Ruidoso Realtors have your number

Ruidoso Realtors want residents and property owners to know that they've got house numbers to give away free.

Many area houses do not have addresses on them, and members of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors will provide numbers and holders to anyone who needs them.

Stop by any local real estate office and pick up your house numbers, call your Realtor or call the Board of Realtors office, 257-4750.

Council will meet

The Ruidoso Village Council will meet in an informal workshop session at 9 a.m. Tuesday, August 3, in council chambers at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center.

The meeting has been called to review the village personnel ordinance.

The new mayor and the council have scheduled a series of informational workshops on various subjects.

The meeting is open to the public.

Campers visit here

Camp Enchantment campers, ages seven to 17 who are all currently or previously receiving treatment for some form of cancer, have hit Ruidoso.

Because of their medical conditions, most of the campers wouldn't have been able to attend regular summer camps. Knowing this, the American Cancer Society and the New Mexico Childrens Cancer Foundation set up Camp Enchantment.

The kids have been traveling around Southern New Mexico all week. The group of 86 campers hit the Ruidoso Area Wednesday and will stay until Thursday.

While here, they took part in a shootout at Flying J Ranch, roller skated at Y-Knot Park, went on a cookout, and generally just had fun.

The campers will meet with the jockeys at the racetrack, go fishing and visit the Museum of the Horse today.

State officials mum

Hubbard makes a deal on Texas track

Midpointe Racing, a Texas corporation with R.D. Hubbard president, merged with Lone Star Jockey Club last Friday to pursue a $95 million horse track in Grand Prairie near Dallas, Texas.

According to a Dallas Morning News story Saturday, Lone Star, the original group controls 50.1 percent and Midpointe has 49.9 percent. The merger requires approval by the Texas Racing Commission.

Lone Star and Midpointe were two of the original four groups that applied for the Class 1 license last year for Dallas-Fort Worth.

After contested hearings, Lone Star was granted the license last October by the Texas Racing Commission.

Three weeks ago, a judge ruled Lone Star's Class 1 license was invalid.

Grand Prairie Mayor Charles England, concerned that Grand Prairie's half-cent sales tax and resultant $65 million commitment might not survive a protracted legal battle that would keep the funds in limbo, brought together Hubbard and Jim Musselman, Lone Star's president.

After three hours of negotiations, a deal was cut.

In a press release on the merger, Musselman was quoted as saying,

"The state wins, Texas Racing Commission wins, the Metroplex and Grand Prairie win and the horsemen and sports fans of Texas win. There's been enough acrimony on both sides. Dee Hubbard has a great operating record with one of the largest and most successful tracks in the country (Hollywood Park.) We're looking forward to walking down the road together."

Hubbard also is reportedly contributing about $7 million in cash to the project, which could hasten the financing process.

Hubbard is co-owner of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track with Ed Allred.

His commercial investments in Lincoln County also include The Links at Sierra Blanca Golf Course, a PGA championship approved course designed by senior golf whiz Jim Colbert.

Hubbard's Museum of the Horse features the Ann Stradling collection of saddles, buggies and Indian artifacts.

The Sports Theater located near the track offers big screen entertainment, like major boxing matches.

The Hubbard Foundation is a philanthropic institution that has awarded education an art with millions of dollars.

Forever Fern

Fern Sawyer, popular Lincoln County rancher relaxes after her speech at the regular meeting of the Lincoln County Democrats. Sawyer is a member of both the Cowboy Hall of Fame and the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Raised in a staunch Democrat family, she regularly attends national meetings and conventions. In New Mexico, Sawyer leads the annual State Fair parade.

Decisive council tends to business

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Dealing tough love to some Ruidoso residents and businessman, the village council turned decision makers on several long standing issues.

With an of economy words, the council in the space of two hours: lifted the sign ordinance moratorium; turned down Ruidoso Little Theatre's bid to use the Civic Events Center; vowed better village planning through workshops; annexed Carrizo Lodge property into the village; appointed board members while taking action to separate two boards; and rejected bids for Grindstone's Hall property, indicating the village could put more recreational facilities in its parks.

In a heartfelt show of gratitude, village employees showed their appreciation for their recent pay increases by spending some of that money on engraved pens presented to the mayor and village council.

Mayor Jerry Shaw pounded a new engraved gavel given to her by Mike Sergeant.

Planning and zoning chairman Robert Donaldson reported to the council that the original sign ordinance was a well-written document drafted in 1988, and not during the boom years as past reported at the council meetings.

Donaldson said enforcement was the key to the success of the ordinance.

Shaw said that she did not want to hurt any business that may have purchased banners under the moratorium, so she asked the council to consider a deadline that would allow these businessmen to get their money's worth out of their existing banner.

Councilor Joe Gomez suggested enforcing the ordinance after Labor Day weekend and the other councilors agreed.

Non-profit organizations will be allowed to place banners in four village areas: tennis court fence, free parking area, poles at the "Y" and the Civic Events Center.

The council moved to allow employees, at the discretion of the village manager, to assist planning and zoning in enforcement.

Stage lights darkened at the Civic Events Center for the Ruidoso Little League.

Although councilors agreed that the long-time group was deserving of community support, they denied extended use of the center as a temporary home for the thespians.

Shaw said consideration has to be given that would allow for fairness to everyone, referring to a request for a reduced rate.

Village manager Ron Wicker said the group was asking for a one-time use only at a reduced cost. He recommended the council negotiate a fee. He was not for any extended use of the center by the group.

James said he was in sympathy with the little theater, but said he feared opening activities to any prolonged run would invite problems.

Bennett told James that the group is looking for a permanent home.

Residents pay tribute to Alto's founder

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Memories of a village founder were shared in a celebration at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club on Friday.

The ceremonies were in honor of Don Blaugrund, founder of Alto, whose memorial was dedicated Friday.

"He had a dream that he wanted to build a subdivision like ones that he had seen in California," said Colleen Wilson. "There was nothing out here when he started."

Blaugrund died in 1990 after a battle with cancer, but his legacy in Alto was already firmly in place.

In 1965, Blaugrund's family had sold the American Furniture Store in El Paso and from that sale they were able to give Blaugrund $1 million so that he could go out and start his own business.

Blaugrund had a dream to start a resort community in New Mexico.

He moved into the area in 1965, and brought Gene Wilson with him to head up the construction.

Blaugrund then purchased the first tract of land from Union Industrial Corporation and George Creel.

In 1967, construction began on the first nine holes of the golf course. The back nine on the course were later completed by a different architect.

"When we first got here, this was all a wheat field," said Wilson of the golf course. "It was all a farm."

While not involved in the golf course, Blaugrund spent his time planning and developing the rest of the village.

In May of 1981, Blaugrund had the construction of 72 of the village's townhomes started.

"He worked really hard to make something out here," said Wilson.

Please see Residents, page 2A

The largest memorial for Don Blaugrund sits just off of the parking lot and hole number one at the Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club.

The fountain off of hole number one, recognizes the accomplishments of Don Blaugrund in establishing the Village of Alto.

The smaller part of the memorial sits off of hole number seven consisting of a blue granite stone with a nameplate and a smaller lake and fountain.

Enchanted day

The Kids of Camp Enchantment, all present or former cancer patients, visited the Wild West surroundings of the Flying J Ranch on Wednesday. The kids were able to get a taste of western cuisine, watch a western show, and watch and participate in the shootout at the ranch.

Residents— Regional promoters plan fam tour for prisoners

The memorial, in the works for more than two years, is in two parts at Alto Country Club.

The first part, which is the bigger memorial, is just off the tee at the first hole of the course. It consists of a blue-granite stone, that had originally been in Blaugrund's front yard, with a plaque chronicling his contribution to the town. The plaque was crafted by artist Lincoln Fox.

Also off the first green is a fountain that has been dedicated to Blaugrund's memory.

The second part of the memorial is a stone and fountain in the lake off of the seventh hole. The plaque in this area is smaller, stating only that it is in memory of Blaugrund.

"Lincoln really likes for his work to flow with nature," said Wilson.

Wilson and Betty Wright spent the last two years raising money and commissioning the artist for the memorial.

The official dedication of the memorials was Friday night in a ceremony with the Wilsons, other key members of the building of Alto and a member of Blaugrund's family.

Some inmates from the state correctional facility in Los Lunas may be vacationing in Southeastern New Mexico this fall.

But it will be a working vacation, according to organizers of the familiarity, or fam, tour. The visit is in the preliminary planning stages for the inmates who work for the State Tourism Department answering the 1-800 line, according to members of Apache Trails.

The working tour is being contemplated as a way to provide a first hand view of the area to the inmates who answer inquiries from prospective visitors on the state's tourism line.

The trip is tentatively journeyed as a fast-paced two-day journey through Ruidoso, Alamogordo, Cloudcroft, and the surrounding areas, with Apache Trails planning the Alamogordo and Cloudcroft portions of the tour.

Since the trip is still in relatively early planning stages, it has only been discussed among the organizers so far, and not with any state agency representatives who could approve or deny the trip.

Apache Trails, if the fam tour is approved, will propose stops at White Sands, Sunspot, the Toy Train Depot and Alamogordo Zoo, and The Lodge in Cloudcroft.

The inmates, whose job it is to provide general tourism information to callers, would have a chance to quickly see as much of the area as possible.

"As you can see with the schedule, this is no vacation for them," said Ellen Campbell, president of Apache Trails.

And, while the idea of inmates visiting tourist attractions may be a new idea for Southeastern New Mexico, it's not new to the participants in the Los Lunas work program. It's standard practice to take the tourism telephone crews on several trips each year to see New Mexico tourist attractions.

"They can't sell what they can't see," said Nancy Radziewicz of Ruidoso, who is putting together a proposal for the Ruidoso and Lincoln County leg of the trip.

"All of the plans are still tentative and it is just an idea," said Radziewicz, who was reluctant to talk about specifics until the idea is endorsed by state agencies. "Nothing has been approved by anybody."

Possible tourist sites might include area museums, the racetrack, the Ruidoso Civic Events Center, golf courses and other area attractions.

"We need to treat them right," said Radziewicz.

All of the plans would have to be approved by the various state agencies involved, including the corrections department, the state tourism department and the warden of the Los Lunas Correctional Facility.

The inmates are a part of a job training program that is currently in progress in Los Lunas. The program has the prisoners answering tourist inquiries from throughout the nation via a 1-800 New Mexico telephone number.

All of the inmates are in the minimum restricted area of the Los Lunas facility. That means they are only under light supervision. The inmates are all serving time for minor felonies, such as flagrant DWI violations, or theft.

"They are all hand picked and pose no real threat to the general populous," said Campbell.

According to tourist bureau director Lisa Storey of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, who has toured the facility, the inmates each have a small workspace equipped with a telephone, computer and map of New Mexico.

When an inmate receives a call, they talk to the caller and answer any questions that the caller may have about New Mexico. The inmates are monitored and given strict instructions that they are not allowed to promote one area of the state over another.

The inmates also have access to a mailing service to send out information about the area to the callers.

But, depending on the inmate's knowledge of the area, it is easier to talk about certain areas over another.

When The Ruidoso News called the 1-800 number, a man named Ernest answered the phone. He was asked what activities there were to do outside in Ruidoso.

"There's a lot of lakes around," Ernest said. "If you like outdoor activities, there is a lot to do in Ruidoso."

Ernest was later asked what other mountainous areas there are in the state. The News specifically asked Ernest what kind of lakes there were in the Grants area. He mentioned several, including Bluewater lake, a lake in which his father fishes. Ernest described in detail the types and sizes of fish being caught in the lake.

"Coming from a person who does this kind of thing for a living, they are very good at what they do," said Storey.

The program is designed to help the inmates learn valuable skills that they can use once they get out of prison and try to find a job.

"It's job training and anything that involves training is connected to rehabilitation," said Los Lunas Warden John Shanks.

The openings in the program are listed on a bulletin board at the Los Lunas facility and the inmates are required to apply for it as if it was a regular job.

The most qualified applicants are picked and assigned to the position.

As a benefit for the inmates, four times a year, they get to take a familiarity trip to various areas of the state such as the one proposed in Southeastern New Mexico.

"It's one of the benefits of the job," said Lou Armijo of the corrections department.

But James was concerned about setting precedent.

"What if a Bible class wants to come in and use the facility to hold classes? I think we would be opening up a can of worms and I'd have to vote no against this all the way," James said.

Councilor Bill Karn moved to allow the village manager to negotiate with the group for the one play.

Potter said this type of problem should not come before the village council, but should be an administrative decision.

"We have a stipulated rate, a stipulated use, and we have said we are going to work very hard toward conventions at the convention center. I guess I'm a little confused as to why this is before us," Potter said.

Shaw asked if Potter meant the administration should stick with the policy and procedures set forth.

"Absolutely," Potter said. "If we make these decisions and change the rates, we are opening a big can of worms. I don't want to be in-involved in changing the rate structure until we are in the position to do that for everyone."

Councilor Joe Gomez noted another group was turned down recently under a similar situation.

The motion to allow Ruidoso Little Theatre use of the center at a reduced rate failed by a four to two vote. Councilors Karn and Barbara Duff voted aye, James, Gomez, Potter and Frank Cummins voted nay.

In an attempt to familiarize the council with departments and assist in the future development of those departments, Mayor Shaw and the council scheduled a series of Tuesday morning workshops, beginning next Tuesday with the Personnel Department.

In a change of direction, the council indicated they wanted to keep the Hall property, previously put on the sales block to fill the village's parks and recreation budget needs.

The property was originally purchased for about $250,000, has been appraised at about $110,000 and received one bid prior to Tuesday for about $60,000.

Real estate broker Barbara Willard declared herself a broker and as someone also interested in buying the property. She made a proposal matching the appraised value, but the council rejected any and all proposals, as they reserved the right to do in a previous council meeting.

Village clerk Tammie Maddox will place the Hall property on the agenda for the next council meeting. It was the consensus of the council that the village should retain ownership for future recreational development.

Under board appointments, the council approved Shaw's recommendation of Samuel Edmonds and Bill Hirschfeld to the Lodgers Tax Advisory Board (LTAB), Lynette Moore reappointed to LTAB and Rene Bustamonte to the Parks and Recreation Board.

Shaw asked the council to think about separating the Ruidoso Transportation Board and the Ruidoso Arts and Film Commission from the village government.

Shaw said both boards have a high absenteeism and neither board meets at village hall. She instructed village clerk Tammie Maddox to place the item on the next council agenda.

Shaw said the Monitored Retrieval Storage Committee should be expanded into a two-county committee, incorporating more elected officials from government entities in both Lincoln and Otero County.

The director of the Economic Development Commission of Lincoln County (EDCLC) indicated to the council that the EDCLC has been working for years without knowledge of property with which they could refer business prospects.

Director Karen Kopp requested the council provide an inventory list of properties she can use in soliciting business.

She said she is asking all "entities" of Lincoln County to provide the information for her.

Kopp allowed plenty of time to get the job done. She told the council she plans to have the list completed by December 31, 1993.

Kopp also asked if the council would consider giving incentives to businesses for moving to Ruidoso, however she gave no examples of what she wants.

Councilor Frank Potter summed up Kopp's report.

"She has to build up an inventory of what is available in Lincoln County through the EDCLC. Ruidoso may have nothing to offer, the county may not have anything to offer, Ruidoso Downs might not, Carrizozo might and Lincoln might. What she is after is to identify enough of that regional inventory of services; incentives and infrastructure throughout Lincoln County."

"All she's saying to us tonight is to play your cards and let Barbara (Duff) who is our EDCLC representative go to Cleatus (Richards) and ask Cleatus what is the inventory property available, come back to the county and we'll vote if there are any incentives," Potter said.

According to Kopp, she needs a guideline when prospects ask her what the village can give them if they move to the area.

"Right now, I really don't know," Kopp said. "I get around it till they find a building. We've not got to that point yet."

The council moved to ask village planner to provide her a list.

In other council action, the board:

—approved Mayor Pro-Tem James for the Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs Joint Use Board.

—scheduled an appeal to be heard on August 10 for Robert E. Hollis regarding a variance for his property on the C.E. Webb Tract.

—approved Ordinance 93-18 relating to the use of mandatory corrections fees and establishing a mandatory judicial education fee.

—approved Ordinance 93-12 annexing certain tracts of land owned by C-Net Resorts, Inc. and Carrizo Lodge Condominium Association and designated the property C-2 zoning.

—started action on barricading a problem area of Two Rivers Park known for loud parties and excessive drinking.

Ruidoso Downs mayor casts the tie breaker on $1,000 for Apache Trails

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst got a little treat Monday night during the Downs Board of Trustees regular meeting.

Hayhurst got to vote for only the third time in his 17 months as the mayor.

Hayhurst's vote came in the decision to grant a request from the lodger's tax advisory board to give Apache Trails $2,000.

Trustee Judy Miller made a motion to give the group $2,000, but it soon died for lack of a second.

"Well, will anybody second a motion to give them $1,000," asked Miller.

The board voted on the issue, Ray Hayhurst and Charlotte Craig voting "no," and Miller and Margie Morales voting "yes," ending up in a two-two tie.

Mayor Hayhurst quickly voted "yes," ending the tie and giving the group $1,000.

"I really didn't understand what their objective was and I didn't really see anything that could help Ruidoso Downs," said Ray Hayhurst.

Also hurting Apache Trails was the lack of representation of the group at the meeting.

"If they don't show, I don't feel like they really want anything," said Ray Hayhurst.

Officers of Apache Trails, however, said that they did not realize that they had to be at the meeting.

"I guess I was unaware of the procedure," said Apache Trails President Ellen Campbell.

"I thought that basically all of the questions had been answered at the lodgers tax board meeting. Different communities function in different ways."

Campbell said that if she realized she needed to be there, she would have been.

"This is certainly no slur on anyone," said Campbell. "It was just my lack of understanding. It's not their problem, but mine."

The board unanimously approved another lodgers tax request for the Friends of Smokey for $5,000.

The lodgers tax money will go to the groups for advertising and tourist promotion.

Karen Kopp of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln reported to the board of trustees and asked for an inventory of land that the village owns that could be utilized by an incoming business. Kopp also requested a list of incentives that she could show businesses to possibly entice them into coming into the area.

"When I talk to businesses that's the first thing they ask about, incentives," said Kopp.

The board will attempt to give Kopp the needed information by her deadline, the end of December.

The board also approved a budget clean up resolution. The resolution will simply adjust the figures on the 1992-93 budget to be sure that they properly lined up with what was actually spent. This involves no extra spending or any kind of sneakiness, just a simple adjustment of the numbers.

"It is just a few figures on paper, no real money is involved at all," said village clerk Leann Weibrecht.

For the police department, the board approved the purchase of a new $1,000 computer system, a pair of $700 handheld radios and a new set of uniforms for $2,697.

The uniforms will be blue instead of the brown color of the current uniforms.

"They like the blue better because they feel it will make them look a little dressier," said Weibrecht.

The board also approved hiring a new communications and dispatch officer, Lance Zink.

Cyndi Miller, the current senior CDO in the Downs, was recognized with a plaque for her 10 years of service.

Parks & Rec plans field trip

The Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department is offering a field trip for children to Lincoln on Sunday, August 8; to see the Billy the Kid pageant.

Each year, the residents of Lincoln County put on a play depicting the events leading up to and the escape of Billy the Kid from the town jail. A parade precedes the pageant.

The group will be leaving from the Y-Knot parking lot at 9 a.m., and will be returning at about 5 p.m. The children are asked to bring a sack lunch, rain gear and comfortable shoes.

Cost of the trip is $7, and seating is limited so reservations are required. For reservations and/or more information, call 257-5030.

EDC will try to meet today

The Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County will once again try to achieve a quorum for its regular monthly meeting.

The group failed to gain the seven members needed last month and were unable to act on any official items. The group did discuss a possible drop in the number required for a quorum but they have not added it to this month's agenda.

What did make the agenda, was a series of reports from executive director Karen Kopp concerning the group's hotel search, the EDC-CLC fundraising drive, and current business prospects. Kopp will also report that board member Lee Griffin has resigned from the board. Kopp said that his resignation was for personal reasons.

Snowcapper tourney draws 248 golfers

After three days of golf in the sun, the Annual Snowcapper Golf Tournament finished up Friday.

The 20th Annual Snowcapper Tournament, featuring 248 golfers, ran at Alto Lakes Country Club last Wednesday through Friday.

"It was a big success," said Alto golf pro Todd Pertee.

In order to fit in the 124 teams comprised of a club member and a guest, the tournament featured 10 flights.

The flights were chosen by rating the teams by their handicaps and previous scores in the tournament.

On Wednesday, the golfers played a best ball format, a scramble on Thursday and a best ball again on Friday.

The first nine flights of the day were compared on a gross scale, while the last flight was rated on the golfer's net score.

The scores for the team are a combined score for a total of three rounds.

In the championship flight, the team of Johnny Lutrick and Charlie Snuggs was victorious with a score of 196. With a 198 score in second place was the team of Steve Brown and Billy Brown. Reeves McGuire and Byron May were third with a 199, while Leroy Gooch and Dana Rhotan were fourth with a 203.

In the first flight, the team of Joe Farr and Bob Dunn and the team of Bob Kile and Richard Salmon were tied for first with a 206. Bob Gray and Carey Gray were third with a 208, while Denny Porter and Judd Porter were fourth with a 209.

In the second flight, first place went to Joe Sanders and Aaron Billings with a 212. In a tie for second place with a score of 217, were the teams of Lee Griffin and Harlan Moeckler and Pat Thompson and John Thompson. In fourth place, was Dalton Haines and David Burnett with a 218.

In the third flight, Don Burney and Eddie Breaux came away with a 209 for first place. There was a tie for second between the teams of David Kolb and Alan Kolb and Mato Miteff and Jim Fowler with a 214. Fourth place was also tied up between Louie Lama and Tony Lama and Jerry Hinson and Johnny Cotton with a 215.

The fourth flight was dominated by Dub Kennedy and Manuel Land scoring a 216. A score of 219 landed Vernon Seiler and Jim Berry second place. Frank Sayner and Harry Georgeades were in third with a 221, while Steve Stroud and Max Erickson were fourth with a 225.

The fifth flight had Tommy Hampton and Mike Hobbs coming in first with a 213. Dan Bowden and Gordon Rea were second with a 223. In third, Ted Blue and Ken Otteni with a 227, while Bobby Walker and Dann Drewry were third with a 228.

For the sixth flight, Bob Cauthorn and Clay Cauthorn came out on top with a 215. Leo Martinez and Kevin Kolberg were second with a 223, Juan Ortega and Rob Robinson were third with a 226, while Ron Wensel and Jimmie Hahn were fourth with a score of 227.

In the seventh flight, golfers Glen Ellis and Jack Huff hit a 229 over the three-day period. Larry Foster and Jack Shook were second with a 231. The duo of J.C. Britton and Fred Grimes were next with a total of 233, while partners Lindell Myatt and Larry Aldridge finished in fourth with a score of 234.

The eighth flight was the last of the flights using a gross score. In that flight, the team of Ted Hopkins and Don Farris came in first with a 234. Jerry Wright Sr. and his partner Ken Dean were next with a 237. Third place ended in a tie with the teams of Larry McNeil and J.R. Thomas and Phillip Goodwin and Ruff Ahlers scoring a 239.

In the ninth and final flight, using a net score, the team of Joseph Sanders and Jimmy Clark came out on top scoring a 183. Ronnie Stephens and J. Duff Pitcock controlled second place with a 189.25. Bob Muecke and Jim Hill had the next lowest score at 193.25, while Robert Finlay and Arthur Dunstan were fourth with a 193.75.

Golfers Gil Klaus, Tony Diaz, Rudy Fernandez, Dan Drewery and Bob Walker show their stuff on the course at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club. All of the golfers were a part of the 248-person field of the 20th annual Snowcapper tournament at the club last week. The team of Drewery and Walker came in fourth in their flight.

'Zozo cager plays in all-stars

Bryan Turnbow of Carrizozo will be representing Lincoln County in the A/AA high school All-Star Basketball game tonight at 6 p.m. in the Pan American Center in Las Cruces.

Turnbow, at 6-foot-8, 205 pounds, is one of 24 A/AA players picked from throughout the state to play in the prestigious game.

Turnbow is the only representative from Lincoln County to be included in the game.

Turnbow and his teammates have been in Las Cruces all week preparing for the game.

The game will start at 6 p.m. and will be followed by the AAA/AAAA All-Star game. Tickets for the games will cost $6 at the gate.

Soccer club to meet Tuesday

The Lincoln County Youth Soccer Association's annual meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, August 3, in the Ruidoso High School public meeting room.

The Lincoln County Youth Soccer League serves boys and girls age five to high school. The organizational meeting for the fall soccer season will include election of officers, plans for coach and referee clinics, formation of all-girl teams for kids aged 10 and up, field maintenance and fundraising events.

The groups also will discuss alternative locations for practice fields for the youth soccer, since construction at the White Mountain Schools has limited available fields.

Anyone interested in continuing the soccer league for the area youth, should attend.

Volleyball teams go 6-on-6

Broken Drum T-Shirts will be hosting a six-on-six co-ed volleyball tournament this weekend at Ruidoso High School.

The tournament, featuring 8th grade students and older players, will run Saturday, July 31, to Sunday, August 1. Three courts will be available and the winner of the match will be the winner of two out of three games or the winner after 60 minutes.

Entries for the tournament must be received by Thursday, July 29.

For more information, contact Jody Blanton at 257-7594 or DeAnna Swanner at 378-4231.

Kids compete for fun tennis

The Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department will be sponsoring a kids fun tennis tournament August 10-11 at the public courts on Sudderth by the municipal pool.

The tournament will be a way to introduce youngsters ages 10 to 14 to fun, low competition tennis tournament play.

The entry fee will be $5 per entry. The fee will include a hot dog barbecue on both days. Admission to the pool for the kids to swim between matches will be $2.25 or $6 with the slide.

Each contestant will receive a certificate of participation, but no other prizes will be awarded due to the nature of the event.

Entries for the non-USTA sanctioned tournament are due by August 5. For entries or information call Dave Anderson at 257-5080.

Welding woes

John Emberline (right) welds a welder on one of the many dumpsters owned by the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority that need repair. Since Joe Lewandowski (left) joined the authority as its new general manager, he has instituted a regular schedule of maintenance as well as trying to catch up on dumpsters badly in need of new lids, new hinges and general refurbishing. He has established an operation in the

Booklet describes the military years at Fort Stanton

A new 50-page booklet focusing on the military years at Fort Stanton has been added to the fledgling list of local history publications by the Lincoln County Historical Society.

The first book published by the society, "Memoirs of a Country Doctor," by James Lays, M.D., was released last December, also in cooperation with the Lincoln County Heritage Trust.

The latest, "Fort Stanton: The Military Years 1855-1896," was written by historian Lee Myers of Las Cruces.

Bob Boebinger, president of the society, credited Rosina Locke for providing a "generous grant that made the publication of this book possible."

Mrs. Locke, owner of the Torreon Trading Company of Lincoln, which specialized in books on New Mexico, said she saw a real need for a book on Fort Stanton.

"I get many requests for such a book," Mrs. Locke said. "I knew the society was interested in this manuscript, so I just decided to finance its publication myself."

Alice Blakestad, chairman of the society's publication committee, said the booklet is an important addition not only to local history, but to the military history of the Southwest.

"This is the only book currently in print that deals exclusively with the fort," Blakestad said.

Well-known historian Robert Utley, in his introduction to the book, wrote, "Fort Stanton played a long and distinguished part in the opening of the frontier Southwest....These years spanned the Apache Wars, the Civil War...and the factional disputes that erupted authority's recycling yard, using employees already on staff to steam clean, repaint and repair. Lewandowski systematically will pick up rusty containers, haul them back to the yard for reworking and replace them with those already revamped and ready. The schedule will be continuous, with authority workers fanning out from the towns into the more rural areas of the county to bring all dumpsters up to the new higher standards.

in the Lincoln County War. In each, Fort Stanton bore witness to important events...Fort Stanton draws major significance from its association with the hostilities between the U.S. and the Mescalero Apaches...It is particularly fitting that the Lincoln County Historical Society and the Lincoln County Heritage Trust have joined to make available this history....The countless visitors who come to Lincoln each year cannot truly understand the Lincoln County War or Billy the Kid without understanding the history of Fort Stanton. This book will help fill that void."

According to the society's news release on the booklet, author Lee Myers has spent much of his 91 years in the Southwest researching the history of frontier military posts. He has authored more than 100 articles, booklets and papers on the subject.

Of Myers, Utley wrote, "He carries in his mind and in his extensive research files, as much knowledge about Southwestern army posts as exists anywhere."

The booklet was compiled and edited by the society's publication committee. Besides Blakestad, committee members are Nora and Walter Henn, Bob Hart, Ann Bufington, Bob Blakestad and Ralph Dunlap.

The book is available from the society by mail order for $4.50, plus $1.50 shipping and handling fees. Send check of money order to: Lincoln County Historical Society, P.O. Box 91, Lincoln, NM 88338. It may be purchased directly at the Lincoln Museum Store or the Torreon Trading Company in Lincoln, at the Aspen Tree in Ruidoso and Cobean's in Roswell.

El Paso author to sign his new book at The Aspen Tree bookstore

Robert Skimin, author of "Chikara," "Gray Victory" and several other award-winning historical novels, will be autographing his latest book, "Apache Autumn" from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, August 14, at the Aspen Tree bookstore in Ruidoso.

"Apache Autumn" is the critically acclaimed saga of the Apache, a work that delves deeply into their culture with understanding and empathy, according to "Publishers Weekly."

Based on Mangas Coloradas,

"Apache Autumn" is set mostly in the Silvery City area, but winds up in Mescalero.

"Booklist" called the novel "a fierce love story."

One of Skimin's sources was the late Eve Ball, who he interviewed before her death. The author said he began this book 10 years ago.

Skimin, 63, is a former Army paratrooper and pilot — the first to wear a green beret.

The El Paso author has previously published "Gray Victory" and "Chikara."

Greater Tuna returns

"Greater Tuna," a highly popular play of several seasons ago, makes a return engagement by popular demand.

"Tuna" stars Roger Sowder and Mary Danielson will play 18 performances starting Saturday, August 7, and running every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday during August. The play will be staged at The Enchanted Theatre, located at 1035 Mechem Drive, just north of the Attie Shopping Plaza.

The play is being presented by the Noisy Water Stage Players in association with the ENMU-Ruidoso Theatre Department.

"Tuna" is a Texas comedy hit written by Williams, Sears and Howard.

"Tuna" co-director, Paul

Adamian said the play will be converted from a two-act to a solid one act, a little over an hour long.

A second play, "Love Letters," is scheduled for alternate nights through August, Wednesday and Fridays, for a total of eight performances.

"Love Letters" is a two-act play depending on strong acting skills to deliver a well crafted script.

Written by A.R. Gurney, "Letters" is an intimate and romantic view into a 50-year love affair.

"Letters" stars Karen Laine and Douglas Webb, who co-directs with Adamian.

Curtain time for both plays is 8 p.m. Admission price is $8.

For reservations, call the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, 257-7395.

Once-in-a-lifetime show fills the skies in August

A special shower will rain over the skies of New Mexico in August.

A river of solar system debris is expected to create a brilliant display in what may be a record-breaking meteor storm August 11 and 12.

While an ordinary shower may yield one or two shooting stars per minute, the celestial pyrotechnics in August could produce dozens, or possibly hundreds, per minute.

Joe Rao, writing in Sky and Telescope magazine, explained that "such an extremely rare conflagration... occurs only when the Earth makes a close approach to the orbit of a passing comet."

"When a comet nears the sun, its nucleus sheds clouds of rubble that spread out along its orbit, creating a continuous 'river of dust' moving in the same direction as the comet."

When the Earth passes through that river, a meteor shower occurs. When the shower is timed annual in August it is called a Perseid storm.

"The particles responsible for most of the streaks of light we see are quite small, ranging in size from large grains of sand to small pebbles," Rao wrote. "Usually arriving at dozens of kilometers per second, they vaporize at altitudes of about 60 to 120 kilometers in the upper atmosphere."

Unfortunately, the prime viewing points with night skies for this spectacular shower will be in Europe, Western Asia, possibly even parts of eastern North America. The heaviest point of the shower will occur during afternoon daylight in the United States.

If a storm does materialize, experts don't expect it to last more than an hour.

Rao wrote that the Earth's orbit crosses through the same meteor streams at the same times every year. The stronger storms of meteors are found relatively near the parent comet and must have been shed from it in recent centuries.

The factor favoring a spectacular display this year is that the Earth will be closer to the parent, Comet P/Swift Tuttle, than in prior showers, which may mean it will be closer to a rich zone of meteoroids.

In addition, Comet P/Swift-Tuttle is one of the intrinsically brightest comets known in the solar system, four to 10 times brighter than the average long-period comet.

Prior reports of exceptional displays from this comet date back to 1861 and 1862, mainly from the Far East.

Last fall, for the first time in 130 years and growing in intensity, the comet was followed by thousands of amateur astronomers.

In fact, according to Donald K. Yeomans of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, the orbits of Earth and the comet currently are separated by only 140,000 kilometers at the point where Earth's orbit intersects the plane of the comet.

When the comet next returns in July 2126, the separation will be a little wider. The current configuration between the Earth and P/Swift-Tuttle is unique, at least over the past millennium, Yeomans wrote.

Because of the Earth's exceptionally close approach to the comet's orbit, the skies may burn with meteoroids that were released as recently as 1737, possibly even 1862, he said.

Writing in the same Sky & Telescope magazine, Alan M. MacRobert offered these hints for meteor shower watching:

—find a comfortable lounge chair.

—settle in an area with a large unobstructed view of the sky.

—take a watch, note pad and flashlight, or better yet, a tape recorder to record the number of "shooting stars" without turning away from the sky.

—watch the sky at least 50 degrees up, probably an easterly direction would be best.

—keep your field of vision filled with the sky, but look around.

Racing

Dancing round the track

I Hear A Symphony, number two, edges out Pritzi Dash, number five, by a half-length in the $99,317 Rainbow Futurity Consolation on Saturday, July 24, at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. The Louisiana-based jockey-trainer combo of Kenneth Roberts and Charles McMahon teamed to win the race for owner Tommy Bass of Lake View, South Carolina. The time for the 400-yard race was 19.96 seconds. The two-year-old Texas-bred filly, by Ronas Ryon, is a graduate of the Ruidoso Horse Sales Company.

Set Records looks good

Norgor Futurity winner Set Records pressed the early pace and led briefly, but tired late to finish seventh in the Grade II $100,000 Hollywood Juvenile Championship, Monday at Hollywood Park.

Trained by Doyal Roberts and ridden by Kentucky Derby winning jockey Jerry Bailey, Set Records broke sharply and battled with Individual Style and Ramblin Guy for the early lead in the six furlong sprint.

The 2-year-old Kentucky-bred son of Sauce Boat ran blazing early fractions of :21.79 and :44.76, and had a half-length advantage in the turn for home. In the stretch, the colt had relinquished the lead and finished seventh behind winner Ramblin Guy. The final time was 1:10.09.

Set Records had won all three of his career starts at Ruidoso Downs, including the prestigious Norgor Futurity in June for owners Margaret Bloss and Margaret DuPont of El Paso.

The colt is nominated to the $100,000-estimated Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity and may make his next start in the August 19 trials.

The power is on

Power Stretch, number six on the inside, noses out Busy Ego, number nine, for the narrow victory in the $34,650 Land of Enchantment Speed Handicap, July 24, at Ruidoso Downs. David Lidberg was aboard the four-year-old gelding who went the six furlongs in 1:10 flat. Trained by Doyal Roberts Jr., the four-year-old New Mexico-bred son of Full Chock is a Ruidoso Horse Sales Company grad. Fletcher Hall Jr. of Capitan owns the gelding.

Hezafastgold, Personal Profit duel again in Derby Prep 'Cap

Hezafastgold and Personal Profit, the respective second and third place finishers in the July 3 Jockey Club Handicap, swing back into action Saturday in the $10,000-added Ruidoso Derby Prep Handicap.

The one mile route showcases some of the top 3-year-olds in New Mexico.

Douglas Smith's Hezafastgold was the fast-closing runner-up behind wire-to-wire winner Power Connection in the 7 1/2-furlong Jockey Club Handicap in his Ruidoso debut.

The New Mexico-bred colt by Fast Gold was dead last in the early stages of the Jockey Club 'Cap, but had moved into third at the top of the stretch. Under steady urging by jockey Von Cunningham, Hezafastgold rallied late, but couldn't catch Power Connection who went on to a 1 1/4-length win.

Prior to his last outing, the R.D. Douglas Jr.-trained colt scored an impressive 3 3/4-length triumph in the $15,000 Chamisa Breeder's Cup Handicap going 1 1/16-miles in Albuquerque on May 31. Hezafastgold has lit the board in his last four starts going two turns and was assigned top weight of 120 pounds for Saturday's race.

Phillip Mote and Frank Richardson's Personal Profit finished a close third in the Jockey Club in his first start going two turns and should improve Saturday. The Kentucky-bred son of Graintan made a big move in the turn for home get within a length of Power Connection in the Jockey Club, but flattened out in late stretch to finish 1 1/4-lengths behind Hezafastgold.

Personal Profit most recently came from off the pace to post a neck-length win versus a quality allowance field going six furlongs on July 16. The consistent gelding has finished in the money in six of seven career starts under the tutelage of trainer Fred Danley.

Saturday's co-feature is a $5,200 Quarter Horse Invitational Handicap for 3-year-olds going 400 yards.

Chocula looks tough in $4,000 allowance

Rainbow Derby Consolation runner-up Chocula should be heavily favored in the full field of ten entered in the $4,000 allowance feature Friday at Ruidoso Downs. The 400-yard dash for 3- and 4-year-olds fills the eighth event on the 13-race program.

Chocula, a 3-year-old gelding by Jet Toro, has run consistently throughout his career for owner James Armer and trainer Jack Brooks. The gelding most recently ran a strong second behind Cream To The Top in the $41,000 Rainbow Derby Consolation on July 3.

Chocula, with jockey Jacky Martin aboard, broke second from the gate in the 440-yard Consolation and was only a half-length behind Cream To The Top midway through the contest. Nearing the wire, the gelding inched closer to the leader, but could only get within a neck at the wire. Chocula has finished in the money in three of four starts this year with earnings of over $10,000.

The gelding had an excellent 2-year-old campaign with the highlight being a win in the Grade I Sun Country Futurity at Sunland Park. Chocula also won the West Texas Futurity Consolation and started in the Grade I Kansas and Rainbow Futurities.

James Lewter's Yawls Rabbit, the sixth place finisher in last year's All American Futurity, makes his 1993 debut in Friday's feature. The 3-year-old son of By Yawl won three of eight starts as a juvenile and earned in excess of $70,000 for owner Lewter of Clovis.

Yawls Rabbit, who resides in the Tim Cross shedrow, will have Jerry Rodriguez in the irons.

Dark Royalty and Mia Rainman are two other horses that should threaten in the showcase event. The Jobbie Goodman-charge Dark Royalty ran a disappointing third as the 6-5 favorite in a similar allowance race on July 23, but should rebound Friday.

Mia Rainman, trained by John Buchanan, won the $43,000 American Holiday Futurity at Delta Downs in November and must be respected.

Four simulcasts from Del Mar wrap up the Friday afternoon card. All wagers made on Del Mar races will be common pooled which allows local handicappers access to the large mutual pools and exotic wagers offered at the San Diego-area oval.

Refrigerator freezes out competition

1992 World Champion Running Quarter Horse Refrigerator made his first start in seven months and devastated his foes with a 1 1/4-length win in the trials for the Grade I $247,044 World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic.

The 5-year-old gelding by Rare Jet ran the 440-yard distance in :21.39 seconds, by far the fastest qualifying time for the August 1 finals.

Refrigerator, who resides in the Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath barn, broke perfectly from the #8 post and had a 1 1/2-length advantage midway through the race. Nearing the wire, the gelding drifted in a bit, but still cruised home under a strong hold by jockey Bruce Pilkenton who flew in from California to ride.

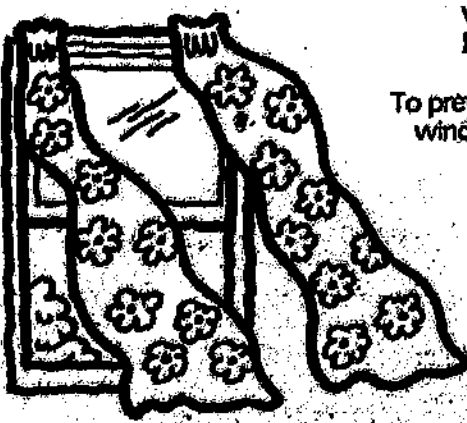

"I'd say he was getting a little tired at the end, but I'm glad that I rode him today to get used to him," said Pilkenton who rode the Champion for the first time Thursday. "I've been looking at his rear end for the last two years and it's exciting to get a chance to ride him."

Kip Didericksen, who rode Refrigerator in nearly all of his career starts, retired last December after riding the gelding to victory in the prestigious Grade I Champion of Champions at Los Alamitos.

Refrigerator upped his career mark to 16 wins. The gelding is the sixth richest quarter horse in history and could move past Higheasterjet into fifth place with the $123,622 winner's share of the final purse.

Gwendolyn Eaves' Fortune Of Delight ran a strong second behind Refrigerator in the fourth trial division and clocked the second fastest time of :21.585. The 4-year-old filly, by Six Fortunes ran third in the Go Together Handicap and also placed in the Rainbow Silver Cup.

Stopping Energy Loss From Windows Is A Breeze.

Windows are great when you can let a breeze cool your house, but during months when you use your air conditioner or heater, windows can reduce your home's energy efficiency. To prevent windows from wasting energy, make sure any cracks around the window are caulked. Heavy drapes that fit tight to the wall can also help improve your home's efficiency. Other options to consider are thermal drapes, curtains and shutters and, for the summer, solar screens installed on the outside of windows. For more information about saving energy, call or visit your local TNP office and ask for the free fact sheet, "Straight Talk about Window Treatments."

Silver Lining

The ever-popular Billy the Kid lives on

A Kid Lives On

The pageant at Old Lincoln is entitled "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid," and yet down through the years, you would be hearing accounts that the escape in Lincoln was not really his last, and that he lived to be an old man.

Although most historians feel they have his supposed death at the hands of Pat Garrett in Fort Sumner pretty well nailed down as fact, yet some of these accounts which come from reliable people, make you wonder. One fellow went so far as to say the Kid came by his place on his way over to Lincoln where he watched the first pageant in 1940, and didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Here you bring in the old saying "The wish is father to the thought," since the Kid was widely liked, and there were great shouts of "Hooray, hooray, three cheers for the Kid," all over New Mexico when he made his escape at Lincoln.

Anyhow the world will never know for sure whether or not the Kid lived on to be an old man. And this — as they say — is "another story."

Western Character

And yet, opinions to the contrary notwithstanding, The Kid, in a way of speaking — does live on. He is by long odds the most popular character of the American West, and interest in his life seems to be increasing year by year. People all over the world have heard of Billy the Kid, and folks will come from half way around the world to gather information about him. Great stacks of books have been written about the Kid, mostly of course, by people who did not know him.

"The Authentic Life of Bill The Kid" was written by Pat Garrett; "The Saga of Billy the Kid" by Walter Noble Burns, is in great measure taken from interviews with Frank Coe, "Frontier Fighter" by George W. Coe is one of the life of the Kid. All these books are out of print.

"Muy Caballero"
(Very Much A Gentleman)

The nearest you can come to knowing someone without actually being acquainted with him, is to hear what those who knew had to say about him.

When we first came here in 1925 there were still quite a few living who were friends of the Kid, including George and Frank Coe, Sally Chisum Robert and Daniel Carabajal.

George and Frank Coe and their children and grandchildren have been fond friends of the Storm family since the days when we first came here.

It would help in understanding The Kid and his friends and companions — as well as the general population of the pioneers — to remember that those moving west were told by the government that the country was still rather wild and unsettled, and that they would have to rely for protection upon themselves, in other words that they should carry "The Difference" meaning the six shooter and rifle, for their own protection.

In this environment, friendship was highly valued. All the Kid's friends said that he was a true and loyal friend in need. To get back to being a gentleman.

The early Spanish regarded the Kid highly because he was polite and courteous, kind to children and considerate of elderly people, all in all that he was Muy Caballero, (very much a gentleman).

Frank Coe in The Saga of Billy the Kid, is quoted:

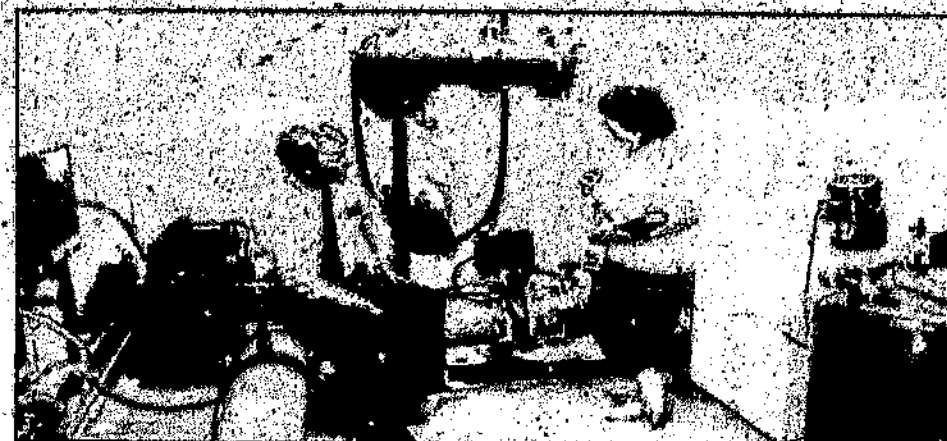

"Billy was a free hearted and general boy. His speech was that of an intelligent and fairly well educated man. He had a clean mind, and his conversation was never coarse or vulgar."

Many who knew him said that The Kid was a good boy in school at Silver City, always helping cheerfully with the chores around the school and never causing the teacher any trouble. He tried to lead a good life, yet events would turn up that threw him off course; most of his trouble came from taking up for his friends; all through all his troubles he tried to remain as the Spanish say "Muy Caballero (Very much a gentleman).

Smiling Through It All

The Kid evidently had what we used to call "Personal Magnetism." People were attracted to him because he was cheerful, and full of the joy of life. Wilbur Coe tells of his singing, and dancing jigs to the music of the violin and guitar. He had a special way of whistling, double note, one of his favorite tunes being "Silver Threads among the Gold."

Like his pioneer fellow citizens, the Kid laughed and joked through life; and he had a smile for everyone he met.

Village manager Ron Wicker explains the workings of the village water systems to reporter Dianne Stallings during a recent open house at the Upper Canyon treatment plant.

Obituaries

Charles E. Gent

Services for Charles E. Gent, 59, of Ruidoso will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 31, at the First Assembly of God Church.

Officiating the service will be the Reverend Earl Walden who will be assisted by the Reverend Lewis Franklin. Burial will follow at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Gent died Monday, July 26, at the Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso. He was born July 14, 1934, at Stowe, West Virginia, to Pearl and Wesley Gent who both precede him in death.

He served in the Air Force during the Korean Conflict and had lived in Ruidoso for 40 years. He was a dry wall painter. He married Esther Randolph October 24, 1953, at Las Cruces.

He is survived by his wife, Esther, of Ruidoso; his son, Josh E. Gent, of Ruidoso; his two daughters, DeDe Bentley and Ana Gent, both of Ruidoso; a brother, Robert Gent of Columbus, Ohio; his two sisters, Doris J. Gibson and JoAnn Sanbourne both of Columbus; his two grandchildren Jadee Gent and Mercedes Lynn Bentley both of Ruidoso.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

County Fair plans under way

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Many county fairs across the nation have evolved into glitzy midways of carnival rides and games of chance.

For a taste of what a county fair was meant to be, with kids and their animals, good cooking and handmade quilts, stop at the Lincoln County fairground August 12 through 14 in Capitan.

Although the public can stroll through the exhibits after 4 p.m. Wednesday, August 11, a full day of events for spectators at the annual county fair will start at 8 a.m. Thursday, August 12.

The market lamb show is the first event on the schedule at 9 a.m.

But those who want to exhibit their items and livestock need to bring them on the preceding Tuesday and Wednesday for registration and judging.

Check in and weigh in

Check in for all livestock, except rabbits and poultry, will run from noon to 8 p.m. August 10. Inside entries will be accepted from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

More inside entries will be registered from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday, August 11. Livestock pens also will be available during those hours.

From 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., the building will close for judging of inside entries. It will reopen to the public at 4 p.m. for four hours. At 2 p.m., livestock will be weighed and classified.

Back at the fair

The Cabrito Show is set for 1 p.m., followed by the breeding cattle show at 2 p.m. Thursday and the market steer show at 2:30 p.m.

The building will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, August 13.

Senior Citizen "Bake Off" entries will be accepted from 8 a.m. to noon.

The market swine show will begin at 9 a.m., followed two hours later by a dairy goat show. The rabbit and poultry show is set for 1 p.m.

The big day for awards will be Saturday, August 14. The building will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. All fair exhibits will not be released until the conclusion of the junior livestock sale.

The pet show, which draws some of the most unusual entrants in the fair, will start at 8:30 a.m.

A special lead class is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. with awards at 10 a.m.

Livestock buyers will enjoy a bountiful lunch at 11:30 a.m. The junior livestock sale at 3 p.m. will mark the end of the fair.

Special rules

In the open division, each department supervisor drafted special rules. Mollie Mason, head of the canned goods and dried food department, submitted her rules. They include:

—all jars should be sparkling clean.

—rings should be removed from canned goods.

—jars will be marked with current date.

—must be prepared since "fair" last year.

—no paraffin sealed jars will be accepted.

—no Kerr Award. Best of Show, gift certificate from Cattle Baron, meal for two up to $25.

Dried fruits and vegetables also should be displayed in clean canning jars, not sealed.

The following businesses have donated gift certificates to the fair and have fair books on display at their business: Ruidoso Office Supply, Don's Pharmacy-Ruidoso, Spark's Yard-n-Garden Capitan, Fashion Crossroads/Byrd's Nest Ruidoso, Country Time Western Wear in Ruidoso, Charles and Marceal Reeve in Ruidoso, Wal-Mart in Ruidoso, Zia Grill in Capitan, Capitan Country Store, Cattle Baron in Ruidoso, Bessie Jones in Capitan, Double S Video in Capitan, K-Bobs in Ruidoso, El Paisano Restaurant in Capitan and Bright Ideas in Ruidoso.

For more information about the fair, contact Mason at 354-2666 or fair board members.

Volunteers at the annual Lincoln County fair help unload a few prize swine that will be cleaned and groomed before judges view, weigh and judge them. Livestock exhibits and competitions are only a small part of the yearly get-together that draws residents from the far corners of the county to Capitan. Unlike many other county fairs across the country, Lincoln County celebrates in a traditional style with activities focused on fostering responsibility in children, honing ranching and homemaking skills, and encouraging artistic talent of all types.

Ranch rodeo set for August 14

The Fourth Annual Invitational Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo, a chance to glimpse the skills that enable the cowboy to tame the West, is set for August 14, the last day of the county fair.

Sponsored by the Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo Association, the competition will begin at 10 a.m. at Fletcher Hall Arena at the county fairground in Capitan.

Cowboys and cowgirls will compete for prizes and will demonstrate traditional ranch skills in team penning, team branding, team roping and doctoring, wild cow milking and a wild horse race.

The audience also will be treated to a working sheepdog demonstration.

A dance will follow the dusty fun at 8 p.m. with music by Ricochet.

The ranch rodeo association was founded in July 1990 by a group of ranch families who hoped to preserve their ranching heritage, and to demonstrate to the public traditional ranch cowboy skills.

They have staged three ranch rodeos, only using events that depict actual ranch work.

The non-profit association is dedicated to "family" and strictly refuses sponsorship by alcohol or tobacco companies.

Membership in the group is open, but participation in the rodeos is by invitation only to ensure year working cowboys and cowgirls are involved.

"There's nothing like the excitement of watching eight cows loose at once with eight ropers, muggers and milkers going after them in the wild cow milking contest," said Sherry Underwood.

"If one wants western, the wild horse race provides a healthy dose of that."

"All the participating cowboys and cowgirls are from ranches within Lincoln County. They and their families look forward to the fun and camaraderie of this event all year long."

Admission at the gate is $3 for adults with children 12 and under admitted free. The charges for the dance are $3 for a single, $5 for a couple and $10 for a family.

For more information, call Sherry Underwood at 354-3031.

On Campus

Marnie McDaniel

A student from the Capitan area was among 370 spring graduate candidates who participated in the May 14 commencement exercises at eastern New Mexico University.

Marnie Lynn McDaniel received her bachelor of science in communication.

Domenici staff to visit Capitan

Staff members of U.S. Senator Pete V. Domenici, R-New Mexico, will be in Capitan from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Friday, August 6, in the old city hall building.

Cowbelles plan ranching tour

Members of the State Legislature will tour ranches in Lincoln County as part of a program to give them insight into issues concerning New Mexico land, the impact on cities and surrounding areas.

Sponsored by the Canyon Cowbelles of Lincoln County, the ranch tour will begin at 9 a.m. September 11, at the Carrizozo Country Club one mile east of the overpass on U.S. 880. Registration will be conducted from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest and Grand Jury indictment or Magistrate Court Bindover of the person or persons who committed this crime or any other unsolved felony crime in Lincoln County. Let's work together to call a stop to crime.

Phone 257-4545

Drug abuse is a problem of priority concern and attention, and the Ruidoso - Lincoln County Crime Stoppers is helping to combat the problem by offering $500.00 to anyone providing information that leads to the arrest of persons trafficking or distributing illegal drugs.

Crimestoppers will also pay cash rewards for information that leads to the recovery of stolen property or the solving of any felony crimes.

The Crimestoppers phone line is manned twenty-four a day, seven days a week, and you do not have to give your name to be eligible for a cash reward. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545. Anyone wishing to call collect, may do so within Lincoln County.

This is Detective Sergeant Lanny Maddox, for the Ruidoso Police Department, urging you to be a crimestopper!

State committee to meet here

The Committee for Accountability of Public Money (CAPM) will meet at 10:30 a.m. Friday, August 6, at the Civic Events Center in Ruidoso. The public is invited to attend and provide input.

CAPM was established by State Auditor Robert E. Vigil, CPA. Representatives from counties, municipalities, school districts, state agencies, higher education, hospitals and the State Auditor's Office serve on CAPM.

CAPM's mission is to enhance the accountability of public money and improve financial and accounting skills in New Mexico government agencies. To accomplish its goals, CAPM needs to become aware of issues and concerns whereby corrective action can be taken.

According to a news release, this will be a good opportunity for taxpayers to provide information on how CAPM can best serve them.

Document refutes state official's claims

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

State guidelines don't back up reasons offered by social service officials for failing to disclose public records on a lease/construction bid.

Last year, Ruidoso resident Hazel Haynsworth submitted a bid for the State Human Services Department (HSD) to lease her property off U.S. Highway 70. Her bid was about $100,000 less than the winning bid of Don Elwell of Roswell.

When State Representative H. John Underwood (D-Ruidoso) learned of the award to the substantially higher bidder, he asked General Services Division (GSD) for a review and investigation.

Underwood also was critical of the point system used on the request for proposal that seemed to favor items that were subjective while down playing taxpayer costs.

If approved, Elwell will receive about $575,000 for a lease over the next eight years.

Haynsworth also submitted her bid predicated on a 90-day move then required by the RFP.

Several months later, after learning that she had lost the bid, Haynsworth asked for information about the bid from David Devitt of the local HSD located in the Stroud Building. Only then did Devitt inform her that Elwell's bid had been postponed until July, giving him more than a year for move in.

Haynsworth sent a protest letter to GSD deputy secretary David Ortiz, but he told The Ruidoso News that under the old rules, protests weren't allowed.

However, the signing of the lease is being stalled at this time.

The News asked HSD administrator Paula Maglione and bureau chief John Scanlon of the General Services Bureau for a copy of the winning bid several weeks ago. Although the winning bid was selected nearly a year ago, they said such information is confidential until the lease is final.

Contacted by The News, Ortiz was asked how Haynsworth could have protested Elwell's bid if she never knew she was the low bidder or that some of the points in Elwell's favor had been based on inaccurate information.

Ortiz said he had met with HSD officials and they told him that a previous regulation, Rule 88-501, did not provide for an appeal process and required that the terms of the lease would not be disclosed until the lease was signed. He said under the new regulation, Rule 92-501, the agency's selection is submitted to the property control division. Property control will review the selection and designate approval, at which time terms can be disclosed.

Ortiz, at the request of The News, sent a copy of rule 88-501 to the newspaper. The rule makes no mention of public disclosure as indicated to Ortiz by HSD. It also does not prohibit an appeals process.

Thursday, Maglione was asked by The News where 88-501 prohibits disclosure.

"I'm really not going to talk to you about it anymore," Maglione said. "Talk to property control, it's their rule, or our public information officer, but I'm not allowed to talk about this anymore."

Scanlon also was asked about the disclosure section of 88-501.

"I'd have to search for my regulations," said Scanlon. "I don't know if I have a copy anymore. You really ought to talk to General Services Division, it's their regulations."

Ortiz, Art Armijo, director of building and property services division; and Liz Roybal, bureau chief of leasing and property management division, all of the GSD, were in meetings Thursday morning and unavailable for comment by press time.

Last Friday, Ortiz told The News that he had received a request from HSD not to proceed with the lease until further notice from that agency. He said the lease had not been executed as of that date and he was in the process of reviewing the matter.

Monday, The News tried unsuccessfully to contact Ortiz.

The News has written requests to the state for all lease agreements Elwell has entered into with the state. That information was not available by press time.

Native American storyteller brings friends to library

Native American storyteller Estefanita Martinez will bring tales of Rabbit, Coyote, and other wily creatures to the Ruidoso Public Library at 10 a.m. Wednesday, August 4.

Martinez was raised at San Juan Pueblo, where she still lives, and learned the tales from her grandfather. Her native language, and the original language of these tales, is Tewa.

She was well into middle age, however, when a linguist studying Tewa taught her how to write the language. That, in turn, led to linguistics courses and a change from being a custodian at one school to being a teacher at another, the San Juan Day School, where she established a bilingual program.

The native language and the native stories had both long seemed invaluable to her. Her concern for the language resulted in the "San Juan Pueblo Tewa Dictionary," while her love for the tales led to her documenting and translating them in, eventually, three Tewa/English readers for children.

According to a news release, there is even some "culture swapping" in the readers with the inclusion, in Tewa, of old standard fairy tales such as "Goldilocks and the Three Bears."

"TV has taken over," Estefanita has said, and these stories are a way of trying to right the balance, to get back something of what her own childhood was like, listening to her grandfather's stories during the long winter nights in the pueblo. A child is supposed to have once said that he like radio better than television "because the pictures are better."

That, too, is one of the lasting charms of these stories, such as the endless adventures of crafty Rabbit and always hungry (and always frustrated) Coyote, among the prickly pear and sage along the Rio Grande.

In an afterword to her book "The Naughty Little Rabbit and Old Man Coyote," Estefanita closes with these words:

"My grandfather taught me all the stories I know. He always said, You should give of yourself whatever it is you have, whether it's material things or some kind of knowledge."

"Because of my grandfather, storytelling has always been a part of my life. Each time I tell a story, I pass on to others a little bit of the gift I received from him. I hope you will do the same."

"Take the story that I have told you and tell it again, even though it means changing the location or adding something extra to juice it up a little. Then you, too, will be sharing the gift with others."

Estefanita's friend Ellen Carroll is very pleased to accompany her on these visits, believing that we are our memories and that Estefanita will be a part of the stories that others tell in the years to come.

Estefanita Martinez will tell tales about her friends, Rabbit and Coyote, when she visits the Ruidoso Public Library at 10 a.m. Wednesday, August 4.

Leadership charts new smooth path for village

Leadership is back on board at Ruidoso Village Council meetings, and it's not going to take as long as you'd think to turn the ship back on course.

In a friendly, congenial meeting Tuesday, the council took just two hours to take care of business in a calm and professional manner. The council got right to the point and dealt fairly with the agenda items.

"We don't fool around," said Councilor J.D. James on Wednesday, adding that this council will set policy and encourage its paid employees to take care of operations. That means meetings could get even shorter, said James.

The council reaffirmed its commitment to recreation in this resort village by opting to keep the Hall property, just down the road from the Grindstone Dam. Instead of selling the log home and property for less than it cost, the council voted to keep it for village use.

Councilors lifted the moratorium on enforcing the village rules against banners, and that move will improve the looks of the entire village. With this action, the council sent its employees a clear message that they intend for them to enforce the ordinance.

The fact that it was such a pleasant meeting, doesn't mean that everybody got what they wanted. The council, firmly and politely, turned down a request from Ruidoso Little Theatre for what appeared to be special treatment. "No is the hardest word in the English language to say," said James. But, four of the six councilors were convinced that "no" was the right answer in this case at this time, and so they stood firm.

It's good to know that our village ship is back on course. It may not be all smooth sailing, but at least we're holding steady.

Story on Hay's speech leaves him with questions

TO THE EDITOR:

The article in Monday's paper on "the death of ranching" raises many more questions than it answers.

How many ranchers are grazing livestock on public lands in Lincoln County? How many ranchers in Lincoln County do not use any public lands? How many acres are in the median grazing permit?

Questions about the typical permittee:

Does he use only public land? Does he use his own land plus public land?

Does he use his own land, public land, and leased private land?

How many acres does he use altogether?

What percent is public land? his land? leased private land?

What lease fee per acre does he pay for public land? for private land?

What reasons account for private land lease rates being higher than public?

Question about the ranchers Chairman Hays expects to go out of business if public land grazing fees are raised:

How many employees does the median permittee have?

How long has his ranch been in his family?

What percent of grazing acreage in Lincoln County is held by independent ranchers? by corporations exclusively engaged in grazing livestock? by business entities that are owned or controlled by corporations whose largest revenues come from activities other than grazing? by individuals (unlike New Mexico rancher Sam Donaldson also of CBS) whose principal income comes from ranching?

Questions for Chairman Hays:

If ranchers are forced out of business by an increase in grazing fees on public lands what is expected to happen to their private land?

Will it lie fallow with taxes unpaid until the County seizes it for unpaid taxes?

Will it be purchased (either from the rancher or from the County) by ranchers still in the business to add to their owned acreage?

What is the median assessed value of an acre of private grazing land in Lincoln County?

How much tax is collected by Lincoln County on that median acre each year?

What percent of Lincoln County property tax revenue comes from taxes on grazing lands?

Answers to questions like these would help the non-ranching residents of Lincoln County understand the impact of increased public lands grazing fees on Lincoln County-although it might lead them to the same alarming conclusions reached by Chairman Hays.

Why is the village picking on Church of Christ?

TO THE EDITOR:

I purchased a new home on Country Club Drive 20 years ago, and for the most part have spent the summers here enjoying the wonderful climate and scenery and contributing to the local and state economy, which is a necessity regardless of where you live, and I might add, New Mexico collects its share of taxes.

During this time we have read in The Ruidoso News of the countless numbers of controversies surrounding the village council meetings. Nothing that has ever been brought up compares to the biased decisions leveled at the Gateway Church of Christ.

For years on end the Safeway store maintained a grocery store in this dilapidated barn of a building without ever planting a tree. When they vacated it, the thing became an eyesore to everyone driving down Sudderth.

Then the church bought the property and has beautified it both inside and out. It is truly a thing to see on the inside.

During these 20 years, it has been a pleasure to contribute financially to the well being of this congregation during the summer months as well as at other times. This is true of the many Texans visiting here.

It seems to me the powers that be are acting in a very picky-picky way in singling out this church and applying the heat on those officials who have done such a marvelous job in restoring the building to a thing of beauty. And at the same time they will tell you the job is not yet finished as they have plans for the parking lot also.

You gave Safeway and now Furr's plenty of time to set out trees, yet we have yet to see a single one. There are also plenty of other firms who have 10 or more parking spaces without a tree.

I ask you, are the councilors being fair and unbiased in their decisions?

E. Lloyd Kelley
Hondo, Texas

Suggested reading for those worried about ranching

TO THE EDITOR:

In the Monday, July 12, issue of The Ruidoso News you ran an article, namely, "Fee hikes could spell the death of Ranching," by Dianne Stallings. Bill Hays, member of the Rural Affairs Committee, is quoted as saying: "Fifty percent will be out of business if our area follows the rest of the West."

Perhaps all concerned should read the article written by Dan Green in his Southwest Magazine wherein he reveals that our neighbor up north, Canada, is paying sheep producers $5 per head per month to graze 45,000 head of sheep on their forests. And if I may say so, not without good reason. They are considered a blessing by environmentalists, because the sheep are more effective costwise at weed control than the dreaded method of herbicide application.

The sheep help in two other ways. On harvest areas called clearcuts, to be replanted with seedling trees, the sheep are brought in first, to reduce the amount of vegetation to make room for trees.

Secondly, sheep are used on clearcuts already containing seedlings to browse the vegetation that grows much faster than the baby trees and competes for basics such as soil nutrients and sunlight crucial to survival.

"There, take that," says Mr. Green "to Mike Synar, and George Miller and all your cohorts in these outrageous grazing fee lobby!"

Green further states that we better get Bruce Babbitt to B.B. pronto, and turn the grazing fees into gold!

Incidentally, Mr. Green has written this article "Along the Trail" under news and comments.

May I thank you, Mr. Green, for making an effort to preserve our wonderful country, and a fine industry that tamed the west for us. It is high time we awakened and did away with all predators, including those walking about on two legs.

Brave trainer is back in the saddle

by LINDA WALLACE
Ruidoso News Staff

Until we are faced with adversity, none of us know what kind of strengths we have within us.

Such was the case with Bill Fore, long-time Trainer at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

On April 24, 1990, a near fatal accident almost ended Bill's life.

His horse ran off the racetrack and fell on the asphalt. His ankle, elbow, and ribs were crushed. But what worried everyone was the severity of damage to his head.

Fore was in a coma for two and half weeks before he was transferred by air to San Antonio, Texas, where he stayed until August 10.

After his release from the hospital, began a grueling three years of rehabilitation.

This summer Bill has returned to Ruidoso Downs. He still has some trouble seeing after he lost half his sight in each eye. It takes a little longer for him to walk, after losing that ability, but his shuffle is getting better.

He has, not only gone back to training, but with the help of long-time friend and horse trader, Burt Martin, has found a new horse quiet enough to ride. With courage, determination and assistance from Burt, Fore began the final road to healing.

After a month of practice, he ventured out on horseback, proud that he accomplished what some never have the courage to do again.

He was greeted with smiles and congratulations as he rode through the barn area, visiting with friends who at one time feared his loss — thankful again to see his smile.

ROBERT J. HILL AND LAURA G. TYSON

Tyson, Hill are engaged

Dr. Joe E. Tyson of Fort Worth, Texas, and Judy M. Tyson of Ruidoso announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Laura G. Tyson of Ruidoso to Robert J. Hill of Albuquerque.

Hill is the son of Ronnie J. Hill of Hampton, Virginia, and Joan Marie Bennett of Albuquerque.

The couple plans to marry at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, August 21, at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount in Ruidoso. A reception will follow at 8:30 p.m. in the Aspen Room at the Swiss Chalet.

Friend of the bride and groom are invited to attend.

After the wedding, the couple will live in Hampton, Virginia.

Engagement announced

Terry and Kay Strickland of Capitan have announced the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Melinda Strickland, to Shawn Creighton.

Creighton is the son of Ben and Elaine Creighton of Clayton.

The bride-to-be graduated from Capitan High School in 1992. She is currently living in Clayton, and is employed at Newton's Town and Country Fashion.

Creighton graduated from Clayton High School in 1990, and is employed with Southwestern Electric Cooperative in Clayton.

The wedding will be conducted September 25, at the First Baptist Church in Clayton.

Pony Express is ready to ride in White Oaks

The 25th Lincoln County Pony Express will run Saturday, August 7, from Capitan Gap to White Oaks.

That initial historic event that sparks the pages of western history, is unique in that the Pony Express carried the mail for such a short time, wrote Dorothy Guck in a news release.

The first Pony Express lasted only 19 months — from April 1860 to October 1861 — from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Sacramento, California, 1,966 miles. During that time, the Pony Express galloped 650,000 miles, and carried 34,753 pieces of mail — losing only one sack, wrote Guck in an article that gave the history of the Pony Express.

Horses were changed every 10 or 15 miles, and riders changed every 75 miles.

"The average age of the riders was 19 years, but famous Buffalo Bill Cody was only 15 when he made a regular ride of 76 miles, found his relief had been killed, so rode another 85 miles, then made the return trip carrying the mail," said Guck.

"Another rider, Bob Haslan, while riding in Nevada, had an Indian's arrow fracture his jaw and go through his arm, but he traveled with his injuries 120 miles to deliver the mail in eight hours and with 13 horses."

Guck said the riders were small, young and daring. One ad for riders read, "preferably orphans."

They faced wintry blizzards, sizzling summers, dangerous rugged trails and unfriendly Indians. They rode with a sharp eye for danger. There were 190 relay stations, 25 home stations for change of riders and 165 swing stations for change of the 600 horses used.

The riders earned board and keep, $100 to $150 a month, according to the hazards of their runs. The horses' purchase cost averaged $200. No drinking was allowed the riders on duty, who only carried lightweight pistols and knives for protection.

The leather mail sack, "mochila," was a square piece of leather thrown over the saddle with four pockets, two in front of the riders' legs and two behind.

Western settlers were impatient for news from the East, wrote Guck. The Pony Express, visualized by California Senator William H. Gwin, was told to Will Russell, one of the owners of a freighting company.

Russell inaugurated the Pony Express, never receiving a dime from the government for delivering the mail. The company lost $200,000 and went bankrupt, but served a dire need during the Civil War, helping unite the East and West.

Letters cost $5 a half ounce at first. Later, the price was dropped to a dollar. The speediest time set for the total ride was seven days and 17 hours, to bring President Lincoln's Inaugural Address to Sacramento. The trip by stagecoach at that time took 23 days.

The transcontinental telegraph line was completed in October 1961, and ended the glory days of the Pony Express.

"But its glimmers lived on in our western history and by various Pony Express races in the nation, commemorating this bold and rich heritage," said Guck.

Closer to home, the first Pony Express race in Lincoln County was planned in 1969 by local ranchers including Bud Crenshaw, Pete Gnatkowsky and Truman Spencer Jr.

The rules they established are still used today. Each entry must include one or two riders and four horses to cover the 35-mile run. Helpers on each team transport and care for the horses and equipment.

The first race drew six teams, but two didn't complete that run.

Over the years, the fastest time recorded was a few seconds more than an hour and 48 minutes, said Guck. The Clement and Hindi teams have won most often.

Race preparations include workouts for the horses for running in high altitude, which takes more stamina than on flat surfaces.

"Most important, too, is the necessity for well-shod hooves, even pads for hoof protection on the rocky terrain," wrote Guck.

Contestants in Lincoln County have suffered only minor injuries, and need only part of a morning to complete the race.

Rules have increased over the years, including a requirement for western gear and dress, each team furnishes its own mail pouch and teams must stay on and follow the marked course. First and third horses must be presaddled, and the race starts promptly at 8 a.m. August at Capitan Gap (turn off U.S. 380 one and a half miles east of Capitan).

The first lap runs to Hammond; second to Encinosa school; third to John Robinson turnoff; and fourth to White Oaks Museum, all fully marked. The riders must dismount and run with the mail pouch to deposit it in the hands of the U.S. postal officials.

This year, teams from New Mexico and Colorado are expected to compete, and many participants of earlier races. Avid rooters cannot impede the races, but can find vantage points before the start to watch, along, but 50 feet off the side of the route, or by being at the finish line in White Oaks.

Anyone wanting to send a letter to be mailed via Pony Express, boxes will be placed in several locations in the county with envelopes for $2 each, to be addressed and returned to one of the boxes.

A day of family fun will entertain you at White Oaks after the race is finished.

A new arena has been built for a kids rodeo, adult steer roping and exhibitions of cattle and horse work.

There will be a First Aid tent for scratches or sunburn problems, and hamburgers and soft drinks for sale.

"If you have never been to historic White Oaks, you might like to have a tour of some of the buildings and the cemetery where the first governor of New Mexico is buried," invites Guck.

"Or, bring a picnic lunch, a camera and enjoy the old West style of life."

The road to White Oaks is off Highway 54, four miles north of Carrizozo, then nine miles east.

A SHELTER WISH LIST

Sometimes local shelters suffer from a lack of equipment simply because supporters and business owners in a community don't know what is needed.

Money saved on office supplies, cleaning equipment and other items then can be spent on more direct benefits for the dogs and cats.

Following is a wish list from shelter workers:

- a computer system with printer to enable workers, within seconds, to be able to track all animals brought to the facility, including follow up information after adoption.

- food, food, food, especially for puppies, and canned food and kitty chow for mother cats.

- a refrigerator for medicine

- hoses to wash down cages

- an adding machine

- carpet samples (for the cattery)

- a comprehensive book showing breeds of dogs

- volunteers for various projects such as the weekend education outreach at Wal-Mart, to walk the dogs, play with the cats and groom them all.

- foster homes to offer puppies a safe haven during the two week period required for initial protective shots to take effect. Boosters are needed after adoption.

- sponsors to pay the spay and neuter costs for abandoned, but adoptable animals at the shelter.

When the expansion is completed at the shelter and a larger administration area is provided, furniture, a coffeepot and a microwave for the staff also would be welcomed.

Humane society shelter expanding

Formed in the 1970s to respond to the callous handling of impounded animals, the Lincoln County Humane Society is dedicated to the cause of abandoned dogs and cats.

Six years ago, the society opened a shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road for unwanted and lost animals. By this fall, dirt should be turning on an expansion of that facility to allow the society to serve more animals in a larger portion of the county.

Last year saw the passage of a mandatory spay and neuter ordinance by the village council of Ruidoso, marking a huge success in the work of organizers (vice president and shelter chairperson) Earline Phillips and (president) Hazel Haynsworth, as well as former shelter manager Randy Basch.

Earlier this year, the State Legislature helped the push for pet population control by passing a law that requires all animals adopted or reclaimed from shelters in New Mexico to be sterilized.

The commitment is to stop the production of dogs and cats, who later end up in shelters to be destroyed. The dream of society members is of a day when euthanasia will be used only for severely sick or injured animals. State officials have realized that the only humane and cost effective solution to pet overpopulation is spaying and neutering pets, not euthanasia.

The expansion of the Lincoln County Humane Society animal shelter is planned for three stages, because of financial restraints. The first stage will add new canine pens and will bring the cats and puppies into a more secure and temperature-controlled environment in the main building. Skylights will add brightness to the rooms.

A receiving room will be connected to an area where impounding officers can drive inside to release animals. A quarantine area will no longer be in the line of foot traffic.

Additional administration space should facilitate better record keeping and easier access for visitors. New food storage and preparation areas will be created. A new refrigerator will be needed for storage of medicine.

The dog pens will have individual outdoor runs connected to indoor pens.

When the three expansions are complete, society members hope to be able to serve all of Lincoln County, eliminating the inhumane situations now facing animals impounding in most areas outside of Ruidoso.

The addition of a computer system, if the budget will permit, would allow better tracking of each animal brought to the shelter and of the animal's eventual fate.

Adoption follow-up calls now are being placed on each animal and that information also would be put on computer.

During recent months, the number of volunteers showing an interest in outreach programs, attending monthly society meetings and visiting the shelter has increased. A healthy volunteer program is essential to the successful operation of a shelter and society members are grateful for the interest.

Two dedicated volunteers who show up several days each week to attend the cats are Josephine Strain and Pamela Rae. The cattery has been turned into a home away from home. Strain has decorated every cage with color coordinated baskets, boxes and litter pans. The pleasant and less stressful environment has allowed many mother cats to nurse their kittens in privacy and give them a healthy start on life. A play room also has been created.

One of the most heartwarming stories of the year centers around the adoption of Ginger.

The scarred, abused white Labrador mix first came to the shelter as a stray.

For more than a year, she became a semi-mascot of the shelter. But one day, a woman, who appeared to be quite taken with the dog, adopted Ginger.

Unfortunately, a few months later, she turned up as a stray again, but this time, she had been shot in the hind legs and was malnourished.

Basch, who then was shelter manager, worried that he might have to destroy Ginger because of her wounds. However, a veterinarian's assistant volunteered to treat the wounds and Ginger recovered with only a few more scars to show for her time on the road.

When Basch later resigned, Ginger was featured as Pet of the Week in The Ruidoso News, because he knew her future would be uncertain after he left.

To the rescue came Bill and Irene Holland, who previously had rescued an abused dog and gave it a home for many years until its natural death.

They adopted Ginger and have since shared photographs of their new family member lounging on their couch and playing in their fenced back yard.

Ginger has found the type of home shelter workers dream of finding for all of their charges, a home full of love and caring.

SHELTER MANAGER ESTHER HARPER AND FRIENDS

An animal hospital with its own animals

To their many friends, they are called Max and Scottie.

Around the clinic, they are called "The Amazing Performing Trick Cat," and "Duffus," respectively.

Some veterinary hospitals have one mascot, a few have two mascots, but no hospital has an amazing duo like the Ruidoso Animal Clinic mascots. They both have the run of the hospital (except the surgery room) and are likely to be seen when and where the client least expects them.

Both seem to sense when they are not particularly invited and they stay out of the way if things are really serious in the office.

Max is the resident Manx, domestic short hair cat. A three-year-old, Lincoln County born and raised, with a trick that only the most discriminating cats would even attempt. Taught by Dr. Catherine Tonn at an early age, Max has been known to jump through one's arms at an amazing height and then leap back to earth in moves resembling Michael Jordan.

Never far from her feed dish, Max has been known to set off the burglar alarm at night, rest in the exam room chairs, and allow Scottie to place his mouth around her head without moving.

DOCTOR WILLARD AND FRIENDS

Ever gentle one moment, and like a bull in a china closet the next, Scottie is a one year old male Golden Retriever. He has never met an enemy and has been known to sit quietly outside the cage of a seriously ill patient and offer his empathy to their predicament.

Scottie will spend hours retrieving a ball, stick or any other object from six feet away to those hidden under the Science Diet dog food in the reception area. He has been known to burst through the door of the exam room when Dr. Lynn Willard is in the middle of an exam, as if to say, "Need any help?" He loves to have anyone rub his head and pet his soft golden hair.

Many clients and even the UPS man are known to ask to see one or both when they visit the office. Always, as loyal companions, they are quick to oblige. Max is spayed and has yet to gain a great deal of weight since her surgery two years ago. Scottie has been neutered and finds food a necessity only when there is no one to play with, though he has been known to do almost anything for a Pet Tab vitamin.

Joe the Parrot, normally short-tempered and more than 60 years old, turns it into a trio of mascots, when he chooses. He becomes a talking maniac when children visit the office. His vocabulary includes "hello," "goodbye," "Polly wanta cracker," and a few words in Spanish that are unmentionable.

He particularly delights in grade school classroom tours when he is the center of attention for several minutes at a time.

The numbers

Humane Society Stats

From January to June 1993

Incoming dogs.....	397
Adopted.....	128
Returned to owner.....	89
Destroyed.....	141
Incoming cats.....	158
Adopted.....	36
Returned to owner.....	3
Destroyed.....	95

The balance of animals not adopted, returned or destroyed either still are in the shelter or may have died from distemper, Parvo or other diseases that are difficult to control when the population increases inside the facility.

The adoption rate varies, but during the first six months of this year, it is substantially higher than last year at 32 percent for dogs and 23 percent for cats.

Combining owner returns and adoptions, the figures increase to 54 percent for dogs and 24 percent for cats.

On the negative side, 60 percent of the cats impounded during the first six months of this year were destroyed and 35 percent of the dogs.

Dog farmers export pain

Last year, Canadian businesses purchased about 20,000 dogs, totalling about $4-million, from U.S. distributors.

Imported dogs are cheaper than native pups and Canadian pet stores have been a major market for U.S. puppy farms.

Although American exporters claim that 96 percent of the dogs going into Canada are completely healthy, the number of reported incidents of puppies becoming ill immediately after purchase from Canadian pet stores has increased.

The reports have prompted Animal Alliance, a Canadian animal protection group, to campaign for restrictive regulations on the puppy trade. A complete ban on the puppy trade is impossible, due to free trade agreements between the two countries.

From "Shelter Sense," May 1993

It's an old story, repeated every day in every shelter in America.

A tearful couple, knowing their pet has only a one-in-ten chance of readoption, is releasing their dog to an animal shelter.

"We love him, but he (pick one: bites, chews, barks, jumps, digs). We've tried everything but he just won't mind," they complain.

When asked for specifics of what they've tried, the man answers, "Everything. We've begged, we've yelled and whipped him. We even locked him in the garage. Nothing works. He just won't learn."

Most of the animals who "just won't learn" end up being destroyed, but the real cause of their deaths is that their owners just won't or can't teach, said Randy Basch, former shelter manager, who now operates a dog training service called The Educated Owner.

"There's a big difference between punishing 'bad' behavior and teaching 'good' behavior," Basch said. "What we consider problem behavior in our pets is for them, nothing more than action or reaction based on instinct, boredom, curiosity or fear. When we punish them for this natural behavior, our dogs become nervous, confused and cowed. They lose confidence in us as pack leader."

"However, teaching good behavior with positive reinforcement builds our dog's confidence and increases the bond and loyalty he feels for us."

14 million unwanted animals destroyed each year

Although Lincoln County's pet overpopulation problem is staggering to workers at the Humane Society animal shelter, the numbers pale in comparison to nationwide figures.

According to the latest statistics released by the Humane Society of the United States, about 14-million unwanted dogs and cats are killed each year in impounding facilities and shelters across the nation.

And that number is down two million from five years ago. Humane groups hope their efforts to educate pet owners on the need for spaying and neutering their animals, backed up by new city, county and state laws, have contributed to the decline.

For every human born, 15 dogs and 45 cats are brought into the world.

Starting with one female dog, with an annual reproduction rate of four puppies, two of them female, seven years later she and her female offspring will have produced 4,372 puppies.

Ruidoso was the first city and the second government entity in the nation to approve a mandatory spay and neuter law.

The Ruidoso village council followed San Mateo County, whose approach was even tougher and included a six month moratorium across the board on breeding. Although Basch recommends that the first attempt at training be handled under the guidance of a professional to ensure a good start, he listed several options for dog owners:

—buy a good training book for between $10-20 and follow it closely. If you run into trouble, you can consult a professional on a hourly basis for about $25 an hour.

—group training is available through the Ruidoso branch of Eastern New Mexico University and offers an inexpensive way to receive professional help with your pet for about $50.

—boarding and training is an option offered at some kennels. It's the easiest, but most expensive way.

"Your dog certainly will come home obeying his trainer, but he still may not obey you, and you've dished out between $500-$2,000," Basch said.

—private lessons are by far the best method for the dog and owner, Basch said.

"It allows for in-home training and individual coaching, while creating a strong bond between owner and dog," he said. "The owner also acquires the confidence to train his next dog himself. Depending on the trainer and circumstances, the cost could run from $300 to $1,200."

Basch said not to assume the most expensive trainers or schools are the best.

"Check with groomers and animal professional for recommendations," he said, "Ask for a demonstration and see how a trainer relates to your dog. With a good trainer, you should see a quick rapport develop between the two. So get started...and have fun!"

Basch had a little fun of his own by offering the following poem.

"Rover took over, Fifi's a fright,
Bruno keeps barking all through the night.

Dino's a digger, Scamp's beyond hope.

Rags chases cars, so he's tied on a rope.

You've yelled and you've screamed,
But you just can't restrain 'em
All is not lost

There's still time to train 'em."

Basch also suggested a few hints for any dog owner.

1. Never hit your pet or "choke" it with a choke chain while training. Patience is the key word.

2. Be consistent with your words when training, because you are teaching your pet a language. The first word to teach is "no."

3. Never call a dog to you for a punishment or scolding. If discipline is required, go to him.

4. Praise works better than discipline.

5. Limit training to short sessions to keep the experience a pleasant one for both of you and to prevent your pet from becoming bored or frustrated. Set aside at least 10 minutes each day.

ing.

Since Ruidoso took the progressive stand, many other cities, including Denver, Colorado, have fallen in line with their own versions of mandatory sterilization laws for pets.

Last spring, the New Mexico State Legislature added ammunition for humane groups in the state by requiring all animals adopted or reclaimed from shelters, whether private or public, to be spayed or neutered.

The law is aimed at the negligent pet owner who allows his/her animals to run loose and fails to have them sterilized, with resulting unwanted litters.

Most of the municipalities in Lincoln County, as well as the county itself, have leash laws that require pets who are off the property of their owners to be under restraint.

Unfortunately, animals picked up running loose outside of Ruidoso may not be lucky enough to end up at the Humane Society shelter.

If the animal is picked up in the county, it probably will be housed in an unheated building at Fort Stanton until it is destroyed a few days later, unless the owner is located. The system at Capitan is about the same, because only two cages are available.

Ruidoso Downs has built its own pound, which also has space for livestock, but the town's impounding law provides for an animal picked up running loose without tags to be adopted or destroyed within three days.

The humane society shelter also must resort to euthanasia, but only when an animal is sick, injured, adoptable or space has run out at the shelter, which has about 35 dog cages, including quarantine and outside areas. Cats are kept in a separate isolation when new and then moved to the cattery, if they are healthy.

Animals are held for three days while shelter manager Esther Harper and secretary Kathy Tetreault attempt to locate their owners.

If that effort fails, the animals are put up for adoption and are kept as long as possible. If they are released by their owners, donations toward their food or sterilization, will help prolong their time.

Every one at the shelter, workers, volunteers and humane society board members, hope the day will come when euthanasia is used strictly for the ill or injured.

The only way that day will come is with the help and understanding of every pet owner, every rancher or farmer and every breeder.

Some tips for being a good pet owner

A good pet owner need only observe a few rules to ensure his animal's happiness.

1. Spay or neuter pets as soon as possible. Only a bad diet and lack of ex-

Sheba, who appears to be part wolf, has been spayed. Submissive, but strong, she will need a secure area in which to exercise and an owner who will take the time to win her loyalty.

ercise will cause your pet to get fat and lazy. Females dogs and cats tend to be healthier without a litter and neutered males have fewer prostate disorders. Sterilized pets are less likely to escape.

Even if owners are able to find homes for unwanted pups, they have taken a home away from some other abandoned animal at a shelter.

Sterilization of a pet is a one time cost compared to future medical bills and care of pups. Saving a life also has value.

If you want your child to experience the miracle of birth, stop at one of Lincoln County's many ranches and watch a horse or cow deliver its foal or calf. Plenty of good educational videos also are available.

2. Be sure your dogs and cats receive annual vaccinations to protect them against rabies, distemper, Parvo and other diseases. Teeth cleaning and a general examination by a veterinarian also will help keep your pet healthy.

3. Keep an up to date license tag and rabies vaccination tag on your dog or cat's collar. If they become lost, the tags could bring them home.

4. Bring cats inside permanently. They live longer, healthier and safer lives and you won't have that daily worry.

5. Take pets in for professional grooming and perform some grooming at home between visits.

6. Try low-calorie, but high quality food on your over-weight dog or cat. Don't feed table scraps.

7. Dogs require daily walks. Enjoy the time together and get some exercise. Set aside play time during the day for all pets.

8. Don't leave pets inside cars while you shop on warm days. It could be a lethal experience.

9. When traveling with your dog in a pickup truck, put your companion in the cab to prevent injuries from sudden turns or stops. If the dog spends any time in the truck bed when the vehicle is not moving, put down a carpet or blanket to protect the dog's foot pads from the hot metal surface.

10. If a dog is left outside during the day, make sure sufficient water and food is available, as well as a shelter from the sun, wind or rain within a fenced enclosure.

Bring the dog in at night, he/she is part of the family. Being a pack animal, a dog left outside at night when the owner returns home from work sees the action as punishment, as being ostracized from the pack.

Why have a dog if you never interact with the animal? Life outside at the end of a chain is not much of a life.

A dog's life...

If you're feeling a bit stiff this morning, just take a look at your dog. He's aging at a much faster rate.

Although a one-year-old dog physiologically is about on a par with a 14-year-old child, the difference per year slows after that.

Here's a general guideline based on the assumption that the average lifespan of a dog is about 11 years.

Dog Years	Man Years
2 months	14 months
6 months	5 years
8 months	9 years
12 months	14 years
18 months	20 years
2 years	24 years
3 years	30 years
4 years	36 years
5 years	40 years
6 years	42 years
7 years	49 years
8 years	56 years
9 years	63 years
10 years	65 years
11 years	71 years

LINCOLN COUNTY "ANIMAL CONTROL"

RABIES SUSPECT ANIMAL:

A. Every rabies suspect animal shall be immediately confined by the owner and the owner shall not permit the rabies suspect animal to contact any person or animal. The owner shall immediately notify the Animal Control Officer or the Sheriff. The owner shall surrender every rabies suspect animal to the Sheriff or Animal Control Officer on demand. The Animal Control Officer shall impound every rabies suspect animal at the expense of the owner thereof, unless the owner has made satisfactory arrangements for the quarantine of such animal. no rabies suspect animal shall be released from impoundment or quarantine unless and until it has been certified free from rabies by a licensed veterinarian.

B. No person shall kill a rabies suspect animal nor remove such animal from the County without permission of the Animal Control Officer or Sheriff, except when it is necessary to kill such animals to prevent it from escaping or biting any person or animal.

C. The Animal Control Officer or Sheriff shall direct the disposition of any animal found to be afflicted with rabies.

D. The carcass of any dead rabies suspect animal shall be surrendered to the Animal Control Officer or Sheriff on demand.

ANIMAL RUNNING AT LARGE: Any dog or cat running at large may be seized and impounded by the Animal Control Officer or Sheriff. If any dog or cat is not redeemed by the owner within seventy-two (72) hours by the owner paying the reasonable costs of impoundment and care as well as any vaccination, such dog or cat may be humanely destroyed or otherwise disposed of; PROVIDED that a reasonable effort has been made to notify the owner, if known.

REPORTING OF ANIMAL BITES: Any person bitten by any animal and the owner of any animal biting any person shall immediately notify the Animal Control Officer or Sheriff of the circumstances of the bite and the name, age, sex, and address of the victim and the owner. The Animal Control Office or Sheriff shall conduct an investigation to determine if the animal has been properly vaccinated for rabies and that the period of rabies immunity has not expired. If such determined cannot be conclusively made, the animal shall be considered a rabies suspect animal as hereinbefore defined.

DUMPING OF ANIMAL PROHIBITED: No person shall dump or abandon any living animal at any location. Such dumped or abandoned animal may be seized and impounded in the same manner as an animal running at large

PENALTY: The violation of any of the provision of this ordinance shall be a petty misdemeanor as defined by Section 30-1-8, N.M.S.A., 1978 Compilation,

Take care of pets

Leaving a pet in a parked car can be a deadly mistake.

On a warm day, the temperature in a car may reach 160 degrees in a matter of minutes, even when the windows are partly open.

With only hot air for a pet to breathe, it quickly can suffer brain damage or die from heatstroke.

When it's hot, the best decision is to leave pets at home.

Open windows, shaded parking areas or air conditioned cars with the motor off won't save a pet's life.

Be alert to signs of heat stress. They include heavy panting, glazed eyes, rapid pulse rate, dizziness, vomiting or a deep red or purple tongue.

If a dog becomes overheated, put him in the shade and take the following emergency steps:

- apply ice packs or cold towels to the head, neck and chest.

- don't give an unlimited amount of cold water. Let him lick ice cubes or even ice cream.

- take the dog to a veterinarian immediately. It could save the pet's life.

PICKUP TRUCKS

Many pet owners enjoy taking their dogs with them to work or while running errands. Dogs hanging over the side of a pickup truck bed can be seen all over town.

But few situations are less safe for a dog than riding in the open bed of a truck. Any sudden stop or turn could send the animal flying out of the truck. If fatal injuries don't result on impact, it's possible they will land on the road and in the path of another vehicle.

On hot days, the floor of the pickup bed turns into a large skillet, burning the dog's foot pads.

Take your companion with you in the cab of the truck. When you arrive at a destination, have a blanket or piece of carpet ready to spread in the truck bed for the dog to protect his feet, and try to find shade.

And keep in mind, both Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs have laws that require dogs in truck beds to be restrained to the point their heads do not extend beyond the sides.

If putting the dog in the truck cab is not an option while driving, provide protective covering on the bed of the truck and a restraint harness, which will minimize chances of injury in most situations short of a traffic accident.

Remember, a pet is a family member and deserves protection.

Teach kids to be kind to animals

The message is about kindness.

It starts with kindness to animals, but can grow into a different and compassionate way of dealing with life.

Humane educators are trying to spread that message, working with teachers, school administrators and other professionals.

While humane educators may use animals to facilitate learning, the underlying focus really is on character development, according to Willow Ann Soltow and Jill Shepherd, writing in Shelter Sense magazine.

"The message is about kindness, compassion, sharing and responsibility," they wrote. "Moreover, for children, and for teachers, an open forum for discussing animal issues can be an essential way to fight child abuse and other violence."

Teachers are eager to identify "at risk" children and humane education provides one valid avenue.

"Many children go through a period of 'innocent' cruelty in which they may injure or kill small animals in the process of testing their boundaries," the authors stated. "With adult guidance, most children learn to empathize with animals and understand that animals have the capacity to feel pain.

"Some children, however, lock into a pattern of cruelty that becomes more intense and more destructive as they grow older. The classroom is the perfect place to stop abuse before it becomes a habit or seems acceptable, because it goes unnoticed."

Violent acts toward animals are obvious warning signs of violent tendencies that could lead, later in life, to a total disregard for any living being, the authors wrote. Increasing numbers of cases are surfacing of convicted criminals who have past records of animal abuse.

"Stories of violent criminals who have a history of animal abuse are commonplace, yet families, friends and teachers often ignore the possibility that the child may need help," they wrote.

Teaching about animals in the classroom encourages students to discuss how animals are treated in their homes and neighborhoods.

Where animal abuse occurs, whether by children or parents, child abuse often also is happening. While a child may be ashamed or afraid to discuss their own situation, they feel free to talk about how the family pet is treated.

"By becoming alert to the connections between child abuse and animal abuse, educators can more readily identify children who need help," Soltow and Shepherd stated.

The Lincoln County Humane Society is seeking a corporate sponsor for a new education outreach program locally.

Using former shelter manager Randy Basch as the education representative, the society is putting together a program to be presented to classes in school systems throughout the county, as well as to adult groups.

'Bad' behavior results in death sentence

Keeping pets out of shelters by nipping behavior problems in the bud is an approach championed a decade ago by the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA).

The group even created an animal behavior department in 1983 after being approached by Dr. Ivan Dunbar, a veterinarian with a doctorate in animal behavior.

Dunbar believes that even when owners cite other causes for giving up their pets, animals are most often surrendered to shelters for house-soiling, excessive barking and other common, but easily correctable behavior problems.

Recent studies by Robert K. Anderson, D.V.M., backs up Dunbar's contention.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association last August, Anderson said that unwanted behavior of dogs and cats are the leading cause of euthanasia of healthy animals each year.

In a study using a statistically designed sample of dogs at 16 veterinarian hospitals, the top behavior complaints reported included dogs jumping on people and excessive barking.

Other top complaints were pulling the owner down the street when walking, escaping from the yard, jumping on furniture, excessive excitability, digging, poor house training behaviors and chewing.

Complaints about aggressive behavior was far less common, Anderson said. And many of those can be handled through obedience training before negative patterns are established.

"Animals never do anything unnatural," said Bob Gutierrez, animal behavior coordinator with the San Francisco SPCA. "Everything an animal does he or she does for a reason. Usually the problem isn't what the animal does, but rather how the animal's behavior meshes with the world of humans. Understanding this is the key to solving problems."

With a larger organization and population base for support, that group's staff actively works with the stray and abandoned animals brought to their shelter. They provide obedience training and update information on the animals cards that is helpful when matching a pet with a new owner.

While the staff of the Lincoln County Humane Society shelter is too small to interact on that level, volunteer dog walkers and cat socializers are a valuable resource.

Unlike some animals who end up in a shelter, Chickums is well behaved and tries hard to please.

They are crucial to the happiness and well-being of the animals. When shelter animals see a frequent volunteer approach, they often jump up and down in welcome and anticipation of the time together.

Going on a stroll with a shelter dog fills the animals's day with exercise, socialization and love. The volunteers also can alert staff members to changes in behavior or health problems they see.

Volunteers who play and groom the dogs and cats, give them the extra attention that helps keep them outgoing and adapted to humans.

When volunteers come across a shy animal or one that is too hyperactive, they also can work with those prospective pets to modify their behavior and make them more adaptable. The local shelter never has enough volunteers. It's a great way to spend the summer, especially if a person is not able to adopt an animal, but enjoys the company.

New owners should discuss any possible behavior problems with shelter workers when they adopt. Each adoption from the Humane Society shelter carries a two-week trial period within which the animal can be exchanged for another.

The shelter also recently has instituted follow up contact on each adoption to ensure that the new owners are satisfied, that the animals are spayed or neutered, have their rabies shots and have adequate accommodations.

Pet's sponsors can save their lives

Two very important ways to positively and directly impact the lives of animals abandoned at the Lincoln County Humane Society shelter are to become a sponsor or to provide a foster home.

Sponsors pick up the expense of spaying or neutering a dog or cat to improve its chances for adoption.

Sterilization through the shelter's arrangement with three local clinics runs from $18 for a male cat to $45 for a female dog.

The donation may be earmarked for a particular animal or for any of the animals up for adoption.

Seasonal residents may find the foster home program ideal for their situations. While they may not be able to adopt a dog, because they will be leaving at the end of summer, they can provide a two-week refuge for litters. That allows time for the first round of protective shots to take effect and greatly improves the puppies' chances of surviving when they are returned to the shelter for adoption.

The pups will need boosters, but with luck, they may be in new permanent homes by that time.

Unprotected puppies, which most are when they enter the shelter, often die from distemper, Parvo or other infectious diseases.

Foster homes also are needed during the fall, winter and spring, but must be able to provide an indoor space for the young ones.

Volunteers are welcomed to help walk dogs, play with cats, groom any animal and participate in the Saturday spay and neuter education/adoption programs outside Wal-Mart.

Of course, donations of food, bedding, toys and other items for the shelter are greatly appreciated at any time.

For more information, call shelter manager Esther Harper at 257-9841 or stop to chat at the Gavilan Canyon facility.

Support the L.C. Humane Society and save money

Don't forget the annual garage sale of The Ruidoso News to benefit the Lincoln County Humane Society's spay and neuter program for abandoned pets.

Browse through the goodies at the newspaper office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, July 30 and from 8 a.m. to noon, Saturday.

Also watch for the pet parade at Wal-Mart in August when the shelter will have a chance to show off its adult animals.

Store manager Mike Daulton also allows volunteers to showcase puppies and kittens, and hand out educational literature, each Saturday morning.

Here's help to housebreak your dog

Most dogs are basically neat and prefer to keep their sleeping areas clean. House breaking a puppy doesn't have to be an emotional confrontation.

Below are some tips:

—puppies almost always will relieve themselves within 20 minutes after eating and usually soon after awakening.

—dogs enjoy picking a spot that they or another dog already have anointed.

—veterinarians stress that the trick is timing. A pup should be confined to a crate or carrier at night, then taken out the first thing in the morning to the spot in the yard reserved as his bathroom.

—if he has wetted a newspaper, take that page out into the yard. The scent should help pinpoint a spot. Once he has performed praise him for his good work.

—follow the procedure after each meal. Take him out to the same spot and wait. Play a little. Sometimes it helps speed up the process.

If a pup errs inside during your absence, it's best to overlook the mistake and clean it out outside of his view. If you catch him in the act, scold him and take him outside immediately. If he manages to come up with some more to eliminate, praise him lavishly.

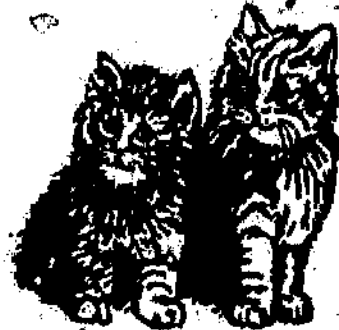

—be sure to clean "mistake" spots in the house well enough to remove any lingering scent. Never scold if the mistake is a result of diarrhea. Be sure to attach one word to the action to help your pup begin to recognize it.

THE VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO DOWNS "ANIMAL CONTROL"

Vaccination: All dogs or cats over the age of (3) three months in the Village, shall be vaccinated against rabies annually.

Licensing: A license needs to be secured by the owner for such dog or cat from the Clerk/Treasurer on or before the first day of March each year. Failure to comply with the licensing and vaccination provision of this article shall subject such owner to a fine of up to three hundred dollars.

Prohibited Acts: It is unlawful to:

- Allow any animal in the Village to permit the same to run at large within the village.
- Leave unattended in any motor vehicle, truck bed or trailer unless such animal is confined so that no portion of the animal's head can protrude beyond the outer boundaries of the motor vehicle, truck bed or trailer.
- To willfully, or through failure to exercise reasonable care and control, permit an animal to defecate or urinate on any public or private premise other than the owner's premises. It shall be the owner's responsibility to sanitarily remove any solid excrement from any public or private premises.
- To allow an animal to make excessive noise and thereby disturb the peace of others.
- To keep or harbor a vicious animal within the Village of Ruidoso Downs, unless the animal is confined within a building or within a secure enclosure.
- Any animal beyond the enclosed boundaries of the premises of the animal's owner or keeper shall be under immediate control. A leash of not more than six feet in length should be used.

Impounding of Animals: If the owner is determined, the animal will be released to the owner or representative upon payment of a pickup fee of fifteen dollars ($15.00) plus a fee of five dollars ($5.00) for each day that the animal was confined. A fee will also be collected to cover the tag and license and/or vaccinations where either or both have expired. At the end of the minimum confinement period, (3 days for unlicensed for 5 days for licensed dogs, not counting the first day of confinement).

Cruelty to Animals: It shall be unlawful for any person to torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance, cruelly beat, mutilate, or cruelly drive or kill any animal, or unnecessarily fail to provide the same with proper food, drink or shelter, cruelly drive or work the same when unfit for labor or known to be diseased, or the abandon any animal within the Village limits.

PETUNIA

What's in a name?

A pet's name is a reflection of the creativity and personality of its owner, according to Renée D. Cowing in her The Complete Book of Pet Names.

She cautions that more than a few minutes should be put into naming a pet.

Some aspects an owner should consider include:

- the name is destined to be repeated hundreds of times. Pick a name that won't grate on the nerves.

- the name must survive various stages of growth.

- don't give a name that can easily be confused with a command. The author gave the example of the name "Gretch" and the command "fetch."

- pick a name that is fairly short and easy to pronounce, even for young children in a household.

- if you plan to show an animal, check with The American Kennel Club to ensure the name chosen is within their limitations.

Cowing wrote that one of the most common approaches to naming a pet is by appearance, such as body shape or size, distinctive markings or coloring.

Other popular pools from which to draw include behavior traits, cartoon characters, television and movie shows and actors, famous names in history and literature, even sounds, initials, food or foreign phrases.

The top 10 cat names listed in the book are Kitty, Smokey, Shadow, Tiger, Boo Boo, Boots, Molly, Tigger, Spike and Princess.

The top 10 dog names are Brandy, Lady, Max, Rocky, Sam, Heidi, Sheba, Ginger, Muffin and Bear.

While many celebrities appear to be as earthbound as common folks in selecting names for their pets, a few reached for a star.

Zsa Zsa Gabor named her Shih Tzu Ghengis Kahn; Tom Hayden dubbed his Labrador retriever Taxi; Maureen Reagan calls her mixed breed Boxcar Willie; Bill Keane calls his cat Beast and the Persian of Clayton Moore answers to Pandora.

Good grooming promotes health

Grooming services are offered by some area veterinarians and other supporters of the Lincoln County Humane Society such as Clutter's Pet Shop, Hondo Valley Kennels and Pampered Pets.

Far from a frill, grooming stimulates and distributes natural oils to keep a pet's coat shiny, removes dead hair, dirt and other foreign matter, as well as prevents matting.

Between visits to professional groomers, pet owners can enjoy mini-grooming sessions at home. It's a good way to detect health problems, dry skin, parasites and wounds.

Four key areas should be included in a home grooming routine: coat, teeth, nails and ears.

A dog should be bathed as seldom as possible since frequent washing removes natural oils.

When brushing, go all the way down to the skin to stimulate the blood circulation, loosen and remove flakes of dandruff.

Remove mats and solid masses of hair, found most often behind the ears and under the legs. Be extremely careful not to cut the skin.

When necessary, bathe the dog with mild soap, baby shampoo or coconut-oil shampoo. Plug the dog's ears with cotton and place a gentle ophthalmic ointment or a few drops of mineral oil in his eyes.

Rinse well and avoid drafts until the dog is dry.

Nails should be trimmed about once a month if the dog is not active and the nail do not wear down on rough surfaces.

Using a specially designed dog nail trimmer, cut just outside the pink bloodline visible in white nails. For dark nails, remove only the hook-like part of the nail that turns down.

To clean ears, use a damp towel or cotton ball soaked in mineral oil or alcohol. Clean only the part of the inner ear that you can see, never stick anything beyond that area.

Clean your dog's teeth about twice a week. A gauze pad or washcloth, wrapped around your finger and dipped in baking soda works well. Vigorously scrub teeth from gum to crown.

Socks, a neutered Golden retriever mix with an attractive coat of medium length hair, would benefit from a regular schedule of grooming, as would his friends.

There's a better way to solve cat scratching problems

Surgically removing the claws of a cat is not the only way to solve the scratching habit.

Most cats can learn to use acceptable scratching areas.

Here are a few tips from Shelter Sense magazine:

- provide the cat with an alternate piece of furniture to claw such as her own scratching post. It should be as tall as the cat when the animal stretches up to full length. It must be sturdy and covered with bark or carpeting.

- to entice the cat to use the post instead of the couch, place it next to a favorite scratching place, cover it with catnip and "show" her how to use it by extending her claws on the post and making a scratching motion.

- most important, praise her when she tries it on her own and whenever she uses the post.

- use a repellent such as perfume or vinegar on the former scratching places, or cover them with plastic or tape to make them undesirable. A squirt with a water pistol or plant mister or a very firm "no," will remind the cat not to scratch where she shouldn't.

- trim the cat's claws weekly, using nail clippers to remove the white tip of each claw. This will keep her from causing damage when she does claw.

Declawing a cat requires surgery, in which the claw and the end bone of each toe are amputated.

Convalescence usually takes one to two weeks, but the cat may have altered feeling in the toes for a while.

While the humane society advocates keeping all cats inside, declawed cats in particular should never be let outside.

With their front claws, which are their primary means of self-defense, gone, a cat may not be adequately able to defend itself, even if it still has its teeth and hind claws. And the cat may not be able to escape danger by climbing a tree.

Also some experts assert that declawing is only a quick fix that will not address the underlying bad behavior of a cat, or may aggravated that bad behavior.

The Humane Society of the United States has taken the position of opposing declawing when done only for the convenience of the owner.

Scratching, as cat lovers know, is as natural to a cat as purring. Responsible pet ownership means accepting the negative aspects of pet ownership along with the rewards.

Anne Raver, a columnist for the New York Times wrote about the declawing of her cat, Mrs. Gray, in her August 1991 column: "She doesn't flex her claws anymore, in that luxurious way she had while snoozing in the sun. She's quieter too, like a feisty soul beaten up once too often. We've taken away her last wildness, the dignity that comes from power."

"We tell ourselves it's all right to do these things to animals. We have civilized reasons, like not letting them destroy our priceless possessions. We tell ourselves how we rescued them from the streets. After all, Mrs. Gray was a stray."

"We remove their claws when they don't respect our possessions. But we'd call it barbaric to remove the fingers of a thief."

"Mrs. Gray comes to sit by me now. She purrs and rubs her head against my hand. I suppose I could say she has forgiven me, in which case her love puts mine to shame. But I have stolen from her and she is the lesser for it."

Mink, a friendly and attractive cat at the Lincoln County Humane Society animal shelter, would need to be altered. But the new owner should think carefully about the consequences of declawing.

Prayer of a Stray

Dear God, please send me somebody who'll care!
I'm tired of running, I'm sick with despair.
My body is aching. It's so racked with pain,
And Dear God, I pray as I run in the rain,
That someone will love me and give me a home,
A warm cozy bed and a big juicy bone.
My last owner tied me all day in the yard.
Sometimes with no water and God, that was hard.
So I chewed my leash, God, and I ran away.
To rummage in garbage and live as a stray.
But now, God, I'm tired and hungry and cold.
And I'm so afraid that I'll never grow old.
They've chased me with sticks and hit me with stones,
While I run the streets just looking for bones.
I'm not really bad, God, please help if you can,
For I have become just a victim of man.
I'm wormy, dear God, and I'm ridden with fleas and
All that I want is an owner to please.
If you find one for me, God, I'll try to be good.
And I won't chew their shoes, but I'll do as I should.
I'll love them, protect them and try to obey
When they tell me to sit, to lie down or to stay.
I don't think I'll make it too long on my own,
Cause I'm getting so weak and I'm so all alone.
Each night as I sleep in the bushes I cry,
Cause I'm so afraid, God, that I'm gonna die!
And I've got so much love and devotion to give.
That I should be given a new chance to live.
So dear God, please, please, answer my prayer and Send me somebody who will really care.
That is, dear God, if you're really there.

Tips for good Samaritans

Some hints are offered below by William E. Campbell, publisher of PET Behavior Rx NEWSLETTER to good samaritans who pick up stray dogs and try to find the owners.

His advice appeared in SHOPTALK, a publication of the American Humane Association.

Most runaways are looking for something or someone, the family kids' school, the owner's normal travel route or where they previously found other social or food rewards, Campbell said.

"Locating where they went from the owner's home is usually revealed by the direction of the prevailing wind at the time they took to the road," he wrote.

Campbell suggested that the rescuer drive in ever-widening circles around the area in which the dog was found. All of the windows should be left open.

"It won't be long before the dog shows excitement as you approach an area. Then take the dog on a leash and let him lead you to his home," Campbell wrote. "It's surprising how many astounded, happy owners will say they have been looking for hours, days or even weeks for their dog."

He advised owners of lost dogs to head in the direction of the prevailing wind, unless there is a specific suspected destination. Some dogs will go in the direction of their latest or most familiar ride in the car, he wrote.

Of course, the owners could make it all a lot easier if they would just keep collars with current tags on their pets.

Feed your pets right

Consult your veterinarian for specific suggestions about feeding a pet, but some general guidelines are listed below:

—cats should not be fed milk, because it contains lactose that can be difficult to digest. They could suffer symptoms of diarrhea.

—give dogs rawhide chew bones or hard rubber chew toys. Real bones can splinter and lodge in a dog's throat, mouth or stomach.

—be careful with generic foods. They may not contain the nutrients your pet needs.

—don't feed cats dog food. Cats need an amino acid called taurine that is not contained in dog food. Deprivation could result in blindness and death.

—go light on table scraps. Pets have different nutritional needs than humans.

—excessive consumption of chocolate could be lethal for dogs. They cannot process it like humans, but love the taste.

The Ruidoso News

July 21, 1993

To the Humane Society of Ruidoso,

My name is Deborah Harris and I am a summer resident of the Ruidoso area. I teach middle school science in Jakarta, Indonesia at the Jakarta International School. J.I.S. is an English language based school represented by 52 different nationalities, and is widely considered the top academic international school in the entire international school system.

I received The Ruidoso News and always enjoy the articles concerning your humane society.

In one of the many effort to introduce to my students beneficial cross-cultural information I clipped and brought one of The Ruidoso News articles concerning your shelter.

Many questions were asked about this process for taking care of homeless animals. Although many countries have their own system of humane societies you be surprised there are some developing 3rd world countries that do not.

My homeroom class took upon themselves the project of collecting funds for your society.

It is very gratifying to think that with this newspaper article your 'humanity' has reached many thousands of miles. Many of these students will remember the Ruidoso Human Society and their lives may in the future reflect this learning. Humanity towards animals is indeed a wonderful idealism for the world!

Sincerely
Deborah Harris
