MRS opponents plead with Chino

Fighting off tears, Ramona Adelle Shanta held her 3-week-old son while she pleaded passionately to Mescalero tribal leader Wendell Chino not to allow a nuclear waste dump on the reservation.

"Wendell gave me everything. He gave me my home, everything I have right now," said the 19-year-old Mescalero. "He's a wise and generous man. He's done enough for us. I hope you hear us now."

"We don't want any more. We don't want dirty money. We just want our homes. We want to stay here. We don't want to be chased away by nuclear waste."

It takes a wise and strong and very big man to admit when you are wrong.

"Please admit you are wrong before it's too late for all of us," the 19-year-old Mescalero said.

No tribal members were present during Shanta's heart felt speech. President Chino had sent his regrets to Francine Magoosh, one of the organizers of Tribal Concerns.

Chino said he had a previous commitment to discuss a possible Tribal business venture and could not participate.

"The Tribal Council did not officially call a general meeting of the Tribe and we recognize that it is your meeting," Chino wrote Magoosh. "I also do not wish to compromise its position in any manner."

Magoosh received a similar letter from tribal council member Silas Cochise.

Mescalero Apaches were told at Wednesday's public meeting that they have the power to stop the tribe from progressing with a study to store radioactive waste, but it won't be easy.

About 150 people, Mescalero and others, attended the meeting. Please see MRS, page 2A

Councilor Ron Andrews threatens to sue village

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Councilor Ron Andrews may have to sue the Village of Ruidoso and White Mountain Estates developer Bill McCarty to eliminate special restrictions on his recently purchased property.

Andrews failed in his bid at the council meeting Tuesday to delete a 1983 provision tied to his five-acre tract that limits lot size to no less than one acre.

However, he said he intends to proceed with plans even if the final determination has to be brought before the courts.

That would have councilor Andrews suing the village he represents, which could be a bad political move if he intends to run for office in the future.

For rural Ruidoso, the village council hearing on a request to repeal the agreement between the village and the Nelson family, provided court-style drama. The opinions of Andrews and village attorney David Thomsen were pitted against those of State Representative John Underwood. D-Ruidoso.

Underwood was acting as an attorney spokesman for William McCarty, developer of White Mountain Estates, which is across the street from Andrews' property.

Before Andrews addressed the council at the podium, he declared his conflict of interest.

He then began a long summation to argue his point for dropping a stipulation in a 1983 village ordinance that his land has to remain in five, one-acre lots.

He said his research indicated that case law says the restrictions which modify planning and zoning regulations are invalid. The land use agreement is a contract, so that's something that just came to light.

Andrews said there were 22 letters of protest out of the 400 people he said lived in the area. It was a poor sampling, he said.

Andrews noted that each piece of property of the protesters was located between 400 feet and several thousand feet from his property and several of those residences were condos.

According to members of the White Mountain Estates Homeowners Association, they have rights to any common area including the entrance directly across the street from Andrews' property.

Andrews said the homes closest to his property are zoned R-4, which allows one unit per acre.

Andrews said three times were used to bring the proposed property to the council.

He said the 100-foot front property setback with a 100-foot rear setback is a violation of zoning ordinance and state statutes.

Andrews charged that none of the homes from the other writers he mentioned were within 100 feet of his property with the exception of Bill McCarty.

He noted most of the letters were form letters indicating an organized effort to defeat his request.

He said he was surrounded by

Duff explains Karn's whereabouts

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Where is the elusive Ruidoso village councilor Bill Karn?

The councilor has missed four council meetings and a bunch of Ruidoso days in between. On June 30, he requested a report on River Trail.

Karn accepted responsibility for contacting affected property owners and obtaining executed leases.

Tuesday, August 11, that report was brought before the council. Karn was absent.

One report by councilor Barbara Duff had him tending his earthquake tremored home in Beverly Hills.

Mayor Victor Alonso, asked about the elected official's absences, said, "Why ask me? Why don't you call him?"

Alonso said he thought he was working on three houses.

Duff, Tuesday, told the council late in the evening that she had a message from Karn.

Here's what she told the board councilor Karn was thinking about and working on.

"He said he wanted to be sure to be placed on the agenda for the next meeting, covering one thing."

He's spoken with two state senators and two city councilors while he's out there (California?). Senator Royce is furnishing a copy of the "stalking law" that he had brought up before.

"Another act covering the environmental tax law. Which he felt that he would bring information that would let us make the cost study of putting burden on residential home owners and hoping that we could work up some legislation to take to the state.

"And the other item was on the MRS. He had spoken with this staff writer of the L.A. Times about the earthquakes in Nevada which any area that is covered by quakes. There is no guarantee on what might happen on MRS burial on the ground, whatever you want to call it. And the thing that he was wondering about, if anybody had discussed the fact that Senator Gore had worked real hard and had the only state in the union that was prohibiting any installation on MRS and why the other 49 had to suck up, as he called it, the residue of the whole thing. The fact that he is now running for vice president, he was wondering if there was any chance to question how it was done and why other people couldn't do the same thing."

"Isn't Gore from Tennessee?" Alonso asked Duff.

Duff said he was.

"Isn't that where they've got Oak Ridge?" Duff said it was.

"I think that's why," Alonso said. "They've already got all those nuclear facilities there."

"Well," said Duff. "We wondered why we couldn't use the same procedure for checking ourselves. And he wanted to be sure, he'll be here for the next meeting if he's free, but if he's late he wanted to be sure to be on the agenda."

"If he's on time, he's automatically on the agenda," Alonso said of the councilor.

property that was zoned for more density than his own.

Property to the south owned by McCarty is zoned R-3, 16 units per acre, while his property is zoned R-1, four units per acre, he said. The property to the north, also owned by McCarty, is zoned R-3, 16 units per acre.

Across the street from Andrews property to the west is zoned R-4, 20 units per acre, that belongs to White Mountain development.

On the west, the property is zoned R-1 with no apparent restrictions.

"This little 5-acre plot is completely surrounded by high density zoning, high density being R-3 and R-4," Andrews said. "I question how going to four units per acre can somehow devalue a piece of property, all of whose neighbors are 16 to 20 units per acre."

Andrews said he disagreed with Underwood's premise that the land use agreement was a contract, citing a recent New Mexico district court ruling that a municipality can not zone property by contract.

We have a letter here, said Andrews, that states that we're zoning and states that the land use agreement is a contract. And we have a district court that upheld this council's wishes that zoning by contract is invalid.

Andrews said that McCarty apparently feels he should be a beneficial party to an invalid contract.

County Commission takes over jail

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Upset over a management directive and a staff shortage, Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane last week warned county commissioners he was about to drop the county jail operation in their laps.

Tuesday he told commissioners he was only trying to get their attention.

He did, and they voted to take over responsibility for the jail within the next 30 days.

Although McSwane seemed a bit taken back by the action, after the meeting he told The Ruidoso News, "I was prepared to have it transferred if I was not able to get the help I needed."

There's increased liability if there aren't enough personnel and the existing situation is a burden to me personally and to my law enforcement officers who too often find themselves playing backup to the jail instead of being out on patrol."

McSwane said it will be good for commissioners to see firsthand what's happening in the jail.

I've been trying to run it as cheaply as I can," he said.

In his memorandum to the commission, county manager Andy Wynham acknowledged that having the sheriff run the jail has been a savings to the county because it has eliminated duplications of management and administrative services.

The motion for the commission to run the jail was offered by Commissioner and former sheriff Bill Elliott.

Commissioner Monroy Montes asked Wynham to make the sure the transfer "is as orderly as possible."

Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer told Wynham to schedule special commission meetings if necessary to keep things running smoothly.

Wynham explained that the situation apparently began when he noticed several violations of the county's purchasing regulation. About the same time, he received a letter from the county auditor also noting violations.

"There were open purchase orders, some in excess of thousands of dollars, like a charge account," Wynham said. "I have never seen anyone have an authorized open purchasing order without competitive pricing."

Although he was assured the situation was not the norm, he researched records and found open purchasing orders in several departments, not just the jail.

"Our own county code, which is stricter than state law, requires three telephone bids on anything over $300," Wynham explained.

In a letter from Emmons and Company in Albuquerque, the auditors gave examples of deviation from policy as: no written evidence of the best obtainable price under $300; purchases from $300 to $1,500 with no record of three bona fide oral, written or telephone quotes; purchases from $1,500 to $3,000 with no record of three written bids obtained; isolated instances where no purchase order was written or a purchase order was written after the date of the invoice; and one instance of a purchase of $6,880 for which no written bid was obtained.

"We are sympathetic with the difficulty of complying with your county's purchasing policy as written," the auditors stated. "We discussed this with several people including the sheriff's office regarding food purchases. I think you should consider changing the policy or allowing exemptions for certain kinds of purchases."

"The noncompliance with your Please see Jail, page 2A organized to tell tribal members of the risks of building a high-level nuclear waste storage site. Most Mescalero members had to take leave from work to attend.

"The tribal council has got themselves so strong, it's going to be really hard to get around this sort of thing," said Grace Thorpe, a semi-retired judge of the Sac-Fox tribes and daughter of the legendary Olympic athlete Jim Thorpe.

Thorpe said the tribal council voted two days ago to continue the study.

She said the Mescalero constitution has provision for voters to override the tribal president and the council.

Tribal members will have to have 30 percent of eligible, voting members petition for a special meeting.

The tribe has about 2,500 people, but less than a thousand are voting members. A majority vote of the people at the special meeting would be needed to override the council's pursuit of the storage site.

The Mescalero constitution also has a clause stating a special meeting can't be called on issues involving a third party, she said, the only way general members can change that clause is with an amendment to the tribal constitution.

Part of the meeting also was devoted to criticizing tribal president Chino and council members who have accepted $300,000 in federal money and are seeking $300,000 more to study the feasibility of such a storage site.

In March, the tribe entered Phase 2 of the federal application process for a Monitored Retrievable Storage site. The Mescaleros are the first Indian Tribe to reach Phase 2.

The repository would house about 10,000 tons of spent nuclear fuel rods.

"I think this was a pretty good meeting," said Bart Garcia, 27. "I have kids, and I don't want my kids to have their kids growing up with this stuff. This is a tourism town, I don't think people are going to want to come down here with all this nuclear waste around."

Organizers of the day-long session said they plan to distribute petitions seeking a referendum of tribal members on the issue.

Although Chino said beforehand that the council allowed the meeting to encourage discussion of what they were doing, some members disagreed.

Tribal members said in speeches and interviews that they have been misinformed and shut out of the process.

"The petition of the tribal council is no different than mass media advertising of cigarettes and alcohol," Mescalero Joseph Geronimo said. "Never do they tell you the things that will happen when you take those products!"

Mescalero Rufina Laws, who is leading the petition drives, said she was disappointed with attendance at the meeting, saying it was about half what she had hoped for.

She blamed Chino and the council for refusing to grant tribal workers any time off to attend, forcing them to use personal leave.

However, organizers of the event said the meeting helped prove there is staunch opposition to the study, which began last fall. And they said it served as a rallying point for Indian tribes around the nation to block any waste storage sites from coming to their lands.

Half a dozen leaders of tribes from Mississippi to Washington state came to pledge their support.

"I don't know that this is the kind of legacy we want to leave our children," Thorpe said. "And I don't know that it's something we want our Indian name associated with."

"I've known Wendell Chino for a long time," she said. "He knows more about where those federal dollars are hidden, more than anyone else."

Some Mescaleros who came to the meeting said they had been opposed to nuclear waste and that what they heard only reinforced their views.

In addition to tribal members, speakers included environmentalists who criticized the notion of a temporary storage site because they contended it could become permanent.

The tribal government responded to the meeting by issuing a statement saying it hasn't made a decision whether to seek a site. It promised that any recommendation to build one would be put to tribal members in a referendum when their study is done.

Speakers for the meeting included Harlyn Geronimo, Apache; Stan Chee, Apache; Francine Magoosh, Apache; Grace Thorpe, Sac and Fox; Chief John Jackson, Yakima; Joe Campbell, Mdewakanton; Linda Farve, Mississippi and Choctaw; Elmer Savilla, Laguna-Quechen; Rufina Marie Laws, Apache; Don Hancock, Nilak Butler; and Joseph Geronimo, Apache.

The meeting was funded through the efforts of Rufina Laws and Francine Magoosh of Tribal Concerns. A collection was taken to help Tribal Concerns continue their opposition to the project.

Television press zoom in on Mescalero resident Ramona Adelle Shanta and her 3-year-old son after her dramatic speech before Tribal members and the public in the reservation's community hall. ## Jail purchasing policies is serious and numerous. If county employees find they cannot comply with an unworkable policy, they will give up in frustration and violate the policy. There should be a happy medium between strict control and loose purchasing."

Although Wynham sent a memorandum to department heads warning them to abide by the county purchasing policy, he also was attempting to come up with a modification to present to the commission, he said.

Before he could do that, he received the letter about the jail from McSwane.

"He has the right to do it," Wynham told commissioners. Only 11 out of 33 sheriffs in New Mexico operate their counties' jails.

At the very least, over the existing pricetag of the jail operation, the county is looking at about $25,000 in one-time expenditures and more than $5,000 in recurring costs, Wynham estimated.

"In my opinion, it will cost you a lot more to operate it than (Wynham) has estimated today," McSwane told commissioners.

He said he has been putting in 60-hour weeks and devoting about 50 percent of his time to the jail.

He reminded commissioners that he requested one full-time and one part-time jailer during summer budget sessions, but only was allowed a half-time jailer. Having to collect telephone quotes on food purchases puts more of a time demand on his already stretched thin staff, McSwane said.

"Right now we need more staff (at the jail) and I don't want to be liable for it (without adequate coverage)," McSwane said.

Elliott accused McSwane of acting irresponsibly by delivering a 30-day ultimatum to the commission.

McSwane started to answer with some comments of his own about the commission, then stopped himself and said, "I was sent a letter that upset me and then I sent a letter that I know got some people riled."

"Food items for the jail should be exempt from the purchasing policy and we need a resolution from the commission to that effect."

Wynham said he told McSwane if his staff didn't have time to make three phone calls, the manager's staff would help.

"I feel terrible that the actions I took, required or not, brought such a reaction," Wynham said.

"Basically, I'm elected to provide law enforcement," McSwane said. "The jail is becoming more and more of a burden. I will run it if I can get some cooperation in there."

"There are a whole lot of improvements needed at the jail. I wanted to grab the attention of the public and the commission. I've been stressed with that jail for the last 1 1/2 years."

Spencer questioned why McSwane hadn't put together a five-year plan for jail improvements, to allow the commission to plan ahead on budget impacts.

McSwane said it is difficult to project future crime rates.

"I think the sheriff is in a unique position because he will be here four more years while some of us may not be (with November elections)," Montes said. "There's room here to solve problems before they become a full blown situation like this today."

"I have no problem accepting the jail."

McSwane repeated, "The letter was written to get everybody's attention."

"You certainly got mine," Montes responded.

In his rapier summary to the commission, Wynham neatly sliced away at McSwane's operation. He noted that the sheriff has been able to fill short term vacancies and to cover absences due to emergencies with his law enforcement officers. That's an option not open to the commission unless it makes it a requirement when considering manpower assignments to the sheriff's department.

"The commission may choose to respond to the sheriff's requests for more deputies by agreeing to fund positions, provided the sheriff makes officers available on an as needed basis to assist with the jail," Wynham wrote. He added that if the sheriff refused, the commission could cut one field deputy to offset the hiring of additional jail personnel.

Commissioners also will lose the benefit of dispatchers providing assistance at the jail. Only one jailer serves on the majority of shifts, he said. He recommended the commission ask the sheriff to keep the dispatchers at the existing site to assist with jail access control.

"We are fortunate in that we have a competent chief jailer (Wayland Hill) with 15 years of experience in our facility," Wynham wrote. At the very least Hill can serve as an interim detention center administrator.

He recommended the board authorize Hill to hire an additional jailer.

Since the jail was such a burden to the sheriff, taking away that responsibility should allow McSwane to reduce his administrative staff, Wynham wrote. An additional jailer's salary would be $21,000 and another $5,000 would be added to Hill's salary with his promotion. That $26,000 could be offset by the deletion of an administrative position in the sheriff's department for $20,800, leaving a net recurring cost increase of $5,200.

"I propose that either the administrative secretary position or the records coordinator position be deleted from the law enforcement budget to offset the cost of providing additional personnel in the jail," Wynham wrote.

In a polite, if chilly exchange after the meeting, McSwane told Wynham he would fight any cuts in his administrative staff, saying it already was small for the size of the county.

Under transportation in his letter, Wynham noted that the jail will need vehicles and suggested the commission reduce the sheriff's funding for four vehicles to two "until such time as it can consider the needs of the new detention center administration."

In conclusion, the county manager noted that there may be additional costs of operating the jail.

He wrote that Hill will be asked to evaluate the existing operation of the jail and to make staffing and other recommendations.

Threatens

McCarty should have put restrictive covenants on the property that would pass with the land when he sold it to Nelson, he said.

Andrews said McCarty did not want to discuss his plans for the property, that he expected me to be held to the contract.

"I asked him why there were no restrictive covenants on the property that were filed in the county. He said because Mr. Nelson wouldn't agree to them," Andrews said.

Andrews said that village attorney David Thomsen sent a letter to the council regarding the matter at the request of councilor Jerry Shaw. In that letter, he said land use agreements could be changed.

Thomsen had written that the purpose of village ordinances was to carry out public policy, not to enforce private agreements.

He further stated in the letter that this was a land use regulation by contract, and therefore failed to give White Mountain any enforceable rights.

"I also doubt that the village could prevail if Mr. and Mrs. Andrews challenged in court its enforceability against them," Andrews read from Thomsen's letter.

Andrews quoted several other sources to support his arguments including Thomsen's argument to the supreme court, several Albuquerque cases, an American Law Report opinion and others. All appeared very persuasive to Andrews' argument.

"Yes, there is a contract. Yes, it was between the Village of Ruidoso and Mr. Nelson. My original intent was merely to modify that so that Jill (wife) and I could cut the property, still in five lots. We never planned to increase the density," Andrews said. "We only didn't want to be held to the one acre restriction."

He indicated that his intent was to sell off a piece of the land, but maintain a large enough buffer for a home he intends to build.

Attorney Underwood said he was familiar with the case Andrews cited because he was the attorney who won the case for the village in district court.

He agreed with Thomsen's letter that contract zoning was not a valid way of regulating property in New Mexico.

Underwood said he found Thomsen's approach and Andrews' approach to this situation interesting because the ordinance amends the contract that Andrews said was invalid.

"My question to this council is, why are you having a public hearing on an ordinance to amend an invalid contract? Doesn't make much sense to me," Underwood said.

Underwood quoted from Thomsen's letter in which Thomsen said he had searched every avenue for the word "notice." Thomsen wrote that he could find no category where "notice" would apply and as a result notice to adjoining property owners is not required.

"I guess I find it interesting," said Underwood, "that on one hand we argue that we have an invalid contract and on the other hand, we're having an ordinance tonight to amend an invalid contract, and it's not rezoning, therefore we didn't have to give notice to the people affected by the 100-foot radius."

"My statement to this council is that you can't have it both ways. If you've got an invalid contract, you don't need an ordinance to amend it. If you have a rezoning issue, you need to be giving notice to those property owners affected. That's how simple it is."

Underwood said there was a major difference between this case and the Dacy case used as an example.

He said that although a municipality is not bound by unenforceable contracts, that law doesn't apply to individuals.

He said Andrews had benefited by the annexation.

"I question how someone can accept the benefits of an illegal agreement and deny the responsibilities," Underwood said.

He said that on page one of Thomsen's letter, Thomsen wrote the agreement was between the village and Mr. and Mrs. Andrews and as a result can be changed by the mutual agreement of those parties.

Underwood noted that on page two of Thomsen's letter, Thomsen wrote that contract of land use was invalid.

"The agreement that is enforceable on the first page, is unenforceable on the second page. I find that all very confusing to me," Underwood said. "If you've got a valid contract, you're stuck with the terms of the contract. I don't think this body has the powers to change that when other parties have been benefited."

Andrews said he asked council to amend the ordinance before he realized the contract was invalid. He said he was told by the village staff to ask that the ordinance be amended.

Andrews said if the annexation was invalid it should be deleted and if he was receiving benefit from the annexation he would be happy to give it up. He said he would be more than happy to have the Nelson tract removed from village limits.

"In fact, I will make that request," he said.

Mayor Victor Alonso cautioned Andrews that his request would require it be brought before extra territorial zoning that would fall back under the existing planning and zoning.

"You're too close to gain the advantage you think you're going to gain by being in the county," Alonso advised.

Andrews was not totally convinced. He said it would keep everyone out of the courthouse, he was willing to start over.

Alonso said that because the property is surrounded by property in the village limits, it would constitute spot zoning which the village has been working to correct.

When the council considered tabling the matter, resident Corinne Swearingin vociferously denounced the council.

"I do think that this is a gutless thing to do. If you people don't either move to pass this ordinance and vote it down, or, this is a gutless thing you're doing, to say let's table it. You ought to make a decision. You are the elected officials. You ought to sit there and vote it up or down," she said, slamming the podium.

Alonso thanked her for her opinion.

The mayor was asked who would represent the village in a lawsuit since Thomsen had openly rendered an opinion that the village could not win if sued.

The mayor asked Thomsen what he would do.

Thomsen said he could not try the case.

Andrews, who earlier declared himself to be in conflict of interest, then reappeared at the podium to advise the council on what course of action they should take.

"There may be some confusion," Andrews said. "The fact is that I have it in writing from the village attorney that this ordinance cannot be enforced against us. So if you table it tonight, the Andrews fully plan to go on with their plans, and see if you can."

The mayor, before the vote, tried to explain to Swearingin that a motion to table was, in effect, a motion to kill the issue.

The motion to table passed unanimously.

Council backs down on sign citation

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Village Council, Tuesday, agreed with businessman Rick Evans that times have changed and agreed to revamp a banner ordinance to meet today's standards.

Councilors also put a moratorium on a criminal complaint sent to Evans because he refused to take down his business banner advertising mountain bikes. That complaint could have dealt him a heavy fine and jail time.

Evans was even asked by Mayor Victor Alonso to be on a committee to help revise the out-of-date and apparently unfair ordinance.

"I'd rather go to court," Evans replied, noting how much work was involved on the first ordinance that he helped draft with Alonso and councilor Jerry Shaw. Evans at one time sat on the council with Alonso and Shaw.

Evans, as a matter of principle, decided to challenge an ordinance that didn't allow certain types of banners. He wanted a forum to express his opinion, so he invited a citation and was awarded one.

But before he could appear before a judge who might have ruled the village ordinance unconstitutional, the village dropped the citation.

According to planning director Cleatus Richards, village attorney David Thomsen said Evans wasn't notified properly with a written warning before the citation was issued.

But instead of reissuing a warning or a citation, the village sent a sternly written letter to Evans that read in part:

"You are hereby notified that the above sign must be removed within seven days of receiving this notice ... Criminal complaint will be filed if you fail to comply as above indicated."

Richards and Thomsen had raised the stakes as far as Evans was concerned and were attempting to intimidate him by pushing a small citation into a larger arena costing legal fees.

Evans wrote the council that his only intent had been to make the point that the ordinance was ambiguous, and that the village has been discriminatory and inconsistent in the enforcement of the ordinance over the last few years given the obvious number of illegal signs and banners that have been allowed to remain.

He asked to appear before the council and Tuesday was his day in court.

Evans said it was never his intent to get into a legal dispute with the village that would cost everyone time and money.

"There's simply too many violations out there that haven't been attended to in a long time," Evans said. "It makes me question what's going on as far as enforcement goes. Whether that's a budget or manpower issue, I can't answer.

"I think you should review the policy and come to your own conclusion. I'm not here to point fingers, I just know what I see when I drive down the street."

Evans said he was sympathetic with Richards.

"He's dealing with an unclear ordinance," Evans said. "He calls it the way he sees it, and I simply don't agree with him. I sure don't have any animosity toward him."

Evans said he felt the number of citations issued in the past has been minimal.

Richards has said Evans was the first citation, but that Evans was the first to push for receiving a citation.

Evans said he was a big boy and "I know a little bit how this works." He said he was a little bit put out that a criminal complaint was threatened.

He said procedures exist where different routes could have been taken through planning and zoning, but accepts partial blame for asking for the ticket.

Alonso asked Evans if, in the spirit of compromise, he would be amenable to accepting that planning and zoning procedure.

Evans agreed. He said the business community feels the need to utilize banners.

The mayor agreed.

"At one point, we didn't have an ordinance," Alonso said. "And the town grew up having signs."

"Things got really good back in the eighties. We can remember those good old days."

"All of a sudden we found ourselves with uncontrolled growth. As a result, planning and zoning took an attitude of a conservative, restrictive sign ordinance. The town was booming."

"All of a sudden, there was a concern that we were going to turn into a junky community with all sorts of signs."

"There were discussions about earthtone signs, as if we were Santa Fe. There was a movement to make the signs small, earthtone and out of the way. In other words, where people couldn't see them. That was at the height of our prosperity."

"That atmosphere has changed. We've taken a dive. And frankly if we could attract new businesses in town, we might look the other way while they put up signs and we wish them luck."

Alonso said the market has changed and it should be loosened.

"Your request that we look at the sign ordinance makes a lot of sense."

Evans accepted the challenge to help planning and zoning revise the ordinance.

Briefs

Vasquez sentence is 25 years

A former Ruidoso Downs business operator received sentencing Tuesday for two narcotics-related counts he was convicted of in federal court in El Paso, Texas, in July.

Manuel Vasquez received a sentence of 300 months (25 years) on both counts to run concurrently, a $25,000 fine and five years supervised release according to the federal clerk's office. He was found guilty on July 1 of conspiracy to possess cocaine with intent to distribute and conspiracy to import cocaine.

Vasquez operated the Phillips 66 station in Ruidoso Downs and served as the look-out man for truck loads of cocaine that were coming through the area on their way to Los Angeles, California, or Dallas, Texas. He was arrested for his connection in the operation in March in Yuma, Arizona. The ring was based with the Colombian Medellin cartel and imported about 190 tons of cocaine to L.A. while 10 tons went to Dallas.

He was one of 20 people indicted in the ring. Seven of the 20, including Vasquez, have been convicted, while the search is still on for the remaining 13. According to the United States attorney general's western district office this was the largest federal cocaine indictment in history.

Mescaleros receive grant

The Mescalero Apache Indian tribe was awarded $60,000 last week to improve their accountability systems program.

Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM) announced that New Mexico was awarded nearly $800,000 in healthcare grants by the Department of Health and Human Services. The Mescalero grants was one of those awards.

Money was allotted to the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque Health Care for the Homeless, Pueblo of Sandia and Rhomed, Inc.

On-again, off-again BLM land swap is back on track

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Reversing a decision two weeks ago to put a proposed land swap in Lincoln County on hold until late 1994, Bureau of Land Management director Cy Jamison Tuesday flashed a green light.

In a news release, Jamison stated he will allow the Roswell District of the bureau (BLM) to continue with certain administrative action on the proposed Rio Bonito land exchange.

He sent a memorandum to New Mexico state BLM director Larry Woodard on August 10, noting that the Roswell District has "resolved his concerns about the effect of the exchange on Lincoln County and the net gain of federal acreage in the county."

Lincoln County Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer said Wednesday that his board will take a wait and see stance on this latest twist.

Jamison dangled three peace offerings for the Commission, which has opposed the exchange of private land locally for 36,000 acres of public land in other areas of the state.

On the issue of lost property taxes raised by the commission, Jamison said the Lincoln Valley Land Company, which originally proposed the swap, "will make up the difference between property taxes Lincoln County would have collected on the land and the payments in lieu of taxes the BLM would pay Lincoln County for the land until the resource management plan is completed."

The management plan should pinpoint as much as 35,000 acres of federal land appropriate for disposal by the BLM back into private hands. The county commission has demanded parity between private and public land ownership in the county and has insisted that the BLM sell some of its local land.

Public information officer Howard Parman said the land company would be paying the makeup money at least through the fall of 1994.

While the Roswell District is finishing its resource management plan, it simultaneously will begin the surveys needed for part of the BLM administered land in Lincoln County to be transferred to private ownership either through exchanges or sales, Jamison said in the news release.

The third inducement is a commitment that the BLM immediately will sell 160 acres of public land in the county to a private landowner at fair market value.

Parman said he does not know the identity of the person, but the sale was proposed because the individual built private structures on the land.

Spencer's response

As for Jamison's about-face, Spencer said, "He's getting a lot of pressure from the other side. The proponents probably would go bust if they had to wait and those buyers in other counties probably are anxious.

"He's opened the door to get more negotiations going, to make it possible for some of the majors to get involved in discussions to make sure everyone knows what everyone else is saying."

By September 1, the results of this move should be known, Spencer said.

"If it's not solved on this level, some of the heavyweights in Congress may get involved," he said. "I hope this can be solved to the commission's satisfaction."

Spencer said he doesn't think Jamison wants to "shove anything down the commission's throat, but he wanted to take another look. I applaud him for what he's doing."

In the Rio Bonito Land Exchange, the BLM would gain about 1,115 acres of land plus 330 acres of water rights near the village of Lincoln from private owners. In exchange for land of equal value, about 36,719 acres of public land in Doña Ana, Otero, Sierra, Eddy, Chaves, San Juan and Valencia counties would be transferred to private ownership. All of the land previously has been identified in management plans to be transferred from federal ownership.

BLM's current land use plan does not identify any lands for exchange or sale in Lincoln County.

Trip defense

Commenting Tuesday during a commission meeting on his trip to Washington D.C. last month when he saw Jamison, Spencer said rumors are circulating about who paid for the travel. Spencer is seeking re-election to his seat on the board in the November general election.

"It was my money," he said. "I was going to Washington on business other than county. There was no expenditure of county money. I was there for the farm district and while I was there, I saw an opportunity to try to resolve this issue."

"From now on come and ask me directly when you have questions," he told his constituents. That July Washington trip resulted in Jamison issuing a hold order on the exchange, the order he reversed Tuesday.

County manager Andy Wynham said the county's tough stance and new ordinances laying out its rights have caught the attention of the BLM and other federal agencies.

The U.S. Forest Service currently is discussing a possible exchange of land with Otero County that would affect some land holdings in Lincoln County. "It dropped" by a summary for the commission before meeting with Otero officials.

Ron Green, one of the partners in the Lincoln Valley Land Company, told The Ruidoso News in July that Jamison's decision to put the swap on hold could kill the project.

The company depends on its ability to sell the property it will acquire in the swap. Green said then that company officials had some other options in mind to get the deal moving again.

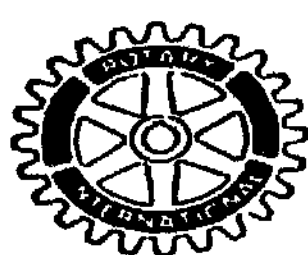

Lock in energy savings this summer with the right thermostat setting

For energy efficiency that doesn't sacrifice your comfort, keep your thermostat setting on 78° this summer. For each degree below this setting, you'll add from 6 to 8 percent to your cooling costs. Since air conditioning is usually one of the largest energy users in your home, the savings can be significant.

For more information about low-cost and no-cost ways to save energy, call or visit your local Texas-New Mexico Power Company office and ask for the free booklet, "Energy Management Guide."

Three cheers for the blue and gold

The Ruidoso Warrior cheerleaders have a few things to cheer about to get the fall sports season under way.

The cheerleaders made an outstanding performance during an annual cheerleading camp at New Mexico State University on July 21-24. About 30 squads with 200 cheerleaders competed in the camp, but the Warrior team towed the line against some very large squads.

The team was one of six squads that qualified for national competition in Dallas, Texas, in December. Sponsor Rebecca Durham said it is going to take a lot of hard work by the girls to compete in this, but they are all ready to take on the challenge.

The girls also won several other impressive honors at the camp. They brought home the spirit stick, after winning it three times during the week. The spirit sticks are presented to squads showing the most sincere spirit and enthusiasm for the day.

They were also one of six teams to earn the Top Team Award. The winning squads exemplify the best cheerleading techniques and the ability to motivate their crowd to yell.

In the three evaluations the group had during the week, the girls received all superior ribbons for mastering all areas of NCA standards of cheering and the cheer contained no evident mistakes. The Warriors were also one of two teams to win the safety first certificate.

Baker, Gooch battle it out in sudden death

Local golfers dominated play in the 1992 Shorty Hornbuckle Match Play golf tournament last week at Cree Meadows. Lincoln county residents accounted for half of the flight winners in the 88-man tournament.

Nogal's Tom Baker beat Ruidoso golf legend Leroy Gooch in the championship flight after two holes of sudden death. Gooch, who led for most of the match, let Baker back in with an errant drive on the par-3 fifteenth hole.

Gooch's shot landed on Lower Terrace Drive, out of bounds, evening the match.

Gooch then missed his relatively short par putt on the sixteenth hole giving Baker a 1-up lead heading up No. 17. For a moment it looked like the match was over when Baker, drilled his approach to within three feet of the cup. But, like Gooch on No. 16, Baker's short birdie did not find the hole and Baker left seventeen with the same 1-up lead.

On the final hole of regulation, Baker hit his tee shot out of bounds, once again giving Gooch a glimmer of hope. Coolly, the long-time Warrior golf coach recorded a safe par on the 18th, sending the championship match into sudden death.

Starting again on the first hole, Gooch hit a perfect iron off the tee while Baker's iron was long but a bit to the right, in the rough. Gooch placed his approach to within 10 feet, and Baker responded with a tremendous pitch over a tree to within five feet. Both players made birdie.

On second playoff hole, again both player were on the green in regulation. Gooch had a 12-footer and Baker once again flagged his approach, landing only three feet away. Gooch's putt burned the cup, but would not stay in and Baker calmly knocked in his short putt to take his first win the Match Play.

Both players recorded upsets to advance to the final match. Baker beat past champion Bobby Golightly of Dallas and Gooch bested his former student and last year's winner Reeves McGuire.

Nathan Baudo, who graduated from Ruidoso High School in May won the consolation bracket, beating heavily favored Lee Roy Pearson.

The first flight was a battle between two past Chamber of Commerce presidents. Ron Wall (the current Warrior golf coach) beat Tony Wilcoxson 2-up in a very competitive match. Warrior Jeffrey Chapman won the consolation.

The second flight was won by Ruidoso's Gary Hefner who beat Scott Schrader 4-up. Schrader breezed through his first few matches, but Hefner's steady play held hole after hole.

Each flight winner received a $425 gift certificate and runner-ups received $300 gift certificates.

Stop by Links for golf action

Whether you just enjoy watching a professional at work or you like to get out on the course and hit a few golf balls too, the Links at Sierra Blanca has some activities for you.

The Links is once again offering a ladies golf clinic for women golfers to learn a few new tips. The clinic starts at 5 p.m. Monday and will continue each day at that time through Friday. The class size will be restricted for more personalized instruction so interested players should call right away to reserve their space.

The clinic will cover chipping, putting and the full swing. Links golf professional Michael Hicks will be the instructor. The cost for the week-long clinic is $50.

Senior PGA tour player and 1991 Senior PGA Tour Rookie of the Year Jim Colbert will give a golf exhibition at 1:30 p.m. August 20 at the Links. The exhibition is open to the public and free of charge.

The Links will also host the All-American partnership on August 29-30. The deadline to enter is August 27 with a fee of $200 per team, which includes green fees, cart fees, reduced admission to the Ruidoso Downs Turf Club and an award dinner at the course following Sunday's round.

Saturday's tee times beginning at 8 a.m. and Sunday's shotgun start will be at 8 a.m. Gift certificates to top three teams in each flight.

For more information or to enter the clinic or the tournament call head golf professional Michael Hicks or general manager Jeff Miller at the Links.

Golfer makes family proud

The granddaughter of an area woman is burning up the golf courses on the junior tour in Texas.

Anndy Griffith-Patterson of Ruidoso said her granddaughter, Alana Soliz of Longview, Texas, has had four first place finishes out of five starts on the tour with one second place finish. Her latest victory was in the girls 12-14 age group the Haverty's NTPGA Junior Tour tournament on August 3. She finished the day with an 88, five shots ahead of her competitors. She will be a freshman this fall at Pine Tree High School and is expected to be an outstanding player for the school team.

A local golfer hits a great shot up to the green during the 1992 Shorty Hornbuckle Match Play golf tournament. Lincoln county residents fared well in the tournament at Cree Meadows.

Happy Trails Dressing for hiking success

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News
Part Four in a Series

Last week we shopped for the best-fitting hiking boot. This week we dress for hiking success.

Many times on the trail I've seen folks clad in tennies, shorts and a tank top, with no hat or gloves. What happens when they encounter thick underbrush or thorny branches? What if the sun beats down on them or it rains? What if they slip and fall?

At the least they'll be miserable; at most, injured or ill. To best enjoy your hike, dress comfortably, yet appropriately. You'll also look good.

Hiking veterans Bob Palko, Lester Lanelli, George and Barbara Goedecke again share what works in this and next week's articles.

The Bottoms

If the sun's in a cloudless sky when you leave the cabin, you may be tempted to hike in just shorts.

"Don't!" insist all four. Instead wear long pants that protect if you fall, run into thorns or nettles, plus keep you warm and dry if it rains.

George favors a wool blend pant.

"They're smooth so they don't catch on brush, give when I stride and I don't get too hot or cold if the weather changes."

What about good old blue jeans? Bob cautions, "When cotton gets wet, it wicks moisture inward to your skin. You risk hypothermia. So if you insist on jeans, pack rain pants in your backpack."

Also, jeans tend to be snug-fitting which can limit your stride and tire you. Lester solved that problem by finding stretch jeans.

I prefer pants with lots of pockets. My seven-pocket pair keeps handy a map, tissues, gloves, pocket knife, bandanna and a paperback field guide.

The Tops

If you need reasons to wear long sleeves, just re-read reasons for long pants. Then, dress in layers. Again, lots of pockets are handy.

Wear a hat for sun protection, critical at higher altitudes. George and Barbara model their favorite, which she made.

"It has a brim all the way around which keeps sun off both neck and face. It's white, which reflects sun but has a non-reflective green lining under the brim. It's cotton so it's cool and easily washed. And the best part is it wicks perspiration down and behind the face."

Ouch!
Don't forget gloves. Same reasons as long sleeves and long pants. "Watch for stinging nettles when you hike," warns Bob. These ugly tall plants raise welts on unprotected skin and sting for hours afterward. You don't even have to grasp one to be hurt; merely brushing an ungloved hand against it does the painful trick.

Other Musts

1. Sunglasses for protection against both ultraviolet (UV) rays (intense at this altitude) and eye-level branches.

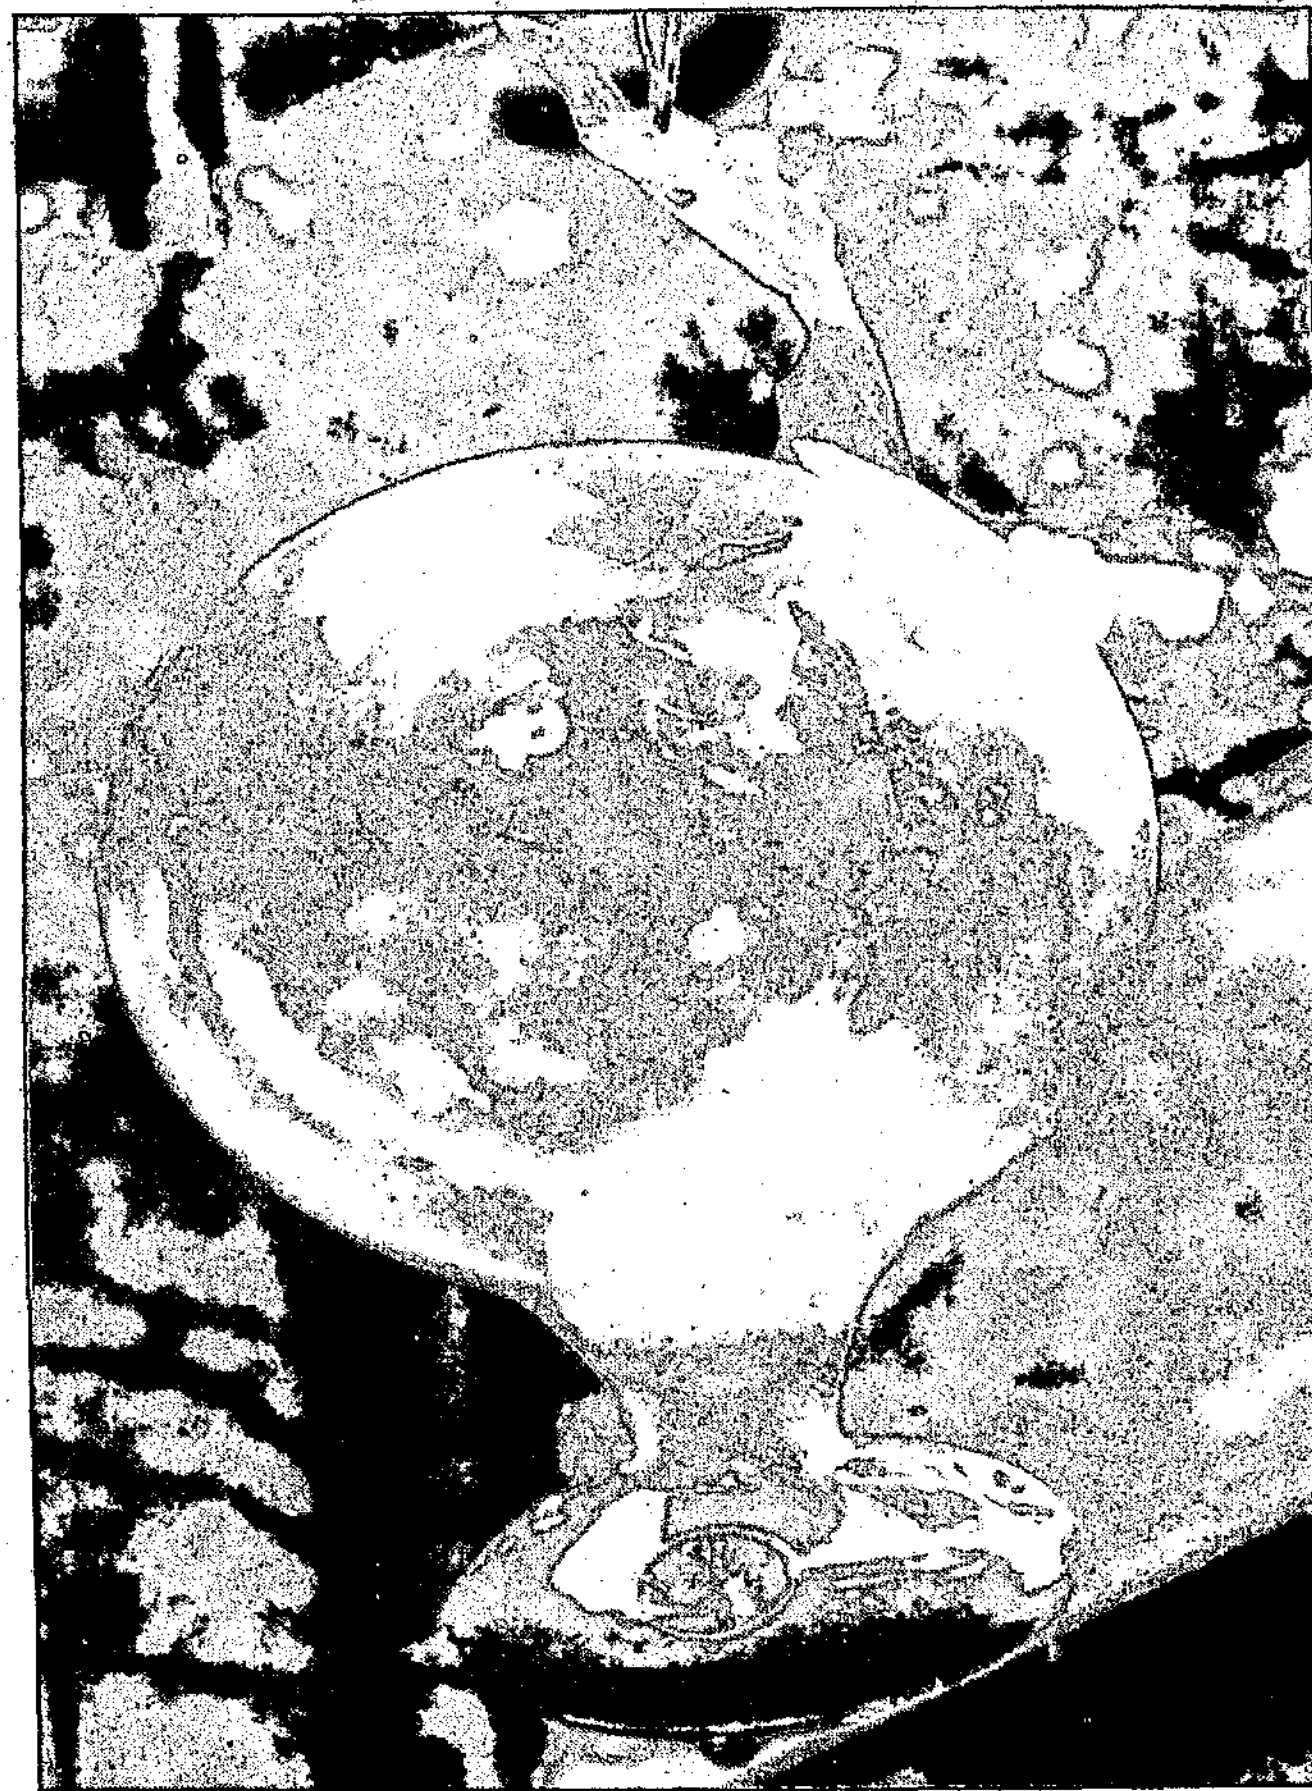

2. Sunscreen appropriate for your complexion. (Ladies, Mary Kay Cosmetics makes a sunscreen SPF 15 that goes over moisturizer and under foundation. Yes, wear foundation. Estee Lauder makes one with SPF 8; Clarion's is SPF 15.)

3. Since summer weather is unpredictable, stash rain gear in your pack. Bob suggests a minimum of jacket and pants.

"I like to pack a sweatshirt, too, for warmth. If a shower comes up, the temperature can drop 20 degrees in a matter of minutes." An extra pair of socks comes in handy, too.

4. A watch, essential for trail orientation (more about that subject in a future article.)

Now that you're clothed, you need only two more items to be totally prepared for your adventure. NEXT WEEK: the pack and the packables.

Bowl in one

An errant tee shot from a golfing playing Cree Mearrows found a home in this hummingbird feeder across the street from the second fairway.

1992 Old Lincoln Days draws record crowds to area

by ROSALIE DUNLAP
Special to The News

Another very successful Old Lincoln Days is now history.

Overflow crowds and record attendance at the performance of "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid," good weather contributed to the success of the activities.

The Texas Fourth Calvary of Lubbock, Texas, set up camp in front of the convent in old Lincoln, and the Mountain Men settled in at the Montano Store.

The Lincoln County Gold Mining Company set up gold panning at the Torreon Shop. Snack and food booths and arts and crafts exhibits kept visitors busy.

Entertainment was by the Folklórico dancers, Apache dancers, the young Apache singers, young Bethany Sanchez singing under the tree behind the Heritage Trust

Visitors Center, palm reader at La Placita and others all added to the festivities and color of Lincoln.

A highlight of Old Lincoln Days was the wedding of Jennifer White and Mike Sullivan at high noon in San Juan's church.

The bride, Jennifer White, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baylor White and Elaine White of Dallas, Texas.

The groom, Mike Sullivan, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sullivan of Capitan.

Besides the Street Festival and Pageant, Old Lincoln tuned up to the Old Fiddlers Contest on Saturday afternoon in the park. That contest has been repeated for close to 50 years.

Racing

Catonie's Creation faces big challenge

Donald Hoover knew Catonie's Creation had the physical talent to be a good race horse, however, the gelding couldn't win a race earlier this spring.

After four disappointing races, Hoover dropped Catonie's Creation into a $12,000 claiming race last May. Not only did the gelding win the race by eight lengths, he also won back his confidence. Since that race, Catonie's Creation has never finished worse than second and most recently won the Achievement Stakes at The Downs at Santa Fe.

Hoover is hopeful Catonie's Creation will continue his winning ways when he goes postward in Saturday's $25,000-added Ruidoso Derby. The Derby is for 3-year-old thoroughbreds racing 1-1/16 miles.

"He showed us as a 2 year old that he was a runner," said Hoover who trains Catonie's Creation for Rudy Mosely and Ernest Rigg of La Mesa, N.M. "But he shin bucked (suffered shin splints) so we gave him some time off. When we brought him back, it took him longer to get back on track than it should have."

Hoover couldn't find anything physically wrong with the gelding and began to believe that maybe the problem was in his horse's head. Perhaps the horse was suffering from flagging self confidence.

"I thought that if he could win a race it would pick his heart up," Hoover recalled. "That win did him a lot of good and he's been on a roll ever since."

After winning the claiming race, Catonie's Creation ran second in an allowance race, won another, and ran second behind Lt. Roberts in the Jockey Club Handicap July 4. He's won three of nine races this year for earnings of $27,800.

"This Derby is probably the toughest field he's had to race against this year," Hoover said. "My horse likes to run on the front end and there is quite a bit of speed in the race. All that speed could hurt my horse if he decides to go with the speed...especially with a horse like Mr. Fuzz in the race who likes to come from behind."

Hoover said Catonie's Creation's toughest competitors are probably Mr. Fuzz and Lt. Roberts.

Mr. Fuzz is the richest earner in the 12-horse field and one of three horses entered by Trainer Fred Danley. Danley will also saddle Whiskey Bullet and Jean Allmande.

"All three of my horses are doing super," Danley said Wednesday. "They'll all run good and definitely have a shot to win the race."

Danley admits the 1-1/16 "distance will make Mr. Fuzz especially tough."

Mr. Fuzz enters the Derby off a win in his July 25 derby prep. Earlier this year, he ran third behind Lt. Roberts and Catonie's Creation in the Jockey Club Handicap and ran third behind stablemate Whiskey Bullet in the Norgor Derby. Mr. Fuzz has won three races this year for earnings of about $31,000.

Besides the Norgor Derby, Whiskey Bullet also won a $10,000 claiming race at Sunland Park in April. The gelding has earned $21,779 this year.

Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby entrants in order of post position are: Mil Amores, no rider named at time of entry; Chuck's Sunny, Richard Bickel; Gifted Inspiration, no rider; Whiskey Bullet, Todd Fincher; Jean Allmande, no rider; Hometown Favorite, Flavio Martinez; Bolduino, Joe Martinez; Flash Seal, Kenneth Hart; Jazzy Momma, Vickie Smallwood; Mr. Fuzz, Duane Sterling; Lt. Roberts, Chris Zamora; Catonie's Creation, Danny Summerow; Also Eligible: Hav More Sherry, Foggy London.

Also of tap for Saturday is the simulcast of the $300,000 Eddie Read Handicap for the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club in Southern California.

First post Saturday is 1 p.m.

Jack Wilson breaks a track record Saturday

Jack Wilson's victory in Saturday's 10th race was no surprise, but doing it in track-record time over a sloppy track was.

Jack Wilson and jockey Todd Fincher broke the 4-year-old track record of 1:03.1 for 5-1/2 furlongs when they won the race by about three lengths in 1:02.4.

"I thought he could outrun this field, but I never expected him to set a new track record," said Fred Danley who trains the colt for Larry Teague of Hobbs.

"When the competition is setting the fractions like they were on the front end and you pass them in the stretch, you're going to set a track record."

Way Cool, who finished second behind Jack Wilson, set the early fractions of :22 for the first quarter mile and :44.3 for the half.

Bold Arrival turned the tables on Willy Comanche and Whister

Queen in winning Saturday's $58,560 Rio Grande Futurity.

Bold Arrival and jockey Jerry Nicodemus went to the lead early in the six-furlong race with Willy Comanche right on their heels. When it appeared Willy Comanche would pass Bold Arrival at the head of the stretch, Nicodemus got after Bold Arrival and the pair held on to win by a half length. Whister Queen raced way back in the early going, made a sweeping charge five wide around the turn, but couldn't catch the leaders and finished third.

Earlier in the season, Bold Arrival finished third behind Willy Comanche and Whister Queen in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, the first race of the two-race Rio Grande series.

The winning time over the sloppy, but fast track was 1:11.1.

Million dollar babies gather here

Racing, Inc.

Millions of dollars worth of horse flesh have congregated at Ruidoso Downs this weekend to compete in the elimination trials for the $2 million All American Futurity Sept. 7. The winner of the 440-yard finals is guaranteed a purse of $1 million.

Five-time All American winning trainer Jack Brooks entered 21 horses for the trials, Sleepy Gilbreath entered 22 and Nene Simmons, 18.

When asked what they thought their entries as a whole were worth, Brooks and Simmons said they didn't know, but admitted it was plenty.

"I couldn't even begin to tell you what my horses are worth," Brooks said. "I've never really thought about it, but I'd be conservative to say they're worth at least $3 million."

Among Brooks contingency are three of the nation's top-10 2-year-olds: Mr. Eye Opener, the fourth richest 2-year-old at this time; Dash Through Traffic, ranked sixth; and Choculo, ranked seventh. All three colts have qualified for multiple Grade I races with Mr. Eye Opener winning the Grade I West Texas Futurity at Sunland Park this past spring and Choculo winning the Grade I Sun Country Futurity also at Sunland.

Brooks said all three owners have turned down offers of $100,000 or more for each of the colts.

Simmons said to put a price tag on her horses would not be fair because about half are untested.

"Fifty percent of my entries are still maidens and have raced very little," said Simmons, whose husband Arnold saddled 1989 All American winner Ronas Ryon. "The breeding on some of them alone make them valuable...such as Shake It Amanda."

Shake It Amanda is a half sister to 1991 All American winner Royal Quick Dash.

MR EYE OPENER RANKED NO.1

With Deceptively sidelined with a fractured cannon bone, Mr. Eye Opener has moved into the top slot in the AQHA's All American Futurity Poll.

Second on the poll was Pip Pip, who was nominated for the All American, but is sidelined with an injured hoof. Pip Pip is undefeated in three races in California. She most recently won, the Grade I Miss Kindergarten at Los Alamitos, but severely quartered herself doing so.

"She tore her foot up pretty bad," said her trainer Blain Schvaneveldt. "If she had been able, we would have been here. It looks like it will be the end of the month before she can race again."

With Pip Pip out, Imfastermaster moves into the No. 2 slot followed by Loose Lips, Flashing Streak, Dash Through Traffic, Choculo, Zip Dash and Mr. Webster.

Deceptively may be out of the All American Poll, but she is still ranked No. 2 on the AQHA's overall poll behind the great Refrigerator. Just how much better was Deceptively over Mr. Eye Opener? Mr. Eye Opener is ranked eighth overall.

The only horse to win two Grade I races so far this year, Deceptively will more than likely be named the AQHA's Champion 2-year-old Racing Filly. About the only way she would be ousted from her throne would be for a filly to win the All American as well as a Grade I race or two in California later this winter.

STALL REST PRESCRIBED FOR DECEPTIVELY

Deceptively arrived at Dr. Bob Lewis' clinic in Elgin, Texas, but she didn't stay long.

"He X-rayed her and told me to take her home and give her 30 days stall rest," said Trainer Bruce Bell who saddled the undefeated filly in the Grade I Kansas and Rainbow Futurities.

"He said to bring her back after the 30 days and if everything looks good we'll turn her out for about six weeks. We expect she'll be out of training six to eight weeks. We're targeting her for the Golden State Futurity at Los Alamitos in December."

NOLAN RYON UP TO BAT IN ALL AMERICAN TRIAL

Nolan Ryon will be in town for Thursday's All American Futurity trials, but hold onto your caps. It's Nolan Ryon the Quarter Horse, not pitching great Nolan Ryon of the Texas Rangers.

The 2-year-old colt's name is a collaboration of his breeding and the whims of his owner Christine Bessent of San Saba, Texas.

It seems that one day Bessent was leafing through an edition of "Progressive Farmer" when she ran across Nolan Ryon in an ad promoting Wrangler Jeans. Since the colt was by Ronas Ryon, she thought it might be fun to name the colt after the baseball star.

"I was kinda out of names and when I saw Nolan Ryon in those Wranglers," Bessent said. "I got to thinking about it so I wrote Nolan Ryon asking permission to name my colt after him."

Bessent didn't know how to reach the baseball player, but she knew he was from Alvin, Texas. She wrote the letter in care of Alvin and somehow he got it.

"He sent me back a signed baseball card, but I didn't know if that meant yes or no on his name," she said. "I wrote him back a second time and that time he wrote back with his permission."

"I didn't realize at the time just how famous he was," Bessent said. "Since then I've read his autobiography and now I follow his games."

Ironically, Nolan Ryon was pitching in California the same weekend Nolan Ryon was making his career debut at California's Los Alamitos racetrack. They both lost. However, the following weekend they both won, Nolan Ryon against maiden allowance horses and Nolan Ryon against the Detroit Tigers.

SUNDAY FEATURE ONE CHAMPION RACE

Take triple stakes winner Last Don B. and add Jack Wilson, Christian Don, Dart, Dance Trainer, Way Cool and Bin Jer and what do you get...one heck of a horse race. All, or at least most of the above horses, are expected to go postward in Sunday's Ruidoso Print Championship at six furlongs.

Undefeated at Ruidoso Downs this summer Last Don B. is highweight at 124 pounds followed by Jack Wilson and A Bit Of Style at 121 and Christian Don at 120 pounds.

"It's been a long six weeks between races," said Lynda Tanner who trains Last Don B. "He's been chomping at the bit for several weeks, but there just wasn't another race which matched his conditions or that he was eligible for."

Tanner is hoping that her gelding isn't too fresh for the race.

Just when you think they're doing so good they'll feel too good and play around instead of running," Tanner said.

With Manny Ortiz riding in New Jersey, Flavio Martinez has picked up the ride on Last Don B. Earlier in the meet, Ortiz rode the gelding to victory in the Governor's and Apache Mescalero handicaps and the Ruidoso Budweiser Breeders' Cup.

"Last Don B. was one of the reasons I came out here to ride this summer," said Martinez, Ruidoso Downs' leading rider at the moment. "But I took off him to ride another horse, which got sick and didn't run anyway. Manny won with him so it was only natural he retain the mount. I'm back on him now now, I just hope he runs the same."

FAVORITES FAIR WELL

Playing the race favorites at Ruidoso Downs is a good bet.

Through last week, 28.6 percent of the Thoroughbred races were won by favorites and 37 percent of the Quarter Horse races were won by favorites. Overall, favorites have won 31.6 percent of the races this summer.

Record payoffs so far this summer include a $214 win, $83.80 to place and $18.20 to show recorded when Dancing Kyreen won a $5,000 claiming race on June 18. The exacta high is a $4,094.20 payoff on a $2 ticket; quinella, $449 on a $2 ticket; daily double, $505.60 on a $2 ticket; and a trifecta payoff of $16,449. The twin trifecta had a hefty payoff of $74,334 while the pick six handed out a high of $9,064. by the way...the twin trifecta carryover for Thursday is more than $45,000.

Thoroughbred prices are up by four percent

One hundred and three horses netted almost $400,000 during the Ruidoso Horse Sale company's annual thoroughbred sale Saturday in Glencoe.

The sale topper was an unnamed colt by the sire Dawn Of Creation out of Draconic's B.G. which sold for $25,500.

The yearling was consigned by V.J. Callaway and purchased by partners Ernest Rigg and Rudy Mosley of La Mesa.

A total of $395,150 was spent on the horses for an average sale price of $3,836, up four percent from last year's sale.

The second-sale topper was another unnamed colt consigned by V.J. Callaway, Dawn Of Creation/Miss Overstreet, and purchased for $20,000 by R.D. Hubbard of Fort Worth, Texas.

Partners Margaret Dupont and Margaret Bloss spent the most money purchasing two racing prospects for a total of $32,500. Roy Barrington and Gary Bees bought the most horses, three apiece. V.J. Callaway was the number one consignor with 25 horses selling and also sold the top four sellers.

The thoroughbred sale was the first of two sales the Ruidoso Horse Sale Company hosts each summer. The second sale is the company's quarter horse sales September 1-2. More than 340 horses of all ages and sex are consigned to the company sales: Ruidoso Super Select Sale September 1; the San Jose Cattle Co. Dispersal September 1; and the All American Yearling Sale September 2.

The Silver Lining

Texas couple celebrates 75th anniversary

Zella Hicks attends parents' anniversary

Mrs. Zella Hicks of Ruidoso attended the 75th wedding anniversary of her parents, Arthur B. Sherrill, 94, and Mellie E. Sherrill, 91, of Edna, Texas on August 9.

They were married August 11, 1917, in Cushman, Arkansas. Zella, their only child, was born October 2, 1920.

They have three grandchildren, Carol Dorsey of Edna, Jerral Hicks of Las Cruces and Douglas Hicks of Victoria, Texas. They also have five great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

The reception was held from two until four at the Southbrook Manor, a care center where Arthur and Mellie reside in Edna. The reception was attended by about 150 friends and relatives.

Zella said the reception was beautiful with the color scheme of flowers, tablecloths and other decorations all in pink, her mother's favorite color. Cakes, punch, nuts and mints were served.

Arthur's brother, Roy Sherrill, and his wife, Floy, came from Jefferson, Texas, to attend the reception.

Honored by Mayor

The mayor of Edna, Jodel Hermes, presented Arthur and Mellie with a sketch of their life history to be framed.

Also the state representative from that district, Steve Molhauser, presented the couple with an honorary plaque, and wished them all the best.

Arthur and Mellie moved to El Campo, Texas, where they owned the cement works. Then they moved to Edna in 1920.

Zella and her husband, C.R. Hicks, moved from Edna to Ruidoso three years ago.

We are happy that Arthur and Mellie Sherrill had such a wonderful celebration for their 75th wedding anniversary. And we wish them every happiness and all God's blessings.

Perfect Weather for Old Lincoln Days

The Weather Spirits very kindly brought us bright sunny days and cool moonlit nights for the three days of Old Lincoln Days.

by Dan Storm
The Ridge Runner

This is the first time in a very long time during my 41 years in "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid" that we did not have rain during a part of the show. Although it is held in what is normally the rainiest month of the year it has never been completely rained out.

The good weather helped to make this year especially enjoyable. The crowds at the show were unusually large, and as usual, very appreciative and friendly, even more so this year.

Many children came up with their parents for autographs, and told how much they like the show. It seemed this year there were more tiny children and even babes in arms at the Pageant.

The parade featured many children on floats and on horseback; and as always it's heart warming to see so many young children waving their tiny hands among the folks along the parade route through the village.

Meeting Old Friends and Making New Ones

One of the charms of the Lincoln Days is meeting old friends.

John and Marge Elliott came from Butler, Pennsylvania, to see the pageant again and to visit here at the place. John is the nephew of Jim Elliott, the prospector who had a mine close by.

Joe Coe, grandson of Jasper Coe, and boyhood friend and companion of the Storm brothers, came up after the Sunday show; and we had a great visit talking over old times when we worked for Jim Jackson in the cabbage fields where Dub and Katherine Williams now reside.

It was a special honor to become acquainted with the mother of Mrs. Marilyn Ward, Viola Porter, and her husband, O.T. Viola and her daughter are two of a kind, beautiful, kindly and full of the pioneer helpful spirit.

I will always remember this year's pageant for the great help and consideration given me by all members of the cast and so many of those in the crowd and the visitors to Lincoln.

Approaching Rain Cools the World

This is being sent to you a little after high noon on August 5, and after three of the hottest days of the year, the thunder is sending its bass voice over the hills all around the horizon. What welcome music after several days of dry and hot weather here in the Vale!

I see the clouds gathering over toward Lincoln where the rains will be welcome to settle the dust and cool off the little frontier village for the Lincoln Days which will begin the evening of Friday the sixth.

Now the thunder speaks its glad tidings again and lightning flashes over the hill, and the rain moves in closer, a cool breeze floats in from the clouds to the south and Mother Earth wears a happy smile while the clouds send forth their mellow music of the sky.

The Fragrance of the Rain

Now the first large drops come pattering down, beating a cheery tattoo on the roof of the sunroom, and pattering through the leaves of the small apricot tree just outside the window. Little clouds of dust rise from the drops as they come shining down from the low clouds — and sand on the dirt road.

The aroma of the cool drops mingling with the dry red dirt now reaches you and the fresh breath of the raindrops moving on the light breeze through the air is the breath of life itself.

And now the flavor of the piñon and cedar is brought to you as the raindrops fall among the hot twigs and branches of the evergreens. And your heart rejoices with the mountain land amid the flavor and the fragrance of the rain.

MainStreet board reviews some 35 job applications

A selection committee is currently reviewing 35 applications for the position of office administrator at MainStreet Ruidoso.

MainStreet president Alden Deyo said the interest in the position was fantastic and they got some good applications by the August 1 deadline. He said most of the applicants were from around the area, but they had not advertised the position outside of Ruidoso. He said the group expects to get a recommendation from the selection committee at the MainStreet board meeting on Thursday, August 20, and then the entire board will make the final decision.

The selection committee chairperson is board director Bill Carrigan with directors Audean Franklin, Herb Brunell and J.D. James as committee members.

An office administrator is being hired to begin to train for the position of project director to replace the current director Mary Maul.

Maul is moving to Santa Fe but will continue to serve as a project consultant for the group. A committee was also formed to negotiate with Maul on her salary in the new position so the group would know how much funding was available to pay the salary of the office administrator. The person hired as administrator will be expected to advance to the position of project director in about six months after beginning.

Board director Mike Line chaired the committee that negotiated with Maul. Directors Carrigan and Tom Rigsby were also members of that committee.

President Deyo refused to release the names of any of the applicants for the position in the public organization, which uses public funds for support.

The News has contacted the Foundation for Open Government for help in obtaining those public records.

Obituary

Frankie Battles

Services for Frankie Battles, 85, of Ruidoso will be at 2 p.m. today at the Community United Methodist Church in Ruidoso. Officiating will be the Reverend Craig Cockrell minister of the church. Burial will follow at Forest Lawn Cemetery in Ruidoso.

Battles died Tuesday at Lincoln County Memorial Hospital in Ruidoso. She was born January 24, 1907, at Gorman, Texas, to Nancy and John Neill who both preceded her in death.

She moved to Ruidoso from Artesia in 1949. She was a graduate from McMurry College in Abilene, was a member of Community United Methodist Church and the Jockey Club at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. She also helped start the original Cablevision Company in Ruidoso.

Survivors include two sisters, Alice King of Stephenville, Texas, and Gaye Benefield of Odessa, Texas; several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband, Ron Battles, in 1981.

Pallbearers will be Johnny Durham, Kenneth Shockey, Stormy Edwards, Bill Querin, Danny Wimberly and Bill Scarborough.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Advertisers who want to place their print ads in a quality publication ask the question: "Is your circulation audited?"

We're very proud to answer "Yes."

We are a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations because we share ABC's belief that circulation audits are an essential assurance of value.

ABC is the premier circulation auditing organization in the world, and has been since 1914. Each year, ABC auditors test and verify that our circulation figures are facts, not claims. An ABC audit is the sign of a sound investment for advertisers.

Not all publications are audited, but they should be. Because when advertisers ask "Is your circulation audited?" there's only one answer.

"Yes."

County Commission overrules Lincoln board by allowing chicken wire fence in historic town

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The owners of a series of empty historic buildings in the settlement of Lincoln won the right Tuesday to keep vandals out with chicken wire.

The Lincoln County Commission overruled a recommendation by the Lincoln Historic Preservation Board to require Mrs. Daniel Avila and her sister Priscilla Maes to put up barbed wire or a wood fence instead.

Historic board chairman Cleis Jordan said the chicken wire was installed in September. The buildings are situated across the street from the courthouse.

The board asked Avila to suggest some different options.

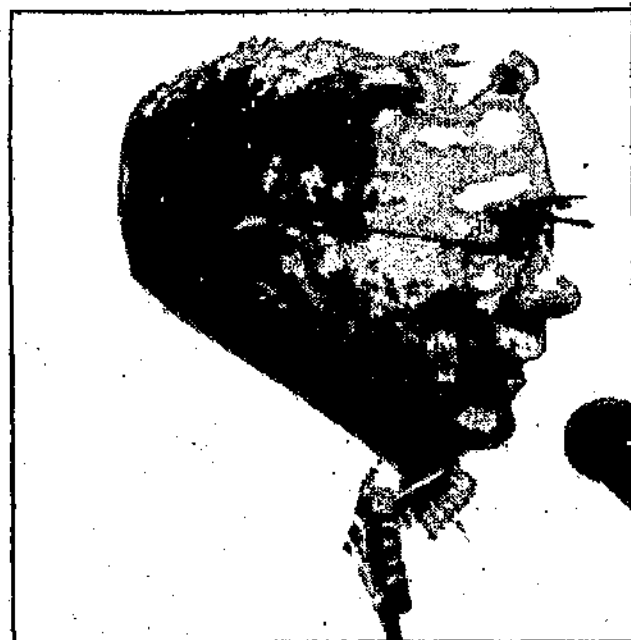

"She did and was very cooperative," Jordan said. The board rejected her proposals and suggested the alternatives of barbed wire or wood.

"She chose not to agree to the alternatives and we referred the issue to the planning and zoning board, which referred it to you. We are asking her to follow the ordinance or to remove the fence," Jordan said. Delivery was refused on the last certified letter sent to Avila notifying her of the referral.

The board felt chicken wire offered very little real protection and that its correct purpose was for chickens, not fencing buildings, Jordan said.

Maes said she lives in El Paso and her sister in Roswell. They inherited the buildings, a former museum and dance hall, from their parents and are trying to sell the property.

"We were not aware of the board or the ordinance," she said. "We are not trying to be difficult. We were trying to protect ourselves from damages and (accident) lawsuits.

"A lot of people don't obey signs to keep out. They go through fences and windows. Tourists are tourists."

The sisters contended barbed wire would increase the chances of an accident and wood would be unattractive and expensive.

Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer asked how the wire held up over the Old Lincoln Days celebration in the settlement last weekend. The village was crowded both days.

"Since it was erected, we've had no vandalism, thefts or cuts," Mrs. Avila said. "I talked to people in the community and they said they don't even notice the wire until they're up close."

"We are not unreasonable people, but we must protect our property. I already said I was sorry (for not going to the historic preservation board first)."

Commissioner Bill Elliott told Jordan, "This is one time I'm in total disagreement with the board. Whether it's chicken wire or sheep wire, they've been around forever."

"Which came first, the chicken or the wire? Maybe the board is being a little too choosy."

He made the motion to allow the sisters to keep the chicken wire and it passed unanimously. But he stressed that the ruling pertained only to this specific situation.

Commissioner Monroy Montes said the preservation board should consider some standard for vacant buildings since there are several in the small settlement that may be in the same situation.

In a related matter, commissioners said they are considering dropping out of the Certified Local Government (CLG) program that designates communities involved in historic preservation.

"I wonder if we are putting encumbrances on the board with additional paperwork for little gain," Spencer said. "After one year, would it be better to spend the money ($2,000) elsewhere."

Montes said he initially supported the program because it required expanding the local preservation board from five to seven members. "I thought it would be easier to get a quorum," he said.

Jordan said the state Historic Preservation Office has come to the aid of the local group in meetings with other state agencies.

"Their time is limited," she said. "Whether their help is based on our CLG membership, I don't know."

Spencer, who was scheduled to name a replacement to the historic board, held off until the commission decides on the future course of the board.

Jordan urged that the vacancy be filled because the seat has been empty quite a bit since the first of the year.

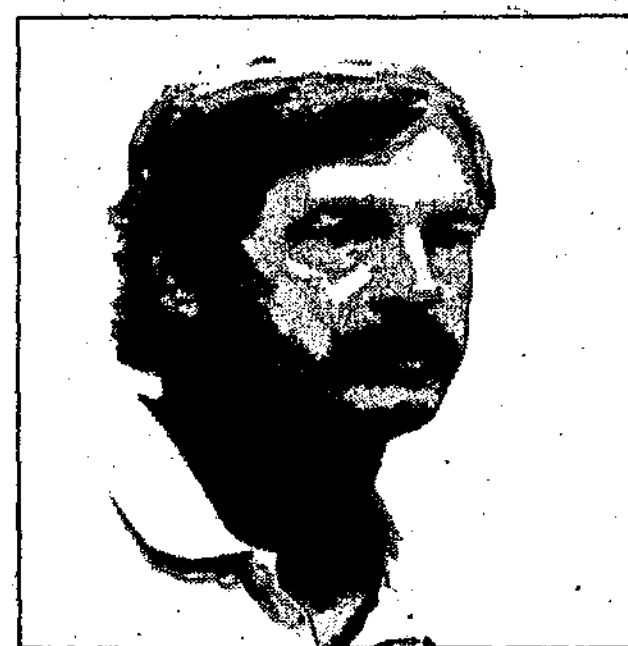

Spencer lightly chided Jordan for what he said was "a pretty sorry reception" by other board members of his former appointee Roy Harmon, former postmaster of Carrizozo.

"Maybe that's why he didn't go back."

"He was one of the most historically versed people in the county," Spencer said.

Jordan said Harmon's resignation cited ill health as the reason for his lack of attendance.

In a later issue, former commissioner Ralph Dunlap said the commission should ask the state engineer to ensure that an accurate meter is installed at Lake Bonito reservoir by the city of Alamogordo. The monthly readings of water consumption should be verified by the state or county officials, he said.

"We shouldn't pay for their leaks," Dunlap said. Alamogordo in Otero County pumps water from the Lincoln County lake, which was formed when a dam was built.

"One of the employees told me they are putting in a new meter," Spencer said. "I applaud the new pipeline installed to solve the leaks."

"They've been looking into it for 15 years," Dunlap said. "I'd like a date on the meter (installation), not just promises."

Spencer said he didn't see a problem verifying that readings are accurate.

"You're asking no more than the state does with any person who has a well," he said.

He directed staff to review the situation with Dunlap and the city, to "get up to snuff on all sides" and to get a construction schedule on the new pipeline.

Keith Kessler came to the podium as a representative of the city. He said there are three main meters on the line to Alamogordo. The first out of the lake was installed in 1990 at the Bonito turnoff on State Road 37, the second at Nogal and the third at the La Luz filter plant.

"There always is a little discrepancy, about 100 gallons, between the Bonito and Nogal meters," he said. "That's not much water. An 18-inch meter can be off from three to five percent."

Before the new pipeline went in, Kessler said in one year he repaired 241 water breaks along the 32 mile route of the old 18-inch steel line.

"I cut our losses on the Bonito line from 300 million gallons (a year) to 54 million gallons," he said.

After the meeting, Elton Young, who owns property along the route of the old water line that now is abandoned, told The Ruidoso News Alamogordo should either remove or cover unsightly portions of the pipeline that are exposed.

In other business, the commission:

—appointed Dunlap to a vacancy on the county road review board.

—approved a solid waste ordinance, which provided that the county can contract with a number of different entities for collection service, including the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (of which the county is a member) or a private collector.

Len Stokes, former president of Southwest Disposal, spoke as a consultant for the company that now handles Alto and other unincorporated areas of the county.

Before awarding a contract, he urged the commission to require the authority to submit a detailed collection plan with costs to compare to other bidders for the service. The monthly fees to consumers should be based on actual cost, he said.

Spencer reminded Stokes that the transfer of service to the authority has been under discussion for nearly two years.

"I've seen their cost estimates and talked to you about yours, but the proof is in the pudding."

The commission approved the ordinance with a $5.25 per month per household charge in place.

County drops out of state organization

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Although Carrizozo will be the site of the next board meeting of the New Mexico Association of Counties, Lincoln County officials won't be there.

The County Commission Tuesday voted to drop membership in the organization and called for the director to resign.

County manager Andy Wynham said he had mixed feelings about criticizing the association since he is a past president of both the association and the county clerk's affiliate.

"But we see increased expenditures by the association," he said. "They used to have a staff of three and operate out of an old house, but they would work 10 to 15 issues in each legislative session. Now they have a staff of 20 and work five issues."

"With 20 different affiliates and only five issues, a lot of legitimate concerns fall by the wayside. I think they need to simplify, to go back to their roots. The leadership has deteriorated."

"I'm not sure we wouldn't be better to take the $26,000 a year (for membership and the cost of attending meetings) and hand each department $2,000 to burn up the telephone line or to help set up their own affiliate organizations," Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer said.

"I hate to be the county that trails off on its own," said County Clerk Martha Proctor, a member of the association board of directors. "I think the president of the association should step down. At the last board meeting, it was the first time a group joined together for accountability by the administration."

"In my opinion the bad is starting to outweigh the good" in being a member, Commissioner Monroy Montes said.

"I believe Lincoln County and some others have been fighting for years to change this," Wynham said. "Maybe if others leave, it will bring about a change."

Before making the decision, the commission queried department heads and elected officials for their opinions on the benefits of membership.

Most said the chief benefit was the interaction with others in their particular affiliate organizations.

Road manager Bill Cupit, who is chairman of his affiliate, said, "We need to help the counties smaller than us. We're kind of in the middle."

"We'd still end up being in the minority," Spencer said.

"I don't think I've gained from going to the general meetings," said Commissioner Bill Elliott. "Unless they have a change of command, I think it's almost doomed."

After a unanimous vote by commissioners not to pay the annual dues, Proctor told the board about the directors meeting in Carrizozo.

"I'm sure they'll have a good time without us," she said.

Spencer added that the commission can always rejoin the organization later.

"I was totally hacked over how the executive director overran our affiliate the last time," Spencer said. "I hear where Martha (Proctor) is coming from. You've got to be part of it to change it. But the way I feel today. The hell with it."

Association director Donna Smith did not return calls Wednesday from The Ruidoso News.

In another matter, commissioners told Grover Hall, foreman of the Cannib Block Ranch, that if he didn't immediately replace two road signs, the roads would have to be removed from the county's maintenance list.

Hall said he lives north of Capitan and that during hunting season, many trespass abuses occur.

"I can't have someone shooting in my back yard," he said.

"I question the placement and necessity of having (signs on) these roads to my house and the owner's house."

Spencer said the county's new Emergency 911 communication plan requires that all county maintained roads be clearly identified without name duplications.

"By identifying county roads, it gives private landowners a recourse for trespass on private roads," Spencer pointed out.

"You can't have your cake and eat it," Elliott said. "Do you want your roads taken off county maintenance?"

"No sir," Hall said. "I took the signs down and will put them back."

Hall said one of the two affected roads serves three families and the other serves five.

"The weather can get bad and we have school children and school teachers who live on the roads," he said.

Hall said he fears if he doesn't lock the gate at the cattle guard during hunting season, it will create a danger for his family.

But Spencer said public roads can't be blocked or locked.

"There are strings attached to taking money from the public coffers," Spencer said. "That guy over there (road manager Cupit) stuck a sign on my cattle guard that tells people to come on down."

"I understand your feeling, I'd like to put a railroad tie across mine."

If a sign is removed and a county road falls into disrepair that later contributes to an accident, the county would be liable, he noted.

Cupit said the situation could become even more aggravating for ranchers who have public lands within their ranch boundaries.

"Hunters will see that on the new county maps," he said. "They will have to get the proper permits, but it's going to get worse for some of the ranchers who live on these roads that lead to those public lands."

In another road issue, Cupit urged persons and groups interested in keeping certain forest roads passable to contact the U.S. Forest Service with their concerns.

The county dropped maintenance on several roads when the forest service declined to contribute toward the effort.

Marvin Jones came to the commission to ask for its help in reopening FR400 (Nogal Canyon Road) that loops around Bonito, the Parsons Mine and Nogal.

"It's one of the most scenic drives in the county," Jones said. "On Sunday, you could sit there and count lots of cars. Tourism is important to this county. I feel it's critical, even if it's maintained just once a year."

Cupit said he has received less cooperation on road projects from officials in the Smokey Bear District of the Lincoln National Forest than in the Cibola National Forest around Corona.

Cibola bent over backwards and sent two loads of culverts right down and cattleguards are coming," Cupit said. "I just need cooperation and we'll try to do some work. Lincoln is making an effort. We didn't want to drop all these forest roads, but they keep saying it's not a priority road."

With Mr. Jones and others

(complaining), it may prompt them to make it a priority. They've just been letting the county take the heat. They're trying, but without support, they're not going to push."

In other business, the commission:

—heard a report from the Sheriff James McSwane that the town of Carrizozo was willing to pay $4,000 for emergency communications equipment in recognition of the services provided by the sheriff's department. The Carrizozo village board of trustees rejected a similar request for financial help.

"One trustee said for what I was requesting, he would dispatch from his house with a hand-held radio," McSwane said. "He may have to."

—approved an architectural contract for the Hondo Volunteer Fire Department to construct an addition to its fire station.

—heard an explanation from McSwane of purchasing orders for ammunition totaling $1,260. He said his 19 officers must qualify quarterly on the shooting range. Each qualification uses up 100 rounds of ammunition. Stress courses often also are run and eat up 150 rounds. One case of 9 mm ammunition costs $209 and contains 1,000 rounds.

A variety of ammunition types are necessary for practice and on-duty weapons. Officers are required to buy their own handguns and maintain them. The department buys high powered rifles and shotguns, he said.

Elliott asked McSwane then why the department had purchased two new barrels recently. McSwane said he would check his records.

—was told that McSwane had secured a federal grant for a school drug education officer, a position to be filled by deputy Connie Harper. A new deputy will be hired to take her old slot. If the school program is cut in subsequent years, the new hire would be the first to go, McSwane said.

—awarded three contracts for fuel based on a recommendation by Cupit. Each company offered different prices for diesel and non-lead and were located in different areas of the county. Cupit explained that his department's consumption pattern has changed over the last year and diesel has heavier use. The contracts were awarded to J. and R. Oil in Lincoln, Bell Gas in Corona and La May Distributing Co. Inc. in Carrizozo.

Briefs

Summer's over-school begins

Ruidoso High School students who pre-registered last spring, still need to show up next week and register for the upcoming school year.

RHS registration is set for Wednesday and Thursday, August 19 and 20, with seniors scheduled from 9-11 a.m. Wednesday, juniors from 1-3 p.m. Wednesday, sophomores from 9-11 a.m. Thursday and freshmen from 1-3 p.m. Thursday. Classes begin at RHS on Friday, August 21.

Ruidoso Middle School students were scheduled to register August 11 and 12. Classes began at the Mid-school on Wednesday, August 19.

ENMU's Board of Regents retreats and meets in Ruidoso

Eastern New Mexico University Board of Regents will meet at 2 p.m. Monday, August 17, at Carrizo Lodge in Ruidoso.

Agenda items include a discussion on the mission and goals of the ENMU-Ruidoso Instructional Center, approval of candidates for summer graduation on the Portales and Roswell campuses and a request to submit research and public service projects to the Commission on Higher Education for appropriation.

The agenda includes a request for the adoption of a resolution in support of the 1992 General Obligation Bond Act.

The University's Board of Regents will conduct a retreat and workshop August 16 and 17 in Ruidoso.

Water district meets Sept. 3

Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District will elect one supervisor during a meeting at 6:30 p.m. September 3, at the Bob Boebinger home in San Patricio on U.S. Highway 70.

The position to be filled is place number one, currently held by Paul H. Jones.

All owners of land within the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District are eligible to vote.

For further information, contact Sue Stearnes at 354-2220.

The Confederate Air Force preserves aviation history

The Confederate Air Force, possibly the only flying museum of its kind in the world, is flying into Sierra Blanca Regional Airport (SBRA) this weekend.

The World War II vintage planes will land at SBRA at about 2 p.m. Saturday, and the public is invited to stop by and see them.

According to a news release, the Confederate Air Force (CAF) and American Airpower Heritage Museum were formed to preserve in flying condition a complete collection of combat aircraft which were flown by all military services of the United States during World War II.

CAF members want to provide museum building for the permanent protection and display of these aircraft and to establish the Combat Airman Hall of Fame as a tribute to the thousands of men and women who built, serviced and flew them.

A further CAF objective is to perpetuate in the memory and in the heart of all Americans the spirit in which these great planes were flown in the defense of this nation and to establish an organization to operate, maintain and preserve these aircraft as symbols of this country's American military aviation heritage.

Downs mayor appoints his brother to board

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The appointment of a new trustee and a new chief of police did not meet with unanimous approval at the Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees meeting Monday night.

After accepting the resignations of trustee Jackie Branum and chief Skip Hazel, Mayor Joe Hayhurst nominated Ray Hayhurst, his brother, to fill the remaining year and a half of Branum's term.

The mayor said he took into consideration the results of a recent suggestion box poll which was done to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of trustee Ray Fredrickson on July 13. Margie Morales got the highest number of votes, 42, and replaced Fredrickson, while Hayhurst came in second with 21.

The mayor said Ray was willing to be a trustee and will do a good job for the village. He said Ray is well-known and well-liked in the community, which showed in the number of people who suggested him for the last vacancy.

In the roll call vote, trustees Morales and Charlotte Craig voted to approve Hayhurst's nomination, but trustee Judy Miller voted against it. She said she had to vote against it because he is related to the mayor, but she has nothing personally against Ray.

The mayor said he wouldn't have put Ray's name up for consideration if he wouldn't work hard at the position.

Miller also voted against the mayor's nomination of Ruidoso Corporal Will Hoggard for the position of police chief, but trustees Craig, Morales and Hayhurst voted in favor of him. Miller said she had gotten a lot of phone calls from people concerning Hazel's replacement, and she told them to call the mayor, too. She said she felt there were a few officers in the Downs department who were qualified for the position, but they hadn't come forward. If they wanted the position they should have come forward and showed people that they were interested, she said.

Officer David Hightower said he was off-duty when Hazel announced his resignation and when Hightower came back in to work the next day he heard that Hoggard was going to get the position.

"The opportunity to come forward did not present itself," he said.

Officer Frankie Hooper agreed that there was no opportunity.

"It was already a done deal," he said.

The mayor said this position was not an advancement in the department, but an appointment. Village attorney Bob Beauvais confirmed that the statutes state under the mayor-council form of government the mayor may appoint all officers, such as the police chief and village clerk, but it has to be approved by an absolute majority of the trustees, which means three out of the four must vote for the appointment.

Hooper said he understood that but was just responding to what trustee Miller had been concerned about.

Mayor Hayhurst said Hoggard is a good police officer and keeps up on the required schooling. Hoggard has the credentials to show that he can do the job, he said. Hayhurst said he also got a lot of phone calls from people who wanted Hoggard as the new chief.

"It wasn't anything against our officers. It wasn't a promotion," Hayhurst said.

Hoggard had worked at the Ruidoso Downs police department beginning in 1986 for about two and a half years and has been at the Ruidoso department for almost three years. He has served as president of the Fraternal Order of Police twice. Hoggard said he still knows quite a few people in Ruidoso Downs and is looking forward to serving as chief for the village.

Hazel was in the same position about eight years ago when he was promoted from Ruidoso corporal to Ruidoso Downs chief. His resignation is effective August 21.

Hayhurst congratulated Hazel on a job well done in that time and said it was a pleasure to work with him. Municipal Judge Harrold Mansell said this police department's conviction rate has been about 99.5 percent and that shows that the department has a good bunch of officers with a good leader.

Ruidoso Downs Postmaster Shirlene Fitzner said Hazel has always been helpful to her and the post office. She said she hoped the chief who follows him will also have the interest of Ruidoso Downs in mind. Mike Warren, manager of local radio stations, said he has also had a good relationship with Hazel, and he is going to miss the chief.

Trustee Branum has accepted a teaching position at Midland, Texas, after resigning at Ruidoso

Middle School this spring. Although she had two years left on her term, Branum ran for the position of mayor against Hayhurst in the March election. She had served as trustee under several administrations beginning with Mayor J.C. Day in 1984 to the present and said she hopes to be able to serve the village again in the future.

An audience member reminded people of one of Branum's great accomplishments, getting polycarts for the village. Hayhurst said the whole town will miss her, and she served well in her capacity.

In regular business, Hazel requested the transfer of Minerva Davalos from dispatch to police officer to replace Robert Layher, who resigned to go to the Ruidoso Police Department. Davalos has been with the department for the last two years and has given 110 percent in effort, Hazel said. He said there were two people who wanted the position so he gave tests and followed a procedure in selecting Davalos. The board approved the request. Hayhurst said they will be glad to have her on board as an officer.

Judge Mansell also had praise for another Downs officer, whom he said has made his job a little easier. Officer Dana Terlecky collected on a ticket that was four years old as well one that was for more than $100. He also got a bench warrant to collect on another ticket that was about six months old. He said if any other officers do an outstanding job he will let the board know about them too.

The board approved a request by Lodgers Tax Advisory Board member Mike Warren for $1,000 to contribute to two advertisements done by the village, one in the New Mexico Business Journal and another in the New Mexico Magazine vacation guide.

Former Ruidoso Downs trustee Jackie Branum cuts a cake at a going-away party following her resignation at the board of trustees meeting Monday night. Municipal Judge Harrold Mansell congratulates Ray Hayhurst on being appointed to Branum's position.

The amount had been recommended at a regular LTAB meeting in July after village clerk Leann Wehbrecht had investigated the costs of both advertisements. The ad was placed in the business journal because it was a special section in it was about Lincoln County. In first discussing the advertising, LTAB members said they would rather see an advertisement in the magazine because it had a larger circulation but then decided to pursue both ads. Both ads are one-sixth of a page. The journal ad cost $570, while the magazine ad was $930.

The trustees also reviewed monthly reports from the maintenance department, police department, fire department, animal control and municipal court.

The next regular board meeting will be at 7 p.m. August 24 at the Ruidoso Downs Fire Station because the village offices will be moving to a temporary building that is too small to meet in. The village offices and police department will begin moving into the new building near the senior citizens center next weekend.

Fiddling around

The Old Fiddlers Contest in historic Lincoln drew fiddlers of all ages this weekend during Old Lincoln Days. Valerie Caswell (above) won the "middl'uns" division. Wesley Hall (at right) was the youngest fiddler, and Evan Brown of Lovington (above, right) won the "young'uns" division. Other youngsters in the contest were Josh Allen Jones and Bart Poindexter. Jim Bright (not pictured) of Hot Springs, Arkansas, won the 65 and older division. Douglas Gerard provided guitar accompaniment for the fiddlers.

Clarification

The amount of money the state of Texas has put into the lottery is $400 million, not $4 million as was reported in an article in the August 10 edition of The Ruidoso News.

The article was about the summer tourist season. Mark Doth, marketing director of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track, said the $400 million that Texas has put into the lottery has affected the race track this season because people stop at convenience stores along the way to purchase lottery tickets.

Bettynelle Bolton
Part 14 in a Series

Art evolves during Bettynelle Bolton's 40-year career

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The art of Bettynelle Bolton has been evolving since the first time she picked up a brush.

Never satisfied, she constantly is looking for new approaches. Capitalizing on inspiration from chance images, she is ready to take detours and explore.

Her home/gallery is filled with her work, a living retrospective for friends and visitors to share. Her art reflects her openness to life.

Bolton's first formal lesson occurred in Cloudcroft nearly 40 years ago in 1955. Frederick Taubes, who later taught in Ruidoso, was the instructor.

Bolton, by that time married and a mother, took advantage of the artists who flocked to the two mountain villages.

Her interest in art started in high school.

"I was going to be a writer," Bolton said. "Then one day I started drawing, mostly portraits. When I went to college in Albuquerque, I always ended up in art classes."

Marriage interrupted her advance education, however. She spent the next several years leap-frogging around the country, following her husband, Curtis, who was in the Air Force.

They eventually returned to Artesia, where Mrs. Bolton was raised. For 15 summers, she took to the mountains, avoiding the high temperatures below and soaking in the knowledge of different artists at the Froman School of Art in Cloudcroft and later at Carrizo Lodge in Ruidoso.

At one point, she was told that she could easily be a professional portrait painter.

"But I wanted to do it all. I want to go to every country in the world, try every medium," she said.

Over the years through her inquisitive nature and exposure to 30 instructors, she has done it all in terms of the art world.

At one point, the oils had become tight and I wanted to loosen them with water colors," she said. Accompanied by a water colorist friend, she traveled to Mexico to study.

"Today, water color is entirely different," she said. "When I started, they were still mourning the idea that you couldn't use white. Today, you can use acrylic, casein, plus collage."

Initially, she painted just for herself.

"I got a wonderful background in art history, sketching and printing at the college in Artesia," she said.

"Four years after I started lessons, I began selling. After that, I was able to support all my lessons and traveling. I would do one-man shows occasionally."

Although she previously didn't use galleries to market her work, since moving to Ruidoso four years ago, Bolton has displayed in Canyon Gallery at Carrizo Lodge.

MIXED MEDIA PAINTING

"Tom McMahon was looking for something contemporary and that's where I have evolved," Bolton said. "He has variety, all styles."

Bolton's flexibility and willingness to experiment has served her well as the art world has moved from one emphasis to another.

"Art is very faddish," she said. "When I started, abstract was the thing. It took me a long time to learn. We have just gone through a period of super realism, even to the point that some pieces look like illustrations. Now it's beginning to change again, going more abstract and I'm just delighted."

Her artwork has run the gamut from traditional oil to pallet knife, to pastels, watercolor-pastel mix, India ink enhanced with charcoal and collage with everything.

Early in her career, an art critic told her she had reached near perfection in painting oranges, "but are you going to paint them all your life?" she asked Bolton.

"She told me let yourself go, experiment. Stretch your imagination, allow yourself different ways of seeing," Bolton said.

Three years ago she started combining mediums "and I've have done that ever since."

"Once I did texture and collages, there was no going back," she said.

Bolton has turned her attention to creative methods of framing as a means of enhancing her work, allowing the frame to become part of the overall project.

Her latest creations, what she calls paper illusion collage sculptures, are three dimensional designs using paper, plastic, beads, feathers and anything else that catches Bolton's imagination. The objects are encased in cubes with cut crystals from Germany to catch the light.

"For one, I created three pieces," she said. "There's no right or wrong way to arrange them, so people can use one piece or add things together. They become part of the creative process."

"These things take days to work out. That's why the studio is off the bedroom, so I can work and change them if they're not right."

"They're almost like spirits rather than figures. When they're abstract, people can read into it, I doubt that I'll do representational work again."

"I've reached the point where I do my own thing even if I have to wash dishes," Bolton said. "I'm not going to compromise my work. I did for a while and I regretted it. You can't paint to please people. I think they will always sense artificiality. It will lack the spirit. You have to have the spirit."

While Bolton was learning to master her craft, she also was a teacher for others.

"I started teaching a workshop in 1969 in Pecos," Bolton said. "I worked in traditional and abstract ways. I did one- and two-day demonstrations."

"When I teach, I cover the basics, but emphasize stretching the imagination. I don't take beginners because there is too much to learn."

Artistic ability and creativity manifest themselves in myriad ways. Bolton's husband found his outlet in woodcarving and they collaborate on Gray House Design craft work including spirit dolls, gourd madonnas, cutwork wild-flowers and greeting cards.

"I emphasize originality in," Bolton said. "If you use photographs (as references for painting), then they must be ones you have taken. And you should paint things you are familiar with."

"In order to be successful commercial or professional artist, you need to be dedicated, painting all the time and willing to learn."

With the intense competition "to have any chance, you have to do your own original work. You have to develop a style and be you," she said.

One of the approaches Bolton learned and has used in her own demonstrations are "happenings" or creating something out of chance formations.

For one painting now hanging on her living room wall, she placed oriental paper in the bottom of a sink with India ink and water. With the help of a charcoal pencil "out of chaos came order" in the form of her mother's 22-year-old cat lying in a bed of flowers.

Another product of that approach is a striking number called "The Creative Process," India ink on rice paper, which also hangs in her home.

Bolton also learned that using salt with water colors creates interesting separations. She applies pastels to accentuate forms in other water colors, letting her subconscious dictate the direction.

"Whether I'm working at a table or easel, the best results come when I quit thinking about what I'm doing," Bolton said.

For other paintings she's tried spraying paint out of bottle, flicking it, dyeing bits of paper to satisfy her preoccupation with textures. The scenes created depict the restless sea, flocks of birds and fields of flowers.

The worst period of her creative life occurred in 1970 after her work had appeared in a retrospective of American Art in New York. "I felt I would never amount to anything and I was discouraged," she said.

"I had worked so hard to go, I nearly killed myself," Bolton said. "Then I had an eight-month block. I would stand and cry with a brush in my hand."

She decided to become a student again and took a water color class. The freedom came back again.

"I hope I never have a block again," she said.

Shortly after moving to Ruidoso four years ago, she exhibited a 25-year retrospective called "Celebrate—1964-1989," at the Carlsbad Art Museum for that city's art association.

An illness cut back her work this past winter, but Bolton is back in her studio this summer, her graceful hands assembling a large wall piece full of intricate twists and turns.

"Sometimes they go and sometimes they don't," she said. "I don't jump in right away and frame because I'm not objective right away. I put it back and look at it in six months before I go to expense of framing."

She's at a point in her development where pictures flash into her head, Bolton said.

"I actually visualize what would happen if I did something," she said. "I stay on edge of irritability to the point that I don't give a damn what anyone says."

"You have to have freedom to release and be able to have fun. You have to allow yourself the freedom, particularly if your background is as a representative painter."

"Accepting yourself and realizing what others say is not important is a very difficult step. You have to believe strongly in your ideas and have courage."

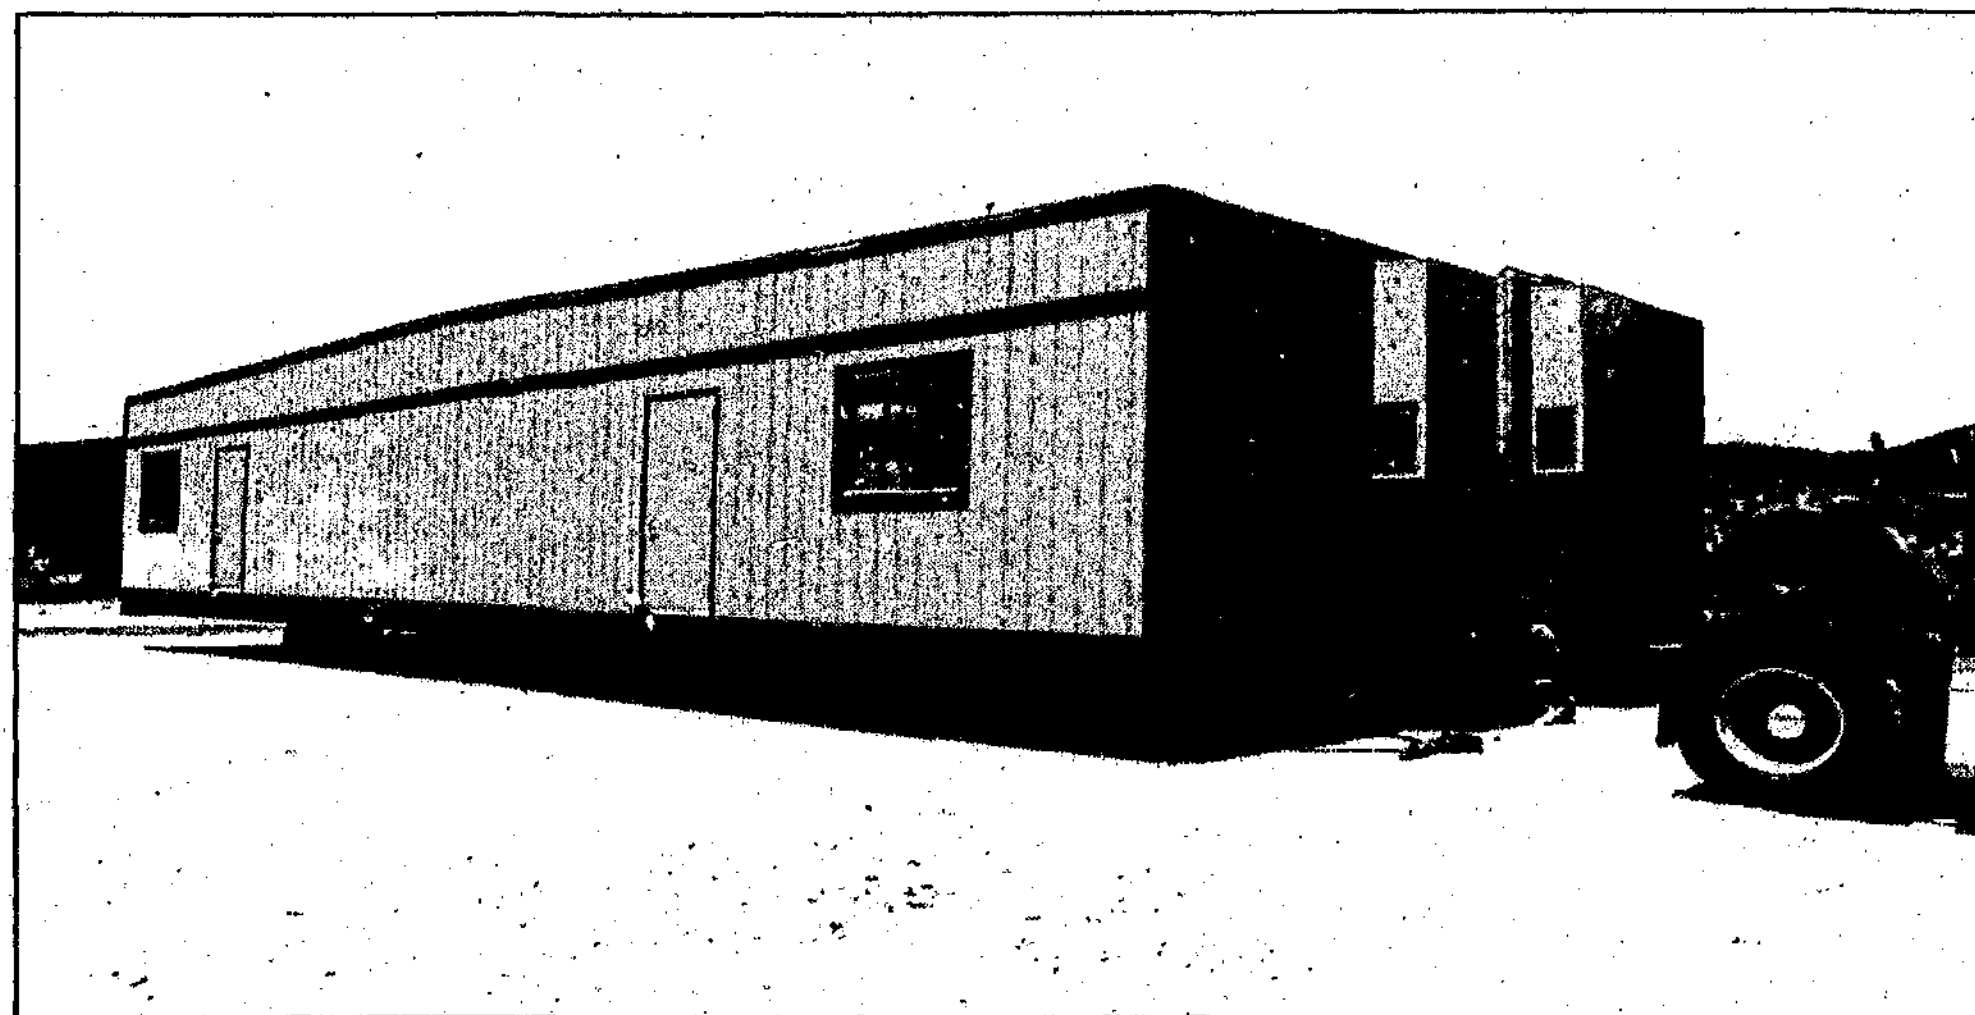

Bolton has been featured in Artists of New Mexico and is a favorite of private collectors in 12 states from New Hampshire to California.

In the last few years her market has been expanding in New Mexico and Texas.

Bolton, left, works in her studio on new creation using wires and other materials that catch her imagination. Above she relaxes in her den surrounded by her work.

The two pieces of the new village hall and police department arrived safely Friday afternoon and were put together over the weekend. The building will be used as a temporary office until a permanent building can be built on the site of the old village hall on Highway 70. The offices will need about two weeks to make the move.

Downs trustees back down

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The walls won't be coming down yet on a property condemned in February by a Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees, and its owner is willing to do what it takes to make sure they don't.

Ruidoso Downs resident Windsor Lacewell's property east of the old village hall on Highway 70 did not meet the building code standards when inspected by the state Construction Industries Division, but before the board of trustees passed a resolution to have it condemned in February no one talked to him about improving it, Lacewell said.

He made his objections to the condemnation known at the trustees meeting Monday night. He uses the building for his shop and has insurance on it as well as paying property taxes on it, he said.

He said he got a notice about six months ago that the board had taken this action. He said by reading between the lines it said the village was all-knowing and all-powerful and the vote was final. The trustees didn't tell him they wanted to clean-up the whole town or ask him what he thought he could do, Lacewell said.

"I got this notice right out of the blue. It says buddy, you've had it," Lacewell said.

He said current Mayor Joe Hayhurst had tried to help him. Lacewell said Hayhurst said he didn't know what was going on because he had just come into office. Lacewell said he has also talked to attorney Mike Line about it, but they decided he could spend a lot of money on the case but not get anything done.

Lacewell also reminded the trustees of another problem in this condemnation. A 64-foot strip of property that the building sits on is owned by Charles Kelly of Lubbock, Texas. He asked why nothing had been done to contact Kelly about the condemnation because the wall that looks so bad is on Kelly's strip. At the July 27 board meeting real estate agent Doug Siddens, Lacewell's representative, had told the board of the second property owner but didn't have his name to give to the board that night.

Village attorney Bob Beauvais said he had trouble getting the correct address for Kelly. Village clerk Leann Weihbrecht had typed up a letter and Beauvais had proof-read it so it was ready to send as a certified letter Tuesday morning.

"How can you call me up and say here and ask me to clean it up and say it is a hindrance or a danger when the bad piece sits on his (Kelly's) land?" Lacewell said.

Lacewell also pointed out that a school bus stops in front of the shop to let children off. He said it looks like the parents would complain about the building being dangerous.

He said it will cost him about $5,000 to tear it down, but then he will have to rent or buy a building. He asked whether Kelly would also have to pay for part of the demolition if it came to that. Kelly would pay his pro-rated portion of the costs, Beauvais said.

"That building works for me, and it doesn't leak," Lacewell said.

"It's a fine way to run a little village. I think it is a good idea to clean up this town, but why not talk to me, treat me like a person," Lacewell said.

Beauvais said the notice did not say the village was all powerful but it was to make Lacewell aware that the village had passed a resolution concerning his property and tell him what his options were. In this procedure Lacewell has the opportunity to make his objection known to the board, which the trustees could either accept or deny.

He said he had also spoken to Lacewell's attorney Line right after the resolution was passed and told him the statute concerning this issue which states that Lacewell may object. Line had told Beauvais that neither Line nor Lacewell could appear before the board at that time.

The board has not taken final action, but if they did decide to continue with the condemnation, Lacewell would have recourse in district court, Beauvais said. Lacewell would have 20 days to effect an appeal to the court.

"There is nothing here to say you are being railroaded. You weren't treated in a discourteous manner by this village. No action has been taken that is adverse to your position. No one associated with the village had any way of knowing it (the one wall) was on another property," he said.

Lacewell asked if the area would have to be re-surveyed. Beauvais said he didn't see why they would need to survey it because Kelly had confirmed to Lacewell that it was his property. Lacewell had told the board that he had talked to Kelly about the property, but Kelly did not want to sell it. Beauvais said he has no doubt the building sits on both properties.

Lacewell also asked what in particular was wrong with his building. Mayor Hayhurst said the problem is the dilapidated condition, broken windows and the fact that it needs to be brought up to state code. He said the building would be fine if it could pass state inspection. If Lacewell could present a plan on what he is going to do he would find this board is willing to work with him.

The trustees voted to wait until they could contact Kelly before making any final decision on the condemnation of the property. Lacewell said they could have saved all this antagonism by just talking to him. Hayhurst said this board intends to do that. Three of the four current board members, Jackie Branum, Charlotte Craig and Margie Morales, were on the seven-member board that approved the condemnation resolution in February.

In other business Hayhurst announced that the new temporary village hall arrived Friday, and they have been working to get it set up beside the senior citizen's center. The next board meeting will be at the Ruidoso Downs Fire Station and will continue to be there until further notice. The temporary modular building is being leased until the village can afford to build a new building on the old village hall site on Highway 70.

The temporary building was leased so the village offices and police department could be moved out of the current location in the old Redmens Club. The trustees said they could no longer afford the high utility charges in that building.

Ruidoso Downs Ladies Auxiliary president Shirlene Fitzner also made two requests for projects the auxiliary is doing. She said they would like to repaint the Ruidoso Downs sign in the village park to say "Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens Center, Everyone Welcome." She said the village logo will remain on it, and the auxiliary will pay for it. The project received board approval.

Fitzner said she is also a member of the village senior citizen board and they have set a goal to start having the center open two days a week beginning in September.

Also approved by the board was her request to put signs in the median for a week to 10 days before the auxiliary's annual arts and crafts fair on September 4, 5 and 6 to promote the event. It will be behind the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater. The village fire department is assisting with the fair by directing the parking lot. She said it is neat to be able to work together as a community on this project.

Ruidoso Village Council continues funding for survey, sets the stage for River Walk project

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Village Council approved a $3,000 survey to finish work on Phase III of the proposed downtown River Trail project.

Councilor Ron Andrews questioned spending money on the project before all the owners had been contacted and approved of the trail crossing their property.

But Councilor Jerry Shaw said she would like to see the final phase survey completed.

It was not explained why the survey was necessary before the council obtained permission to cross an owner's lot, or what alternative action would be taken if the owner refused.

Eminent domain has been mentioned as a possibility in the past, but was not mentioned at Tuesday's meeting. The village council has not given any reasons for condemnation of property for health, safety or welfare reasons.

The River Trail project consists of three phases. Phase I is from Center Street to Eagle Drive and is 960 linear feet. Phase II is from Eagle Drive to Country Club Drive and is 980 linear feet. Phase III stretches between Fern Street to Center Street.

Planning director Cleatus Richards said that as of Tuesday, Phases I and II have been surveyed and easements should be obtained. He said Phase III requires a final survey with easement.

Estimated time for completion is 30-45 days according to Richards.

Total estimate of total cost of the project is $50,000.

Funds for remaining surveying and walkway construction are not included in the current budget, according to Richards, nor are costs assumed for obtaining necessary easements. No reason was given why such funds weren't budgeted.

Mayor Victor Alonso, looking toward councilors Barbara Duff, Ron Andrews and Jerry Shaw, asked if "we could dip into that reserve we talked about creating."

Presumably, that meant the "windfall" collected because they exceeded what was necessary to balance the general budget. This was discussed in a recent workshop meeting.

In order to make an adjustment to balance the budget the council had reached into many departments and lengthened some debt service to achieve around a million dollars.

More than $200,000 was taken from the parks and recreation department, including restrooms at Schoolhouse Park and Two Rivers Park.

At the final budget, the village was over $200,000 to the good. There has been no discussion of returning any park's money for the original purpose of restrooms in the two parks.

However, this is the money that Alonso suggested to shift to the River Trail.

Alonso said another alternative would be to raise the property tax rate that was arbitrarily lowered by the Department of Finance Administration.

He said that would raise $145,000.

Richards wrote in his report that councilor Bill Karn accepted responsibility for contacting affected property owners and obtaining executed leases. He said he has not been apprised of progress in this regard.

Postponed a decision to use Grindstone Dam for non-motorized boating until the next meeting.

The longer the council discussed the issue, the more the council became bogged down in details on how large of boat, windsurfing and sailboating, kayaks, canoes, boats that can be carried, boats with paddles, ways to measure boats, and others.

Other issues were then brought into the discussion. Overflowing trash cans. Inconsiderate fishermen using Alto Lake.

"Are we talking about some revenue requesters to help cover this cost," Andrews said. "Will the lake remain a nice place where people will want to go in windsurfing. There's expenses I have not heard, at this point, the council talk about."

The council after much deliberation, decided that cost estimates on a variety of things including insurance costs was necessary before a decision could be made.

Asked Paul Crown for four poles for temporary signage for the new Civic Events Center. Alonso said during the workshop that the meager turnout for last weekend's event could be blamed, in part, on no signs and weak directions on how to reach the center.

OK'd the sale of two fire trucks so that Ruidoso could buy a new fire truck.

Passed consent items that included a bid award for the sale of obsolete computer equipment, a pay request from Bradley Construction for the civic events center, and a resolution relating to the rubbish, wreckage and debris at 103 Los Padres Circle.

HAMBURGER KING

Dear Ruidoso,

I have never said in any of my ads that Hamburger King had the best "anything". I have always been careful about that. I won't say that we make the best hamburger in town because "best" is a matter of opinion, and, besides, I haven't tried all of the hamburgers in town. I will only say that we make a pretty good burger. . . or people seem to like our burgers. . . or we try hard. Whether or not it is the best, I leave to the opinion of the customer.

Now that I have said all of that, watch me violate my own rule. There is one thing at Hamburger King that I believe to be the "best", and that is the crew that works here. They are the very best. I don't have many employees, but the ones I do have are crackerjacks. They can turn out more orders, slice more tomatoes, make more malts, clean more deep fryers, and wash more dishes in a shorter period of time than anyone I have known. . . and all the while keep their sense of humor and sunny dispositions. I will admit that they are hand picked. I had to sift through a lot to get this crew. I pay them as well as I can in order to keep them, and in return, they take very good care of my business and my customers.

In the past, I have made jokes about shooting the cook if something isn't right. The truth is, if you tell the cook that something is wrong, they might shoot me. Like I said, they are the best, and I love them all.

Sincerely,
Cliff Maosas

Editorial

Points to ponder...

Just wondering about a few things ...

—If it's legal does that make it right? For instance, Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst just appointed his brother to the village Board of Trustees. There's no law against it, and Mayor Hayhurst said he wouldn't appoint his brother if he wouldn't do a good job. No kidding! Come on, Joel!

—The Village of Ruidoso Downs' police chief resigned and the Mayor, apparently in a mood to make appointments, quickly appointed a replacement. There's a good chance the guy he appointed, Ruidoso Police Officer Will Hoggard, is the best man for the job. But, on the other hand, wouldn't it have been nice to post the job, maybe even advertise it, and give Downs officers and other law officers a chance to apply for the position.

—Did the Lincoln County Commission and Sheriff James McSwane over-react when the county took the operation of the jail away from him? The sheriff said he was just trying to get their attention when he balked at policies required by the county manager. The commission apparently called his bluff and said, OK, we'll just run it ourselves. The problem we see is in sharing space and personnel for dispatch and detention. Maybe the sheriff and commissioners should have a serious talk before responding to what may have been a knee jerk reaction by the sheriff.

—During Tuesday's informal kitchen workshop before the Ruidoso Village Council meeting, Mayor Victor Alonso was critical of Councilor Jerry Shaw for missing that pre-meeting get-together. Shaw wasn't the only councilor missing from the meeting, but the mayor was distressed only about Shaw's absence, not the absence of councilors Frank Cummins and Bill Karn. Alonso, himself, has missed several council meetings. Karn has missed four council meetings and the mayor is unconcerned. He suggested we write an editorial. So, where's Karn?

Policy

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed, however the author's hometown will be included.

The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Libelous letters are not protected by the rules of privilege or fair comment and will not be printed.

Letters will be edited for spelling and grammar to the extent possible without impairing their flavor or changing their meaning. Letters may be shortened to fit the space available.

LETTERS

A word in defense of Vice President Dan Quayle

TO THE EDITOR:

Pertaining to an article of July 24, 1992, "Unfavorable Opinion of Dan Quayle," there are three erroneous assumptions: (1) Great leaders must be great spellers; (2) Great grammarians; (3) Great leaders must be media/popular.

Using these criteria, Jesus, the Christ, speaking simple Aramaic, would have a lower rating in the New York Times/CBS poll!

Questions for great leaders:

1. Should I look at the polls each day or state my convictions?
2. Should I practice expediency on social issues or take the high moral ground?

3. Do I accept Hollywood as the norm and Murphy Brown's fornication and depravity as the standard or promote a higher moral standard?

4. Do I automatically believe the liberal media's ideas or state the pure "raw" truth (ex. Don Feder).

5. Do I run in a personality contest or "run the race that was set before me" by my Creator?

6. Do I tickle public ears with programs of "goodies," or listen to the voice of the God of history?

7. Do I place faith in "authorities" like Planned Parenthood, NOW, Civil Liberties Union, People for the American Way, Norman Lear or in my America's heritage of Judeo-Christian principles?

8. Do I befriend the perversion, pro-death terrorists or support a godly pro-family, pro-life agenda?

9. Do I glory in the camps of the intelligencia and humanists or respect the God of our Fathers (which is the beginning of wisdom)?

Most of all: 10. Do I apathetically accept wickedness in high places or suffer for righteousness sake?

Hang in there, Dan! You have the support of the Christian community and will be counted worthy to reign and cast your crown at the feet of Jesus.

In the future, remember, if the media shows you trailing in the polls, just remind them of the words of Mark Twain: "There are three kinds of lies — lies, damn lies and statistics!"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Moore has a home in Alto. Although this letter was written in response to an opinion piece printed in another newspaper, not The Ruidoso News, she asked that her letter be printed here because she believes her views on Vice President are shared by many Republicans.

Thanks for making the Art Festival so successful!

TO THE EDITOR:

Now that we've had time to regroup at the Chamber after another successful Art Festival, we would like to take the opportunity to publicly thank all those who participated in any way to help make it a great event.

First of all, our sincere appreciation to the many volunteers who manned ticket booths, food booths, Coke stands; the Rotarians who handled the parking, those who attended, the security personnel, all the vendors and the artists, and all local businesses who provided excellent service to us, and our deep gratitude to our board of directors. My personal gratitude to my staff for their dedication and good humor.

Also, in closing, a big "thanks" to The Ruidoso News for their Art Festival tabloid and pre-show articles promoting this important local event.

None of this is ever taken for granted — thank you, Ruidoso!

Local Boy Scouts win top honors

During the week of June 14 to June 20 local Boy Scout Troop 59, led by Steve Norbury and Michael Spear, attended Wehinahpay Mountain Camp, located in the Sacramento Mountains.

According to a news release, even with just five boys from the troop in attendance, Troop 59 was named Top Troop out of the 21 groups attending the camp that week.

Other awards included the Honor Troop Award, Honor Patrol Award and the Gilwell Park Award. The only individual award was earned by Steve Norbury, this was the Over-the-Hill John Wayne Award.

The main reason for attending this camp is to give the scouts a chance to earn the various merit badges offered.

Each of the boys, except one, that went, earned at least one merit badge: Life Scout Cisco Knox earned the Wilderness Survival merit badge; Eagle Scout Josh Norbury earned Archery and mammal Study merit badges.

Star Scout Matt Norbury earned Rifle, Orienteering and Indian Lore merit badges and Star Scout Hemanth Pai earned Wilderness Survival, Indian Lore, Fish and Wildlife Management, Soil and

Water Conservation and Cooking merit badges.

Life Scout J.P. LeFlohic was Senior Patrol Leader and led to troop to the top honors.

Boy Scout Troop 59 meets every Monday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount.

Any boy interested in scouting or any adult interested in helping lead is welcome.

Inaugural edition of the All American Art Show precedes this year's festive Charity Celebration

This area's top artists in the realistic genre have been invited to take part in the inaugural All American Art Show on Sunday, September 6, at the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse.

The exhibition and sale will open at 7:30 p.m. and the realistic works will be on display and will be sold.

Science teachers and students join forces to find a way to save the Earth

Richard Overdorf, a teacher, and J.P. LeFlohic, a student, at Ruidoso High School, are among many teachers and students from throughout New Mexico and El Paso representing 26 high schools, at New Mexico State University, August 2 through 7, to design and construct a system to remove contaminants from soil.

They are participating in the 1992 Summer Environmental Design Institute.

The College of Engineering at New Mexico State University, along with the Waste-Management Education and Research Consortium (WERC), will host the week-long workshop.

Throughout the institute the participants will be introduced to the relevance of math and science in environmental problems.

The institute is an extensive workshop to familiarize them with different techniques employed to solve environmental problems.

They will attend a series of lectures given by experts in the environmental area on the real world approach to the solution.

Upon completion of the lectures, the students and teachers will be divided into teams and with the assistance of university student serving as mentors, will compete to develop the best solution to the problem. They will be judged on an oral presentation and the functionality of the bench-scale model that would present their actual solution process.

The program will also assist the students in selection of a college, field of study and direction of what preparatory courses to take in high school as well as exposing them to environmental issues and solutions.

Sponsorship of the summer institute is being contributed by ARCO, Exxon, AT&T, Conoco/El Dupont and US West.

Ruidoso Civic Events Center is the site for "It's a Happening" arts, crafts show

Showcase Productions, a professional Arts & Crafts promoter, will stage the first Arts & Crafts Show in the new Ruidoso Civic Events Center Saturday and Sunday, August 22 and 23.

"It's a Happening," will feature about 90 regional artists, according to a news release provided by promoters Elden and Ruth Ann Sikes of Pampa, Texas.

Sikes said displayers will show everything from clothing, leather, jewelry, oil paintings, pottery, woodcrafts, ceramics, stained glass, calligraphy, fantasy art, Christmas ornaments, chimes, lawn chairs, quilts, toys, pecan products drawings and monogramming to Faberge eggs.

Showcase Productions, according to the news release, has staged shows in West Texas for the past six years and has recently included Angel Fire, Eagle Nest and Clovis.

This will be the first of many shows in Ruidoso now that the city dhas such a wonderful facility for their event.

Admission is free. Doors open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Past Tense

Mavericks prompt "gang" roundup

The story of the Hatchet steers and maverick cattle was told to me many years ago by an old timer who worked for the Hatchet Cattle Company at the time a lease was consummated with the Cree family.

The Cree family came to Lincoln County in the 1880s. They bought land and watering locations from homesteaders in the areas of Ruidoso, Eagle, Little Creek, Bonito and as far north as the townsite of Capitan.

Their ranch headquarters and working facilities were established on Little Creek.

After terminating the cattle industry, the Cree returned to Scotland and rented their pasture land here to cattle companies.

One of the better summer pastures was north of Ruidoso and was called the Cedar Creek Pasture.

In 1920, or there about, the Three River Cattle Company leased the Cree headquarters ranch and the pasture and moved five hundred, two-year-old steers, by hoof, over the mountains to Little Creek. From there, they drove 450 of the bovines to the Cedar Creek pasture for the summer.

Old timers Ike Wingfield, J.V. Tully, Fount Miller and Pete Hale estimated that the carrying capacity for a summer was more like 150 cattle units.

By fall, many of the steers had scattered to all the above mentioned areas and a few had begun running with maverick cattle in the rough sections.

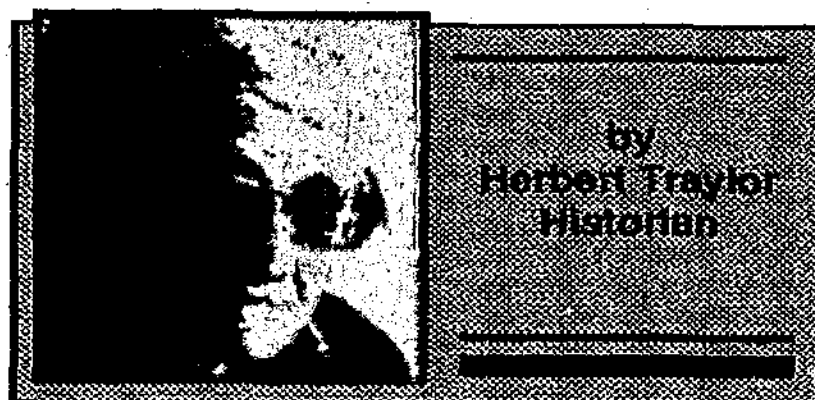

That fall the cowboys gathered most of them and returned them to the Three Rivers range. The ones they missed that had not already taken up with mavericks began to pester the local farmers by breaking into their fields and pastures.

Occasionally, a farmer was able to catch one for the ranch hands.

A few of the steers continued to remain close and troubled the farmers for three or four years.

Finally, a group of local people got together and notified the ranch people they intended to take legal action if the cattle were not removed from the national forest, state and public domain at once.

JACK'S STORY

Jack Forrester tells of two separate roundups conducted at the same time. One was north and east from the northeast corner of the Mescalero Reservation to the drift fence Judd McKnight built in the area between the Ruidoso and Pecos rivers.

The main roundup was headquartered on what was known as School Section Sixteen, north of Ruidoso. That portion included areas from Eagle Lake to the two Bonitos, Turkey, Argentine and Pennsylvania canyons, Barber Ridge and the Nogal Peak country.

"I hadn't been working for the Diamond A long when one day the foreman informed a fellow by the name of Crosby (not cowboy Bob Crosby) and me that we were to go to a roundup in the mountains to help gather some maverick and stray cattle," Forrester said. "He said a few of the strays, particularly in the country next to the Indian Reservation could be Diamond A's cattle."

"We left the next morning with a pack horse and 10 saddle horses. Late that afternoon, we found the camp site by a spring and a small running creek in the area that was known as School Section Sixteen."

"We unsaddled, took our bed rolls and duffel bags off the pack horse and turned the animals loose with the main remuda."

"The Hatchet outfit had set up a tent for the cook and his helper. When we looked inside the tent, it seemed like there was enough grub to feed a small army. Well, we found out later why. There were cowboys from every cattle outfit in the country. Even some people from the Mescalero Agency showed up."

"The Mescalero people did not have a Cattleman's Association at that time. Each individual who ran cattle on the reservation had a separate brand plus the bow and arrow. Many brands could be found on the reservation."

"The next morning we were up, ate, saddled and were ready to go by sunup. Some of us had a small canteen of water and the cook gave each a snack to put in our saddle bags."

"The foreman outlined certain areas to be covered each day. We had to work in close groups in the rough and brushy country. Those cattle were very wild."

"The procedure was to haze all the cattle toward a certain designated place where a herd crew could hold them in check until they could be driven to the main holding areas. A crew would watch the herd constantly there to keep them from stampeding and breaking out."

"We gathered many branded cows, some so old they had lost most of their teeth. There were maverick bulls and cows, several of the old Hatchet steers and one branded cow the inspector said was owned by a man who had been gone from the country for 10 years."

"The branded cows that had been de-horned weren't too hard to handle. The mavericks, especially bulls and cows with horns, were a constant threat to us. It would only have taken a second for one to have horned a man or gored a horse. We had to use a lot of diplomacy."

"Most of us worked five or six days. When we had covered the entire country, we combined the two main herds and branded the mavericks."

"It was determined by a brand inspector from Alamogordo (Abe Hunter, I think) to whom the mavericks belonged. His method was to size up a bunch as to how they stayed together. Cows have a tendency to remain close to the parent cow if not molested. By observing their actions, he tried to proportion them out accordingly."

"The final event was for each outfit to cut out their branded cows and mavericks and start them toward their respective ranches."

"The cattle the inspector could not allocate to cattle companies became state property. I think we gathered 26 Diamond A cows."

"I don't remember for sure (how many cattle were rounded up in the combined effort). It seems we tallied around 700."

Capitan

School bells ring in Capitan's '92-93 calendar of events

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Teachers will start straightening up classrooms and lugging in new supplies today for the 1992-93 school year in Capitan, set to begin August 17.

First on the agenda is coffee, juice, doughnuts and conversation in the school cafeteria at 9 a.m., followed by Mary Berry speaking on collective bargaining.

On Friday, teachers will be treated at noon to a lunch catered by the Capitan High School cheerleaders.

Returning high school students (grades 7-12) may pick up their schedules and new students may register from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday in the high school office.

Students new to the elementary school (grades K-6) may register between 8 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday in the elementary school office.

Immunization records are required at the time of registration.

The first day of school will be Monday, August 17.

Waiting when the doors open will be School Supt. David Lock, high school principal Darrel Stierwalt and elementary principal Jerry Newsom, all familiar faces.

Elementary students need to be in class by 8:05 a.m. and high school students by 8:15 a.m. The school day will end at 3:10 p.m. for the younger children and 3:15 p.m. for the high school.

One of the new programs in place for students will be breakfast in the cafeteria under the supervision of food services director Glen-neth Shafer.

With menus ranging from cereal, toast and juice to pancakes and scrambled eggs, breakfast will be 30-cents for students on reduced cost, 65-cents for full pay and $1.25 for adults.

Students may take all items offered or may choose at least three items. Breakfast will be served from 7:55 a.m. to 8:15 a.m.

During lunch, students in grades 7-12 will be offered a lunch tray or a chef's salad.

Lunch prices will be 40-cents for reduced cost, $1.10 for kindergarten through sixth grades, $1.25 for seventh through twelfth graders and $2 for adults.

Mark the following holidays down on the family calendar:

September 7, Labor Day;
October 12, Columbus Day;
November 26-27, Thanksgiving;
December 21 - January 1,
Christmas-New Years;
February 15, Presidents Day;
March 15-19 Spring Break;
April 9, Good Friday.

Parent-teacher conferences are set for October 23 and March 26.

The first football battle is an away game scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Friday, August 29, against Hatch.

September 4 will be a busy day for Capitan athletes. The junior high and high school football teams will play Tatum at 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., respectively, in Tatum; the junior high and high school varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams also will play in Tatum at 4:30 p.m.

For information about school bus routes for the new year, contact the administration office at 354-2239.

School numbers are 354-2238, elementary, and 354-2567, high school.

Seminar offered

Learning to apply Christian principles in daily life is the purpose of a series of five Monday evening study sessions to be conducted by Dr. Birgit LaMothe, Ph.D.

The sessions will run from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. beginning August 17 at the Capitan United Methodist Church. The study will be based on the book, "That's What the Man Said: The Sayings of Jesus."

Board meets

The Capitan school district's long range construction plan will be discussed during a School Board meeting at 7:30 p.m. today.

The board will get together at 7 p.m. in the administration complex for a workshop on concurrent enrollment for college and high school.

Other items on the regular agenda include an award-winning presentation by members of the Future Homemakers of American chapter, personnel hiring and the impact of the American Disabilities Act.

County Fair equals family fun!

Little lambs of all shapes and sizes had fun at the Lincoln County Fair.

Another year, another fair. It's all over and the plans are already under way for the big event that showcases the talents of 4-H kids and other county residents.

In my own self, I am part of my family.
 — David H. Lawrence

In today's hectic world, family life has taken some strange turns, and indeed, it is amazing that any of it still exists. Dad may have to travel occasionally. Weekends, he plays golf, goes fishing, or glues his "couch potato" eyes to any seasonal sport on the tube. Mom either works or gets involved in some volunteer activity, undoubtedly worthwhile. The "latchkey" kids come home to an empty house, while the teenagers have their own activities. It's only on rare occasions that the entire family sits down to dinner, or goes anywhere together. The one place where they should go in unison is to the House of Worship, where with the help of God some semblance of family unity can be restored. Even today, if the family members work at it, being together can be as rewarding as it used to be.

REGISTRATION

KINDERGARTEN

FALL REGISTRATION will be held on August 19 from 9:00-10:30 a.m. at Nob Hill for all students who did not preregister in the spring. Along with registration, students will be provided free developmental screening in areas of vision, hearing, motor, fine-motor, speech and language. Requirements of eligibility for kindergarten as set by the New Mexico State Department of Education include:

- A child must be 5 years old prior to September 1
- A Valid birth certificate
- An immunization record

ORIENTATION

All students and parent(s) will attend an orientation to further clarify questions, procedure, policies, expectation, bus route, etc., at one of the following times:

Afternoon Kindergarten: Thursday, August 20 at 12:30 p.m.
Morning Kindergarten Friday, August 21 at 9:00 a.m.

Orientation sessions will last approximately one hour and will be held at Nob Hill Elementary School. It has proven to be more meaningful, and thus encouraged, when parents attend the orientation session with only their kindergarten student. First full day of kindergarten classes will be Monday, August 24. AM classes: 8:05-10:50 PM classes: 11:35-2:20.

FIRST GRADE

All students who attended Nob Hill last year are already enrolled. New students are required to be registered prior to the beginning of school, August 19, anytime during school hours.

ORIENTATION

All students and parent(s) will attend an orientation to further clarify questions, procedure, policies, expectation, bus route, etc., at one of the following times:

Last names beginning with A-M: Wednesday, August 19 at 9:00 a.m.

Last names beginning with N-Z: Wednesday, August 19 at 1:00 p.m.

Orientation sessions will last approximately one hour and will be held at Nob Hill Elementary School. It has proven to be more meaningful, and thus encouraged, when parents attend the orientation session with only their kindergarten student. First full day of first grade classes will be Thursday, August 20. School hours for first grade students are from 8:05-2:20

SECOND & THIRD GRADE

REGISTRATION: If you are new to our community, please register on August 11, 12, and 13 from 8 a.m. to noon and 1:00 - 4:00 p.m. Shot record and birth certificate are required, and a report card from last school year if possible.

ORIENTATION: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19TH

All second and third grade students and their parents will attend an orientation session on the first day of school, August 19th. The orientation session will last about an hour. This session is a very important first step in establishing the lines of communication between home and school. The session will give parents an opportunity to learn of teachers' expectations, school policies and procedures, answer parent's questions, fill out information cards, buy lunch tickets, and determine bus routes. We are proud of our school and want your child to have a smooth beginning to this school year.

We ask that parents follow this schedule:

9:00 A.m. - Students whose last names begin with A-M (2nd & 3rd grade)

1:00 P.M. - Student whose last names begin with N-Z (2nd & 3rd grade)

The first full day of school for second and third graders will be on Thursday, August 20th. Classes begin at 8:15 A.M. and dismiss at 2:35 P.M. We look forward to an exciting year working with your child.

RUIDOSO MIDDLE SCHOOL

NEW STUDENT REGISTRATION

New students entering grades 6, 7 or 8 may register on August 11th and 12th, 1992, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., at the Middle School office. Shot records will be required for registration and parents or guardians will need to fill out and sign a transcript request form.

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL

All 6th grade students will report to the cafeteria at 8:15 a.m. Your teacher will be there to call your name and take you to your class.

All 7th grade students will report to the hall outside the cafeteria. Students' names will be posted under their first hour teacher. Students will then report to first hour, and receive their full schedule from their first hour teacher.

All 8th grade students will report to the gym lobby. Students' names will be posted under their homeroom teacher. Students will then report to homeroom.

RUIDOSO HIGH SCHOOL

REGISTRATION

Registration at RHS will be held on August 19th and 20th. All Seniors (those with 18 or more credit hours) will register on Wednesday, August 19th from 9:00 am to 11 am in the Dining Hall. Juniors (those with 12 to 17 1/2 credits) will register on the same day from 1:00 to 3:00 pm. Registration for Sophomores (those with 6 to 11 1/2 credits) will be held on Thursday, August 20 from 9:00 to 11:00 am and Freshmen will register that afternoon from 1:00 to 3:00. All students must be current with three immunization records before they can register.

All students who are Juniors, Sophomores or incoming freshmen should come prepared to take class pictures on the day they register. Students are not required to buy these school pictures (see enclosed information for school prices and packets available) but they must have a school photograph taken before they are allowed to register. Come prepared to pay for school pictures if you wish to order.

Prices Are:

The faculty and staff of Nob Hill Elementary welcome the return of our first grade students and the entry of all new kindergarten students.

We also extend a warm welcome to all parents and the community to visit your child's school and be reminded that parental involvement is a vital part of your child's education. We are looking forward to a very exciting and rewarding school year. Office hours until the beginning of school are 8:30 - 12:00 a.m. and 1:00 - 3:30 p.m.

Nob Hill School was awarded a grant for the coming year from New Mexico Department of Human Services to provide two unique programs:

All Day Kindergarten

This program will serve approximately 20 children whose families are income eligible based on New Mexico State Human Services Department criteria. Priority will be given to children with special needs, and those who qualify according to criteria determined by Nob Hill Kindergarten Staff. (Note: A special needs child is defined as any child with a physical, emotional, or developmental disability or impairment which creates a need for special care.)

Extended Day Child Care

This 3 hour program is designed to provide quality daily after-school child care for approximately 80 K - 1 students whose families are income eligible based on NMSHS Department criteria, and/or availability of enrollment. Limited bus service will be provided.

Advice for Working Parents

#1 in a Series of Suggestions from Fern Raylock, Director

How to handle separation problems?

Most children have a period of adjustment when they start Day Care. They should adapt to the routine of going to "school" within 1 to 1 1/2 weeks. Parents should NOT drop off their children and "sneak" away, but should say goodbye and reinforce their love and time of return. Often it is the parent who has trouble separating. Remember that it is good for your child to learn more independence. If the child continues to cry and hang on to your leg after two weeks, then investigate for potential "other" problems. With a well-trained care-giver, your child will soon be happy and "want-to-go-tomorrow".

LITTLE RASCALS child learning center

- Fully STATE Licensed with Educated/Experienced Staff
  - Reasonable Rates for Full and Half Day Programs
  - Separate Toddler Area for 12 Months to 2 Years
  - Programs Tailored to Each Child, Ages 2 through 6
- 206 PORR DRIVE RUIDOSO 257-9465

(Tips on bike safety from Traffic Safety Newsletter)

—Make sure your child's bike is the correct size, safely maintained and has reflectors.

—Children under age nine should not ride their bikes in the street.

—Buy your child an approved bike helmet that meets national standards. Make sure he or she wears it!

—Teach your child to stop and look left-right-left before entering the road.

—Bicyclists riding in the road must obey traffic laws that apply to motor vehicle operators.

—Bicyclists should ride single file on the right side and signal their intentions to other road users.

Safety First!

—Drivers approaching or overtaking from either direction a school bus stopped on the street, with special signals in operation is required by state law to stop at least 10 feet back.

—Do not proceed until the signals are turned off, the bus resumes motion or until signaled by the driver to proceed.

—The driver of a vehicle upon a street with separate lanes need not stop upon meeting or passing a school bus in the other lane.

—When the school bus is stopped in a loading zone off the street, traffic may continue.

School Is Back In Session.

Slow down & watch out for our kids.

Ruidoso High School Campus Policy 1992-93

Ruidoso High School has a closed campus except at lunch. This means that students may not leave during class time unless they check out through the office. If they fail to do so, they will be considered to be truant and will be subject to disciplinary action.

The campus is considered "open" at lunch, from 11:59 a.m. to 12:49 p.m. Students are free to leave, but must be back by 12:49 p.m.

Tardies

A tardy is considered to be entry into the classroom after the tardy bell has rung. A student who is more than 10 minutes late will be considered absent and marked as such on record sheets. While students are allowed four tardies per class each semester, chronic tardiness will be considered a problem and subject to disciplinary action. Any student who accumulates more than 10 tardies in any class will be confined to campus during lunch for the remainder of the semester.

Absences

Students are allowed 10 absences per semester, starting with the 11 absent, students are placed on "no credit" status. We do not differentiate between excused and unexcused. If a student is not in class, he is absent unless on a school approved activity.

Exceptions may be granted by the principal in cases of extended illness.

ELECTIVE FEE

Because of rising costs and budget limitations, each student will need to pay $10.00 per year for elective fees. This should be paid by the end of the second week, as each student will be involved in elective courses. If there is a financial problem, arrangements to pay the fee can be made. Please talk to Mrs. Papponi.

ATHLETICS

Immunization Notice Ruidoso Municipal School District

In accordance with New Mexico State Board of education Regulation No. 76-16, no student shall be enrolled in a public, private, home or parochial school unless the student presents a CURRENT record of immunization (as recognized by the Immunization Schedule of the New Mexico Health and Environment Department), or provides documentation of proper medical or religious exemption to immunization.

To ensure the health and well being of our students and community, the Ruidoso Municipal School District will follow this regulation closely. Therefore, all new students and students who have already received notices of necessary immunizations will not be allowed to enroll unless proper documentation is presented at registration.

To simplify this aspect of the registration process, the Ruidoso Municipal School District, in cooperation with Lincoln County Health Department and Home Health Services of Lincoln County, will be checking immunization records at Ruidoso High School as students enroll August 19 and August 20, from 9:00 A.M. to 11:00 A.M. and 1:00 P.M. to 3:00 P.M. each day. In addition, students attending any school in Ruidoso may receive necessary immunizations at the Ruidoso High School Public Meeting Room, August 19. Parents and guardians are reminded they must be present in order for their child to receive an immunization. For those unable to obtain necessary immunization on August 19, the Lincoln County Health Department, in Ruidoso, will be open every Monday from 8:30 A.M. to 11:00 A.M., or you may call 258-3252 for an appointment.

The Ruidoso School District officials thank all parents/guardians for their cooperation and assistance in ensuring the health and well being of our students and community by helping them adhere to this immunization requirement.

RUIDOSO MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT SPECIAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS

NOB HILL ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

257-2346

Every exceptional student within the RMSD has a right to a free, appropriate public education. It is the goal of the RMSD to assist exceptional students in developing their potential to the highest level possible, and to become independent, well-adjusted and competent members of society to the maximum degree possible. RMSD operates in compliance with all federal laws and state standards concerning the education of exceptional students.

Services are available for 3 and 4 year old preschool children with Developmental Delays and for students age 5 to 21 who are identified as Autistic, Deaf, Deaf-Blind, Gifted, Hard of Hearing, Intellectually Disabled, Orthopedically Impaired, Other Health Impaired, Seriously Emotionally/Behaviorally Disturbed, Specific Learning Disabled, Speech-Language Impaired, Traumatic Brain Injured or Visually Impaired.

Various teachers and support personnel are available to provide special education and related services such as language therapy, physical therapy, occupational therapy, psychological counseling and audiology.

Anyone having a legitimate interest in a student may make a referral for screening. This should be done through the building principal, who will then refer the child to a screening committee. Formal evaluation will be initiated only with parent permission to do so, and after the screening committee has documented other alternative efforts to meet the needs of the child.

Certified diagnosticians will evaluate students and prepare a written summary report for presentation to the team which typically includes the parents, teachers, diagnostician and building principal. The team will determine whether placement appears warranted and is in the best interest of the student. Each student placed in special education will have an individual educational program developed reflecting his or her particular needs. Services will vary with each child and will be based on specific goals identified by the team.

All Special Education records are considered confidential, in accordance with the Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. Only those persons having a legitimate interest in a particular child will have access to that file. A sign-out sheet is kept, detailing all persons who access a file, their position, date checked out and in, and reason for checking out the file.

Parental involvement and regular communication with instructional staff is highly encouraged for all students enrolled in RMSD.
