RUIDOSO, NEW MEXICO

NO. 72 IN OUR 47TH YEAR 50 CENTS

When Lincoln County commissioners (from left) Monroy Montes, Stirling Spencer and Bill Elliott completed their two-year terms this morning it signalled the end of an era for this county. The three will be the last three-member commission. Voters approved expanding the Lincoln County Commission to five members with four-year terms, and the new commission sworn in this morning will be the first five elected by district. Commissioners Montes, Spencer, Wilton Howell, L. Ray Nunley and Bill Schwettmann took office this morning after a swearing-in ceremony.

First 5-member county commission takes office

Since they were elected last November, they have been included in many of the deliberations of the existing board, but this morning it all became official.

After the three new Lincoln County commissioners are sworn into office by Twelfth Judicial District Judge Richard A. Parsons, their opinions will translate into votes.

The ceremony for the three new and two incumbent commissioners is scheduled for 9 a.m. at Parsons' courtroom in Carrizo.

An informal reception will follow in the chambers wing of the courtroom. An agenda of public meetings is at left.

The first item on the agenda will be the election of a new chairman of the position, reportedly being pursued by at least three commissioners. Stirling Spencer is the current chairman, but to appear ready to step down and let someone else take the heat.

Technically, the chairman is more of an honorary title than any real post of power. However, a chairman can set the tone of an administration and traditionally maintains a closer relationship with the county manager.

Spencer turned in a strong performance as chairman during his two-year term and created a contract for ranchers and other interests to be heard by his administration to prevent the federal government from taking more land from the county's private tax base without returning a like portion. Commissioners recently sued the Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Interior Department over the acquisition of acres along the Rio Grande.

With the new composition of the commission, it is expected to expand its jurisdiction to include the state's water resources. The commission will also be responsible for the expansion of the county's water supply system, as well as the expansion of the county's water supply system, as well as the expansion of the county's water supply system.

Although verbiage during the election emphasized that the five commissioners represent the county as a whole, realistically, since they are elected only by the voters within their districts, the wishes of those voters probably will come first.

While Spencer served as chairman for all two years of his first term in office, some previous commissioners have handled the situation differently. They have rotated to ensure that each member had a chance to be the chairman. Others have stayed with the approach of one person for two years at a time. That may change to feasible because commissioners were expected to rotate with their districts.

AGENDA ITEMS

The agenda for the new commission will include setting up a schedule of regular meeting dates and approving the biennial calendar before going into a session closed to the public to discuss personnel.

Mass transit is topic for town hall meeting

Mass transit in its many forms is the focus of Ruidoso's first Town Hall Meeting of 1993 next Monday, January 11, at the Civic Events Center.

Chamber director Joan Bailey will moderate the two-hour session beginning at 7 p.m. The public assembly was sparked by recent discussions at the village council meetings.

During those meetings, systems were discussed ranging from a shuttle van to a combination bus route with shuttle vans supported by a five-year budget that would cost more than $1 million.

The costs mainly were to be absorbed by federal, state and local taxes.

Bailey said that after mass transit and all its forms have been discussed, attendees will be able to zero in on needs, if any, and size, cost and who will pay that cost.

Bailey said at the end of the meeting, there will be a show of hands for and against the project.

She said she expects several plans to be unveiled at the meeting. What was initially a bus route and shuttle vans may be altered in a variety of ways.

Bailey said she has coordinated the meeting with village manager Ron Wicker and is researching Robert's Rules of Order for the right format.

It is difficult to figure how many people will attend, according to Bailey, but the main topic is mass transit, so those attending will not have to wait a number of hours for the subject as they do at village council sessions.

The chamber director said she would hold a clock on the meeting in an attempt for equality and order. Everyone would have a chance for rebuttal, she said.

Bailey envisions each person standing at the podium rather than audience participation. She said she wasn't sure of just how many minutes to allow each person. Her initial thought was five minutes to speak, several minutes to rebut.

Bailey said she was hopeful of a large turnout. She said the town had a number of issues that could best be discussed in the town meeting format.

Athletic code enforcement prompts complaints, debate

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso school officials say the tough, no latitude discipline regulation adopted earlier this year is a fair and efficient way to keep their athletes in line.

A past lack of equity in handling violations of the athletic behavior code prompted the action, says district superintendent Mike Gladden.

But the parents of one of the code's first offenders say the inflexible rules don't recognize different degrees of violations. After repeated attempts failed to result in a compromise with district officials, they removed the problem athlete from Ruidoso, enrolling him in West Mesa in Albuquerque, where they intend to reside in the district.

The parents say they believe the punishment was too severe for the infraction, and that the attitude of the coach and administration did take out their son's chances of a successful year of play.

Parents of other athletes appear to be in the same process.

THE CODE

The code is a symptom of the effort to control the same problems all schools have. But to me it was not thought through. The kids should come first. The policies seem to be to make their administration jobs easier, but they are not realistic in terms of helping the kids.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

The events leading up to the code were not initiated by either side.

The code was not initiated by either side.

The code as adopted in August states that use of illegal drugs or tobacco in any form will not be tolerated.

For the first offense, the athlete will be suspended from the sport during which the offense occurred for the remainder of that season.

For a second offense, the athlete will be suspended from the athletic program at the high school for the rest of the school year. If the offense is committed while participating in a school activity, the athlete will be dismissed from the program for the remainder of the year.

The form asks a signing "the athlete" that each athlete was asked to sign.

Should the athlete have first-hand knowledge of a violation of the athletic code while in a school activity, they are responsible to report it to the administration.

Young athletes and scholars used to crowd into its dining hall and run formations on the fields outside.

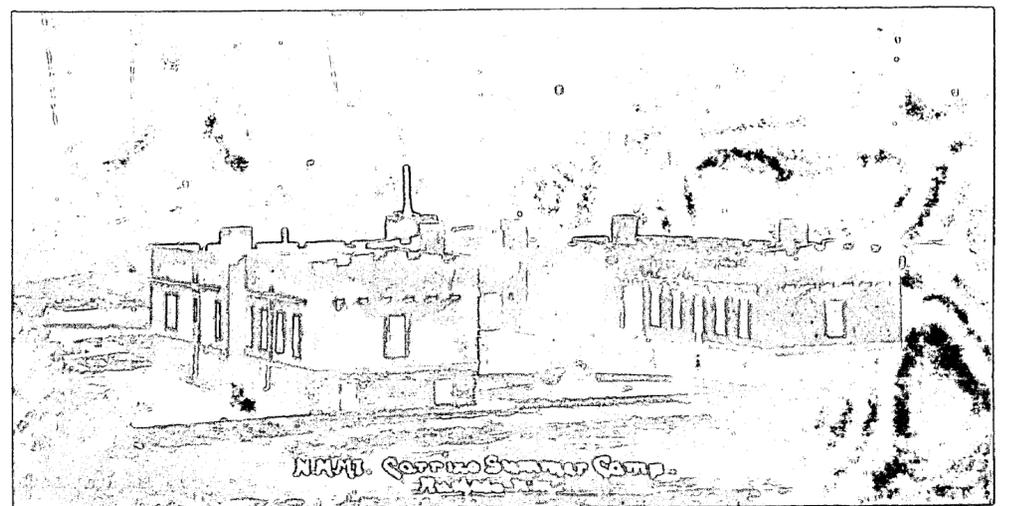

Its sturdy construction reflected its military origins and has withstood decades of wear, periods of decay and several renovations.

Over the years, the thick walls of Carrizo Lodge have evolved from military tan to tones that hearken back to the red reed grass for which it was named.

According to documents supplied by the New Mexico Military Institute, bamboo sprouted so thickly from the shores of the creek that the Mescalero Apache called it Carrizo.

In 1879, Rutherford B. Hayes signed a patent title to about 160

Ruidoso High School students researching American history have two new sources, thanks to a local women's political group.

Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County (FRWLC) donated Inaugural Addresses of the Presidents of the United States from George Washington to George Bush and The Anti-Federalist Papers and the Constitutional Convention Debates, edited by Ralph Ketcham to the Ruidoso High School (RHS) media center.

Every year as a literacy project we donate a book to the library of a county high school. This year it was Ruidoso's turn," explained Noema Page FRWLC president.

American history teacher Gerald Ames selected the volumes from a list supplied by FRWLC's affiliate National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW). Their literacy effort is called the Mammie Eisenhower Library Project after the former First Lady.

Usually, such closed discussions come at the end of the meeting, but the positioning just before the vote to confirm the continued employment of County Manager Andy Wynham for the new year may explain the new approach.

Other items on the agenda include a discussion of the Rio Bonito suits in district and federal court, and a resolution about the proposed transfer of ownership of Gavilan Canyon Road for Airport Road.

The resolution asks the Ruidoso Village Council to trade four miles of Airport Road under its jurisdiction for four and a half miles of Gavilan Canyon Road under the county's jurisdiction.

The resolution states that the county does not have the necessary equipment to maintain asphalt surface roads such as Gavilan. It points out that 2.15 miles of the road already lies within village boundaries. Nearly one mile of the four-mile airport road within the village is unpaved.

Wynham said Sunday that road manager Bill Cupit discussed the possible swap with officials in the Ruidoso Street Department.

"We're always negotiating on the maintenance of roads," Wynham said. "For instance, they take care of Carrizo Road for us.

"It just makes more sense for them to maintain a road that is closer to Ruidoso. Actually most of it lies inside the village. On the other hand, the airport road really serves county areas. If the commissioners vote to pass it, we will go to talk to village council and make a formal request."

acres along Carrizo Creek to Colonel George A. Partridge, who came to New Mexico as commander of the Fort Stanton Army post.

Unfortunately, the general had little time to enjoy the land. He died in 1896, a year after his military retirement.

His widow sold the property in 1923 to a Harlan Carter for $250,000.

Carter, at that time, sold 40 acres to the institute in April 1925. That same year, the institute built the original lodge as a summer retreat for cadets.

According to information in A History of New Mexico Military Institute, 1892-1941, "The board of regents authorized the Athletic Association to construct on the Carrizo in the White Mountains, 80 miles west from Roswell, a summer camp.

There, a short distance from Ruidoso Junction, an attractive and spacious camp building with large lounging room, dormitory, kitchen and dining room, was erected. Institute football teams, scientific field parties and summer students utilized the accommodations of Camp Carrizo in subsequent years."

Carrizo Camp conducted its first summer school, supervised by Lieutenant Colonel E.L. Lusk, from June 13 to August 6, 1927. Thirty boys from seven states enrolled.

A student could complete one year's work in one high school subject or could be prepared for high school entrance, if he was deficient. An older boy could be tutored in a college subject or he could be helped to prepare for college or West Point entrance examinations. "The forenoons were given over to study and the afternoons to recreation. Nearby Ruidoso offered a spark of social life. It was a vacation combined with work for boys who enrolled.

The Institute and the State of New Mexico owned the property until 1943 when World War II dominated military activity.

A cording to institute accounts, from 1943 to 1952, the Lodge and property were owned by Annie Coe Titsworth of Hondo Valley.

Reportedly, Titsworth was an excellent rider and rider and was nice to George Coe, who became close friends with Billy the Kid.

Bill Hart, who is a living chronicle of the county's history, said he recalls the cadets who came out to the lodge for six weeks during the summer. Later the lodge was leased to someone who maintained it with a guard and rented it to groups that might come to the area.

"At one point about 1945, a couple living there put up tents for kids who stayed there in the summer," Hart said.

In 1952, Herb Greggerson, who was recognized as the county's number one square dance caller, purchased the Lodge, according to institute accounts.

He and his wife transferred their square dance operation from El Paso to the Carrizo. The couple was involved in the operation of the lodge for the next 30 years.

It changed owners several times during the 1980s.

Today a registered historical landmark, Carrizo Lodge is owned and operated by C-Net Resorts Inc., with principals who say they hope to restore all facets of the hotel.

Canyon Art Gallery, recognized as one of the finest galleries in the area, also operates in the main building.

Athletic

It was inconsistent.

"It seemed like giving the student one free time (violation without punishment) was being abused, depending on the sport and coach.

"We feel athletes must set the best examples. We hope they make a commitment not just in sport season, but all the time."

But Gary Mitchell, the attorney hired by the Evans family, said the district is asking athletes to go beyond just setting a good example. Its "no bend" language intrudes into the privacy of a student's home and church, he said.

"If you have communion in your church, you're gone (dismissed from the sport). It's mandatory," Mitchell said. "That's interfering with freedom of religion.

"It's a harsh policy and a reaction to things in the past. As usual, they have over-reacted. You would think board members would realize that and reconsider. Instead, they have bowed their backs in concrete to support their athletic director."

GOOD STUDENT

Eric Evans has participated in three sports each year from the eighth grade while maintaining a B average with not one disciplinary action.

"This child has an excellent athletic scholarship possibility," Mitchell said. "Middle class Americans can't do it alone. The administration made no leeway.

"Eric leaving Ruidoso was a tragic loss. He was an asset to the school and the community. It was devastating to a boy who simply answered honestly.

"The school board members are all good people, but they are near-sighted on this."

He emphasized that rules should encourage students and keep them in the system, not shut doors in their faces.

"Something is terribly wrong in this policy and with a board that won't correct it," he said. "The government and our laws say (board members) are immune to about everything except due process. We haven't had that and we'll probably end up in court over it.

"All I have said is give the boy a hearing. We wanted to do this quietly.

"Rejecting a kid like this for such a small infraction just doesn't make sense when you look at some of the athletes in the past (who had much more serious offenses but went on to play in their sports)."

Frustrated by the situation, Eric challenged the severity of the punishment and confronted the coach, Ron Maskew. He went to principal Don Weems, who Evans said essentially endorsed the coach's decision.

"Then he was told by the track coach if he didn't stop complaining, the coach might not be able to recommend him for a college scholarship if a (college coach) called. Evans said.

A sports scholarship to college had been his son's goal since eighth grade, Evans said.

He knows a scholarship could make or break his chances at college. It totally freaked him and me out."

Evans said his son had tried to work things out, but Evans thought it was time he stepped into the picture.

NO COMPROMISE

He talked to school board members Rod Adamson and Ron Hemphill, Evans said. Although Eric was aware of the stringent rule on alcohol, neither he nor his parents had signed the form acknowledging that they had read the district rules.

"They (the two board members) listened politely, but said they were not going to interfere with administration," Evans said.

"At that point I went to Mike Gladden," he said. "He acted taken back, but was not surprised based on other situations. Once Gladden got involved, meetings occurred."

The first conference was conducted with Gladden, high school principal Don Weems, Maskew, Eric and his parents.

"Nothing was resolved," Evans said. "The only thing they offered was to back off the restriction on the use of the facilities and this was only after we got Gary Mitchell involved."

The next conference was attended by Gladden, Weems, Hemphill and board President Lynn Willard, Evans said.

That's when he mentioned the possibility of removing Eric from the Ruidoso school system.

"They said it wouldn't be in his best interests to remove him during his senior year," Evans said.

"I asked those four guys what if this incident had happened in April? Would they have handled it in the same manner.

"They said yes, they would, even though it would cost him his scholarship.

"(Weems) said Eric would have to take his punishment, pick himself up and take his chances as a college walk-on athlete.

"I said that was not acceptable and left the meeting, after all, we were talking a $40,000-$50,000 college education."

Looking back at that conference, Gladden said he and board members attempted to reach some compromise, but Evans wasn't interested.

He and Weems offered to do whatever they could to help Eric secure a scholarship if he would just abide by the punishment, Gladden said.

"After several meetings, there still seemed to be a misunderstanding, but he could have been using the time to prepare himself for upcoming sports. He could use the equipment and weight room, we said."

The tough rule is a way of judging "the consistency and importance of the kids making a commitment and sticking with it" whether they are on campus or at home, Gladden said.

Maskew told The Ruidoso News that what he told Eric was he would have a hard time recommending someone who doesn't want to go by the rules.

"But if a coach calls and says does this athlete have problems, and the person has made up (the punishment), I'd have no problem recommending him," Maskew said. "I think we had a misunderstanding there."

But Evans said by the time Gladden and Weems made their offer, "no one trusted each other."

His son would be walking a tight rope, constantly fearful that he might irritate a coach or even be drawn into an infraction by being at a party where another student was drinking, Evans said.

"Eric said he felt they would watch his every move and 'get him' before the end of the track season, because he challenged them," Evans said. If he was charged with a second offense, he would be out of all sports and his scholarship would be lost.

"Eric made a bad choice and he should have been disciplined. They have that right, but not to hurt him," Evans said. "This is over-discipline in my view. The discipline is totally out of line. He told the truth and it was a minor incident."

Eric decided to finish his senior year at West Mesa, where after waiting three weeks to become eligible, he joined the cross-country team and came out twenty-second in the 4A state meet. The move has been costly and emotionally wrenching to the family. But Evans said school officials there have been very helpful and have an aggressive program geared toward securing scholarships for all interested students.

"Their athletic code doesn't presume to have authority over what kids do outside of school functions or on school grounds," Evans said. "They have punishment options. Don Weems said Ruidoso's code would apply even for a glass of wine at home at Thanksgiving."

"It's a serious legal issue whether they can dictate what a kid could do in the privacy of his own home."

Evans believes that the policy is flawed legally. Underage drinking is a petty misdemeanor, but a defendant has a right to a hearing. And if the drinking takes place at home or even at a bar with a parents present, it is legal.

Mitchell attempted to obtain a hearing in front of the school board.

"But it was denied," Evans said. "Gladden asked (Mitchell) to point out where it says there is a legal requirement to give public a hearing."

Mitchell contends every United States citizen has a right to due process and that Eric has been denied that right.

In a letter to the Gladden dated December 14, Mitchell wrote, "The School Board has recklessly and willfully disregarded the Constitutional rights of (Eric) as well as other students and employed a policy which does not comport with due process and equal protection."

Mitchell wrote Gladden that before taking legal action against the district, he "wanted to afford you one last opportunity to attempt to settle this matter." He asked for a hearing in front of the board.

He indicated that compensation for damages, if legal action is filed, would include the family's expense of moving Eric to another community and school.

Gladden told The News, "We don't get into the process of measuring the amount of alcohol intake. We just can't do that. There were a lot of very admirable things done by this student. The last thing we wanted was to see him transfer."

"We spent many hours trying to resolve the situation."

Evans said, "We'd like to see the code changed. The way it is written, the author is the judge, jury and hangman in the application."

"There is no correlation between the violation and punishment, whether it is a small or large violation. There's no difference whether it's a first, second or third offense, you're still treated the same. It's so rigid, there's no way it can be subjective."

"I'd like to see the public get involved and get an explanation why the athletic program is so upside-down in Ruidoso, as evidenced by the absence of seniors in the program."

"We trust the school board and administration to make good policy for the kids with the best interests of the kids in mind and when they don't, the kids have a right to drop out of the program or the parents to remove them and relocate them to another school. It's an extreme thing to do, but it's happening."

"Now it's a matter of principle (to pursue a change). Eric has gone on with his life."

OTHER APPROACHES

Ruidoso isn't the only district with a tough rule, but there also are many in the state with a more flexible approach.

According to Ray Burrola with Goddard High School, his district utilizes short-term 15-day suspensions from activities for any student caught consuming or in possession of alcohol during a school-sponsored function. If an infraction occurs on campus, a 10-day suspension from school may result.

Coaches may elect to add on more requirements such as extra runs around the track and cleaning the locker room, but cannot kick a student off a team, Burrola said.

"The board is real specific in defining the rights and responsibilities of students. I've never had to deal with repeat offenses," he said. "The first seems to get the message across. The suspensions from school will affect grades."

Joe Price, superintendent at Carrizozo High School, said for first offenses, a student receives a five-day in-school suspension and cannot participate in any outside activities.

The second offense can result in a recommendation to remove the student from an activity for the rest of the semester, although the student may request and be given a hearing in front of the school board.

The rule applies to possession or use of liquor on campus at school functions or on school trips.

During in-school suspensions, the student does not receive credit for school work.

Alamogordo's policy, in effect for the past eight years, mirrors Ruidoso's rule.

Glen Markham said on the first offense, committed anywhere or any time, not just connected to school functions, a student is ineligible for the duration of the sport in which they are participating. On the second offense, a student will be suspended from athletic participation for the rest of the school year.

"It's been a real good rule," he said. "We had a few cases right at the start, nearly lost half of our basketball team, but after that, all the kids knew. We also have them sign a card and their parents sign."

One thing we won't do is take action on hearsay," Markham said. "Either the person has to admit to the offense or a coach or school official has to see it first hand."

"But there's always a time or two along the way when someone tries it to see if we will enforce it."

The Dreamer

Klein family bids relative a fond farewell

Romeo Klein was called to Odessa, Texas, on December twenty-three for services for his brother, Guadalupe Bonifacio Klein Sr., who was called home by our Lord on December twenty one.

Services were held at the Martinez Funeral Chapel and Rose Hill Cemetery.

The Reverend Mr. Louis Tyler, pastor of the New Jerusalem Baptist Church, read the Twenty-third Psalm:

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul..."

Also from the First Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians:

"Therefore my beloved bretheren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, Forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

The eulogy was given by his eldest daughter, Gloria Gonzales. Gloria traced the happy days of a very close family, bound together in love and devotion one to another. She described her father as a father and husband completely devoted to his family. She said that her father was a happy man, always smiling and that he had a kid word and a helping hand for friend and stranger alike.

Songs sung by the congregation included: "When the Roll is Called up Yonder," "Quando Alla sa Passa Lista," "Victory in Jesus" (Victoria En Cristo); "In the Garden" (A Solas Alo Huerta Yo Voy.)

"Taps" was played on the bugle by a family friend.

Fall bearers were his three sons: Benito Carlos Klein, Master Sergeant Guadalupe Klein Jr., and Eloy David Klein.

Also two sons-in-law: George Martinez and Steve Huffman, and one nephew, Noel Garza.

A LIFE OF SERVICE

Guadalupe Bonifacio Klein Sr., was born in Rio Grande City, Texas, on May 14, 1917 to Carlos and Paulita Perez Klein.

He moved to Odessa in 1957 and retired after twenty five years from the General Tire and Rubber Company.

He was a Navy veteran during World War II. He was a deacon in the New Jerusalem.

Good Samaritans save abandoned pup's life

by DIAMNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The blue van barely slowed as the side door swung open and a small pup was thrown out onto the snow-covered road shoulder.

Bill and Carrie Saegart couldn't believe what they had just witnessed. They were on their way to the El Paso Airport to pick up relatives, but they knew they couldn't continue until the pup was safe.

"We had just entered the (Mesalero) Reservation and passed an older blue van," Mrs. Saegart said.

"I looked back and out tumbles this cute little puppy in the snow. We turned around and tried to stop the van, but couldn't. Nobody takes a helpless little dog like that and tosses it out into the snow."

The Ruidoso couple rushed the six- to eight-week-old heeler mix to the shelter of the Lincoln County Humane Society on Gavilan Canyon Road.

"A grown dog might have been able to fend for itself, but not a little one," said Cindy Propsner, who was at the shelter that day just before Christmas and accepted the pup from the Saegarts. "The pup seems well behaved. I just hope we can find him a home quickly where it can be loved and cared for after such a rough beginning."

Propsner's wish came true Tuesday when a couple from Big Bend, Texas, took the pup home with them.

"They had adopted a pup from the shelter a year ago that died of Parvo," said shelter manager Randy Basch. "I told them I didn't know how healthy this pup might be either. We gave him shots, but he already could be infected. They didn't care."

"They were here walking around (the outside pens) when I came into the office and wanted to know about the pup. I told them his story. They're both teachers and very compassionate. I think he'll have a great home."

GOOD FLAVORS

Licorice and Nutmeg are two of the many great treats still waiting at the shelter to be picked as a new family pet.

A two-year-old Schipperke/Chow mix, Licorice is a pint-size treasure who is full grown at about 20 pounds and less than a foot tall.

"He came into the shelter about two weeks ago as a stray so I don't know much about him, except that he's good with other animals," Basch said.

"He's a very calm dog. With his thick coat of hair, Licorice would be well-suited to staying outdoors during the day, but like any other member of the family, when everybody comes home in the evening, he should be included inside.

"Licorice would need regular brushing and he will have to be neutered."

Nutmeg is one of several female blue heeler pups at the shelter.

"She came in alone as a stray, but I have a couple of others that look very similar," Basch said. "She's about three months old and has the typical puppy personality and good looks of a heeler."

New owners can pay a $20 deposit and within 60 days pay the balance of the adoption fee, which covers city license, rabies shot and altering procedure.

Four residents who have been featured in the past, but have been disappointed time and again as they were passed over for other choices by visitors to the shelter are Tucson, Buddee, Pinto and Ming.

Buddee, a rusty-color Keeshond-retriever mix, has been there the longest. Her tender heart won the affection of a sponsor, who paid for her to be spayed. She would be fiercely loyal and sats up kind words and strokes.

Ming, a Siamese mix with deep, deep blue eyes, was an owner release. She has a sweet disposition, is used to being around other cats and doesn't appear to be frightened of dogs.

Pinto is a loving and lovable terrier-hound, who's very intelligent. About one-year-old, she's a neat dog in her kennel and being short-hair, would demand little

Tucson, another low-to-the-ground pal, was very depressed after his owners left him at the shelter. His sweet disposition and calm manner has won the affection of shelter workers, who would like to see him find a secure home.

For more information about Licorice, Nutmeg, the past pets or any of the other dogs and cats, contact Basch at 257-9841 or stop at the shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road.

New gross receipts tax rates enacted

The recently-enacted "infrastructure" gross receipts tax is now in effect in the Village of Ruidoso Downs, increasing that village's tax on sales to 5.9375.

Ruidoso Downs is one of 11 municipalities to impose the tax beginning January 1 of this year. Some cities imposed a .125 percent increase, but Ruidoso Downs, Eagle Next and Logan kept the tax hike to .0625 percent.

Lincoln County's neighbors, Chaves and Otero, each implemented .125 percent gross receipts tax increases as of the first, with the Otero tax labeled a county environmental services tax.

Tularosa also enacted the .0625 percent municipal environmental services gross receipt tax, bringing its sales tax rate to 6.1875 percent.

The Village of Ruidoso's gross receipts tax rate remains at 6.8125 percent, the highest level in the state. Questa and Red River, both in Taos County, are the only other municipalities in the state with levels as high as Ruidoso's.

The state's gross receipts rate is five percent, with each county and village or town within the state adding on various percentages.

The tax is 5.857 percent in Capitan, 5.875 percent in Carrizozo, 5.8125 percent in Corona, 6.8125 percent in Ruidoso and 5.9375 percent in Ruidoso Downs.

In Lincoln County, outside of incorporated areas, the gross receipts tax is .125 percent. That rate is the lowest in the state, along with unincorporated areas of Catron and Eddy counties.

Taxpayers were notified of the new gross receipts tax rates in the tax rate schedule included in the CRS-1 Filer's Kit. The filer's kit was mailed the week of December 7, 1992, to all businesses registered with the Taxation and Revenue Department.

Any business that hasn't received the filer's kit should contact the nearest district tax office.

New graphic art designs adorn entrance to the Mescalero National Fish Hatchery

Visitors to the Mescalero National Fish Hatchery near Ruidoso get a clear picture of the hatchery's mission, thanks to graphic design work adorning the facility.

Louis Ocepek, graphic designer and art department head at New Mexico State University, designed and created informational panels depicting careers available in fisheries and New Mexico's endangered native fish — the gila trout.

Ocepek began the project in 1987 with former art department head John Catterall. The two collaborated on the first series of panels, depicting fish culture and statistics. They also created a Plexiglas sculpture with trout mounted so that they appear to be swimming in a stream.

"Part of my role as a graphic designer is to present information in a clear and aesthetic manner," Ocepek said.

Guides use the informational murals at the beginning of tours. By the time visitors see the mechanics of the facility they are already informed viewers.

"It's had a very good response," Ocepek said of the project he finished in July. "It looks like a small gallery — bright colors, good energy."

Ocepek says one reason he enjoys his profession is that he works with a wide variety of people and subjects.

"I never know who I am going to be working with next and each project is different so it's always fresh. That keeps things lively. It's also challenging because I learn about unfamiliar subjects."

And although Ocepek has enjoyed fishing for many years, he continues to learn from the hatchery project.

"The Gila trout is an endangered species," he said, "and can only be found in six or eight waters. They number in the hundreds. One of the hatchery's missions is to participate in the re-establishment of Gila trout in New Mexico waters."

The Mescalero National Fish Hatchery is open from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. seven days a week. For more information, or to arrange tours, call 671-4401.

King appoints Frank Potter to state Development Council

Governor Bruce King has appointed Frank Potter of Ruidoso to the Rural Development Council. Potter is development director for the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

"As you know, New Mexico is experiencing some tough economic problems and there are some lean times ahead for state government," said King in making the appointment.

"I am committed to keep government expenditures within the revenues available to the state," he added.

"I know that you and the other members of the Rural Development Council will work with me to develop programs and policies that will provide the necessary level of services within the funds appropriated by the legislature," said King.

Potter said he's pleased to serve on the council and has some ideas he's looking forward to sharing with the rest of the members at the first meeting.

Warriors blasted in Wildcat meet

by KRISTIE SULZBACH

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Playing with the big boys turned out to be a little too much for the Ruidoso Warrior boys basketball team during the Lovington Wildcat Classic on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Coach Norman Wright said it wasn't a good tournament at all for the team.

"We got in over our heads," he said.

All three of the Warriors opponents were 4A-sized schools with more kids to draw a team from. Wright said they were also taller than the Warriors whose tallest varsity players are 6'1".

The first game of the tournament was against Seminole, Texas. The Warriors knew it would be a tough battle because the Seminole team had defeated Lovington in a game earlier this season, and Wright said Lovington is one of the best teams in the state of New Mexico.

He said Seminole had some big kids and good shooters that dominated the Warriors. Seminole also had an effective press that the Warriors were unable to break. The blue and gold played good defense the first half, but Seminole was able to wear them down with size and strength.

The final score for the game was 37-63. Casey Kearns picked up nine points, four steals and drew one charge. Raul Davis picked up eight points for the game. As a team the Warriors had 19 steals against the Seminoles, which was very good, Wright said.

The second game of the tourney was also a mismatch against Goddard. The Warriors were defeated 44-94. Jeff Chapman was the top scorer with 13 and Davis had 12. Kearns had five assists, a good number for a post man, and eight rebounds.

Wright said Goddard had already scored 51 points by half-time compared to 23 for the Warriors. He said the team did a good job in the second half of keeping the Rockets under 100 points.

The Warriors best game of the day came in the last one against Monahans, Texas, another 4A school. Although the Warriors were defeated 47-63, they got the early jump and lead 6-0 before Monahans could score.

Wright said they were going good and then Monahans converted on three or four turnovers to take the lead 11-23. The Warriors then made a run on Monahans in the second quarter to cut it to 29-34.

He said the team seemed to be playing better and passing the ball better in the first half, but the third quarter the game got out of hand. The Warriors were outscored 7-18 before regaining composure in the fourth when both teams scored 11 points.

Wright said the players just ran out of gas playing against bigger, stronger players.

Davis topped the scoring with 18 points, while freshman Cory Hood had seven assists. For the tournament Chapman made 12 of 14 free throws.

Even with three losses, he said there were a few signs of improvement that the Warriors can build on. The squad improved on its defense and handled the press better as the tourney continued.

"It was a pretty rough tournament for us, but the players aren't discouraged and they never gave up. They had their ups and downs but the effort was always there. We are awfully young and inexperienced but we are improving," he said.

The Warriors are now 1-6 for the season, but Wright said they knew it would be a struggle. The team has only one returning varsity player in Chapman, while all the rest have only played on junior varsity, freshman or junior high teams.

"We are still hanging in there, though and the attitude has remained good," he said.

The team will have a good test on just how much it has improved when it meets Tularosa Tuesday night there. The Warriors lost by 19 points to the Wildcats in the first game of the season on December 4.

Wright said if the Warriors can beat Tularosa or at least cut the point margin it will give them an indication of how they are doing.

The next home game for the Warriors will be on Saturday against Portales. The junior varsity team will take the court at 5:15 p.m. followed by the varsity.

The C-team, both boys and girls, will have two games this week. On Tuesday the young team will host Alamogordo Mid-High at 5:30 p.m. They will then travel to Santa Teresa on Thursday to play at 5:30 p.m.

In other sports activities this week the girls team will meet the Artesia Bulldogs twice as the Lady Warriors hunt for their first win of the season. The Bulldogs will come here on Thursday for the first match-up. The junior varsity teams will play at 5:15 p.m. with the varsity up after that game. The Lady Warriors then travel to Artesia on Saturday to tackle them again.

The middle school pounders will also have two games this week, one here and one away. The A girls team and A-B boys teams will host Tularosa on Thursday at 4 p.m. The boys teams will travel to Roswell Saturday for games starting at 11 a.m.

Fishing fever!

The warm weather may be drawing a fisherman out in hopes of catching a fish like the one caught by Martha Musgrove of Elk City, Oklahoma. The 91-year-old caught this 19-inch trout last spring at Eagle Lake. She fishes here every chance she gets every year during her vacation.
