Court rules in future of Ft. Stanton

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A federal appeals court in Denver has opened the door for parents and guardians to become involved in the future placement of their developmentally disabled children.

The Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals Monday overturned portions of a 1990 New Mexico Federal Court ruling that required residents of two state hospitals to be transferred to community-based programs without regard for the availability or cost of those services.

Kent Winchester, the attorney for the parents of retarded patients at Fort Stanton and Los Lunas hospitals, claimed victory. The decision means that more than 100 developmentally disabled patients will not be forced against their will to leave the institutions, he said.

Winchester represented the parents, guardians and clients as interveners in a class action suit filed in 1987 against the state. The suit, filed by Protection Advocacy Inc., sought to close the two state hospitals.

The advocacy group contended the state was discriminating against its most severely disabled clients and that hospital employees could not deliver the services needed.

In December 1990, District Judge James Parker ruled in favor of the advocacy group, saying the state must transfer the developmentally disabled patients from the two hospitals and that it could not consider the cost.

The parents and guardians appealed the decision Monday's ruling was in response to that appeal.

"We couldn't have asked for anything better," said Ima Cooper, whose son is a resident of Fort Stanton. Their plans now have got to stop. The parents will be part of the decision making and that's what we have to have. It's so unfair of them to take it out of our hands.

Cooper said the parents hadn't expected a decision for another six months, so the time element really is a terrific surprise.

In the case of Jackson vs. Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School, Parker ruled that the state violated due process rights of residents at the two hospitals. He cited Fourteenth Amendment protection and said the state had discriminated against its most severely disabled.

Rainbows and stones

A wet week in Ruidoso treated residents to a spectacular, intense rainbow early last Monday. Temperatures dropped and the driving rain brought the great hailstorm of '92 on Friday, covering the valley like snow.

Remember...

Government offices and banks are closed today to observe Memorial Day, now scheduled on the last Monday in May.

The Ruidoso Library is closed, but Ruidoso schools are in session. Capitan students are through for the year.

Memorial Day, also called Decoration Day, is held to commemorate dead servicemen.

Veterans' groups will be out with their Buddy poppies.

Council considers controls of events

Special events, regulating alarm systems, alcoholic beverages and utility disputes are four public hearings leading the agenda at the Ruidoso Village Council meeting Tuesday in the council chambers.

The special events ordinance relates to licensing of special events. The ordinance is designed to set standards for handling all special events licenses to protect the public health, safety and welfare.

The ordinance became necessary after last year's shooting during the Golden Aspen Motorcycle Rally.

Meetings among the council and their special ad hoc committee to control violence and lawlessness for the upcoming motorcycle rally have centered around one or two drinking establishments.

Residents have expressed a desire to know what plans are being developed to protect the entire community during this event.

The ordinance regulating alarm devices was created to minimize the risks arising from false alarms.

Also, police are often unable to determine whether premises are secure after an alarm has been sent.

An ordinance relating to alcoholic beverages deals with demands on village resources.

The council finds that the present security requirements for events with live entertainment where alcohol may be consumed should be strengthened as provided in this ordinance.

The last ordinance for public hearing establishes a Utility Dispute Advisory Board.

This ordinance allows for an adjustment in water and sewer service charges by 50-100 percent in cases of leaks and other extraordinary circumstances.

Regular agenda items, and order of appearance, include:

1. Lease agreement with United Helicopter, Inc. (tabled from last meeting)

2. Request for an increase of funds from the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

3. Extension of the Commerce Agreement

4. Discussion of the exterior color of the Civic Events Center

5. Discussion of the furnishings of the Civic Events Center

6. Extension of the lease agreement for the Activities Center

7. Agreement with the Ruidoso Gymnastics Association to submit the gymnasium

8. Health Insurance coverage rates

9. Schedule public hearing for Ordinance 92-13 relating to sewer rates

10. Resolution 92-16 Annual membership in the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District

11. Boards and commission appointments

12. Consideration of award of contract for engineering services for special assessment district

Gang activities flare in schools

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The underbelly of things to come, juvenile gangs, surfaced in a big way last week at Ruidoso Middle School. Police and school officials scrambled to keep things in check.

Shortly after 2 p.m. Wednesday, police received a call from Middle School secretary Barbara Graham that juveniles with a gun were threatening a mid-schooler.

The mid-schooler, a 14-year-old, said he was in science class when Patrick Platero, 18, from Mesalero, and two other Mesalero youths, one male and one female, approached him.

According to a police report, the student said he was told by the girl to turn around. He said when he turned, Platero was "throwing gang signs."

He said he looked away. "The Indian girl said look again, so I did. He lifted up his shirt and had a gun in his pants," the victim said.

The mid-schooler said that Platero must have seen a teacher, because he took off running.

Problems at the school started early Tuesday when principal Paula Papponi felt it necessary to expel a student for his gang-related threats against another student.

At 4:30 p.m., Ruidoso police dispatched a call that a juvenile told the victim that he was going to shoot him tomorrow (Wednesday) at the school.

Papponi had scheduled a Pal Assistance League field trip Wednesday.

Tuesday evening Papponi gave detailed instructions to school supervisory personnel to ward off any problems with the student marked for expulsion in her absence.

She notified Detectives Lanny Maddox and Leo Wardwell about the student's threats, that they were gang-related and that she took them seriously. She said the student was not permitted back in school and requested police be on campus the following day.

Also on Tuesday evening, Papponi talked with the victim's parents and with the aggressor's parents, making recommendations and explaining consequences.

The aggressor's parents had been informed in a prior consultation after another similar incident that he would be dismissed from school if it happened again.

Papponi told two of the school secretaries to prepare the necessary paperwork for the expulsion.

Wednesday morning, she again conferred with the secretaries before leaving on the field trip.

Maddox and Wardwell arrived at the school at 7:45 a.m. and met with the two students and their parents.

Papponi and a counselor sat in on the meeting. Papponi, however, left for the student field trip while the meeting still was in progress.

Her last instructions to the school personnel were that the student was not permitted on campus at any time, day or night, under any circumstances.

Maddox and Wardwell continued the investigation. Maddox said after an hour and a half of discussion between parents and students, the two detectives concluded that their own initial allegations toward the aggressive student were not justified, that one student was not more to blame than the other.

Furthermore, they reasoned it was not right to punish one and not the other if Papponi was basing her opinions on their allegations. She was on the student field trip, not available for confirmation. Therefore, they told the secretary the boy should be allowed back in class.

"In any event, it certainly wasn't our intentions to supersede school policy," Maddox said.

Back in school, the student once again began acting in an unruly manner. It was alleged that the student then called Platero where the three Mesalero youths were staying. The Platero principal knew of no incoming calls to Platero who was at school until noon and it is not certain how he was contacted.

When the three youths (one of whom was Platero) arrived at campus, they searched for their earlier friend and then they searched for his victim.

A warrant for Platero's arrest was issued about 3 p.m. Thursday. Platero was picked up and taken to the Ruidoso Police Station.

The station was very active with several juveniles being brought along with the young friend of three-inch Platero who was taken for a juvenile.

The booking agent asked if the officer was finished with Platero, who was standing with the relative. The officer said he was, and apparently everyone believed the relative was Platero's parent.

Platero, thinking he was released, walked out of the station with his adult relative. He was waiting car.

Several minutes later, police officers realized that Platero was not with the other juveniles, and was gone.

Ruidoso Police Chief Bill Swenor was not present at the press conference Monday. He understood that the incident was a mistake, but he said he was not sure if it was.

In the meantime, the student who was expelled from school on Tuesday was still in school.

High utility bills prompt Downs board to move its Village Hall

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

After enduring almost a year of high utility bills at the current Ruidoso Downs village office, the board of trustees voted Friday night to rent a modular building to use as new village hall.

The average cost per month for electricity for the current building, the old Redmens Club, is $2,004.15, but only $4,500 had been budgeted for utilities for a full year, according to Mayor Joe Hayhurst. The estimated cost for a year would be $24,000, while natural gas for the building is about $700 a year.

Hayhurst said these expenses are one of the main reasons this year's budget has been so tight, along with the cost of insurance for the building.

Since his bid for election as mayor in March, Hayhurst has made moving to a new building a priority because of these costs, and the village seems to be close to accomplishing that goal. The village received bids from four companies to rent a modular building, with the lowest costing $12,872 for the first year, and the highest costing $22,964 for the first year.

Hayhurst said the important cost to him was the delivery and set up fee which has to be paid upon delivery by the company. The least expensive one, Scottsman, was also the least expensive for delivery as well at $1,116.

Trustee Ray Fredrickson said the second low bid by Gelco would be the best because after the first year the monthly rent would be $76 cheaper, even if the delivery cost is higher. Village attorney Bob Beauvais said Fredrickson is right in that they need to look at the entire contract and its life since it is essentially the same structure.

Hayhurst said the drop in the utility costs would be enough to help make up this difference. The modulars are completely electric and would cost about $400 a month for utilities. He said he hoped they would not still be using the modular by the time it gets cheaper because the long term plan is to have a permanent building for the village offices.

Trustee Charlotte Craig pointed out that at this time the village doesn't have the extra money to spend on delivery charges so the Scottsman model would be better. The Scottsman company also offered to give them wooden siding instead of metal for no extra charge. Craig made the motion to rent the Scottsman, and she, Trustee Judy Miller and Trustee Jackie Branum voted for the rental, while Fredrickson voted no.

The village has just one more federal hurdle to clear to see if this modular can be placed at the site of the old village hall on Highway 70, Hayhurst said. He said they should hear some time this week whether they can place it at that site. If that site is not approved, Hayhurst said they would like to place the building by the fire station, east of the old city hall site and about one block off the highway. The company will be able to deliver the building in about 45 days, so the offices will be moving in July.

The offices were originally moved from the old site because the Environmental Improvement Department determined that sewer lines had broken under the building and contaminated the dirt. The state department of finance and administration gave the village $15,000 to move the offices to a new location, and the board selected the Redmens Club for a temporary location.

The board of trustees later decided to have the old municipal building torn down so the area could be cleaned up.

Trustees Craig and Branum, who were on the board at the time of the move along with Fredrickson, said they did not find out what the utilities in the new building were going to cost until after the decision to move had been made.

Because the budget is so tight the board decided not to give any money to the Counseling Center at this time. Hayhurst said there was about $500 available in the budget, but the center had requested $5,000 at the last board meeting. A decision was made at that meeting to ask the Ruidoso Downs Race Track for assistance since the center sees an increase in cases from Ruidoso Downs during the months the track is open.

The mayor said he spoke to track general manager Max Johnson about the proposal, but Johnson declined because they already have a chaplain and counseling services. Fredrickson said they should go ahead and give them the money since they just gave away extra money for the modular building.

He said it is also a good organization which the municipal judge uses.

Branum also agreed they should help the center since Ruidoso Downs residents do use the services. She asked if later in the year they found a little money if they could decide then to assist them. Village clerk Leann Weihbrecht said they could decide when they review the budget at mid-year. Fredrickson voted against it.

In other business the board should be able to save a little money by choosing a new medical insurance company after reviewing three bids. Mutual of Omaha offered the best bid with a monthly premium of $3,160.12 and all employees who wanted insurance have been approved by the company. Weihbrecht said the change in companies should save the village about $14,000.

The village was notified several months ago that the current insurance company planned to increase rates by more than 50 percent. Weihbrecht said Mutual put a lot of work into the bid and is a very reputable company. She said the employees will now have a $1,000 deductible and will pay 30 percent of the total, while Mutual pays 70 percent. The life insurance policy will also go up to $20,000, instead of the current $10,000.

"We have got more employees who want this insurance, than we have employees on our insurance right now," Weihbrecht said.

She said a representative of Mutual will now come and talk to the employees and answer any questions they have.

The board also gave approval to publish the ordinance to increase the gross receipts tax by 1/16. This will raise the current rate of 5.875 by 1/16 beginning January 1, 1993.

Village attorney Beauvais also gave his opinion on the discussion at the last meeting on the excavation on private property that was potentially dangerous for other land owners in the area. He said since it is on private property the city cannot interfere because it is a private matter between the parties. The owner of the land would be liable if his excavation caused damages to the adjoining properties.

Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday for a budget session for the upcoming fiscal year.

Court

ly disabled patients.

Monday's ruling found that the district court erred when it said the treatment teams could not take into account what services were available in placing the clients.

Under the appeals court ruling, the state is allowed to look at what services and facilities are available and what it would cost to serve clients.

The appeals court noted that just having developmentally disabled clients in an institution does not violate their constitutional rights. There is no constitutional right to be placed in a community program, the appeals court wrote.

Charles Woodhouse, president of the parents association at the Los Lunas hospital, said the decision means any movement of clients that takes place will be done with the consent of the parents, guardians and residents instead of the clients being forced out into an unknown environment. Woodhouse's daughter is a resident at Los Lunas.

The Associated Press reported that Winchester said the decision also means if the state's intention all along has been to shut down the two hospitals, officials can no longer hide behind Parker's ruling.

If the two hospitals were closed, New Mexico would be the only state in the nation without a large congregate care facility for developmentally disabled patients.

Fort Stanton Administrator Ervin Aldaz has worked since last year with state Health Department officials and representatives in the state Senate and House to come up with a new function for the hospital.

The State Legislature in January appropriated money to start remodeling of Fort Stanton as a long term geriatric facility.

Fort Stanton employs more than 200 Lincoln County residents and is a mainstay of the Capitan village economy.

According to deputy secretary

Linda Kahoe, the state health department "still is studying the court's decision" concerning its impact on the futures of the two hospitals.

"But it does appear that the court of appeals was unwilling to discount the judgment of the state's dedicated professionals who work with the developmentally disabled at both the Fort Stanton and Los Lunas facilities," she said.

Carol Hutchinson, public information officer for the department, said the agency is pleased with the decision.

"The appeal court's decision, filed in response to the appeal of the intervening residents and their guardians, will not alter the department's commitment to provide quality services to the residents of the department's facilities."

She said the decision conveys greater flexibility to the department in developing quality, cost effective services for the facilities' residents, including the development of the new community residential settings.

LCMC finances are on the mend compared with same time last year

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lincoln County Medical Center has had a healthy fiscal year and is off to a good start in the first month of the new year.

Administrator Valerie Miller reported at the board of trustees meeting that in March, the last month of the fiscal year, activity was up compared to previous months for a year-to-date net revenue of $3.1 million, which puts them $589,000 ahead of this time last year. Excess of revenue over expenses is also $122,289 ahead of last year.

"The last fiscal year continues to be headed in the direction we want. It may not be as quick as we want it, but that is also with $988,000 of free care so we are looking pretty good," Miller said.

The free care is both in charity and bad debts. April was not as active for the hospital, but the net revenue was still up $13,051 from April 1991. If the mill levy amount is subtracted from other revenues the loss for the month is $24,308, including the Carrizozo Health Centers.

The Carrizozo Clinic has had a tremendous turn around the past year. This year they lost $4,000 compared to $34,000 the year before. They had committed to bring the clinic to the break-even point and came very close, Miller said.

The Emergency Medical Service had a loss of $7,499 for the month, but because they had been budgeted for a loss of close to $55,000, EMS is $58,056 ahead of the budget for the year-to-date. Emergency services are provided on a contractual basis with the fiscal year ending June 30.

Healthcare for Hondo residents is a little easier to get to with the opening of a new clinic one day a week in Hondo. Dr. Michael Carbutto is taking appointments through his office and then comes down to Hondo on Fridays. Friday he saw his first patients under this program.

Miller also said the colorectal screening has gone very well, and they had about 160 patients. She said more screenings and health fairs will be planned in the fall because this summer they will be busy with the mill levy campaign.

The county mill levy committee had its first meeting Tuesday with fairly good attendance, Miller said. People from throughout the county were invited to be on the committee to help the clinic reach more people with information on the necessity of continuing the mill levy, not raising it. She said they agreed with the hospital board that it was a good idea to have a special election on the levy because of the anti-tax feelings people have when looking at a full ballot of tax issues.

She said they also reviewed the history of the mill levy and a mill levy fact sheet that the hospital public relations office created. Each of the members gave her a list of the groups that meet in their areas and when they meet. The idea is to talk to each of these groups before the special election this fall, Miller said.

To pay for the special election, the board had decided to get the money from an unrestricted fund from the Presbyterian Healthcare Services, which LCMC is an affiliate of, Miller said. This money will also help them develop an advertising program to inform voters on the mill levy. It will not be on the LCMC financial statements, but they will have to go through the appropriate channels at Albuquerque to get it, she said.

Williams said board members are invited to attend the mill levy meetings. Much of the county was represented as members came from Capitan, Carrizozo, Lincoln, Alto and Ruidoso.

County commission representative Bill Elliot said he has gotten a good feeling from people on the mill levy as he goes around the county. He and other candidates who are running for office have had several opportunities to speak to large groups, and he said he always mentions that he is in support of the special election and the hospital to remind people of the issue.

"We all need to talk it up," Williams reminded the board members.

In other business, Miller also announced the hospital is working on getting a pulmonary rehabilitation service by the first of July. This would include physical therapy and respiratory therapy for people suffering from chronic lung diseases to increase their tolerance. Miller said it is not that expensive to get into, and the benefits to the patients are great. They are still working out the details but should know soon, she said.

LCMC auxiliary president Inez Tanner said the scholarship committee awarded close to $3,000 in scholarships to seven people. They will be assisting Bill Carpenter, Deanna Swanner, Mary Lou Moore, Gary Blosser, Patty Shepard, Wes Brown and Linda Picaso in going to school in a medical-related field. She said the group was happy to be able to help them as most of the applicants work at LCMC.

Gang

to their Cree Meadows area home.

Two Mesclero males followed the teenagers in a blue Ford. Several words were exchanged and it was reported that one youth, supposedly a member of the same gang as Platero, had a gun in his belt.

Patrol officers located the Ford shortly after the report. One of the subjects had vacated the vehicle. The victims, a witness and the suspect met with the police at the police department.

A pellet gun, an exact replica of a Colt Python 357 Magnum, was confiscated from one of the youths and that boy was suspended from high school.

Since the two incidents, Ruidoso Police Chief Swenor said Friday he had been spending most of his time squashing rumors, sorting out fact from fiction with concerned parents.

One parent called The News, contending that no Noticeable action has been taken by the police department or school officials.

He said gang activity has been common knowledge with the mid-schoolers and that they have been talking about the gang from Mesclero for nearly a year.

Another parent said his child had overheard teachers threatening to quit unless something was done with gang activity.

Some children were concerned that the parents were not taking the gang activity at schools seriously enough.

One parent called to say he was taking his child, an honor student, out of school for the remainder of the year.

Another student said that Ruidoso police and detectives were spending a lot of time at the school, especially around students targeted by gang members.

Still another parent called to say his child was disturbed over a "lockdown" at mid-school. He said his child said the school was locked, paper was put on the windows and they were forced to sit quietly until the halls were deemed safe.

Papponi said the middle school locked all entry doors except the front door as a safety and security measure. She said there was no "lockdown," that class doors remained opened. She said teachers and school personnel were instructed to stay composed during this time to prevent panic.

Swenor said patrol units are monitoring school property.

Superintendent of Schools Mike Gladden said he knew of only three incidents that resulted in police being called to mid-school over the past year.

The News found three calls to mid-school in the week preceding last Wednesday's incident.

On Wednesday, May 13, there was a battery at mid school. On Thursday, May 14, there were gang related threats. And also on Thursday, a caller complained of a blue Ford pickup loaded with Mesclero juveniles driving "around and around" at mid-school.

Police officers say many more calls have been made.

"There's been a police car down there, basically, everyday for the last six months," one parent reports. "I think they got some kind of deal with the school that they patrol it and don't have to make an official call. But when you do that, there's an underlying reason," he said.

One school official said that students after leaving their homes often change into more gang like dress and that parents aren't aware.

Parents complain that information coming from official sources is often scant and appears at times to be self-serving.

Sergeant Robert Achterberg of the Ruidoso Police Department has been observing the activity around the schools for nearly a year and said gang related activity is definitely on the upswing.

However, Achterberg said too often parents mistake any activity as gang related and sometimes assess the situation to be more serious than circumstances indicate.

Achterberg said he would like to see a general information meeting between the police, parents and school officials.

president; and Ed Way, co-secretary. These officers will begin their duties at the July meeting.

Apache Trails seeks state ad dollars

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

With any luck the Apache Trails group will have about $16,000 in state funds and enough money of their own to match it.

The group, which encompasses 10 communities in the surrounding area, has applied for state matching cooperative advertising funds through the tourism department and should know by the end of June if they will receive them. The application was put together by members Lisa Storey and Mariann Schweers with the help of Laura Doh, marketing director of the Museum of the Horse, who has had experience in state applications.

Schweers made a presentation at the annual meeting of Apache Trails on Wednesday in Capitan. She said they had begun working on it after the last monthly meeting and were not able to bring it before the group because of the deadline to get the application in to Santa Fe. One part of the application required that they tell the group's marketing plan. Schweers said they listed five items, including brochures, billboards and advertisements in visitor and vacation guides.

Two new concepts they have proposed are developing a speakers bureau and attending trade shows. Under the speakers bureau people from the Apache Trails membership would speak to other regional organizations to educate and inform them about the attractions in the area.

Trails chairperson Gary Woods said the speakers bureau would be a great idea because even people within the area don't know what Apache Trails is. A committee was formed to start organizing how they want to do it.

With the marketing plan the group had to submit a budget of the cost of these advertising methods. Schweers said the cost of the trade show would be $2,000 for Nancy Radziewicz of New Mexico Connection to represent them at ten trade shows. It would cost a lot more than that to send one of the members to the shows, Schweers said.

Apache Trails had printed 200,000 brochures and had less than 60,000 after only a year's use and the summer season yet to come. Storey is arranging to have it reprinted with two changes. They will make the words in the logo bolder and easier to read, and White Oaks and Valley of the Fires will be added to a list of attractions. The cost for the reprinting should be about $10,000.

Schweers said as they were putting the application together they kept in mind a point scale that the state will be judging the applications on. She said more points are given to groups promoting regions and those promoting national or state landmarks, such as Smokey the Bear National Forest or White Sands National Monument.

"The best thing for us to do now since we've done our part is to come up with our matching amount," Schweers said.

She suggested they try a membership drive and make requests from the communities' lodgers tax committees, which have helped them in the past. Having the complete budget and marketing plan will help them when they approach potential members because they can explain exactly how the money is spent.

Schweers has already approached representatives of Mescalero and is trying to contact tribal president Wendell Chino who will have to give the final approval. She said she had taken some of the Apache Trails brochures to the tribal office in Mescalero, and they had accepted them to pass out to visitors. Schweers said she went to talk to tribal representatives because she is a neutral person, and not with any community that may have voiced opposition to the proposal for a monitored retrievable nuclear waste storage site.

Woods said he is optimistic that if the current members take more initiative they will be able to get more members involved.

"We all realize we need to raise the money before we can do things we want to," he said.

Secretary Ellen Mitchum gave the members a copy of a list of people who have called the 1-800 number for Apache Trails. These can also serve as a prospect list for the individual communities to send information to.

In other business Capitan representative Dorothy Smith announced the whole nation will be celebrating the golden anniversary of Smokey the Bear from October 1993 to 1994. Capitan and Washington D.C. will be the bases of the celebration.

Gentle Conan is pet of the week

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

He's a soft, round, loving dog who's eager to please and would be a great companion for a child growing up in Lincoln County.

Conan is a seven-month-old Clumber spaniel mix. "That's the heaviest of the little spaniels," said Randy Basch, manager of the County Humane Society animal shelter. It is thought to be a cross between a baset hound and an old alpine spaniel, he said.

Conan is low-slung to the ground, but full grown could weigh up to 65 pounds.

Although he was released to the shelter for adoption by his owners, they are very interested in his future and want him to be placed in a secure home with attentive owners, Basch said.

Toward that end, they will sponsor Conan for neutering, which is the major cost associated with adoption.

A look-alike at the shelter, Sheena, also is a Clumber spaniel mix with a similar reddish brown coat. Both dogs are housebroken. Sheena is a little younger, about five-months-old, and was brought to the shelter as a stray about two months ago.

"They have terrific personalities, very outgoing," Basch said.

Sheena will need to be spayed.

All animals adopted from the shelter must be spayed or neutered as part of the organization's commitment to humanely reduce the population of unwanted dogs and cats.

Without permanently altering the adopted animals, they might reproduce litters that eventually would have to be destroyed because of the shortage of homes. The society does not believe destroying animals is a humane answer, although it is forced to use the method to keep the shelter from becoming unhealthily overcrowded.

People who would like to enhance the chances for adoption of a particular animal or shelter residents in general, may donate to the spay and neuter fund.

If time is an asset more plentiful than money, the cats and dogs would appreciate some extra attention in the form of treats, playing or being walked on a leash.

For more information about Conan, Sheena or any of the other dogs and cats, contact Basch at 257-4001 or stop at the shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road.

Family Practice moves into spacious offices

The Family Practice Associates of Ruidoso needed a little elbow room and now they have it at a new location at 304 Sudderth. The three doctors and one certified nurse practitioner have all the room they need to see patients and take care of their needs.

Dr. Arlene Brown, Dr. James Fenimore, Dr. Steve Frey and Rosemary Zink had their practice in the Sierra Professional Building but didn't have the room to see patients all during the same hours, so they began work on their current building in December. The group was able to move in to the new office by the end of March, but workers are still putting the finishing touches on the bigger building.

Brown said the building had to be completely gutted on the inside before work began because it used to be a swimming pool.

The change in location allows the doctors an increased amount of time that they can provide care to patients. They now have eight examination rooms, instead of four, and they also have four consultation rooms. The filing area and business office is also larger.

They also have a children's exam room and a separate waiting room with toys for children. The whole facility is also in full compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act so handicapped individuals have easy access to medical care.

The office has also expanded the number of computer terminals so that as a doctor sees a patient, information on that person can be called up on a computer. This also helps in electronic submission of insurance claims and billing.

Dr. Brown said the location of the offices so close to Lincoln County Medical Center is also an advantage. Before, they usually did lab work in the office or sent it to a reference lab, but now they can send the patient directly to the hospital for the work.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Family Practice Associates telephone number remains the same as it was in the old location, 257-7712.

Doctors and staff at the Family Practice Associates of Ruidoso have room to work in at the new location at 304 Sudderth. The new location has eight exam rooms and four consultation rooms for the three doctors and one nurse practitioner.

New gallery is open in old Anderson building

A new Art and History Museum and Gallery is now open at 2808 Sudderth, in the Uptown District in Ruidoso.

The Museum and Art Gallery, located in the old Anderson Building, is privately owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rakocy, American Artists and Associates.

Mr. Rakocy, who holds a masters of fine art degree, was curator of the El Paso Museum for 20 years. He is investing his life's work in the quality collection comparable to the high standards of leading Santa Fe and Taos galleries, according to a news release.

The gallery will have eight to 10 western artists in the stables, and will display Southwestern art by Peter Hurd, Mannie Acosta, Bill Rakocy, Gloria Canterbury, Susan Swartz, Chet Kwiecinski, Maria Prata, Elizabeth Byers, Louise Barratt, John Kress, Tag Macy and other artists.

The work of up and coming artists as well as artists of renown will be shown at the opening.

Art restoration and appraisal services will be offered at all times.

One-man-shows will be presented by top artists, including Mr. Rakocy himself. He has had one-man-showings in Kansas City, Kansas; Cleveland, Ohio; Butler Institute and El Paso Museum of Art in El Paso, Texas. He is listed in "Who's Who" in American Art.

According to a news release, Rakocy does the essential in his painting.

"He not only establishes his personal identity in style, but makes a timeless statement pointing out the core of illusive nature and graphically captures the spirit of a New Mexico hill or figure," reads the release. "With a distinctive style that is above technique and decorative style, he reflects his deep understanding of the universe and the people that reside here."

Bill and Gloria Rakocy invite everyone to visit their new gallery.

Mr. Rakocy may be reached by calling (915) 684-9716 or writing 2808 Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso.

Chaparral grads remember when

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

When Ruidoso village officials talk about the progressive concept of a convention center and a possible adjoining hotel, the folks in Ruidoso Downs just smile.

They know it's all been done before, although the convention center is now a museum and the hotel has long since been torn down.

For five years starting in 1961, the Chaparral Resort and Convention Motor Hotel was the shining star of Lincoln County.

"It was really an asset to Ruidoso," said Earline Phillips, who used to handle reservations, conventions and the front desk for the Chaparral (although then she was Earline Ross). "You couldn't believe the conventions we couldn't without a lead person. We even had them waiting in line for the next year."

"We'd fill the other motels in town with the convention overflow from Sunday through Wednesday. The rest of the week they needed their rooms for racing (patrons)."

The hotel could feed 500 easily. It featured a dining room, coffee shop, barber shop, beauty shop, dress shop, boutique, heated pool and a motel heliport service.

LEONA AND HARRY WHIPPLE

Phillips and more than 100 other former employees of the Chaparral gathered earlier this month for a 30-year reunion.

Invitations were mailed out on the old Chaparral stationery by Harry and Leona Whipple, who managed the operation.

It was a family enterprise.

Whipple's father managed the bar, his mother managed the coffee shop and brother Jimmy was the bookkeeper.

"When they ran it, we were 'thee' place to go," Phillips said.

"If you really think about it, we actually helped put the Ruidoso area on the map through the conventions we brought in," Whipple said at the reunion. The Whipples now live in El Paso and organized the get-together at Cree Meadows Country Club.

"The ice skating was the finest in the Southwest and the biggest,"

he said. "Then it was converted into one the largest dance floors from Dallas to Los Angeles."

Several hundred square dancers would assemble at one time for an evening of shuffling and twirling.

Ray Reed, the creator of the annual Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium, often worked with bands that performed at the convention center and hotel.

Besides teen and mariachi bands, there was Saturday night dancing with local bands and some big name entertainers such as Willie Nelson, Tex Ritter, Faron Young, Bob Wills and his Texas Playboys, Webb Pierce and Ferlin Husky.

"Everything was done in a first class manner," Reed said, although occasionally a bit of the wild west showed through in bear wrestling matches.

"Without a doubt, we created a vast number of future tourists for the area."

For his effort, Whipple received a special tourism award from then governor Jack M. Campbell.

Movie stars discovered Ruidoso Downs years before Santa Fe became fashionable.

Among the well-known names to stop at the Chaparral were Robert Mitchum, Chip Wills and Dale Robertson.

"Yes, we left our mark here in this wonderful mountain resort," Whipple said. "We loved it."

The Chaparral opened in 1961 and Lincoln County to enjoy the races, indoor brought thousands of conventioners to ice skating, dances and huge banquets.

His personal favorite at the motel was the Road Runner lounge and dance floor, where gifted musicians gathered to entertain. He recalled the 2 a.m. renditions of "The Saints Go Marching In" by the late Art Holt on trumpet, Dick Shaw on drums, Leroy Gooch on the bass fiddle and Blackie at the piano. Everyone would march through the hotel waking up other hotel customers, he said.

Whipple greeted the former maître d' Don Davis, who used to be called "the little old wine maker" and came all the way from Florida for the reunion.

He then named a string of other employees from those who slung dishes and food in the kitchen, to the waitresses, desk people, security, housekeeping and regular musicians.

Two men from Dallas and one from El Paso built the Chaparral with the idea of eventually putting in a casino. Whipple, who had been operating a restaurant in town, supervised the project and then took over the management.

Phillips initially was hired to break in the desk crew because she previously had experience with two other motels. She stayed six years.

She had barely walked into the lobby before she rented the first room for $12, even though the drapes weren't even up yet and she had to put a sheet over the windows.

Using the convention center just west of the hotel, 2,800 persons could be seated and there was 25,600 square feet of unobstructed display and exhibit area.

After its heyday, the Chaparral was purchased by someone who lacked the commitment to its legacy. It was allowed to deteriorate, then picked up by a bank and then eventually torn down to make way for condominiums east of the convention center.

But for its former employees, the memories and friendships formed during those five years still are very much alive.

School gets a head start on Radon cleanup

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Over the summer, state environmental consultants will try to come up with corrective measures to lower levels of radon in Ruidoso schools.

The goal of the district is to complete most of the recommended work before students return to the classrooms next fall, School Supt. Mike Gladden said this week.

In the spring of 1991, preliminary tests showed levels of radon gas in Nob Hill elementary school were higher than recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). A second test was run from May through June of that year and then a broader test covering several schools was undertaken.

Radon is a radioactive gas emitted from the ground during the disintegration of radium. Mountainous areas are especially prone to higher concentrations.

To confirm the readings, the district entered into a longer test period and became part of the state's voluntary testing and correction program.

Readings at Nob Hill last summer were as high as 7.70 picocuries per liter (pCi/L) of air in one classroom. Out of 26 charcoal canisters placed at various sites in the school, 12 registered concentrations above 4 pCi/L. Readings under four do not require additional attention.

The latest tests generated lower readings than last summer, an average of between 4-7 pCi/L, but Gladden said the district will move ahead with corrections while the state is willing to pay for the work at the pilot schools.

"Although we are not required at this point to do anything, we think it's coming," Gladden said. "We think radon will be to the 1990s as asbestos was to the 1980s."

Gladden said school officials met last week with Ron Mitchell, environmental scientist, and Carl Stubbs from the State Environment Department, and with representatives of Colorado Vintage, the company that was awarded the contract to recommend specific corrective work at the pilot schools.

Several of Ruidoso's schools were on the borderline of requiring further action. The consultant will come back in the first or second week after the start of summer vacation to perform more validation tests and to determine the appropriate action such as installing venting fans.

"They may drill core samples in the classroom floors," Gladden said. "Recommended action could center on changes in the heating and venting system or to the subfloor. They also will present a master plan as money is available on what the district should pursue (as a permanent remedy)."

Gladden emphasized that the district was being "proactive and cooperative with the state and as a result, it will receive state money. I don't know what at this point what the full mitigation will be."

Eight school districts statewide are participating in the pilot program, he said. "We will be the ones to benefit, but it doesn't mean the levels here are higher than elsewhere in the state."

Last year, the State Environment Department announced that 23 percent of the schools it had tested for radon gas during the 1990-91 school year had at least one classroom over the "action" guideline of 4 pCi/L prescribed by the EPA. Tests were conducted in 130 public schools.

Additional equipment was given to the district by the state this week to test the general air quality in 20 classrooms each at Nob Hill, Ruidoso Middle School and White Mountain Intermediate, Gladden said.

"That is being financed through the grant also," he said. "The tests will look at a broader spectrum of gases."

Ruidoso Board of Realtors hosts golf and gin rummy charity at Cree Meadows

The Ruidoso Board of Realtors will sponsor its annual golf scramble, dinner and gin rummy tournament to benefit Casa Esperanza and a local Ruidoso charity on Tuesday.

The golf scramble will be a four-person, best ball tournament at Cree Meadows Golf Course. The brisket buffet dinner and gin rummy tournament will also be at Cree Meadows, following the scramble.

This annual event is organized by local realtors who volunteer their time to put this event together. All proceeds from the event will go to a needy Ruidoso charity and Casa Esperanza, New Mexico's home-away-from-home for families touched by cancer.

Casa Esperanza was founded April 9, 1987, by the Board of Advisors to the University of New Mexico Cancer Center and the Albuquerque Board of Realtors. Construction was completed and the doors to the facility were opened February 14, 1992.

Casa Esperanza, Inc. is dedicated to the ongoing operation of a lodging facility for adult cancer patients and their families who must reside in Albuquerque while the patient is undergoing diagnosis, treatment and follow-up care at an Albuquerque cancer treatment facility.

New Mexico's only major cancer treatment facilities are located in Albuquerque. Between 1980 and 1989 nearly 45,000 cases of cancer were diagnosed in New Mexico, and nearly two thirds of those individuals resided outside of Albuquerque. The majority of those patients would need to receive at least a portion of their treatment at an Albuquerque cancer treatment facility. The cost of lodging for families who must travel to Albuquerque from such communities as Ruidoso is often a large financial burden.

The Ruidoso Board of Realtors is looking forward to your participation in their annual golf scramble, dinner and gin rummy tournament. All proceeds are split between a local charity and the Casa Esperanza facility.

Spring classic shows off strength

With a few groans and a lot of concentration athletes from three high schools competed in the first White Mountain Spring Classic weightlifting competition on Saturday.

Athletes from Ruidoso, Lovington and Roswell tested their strength in the squat lift, bench press and dead lift to see who could lift the most for all three events.

For some Ruidoso athletes this was the first chance to compete in an event like this, and Lynn Weiland, organizer of the event, said he hopes it encourages them to continue to work on weightlifting. It tests the kids, but it is also very friendly and the other competitors and fans encourage the athlete to do the best.

The winners in each weight class, both boys and girls, earned a travel bag, and the top lifter in each weight class and division received a weight belt. Besides competing for the prizes, Ruidoso athletes had also taken pledge sheets into the community to try to earn money for new weight equipment.

The first place in the girls 114-131 pound division was a tie between Kim Floyd and Rachel Montes at 345 pounds, but Floyd only had two missed attempts to lift, while Montes had three. Sarah Dix was the first place winner in the 132-147 pound division with a total of 425 pounds, and she and Donna Montoya shared the best squat in the girls division at 180 pounds. Monica Martinez lifted a total of 465 pounds for first place in the 148-164 pound weight class, and also earned the best bench press title with 120 pounds. Brandy Pfeffer had the best dead lift at 185 pounds in two attempts.

In the boys division Lance Roe won the 114-147 pound division by lifting 685 pounds, just five pounds ahead of second place finisher Anthony Torres. The 148-164 weight class was dominated by Lovington who had nine out of the 14 competitors. The highest lifter for Ruidoso was Jason Dix in fifth at 765 pounds. Freddy Sanchez finished third at 725 pounds in the 165-180 division, which was won by Cal Nunnally of Roswell at 850.

Manny Guardiola also finished third in the 181-219 pound division at 945 pounds, while Shane Eidson was fourth at 940 pounds. Bryan Streety lifted 1,050 pounds for second place in the 220-242 weight division. This division was won by Homer Ochoa of Lovington, who lifted 1,195 pounds and won all three best lifts. He lifted 450 in the squat, 315 in the bench and 430 in the dead lift. Weiland said although Ochoa was not the heaviest guy at the meet he was a real seasoned lifter.

Brandy Pfeffer uses the squat lift in her weight class but didn't score any weight in the bench press.

Deceptively's easy victory breaks track record

Despite a sloppy racetrack, Deceptively won the $215,400 Kansas Futurity at Ruidoso Downs Sunday in track record time. She came within three-hundredths of a second of the 350-yard world record.

Deceptively and jockey Jerry Yoakum humbled their competition by winning the Grade I race in 17.22 seconds, thus breaking the 19-year-old track record of 17.24.

"Breaking the track record was a real surprise," said Bruce Bell, who trains the 2-year-old filly for owner Roger Knight, Jr. of Madisonville, Texas. "I didn't think anyone would break a track record today."

Torrential rains consumed the mountain track most of the day, leaving standing water over portions of the racing surface.

"The sloppy footing didn't appear to be any problem at all," Bell said. "It is often said a good horse will take the track with em' and that's what she did."

Deceptively broke from the gate on top and was in such control that midway down the stretch Yoakum quit riding and let the filly coast to the wire. The 20-year-old Yoakum never uncocked his whip.

"Looking back we probably could have broken the world record," Yoakum said. "I tried to slow her down the last 75-100 yards, to try and save her some."

Loose Lips, the only other filly in the 10-horse field, finished second, 1 3/4 lengths back. The favorite, Mr Eye Opener finished third, another 3/4 of a length back.

"My horses really don't have any excuses and we were just outrun," said trainer Jack Brooks, who saddled a record seven horses in the rich futurity. "Mr Eye Opener left the gate handily, but must have caught the side of the gate cause he took some hide off his left shoulder and stifle."

Deceptively was second choice in the wagering and paid her supporters $8.80 to win, $5.60 to place and $3.80 to show.

Loose Lips and jockey Bruce Filkenton paid $5 and $3.40 and Mr Eye Opener and jockey Jacky Martin paid $2.80.

"She's the fastest 2 year old I've seen in a long, long, time," Martin said.

Ontrack attendance was 5,555, with total attendance at 6,372.

Ontrack handle was $512,037, with total handle, $659,505.

Mr Webster extends winning streak

Mr Webster extended his win streak to three races Saturday when he captured the Kansas Futurity Consolation at Ruidoso Downs.

The wire-to-wire win was worth $9,300 for C.L. Lucero and partners. Trained by 21-year-old Joe Chavez Jr., Mr Webster and jockey Ramon Apodaca covered the 350 yards in a swift 17.60 seconds over a very sloppy race track.

"The mud really didn't worry us because this horse has a real long stride and we knew he'd get through it," said Chavez, who took over Mr Webster's training just three weeks ago. "What worried me was the gate, because he's had some problems breaking, but not today," Trainer Jack Brooks, who saddled the favorite Cheval Volant, said it appeared his horse was "flat" outrun."

"He might not have broke as good as I would have liked," Brooks said following the race. "But, I don't think breaking any better would have helped him beat this horse today."

Mr Webster paid $12.60 to win $5.40 to show and $3.80 to place. Cheval Volant paid $3.80 and $3 and Sunny Silence finished third and paid $4.

After throwing a bad race opening weekend at Ruidoso Downs, Pullastreak was back to championship form Saturday in time to win the 870-yard Fine Loom Handicap.

Pullastreak and jockey Manuel Ortiz Jr also went wire-to-wire in 45.82 seconds. The victory was worth $7,395 for owner Mike Levi of Spicewood, Texas. Sent away as the favorite, Pullastreak paid $6 to win, $3.60 to place, and $2.80 to show. Talkabout A Rambler finished second and paid $3.20 and $3. Speed Alert was third at $4.20.

Pullastreak rattled off four consecutive victories at Ruidoso Downs, but the 5-year-old gelding disappointed his following when he finished sixth in an allowance test at Ruidoso Downs May 10.

"He (Pullastreak) bruised his feet on some rocks this winter and we put some pads (horseshoes with rubber soles) on his feet to protect him," said Nene Simmons, who trains the gelding. "We ran him in those pads last time and it didn't appear that he was getting a hold of the track (good footing), so we took them off for this race."

Jockey Manny Ortiz scored a stakes double Saturday when he and Last Don B won the Governor's Handicap by five lengths.

Owned by Leonard Monti Jr. of Phoenix, AZ, and trained by Lynda Tanner, Last Don B rallied late to win the 7 1/2 furlong race in 1:33.1. The winning longshot paid $26 to win, $8.80 to show and $4.80 to place. Highweight and favored talent Connection finished second and paid $3.80 to win and $2.80 to show. Jack Wilson was third and paid $3.20. The 8-9 quinella paid $44.40 and the 1-5-8 triple paid $269.20.

Ontrack attendance was 5,533, with total attendance at 6,169.

Ontrack handle was $488,073, with total handle at $629,117.

Valeme and B.G.'s Drone run away with Norgor Derby trials

Valeme and B.G.'s Drone won their Norgor Derby trials Friday at Ruidoso Downs with tons of run left at the wire.

Valeme and B.G.'s Drone, as well as the next five finishers in the two trials, advance to the $35,000 Norgor Derby finals June 6. The six-furlong Derby is restricted to 3-year-old Thoroughbreds.

B.G.'s Drone and jockey Flavio Martinez humiliated their six contenders when they won their race by more than six lengths under a hand ride. La Schatzie finished second, 1 1/2 lengths over Hail To Verdict. The favorite, B.G.'s Drone paid $4.40 to win, $2.40 to place, and $2.60 to show. La Schatzie paid $2.20 and $2.60. Hail To Verdict paid $3.80. The time for the six-furlong race was 1:11.4.

Trainer Dwayne Grissom wasn't surprised at all that B.G.'s Drone won the eighth race so easy.

"He was better acclimated (to the elevation) this time," Grissom said. "I also changed his blinkers where he could see a little more around him and I think that helped him to relax."

B.G.'s Drone's first race over the mountain track this spring was the Road Runner Handicap May 10. The gelding finished second in the Road Runner, a narrow nose behind Jose Poncho.

Following Valeme's victory in the 10th race, jockey Eric Perner claimed that there was no way Valeme was going to get beat.

"This horse just keeps getting better and better," Perner said. "I had tons of horse left. I never asked him and there was no way they were going to beat him today."

Valeme cruised to victory about two lengths in front of Mr Fuzz. Co-favorite Jose Poncho failed to fire and finished fifth. Valeme went the distance in 1:12.0 and paid $5.60 to win, $3.40 to place and $3 to show. Mr. Fuzz paid $5.40 and $3.00. Courageous Forever was third and paid $4.20.

Ontrack attendance was 1,800, with total attendance at 2,389.

Ontrack handle was $153,390, and total handle was $278,244.

Luna Light Foot dances to win in starter allowance

Highly regarded Luna Light Foot retained her favored status by winning Thursday's featured starter allowance at Ruidoso Downs.

Luna Light Foot and jockey Von

Cunningham went to the front early and improved their position to win the six-furlong race by almost two lengths. Trained by La Rae Sumpter, Luna Light Foot paid $5.20 to win, $3.60 to place and $2.40 to show.

Enduring Success and jockey Enrique Arreola made a bold move in the final furlong, but could not overtake the leader and finished second, a nose over Swiss Saros and Chris Zamora. Enduring Success paid $8.60 to show and $2.80 to place. Swiss Saros paid $2.60.

Ontrack attendance Thursday was 1,477, with total attendance at 2,500.

Ontrack handle was $105,331, with total handle at $281,765.

Try clowning around in Ruidoso

If you are walking down the street and notice someone with goofy clothes and a red nose, don't be alarmed; there is a new clown in town.

Lori Hurley, a graduate of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Clown College, has moved to Ruidoso for the summer and will be sharing her special clowning skills with children of all ages.

Hurley just completed her bachelor of fine arts degree in music theatre, and she is going to be the program director for KIDZPLAY, the summer creative dramatics camp offered through ENMU-Ruidoso.

In addition to KIDZPLAY, Hurley owns and operates a singing telegram/children's entertainment service called Silvergrams.

According to Hurley, a Silvergram is a customized character performing a custom designed song using personal information about the recipient, given to her by the sender. She writes a different jingle for each individual and dresses in a variety of costumes, delivers the messages, leaving the "victims" with a Polaroid picture to keep. Balloon bouquets are also available.

The children's entertainment aspect of the business includes professional party entertainment provided by "Half Pint" the clown. Half Pint uses juggling, comedy magic, balloon sculptures and face painting to delight, amaze and amuse audiences of any size.

Anyone interested in learning more about the ancient art of clowning can enroll in Hurley's weekly clowning classes, also offered through ENMU-Ruidoso. Classes will be offered on Thursday evenings, beginning June 11 and will introduce such skills as improvisation, juggling, makeup application, mime, balloon sculpturing and more.

Hurley has been working in this field for more than seven years and is excited about being in Lincoln County.

"I enjoy this type of entertaining because, in the end, everyone feels good about themselves. Living in Ruidoso will be a wonderful opportunity to share my enthusiasm in an area where this entertainment isn't as readily available," she said.

Anyone wishing to receive information on the singing telegrams or children's entertainment can call 258-4139 and leave a message. Registration information for the clowning class or KIDZPLAY can be received by calling 257-2120.

BRIGHT IDEAS

Ruidoso drama classes present their own version of the Academy Awards

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso drama classes ended the year with a big production, the Ruidoso High School Academy Awards at the Alto Country Club on Monday night.

Students in the beginning and advanced drama classes received awards in a variety of categories for their hard work in plays throughout the school year. After an opening number of "There's No Business Like Show Business" and a dinner, the group heard encouraging words on acting from guest speaker Lorrie Dablow.

Dablow has guest starred on shows such as Happy Days, Mork and Mindy and Sheriff Lobo among others. She has also performed at Carnegie Hall and the White House and currently has a studio in California with her husband, Patrick. She will also be starting a drama camp for children through the Ruidoso Little Theatre.

She said in high school she had a drama coach who was influential in her life, but he tried to dissuade her from it. After all the things he told her about acting, it still didn't make a dent in Dablow's resolve to be an actress because it was something she felt inside of her. She said acting is a lot like a game on several levels, including physically, intellectually and intuitively.

It is important to know the rules of the game and that teammates are important too, including the light and sound people and the director, among others. She said she hated to tell them, but anyone can act. The important thing is the desire inside of each person to learn to give a creative performance, Dablow said.

She reminded the students that the audience is another member of the team and actors need to involve them in a performance as well. Acting also requires total involvement until it is time to go home, she said. Actors also need to be flexible and spontaneous.

"Let go of the familiar. It is thrilling to do something new," Dablow said.

"Define success for yourself, not by others. Hold on to your values," she said.

In the beginning drama class the award for best improvisation went to Melissa Jones. Cody Snow won the award for best commercial and best supporting actor. Cory Taylor won most improved, while Montana Hise won best attitude and best actress. Carol Ann Logsdon earned best supporting actress and best overall performance. The best actor award went to Adam Carillo.

Drama instructor Linda Currin also made special appreciation awards to Candie Barber, Cisco Knox, Cory Burford and Elaine Reynolds. The parent of the year award went to Mark Mulholland, who helped in any way he could in this past year, Currin said.

The most improved award in the advanced class went to Jennifer Stevens as did the outstanding performance by a female in a leading role. Sherry Shade won the award for best attitude and tied with Jamie Mulholland for outstanding performance by a female in a supporting role. Scott Madden earned the outstanding performance by a male in a supporting role.

Jason Hightower won the award for superior performance by a male in a supporting role and Melissa Currin won it for the female supporting role. The superior performance by a male in a leading role was won by John Salcido. Jill Bailey earned the superior performance by a female in a leading role. The best all-around drama student award went to Linda Hankins.

One of the highest awards, the Tom Hansen Achievement Award, was presented to Hightower by selection committee chairperson Frank Cannella. Other nominees for the award were Bailey, Melissa Currin and Salcido.

Sandy Knox, a member of Ruidoso Little Theatre, also presented a $1,000 scholarship to Salcido at the event. Knox said when the group started to give the scholarship they were only able to give $100, but with the help of Altrusa they were able to increase it to this amount.

Several of the students also got to display their talents as singers as well. Bailey and Hise sang "You've Got a Friend," and Hightower and his father, Steve, closed the event with two songs, "The Dance," in memory of a senior, Pierre Shields, who died last week, and "All I Ever Have To Be."

New museum pays tribute to the horse

Museum of the Horse
A Tribute to a Friend

This is being sent to you on the evening of May 20. About 3:30 I arrived at the open house of the Ann C. Stradling Museum of the Horse.

The first things I noticed were two carriages in style going back 100 years, in mint condition, complete with lamps for night driving — the Cadillacs and Rolls Royces of their day. They were being drawn around the wide parking lot by handsome sorrel Belgian carriage horses who stepped with pride. Inside were folks of all ages taking a little jaunt that took them back to the days of their great grandparents.

Drivers were Bill Jeter and Chris Berryhill. At the door of the great tent was Sunny Hirschfeld with her Sunshine smile, welcoming the folks. Helping in the welcome was Alison Walstad, who for years in the Lincoln Days parade drove her white horse and buggy.

Among those welcoming on the inside were Tracy Moran and Jim Stoddard.

With the festivities hardly begun the large tent was already full of folks at the tables visiting over hot dogs and cokes.

A Treasure House

Downstairs in the roomy museum were stage coaches, wagons, buggies, sleighs, saddles, harness — and hosts of other treasures of the American Age of the Horse, were arranged in places of honor.

A feature of the Ann C. Stradling, and a tribute to a fond friendship that goes back in our lives and our traditions through time out of mind — a living monument to our faithful companion through our pleasures and our joys, our trials and our toils, on of God's noble creatures, the horse.

Rainwater Farming

by Daniel Agnew
Storm

This is being sent to you in mid morning of May 21. Last night a gentle shower moved quietly in and this morning the Vale is fresh and fragrant in the still quiet air with the cheery notes of the orange and black Grosbeak resounding through the glen. The small apricot tree has put on three feet of growth with the terminal leaves a bright crimson — the sign of rapid growing. The same pattern is everywhere. The oak brush on high is foot taller than last year.

This is the year of rapid growth, and this morning you can feel the great vitality and strength of the creatures of mother earth — as your heart beats high with joy and the pride of life, and all you're being is filled with the new life that everywhere abounds throughout the Mountain Land.

This is a year of what the early Spanish called "Cosecha Temporal" of (Rain water crops and gardens) the year when you can grow things without irrigation because the "Temporal" or (Long raining season) will furnish plenty of moisture.

The Rain Moves In

Just while we are talking about the early rainy season, here comes a long cloud straight out of the south.

The veils of silvery rain are moving down the Valley, and now the melodious bass voice of the thunder sings forth over the mountain and the rain comes pattering down — a pleasant dreamy tattoo on the roof overhead, and a great sense of peace and thankfulness fills your heart.

Mother Nature's Gardens and Orchards

Seeds of trees, vines, bushes and herbs and flowers that have been waiting for years in the ground, are spring forth in response to the heavy snow and the early rains.

Tiny new plants of the wild grape are everywhere under the tall trees which are the ladders and the homes of the grape vines. And under the large Apricot tree hosts of small apricot trees have appeared, from the seeds of the apricots of five years ago, the first crop in the forty five years of the tree. This year the tree has the second crop of its life, while underneath its branches the little seedling Apricot trees are growing.

The wild vegetables and herbs which have not shown up for years are everywhere across the meadows and in the hills. In the higher country the wild cherries, raspberries, strawberries, and elderberries are loaded with a heavy crop.

We are in a Spring time wonderland, with new pageants of natural mountain beauty appearing to us day by day.

Let us thank God for the wonderful Spring and all our other many blessings.

Memorial Day

Word comes from Romeo Klein that there will be no ceremony on the traditional Memorial Day, May 30, at Forest Lawn cemetery. Instead the observance will be held on the Legal Memorial Day, May 25 at ten o'clock.

However, let us also remember the traditional Memorial Day on May 30, up a prayer to God for veterans of all our Wars — and let us pray that we will have no more wars.

More than 100 students get behind the wheel this summer

Ruidoso High School teacher and basketball coach Norman Wright expects to spend most of his summer cruising the county.

Wright will be taking over the drivers education program formerly conducted outside the schools by Darrel Stierwalt.

Student drivers will be out in force this summer. Wright said he already has 108 students signed up for the summer class.

Superintendent Mike Gladden presented a plan that was approved by the school board allowing for Wright and his assistant, Clifton Neal, to teach drivers ed at the high school as a half-credit course.

Wright taught the class in Clayton and in Amarillo, Texas.

Students are required to complete 30 hours in the classroom before getting in the car for six hours of driving and 12 hours of riding while other students drive. For the teachers that adds, up to at least 600 hours of riding shotgun for novice drivers.

The classroom sessions will begin June 1, and be completed by June 12.

The cost to students is $150 each, with the money used to pay for car rental, gasoline, insurance, books and instructors' salaries.

The school board, before approving the plan, had some questions about why they weren't consulted sooner and why the cost of the program is so high. They wanted to know why the program, taken out of the school curriculum at one time, is being offered again for school credit.

"We fought to get it out of the school and now we get it back in," said board member Mike Morris.

Board member Rod Adamson wanted to see a budget, and Caron Snow lined out the costs and revenues which are expected to be a wash.

"Looking at the numbers, I don't think we're going to have excessive windfall or wages," said board member Ronnie Hemphill.

Gladden said it will take a year of running the program again before exact figures are known.

When the motion to approve the program was made and seconded all board members voted "aye."

Also Tuesday, Gladden told the board that RHS students are being surveyed to see if there's enough interest to offer summer school.

If a need is determined, the high school will offer math and language arts at a half-credit each.

"This will be a self-supporting summer school," said Gladden, adding that last year the tuition was $75 each.

He said classes, if offered, will be two to two and a half hours a day for four-week sessions.

In other regular business, the board heard that the budget committee had met and trimmed the $8 million budget to rock bottom.

Gladden said the committee went through the budget line by line, and was able to maintain current levels and add a teacher at Ruidoso Middle School.

Teachers in Ruidoso, unlike elsewhere in the state where many systems have put a freeze on salary increases, will get their step increases and an average of 1.83 percent in pay hikes. The 56 teachers at the beginning end of the pay matrix will get five percent pay increases, said Gladden.

Non-certified staff members will be taking home an increase averaging 5.8 percent.

Gladden and finance officer Caron Snow will deliver the budget to Santa Fe for review on May 21, and bring it back before the board for approval on June 9.

RUIDOSO, NEW MEXICO

B SECTION

Editorial

Government growth is out of control

Government is a lot like a fungus. It just keeps growing and growing and growing.

The Association of Commerce and Industry reported last week that New Mexico state government has risen two and a half times the cost of living and eight times the increase in the state's population over the past 12 years. That report says the per capita cost of state government has doubled during the same 12-year period.

The cost of state government has risen from $670 for each resident of the state in 1980-81 to $1,363 in 1992-93. That's in a state budget that has grown from $837 million in 1980-81 to $2.13 billion for 1992-93.

New Mexico is 46th in per capita income and fourth in per capita state employees. Those appalling state statistics are reflected on the local and national levels, too.

Government officials often say that staffs increase because the people demand more and more services. That may account for part of the problem.

For instance, just last week Ruidoso's own "regional" advertising board spent a good part of its meeting making plans for the Village of Ruidoso to hire a new employee. This advisory board, volunteers, have a job description and everything for this employee they want to hire with our tax dollars. Apparently this person would be chosen by the "regional" ad board which advises the village Lodgers Tax Board which makes recommendations to the Village Council, and would do pretty much what the Convention and Visitors Bureau director was hired to do. The next thing you know, you've got two people paid by the village to do the same thing; they both have assistants and the assistants have secretaries. That's just one example about how good ideas turn into costly plans. Sometimes we can't afford every good idea.

It's time for taxpayers to tell bureaucrats that enough is enough.

LETTERS

Skeen is getting bad rap on Ruidoso visit

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading the letter by Mr. Stuart Bloss concerning Joe Skeen's "Bad Rap" some interesting points came to mind that should be discussed regarding the Capitan town meeting.

Mr. Skeen is our elected representative of Congress who gets paid by us, the taxpayers, to do a job we elected him to do. As a veteran politician Mr. Skeen should know he works for us not the other way around—he also knows politics is a tough game.

It was my impression that the purpose of a town meeting was to air complaints to your elected officials first hand — my complaint was the nuclear dump. Mr. Skeen had an opportunity to explain to members of the community exactly what he was doing to stop the MRS — he failed to convince me he was doing anything.

In my opinion he also failed to give a good answer to the lady from Corona who asked some good questions about getting assistance for rural medical care for her community.

He also failed to give a good answer to the rancher who asked for help in dealing with the guidelines of the Endangered Species Act and how it would affect his ranching operation.

My approach was direct with a politician is to ask a question and hope for a direct answer. Mr. Skeen told us not to worry the MRS was a dead issue yet shortly after the town meeting the tribe announced Phase II deployment of the MRS. Mr. Skeen did not answer my questions I posed to him satisfactorily. I certainly do not feel he was "badgered."

In dealing with an issue as controversial as the MRS I expect my elected representatives to stay abreast of the issue and keep all the voters informed especially in regards to the extreme hazards of this waste—this is not happening.

The DOE (Department of Energy) statements conflict with the nuclear negotiator whose statements conflict with the politicians and the MRS forges ahead with crucial information being cloaked in secrecy.

Just coming out against the MRS is not good enough anymore. Our politicians must find a way to cut the funding for this project before we can't stop it. The state must find a way to circumvent the nuclear negotiator who claims total anonymity because we're dealing with a sovereign nation—Bunk!

My suggestion is simple and makes sense. Since Russia is screaming for our tax dollars let's do a trade. Let's export all our nuclear waste to Russia, store it in a permanent repository at Chernobyl and pay Russia for storing our waste since that site is already a nuclear sacrifice zone. That way we can export our waste, our nuclear storage technology, and pay the Russians who need the money—problem solved.

Leadership is the key word here. We need a politician somewhere in this state with the initiative to organize a western coalition of states, who can ward off future incursions from the nuclear industry. We need the support of all the western governors to stop importing waste from states looking for a dumping ground. We don't need someone who favors the interstate transport of nuclear waste into New Mexico.

It's about time someone started fighting for our quality of life and the preservation of this lifestyle we all cherish.

Leadership is the key for elected officials

TO THE EDITOR:

I have just had an opportunity to read the MRS Watch, Vol. 1 No. 15 of April 28 published by Southwest Nuclear Alert, Box 2276, Ruidoso, NM 88345. This edition of the MRS Watch had a story headed "Circle J and Capitan—Mr. Skeen's Bad Day."

I can't speak as to the events in Capitan, but I can on the luncheon meeting at the Circle J Restaurant on Tuesday, April 15, because I was there.

Miller Hudson did not have a "lead role" at the meeting. Miller Hudson was not invited by Mr.

Skeen or his New Mexico representatives. Mr. Hudson was an interloper at the Circle J meeting and nothing more. Congressman Skeen was civil to the man which was, in my opinion, certainly all that Mr. Hudson deserved.

Joe Skeen was quite clear in his comments at the Circle J meeting saying that he is personally opposed to the MRS and that he did not believe that the MRS would ever come to fruition. I, also, am opposed to the MRS.

Joe Skeen did not give "aid and comfort to the MRS enemy at noon." I believe the story about the Circle J meeting is a gross misrepresentation of what really happened. If the MRS opponents desire to influence public opinion, they must have valid and truthful reporting. Remember the old story of the little boy who cried "wolf."

Just what is MRS Watch inferring with the line "Are we dealing here with a just perhaps—excusable naivete, or with something rather more serious?" I object to the MRS Watch's veiled innuendoes. I have known Joe Skeen personally for over 30 years. During this period, I have not agreed with every stand Mr. Skeen has taken. Be that as it may, I have found Joe Skeen to be impeccably honest and sincere.

As a result of reading this particular issue of MRS Watch about the Circle J luncheon meeting, I have reached the conclusion that possibly everything represented by this newsletter is perhaps deeply biased.

MRS Watch should follow the old Dragnet Joe Friday saying "Just the facts, ma'am. Just the facts."

Visit the Museum of the Horse
where
History comes to life!

Throughout the history of mankind, from the steppes of eastern Europe to the plains of the great American West, one sturdy companion stood by the explorer, the Indian, and the settler — the horse.

The heritage of the horse is something to be treasured and explored and the Museum of the Horse brings that exploration to life!

The Museum of the Horse celebrates the rich heritage of the horse with a fabulous collection of more than 10,000 exhibit items.

The collection includes everything of and about horses, from a Russian sleigh, to an authentic circa 1860 stagecoach, from saddles and harnesses to bits and spurs.

The Anne C. Stradling collection includes artifacts from throughout the world including exquisite pieces from ancient Greece and Rome.

Museum personnel are quick to point out that this is a "museum in progress," for when the doors open to the public this Sunday, not all of the extensive exhibits will be prepared.

Visitors can look forward to new and exciting exhibits as time goes on. A trip back will be well worth the time.

Visitors will relive the West through works of Western masters like Frederic Remington, Charles M. Russell, Frank Tenney Johnson, Henry Alkins and others.

They can browse through Anne Stradling's collection of family memorabilia. Spanning six generations, these heirlooms bring to life the everyday existence of a turn-of-the-century American family.

Discover the heritage of the horse — explore its impact on life as we know it.

At the Museum of the Horse, the exploration is about to begin! Set in the beautiful pine-covered mountains of Ruidoso Downs, the Museum of the Horse will be open seven days a week from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Kansas couple comes to Ruidoso by way of Texas

R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard brought a splash of flash to the Sacramento Mountains when they came on the scene to purchase and revitalize the Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

The Hubbards took over the struggling track and refurbished it inside and out.

They then turned their attention to art and education, opening the Hubbard Museum in the Turf Club at the track, sponsoring the Hubbard Art Award, moving their Hubbard Foundation headquarters to Ruidoso Downs and now, the Museum of the Horse.

The Hubbard twosome, R.D. and Joan Dale, have barreled through life together for 20 years, tackling project after project and hurdling obstacles that would have tripped the less hardy.

Right now her attention is centered on creating The Museum of the Horse, which will feature the Anne C. Stradling collection of horse-related artifacts as its focal point.

"I think the museum exhibit will really be exciting," Mrs. Hubbard said. "Some people plan a trip around stopping to see the biggest ball of twine. This relates well to our clientele and market."

"I want to involve the community, get artists in to speak. It won't be as extensive this summer obviously, but I want it to be a learning experience, too. I want to invite people in to use it."

Joan Dale and R.D. Hubbard are pictured in the Hubbard Museum located in the Turf Club at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. The couple opened the museum to showcase their extensive art collection. The Hubbards, through their charitable foundation, have developed the brand new Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs right next door to the Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Museum programs teach, entertain

Programs designed to educate and entertain members of the Museum of the Horse and the general public have been slated for the upcoming summer season.

"We want people to know that a membership in the Museum of the Horse is really worthwhile," said a museum spokesperson.

"This is one of the many ways we let them know how much we appreciate their support."

First on tap will be a live performance of "Sadie Orchard" by Jean Jordan of Albuquerque.

Sarah Jane (Sadie) Orchard, a 17-year old cockney with a shady past from London's docks, arrived in the Hillsboro/Kingston mining area at the end of the 19th century. Sadie regularly drove a six-horse Concord stagecoach through the Black Range Indian country. Sadie left an irrevocable mark with her stagecoach, her brothel on Virtue Avenue, her hotel, and her "pet name" relationship with New Mexico's leading businessmen and politicians.

"Sadie Orchard" is scheduled for Saturday, June 13. The time has yet to be determined.

Other performances throughout the summer include "Rawhide Recollections," the story of S. Omar Barker who was a cowboy poet, humorist, novelist, educator, rancher, forest ranger, member of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and a member of one of New Mexico's most distinguished literary families.

Emily Tsosie will be featured at the Museum sometime during July.

Emily is a well-known artist specializing in Story Teller and Corn Maiden dolls. Her methods are all traditional, using natural clays and colors from the areas near her Pueblo.

Ms. Tsosie will present a demonstration on how she works her craft.

Also on the schedule is the Anasazi Pageant from Farmington.

"Anasazi, the Ancient Ones," is a unique Southwest experience full of the music and colorful pageantry of the legends and ceremonies of the Anasazi Indians who populated the Southwest centuries ago.

"Anasazi, the Ancient Ones," is a musical drama based on the story of Sarah Mara Boots, a half-Navajo, half-Paiute girl raised by white settlers after her parents are killed. She later renews her Indian heritage when her Indian grandmother, Black Shawl, reunited Sarah with her own people.

Great care has been taken to choose programs that fit into the unique setting of the Museum of the Horse.

A more detailed schedule of programs, including dates and times, will be announced soon.

*Best Wishes
On A Successful
Opening Season!*

Museum opens with a party

The grand opening of the Museum of the Horse will be heralded with a gala celebration at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 23, at the museum.

The evening of dining and dancing will begin at 8 p.m. with the official ribbon cutting ceremony and the opening of the doors to the museum.

Guests will then be invited into the newly remodeled facility for a first glimpse of the Museum of the Horse.

Music, dancing, good food and a Parade of Breeds are all scheduled for the evening.

Presented in the parade will be 11 different breeds of horses, from a miniature to a draft horse. These horses will actually parade into the Museum during the opening ceremonies and guests will see some of the many, beautiful horses found within the state of New Mexico.

After the formal opening, guests will be treated to a delicious western buffet. They can also loosen their ties, kick up their heels and dance to the country western sounds of Lone Star Express.

Artist Gordon Snidow will be on hand to sign the inaugural poster which he created. Anyone who becomes a member of the Museum of the Horse prior to the grand opening will receive a voucher, redeemable at the opening gala, for a Museum of the Horse poster.

Members who redeem their voucher at the gala will have a chance to have Snidow sign their poster.

Anyone interested in attending the opening gala should call 505-378-4142 for more information.

Snidow designs inaugural poster

Artist Gordon Snidow of Los Lunas, and formerly of Ruidoso, will make a special appearance at the Museum of the Horse opening gala Saturday, May 23.

Snidow, known nationally for his "Coors Cowboy Collectors Series," has produced the inaugural Museum of the Horse poster titled "Frosty Morn'." The fine art poster depicts a cowboy and his horse — perhaps on their way to the north forty. The cold, clear air is broken only by the frosty breath of horse and rider.

Anyone purchasing a Museum membership will receive a complimentary poster, and Snidow will be present at the opening gala to personalize the posters.

"Frosty Morn'" posters will be for sale in the Museum Mercantile gift shop.

Gordon Snidow's fascination with the cowboy began when he was 12 and he got his first look at the works of Remington, Russell, Audubon and Homer in a visit to the Gilcrease Museum in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Snidow honed his talents and pursued his interest while he waited patiently for the market in Western art to open. His patience was rewarded with the founding of the Cowboy Artists of America in 1965.

GORDON SNIDOW

Gordon Snidow came into his own, and has served as president of CAA three times. He is the top award winner in the alliance's history, and now holds emeritus status.

Snidow is widely accepted as the foremost chronicler of the contemporary cowboy. It has been his mission to capture the cowboy on canvas before he becomes an extinct species.

"Frosty Morn'" depicts yet another glimpse into the life of the American cowboy.

For information on receiving an autographed copy of this poster, call 378-4142.

capture the spirit!

It started with a young girl's dream...

Anne C. Stradling's collection forms the Museum

Out of one girl's love for horses, a great collection was born that will form the foundation of the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse.

This new museum, located in Ruidoso Downs, can be directly traced to one woman's love for a magnificent animal — the horse.

Anne Schley was born on March 1, 1913, in New York City. She was born to a wealthy family whose roots trace back to the early 1600s when the first of her ancestors arrived from England.

The story of the family's rise to prominence begins with Anne's grandfather, Grant B. Schley, a farm boy who was a whiz at numbers. Schley, who often was mistaken for Teddy Roosevelt, married the boss' sister.

In 1887, Grant Schley and his young wife, Elizabeth, purchased 1,500 acres on the north branch of the Raritan River in New Jersey. It included the hills which have since become known as "Schley Mountain."

Schley built a large country house on what is now Moorland Farm. Then he built Far Hills, with a school, church, firehouse, fairgrounds and house lots. He brought the railroad to town, and started the Far Hills Athletic Club, the Somerset Hills Agricultural Association and the Somerset Bridle Path Association.

While other wealthy men in New Jersey may have had greater assets and land holdings, Grant B. Schley is said to have been the only one who built his own town.

On the knoll above the river, the Schleys built a rambling stone and frame house with Japanese accents, a green shingle facade, and diamond shaped window panes. Whenever another room was needed, it was added, and eventually the house measured a quarter mile around and housed 36 live-in servants.

It is into this setting that young Anne was born. Her love of horses was apparent from an early age. She was less than a year old when her mother held her on a horse named "Sweetness."

At six, she participated in her first horse show aboard a Shetland pony named "Robin," and at the age of seven, she won her first hunting race in Far Hills.

Anne could also trace her love of collecting to her upbringing in New Jersey. The family home, named Froh-Heim (German for "happy home") could only be described as eclectic. It was filled with antique and country furnishings, objets d'art, collections of copper, brass, pewter and Oriental items.

One room housed a full size Indian teepee filled with Indian artifacts. Another room displayed 60 silver gray wasp nests suspended from the ceiling.

Anne began her own collection of horse related items as a young girl when she hung a bit and a worn out stirrup on the wall in the family's barn.

From those beginnings came a collection of more than 10,000 horse-related items.

History was an important part of young Anne's education. The farm was linked by a network of bridle paths connecting scenic views and points of interest on the mountain.

The family hired an archaeologist to excavate and restore the site of an old Revolutionary War camp where General Henry Knox and the Continental Artillery wintered in 1778-1779.

This was the world of Anne Schley. She attended an all girl boarding school in South Carolina because it offered a girl's polo team. She had little regard for her classes in art history and painting.

"Those days women didn't work. A woman's life was boring and stupid unless you could do something to get yourself out of it," commented a reflective Anne Stradling.

An important influence in Anne's life was her maternal grandfather, Colonel Archibald Rogers, who was a close friend of Teddy Roosevelt and Frederic Remington. He would often entertain Anne with tales of their exploration and hunting trips together.

Not surprisingly, young Anne preferred her summer breaks where she would spend time in Montana and Colorado on family ranches. While there, she fell in love with the rough and tumble ways of the west.

Her love for horses deepened with the passing years, but she did take time at age 16 to get a pilot's license and barnstormed about the country during the 1930s in her own biplane.

At the age of 20, Anne Stradling turned her back on the high society life and married her first husband, Jack Webb. He was the man of her dreams — a rodeo cowboy and trick roper in the world renowned 101 Ranch Wild West Show.

They moved to the famous 101 Ranch in Oklahoma where their daughter, Jean, was born. While in Oklahoma, Anne learned to trick ride and rope calves and competed in rodeos.

She was later initiated into the Cowgirl Hall of Fame in Hereford, Texas.

After 12 years, the marriage ended in divorce, and Anne moved to Tucson, Arizona. In Tucson, Anne introduced fox hunting to an extremely doubtful group of horsemen in Arizona.

She later married an Arizona rancher, Floyd Stradling. Together they took Anne's vast collection of horse related items and created the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse in Patagonia in 1960.

The Stradlings continued to expand the Museum of the Horse collection during the next 30 years. In 1989, Stradling, whose health was failing, began looking for a permanent home for her massive collection.

She reached an agreement with the Hubbard Museum, and in 1990, the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse began its journey to its new home in Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico.

Anne Stradling died February 26, 1992, in Tucson, Arizona.

Carl Palmer, a good friend, wrote to the mourners in Patagonia.

"Learned the other day of the death of Anne Stradling. Anne was an exceptional lady — at home with mule skinners, the common man or the poshest of high society. A friend and helper of animals and homo sapiens alike. What would Patagonia or the legions of horse lovers nationwide be but for her? Look around and see what Anne did for us. A product of 'blue blood,' and a marcher to a different beat, Anne embodied the spirit of the West."

Anne C. Stradling is pictured on her last visit to Ruidoso Downs Race Track. The horses that pull the carriage driven by Keith Henson belonged to Stradling, who collected more than 10,000 items.

Miller turns empty space into museum

Artist Gary Miller tackled his biggest project to date as conceptual architect and curator of the Museum of the Horse.

Born in Seattle, Washington, Miller inherited the legacy of all military families, he moved every few years. Never staying long in one place wasn't the only force keeping him in a state of flux as the son of a career Navy pilot and a Virginia-bred artistic mother.

That drive to apply his art in practical ways found an outlet in a Seattle high school where he was able to study architecture for three years.

The pragmatist and the artist came together in the Lincoln project.

Not long after leaving Lincoln, Miller got a chance to combine his two disciplines once more in developing the Museum of the Horse for R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard.

The mainstay of the museum is the Anne C. Stradling collection of horse-related artifacts based in Patagonia, Arizona.

"At one time I had tried to get it for Lincoln or Fort Stanton through the Trust," Miller said.

He sees the project as southeast New Mexico's chance to show its interest in museums and the arts, fields that have been monopolized to a great extent by the northern sections of the state for years.

To be successful, however, the museum will need community support and a benefactor. Many questions remain such as to what extent will horse breeders become involved and if there will be an extensive horse library.

"This is a real opportunity," he said. "There's nothing dealing with horses anywhere close and I think there are enough people associated with and interested in the horse. It's not like dead history and it's a worldwide history. The evolution of the horse began in the new world, then moved to Europe and was transported back. We're actually in the area where the horse started."

The design includes a bookstore, gift-shop and an exhibit area on the top floor with a balcony overlooking the Stradling collection. Miller sees the exhibit area being changed periodically to offer interesting new information to summer visitors.

Running a museum, Miller says is a mixture of preservation, education and showmanship. Apparently, he's finally found the perfect blend for the artist and pragmatist.

Dee and Gary Miller try out one of the many four-wheeled exhibit items that will be displayed in the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse. The two have been involved in the project from the empty warehouse space on up.

Rain in the Face to stand guard...

Dave McGary's work added to collection

A project of monumental size deserves artwork of the same proportions.

The Museum of the Horse is just such a project, and so it is only fitting that visitors to the museum will view three life-size bronzes created by Dave McGary.

"Rain In The Face" will be in place for the Museum's grand opening gala on May 23. and the remaining pieces, "Iron That Walks" and "American Horse," will arrive later. The collection will be completed in 1993.

The three sculptures will be on permanent display in the new Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

"We have always admired the strength and quality of Dave's work," says R.D. Hubbard whose foundation, the R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard Foundation has created the new museum.

"Including these pieces in the Museum of the Horse will allow thousands of people to enjoy the exceptional talent of this young artist."

"Rain In The Face," "Iron That Walks" and "American Horse" are all representations of native Americans from bygone eras.

The story of Rain In The Face is a true one, passed on to Dave as Indian lore has been passed down from generation to generation.

The massive bronze depicts a warrior, tired from battling the Blackfoot all day. His posture is slightly slumped. The war shield dangles loosely from two fingers, clearly showing fatigue.

He is a heyoka, one who communes with the thunderbirds. Below his distinctive wolf's headdress, his facial war-paint is streaked with the rain he has called in upon his enemies.

He is a famous Sioux leader, and from this day's battle, he has earned his name: Rain In The Face.

Recreating heroes from the past is an area in which Dave McGary excels. Two of his bronzes, "Horse Thief" and "Buffalo Warrior" are in the permanent collection of the White House in Washington DC.

Another McGary creation, a larger than life version of "Long Soldier," graced the front of the State Capitol Building in Santa Fe in 1990.

Dave McGary comes from western roots, the son of a ranching family in Cody, Wyoming.

As a teenager, he was awarded a grant to study the art of bronze making using the lost wax method in Italy. Under the tutelage of American sculptor Harry Jackson, the young sculptor honed and perfected his skills.

A year later, he was running the wax room at the prestigious Shidoni Foundry in Tesuque, New Mexico. While there, he met Kevin Yellow Mountain, and a relationship developed that would change the focus of Dave's life.

Kevin Yellow Mountain introduced Dave McGary to his uncle, Gerald Red Elk, a historian for a Sioux tribe in Little Eagle, South Dakota. The elder Sioux introduced McGary to the ways and beliefs of the native American.

Dave was invited to attend a tribal Sun Dance and the Sioux nation eventually opened their arms and invited McGary to become one of them as an adopted member of the tribe.

Dave McGary has a profound respect for the dignity, strength and passion of his adopted people. His feelings flow from his heart into his work. The spirit and detail of his subjects can be seen in each bronze masterpiece.

The Museum of the Horse is proud to display three of these masterworks and Dave McGary is equally excited about his new venue.

"It's exciting to be a part of something as important as the Museum of the Horse," said McGary. "We are looking forward to a long and mutually beneficial relationship with the Museum."

Sculptor Dave McGary is pictured in his studio and foundry where he creates bronze sculptures like the three that will be exhibited at the brand new Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

Museum invites volunteers to help

The new Museum of the Horse is seeking first class volunteers to support its many programs.

Anyone interested in taking an active role in this project is urged to call the Museum and find out about the various programs offered.

"We hope to initiate an extensive program of volunteers," said volunteer coordinator Sunny Hirschfeld.

"This is such a tremendous project, and there are a lot of opportunities available for service in the Museum of the Horse."

The Volunteer Association will be used in a variety of different areas. Volunteers will be needed as Docents to guide and instruct visitors to the new Museum.

There is always a great need for careful cleaning of artifacts; information staff will be supplemented by trained volunteers.

The Museum Mercantile, the on-site gift shop will need help.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer should contact Sunny or Kathy at 505-378-4142.

The Morgan
Roy-el's Dream Time

The Morgan

Horse: Roy-el's Dream Time
Owner: Elberta Honstein,
Roy-El Morgan Farm
Trainer: Debbie Seybold
Roy-El Morgan Farm

The Morgan can be traced to one phenomenal stallion in the 18th century given to an innkeeper, Justin Morgan, to clear a debt.

This horse's reputation for strength and endurance spread far and wide and soon early Morgans were invaluable for clearing fields in colonial New England, and then beating all comers in trotting, running, pulling and even walking races after a hard days work.

Their soundness, power, stamina and irresistible disposition allow them to continue to excel at a world — class level today.

Morgans stand about 15 hands or five feet at the withers. The usual colors are bay, chestnut, brown and black.

Their confirmation offers strong shoulders, short strong legs, hard feet and an attractive head set on a muscular crested neck.

The American Morgan Horse Association has registered more than 100,000 horses throughout the United States and in 17 other countries.

The Arabian

Horse: Top Cats Meow
Owner: John Austin and Barbara McManus
Trainer: Mike McDaniel
Handler: Linda Cain

The Arabian is the oldest breed known to man. All American light-horse breeds have descended from Arabian blood. In fact, every Thoroughbred race horse traces its lineage back to one of three Arabian stallions.

Many of the characteristics that distinguish the Arabian are a result of adapting to the harsh conditions of the deserts of their native land. The large nostrils enabled the Arabian to breathe easier and the long eyelashes evolved to keep sand out of their eyes. They also endure extreme climates better than most breeds.

Arabians can be found in almost every avenue of equine competition including jumping, racing, dressage, saddle seat, hunt seat and western riding.

The Appaloosa

Horse: Jake Oil Plauditt
Owner/Trainer: Bill Butts

Although Appaloosas are most associated with the American West, the breed was first identified 20,000 years ago. Drawings depicting Appaloosas by ancient artists have been identified on the walls of caves in France.

The Appaloosa has also galloped through the art and history of several civilizations including Egypt, Greece, Italy, China and Australia.

A registered Appaloosa is distinguished by four characteristics — its most obvious being its spotted coat. They also possess irregularly pigmented skin, more white in their eyes than most other breeds and striped hooves.

Appaloosas can be trained for almost any discipline of horsemanship including western riding, hunt seat, dressage, racing, endurance riding, jumping, cutting and reining.

The Appaloosa
Jake Oil Plauditt

The Pinto

Horse: Pinto
Owner/Trainer: Mark Buehrer

The colorful Pinto horse is commonly associated with the American Indian. The Indians were particularly partial to Pintos because their broken coat patterns afforded good camouflage.

It is believed that Pintos were among the many breeds introduced into North America by Spanish explorers.

In America, Pintos are selectively bred to maintain their loud painted on appearance.

The Pinto registry is open to any breed of horse or pony that meets the coloring requirements of the Pinto Horse Association.

Depending on its bloodlines, a Pinto may be adept at hunt seat, saddle seat or western riding. They make good trail and working cow horses as well as jumpers.

The Belgian

Horse: Bird
Owner/Trainer: Jimmy Jeter
J & B Carriage & Sleigh Co.

The Belgian, the most popular and numerous draft breed in North America, has its origins in Belgium on the western coast of Europe.

Throughout the 19th century, selective breeding by dedicated farmers with incentives from the Belgium government, dramatically upgraded the breed, resulting in a horse of outstanding quality.

The first Belgians were exported to the United States in 1866. Belgians were formerly used primarily for farm work.

Today, their easy keeping traits, heavy muscling, and quiet disposition make the Belgian a versatile and valuable on the farm, in parades and on hayrides as well as in the show ring.

The Miniature

Horse: Magic Gigalo or "MG"
Owner/Trainer: Shelly Portillo

The American miniature horse is a unique breed; the limiting characteristic is size.

To be eligible for registration, the horse must not measure in excess of 34 inches in height for the "A" division or 38 inches in height for the "B" division. The measurement is taken at the last hair of the mane at the withers.

Miniature horses were first bred in Europe and South America to work in the mines and were imported into the United States during the 19th century to work in the Virginia coal mines. The small stature of the miniatures made them ideal for pulling ore carts.

Miniatures are produced by selectively breeding down in size while maintaining as near-perfect conformation as possible.

Because of their good disposition, a

The Miniature
Magic Gigalo or "MG"

rapidly increasing number of mini-owners are putting their horses in harness for fun or for show.

The American Quarter Horse

Owner/Trainer: C. Dwayne Gilbreath

One of the most popular horses in North America, the Quarter Horse was developed by early English colonists and is the result of crossing Spanish mares with imported English stallions.

The American Quarter Horse combines a compact yet balanced appearance with unequaled athletic ability.

It derived its name from the quarter mile sprints in which it is so adept.

The breed offers the best of all possible traits in one adaptable horse, as much at home in the show ring or on pleasure trails as he is working cattle on the ranch or racing at a track.

The American Quarter Horse stands an average of 15 hands or five feet at the withers and weighs about 1,100 pounds.

The American Quarter Horse is enhanced by well-developed, powerful muscling which contributes to his balanced appearance and supreme athletic ability.

In addition, the Quarter Horse is known for its willing attitude and mild disposition.

The Palomino
Swiss Credit

The Palomino

Horse: Swiss Credit
Owner/Trainer: Jaci Merrill

The Palomino is not actually a breed, but a color type. It is characterized by a golden coat and white mane and tail.

Palominos can be found in almost every American breed except the Thoroughbred.

Palominos should exhibit a body color, with variations of light to dark, of a US 14 kt. gold coin.

The skin is usually grey, black, brown, motley without underlying pink skin or spots except on the face or legs. The eyes are usually black, hazel or brown. The mane and tail are white with not more than 15 percent dark, sorrel or chestnut hairs.

The actual origin of the color of "Palomino" is not chronicled. It is generally thought the palomino color first appeared among Oriental horses. Some say the Persians were first to breed for this color and the appeal then spread to Arabia, Egypt and other countries.

The Welsh Pony

Pony: Cinderella
Owner: Tara Coombs

The purebred Welsh pony of today is an animal of great beauty and refinement.

The original home of the Welsh Mountain pony (foundation breed of the Welsh Pony), was in the hills and valleys of Wales. He was there before the Romans.

Led by proud stallions, bands of mares and their foals roamed in a semi-wild state, climbing mountains, leaping ravines, running over rough terrain.

Hence, the development of a pony with a remarkable soundness of body, a tremendous endurance and a high degree of native intelligence.

The Welsh pony combines the most admirable qualities of the smaller pony and the light horse and his uses exceed both and is equally at home in the show ring, on trail rides and at the race track.

Thoroughbred

Horse: Trust My Heart
Owner/Trainer: Malaika Tully

The Welsh Pony
Cinderella

The racehorse par excellence and one of the most beautiful horses in the world, the Thoroughbred has a fine head set on an elegant neck, good sloping shoulders, deep girth, powerful quarters and strong legs with plenty of bone.

The breed evolved in England by crossing Eastern stallions with native mares.

Three stallions are accepted as being the 'founding fathers' of the modern day Thoroughbred - the Byerley Turk, the Darley Arabian and the Godolphin Arabian.

With the exception of the Arab, the Thoroughbred has had more influence on other breeds than any other horse, and has been used to improve horse and pony breeds throughout the world.

The Thoroughbred is successful in all branches of equestrian sport where courage and stamina are of primary importance.

The Paso Fino

Owner/Trainer: Betsy McHugh

The Paso Fino is a distinctive breed which possesses a classic beauty and style uniquely its own.

The Paso Fino is distinguished by its natural four beat gait, beautifully flowing mane and tail, graceful carriage and incredibly smooth ride.

When Christopher Columbus returned to the Americas for his second trip, he brought with him a few hardy horses that were a mixture of Barb and Andalusian (both known for their hardiness and stamina) and the Spanish Jennet which was known for its extremely comfortable saddle gait.

Later explorers brought more horses, and these, together with the original stock, were blended to produce a horse that was uniquely suited to the demands of the new land.

These horses came to be known as Los Caballos de Paso Fino, "the horse with the fine walk."

The Pioneer Society gains members

The Museum of the Horse announced several significant contributions to the Museum membership program.

Dave and Jere McGary, the law firm of Dutton, Griffin & Stevens and American Federated Glass Distributors, Inc. have all joined the prestigious Pioneer Society at the Museum of the Horse.

Pioneer Society members contribute $10,000 or more to the Museum of the Horse.

"We are grateful for the tremendous level of support these individuals have shown," said development director Frank Potter.

"Members are the life blood of any museum. They provide us with not only the financial support necessary to carry out our goals, but they provide a new perspective and fresh approach to museum projects."

The goal of the Museum of the Horse is to present the multi-faceted horse and its role throughout history in an educational and entertaining way.

A membership in the Museum of the Horse is a personal way to help reach that goal — to relive a bit of history with us — to celebrate that magnificent animal we call the horse, said Potter.

The Museum of the Horse invites the community to take advantage of one of the several membership opportunities available.

Members enjoy the satisfaction of providing vital support for the continuing efforts of the Museum of the Horse to preserve the heritage of the horse.

Members receive a subscription to "Hoofprints" the official member newsletter and calendar of events. They receive advance notice of exhibitions, lectures and other educational programs.

Members also receive invitations to special events, such as preview parties of exhibitions, and they enjoy special buying privileges on all purchases at the Museum Mercantile.

In the future, the Museum of the Horse hopes to offer special tours and travel opportunities for its members. Members also have access to special behind-the-scenes volunteer opportunities.

Anyone interested in a membership in the new Museum of the Horse should contact Potter at 378-4142.

Museum Mercantile offers unique items

Whether you're shopping for a souvenir from a visit to the Museum or a gift for anyone from one to 100, you can find it in the new Museum Mercantile is no exception.

"Because of the museum setting, we chose the old country general store for our shop concept," explains Jay Chase, shop manager. "We have a great deal of flexibility in planning our store offerings. There literally is something for everybody in the Museum Mercantile."

As a museum store, there are the traditional educational items found among the merchandise. Everything from books on spurs and saddles to rocking horses for the kids can be found.

Items displayed in the Anne C. Stradling collection are reflected in similar items for purchase in the store.

Museum Mercantile buyers also kept an eye out for the unusual when they set out to stock the new store.

"We encourage people to stop by and just browse — we hope they'll enjoy our many unique products," says Chase.

One of the most interesting things about the Museum Mercantile is the way actual Museum pieces are used for displaying merchandise. One large piece is a hutch from the Stradling home. Another piece came from an English Pub.

In the children's corner, a small wooden school desk from Quebec can be found.

Whether you're shopping for yourself or for a gift, stop by the Museum Mercantile and discover a new place to shop!

The Museum Mercantile will be open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
