dallas Museum of Art regarding a little pot exhibition in spring 1992. Negotiations are pending.

Ruidoso artisan Dale Thompson is pictured in his booth at the 21st annual Artfest in Dallas, Texas, where he exhibited his unique miniature pots.

How does Rest-A-Matic do all this for you?

When made up, your Rest-A-Matic bed looks like any other elegant conventional bed. It can be used with your present headboards and comes in the usual sizes: Twin, Full-Size, Queen and King, Dual Queen and Dual King (two twin beds that accommodate king-size bedspreads).

"My circulation problem has improved greatly. I am now walking better and without a cane. I give Rest-A-Matic the credit for helping me"
Mrs. M.M. of Bastrop, LA

Let's talk about health... Are you not sleeping? Do you wake up in the morning feeling as though you had not slept at all? Do you suffer from back aches, swelling in your leg? Do you have a hernia?

"The beds are wonderful. In fact, so wonderful we ordered two more Rest-A-Matic beds within the week."
Mr. and Mrs. C.H. from Yucca Valley, CA

Since 1979, Rest-A-Matic has been the choice of thousands of people who have similar problems. Here are just a few of the comments from people who have experienced Rest-A-Matic (the actual letters are on file)

"As an Orthopaedic Surgeon it would be beneficial to anyone with an abnormality of the spine and certainly anyone with lower back pain. I highly recommend Rest-A-Matic beds even for the most healthy people in the world."
Dr. J.H. from Little Rock, AK

Don't wait to enjoy this great convenience in your own home!

"For many years my legs have burned and hurt because of poor circulation. After less than three months on my Rest-A-Matic bed my legs do not burn or hurt. I do not have the words to express how grateful I am."
Mrs. A. S. from Florence, SC

A miracle answer for the bed-ridden
Rest-A-Matic can automatically be controlled by the patient to change position to relieve the monotony, aches, muscle tension and stresses from remaining in one position too long. In addition, by adjusting the bed to "active" positions the patient can keep up with normal or engaged in other activities such as reading, watching TV, or resting with virtually no assistance from others.

"About three months ago my husband and I bought one of your beds. After just two or three nights on the Rest-A-Matic, I started getting relief from the backaches. I go to sleep more quickly at night now."
Mrs. M.G. from Odessa, TX

Dual "Digi-Matic Massage"
What could be more soothing than a massage? The automatic heating massage - one that you can enjoy in your bed. The optional Dual Digi-Matic feature now offers you a dual massage - alternating massage, emulating the hand massage of a masseuse, but with the ability to heat the massage to the area of your body where you need it most. Rest-A-Matic.

"I have had severe arthritis... the massage is most effective... in seconds I can note the relief in my breathing. I can highly recommend the Rest-A-Matic."
B.D. from Magnolia, AK

"Comfort Control Center"

With the touch of a button control every action of your Rest-A-Matic!

Thermo-Matic Heat
Another feature of the Thermo-Matic "Warmth Control" is the ability to heat the mattress, broom, your body. The comforting heat is then retained by the lightest of blankets above.

Since the Rest-A-Matic® adapts to literally hundreds of restful positions, you can actually distribute body weight more evenly to help relieve muscle tension, back fatigue, and tired legs. Comfort is yours to command whether you just want to relax or adjust to a position for increased circulatory action.

Inside the Rest-A-Matic® frame and mattress is where the engineering magic has been concealed. Simply plug the cord into a regular electrical outlet and the Rest-A-Matic®, with its silent electric motors and scientifically structured framework, is ready to do your bidding at the touch of a button.

The Rest-A-Matic® Adjustable Bed provides the ultimate in comfort and relaxation in your home, where you can enjoy extra leisure hours the most.
