Regional ad group maps out colorful campaign

Members of the newly organized Regional Advertising Board (RAB) agreed at a meeting, Wednesday morning, to retain Mithoff Advertising, Inc., of El Paso, Texas, to do production work on a multi-color three-page advertising spread.

The agency's bid of $4,390 was accepted. The advertising is slated to go into the Vacation Guide of New Mexico Magazine and in a Sun Country publication.

The board was authorized by the Ruidoso Lodgers Tax Board to negotiate a deal because of impending advertising deadlines.

The Vacation Guide has 750,000 circulation; Sun Country has a circulation of 50,000.

Previously various entities in Ruidoso had small advertisements scattered throughout the magazine publication.

The LTB and the Ruidoso Hospitality Association agreed that a three-page spread would be much more effective.

One page will be paid for strictly by participating lodgers in the village. Lodgers tax funds per se, thus, will pay for only two-thirds of the production costs and placement costs of the ads.

Only participating lodgers will be mentioned in the advertisements.

The Vacation Guide is the advertising piece mailed out when inquiries come into the New Mexico Tourism Department.

The three-page spread will contain numerous full color photographs.

Color separations make up a hefty part of production costs.

The RAB is made up of LTB members, Chamber of Commerce representatives Joan Bailey and Jerry Watts. Members from the county and possibly the Mescalero Apache tribe are expected to be named soon.

Bids on production of the ads were received from Mithoff, Phil Price Agency of Lubbock, Texas, and the Entrop Agency of Roswell.

Snappy Mithoff-suggested headlines and captions caught the eyes of the RAB.

Mithoff had a number of suggested layouts for viewing by RAB members. Selections were made at the Wednesday meeting.

The layouts and color separations, RAB members pointed out, can be used in future advertising, thus reducing costs.

Lodgers tax funds are earmarked by state law for specific purposes, primarily advertising.

Museum view

Architects and designers are at work on plans for the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse in the old Chaparral Convention Center in Ruidoso Downs. Pictured is the proposed elevation of the building designed by The Williams Company, architects, of Austin, Texas, under the direction of Gary Miller, Hubbard Museum curator and director. The split level building, set for construction in 1992, will contain more than 50,000 square feet. Miller and the architects are working on a master plan for the museum that will house the Anne C. Stradling collection of the Hubbard Museum.

Flood danger high in August

Be careful of arroyos which could prove dangerous to your life and limb.

Mountainous areas are particularly prone to flash flooding because of steep canyons and fast runoff after heavy rains like occurred in some areas Wednesday afternoon.

Mary Seelbach, of Village Hall, who is public information person for the Ruidoso Department of Civil Preparedness, said several areas are subject to flash flooding.

"Don't let the sun fool you! Even though it may not be raining where you are, there are several areas subject to flooding. The month of August is historically a heavy rainfall month for this area.

This is a reminder from the Department of Civil Preparedness of some precautions and preparations to take should a flash flood watch or warning occur be broadcast.

The following advice is given by DCP.

When a flash flood watch is issued for the area, listen to area radio and television stations for possible reports of flooding. Be prepared to move out of danger's way at a moment's notice. If you are on a road, watch for flooding at highway dips, bridges and low areas. And watch for signs (thunder and lightning) of distant heavy rainfall.

"When a flash flood warning is issued act quickly to save yourself and those who depend on you. Do not attempt to cross a flowing stream on foot where water is above your knees. If you are driving, don't try to ford dips of unknown depth.

"If your vehicle stalls, abandon it immediately and seek higher ground; be especially cautious at night when it is harder to recognize flood dangers.

"When you are out of immediate danger, tune in radio or television stations for additional information as conditions change and new reports are received."

Just over two years ago, a Ruidoso man lost his life when his vehicle was washed off the highway at the intersection of Paradise Canyon and Hull Road during a flash flood.

The tragedy occurred at night when visibility was minimal.

Get in step for the 1991 All American Festival

As the last days of summer are arriving, Ruidoso will begin to party as the All American Festival fills the village with month-long activities.

The festivities start this weekend with the 93rd annual George and Ruth Cooper Square and Round Dance and will be topped off with the nation's fastest two-year olds sprinting 440 yards down the Ruidoso Downs Racetrack in the All American Futurity on Monday, September 2.

Also during the month will be an Eastern New Mexico musical presentation, "I Do, I Do," a youth art show, "New Mexico Mountains," photography contest, a 5 and 10K fun run, hot air balloon rides and many more activities.

The action gets kicked off this Friday and Saturday, August 9 and 10, as square dancers Melton Luttrell and Dick Parrish join rounders Carl and Jo

Barnes at the Museum of the Horse at the Ruidoso Downs Racetrack.

This is an event that's fun for everyone — whether a spectator or a participant.

The evening Round Dance begins at 7:30 p.m. Friday, while the Square Dancing begins at 8 p.m. Tickets for this event are $12 a couple.

On Saturday, a free fun dance of area and guest callers will begin at 9 a.m. with a Round Dancing workshop at 1 p.m. and a Square Dancing workshop at 2:30 p.m. Both workshops are $8 a couple.

Then, Saturday night is for everyone to show off their skills as the evening dances repeat Friday night activities. Only this time there will be an after party beginning at 10:45.

The Museum of the Horse opens at 6 p.m. both nights.

School bells toll for the end of summer

by SHERI CANTWELL

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Don't look now, but it's that time again.

Teachers, books, and dreaded homework will fill the days of local schoolchildren once again as the 1991-92 school year begins in about two weeks.

Besides the beginning kindergarten students at Nob Hill, this year the only lucky ones are the second and third graders at White Mountain Elementary whose starting day has been set back to Monday, August 26, according to Principal Frank Cannella.

The principal has high hopes that the school, which has been renovated this summer, will be ready by then.

The later school date, five days later than the other schools, is because of the renovation finishing process, said Cannella.

Students attending all the other Ruidoso schools will have to get back into the groove of waking up early and hitting the books again on Wednesday, August 21.

Although there is some time left to soak in Ruidoso's rain before the school bell's will be ringing, registration begins immediately.

Kindergarten students can register for their first year of school from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, August 21. Any first graders new to the Ruidoso area can drop by the school's office anytime between now and the first day to register.

School officials ask that parents have their children's immunization and birth records on hand for the process.

A kindergarten orientation will be held for the afternoon class at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, August 22, and 9 a.m. Friday, August 23, for the morning classes.

Also, this year Nob Hill is providing an orientation for their first graders for the first time.

A morning orientation for those students whose last names start with the letters A - M will be at 9 a.m. August 22. For students with last names N - Z, another orientation will be provided at 1 p.m. in the afternoon.

The new orientations are provided to help make the first day of school go a little smoother. All parents are asked to come to the orientation with their children, said officials.

Another importance of the orientation is the development of the teacher and parent relationship.

They will last only an hour to an hour and a half and those parents who absolutely cannot attend their scheduled orientation can go to the other one, she said.

The first full day of classes for the kindergarten classes will be Monday, August 26, while the first graders will report for the official first day on Thursday, August 22.

White Mountain Elementary will hold registration for new second and third grade students from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Friday between August 13-16.

Shot records and birth certificates are required, however officials ask for a report card from last school year if possible.

Only those students new to the Ruidoso area will have to register with the school. If students attended Nob Hill Elementary they do not need to go through the process.

The intermediate school has scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 12-14, for any new fourth and fifth graders to register.

The first day of classes for that school is Wednesday, August 21, at 8:05 a.m.

The Ruidoso Middle School's registration will also be next Tuesday and Wednesday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school's office. On Wednesday, August 21, students are to report to the gym at 8 a.m.

At that time, the seventh and eighth graders will be given their first period teachers while the eighth graders will remain in the gym so that their teachers can find them.

Prospective students at the Ruidoso High School will have separate times to register, check or revise their fall schedules.

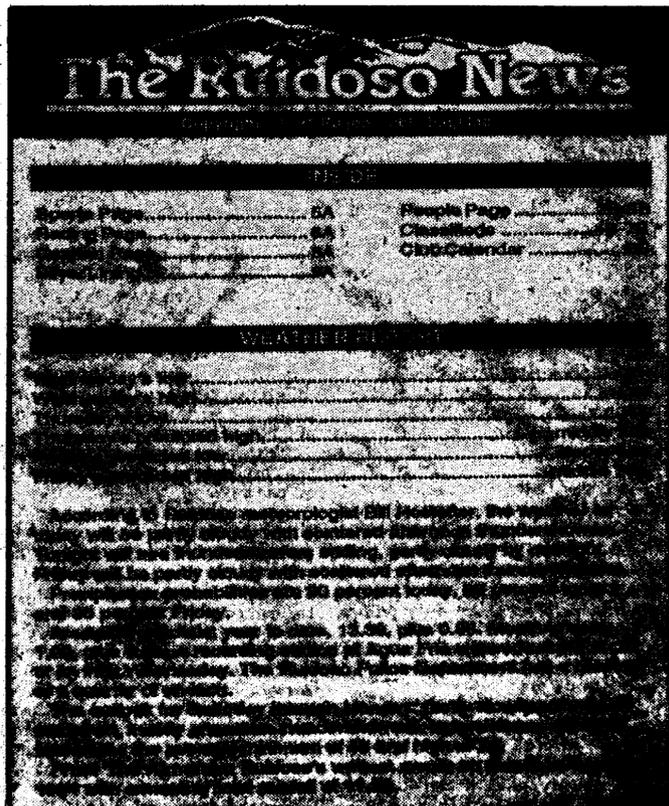

On Monday, August 12, all seniors are asked to report to the school between 9 a.m. and noon and then again 1 - 3 p.m.

Juniors are able to check their schedules during the same time, but on Tuesday, August 13; sophomore registration will be on Wednesday, August 14, and incoming freshmen are scheduled for Thursday, August 15th.

The date for freshmen to come and register is especially important because of the many that did not individually register in the spring, said counselor Jean Forister.

School officials ask that students and parents please adhere to these dates to ensure the best possible attention to individual situations.

At 7:45 a.m. Tuesday, August 20, all teachers in the district will report to the Ruidoso High School gymnasium for an orientation. They will then return to their individual classes to prepare for the next day.

Heads Aspen weekend

Judy Wicker is briefed on Aspen Weekend events by Jerry Watts, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce executive director. Wicker agreed to chair weekend activities, October 4, 5, after Skip Beal resigned. Wicker's husband, Brice, has Brice Creative Hair Design. She works for Ronnie Hemphill.

Food Bank is asking for help

Lincoln County Food Bank is appealing for contributions of food-stuffs to keep the larder stocked to assist needy individuals and families within the county.

Summer visitors who close their Ruidoso homes for the winter often bring canned goods and unopened packages of food to the Food Bank for distribution to persons in need.

The Food Bank is located at the First Presbyterian Church which is on Sutton Drive and up the hill across from McDonald's in the Nob Hill area. Hours are Monday, Wednesday and Friday from noon to 4 p.m.

Also food canisters will be placed at area post offices from August 19 to September 9.

Any donations of money allow the Food Bank board to purchase what is needed most to fill out food baskets.

Information is available by calling 257-7253 or 257-2220.

Skeen visits the home folks

Congressman Joe Skeen will be in his home state during the congressional district work period.

Skeen will be in Ruidoso on Wednesday, August 21, and will speed to the Noon Lions Club at 11:30 a.m. at Cree Meadows Country Club. He'll meet with Ruidoso village and Lincoln County officials at 2 p.m. at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center.

Congressman Skeen will be in Las Cruces today; T or C, Friday; and in Roswell, Monday and Tuesday, August 12-13.

For information on Skeen's New Mexico schedule, call his Washington D.C. office, (202) 225-6989.

Truant trustees stall Downs special meeting business

Ruidoso Downs trustees had called a special meeting for Monday evening to consider two items, but only three trustees showed for the meeting. There was no quorum present.

On the agenda for last Monday were adoption of a 1990-Budget Clean-Up Resolution and selection of a project for a 1991-92 Community Development Block Grant application.

Absent from the meeting were trustees Alice Allison, who said she was sick; Jackie Branum, on vacation, and Ray Fredrickson who gave no reason when he said he couldn't be present.

Trustee Jim Rehmel recently resigned and moved to Portales, leaving a vacancy.

The two items which would have been considered will be on the regular agenda at a scheduled meeting of trustees, Monday, August 12, at 7 p.m. at Village Hall.

Solid Waste Authority meets

Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority will meet at 9 a.m. Monday, August 12, at the LCSWA Recycling Center at the corner of Second Street and Entrance Road in Ruidoso Downs.

Items on the agenda include report from the county on the decrease in the environmental gross receipts tax, election of treasurer, bonding report, discussion on transfer date for operations, report on the Alamogordo/Otero County meeting and consideration of a compost proposal.

Meetings are open to the public.

Meeting called for substitutes

Ruidoso Schools invite anyone interested in substituting in the school system to attend at meeting at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, August 15, in the public meeting room at Ruidoso High School.

Those who attend are asked to take with them their Social Security card and driver's license.

Bingaman joins Skeen in opposing grazing fee hike

Senator Jeff Bingaman (D-NM) has joined other senators in opposing a grazing fee increase on public lands. It is the second year such an increase has been proposed.

"It is ludicrous to believe New Mexico ranchers can afford a fee increase of this magnitude," Bingaman said. "It could mean economic ruin for hundreds of families."

The House of Representatives has included a provision in its Interior Appropriations. Fourteen Western senators said such a fee hike "would further threaten the economic stability of already depressed rural communities."

The Senate is now crafting its own version of the Interior Appropriations bill. Senators are asking Byrd to reject the House proposal and keep the existing fee formula intact. The Senate will likely take action on the issue in late July.

Representative Joe Skeen issued a release last week adamantly opposing the grazing fee increase.

P&Z approves parking variance for a new restaurant in Midtown

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

A California woman who purchased a mountain cabin in Ruidoso's commercial district asked Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission to halt a restaurant development in the Four Seasons Mall.

During a regular P&Z meeting Monday, commissioners approved an amended commercial site development plan for the Four Seasons Mall, four replats, and a vacation of right of way, and heard a report from planning administrator Cleatus Richards.

The Four Seasons request involved parking for a restaurant the new owners plan to develop in the lower level of the mall that is located in Midtown. The Mall's lower level has had a very low occupancy in the past, thus the parking lot has not been heavily used.

But the new owners intend to open a restaurant with a seating capacity of 90. According to the village ordinances, that would require 96 parking spaces, and the mall currently has only 70.

The restaurant plan is allowed in that commercial zone, but owners were before the commission asking for a variance on the amount of parking since parking spaces are so limited throughout Midtown.

"We have an ongoing problem with parking in Midtown unless we build high rises," noted P&Z Commissioner Tim Hoyt. It was noted later in the meeting that the commission has been flexible on parking requirements in the Midtown area.

But Wanda Crowther, whose cabin at 120 El Paso Street about the parking lot, complained about the increased use that will go along with a restaurant's later hours.

The owners plan to keep the mall's retail area open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily with the restaurant to be open from 6 a.m. to midnight. Owners expect the restaurant's primary usage to be from 6 p.m. to midnight.

Village staff recommended approval, and after lengthy discussion the commission voted unanimously in favor of granting the variance to parking space requirements. If the usage increases, then the commission will ask owners to provide more parking.

"I'm the owner most affected — the parking lot is my front yard," said Crowther. She said daytime use is bad enough, but the extension to midnight will increase traffic and noise level.

Crowther, who said she bought her cabin a year and a half ago, said that in California such problems were lessened by buffer zones. Hoyt reminded her that she purchased property in a commercial zone, that the parking lot was there when she moved in and added that residences in a commercial zone are only conditional uses, while restaurants are a permitted use.

Crowther went on to line out a scenario where the restaurant catches on and is at maximum usage. In that case the parking lot will be filled all evening and every time a car arrives and leaves the occupants will slam car doors, talk and start their engines.

"I would have that in my bedroom," said Crowther, adding that she goes to bed at 8 p.m.

She said if 180 car doors are slammed every hour for six hours, that would be 1,080 car doors slamming right outside her home every night.

"It would require earplugs to live in my own house," said Crowther. She added that the business is not there for a restaurant, anyway.

"I am told by people who know that the skiers don't have that kind of money.... If I put an ad in the paper would you buy that house?" asked Crowther after reading who an ad might read for her house facing that busy parking lot.

"You have moved in next to a commercial zone," repeated Hoyt, and Richards reminded the commission and Crowther that her property is zoned commercial as well.

Commissioner Jeff Maul suggested a fence, but Crowther replied that a fence is not noise proof.

P&Z Commissioner Eddie Nichols added that the owners are not asking for additional spaces or a new use, but to continue the use they already have for the mall building.

Crowther said, "You said when I bought my property the use was there... it's vacant at 6 p.m. ... but now if the restaurant catches on, they'll apply for a liquor license, then they'll want a band...."

"If you didn't want to be next to a parking lot, you should have bought in a residential area," said Hoyt.

Rodney Gomez, who lives across the street from Four Seasons Mall, complained that he wasn't notified of the case that was being considered by P&Z. Gomez, who has lived in his house for many years, added that the mall property wasn't zoned commercial when he bought his property.

Gomez worried over cutting trees on the lot, and commissioners asked the owners to leave the big trees since that won't cut down on parking.

Gomez also noted that Win, Place and Show customers use the mall parking lot at night.

"I'd rather have the restaurant than Win, Place and Show if I had my choice," said Gomez. He also was concerned over the placement of dumpsters in the lot.

After listening to the lengthy complaints, the commission set the stage for the development. Craig Rawlings and his partners of CBJ Development are the new owners of Four Seasons Mall.

Also Monday, P&Z approved a replat between Ruidoso School Tract and White Mountain Development Company that will provide more space for the performing arts center in the Sierra Blanca Resort project.

School Superintendent Mike Gladden and School Board member Rod Adamson were on hand for the meeting, but Richards explained what appeared to be a routine adjustment that puts land together for the performing arts center.

Tim Collins of D.T. Collins Associates said there are not problems with easements, the utility companies having signed off on the replat.

Richards said some portion of the land qualifies as wetlands, but the developer will have to deal with that.

Commissioners also approved a replat in the Cree Meadows Heights Subdivision even though staff recommended the replat be rejected because the area in question doesn't meet village subdivision requirements.

Richards said the lot is served by a two-inch water line, which is inadequate for further development. He also said fire hydrants are spaced 1,000 feet apart.

P&Z members noted that the replat will now have to go before Ruidoso Village Council for final approval.

Commissioners then debated at length, asked for a legal opinion and then approved a vacation of right of way on lots 1, 2 and 3, Block G in the Ruidoso Springs Subdivision. Staff recommended the request be tabled until August 19, to allow further investigation, but commissioners said it has to go before the council anyway, and approved the request.

Staff made several recommendations, including one that the property owners join with the village to contact owners and correct the extensive property line problems in the area.

"What staff is recommending is impossible, would cost a fortune and would take five years to do," said Collins, representing property owner J.B. Stinnett Jr. "This has been known to exist since at least 1967," added Collins and P&Z members agreed.

Questions over vacating rights of way and filing plats were reviewed by the village attorney during a break, and the commission then put its stamp of approval on the request and sent it on to Village Council.

Richards then reported to the commission on efforts to establish a dialogue with the FDIC, a sign permit appeal and a hearing on Randy Mullican's rezoning hearing.

On the sign permit appeal, Hoyt said, "I've already read that in the paper; what do you have to say?"

"Nothing further to add," said Richards.

Firefighters take on big job in Kuwait

by AL STUBBS

Ruidoso News Business Editor

If Uncle Sam would let them, oil well service people in Kuwait would "take care" of Saddam Hussein.

This is the opinion of Joe Bowden, currently of Ruidoso, whose company, Wild Well Control, Inc., does 60 percent of the oil and gas well control worldwide.

Bowden's teams are currently in Kuwait where his company has put out fires in 80 oil wells so far.

"It's like Biblical times what he (Hussein) has done to that country," Bowden said during an interview.

"Ruidoso is like home to us," Bowden says of he and his wife, Mary.

"Some of our closest friends live here," he says. He and his family have a place at Alto and have for 12 years.

"We've been coming up here for 20 years," the well firefighter says. Bowden and two other company people are the men who place the explosives at wellheads to extinguish well fires.

The Bowdens try to spend July and August in Ruidoso each year.

"I've been called out twice since we arrived July 3," he said. One trip was to Laredo, Texas; the other was a Marathon Oil Co. well blowout near Carlsbad.

"The beeper on his belt, worn even on the golf course, keeps Bowden informed about company activities when he is vacationing.

Wild Well Control, Inc., normally keeps 20 employees; however, since the Kuwait well fire fighting development, the company now has 36 active people in this field.

Two of the Bowdens' sons, Joe J. and Sam, are working in Kuwait where currently temperatures hit 130 degrees and 40 to 50 mile-per-hour winds "sandpaper your face" all the time.

"Kuwait people have done everything they possibly can to keep us comfortable. And the support of the American people has been tremendous," Bowden says.

Kuwait is paying about $100 million per day for wild well control. Average cost of extinguishing a well fire including use of lots of heavy equipment runs about $750,000, Bowden told The News.

"We have all the equipment we need. Bulldozers and trucks and heat shields are major pieces of equipment plus heavy duty pumps and explosives.

Bowden, Bill East and Ray McManus all handle explosives at well sites.

The company owner says any reports that well servicing companies aren't getting paid by Kuwait is hogwash.

"They are paid if they have a contract," Bowden says.

No equipment has been lost and there have been no serious injuries to Wild Well Control, Inc., people, he says.

Two other companies have had minor injuries with some equipment loss to fire, he said. Other American companies working in the area are Boots N' Coots and Red Adair.

Bowden's company in September will be moving into northern Kuwait oil fields where the weather is cooler. Rainfall usually occurs in January and February.

Seeing 800 oil wells shooting up flames is a devastating sight, Bowden says. He says the companies fighting fires there are fiercely competitive when in the states, but over there we all know each other and we help each other," he said.

Some 19 Wild Well company employees are kept in Kuwait at all times. Rested workers take over every 28 days.

"They get up at 3 a.m. and work to about 3 p.m. and are in bed by 7:30 p.m.," Bowden says.

Sea water is piped to well sites 12 or more miles from the gulf. Pumps shoot 4,000 gallons per minute on well fires. It takes two or three days on the average to level a site, determine strategy and extinguish a well fire plus capping the well, Bowden says.

Either water or explosives are used to do the job. He said the attack on a well has to be individually planned because each presents a different challenge. Factors are location, the burn pattern, volume of oil produced and wind direction.

Teams have been battling wells that produce up to 40,000 barrels of oil per day.

In northern Kuwait, near the Iraq border the company will have exclusive fire fighting rights and will tackle wells that produce 110,000 barrels per day. He thinks the company will be active there for nine months. The estimate is 18 months to get all well fires put out.

Bowden himself will return to Kuwait in September. Contrast between Ruidoso and Kuwait temperatures is tremendous. He'd like to store up some of Ruidoso's cool weather.

Any golf courses over there are bound to have sand greens.

Jim Bowden, wild well firefighter, is a golf addict and plays extensively when in Ruidoso a couple of months out of the year. He is shown at Cree Meadows Golf Course when competing in the Shorty Hornbuckle Match Play event which will conclude today.

Hondo Schools start with some new faces this year

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Hondo Schools will be beginning the new school year with a new superintendent and two new board members.

Superintendent Sergio Castañon joined the Hondo Schools July 1. School Board President Ken Pendergrass resigned during the board's July meeting, and member Thurman Sanchez resigned at the next meeting, a couple of weeks later.

Pendergrass resigned so his son could be hired as a coach, and Sanchez resigned to join the school faculty.

Acting President Modesto Chavez is expected to name two new members at Tuesday's meeting.

Pendergrass's son Dan Pendergrass, had applied for a job as boys basketball coach, and so the president resigned before his son's contract was considered.

"His son ... was the best qualified for the position," said board member Victoria Sanchez.

At the next meeting, a special meeting, member Thurman Sanchez resigned to join the school staff as vocational-technical teacher.

Thurman Sanchez, who has been a teacher in the Ruidoso Schools for many years, resigned from the board before his application was considered, leaving only three board members.

"He's an excellent teacher for the position," said Victoria Sanchez.

Some members of the public were concerned over the way that meeting was conducted, since Sanchez's contract was approved by the three members on one "yes" vote and two absentions.

Acting president Chavez made the motion that Sanchez be hired on the superintendent's recommendation, member Victoria Sanchez seconded, and then she and member Alberta Sena abstained from the vote.

Superintendent Sergio Castañon said it was a legal motion, made seconded and passed.

"I don't know how you can second a motion and then not vote for it," said Pendergrass, who was present for the meeting, but didn't hear the second.

"We called the State Board and our vote was perfectly legal," said Victoria Sanchez. She went on to say she and the other board members welcome help and advice from Pendergrass, since he had been the most experienced board member.

Pendergrass was first elected in 1983, and served more than eight years before he resigned. He said he attended the School Board member's institute in Santa Fe, and at that meeting he learned that a second isn't always necessary.

Pendergrass said when he was president most members were more comfortable with the old format of a motion, second and vote.

"Always before, we had occasion while I was president, that someone made a motion and there was not second, so the motion died for lack of a second. I never heard a second."

"I have nothing against Thurman, the problem was with the voting. From what I've heard, he'll be a good teacher," said Pendergrass.

"I just have a problem with the voting, but if the State Department of Education says it's legal, so be it," he added.

Chavez, who is attending fire school in Socorro and couldn't be reached for comment, had been a board member for one term before he was appointed a year or so ago and was re-elected in 1991.

Alberta Sena refused to comment, preferring that the information come from a staff member instead of an elected official.

The Hondo School Board meets at 7 p.m. the second Tuesday of each month in the school library. Mrs. Sanchez said meetings are always open to the public, and regular and special meeting dates are posted in the post offices in the area as well as two or three businesses.

School opens in Hondo on August 16, with teachers reporting for duty.

Hondo initiated a four-day school week last year that was so successful that it will be continued, but this year students will attend Monday through Thursday instead of Tuesday through Friday.

"We hope this will be a positive for the kids," said Castañon, noting that a survey indicates four-day week schools take Monday off to save utilities, but take Friday to improve academics.

"I believe we need to be in school on Monday, get the week started right," said Castañon.

Hondo Schools recently received the needs assessment report from Cooperative Educational Services (CES) in Albuquerque.

The report is the result of a study that CES made under a contract with Hondo Valley Schools that began with an April meeting the acting superintendent Tom Hansen. CES went on to conduct a public meeting and make on-site studies of the school.

The highest priority established in the report was to separate junior and senior high students into two separate buildings.

Other needs rating high in the study were for more vocational courses in the high school; more computers, software and teachers; and improving students' attitudes toward school and academics.

School administrators, school board members, teachers, parents and members of the public were involved in the public comment meeting where much of the information was gathered.

Employee of the month

Mayor Victor Alonso presents Parks and Recreation Department worker Rafael "Rifle" Salas with the Village of Ruidoso Employee of the Month award during last week's Village Council meeting. Salas is joined at the podium to accept his recognition by his three daughters.

Camp Sierra Blanca inmate AWOL

A man on work release from Camp Sierra Blanca minimum security prison near Fort Stanton apparently walked away Wednesday afternoon.

According to information provided by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office, Richard Mann didn't report to the bus to return to Camp Sierra Blanca after work.

He was assigned to work for a Ruidoso music company.

"We were made aware of it about 6 p.m.," said Sheriff James McSwane. He said when a prisoner walks away or escapes from Camp Sierra Blanca, it is handled through the State Police.

Mann was still missing as of Thursday morning. He is described as a 44-year-old Indian male, 6'3", 210 pounds, with brown eyes and black hair.

According to official reports, Mann wears suspenders and was last seen wearing blue jeans, a black shirt, black cap and black-rimmed glasses.

He's presently serving time for aggravated battery, and reportedly has five months left on his sentence.

McSwane said reports indicate that Mann was last seen, possibly getting into a gray pickup with camper in the Ruidoso area.

Anyone who sees Mann is asked to call local authorities or the sheriff's office.

"Call first" Recycling center may be open at the Lincoln County Solid Waste office

Lincoln County residents are being advised to call the Recycling Center in Ruidoso "Downs" before taking aluminum, glass and paper to the center. The number is 378-4697.

The center was scheduled to be open three days a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. after August 1.

Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) manager Gene Green was out of town today and was unavailable for comment.

The person who has been tentatively hired as coordinator, Kerry Krumsiek of Alto, said the center is open the stated hours.

He said that hopefully, the center will get into full operation next week.

Krumsiek is expected to be officially named coordinator of the recycling center at a meeting of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, Monday, at the center.

The recycling center is located at the corner of Second Street and Entrance Road (one block west and one block south of the old Ruidoso Downs Village Hall).

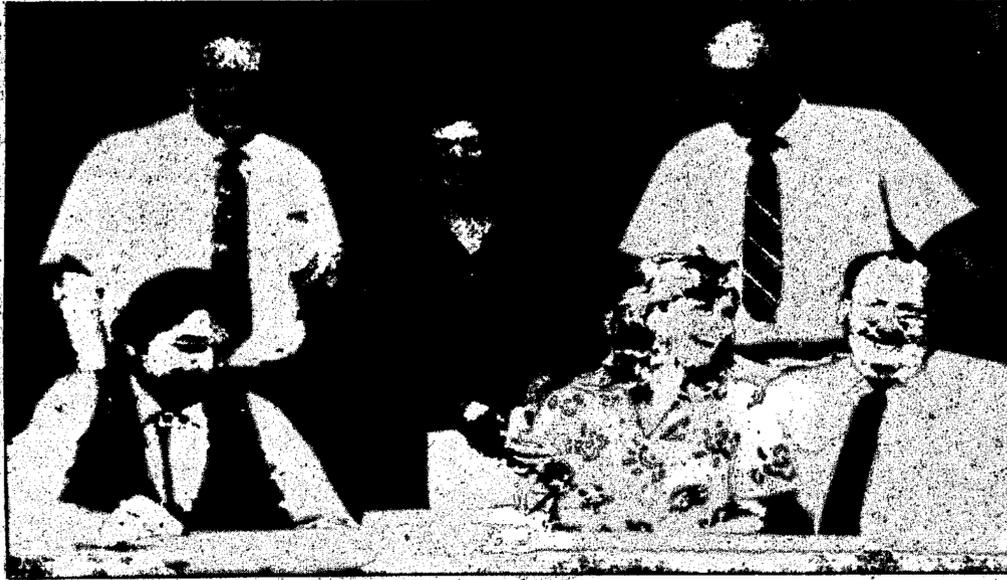

Krumsiek said the center is accepting aluminum, glass and newspapers. He said the center is not yet equipped to handle cardboard.

Payment is made for aluminum but not for other materials at the present time.

LCSWA board member Frank Warth of Capitan advised people to call first before taking material to the center until the coordinator is officially on the job.

The recycling center is expected to become fully operational when grant funds become available. A $88,000 grant from New Mexico Energy and Minerals is in the offing.

The coordinator will be responsible for education programs and for seeking out markets for the various materials to be collected.

Saying so long

Lincoln County Commissioner Bill Elliott gives departing finance officer Mignon Sims a hug Tuesday on her last official day at work. Sims will be joining her husband to run Medical Arts Pharmacy in Alamogordo. Joining in a farewell tribute for five years of managing the county's money are Commissioner Monroy Montes county manager Nick Pappas, County Clerk Martha Proctor and Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer.

BLM seeks public comments

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM), New Mexico State Office, Santa Fe, is seeking written comments from the public on a draft document affecting lessees and operators of federal and Indian oil and gas leases. The draft Notice to Lessees and Operators concerns rules for the handling and disposal of rubbish generated at oil and gas lease sites.

The comment period for the draft Notice will begin July 17 and will end September 1. BLM will review all comments received and make necessary changes, and anticipates that the rule will become final by October 1.

A copy of the draft Notice concerning waste disposal may be obtained by writing to: Gary Stephens, P.O. Box 1449, Santa Fe, New Mexico, 87504 or by calling (605) 988-6109.

Football fever invades Ruidoso

by AL STUBBS
Ruidoso News Business Editor

It's a time for building after the football situation at New Mexico State has been stabilized. Aggie Head Coach Jim Hess told Ruidoso Kiwanis Club members at K-Bob's, Tuesday noon.

He said he learned his football philosophy very early in his career. His philosophy: "You need players!"

Hess said that team strengths include 38 lettermen returning. They include 12 starters.

Hess says that with the addition of a fine recruiting class, "The 1991 season should be an exciting one."

Hess told Kiwanians and 10 Ruidoso High School coaches who were guests, that several holes need to be filled before the 1991 season can be a successful one.

Two Ruidoso players will be adding to NMSU Aggie strength this year.

Hess said the Ruidoso High graduates on the team are Garrett Henson and Brian Davis.

Henson is the incumbent punter, while Davis is flanker.

Henson has been punter the last two seasons.

Davis was named New Mexico Player of the Year by the USA Today in 1987.

Hess believes Davis could make an impact this fall at flanker. He was the most improved receiver in spring drills.

After a disastrous season last year, Hess is optimistic.

"I believe we've reached the point where the other team will have to beat us," he told Kiwanians.

Hess has an enviable past record. He has been at NMSU for a year and a half.

He had posted a collegiate coaching mark of 112-53-5 in 15 seasons prior to coming to NMSU. He had a .674 winning percentage.

He has coached collegiately at Angelo State and at Stephen F. Austin. Upon retirement in 1988, he was ranked 10th among active NCAA Division I-AA head coaches in winning percentage and remains just one of 12 men to win more than 100 games at the I-AA level.

Hess took the coaching job at NMSU with the understanding $200,000 more would go into the football budget each year for five years.

Some $400,000 in increases have been realized so far, he said.

He said facilities and a low budget were handicaps when he took over as head coach.

"I think the coaching staff has been stabilized," he said.

The Aggies open against UTEP September 14 at 7 p.m. at home.

Hess was introduced by Kiwanis president Wayland Burk.

Hess will continue a tour of the area this week. He spoke at Alamogordo Tuesday, Carlsbad, Artesia and Hobbs, August 7, and Portales, Clovis and Roswell today. Friday he makes appearances at Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

Ruidoso High head coach Mike Speck introduced his coaching staff at the luncheon meeting.

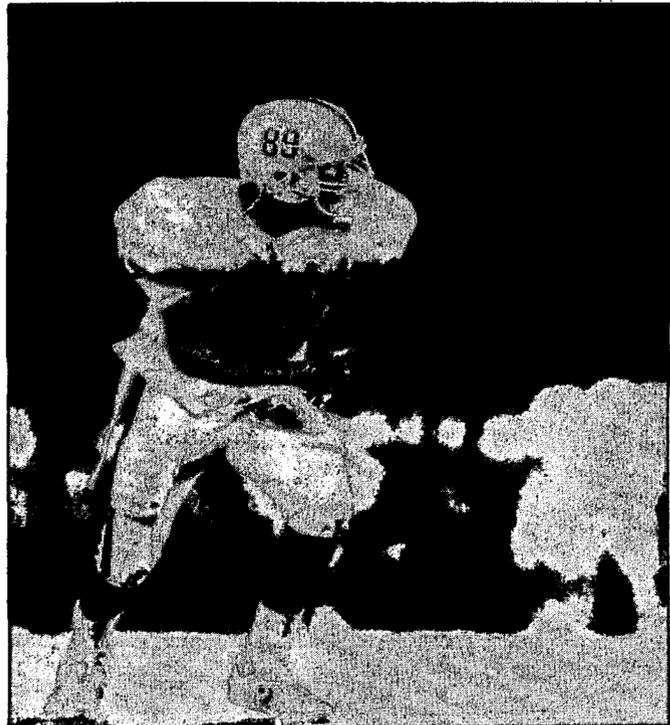

Assistant coaches are Borde Williams, Clifton Neal, Gregg Santmann, Herman Fox, Tom Twedale, Roger Head, Kevin Clawson, Phil Lopez and Lynn Weiland.

Ruidoso High School graduates Brian Davis (left) and Garrett Henson will be adding strength to the New Mexico State University Aggies this year, according to Coach

Fishing is good at Alto Lake and Grindstone Reservoir

Anglers at Alto Lake and Grindstone Reservoir are pulling out rainbow trout since crews from the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish stocked them with 4,014 and 3,066 (respectively) 11-inch beauties the week of July 20-26.

Conditions are mixed throughout the Southwest fishing areas with fishing slow at Caballo Lake and Snow Lake, but good, using fireballs, power bait and garlic cheese, at Willow Creek.

Elephant Butte Lake reports indicate that fishing is good around McCrae Canyon north through the Narrows and Montacello Canyon using a light and minnows for white bass. Fishing is best in brushy coves using live bait and crank bait for black bass. Catfish are being taken on trotlines with cut bait in the early morning off the shore.

Football workouts begin

All boys interested in playing football this fall in grades 8 through 12 for Ruidoso Middle School and Ruidoso High School will begin two-a-day workouts during the next two weeks.

Boys entering the 10th through 12th grade should report at 8 a.m. Monday, August 12; and those entering 8th and 9th grade should report at 8 a.m. Monday, August 19.

For more information please contact one of the following coaches: 9th through 12th grade—Mike Speck, home-258-4055, or work-258-4910; 8th grade—Borde Williams, home-257-2578, or work-257-7324.

Free physical examinations will be offered for all Lincoln County athletes, boys and girls, by the medical community of Ruidoso at 7 p.m. today (Thursday), August 8, at Ruidoso High School.

Nature programs scheduled

Get into nature with two weekend nature programs sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service and the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

These free programs are scheduled at 9 a.m. and at 7 p.m. Saturday August 20. For the morning session, meet in the parking lot at Smokey Bear Ranger Station, 901 Mechem Drive, and for the evening session, meet in the parking lot at South Fork Campground above Bonito Lake.

"Let's open our bodies, minds and hearts to the great recreative and healing power of nature," says tour leader Dave Dale. Similar talks and hikes are scheduled for August 17, August 24 and August 31. For information, call 257-4095 or 257-5245.

Hunters Safety Program also includes firearm safety

The Ruidoso Hunters Safety Program announces a New Mexico Game & Fish Hunters Safety class from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, August 12 through the 16, at the Ruidoso Police Department.

This class is required for anyone under the age of 18 planning to hunt in the State of New Mexico. Also, anyone planning to hunt in another state that requires a hunters safety certification, such as Colorado, this is your opportunity to take this class.

Of course, anyone who just wants to learn firearms safety is welcome to attend. There is no minimum age requirement, but anyone age 10 and under must be accompanied by an adult for the entire class.

There is a $3 fee for each student who attends. The Ruidoso Hunters Safety Program will be having two more classes in Ruidoso and other classes will be scheduled throughout the county and will be announced. To register, be at the Ruidoso Police Department at 6 p.m. Monday, August 12, for the first five classes.

These mountains were made for biking

By SHERI CANTWELL

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Over the years Ruidoso has had several road races and the beginnings of short bike paths around the village — but now hiking enthusiasts have found a new love.

From the Sierra Blanca peak at Ski Apache to the treacherous trails of the Lincoln National Forest, bikers have discovered the delights of high-altitude pedaling — spectacular scenery, challenging terrain, nature's sweet-smelling aroma and laid back good times.

The combination of the Sierra Blanca mountain and the Lincoln National Forest make Ruidoso a great place for the off-road enthusiasts, said Rick Evans, a local businessman who just opened a bike rental place on Mechem.

When the snow melts the super resorts and quaint shops stay open. And, as the grass and wildflowers rise, the ski-buffs will return for their summer workout.

Mountain bikes started being produced about 15 years ago, with 11 million bicycles sold last year.

The only places in New Mexico which provide biking trails, races and/or rentals, are Sandia Park in Albuquerque, Taos and parts of Santa Fe.

"Mountain bike rentals is a natural tie in to the ski industry," Evans said, explaining how the market for the two sports is made up of the same type of people.

A Change in History
Bikes and bike paths have traveled a long road through history. Originally bicyclists, pressing for improved roads, were called a menace by horse owners. Twenty years later they issued the same remarks about automobiles that overcrowded their riding terrain.

Now the road users have come full circle — but this time bicyclists are dominating a different type of road.

According to a recent bicycling magazine, the fat tire fanatics have discovered the fun of the rocky trails in off-road riding. And, in some places it has caught on so much, that the overcrowding problem has arrived there.

A few years ago ski resorts, looking for an income during the warm weather months, started offering downhill bicycling for a way to utilize their facilities.

The bikes came, and the summer economy for the wonderland resorts was boosted.

Evans has ventured into this booming industry, and now the grubby rubber of mountain bike tires has met the trails of the Lincoln National Forest which surrounds the village of Ruidoso.

Evans, owner of Rocky Mountain Ski Rental has expanded his services to include mountain bikes.

He said the Lincoln National Forest is so huge — with ample supply of trails of various levels, to discover that Ruidoso doesn't need bike paths.

Mountain bikes are like four wheelers.

Riders buy them to expand their backyard into steep mountains and rough terrain, said Evans.

"They want to go out and play."

Ruidoso Trails
Evans has a fleet of about 24 specialized bikes to rent, all of different sizes and types.

The fee for half a day (four hours) is $12, and $18 for a 24-hour period.

The cost includes the bike, helmet, water bottle, frame pump, tool kit and map, he said.

Depending on the renter's condition and biking experience, Evans then recommends selected trails for vacationers to try.

The road going up to the ski run is a very scenic and challenging ride for riders who are physically fit, Evans said. Meanwhile, the White Mountain development — the road out to the old airport — is easy and enjoyable and Cedar Creek off-road trails offer a very good ride.

There are also countless, old logging roads around the forest and side trails along some of the mountains that aren't even accounted for, said Peg Grimm of the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

Mapping out bike paths and providing information on the beauty and training level needed for each one has been something the Forest Service has had on its list for several years now.

The problem is funding, and finding where they are, said Grimm.

The only places illegal for bikers to trek through in Ruidoso is the wilderness and roads not applied for motorized vehicles, she said.

Biking Precautions

Before pedaling your way through the forest there are some general rules that every rider should follow, according to a recent biking magazine.

Some are very important for the high altitudes of Ruidoso.

1. Block the sun — Solar radiation is greater at this elevation, so wear sunscreen, sunglasses, and light-colored clothing.

2. Be equipped — Make sure your bike is fit to your size. A helmet is mandatory and riding gloves are recommended.

3. Dress smart — The weather can change swiftly at this altitude, so take warm, water repellent clothing. Proper attire includes Spandex shorts and two layers of short and long sleeved shirts to accommodate for changes. Remember, for every 1,000 feet you gain, the temperature drops three and a half degrees.

4. Be prepared — With the winding and rocky trails in the forest, a map, water bottle, tool kit, and air pump is necessary for unexpected incidents.

5. Drink plenty — The air in Ruidoso is drier, so risk of dehydration increases. Sweat also evaporates faster so it's harder to tell you're losing water.

Full course

Golfers are spreading out over Cree Meadows Golf Course for the Shorty Hornbuckle Match Play tournament which concludes today.

McGuire and Wimberly win the '91 Snowcapper

The eighteenth annual "Snowcapper" Member-Guest Golf Tournament at the Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club concluded Friday after a hard-fought 54 holes.

The Championship flight was won by Ruidoso golfers Reeves McGuire and Dan Wimberly who charged back from a five stroke deficit with a fine last hole 62 in Friday's play.

Director of golf, Chuck Dunn, reported that 108, two-man teams participated in this year's "Snowcapper."

The tournament began last week on Tuesday with a 150-player scramble.

The team of Bob Cooper, Jerry Hinson, Eddie Breaux, Clovis Barker, Ted Hopkins Jr. and Wanda Hopkins tied with the team of Richard Cox, Lee Griffin, Ron Wenzel, Vernon Brown and Jeri Hahn to win the scramble with a score of 58.

After Tuesday's scramble there was a 20-team "Shoot-Out" with winners Reeves McGuire and Don Graham.

Teams in the nine flights started play on Wednesday with a best ball format, switched to a scramble format on Thursday and then finished with a best ball format on Friday.

Winners of this year's Championship Flight were Reeves McGuire and Dan Wimberly who shot a 54-hole total of 198. Other winners and their totals were:

First Flight—Sid Cauthorn and Mark Milstead-204

Second Flight—Glenn Scallorn and Aaron Billings-217

Third Flight—Lee Griffin and Harlan Moeckler and Meto Miteff and Jim Evans-216

Fourth Flight—Ron Wenzel and Jimmy Hahn and Pappy Collier and Jimmy Tallant-221

Fifth Flight—Dub Kennedy and Glenn Kennedy-188

Sixth Flight—P.T. Hughes and David Law-190

Seventh Flight—Dennis Wardrop and Mark Rice-229

Eighth Flight—Mike Garner and Art Dunstan-182.75

Although the typical July rains visited the area with considerable force, the enthusiastic players relished the challenge throughout the Tournament.

According to a news release, "A great time was had by all."

Members of the 1991 "Snowcapper" Golf Tournament Committee were Joe Bowden, John Van Tusenbroek, Bill Hirschfeld, Van Rea, Dan Bowden, Chuck Dunn and Todd Pertect.

Eric Evans demonstrates the proper attire needed for mountain bike riding in this high altitude. Evans father just expanded his Rocky Mountain Ski Rental shop to include mountain bike rentals. It's the first bike rental business for the Ruidoso area.

Steppin For The Moon headin back here Friday

Steppin For The Moon, an upset winner of the Kansas Futurity in his last start, returns Friday in the first of 13 All American elimination trial heats.

The top three finishers from each of Friday's 13 races, and the top three finishers from Thursday's 13 elimination trials, all advance to the Aug. 22 All American time trials.

The 10 fastest qualifiers from the time trials advance to the Sept. 2 All American Futurity. The 33rd renewal of the world's richest quarter horse race carries a purse of $2 million.

Steppin For The Moon, owned in partnership by Jerry Wells and Joan Crews Hoyt, is one of only two juveniles nationwide to capture more than one Grade I race this season.

Not only did Steppin For The Moon win the Rainbow Futurity, but he also captured the Sun County Futurity at Sunland Park earlier this year. In the July 14 Rainbow Futurity, the son of 1978 All American Futurity winner Moon Lark found a sloppy track to his liking and posted a powerful 1-length victory.

Steppin For The Moon captured the first four races of his career before problems at the starting gate hindered his performances. His trainer, Jack Brooks, a five-time winner of the All American Futurity, however, seems to have the chestnut colt's starting gate woes ironed out. Steppin For The Moon has captured five of eight career outings and has earned $292,093.

Steppin For The Moon figures as a solid favorite in Friday's first race, which also drew Rainbow Futurity finalist Dash Master Miss.

The speedy daughter of Dash For Destiny, who is trained by Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath, finished a solid fourth in the Rainbow Dash Master Miss has captured two of four career starts. The sorrel filly is owned by Scarlett Hill Farm Inc.

Friday's fourth race drew Clarence Scharbauer's Vital Class, who has not run since a dull last-place finish in the July 13 Rainbow Futurity Consolation. Before that, however, Vital Class finished a nose behind Magic Dozen in the finals of the Kansas Futurity.

The lightly-raced sorrel son of Easily Smashed, who is trained by Brooks, has captured two of five career starts and has earned $79,743.

Another one of Scharbauer's top 2-year-olds — Pullasix — figures prominently in the sixth race. Another son of Scream Six, and also trained by Brooks, Pullasix finished seventh in the finals of the Rainbow Futurity after an eventful journey.

The bay colt, a bit skittish at times, broke perfectly in the finals of the Rainbow Futurity, but was on, or near the lead, halfway through the 350-yard dash. For the second time this summer, however, Pullasix, ducked away from the crowd noise after reaching the grandstand and nearly stopped running.

For the remainder of the summer, Brooks has said he will put cotton in Pullasix's ears in hopes of drowning the crowd noise. Pullasix has captured three of five career outings.

Leaving Memories, who left some fairly vivid memories after his superb performance in the trials of the Kansas Futurity in the opening week of this meeting, returns in Friday's 11th race.

Leaving Memories, a muscular son of 1987 World Champion First Down Dash, skipped the Rainbow Futurity trials. His trainer, Gilbreath, decided to point the sorrel colt toward the All American instead.

Leaving Memories has not started since his sixth-place finish in the Kansas Futurity finals. He is owned by James Helzer, who seeks to become the first owner in history to win back-to-back All American Futurities. Helzer, of course, won last year's All American with Refrigerator.

Friday's 13th and final division of the elimination trials is headed by Special Task, who is owned in partnership by Ronald Shalz, Ed Cersovsky and Bobby Cox.

Special Task, a career winner in four of six starts including the Grade I West Texas Futurity at Sunland Park, resides in the shedrow of Brooks. The handsome son of Special Effort also finished third in the Rainbow Futurity.

Countdown begins for All American Futurity

Ed Grimley, the undefeated 2-year-old from California, makes his much anticipated debut here in Thursday's first day of All American Futurity elimination trials.

The All American elimination trials drew a total of 257 juvenile quarter horses. There are 13 heats scheduled for both Thursday and Friday. The top three finishers from each of the 26 trials all advance to the All American time trials on Aug. 22.

The $2 million All American Futurity will have its 33rd renewal on Monday, Sept. 2. The All American Futurity reverts back to the classic distance of 440 yards this year.

Ed Grimley, a gelded son of No Tell Motel, has captured the first five races of his career, including the $241,500 Grade I Bay Meadows Futurity in his most recent start.

Ed Grimley, who is owned by Mitch DeGroot of Portales, N.M., comes from humble beginnings. He began his career at a little track in Safford, Ariz.

Two races later, he scored a sharp victory in the Santa Cruz Futurity in Sonoita, Ariz.

Ed Grimley, who was trained by Bob Baffert in California but joined Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath's shedrow upon his arrival here, will be ridden by Kip Didericksen. Gilbreath and Didericksen teamed to win last year's All American Futurity with Refrigerator.

Ed Grimley figures as a prohibitive favorite in Thursday's third race.

Bills Ryon, a strong second in the Rainbow Futurity here July 14, heads Thursday's fourth elimination heat. Owned in partnership by Francis McKibbin and Bobby Cox, Bills Ryon is one of three $50,000 late supplements to the All American.

The other supplemental entries are Firecracker Futurity winner Easily An Episode and Blue Ribbon Downs Futurity runnerup Easy Freddie, both of whom surface in Thursday's seventh race.

Refrigerator was a $50,000 supplemental entry last year.

Bills Ryon, who has been suffering from a nasty lung virus for most of the summer, was actually an 11th-hour supplement. The owners had to be satisfied that the big son of Windy Ryon was 100 percent before entering him.

Obviously, Bills Ryon is back at the top of his game. He was easily the fastest qualifier for the Rainbow Futurity, but fell 1-length short in the finals when Steppin For The Moon outran him on a sloppy track.

Bills Ryon, who resides in the shedrow of John Buchanan, has captured three of five career starts. His other loss was a sixth-place finish here in the Grade I Kansas Futurity.

Jerry Windham's Magic Dozen, a sharp winner of the Kansas Futurity, drew into Thursday's 10th race. The son of Easy Dozen captured the first six starts of his career before finishing a dull second in the Rainbow Futurity time trials.

Magic Dozen, reportedly also was suffering from a lung infection in his only loss. His connections, however, say he is healthy again and ready for a top effort.

Big profit

Faise An Impudent drives for a half-length win in the distance in 27.10 seconds, beating Moons Ego and $12,925 Big Profit Allowance Stake August 9 at third place finisher Fancys Zevi. Faise An Impudent, Hulsdo Downs Race Track. The seven-year-old gelding bred in Kansas, was ridden by Jeff Williams, trained by Arnold Simmons and owned by Thomas Demmit.

Track Talk

Don't ever forget those longshots

The more I am around horse racing fans, the more I am convinced that they are starved for concrete handicapping insights.

More specifically, the fans crave information that can help them turn a fan on a day at the races.

The first thing that I always remind inquisitive fans is that there are other horses on the board besides the favorite. One of the most common pitfalls for the casual racing fan is to assume that the favorite is the best horse in the race.

Nothing at the racetrack is more of a misnomer.

Everyday at every racetrack across the country, thousands of dollars are squandered on heavy favorites with nary a chance of hitting the board, let alone of winning the race.

False favorites are an undeniable reality. And when they are uncovered, they open avenues to great overlays on other horses in the race.

A classic example of a false favorite occurred last Friday at Hulsdo Downs. The $2,500 claiming race was reserved for fillies and mares, and was to be run at 5 1/2 furlongs.

The 2-to-1 choice in the race was Merrilass, based on her second-place finish seven days earlier against a similar field of fillies and mares.

I would not have risked Monopoly money on her chances of winning last Friday's race.

The betting public, as usual, put far too much merit on her most recent effort. On that

By Tom Merrilass
Publicity Director
Hulsdo Downs
Racing Inc.

day, she had sprinted clear to be 2-lengths in front turning for home. Merrilass faded late, and finished second beaten by 1-length.

On the surface, not a bad performance. In reality, a horrible effort.

The day Merrilass ran — July 26 — was very kind to front-runners on the rail. Nearly every race that day was won by speed along the inside. An observant player would have realized that despite a perfect trip with all factors in her favor, Merrilass was still not good enough to get the job done.

The final kiss of death for Merrilass in Friday's fifth race was her lifetime record of one win from 31 trips to post, including an 0-for-20 mark over the past two seasons.

In other words, if Merrilass was ever to win another race, surely she would have done so in her last trip to post. Today, she was in against a ton of speed, and not only did not figure to win the race, but did not even figure to be on the lead.

Merrilass finished fifth, beaten nearly 8-lengths. With Merrilass eliminated from contention, the next three logical contenders combined for a whopping $513.00 trifecta payoff.

Be alert to overbet favorites. They can be the key to big paydays at the racetrack.

DOWN THE STRETCH: In case you haven't heard, the thoroughbred Bailarin, who whipped everything in sight running 870 and 1,000 yards here before selling in a private transaction for $65,000, made quite a splash in his California debut at Los Alamitos last week. Facing the likes of top Southern California sprinters Olympic Prospect and Paisano Pete, Bailarin kicked dirt on the lot, and coasted home an easy wire-to-wire winner. One scribe who witnessed the race said it was as if Bailarin started with his gate open, judged by the ease in which he put 3-lengths on some of the fastest sprinters in the world. Talk about overlays! Bailarin returned 178.00 for a $2 win ticket.

Wish I was there ... With Bailarin tackling the big boys out West, Mike Levi's Pullastreak moves to the forefront of the 870 and 1,000 ranks here. Pullastreak was dominating while handily capturing last week's 1,000-yard Great Southwest Speed Challenge ... Anxiously awaiting a sprint confrontation between Prince Ego, Dance Trainer and North Waco ... Bad news for the sophomore thoroughbred division here. Cagney And Lace is back from his short trip and figures as the favorite in Saturday's $25,000-added Hulsdo Derby at 1 1/16-miles.

Horses To Watch

SCATTA HOOT:

Hooked a tiger in an extra-game effort here the other day. The 3-year-old from the Bob Arnett barn is a likely candidate to break his maiden in his next trip to post. Be on board.

TEMPLADO TOSS:

An old class horse from California who seems to have taken a liking to his new surroundings on the mountain. He absolutely buried a field here the other day. He should repeat on the rebound even with a little hike in class.

CHILI DOWN:

Was the best horse in a compact claiming field the other day, but was forced to settle for a minor award. She never really got rolling until the 350-yard dash was already history. She's nails next time out, especially at 400 yards.

MR LAVISH:

Obliterated at the start and still ran on late in his debut for Fred Danley the other day. This 2-year-old son of Six Fortunes will not remain a maiden long, especially against a field of New Mexico-breds.

MISSISSIPPI DARLIN:

No telling how good this Oklahoma-bred filly might be. She simply drew away from a decent field in her debut the other day. She figures extremely tough right back against non-winners of two. Follow.

Making tracks in the mud

A sloppy track didn't slow down Jose Pancho, pictured above, drawing away for an easy win in the $48,185 Rio Grande Futurity August 4, at Ruidoso Downs. The gelding ran off the early pacesetters to score his fourth win in six career starts, by closing strongly on the outside. He ran the six furlongs in 1:12 4/5. Jose Pancho is owned by R.D. Hubbard and Ed Allred, trained by Don Farris and ridden by Joe Martinez. Pullastreak (below) draws away for a two-length win August 3. The four-year-old gelding, who was ridden by Manuel Ortiz Jr., ran the 1,000 yards in a best-of-the-meet 52.72 seconds in spite of the muddy conditions. Pullastreak circled the front runners to defeat Make An Effort and defending champion Jack Da Quick who ran third. Pullastreak is trained by Arnold Simmons and owned by Mike Levi of Spicewood, Texas.

A Bit Of Style scores easy victory Monday

Carl Davidson's A Bit Of Style, rushing to the lead almost from the start, cruised home an easy 2-length winner in Monday's feature race.

The allowance race, which was contested at 7 1/2 furlongs, offered a purse of $5,856 and drew a com-compact field of four. A Bit Of Style, last summer's Thoroughbred of the Meet, set slow fractions of 50.4 for the half and 1:15.1 for 6 furlongs on a sloppy track. When jockey John Cushing let the 6-year-old gelding out a notch in deep stretch, he easily disposed of pace-contender Slew Ruler.

Slew Ruler held on by a head for second against Classy Deer, who finished fast on the outside for third. A Bit Of Style, who won the Governor's Handicap here in his previous start, is trained by leading conditioner Doyal Roberts.

A Bit Of Style, the early favorite for the Aug. 31 $40,000 Ruidoso Mile Handicap, increased his career earnings to $254,405.

Prince Ego was a late scratch in the race.

Fast women are making their mark at Ruidoso Downs

They've come a long way...

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Standing just under or barely over five feet tall, jockeys often look up to a lot of people.

The difference for female jockeys is that they have less to look up to and more people looking down on them.

Only five women are racing regularly this season at the Ruidoso Downs Race Track: veteran Vickie Smallwood, Janeen Painter, Ellen Cockey, Teresa Briggs and newcomer Kelly Edge.

Donna Sponenberg is another woman jockey who rides periodically in Ruidoso, for a specific horse.

Smallwood has earned her ride into the bigger-wage stakes. In 1990, Painter stood as the eighth-best thoroughbred jockey.

Briggs was the first woman jockey ever to ride on a big-time trainer's horse.

Cockey rode in the All-American in 1989, and Edge, five months into her apprenticeship, has already earned 47 first, second and third place wins.

It seems that these longshots have beaten the odds, but the evolutionary evidence of the stronger sex suggests that their male counterparts have had it easier in the racing industry.

Trainers and jockeys alike think women are weaker physically and can't whip the horse hard enough. They are afraid of "getting the little girl hurt," said Edge.

And, if the women jockeys happen to run a horse too hard, the remark is always, "if a man was riding, it wouldn't have happened."

Nonetheless, the trainers keep coming back and the females continue to fight by believing in a different theory.

"When you're out there it's not who's the strongest but the smartest," said Painter.

Although women jockeys have come a long way, they still hear the backstretch whispers - but instead of resentment building, they just let their riding skills do the talking.

The men try to intimidate women jockeys, said Briggs. "You just gotta get tough and hold your position."

They also must learn not to let it interfere with their relationships off the track. "You have to get along with each other," said Painter. "You're around them all day."

The women just take it all in stride. A saying printed on the wall of their bathroom describes their attitude: "Whatever women do, they must do twice as well as men to be thought half as good. Luckily this is not difficult."

"I can whip a horse as good as the next guy," claims Painter.

All of them can, and that is why they spend their weekends in a tiny room just big enough for a bunk bed, some lockers and a TV - which gets switched from watching the races to a good HBO movie.

These women jockeys are just like their male colleagues, but a bit gentler when it comes to relating to the wilder horses.

Women can relate to a horse, it is in their nature to be caring, said Edge. "We're out there because we love horses, not just for the money."

The jockeys also gave some other answers as to why they feel women have place in the jockey world.

"Women tolerate pain easier," said Edge, as Painter moaned in the background - she says she is the worst patient a doctor has had. However, they all agree that the natural high received from racing is far better than the aching muscles, and countless visits to the doctor's office.

Women also eat less and are used to watching their weight. Of course for jockeys like Edge, who head straight to the desert table, there is the hot room to sweat the weight off.

Although questions over why these gutsy women are invading the horse racing business will continue, Briggs, Painter and Edge tell their side of the story. To most, their riding ability came natural.

Because it was her dream...

Janeen Painter grew up on a farm in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

One of her favorite memories is of riding on the back of a horse, screaming out to the world her desire to go faster and faster.

She would practice for that big race on a haystack in the barn and thought it was really cool when she was allowed to go with her folks to dinner when they were entertaining a jockey.

As she grew up, Painter spent all her time at the racetrack.

At one time she had plans to go to college and become a veterinarian in the winter so that she could ride during the summer. But, once she raced a horse for the first time she knew that deep inside her that was all she wanted to do.

Now she spends her days going from one season to another, racing all across New Mexico and in Phoenix.

Her days, like any other jockey's, consist of early mornings to exercise the horses, talking with horse owners and trainers, and feeling the wind whip across her face as she assumes the crouch position on a horse and flares from the starting gate - fulfilling her dream.

For Painter, a very competitive, tough gal with a lot of self-confidence, taking the first step in the jockey field was as tough as it was for anyone else.

There are some exceptions of horses only wanting to be ridden by women, she said, but "whether you're male or female it's tough to break in."

However, the intense jockey is here, and she plans to stay for many years.

Because it's in her blood...
Teresa Briggs started racing horses in Michigan just after her graduation in 1983.

With a brother who used to be a jockey and another one who is a trainer, she grew up around race horses and competed in barrel events before her racing career began.

She told her stories of taking her brother's racing saddle that would crunch her long-limbed legs close to her chest as she trick-rode her barrel horses. It gave her balance, and prepared her for the next step.

Through years of borrowing her brother's equipment to practice with, her great riding ability and inside knowledge of racing began to show.

Briggs pursued the thrills of riding as a means to pay the rent after galloping for a guy her brother rode for in Michigan.

After riding in Kentucky for a New Mexico trainer she was asked to come to the enchanted state.

"I rode 30 races in two months," she said of her first New Mexico season in Raton. Then, while she was in El Paso, her horse fled over the rail, breaking her two arms and putting her out for a season.

However, her love of horses and desire for racing overrode any fear she had of injury, and she went back as the first girl to ride for big time New Mexico quarter horse trainer, Blane Schvaneveldt.

Now her goals have heightened to becoming the first female to win the All-American before she retires from racing to possibly pursue the road to becoming a steward.

"I want to become the boss," she said.

Because of love for horses...
With a little five-year-old girl and her late start at the gate, Kelly Edge had to work her way up to a breakthrough of racing horses - but she came irrepressibly.

Edge grew up following the race-horse business. In elementary school she idolized Glen Sumpter, clipping out any article she found on him.

Even though her mother threw the clippings away, it didn't destroy her love for horses.

She got her boot in the stable holding just about every job available behind the scenes of the racetrack.

Edge was seen as a good hand, knowing the horses inside out, but because of this, no one could see the ability she would have on the race horse. "My reputation ruined me," she said.

The finish line finally became the beginning of her career when she found herself getting upset at jockeys who wouldn't listen to her inside tips about what the horse liked and disliked.

It was a hard step, she said of switching from exercising the horses to racing them. But she knew it was the only way to feel fulfilled.

Her first win came quickly, and although the horse shied away from the roar of the crowd, she was able to capture a victory.

Edge has a perception of winning every race and believes her at-

Teresa Briggs is like any country girl, she spends her dead time doing needlework. This one was a blanket for her newest nephew.

Janeen Painter (top) and Kelly Edge (right) say that being a jockey is "serious fun," with a lot of horsing around, but that doesn't stop them from taking their job seriously and doing the best they can. Covered with smiles and mud, Painter portrays how rough it can get sometimes during a race, while Edge studies the latest program that reports on the horses statistics.

Obituaries

Ray C. Hoover

Services for Ray C. Hoover, 81, will be Friday, August 9, at 10 a.m. in LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso. The Reverend Jim Carroll will be conducting the service. Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery here.

Hoover died Wednesday, August 7, at the Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso. He was born October 16, 1909, in Comanche County, Texas to A.M. and Ada Belle Hoover, both now deceased.

He retired as a farmer near Hamilton, Texas, in 1970, and moved to Ruidoso where he worked at Ruidoso Downs Race Track until 1985. He was a member of the First Christian Church.

He and Jean Wade were married June 13, 1933; she preceded him in death in 1985. He then married Laura J. Mitchell, December 7, 1985, in Ruidoso.

Survivors include his wife,

Laura, of the home; stepdaughter and husband, Madeline and Don Shackelford of Alto; stepson and wife, Jim and Betty Mitchell of Woodward, Oklahoma.

Three brothers, six sisters, six grandsons, three granddaughters and many nieces and nephews also survive. He was preceded in death by two sisters and two brothers.

Brothers are Doyle of Lovington, A.V. "Bud" of Abilene, Texas, and Travis of Spur, Texas.

Sisters are Marie Brantner of Stratford, Texas; Le Oma Cross, Norma Arnold, Irene Dunaway, all of Spur, Texas; Robbie Briscoe of Levelland, Texas, and Eureka Moran of Lubbock, Texas.

Visitation will be today until 8 p.m., then Friday until time for the service.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Forest F. Freeman

Services for Forest F. Freeman, 76, of Angus will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday, August 6, at the Armstrong Tabernacle at the Angus Camp Ground with the reverends Dudley Anderson, Charles Hail and Ernest Armstrong officiating. Burial will follow at the Angus Cemetery.

He died Sunday at the Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso.

Mr. Freeman was born November 12, 1914, in Alto, Texas. He owned and operated Freeman Mercantile for 25 years at Higginbotham near Seminole, Texas. He was the former manager of Bonito Campground at Angus.

He had lived in the Angus area for 15 years moving here from Seminole. He was a member of the Angus Church of the Nazarene. He married Azalia Howard June 4, 1938, in Portales.

Survivors include his wife, Azalia of Angus; a daughter, Charlotte Parmelee of Liberal, Kansas; a son, Gordon Freeman of Mt. Dora, Florida; and two sisters and two brothers: Mrs. A.R. Singleton of Lubbock, Texas, Mrs. Veda Roberts of Seminole, Alton Freeman of Seminole and Frank Freeman of Lamesa, Texas.

Survivors include a granddaughter, Janalyn Parmelee of Lawrence, Kansas.

The family suggests memorials to the Bonito Park Nazarene Campground.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Monica Salcido Sanchez

Rosary for Monica Salcido Sanchez, 65, of San Patricio was Tuesday evening and funeral mass Wednesday at St. Jude's Catholic Church in San Patricio. Burial was in San Patricio.

The native of Lincoln County died Monday at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso. She was born February 14, 1926, in Hondo to Diego and Petra Salcido. Both of her parents are deceased.

Salcido had lived in the area all of her life. She was a Crucillo at St. Jude's Catholic Church.

Survivors include two sons, two daughters, four sisters, 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Sons are Jacobo Sanchez of Roswell and Tamo David Sanchez of San Patricio; daughters are Helen Chavez and Becky Sanchez, both of San Patricio; brother, Vincent Salcido of Roswell.

Sisters are Nora Castillo, Rita Padilla, Della Lovato, all of Roswell, and Mary Martinez of Midway.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Estalano Sanchez, on August 27, 1970.

Arrangements were under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Celine Eugenia Enjady

Rosary for Celine Eugenia Enjady, 59, of Mesalero, was last evening at St. Joseph's Mission in Mesalero. Funeral mass was scheduled for this morning, Thursday, August 8. The Reverend Richard Catanach officiated. Burial was in Mesalero Cemetery.

Enjady died Tuesday at Mesalero. She was born September 11, 1931, in Mesalero to Henry and Guadalupe Treas, both deceased.

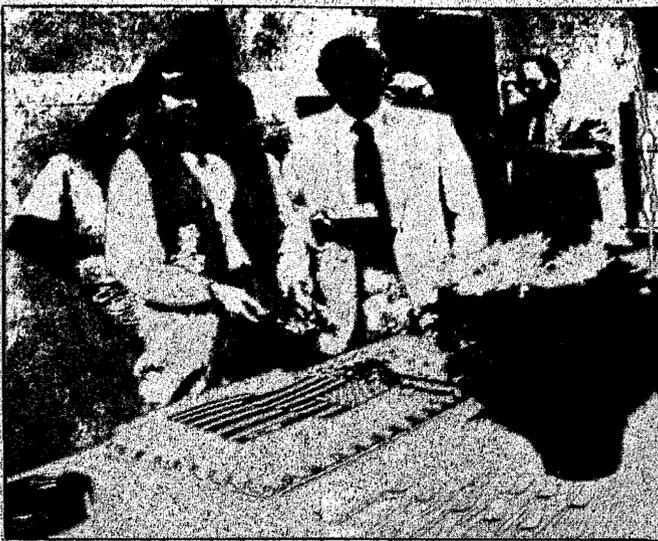

She has lived in the area all of her life and was a housewife. She married Eldon Wallace Enjady on November 30, 1951, in Mesalero.

Survivors include her husband, Eldon Wallace Enjady Sr., three sons, four daughters, two sisters and 18 grandchildren.

Sons are Oliver Ray Enjady, Eldon Enjady Jr., and Berkley Enjady, all of Mesalero. Daughters are Rayma Enjady, Sandra Enjady, Marla Coonie and Lurleen Enjady, all of Mesalero.

Sisters are Priscilla Randall and Virginia Klinekole, both of Mesalero.

Arrangements were under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Patriotic cake

When Councilor Al Junge (right) retired from his seat on the Ruidoso Village Council last week, his daughter, Joan Bailey (left) honored him with a reception that featured a red, white and blue cake decorated to look like the American flag. Mayor Victor Alonzo presented Junge with a key to the village, noting that he's the first person ever to be so honored.

EPA awards $50,000 in grants within state

The New Mexico Environment Department last month received the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) first annual Regional Administrator's Quality Award, recognizing the state agency's underground storage tank program.

The state received more than just verbal praise, the EPA also awarded a $50,000 grant to enhance the existing program and to meet future needs, according to EPA Regional Administrator Robert E. Layton Jr.

From his Dallas office, Layton said it's New Mexico's impressive increase in compliance rate that influenced his choice.

"Using a highly successful total quality management program, the Environment Department increased the tank owners' voluntary compliance rates from 13 percent to over 31 percent," he said.

Layton explained that using an enforcement program much like issuing traffic tickets, the agency streamlined its storage tank program while increasing compliance.

For less than major violations, the department can issue "tickets" in amounts up to $500 to encourage compliance without the usual legal procedures that can be costly, time-consuming and result in delays in compliance with state and federal storage tank regulations, he said.

For more severe violations, the agency can seek civil penalties of up to $25,000 a day for each violation, Layton said.

The award was presented in mid-July in Gov. Bruce King's conference room.

"Half of us rely on groundwater as a source of drinking water," Layton said, "Leaking underground storage tanks are probably the greatest threat to our groundwater supplies."

He said 10 percent to 30 percent of the estimated two million storage tanks in the country may be leaking. Half are used to store gasoline at service stations.

Those tanks can cause fires and explosions and can contaminate underground water supplies. Congress responded to that threat in 1984 with regulations that required the EPA to develop protective regulations. The new rules were announced in September 1988.

The Silver Lining

Pageant is still a hit after 42 years

After Forty-Two Years

It does not seem like 42 years since I first began going over to Lincoln to meet with my friends and neighbors during Old Lincoln Days.

It was my 40th time as Buckshot Roberts, because I was away two years for the funeral services of brother Mark's wife, Ferne Sweeney Storm; the other when I went to Europe with our father.

Mark's daughter, my niece Carol Jane Elliott, was here for the pageant with her husband, Bill, and their daughter, Karen. This is the first time Bill and Karen had seen the show. They came to the Sunday performance.

Our pioneers were smiling down from Heaven while we put on three days of celebration in their honor.

Thomas Shreengost and Lincoln County folks of all ages presented three of the best performances in all the years beginning in 1940. It has always been a typically American event presented by local folks, some of them descendants of the historical figures in the early days, one hundred and ten years ago.

The spirit of community goodwill, and pioneer-style helpfulness, and regional pride shone brighter than ever. Joe Salazar, grandson of Higinio Salazar, prominent early day pioneer, added to the show with background guitar music.

Casey Ward was outstanding as the voice of The Kid, and all the voices came over well on the new sound system.

We missed our great friend, Dave Parks, who has been our narrator for many years; still we thought about him and he was with us in spirit.

Former Director Attends Pageant

Among those who attended this year was Barbara Peek of Lubbock and her husband, Ben, and his cousin Ron Peek and his wife, Rita, from Lubbock.

Known then as Barbara Armstrong, to Lincoln County folks, she directed the pageant in 1951, and played Mrs. McSween two or three times. Her sister, Carolyn Davis, directed the show in 1949 and 1950, while her husband, John Davis, played Billy the Kid.

Never Rained Out

The pageant is held every year in the first

by Dan Storm The Ridge Runner

weekend in August — right in the very middle of the rainy season — and yet it has never been completely rained out.

Several times rain has halted the show for awhile, and the people went to their cars and returned when the rain stopped.

This year the rain came the closest in all the years of closing the pageant; yet like The Kid we "bet on our very last card" and "the luck of the Irish" stayed with us.

All Saturday afternoon and into the evening the rain poured down, and director Dianne Shreengost and Pageant president Ralph Dunlap were holding their breath. It rained right up to pageant time and then quit. Here came the folks from their cars, and a good crowd was on hand.

Closer still was the Sunday performance. It rained steadily from noon on, and just before 3:30 it was still sprinkling. There were five or six people in slickers waiting at the seats.

Right on time the rain stopped and the sun began smiling through, and here again came the faithful folks filing in to the pageant grounds.

It was a little damp out in front of the stage, and the actors who fell in battle had a soft place to land and came up a little mud stained.

The crowd cheered and applauded the actors, including the horses.

Finest Crowds In the World

My heart goes out in appreciation for the splendid spirit shown by the people who come to the pageant year after year.

Nowhere in the world could you find people young and old who come to the pageant who are more appreciative, kindly, friendly and helpful than the crowds who attend the pageant year after year. They catch the spirit of the ones putting on the show and there has formed a bond of friendship through the years. As always they came from all over the United States, and across the water also. This year they arrived from California to New York, and even England.

From New York State came Sue Ann Loughlin and Joanne Beardley. We thank everyone who helped make Old Lincoln Days an event long to be remembered.

Happy Birthday To Nellie Ruth Jones

Nellie Ruth Jones was born August 7, 1933, in Roswell to Fred Lucas and the former Helena Coe. She has often referred to herself as "the youngest of the youngest."

Her mother was the youngest of the seven children of Lincoln County pioneers Frank and Helena Coe, whose other children were Diney, Annie, Wilbur, Winnie, Agnes and Edith. Then Nellie Ruth was the third child of Fred and Helena, the other being Betty and Dan.

She attended Hondo High School, graduating in 1951 with high honors as Valedictorian. On August 14, 1953, she was married to Paul H. Jones in the Church of the Holy Mount in Ruidoso. This was the first wedding to take place in this church. The ceremony was conducted by Father William Davis.

They have three children, Annelie Jones, Debbie Sanchez and Cathey Jones; and three grandchildren, Jim Paul Whipple, Benjamin Coe Sanchez and Jo Marie Sanchez.

In 1989, Nellie Ruth retired after 34 years as a teacher in the first grade in Ruidoso. She keeps busy in volunteer work. On Mondays she works at the Pink Shop in the hospital, and on Wednesdays at the Church of the Holy Mount as volunteer secretary. Also she is active in the Lincoln County Historical Society. She is a lay reader in the Episcopal Church, a devout Christian lady and good neighbor and friend.

We wish Nellie Ruth Jones many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

The Green World

This is being sent to you just at noon on August five, and the gray clouds are moving in over the sparkling green mountain world. Let us thank God for all our blessings.

CRIME STOPPERS

"CRIME OF THE WEEK"

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest and Grand Jury indictment or Magistrate Court conviction of the person or persons who committed the crime or any other unsolved felony crime in Lincoln County.

Let's work together to call a stop to crime.

Phone 257-4545

Drug abuse is a problem of priority concern and attention, and the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers is helping to combat the problem by offering $100.00 to anyone providing information that leads to the arrest of persons trafficking or distributing illegal drugs.

Crime Stoppers will also pay cash rewards for information that leads to the recovery of stolen property and the solving of any felony crimes.

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers telephone line is manned 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Anyone who has information on criminal activity is urged to call Crime Stoppers at 257-4545. Persons calling Crime Stoppers may remain anonymous outside the local exchange, while Lincoln County may call collect.

Local club helps community

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan 4H members are involved in a conservation project that is not only teaching them about ecology, but beautifying a piece of county land that the village has wanted cleaned up for a while now.

A total of 50 members from the local 4H Club have taken turns in participating with the project involving the land just behind the arena of the County Fairgrounds.

In February, the nine- to 15-year-old kids decided to take on the project that would clean up the 250-square feet of land, improve the stream, and beautify the arena with trees planted along the fairgrounds.

If done by the county, the project would cost over $2,000, said Lynn Hutchison, one of the 4H advisers. With funding from the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation Department (HSWCD), and the many donations given to the club by various sponsorships, the project is costing the County nothing — nor is it costing the club.

This project was picked because the fairground committee has done such a good job of renovating the grounds, said Hutchison.

If funding is allocated, the fair board has plans to upgrade the arena even more before the big Smokey Bear Celebration in 1992, said her husband, John. The 4H Club wanted to participate as much as possible.

This is also a project that the members can be proud of their whole life, Hutchison said of when the trees grow to be 20-foot tall — however at this time the kids aren't so sure the project was a good idea. "I've learned how to get blisters," said 10-year-old Jody King, who represented the 20 other members working during last Thursday's gabion building day.

Within the past five months the club has worked on the project through the chilly spring winds, cloudy days and the hot summer sun.

It's been a slow process but a lot of hard work has been put into it, said Lynn Hutchison.

The group started piling the trash dumped in the area after they presented a proposal to the HSWCD that allocated just over $300 for the irrigation system and buying of some trees for the project.

The land has been used as a local dump for many years, said Mrs. Hutchison.

In clearing out the area the 4H club found remains of beer cans, toilets, and other old household items among the rubbish piled up through the years.

Although the constant rains that came after the Fourth of July stopped the action for a while, the club was able to have all the trash cleared away and plant over 100 trees before then.

Thanks to the 4H project many aspens, cottonwoods, Ponderosa pines, redbuds and poplars will soon be whispering winds through the fairground.

The trees were donated by the Upper Hondo SWCD, the State Forestry, the Forest Service, and the Hutchisons.

The advisers for the project said the 4H Club has received very good cooperation with companies donating supplies and assistance.

The Roswell Feed and Supply gave the club a very good discount on supplies for the water system, and Lincoln County Road Department was very helpful in bringing in dump trucks to haul the trash away, Mr. Hutchison said.

The 4H Club members will continue to work up to November — after that the weather will turn too bad and hunting season begins, he said.

"The kids have done a lot," said Mrs. Hutchison, who recalled that before the club started on the project the piles of trash rose above her husband's head.

Also, the club has put in an irrigation system. And, with the help of Stan Dikes of the Forest Service and Howard Shanks of the South Central Water RCND, they are working on constructing gabions to build up the water supply of the four- to six-foot wide stream that runs about five inches deep in the gully behind the arena.

The gabions will prevent erosion occurring that could destroy the land surface of the arena in the future, said Shanks.

Habitat of fish will increase and the water quality will also improve, he said.

The gabions are constructed with tons of rock that the kids brought in from their ranches and picked up around the sides of the highways.

When the reparation project is complete, the 4H Club in joint with the fair board, will continue with the upkeep of the area.

Next year the club has plans to build a rock path next to the stream and build picnic tables for the area.

Sometime this fall a cable fence is to be built to prevent any more dumping in the area and to keep horses and other livestock from destroying the trees, said Mr. Hutchison.

Members of the 4H Club are required to take on a community project annually to learn the importance of citizenship.

Jody King (top) carries a bucket of water to take care of the 102 trees the 4H Club planted. Below, members throw rocks down the steep embankment.

4H Club members (top, left) formed lines to transport the boulders from one side of the embankment to the stream while Stan Dikes of the forest service and Howard Shanks of the South Central Water Department (top) shovel the rocks into the gabions. Monty King (left) wasn't sweeping anything up, this was just one of the items the club found while cleaning the area up.

School activities start

Against many people's wishes the summer is ending, and regrettably school activities are starting.

This means parents need to begin paying attention once again. Here is a list of events going on in the next week.

BOARD MEETS TONIGHT

The American and New Mexico flags are earning their respect back, as Capitan Board of Education follows suit of many other area councils and boards when they adjust their agenda to pledge their allegiance to America tonight.

During their regular scheduled meeting at 7:30 p.m. the school board will discuss beginning each meeting with the pledge.

In new business the board will revise a section of the board policy and the student/parent handbook. They will also discuss more personnel recommendations.

REGISTRATION DEADLINE

The rain that Capitan has received didn't rust the school bells, as they will ring again starting at 8:05 a.m. Tuesday, August 20.

High school registration is scheduled for anytime between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., for the exception of the lunch hour, after August 15. Any new students to attend the Capitan elementary school can register anytime, also during those working hours.

Officials ask that all new students bring immunization and birth certificate records when registering for the first time.

High school teachers have an in-service day scheduled for Monday, August 19.

FOOTBALL BEGINS

The Capitan Tiger football team will get used to the smell of sweat and the sounds of helmets smashing, as they enter into a week of two-a-days starting Monday, August 12.

The team will practice for two hours on offensive strategies in the morning and then return that afternoon for another two hours to work on defense, said the new Coach Pat Ventura.

The practice time doesn't include time to stretch and continue conditioning.

Since the beginning of July the team has gathered for two and a half hours a day running and lifting weights to condition themselves for this trying week.

The first full uniform practice will be the morning of Saturday, August 17, while an inner scrimmage will hopefully be the nineteenth.

Practice is vital to the team this year, as odds are stacked against them.

The Tigers have one of the toughest schedules in the district, a new coach, only six of the expected 11 starters from last year returning, and just three seniors — one who didn't play last year.

However Ventura, former assistant coach to the team, claims the players he has are good.

"Our weakness is depth," he said, explaining that if anyone gets hurt early on in the season the team could be doomed. "But, our strength is in speed."

Ventura is hoping to recruit more players when school begins.

For now the Tigers aren't thinking about their shortage of men, but are preparing for their first scrimmage against Melrose on Friday, August 29, in Roswell.

Ventura said he has already seen an improvement in the players abilities and strength. "We're getting them in as good as shape as they can."

The toughest teams on the schedule this year are Loving — last season's state champs; Jal, Carrizozo and Texico.

Fair events continue

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Do you have a unique or talented pet? Do you want to be known as the best baker in the County? If so, come to Capitan and enjoy yourself at the Lincoln County Fair, while maybe winning a gift certificate or two.

The annual fair opened its doors to the public this morning at 8 a.m. and will continue through Saturday.

Throughout Thursday there will be many livestock shows provided by area 4Hers who have entered in the fair in the past two days.

However, Saturday is the day for area residents to step into the action.

Entries for the Pet Show Saturday morning will be taken beginning at 7:45 a.m. in the show ring and entries for the Senior Citizen's "Bake Off," are accepted until noon.

Pet show categories include tallest and shortest dog, largest and smallest cat, pet with longest and shortest tail, best groomed pet, the pet who does the most amount of tricks, and the most unusual pet.

No species of animal shown in the fair may be entered in the pet show and animals must be restrained in some manner, nor will the superintendent of the event allow any vicious, dangerous or poisonous pets allowed, according to the fair's program.

Ribbons will be given for first through fifth places and all other entries will receive honorable mention ribbons.

If you're a lover of good smelling food rather than the qualities of dogs and cats, there is a Senior Citizen "Bake Off" at noon on Friday, August 9, for those who are 55 or older.

The cakes will be judged on correctness of recipe, taste, appearance, uniqueness, and general quality.

Cheesecakes, custard or cream pies will not be allowed.

Other residents are encouraged to go out to the fairgrounds to enjoy the thrill-screaming rides, challenging game booths and view the prize-winning livestock exhibits during the next three days.

Among the open categories to browse at are garden exhibits, a flower show, art display, and home economic divisions such as clothing, baking, knitting, ceramics, and the favorites — best quilt and photography shows.

The herds of lambs, goats, rabbits, calves and bulls will fill the fairgrounds making it into an original, once-a-year zoo.

Other exhibits include plant collections, beekeeping/extracting honey, a wildlife exhibit, and wood science projects, among many other categories.

The fair also has an expanded carnival this year that opens at 5 p.m. tonight and again at noon on Friday and Saturday.

A couple of county cowboys turn their talents to art

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

They are cowboys gone artists, but they haven't gone astray. Wes Smith and Phil Bob Borman both of Nogal, have been riding the range training and breaking horses for years, but now they are making a horseshoe print in the world of sculpture — and have added a twist of western history to their unique gallery.

Eighteenth Century Gallery — Hidden in the midst of the Nogal canyons is a half log, half paneled studio. The log part was built in the early 1800s while the remains of the five-room cabin was built in the early 1920s, said Smith, the owner. The history of famous horse riders and their equipment fills the antique rooms with a true western museum atmosphere.

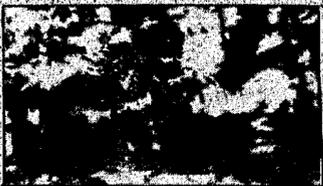

The pitched-vega, poled ceiling with log beams is decorated with old spurs and used saddles.

Smith and his family started renovating the old building last October when he got tired of sculpting out of his bedroom.

As they found a beautiful, old log cabin was under the layers of sheetrock, Smith's love for history wouldn't let him do anything else but restore the place back to looking like a gallery from the 1800s.

"I've always loved western history," he said of the many old pictures, antique equipment and other various horsemen memorabilia placed throughout the rooms.

During the renovation, Smith found ticket stubs in the main room and through research he discovered the cabin once contained the first telephone switchboard for that area.

This sculpture by Wes Smith received first in the best sculpture category during the George Phippen Show in Prescott, Arizona.

Smith and Borman like the western atmosphere, and said that seeing the bronco-riding legends pictured on the walls give them inspiration.

They plan to have the gallery museum refurbished sometime this fall. For now however, their sculpting is keeping them busy.

The Artist's Credentials — Smith has been earning money working as a cowboy since age nine. Two years ago he took all his experiences and wrapped it up into a bronze sculpture — now his art is putting feed into the stables.

In May, Smith took a first in sculpture during his first national art show, the George Phippen Show in Prescott, Arizona.

Although he has only sculpted five pieces, he has sold a combination of about 50 copies.

With a little luck and a lot of dedicated work Smith started selling his western sculptures after his second piece was completed.

Now, quite a few respected and wealthy business people are owners of his work, he said.

"I started off playing around, seeing if I could do it. Now it's gone to taking up all my time," said the self-taught sculptor.

At the same Arizona show, Smith's friend and now business partner, took the Phippen Family award — given to the sculptor the family believes portrays the most cowboy style.

The event was the third time for Borman to be entered into the prestigious show. He received third place for one of his sculptures in 1989, and a first place in 1990.

A cowboy artist from Austin, Texas, Borman pursued his art talents in 1986 teaching himself at first, and then heading to Europe to study.

He has won many awards and is represented in five different galleries in New Mexico, Texas and California.

The Artists' Technique — Growing up around horses, Smith's first-hand experiences probably made his step into the art world a little easier — because he knows his subjects so well.

There's a difference between a real cowboy's western art, and a well-trained artist's cowboy sculpture, Smith said.

"You can see it in a heartbeat," Borman agreed.

The artists explained the different ways to hold a range, or swing a rope, and they say a rig (the horsing equipment) tells it all of what type of cowboy someone is.

The professional cowboy and artist said he could see a saddle, hat or any type of equipment and instantly know what era of western culture it comes from.

That knowledge explains how the two artists sculpt their work from memories instead of working from pictures, like a lot of modern, western artists do.

The two cowboy artists said they aren't the only ones who can tell the difference in their work.

"It's a big reward when you can get a grin or smile out of one of them old cowboys," said Smith. "Then you know you've done it right."

Although the local artists have already made themselves known within the handful of western artists who come from a cowboy life, Smith has high hopes of being known as the Will James of sculpture.

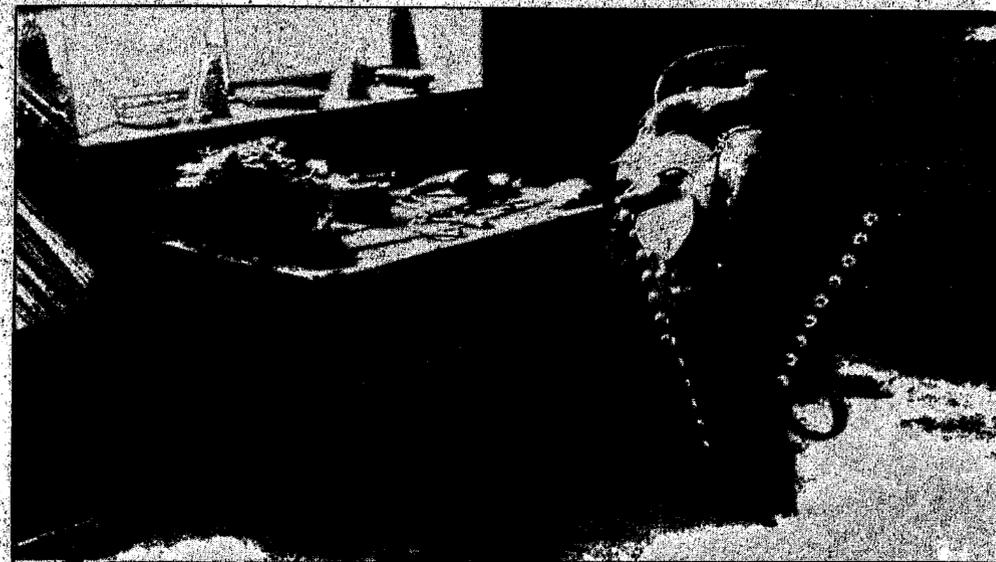

"I'm shooting for it all," he said of his inspired sculpting attempt that has now gone to full-time.

Just like the two said when heading off to the Phippen Art Show...

"We'll take no prisoners."

Schools get some help from local business

by SHERI CANTWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Municipal Schools have some extra cash for the funding of their annual science fair thanks to the local cable company's spring marketing campaign.

"This is something that will be of great help to us," said Frank Cannella as Paul Crown, owner of Lincoln Cablevision, presented him with an $855 check Tuesday morning.

Cannella is the principal of White Mountain Elementary, and a coordinator of the annual science fair that has become a tradition to Ruidoso Municipal Schools in the past 12 years.

The local Cablevision network raised the money by donating half of the normal connection fee rate directly to the schools since the beginning of May.

The campaign is part of a national project sponsored by Cablevision's managing network, Rifkin and Associates. It was developed to raise more than $100,000 for local schools around the United States.

Lincoln Cablevision participated because it was a great chance to let the community realize how their money is put back into Ruidoso, instead of each dollar being sent to Denver, where R&A is located, said Crown.

Each cable system worked with school officials to select an educational organization to receive the funds.

The money for Ruidoso was decided to help fund the science fair after the board indicated that area was in the most need of financial help, Crown explained.

Cannella said the money will be used for expenses — to buy ribbons, awards and medals for the winners, and for anyone who participates.

Each year the fair asks for a one dollar donation to students entering the fair.

However, the money is looked at only as a donation, not a fee. The money that Lincoln Cablevision has raised will be much appreciated, he said.

The campaign went so well that Crown said this is the beginning of a yearly donation given to the schools.

"It may not always go toward the science fair, but there will definitely be a donation of about this size from now on," he said.

Crown is also in the process of helping educate teachers on how to better use the television as an educational tool.

Although Ruidoso's schools have been using prerecorded videos and educational programs viewed on television for the past seven to eight years, they have a limited amount of TVs and video equipment.

During Tuesday's brief meeting, Crown offered a deal to Cannella to have him and the rest of Ruidoso's principals make up a list of needed items after consulting with teachers.

"To have a class around a television is ridiculous," Crown said. The most beneficial structure would be to construct a video library.

To do that, the Cablevision company has promised to help as much as they can in providing needed supplies such as blank cassettes and material that covers how to use television programs for educational purposes.

If funding is found, Lincoln Cablevision would like to try and provide the more expensive hardware such as VCRs and television sets.

Crown hopes that by next year televisions will be provided in some of the classrooms.

R&A is a founding member of "Cable in the Classroom." The campaign was a way to facilitate innovative use of the educational programs being delivered to supplement classroom teaching, according to a new release.

The national campaign was supported by 32 of R&A's 46 systems.

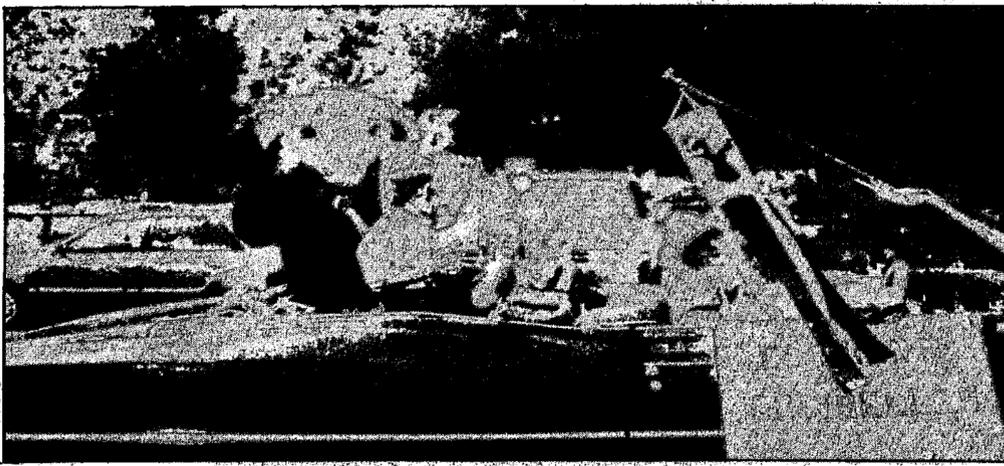

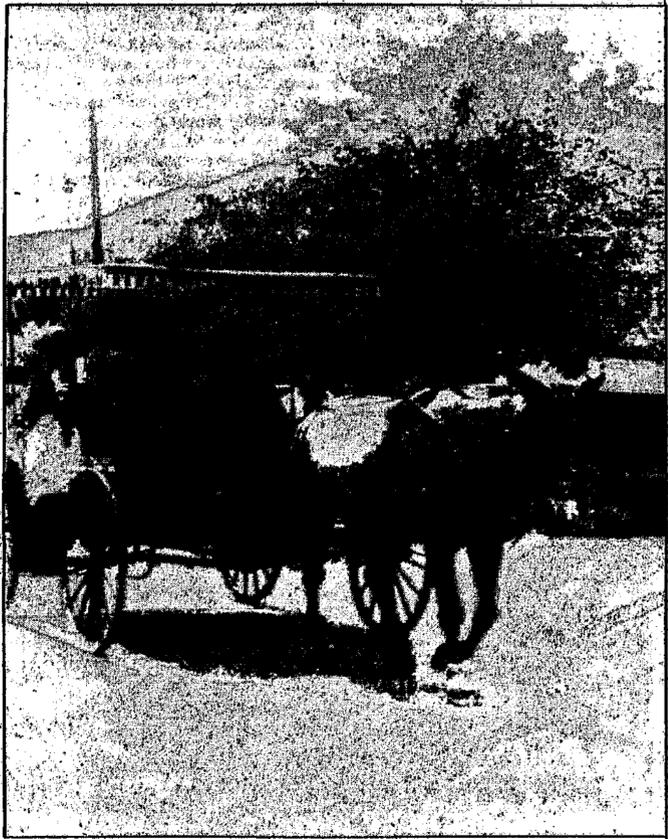

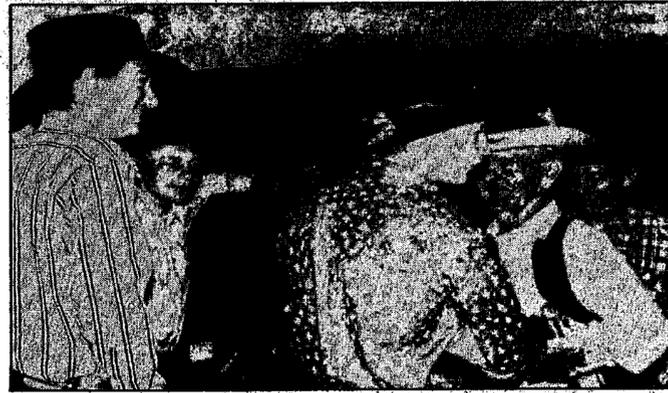

Paul Crown (left) hands over a check from the Ruidoso Municipal Schools to help support the annual science fair.

Thanks for caring, Ruidoso

This community came through in a big way to help the Humane Society of Lincoln County. With the generous donations and help of the people of Ruidoso, The Ruidoso News staff raised right at $700 to boost the spaying and neutering fund at the animal shelter.

That $700 will provide money to ensure that as many as 28 animals won't reproduce and continue the tremendous overpopulation problems that overcrowd our shelter and force the operators into making tough choices over which animals will live and which will die when the facility is full.

The people who supported the Humane Society through our community garage sale, as well as the people who are ongoing supporters of the active and dedicated group, are making an investment in the future by stopping the uncontrolled breeding of animals.

Funds are always needed. Business at the animal shelter picks up in the summer, and especially at the end of the summer when a few thoughtless individuals, leaving town for the winter, abandon the kittens and puppies they acquired when they got here in June. We hope this won't happen this year.

You can continue to help. The Humane Society also operates a thrift shop, Kits and Kaboodles, on Sudderth Drive right next door to Arby's. Stop by with your donations or to shop.

Thanks again, Ruidoso. We were pleased to be able to help the Humane Society, but we couldn't have done it without you.

State of Mind

Greedheads are running the country

Well, at last we know who Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman are.

They are Greedheads.

They showed us their colors in July, when both of New Mexico's U.S. senators joined a majority of their colleagues in approving a $23,200 pay raise, bringing their yearly salary up to $125,100.

Of course they represent a state where the per-capita income is barely $14,000, 46th in the nation, but they did not let that influence their vote. Nor did the fact that next year's federal budget deficit, over which Congress presides, will check in $348 billion — the greatest of any country in the history of the world.

In placing the lining of their pockets ahead of the nation's other business, Domenici and Bingaman retained their previous political designations, as Republican and Democrat, respectively.

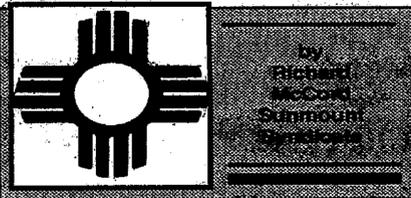

But now their first allegiance is to the Greedhead Party, whose national agenda is simple: "Get Yours."

Not that they didn't have reasons for voting the way they did.

As Domenici explained it, the Greedheads in the House of Representatives were already making $125,000 a year, and he wanted just as much for himself. In other words, if somebody else is ripping off the American public, then why can't I?

Bingaman's logic was just as sound. He thought the raise was a good idea because it also barred his fellow senators from taking fat fees for speaking to special-interest groups. In other words, let's bribe Congress not to take bribes.

Our senators' public position on the subject of pay was different not too long ago. Back in 1987, when Congress wanted to raise salaries from $77,400 to $89,500, both Pete and Jeff were on-scene against it. After thundering Senate oratory denounced it as "absurd," our guys and their fellows voted 88-6 to kill the raise.

Of course, they all knew that over on the House side the fix was in. They knew they would get the money, and that all their railing against it was just posturing. Sure enough, through parliamentary chicanery that most Americans cannot comprehend, the raise was slipped through without even a House vote. Like the others in Congress, our opposing senators pocketed the loot.

In a play to the grandstand, Rep. Bill Richardson gave his 1987 raise to various New Mexico charities that year. "How can I take a pay raise when I preach to my constituents that we have to reduce the deficit?" said his accompanying press release. "How can I take a pay raise when my congressional district is one of the poorest in the nation and many are unemployed?" But you don't hear much talk like that these days.

No, things have come a long way in the four years since 1987.

In two subsequent raises, congressional pay has risen an additional $35,600 a year, at a rate far exceeding inflation or anything else, except perhaps the deficit increase or the cost to the taxpayers for the savings-and-loan scandal, over which Congress also presided.

Domenici and Bingaman, those anti-pay-raise champions of 1987, have also come a long way — all the way out of the closet. With last month's vote they proclaimed themselves card-carrying Greedheads for all the world to see, and proud of it.

Nor do their benefits stop with the extra $23,200 per year.

Under an exceedingly generous congressional pension plan, this latest raise will fatten the payments they get for the rest of their lives after they leave office. By one estimate, the current members of the Senate, including our two, can now look forward to an extra $23.6 million from the federal treasury when they retire.

There was of course some bravery in the senators giving themselves a huge raise in recession times. After all, it might cost them votes back home, despite a 98 percent return rate to Congress, thanks to a system rigged in favor of incumbents. But where personal enrichment was concerned, our national leadership said "Hang the danger!" and found courage equal to the task.

First, all senators up for re-election next year were allowed to vote against the raise, to avoid having to explain their stand to voters. Other senators, such as New Mexico's, who did not have to run again until the dim-witted electorate had time to forget, could be counted on to provide the majority needed for passage.

Then the raise was sneaked through in the dead of night, with no advance notice, in an attempt to keep it out of the news.

Such is Congress, 1991. There might have been a time when the people working there sought to solve the problems of the nation, but nowadays those problems are so complex that any attempt has been abandoned. Instead the people of Congress have decided: "Even if I can't do the things I promised the voters I'd do, I can at least take care of myself. And by God, I will!"

This is the credo that guides Congress today, and this is the principle endorsed last month by Domenici and Bingaman. With a majority of their buddies, they can be found striding boldly behind a banner that reads: "Greedheads of the world, unite!"

Old village landfill is "eyesore"

TO THE EDITOR:

After carefully studying the landfill of Ruidoso, I have come to this conclusion. It is an eyesore to the people visiting our city from the airport.

however. We fill in the landfill and build a state park and wildlife park there. That way the first thing people will see is a beautiful building and lots of animals instead of lots of trash.

The landfill was closed down due to being over filled, but that did not cover the trash. So, naturally, that is the first thing (visitors) see when they come to Ruidoso.

I would like to know your opinion on this issue. Write to me at this address: Jay Cooper, 700 Mechem, Suite 12/A, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

I have an idea to change that,

Jay Cooper

Leave dumpsters "plain vanilla"

TO THE EDITOR:

Dumpsters, especially painted dumpsters, are very low priority on my list of major issues facing our current elected city officials.

However, in the Thursday, August 1, issue of The News, Barbara Westbrook quoted me as saying that I thought the adopt-a-dumpster project was a great idea.

The adopt-a-dumpster project was never presented to me, although Westbrook did approach me with her idea of sprucing up Rio Street. Painting of the dumpsters was mentioned.

Take a look at the painted dumpster in the Free Parking area provided for our Main Street shoppers! Beautiful, isn't it?

Thanks, but no thanks — make mine plain vanilla.

Homebuilders group hosts their scholarship recipients

Lincoln County Home Builders Association (LCHBA) members met their five scholarship recipients during a regular meeting in July. Four graduates of Ruidoso High School: Amy Sayner, Dee Dee McIntosh, Gregory Radziewicz, and Kasey Burford; and one graduate of Capitan High School, Nathan Fuchs were awarded scholarships by LCHBA.

Members of the group said it was gratifying to listen as each student told of their plans to achieve their goals.

"In a populace where people sometimes wander aimlessly through life, it was good to hear from young people that are setting goals and are willing to acquire the education needed to reach those goals," reads a news release provided by LCHBA.

"Lincoln County Home Builders Association wishes each one of them the best in life and is glad to play a small part in helping them get there."

The students also got to play a part in one of the activities sponsored by the homebuilders to finance the scholarship program.

Members have been selling tickets on an $x10 building, and the winning ticket was pulled from the box by Kasey Burford.

Bill Davidson of El Paso, Texas, won the storage building.

Kasey Burford, one of the scholarship recipients selected by Lincoln County Homebuilders, is pictured during the group's meeting drawing the name of the winner of a metal building given away by the homebuilders.

Woman's Club presents awards

The Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club's scholarship recipient for 1991-92 is Nicole Dominique Knox who is already in Las Cruces where she will be attending New Mexico State University.

She will receive $400. Tresa Lynn Halbrooks, the 1990-91 recipient, a sophomore at New Mexico State University, will receive $200 for continuing her education. She is an advertising major.

"She has been an outstanding student with excellent grades," reads a news release provided by the Woman's Club.

"With earnest hearts the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club volunteers help these students to receive instruction in knowledge," continues the release.

Other scholarships given to area students include Hugh O'Brien Youth Seminar, Girl State Seminar and Harriett Donohoo continuing education scholarship.

The Woman's Club is dedicated to "making these students more intelligent, more thoughtful, more courageous, more virtuous, and in every way capable of wise and just, of useful and noble living."

Lillian Steele (right) presents a scholarship to New Mexico State sophomore Tresa Lynn Halbrooks Tuesday afternoon. This is the second year for Halbrooks to receive the Woman's Club scholarship.

Quest workshop

Sandra Dycus, of North Carolina, trainer for the Lions International Quest Program, conducted a workshop here recently for Ruidoso and area teachers. Shown with her at Ruidoso High School are Bill Allen, Quest chairman for the sponsoring Ruidoso Noon Lions Club, and a teacher from Hondo, Porfiria Zinn. Quest is a program to build self esteem in students and to encourage them to not abuse substances.

Experience the beauty of New Mexico through images in book

If you know anyone who hasn't felt, touched and experienced the beauty of New Mexico, send them a copy of "New Mexico II," a new book of color photographs by David Muench.

Muench published the first "New Mexico" book in 1974, and that "coffee table" book of brilliant photography captured the varied scenes of New Mexico.

The latest collection of photographs has been carefully accumulated over the past three years.

All of the images in "New Mexico II" are new, dynamic and true to the spectacular beauty of this state.

"Surely, one of the primary functions of art is to do this reminding of what is, and must be enduring—whether it be in the form of a petroglyph or a photograph," says author Frederick Turner in the book's foreword.

"And though the American West lies under the threat of changes greater than those that have already transpired, there is still the great and heartbreakingly beautiful land, still the human pulse to create something in celebration of it, for the human to say not only 'I was there,' but also, and more significantly, 'I was here.'"

For the past 40 years Muench has been shooting the American landscape with a finesse that has awarded him a national following. His work consistently appears in "Life Magazine," "Smithsonian" and the "New York Times Magazine."

Muench has photographed books of Colorado, The Rockies, Utah and Arizona, yet he consistently returns to New Mexico.

This latest book, printed on top quality paper, covered with a dazzling book jacket featuring a Muench sunset, contains 180 full-color photographs, a shaded relief map of New Mexico and captions that contain information on the location.

For instance: "It was a petroglyph, a faded, snake-like shape against the rock's dusty chocolate, still making its obscure statement who knew how many hundreds of years after it had been carved on a day perhaps much like this one."

"New Mexico II" is available at the Aspen Tree in Ruidoso, and a spokesman for Graphic Arts Center Publishing Company said it is also in stock in the major bookstore chains.

Hondo singer wins local talent showdown

Alice Booky was named the local True Value Country Talent Showdown champion in Ruidoso recently.

According to a news release, this is the second straight year she has received this honor.

The local win gives Booky the right to advance to the state finals in September at the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque.

This Talent Showdown is sponsored locally by radio station KBUY and Win Place and Show with prizes provided by Griffin Western Wear and Bennett's Shur-Sav Super Market.

The winner at the State Fair will advance with $1,000 in cash to Denver, Colorado, and eventually to the National Finals in Nashville, Tennessee. The total grand prize of this nationally televised contest is $50,000, a recording contract and a Sierra pickup from GMC.

Booky's musical background includes playing the piano, guitar, banjo, fiddle and drums. She has been performing since the age of eight. At last year's State Fair Finals she placed second overall.

The True Value Country Music

Showdown is the world's largest country music talent contest. The showdown is designed to find the most promising country music talent in America, giving performers a chance to launch their professional careers.

Booky has a masters degree from New Mexico State University and is a third grade teacher at the Santa Rosa Elementary School where she also coaches the girls' seventh and eight grade basketball teams.

She is the daughter of Ernest and Cecilia Booky of Hondo.

Cinderella miss

Marissa Martinez is on her way to the 1992 International Cinderella Scholarship finals at the Myriad Convention Center in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. The Ruidoso girl will compete with girls from 32 states, Puerto Rico, Colombia and the Cayman Islands for scholarships and prizes worth more than $100,000. The pageant begins August 12 and continues through August 17, with competition in modeling, talent, social and interview skills.

Cooking with friends

Katherine Finley (seated, center) is joined by a few of her many good friends when she signs copies of her new book, "The Culinary and the Academic" at the Aspen Tree recently. Finley and her husband, Bob Finley, own and operate La Junta Guest Ranch and are famous for their good food and hospitality. Finley's recipes share space with some of her favorite quotations. She's pictured at the Aspen Tree with (standing, from left) Jane Deyo, Libby Sears, Mary Lou Moore, Flodie Wilson and (seated, right) Colleen Holmes. Copies of her book, printed in large type, are available at the Aspen Tree.

All American Festival opens with ENMU's "I Do, I Do"

"I Do, I Do" will be presented as part of the All American Festival at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, August 16 and 17, in the Sports Theater in the Ruidoso Downs Racing Complex.

The award-winning romantic musical is produced by the Addie Swearingen Repertory a performing group sponsored by the Department of Theatre and Dance at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

Tickets, $7, are available at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and at Region 9.

White Sands offers best seats available for meteor shower

A special Meteor Shower Watch is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Monday, August 12, at White Sands National Monument, to view the Perseid Meteor Shower. The Perseid Meteor Shower occurs every year on or about August 12, and is reputed to be the biggest annual meteor shower. In good years, 40 to 50 meteors an hour can be seen.

Victoria Wiggins of the Clyde Tombaugh Planetarium will discuss the origin and nature of meteors and the park will remain open until midnight for visitors to view the meteor shower.

In addition, members of the Alamogordo Amateur Astronomy Club will have several telescopes available for viewing celestial objects.

Prior to the program, a Sunset Stroll—a ranger-guided nature walk—will be at 6:45 p.m. For more information call 479-6124.

Have fun while helping out at the Senior Citizens Center

The Senior Citizens Center needs volunteers starting immediately for meal delivery, food boxing, and picking up food for delivery.

The jobs are all fun and rewarding and they plan to give one to one and one half hours on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, one day or all three days, once a month or four times a month.

Call the Senior Citizens Center for more information at 257-4565.

The Plant Corner

Vacation turns up a beautiful plant

DEAR SALLY:

While on vacation I saw, somewhere, a very unusual and beautiful plant. I asked about the plant and was told it was an Adenium. When I got home I looked for this plant in a couple of books I have and asked a friend at the nursery. I can find nothing written about this plant, so I'm turning to you for help. I enjoy your Column very much and will appreciate any help you can give.

Marjorie R.

DEAR MARJORIE:

The Adenium or Adenium obesum is indeed a very beautiful plant. The plant is also called the desert rose and be aware the sap of the Adenium is poisonous and should be kept out of reach of children and pets.

The adenium obesum develops an interesting trunk. The twisted branches grow from huge, fleshy, half-buried trunk or rootstock. The leaves are sparse and even leafless for long periods, however, this makes the branches more showy. They have a clustered saucer shaped blossoms that are deep pink and are about two inches across. This plant is more for careful enthusiasts and collectors. Before you rush out to buy this plant, reaffirm your dedication to its care and you will enjoy its beauty for many, many years to come.

Soil—Absolutely essential seems in-

By Sally Black
Ruidoso News
Plant Specialist

adequate to say how important good drainage is for the A. Obesum. A special mix for cacti and other succulents with sharp sand added would be proper. Use at least six inches of plastic chunks in bottom of clay pot with sand dribbled over before adding the growing mix.

Water—Do not water after planting, wait a few days, a week for roots to become established.

Requires infrequent watering in summer and even less in winter. Allow to become completely dry to touch and the leaves look a little limp between waterings. When you do water, do a thorough job of it making sure the soil is completely wet, but never leave plant to stand in water after it is completely soaked.

Light—Needs good bright, west or south exposure, but not too near the glass to cause heat or cold scald.

Temperature—The plant cannot take frost or winter chill and cold soil. It needs warmth. If you are away from home, keep the thermostat not too much lower than 50 degrees. As I said, this is a special plant with special requirements, so be prepared before bringing this plant into your home. The good news is, it will allow long vacations without water.

Fertilizer—Bone meal may be the safest and this should be used sparingly. Succulents do not require much more than a well-balanced soil mixture in which to thrive. Bone meal should be added to the soil at the rate of one teaspoon to each six-inch pot, according to size of your pot.

Perhaps we best get our own private Aku Aku. As Mr. H. Brunell, seated at the tables next to ours at lunch not long ago, was telling us the Aku Aku was a good-guy of the floating spirit variety, just waiting around for each of us to adopt one for our very own. That all were entitled to just one Aku Aku, that we must invite him into our life, he would remain with us. I went straight-way home and adopted my Aku Aku. My thinking everyone deserves one good-guy in day to day life.

Send questions to Sally Black, c/o The Ruidoso News, P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, N.M. 88345.
