Trash board to meet Wednesday

The budget and dumping fees for the new Otero-Lincoln County Regional Landfill, scheduled to open in January, will be reviewed during a special meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Members of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority will meet in the recycling center building on Second Street in Ruidoso Downs.

Due for action are a joint powers agreement and an ordinance to allow the authority to issue bonds as a guarantee for repayment of Lincoln's portion of the cost of constructing the landfill.

Santa Fe simulcasts continue wednesday

The entire card from The Downs At Santa Fe will be simulcast in the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater on Wednesday.

After this week, only four more Wednesday simulcasts remain from Santa Fe.

Councilors set workshop series

Ruidoso Village Council will conduct the first of a series of workshops at 9 a.m. Tuesday, August 3, at Ruidoso Municipal Administrative Center.

The open workshops will continue at 9 a.m. each Tuesday until further notice.

The purpose of the workshops is to discuss the village's goals, priorities, directions and policies, with this week's session specifically about personnel rules and regulations.

The public is invited.

Local Catholics plan spiritual renewal

St. Eleanor Catholic Church is planning a program of spiritual awakening known as RENEW.

RENEW will begin this fall as a three-year promotion of spiritual growth for a more involved church membership.

Focus will be placed on the areas of parish activity that include Sunday mass, a prayer network, large group events, take-home activities for families and shut-ins and small sharing groups.

Signup Sunday for RENEW will be September 13, at St. Eleanor.

Police recover stolen vehicle

A 1983 red Mazda RX7 stolen from Albuquerque landed up in a ditch along State Highway 37 near Bonito Lake Sunday morning after a short high speed chase.

Poncho Smith, U.S. Forest Service law enforcement officer, said he noticed the car about 2:30 a.m. being driven erratically and signaled the driver to pull over.

"But just after coming to a stop, the driver took off again," Smith said. "It was a short chase, about a half mile. He came around the corner on the wrong side of the road and almost hit another car head-on. He locked up, slid sideways and hit a guard rail, then landed in the ditch."

The driver of the car took off running as Smith pulled up along side and radioed for back-up.

"I walked over and saw the ignition was completely gone and wires were hanging," he said. About the same time, a report came back that the car was stolen.

Sheriff James McSwane said seven deputies, five sheriff's posse members and Capitan police joined the search. Deputy sheriff Bobby Miller arrested a suspect at 9 a.m. walking on Fort Stanton Road.

Jailed on charges of possession of a stolen vehicle, reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, eluding law enforcement officials and eluding police was Timothy Paul Garcia. The 22-year-old former Hondo resident listed an Albuquerque address.

State Police handled the accident report.

1992 World Champion racing quarter horses in the $247,472 World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic, Sunday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Refrigerator runs into history

World Champion Refrigerator became the fifth richest quarter horse in history with an impressive 1 1/4-length victory in the Grade 1 $247,472 World's Championship Classic, Sunday at Ruidoso Downs.

The 5-year-old gelding by Rare Jet earned $123,736 for the win which bumped his career earnings over the $1.71 million mark and vaulted him past Higheasterjet on the all-time money list. Eastex, with $1.86 million, tops the list.

In the 440-yard race, Refrigerator broke on the lead from the #6 post as the 2-5 favorite and quickly had a one-length advantage over the nation's top older quarter horses.

In mid-stretch, jockey Bruce Pilkenton showed the gelding his whip, but never had to touch him as he drew off from the rest of the classy field. The time was :21.40 over a sloppy track.

"He left the gates on top and switched leads 50 or 75 yards down the track," said jockey Bruce Pilkenton. "When he switched leads he accelerated and said 'see you later' then headed for the winner's circle."

Owner James Helzer purchased Refrigerator for $150,000 midway through his freshman campaign in 1990 and the gelding has proven to be a great investment for the Arlington, Texas businessman.

"When we bought him we thought he demonstrated the ability to be a great race horse. He's a tremendous athlete and he demonstrated it today."

Refrigerator is undefeated in two starts this year after clocking the fastest qualifying time in the July 22 trials. According to trainer Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath, the gelding will be shipped to California in ten days to prepare for the Grade 1 Los Alamitos Championship on Sept 18.

California's top trainer, Blane Schvaneveldt will condition Refrigerator at Los Alamitos.

The Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath-trainee has a sparkling record of 17 wins from 24 starts and has never finished out of the money in his career.

Homer Garza's First Down And Ten put a head in front of Fortune Of Delight to secure the place position. First Down And Ten, who captured the Grade 1 Kansas Derby in May, added $42,070 to his bankroll as runner-up. The 3-year-old colt by First Down Dash is trained by Jack Brooks and ridden by Jacky Martin.

Gwendolyn Eaves' Fortune Of Delight rallied late to get up for the show under strong urging by jockey Jerry Rodriguez. The 4-year-old filly by Six Fortunes earned $24,747 for her efforts. Fortune Of Delight is trained by Richard Fry.

Absenteeism prompts EDCLC board to consider smaller quorum number

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

If you can't raise the bridge, lower the river.

An attempt to reduce the number of Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County board members needed for a quorum failed during Thursday's regular monthly meeting.

Executive director Karen Kopp has been working with a board that has been plagued by absenteeism throughout her tenure. Her suggestion for amending the by-laws, lowering the quorum number from one over half to five, was a last-minute addition to Thursday's agenda.

Currently the by-laws say that the board needs a majority of the board members, currently seven due to the board's three vacancies, to constitute a quorum.

Kopp proposed that the number be dropped to five or six.

EDCLC Director Wilton Howell, who represents the Lincoln County Commission on the board, was strongly opposed to the idea of dropping the number needed.

"I really have a problem with changing the number for the quorum," said Howell. "We need to be serious about this. I have a problem with five people being the majority for a board of 15."

Dick Mound, however, defended the idea.

"We need to have an active meeting every meeting," said Mound.

Howell agreed with that idea, but said that instead of lowering the needed numbers, they should have at least eight people who are dedicated to the EDCLC.

"I think the people who are showing up are dedicated," Mound said.

Hearing the strong objections to the idea by Howell, the other board members apparently decided not to attempt the change.

"Let's try it for another year and see if we can get people excited about coming again," said board member Eileen Lovelace.

The board agreed and committed the EDCLC to the same number needed for a quorum for another year.

"I just do what the board tells me," said Kopp. "I had my quorum, and it didn't seem that hard to get."

In a related matter, the directors discussed the board's three vacancies.

cies.

The positions were left open by the resignation of John VanTussenbrook, Lee Griffin and Joan Bailey.

Bailey's spot as representative of the Chamber of Commerce board was taken over by current EDCLC board member Frank Potter. Potter, a member of the chamber board, will now represent the Chamber of Commerce on the EDCLC board.

The move by Potter leaves his at-large board position open, making three vacancies.

Kopp suggested that the board should agree on a nominating committee who would find three individuals for the open spots.

The committee, Potter and Mound, has to contact the prospective board members and ask them to be on the board. If they agree, they automatically become a board member.

According to Kopp, the board does not need to approve the new members in any way.

Potter and Mound will make their search throughout the month.

"I think in light of our earlier discussion, this is really crucial for our board," said Jim Miller.

Kopp suggested to the committee that Sharon Wicker, wife of village manager Ron Wicker, be added to the board.

Lovelace suggested Roy Dowl of Capitan.

"There are people out there," said board member Barbara Duff, who represented the Ruidoso Village Council. "All we have to do is find them."

Once the three vacancies are filled, the EDCLC board will need eight members present to reach a quorum.

During her regular monthly report, Kopp announced that effective immediately all of the group's prospects will be given code names and will be kept completely confidential.

"It is going to be policy that any prospect that we have is going to be confidential," said Kopp.

Kopp gave her directors a taste of that confidentiality by handing out a list with code names like "Project Discover," "Project Bright Future" and "Project Quick Start."

Board reviews athletic code

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A new Ruidoso school athletic code should balance consistency with enough flexibility to work with students at risk, parents urged Thursday.

They offered their input during a special school board meeting to review a proposed new code and to open bids on accessory construction projects.

When the session was finished, board members, parents and school administration officials agreed the code should apply as well to non-athletic school activities, such as band.

School superintendent Mike Gladden, the board and coaches agreed to take another look at the code last spring after a parent protested the handling of his son's discipline case. Several other parents joined in his objections.

They contended expulsion from a sport for the remainder of a season on a first offense was too tough a punishment. They also objected to the lack of a provision for appeal. While they called for consistent handling of punishment for misconduct, they also contended that degree of misconduct varies and without the ability to appeal, the code could be abused by coaches.

Last spring, a committee of parents, school representatives and others tabulated the (parental) survey results. At an April board meeting, those results were presented with the committee's suggestions," Gladden said.

Coaches and athletic coordinator Juan Baca then reviewed those suggestions and came up with a proposed new code containing some clarifications. Baca said the language "was more to the point."

"Item 2 is capitalized to emphasize that as soon as possible (after an alleged incident) there will be a meeting with all parties," he said. That meeting will include coaches, the athletic coordinator, the building principal, the parents and the student.

"One of the coaches asked 'What if I'm going on a trip Saturday (and find out about an incident)? Should I let him go or deal with it first?'" Baca said. "I told him if there is definite proof, suspend the athlete and meet with the group as soon as possible after your return."

Item four spells out the discipline.

It prohibits the use or possession of illegal drugs, including alcohol or tobacco in any form.

For a first offense, an athlete would be suspended from all athletic contests for seven days and would perform five hours of service to the athletic program for the coach of the sport season during which the offense occurred.

"It provides some equity since basketball and football schedules (for the number of games) are so different," Baca said.

"It also keeps the student in practices, just not participating in games, so we know where they are," Gladden said.

The athlete would be required to

A one-vehicle accident five miles north of Carrizozo on Thursday resulted in the injury of all five people in the vehicle, including three small children.

New Mexico State Police and two Carrizozo ambulances staffed by volunteers responded to the accident which occurred at about 9 a.m.

All were transported to Lincoln County Medical Center by the Carrizozo ambulances and Ruidoso EMS personnel. A two-year-old and a seven-year-old were transported on the same morning to Eastern New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell, according to Ruidoso EMS officials.

One person was treated and released while the mother and another child were released from LCMC on Friday.

A state police report with details of the accident was not available at press time.

Reports of an explosion in Carrizozo on Thursday were explained by Sheriff's office personnel as a routine operation by State Police destroying explosives.

Two juveniles were arrested last Thursday in connection with a attempted shooting of a Capitan man.

McSwane said the man called his office in the morning to report that his stepson had fired at him twice while he was sitting in a pickup truck.

One bullet, from a .22 caliber automatic, lodged in the headrest of the front seat.

That afternoon, the stepson was arrested heading west on State Highway 380 by Carrizozo officer

School board encourages students and parents to attend school sports events

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Encouraging students and their parents to attend athletic competitions should be the main reason for offering season passes, school officials agreed Thursday.

Ruidoso School Board members directed superintendent Mike Gladden and athletic director Juan Baca to come up with a low cost season alternative to purchasing individual tickets.

Gladden said participation last year was better than the first year the passes were offered.

But many kids don't have the more than $30 it costs for a season pass at the beginning of the school year. As a result, athletes in some sports play to nearly empty houses.

Parent Beth Sayner said that after purchasing a pass, her son attended many basketball games that he might otherwise have missed.

"I think it's really important that if you're an athlete in basketball, for instance, that you would not have to pay to go to games in other sports," said board member

Susan Lutterman.

Member Paxton asked Gladden if he ever determined how much revenue is generated by students attending games. Gladden said such a study has never been performed.

Sayner said because of low attendance at basketball games, even the concessions stands (the profit from which goes toward the support athletic programs) don't make money. If students were admitted free, that situation might change.

"We'd like to fill the gym," Lutterman said, adding that one of the goals is to provide a healthy and controlled activity for students. "We don't want their $2, we want them in the gym and off the streets to cheer."

Teacher Robyn Johnson suggested issuing students identification cards at the beginning of each year for $8, which would then constitute a pass for athletic and other events.

"There would be more of a feeling of Warrior Pride if more could go to the games," she said.

Board president Ron Hemphill said the problem in the past has been an "undesirable" element coming to events.

"They hang around outside, anyway," Paxton said.

Sayner said faculty members should be encouraged to attend to set an example.

"I go and I don't have anyone playing," Sayner said. "How can you expect it from the kids, if we don't do it ourselves."

Gladden said the district would have to reimburse teachers, if attendance became mandatory.

Options will be examined and when a system has been worked out for season passes, the district will promote the advantages through The Ruidoso News, class announcements and coach briefings.

"The old Ben Franklin Building is out, now we are looking at the True Value building," said Mickey Cochran of First Texas. "But, we would only be renting 17,000 square feet of the building."

First Texas would provide about 75 jobs for the area in the manufacturing of metal detectors.

According to Cochran, First Texas has received a number of responses from the people of Ruidoso encouraging them to move.

"We have been inundated with all kinds of responses from letters to resumes," said Cochran.

Cochran also added that while previously Kopp may have not given them what they needed concerning the labor force, she has since provided the information.

"I would like to say that Karen Kopp did fulfill all of the requests that we had for her," said Cochran. "Coincidentally, it was delivered after the article (in The News). We are convinced that there is a good work force in the area."

Cochran said all that stands in the way of the move is to secure the building and to discuss with Kopp and any others involved possible incentives for the move.

Cochran and other officials for First Texas are expected to visit Ruidoso in the coming weeks.

Another Kopp update was regarding the EDCLC hotel search. The group is currently looking for a company or individual to bring a large resort hotel to the area.

"We are still active and still going well," said Kopp.

The major hotel prospect for the EDCLC is Chris Kilcullen of Hotel Franchising Systems in Dallas.

When contacted by The News, Kilcullen said that he has a number of clients for which he finds locations for their hotels. Kilcullen's company does no financing on its own.

"We have nothing right now," said Kilcullen. "I have a list of clients, but I haven't had any bites on Ruidoso."

Progress on the EDCLC fundraiser was discussed during the meeting.

Kopp told her board that the fundraising team captains would be contacted and asked to have all of their pledges and, preferably the money, in to her by August 27.

Kopp did not tell the board how much money had been raised or pledged to date.

C of C reviews dwindling Art Festival attendance

by GARY CAMPBELL

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

After months of chaos and mayhem, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors was able to get a little clearer picture of how things went at the 22nd Annual Ruidoso Art Festival.

During the regular monthly meeting of the board, the directors heard reports on the festival from art festival committee chairman Paul Crown, chamber director Joan Bailey and chamber staff accountant Jack Muhn.

As for the pure numbers, Muhn reported that the event had dropped in attendance for the third year in a row. In 1990, there were around 10,000 people in attendance at the event. That number dropped to 8,870 in 1991 and to 7,699 in 1992. The 1993 number was down to 6,692.

"It's 12 percent down from last year," said Muhn. "I view that loss as very disconcerting."

Bailey looked at the situation with a little more optimism.

"Historically attendance for these kinds of events has dropped, but it is on a rise again," said Bailey. "We did more this year so that affected it some."

Although the attendance was down, the overall income stayed at about the same level.

Muhn estimates the chamber will make between $31,000 and $32,000 dollars on the event.

"As far as dollars go, we did just as good as last year," said Bailey. "We were pleased with what we were able to maintain."

The difference in the two years came in how the money was spent and earned.

Last year, there was a major cost involved in the use of the large tents. This year that cost was obviously avoided since it was held in the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

But, the tents were able to hold more booths and therefore bring in more money from the artists. This year the festival included 126 artists, and last year that number was at 142.

The lack of extra income from the booth fees and the lower attendance offset the saying that was made by the move.

Also, not making as much money this year were the concession booths.

Muhn said that $1,500 was earned through soft drink sales last year. This year he reports that the gross earnings for soft drinks were down to $1,400.

"Every one of the concessions was down," said Muhn.

Bailey said part of the loss in concessions was due to the location of the vendors.

"Our vendors were not quite as accessible," said Bailey. "We're going to be respectful of that in the future."

Bailey said that the concessions are very important because so many groups in the area have food booths at the art festival as a fundraiser.

"In the past, this has been a wonderful way for clubs to do service projects," she said.

One possible way to fix this problem would be to move the vendors into the kitchen at the CEC and then have a buffet line type program for the festival's patron.

This idea is only a suggestion and therefore Bailey could not provide any specifics on it.

Crown said that the art festival committee had come up with a list of numerous suggestions to improve the show.

Some of the suggestions included moving part of the booths outside, having the food inside with the artists, having a place for husbands and others to wait while their family members are shopping, and having live music.

"We have not realized its full potential yet," said Bailey.

Bailey said that several new features from this year's show, will definitely stay for the 23rd Annual Ruidoso Art Festival.

First of all, numerous artists complimented Bailey on the addition of an artists' hospitality room.

"This is the first year that we have had a hospitality room," said Bailey. "It was a big hit with the artists."

Also a huge success was the silent auction set up to finance the chamber's scholarship fund.

The auction raised $1,500 for scholarships.

"We were able to triple our scholarship fund," said Bailey.

Originally $500 was put into the budget, but only to have a budgeted number for the scholarship.

Bailey said that she is uncertain whether the scholarship money will be given to a single individual or to several youths. The money could be added to by having several more silent auctions to benefit the fund at other major chamber functions.

Also announced at the board meeting was the naming of Scott Muhn as the chairman of the 1994 Ruidoso Art Festival.

A report on the final standing of the Chamber 1992-93 budget was also discussed.

Muhn reported that the chamber ended up with a loss of $16,193 for the year. He said the loss was partly due to not having all of the annual membership dues in by the end of the fiscal year.

Athletic

complete a substance abuse program within 10 days. Baca said a program still is being designed and specifics would be discussed at the meeting with parents.

"We felt it was proactive if they have to complete a two hour substance abuse course," Gladden said. "The parents will be encouraged to attend with the athlete."

If an offense is committed on a school trip or on school property, the athlete would be suspended from the athletic program for the remainder of that sport.

"The coaches felt strongly that if an offense was committed on a road trip or school program, the students should be immediately suspended from the sport," Baca said. "If a kid brings liquor in a trip, it's a very deliberate violation."

That same punishment would result from a second offense committed off school property or not on a school trip.

For a third offense, a student would be removed from the athletic program for a calendar year.

"If a student commits three offenses in one year, our chances are extremely low to hold onto the person), but I don't know of a situation where any student has been formally caught three times," Gladden said. "We will not go on hearsay. It has to be an admission of guilt or being caught by the police, a coach or school staff."

Board member Jim Varnadore asked whether a tougher substance abuse course would be required for a second offense.

"We didn't address that," Gladden said.

Parent Frank Sayner said students can make major adjustments over a summer. A full year suspension from sports is a very serious punishment, he said.

"Don't write the code in cement," he said. "You've got to leave some flexibility. One kid (last year) drank half a beer and the other fought with the police twice (noting the wide variance in degrees of offense)."

"You ought to have a process for appeal," he said.

Turning to Baca, Beth Sayner said he has a tough job, but she recommended trying to hang onto three-time offenders, instead of cutting them loose.

"Kids come into high school and have one year where they do everything wrong and blow their chances," she said. "You've got to give them room to straighten out. A kid could come back in the fall (ready to follow the rules) and (if suspended for a year from sports) can't channel the energy. A whole year at 15 is a life time."

"We can't give up on these kids. Kids make lousy choices and some times, school is their last hope."

She said drinking for many athletes and other students is an every weekend past time, "you just don't catch them."

She disagreed about a stiffer punishment for taking alcohol or drugs on a school trip.

"It's no worse than if they were drinking near Bonito Lake," she said. "The message you're giving them is to be discreet when they drink."

But Baca and Gladden defended the tougher punishment, noting that offenses on a trip could compromise an entire team.

Teacher and coach Robyn Johnson said it bothers her that an athlete could break the code in track, the last sport of the school year, and be home free to play football the next fall.

"There needs to be something to deter them," she said. "And on a third offense, I think we need to acknowledge that a student needs real help, real rehabilitation. A student could come back into the program a new person."

"We could change it to read that the student has a choice of a one-year suspension from sports or the successful completion of a professional rehabilitation program," Baca said.

"At the student's expense," said board President Ron Hemphill, a certified public accountant.

"That leaves the student a way out," Sayner said. "That's what got you into trouble last year. Once the student admitted (he drank), you had to follow the rule."

"The students are what we all are here for," said board member Susan Lutterman.

Hemphill asked if three layers of punishment doesn't provide enough flexibility.

"You can't just cut kids off," Mrs. Sayner said. "If they commit three offenses at the age of 16, they need help and if their family won't, the school should."

The Sayners stressed the need for the coaches to follow the rules once they have been laid down and discussed in a session with parents.

"It's very frustrating to get through with a meeting, go home and realize they're not playing by the rules," Mrs. Sayner said.

Baca said each coach, for each sport, will be required to review the code with athletes and to send home forms to be signed by parents.

The code also contains a description of required hair grooming, responsibility for equipment and other more routine rules.

Baca said he specifically wanted item number seven, which states that if an athlete quits a sport or is removed for disciplinary reasons, he/she may only be rescheduled for another sport before the end of that season with the permission of the head coach of the sport from which the student quit or was removed.

"By requiring the coach's permission it eliminates any accusations that an athlete might have been stolen from a sport," Baca said.

Board member James Paxton said Baca should be sure coaches don't have separate rules that contradict the code.

"I told them they must fit in with this umbrella and not have a kid punished twice for the same thing," Baca said.

"I think your involvement should be issue by issue, sport by sport," Paxton said.

"And parents and students need to re-sign (the code) for every sport," Varnadore said.

"What about applying the same code to band?" Paxton asked.

"We talked about making it uniform for all activities," Mrs. Sayner said. "We felt like the athletic code continues to set those students apart. Enough parents think athletes get special treatment now. Why not make it an activities code?"

"The FFA (Future Farmers of America) teacher said he'd like an activity code like this for his group," Baca said.

"Juan and I will make the changes suggested today," Gladden told board members and will apply the code, with some wording modification, as an activities code.

might feel right at home in future EDCLC discussions over the benefits and such that will be provided by companies like "Project Jagged Edge" or "Project Components."

Kopp said that the state economic development department employs a similar policy. According to Kopp, other EDCs in communities around the state keep their prospects confidential.

"When we have all of the details worked out and the deal is done, the company will be announced."

One active prospect for the EDCLC is First Texas Manufacturing.

Kopp refused to tell The Ruidoso News if they are one of the seven companies on the coded list that was given to the board of directors.

On July 8, The News first reported that First Texas was considering a move to Ruidoso but had not received red carpet treatment from the EDCLC.

Since that time, First Texas has continued to look at the feasibility of a move to Ruidoso.

Currently, they are looking at the old True Value building by the Sierra Mall as a location for their ensuring she would be ready for adoption.

Her owner was on vacation when Sheba was brought to the Lincoln County Humane Society animal shelter, but did not reclaim the dog when she returned.

"We believe Sheba is a wolf hybrid, possibly with some collie blood," said shelter secretary Kathy Tetraault. "A new owner should consider that her long hair will need some tending, but she is a beautiful dog."

Sheba, about 1 1/2 years old, is submissive, but very strong. She would benefit from professional training or from an owner willing to use a good training guide.

Training can make a big difference in a dog's life on the plus side.

Lynda Turck, a dog trainer, has offered to give telephone advice to owners who have adopted a dog from the shelter and are experiencing behavior problems.

Turck said often with some simple training techniques, those problems can be overcome and prevent the animal from being returned to the shelter.

Former shelter manager Randy Basch now has his own training business called The Educated Owner and can be contacted by calling 258-4981.

The operators of Pampered Pets, in addition to providing some grooming for shelter animals, have offered to work with some of the larger dogs on basic obedience commands and walking on leash to improve their chances for adoption.

One very sweet little stray, called Biscuit by shelter workers, won't need that extra work. She's bright, young and small enough to be trained after adoption.

Sponsored for spaying by Franklin Veterinary Clinic, Biscuit may have Australian shepherd blood, because the large spots around her eye and on her body are flecked. But her basic white coloring and hanging ears indicate hound or even Dalmatian traits.

She's about five months old and was picked up two weeks ago in the Grindstone/Wingfield area of Ruidoso.

"She gets along with everybody," said shelter manager Esther Harper. "She's not a big eater and is very calm. She'd be a great companion dog for an adult or family."

Many avenue are available to help the abandoned animals at the shelter, from walking the dogs and playing with the cats, to buying kitty litter and food, or providing a foster home for new litters while their first round of shots take effect.

For more information about Sheba, Biscuit or any of the other dogs and cats, call 257-9841 or stop at the shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road from 1-5 p.m. any day.

SD Buns specializes in healthy fast food

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Dew fresh garden salads, daily baked bread and clean, fast service with a warm and friendly smile is the hallmark of Sour Dough Buns, Inc., the nearest thing to a health food restaurant in Ruidoso.

No local restaurant has gained in popularity so fast as this spotless eatery located in a former ice cream parlor next to McDonalds. Although ice cream and fresh baked cookies are still as popular as ever, soups, salads and sandwiches are the cafe's main fare.

"I'm going after Ruidosans with quality, value and cleanliness," said Larry Stratton, who owns and operates Sour Dough Buns with his daughter Rachel.

Stratton said cleanliness and consistency are two ingredients that consumers insist on in their restaurant.

"When you bring a friend for a sandwich and you've bragged for two days how good that sandwich is going to taste, it better be like the one I served you before. If not, I'll lose you, your friend, and five or six of your other friends," said Stratton.

"If you're satisfied with that sandwich and if there is a consistency, consumers will return.

Customers rarely wait in line for more than a few minutes before being served, although sandwiches are made to order.

Stratton said a restaurant owner should treat employees like he wants them to treat his customers.

"That's why I think we have great service here," said Stratton. "We try to have fun. We're not fast food, we're quality food, but our service is as fast as most fast foods."

"Everything here is prepared fresh daily. Our philosophy is simple. If my daughter or I wouldn't eat it, we wouldn't serve it to you."

"Most fast food restaurants buy pre-cut lettuce that has a chemical preservative to keep it green, we cut our lettuce daily. It's a lot more trouble. Sometimes you find yourself running around to a produce company at 7 or 8 a.m. in the morning, but if you are going to excel, you've got to be in the top ten percent of what you do and we try real hard. The consumer will let us know if we are in the top 10 percent or not."

Sour Dough bakes several different types of bread daily. Stratton said he places emphasis on being health conscious.

"Our breads have less than one gram of fat per bun," he said. "The French bread is cholesterol free. The multigrain and sour dough have very little cholesterol, but it does have a little bit."

"A lot of Ruidosans and people who live in this part of the country are not used to grease free restaurants. They like their grease. So at times it's hard to convince them that grease free is good for you. They come in and there are no French fries, and before you know it, they get excited. They want their grease."

"There are a lot of good hamburger shops and fine eating establishments in Ruidoso, but we will remain grease free," he said.

Stratton said he learned the restaurant business while managing franchises, but he didn't like the rigid structure of a franchise.

"With a franchise, you're forced to do what a franchise says," he said. "They're a thousand miles away in some big city and have no idea what the consumer in your particular area wants. To me, that's what I like. I find what the residents want in my little town and I produce it for them. When you come in here and you've got this off the wall combination sandwich, I can make it for you. As long as you don't want grease."

Stratton also sells his meats, cheeses and breads as to go items.

"We can cater if we have enough notice," said Stratton. "We don't proclaim to be cater experts, but there is not a lot involved in making big sandwiches and then cutting them up into finger lengths and putting them on platters with a garnish tray."

"If you insist on fat, we can serve you ice cream. We carry Breyers, which I think is about the best in New Mexico. Our novelty ice creams bars are Haggen Daaz. We sell our tub ice cream by the pint or quart."

Stratton, a Roswell native, said he has purchased the SD Buns building.

"I've put everything I own into this restaurant. I love Ruidoso and this is where I plan to stay."

Commissioners to review subdivision regs

Proposed changes to Lincoln County subdivision regulations will be presented for County Commission review Tuesday.

County manager Andy Wynham was directed at the last commission meeting to analyze several changes requested by a developer interested in subdividing land on Airport Road.

He was to put together a recommendation and run it past the county planning and zoning board before bringing it back to the commission.

The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

Sheriff James McSwane also is on the agenda to request financial support for the DARE (school drug education) officer. A grant request has been rejected.

Gordon Barham, chairman of the County Fair Board, will report on the operation of the county fairground in Capitan.

Commissioners are expected to announce the winning bidder for the addition to and remodeling of the county jail/sheriff's department complex.

Items under the consent agenda, which are voted on as a block without discussion, include:

—the penalty on delinquent taxes for year 1993

—volunteer firefighters retirement act qualification record for Fort Stanton Fire Department

—a transportation and extradition of prisoners reimbursement report.

—county voter records system software agreement

—a co-use lease agreement for the San Patricio Senior Citizens Center.

—school bus route agreement, the cooperative agreement and the county arterial program, all on connection with the State Highway Department.

—juvenile probation office space in the village of Ruidoso Downs

In other business, the commission will:

—hear an update on Little Black Peak Wilderness by representatives of the Bureau of Land Management.

—will award a bid on a mini pumper for the Lincoln Volunteer Fire Department.

—award a bid on a mini van for the Sheriff's department.

—hear requests to open two roads.

—is expected to appoint members to the Lincoln County Preservation Board.

—to hear from members of the Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee.

—to pass a resolution concerning Lincoln County Emergency Medical Services regulations requested by director and coordinator Maggie Bohks.

—is expected to take action on a proposed ordinance to allow the sale of gross receipts sales tax bonds for the Otero-Lincoln County Regional Landfill.

First United acquires state bank group

Norwest Corporation and First United Bank Group, Inc. announced last week that an agreement has been signed to acquire First United Bank Group, Inc.

First United, the parent company of Ruidoso's United New Mexico Bank, was formed March 25, when United New Mexico Financial Corporation merged with Lubbock-based Ford Bank Group, Inc.

If pending acquisitions totaling $400 million in assets are completed as expected in the third quarter of 1993 in Midland and Lubbock, Texas, First United will have total assets of $3.8 billion.

It has 1,900 employees and, in addition to its commercial banks, provides trust services to its banking customers in New Mexico and west and central Texas.

The consummation of the transaction, which was approved by the boards of directors of both companies, is subject to approval by First United's common and certain preferred stockholders and certain federal and state regulatory agencies and the satisfaction of certain other conditions.

Including pending acquisitions, First United has 60 locations in 30 communities in New Mexico with total assets of $1.8 billion and 19 locations in 10 communities in west and central Texas with total assets of $2.0 billion.

The communities covered in New Mexico include, in Lincoln County, Ruidoso and Carrizozo. Elsewhere in the state, the company's banks are located in Albuquerque, Alamogordo, Holloman Air Force Base, Tularosa, Bernalillo, Corrales, Cuba, Rio Rancho, Santa Fe, Carlsbad, Artesia, Gallup, Thoreau, Zuni, Las Cruces, Hobbs, Eunice, Jal, Lovington, Deming, Portales, Roswell, Dexter, Socorro, Magdalena, Vaughn, Estancia and Moriarty.

First United's banks rank first or second in share of deposits in nine of its 10 west and central Texas markets, including Lubbock, and it is New Mexico's second largest bank in assets, ranking first or second in share of deposits in 21 of its 30 New Mexico markets.

Norwest Corporation is a $47.8 billion organization providing banking, insurance, investments and other financial services through 2,116 locations in all 50 states, all 10 Canadian provinces and internationally.

In New Mexico, the company has 17 locations of Norwest Financial, its consumer finance subsidiary.

Enchanted journey

The kids of Camp Enchantment spent their time in Ruidoso Wednesday and Thursday visiting the sites. These campers (above) visit and play at the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs. The camp had about 85 kids in attendance from throughout the state of New Mexico who currently or formerly had cancer.

A group of boys from Camp Enchantment (above) listens intently to a presentation about horse care from Allison Walstad of Hondo Valley Kennels. Other campers enjoy the fishing and paddle boats at Conley's Trout Lakes. The campers all had a chance to paddle around the lake and to fish for the big one. Photos by Gary Campbell

George W. Chapman

Graveside services for George W. Chapman, 73, of Ruidoso were scheduled for Saturday at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Officiating was the Reverend Bill Kennedy of the First Christian Church.

The Dreamer

Long-distance friends stop by the Vale

Happy Wedding Anniversary

To Dewayne and Betty McCreary

This is being sent to you just at sundown on July 28, at the close of a very pleasant day here in the Vale.

About midday, there came a knock at the door, and here stood a handsome man and his beautiful wife. They said they had been reading The Silver Lining and The Dreamer for 30 years — that they had been coming to Ruidoso also all those years, and that they had wanted to get acquainted with me to tell me how much they had enjoyed the columns all these years.

Going back through the years, we talked of my dog, Shady Logan, and of the family arriving at the Mescalero reservation in 1926. On the way in to the house they had seen some little calves, and remembered how often I had mentioned the cows and their calves.

Dewayne and Betty are from Garland, Texas, a place nearby Dallas.

While we visited, the thought kept coming to me that I was fortunate in meeting face to face two of the many who know me through reading The Ruidoso News.

I began to have the feeling that I had known Dewayne and Betty all my life. They said they felt the same about me. To visit with these fine Texas folks brought home the great blessing of sending these messages out into the world.

Dewayne and Betty had made the trip over the rough road to the house to express their appreciation; and somehow I felt that they represented the hosts of readers that I reach through the mystic magic of the printed page.

On top of it all, Dewayne said Betty said that today was their 37th wedding anniversary. So here was the added blessing of sharing this special day in their lives.

They have three sons; Mark and his wife Tina; Brad and his wife, Lynn; and Scott; also two grandchildren, Candace and Landon.

We wish Dewayne and Betty all God's blessings and many happy returns of the day.

And I thank them for the blessing of their visit.

The Rain Returns To The Thirsty Vale

After several days of blue sky here in the Vale and thunder showers over the hills in all directions, then about mid-afternoon here came the thunder, rumbling rumbling over the hill to the northwest, and you could see the billowy white topped clouds floating rapidly in over the hill top.

Ahead of the approaching clouds you felt a cool wind full of the moist flavor of rain, blowing into the warm valley, and right away here came the shining large drops riding on the wind, pattering on the apricot tree leaves, and rising little dust clouds out on the road. You inhaled the welcome rain filled the air, full of the smell of the drop falling in hot stones, and warm branches of pinon and cedar trees what you might call the "Flavor of the Mountain Rain."

For a half hour the thunder rumbled overhead and the rain fell, as all the meadows and hillsides and vales breathed a prayer of thanks.

After the shower, which measured about three tenths, all the fields were glowing, as the rain drops decorated the new grass with rain jewelry. In just a few minutes, although, the cool breeze still cooled the Vale, you could hardly tell that it had rained, so thirsty was the ground for this gift from the weather spirits.

Up toward Ruidoso, over toward Capitan, and Lincoln, and down a around Hondo, you are in a green world, which tells you of recent good rains. This is a blessing for all of us, the rainy season has begun.

The rains have been very good here at Storm's Crossing, and yet the land soaks up every bringing new life to the new grass, flowers and herbs.

Although there was good snow in the higher country, in this section of the Valley, the snow was the lightest in years; and that is why the ground is a little thirsty and, why Mother Earth so deeply appreciate these early summer rains.

Little Gentle Boy

There is a favorite cow on the place named "Lightning" on account of a white streak resembling a streak of lightning on her jaw. (You can tell all the cows by certain natural marks.)

A few days ago she came in telling me she had a calf nearby. Yesterday I saw the little fellow for the first time. He was with his mother at the upper end of a field, looking down curiously at the pickup. I got out to get a look at him, and he became still more curious. As I stood there he came walking down, right up to me, and stood looking me in the face with his velvet brown eyes. He was not the least bit afraid, very friendly and tame. Then he turned and ran galloping back up to his mother and lay down in the shade of a cedar bush.

Little Gentle Boy is being welcomed into the herd by older calves, with whom now a great favorite, being the youngest.

Now this is being sent to you on the 29th, and the clouds are moving in from all directions, promising rain.

Let us thank God for the rain and all our many blessings.

Volleyball hits RHS gym over the weekend

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The sound of volleyballs hitting the floor and flying through the air filled the halls of Ruidoso High School this weekend as a six-on-six volleyball tournament filled the vacant gym.

The tournament, sponsored by the Broken Drum, went on Saturday and Sunday night.

The tournament included five teams, four from Ruidoso and one from Capitan. All of the players were eighth grade age or older.

On Saturday, the teams went through pool play in order to rank them into a seeding.

When the players hit the court on Sunday, the teams had been ranked and put into a bracket for a single elimination tournament.

Games on Sunday started at 7 p.m. and finished with the championship at 9 p.m.

In first place for the tournament was the team of Jody Blanton, Amy Eggleston, Brian Gray, DeAnna Swanner and Amy Wishard.

In second was the team from Capitan, featuring Amy Cline, Crystal Griego, Orlando Baca, Rodney Griego, Troy Padilla and Melanie Wood.

Blanton, the Ruidoso High School volleyball coach, headed the tournament for the Broken Drum.

According to Blanton, small summer tournaments are a great way to get people involved and interested in the sport of volleyball.

"The more people play it, the more they will understand it, and the more they will enjoy it and want to watch it," said Blanton. And if more people want to watch volleyball, then that would translate to a larger crowd during the Warrior's games.

But, that thinking doesn't always work out, like it should.

"It is something that we have talked about for a long time," said Blanton. "How do we get people in the gym for our games?"

The tournament, however, was not entirely to encourage spectators for the Warrior season, but for some of the Warriors themselves.

Blanton said that the tournament is a good way to get her kids back in to the gym during the summer.

"Since this is a sponsored tournament, you can bring in players on the team," said Blanton. "It's a good opportunity for them to get back into the gym and get back into the swing of volleyball."

It is also a good opportunity to the coach to see some of her team in action.

This year's squad, according to coach Blanton will be a little inexperienced.

"We had five kids graduate," said Blanton. "We will only be returning one starter. We'll be young in a lot of areas."

As for the volleyball tournament, Blanton would like to announce that another tournament, this time a three-on-three, will be played Tuesday and Wednesday.

The tournament was originally scheduled for earlier in the summer, but was canceled due to other engagements for the participants.

This group of four volleyball players anxiously waits for the ball to drop into their court during the first round of the single elimination part of the tournament. The girls were just a small part of the many men and women that filled the courts in the Ruidoso High School gym on Saturday and Sunday for a 6 on 6 volleyball tournament sponsored by the Broken Drum. The tournament featured five teams from Ruidoso and Capitan. A large portion of the players in the tournament were past or present RHS volleyball team members, including the team's coach Jody Blanton. Blanton and her team will start practice on August 9.

Poised and ready

Members of the Ruidoso High School football team practice their skills during a recent scrimmage. The players will officially take the field for practice on Monday, August 9.

They will then have a scrimmage with the team from Tucumcari on August 20, and officially open the season with a game at Artesia on August 27.

Senior golfers tee off at Inn

Senior golfers from around the country will assemble at the Inn of the Mountain Gods August 15-19 for a 54-hole tournament conducted by the National Senior Sports Association.

The NSSA is a national membership organization for 50-plus golfers which conducts one event per month at major resorts around the country, plus occasional outings to Scotland, Ireland, Acapulco and the Bahamas.

The tournament at the Inn of the Mountain Gods will feature an opening mixed-team round in which each player completes each hole, with that round counting toward a 54-hole individual stroke play competition with full handicaps. Men and women will compete in separate groups for the final two rounds.

For the non-golfing spouses, the NSSA will arrange a sightseeing and shopping trip during the event.

Regular membership dues for the NSSA are $25 per year, with one payment covering member and spouse.

For more information about the tournament, call 1-800-282-8772.

Runner's Classic in August

The Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation will be sponsoring the 10th annual Runner's Classic Saturday August 21.

The race will be a 10K or 5K run with a 5K walk and a one-mile fun run and will be open to all age groups.

Entries for the event will be open until the day of the race. The entry fee will be $10 for advance entries or $12 for entries on the day of the race.

Parks and Rec fun for kids

The parks and recreation department will be sponsoring the final tennis rats program of the summer August 3-5 at the public courts.

The program will be a clinic with free tips from a certified tennis instructor. It will be open for ages 18 and under.

The program will feature miniature golf in the morning, at a local miniature golf facility, and swimming at the municipal pool in the afternoon. The program is open to kids six and older.

The tournament was originally scheduled for earlier in the summer, but was changed due to scheduling tournaments.

The tournament will feature teams including eighth grade students and older.

Three courts at the high school will be available for the tournament.

Promising two-year-old El Paso Special gets spotlight Thursday

George Rancich's El Paso Special, the runner-up in the prestigious Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park, heads a solid field of 2-year-olds entered in Thursday's $3,800 allowance feature at Ruidoso Downs.

The 6 1/2-furlong sprint is the eighth event on the 14-race card.

El Paso Special had finished in the money in all four of his starts prior to his last outing which was a sixth place finish in the rich Norgor Futurity on June 20.

The Texas-bred son of Cool Frenchy ran a strong second in the Norgor Trials in his Ruidoso debut, but tired late in the final to finish well behind winner Set Records. The gelding had an excellent spring campaign at Sunland Park which was highlighted by a respectable place performance behind Shadowwood in the May 2 Riley Allison.

El Paso Special is trained by John Jamison and should relish the drop in class Thursday.

Bold Classy and Fade The Speed are two other horses to watch in the field of eight juveniles. The Bill Leach-trained Bold Classy made a triumphant career debut on July 25 as he scored a wire-to-wire two-length victory against a maiden special weight field.

Fade The Speed, from the Jack Black shedrow, most recently ran seventh in the July 13 Rio Grande Futurity and should improve off that outing.

Thursday's co-feature is the seventh race, an $8,000 claiming contest for 3-year-olds and up going one mile.

Here, To There and Chantassong head the field of nine chasing the $4,000 purse. Here To There comes into the race off a fast-closing head length victory in a $6,250 claiming event on July 25. Chantassong most recently ran third against $10,000 claimers on July 23 and has been a consistent performer all summer.

Five Del Mar simulcasts close out the Thursday program. All wagers made on Del Mar simulcasts are common-pooled which allows local handicappers access to the large mutual pools and exotic wagers offered at the seaside oval.

Trifecta wagering is available on all Del Mar simulcasts.

RUIDOSO, NEW MEXICO

B SECTION

Editorial

Cost is no object

State Representative John Underwood of Ruidoso has called for an investigation into the leasing practices of the New Mexico Human Services Department after that agency awarded a building lease contract in his community to the bidder with the highest price.

It is a strange situation that points out many of the problems with the "request for proposals," or RFP, procedure state and local governments increasingly use for public purchasing.

In the Ruidoso case, two individuals submitted responses to the RFP for the Human Services Department space. One bidder offered to construct a new building with a rental of about $70,000 a year, while the other offered an existing facility at about $50,000 a year. HSD chose the more costly option based on subjective evaluations such as quality of atmosphere, spatial relationships and geographic designation.

On the 100-point rating scale used to evaluate the proposals, cost was weighted at only 15 percent of the total, so it wasn't really a factor at all. Underwood says about 60 percent of the evaluation process was purely subjective.

But it gets stranger. Although the award decision was made about a year ago, the losing bidder was never notified. She'd like to appeal, but appeals are supposed to be filed within 30 days of the award - which is difficult when you don't know.

And there's more. HSD officials told The Ruidoso News that the RFP information couldn't be made public until after the finalized lease, still under negotiation, is signed. Thus, any scrutiny of the award can only be done after the fact.

Perhaps the HSD lease award is justified - although we suspect that an extra $20,000 a year in rent means $20,000 a year less in services. But it's easy to see how the RFP procedure is open to abuse because of the lack of objective controls and scrutiny. Unlike the bid process for standard goods and services, which is solely cost-based, the RFP process can give subjective factors such as ambience far more weight than cost, which is often treated as a minor consideration.

And in a state like New Mexico, where public officials openly proclaim that money is no object, it is the taxpayers who bear the costs - and the RFP process does little to protect them.

In addition to investigating this particular lease, it's time to investigate the whole RFP process, along with the way professional service contracts are awarded (in which cost is also a minor factor).

Such an investigation might show why so many politicians want to hold on to that six-cent gasoline tax hike.

Writer stands up for pet burial in Forest Lawn

TO THE EDITOR:

An article in your newspaper of June 14, concerning the burial of our dog in our own plots in Forest Lawn was just brought to our attention.

Such "invasions of privacy" these days seem to require an answer as, indeed, this one does.

The mention of veterans in the article could bring descriptions of many on both sides of our family beginning with the fact that the dog's master was one of World War II. There was one who served in four U.S. wars, one who was a Nazi prisoner for more than three years, and a son who served a tour in Vietnam and was in training for second when he was killed in an Air Force stateside accident.

As for the lack of "fanfare," it is our wish that it will be handled in the same way for us one day.

But this is about the dog who is sharing our final earthly home. This was a dog that was our constant companion for 11 years. She was a delight to our grandchildren and friends. This dog never hurt a living thing in her life but could make it known that she was our protector if it became necessary.

This was a dog that taught herself to open doors which one of us was in need. This dog was devoted to us as any human could be. She died of natural causes in our own yard with both of us near.

This dog certainly did have a name, "FRIEND." (Think to those who cared.)

Husbands and wives don't necessarily agree

TO THE EDITOR:

I have to tell you that I really enjoy reading your paper and your articles appear to me to be very truthful and "from the heart." It appears to me that you really care about the community of Ruidoso. However, I disagree with your July 5th article.

Your editorial outlined an incident that occurred with an ad rep is unfortunate. However, what gives you the right to assume that because two people are married, that they share the same opinion? In your story the husband "booted out the front door" your ad rep. Then within an hour his wife was in the front "bringing a coming up item to be printed free on the People Page."

You believe that a wife should know what her husband is doing (or going to do) consequently she should share his opinion? I do not agree. Heaven knows that my husband and I frequently do not agree on several subjects.

There is something I agree with though, "life isn't fair."

Traffic problems and horses mar summer fun

TO THE EDITOR:

It seems that lately not a summer goes by that I don't write you to complain about something concerning our village. This year is no exception.

For anyone who lives for a time in Ruidoso, it is quite evident that the traffic in Midtown reaches horrendous proportions, especially during the July weekends. As if it weren't bad enough, we've allowed delivery trucks (UPS, beer distributors, etc.) to take up one lane of valuable driving space. Now we've added another hazard - the ever slow-moving horse drawn carriages. Whose idea was this anyhow? Obviously, nobody who has tried to drive from Mecham to Highway 70 through Midtown. If we need the carriages to transport visitors, why not let them travel the back roads of Midtown or eliminate parking along that stretch of town to allow the carriages curb-side only movement.

Or, better yet, get the foul smelling, slow-moving carriages and horses off the main road completely!

Barking dog takes a bite out of family holiday

TO THE EDITOR:

My wife and I have spent many summer months in Ruidoso. We enjoy the climate as well as the scenery; also, we enjoy meeting several of our friends here from different parts of the country. While here we have spent most of our time in four different RV parks.

Our recent visit was very disappointing. We spent 2 weeks in an RV park ... but finally had to leave because of the barking dog that was tied a short distance from the park. This barking continued most every night for hours at a time.

I would think that the many racing fans and tourists who visit your city contribute a great amount to the economy and it is a sad situation when numerous calls to the law enforcement agency would not correct this barking dog problem to make our visit more enjoyable.

Area construction activity rebounds

by FRANKIE JARRELL
The Ruidoso News Editor

Ruidoso's construction industry has taken the area on a roller coaster ride over the past decade with construction totals as high as $40,412,970 in 1984, and as low as $5,133,663 just three years later in 1988.

But the cycle started right back up the next year and by the end of 1992, the village issued permits for construction totaling $12,015,918.

Prognosticators predict that 1993 will be even better, with the construction total already at $8,091,373 by the end of June.

The mini-building boom started in April with permits totaling $1,789,730, continued in May when construction starts were at $1,755,985.49 and picked up speed in June when the building total topped $2 million.

This time last year, the year-to-date construction total was at $5,298,585.

The Village of Ruidoso issues building permits for construction valued at $500 or more. Those permits are required for projects within the Village of Ruidoso, and within the three-mile planning and platting jurisdiction — that includes Alto and Agua Fria.

Building permits for the Village of Ruidoso Downs are handled by the state since that village has no building inspector.

New commercial construction soared in the early '80s, but came in for a crash landing by the end of the 1980s. In 1983, new commercial building permits total $6,229,131, and that category climbed to $7,174,935 in 1985, and $9,842,569 in 1986.

But in 1988, new commercial building permits plummeted to $71,700, and a trend began toward remodeling and adding to existing buildings.

In 1991, new commercial was at $210,000, with commercial additions and alterations at more than a half million dollars.

New single family home starts made a startling recovery this year, with 45 permits already issued in the first half of 1993 for new homes valued at $5,875,949. Just 38 new homes were started in 1992, with a valuation of $3,777,310.

Building is on the increase all over New Mexico. According to New Mexico Progress, a publication of Sunwest Bank, 358 building projects valued at $310,070,000 have been started to date this year, up considerably over the total of $273,050,000 at this time last year.

Building Permits issued* in 1993

February	425,939

June	$2,101,148

1991	$8,494,247
1992	$12,015,918
1993 (thru June)	$8,091,373

This graph shows that building activity nearly went through the roof in the "boom" years of 1983, 1984 and 1985, with the construction valuation at more than $40,000,000 in '84. Construction is back, with a respectable $12,015,918 in 1992, and $8,091,373 just halfway through this year.

All decked out for fun — good care is the key

With more than 10 million decks constructed in the U.S. over the last decade alone, preservation measures have come into sharp focus as homeowners seek to preserve these substantial investments.

"Annual maintenance is far cheaper than complete deck replacement," says Joanne Senko, Director of Marketing Services at Melnor Inc., a leading manufacturer of sprayers used to apply sealants.

"That ounce of protective sealant in spring/summer and fall literally returns pounds of cure in preserved wood."

The same is true for concrete. Sealing driveways and walkways preserves the surface and helps minimize cracking and spalling. An annual application of a water-resistant sealant can be especially effective.

Nature is not a deck's best friend. Water warps the wood while the sun dries it out and causes it to crack; sunlight alters the color of the surface. So, when choosing a sealant, look for one that repels water, resists mildew, blocks the sun's rays and conditions the wood.

When applying sealant, Melnor offers the following tips:

*Be sure the surface is dry and clean.

*Test a small area to assure color-fastness.

*Apply when air, product, and surface temperatures are above 50 degrees F. and at least five degrees above the dew point. Dew and condensation are likely to form later in the day, so avoid application at that time.

*During application, work in a smooth, back and forth motion to avoid puddling.

*When treating vertical surfaces, work from the bottom up.

*Two coats generally are recommended for maximum protection. Allow first coat to dry at least 24 hours before applying second coat.

*Allow 24-48 hours for drying. Wait at least 30 days before painting or staining with an oil-based paint.

Decks are not the only structures that need protection. Fences, wooden shingles, outdoor furniture, even concrete and brick, are susceptible to the same type of damage due to moisture penetration.

"Applying sealant doesn't need to be a big chore," says Senko. "By using a compressed air sprayer, the task is accomplished quickly and more conveniently than using conventional methods."

Portable, lightweight, compressed-air sprayers are available with a variety of tank capacities, so consider the amount of area to be covered when selecting one. One gallon of sealant covers approximately 200 square feet of wood and 150 square feet of concrete.

Also, look for an adjustable brass spray nozzle that will apply sealants evenly in a wide fan pattern for efficient application. A sprayer can apply sealant up to 10 times faster than a brush, and reaches places brushes can't, such as spaces between deck boards.

Relaxing on the deck is a terrific way to enjoy the cool, mountain climate, but that lovely waterproof finish doesn't happen without some preparation, care and maintenance.

"Because of the chemical content of sealants and preservatives," notes Senko, "give special consideration to the safety features when buying a portable compressed-air sprayer."

Low mortgage rates help home buyers

Even as the nation's economy shows signs of slowing, low mortgage interest rates continue to be a major factor behind the steadily increasing ability of Americans to purchase homes, says Van Patton of Ruidoso Properties, Inc./Better Homes and Gardens.

"The National Association of Realtors (NAR) released its housing affordability indexes, and reports purchasing power for both first-time and repeat buyers continued to show steady growth throughout the first quarter of 1993," says Patton.

NAR's composite index, which measures affordability factors for all home buyers, was 131.7 in the first quarter compared to 120.2 in the first quarter of 1992.

"This is the highest first-quarter index since 1974, when it measured 131.8," Patton explains.

When the index measures 100, a family earning the median income has exactly the amount needed to purchase a median-priced resale home, using conventional financing and a 20 percent down payment. Since the median price is the midpoint, the composite index shows that half of the families in the nation had at least 131 percent of the income needed to qualify for the purchase of a home at the median price of $104,200.

"Median incomes for both the first-time buyers and move-up buyers continued rising, and borrowing costs are at their lowest levels in 20 years," says Patton.

However, the difficulty in coming up with a down payment is still the largest obstacle to home ownership for first-time buyers.

That may not be an insurmountable obstacle for state residents, if indicators reported in "New Mexico Progress" hold true.

Per capita incomes increased 4.1 percent for New Mexicans during 1991, ac-ording to a story in "New Mexico Progress," a monthly business and economic report published by Sunwest Bank.

"New Mexico had a decent year for income growth during 1992 with a 4.4 percent increase in per capita personal income that ranked third in the nine-state Rocky Mountain Southwest region," according to "Progress."

The report continued: "During the 1980s New Mexico joined many other western states with declining real median household incomes, according to the Census Bureau.

"In 1989 median household income was $24,087 in New Mexico, good for 41st in the nation and down 1.9 percent from 1979 when adjusted for inflation.

"Median household incomes increased 10 percent between 1969 and 1979. The loss of mining sector jobs in the early 1980s and construction jobs later in the decade hampered income growth."

Now that construction is rebounding and interest rates are lower, it's expected that more people will be working and purchasing homes.

The unemployment rate in New Mexico was reported at 7.4 percent in March, 6.9 percent in February and 7.3 percent in March 1992. Except for March 1993, that's a little better than the national average of 7.3 to 7.7 percent for those months.

Lincoln County's per capita personal income also increased 0.5 percent from 1990 to 1991 — from $14,997 to $15,074. That figure was at $10,935 in 1985.

The 1991 figure placed Lincoln County's per capita personal income five when compared to other counties in the state.

Los Alamos leads with a per capita personal income in 1991 of $29,315. Second is Santa Fe, $18,540; then Bernalillo, $17,934; and Union, $15,925.

From the garden:

Introducing the red hot poker, or torch lily — you see them all around Ruidoso.

Some are taken care of — some are not — but they seem to always survive.

They have long linear basal leaves, flowers rising in long red or yellow clusters above leaves, blooming from early summer to frost.

They grow from two to four feet high.

Red hot pokers don't like wet soil in winter, but they're easy to take care of, and pretty anywhere you put them.

And you can bet, each year they'll get bigger and prettier.

If your neighbor won't give you a start, go to a nursery/

RED HOT POKERS

"Business Journal" covers Ruidoso

Ruidoso was featured in the New Mexico Journal's August 1993 edition, with a three-page spread titled, "Ruidoso: Avoiding boom or bust," written by The Ruidoso News staff writer Charles Stallings.

"It's beginning to look like boom times again in Ruidoso," wrote Stallings.

"Texas and Mexico may be the major contributors to the upswing, but business leaders point to a multi-million-dollar renovation of the once sagging Ruidoso Downs Race Track by millionaire R.D. Hubbard as the true beginning of a new prosperous era," continues the story.

Stallings goes on to report that real estate sales have more than tripled in the first quarter this year.

"If we can continue on this upward trend, projected sales for 1993 will be $76 million plus, second best since 1985," Cindy Lynch, president of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors, was quoted as saying.

Karen Kopp, executive director of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County, told Stallings that businesses are interested in leaving the high cost of big cities across the nation.

Building permits are on the increase, too with the "impressive price tags of many of the homes ... indicative of the income level of the new breed of Lincoln County resident."

The new breed includes retirees and escapees from the big city lifestyles of California and Arizona.

"Gambling, deeply entrenched in the village history, still is talked about as part of Ruidoso's future," wrote Stallings.

"Many believe, if legalized, the first casino would be in a new Hubbard hotel despite some recent setbacks on that project," he continued.

Realtors have your number!

Ever get lost looking for a house in Ruidoso? You're not alone.

Too many houses — both full-time and part-time homes, as well as rental units — are not numbered, and that could cause a problem if you ever need help or if you just want to have company.

Ruidoso real estate agents want to help — they've got your number, and they want to give it back!

In observance of American Home Week last April, the Ruidoso Board of Realtors initiated "Ruidoso, we've got your number," a program designed to encourage everyone in the village to affix street address numbers on their homes. The program is continuing.

Several years back, GTE (then Con- tel of the Southwest) purchased a lot of house numbers in hopes of getting all the residential and commercial properties numbered.

John VanTussenbroek, with the help of the Village of Ruidoso through the Planning and Zoning Commission, tried to use up all the numbers, but there are many still left — and there are also many properties still unnumbered.

The Board of Realtors, through its Public Relations Committee chaired by Mary Austin, has been accumulating those numbers from Village Hall, the GTE office and warehouse and anywhere else.

Austin, with committee members Susan Miller, Peggy Jordan, Betty McCabe, Beverly Stephenson, Ann Jones and Flora Mae Fisher, have gathered all the numbers together, and they're now in one place — at the Ruidoso Board of Realtors office, 629 Sudderth Drive.

"We have lots and lots of numbers," said Austin when the project began last April. Cindy Lynch, president of the Board of Realtors, said there are still plenty of numbers.

According to a news release provided by the board, the street number will be verified against village plats for accuracy so a legal description will be needed (lot and block numbers and subdivision name).

There are many existing numbers which do not match up with the official village plat, said Lynch. To verify your house number, you may call Ruidoso Village Hall at 258-4014, said Lynch.

"Realtors and other volunteers will see that the numbers are either delivered or will even carry it out further and tack the numbers in the most visible location from the road," said Lynch.

If a homeowner wishes, they can stop by the board office and pick up numbers, but the emphasis is being put on getting them on the house.

This public service project will continue until the supply of numbers is gone.

As new listings are taken, the agents will ensure house numbers are in place; on existing listings, they will be looking for houses needing numbers.

"We are strongly urging everyone's assistance," said Lynch. Having homes visibly numbered will be a big help to the Police Department, Fire Department and Emergency Medical Services — not to mention the pizza delivery persons!

"Let's get this town numbered," says Lynch.

"It's always been a very worthwhile project — let's all pull together and get it accomplished."

If you need house numbers for your house, all you have to do is call any real estate office, stop by a real estate firm or call the Board of Realtors office at 257-5740.

Golf, gin and fun pay off

Realtors like to have fun, too, and they came out in force for the annual golf/gin rummy tournament, co-sponsored by The Ruidoso News.

The big tourney and Mexican buffet was a benefit for Ruidoso Care, Inc. and Casa Esperanza, and by the time the day was over the real estate group was able to contribute $966.67 to each of those causes.

More than 100 golfers took to The Links at Sierra Blanca to play golf for money and prizes.

The group evolved into a dinner group at the Bull Ring where prizes were handed out and a drawing was conducted for two sets of golf clubs donated by The Ruidoso News.

And, to round out the full day of benevolent fun, the gin tournament was played next.

Realtors in New Mexico have adopted Casa Esperanza as their state charity, and the local board has supported that project for several years. Casa Esperanza is a "home away from home" for families of patients from all over New Mexico who have to be in Albuquerque for medical treatment.

Ruidoso Realtors donated $966.67 to Casa Esperanza this year, continuing their tradition of supporting this worthwhile cause.

But, this year, the committee noted that they wanted to make a local contribution, too, and quickly adopted Ruidoso Care, Inc., a meals program that provides food to the frail and elderly in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

Meals are delivered by volunteers, but Ruidoso Care, Inc. has a continuing need for funding to pay for the meals. Those who need the delivery, but who have the money, pay for their meals.

The $966.67 contributed to Ruidoso Care, Inc. by the Board of Realtors will provide several hundred meals for people who might otherwise go hungry.

Just for fun in August...

Get set for the All American Festival that leads the way toward the All American Futurity, the world's richest quarter horse race.

That multi-million dollar race takes off on Labor Day, when Ruidoso Downs Race Track draws its biggest crowd of the season.

Meanwhile, the fun extends from one end of Lincoln County to the other:

GROWING AND BUILDING ... Lynn Willard, former president of the Ruidoso School Board, points out details on the school's plans for constructing a new elementary school to make room for the district's growing number of students. The school system has been the area's major builder over the past few years adding onto White Mountain schools, Ruidoso Middle School, the Administration Building and the warehouse. The new elementary school will be built on the White Mountain campus, and will relieve overcrowding by moving the sixth graders out of the mid-school.

Buyer works to make new home old

by RICHARD MCCORD
Sunmount Syndicate

In January 1860, just a dozen years after New Mexico became a territory of the United States and one year before the outbreak of the Civil War, Tomas Paiz sold his adobe house one mile south of the Santa Fe Plaza to Juan Bautista Apodaca. One hundred and 33 years later the house was sold once again, this time to me.

The Spanish-language deed that records the 1860 sale of the house — which was built in some unknown year in the pre-Americano era — describes it as a single room with six vigas overhead. Along with the structure came 10 1/2 varas of farmland. The cost of the house and land was $16.50, in the unfamiliar U.S. currency.

From the start, Apodaca had ambitious plans for his new home. On the same day he bought it, he paid Jose Maria Sandoval one U.S. dollar apiece for five additional vigas taken down from a nearby house on Camino Buena Vista. Soon there were two rooms.

With an irrigation ditch, or acequia, marking the southern boundary, the property was excellent for farming, particularly for chicharos, or peas. For most of a decade it provided a living for Apodaca and his wife, Bitoria, and their four children, plus three more from her earlier marriage to a man who died young.

In 1870, when Bitoria followed her second husband in death, her last will and testament left the house and land to their oldest son, Jose Maria Apodaca. She also bequeathed him "a large box, a table, and an image of our lord."

For more than 30 years Jose and his family ran the farm. Then in 1903, still nine years before New Mexico became the 47th state in the Union, they finally sold it, to Jesus Ortega and Paulita Rodriguez de Ortega. The house had grown to six rooms, and the land now had "a corral and other improvements thereon." the sale price was $100.

Immediately the Ortegas cut the property in half and sold the part with the house to Nazario and Francisca Valdez, for $50. Eight years later the Valdezes needed the $50 back, and put up their home as collateral on a loan in that amount from a member of Santa Fe's prominent and wealthy Manderfield family. But late in 1918, while World War I raged overseas, the loan was repaid in full and the Valdez family retained possession of the land.

In 1935, in the depths of the Great Depression, it passed into the ownership of Nazario Valdez's son and heir, Jose, for the consideration of $1. By this time dirt roads were cutting across the ancient farmlands, so the property now had an actual address, on West Houghton Street. The deed that noted Jose's title to the land was the first to be written in English.

For the next 13 years, through all the Second World War and the invention in nearby Los Alamos of the nuclear device that hastened its end, Joe and Arabella Valdez owned the house. But, in 1948, when they had joined the post-war migration to the golden state of California, they sold it to Dan and Soledad Romero. Before the sale could go through, however, a $3.85 tax bill from the Internal Revenue Service had to be cleared up.

The Romeros kept the house three years, selling it in 1951, to Trinidad and Juanita Chavez. To these new owners the old place seemed sadly run down and outdates, so they decided to remodel and modernize it. False ceilings of sheetrock were installed to hide every viga. Linoleum tile was glued to the floor of the kitchen, dining room and hallway. Plumbing and electricity were upgraded.

In the master bedroom, a sheet of floral-design linoleum was stretched wall-to-wall across the floor. But before it was tacked down, the owners got from Santa Fe's daily newspaper, The New Mexican, a stack of leftover copies of the September 10, 1952, edition, to lay under the linoleum as a cushion.

"McCarthy Wins By A Landslide," screamed the paper's banner headline that day, noting the primary-election victory of U.S. Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, soon to earn an infamous place in American history for the rabid anti-Communist witch hunt to be unleashed.

In 1959, the house was bought by Mabel Sanchez, who soon married and moved a few blocks away into the rambling residence of her husband. When he died she remained there, renting it out at apartments. In the meantime, her son Gilbert Sanchez stayed behind in her old house, which she gave him out-

For the past 19 years I was one of Mabel's renters. But when Gilbert decided not long ago that he wanted to sell and build a new home, I quickly arranged to buy the house from him — for a great deal more than the $16.50 it went for in 1860.

In my first days in this place, I have labored not to make it newer but to make it old again, ripping down the false ceilings, throwing out the linoleum, refinishing the aged pine boards below. The work will go on a long time, for now there are nine rooms.

Memory, history and countless spirits abide with the thick mud walls where I now sleep. All of it must be honored, so may I prove a worthy steward in my own brief turn as keeper of this house.

PRICE COMPARISONS: The advertised prices in this advertisement are only for a limited time. The other retail price shown under the X, example $179.50, would have been the price if McMahan's paid a supplier the same cost charged another retailer and we marked up the retail price using McMahan's usual and customary mark up for product in that category. Some price comparisons are made to prices other retailers refer to in advertising as their regular price or the manufacturer list price. McMahan's advertised prices are not meant to infer that McMahan's ever previously sold the product at a higher price. Only when McMahan's quote Sale Savings do we mean that the product has been previously sold by McMahan's or another retailer at the higher price. Some advertised prices are compared to prices in effect after the promotion period.
