RUIDOSO, NM 88345

OUR 47TH YEAR 50 CENTS

Shop the Jubilee

Tie up your Christmas shopping all in one stop this weekend during the annual Christmas Jubilee at the Civic Events Center.

The doors of the Jubilee are open from 5-8 p.m. Friday, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. The center allowed the Ruidoso Valley Greeters to expand the exhibit this year to 58 booths, almost 20 more than last year.

Shoppers will find the best products of licensed merchants in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, and will likely find Christmas presents for themselves as well as family and friends.

If you have children, don't let them miss breakfast with Santa Claus from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday in a decorated room at the center. Meet Santa's helpers, the elves, who will be passing out favors and spreading the Christmas cheer.

The cost of the breakfast is $3 per person.

Santa Claus will stick around for the rest of the event and a photographer will be taking pictures of the youngsters with Santa in front of an antique Russian sleigh. Look through the booths at the Jubilee and have your wish list ready to present to Santa Claus.

The latest fashions and accessories for the holiday season will be the highlight of the style show and luncheon at 11:30 a.m. in one of the center rooms. The meal will be catered by Blue Goose and reservations are suggested.

Although the center has been open for several months, the village has selected Saturday as the grand opening of the new building. The open house will be from 3 to 7 p.m. and the Greeters and the village invites everyone to come out to celebrate the opening of the center.

Stop by for a nice lunch or get some tasty goodies to take home. A variety of refreshments will also be available for thirsty shoppers on the go at the Jubilee.

The Greeters will also be selling tickets on a drawing for some of the best prizes ever.

Prizes to be given away at 3 p.m. Sunday are a weekend trip to Laughlin, Nevada, a weekend at the Lodge in Cloudcroft, a weekend at Carrizo Lodge, a day at the race track, a Teri Sodd framed print, a Santa Fe doll house and a gourmet dine-around for two people at eight of Ruidoso's finest restaurants. The ticket holders do not need to be present to win.

The Jubilee is in its fifth year, and it grows bigger and better each year. Greeters have been working on the event for months and have several new stores scheduled to show off their products.

UPPER sign stopped you

The Upper Canyon business owners proposed a sign that said a lot more than what was actually on the sign.

Clark Carpenter appeared before the council regarding the proposed sign at the traffic circle that alerts motorists to an open or closed Indian Reservation campground.

"The Upper Canyon circle area is the gateway to our businesses," Carpenter said. "It is the only way to get in the Upper Canyon. The proposed sign is a negative, 'do not do something.'"

"We businesses in the Upper Canyon met this morning and voted 100 percent against the proposed sign," said Carpenter.

That sign was approved by the Planning and Zoning Commission, and was before the council for final approval because it was to be placed on state right of way.

"We try to promote traffic and keep our businesses healthy. We're not on the highway, we don't have a natural flow of traffic and we need all the help we can get," said Car-

He said the group would like to petition the council to vote against the proposed sign.

"We do have an alternative. That you refer this back to planning and zoning again, so the Upper Canyon merchants could have something to say about it," Carpenter said.

A sample sign that would include 19 businesses of Upper Canyon was submitted to illustrate the strength of the business world in that area.

Councilor J.D. James made a motion to table the sign proposal for an indefinite period and the motion passed.

Jackie Rawlins, owner Ruidoso Lodge, was not going to let a statement by Councilor Ron Andrews pass.

Andrews asked if the Indian Reservation gate was ever opened. It indicated to Rawlins that Andrews needed to be more in touch with the Upper Canyon.

Mass transit study rolls past village council

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Under a bizarre set of circumstances, the Ruidoso Village Council Tuesday approved a proposal for a mass transit system by:

- skirting normal purchasing department procedures,
- bypassing the village council,
- discounting the usual engineering experience,
- advertising in one paper only,
- violating a council directive in the procurement code,
- presenting the proposal with significant information omitted,
- and by accepting an exceptionally simplistic document.

The study was recommended by Dick Weber, who nearly everyone thought was Chairman of the Ruidoso Transportation Board, until the shocking news Wednesday morning that Weber had resigned on November 4.

When contacted by The Ruidoso News, Weber confirmed rumors that he had quit the board.

Weber was asked when he sent his resignation to the village clerk, Tammie Maddox.

"I didn't," he said. "I sent it to Victor." Victor is Mayor Victor Alonso.

Some councilors had the impression Weber was acting as chairman of the transportation board Tuesday when he delivered his recommendations from the podium.

Weber said he wasn't.

"I was on the agenda only as a citizen," Weber said. "I'll continue to help if the city wants help, that's all I can say."

Village manager Ron Wicker said he and village deputy Alan Briley had learned of Weber's resignation by 4:30 p.m. on council day.

Neither Weber nor Wicker could explain why council members were not informed of the resignation before the presentation.

Alonso couldn't be reached for comment.

Wicker said acting village attorney Dave Thomsen said he didn't feel like state law was violated by the village's handling of the proposal. He said a council directive on procurement was violated.

Council OKs feasibility study

Wicker said he would determine what action to take later in the week.

Village purchasing agent Fonda Hazel, on instructions by Wicker, had asked Weber for names of companies to send the Requests For Proposals (RFP).

The single proposal sent back to the village was by General Business Consultants (GBC) of Ruidoso.

GBC's similar mass transit projects include: completion of a stock offering proposal for Warp Speed; completion of a business plan for equity funding; and completion of a business plan for debt funding for Resort Air, Ltd., owned by Weber.

GBC said they could perform the study for about $12,000. The village had budgeted $13,000.

Lorri McKnight and Rowland Conley own GBC.

McKnight currently lists three jobs, a consultant for bank services, assists small businesses during startup and office manager for Dr. James C. Wardlaw.

Conley is a general business consultant and works at the Ruidoso State Bank as a Data Processing Officer.

During Weber's update on the transportation board, Councilor J.D. James asked Weber if his phone request still stands.

"You made the request that I make a motion to abolish the transportation board. That's the way I understood your request," said James.

"I said that if you are unhappy with the progress we were doing ... you should do that," Weber said.

James thanked Weber for making a report.

"This has been long overdue, and I've so stated that to you," James told Weber.

Councilor Jerry Shaw complained that minutes were not forthcoming from the board, until the recent requests of all boards to improve their minutes. Shaw said without communication from all the boards, it would be hard to work in compliance.

"I have spoken with you and offered to meet with you at any time," Weber said. "You called me once, and you said you couldn't meet with me, but you were going to call again and you haven't called, but I'm still willing to meet personally, explain everything and show you all the documents."

"I think if you would come before the council, it would be the simplest," Shaw said.

Alonso, also a transportation board member, thanked Weber for his presentation and complimented him for being a "doer."

The mayor asked village manager and non-voting transportation board member Wicker to handle the proposal award request. It had been noted in The News that the village purchasing department had been deliberately sidestepped which was an unusual procedure for an RFP.

Wicker had written that Weber would be recommending the proposal, but Weber told The News he would only be giving an update. Weber said he thought Hazel would make the recommendation.

Some game playing then took place by the village manager.

Wicker looked out at the audience for Hazel.

"Fonda (Hazel), I thought was going to be here, but I don't think she's here," said Wicker. "But, I'll try to go through this."

It appeared that Hazel was trying to dodge her responsibilities.

Wednesday morning, Hazel was confronted by The News.

"He (Wicker) told me he didn't want staff involved at all, to School Board considers various roof materials

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A metal roof on Ruidoso's new elementary school would cost more and may reduce the number of classrooms, but metal would last longer and need fewer repairs.

Pay now or pay later, said School Board Chairman Lynn Willard.

Architect Brian Page warned board members that the estimated $362,600 cost of the metal roof could knock out two classrooms "and we're under the gun to find more classrooms."

As designed, the school to be built at the White Mountain complex now has 20 classrooms. The project is budgeted at about $3-million.

A rubberized membrane-type roof with only four raised metal roofs over common areas would cost closer to $250,000, Page said

"We use a lot of (that type) and with few problems, mostly tied to installation," he said.

"What about shingles?" board member Rod Adamson said.

"You could use shingles and you did on the administration building," Page said. "I don't think it's as good as (the membrane)."

District superintendent Mike Gladden said the membrane treatment would carry a warranty of 15 years and the material adheres to the roof instead of being laid down with gravel on top.

Page said he has seen a membrane roof last more than 20 years.

"(A metal roof is) very expensive and it's very nice product," Page said. "It's maintenance free, but hard to establish a drainage system. It requires gutters and ice can build up."

Board members directed Page to let Dick Weber and the Transportation Board do the whole thing, and for staff to stay out of it," Hazel said.

The News asked Fonda if Wicker knew she wasn't going to be at the council meeting.

"Yes," Hazel said. "He signed a request for paid leave so I could go to Albuquerque."

Hazel produced a "paid for leave" form which noted that she would be leaving for Albuquerque at 1 p.m. on the day of the council meeting. The form was signed by Wicker.

It was not made apparent at first, why Wicker did not want Hazel making the recommendation.

Wicker said the mass transit plan proved feasible, the federal government would provide 90 percent of the capital expense, the state would pay five percent and the village would pay five percent.

On operation and maintenance, the breakdown is a 50-50 match according to Wicker.

"They would pay 50 percent and the village would pay 50 percent," said Wicker.

Wicker said the RFPs were sent out for consultants and advertised locally in one newspaper.

"This is what Fonda did, and we did meet all the legal requirements as far as I'm concerned. And I'm sure she feels the same way," Wicker said.

"We contacted four firms that were presented to us (by Weber)," said Wicker. "Based on all that, we received one RFP for this feasibility study. That RFP has now been turned over to Dick Weber and at this point I would like Dick to make whatever recommendation he would like to make."

Weber named the four candidates selected. Three worked on his personal projects, the Ironhorse railroad and Resort Airlines, Ltd.

One candidate returned the letter unclaimed.

Weber recommended General Business Consultants.

"I believe they're fully qualified and I recommend them," Weber said.

Attorney Thomsen said if the proposal is fair and the price acceptable, an award can be made to that one proposer.

Councilor Jerry Shaw challenged the procedures.

"I'm a little confused. (In the past) we initiated the RFP, Fonda drew it up, a committee reviewed it, and then we saw it."

"I feel completely in the dark. I don't know what's going on here. The committee, apparently, is Dick Weber and he has selected these people. I'm not ready to accept anything that I've heard tonight."

J.D. James said he had several opinions.

"Legally, you're probably right by listing it in one local paper, but ethically it should be intra-state newspapers, like Albuquerque, Las Cruces, Roswell and so forth."

"We don't know who in Albuquerque has the expertise in this type of study."

"When we first started out it was a feasibility study. There isn't supposed to be any money at all. Legally, I think you're getting around it because it went to consultants."

"This is what bothers me. There's no one else that had the opportunity to read the newspaper for the RFP. I have a problem with that."

"I'm not saying the local firm doesn't qualify. I don't know," said James.

He said he questioned the definition of similar projects.

"I have not heard one word about mass transit," James said. Similar to me is "mass transit," not Warp Speed, Richards Puzzles, that's a company, that's a firm. Mass transit is something else all together."

James said he was a consultant for Sun Pipeline, but he said that doesn't make him qualified for a feasibility study for a mass transit.

James said he has received nothing but negative feedback from the citizens with whom he talked.

"Why in the world do you want to have a mass transit in a town the size of Ruidoso," James said people asked him. "I was in Roswell today, the same question was asked. How do you come up with these ideas?"

James said a senior citizen van is available that transports seniors.

James said the depressed economy would be another reason not to go for a mass transit system at this time.

"That's taxpayers' money. It's coming out of our pocket," James said. "I know the economy in the United States and world wide is depressed. I don't think it's the proper thing to do."

Councilor Ron Andrews, back from a brief vacation, said he disagreed slightly with James.

He said he hears constantly about tourists who are landlocked because public transportation is unavailable, especially in the winter.

"You get a situation when a family of four or five come into town, all of them don't want to ski every day," said Andrews. "If you get into a cabin situation in Upper Canyon, and the wife or husband takes one or two kids up to the lifts to ski, the rest get to stay in the cabin and burn fire wood all day. They can't walk to town. They can't drive. And we don't have any kind of transportation system."

Andrews said Ruidoso is one of the few ski areas in the western United States with towns smaller than Ruidoso, that don't provide shuttle services.

He said families that arrive from West Texas that want to shop or go to the horse races would find themselves split.

"One is not going to get what they want to do," said Andrews. "Because we don't have any kind of transportation system to split the family up."

Weber spoke of talking to people from his motel. There appeared to be a difference in downtown business area public, and citizens at large.

"The public I talk to, doesn't agree with the public you talk to," said Andrews to James.

"Most of those towns (ski area) have free bus service for their tourists."

"Yes, we do have shuttle bus service to the ski area, but if they don't want to stay all day, they're landlocked. They don't have any choice."

Shaw asked Andrews how the communities paid for the transit systems.

Andrews shot back, "How do I know? I don't live there."

Andrews agreed with James about being frugal with tax dollars spent, but had some reservations, saying it was sometimes necessary for progress.

Shaw said for years, if a woman didn't want to go to the racetrack, she would drop her husband off, go to town and then come back when she was ready.

Andrews said she evidently had never been on the other side of a motel counter and listened to women gripe about no transportation.

Briley said the RFP writers stated the project would take 225 hours at $50 per hour or $11,750.

Before the end of the discussion, the council dropped the amount of the award by several thousand dollars less and limited the scope.

James said he just got back from Lubbock, Texas, and it costs thousands of dollars for that town to subsidize its transportation program.

"I agree it's larger," James said. "But in no way are we going to get out without subsidizing this mass transit. In all honesty, I don't see how we can afford it."

"We're saddling the city. This won't be out until 1993 anyway. We're going to saddle a new council with a debt that they might not be in agreement with."

Shaw asked Weber why he hadn't researched villages of similar sizes with transportation systems and reviewed them with the board.

"Like J.D., a lot of people tell me we have no business pursuing this," Shaw said. "I don't like the way the request was done. It's not the normal procedure."

"I hear the concerns of J.D. and Jerry," he said. "But I think we're talking about stopping the forward movement of a service that has been provided in the past."

"The fact is, we as taxpayers are spending a awful lot to attract tourists and retirees in this town. When I served on the chamber board of directors, one of the things retirees were thinking about when moving to new areas, is what kind of mass transit do you have. Do you have bus service. The answer is, no."

"We're spending tax dollars to invite retirees to advertise to move here, oh, by the way, we don't have any taxis, oh, by the way we don't have any busses."

James asked, "Do you know why we don't have any taxis?" They ...

Andrews cut James off.

"J.D., there's not a transportation in the world that makes it on its own. They all are subsidized. If we don't think we ought to be subsidizing something like this, let's don't provide it, but let's also quit advertising for retirees to move here. And why don't we cut back advertising for tourists while we're at it."

"When we went through the budget, Parks and Recreation was put on the back burner, which is our senior citizens. I sat here five years ago and fought and fought just to get a van so that we could go pick up senior citizens," Shaw said.

"Now you're saying we shouldn't advertise. That's right. Unless we improve that center. Unless we start doing something for our senior citizens, that's absolutely right. But we're going way above that. We're going to skip all that and go to a mass transit system. We need to start at the grass roots level."

Alonso said the seniors van is essentially the same type of mass transit system as that evaluated.

"There is no difference, between a mass transit system the way I understand we're going to evaluate, and one that exists already," he said. "In my thinking, we can eliminate the senior citizen's van and substitute it with the proposal that we're looking at. It's a dial-a-ride, it can provide the same service ... with general access."

Former Ruidoso police chief William Newman preface his remarks by saying he had the greatest respect for Weber, he then outlined what the study's budgeted $13,000 could accomplish used elsewhere. (See accompanying story.)

Alonso asked former Jolly Trolley operator Jerry Perry to share some of the comments they discussed over a cup of coffee earlier in the afternoon.

Perry contended the trolley that he operated in 1985-86 nearly was successful. He said it was supported in part by private businesses that advertised on the sides of the vehicle. It suffered financial problems for several reasons, including insurance costs. But Perry felt the trolley, if subsidized, could have been a success.

Ron Andrews made a motion to approve the amended proposal for less money and a more limited scope.

Duff seconded the motion.

Andrews, Duff and Councilor Bill Karn, making a rare appearance, voted, aye. Shaw and James vote, no. The motion carried.

Councilor Frank Cummins was absent. Alonso asked for the motion.

Former police chief weighs cost of dreams versus village operations

While some Ruidoso residents express concern of the high tax dollars a mass transit system will cost the village, former Ruidoso police chief William Newman thinks money for the study itself is not chicken feed.

Apparently, Newman thinks he can stretch study dollars in areas of better use, and offered some statistics to the council Tuesday.

He preface his remarks by stating he had the greatest respect for feasibility fan Dick Weber, but, "$13,000 dollars doesn't sound like much money when taken as a percentage of the total village budget."

"However, from experience I know that $13,000 represents approximately 35 percent of the discretionary funds available to the chief of police."

"It will buy a badly needed patrol vehicle or provide a year's worth of training for his employees."

"It will buy a vehicle for the water department."

"It will buy overtime for effective snow removal by employees of the street department."

In fact, there are any number of places that $13,000 can be put to use for the benefit of the citizens of Ruidoso.

"To spend that amount of money for a feasibility study for mass transit in a village of 4,500 in population is patently absurd."

"It could just as well be spent on a feasibility study for the need to air condition the Arctic."

"There is nothing wrong with dreams, but that is all a narrow gauge railroad, a regional airline and a bus system are at this time."

"In my view, the village is entering a period of unprecedented growth, and the best thing the village government can do is use its limited resources to provide basic services and a business environment that will allow that growth to take place."

"When we are large enough, and it is economically feasible, mass transit of all forms will come. And it will come from the private sector."

"In the meantime, first things first."

haps on the P&Z, they don't know what's in the Upper Canyon," said Rawlins.

"They don't know that we tell people about the campground up there and about the little shops that we have and the restaurants."

"And today I found out there are trails and I've been here 12 years. There are trails up there and people want to hike."

"Folks, that is a unique area of our town. And we pay lodgers tax to advertise this village."

"If anything is done to harm us, you've harmed the village."

James told Rawlins that it has been settled to Upper Canyon's benefit.

"I know," said Rawlins. "But I just had to get it off my chest."

As expected, reconstruction won out over rehabilitation for the widening of Highway 48, Mechem Drive, by the New Mexico State Highway Department.

Resolution 92-31, Highway 48, was approved for reconstruction, widening the highway at times from three lanes to five lanes.

There were several amendments added to the motion. They were to:

—Authorize staff to initiate the loan process for design and construction of waterline.

—Encourage the A plus B letting process that hurries a project with incentives.

—Be sensitive to the construction times regarding tourists and ski weather.

—Re-evaluate the widening of the road from Warrior Drive to Cedar Creek.

In other regular business Tuesday:

—Councilor J.D. James's motion passed to purchase three flag poles for the civic center.

The staff will look into cleaning up the buildings across from the post office at the owner's expense, or to bill the owner for a clean up.

—Village manager Ron Wicker explained that the current road topping witnessed on Hull, Paradise Canyon and Country Club Drive is a thin layer of asphalt to level the street until spring, when a new surface can be laid. It is a co-op project with the state.

—Comments were heard on the recording of the Ruidoso Pop Concert and regarding reporting, volunteer committees and running for public office.

—Patricia S. Ortiz was named village attorney by Mayor Victor Alonso at Tuesday's council meeting.

Ortiz is from Clovis and was last employed as the Children's Court Attorney in the Clovis Human Services Department.

From 1981-1991, Ortiz was Assistant District Attorney, State of New Mexico 11th Judicial District, Division 1.

bring back for the next board meeting a summary showing the different warranties for each type of roof, the advantages and disadvantages.

While the roof may be a big hit, "the outrageous cost here in Ruidoso is the earth work," Page said. "It's four to five times more than in most other areas."

In another matter, Lee Ann Garner, representing Nob Hill Elementary, and Gary Stamper from White Mountain Elementary reported on the extended day program at the two schools.

About 65 children are enrolled at Nob Hill, with an average of 45-50 staying after school each day.

The activities are educational, but disguised as pure fun, Garner said. "A few of the kids cry when their parents come to pick them up," she said. Tutoring assistance also is offered and field trips provide some variety.

Two state-certified staffers and three non-certified run the program, she said. An application has been submitted to the state to recoup the cost of snacks and supplies.

Stamper's program at White Mountain centers around 42 children and is growing, he said. First consideration went to low-income families (about 24 enrolled) with others signing up on a waiting list.

"We average about 35 a day and pull in 12 from the tutoring program for a short while before the end of the day," Stamper said.

White Mountain principal Frank Cannella said the program has met the needs of parents who can't afford quality day care.

In other business, the school board:

—was told that a committee headed by Gladden and Americans with Disabilities Act coordinator Paul Wirth will put in priority rankings the needs at each school site to meet the requirements of the Act. The corrections and time line for handling them must be identified by January 26.

"At present there is no federal money and this law is pretty expensive," Gladden said. "Even though it's a good law, the federal government has not provided money for corrections."

—approved a resolution calling for the election of two new board members on February 2 with polling to be conducted in the high school public meeting room. Also on the ballot will be a question asking voters to renew a special two mill property tax levy for 1993, 1994, and 1995. (One mill is equal to $1 for every $1,000 of net taxable property value after exemptions.)

To file for office, candidates must register from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., December 15. Write-in candidates have until December 29. Current board members whose seats will be open are Rod Adamson and Lynn Willard in districts 4 and 5.

—heard a report from Gladden that enrollment in the Ruidoso system failed to grow by the projected 5.5 percent.

"We have 88.5 more than last year for a total of 2,117.5 students, that's 24 short of the number projected (and a 4.36 percent increase)," Gladden said. "What that exactly means in dollars I don't know, because I'm unsure how much the state is going to reimburse the districts (per full-time student equivalent)."

The district may not know the exact amount until January or February, he said. But based on initial indications with weighting for special programs, the reimbursement figure would be $1,845 per unit, generating $6,792,679.

Henriette Wyeth Hurd celebrates 85th birthday

Henriette Wyeth will unveil her latest still-life this weekend in San Patricio.

Wyeth, a member of a world-famous family of artists, celebrated her 85th birthday last month at a surprise concert at the Hurd-La Rinconada Gallery in San Patricio.

The Roswell Symphony Orchestra sent a very special String Quartet to perform her favorite selections from Beethoven.

Wyeth's family and friends will gather this weekend at an invitation-only party where they'll see her latest work.

Henriette Wyeth, an award-winning contemporary painter, continues to produce outstanding works of art which are in great demand.

Wyeth is the widow of renowned southwestern artist Peter Hurd, the daughter of famous illustrator N.C. Wyeth and the sister of America's best-known artist Andrew Wyeth.

The family tradition continues. Henriette Wyeth is the mother of popular contemporary painter Michael Hurd, who lives and works on the family's Sentinel Ranch in San Patricio. Her daughter, Carol, also is an accomplished artist. She and her husband, artist Peter Rogers, live and work in San Patricio.

Wyeth's exhibits have included The Carnegie Institute, The National Institute of Chicago and the National Museum of Art. In addition to numerous portraits and still lifes in private collections, her work is on permanent exhibit in the Roswell Museum and Art Center, the Lubbock Museum of Art, the San Antonio Art Museum and the Brandywine River Museum.

Her work includes the portraits of Mrs. Richard Nixon, White House, 1979; and her brother, Andrew Wyeth, San Antonio Art Museum, 1986.

She is represented in many major private collections including those of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Helen Hayes MacArthur.

Wyeth's most recent painting, "October Sunflower" will be offered in a new limited edition print at the open house, and will then be available at the Hurd-La Rinconada Gallery by the polo field 20 miles east of Ruidoso on U.S. Highway 70.

Former scout leader enters guilty plea in drug case

A former Boy Scout leader from Ruidoso was sentenced Monday to serve one year in the Lincoln County Jail for distribution of a controlled substance.

Terry Van Ryan, 34, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced Monday in District Court by Judge Richard A. Parsons.

According to sheriff's reports, several local citizens testified in his behalf as character witnesses, including Councilor Barbara Duff. Ryan, at the time of his arrest, was Ruidoso's local Boy Scout leader.

The offense occurred in February of this year. Ryan was arrested when he sold to an undercover person, according to sheriff's officials.

What's in a name?

Mark A. Williams of Ruidoso has been taking a ribbing lately, and it is no longer a laughing matter.

About a month ago, the county drug net closed over many area residents, one named Mark Williams.

Both Mark A. and the other Mark are the same age, 32, and both have wives who have similar first names, Darlene and Dana. Dana is Mark A's wife. Both women are 29 years old.

Mark A. and Dana are family people, with a five-year-old son named Marcus. Mark A. cuts firewood for a living, and he says he doesn't need any bad comments about his character, because he hasn't done anything wrong.

And if you need any firewood this year, you can't do any better than dealing with Mark A., so call 257-5966 and place a big order.

Free film will be shown

"Zamperini: Still Carrying the Torch," a World Wide Pictures film, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday, November 15, at First Baptist Church in Ruidoso.

The movie tells the life story of Louis Zamperini — a nationally known high school track star, an Olympic runner, a World War II hero, a prisoner of war — whose greatest challenge took place in 1949, listening to a young evangelist, Billy Graham.

His life, before and after that encounter, is the subject of the film. See how Zamperini learns about forgiveness, salvation and the faithfulness of God's plan for his life, and how these things apply to your life.

Everyone is welcome to attend the free movie. An offering will be taken, with all proceeds going to the film ministry of the Billy Graham Evangelist Association.

Area artists invited to paint Christmas palette decorations

The Arts and Film Commission is seeking entries in its Christmas palette program. Last year's program resulted in 18 finished palettes by area artists.

Those 18 wooden disks, plus 18 new ones, will soon be mounted on brackets affixed to telephone poles along Sudderth Drive. The painted palettes will be mounted lower and inward this year, according to a news release.

This year's entries must be painted and returned by Thanksgiving. All area artists are invited to participate. Call 257-3131 or 257-9518 to enter or to learn more.

A red ribbon day

Ron Hemphill, president of Rotary and a Ruidoso School Board member, celebrates an award from Governor Bruce King with Kathy Echols, who heads the local Red Ribbon Drug Free Schools campaign of the Region IX Cooperative Center. Rotary sponsors the Red Ribbon campaign in Ruidoso. The award from King recognized the advisory Board.

RHS drama department unveils plans for season

The Ruidoso High School Drama Department will present its first production for the 1992-93 school year November 30 and December 1.

The two-act play, "The Late Great Me," is a story about alcoholism as it affects teenagers.

"This powerful play has been presented to high school audiences and community groups around the nation," reads a news release provided by the drama department.

"It has been praised by parents, teachers and administrators alike in terms of its information and its solutions offered."

The play, which will be performed in the drama room at RHS, is appropriate for anyone over age 13.

Reserved seating will be available, but space is limited. Drama students will be selling tickets, and they'll be sold at the door if there are any left.

Adult tickets are $3, and students are $2. Merchants have donated door prizes to be given away during both performances.

The drama department, led by teacher Linda Currin, consists of an advanced class of 19 students and a beginning class of 32 students.

The beginning class will be taking a children's production, "The Lion Who Lost His Roar," to the elementary schools on December 2.

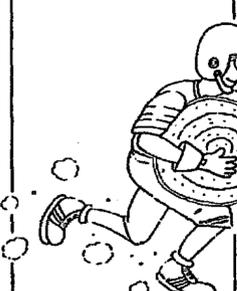

Both classes will be traveling to Portales in February for the Eastern New Mexico University Drama Festival, a three-day event. Ruidoso students will present a one-act play to an audience of about 600 high school students from Eastern New Mexico and West Texas.

"Drama fever is catching this year as the students sport new drama sweatshirts, surprise various community and school groups monthly, serve as secret pals for the Ruidoso Kiwanis and participate in a big brother/big sister program within the department," continues the news release.

In September the group conducted a community scavenger hunt for costumes and had great support from Ruidoso citizens.

The department also will be presenting a special assembly Wednesday, November 25.

RHS drama and its sponsor, Linda Currin, invite the public to see a play in '92-'93! For more information, call 258-4910, extension 239.

Boys run for state

Although the district championship got them into the state tournament, it will mean little to the Ruidoso Warrior boys cross country runners when the starter's gun pops at state.

The boys won their fourth district title in as many years on Saturday, but coach Ronny Maskew said state will be real tough competition this year. If the boys run well they may finish in the top five, but it will require a strong effort by the whole team.

The Warriors had four finishers in the top 10 of the district meet. Jeremie Livingston won first place, while Josh Norbury was fourth. Gilbert Kayitah earned fifth place and Faustino Miranda was eighth.

As a team, the Warriors defeated their next closest opponent by 30 points, which was quite an accomplishment, Maskew said.

In the girls division only Stephanie Haas will be continuing her season with a chance at state. Haas, a junior, put in one of her best performances of the year Saturday to earn third place. The team finished fifth.

The boys team has several young runners ready to live up to the expectations set by this group. The girls had no seniors and is also expecting an improvement for next year's season.

The top three teams and top 10 individuals from the district competitions will compete at state Saturday in Milne Stadium in Albuquerque.

Village hosts turkey shooters

Shoot it out with the best to win a turkey for Thanksgiving in the village's Basketball Turkey Shoot Saturday.

The competition will begin at 11 a.m. at White Mountain school gymnasium. Each team must consist of a child and an adult family member in age divisions. Each age division prize winner will receive a 10 pound turkey and each child will receive prizes for Thanksgiving. The entry fee is $3 per team.

The park department will also sponsor a self defense class from 8:30-10 a.m. on Saturday and November 21 at the Activity Center at Y-Knot Park. The instructor for the class will be Brett Maul, and the fee for the class is $5. The class is open to all adults and teenagers.

To sign up for either events or to get more information call Jeremie Wise at 257-5030.

Area teams stopped in districts

Area teams had little luck in advancing in the state play-offs this weekend and will have to set their sights on basketball.

The Hondo Eagles hosted Mountainair Saturday for a six-man semi-finals match. The Eagles had scrimmaged Mountainair before the season began but didn't learn enough of their game plan to stop them. Mountainair shut out the Eagles 48-0, and will now go on to play Ramah for the championship game. The two teams have met for the title for the past few years with Mountainair earning the title.

The Carrizozo Grizzlies were also defeated by Tatum, 30-6, in a class A semifinals match. State competition for class A will be this weekend. Championships for class AA will be November 27 and 28. Class AAA championships will be December 4 or 5 as will the class AAAA.

Holyfield-Bowe telecast here

Don't wait to see the highlights on the sports, watch the Evander Holyfield-Riddick Bowe battle Friday night at the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater.

The theater will telecast the fight live from The Mirage Hotel in Las Vegas. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. with the undercard at 7:30 p.m. The main event is at 9:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 per person and are available at the Sports Theater or Ruidoso Downs.

Silver spikers smash Lady Warriors' season

Even with a loss in the district game, the Lady Warrior volleyball team still had a good season, including a third place finish in one of the toughest districts in the state.

The netters faced Silver City here on November 5 for a chance in the district championship game against Deming. The Lady Warriors had defeated the Colts twice in the regular season, but they started out cold and couldn't set up an attack. The Colts came out hot, but kept their cool whenever they got down.

The Lady Warriors lost the first game by a devastating 2-15, but came back from it to win 15-10. Silver took the final two games 9-15 and 12-15, although the girls had tied up the last game before the Colts finished it off. The outstanding server for the game was Jeri Ann Keeton, while Mandy Parker and Monica Martinez were the outstanding hitters.

Coach Jody Blanton said the girls knew there was a lot of pressure on them, which made it extremely difficult to play. Silver, though, had two wins under its belt from games against Cobre and Oñate.

"Waiting to play a game is difficult. Silver was just ready to play, and they had the momentum," she said.

"We had a good group of seniors, and they worked extremely hard all season. This was just one of those games," she said.

The Lady Warriors had a winning season with a third place finish in the district and a state ranking for several weeks throughout the season. Blanton said she was proud of the girls and they made some pretty good accomplishments.

"We did have a good year and had a lot of positive things happen.

I think these girls are going out with a lot of pride," she said.

Blanton said she will also have a real good group of girls coming back next year. They are willing to put in the time in the summer to be competitive next season, she said.

Silver had served up Deming its only loss of the regular season but wasn't able to do it in post season Saturday. Deming won the match 15-12, 9-15, 15-5, 11-15 and 15-4. In the district 5AAA championship match number one ranked St. Pius defeated Santa Fe Capitol 15-4, 15-6 and 15-13. State competition will begin today in Roswell.

Football finale

Anthony Torres fields a kick in a football game against St. Pius earlier this season. Torres was the Warriors leading rusher with 311 yards and two TDs. Jaime Ordorica was the top receiver with nine catches for 149 yards.

Freshman Jose Prieto follows a blocker to gain a first down while a tackler tags along behind him. The freshman team ended its season with only three losses, and several freshmen also earned experience on the varsity team at the end of the season.

Downs residents face increased rates to pay for repairs

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs residents may be facing higher water and sewer rates next year for a required repair fund for the systems.

"We need to do this or our water and sewer systems will go down the drain," Mayor Joe Hayhurst said.

Downs trustees agreed Monday night to have the new rates published before a public hearing at the next meeting on November 23.

The village's current minimum water rate is $11.50 for 4,000 gallons of water, but they will suggest a $3 increase the first year and $1 per year for the next three years, based on the 590 water connections now in use. If enacted the rate increase would begin January 1993.

Hayhurst said the village was supposed to set aside $1.50 per customer each month for a repair and maintenance fund since 1989 as a requirement by G.E. Capitol, which bought the village's Farmer's Home Administration loan on the water system then. He said the amount has never been set aside in that time. Because the village has never started a fund, he said G.E. Capitol could force the village to repay the loan in full at any time.

The village received the loan in 1975 for revenue bonds to put in water lines and has about $40,000 left to pay on it. The last rate increase for water was in 1991, but Ruidoso Downs is still one of the lowest in the area, village clerk Leann Weibrecht said. She said Agua Fria residents already pay $16.50 as a minimum charge.

She said in the past the village had used certificates of deposit and money market funds to serve as the reserve fund, but G.E. Capitol wants a separate account.

The sewer rates for the village are now at $6 for 4,000 gallons of water. The rate will increase to $8 the first year and then $1 more each year for the next three years, under this proposal. The last sewer rate increase was in 1982, according to Weibrecht.

Hayhurst said they need the increase in the sewer rates to have funds to make repairs and upgrade the regional treatment plant. The Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs plant is going to cost about $5 million to repair, with Ruidoso Downs paying about 9 percent of that based on its use of it.

Trustees Ray Hayhurst asked if it would be possible to make the sewer billing independent of water use to encourage more people to water their lawns during the summer. Weibrecht said it would take a new computer system or they would have to calculate each meter by hand, both of which would cost more money.

Weibrecht said the rate increase for both systems had been discussed by past boards but had not been enacted. With the approval for publication of the rate increases a public hearing will also be scheduled for residents to voice their opinions on it before the trustees make a decision.

The trustees also approved the removal of almost 60 uncollectible utility accounts from the accounts receivable list from the last few years. Some of the people are deceased, while others are renters who are no longer living here. Weibrecht said they will keep the list on file so if any of the people come in to open another account, they won't be able to until they pay the old account.

Although these accounts have already been taken off the list by the auditors, the trustees gave approval for Weibrecht to take them out of the computer, as a clean-up procedure.

In other business a request for a sign permit for Pappy's Diner on Highway 70 was tabled. Mayor Hayhurst said the village attorney, J. Robert Beauvais, had advised that owner Pappy Bell needs to get approval from the state highway department before the village can make a decision.

Village employees will no longer be allowed to cash in vacation time for pay with the deletion of that clause from the employees' manual. Hayhurst said it is easy for workers to get burn-out on the job, especially without taking a vacation. Paying for vacation is also like giving a raise, and the budget wouldn't be able to handle that, he said.

The manual does say employees must take their two-weeks vacation before their anniversary date, unless an emergency comes up so the person can not take it at that time.

Promotions OK'd for the village were David Hightower to sergeant and Dana Terlecky to corporal in the police department and David Weibrecht to assistant foreman in the maintenance department. Police chief Will Hoggard also received approval to hire Ray Montes as police officer, Chris Condon as dispatcher and Gary Blosser and Gregg Kotila as part-time dispatcher.

As an addition to the agenda the board also granted a variance on an ordinance concerning mobile homes. The home was more than 10 years old but because it was in good condition the group decided it could be moved into village limits. This is the second request in as many meetings, and the trustees agree that if the home looks nice it is good to have people moving into the village.

The village is planning to crack down on some of its other ordinances concerning nuisances, such as old cars and appliances abandoned in yards. Several trustees have gotten calls from residents demanding something be done about cleaning up the village.

Mayor Hayhurst said people may be cited for non-compliance of the ordinance and taken to municipal court. A person would then have a certain number of days to clean up before being fined $300 a day, he said.

Chief Hoggard said the cars placed on blocks are dangerous and so are the refrigerators that children could get trapped in. He said the police will back up code enforcement officer Tommie Armstrong in any way he needs.

Armstrong will begin the written process necessary to have these properties cleaned-up immediately.

The world of animal control is a lot more than catching dogs

Animal control is more than catching dogs and Ruidoso Downs officer Tommie Armstrong is well aware of that after attending a school in Albuquerque in October.

Armstrong reported on the school to trustees Monday night and thanked them for allowing him to go. He said the session was very informative, and he learned many things that will help him with his job.

Most of the school was dealing with the image of the officer.

Armstrong said they are no longer called dog catchers, but animal control officers, because they do more than deal with dogs. They also talked about how to get in touch with the people in a community.

He said it was also good to meet other officers in the state to see what they have to do.

Armstrong said they also discussed how to set up ordinances and what new equipment is available for officers to catch animals. Another important aspect is that with the environment of animals and people mixing, diseases can be a problem.

He said this county is ranked fourth in the state for rabies and animal plagues, while Chaves County is ranked third, so they have to be prepared for problems.

Officers also took a certification test, but Armstrong has not heard how he did.

Mayor Joe Hayhurst said he has gotten many calls from residents complimenting Armstrong on doing a good job. He said he and the trustees echo the comments and appreciate his hard work.

In his monthly report for October, Armstrong handled five dogs, five cats and six skunks and issued three warnings.

In other monthly departmental reports the fire department responded to just one call in October for an extrication. The department did have its election on October 31, and voted to keep Humberto Maldonado on as chief. Mike Walters is the assistant chief and Nick Herrera is the captain. David Weibrecht will serve as the lieutenant.

The maintenance department has got the water system back at 100 percent capacity and has installed insulation and heaters at the pump stations for the winter. The Wood Lane project has been completed, and they have graded other unpaved roads. The mechanics have also been busy winterizing vehicles and equipment.

The police department reported one driving under the influence arrest, five felony arrests, one assault-battery, two detoxifications, one misdemeanor arrest and two juvenile arrests. They also assisted the county with two calls, the state police with three and Ruidoso police with nine.

The municipal court has collected $746 in fines and $487 in corrections for the month of October.

The trustees approved all of the monthly reports before going into regular business.

Ruidoso Downs police officers earning promotions recently are Sergeant David Hightower, Corporal Dana Terlecky, Senior C.D.O. Cyndi Miller and one in maintenance Monday.

Capitan

Ron Becker explores the world of the gifted

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

He stands in front of the sixth grade class and delivers a pep talk reminiscent of a coach firing up a team to go out there and win.

If the approach looks familiar, it's for good reason.

Ron Becker grew up in athletics and posted consecutive winning seasons as a basketball coach in Carrizozo.

Becker has been hired by the Capitan school administration to pump up the district's gifted program as its first full time teacher.

If a willingness to dedicate the time to research existing programs and information, a positive attitude and the ambition to create the best program in the state mean anything, Capitan's gifted program will shine under Becker's hand.

"The first gifted programs were athletics and I've been involved in that all of my life," he said. "This is my first work with gifted academic athletes, but the mechanism is similar, being challenged, being given the opportunity to challenge themselves and learning how to do their best."

The students also will benefit from Becker's perspective on life, one honed by years of working to win with young people and more recently, by battling cancer.

"Unfortunately, adversity is what changes us, makes us a better person," Becker said. "Things were good before, now they're terrific, being able to get through that (illness) as a family."

"I'm trying to communicate what's really important."

Mention Becker and most people in Lincoln County show instant recognition. But for the uninitiated, Becker's credentials are impressive, both in sports and academics.

An honor student, he was given a full scholarship to play basketball at the University of New Mexico, his choice from among the 30 or more schools that tried to recruit him when he graduated from Goddard High School.

"I was fortunate to be there when they had some terrific teams," Becker said. "We were ranked as high as third in the country. They started televising the games all over the state. The interest was really high and, because I played all the time, I received ex-posure to the public." Becker was named Academic All-American three consecutive years.

"I'm very proud of that," he said. "It meant I could do both (academics and athletics)."

"Athletes are students first and I have treated them that way (as a coach). Athletics should come after family, religion and academics, but somewhere before dating, clothes and a fast truck."

Becker coached for nine years in Carrizozo, where he served as athletic director, volleyball coach, basketball coach and golf coach.

"We were successful in all of them, but the basketball record was really good," Becker said.

During the 1985-86 school year, Becker was diagnosed with cancer. "I was very sick, but I continued to teach between chemotherapy and radiation therapy."

While in his hospital bed, Becker would map out the team's strategy and deliver it to the players after a treatment session.

"Two players really took over and handled the team while I was away," Becker said. "Kenneth Crenshaw and James Guevara helped lead the team. The kids ran the practice from the game plan. I'd come back with no hair. They had to win the last three games of the season. They used to rub my bald head for good luck. The last game they won in triple over-time to advance on."

That year Carrizozo went to the state contest for the first time in 45 years. It wasn't the last under Becker's tutelage.

The last three years of his association with Carrizozo, the team posted records of 21-4, 26-2 and 23-2. The boys finished as runner-up for state champ in 1990-91, losing in the last seven seconds by a score of 50-48.

"And I had no kid over five-feet, eleven-inches," Becker said.

"It's still a real emotional thing because I'm glad to be here and can't really hide it," he said with eyes moistening. "My wife, Gretchen (a special education teacher at Ruidoso Middle School), was really supportive. I have two great children, Katherine, who's in second and Forrest, who's in first. He was conceived when the doctor said we couldn't have any children."

After he was hired by Capitan, Becker said he used the summer to read everything he could find on giftedness. He talked to other school districts about their programs.

"Capitan had run a gifted program at the elementary level before, but the administration had decided it wanted a full time program," Becker said. He talked to every teacher in the system, met with students previously identified as gifted and with some parents.

"I wanted to learn their interests, their family backgrounds and to find out what the parents wanted to see in this program," Becker said. "I'm still in the process of putting everything together."

Part of the program that already has been initiated is to accelerate students in their strongest academic subjects.

"It's not acceleration by grade, but for students who are mature enough to be moved, let's say from fifth grade math to seventh or eighth grade math or science," Becker said. "Some are ready for acceleration and some are not. It's not written in stone. If they try and the parents don't like it, they can revert. To date, the students love it. Not one has asked to go back."

One of the advantages of working in a small school system is that the teachers can confer easily and are flexible in being able to work out a schedule for students to move back and forth between classes.

"It's no problem at the high school level (since they change rooms and teachers with each subject period), but it takes a bit more coordination at the elementary level," Becker said.

He currently supervises 20 gifted students and another just was identified, with about an even split between the elementary level and junior-senior high school. Several more have been referred for testing.

To be eligible for the gifted program, a student must attain a designated cognitive score in overall testing by a trained diagnostician, plus they must excel in at least one subject area.

"We have kids who qualify in all of them," Becker said, noting that Capitan exceeds the national average of 3 percent of enrollment being gifted.

Becker preferred not to specify intelligence quotient score requirements, because the students are not told their scores and that approach is preferred nationally.

The areas tested include mathematics, science, social studies, reading, critical thinking and creative thinking.

Becker pulls small groups of students out of their regular class schedule three days a week for elementary gifted students and two days a week for high school.

"I have to be careful pulling out older students in regular class periods, because the teachers don't want to lose them (in the flow of a lesson)," he said. "But most are in physical education and (teacher) Pam Allen has helped prevent taking them out of academic classes, but that may not always work, especially in cases of field trips where a student may miss several classes. I just let the teacher know in advance."

He has designed on-going programs in archaeology and other disciplines that include classroom work under his guidance, as well as guest lecturers, field work and associations one-on-one with mentors (or coaches). The mentors work in fields favored by the students such as medicine, care of the disabled and horse training.

For the archaeology section, Becker created plots of soil seeded with artifacts. Students had to grid the plots, come up with a method of recording where they found the artifacts and the proper procedure for removal.

They studied archaeological terminology; measured, categorized, numbered, described, sketched and stored each artifact and in some cases attempted to reassemble them; and drew some conclusions about the life of the inhabitants.

They took a field trip to the Fort Stanton area to examine petroglyphs and to hear from professional archaeologist Linda Hart about the people who created them.

That section will continue throughout the year with more visits to local archaeological sites.

Another thrust for all children in the system is an enrichment program, Becker said.

"It takes many forms," he said. "I may go in and work with the fourth grade class on a project.

"I was in Albuquerque on other business and knew the fourth graders were studying dinosaurs," he said. "I went into the Museum of Natural History with my video camera and recorded the section on dinosaurs to bring back to them."

The morning of the interview, Becker had delivered the results of a quiz to a sixth grade class that had viewed material he had assembled on Alaska.

Other parts of the program are the development of support groups for the students (girls and boys separately and mixed) and for the parents; exposing students to college entrance examinations in their early high school years; concurrent enrollment in college, long-distance learning by satellite and advanced placement.

"What I really want to do is listen to my kids," he said. "The kids will tell the teacher what they need, if the teacher listens and I can do it because I'm not working with 100 kids, only a few a day."

The district has allowed him the flexibility of taking the best from other school systems and molding it to suit Capitan's situation.

"The school district has made a commitment to meet the needs of gifted children as they grow up in the program," Becker said. "It's important to keep them challenged, so they don't get bored and we don't lose them. In doing that, you have to take risks, jump out on a limb. If it breaks, you just go to another limb. It doesn't scare me to fail. The worse thing is that by the end of the year, I have to put it all in a written curriculum."

Despite that looming requirement, Becker said he relishes his new job.

"It's terrific. I love coming here to work each day," he said.

"The most important thing in developing giftedness is the child's environment. They need one that allows exploration and questioning, where the parents are really involved with the child. Television and Nintendo are no substitute for a parent. That environment helps bring out the best in a child. The parents develop that giftedness and it's the school's responsibility to help it grow."

Ron Becker, the new full time teacher for the gifted program in Capitan, takes a breather at his desk.

Around Town

Christmas shopping will start this weekend in Capitan.

The Holly Holiday bazaar of the Hand Maidens, an inter-denominational Christian women's group, will open at 10 a.m. today (Thursday) and run through 4 p.m. Sunday in the basement of the Capitan community Methodist church.

Nina Ross, president of the Hand Maidens, said the charge for artisans and hand-crafters to participate will be one-fourth of their sales, which will be used to help needy persons and families in the community.

Each day, the bazaar will open at 10 a.m. and close at 4 p.m. Baked goods will be on sale Friday and Saturday only.

Persons interested in putting their handiwork up for sale, can bring the items any time from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"We felt this was a way for residents to help those locally who are in need while also giving people a chance to do some Christmas shopping," Mrs. Ross said. The Hand Maidens group was formed last February.

The Capitan School Board meeting set for tonight has been canceled to allow board members and residents to attend the state volleyball tournament in Roswell.

The meeting has been rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, November 19, in the school complex library.

The undefeated Capitan Tiger netters won the regional contest last weekend and will play Thursday to earn the right to advance to the semi-finals Friday and final competition Saturday.

Capitan seniors named to the A honor roll this past nine weeks are Tammy Payne, Clint Tate, Kyle Traylor, Stacey Wall, Celeste Wilson and Robert Witham.

Juniors Alma Lively, sophomore Amy Cline, freshmen Kaylee Tejeda, Meaghan Vinson and Jaylen Ware, and eighth graders Joni Autrey, B.J. Montoya and Diamond Ward also earned all As.

Tiger netters head for state finals

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

They've been hot since the beginning of the season, but for the last few weeks, the Capitan Tiger netters have been burning up the volleyball courts of competitors.

And now the undefeated team players are on their way to Roswell and the state championship.

The Tigers took the district title against the Loving Falcons in front of a cheering home crowd in three straight games two weeks ago with scores of 15-3, 16-14, 15-9.

Coach Pam Allen was named All-District Coach of the Year. Players Tydie Traylor, Stacey Gowen, Tammy Payne, Pam Pacheco and Kelly Cox earned All-District plaques for their spectacular performances in this undefeated season.

Last weekend, the Tigers stomped Vaughn in three games and Fort Sumner in three games to win the regional championship.

"The girls played well," Allen said, in her usual modest understatement. With scores of 15-3, 15-6 and 15-0 against Vaughn and 15-3, 15-4 and 15-7 against Fort Sumner, the girls were playing spectacularly.

"They played real consistently," Allen said. "They maintained their concentration and focus and held that intensity."

"Our serving game dramatically improved. We're playing, obviously, awfully well. I'm looking forward to getting on the bus to Roswell."

Allen was cautiously optimistic about the state contest in Roswell.

"The girls will be playing some people at state who are highly competitive," she said.

Capitan is scheduled to play Cimarron at 7:45 p.m. in Roswell High School's main gymnasium today (Thursday).

"We expect to beat Cimarron and go on to play the winner in the semi-finals Friday night (at Roswell high school)," Allen said.

The third place team will be decided in a match at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Goddard High School.

The two teams vying for the state championship will clash at 6 p.m. Saturday at Goddard.

The other teams pitted in the first round of matches are Roy against Fort Sumner, Dora versus Magdalena, and on Capitan's side of the bracket, Quemado against Texico.

"Roy has been consistently tough," Allen said. "They won the district and regional title (in their division). Texico and Dora have been battling for weeks. Texico beat Dora in the district and then Dora turned around and beat Texico in the regional. Quemado won both district and regional over Magdalena."

Whatever the outcome of this weekend's tournament, Allen, a Capitan graduate who returned to teach in 1987, said of her team members: "I've been coaching volleyball it seems ever since God made dirt. We're playing the best I've ever seen. We may not have the individual physical athletes, but these kids are doing a lot more as a team. They like each other. They're great girls."

Trustees prepare for collective bargaining

In a tradition established by Mayor Frank Warth, the Capitan Board of Trustees meeting Monday was short and to the point.

The main topic of discussion was preparation for collection bargaining and for compliance with provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act as they relate to personnel and jobs.

Warth said proposed revisions will be submitted to the board for review.

After an executive session on personnel, the board reconvened and accepted the resignation of Rudy Saiz as police officer.

Saiz joined the city police department and then attended the police academy. He has been hired by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Applications for the position he will leave, vacant in Capitan will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. November 30 at city hall. Interviews will be scheduled with a narrowed list of applicants.

Dancers gather for veterans pow-wow

Eagle Plume Pow-wow, honoring all veterans past and present, will draw dancers, musicians and artists to the Mescalero Community Center this weekend.

The Veterans Pow-wow is planned for Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14, in the community center just off U.S. Highway 70 in Mescalero.

Families are especially invited to see the traditional dancing. Cameras and camcorders are also allowed.

The festivities begin at 6 p.m. Friday with the gourd dance, followed by the grand entry at 7 p.m.

On Saturday, dancing will begin at 2 p.m. with the gourd dance. Dancers will break for supper from 4 to 6 p.m. before the 7 p.m. grand entry. Dancing will continue until midnight.

Host drums are "MGM" of Apache, Oklahoma, and "Greyhorse" of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Head man dancer will be red-cloud Anque, a member of the Kiowa tribe, and head lady dancer will be Helen Little of San Domingo.

Head boy dancer is Pasquel En-jady a member of the Mescalero Apache Tribe and head girl dancer is Tasha Little, a Pueblo Indian from Mescalero.

Arts and crafts will be exhibited for sale and concessions will be available throughout the pow-wow.

For more information contact Buffy Shanta or Fred Kaydahzinne at 671-4494.

Hondo students, parents attend RLT production

More than 35 junior high and high school English, drama and speech students from Hondo attended Ruidoso Little Theatre's production of "Steel Magnolias."

According to a news release, parents and students participated and enjoyed the evening. This project, started last year by instructors

Cheryl Bowman and Ray Sharbutt, was such a hit that once again a large group from the community decided to attend.

Both teachers agreed that this project offers a unique opportunity to take advantage of local talent and give students a chance to view live drama and experience the audience/cast relationship.

This kind of love of drama and writing is encouraged, according to the instructors.

Two Hondo students, Robin Smith and Elena Cruz, have had articles published in the national publication, "High School Writer," within the last six months.

Planning for the Season

The Silver Lining

Veterans commemorate their special day

Veterans Honored at Care Center

At mid-morning on Saturday, November 7, a group of local veterans held a little honorary ceremony — a few days before Veteran's Day — for veterans at Ruidoso Care Center.

Local veterans who gave the honors were Julius Fitzner, Doug Houseton, Jack Webber, Victor Jaramillo and Romeo Klein.

Veterans at the Care Center were Ole Raymond, Jake Salas, Hoyt Fellers, Jake Williams, Gilbert Prins and Pete Valdez, all in wheelchairs.

The Colors were posted, and then three veterans marched in with rifles on shoulder. Then Romeo Klein gave the command to post arms, then present arms.

Then all present sang "The Star Spangled Banner" accompanied at the piano by Carmen Bolin, activities director for the center.

Then all recited the Pledge of Allegiance. And Jack Webber gave the Veteran's Day prayer of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Romeo Klein gave a talk about the origin of Veterans Day, how the day was originally called Armistice Day — November 11, 1918, marking the end of World War I.

The veterans at the care center and the staff and all residents expressed their appreciation for this kindly and patriotic recognition during the season of Veterans Day. We all join in thanking our local veterans for remembering their comrades at the care center.

I was unable to attend the ceremony, but I went up later and met the veterans at the care center. I was guided to their rooms by Victor Delgado and Danielle Adams.

Pete Valdez was in a fine joking humor saying he was a "dog face" on Okinawa during World War II. Pete is a Mesalero Apache, born on the reservation.

Hoyt Fellers is a veteran of World War II. My lifelong friend, Jake Salas of Ruidoso Downs is a veteran of World War II.

Ole Raymond was a member of the 90th Infantry, the Texas and Oklahoma division, in World War II. He was cheerful and very appreciative of the remembrance ceremony earlier in the day.

Gilbert Prins, a Mesalero Apache Indian, is a veteran of the Korean conflict.

All the veterans expressed appreciation for the excellent care at the center. It was a very rewarding experience to visit with the veterans at the center; and the center deserves the thanks of all of us.

Marvyn "Mickey" McGuire

This is being sent to you in mid afternoon of November 8; and at this writing, services are planned for Marvyn McGuire, affectionately known to his hosts of friends as Mickey, at the First Christian Church.

I plan to attend the services, and will send you something about them later; meanwhile I would like to send you a little sketch about our beloved Mickey.

He was born in Hope, New Mexico, May 29, 1927, to Ottilie and A.B. McGuire; and was raised on the ranch of his grandfather Austin Reeves — halfway between Hope and Mayhill on the Penasco.

As a young cowboy, he was given the nickname which he carried all his life, "Mickey." He attended Artesia High School and graduated from Eastern New Mexico University.

I used to call him "The Penasco Valley Kid" and he would break into his famous million dollar smile when I would address him this way. He always said the Penasco country held a fond spot in his memory.

There is somehow a destiny in his birthplace, for he truly inspired true hope and faith in his students during his 35 years in his chosen mission in life.

On August 20, 1950, Mickey's star of good fortune shone down upon him brightly when he was married to the former Ruth Ford. They have three children, Melanie, Joe Bob and Reeves Jr. Mickey was a devoted husband and father, and a true Christian gentleman. He will ever hold a fond spot in our hearts and we rejoice that our dear friend has been welcomed into Heaven by our Lord, and by loved ones who have gone before.

Veteran Day

The first world war began when we lived in Juneau, Alaska, and continued when we moved to Ashland, Oregon. Somehow I thought the war would last forever; therefore it was a surprise, almost a shock, when at the age of nine I heard the great whistles blowing down at the railroad yards, and our mother came to the door with tears of joy in her blue eyes calling out to the neighborhood; "The war is over. The war is over."

Boys from all over the neighborhood came running with shovels to "The Triangle," the vacant lot in front of the house. We began covering up the play-like trenches where we played at war.

Soon the words of the old World War I song began coming true:

"Keep the home fires burning
While your hearts are yearning
Though the lads are far away,
The dream of home.

"There's a silver lining
Behind each dark cloud shining
Turn the dark clouds inside out,
Till the boys come home."

Veterans Programs

At this writing, November 8, ceremonies of raising the flag are planned at the Legion Hall in Ruidoso Downs. Later the veterans will go up to the Ruidoso Woman's Club.

Let us be thankful that our nation is at peace and let us say a prayer of thanks to God for the veterans of all our wars. And let us hope the Lord will hasten the day when the world will "study war no more" as the song goes.

Let us thank the Lord for all our blessings.

Rotary student

Stacy Wozny is the Ruidoso Rotary Club student of the month for September. She is the daughter of Cheryl and David Wozny, and was nominated by her teachers for leadership in and out of the classroom and for academic achievement. She is also involved with the Ruidoso High School Band.

Native American students

Tree Escalanti and Edward Blake are chosen as the Native American Students of the Month. Tree is the daughter of Laura and Doyle Escalanti and Edward is the son of Mabel Blake. The students were selected through the Native American liaison department.

HAMBURGER KING

Dear Ruidoso,
Sierra Blanca is starting to put on its winter cap, and we are starting to put on our winter menu...which is really not much different from our summer menu. We do try to keep a little more beef stew and chili on hand for these cold days, and we notice that the hot chocolate and cider become more popular. We also sell tamales in the winter. Now, if you are wondering what a hamburger joint is doing with tamales...well, you probably have guessed it. I like tamales. And these are good ones. We serve them three to an order, smothered in chili, onion, and cheddar cheese. It makes for quite a plate full. Add a few tostada chips and a jalapeno pepper, and you have a real New Mexico feast. It will fill you up, warm you up, and yeah, it might give you heartburn, but that is a small price to pay for something this tasty.

If you get to wishing for something warm and spicy, come try our tamales and chili. I think you will like it. And I'll give you an Alka-Seltzer gratis if you need it.

Sincerely,
CLIFF MACSAS

Eyes on the crown

Miss New Mexico USA pageant contestants shopped and dined throughout Ruidoso Tuesday. The 29 New Mexico beauties are pictured in front of Cattle Baron and then being directed onto the bus provided by Herring Distributors of Roswell. Tuesday night's competition included a dance contest and costumes which varied from cowboys to Indians to potash miners (at left). Miss New Mexico USA will be crowned in a show and pageant which begins at 8 p.m. Saturday, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Lincoln featured in "The Sophisticated Traveler"

It's right there, a four-page story with color photographs sandwiched between features on ancient Anatolia and churches in Wales.

The settlement of Lincoln, the town of Fort Sumner and the Billy the Kid Gang have arrived. They've been showcased in The Sophisticated Traveler, The New York Times Magazine, published each Sunday.

The magazine reaches an estimated 1.6-million readers.

When they first heard the New York Times was interested in some information about the old stomping grounds of Billy the Kid, Joe and Maryln Bowlin were excited.

"We expected just a small story and look what they did," a proud Bowlin said earlier this week. He and his wife founded the Billy the Kid Outlaw Gang and operate a museum in Fort Sumner that focuses on the Kid and the wild heritage of New Mexico. They also maintain a home in Ruidoso, where the Gang annually stages the Stinking Springs Stew cook-off during its reunion.

"It was on a Tuesday about two months ago that we met the picture editor, Sarah Harbutt, and her crew," Bowlin said. "(Rancher) C.W. Grissom was going to brand on the following Tuesday, but we did about 40 head for them to see on Friday. The writer, N. Scott Momaday interviewed us about the Gang."

The result was a story entitled, "New Mexico: Passage Into Legend." It hinges on the author's personal recollections of childhood visits to the area, descriptions of the countryside and details about the Lincoln County War and the Kid.

Harbutt was quartered at The Little House on the Prairie, a bed and breakfast on the Grissom ranch, a spot on the wind-swept prairie a few miles outside of Fort Sumner near Taiban. The stark but attractively renovated structure offers a comfortable and relaxing glimpse into ranch life, which was anything but comfortable and relaxing in the 1880s.

"She stayed about two day," Bowlin said.

The Gang received special notice in the story with a highlighted box detailing how to join and what activities are scheduled each year.

"It's just fantastic," Bowlin said.

Knights of Columbus encourages mailers to use Madonna stamp

Purchase of the traditional postage stamp for Christmas was encouraged by a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the Father Eugene Dolan Council #6597 of the Knights of Columbus, at St. Eleanor Church in Ruidoso.

"There has been recent criticism of the Christmas stamp, particularly in atheistic circles," Grand Knight Robert Nys said.

He also said that in recent years the contemporary stamp has outsold the traditional Madonna stamp. There is a possibility that the Madonna stamp will be discontinued in the future if sales continue to decline.

"We urge all of our citizens to purchase and use the traditional stamp for all holiday correspondence," Nys said. "It's another way that we can help keep Christ in Christmas."

The stamp this year features "Madonna and Child" by Bellini (circa 1490) which hangs in the National Gallery of Art. The stamp went on sale nationwide on October 22.

EDC continues fundraising

Progress on a long-term fundraising campaign is on the agenda again for the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County meeting tonight.

The directors will meet at 7 p.m. tonight at the Stroud Building for the regular October board meeting. President Ronnie Paulger will present the report on the fundraising campaign, which will ask for long-term financial commitments from the businesses that join the EDCLC. The group has been discussing the campaign since the beginning of the year and had at one time anticipated kicking it off in April.

Executive director Karen Kopp will also report on prospect activity for the month and the Southwest Public Service Business Quarter prospect procedure. Quarter officials had told Kopp that they would prospect businesses visited on a trip to California until they could not offer any more assistance, and then turn those over to the individual communities. At the last EDCLC meeting the directors did not like that procedure, and Kopp said she would talk to the Business Quarter about it.

The directors will also review minutes and a financial statement from the September board meeting.

Reading skills suffer from fast-paced family lifestyles

Grandmothers volunteer to help

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

As more and more mothers trek to work each morning and come home tired each night, the amount of time they're able to spend with their children shrinks.

Often that means children don't have a chance to read with their parents. In other families, reading never has been a priority.

Yet, the ability to read and comprehend, even in the age of computers, is vital to advancement in school and in most careers.

At White Mountain Elementary, a group of volunteers is filling the void.

Some are mothers, but most are grandmothers, even a great-grandmother. A few worked during their middle years, one is a retired educator, but many were homemakers.

They have discovered that reaching out to help children at this stage of their lives delivers a huge emotional reward personally and to the students.

But many more volunteers are needed to ensure that all children receive some of that special one-to-one attention.

A SECOND CHANCE

"I didn't have a chance to work with my children when they were small," said Winnie Wingfield. "I missed out on so much with our own kids. I didn't know I could go to school and help. I don't think it was done as much then."

"I started with my granddaughter and I love it."

She started helping with her granddaughter, Crystal, three years ago when the child was in first grade.

"I think the children need the one-to-one attention," she said. "You get very attached to them. Some of them call me 'gramma.'"

The children who are called out into the hall to work with Mrs. Wingfield feel special in a positive way. One little boy who had been involved in another program stopped her after school to tell her that now he would have time for her to work with him.

Wingfield helps mostly with the third grade class of Pat Mulholland about three days a week, but some of the other volunteers are only able to spare an hour or two a week. Any help is appreciated, said White Mountain Elementary principal Frank Cannella.

Mulholland said Wingfield helps her students learn vocabulary and improve their reading skills.

"She's wonderful," the teacher said of the volunteer. "I don't know what I would have done without her. I have 24 children and she gets to each and everyone of them. She stays to hear their (vocabulary) words."

FAMILY AFFAIR

The mother-daughter team of Nelma Beck, 73, and Frances Powell, 53, helps Cathy Weems with her third grade class.

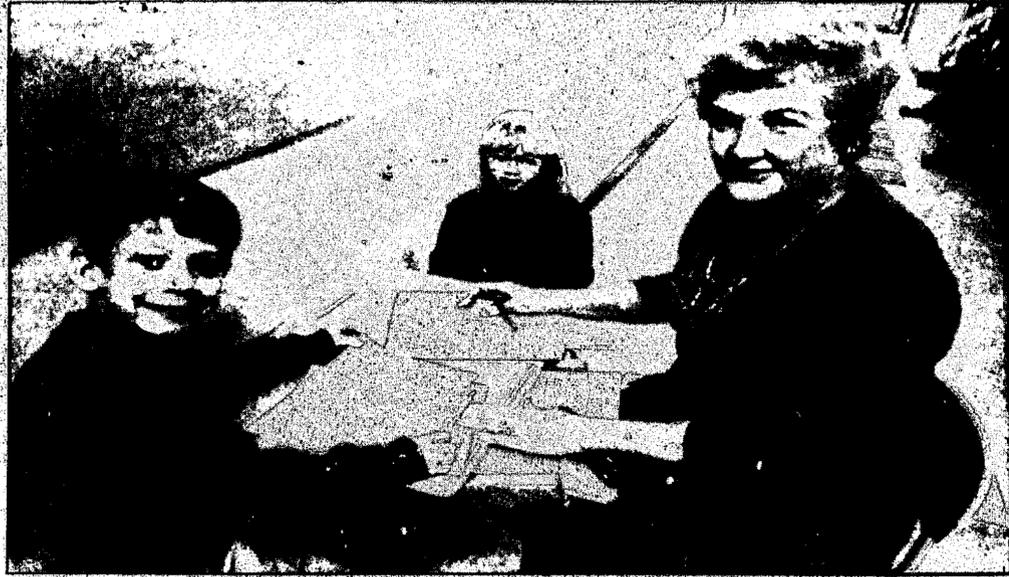

Mrs. Beck established the tradition.

"I was a room mother all 12 years and so was my mother," Mrs. Powell said. But neither had been involved as volunteers with reading or other programs until the Powells attended an open house "and they wanted volunteers," Mrs. Powell said. "My husband and I volunteered to be chaperones on field trips."

It didn't take long before her mother also became involved.

"None of us worked outside the home, so we all had the time to read to our children. We valued reading a lot," Mrs. Beck said.

"It seems like they like grandmothers," Mrs. Powell said. "I guess they think we're different."

Volunteer Winnie Wingfield works on days a week, helping children improve their reading and verbal skills, as well as making them feel special. In turn, she receives emotional rewards.

"And I guess we know how to handle them," Mrs. Beck added.

Many of the children are trying to pile up reading minutes for the One Hundred Minute Club.

"Some don't get their 20 minutes at home and this (reading) is to help them," Mrs. Powell said.

They work with slow readers, average readers and good readers. It doesn't make any difference.

"I really enjoy the little kids reading to me," Mrs. Beck said. "It makes my day."

PERSONAL TOUCH

"It can really make a difference," said Cindy Carey, president of the parents' council and a volunteer herself. "Some just need a little extra push, something that shows you care."

"Some don't get the reading time at home so they miss out on the Pizza Hut program (which rewards classes with free pizza binges for attaining reading goals)."

Weems said she's fortunate because she has 10 people who volunteer.

"There are grandmothers and six parents. The grandmother and great-grandmother read with the kids," Weems said.

"A couple are ex-teachers and are doing more specific enrichment programs such as advanced reading."

"I try to use them in their areas of interest and according to their backgrounds. One mother grades papers, another helps kids who bomb out on a test or who are absent and need one-on-one help."

"That one-on-one extends the teacher. I know there are other teachers in the district (at other schools) who would love the help."

TEACHERS BENEFIT

Weems said she also has been learning from Trink Edmonds, a former principal and curriculum director, who's started a literature program with her students.

"She's teaching me some things about writing skills," Weems said. "And she's setting up pen pals back in New York for the students."

Edmonds retired last July from her position in New York.

"I had so many volunteers help me over the years, now it was my chance to volunteer," Edmonds said. "I come Tuesday and Wednesday all day and spend a half day in two different classes."

"I mostly give immediate feedback on work; something that's difficult for teachers to do. When a child sees and understands a correction right away, it's much better. Being able to do that gives support for those needing more self-esteem. "It's great to be with the children."

In the literature program, "I'm working with readers to go beyond what they are doing in class, stretching them a little further."

"I intend to do this and other volunteer work, too."

For more information about helping as a volunteer, call White Mountain Elementary at 258-4220, Nob Hill Elementary at 257-9041 or any of the other schools in the district.

The team of daughter Frances Powell (left) and Nelma Beck deliver a one-two reading punch on the one day a week they volunteer at White Mountain Elementary.

Ruidoso schools awarded federal funds for English instruction

The Ruidoso school district has been awarded a $140,000 federal grant to help students with limited proficiency in English.

The U.S. Department of Education announced that it recently distributed $12.1-million in new grants to support special alternative instruction programs for the targeted students.

The children who benefit from the program represent 148 languages, from Afghan to Zuni. The 89 grants went to local education agencies in 26 states and will serve about 24,500 new limited-English students.

"These projects will help thousands of students learn English and succeed in their education," said Maria Hernandez Ferrier, director of the Office of Bilingual Education and Minority Languages Affairs. "This exemplifies President Bush's America 2000 strategy of helping all students achieve in school."

In the special alternative program, English is the primary language spoken and classes can be composed entirely of limited-English students.

The money also may be used to support in-take centers and language centers that school systems have set up where there have been large increases of immigrant students.

In Ruidoso, the grant will be earmarked for 84 Native American students at Nob Hill Elementary and 78 at White Mountain Elementary.

The awards are authorized by the Bilingual Education Act, as amended in 1988.

RUIDOSO MUNICIPAL SCHOOLS 1991-92 ACCOUNTABILITY REPORT

GOALS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION 1991-1992

VISION STATEMENT

The Board of Education of the Ruidoso Municipal Schools shares with the staff a belief that all children can learn. We will provide a positive, caring, and safe environment promoting learning and enthusiasm and the development of cognitive, social and physical skills in all students regardless of race, color, creed or innate ability.

GOALS

1. Encourage every parent to be involved in his/her child's education in some way at least one hour weekly (i.e., homework assistance, classroom volunteer).
2. Publish a monthly newsletter for parents/families of all Ruidoso students.
3. Encourage consistency among all staff members in administering Ruidoso School Board policies.
4. Provide a safe, stimulating, nurturing and productive learning environment that focuses upon the welfare, well-being, health, and education of all students.
5. Encourage the development of a culture within our district which reflects respect for individuals, positive interpersonal communication, and responsible decision-making in order to promote a spirit of open communication and cooperation with, and among parents, staff and students.
6. Encourage formal commitments from parents in which they pledge verbal, moral, mental, and emotional support for their children.
7. Develop a marketing plan for the Ruidoso Schools that showcases the educational opportunities available.
8. Support the continuing education of our staff by providing opportunities to learn through professional development activities.
9. Address the challenge of increasing the graduation rate by instituting the importance of educational values at all grade levels.
10. Determine and implement the curriculum that will best prepare our students for the 21st century. This curriculum will strive to improve reading and writing skills and foster a joy for reading and creativity in writing for all students.

CONTINUING GOALS

- A. Improve the example presented by board members, administrators, teachers, and staff in communicating with students, parents, and colleagues by being positive, enthusiastic, and demonstrating respect for all by avoiding humiliation.
- B. Encourage the inclusion of talented individuals from our community as volunteer lecturers, mentors, etc., resulting in enhanced experiences for our students.
- C. Collaborate with ENMU-Ruidoso Center in programs designed to enhance the quality of education for students and community members.
- D. Promote community awareness of the diverse non-academic issues confronting students of the Ruidoso Schools (i.e., abuse, homelessness, single-parent families, nutrition).
- E. Continue to enhance salaries for all staff as funding allows.

It is the intent of the Board of Education to be responsible to the community's needs and to set the direction for types of programs to be implemented in the schools. In order to carry out these intentions, annual goals will be established and evaluated on a yearly basis. Opportunities will be available for staff, students, parents, and community members to have input in the goal setting process. The superintendent will be responsible for providing leadership toward the accomplishments of the annual Goals of the Board of Education.

New Mexico High School Competency Exam

Scores are reported as percentage passed

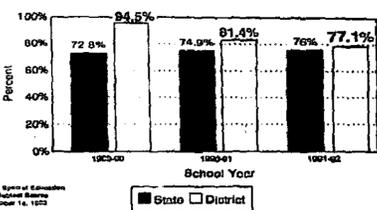

Beginning with the class of 1990, as mandated in 1987 by Senate Bill 106, all students in New Mexico must pass a competency examination in order to be awarded a diploma. The New Mexico Competency Exam will be given during the sophomore year. If a student fails any part of the exam he/she will have an opportunity to re-test during the junior and senior year.

RUIDOSO MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT INSTRUCTIONAL SUPPORT PROGRAMS

1. Special Education

Every exceptional student within the RMSD has a right to a free, appropriate public education. It is the goal of the RMSD to assist exceptional students in developing their potential to the highest level possible, and to become independent, well-adjusted and competent members of society to the maximum degree possible. RMSD operates in compliance with all federal laws and state standards concerning the education of exceptional students.

Services are available for 3 and 4 year old preschool children with Developmental Delays and for students age 5 to 21 who are identified as Autistic, Deaf, Deaf-Blind, Gifted, Hard of Hearing, Intellectually Disabled, Multi-Disabled, Orthopedically Impaired, Other Health Impaired, Seriously Emotionally/Behaviorally Disturbed, Specific Learning Disabled, Speech-Language Impaired, Traumatic Brain Injured or Visually Impaired.

Various teachers and support personnel are available to provide special education and related services such as language therapy, physical therapy, occupational therapy, psychological counseling and audiology.

Anyone having a legitimate interest in a student may make a referral for screening. This should be done through the building principal, who will then refer the child to a screening committee. Formal evaluation will be initiated only with parent permission to do so, and after the screening committee has documented other alternative efforts to meet the needs of the child.

Certified diagnosticians will evaluate students and prepare a written summary report for presentation to the team which typically includes the parents, teachers, diagnostician and building principal. The team will determine whether placement appears warranted and is in the best interest of the student. Each student placed in special education will have an individual educational program developed reflecting his or her particular needs. Services will vary with each child and will be based on specific goals identified by the team.

All Special Education records are considered confidential, in accordance with the Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. Only those persons having a legitimate interest in a particular child will have access to that file. A sign-out sheet is kept, detailing all persons who access a file, their position, date checked out and in, and reason for checking out the file.

Parental involvement and regular communication with instructional staff is highly encouraged for all students enrolled in RMSD.

Paul Wirth is responsible for supervising Special Education programs in the district. Any questions regarding special services may be directed to him at 257-2346.

2. Section 504 Services for Students with "Handicaps"
In compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, RMSD will provide to each protected student with a "handicap" without discrimination or cost to the student or family, those related aids, services or accommodations which are needed to provide equal opportunity to participate in and obtain the benefits of the school program and extracurricular activities to the maximum extent appropriate to the student's abilities. In order to qualify as a protected student with a "handicap" the child must be of school age with a physical or mental disability which substantially limits or prohibits participation in or access to an aspect of the school program.

These services and protections for "protected students with handicaps" are distinct from those applicable to all eligible or exceptional students enrolled (or seeking enrollment) in special education programs.

For further information on the evaluation procedures and provision of services to protected students with disabilities, contact Paul Wirth at 257-2346.

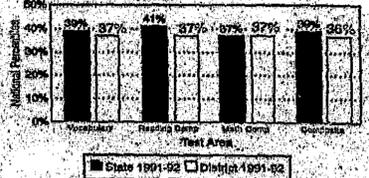

3. Other District Programs Available

Honorable roast

Downs center opens for games

When's the last time you played dominos or just met with your friends after an afternoon? The Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens Center now is open from 1-4 p.m. each Thursday for seniors to come in for games, puzzles or just companionship. The dinner will be served at noon on Tuesday, November 17, at the center. The second annual Ruidoso Downs community Christmas program will be at 6:30 p.m., December 11 at the center. Last year's event featured singing, Santa Claus and refreshments, but this year's program is going to be bigger and better.

A suggestion box will be placed in the center for visitors to drop written comments about what they would like to see. The auxiliary needs the support and attendance of community members to make the center successful. The auxiliary also is planning a Thanksgiving dinner for senior citizens who don't have family members with whom to celebrate the season. The auxiliary has brought the building a long way since last year when it was completed, but still has a long way to go before it becomes a familiar stomping grounds for the whole community.

St. Eleanors presents prayer event to begin Christmas holiday season

St. Eleanor Women's Guild will sponsor its seventh annual Christmas breakfast from 9-11 a.m., Saturday, December 5, at Cree Meadows Restaurant. The guest speaker will be Sister Juanita Little, O.S.F., a Franciscan sister and Apache by birth right, from the Mescalero Apache Reservation and St. Joseph Mission Church in Mescalero. The $7 dutch treat breakfast will be served at 9 a.m. followed by Sister Juanita's inspirational message on "Native American Spirituality, with an Apache Emphasis." After prayer, music will be provided by Lanny Maddox. In addition this year a special presentation will be made by Capitan artist Lorene Caywood. This event originated when many women felt the need for a spiritual "get-together" during the busy holiday, according to a press release on the breakfast. The members of the guild invite all women from Ruidoso and Lincoln County to this spiritual event. Call St. Eleanor Catholic Church Parish office at 257-2330 for reservations, which are requested.

Retired persons group meets to install officers

The election and installation of officers is on the agenda for the annual business meeting of the Lincoln County American Association of Retire Persons (AARP) Chapter on November 17. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. at the Ruidoso Woman's Club, followed by a covered dish luncheon. Everyone is invited to attend. Opal and Everett Lankford will be the installing officers. Mrs. Lankford is the assistant state director for AARP New Mexico. Mr. Lankford is the Second Congressional District Coordinator-Vote for AARP New Mexico. They live in Roswell.

HONDO VALLEY PUBLIC SCHOOL REPORT TO COMMUNITY

MISSION STATEMENT

Our mission, to provide a successful educational opportunity, can best be accomplished when an atmosphere of equal treatment and mutual understanding justly prevail. Orgullo con Respeto.

DISTRICT GOALS FOR 1992-93 SCHOOL YEAR

1. The most qualified person will be recommended to the board for any vacancy to be filled; taking into consideration outstanding role model that will be sensitive, knowledgeable, and dedicated to our students.
2. A solid core curriculum that includes counseling and skills for growing for all students and that models the finest instructional curriculum practices that are available today.
3. To work cooperatively with all school staff, students, and community to improve communication, develop positive self esteem in our students, and pride in our schools.
