Drivers, be ready for road blocks

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Department will have a special welcome for visitors from now until the annual motorcycle rally is over random road blocks.

Because of the added traffic throughout the county, and in the spirit of keeping the county safe for all; the Lincoln County Sheriff's department will again set up random road checks on highways 54, 70, 380 and 48.

Bikers and other drivers are asked to have their drivers license, registration and proof of insurance available for the deputies.

"Please drive safely," says Sheriff James C. McSwane. "Please do not drink and drive.'

Cash crunch slows streetscape schedule

by KRISTIE SAATMANN

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Construction for phase one of the MainStreet streetscape project may be on hold for the moment, but the program director is determined it won't be for long.

Don Miller told his board of directors Thursday that although the bids for construction came in too high for the project, deputy village manager Alan Briley is working as quickly as possible to resolve

Because the project will be using state and federal funds. MainStreet planners could not do alternative bids without going back and changing the design.

They will now have to go before the State Highway Department's Road Betterment committee to request about $185,000 to cover the difference, but that money probably won't be used, Miller said. After they get this money in place they can award a bid then negotiate the costs down by cutting extra items.

Miller said they will start construction in mid- to late September. Directors said they realize the community has been waiting for quite a while for this to start and they are just as anxious for it to happen. As the beginning of construction gets closer, the group will host a breakfast and then have weekly coffees to keep the public informed on what will be happening.

With phase one on the verge of construction, the group is ready to move on with the design of phases two and three. Miller said the village has an agreement with the state for $150,000 of severance tax for the design, but MainStreet now needs to recommend whether to continue with Bohannan-Huston or to get other requests for proposals. Since they aren't in too big of a hurry, Miller said they may want to wait for the results of the strategic planning committee's report. He said his recommendation would be to get a new RFP because it seems Bohannan has dropped the ball on this project by overdesigning by determine whether to go with this $200,000 and also not showing up or calling for the second bid opening on August 11.

Director Frank Potter said Bohannan-Huston has a lot of lobbying power to get money for projects, but there are several others that do, too. Since it will be for another phase it could be a whole new political ball game, he

Taking a look at the highway department's five-year plan to see what its support of the project is, would also be a good idea, said director Alden Deyo. The first phase is a part of the current fiveyear plan.

Director Don Dutton suggested Miller talk to Bohannan staff to see if they are interested. He said they are probably aware that they overdesigned and could take that into consideration.

He then motioned that Miller presentation in October and offer should open a dialogue with Bohannan and then at his discretion firm or go out for RFPs.

Miller also told the group that the streetscape project has qualified for $3,000 for the "Art in Public Places" program, but they hope to get private funding too.

In other business, the group gave Miller approval to contract for the analysis of the market surveys that were sent out to a selected number of visitors, businesses and local people. He said they received about a 33 percent response from visitors, which was very im-

The cost of the analysis by Valerie Iverson, who has the software needed, will be about $800, but it should be finished by the end of August.

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer The number of births by teenage girls jumped 30 percent in Lincoln County over a one-year period.

Roswell district director Mary Jo Stedry for the New Mexico Department of Health dropped that bombshell on Lincoln County Commissioners last week.

Her point hit its mark.

Commissioners won't be cutting back on space for the local health operation. In fact, Stedry told them more space is needed for services the state wants to add, such as breast and cervical cancer screen-

The statistic on births by teenage girls also points up the need for a strong sex education program in the school system, individual counseling and parental involvement and support, she told The Ruidoso News last week.

What it means is that we need to look at what to do for prevention and education," Stedry said. She plans to talk to the Ruidoso School Board about possible approaches that could be instituted and curriculums developed under the school-based health program.

"We will seek parental support to address this problem," Stedry said. "We can't do it alone.

Lincoln County is not an anoma-

"It's a national problem," Stedry said. "The difference is that in my youth, the worst we were playing with was something like gonorrhea. Today, they're playing with AIDS and that's fatal. The source of the statistics quoted by Stedry is an annual report called the 1991 New Mexico Selected Statistics Annual Report, published in May 1993.

The data shows that the county birth rate decreased in 1991 to 13.6 births per 1,000 population, or 24 4 percent below the state level

In 1990, 24.8 per 1,000 births were to girls from 15-17 years old and 137.9 to girls 18-19. Those figures jumped to 39.5 and 1544, respectively, in 1991.

Stedry said some good news is the success of the state's programs aimed at delivering prenatal health care. Those programs are tied to a decrease in the percent of low birth weight babies in 1991, which brought the county to 35.2 percent below the state level.

However, the rate of infant mortality was higher than statewide in 1991.

County high

Compared to state levels, the county has lower age adjusted mortality rates among males, while female rates are higher.

Heart disease, cancer and accidents are the leading causes of death, accounting for 59 percent of all deaths in the county.

However, the compilers noted that observed deaths are lower than expected for heart disease and cancer and 29 percent greater than expected for accidents. Observed deaths also were higher than expected for diabetes, suicide, atherosclerosis and alcoholism.

Councilor Frank Potter faces court date

Village Councilor Frank Potter will appear before Municipal Judge Chuck Hawthorne on August 30 to answer charges against him for larceny - taking commercial signs off the highway right of way.

Potter told The Ruidoso News Friday that on reflection, he may have handled the situation differently, but he removed the signs because he felt they were illegal and represented a risk to the community.

According to Potter, the summons charges him with taking "legal" signs belonging to Ruth Sikes of Pampas, Texas. Her company, showcase productions, was holding an arts and crafts fair in the Civic Event Center during the weekend of Friday 13.

At least one of her signs advertising the event was attached to an existing speed sign. Sikes said this was done for stability.

That Friday, Mayor Jerry Shaw told village planning and zoning director Cleatus Richards to remove the signs, that they violated village ordinances.

Richards contended that Tim Basler, state highway traffic engineer, gave Sikes permission to display her signs on the state right of way and that he had no jurisdiction over that right of way.

However, village attorney John Underwood said the village had jurisdiction to maintain village ordinances within the village, regardless of highways or highway right

Surveys show hospital's reputation is on the mend

by KRISTIE SAATMANN Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The perception of Lincoln County Medical Center by area people seems to be improving but there are still areas to work on.

LCMC administrator Valerie Miller reported to board of trustee members Thursday on the results of a survey just completed. The survev was identical to one given in 1991 to determine why people were by-passing LCMC. Surveyors made 400 telephone calls to residents in Lincoln County and the Tularosa area to answer the questions.

Miller said they made Hondo a separate category, although it is in Lincoln County, because that was an area of bigger loss of patients.

Compared to data from the state in 1991, LCMC only had a 50 percent share of the market but in 1992 the hospital had a 95 percent share. Miller said the perceived quality of LCMC in the survey also improved, compared to other hospitals, including Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital in Alamogordo and Eastern New Mexico Hospital in Roswell.

The patient satisfaction at LCMC also improved in all areas, including surroundings, although nothing was changed, and rates, LCMC was also higher than for any other hospital used.

Miller said they also included random questions to get a feel on other various topics. The adequacy of the emergency room facility was rated at 65 percent, while 22 percent didn't know.

Of the 30 percent who did not prefer LCMC, the number one reason for selecting another hospital was that it was too far away, which was especially true for patients in Tularosa, Corona and Hondo. Other reasons were a negative experience, they weren't familiar with it or it wasn't an adequate facility.

Miller said they should be able to work with people to make them more familiar and show that it does have many services available, but the distance will be a tougher perception to change.

Almost 60 percent of those questioned said they would go to LCMC for routine care. A good percentage of the people said they would go home, to Texas, for care.

"New residents here tend to go home for care. That's a market we haven't put a dig in. We have added a community representative (on our which also have not been increased strategic planning committee) to right direction. We just need to ahead of budget for the year, since 1990. The satisfaction at see why that is (that they go back keep looking at things," he said. The hospital's new g home)," Miller said.

> The number one reason people did not choose LCMC for critical care is lack of services and specialists, which is another perception the hospital will have to overcome. The use of out-of-town specialists was also higher than here and that needs to be changed, Miller said.

Hospital board president W.C. 'Dub" Williams asked board members what they can do to let people know about the specialists. Several board members suggested publishing in the local newspaper what specialists come and when. The people will then know when they can plan to see a specialist.

Williams agreed that many people would not call the hospital to find out on their own. Board member Gary Mitchell suggested the hospital have an information service people could call to find out time and dates for specialists. They would have to be sure they don't become a referral service, though.

Williams said they need to work on getting people to have a doctor before they need one, too.

"We seem to be going in the Miller agreed that the perception of the hospital has grown, but they still have isolated areas to work on. She said they have decided to add several people from outlying areas to the planning committee, which will map out the future of LCMC.

Many people are aware of LCMC and are using it. Miller reported that in July net revenue was up $347,335 from the previous month and up $369,744 from July 1992. LCMC is also looking good on a year-to-date basis with net revenue of $460,425 ahead of this time last year and $416,829 over budget.

Excess of revenue over expenses is $31,314 ahead of last year and $12,878 under budget.

Miller said Presbyterian Healthcare Services, who manages LCMC, is changing to a calendar fiscal year.

The Carrizozo Health Centers show a loss of $11,092 for the month and a year-to-date loss of $5,215 despite mill levy funding of $65,000. The centers are $19,604 behind budget.

The Ruidoso EMS had a gain of $4,847 for the month and a year-todate gain of $7,485. It is $15,723

The hospital's new general surgeon, Jurgen Rebatock, was a guest at the meeting and Miller said she is very excited to have him aboard. Rebstock said he was born in Berlin, but moved to the United States in 1970. He did his inter- / In other business, Miller nship and residence in the U.S. and decided to stay on afterwards be-cause of the better opportunities. Rebstock had been in private practice in California and said he moved to Ruidoso to get away from the hassle there. He said there general surgeons do what is leftover after the specialists get through. but now he will have to expand his services again.

A medical staff rules and regulations amendment was approved to allow an advanced cardiopulmonary life support course to be voluntary for doctors and other specialists who are not daily involved in emergency situations. Board member Gary Mitchell said he did not understand why any doctor wouldn't want to take the

Dr. Roger Beechie, also a board member, said that the doctors don't use the skills often enough to feel comfortable in giving the doses.

She said since 1971, when they started keeping records on the hours volunteered, 322 auxiliary members have worked 313,865 hours for bers have worked 313,865 hours for the hospital.

With the delay of the construction of phase one of the streetscape plan, project manager Don Miller said the board had to adjust the budget to reflect that and other changes. The group had planned to spend money this spring to keep the public informed on the streetscape project, but won't need it until this fall.

The MainStreet board also has decided not to have the annual downtown Halloween party and Christmas celebration this year because the construction will make the area too busy.

Because of a new location with slightly higher rent, the group did have to increase its rent budget to $4,725 from $3,600. Accounts for building repair and painting were deleted.

One change that did concern director Alden Deyo was the deletion of a fall printing of the Midtown shopping directory. He said MainStreet is having difficulty maintaining contact with the public as it is. Printing the shopping directory just once a year won't do the job for visitors and locals, he said.

Miller pointed out that they printed 9,000 in the first run and still have about 5,000 left with the many businesses change in Midsummer almost over. They also didn't get state co-op funds for the project this year, after getting the money the past two years.

Director Joan Bailey, also the head of the chamber of commerce, said they send the directory out in relocation packages and could include it in the next bulk mailing they send out. She said she understands that they need to keep their name out in public, but the beginning of construction on Midtown will do a lot to improve their image.

According to a news release, it has been a long hard struggle for RGA to build this building and runa self supporting program.

The gymnastics program first began in Ruidoso in the fall of 1979 when some parents organized a tumbling class and hired the first coach, Blake Star. This program met at White Mountain School and in the spring of 1980, moved to the old carpet warehouse (now the RAC). The program remained in the carpet warehouse from 1980 until 1984, under the direction of several coaches; John Eberle, Tom Hart and Robyn Johnson.

Early on it was discovered that running an effective program while paying rent on a large enough facility was nearly impossible. So plans were begun to raise funds to construct or buy a building.

The first major event to kick off this building fund was a benefit at the Flying J Ranch in May 1984. During the new few years of major fund raising the Village of Ruidoso

Domenici wants to place a freeze on changes to public land use policies

A moratorium to change the use and management of public lands is being sought by Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM) and Senator Harry Reid, (D-Nevada).

Domenici said the Clinton Administration plan not only summarily raises grazing fees but also drastically alters the management of the 260 million acres controlled by the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service.

The Domenici-Reid proposal would give Congress until September 30, 1994, to craft a comprehensive public lands reform package.

"An executive order is not the answer. This type of change ought to be by statute law, with Congress and its appropriate committees having an opportunity to conduct hearings on them," Domenici said.

Warriors scrimmage Tucumcari Rattlers

by KENT BEATTY

News Sports Correspondent

High school football season officially arrived Friday night when the Ruidoso Warriors hosted the Tucumcari Rattlers at W.D. Horton Stadium, in a pre-season scrimmage.

Two of the smallest AAA schools in the state, Ruidoso and Tucumcari were virtually even in the contest, both crossing the goal line four times with their first teams. The Rattlers scored three times on goal line offense and once on defense with a 30-yard fumble return.

The Warriors were successful in scoring once on offense and three times on goal line offense.

Warrior head coach Mike Gaston was upbeat about his team's opening performance.

The first 20 plays, we were a little rusty out there with some young kids getting used to varsity competition. We had to start some second-string guards who did a heck of a job, because some kids didn't have enough commitment to "The second 20 plays I was very pleased, on offense. Defensively, we were around the football a lot and we had a goal line stand and that shows me a lot of character. We feel goal. like we're a long ways from where we need to be, but we're a long ways better off than where we were last year," said Gaston.

The special teams also get in some work with David LaMay getting in some punts, and Jimmy Varnadore nailing a 27-yard field squads. With the past two Braves, ing was outstanding tonight. As the game went on, we got stronger and they got weaker and that was a key. We've been doing some 1600yard dashes after two-a-days, so we're happy with that, but we're going to keep working on it," said Gaston.

We've got a good punter and good snapper and we are going to try to do a lot of different things on special teams," Coach Gaston Friday night on the road.

"We didn't throw the ball a lot tonight, which we plan on doing, we're just going to keep working on the things that we're doing, before trying to move on," Gaston concluded.

The Warriors will practice in pads Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday before a light Thursday workout in preparation for the State Champion Artesia Bulldogs.

Thursday's edition of The News will feature a look at the Bulldogs as well as an early season depth chart for the Warriors.

Mother Earth rejoices over welcome rain

Heavy Rains Soak The Mountain Land

This is being sent to you in late afternoon of August 18, and the mountain world is rejoicing after an all-night and all-day rain, totaling almost two inches here in the vale. This is the best rain of the year, and one of the best in a long time.

Coming as it does after several good rains during the last several days, it is causing Mother Earth and her children to rejoice on every hand. You had the feeling that your worries about not enough rain will soon be over if the rain spirits will keep up the good work, I was happy to be mud-bound for a day, and just stayed home to enjoy the rain, and went over to fetch the mail and come back home.

Here in the Southwest we are always glad to see the sun come out again, much as we really enjoy the rain. Little Corina, the Storm ranch black cat is going from the south to the east windows looking for the sun to break through the clouds so she can lie on one of her pallets and soak up the sun's life-giving rays. The sky cleared for a little while about 5:00. and now the curtains of small drops of rain are moving down the valley promising another allnight rain - almost too good to be true.

Little wet weather springs are flowing in the canyon that comes past the knoll and Storm mountain, and ferns and moss not seen in a long time are appearing in the sheltered places and wet spots, helping the mountain world turn into a summer paradise. Small lakes, fed by clear running little streams, appear on the flat places in the valleys, telling you that the mountain land - which has been thirsty all late winter and spring - is trying to hold onto every drop of rain water so that it will soak into the ground.

The Growing Things Respond to the Rain

Everywhere, high and low, the grass, herbs, natural plant foods and wild cherries are responding to the wonderful rains. The sunflowers, those harbingers of the fall, are of larger size than usual, and shining forth by the wayside on giant stalks.

The salt cedars have suddenly put on their pink blooms, so that they resemble giant green feathers tipped in rose pink, decorated with rain drops, glistening in the half light of the approaching rain.

The fall flowers are coming into their glory. encouraged by the rains -the purple New England daisy, and the golden autumn daisy and the goldenrod.

Many of the summer flowers, that bloomed sparingly during the early summer, have now picked up the pace and joined the flower parade in full color and fragrance. Some of these are the Rocky Mountain Gillia with their scarlet trumpets, the pink morning primrose and the golden evening primrose, the wild fouro'clock, the wild snapdragon, and the pink wild sweet pea.

A World of Green and Light Gray

Now there we are at high noon on August 19, and the rain has drifted away after an allnight shower of one inch, bringing the total rainfall for the last two days to four inches. The rain spirits are catching their breath after good and faithful work for the mountain land. Overhead there is a light cloud cover, with the sun shining through all pearly and opal with touches of rainbow colors, casting the vale below in a soft half light of light gold over the emerald land.

One by one the creatures are coming out from their shelters from" the rain. The nuthatch with its cheer song which resembles a miniature human voice, has appeared at the cedar tree at the front gate. And the baby cottontail has run out from the woodpile and begun nibbling on the clover in the yard. Doves are flying in from their pinion and cedar trees to feed at the feeding stations.

All through the mountain land there is a mood of calm gratitude and a great sense of well-being which reaches you and sets hymns of happiness and gratitude playing in your

Let us all rejoice with Mother Earth and send up a prayer to the Lord for the rains and all our many blessings.

Melissa Currin of RHS and about 40 other students from across the state attended the conference August 2-4 for leadership training including team building, public speaking and parliamentary procedure.

Currin is a member of DECA here and was elected state secretary at a convention this spring.

Students attended included those in DECA, Future Farmers of America and other vocational clubs.

She and other DECA officers then traveled to Ruidoso on August 5-6 to make plans for the next state convention in March 1994 in Albuquerque. The group worked together to plan such items as the schedule, the general session and the awards ceremony.

"At the VSO convention the state officer team got a lot closer and it was easier to work together here," Currin said. She said she has enjoyed the opa positive way," Currin said. It is also an honor to be elected to a state office, being from a small town, she said, and to meet with: other students from across the

Enchanted Theatre brings "readers' theater" to area in "Love Letters"

Seats are still available for the Noisy Water Stage Players production of A.R. Gurney's "Love Letters," now playing at the Enchanted Theatre, 1035-B Mechem Drive.

"Love Letters" will be presented at 8 p.m. every Wednesday and Friday through August.

Written in 1989, "Love Letters" became available for production by non-profit theaters early in 1993. Before then it was rarely, if ever, staged outside major cities.

Theater connoisseurs regard "Love Letters" as one of the finest examples of "readers' theater" ever written. Readers' theater is a genre of production in which the script is not memorized but read verbatim to the audience. This form poses a maximum challenge for the actors involved.

Last year "Love Letters" played in Santa Fe with Charlton Heston and Carol Burnett, among others. Traditionally, the play features whichever celebrity actors happen to be passing through town. Often the actors go on stage after being handed the script only moments beforehand.

One of the reasons for the phenomenal success of "Love Let- lives. They learn that survival is a ters" is that people go to see the celebrities as much as they come to see the play. Once in the theater, however, audiences find that the quality of author Gurney's writing shines through, and people are captivated every time.

The "Love Letters" set is usually quite simple, consisting of two chairs and perhaps two writing desks, sitting side by side on an otherwise empty stage. According to script directions, the actors do not move about the set or interact with each other.

With limited stage movement and no set to speak of, it would be a fair question to ask: what makes this play work? What has held the attention of audiences all these years?

"Love Letters" is a compelling drama. It is the story of a life-long romance between two characters. U.S. Seriator Andrew M. Ladd and Melissa Gardener, as told through more than five decades of their private correspondence. These two powerful individuals learn the importance of each to the other from the triumphs and tragedies of their delicate balance between propriety and abandon.

The Enchanted Theatre's staging of "Love Letters" has expanded the traditional "readers' theater" form of the play to include a slightly more complex set. Director Paul Adamian has encouraged the actors to take a more active role in interpreting their characters.

A superior performance from Karen Laine, combined with the professional acting talents of Douglas Webb, draws the audience into a unique theater experience. Viewers move through the whole range of emotions the two characters experience, from laughter to tears.

"Love Letters" is showing at the Enchanted Theatre, located at 1035 Mechem, just north of the Attic Shopping Plaza. It is showing on Wednesday and Friday nights at 8 p.m. through Labor Day, alternating with Enchanted Theatre's production of "Greater Tuna," which plays on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights.

New purchasing policy sets a very dangerous precedent

Ruidoso's new village council is off to a great start, but may have set the stage for big trouble in the area of purchasing.

Village manager Ron Wicker, who was heavily criticized for purchasing used equipment by the trailer load at various government surplus sales, was part of a committee that recommended changes to the village purchasing procedures. Those changes take away rather than emphasize accountability. That lack of accountability — buying assorted junk with tax money. and then stacking it here and there without being entered and inventoried - led to questions and criticism.

Ruldoso's centralized purchasing, which was a model for the state, is being watered down under the new policy approved by the council Tuesday. Under centralized purchasing, the village purchasing agent would stock routine items used by the village, and would purchase specific items as requested by departments, but only after gathering price quotes.

Now, under the weakened system, mini purchase orders (under $100 but more than $25 petty cash limit) can be authorized by all village department heads, who also may authorize a list of individuals in their department to approve the orders. That cuts out the central office that was instituted to get the best deal for the village and to protect taxpayers from individual viliage employees making sweetheart deals with certain businesses. The vehicle maintenance shop also is now stocking its own parts and supplies, and it wouldn't be too surprising for spark plugs and the like to start walking out in employees' pockets just like pens and pencils. Why not have the purchasing agent buy supplies to be entered, inventoried and then invoiced out to the individual departments?

Decentralizing purchasing by allowing more employees to make buying decisions without the knowleage of state and village procurement codes is a major flaw in the new system Wicker and his committee recommended to the council.

The most shocking thing about this new change is the fact that Councilor J.D. James, a big proponent of accountability, was on the committee to recommend it. James is a specialist in managing and accountability, but he went along with the impractical and dangerous recommendations of his committee. Councilor James has a history of looking out for taxpayers. and this is out of character for him.

The other surprise was for Councilor Frank Potter, who instituted centralized purchasing some years back, to vote for this backward step. Potter, as village manager, was a big booster of central purchasing as a proven method of saving money.

Decentralizing purchasing, cutting back on accountability and extending the number of people authorized to spend money is a dangerous move. Ron Jones of the state purchasing department warned that this change could lead to trouble. We agree, and hope that councilors will review this policy change.

Ever wake up in a motel room with a dead stranger on the bed next to yours?

It's not the easiest thing to explain. Sure, I suspected God would punish me for evisiting Blacks Beach and the nudes in San Diego, but it was a calculated risk aging degenerates sometimes take.

Last year's trek down naked lane was a mortal sin and I was eventually punished on somewhere in the Arizona desert.

But I actually got bored looking this year. If you really don't get the same kicks the second time around, shouldn't it become a venial sin? That could mean the difference between heaven and hell, you know.

Anyhow, the trip across the Arizona desert had been draining, the walk along Blacks Beach refreshing and my first night's sleep

But early Sunday morning, ready to impact the world, my spirits dulled when I turned the car key and nothing happened. Nothing. Not

Last year my punishment was meted out on the way home. God was getting a head start this year, dumping me a thousand miles from home, ironically on a Sunday, and not a clue as to what was wrong. An old man with a long gray beard and large sad eyes walked by.

'Do you have some jumper cables I could use?" I asked. He did and the cables worked. But every time I turned the engine off, it wouldn't start again, not even utter a click. The old man scraped the battery poles, checked fuses and rewrapped electrical wires.

Nothing worked. 'It's Sunday, nothing's open," I offered hopelesslý. Pep Boys is open, let's eat a little breakfast and go there," he said.

We walked to a nearby French Cafe where we both ordered a twisted bread roll. They served me coffee mixed in steamed milk with whipped cream on top. I drank it anyway.

This guy, Stu was his name, was a podiatrist from Scottsdale. I told him I lived in Scottsdale for a year and my podiatrist's name was Dr. Buchbinder. He knew Buchbinder and we talked feet through breakfast.

The nearest Pep Boys was located downtown where they hooked a computer to my battery. Long green lines raced across a screen to measure its illness. Finally, one three-letter word filled the screen, "BAD." I marveled that this computer was programed to give such a simple, direct diagnosis that even I could understand.

While waiting for the stock boy to bring down a battery, I noticed several other people in the store walking around carrying would looking radios by handles.

Stu said they were car radios. Owners pull these radios from their dashboard when they leave their cars for a minute so that people won't be tempted to break a window to steal them.

"Don't they do that in your area?" Stu asked.

"Naw," I said. "I live near El Paso, they just take the whole car."

He seemed to understand.

I don't know why anyone would want a radio in San Diego anyhow. You can tire yourself from twisting the dial to the sports station, rock station, country station, classic station, talk show station. It's so simple in Ruidoso, you set it on KBUY and forget it.

The battery was 27 bucks. They gave me $7 for the bad core and I was back in operation. Not bad, definitely a venial sin.

Stu had been helpful, and I offered to buy him lunch. We munched on steamed clams on the deck of this little waterfront bistro next to the boat docks on Mission Bay and then tested a couple of plates of fried octopus. Not bad.

Turns out, it was Stu's 55th birthday. He was a year younger than me. Maybe he didn't look so old after all.

He told me his wife just divorced him. In sympathy, I told him my wife, Dianne, had gone to the dogs.

"Drink?" he asked.

"No. humane society," I answered. He seemed to understand.

After lunch, we strolled along the ocean beach boardwalk and watched bikini clad babes bounce, bike or roller blade by us.

Girls seem smarter today. Yesterday's surefire lines just aren't as effective to this to in the future was "the long wait."

The girl behind the counter delicately molded the chipped ice into a neat round ball with her numb bare fingers, placed it on a and of paper cone and then squirted three colors of zona coconut, pineapple and banana on top. By know gently squeezing the paper cone, the ice is turned to much for a nerve freezing drink tery.

Stu liked movies, and so do I. Between ogling oddities and sundry cheeks of tan, we shared reviews by the hundreds. Gangster movies, war movies, comedies, there was no category we didn't cover.

"A Lion in Winter," I said, sitting at a picnic table, munching a Tortas Carnistas under a gnt yellow umbrella. Great movie," Stu said quoting a line. "She's like a medieval drawbridge that keeps going down for everyone." It was during "Terms of Endearment" that he told me the tragic story of his brother who died at 32 and his sister at 27 from genetic heart problems. Perhaps he looked old because in his family cycle, he had lived the longest. Stu was leaving the next day, so he asked if I wanted to share the cost of a room to save a few bucks. The day had been great fun so I

MERICAN All American Festival Four leads the way to Futurity #35

The Run to the Roses, with its big festival and parties that culminate with the Kentucky Derby, doesn't have anything on Ruidoso's big event.

The All American Festival, with a huge assortment of parties and special events, builds excitement leading up to the world's richest quarter horse race, the All American Futurity on Labor Day.

When R.D. Hubbard and his former co-owner Ed Allred bought Ruidoso Downs Race Track five years ago, they revitalized, redecorated and revamped. the Southwest's premier track with an infusion of energy and capital.

They also made a commitment to make the All American a community and area event, and that's just what the All American Festival does.

Mark and Laura Doth, who came on board with the advent of the Hubbards. introduced the community to a festival, patterned after the Kentucky Derby festivities, worthy of the All American.

The people of this area responded with enthusiasm, planning and coordinating all kinds of special activities that first year.

It quickly became obvious that the All American Festival was here to stay, and Lara Johnson joined the team as overall coordinator.

Johnson, with headquarters at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, is the woman behind the scenes for a series of activities that has grown into nearly a monthlong festival.

The track, through Johnson, continues to take the lead and coordinate the All American Festival, which is truly a community event. Johnson puts together a calendar and makes sure every special event gets plenty of publicity.

A brochure is published that promotes the All American Festival, the All American Futurity, Ruidoso Downs Race Track and the entire area.

This, the fourth Annual All American Festival, is well under way.

As the excitement builds, area clubs and organizations capitalize on that excitement, not to mention the thousands of dollars worth of publicity, to raise funds for scholarships and charitable endeavors.

The All American Youth Art Award, Photography Event, Art Show and Sale and Needlework Fair opened the festival, but it's not too late to see the colorful work that is exhibited.

"New Mexico Adobe" is the theme of the 1993 Youth Art Award, and the winners already have been named

The theme, "New Mexico Adobe," continued at the 1993 Photography Event, which offered two $1,000 prizes - one for best black and white and one for best color photography.

Entries are due today (Monday, August 23) for the All American Needlework Fair. The work will be on display at Stitch 'n' Stuff.

All American Festival Four is off to a good start, so join in the fun!

The fourth annual All American Festival is ready to roll with a large variety of events to entertain you.

The Ruidoso area is celebrating the All American Euturity and the end of the season with a number of events ranging from the All American Fiddler's Championship, showcasing talented fiddlers from across the United States, to a Youth Art Show featuring the talents of area students.

And there's so much more — the Ruidoso Horse Sales, the All American Photography competition, the All American Needlework Fair and the list goes on and on!

The Festival will be topped off with the 1993 All American Charity Celebration. You can enjoy a night of dancing, dining, and help the finalists in the All American Futurity celebrate their hopeful victory!

New to the Restival this year is the All American Festival Duck Race to be held at Two Rivers Park. Come on out and cheer your favorite duck across the finish line for a chance at a $25,000 grand prize.

The All American Antique Show and Sale kicks off its second year at the Ruidoso Civic Event Center. Coming back for another successful year will be the All American Gun Show, All American Casino Night, and the Festival wouldn't be complete without the All American Fashion Show and Luncheon.

"The All American Festival would that to extend its thanks and appreciation to the sponsors of the 1993 Festival," said coordinator Lara Johnson in a news release.

Those sponsors are Dr. Pepper of Roswell, Ruidoso Downs Race Track, Guynes Printing of Albuquerque, SportService, First National Bank of Ruidoso, Ruidoso State Bank, Ruidoso Ford Lincoln Mercury, GTE, Brooks Construction of Shawnee, Oklahoma, and Breeders Classics.

All American Festival activities began on August 1 and run through Monday, September 6.

The festivities are topped off with the 35th running of the $2 million Grade I All American Futurity.

The nation's fastest two-year olds will be sprinting 440 yards to be the first to cross the finish line.

It's all part of the All American Festival.

Hope to see you there!

Treacherously undefeated going into All American

The undefeated gelding Treacherously took the next step to becoming only the second horse in history to win the Quarter Horse Triple Crown as he ran the fastest qualifying time for the Grade I $2.2 million All American Futurity, Friday.

The gray son of Runaway Winner cemented his status as the top two-yearold quarter horse in the nation as he easily defeated his competition by 13/4lengths in the fourth trial division.

Treacherously ran the 440-yard distance in a blazing :21.40 seconds, which was 19/100ths faster than second fastest qualifier A Classic Dash.

The powerful gray son of Runaway Winner will make his next start in the prestigious All American Futurity, the world's richest quarter horse race which is traditionally run on Labor Day, Sep-

In the 30-year history of the Triple Crown, only Special Effort in 1981 was able to sweep all three futurities.

The Sam Sandoval-trainee broke perfectly from the #9 post position and had a one-length lead midway through the 440-yard race. Nearing the wire, jockey Nancy Summers asked her mount for more and he drew off for an impressive triumph

"The eight horse (Plexnet) outbroke me, but by the second jump we had him he's done everytime," said Summers.

"He always gives his all, but I had to hit him a few times because in time trials you hate to win and not qualify.

Treacherously has an unblemished record of eight wins in as many starts with earnings of nearly $405,000 for owner Wayne Dallas of Farmington, who purchased the gelding for $7,000 at last year's Ruidoso Horse Sales.

A win in the All American guarantees the owner $1 million.

Treacherously was not nominated to the All American and had to be supplemented to the trials for $50,000 by his

Los Alamitos shipper A Classic Dash made his Ruidoso debut a memorable one as he dominated his foes by 1 1/2lengths in the third trial division to stop the timer in :21.59. The First Down Dash colt broke second from the gate but quickly took the lead from Tour De Kas and cruised home under jockey Eddie Garcia. A Classic Dash won the Grade I Dash For Cash Futurity at Los Alamitos by two lengths on July 30 for his fifth win in six tries. The colt was brought to Ruidoso a week later by trainer Connie Hall and has adapted quickly to the mountain climate.

A Classic Dash was one of eight supplemental entries to the futurity. The Robert Gentry of Lubbock, Texas. colt is owned by Abigail Kawananakoa of Honolulu, a member of the Hawaiian Royal family.

"He's a good traveler and he acts like he was born here," said Hall. "We felt he deserved a chance to come here so we put up the money." Jockey Garcia felt confident that A Classic Dash will improve in his second trip over the racing strip. "The good thing is we know he can run better than that. He had a little trouble with the track, but he ran a

If anyone would like to reserve a booth for this year's event, they may still call Jackie Powell at 354-4267, but the space is going fast.

The gymnastics association has the center reserved for next year and is committed to make this a continuing event.

Drinks and food will be available at a concession stand, so make a day of it at the All American Gun Show.

Art exhibit continues

On Saturday night, August 21, area artists unveiled their most recent works to the public.

The 2nd Annual All American Art Show and Sale opened for viewing at the Museum of the Horse, with a party and sale.

Each year, the All American Art Show and Sale highlights area art-

"The quality of the work submitted this year is exceptional," said event organizer Sunny Hirschfeld.

"Forty area artists are featured and this year we added sculpted works to the show."

The exhibit will hang on public display at the Museum of the Horse through September 12.

The All American Art Show and Sale is one of the many events of the All American Festival - a series of events leading up to the Grade I All American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

"We are pleased to present such a talented group of artists to the public," said Hirschfeld.

"Many people do not realize what a tremendous pool of artistic talent we have in the Ruidoso area. Many of these artists are nationally known, and all of the artists have presented exceptional works for the show."

Because the participating artists come from a variety of different backgrounds, the subject matter of the show ranges from western art to traditional still lifes.
