New baby is first in state and village

A little baby boy waited until just the right minute to be born at Lincoln County Medical Center to become the first baby of the new year in Ruidoso and in the entire state of New Mexico.

Seledonio Lozano was born one second after midnight on January 1 to Sal and Simonita Lozano of Fort Irwin, California. He weighed nine pounds and eight ounces and was delivered by caesarean section by Dr. Arlene Brown and Dr. Vickie Williams.

It was originally reported in the media that a baby born in Albuquerque was the first one of the new year, but the Lozano baby had it beat by 13 minutes.

Brown told the media that doctors are exact about delivery time because they must record the information on the child's birth certificate.

The father, Sal, is originally from Hobbs, but he is now stationed at Fort Irwin. The paternal grandmother, Angela Lozano, is from Ruidoso.

This little baby may not have gotten a lot of attention from the state for being its first baby, but Seledonio Lozano is getting plenty of attention and love from his parents, Sal and Simonita Lozano. The baby was born at Lincoln County Medical Center at one second after midnight on the first day of the year to be the first baby born in Ruidoso and New Mexico. The parents are from California.

DOE still looking for N-waste hosts

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Finding "hosts" for a growing stockpile of nuclear wastes hasn't been as easy as the Department of Energy (DOE) hoped when it hired negotiator David Leroy.

With just one taker, the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe, the DOE has extended the deadline for accepting applications for financial assistance from eligible states, Indian tribes and units of local government.

The grants are provided to assess the feasibility of siting an above-ground Monitored Retrievable Storage (MRS) facility for the temporary storage of commercial spent nuclear fuel.

The Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe received a Phase I assessment grant, and has been analyzing three possible sites for storing the nuclear waste.

Early reports indicated the tribe would place the waste on the reservation, but later reports have listed ranch land east of Hondo, the Three Rivers area and a site the other side of Tularosa.

Questions over the tribe's ability to trade its sovereign land for other land and still maintain control of that off-reservation land have not been answered.

The DOE said in a news release that it will accept Phase I grant applications through March 31, 1992, and Phase II applications through June 30, 1992.

The Phase II assessment grant is available in staged funding for a maximum of $3 million, with the activities that may be included flexible.

"Acceptance of a grant will not be construed as a commitment on the part of the grantee or the state to host the facility, nor will it prejudice siting the MRS either in favor of or against the grantee's jurisdiction," said the news release.

Requests for copies of the solicitation and amendment can be made in writing to the DOE, Office of Placement and Administration, ATTN: Nick Graham/PR-322.2, 1000 Independence Ave., SW, Washington DC 20585. His telephone number is (202) 586-4285.

No more courthouse wars! 1991 is peaceful year for county

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

They may have been a fledgling governing board, but Lincoln County Commissioners etched their names in the memories of federal officials in 1991.

They stood nose-to-nose against the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), demanding a new degree of accountability over a proposed land swap.

And they sent the U.S. Department of Energy a strong statement of opposition to a proposal for storage of nuclear waste in the vicinity of the county.

In February, commissioners set out to revamp the county road department by hiring a new road manager.

In April, they voted to enlarge their board from three to five members.

LAND SWAP

Although the commission in a 2-1 vote stated its opposition to the federal acquisition of privately-owned land along the Rio Bonito, a BLM district manager has recommended the agency proceed with the swap.

Commissioners now are examining their other options if State BLM Director Larry Woodard decides to authorize the deal, including the possibility of a temporary injunction to stop the action.

While most residents around the historic settlement of Lincoln apparently believe federal ownership would offer a protection for the area and its cultural heritage, ranchers are skeptical of the BLM's ability to manage the land.

Commission Chairman Stirling Spencer said that even after numerous meetings with BLM officials, some concerns such as economic and environmental impacts, have not been addressed by the agency.

Commissioner Bill Elliott, the lone vote for the federal acquisition said he's satisfied with the information presented by the BLM.

"I really believe (district manager) Saundra Allen and her staff have addressed every question asked of her," he said. "My main basis is that practically every person in the Lincoln area is in favor and that's in their front yard. Why not abide by their wishes?"

ROAD DEPARTMENT

All three commissioners and county manager Nick Pappas point with pride to the changes in the county road department.

"The major thing the county has done in the road area is to continue to upgrade its road maintenance yard," Spencer said.

"We took a giant step in providing updated equipment, graders, pickups and trucks using innovative financing approaches condoned by the Department of Finance and Administration. And we're looking at possibly doing more."

"We've put a lot of emphasis there, primarily because we feel road manager William Cupit is competent to take that investment and use it."

Cupit also received plaudits from Elliott.

"Cupit is excellent, I've heard nothing but compliments and praise from people," Elliott said. "I think our greatest accomplishment was in turning the road department around, giving citizens the service they require and deserve."

Although the county does not have paving capabilities, it can resurface with a new base course, Elliott said.

Commissioner Monroy Montes echoed the opinions of his fellow commissioners.

"I'm happiest with the fact that the Road Department actually is a functioning department and is no longer run out of a pickup truck," Montes said.

Capital projects were limited to some improvements at the Carriazo courthouse, the suboffice in Ruidoso and some of the senior citizen centers.

"We didn't do a lot because we're looking at a long-term plan," Spencer said.

Elliott said, "We're in the process of trying to set aside money each year for capital improvements. I'm thinking that within a few years we're going to have to build a judicial complex."

Once the judicial functions are removed from the courthouse, it will allow county offices to expand.

"If we set aside some (money) each year, we may be able to do this without a bond issue," Elliott said.

LITIGATION

Spencer also was pleased that the county had cut down on litigation expenses that have been a high pricetag item in previous years.

Along that same line, Pappas said it was great to see good relationships cemented among the courthouse elected officials and to put an end to an era that has been called the Lincoln County war revisited.

For a time before the current commission and many of the main

Ruidoso Downs is on the move in 1991

By working together Ruidoso Downs residents have been able to accomplish several things this past year that could prove to be the foundation for a great future.

Older American Center

One major accomplishment that pulled the village together this year was the opening of the Older American Center at the All American Park. Downs Mayor Bonnie Addy said the whole community is excited and pleased with the center.

The whole village was able to enjoy using it after its official opening in October for meetings and a Christmas party.

Gentry Construction Company of Alamogordo was awarded the bid in March. The center, which cost $132,500, was paid for through a grant.

"We will continue to search for the opportunities to utilize and make it available for the whole community," Addy said.

BONNIE ADDY

On the move

The Ruidoso Downs municipal offices have also moved this year.

The village hall was on East Highway 70, but early in the year officials found that a rotted plumbing line below the slab floor in the building had leaked raw sewage into the ground.

"We had no choice but to move out because the state building inspector had condemned the building and the Environmental Improvement Division said we would have to remove contaminated soil under the building," said Mayor Addy.

"The old building was placing employees and the public in a position that was hazardous to their health," she said.

The opinion of the structural engineer called in was that it would not be economically wise or practical to do renovations on this building.

The trustees then had to make a decision on where to temporarily house the municipal offices. Three properties were considered. One location was Fantasy Mountain, a former amusement park, and another the old Texas-New Mexico Power Company complex. The one that was chosen was the old Redman Club building which is south of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track entrance. An emergency grant from the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration of $15,000 made it possible to make the move in May.

Maintenance workers were also able to salvage items from the old village hall to use in renovations of the new location.

"Due to the grant from Santa Fe and the negotiations with the owner of the building for a two-year lease, it didn't cost the community or the city one penny for us to have two years grace time to research and arrive at an arrangement for a municipal office," Addy said.

Most of the village workers like the new building because it has more room and a healthier atmosphere.

Municipal Judge Harrold Mansell was not pleased with the space he was allotted, but a com-county officials were elected, lawsuits were being filed pitting official against official.

"Historically, there have been power plays in the courthouse and the citizens of the county were poorly served by it," Montes said.

He's happy with the performance and negotiating ability of county attorney J. Robert Beauvais and the management talent of Pappas.

"I think our manager and lawyer are doing real well," Montes said. "They're a good team."

"A lot of times when public officials look good, it's the team that is performing well."

EMPLOYEE MORALE

Although the commission didn't give county employees raises this year, they made amends late in 1991 with a one-time merit payment and a decision to pick up a higher percentage of the group health insurance premium.

"I think what we did for the employees was the minimum we could do for them considering that revenue receipts are pretty decent," Elliott said. "What I like about picking up the insurance premiums and flat payment is that when times are tough, everybody benefited exactly the same."

The county retains enough money in reserve to operate for five months, Elliott said. "We're in much better shape than even in tougher times."

"We're fortunate that we have a county with a frugal government and everything has been kept up pretty well. The water and sewer system in the courthouse probably is one of the biggest problems."

Part of the credit also goes to County Treasurer Janice Silva Ware, Pappas said.

"The way the treasurer has invested the county's money, we're earning decent revenues even with low interest rates," he said.

NUCLEAR STORAGE

Elliott said he personally doesn't fear the storage of nuclear waste nearby, but he does fear it would destroy real estate values in the county.

"Only a select group would benefit from this. I think it's unfair," Elliott said. "As a commissioner, I guarantee I'll do everything possible to prevent it anywhere near or around Lincoln County."

Mescalero President Wendell Chino and the Tribal Council received a $100,000 federal grant to study the possibility of placing a monitored retrievable storage facility on tribal-owned land. Spent nuclear fuel rods from power plants around the country would be sent to the facility until a permanent storage area is built.

"I'm happy we challenged Chino and took him to task," Montes said. "He's used to doing as he pleases."

HOUSING REHAB

Montes said he expects to be very involved in a housing rehabilitation program that won a $250,000 Community Block Development Grant in November.

The primary target area is Hondo Valley. The program was suggested by Montes after the commission was contacted by a Las Cruces company that specializes in administering such programs.

Paul Kuester, a spokesman for Tierra Del Sol, said the county has not yet solicited bids for handling the program, but if that occurs soon, rehabilitation could possibly begin as early as February.

A maximum of $10,000 would be allocated for each home and applicants would have to meet income guidelines.

"I remember growing up in the valley and it was a long time before there was electricity or plumbing," Montes said. "We're approaching the twenty-first century and I'd like to see good housing be available to everyone."

SUBDIVISIONS ROADS

Straightening out the problems with subdivisions and their roads may be the commission's biggest challenge in 1992, Pappas said.

"We've been doing a lot of research to understand what happened to lead up into this situation with the subdivisions," he said.

"Our goal in 1992 is to resolve in the best way possible some loose ends left to kind of haunt us with the subdivisions."

"I don't believe past commissions studied this in depth," Spencer said. "This commission pledged to clean up what it could before going forward with new ideas, clean up what is draining us and this was one."

The commission has Beauvais and several other employees researching the past minutes and ordinances pertaining to a per front foot levy against lots, trying to determine whether it was meant to go into a general pool or for specific areas.

"We need something we can make a logical decision on," Spencer said. "We need to identify the status of subdivisions and their road maintenance status. We don't want to just go with our hearts, we want to go with the facts about what we are faced with and what is the outside liability."

The county has been threatened with a lawsuit that would contend the money collected should have gone for road improvements within the areas where it was generated, no matter how isolated or undeveloped.

OTHER PROJECTS

"My own personal thing this past year has been the county Solid Waste Authority," Pappas said. "It took a lot of people and they met with some real stonewalls that took patience."

"It was a fragile structure, but I believe at this point, it is doing exactly what we dreamed it would. There's still more problems ahead, but so far it's on course."

A coalition of the county and its five municipalities, the authority is scheduled to take over responsibility for garbage collection countywide as soon as it completes the purchase of equipment from four of the member entities.

Montes said one of the biggest decisions that faced the commission in 1991 was whether to enlarge the board.

"Now we'll have a chance to see if the fear of some people materializes about Ruidoso dominating the commission with members," Montes said. As the center of the heaviest population in the county, Ruidoso and its surrounding subdivisions have been used to even out population count in the three commission districts. The situation won't be much different with five commissioners, he said. "But that doesn't mean that good candidates are only available in those populated areas."

"It's the responsibility of voters to go out and make good decisions," Montes said.

That goes for the special property tax levy for the Lincoln County Medical Center too, he pointed out.

"I hope voters renew that levy (in the November election)," Montes said. "The hospital is one of the most important things going for this area. I think it is a model for success for a small hospital. It hasn't gone broke. I'm proud of it."

Spencer also was supportive of the hospital, but said he thinks it was wise for the commission last year to remind hospital officials of its authority to reduce the amount of levy if financial support is furnished through other avenues or is not needed at the full amount.

"We're making sure the commission's hand is on the throttle as far as how the money is spent in case the driver changes," he said.

The commission's number one priority has been to take care of the permanent county residents, Spencer said, noting board members also are pleased with improvements in the county's senior citizens programs.

One of the major things he wanted to accomplish this past year, his first in office, was to squeeze out the best efficiency for tax money spent whether in health services, roads or other areas, Spencer said.

"I'm looking long term," he said. "Anyone in political office (for a two-year term) seems to be concerned with what will keep them in for another term. I would like to serve another term, but I'm going to do what's right for the taxpayer, because when I'm no longer in office, I'm still going to be a taxpayer."

"I want to be sure the money is spent wisely for me, because then I know it's spent best for 90 percent of the residents in the county. It's been quite an education."

Since coming on board in February, Bill Cupit has earned a reputation for excellent performance in his management of the Lincoln County Road Department. Commissioners say the department has dramatically improved.

mittee was formed to meet with him and resolve the issues.

Whether the municipal offices will remain there after the two years is yet to be decided.

"It (the current location) would be ideal, but whether we can negotiate acceptable financial terms is yet to be discovered," said Addy.

The city is looking into several avenues at this point, she said.

Building bulldozed

Because of the demand by E.I.D. to get the soil under the old city hall cleaned up, the board of trustees decided to have it torn down through an "in-house" project. The building was bulldozed early in December, but because of the weather all the rubble has not been cleared yet.

"Ruidoso Downs has the image of a lot of trashy buildings, so before we can entice new businesses here we have to clean up. If we ask someone else to clean up we should also do it ourselves (the village). We have a good start, and two or three buildings have already been taken down," Addy pointed out.

Taking trash regional

Another major accomplishment for Ruidoso Downs was that the final issues of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority were resolved.

Discussion on this began in 1990 and called for the purchase of garbage trucks, dumpsters and equipment from municipalities to create a central collection and handling entity.

In November the trustees passed a resolution for the payment plan for the purchase of equipment by the authority over a 15 year period.

Cooperation is key

Addy said the greatest accomplishment the community had this year was its progressive attitude about working together with other communities to accomplish things, such as providing services.

She said in looking at the world as a whole a lot of walls have come down, such as the reuniting of Germany and the breaking up of the Soviet Union.

"In our own way the communities of Lincoln County have torn down walls that we thought provided security but actually kept out progress," Addy said.

"We have made tremendous progress this year, and so many positive things to look at if we can just retain the positive attitude of working together. There is nothing we can't overcome," she said.

Shrinking board

Early in November Ruidoso Downs residents went to the polls to decide whether to keep seven board members or reduce it to four.

The vote was 70 for the reduction and 34 against for a total of 104 voters out of 453 registered.

"I felt a five-member board would be more effective for Ruidoso Downs for two reasons. One is out of our current seven-member board we are lucky to get five, so it would be difficult to have a quorum on a regular basis with just four members," Addy said.

"The second reason is on a four-member board it would be too easy to put the deciding power in the mayor's hands. If one or two trustees drop out, the mayor appoints the replacements, so the people aren't always represented. The mayor could also have the deciding vote in a tie vote," she added.

The residents will have to guard against this happening, but Addy said she thinks they can make it work.

Addy commented that having only 100 people vote in the election speaks poorly for true interest and concern in someone's community. She said only about 400 people are registered to vote out of a community of 900 people.

"We had 500 people who didn't take advantage of a chance to vote. That is a true shame. If you didn't vote, don't criticize," she said.

Annexation talks

Area residents did get a chance to input their ideas and feelings on two issues that had been discussed last year too. One was the possible annexation of the Agua Fria subdivision into Ruidoso Downs.

Agua Fria residents met with the Downs board in November to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of becoming part of Ruidoso Downs. In the end Agua Fria residents decided they would prefer to get their services from the county.

Their major concern was fire protection which they plan to resolve with a substation if approved by the county and state.

"Agua Fria wants to remain in the county and that is their privilege as long as they accept the responsibilities physically and financially of not having municipal services and advantages," Addy said.

Representatives of Agua Fria have said there would be no improvement in services and higher taxes if they became part of Ruidoso Downs, but instead of getting the roads graded once a year, they would get them graded at least once a month, she said. On a contract basis Ruidoso Downs also provides garbage services to some residents of Agua Fria.

Addy said she promised the Agua Fria residents the issue will not come up again in her administration, but it will probably come up again.

"There are still Agua Fria residents who want to be a part of Ruidoso Downs. When they get an accurate cost of maintaining a fire and police department, they will find we aren't really unreasonable. There are advantages of living in a municipality other than the tax structure," she said.

Metro police proposal

Ruidoso Downs and Ruidoso also met in November to discuss a merge of the police departments to save costs. The issue came up earlier in the year when both departments needed a dispatcher. Each hired a separate one, but it brought up the idea of merging the departments in some way.

"We have approached it in a much broader way this time. We are getting information and legal advice from the start. We have gotten a number of questions from people that we may be able to address at a future meeting. The general public will have much more knowledge about it," Addy said.

The trustees passed a resolution at the November 25 meeting to have research done on the savings and costs of such a proposal. The Ruidoso Downs police department also sent a letter to the board expressing that a merger would be beneficial to the department and to the people it serves.

"If it proves to be acceptable and advantageous to both communities, I don't see why anyone would vote against it," Addy said.

A tight budget

Ruidoso Downs worked with a budget of about $1 million which made for a tight year, Addy said. She said the greatest percentage of the residents are on fixed or assisted incomes.

"We have not done a lot of outstanding things because we have had to build a foundation and organize. We continually search and apply for grants to get additional services," Addy pointed out.

The village was able to get a state co-op grant for improvements to Wood Lane which serves 15 families and is an emergency route. Because of a $430,000 bond for past paving projects, the village is at bonding capacity. Addy said the projects should have been done by assessment, not bonding because the bond is now coming due and will cause financial concerns for the village.

"We do have a reserve in the water department and we are starting to build more in, but it is extremely hard. The state government took $68,000 in gross receipts tax.

We also inherited six lawsuits from the last administration. We had to pay $30,000 out of the general fund and one is still pending," she said.

Addy said the whole staff does as much as possible to save money. The office staff performs two to three jobs and hasn't had a raise in two years. They try to make the most economical use as possible of every day, Addy said.

Early in the year trustee Jim Rethmel was called to serve in the Persian Gulf War and became a long distance member of the board. Rethmel returned but resigned in August to move out of town. He was replaced by Pam Bernard. Karen Stevens was also appointed to the board in January.

What's next?

The mayor said she has not made a decision yet whether she will run for re-election in March, when two seats on the board will also be open.

"I look forward to seeing Ruidoso Downs grow with an open heart and an open mind. A community will die if it doesn't change. If its people don't help it will die of lack of interest," Addy said.

Down with the old (above) and move on up to the new (at left). The Village of Ruidoso Downs moved its municipal offices up the hill to a new location this year after raw sewage was discovered under the old building on U.S. Highway 70.

MAGGIE

Maggie will melt your heart

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A face and personality that would melt any heart, Maggie is a gentle springer spaniel mix who needs a home with lots of extra love.

The eight-month-old female was brought to the Lincoln County Humane Society shelter as a stray.

"She's a little timid, very affectionate and dependent," said Randy Basch, manager of the shelter. "She's leery with new people, but quick to adjust."

"And she's playful. She still has a lot of puppy in her."

Maggie will need to be housebroken, although she already shows signs of restraint in her cage.

"She gets along well with other dogs, but she's easily intimidated," Basch said. "For that reason, I would recommend that she be the only dog in a household unless the other dog is on the shy side, too."

"I think Maggie would develop into a very loyal friend and will bond closely with one person."

She weighs about 40 pounds and probably will grow a little more, peaking out at about 45-47 pounds, he said.

Maggie is sponsored for her spaying cost by a supporter of the society shelter.

All dogs and cats adopted from the shelter must be spayed or neutered to ensure that they are not responsible for more unwanted litters that would end up abandoned or destroyed.

The shelter is temporary home for a variety of good-looking animals of various breeds.

Two special dogs, who have been searching for patient and loving new owners for many months are Misty the greyhound and Happy the low-slung terrier.

Misty needs room to run and an owner with time and patience for some obedience training.

Happy, with the energy of a puppy, is looking for a household that will give her time to settle in and settle down. She, too, will require some training reinforcement, but Basch said once she feels she is not going to be moved again and is spayed, Happy should begin to relax.

"But this isn't something that will happen in a day or a week," he said.

Other shelter residents include black Labrador pups, several blue heeler mixes like Flecks, a flat-coated black retriever named Amigo, a leopard dog-heeler mix, a yellow lab pup, spaniel mixes like Shanta and Fugi, a bird dog called Doc and a quick learner and loving golden retriever named Big Red.

At the cattery next door, a brightly-accented tortoise shell cat, several gray mixes, a tiger stripe and a black feline wait for adoption.

To help enhance a homeless pet's chances for adoption a person may donate to the spay and neuter fund, which covers the major cost connected to taking home a shelter animal.

Another way to help is to stop at the shelter on nice days and walk some of the dogs. On inclement days, they enjoy special treats and some individual petting in their cages. The cats also like attention and can be taken out of their cages to let prospective new parents get to know them.

For more information about Maggie or any of the other dogs and cats, call Basch at 257-9841 or stop at the shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road.

Engineer offers views on MRS

by BUDDY BAKER
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Jene Vance is a New Mexican by birth and a Ruidoso resident by choice. He is a chemical engineer. A graduate of New Mexico State University in Las Cruces.

For 25 years, he has been involved in nuclear engineering, working on projects all over the United States. For most of that time he worked for the Bechtel Corporation, a major international construction company.

For the past few years he has headed up his own organization, Vance & Associates with headquarters in Ruidoso. His company is a nuclear engineering consulting firm.

His area of expertise is in the disposal of low level nuclear waste, such things as tools, coveralls, gloves and incidental material that has become contaminated with radiation in a nuclear environment.

Vance has the option of headquartering his organization anywhere in the United States but chooses to live in Ruidoso because, to the Truth or Consequences native, it is home.

So how does this nuclear technician feel about the proposed Monitored Retrievable Storage (MRS) in the backyard of the place he has chosen to call home?

Vance is a trained engineer who has a measured, careful, confident way of speaking which gives the listener a feeling of reassurance — a feeling that any thoughts that he may have are considered and based on his scientific knowledge and not emotionally "shot from the hip."

He prefaced his remarks by stating that any interest that he may have in the project lies in the welfare of the Village of Ruidoso. He has no stake in the proposed MRS facility and has no plans to become involved in it.

"I buy everything I possibly can locally," he says, as a way of stating his support and commitment to the area.

"I chose to live in Ruidoso over every other place in the country and plan to live here for a long time."

Vance sees the issue in three dimensions: technical, financial and psychological.

Technically he sees no barrier to the facility. He thinks that the state of the art in handling the spent fuel rods is such that it will preclude any probability of an accident.

"The casks that will be used to transport the rods are of such construction as to be veritably indestructible. As an engineer I cannot imagine a transportation accident or a seismic incident that would violate their security," he said. "They are designed to handle fuel rods that are much hotter than any that will be handled in the proposed project."

"Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque staged an accident to test these casks a dozen years ago. I have seen the film and I am satisfied as to the integrity of the casks."

Incidentally, contrary to conventional wisdom, he thinks that the material will be transported to the facility by truck since most nuclear plants in the country do not have rail facilities.

"Economically the village and Lincoln county should examine what the proposed facility will mean to the area in payroll, federal support for infrastructure, education facilities and housing. Obviously this is negotiable with the Department of Energy (DOE)."

The psychological impact is the major and deciding factor, according to Vance.

He suggests that if the MRS would create negative impact on property values and leave the area a recreational wasteland then that is grounds to oppose its construction.

In summary, he says that from his technical viewpoint the project represents zero safety risk. He claims no expertise in evaluating the financial and psychological impact, however he feels that if the financial arrangements do not offset the comfort factor of people living her and precludes others from and moving into the area than it should be opposed.

"I don't have a problem with someone building a microwave tower in by backyard," he says.

"But if I received no financial or functional benefit from it I would oppose it."

He feels that the project should be positive to the community as a sum of all factors or be opposed.

"This project can be stopped," he says. "Street demonstrations may help some, but emotional, inflammatory letters to the editor that are not based in fact will not help."

"The DOE is looking for a benign jurisdictional host and does not want a protracted court battle in locating this facility, however any opposition that is organized must be based on scientific, sociological and ecological facts. The courts will listen to legitimate, well founded arguments and in my experience they will decide fairly."

New gallery opens in the Gazebo

by BUDDY BAKER
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

If you are a graduate mechanical engineer, have traveled all over the world supervising quality control in plant construction from Algeria to Vietnam, dabbled in gas well head electric generators and oil well subsurface micro biology, what do you retire to, and where?

The answer was simple for Jim Johnson, owner of Ruidoso's newest art gallery.

Johnson has settled down from a life of globe trotting to pursue his primary love of sculpting, and where?

To Ruidoso where, according to Johnson, he finds everything he needs in life except a big lake for his boat.

Atelier Jabiru, a French name that means a big white bird that moves around a lot, is the name of his gallery. Johnson, who moved plenty during his career, finds that name appropriate in his new endeavor.

As a sculptor, Johnson has chosen an unusual group of subjects, fossils, both invertebrate and vertebrate, that lived from 450,000 years ago to 75,000 years ago.

He sculpts crinoids, a basketball size animal that lived on the end of a stem much like a plant, and Tyrannosaurus Rex, a carnivorous dinosaur. He also has let his fertile imagination wander into his hands with a resulting figure that represents man's ascent from the oceans to the land, a missing link if you will.

He also does western characters in sculpture, and scenes with pencil on paper.

Paleontology was an interest and hobby for Johnson and a natural subject for him when he decided to pursue sculpture as a profession.

His castings are in cold cast bronze and are limited to 250.

In addition to his own work, Johnson's Atelier Jabiru gallery exhibits the work of three other artists:

Jean Buchanan is a multi-media artist whose focus is the Hopi Indians. She is currently an instructor in drawing and water colors at the El Paso Museum of Fine Arts. Her work sells from $150 to $475.

Jane Roberts is a former student of Buchanan who works in oil and water colors. Her subjects are contemporary western scenes. Prices of her paintings are from $110 to $300.

Ivonne Arras works in brass, silver, gold and nickel to create contemporary jewelry. She exhibits and sells internationally and is exhibited exclusively in Southern New Mexico by Atelier Jabiru. Prices of her pieces range from $40 to $75.

Atelier Jabiru, a name descriptive of Jim Johnson himself, whose children pinned the CB handle "Jet Gypsy" on him, is located in the Gazebo shopping center, the telephone number is 257-9777.

Sherry Anklam is Ruidoso State Bank's '91 employee of the year

Ruidoso State Bank's employee of the year for 1991 was announced at the annual Christmas celebration recently.

The winner of this year's honor is Sherry Anklam, secretary to Preston Isaacs, executive vice president. Her duties include processing loans, putting loan files together, answering the phone and meeting with customers.

Anklam moved to Ruidoso in 1979 and has been working at the bank since March 1990. She is married to Larry Anklam and has a son Rusty Smith who lives in Pennsylvania. Her stepson, Richard Anklam, lives in Albuquerque. Both went to school in Ruidoso.

"I like my job at the bank because we are real busy, and I deal with a lot of interesting people. I work with nice people too," Anklam said.

"I was very pleased with winning the award. It was a pleasant surprise, and I was quite honored," she said.

Anklam was selected for the award by her fellow employees, and it was presented to her by bank president Tom Battin.

Anklam said that in her spare time she enjoys working on ceramics and reading. She is taking some college courses, including computers, which will help her in her job.

Hard work leads Bob Pope to series of careers

Local bootmaker takes the long and winding road to his current career

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

He's always worked hard, but has never been afraid of change. It's what keeps life interesting, says Bob Pope.

He gave up the unfettered life of the cowboy when he married and the union produced children.

He chucked a secure career with a large grocery chain to move more than 1,000 miles away because his sense of dignity and fairness had been violated by management.

He pulled up stakes and returned to New Mexico when he tired of the northern freeze.

And at the age of 59, when a heart ailment threatened his life, he walked away from years in construction and opened The Stockman's Boot and Saddle Repair in Gateway Shopping Center.

Pope said he spent his early life primarily in southeast New Mexico.

"Years ago, I cowboied," he said. "From there I went into retail meat and co-managed a grocery in Roswell and Alamogordo."

He first took over the meat market section of a store. Within six weeks, the volume had doubled. The company transferred him to Roswell and the position as co-manager.

From the very first year, his store was the top grossing outlet in the company's chain of 127 markets.

"A three percent profit was considered good and we were netting just shy of seven percent," Pope said. "Still the management rode the heck out of us. One day a supervisor came in and spoke to me in a way that resulted in me showing him the front door."

"I wanted to be treated like an equal and from that day on, they did. I told them to pick on stores that weren't doing well, not us. We didn't need them. We netted better than twice the amount with the same prices."

He stayed a few more years and then decided the benefits weren't worth the pressure and tension.

"I have two boys and they were at the age where they both had bikes and I couldn't keep them on the block anymore. I didn't want them to grow up as hoodlums," Pope said.

He bought a farm, cows and horses.

"The oldest never did like it, but it's been my middle son's life," Pope said of son Dave Pope of Hale Lake. "Personally, I don't think there's a better life. Livestock always has been part of my life. I shod horses while I was cutting meat."

But in 1964, he moved out of state and got into construction, primarily as a carpenter and painter. He stayed 15 years.

His son had good memories of New Mexico and was the first to break away and move back. Three years later, Pope followed.

"I had known for a long time that's what I wanted to do," he said. That was 13 years ago.

His parents lived in Ruidoso Downs and were at the age when it was a comfort to have their son close. Pope's two brothers were in Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

"Somebody needed to be around," Pope said. "Mom's 86 now and still going. I see her every night."

For nine years, he continued in residential construction, but a blockage in the blood vessels that feed his heart suddenly ended that business.

He went to Albuquerque where doctors tried to remove the blockage, but after two procedures his physicians decided the only way to prevent a heart attack would be bypass surgery.

"I couldn't handle heavy construction work after that," Pope said. He looked around for a new career at the tender age of 58.

"My son had been making saddles for years and he talked me into (the boot business)," Pope said. "I'd made head stalls and covered stirrups since I was a kid, but Dave got into making saddles when he was 15 and he had a saddle that needed a new fender and seat. He bought a side of leather and did it himself, tooled and all."

The younger Pope now does his own designs on saddles incorporating elk, mule deer, horses and flowers.

Training for his new venture, Pope drove to Alamogordo every Saturday to observe and try his hand at boot repair there.

"A lot of what I do is self-taught, but a lot of times, I learned from others," Pope said.

Sometimes the learning happened by chance. When Rod Patrick, the owner of the Mercedes Boot Co. in Texas, was skiing with his wife in Ruidoso, he stopped at the shop one evening to talk.

"He gave me a lot of pointers and help," Pope said. "There have been a lot of other boot makers who have been in, like Danny Pounds of Slaton, Texas, and Mitch Holt of Stanton, Texas. We trade ideas."

Creating a new pair of boots takes about 40 hours, Pope said. It entails taking extensive measurements of the person's feet, ankle and calf.

Each section of the boot is constructed separately and the pieces are fitted together like a puzzle after being soaked, stretched or molded. They're joined by stitching and glue, except along the sole and arch, where Pope uses rows of wood pegs that are about a inch long.

It's classic Texas bootmaking, Pope said.

"During the cattle drive era out of Texas, cowboys would leave an order with the bootmaker and when they returned, the boots were ready. They used wood pegs and it's something that has not been dropped over all these years."

Pope makes his arches out of 40 penny nails on the bottom on the boot.

"I cut off the head and taper the ends on the anvil," working with it until the exact arch line is created. Two pieces of leather are positioned on either side and a shank cover goes over the top.

He then hammers in two rows of 5/8 wooden pegs all the way around, which secure the steel shank.

"I punch hole with hand instrument, insert the peg and hit it with hammer," Pope said. "It mushrooms out at bottom and holds better than a nail. Then I have to use special rasp to file down end of the peg."

Pope adds a personal touch over the finished arch area by rolling a design with a stitch spacer.

The outer material of a boot can range from calf and pig skin to elephant, shark skin and even kangaroo.

The hides usually arrive in 20-square-foot rolls of leather that may bear imperfections from the processes of skinning or regulating the thickness.

Some clients request their initials or brands on their boots, often inlaid with another material to stand out.

But no one has ever requested a special stitching design. That Pope creates on his own.

"I draw it on half a piece of paper, cut it out and I have both sides," Pope said.

Customers do get involved when it comes to color.

"They like blues, reds, greens, white and cream tops," he said.

The charge for a mid-range pair of custom boots is about $300, although it can vary tremendously depending on the type of hide, design, accessories and any special features, Pope said.

"I've worked with my hands all my life and I enjoy meeting people," he said. "I learn something here everyday, either something new or how to do something better. It's gratifying that the customers keep coming because they were happy with what I did before and they've told their friends."

Since opening Stockman's three years ago, "the business just keeps getting better all the time," Pope said. "I've made and repaired boots for people as far away as Los Angeles, Florida and New York, even Finland."

"I thought I would get a breather after the race track season, but the work has been steady with boot repair and new orders."

Pope said the work is satisfying and creative, although he also continues to paint rodeo scenes as a side venture, something he started in 1962.

Looking back over his career changes, Pope shakes his head as if the thought just occurred to him. "I wasn't a kid when I changed the last time."

"But I guess that's what a lot of people are forced to do now. They think they have a secure retirement and then their companies boot them out."

Pope shows off a pair of leather custom-made chaps under construction at his shop on Sudderth.

Photos by Dianne Stallings

Sitting at the industrial-size sewing machine, Pope displays his stitching technique that he has developed over the last few years since he opened Stockmans.

Before Pope is ready to recondition and resole a boot, he must peel off the old bottom.

The lineup of boots finished and waiting to be reconditioned testify to the volume of business at Pope's shop.

Pope grips a boot locked into position at just the right angle. Pope designed some of his own repair equipment.

Warrior basketball teams suffer weekend losses

The first weekend of 1992 was not a good one for Ruidoso Warriors basketball. The boys team lost three games in a tournament, while the girls went one-on-one with Goddard for the second time this season.

The boys suffered possibly the worst defeat in Warrior history when they travelled to the four-team Wildcat Classic in Lovington to play the host team on Thursday. The Warriors were pounded 36-100 and had 37 turnovers.

Coach Norman Wright said the team was down 10-0 when he called a time-out to try to help the team gather itself.

It wasn't until Lovington had 22 points that the Warriors were able to score any points. By half time the team had only 17 points.

"Their press was devastating. We had no one in double figures in scoring. Our leading scorer and rebounder, Eric Evans, only had six points and one rebound," Wright said.

Robert Sayner and Jaime Ordorica had eight points each in the game.

Turnovers and an early deficit again plagued the Warriors in the second game of the tournament when they battled Monahans, Texas, on Friday. The score was closer, 78-40, but Wright said the playing wasn't a whole lot better.

"The main problem was 32 turnovers. It was a horrible night," Wright said.

By the end of the first quarter the Warriors were down 19-8 and at half 41-17. The leading scorer of the game was Evans who had 10 points.

One bright spot in the otherwise dismal night was the play of a freshman, Daniel Espinosa.

"He played better than anyone else. He made his free throws and had only one turnover. He looked pretty good the whole night," Wright said.

The Warriors played much better in their final game of the tournament, but were still defeated by Tucumcari, 69-59.

"We played a heck of a lot closer game. They pressed us the whole game, and we had 30 turnovers, which was the main reason we lost," the coach said.

Again the Warriors played catch-up the entire game, and were down by 18 points at half time. Late in the game, though, Wally Murillo threw a long pass down court to Eric Evans who was able to dunk the ball.

"That was the second time this season he dunked the ball, and it really got us fired up. We started playing better, and we cut their lead from 20 to seven points, but that was as close as we got," Wright said.

"We had a chance to win it in the end, so that leaves us with a little optimism," he said.

Evans was the high scorer in the game with 20 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots. He also earned a spot on the all-tournament team. Ordorica had three, three-point shots for a total of 12 points. Murillo was also in double figures with 11 points.

"Our biggest problem this season is handling the press. We are showing some improvement, but we are inexperienced and not use to this pressure. We only have two players with varsity experience. We have had to learn things the hard way," Wright said.

The Warriors have a record of 2-5 but hope to add another one to the win column Tuesday night when they play Tularosa here. The junior varsity game starts at 5:30 p.m., followed by the varsity.

Tularosa runs a full-court press and is very quick, Wright said.

"We will have to work hard to beat them. Tularosa is a big rivalry, so it will be a good game. Hopefully we will play well enough to win," he said.

The Lady Warriors also had difficulty on the basketball court this weekend. After three weeks without a basketball game the Lady Warriors couldn't get enough steam up to challenge the Goddard Rockets at Saturday night's game in Roswell.

The Lady Warriors were only able to score eight points in the first half and lost the game 32-57.

"We looked absolutely terrible. We just got out-hustled. We looked really dead and flat. We couldn't get the ball up and down the court," said Coach Jody Blanton.

She said the girls had good practices over Christmas break, so he couldn't pinpoint what exactly went wrong for the team. The team did have 27 turnovers in the game, but in a game earlier this season against Goddard the girls had 38 turnovers and lost 58-35.

High scorer for the game was Kansas Miranda with 11 points, followed by Michelle Morris with nine. Amy Wishard had six points and six rebounds. Miranda had eight rebounds to lead the Warriors in that department.

Blanton said the girls practiced Sunday to prepare for their next game of the season against Artesia at home on Thursday. The game starts at 5:15 p.m. The Warriors will then travel to Artesia on Saturday for another game with the Bulldogs.

Free throw champs crowned

The Knights of Columbus crowned several future basketball stars as free throw champions at its annual free throw competition on Sunday at the middle school gym.

Although there were few students who came to shoot, the competitive spirit was not lacking in the six participants. Competition was scheduled for children age 10 to 14, but the only participants were 13 and 14 years old.

Winning in the 13 year-old boys category was Billy Rogge who made 11-15 of his shots from the free throw line. Cory Hood made 10 of 15 shots to win the 14 year-old boys category. Tommy Richardson also competed in this category.

In the girls division, three 14 year-olds took their shots to see who could hit the most free throws. The winner was Lindsay Willard, who made 10 of her 15 shots. Heather DeBusk and Cindy Richardson were the other competitors in this category.

The winners will now go on to compete at the Knights of Columbus state contest, which is scheduled for March 22 at Roswell. Organizers of this event said a district competition may be planned before the state meet, but no date has been set. Boys and girls ages 10 to 14 would be eligible to participate in the district competition and would have a chance to advance to the state event.

The Knights of Columbus Free Throw Championship is sponsored annually by the Knights and consists of competition at the local, district and state level. International champions are determined based on scores at the state competitions.

Last year more than 199,000 boys and girls participated in 2,990 local competitions.

Hoop shoot set for this weekend

Ruidoso will host district competition for the 29th Annual Elks Hoop Shoot at 10 a.m. Saturday, January 11, at White Mountain gym.

More than three million youngsters from throughout the country entered last year's national free throw shooting contest for youngsters age 8 through 13.

Competition is offered for boys and girls in age categories 8-9; 10-11; and 12-13. Each contestant has 25 shots at the hoop. The boy and girl in each group with the best scores advance through four tiers of competition to qualify for the national finals.

Local winners who will compete in the regional hoop shoot are Mindy Brunell and Cedric Lucero of Ruidoso, Josh Vega and Willie Silva of Carrizozo and Andrea Fish and Mariah Runnels of Capitan.

Mariah Runnels, competing in the 10-11 age group, is a three-time winner. She won in the 8-9-year category and went on to win district and state and competed in the regionals in Oklahoma City both years.

The National Young Leaders Conference will end with a four-hour Mock Congress on Gun Control during which scholars assume the roles of United States Representatives by debating, lobbying, and voting on proposed handgun legislation.

Founded in 1985, the Council is a non-partisan educational organization committed to recognizing outstanding youth and providing them with a "hands-on" civic learning experience in the nation's capital.

New year opens with golden sundown

Golden Sundown On New Years Day

This is being sent to you just before sundown on New Year's Day, my first message to you in the great New Year of 1992.

This morning was bright and clear with the temperature at an even 20, with light wind out of the west, carrying a breath of snow off Sierra Blanca.

Now the sun has sunk below the western horizon, exactly in the "notch" separating the hills on the north and south sides of the valley. From down behind the mountain, the sun sends up a soft golden blaze all across the western sky—golden for the prosperity of the new year.

Now a veil of pure purple is flooded into the upper end of the Vale, now the purple is touched with light crimson and pink. All these colors are promises of a beautiful year ahead. A quiet lull of peace now is cast upon the vale by the approaching of twilight, and Mother Earth is breathing a prayer of Thanks to God for the brand new year all bright and shiny with sunshine on the snow — a year full of all blessings to all of us.

Let us thank God for the fine year just passed, and for the wonderful New Year, and all our other many blessings.

Happy Birthday To New Mexico

Now it is a little before high noon on the second day of January, and all the Vale is sunny under a bright blue sky with the American flag floating in a northeast breeze, and the snow patches on the mountain meadows on the shady side of the valley sparkling with snow jewelry and faint rainbow colors. Last night the temperature went down to 16, yet the cold air could not stand up under the bright sun, which already so early in the year is gaining the upper hand. The temperature is up to 54, and the jays, doves and finches have flown in, joining the snow birds, all blending their songs in harmonious celebration of this sunny and mild beginning of the new year.

by
Daniel Agnew
Storm

Day by day now the daytime weather will be warmer, while the nighttime temperatures will be cold as we head into the "Deep of Winter" which begins about January 5.

However, many sunny interludes will come into the mountain land in mid winter. These are a pleasant change, and yet we need to be careful, as we say, for a sudden blizzard.

Today all the snow has gone from the sunny side of the valley, and the breeze has now changed and is blowing right out of the south.

As you inhale the warm sunny air, you catch a flavor of the snow, and your heart is light with the pride and joy of life, as you rejoice with Mother Earth and all her children on this snow and sunshine day at the beginning of the year.

The Mountain Celebrates

The New Year

Our landmark of the mountain world, the Sierra Blanca, is living up to its name, all gold and white with one of the heaviest mantles of snow in a long time, celebrating the New Year, and also New Mexico's eightieth birthday.

This message will reach you — my first written in the new year — on January six, the eightieth birthday of New Mexico which entered the Union on this date in 1912.

It became known as the "Sunshine State," and also "The Land of Second Life" on account of the many folks who came here from the east and recovered their health in the dry bracing climate with pure air and bright sunlight the year round.

As I said before, New Mexico was almost named Lincoln, and one fourth of the state carried the name of "Honest Abe" until it was divided up into seven present day counties. Our present day Lincoln County is our pride and joy.

The Sixth is also "Twelfth Night" the end of the Christmas season, also called Epiphany, the day the Three Wise Men returned to their countries and give the news of the birth of the Christ Child.

Many Thanks To Power Line Workers

Among the many blessings in this life we often take for granted is our electric power. The last bit of snow, one of the coldest and heaviest on record, caused power outages all over the county, the Mesalero Reservation and over around Cloudcroft.

So we count our blessings at the beginning of the new year, we offer a prayer of thanks for these faithful and devoted men.

Happy birthday to us

New Mexico celebrates its 80th birthday today. On January 6, 1912, President William Howard Taft proclaimed New Mexico the 47th state of the United States.

New Mexico celebrated, but if the statehood proclamation had come just a few years earlier — in 1869 or even 1875 — this land of enchantment would be called the State of Lincoln. If the Territory of New Mexico had been admitted in 1906, this state would have been combined into one state with Arizona, known as the State of Arizona.

Our state's name, New Mexico, comes of course from Old Mexico which is named after Mexitli, the war god of the Aztecs. New Mexico, like its name, is a state that unites three cultures. That name may also be one reason that New Mexico sometimes is confused for a foreign country.

Even though Lincoln, once the largest county in the United States, didn't end up as the name of this beautiful state, it did have an important role in those early days. New Mexico's first governor, William C. McDonald, was from Carrizozo.

The second governor, Ezequiel Cabeza de Baca's name was reminiscent of the state's discoverer, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca.

New Mexico is a land of diversity, and that can be seen firsthand when Nob Hill Elementary School students — a mini-picture of the mixed heritage of this area — stand to recite the pledge to the New Mexico flag, saying:

"I salute the flag of the State of New Mexico, the Zia symbol of perfect friendship among united cultures."

When New Mexicans celebrate today, it will be for a state where diversity extends from the peoples to the lands to the climate. The sun shines so brightly that it has been proclaimed the Sunshine State, and still the temperature drops low enough for great skiing on snowy slopes four months out of every year. New Mexico is a land of high mountains and plateaus, cut by deep canyons, from the Truchas Peak at 13,400 feet above sea level to the Red Bluff below Carlsbad at 2,876 feet.

New Mexico is the state for all reasons with a climate and lifestyle for everyone — let's celebrate our state on its 80th birthday!

Letters

"Here's the rest of the story," writes one reader

TO THE EDITOR:

Your series on "Artists of Lincoln County" have been enjoyable, and I assumed factual, until I read your latest, featuring Gary Miller (Ruidoso News, Thursday, December 26, 1991).

After carefully considering this article I decided your readers, as Paul Harvey says, "should hear the rest of the story."

This letter is in no way meant to minimize the splendid work done in Lincoln by the Lincoln County Heritage Trust and Mr. Miller as its second director. I believe all Lincoln agrees that the Trust has done a very professional job with the trust properties, and we are all proud of them.

But for Mr. Miller to personally take the credit for creating Lincoln, and saving it from the encroachment of the world, is somewhat misleading, if not downright dishonest.

Mr. Miller calls Lincoln a neglected piece of history, and yet the Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission, a state agency, was established by the governor, and funded by the legislature almost 50 years ago. The sole purpose of that commission was to acquire, restore, and protect the historical properties in Lincoln, a unique, untouched frontier village. On an extremely limited budget the commission was able to acquire 11 properties, stabilize the old adobe buildings, rebuild the burned Wortley Hotel, and open two museums and the hotel for the public.

For almost four decades the commission did a very credible job in Lincoln, before leasing the state properties to the Trust in 1978. A year later the Trust returned the state properties to the jurisdiction of the state.

The village of Lincoln was created in the 1850s, included in the National Register of our nation's historic treasures in the 1950s, and the county ordinance to preserve Lincoln's heritage was passed in 1972. All these events occurred, long before Mr. Miller discovered our "ghost" town.

Lincoln has been alive for years

TO THE EDITOR:

I found your article on Gary Miller (Artists of Lincoln County, December 26, 1991) most interesting.

I have lived in the community of Lincoln for a little over 20 years and had no idea we had a savior living among us.

Did Mr. Miller really do all those things in Lincoln?

I had no idea in 1970 I would be moving to a ghost town, it certainly didn't look or act like a ghost town. Oh, and by the way we moved in with three dogs and a cat.

My only other comment on this article is Mr. Miller's quote on Lincoln being a finished canvas .... "That's not to say others can't paint on it," I do believe that would be called a "fake" in the art world which is exactly what I think of some of Mr. Miller's quotes concerning Lincoln.

Lincoln, New Mexico, was a thriving community in both past and present history long before Gary Miller came looking for a job.

Nuclear waste disposal plans blow up dreams of retirement in the pines

TO THE EDITOR:

My husband and I subscribe to The Ruidoso News and we read about the proposed "Nuclear Dump" with the utmost concern.

We visited Ruidoso two years ago, and fell in love with it. The beautiful scenery and clean air is much like where we live in Alaska.

We loved it so much that we made the decision to relocate to Ruidoso when my husband retires from his state job at the end of 1992.

Now, it appears we may have to choose another place to live. As much as we want to live in Ruidoso, we have no desire to live near a nuclear dump site.

You can bet, if we lived there now, we would be fighting against this tooth and nail. However, there is not much we can do from this distance.

Please, Ruidoso, stand up and fight!
