Study solves water woes

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso's "red water" problem, after a two month's test by an Albuquerque engineering firm, has been solved.

According to Les Norman, president of Industrial Water Engineering, a special corrosion inhibitor is required to reduce in-line corrosion.

The inhibitor, coupled with cleaning and flushing the system, should correct the problem, he said.

The problem literally surfaced over the Fourth of July weekend when an influx of people to the community created a high demand of piped village water. That stirred the sediment in the lines and sent people calling the village utility company.

The water sources are either surface water or well water, wrote Norman. The surface water sources are Alto Lake and the Rio Ruidoso. Grindstone Lake will become a water source in the future.

Water contains dissolved iron and manganese. In an ionic state, both iron and manganese do not form particulate or add color to the water. When iron and manganese are oxidized, particulates form and the characteristic "red water" occurs. Iron imparts the reddish stain and manganese imparts the brownish stain. "Red water" usually contains both.

A second source of "red water" is corrosion products from water main distribution piping, according to the report. As water corrodes the piping, rust falls from the piping causing a second source of red water.

A third source of "red water" is agitation of settled iron and manganese in the system. Oxygen is present in water and will react with ionic iron and manganese causing oxidation. The oxidized

All in the ski family

This happy huge El Paso family knows skiing and clothes, skis and accessories. Lucky dad hopes to have a few bucks left for a ski lift ticket.

Ski Days are back!

Students in good standing with their respective schools will be able to swoop down the slopes again this year at Ski Apache under a special program starting Tuesday, January 19.

School district superintendent Mike Gladden said the program will run for five consecutive Tuesdays, with one make-up day if weather interferes.

The cost to students has been reduced to $2 for the lift and $1 for lessons. Area ski shops also offer discounts for rental of ski equipment.

"We'll be sending paperwork, including a parental permission slip, home next week when school resumes," Gladden said. "I appreciate (Mescalero Apache Tribe) President Wendell Chino approving the program and the cooperation of local ski shops."

The program resumed last year after being discontinued by Chino following a disagreement with local school officials.

Students, who meet the requirements of their schools, can travel by bus or by their own transportation, to Ski Apache each designated Tuesday afternoon.

So is there hope for Hope in 1993? That's entirely up to the people who live there.

Hope, Arkansas, with a population of around 11,000 people, is doing all right for itself. Most of the homes are in good repair, the WalMart is crowded with Christmas shoppers, and, while I was gathering information for a story in the Hope Star about what Hopians want for Christmas, the majority of them wished for peace on earth, goodwill toward men and women, and happiness in their own families.

To the outsider, though, Hope seems ripe for community development. With a native son as President-elect of the United States — named Man of the Year in Time magazine this very week — they stand uniquely in the national spotlight.

But many residents don't seem to understand the implications of being the childhood home to a new president.

"If Clinton does a good job, I expect we'll see many people coming here to look at the town," Hopians say again and again, as if not realizing that people are already here to look at the town.

You can get a real good view of the first Clinton landmark home on Hervey Street from the top of the hill, right next door to the Sonic Drive-In. This house, with its faded yellow siding and chipping paint trim, is the one Bill Clinton knew as his first home — the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kelley.

This is the place little Billy Blythe lived while his mother had to go off to Louisiana, the state to the south, in order to learn nursing and support her half-orphaned boy.

Most people are probably familiar with the story about how three-year-old Billy, saying goodbye to his mother after one of her rare visits home, notices how she cried her eyes out as her train pulled out of town; this is the house his grandparents brought him back to.

The house, a two-story with symmetrical windows and the front door smack in the center, is in very poor repair. One man I met referred to it as the "Clinton slum."

When Bill Blythe lived there, of course, it was 44 years newer. Now it sags sadly in the pre-Christmas rain, and you can see that the second floor window frames are charred crisp, from a fire that occurred last year. The roof needs fixing, and several window-holes are boarded up with plywood.

The black people now residing in the house — actually, no one could tell me whether they own or rent — does not have the money to fix it up. The family is not interested in talking with visitors or with the press.

One interesting, though unsubstantiated rumor, claims that they belong to a religious sect that prohibits voting.

A big Cadillac is parked across the street, at the top of the hill, and an elderly man is snapping a photo. Their license plate says Ohio, and is embellished with Bush-Quayle bumper stickers.

I ask the man and his wife what brings them to Hope. They explain that they were on the Interstate, saw the highway sign, and got off in order to see Clinton's roots for themselves.

But you voted for Bush, I say. "Well, that doesn't matter," the elderly woman says, looking at me as if I was dense. "It's Bill Clinton who is president now."

So the tourists are here, and will continue to come for the next 20, 30, 40 years. People still visit Truman's home; Eisenhower's; people still troop on into Plains, Georgia, to check out Jimmy Carter's roots.

It's probable that they do not center their vacation trips around these sites, but that they — like the folks in the Cadillac from Ohio — exit when they see the sign.

"Hey, look, 'Hope.' Isn't that where Clinton's from?"

P&Z to hear request for zoning change

A zoning amendment to allow townhouses to be built at the corner of Hull Road and Paradise Canyon tops the agenda items at the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning meeting Monday.

Agent Johnny Mobley will request the R-1 property be changed to R-3, Multi-family Residential Zoning which allows up to 14 units per acre. The Land Use Master Plan designates the property for low density residential.

Village planner Cleatus Richards said the lot size of 2.94 acres would allow development of 41 units. He said development will be limited by flood plain consideration. A portion of Hull Road frontage is within the flood plain and a northern portion of the tract also is within the flood plain.

The owner is Jim Runyan Jr., who lists his address as Kansas City, Missouri.

A text amendment to relax parking restrictions will be recommended to the commission by

Mountains and meadows

Sierra Blanca, topped by a heavy helping of snow, lives up to its name. The mountain creates a dramatic backdrop for a rancher's fence and some field cactus on the way from Fort Stanton to Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

particles will then settle in low flow areas of piping, tanks or clear wells. If water flow increases, like 35,000 people in the area, the flow spikes the water and the settled debris lifts.

Because Ruidoso is a resort town, the report states that it suffers from wide fluctuations, both contribute to the problem.

The red water problem was reported again over Christmas weekend with the police answering many calls with complaints.

Low usage results in low flow rates that favor settling of particles, sudden population increases push distribution lines to near maximum flow rates and this velocity scours piping and lifts the deposits.

A bulk storage tank and chemical feed system must be installed, according to the engineering firm. The cost of this system is about $10,000. A 6,000 gallon storage tank is recommended and the tank should be located inside the plant to prevent freezing and possible vandalism to the tank.

Treatment costs are about $29.90 per million gallons of water.

Most school board races in Lincoln County uncontested

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso and Capitan will welcome new faces to their school district board in February.

The deadline for write-in candidates has passed. That ensures that two new members will be seated in Ruidoso and three in Capitan.

Replacing Ruidoso board chairman Lynn Willard will be either Kent W. Beatty or Jimmy Varnadore.

Jim Paxton is unopposed for Rod Adamson's post on the board.

All three candidates in Capitan are unopposed. Stepping into the shoes of long-time member Preston Stone will be Tim Worrell, Russell E. Scheerer and Beverly Ann Payne will be sitting in the chairs of Ron Roybal and Ervin Aldaz.

The candidates in Carrizozo and Hondo remain unchanged from the qualifying date, but in Corona, incumbent Nelva June Tyree has withdrawn from the race for district two. That leaves the seat open for Ernest D. Lueras.

Pete M. Gnatkowski is unopposed for district three, leaving the only race and the only incumbent in the contest for district five. Incumbent Melvin Johnson will face challenger Joe Allen Sultemeier.

Area youngsters get a head start on school

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A program designed to prepare four-year-old participants to enter the regular school system next year will open its doors January 18 at Nob Hill Elementary School.

Although Headstart is not new to the nation, this will be the first program in Lincoln County, starting in both Ruidoso and at Capitan Elementary.

Applications will be accepted through January 8 at the Region IX Cooperative Education Center office, Room 212, 1400 Sudderth Drive, and at the two schools. Applications also are available at those sites.

Income guidelines are used by the staff in qualifying children for the program, but also targeted are children with physical, hearing, speech, visual, academic and other handicaps.

Juanelle Wright, social service, health and parent involvement coordinator, said to be eligible, children must be four years old on or before September 1, 1992.

"We are accepting some five-year-old children who failed to meet the kindergarten age deadline, however," she said.

Tentative hours for the program are from 8:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

Monday through Friday. Transportation will be provided by the center. Two buses were purchased to serve Capitan and Ruidoso as part of the program budget, Wright said.

Sandy Gladden, center director also is executive director of the program in both communities.

Margaret Mascarenaz, former special education teacher at Ruidoso Middle School, was hired as educational director. She will be working directly with the children, as will her instructional assistants in Ruidoso, Elaine Chavez and Shelly Woods.

Children in the Headstart program will be able to sign up for meals. Nutrition will be one of the main thrusts of the program, she said.

"Health also is a focus," Wright said. "Free dental, medical, hearing and vision screenings will be performed and referrals made for any results that warrant attention."

"We're trying to help the children develop gross motor skills and socialization skills. The emphasis is not so much academic preparation as trying to help each individual prepare for the transition into regular school. We also strive to teach in a multi-culture environment."

Be careful out there!

New Year's Eve is party night, but Ruidoso Police Chief Richard Swenor cautions against overdoing it.

"Drive carefully, wear those seat restraints and designate a driver," says Swenor.

Traffic is heavy in town, so even with good weather, drivers should take extra precautions on the roads throughout this weekend.

"Last night we had the ABC agents here and we visited most of the liquor establishments," said Swenor.

"Be smart and be careful," stresses Swenor, who wants to make sure everyone gets a great start to 1993.

Hope

The Ohio couple seemed nonplussed by the condition of the Kelley home, but as they turn on the ignition to leave, the woman says: "It certainly says a lot for Clinton that he could rise up out of a place like this."

Is this the image the people of Hope want for themselves? That it says a lot for the President that he could achieve something after growing up in a dump like this?

After Virginia Kelley Blythe married local car dealer Roger Clinton in 1950, the family moved to a small white bungalow on 13th Street, in what must have been the Hope suburbs at that time. This house, located on a corner, is owned by a teacher. It is well-kept, sparkling white, with friendly curtains at the window and a rose bush in the back, in full bloom at Christmas.

The current owner of this property encourages visitors to have a look. She mounted a sign outside, and, to make things easier on the tourist with a videocam, painted a yellow dot on the sidewalk with the words "Take Photos Here".

It would seem to be in the city's best interest to purchase these properties, because these two sites are what people are coming to see. Public officials in Hope might consider looking into funding organizations and making the property owners offers they cannot refuse.

In a few years, the property on Hervey will be falling over on itself; too late to salvage, it will be a waste of what has become, whether Hope likes it or not, an important site in American history.

There are three name-brand motels in Hope, and one locally-owned shabby-but-clean place. At this point, except for the Watermelon Festival weekend in August, there are plenty of rooms.

The question is, what is there to do for the visitor to Hope?

Once they've seen the two

Clinton homes — this could take all of 30 minutes — and had lunch, and cruised past the cemetery where Clinton's father is buried, there they are — in Hope, Arkansas.

Of course, there are souvenirs to be purchased. There are Clinton mugs (two kinds), a half-dozen T-shirt designs, Clinton "can cozies," expensive postcards (two kinds) (one featuring a local snapshot of Bill Clinton with what appears to be antennae growing out of his head. These turned out to be street-lights.)

Then there is the Hope, Arkansas, Home of Bill Clinton cookbook put out by local women. This is one of those spiral bound compilations often put out by local churches; at the front are some fuzzy snapshots of Billy the Kid, including one of him spitting watermelon seeds at the big Festival, and two reproduced letters from Bill to his Mawmaw, endearingly down-home.

As for the recipes, well — stock up on Cream of Mushroom soup, canned green beans and plenty of shredded coconut before you try them out, because those are major ingredients in most of the recipes.

Hope is in Hempstead County, a dry country. One must drive 15 miles to obtain package goods, and then there is a limit as to how much you can carry back in your car. While this seems to suit the Baptists just fine, drinking folks in Hope spend a lot of time shuttling 12-packs of beer across the county line.

Hope is a place that desperately needs a good old corner bar, or even a "fern bar." A place with nice wooden tables and chairs, brass details, Mexican beer and a big sunny window. It should have a local bartender who knows all the Clinton lore (and, ideally, is personal friends with Thomas F. "Mack" McLarty, recently named Chief of Staff, who seems to be everybody's favorite local rich guy.)

A bar like this would be frequented by tourists and locals alike and would do wonders for the exchange of information and ideas so integral to a growing community.

Although Hopians seem to be musing as to exactly what turn their future will take — remember, Bill Clinton is always late to any event, and I'm guessing this is how he was raised — they need to take the horse by the reins right now or opportunity will pass them by.

Village fathers and mothers need, first, to hire a professional grant writer. It's an educational guess that Hope could be a cash cow for funding in 1993 — community block grants, community development monies and other sources of funding must be checked out. These sources exist, and it's past time to begin writing applications.

It's a good guess that applications to improve the conditions of the President's birthtown will receive special attention and consideration from and sort of funding agency, state or national. The salary of a grant writer could be covered in funding received; it would not have to be a permanent position.

A community planner is a good idea, also. Hope is not a "user friendly" town. Since there are no mountains, lakes or other obvious physical landmarks, it's hard for a visitor to know what direction he or she is going.

The highways pass through the downtown area, and there are four, five highway signs tacked on single poles — extremely confusing for someone looking for Hazel Street. In fact, in the downtown area, fully 25 percent of intersections are unmarked.

This easy-to-cure problem causes nothing but frustration to the visitor. A frustrated tourist is not a happy camper, and a grouchy visitor will not readily lay out cash for mementos of a place he or she is uncomfortable in. While locals may find resigning to be a chore, it is crucial to the community.

Hope has a wonderful little downtown section, which has, since the Interstate came, become something of a ghost town. There are marvelous old brick buildings with the original facades, cornerstones and hardware. The old train depot is right beside the downtown section, easy walking distance, and this structure has all the antique charm any tourist town could want.

Development money is needed here. There is no other "mall" in Hope; why not turn the downtown into a village "plaza"? It's there, it's in good shape and it cries out to be utilized.

And then there is the friendliness factor. While "southern hospitality" is a legend, people in the service industry in Hope seem — well, not inhospitable, but rather verging on the uncaring.

Although they know better, there is a wariness and suspicion as to why someone from out of town would venture into their territory. Wait people, counter people and motel clerks tend to be brittle and unhelpful — as if your presence bothers them.

This may not point to a basic inferiority complex of Arkansans, or simply shyness disguised as defensiveness. They could take a lesson from Ruidoso here. Service people in Ruidoso are absolutely cuddly in comparison.

I was told, in a casual way — I didn't confront anyone on this issue — that it is unusual for a woman to be traveling alone (especially at Christmas) and that this makes some people edgy.

Well, they'd better get used to people arriving singly, in groups, people of all genders and of all colors into their community, because it's happening.

It would enhance the public image for stores, restaurants and motels to instruct their service people to at least act as if they care about the customer. Visitors, regardless of what locals may think, do not exist merely to annoy motel clerks. If they're asking directions, directions should be offered in a clear and cheerful manner. Service people should know what's going on in town, whether there is something of particular interest to visitors each day, what times things happen, and where.

They should also know the actual street names and intersections. This isn't a difficult skill to learn.

As a test, I asked almost every service person I met where the local Catholic Church was. Most people pointed in a general direction. A couple said "over on Main Street", but, since Main Street is not marked, that is not helpful information. While Hope is admittedly a Baptist population, service people must take care to be sensitive to the traditions and concerns of people who are not like them.

It's possible, of course, that Hopians are willing to dig in their heels and will refuse to change. This is their right; and it's natural, I think, for people to balk at the idea of "some outsider" coming in to change things.

What they need to recognize, however, is that this change is not being forced on them by some outsider; it is being visited on them because President-elect Bill Clinton is one of their very own.

It would be sad if the community refuses to grow along with its newfound opportunities, because they don't want to try something "new."

Hope has the makings of an interesting place to visit, and a much more interesting place in which to live. It is a pretty, "all American" village with relatively mild weather, just a few hours drive from the magnificent Ozark mountains.

If there was something to do in Hope for more than an hour, the town could easily reap the economic benefits of being the birthplace of Bill Clinton, by entertaining visitors who come to spend some time in the Ozarks and in Hot Springs.

That's a key word to successful tourist towns as Ruidoso knows so well — "entertainment."

Tolerating the presence of visitors and making them truly feel welcome are two different things. Hope is doing a pretty good job of tolerating, but they are not excelling on the "welcoming" part. This will take some deliberate work on their attitude, but it will make a major difference to the visitor.

It's up to the people in Hope, who face the biggest challenge anyone can face; whether to remain the same and rely on the security of constancy, or to take the gamble and grow — growth is change, and that is frightening to people who have no desire to do so.

I hope that they take the challenge, take a critical look at their community, and go for it.

Hope, Arkansas no longer belongs to itself. It belongs to all of us, now, and with some self-study and some self-determination, it can become a place not only for those who live there, for those who choose to visit — and may choose to stay.

The December 24, 1992, issue of the Hope Star ran an interview with Chief of Staff-designate Mac McLarty, recalling his boyhood in Hope.

"People in Hope, when I was growing up there, cared about this country, cared about other people, loved and provided for their families, and set such fine examples," he was quoted as saying. "They were just about the very best that is the best about this country."

McLarty went on. "I can recall so many instances where ordinary people would do extraordinary things."

Now is the time for the people of Hope to put this statement to the test.

Mexican tourists get warm welcome from Ruidoso businesses, residents

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The license plates may be a little foreign but the visitors in the vehicles can feel right at home in Ruidoso.

Many visitors from Mexico have found their way to Ruidoso and keep coming back, but Ruidoso chamber of commerce executive director Joan Bailey is convinced there are many more who would love to come to the area, once they find out about it.

With a chamber advertising committee and Mexico promotions committee discussing the possibilities of how that can be done, Bailey has been in contact with several representatives of tourism in Mexico to find out what is most effective in their country. After research on advertising, she found in order to reach the market of people they want, they will need to advertise on television.

Bailey said the area did experiment with channel 44, an affiliate of Telemundo, during Easter and saw a tremendous impact from it.

"We got our feet wet with that and now we want to do it bigger and better," she said.

The number one television channel in Mexico is owned by the government, but that is extremely expensive, so they also looked at the next top stations, channel 44 and channel 26. Bailey said these channels televise on both sides of the border, which hits two large markets. In Mexico it is televised to Juarez with a population of 2.5 million people, but it also reaches El Paso, Texas, which is a tremendous area for Ruidoso to draw from, she said.

Bailey said she has learned that in Hispanic homes, even in those where English is spoken, people relate more quickly to promotions in their own language. If the advertising funds are approved through the village all commercials will be produced in Mexico so this is possible.

Commercials on Mexico television are also faster paced than in the United States. Bailey said the commercials shoot things at the viewers at a faster pace than in the U.S. The best part is Ruidoso's logo looks great on television, she said.

Also unlike in the United States, people from Mexico are very product loyal, Bailey said. If something does what it says it will, they will stick with it. She said she is confident that once they get here and see what Ruidoso has to offer, they will keep coming back.

These visitors like the same thing as other visitors, Bailey said. They appreciate good service, a product for its value and people taking the time to answer questions. They are wonderful visitors and are just what Ruidoso has been looking for, families in automobiles. These people do more than ski or go to the races. They also go camping, horseback riding, fishing and other family activities.

Bailey is especially encouraged that this is the market to target because Mexico's President Salinas is trying to increase the middle class. She said the stereotype has been that Mexico's residents were either extremely poor or rich. Now one-third of the population makes $30,000 or more a year so it is very realistic that they would have the money to visit here.

She has been in contact with a person in Mexico City who works with this state's tourism department to get information on how best to impact this market. He has sent lists of radio stations, television stations and travel agencies. Many Mexico visitors make arrangements through agencies so lodgers here will have to get used to working with them too.

Lodgers haven't wanted to in the past because of the shared commission involved, but Bailey said there may be a way to work that out. She said it is not a deterrent but something they need to understand and address.

Bailey said her contact in Mexico has already gotten calls from the state officials, asking the same questions she is. She said it seems Ruidoso may be a step ahead of the state on this one.

In several state tourism meetings in the past few months, the concept of a two-nation vacation has become a high priority for the state. The program is to develop tourism between the two countries, and Bailey said it is likely this area would see the benefits of such a program before other parts of the state.

This state is not the only one hunting an international market. Bailey said Colorado's 10 major ski area resorts supported a trade mission to Mexico in October to sell their ski experience to the Mexican travel industry.

The Albuquerque Hispano Chamber of Commerce along with the state tourism and economic development department have already met with representatives in Juarez to establish a tourism relationship, Bailey said. Other northern communities such as Taos are working to coordinate air travel to their region from Mexico.

Ruidoso's Mexico committee is not taking its task lightly. The group traveled to Juarez to meet with its chamber officials last month and will probably host them this spring.

Members of the Mexico committee are Frank Potter, Betty Beachum, Dave McIntosh, Laura Reynolds, Dick Weber, Karen Kopp, Jack Muhn, Barbara Duff and Shelly Streck along with Bailey. She and Potter, Beachum and McIntosh then serve on the advertising committee.

Bailey said she thinks Ruidoso can sell to Mexico like it sells to anywhere else, visually and personally, and she thinks the best way to do that is through television.

The plan Bailey proposed and had approved by the village council

Tuesday afternoon is to begin with funding for two months. The cost for 180, 30-second spots in January and February 1993, including production, will be about $14,000. After these two months, the number of visitors will be reviewed to see if it is feasible to continue the campaign through June.

Bailey will then go before the council at that time to ask for the rest of the funds. She said she is respectful of the fact these funds are tax dollars and that this is a brand new market. Not everyone is 100 percent sold on it, so getting a two month commitment will let them see if it works.

If the campaign is continued through June it would encourage them to think about coming for the summer too. Bailey said they are not usually avid horse race fans, but there is plenty for the whole family to do during the summer.

The concept of advertising in Mexico came up in discussions during the past two years, but Bailey said they needed to take care of the immediate market area first. The advertising group probably began to work on this campaign about a year ago.

Bailey has had the opportunity to see both sides of the concept. As previous advertising chairperson she was able to help plan the concept and decide how it would be implemented. As chamber director, she sees the impact the advertising makes as hundreds of people call and stop-in to ask for information. When she kept seeing the Mexico visitor come in, it was obvious they needed to go ahead with this campaign.

"Time is still in our favor. We feel like the one time we need to build a new market is winter to take care of the times we are not seeing the traditional skiers," she said.

"We don't want to let another winter pass without trying to get them here," she said.

Rep. John Underwood hosts series of town hall meetings

The 1993 Legislature will be the topic of discussion for State Representative H. John Underwood (D) at his Town Hall meeting scheduled for 6 p.m., January 5, at Ruidoso Village Hall.

Underwood also has scheduled Town Hall meetings for Capitan at 7 p.m. on January 12 at the Multipurpose Room of the Capitan School, and two meetings in Corona on January 6. Corona meetings are scheduled for 4 p.m. at the school and 5:30 p.m. at City Hall.

USFS remits $48,196 in receipts o Lincoln County

Lincoln County will receive a total of $48,196 from national forest receipts collected in fiscal year 1992.

Dale Robertson, chief of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service, said 41 states and Puerto Rico will receive $324-million.

New Mexico's payment will be $2,007,276. Interim payments were sent to counties in New Mexico and Arizona last September.

For the year, receipts collected from the sale and use of national forest land totaled $1.11-billion. By law, 25 percent of the revenue collected by the forest service from use of national forest system lands and resources are returned to states where the lands are located. The states are required to use the money for schools and roads.

Robertson said the money is collected primarily from timber sales, grazing, recreation and mineral extraction on 191 million acres.

The payments do not include 25 percent of the 1992 national grassland revenues. Those payments are based on the calendar year and will be distributed in March 1993.

The three states receiving the largest payments are Oregon at $137-million, California at $60-million and Washington at $35-million. Arizona ranked eight and New Mexico seventeenth in the amount of payment received.

Recreation additions planned

Officials with the Lincoln National Forest are proposing construction of new recreational facilities in the Cloudcroft Ranger District with the nucleus and focus on the historic Mexican Canyon Trestle.

The forest recreation staff is working on an environmental analysis. Public involvement comprises an important part of the process. All comments must be received by January 22 to be incorporated into the analysis.

The project proposed would include a day-use picnic area with access and parking, water and restroom facilities on site, a fitness trail, interpretive/education trails, interpretive sites and scenic viewing areas.

Comments should be sent to Lincoln National Forest, Attention Erin Connelly, 1101 New York Avenue, Alamogordo, NM 88310.

Gymnasts move classes & teams into "The Barn"

Ruidoso gymnasts are on the move.

Ruidoso Gymnastics Association is moving its youth sports program to The Barn.

Bonnie Richardson of the RGA board said the group is hoping to be in its new building next door to the Village of Ruidoso fire station on White Mountain Drive within 90 days.

"We haven't even broken ground yet," said Richardson.

Gymnasts who ride the school bus to the gym after class, should make note of the new bus numbers.

Nob Hill gymnasts should take Bus 2, White Mountain youngsters should take Bus 5 and middle school students should take Bus 9.

Burton Howell, gymnastics coach, continues to lead the program that ranges from preschool "Jelly Beans" on up to the competitive team.

Signups are currently under way for classes and teams.

Stop by The Barn between 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays or between 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Gymnastics programs formerly were under the wing of the Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department with the support of the private group, Ruidoso Gymnastics Association (RGA).

Gymnastics has been offered at the Village of Ruidoso Activities Center in the Y-Knot park complex.

The RGA is now the sole director for the youth program, and is in the midst of a building program using funds raised over the past 10 years.

Meanwhile, The Barn will be home to the Mountaintops competitive gymnasts and all levels of gymnastics classes.

Inside The Outdoors

Anglers provide best fishing reports

The peak of fishing interest is here. Most common questions from anglers include, "Where? How? What-bait?" or "I tried last weekend and got skunked."

Quite a few folks rely on the weekly fishing report for guidance. But, this report reflects what anglers did the previous weekend and many times their success or lack of it would not be considered an absolute.

I've had some of my best fishing in waters listed as "poor" or "fair." Many times anglers not accustomed to changing conditions will continue to use the same bait, lures or techniques that worked back in "ought six" or whenever.

Fish, water, weather all have direct impact on fishing and these variables change constantly. The more successful anglers are usually the most adaptable and flexible.

For example, if garlic cheese worked for stocker rainbows two weeks ago in high, discolored water, most experienced anglers would be skeptical of success with the same bait and technique when the water turned gin clear and only brown trout remained between stockings.

I'd guarantee that under the changed conditions the garlic cheese dunker would get skunked. Conversely, the experienced dryfly or stealthy spinner fisher would do very well

by Ben Hanson
New Mexico
Game and Fish

in the clear water on the more selective browns.

One of the largest rainbows I ever hooked resulted from using unconventional techniques. The battle lasted only a few seconds with the fish easily breaking my line. At age fourteen my experience level was low but I probably would never have tried the different lure or technique if I had been locked in by years of fishing only one way. By the way, that fish was hooked in a high mountain lake in Colorado using a red and white flatfish on light, four pound monofilament. Ahead of the lure I had attached quite a few split shot for depth and casting distance. The fish was in the ten to fifteen pound category, took the lure near shore, instantly stripped all the line from the reel and broke the line without missing a fin beat.

A few years ago while fishing the famous

San Juan River of Northwest New Mexico a similar, unconventional technique paid off. I was float fishing the river well below the quality water section. I knew that worms, various flies and spinners were working in that section but on the off chance of enticing an out-sized brown trout I tried something different. Some bass lures were sitting in the tackle box just begging to be used for the larger trout. So on went a thin minnow, deep diving bass plug in rainbow trout coloration.

Bingo! The first fish on was a very large Snake River cutthroat. A few years before that, while fishing the lower Red River near the Rio Grande, a very similar situation presented itself. I had been catching and releasing small rainbows and brown trout all day when it occurred to me that since it was fall some large browns may be in the river. I tied on a small, shallow running balsa minnow, cast out into the deep, foam covered pool and bang! Using plugs in small streams was not supposed to work.

In any case using some imagination can pay off. Don't always believe the fishing reports. Remember that the anglers fishing last week on whichever water may all have been using the same bait, the same technique and the same excuses for no fishing luck. Have fun and experiment!

Bowling Results

The Friday night mixed bowling league has a close race for number one, but so far Texas-New Mexico Power has a hold of the reins.

The Power team has 35 wins and 13 losses so far this season, while the Misfits are at 33 wins and 15 losses. The Safe Deposits-Self Storage team had 29.5 wins and 18.5 losses, but Eagle Creek Construction is right behind them with 29 wins and 19 losses.

Allison's Plumbing has won 26.5 games and lost 21.5 for fifth place in the league. The Over the Hill Gang is catching up quick with 25 wins and 23 losses. J & W Auto Repair has an even 24-24 record.

Zia Gas has won 20.5 games and lost 27.5 matches. C & L Lumber Company has 10 wins and 36 losses, while S.O.L. has won 7.5 and lost 20.5.

High scores for the week of December 4 went to the Safe Deposits with a 2,353 score for the high team series, while the Misfits racked up the high game with an 849.

The high series scratch and high game scratch went to Bill Britton with a 629 and a 216. Ginger Huband captured both categories too with a 535 series and a 193 game.

In the Monday night ladies league Lincoln County Medical Center has captured 34 wins and just 18 losses as of December 7 for first place in the league. The Late Comers are at 31.5 wins and 20.5 losses for second place, but Smokey Bear Restaurant is hot on their tail at 29 wins and 23 losses.

The Wild Five-Ole Taco has scored 27.5 wins and 24.5 losses for fourth place so far this season. Canyon Cabins is in the race too with 26.5 wins and 25.5 losses, while Mitchell's Irish Emeralds is at 25-27.

The Achey Breaky's of D. Johnson Chiropractors are dancing up the league with 24 wins and 28 losses. Super 8 Motel is checking in at 22.5 wins and 29.5 losses. Gwen's Guppies have won 21 games and lost 31, while Ruidoso State Bank is at 19 wins and 33 losses.

Individual high game scratch was a tie with Mary Blackmon and Trisha Tully at 186. Stacey West took the high game handicap with a 238, while Blackmon earned the high series handicap with a 513. Tommie Neal earned the high series handicap with a 629.

In team scores Mitchell's almost swept the games. They had high game scratch, 882; high game handicap, 1,059; and high series scratch, 2,309. Canyon Cabins corralled the high series handicap with a 2,882.

CRIMESTOPPERS

"CRIME OF THE WEEK"

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest and Grand Jury indictment or Magistrate Court Bindover of the person or persons who committed this crime or any other unsolved felony crime in Lincoln County.

Let's work together to call a stop to crime.

Phone 257-4545

CRIME OF THE WEEK: BURGLARY

Burglary is classified as a felony crime in the state of New Mexico, and is punishable by incarceration in the state penitentiary for a period up to four years. This type of crime is not only costly to the victim, but also affects the community in which we live. It has a bearing on our insurance rates, our real estate values, and our village in general. As citizens of Lincoln County, we can deter the impact of residential and commercial burglaries in our community by getting involved, and reporting any suspicious activity to the local law enforcement agency in your area, or by calling crimestoppers.

Crimestoppers will pay a two hundred dollar cash reward for information leading to the arrest and Magistrate Court Bindover of any commercial or residential burglar in Lincoln County. Crimestoppers will also pay cash rewards for the recovery of stolen property or the solving of other felony crimes.

The Crimestoppers phone line is manned twenty-four a day, seven days a week, and you do not have to give your name to be eligible for a cash reward. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545. Anyone wishing to call collect, may do so within Lincoln County.

This is Detective Sergeant Larry Maddox, for the Ruidoso Police Department, urging you to be a Crimestopper!

Christmases just keep getting better

Eighty Third Christmas

My Christmas celebration began when my nephew Scott Storm and his son, Josh, came to visit me after many years, a real blessing. This was on the twenty-third.

Then on Christmas Eve Mark called from Houston and we had a fine Christmas visit. He told me that his daughter, Carrol Jane Elliott, and her husband, Bill, and their daughter, Karen, and son, Mark, were up on the ski slopes and would get in touch with me in a day or two, and come down to the place.

On Christmas day at Saint Anne's Chapel, the Reverend Anna Gaddy based her sermon on the Gospel according to Saint Luke:

"And in that region there were shepherds out in the field keeping watch over their flocks, and an angel of the Lord appeared to them."

We sang "O Come All Ye faithful," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Away in a Manger" and "Angels We Have Heard on High."

The hymns were accompanied at the organ by Debbie Sanchez who is also the lead singer. Lay reader Nellie Ruth Jones read special prayers of the people.

As we sang these old favorite Christmas hymns we felt the spirits of our loved ones, rejoicing with us at the celebration of the birth of our infant savior.

I had got up at five in time to try and unwrap all my presents, and did not eat breakfast.

At 2:30 I was up at the home of Paul and Nellie Ruth Jones. By this time I had worked up quite an appetite, what with the cold wave that had set in from the north that kept the temperature at 34 all day.

Here the Jones ladies, Nellie Ruth, Annelle, Debbie and Cathy put together a dinner that will go down in the records as one of the great Christmas dinners of all time.

On the way home I stopped by Bob and Betty Lambert's to wish them a merry Christmas. Just at sundown the heavy cloud cover

by Dan Storm
The Ridge Runner

opened and the pale new moon came shining through, and thus ended a blessed eighty-third Christmas Day.

Mark's First Great-grandchild

About noon on the twenty-sixth, Bill Elliott phoned that he was on the way down.

Here came Mark's daughter Carrol Jane Elliott and husband, Bill, their daughter Karen, and another daughter Kathleen Elliot Miller and her husband Bob. With them was their four-month-old son, Christopher Storm Miller, brother Mark's first great-grandchild.

Little Christopher was wide-eyed and smiling as they carried him around inside Mark's adobe house across from the old corral.

Bill Elliot brought a small Douglas fir tree which we planted in the front yard of the house — a memorial tree, planted in honor of little Christopher on his first visit to the Storm Ranch.

This little angel child brought a special lasting benediction during this sacred season honoring the Christ Child.

A Day Of Visitors

About mid-afternoon here came Bob Herndon, a fellow who had with me for years on the highway projects up and down the Ruidoso valley. With him was his son, Jeff and their friend, Jake McCarty. They brought a plate of home made cakes and cookies, with Christmas wishes.

Toward evening the lone Christmas cow, Spot Eye appeared at the house, and I gave her alfalfa hay. While she was eating, out of the cedars came Cristy the Christmas rabbit and began nibbling at the alfalfa. Then a little cottontail half the size of Cristy came running to the hay and began joining in the feast.

Just at sundown, who should show up at the yard gate but the one and only C.R. "Cliff" Hicks. He came in the house bringing some Christmas candy, and was welcomed by Corina the cat.

Corina is very fond of Cliff; she knows a kind hearted man when she sees one. We bid Cliff goodbye and he drove down the road headed home, while the new moon and the evening star shone brightly in a purple sky.

And so with the final blessing of the day, night fell peacefully on the day after Christmas.

Happy New Year

I almost forgot. This will reach you on the last day of the month — the last day of the year, and what a wonderful year it has been — so many historic things for which to be thankful, world wide, and such a good fall and winter in our Mountain Land.

Tonight we will be singing "Auld Lang Syne" in the old Scottish dialect meaning "Old Long Since" or "For Old Times Sake."

The song was written by the immortal Scottish poet Robert Burns.

"Should Auld Acquaintance be forgot
And never brought to mind
Should auld acquaintance be forgot and days of auld lang syne."

Then here's a hand, my trusted friend,
And gives a hand o' thine
We'll take a cup of kindness yet
For Auld lang syne."

Judge dismisses Indian video gambling lawsuit

A suit filed against state officials by the Mescalero Apache tribe to allow video gambling was dismissed in U.S. District Court by Judge John Conway.

It was the second court defeat dealt Indian gambling in the past two months.

In November, Conway dismissed a similar suit filed by Sandia Pueblo. Conway found that the federal law allowing certain forms of gambling on Indian lands doesn't allow tribes to sue the states.

Both suits asked the federal courts to force Governor Bruce King to sign an agreement to allow video gambling under the federal Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

Earlier this year, the federal Indian Gaming Commission issued regulations making video slot machines a Class III form of gambling and requiring that tribes have agreements with states on use of video machines.

Under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, if a tribe and a particular state were unable to reach an agreement, the tribes were supposed to be able to petition federal courts for the appointment of a mediator.

The tribes charged that King's refusal to sign agreements that were negotiated with a team of state officials appointed by the governor was a violation of procedures laid out in the Indian gambling law.

The U.S. Supreme Court has let stand a federal court ruling in Connecticut that allowed Indian Tribes to conduct any form of gambling there because the state allowed charitable "Las Vegas" nights. New Mexico has a similar charitable gambling law, but that issue hasn't been addressed in the federal cases in New Mexico.

The tribes maintain that the state has allowed fraternal organizations and clubs to conduct video gambling in their private halls and that the state doesn't as a matter of public policy or criminal law prohibit video gambling in the state.

Obituary

Ruth E. Quay

Ruth E. Quay, a former Ruidoso resident, died Tuesday in the Irving Hospital in Irving, Texas. She was 56.

A memorial service will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday, January 2, at Donnelly's Colonial Chapel with the Reverend Jeamsie Price officiating.

Quay, who had lived in Irving for two and a half years, worked for Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas. She was born February 29, 1936, in Carlsbad to Roy D.

Yancey and Buna Kate Tompkins. She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Ruidoso.

Survivors include two daughters, Laura Thompson of Irving and Jeffrie Ann Ruhl of Houston; two sons, Arthur Clay Ruhl of Houston and Mark Yancey Ruhl of Dallas, and a brother, Milton West of Dumas, Texas. She is survived by three grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society.

We sell a lot of chicken fried steak .... and we think it's pretty good. And it's real steak, too. None of this breaded hamburger meat. It's honest to goodness muscle meat that's been tenderized, dipped, and fried to order. We smother it in rich cream gravy and serve it with French fries, salad, and a bowl of beans of your choice (pinto or navy). We also throw in a thick slice of Texas toast for sopping purposes. It sells for $4.99.
Now, I know that is a lot of food, but we intended it for people who work hard or ski hard and have big appetites.
If you haven't tried our chicken fried steak, I recommend it. Come down and get a platter full. Besides, we are pushing toothpicks this week. I bought too many of them, and I've noticed that everyone who eats our steak leaves with a toothpick and a satisfied look. If that's not the case, you let me know, and I'll kill the toothpick salesman.

Capitan

Capitan hires new policeman

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan should have a new police officer by the first of the year.

Members of the board of trustees met in closed session Monday to interview three candidates for the job.

They emerged from the session, reconvened and hired Ron Lambrecht, who currently is at Holloman Air Force Base in Alamogordo. The other applicants for the job were David Perkins, who previously worked for the Ruidoso Police and sheriff's department, and Rick Emmons, who was with the Carrizozo police.

Lambrecht's starting date is January 1, but first Lambrecht must pass a physical and psychological examination. After he's on board, he must attend a two-week course for recertification as a law enforcement officer.

He was hired at a beginning salary of $1,400 a month. The addition of Lambrecht will double the village's police force to two men. Officer Lance Zink has been patrolling alone since Rudy Saiz left to join the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Mountain majesty, equine ecstasy

Sierra Blanca gleams in the background as a horse sporting a winter coat enjoys the cool temperatures and clear pastures that lie between Fort Stanton and Sierra Blanca Regional Airport. Even the noise from Lincoln County road department crews working to improve the connecting route's surface doesn't disturb the serenity of the New Mexico afternoon.

Headstart starting in Capitan

Headstart, a program designed to prepare four-year-old participant to enter the regular school system next year will open its doors this January at Capitan Elementary School.

Applications will be accepted through January 8 at the Region IX Cooperative Education Center of office, Room 212, 1400 Sudderth Drive, and Capitan Elementary. Income guidelines are used by the staff in qualifying children for the program, but also targeted are children with physical, hearing, speech, visual, academic and other handicaps.

To be eligible, children must be four years old on or before September 1, 1992.

Meetings set

The Capitan Board of Trustees next regular meeting will be at 7 p.m. January 11 at village hall.

A town hall meeting with State Representative John Underwood, D-Ruidoso, is set for 7 p.m. January 12 at the school complex.

Dance aids Rodeo Club

A New Year's Day dance to benefit the Lincoln County Rodeo Club will kick into gear about 8 p.m. Friday, January 1, at the Capitan Fair Building.

Dancers can twirl around the floor to the strumming and foot tapping of the Lone Star Express until midnight. Tickets are $3 per person, $5 per couple and $10 for a family.

New Year's Eve (tonight) is expected to be quiet in Capitan, with no special events planned.

Caution, discretion and designated drivers are advised, but if anyone needs help, the Capitan Police can be reached by calling 354-2909.

In other good news for village employees, the board approved a 5 percent raise. That translates to an average salary increase of about $50 per two-week pay period, said city clerk Debbie Cummins.

Trustees had held off on raises during budget planning last summer. They wanted to see how revenues fared during the year and told employees they would examine the possibility of raises in December.

Fresh starts are a way of life for Carrizozo's busy mayor

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Fluidoso News Staff Writer

All of her life, Cecilia Kuhnel broke into new careers without any training.

She studied speech in college, but went to work in banking. She took graduate education courses to spend time with a friend, then without any student teaching experience, was hired by one of the largest schools in New York City.

She moved up to higher-level teaching at what developed into one of the most respected colleges in the country.

And then, she decided to chuck it all and relocate to New Mexico where, without any background experience, she sold newspaper advertising, renovated a hotel, bought a lounge and was elected mayor of Carrizozo.

"I look at my whole life and I'm constantly starting something new and it's all on-the-job training," Kuhnel said during a recent interview in her office at city hall. "It's always stressful. Maybe I'm getting too old for this constant challenge."

Looking sleek and sophisticated, it's true that sometimes Kuhnel seems to fit more into a New York setting than Lincoln County when attending government meetings. But her fondness for Carrizozo and her dedication to forging a new economic future for the small town of 1,125 residents is obvious.

CECELIA KUHNEL

EARLY YEARS

Looking back over her life, Kuhnel explained it wasn't that teaching was a foreign career. Her father was a college professor and her mother a grade school teacher.

"But she spent her time at home while I was a child," Kuhnel said. "I was raised in an Irish Catholic household and attended the local parish Catholic grade school."

From there, she went on to a private Catholic girls' academy and Notre Dame College in Baltimore.

Tired of the cold weather and looking for a change, she finished her undergraduate work at the University of Miami in Coral Gables, earning a bachelor's degree in speech and theater.

She returned to New York, recuperating from a severe car accident, but after a few months, her father eyed her idle form and asked, "Surely, you're not going to waste all that education?"

Her first real job turned out to be in the unrelated field of banking.

"It was glamorous," she said. "I'd take people all over Manhattan. I worked for the chairman of the board of Manufacturer's Hanover Trust Bank."

At the same time, she decided to attend graduate school in the evenings at New York University. Kuhnel and a friend had dreams of traveling together in the summer. The friend planned on a career in education. Kuhnel took education courses, too.

After her first year, while still working for the bank, she passed the required test for a license as a New York city secondary teacher. A week later, she received her license in the mail and shortly after was advised by a friend of an opening at one of the largest schools in the area.

"I had no experience, but I went out for an interview," Kuhnel said.

"The chairman said he needed a speech and English teacher. I told him I had no student teaching experience. He said that was all right, he'd teach me. My mom was thrilled. She's always wanted me to be a teacher."

"I thought that was the last thing I wanted to be. I ended up teaching English, speech and drama."

She taught from 1959 to 1962, then married in January of that year and her son was born in December. The family moved to Garden City, Long Island and she taught in a nearby high school from 1963-65. One day, the chairman called her into his office and told her she was wasting her time and that she should be teaching in college. He introduced her to the chairman of a new endeavor called Nashua Community College, which later garnered a reputation as one of the top in the nation academically.

"I taught speech, theater and English department courses, first as part-time, but quickly moved into full-time," Kuhnel said. "It spun off to become the Department of Communications. I stayed at the college as a professor until 1983 while the school grew from its infancy to 23,000 students."

TIME FOR CHANGE

"I'd been teaching since 1959," she said. "In 1980, my son (Paul, now an attorney in Virginia) went to college and my dad died. I felt I needed a career change."

She found more than that. "I'd been going to New Mexico since I was a child," Kuhnel said. "We would spend every summer in Mescalero with my grandfather (Phillip D. Smith) who had a ranch there."

Her aunt and uncle (Father Jim Smith, who helped build St. Joseph Mission Church in Mescalero) both lived in New Mexico, because they suffered from tuberculosis. Her grandfather soon followed in the 1920s.

"Father being a teacher, we drove across country every summer, staying at guest houses of widows along the way," Kuhnel said. "There were no motels then."

"I fell in love with Mescalero and New Mexico. I thought the place was gorgeous. The Tularosa River flowed through the property and I remember picnics by that river. My aunt, Alice Weis, became the first postmistress at Mescalero."

Her grandfather sold the ranch back to the Mescalero Apache Tribe in 1968.

"So it was not such a strange transition," Kuhnel said. "I had a gorgeous home in New York, but I couldn't afford the taxes."

"I began buying land in Basin Valley in 1976 sight unseen."

She came out each year to oversee her investments and on one of those trips, "I found an old hotel that I thought I could renovate," she said. "The pieces fit and everything seemed to be flowing in the right direction."

The real move came in November 1983. Two months earlier she bought a house that caught her eye.

"I thought this town (Carrizozo) was great, although I had never lived in a small town," Kuhnel said. Some cultural shock accompanied the move.

"The first year or two I returned to New York five or six times, because I missed my colleagues at college," Kuhnel said. "I missed close personal friendships, missed the handiness of shopping and I felt isolated from a lifestyle that was diametrically opposed to the one I had adopted."

"I had to learn to shop for food differently. I made long lists. I couldn't just run to the corner for something. You learn to program yourself differently when you have to drive hundreds of miles (for certain items)."

She poured her energy and dreams into the hotel. But mid-way through renovation, an adobe wall collapsed, smashing the hotel and her dreams.

That was in 1984 and she was devastated. Fortunately, she was offered a job selling newspaper advertisements, another position for which she had no training and a new challenge.

"I was still doing that when I ran for mayor in 1986 (as a write-in)," Kuhnel said. By that time, she had made the commitment to stay, allowing her two-year leave of absence at the college back East to run out.

She received 36 more votes than her opponent, but a challenge over the ballots went to court and was sustained.

"My accountant said I had to buy a business and that's when I decided to buy the old Nike Tavern (named after the missile at White Sands)," Kuhnel said. "Ed O'Brien had it for 26 years. I renamed it Club Carrizo."

She closed the sale in November 1988, but found herself again embarking on a new business without any background.

"I didn't even drink in college," Kuhnel said. "I had a lot to learn."

MADAM MAYOR

She embarked on her second run for mayor in 1990 as a regular candidate on the ballot. Her win this time was closer, just three votes.

"There was a write-in candidate that put on a fine campaign and now serves on the board," she said.

"(Being mayor) was another new challenge."

City Clerk Carol Schlarb helped her meet that challenge since Kuhnel hadn't served as a town trustee first, the usually route for a new mayor.

She felt compelled to run for mayor, Kuhnel said, "because in the three years I had been here I saw the town start to go down. I had almost a 10-year overview from the 1970s."

"I felt the town had so much to offer that perhaps a new view of a relative newcomer might help. The community has all the ingredients to attract business: a railroad, two main highways and an airport, an industrial park, a golf course, a recreation center and a pool, much from the generosity of Jackie Spancer.

"I had hoped I would attract progress and reverse what appeared to be a decline in business and opportunity. I had heard over the years that business opportunities had come our way, but didn't happen. I don't know why."

Unfortunately, a Superfund case involving the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and a defunct mine at the edge of town exploded during the early part of her term.

"The EPA took up the bitter part of two years, day in and day out and they're still not through," Kuhnel said.

Despite her efforts, at least one more business has closed and the future of another is in question.

"The board and I have made improvements," she said. "We resurfaced the Brunswick lanes in the recreation center and signed up a new manager."

"When the school district gave the community pool back to the town, the trustees accepted the challenge and have made improvement there."

"I felt the airport truly was a great asset and established a new committee with new members that included pilots like Virgil Hall and Dr. David Rouleau."

"We put out requests for proposals (RFP) for an airport manager and hired Hal Marx, who's absolutely wonderful. We have more traffic now than we've ever had."

"The board has decided to put out an RFP for engineering services to get money from the Federal Aviation Administration for a new taxiway and runways."

"It looks positive that we will at least get money for phase one of a three phase project that would cost about $1.4-million," she said.

Kuhnel has succeeded in grabbing state and federal money on other projects.

"We've had one street project completed," she said. "The prior administration put in an application through the Community Development Block Grant.

"I felt we should keep moving forward with street improvements and requested $550,000 in a block grant. We received $485,000. Dennis Engineering (out of Roswell) will oversee paving projects on those streets beginning in March. I look forward to continue to apply to complete all of our street projects."

The mayor and trustees' actions prompted others to get involved. Resident Fred English donated $1,000 to enhance one area "because like most other people in Carrizozo, he has deep affection for the town," Kuhnel said.

The State Highway Department was persuaded to fix the center medians this year. "It hadn't been done in 30 years," she said.

And her administration has been working with the State Engineer's Office to get all the city wells registered properly and accurately.

"The city has bent over backward to help new businesses," she said. "It went to the county for money to help bring the old power house building up to code (for a business that later set up shop there). We have a good work force and low taxes."

One of the biggest negatives pointed out by businesses looking at the area is the high cost of electricity, she said. "That's a real detriment to energy-intensive businesses."

"I'd really like to see a business come in and employ at least 10 people from this community." To that end, she has been pursuing a meat processing plant and has pushed for a manufacturing business related to the nearby White Sands Missile Range.

"It'd be easy shipping from here," she pointed out. She'd also like to increase the police department to a full time position or better.

Government in the form of the city, county and the school district are the major employers in Carrizozo. The New Horizons facility probably is next. Most of the stores are family businesses, she said.

"I really believe that rural America is as much the backbone of this country as are major cities," Kuhnel said.

"I think our present board is open minded, forward minded and willing to review all options I could possibly bring to them," she said.

"A mayor's job is a full-time job if done right and most public servants in rural towns have their own businesses that eat up time. If a mayor is able to travel, coordinate and identify opportunities, the process would be more rapid than it is."

"I feel sad young people have to go elsewhere to seek opportunities. It's hard on them and their families. The board is trying to move the town toward a larger and more diversified economy."

"I'd like to see the railroad come back and feel it would if the right business was here. Years ago, there was a round house here. People tell me everyone came to town and shopped up to 10 p.m., people were out on the street. But small towns all suffer with the general shift of the economy."

"I think there needs to be more emphasis on rural economic development because big cities are not for everybody."

Mayor Kuhnel confers about town business with Carrizozo City Clerk Carol Schlarb, who she says has been a great help over the last two years.

Santa Cops show the spirit of the season

Thanks to Santa Cops, this Christmas was a day to be remembered for 266 families, including 447 children, in Lincoln County.

In the true spirit of Christmas, a group of dedicated volunteers have worked for more than a month to be sure that the needy families and individuals in this county enjoyed good food, warm clothing and gifts on this joyous day.

Lou Wardwell has been at the helm in this massive undertaking, and she's done a great job, but it takes many people to gather food, clothing, toys and gifts for so many people — and then they have to sort it, pack it, wrap it and deliver it.

That's where volunteers come in, and they've dedicated many hundreds of hours to this year's Santa Cops program. These Santa Cops helpers have operated a workshop at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center that has been operations center for assembling the Christmas baskets.

Volunteers also have raised money through various events, including the pancake supper at Hamburger King, the Santa Cops Variety Show at the civic center, Toys for Tots sponsored by Lincoln Cablevision and Koats for Kids through Varnadore Cleaners. And, of course, none of this would have worked without a generous community to pitch in with money and donations!

Thanks Lou, Santa Cops volunteers and all the people of this county who gave what they could to help someone else this Christmas.

Yes, Ruidoso, there is a Santa Claus

TO THE EDITOR:

The following description of an event which occurred on Christmas morning may seem contrived, I promise it is not.

This morning I have been convinced there really is a Santa Claus. After my family opened our presents I went upstairs to my office from which I have been battling the MRS. I noticed there was a FAX message on my machine, I thought it was simply a Christmas wish from one of my associates. It was not.

Following is the exact hand written cover sheet message: "It's wonderful to see DOE hanging a 180 degree in mid-air on the verge of the inauguration. You might say the MRS program is self-destructing. Thank you, Santa."

The document was, The Radiation Exchange, Volume 11 No. 23, Bulletin Edition, December 22, 1992, published in Washington, D.C.

None of us knew there was a deadline by which a completed MRS site agreement had to be finalized, October 1992. Everyone who fought against the Mescalero MRS is to be commended and praised. Their activities delayed progress on the program that pushed it past the October 1992 deadline. You have accomplished the near impossible. Thank you from us all.

Following is a brief summary of the bulletin:

Energy Secretary James Watkins has set new policies pertaining to Nuclear High Level Waste. Nuclear utilities will be reimbursed for construction of on site storage facilities. The waste fund will be reclassified to allow on site storage reimbursement. Some High Level Waste will be stored on federal government sites. Recommended sites are Savannah River and Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. The book is now closed.

See, Santa is alive and well. That's a refreshing thought.

A very merry Christmas to all and to all a good night.

Bill Petty
Dallas, Texas

Changed MRS plans are good news

TO THE EDITOR:

Your front page story of Christmas Eve, "MRS plans change," lifted a huge burden of depression. Hallelujah! No nuke waste here in this magnificent paradise of the Sacramento!

The Sixth Report to the U.S. Congress from the Nuclear Waste Technical Review Board (NWTREB), just issued (December 1992), reaches similar conclusions: "The MRS does not provide long-term solutions...Spent nuclear fuel and high-level waste will continue to be stored at a centralized facility or at reactor sites until decisions are made about the permanent disposal of that waste..."

In 1992 the NWTREB visited a number of major countries with nuclear waste problems and suggests in its latest report that the nuclear utilities in the U.S. should take far more responsibility "for managing and storing the spent nuclear fuel and high-level waste" rather than depending on the government (us as taxpayers) to deal with this nightmare."

What this means for all of us to whom Sierra Blanca stands as a beacon of hope is that we can now get on with our lives. Our small part of the world is no longer threatened with economic and health catastrophes from an unspeakable radiation accident. For now, anyway.

What this also means, however, is that we must join hands with the Mescalero Apaches and come up with a clean and benign economic development plan that we can all be proud of, one that puts people to work in a safe setting and prevents us from ever having to face such a dangerous possibility again.

When to keep the kids home

With the fall and winter months come cold flu season. And, because youngsters can seem healthy when they're actually sick, parents are sometimes confused about when to keep their children home from school or day care.

Yogesh Pandya, M.D., Methodist Children's Hospital chief of staff, suggests the following guidelines for deciding whether to keep your child home:

—appearance/behavior, unusually tired, pale, difficult to wake, confused or irritable, with lack of appetite.

—diarrhea, three or more watery stools in 24-hour period, especially if the child looks or acts ill.

—ear infection, children may attend school after receiving medical treatment for ear infections. Untreated infections can cause permanent hearing loss and even more serious problems.

—eyes, thick mucus draining from the eye, or pink eye. Children can usually attend school soon after medical treatment.

—fever, temperature of 102 degrees (orally) or higher and confusion.

—lice/scabies - children may not return to school until their hair has been treated with lice shampoo and the dead eggs (nits) have been combed out with a special comb. Children with scabies can go to school after treatment has started.

—rash, body rash, especially with fever or itching.

—sore throat, especially with fever or swollen glands in the neck.

—vomiting, vomiting two or more times in the last 24 hours.

—common cold, children may attend school if they have only minor cold symptoms (symptoms other than those described above.) Children with long-term coughs or nose discharge should be seen by a doctor.

Score a touchdown on your energy budget by making sure that your home has the right level of insulation throughout. Insulation can significantly reduce your fuel bills because it reduces the amount of energy needed to heat and cool your home. In fact, it can be one of the best investments you make in your home because of the comfort and energy savings it provides.

For more information about installing insulation in your home, call or visit your local Texas-New Mexico Power Company office and ask for the free fact sheet, "Straight Talk about Insulation."

Dear Joyce:

I am enclosing the referral agreement that we spoke about concerning Fairbanks Capital Corporation.

I talked to the representative of Fairbanks and he said that you were very professional and that he enjoyed working with you. That's really nice to hear in our business - because all too often we do not hear any compliments - only complaints.

I hope you and yours have a great holiday season - and a prosperous New Year.

Please duly execute the referral agreement and return to me for inclusion in the Fairbanks File.

Sincerely,

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF ELECTION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that there will be an election held on Tuesday, January 12, 1993, to elect one (1) member to the Board of Directors of Sun Valley Sanitation District.

E. N. Pennington has been nominated for the (6) six-year term ending the second Tuesday of January, 1999.

Any tax-paying elector living in the district is eligible as a write-in candidate for the six (6) year position.

Eligible to vote are all tax-paying electors of the district. "Tax-paying elector of a district" means a person qualified to vote at general elections in the state, who either has paid or incurred a general tax liability on real property within the district in the twelve (12) months immediately preceding a designated time or event.

The polling place for the voters is the Alto-Bonito Community Hall (Alto Substation, Bonito Volunteer Fire Department Building), Alto, New Mexico. Polls will open at 8:00 A.M. and close at 7:00 P.M. on Tuesday, January 12, 1993. Results of the election will be reported to the Board of Directors at a special meeting immediately following the closing of the polls on January 12, 1993. The meeting of the Board of Directors will be held at the Alto-Bonito Community Hall, Alto, New Mexico.

AMENDED NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE

On February 10, 1993, at 10:00 a.m., at the east entrance of the Lincoln County Courthouse, Carrizozo, New Mexico, I will offer for sale and sell the below-described property to the highest bidder for cash, subject to approval of the Court. Amounts due on date of sale are $110,289.54, including interest to date of sale, and costs of sale.

All pursuant to a judgment in the captioned cause filed on November 10, 1992, in the District Court of Lincoln County, New Mexico, wherein the Court decreed that Plaintiff's mortgage is a first lien, and foreclosed Plaintiff's mortgage on the following described real property:

Lot 17, Magado Creek Estates, Lincoln County, New Mexico, as shown by the official plat thereof filed in the office of the County Clerk and Ex-Officio Recorder of Lincoln County, New Mexico, in Tube No. 643 (located 1/8th mile East of Highway 37 on Forest Road 488, Ruidoso, New Mexico).

LEGAL NOTICE IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

ARLENE M. BROWN, a/k/a ARLENE BROWN VORDERMANN, et al.,

Defendants.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE

Under and by virtue of a Stipulated Judgment, Decree of foreclosure and Order of Sale issued by the United States District Court of the District of New Mexico on November 20, 1992, in the above-entitled action, wherein the plaintiff obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure against defendants Arlene M. Brown a/k/a Arlene Brown Vordermann and Paul Vordermann a/k/a Paul D. Vordermann, in the amount of $302,365.68, together with interest thereon, as set forth in said judgment, I am commanded to sell all that certain lot, piece and parcel of land situate in the County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico, hereinafter described.

The subject matter of the above action is a suit brought by the plaintiff upon a promissory note from defendants Arlene M. Brown a/k/a Arlene Brown Vordermann, and Paul Vordermann a/k/a Paul D. Vordermann, and for foreclosure of the mortgage given to secure said note.

Defendant, Presbyterian Healthcare Services, also has a valid lien on the real property in the amount of $478,054.97, but said lien is subject to and inferior to the lien of the United States.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on January 26, 1993, at 1:00 o'clock P.M. on that day, at the front door of the Lincoln County Courthouse at 300 Central Avenue, Carrizozo, New Mexico, I will, in obedience to said Order of Sale and Decree of Foreclosure, sell the following-described real property located at Ruidoso, Lincoln County, New Mexico, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy plaintiff's judgment unit 7 of Sierra

Professional Center, Ruidoso, Lincoln County, New Mexico, as the same is established and identified by Declaration and Plats recorded December 31, 1980 in Book 67 of Miscellaneous Records, pages 1107 to 1134, both inclusive; by the Amended Declaration recorded October 7, 1982, in Book 81 of Miscellaneous Records, pages 1089 to 1097 both inclusive, and by the Amended Declaration recorded September 10, 1984, in Book 95 of Miscellaneous Records, pages 257 to 283 both inclusive, and as further shown by the plat thereof filed in the office of the County Clerk and Ex-officio Recorder of Lincoln County, January 2, 1981, in Tube No. 727;

TOGETHER with said unit's undivided 17.1% interest in the common areas thereof;

TOGETHER with all improvements thereon;

SUBJECT to easements, restrictions and reservations of record;

FURTHER SUBJECT to taxes for the year 1984, and subsequent years.

Together with the hereditaments and appurtenances belonging to said real estate in any way pertaining to said premises, to satisfy the plaintiff's judgment in the total amount of $304,452.73 as of the date of the sale, together with interest accruing therein and all costs of said sale.

Said sale shall be to the highest and best bidder, payment must be in cash, in lawful money of the United States; provided, however, that the plaintiff shall be entitled to bid all or any part of its judgment.

DATED this 30 day of November, 1992.

Stickers let you Share with Wildlife

That awesome New Mexico golden-red sunset glowing on gray-blue clouds is the backdrop of a new poster featuring the buffalo — the species most representative of the West — available free to purchasers of the 1992 Wildlife Conservation Sticker.

The sticker, authorized by the 1992 state legislature, provides a mechanism for the nonsporting public to support wildlife species and habitat in New Mexico. They are available now. While supplies last, limited-edition posters of the stamp art will go with the purchase of the sticker at $10.50.

Until now, the wildlife agency's sole support was through sale of hunting, fishing and trapping licenses.

Revenues from sale of the 1992 Wildlife Conservation Sticker will be allocated through the Game and Fish Department's Share with Wildlife program. The first project will be to contribute to developing and printing a guide to wildlife viewing areas identified by the Watchable Wildlife project.

The conservation stickers are available at all Department of Game and Fish offices and from about 220 vendors statewide. The poster, 18 by 24 inches and suitable for framing, is a first-run limited-edition print of 2,500, signed and numbered by the photographer, Department of Game and Fish employee Don MacCarter.

A detail will be available along with the poster.

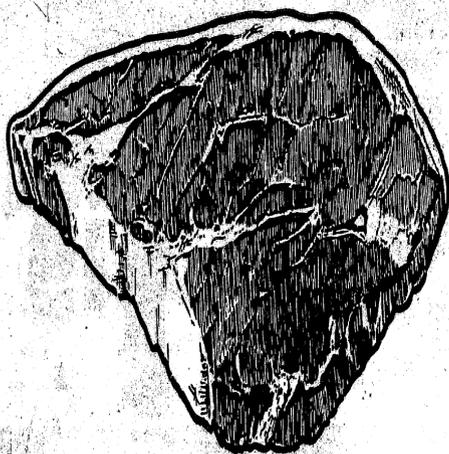

Share with Wildlife was implemented in New Mexico more than 10 years ago to fund wildlife programs that would benefit species that would otherwise be unfunded, or under-funded. The program allows New Mexico taxpayers to donate all or part of their state income refunds to the program. Share with Wildlife species of concern are those which might be considered threatened or endangered, such as the desert bighorn sheep and the Mexican wolf, and the Socorro isopod (an invertebrate), and studies of the meadow jumping mouse, Jemez Mountains salamanders, bats, frogs, turtles, mollusks and crustaceans.

The program has also funded habitat enhancements, such as restoration of riparian areas and rehabilitation of injured wildlife.

Share with Wildlife funds have also been authorized to help start the Watchable Wildlife program in New Mexico.

Anyone, including the hunting and fishing public, can purchase the Wildlife Conservation Sticker. Call a Department of Game and Fish office or a local vendor. There is no limit on the number purchased. One poster will be issued for each stamp.

LET US PROTECT OUR PLANET; IT'S THE ONLY ONE WE HAVE

Do you ever take time to look at the world around you? In some places it is still very beautiful and unspoiled, but in all too many areas our civilization has taken its toll. In ever-increasing amounts we are polluting our air and water, turning the land into a gigantic trash dump and eradicating all forms of plant and animal life, at the rate of one species each year. Not all of these things can be helped, nor are they necessarily the result of negligence, but with our population growth and diminishing wilderness areas it behooves us to keep all of these unfortunate actions to a minimum. Learn at your House of Worship that God gave us our world and all its natural resources to use, but not to destroy. Thank Him for this evidence of His love which is all around us, and resolve to do all you can to help preserve it.
