Public puts the brakes on mass transit

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The town meeting was billed as mass transit, but it was much, much more.

Villagers attending Monday's meeting, by a two-to-one margin, voted against taxpayers' money being spent for a transit feasibility study.

Like a sharp wooden stake pounded repeatedly into a bureaucrat's heart, each citizen drove home the message "there is no such thing as a small amount of taxes," especially for transit-vania.

Soon after the session began, the strategy of Mayor Victor Alonso's pro mass transit group began to unfold. One by one they echoed the sentiment that to discuss mass transit, you first needed a study.

Just as clear was another vocal group that said the village is not ready for a mass transit system at this time and a study, no matter how small, is an unnecessary waste of village tax money.

The mayor said that $4,500 was a drop in the bucket compared to the millions spent to run Ruidoso.

"I've heard a lot of concerns tonight about people who think that spending $4,500 on a study may be a waste of time, and maybe we ought to pave some streets and fix some sewers," Alonso said.

"I submit to you that wouldn't pave much of a street and that wouldn't fix much of a sewer.

"I want to reassure you, if you have those types of concerns, we probably aren't going to get around to paving your street any time soon. That's a fact of life.

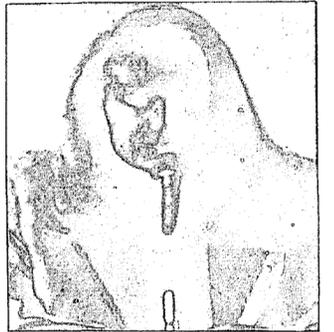

"But we are going to fix the sewer to the tune of millions of dollars, the sewer plant to the tune of millions of dollars. We just bought Grindstone property to the tune of $450,000 to ensure the security of our water system.

Infrastructure is what we're talking about. It means highways, airports, modes of transportation.

At the outset of the meeting, moderator Joan Bailey cautioned against political statements. The mayor broke that rule and paid for it with a few catcalls from the audience.

"If you want to progress, and the government's got these programs, do like Bill Clinton says. Let's use

Village Council considers a name change for airport

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso-Sierra Blanca Regional Airport is the proposed new name for the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

The new name and a lengthy discussion on a bond issue highlighted an otherwise speedy Ruidoso Village Council regular meeting Tuesday, the first of the year.

The council also returned from a closed session and moved to send All-Hub a letter notifying All-Hub owners Ed Allred and R.D. Hubbard that the underlying contract regarding the hotel is in default and the village feels it is entitled to the $100,000 in damages with which All-Hub agreed.

Early in the council meeting, Mayor Victor Alonso discussed a name change for the regional airport.

He said that a name change for the airport would have greater marketing value to the community.

Alonso said originally the airport was regional in scope with Lincoln County, Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitan and the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe participating.

Those five entities formed the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission that obtained the land and federal grants to build the airport.

When it came time to ante up with the two to three hundred thousand dollars of operating red ink, very quickly Ruidoso found themselves alone," Alonso said. So now, Ruidoso is the sole owner of the airport."

Alonso then asked the council to consider renaming the airport. He said when other governmental entities pay money, it justifies the name regional.

He said Ruidoso is losing advertising identity because of various maps and documents that show "Sierra Blanca." He said Sierra Blanca has no marketing value.

Councilor Bill Karn suggested keeping Sierra Blanca by calling it Ruidoso-Sierra Blanca.

Councilor J.D. James said he had no objections to Ruidoso-Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

The mayor asked the council to think about the name change and

Girls get a head start on boys in '93 births

The girls have taken an early lead on the boys in 1993 deliveries at Lincoln County Medical Center.

The first baby of the new year was a girl born at 8:23 a.m. January 1, but a boy soon followed at 1:07 p.m. that day. Both were delivered by Dr. Vickie Williams. Another girl was then born on Sunday to keep the females ahead.

Jim Ann Rasco, RN at the nursery, said the hospital saw 195 babies this year, 90 boys and 105 girls. One set of twins, a boy and a girl, were delivered in early December.

The busiest month for the delivery room was October with 22 youngsters born at LCMC. She said May, June and October are usually the busiest times for babies to arrive.

Also welcoming babies into the world in the obstetrics unit are Teresa McCallum, unit manager, Jennifer Becker, Jacque Haddix, Jan Davey and Fran Ward.

The nursery can accommodate six babies at maximum and has reached that point a few times, Rasco said. They have had five there plenty of times and that's quite a few babies to take care of, she said. Usually one or two staff members can take care of the babies and moms, but if they have three or more they need more.

Most of the babies delivered at LCMC are from Lincoln County, including Carrizozo, Capitan, Hondo, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs. They also get quite a few from Mescalero and a couple from Clouderoft. Rasco said they have delivered one or two babies as their mothers visited here, but most doctors ask mothers not to travel by that time.

Although it is usually the trend to have more girls than boys, as it was this year, in 1991 they had more boys in the 180 baby total.

Please see Girls, page 2A

Jim Ann Rasco, certified childbirth instructor, waits for an other baby to be delivered at Lincoln County Medical Center. Girls outnumbered boys once again this past year and seem to be getting a head start in the new year.

Man faces charges in weekend shooting

Ruidoso police arrested a local security guard in the shooting death of his father last Sunday in the Adult Trailer Park off Mechem Drive.

Walter Tony Suttle, 41, was charged with voluntary manslaughter, a third degree felony, after he allegedly shot his father, Walter Marshall Suttle, following a domestic dispute in his father's trailer.

Police detective Lanny Maddox said the other member of the family were in the trailer at the time, but father and son were alone in the living room.

According to Maddox, the father was killed with a single shot to the forehead. The gun belonged to the father.

Manslaughter is the unlawful killing of a human being without malice. Voluntary manslaughter consists of a manslaughter committed on a sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion.

Suttle is a well-known figure in Ruidoso, heading the security division for the Ruidoso Downs Race Track. He lived four trailers down from his father and has lived in Ruidoso for about four years.

The father moved to Ruidoso about two years ago from Snyder, Texas. The son has lived in Ruidoso about four years and is from Odessa, Texas, where he was a policeman.

Suttle was arraigned in Magistrate Court by Judge J.R. Jim Wheeler on Monday, January 11. He was released on a $50,000 appearance bond.

According to Judge Wheeler, at the first appearance hearing he read him the complaint and determined if he was a flight risk or a danger to the community, and decided that he wasn't a risk.

Several community people, including his sisters, came to the hearing and spoke in his favor, Wheeler said.

School board hears complaints about athletic code

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

The Ruidoso School Board faced a full house Tuesday, as well as a disgruntled parent and his attorney who were on hand to plea for a change in the school's athletic policy.

Attorney Gary Mitchell speaks Tuesday night to the Ruidoso School Board in regard to the school's athletic policy. Mitchell asked the board to revise the code.

Attorney Gary Mitchell and Rick Evans, whose son Eric Evans withdrew from Ruidoso schools and moved to Albuquerque after being disciplined with the fairly new policy, characterized the athletic code as harsh. They challenged the board to protect other young people from being subjected to its dictates.

The board listened politely, responded to a few points and stood by the policy adopted before the 1992 school year began.

"Our school policies are not stagnant," said Superintendent Mike Gladden, explaining how school policies are drafted, published, adopted and continually updated according to many factors.

"They're student-driven," said Gladden, whose commitment to work with students to meet their needs was echoed by the board members.

Reading from an open letter that he distributed to the board, Evans said, in part: "...the code as written does little to 'protect' the kids. In fact, it attempts to influence them by way of intimidation and rejection with little regard for their needs."

Evans, whose son was a member of the cross country team, said Eric had pursued a dream since eighth grad of obtaining a college athletic scholarship. According to statements made by Evans, his son drank half a wine cooler at a friend's house, and was disciplined after he told the truth about that incident when questioned by a coach.

From there, Evans and Mitchell accused school administrators and officials of taking a straight and unbending path that left out any room for communication and discretion.

Mitchell said such actions cause young people to be shut out of the school system and end up in the court and juvenile justice system, an unpleasant place that he challenged school board members to visit with him sometime.

Mitchell chastised the board for not calling on local and regional experts to speak to them, and he also chided the board for hiring a Santa Fe attorney, instead of seeking a local legal adviser.

"Utilize the assets you have in the community," said Mitchell.

Speaking on philosophy rather than on this specific incident, Mitchell suggested that the more rules developed the more problems incurred.

"You have to let (teachers) be teachers instead of passing rule after rule," said Mitchell. He implored the board to return the discretion to the teachers and to devise a system made up of fair and impartial things with an open mind.

Mitchell volunteered to rewrite Please see School, page 2A federal dollars to invest," Alonso said.

"The Republicans spend the money and tax you, the new Democrats are going to invest the same money."

Although street repair was number one on several people's agendas, Alonso indicated streets were not one of his top priorities.

"We're not going to pave your streets unless we treat Ruidoso as a business, and we take care of our business."

"Our business is tourism, OK? We've just spent 2-million dollars on this facility (civic center) because it's going to enhance business. Business will generate wealth for you and for me and the city. Then we're going to pave a little bit of a street."

"And as we generate more business in town, we'll have enough tax dollars to pave another street and eventually, we'll get the job done."

The mayor said he also envisions transportation to serve the public and tourists as an attraction.

"It would be one more thing for the tourists to do," Alonso said. "I've heard too many tourists say there's nothing to do. You either go to the bar or you stay in your room. That's our business. We have to look ahead and study the question."

The mayor said he spent $70,000 with Mesa airline because the village didn't run a study.

"We had a bunch of prominent people walk in, Realtors, Mr. Hubbard (R.D. Hubbard, owner of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track) was there. They stormed the village council meeting and they said we're for it, we're for it, and we were for it and they took a vote. And I was saying, please, let's sleep on it. Let's think about it. Let's develop some business plans. Let's get some facts. Oh, no, let's go. If Mr. Hubbard said it was a good idea, it must be. Well, it wasn't."

Alonso said a study was needed to avoid such errors in the future.

Councilor Ron Andrews, in favor of the study, said he would offer no opinion at the meeting, but would listen to what the residents had to say.

For future town hall topics, he outlined some capital expenses and operational costs by the past and present council. He included an airport van for $15,000 and a senior citizens van operational cost of $15,000.

"I don't know if that's good or bad," said Andrews. "But I think you need to be thinking about that."

Andrews said the airport is averaging over $225,000 in yearly cost above revenues.

In recreation, he said the swimming pool costs over $5,000 per year to operate and $1,800 is spent for day camp trips.

"Softball. I'm not against softball, I love softball as much as the next person. But you're paying $20,000 a year for the softball program. $20,000 for the softball program. I submit it probably benefits a very small section of our community. I'm not saying it's bad. I'm not saying I'm going to vote against it. I am saying I haven't talked to a single solitary soul last month that even knew we had a softball program, much less that it was costing them 20 grand a year," Andrews said.

Andrews said for future town hall meetings, villagers should be looking at some of these things.

Resident Dagmar Ames said she spent much of her life in Europe where they are known for their efficiency in public transportation.

"I grew up in the mountains," Ames said. "A mountainous area that compares with Ruidoso. I cannot think of a single village this size or even quite a bit larger that has any kind of mass transportation. People wouldn't go for it. If I had money and the transportation to come up here as a tourist, why would I have a problem moving around? There's a lot of things said tonight that I haven't heard before, but my first reaction is that it doesn't make any sense."

Jim Streck, co-owner with Rick Simpson of S&S Charter, the ski shuttle bus service, said he was qualified and interested to run such a system with necessary experience and licensing.

He said that many young tourists are from Mexico and they can't rent a car.

Streck said they come by Greyhound bus and that the motel owners pick them up with an extra vehicle.

"They got a pocket full of money. They want to spend it, but they're on foot," Streck said.

He said college students that come to Ruidoso eight to a car need transportation. He said those are some of the people that generate the demand.

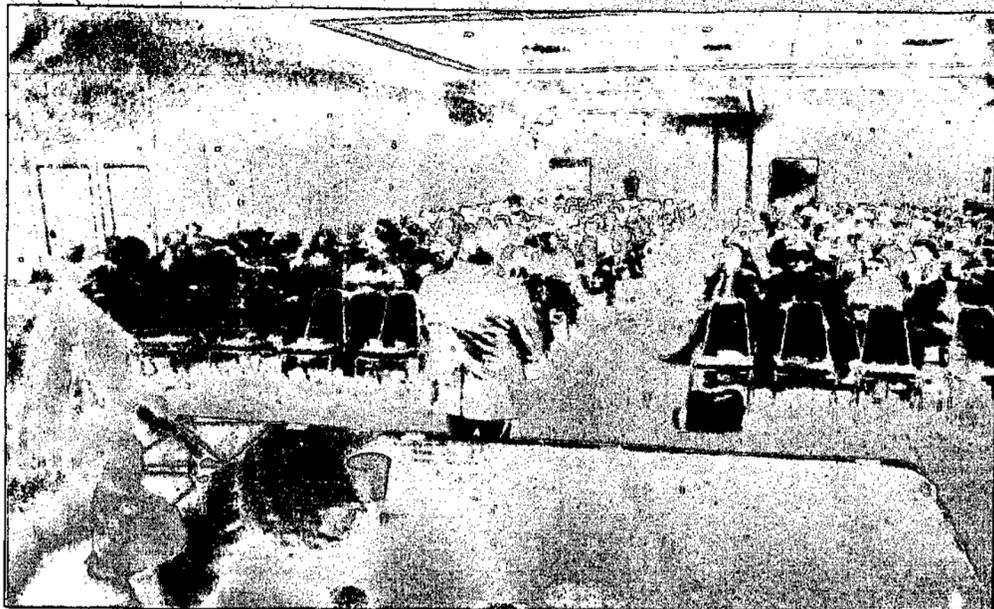

"You've got to have two vehicles," Streck said. "Because one is going to break. You need a backup."

Resident Carl Norton said he agreed with others that facts were needed before any decision could be made.

"But based on the information that I have, I can't see any need for this whatsoever. Positively none in a small community like this. It's like something on sale. If it's on sale and you go down and buy it and don't need it, it's not a bargain. I don't think we need it," Norton said.

New Lincoln County Commissioner Wilton Howell said he looks at the village as a business with its residents as stockholders.

Howell said as a businessman and individual, he opposes mass transit at this time. He said as a commissioner, he was very interested in what others had to say if it

Villagers speak their mind about mass transit and a mass transit feasibility study during the first Ruidoso town hall meeting in years and the first in the new Civic Events Center. ever reached the county commission level.

Realtor Karon Petty said she happily tours many people around the area when they come to Ruidoso.

"The one thing I have never been asked is, has Ruidoso got a mass transit system?" she said.

Resident Genevieve Sewell said she had not heard enough concrete plans to make a decision.

"I don't believe intelligent decisions are made from inadequate plans," Sewell said. "I would like to see some advance plans on the proposals. I've not seen that. I've heard lots of strands of information, none of which have been interwoven. I'd like to see that first before we make a decision."

Former Ruidoso Transportation Board chair Dick Weber said claims that large busses would be used were never considered.

Weber said transit figures were floating around the community as high as a million dollars-plus for five years.

"My guess would be, the size of Ruidoso, we're talking about incurring a cost of perhaps $7,000 to 14,000 a year," Weber said.

Councilor J.D. James said he refers to the topic as "public" transportation, not "mass."

"I have figures submitted to me that are in our budget," James said. "The gentleman just said figures are going around over a million dollars. Well here are the figures that were submitted to the Department of Finance," James said holding up a document.

"This is not rumor. This is the figures," he said.

James submitted figures from the village's department of finance. He said operational costs would be shared 50 percent by the federal government and 50 percent by the village.

"Salaries and wages are $62,940 a year; feasibility study, $13,130; insurance, $6,651; uniforms, $950; vehicle maintenance, $3,000; fuel, $15,000; general supplies, $2,000; capital outlay for a 4x4 vehicle, $30,000; two passenger busses, $80,000; and radios, $3,000.

"This is what I'm going by," James said. "You elected me to watch your money, and this is what I intend to do."

Councilor Jerry Shaw said that the study was actually voted down at a council meeting.

"We voted it down, because it was sort of railroaded through," Shaw said. "I think that when you elect us as councilors, you want us to know the facts before we vote on something and we didn't have those facts."

"I take all the suggestions tonight seriously. But if you follow council meetings, you probably know how we got to this point."

"It was not a full-fledged feasibility study in my opinion. It was going to be, and already selected before the council, a marketing study.

"Marketing studies can look great. Every business that you might contact downtown is going to say, 'yes, I'd like to see a mass transit system.' Of course they would."

"But that's not where we are coming from. It's how much would that cost."

"The figures that J.D. discussed with you were in our budget, and it did scare us, and we did have to stop and rethink."

Shaw said that the items Andrews talked about were parks and recreation items.

"We neglect parks and recreation more than any department in this town. For heaven's sake, I hope we are not going to take away softball and some of the few programs that we have going over the years through parks and recreation," Shaw said.

"We must prioritize, and right now the top priority, in my opinion, is not transportation."

"We do have a van for the senior citizens. It probably needs to be replaced soon, it's quite old. We've had it since 1986."

Shaw talked of $40,000 that Rancho Ruidoso developers paid out on a $80,000 feasibility study done at Ruidoso on a Swiss railway in the mid-'80s. She said the village put in somewhere between $5,000 and $20,000.

"When we say what's $4,500, let's study something else. I say we have studied before, folks."

Mayor Victor Alonso informs town hall voters that a study is needed to avoid errors in determining if the village needs mass transit. He also said the village recently purchased Grindstone property (without a study) to protect the water rights around the existing lake and dam.

discuss it again at a later date.

Also regarding the airport, Alonso explained the sale of $2,985,000 Municipal Sales Tax Refunding and Improvement Revenue Bonds, Series 1993.

The mayor said last year the airport cost about $140,000 more than revenues produced.

"It was the desire of this council to refinance our debt so that income and expense would about break even," he said.

Alonso compared the refinancing to a homeowner who finds himself in a better financial climate by extending his loan for smaller payments at better interest rates.

In this case, the village is exchanging 9 percent interest for 6 percent interest and extending the loan by five years.

The net result is about $100,000 per year in less payments, although the number of payments extended for five years would make the total cost a wash.

The airport, however, would pay for itself instead of tapping the general fund for that $100,000 and the new loan also carries an additional $200,000 to pay for some T-hangers that currently bring in $30,000 a year in airport rentals.

As security, the bill is payable solely from a locally adopted one-half of one percent municipal gross receipts tax.

Use of proceeds will advance the refund of Series 1987 bonds and to fund improvements to the airport.

The new 1993 series bonds have a Moody rating of Baa.

Under reports from municipal officials, Councilor James said he still was not satisfied with carpet repairs at the civic events center and he wanted to see the three flag poles discussed in place at the center.

The council passed a motion to install a directional sign at Sudberth and Mechem for the center.

Village manager Ron Wicker said the Department of Finance Administration informed him of Grindstone purchase approval as of December 28. He said closing would be soon.

Wicker also turned in all department accomplishments for 1992.

A special meeting for a budget review was set for 10 a.m. Thursday, January 28, at village hall.

In a public hearing, the council again unanimously approved the transfer of ownership for a dispensers liquor license at Rich Gas-Three Bees Market.

According to the state, the application, approved before by the council in December, needed further publication. The license was approved for Mary Lou and Richard Lee Word.

The village council approved three winegrowers permits for Karen Kopp, chairman for the Chamber of Commerce Connoisseur Classic IV. Kopp said she needed about 10 more permits that will be approved at a later time.

Joan Bailey, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce director, asked for $8,000 for postage and 800-number costs and $14,543 for a brochure page for the Fort Worth Star Telegram, promotional video co-op with Museum of the Horse (English and Spanish) for trade shows/tour operators and a Winter-Spring package with regional newspapers, college newspapers and local and regional radio spots.

Shaw Engineering of Ruidoso was awarded basic engineering services for the village based on a low bid of $40 per hour.

The scope of work is to provide assistance to village departments for various projects, which may include water, waste water, waste water treatment plant, fire, police, street, vehicle maintenance, planning and zoning, parks and recreation, library, cemetery and civic events center.

Also Grindstone Dam inspection, technical assistance on the proposed widening of Highway 48, design and review plans, preparing requests for proposals, and construction management.

Low bidder Gallos Chevrolet of Albuquerque was awarded the contract for a 1993 4x4 cab and chassis for an ambulance.

The council approved a request by Jim Franklin Aviation Service, to extend the $500 per month hangar rental for an additional 12 months.

The council appointed attorney David Thomsen to the Martin Luther King commission. Thomsen was the only board or commission appointment Tuesday.

The council entered closed session at about 8:55 p.m.

the policy at no charge to the school system.

Returning to discussions on his client's child, Mitchell said the school system had "no reason to reject Eric." Mitchell said the boy's infraction, drinking a half a wine cooler, is something for which an adult would never be punished.

Both Evans and Mitchell talked of how Eric Evans' made his choice to leave this system rather than take a chance on a second infraction under the policy. Evans said his son feared surviving under the watchful eyes of an administration that he feared was out to get him.

Board members said the rules are carefully written and adopted, and are not designed to kick children out of the system. They disagreed with Mitchell's and Evans' view of the rule and of its implementation.

Ruidoso High School principal Donnie Weems didn't speak out during the meeting, but disagreed that the student wasn't treated with compassion and understanding.

Weems specifically disagreed with Evans' accusation that he said the student "would just have to take his punishment, pick himself up, and take his chances as a college walk-on athlete."

"Eric and I counseled many times about scholarships and I assured him I would seek out the best scholarships for him," said Weems.

"At no time did I or would I say to any of my kids that they could be a walk-on. It was not said."

When the board took this matter under advisement, their failure to take immediate action drew some loud complaints from some members of the audience.

Rasco said they deliver about 200 babies at the hospital each year and they would like to see that grow.

One of the biggest years they had was 1988 when 265 babies were born. In 1989 it fell to 240 and then to 220 in 1990. The recent baby population hit bottom in 1991 with 180 before the climb to 195 this past year.

Democrat leader invited to Inaugural events

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

Cece Griffin, chairperson for Lincoln County Democrats, cast her first vote in 1952 for Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson.

That was the year she registered as a Democrat in Hobbs.

Griffin's been voting and campaigning for Democratic candidates ever since, but perhaps the high point of her political career was when she represented New Mexico to her party's national convention this year in New York.

As if just representing your party wasn't enough, Griffin speaks with pride of being a delegate in a year when the Democrats were successful in sending one of their own to the White House.

Although Griffin won't be in Washington D.C. next week when president-elect Bill Clinton steps forward to take the oath of office, she could be, and has an impressive-looking invitation to prove it.

Griffin said this was a great year to be a Democratic delegate since the party had its nominee picked and everything was cut and dried in New York City.

The Big Apple welcomed the Democrats with open arms, celebrations and even a ticket tape parade, said Griffin, who had the job of distributing various signs among the New Mexico delegation.

Back home, Griffin speaks with pride of the success she's had in helping Lincoln County Democrats get more state recognition through appointments to state boards and commissions.

"We are getting key appointments in Lincoln County, which we haven't done in the past few years," said Griffin.

Griffin and her husband, computer-whiz Charlie Griffin, are off to Santa Fe for a couple of months where he'll be working, but she's proud of the envelope of invitations she received to the Inauguration and the various Inaugural events.

A member of the Governor's Counsel and the Governor's Business Advisory Counsel, Griffin will find plenty to keep her occupied while in Santa Fe, but when the president she helped nominate and elect raises his right hand to be sworn in, she'll be with him in spirit — and she'll be watching on television.

Cece Griffin, chairperson for the Lincoln County Democrats, looks over the many invitations she received to inaugural activities in Washington D.C. Griffin, a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in New York City this year, won't be able to attend the Inauguration, dances and parties, but she'll cherish the invitation.

ENMU-Ruidoso hosts C of C business after hours today

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce monthly "business after hours: get-together" will be at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso at 1400 Sudderth Drive from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. today (Thursday), January 14.

All area business people are invited to stop during the time and make new business contacts.

Financial aid workshops set

Technical Training Institute will sponsor financial aid workshops throughout the area this month.

The information and materials are prepared and presented by the New Mexico Student Loan Guaranty Corporation Staff.

According to a news release, they will have the most up-to-date information for the individuals who will be applying for financial aid beginning in July 1993.

Following is the schedule for area workshops:

- 7 p.m. Monday, January 18, in the Cloudcroft School cafeteria
- 7 p.m. Wednesday, January 20, at Alamogordo High School
- All day Thursday, January 21, at Ruidoso High School
- 7 p.m. Thursday, January 21, in the Ruidoso High School dining hall
- 7 p.m. Monday, February 1, at Mescalero School
- 7 p.m. Tuesday, February 2, at Carrizozo School

"It is very important for everyone interested to attend these workshops because the 1992 Higher Education Reauthorization Act has changed some application procedures, qualifying requirements, and methods for determining eligibility," continues the release.

In the event you have any questions or need additional information, call 522-6533.

Course will teach students to provide adult literacy tutoring

Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso Instructional Center has received a grant to address literacy in Lincoln County. The grant is being funded through the Department of Education to instruct college students how to teach reading to adults.

After completing some course work and a 12-hour workshop utilizing Laubach Way to Reading's phonetic approach to teaching adults to read, students will be paired with an adult to tutor.

The student will receive three credit hours for enrolling in ED Foundation for 293 Adult Literacy.

Gloria Pafford will be teaching the class this spring semester. The main requirement to enroll is a sincere willingness to help someone and to spend 30 hours using the literacy skills to tutor someone.

To learn more about the course, tutoring or learning to read yourself, call ENMU-Ruidoso, 257-2120.

Dispatchers say thanks

Ruidoso police dispatchers seldom see the sun, except to help with an occasional parade.

They're the communication link between police and public, and between police and police. For the most part, they are only a voice, not a known face like police officers on the beat.

So when businesses like Ruidoso State Bank, First National State Bank, United New Mexico, Mountain Alarm and Lilian's Mid-Town Cafe started bringing in fruit baskets for the dispatchers at Christmas time, they were more than a little bit surprised.

And the joy with which they bragged about their new found recognition, some how seemed like a good thing for the whole community.

Congressmen oppose office closures

Congressman Joe Skeen and U.S. Senator Pete Domenici, both Republicans from New Mexico, have gone to bat for the Soil Conservation offices in Capitan and Carrizozo, and for other U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) operations marked for closure.

In a separate letter to Agriculture Secretary Ed Madigan, Skeen and Domenici asked him to reconsider plans for closing administrative offices in New Mexico.

"These office closings would place an undue hardship on New Mexico's agriculturalists," Skeen wrote.

The plan would close nine New Mexico offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, nine offices of the Farmers Home Administration and seven offices of the Soil Conservation Service.

"While I commend the secretary for his efforts to achieve a more cost effective and efficient field operation, I believe the implementation of this plan would significantly hurt New Mexico's farm and ranch community, by forcing them to drive extraordinarily long distances to conduct their administrative business."

His two primary concerns about the closings are that several would force people to travel more than 200 miles to receive services from USDA agencies.

"Second, eight of the nine stabilization and conservation field offices that would close under the draft plan, are located with existing soil conservation field offices that would remain open under the plan," Skeen wrote. "It makes no sense to close some offices when others will remain open at the same location."

"Farmers and ranchers already have to travel great distances in New Mexico to conduct their business. I don't believe now is the time to make their work harder by forcing them to travel even further...."

In his letter to Secretary Madigan, Domenici called the closure proposal "unacceptable."

He questioned whether the agency could satisfy "legitimate obligations to a large part of the public served by the USDA."

"Beyond that, I am very disturbed that these closures are being implemented at this time, when this administration is well on its way out of office....I believe this matter is of such consequence that more deliberation and public scrutiny is justified, perhaps even Congressional hearings."

He asked Madigan to "put these actions on a more reasonable schedule and allow for consideration and debate before final action is taken."

Warriors struggle with Moriarty's mighty shooting

A third quarter slump put the Warriors boys basketball team in too deep a hole to dig out by the final buzzer in a match against Moriarty Tuesday night.

Moriarty finally took the game 58-68.

As the green and white team streamed onto the court it was obvious Moriarty had the height and weight advantage. The Pintos had the advantage in age, as well, with 10 seniors and two juniors.

Although the high passes under the basket for scores were a little overwhelming at first, the Warriors quickly readjusted and took the first quarter 13-12.

The blue and gold kept pace with the Pintos through the second quarter and RHS was only behind by one point, 27-28, by half time. Junior Jeff Chapman made it that close by hitting two free throws. Moriarty also missed a last second shot before the buzzer.

When the second half began Ruidoso was cold on its shots and couldn't stop Moriarty from scoring. Moriarty moved ahead quickly with one Moriarty player making several three-point shots that were nothing but net.

The Warriors always had a man to cover him, but couldn't control him. They even fouled him once or twice in the attempt to stop him from scoring.

The Warriors slipped to a 39-48 deficit by the end of the third quarter, and several key players were in foul trouble.

The fourth quarter was almost a rerun of Saturday's game against Portales.

To maintain their lead, Moriarty tried to stall on their possessions to keep the ball out of the Warriors' hands. The Warriors then had to start fouling to put the Pintos on the free throw line and get the ball back.

As hot as the Portales Rams were on the line in Saturday's defeat, the Pintos were even hotter. Moriarty made 11 out of 13 free throws in the fourth quarter and hit 26 of 31 for the whole game, for about 84 percent.

The Warriors made eight out of 15 free throws on their trips to the line.

The squad came within five points of the Pintos in the final quarter and looked like it had them on the ropes. It began to slope downhill when top player Raul Davis was the first of three Warriors to foul out.

The Warriors did make 22 two-point shots compared to 15 for Moriarty. Moriarty, though, picked up four three-point shots. The Warriors made two three-pointers.

Coach Norman Wright said for the third close game in a row they haven't been able to win the third quarter.

"By the fourth quarter we were running out of time. Had they missed on the free throws we would have had more chances to score," he said.

Wright said Moriarty was another big, strong team with experienced players. The Pintos have already made it to the finals in two tournaments this season. The outstanding three-point shooting in the third quarter really broke the Warriors back, he said.

"The kids are doing the best they can against tough opponents. For the third game in a row they played one notch higher," said Wright.

As a team, the Warriors had 20 assists which shows they are passing the ball well. Wright said they are getting the ball to a lot of different players to score.

"We also drew three charges and that shows the kids are playing with a lot of guts," he said.

They also shot 51 percent on two-point shots, the best they have done all year, he said. The 21 turnovers was also the lowest this season, but the Warriors are still trying to get it under 20.

Wright said he was also pleased with the way they handled the press during most of the game.

Raul Davis once again led the scoring for the team with 19 points before exiting the game early. Casey Kearns picked up 16 points before also fouling out late in the game. Kearns continued to make a complete team effort by bringing down 11 rebounds, six assists and five tremendous blocked shots.

Freshman Rex Comanche had his best game of the season against Moriarty and earned 16 points. He also had three assists, two steals and no turnovers. He was six for 12 for the game.

Another freshman, Cory Hood, also had a good game with seven assists. He also drew two charges and picked up five rebounds, which was good for a guard.

Although the team has a 1-9 record, the players are still hanging in their and are becoming much more competitive as each game passes, Wright said.

"The guys are trying to handle the losses and learn from the games and improve," he said.

Once again the Warriors had a good crowd on hand to enjoy the exciting game.

The crowd also helps the team play at its best level and will the Warriors hope to have the people on hand for the next home game, January 22.

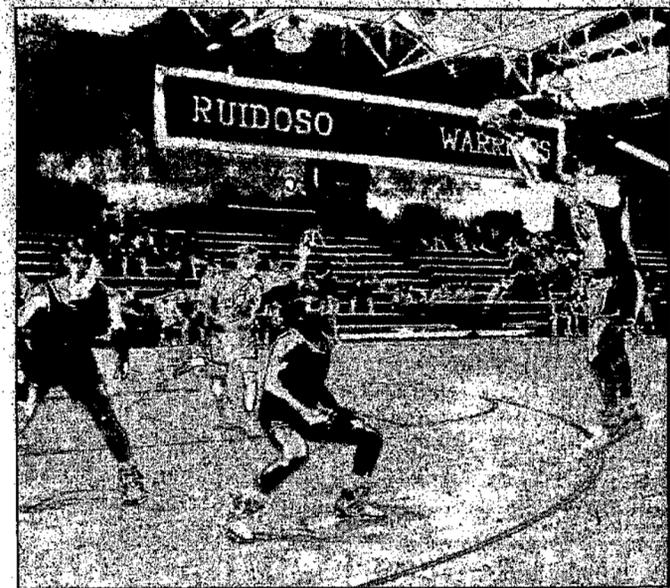

Although basketball schedules say the Warriors next game will be at Artesia on Friday, that game has been rescheduled for Tuesday night there.

Saturday's game will be no easy task either as the Warriors travel to Roswell to take on the New Mexico Military Institute. Wright said NMMI has a player 6'7" and one 6'6" so in height they will be comparable to Moriarty.

The junior varsity also fell to Moriarty on Tuesday, 32-64. The Pintos dominated all four quarters, but the game still offered good experience for all the young Warriors.

Top scorer for the Warriors was Gabe Aguilar with 11 and Zack Turner with eight.

Sophomore Daniel Espinosa (right) pulls down a high pass from a teammate as Jeff Chapman (middle) breaks inside for a possible shot in a game against Portales. The Warriors lost, 54-61, after the Rams pounded home its free throws. Moriarty also sunk the Warriors with three-point shots and free throws in the second half after the Warriors lead at the end of the first quarter. The final score was 58-68, but the Warriors played their best game of the season.

Girls host Cobre Friday

Get ready for girls basketball action this weekend as the Lady Warriors charge into district competition.

The team will play Cobre here on Friday starting at 4 p.m. with the C-team. The junior varsity will compete at completion of this game and the varsity will be last. On Saturday the girls will host Silver City with the same game time schedule. Heading into the game the girls are 2-7.

The Lady Warriors are coming off two wins after several frustrating losses and are playing at their best. Coach Dennis Davis said they hope to maintain the new level of intensity and concentration to win the two games.

Davis said neither team can be taken lightly. He said he doesn't know too much about Cobre but they do have one big, strong player that could be a problem if she is used well.

Warrior wrestlers excel at duals, stumble at tournaments

Duals seem to be the Warrior wrestlers strength so far this season, but that won't get them far in the state tournament next month.

Although the Warriors have not won their two most recent duals, the wrestlers' performance has been strong, said coach Gerald Ames. Tournaments, on the other hand, have been chalked up to experience for the next go-around.

The boys hosted the overwhelming Oñate Knights on January 5 with little hope of coming out unmangled. After the first few matches the Warriors got a new attitude.

At 103 pounds, Julian Flores took control of Bernie Flores for an 8-2 win in the first match. James Flores, at 112 pounds, had an exciting match with Sam Estrada before pinning him in the third period. The two wins made the team score 9-0 for the Warriors.

Johnny Flores put up a big fight against Fernie Caro, at 119 pounds, but was defeated 2-11. Gunner Johnson was in command constantly in his match before he pinned Maurice Armendar early in the second period in the 125-pound class.

Sean Gleason had a tough match before being pinned by Tommy Auckland at 130 pounds to make the team score a little closer, 15-10.

At 135 pounds, Chris Carusona was defeated by Jack Sanchez in a fairly close match, 2-6, while brother Dylan Carusona was pinned by Monte Clair at the 140 pound class.

Scott Stricklin had the most exciting match of the night and won it in the final seconds 2-1 over Roland Lester to make the team score 18-19. Billy Austin meet more than his match in Colin Duff at 152 pounds and was pinned in the first period. Matt Bates was also pinned by Jerry Jenkins early in their match at 160 pounds.

Oñate picked up two forfeits at 171 pounds and 189 pounds, when Ruidoso couldn't front any contenders. Robert Murry earned the final win for the Warriors with a pin over Joseph Lytle at heavyweight for a final team score of 24-42.

It was quite an improvement over last year's match-up of the two teams when Oñate defeated the Warriors by almost 60 points. Ames said this was the best match the Warriors have had all season.

The tournament on Saturday in Carlsbad was not a good one for the Warrior wrestlers. Ames said it was extremely tough and competitive. The 16-team meet was dominated by host Carlsbad, Albuquerque and Los Lunas and the Warriors took 15th place.

Besides the tough opponents to face, several Warriors also came down with the flu. Ames said it hit the wrestlers that probably had the best chances of winning matches.

The best performance of the day was given by young Jullian Flores. Flores pinned the number two seed in his weight class from El Paso Austin to advance to the quarter-finals. He was then defeated by a wrestler from Los Lunas to go for third and fourth. It was a tough match against an Albuquerque High wrestler and Flores couldn't quite capture the win.

Also winning matches at the tourney were Jose Prieto, Matt Bates and Victor Baca.

"We are just chalking this up to experience. Anything we did turned out bad," Ames said.

The team bounced back and put in a great performance against Goddard in a dual Monday night, even though several wrestlers were still sick. The Warriors won seven out of 13 varsity matches for a final score of 31-37. The team had a chance to win but one winning wrestler had not been able to make weight.

At 103 pounds, James Flores defeated Mike Cardona, 6-1, and at 112 pounds, Jose Prieto beat Anthony Cardona, 9-1. Johnny Flores pinned Robert Ortiz at 119 pounds. Beau Jarvis was then defeated by Gale Yocom at 125 pounds before Ruidoso had to forfeit at 130 pounds.

Chris Carusona had an excellent match against Javier Aguirre and won 4-3 at 135 pounds. Ames said Carusona seems to be back on the winning track. Dylan Carusona was defeated by Jason Yarras 1-6 at 140 pounds.

At 145 pounds, Scott Stricklin was defeated by Mike Ortiz, 1-13, after being injured. Billy Austin pinned Zeke Chavez at 152 pounds, but Matt Bates was pinned by Jeremy Compton at 160 pounds. At 171, Sergio Guerrero picked up a forfeit.

Eustace Gallerito, at 189 pounds, was pinned by Kevin Weakly. Heavyweight Robert Murry put up a good struggle but was pinned by Casey Felts.

In JV matches Mike Smart pinned Tim Weakly, at 105 pounds, and Sean Gleason pinned Scotty Scott at 135 pounds. At 140 pounds, Brandon Eamello was pinned by Marcus Elliott.

In the Las Cruces JV tournament on Saturday, James Flores took first place and Johnny Flores and Jason Wilson each took third in their weight classes.

The Warrior varsity will compete in the Bowie Invitational in El Paso, Texas, this weekend.

HAMBURGER KING

Dear Ruidoso,

I don't suppose anyone ever made a perfect pudding. There always seems to be a flaw in the deal. A couple of weeks ago, I scratched a few lines about our chicken fried steak that is smothered in thick, cream gravy and comes with your choice of beans, French fries, and all the trimmings. The idea was to peddle a few of them, and it worked. A lot of new people tried them and have been coming back for more. Now that is the good news. The bad news is that my dishwasher up and quit. He said that when he took the job he thought he was just going to be putting little plastic baskets in the dishwasher, hot scrubbing grease and salad dressing off of heavy platters and bowls.

Well, that's the way it goes. As the man said, into every life a little bit of rain must fall, and me and that dishwasher both got wet. So be it. I have hired another dishwasher.

We still have the chicken fried steak, and it still comes on a platter with side dishes of salad and beans. Come down and have one. I think you will like it. It is good; it is filling; and it is not expensive. Besides, my new dishwasher needs the experience.

Sincerely,
 Cliff Mason

The Silver Lining

Winter weather arrives on New Year's day

Different Winter Days

On New Year's Day, after several spring-like days in late December, began the winter weather again with freezing mist mixed with rain and sleet. Then on the second, the day turned mild with warm west wind and sunshine and shadow.

This west wind increased into a gale reminding you of March, and the last of the snow was soon gone. It was like a day in early spring, and yet away to the north the North Pole cannonball was gathering steam to move south.

It sent a signal down to the Vale in the form of a north wind sounding its song of snow over the hilltops and through the piñons and cedars, driving a herd of purple and gray clouds high through the sky. This was on the ninth.

All night the temperature stayed at 20, kept from going lower by the cloud cover, and then today on the 10th the ground was covered with a very light film of snow.

The north wind was blowing in the tiny frozen mist with a few scattered small flakes of snow, and yet by noon there was little trace of snow. There was enough warmth left in the ground — dried out by several days of driving west wind — so that the snow as it fell, disappeared like magic into the meadows and from the trees.

You could barely see little patches of white of the hillsides hidden under the piñons and cedars.

All Day Snow

All day light snow came driving in on the wind, with the temperature never riding above 30. The snow birds had the place to themselves during this, what you might call, a baby blizzard. The doves, robins, jays, finches, were all hidden out.

From whence cometh my help,

West Wind Warms The Mountain World

This is being sent to you a little before high noon on January 11, with the Vale all bright with sunshine and shadow while the west wind hums down the valley melting away the light snow that appeared on the ground early this morning.

After a night-time temperature of twenty, the hills and meadows returned with the west wind.

The sun looks and feels great after two or three days of almost steady cloud, rain, sleet, fog, mist and snow.

This morning after the sun came up over Sunrise Mountain it was a sight to behold the change in the wintry picture which stretched from one end of the valley to the other. The light snow on the cedars and piñons began turning into tufts of melting snow drops which were turned into sparkling winter jewelry by the sun.

As the drops fell, they changed from emerald, ruby, topaz and amethyst, on the way down.

The bright blue coat of the Mexican Jay shines bright as he flies into the feeding station after three days hiding out from the weather.

Overhead the crow circles, happy with the return of the sun, sending down his song of fair weather here at the beginning of true winter.

Mother Earth is wearing a smile of calm contentment, as the new year begins with sunshine and snow, and there is rejoicing throughout the Mountain Land.

Let us thank Our Good Lord for this beautiful beginning to the new year in the Land of the Piñon and Pine, and all our other many blessings.

Conservation council will meet

The South Central Mountain RO&D Council will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday, January 20, at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center off Medient Drive next to The Links at Sierra Blanca golf course.

Everyone is invited to attend and hear from Ursula Boatright of the Santa Fe Economic Development Division who will discuss U.S. West-REAL.

A program also will be presented on the use of Geographic Information System.

Council members will present progress reports on projects.

More information about the meeting may be obtained by calling the Resource Conservation & Development Office in Carrizozo, 848-2941.

Recreational skiers race for '93 NASTAR ratings

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Rick Heath is a Norman Oklahoma businessman. But Sunday he became a medal-winning ski racer.

National Standard Racing (NASTAR) began its Ski Apache season Sunday, offering recreational skiers, like Heath, the opportunity to experience gate running and maybe, if they're good enough, a chance to win a gold, silver or bronze medal.

Nearly 200 ski areas in the United States, Canada and overseas participate in NASTAR. Race courses are generally modified GS (giant slalom) laid-out on more difficult trails. Ski Apache runs its 20-gate NASTAR on Smokey Bear.

The standard of NASTAR is simple: it's the best time of the fastest US Ski Team member, Eric Schalpy. Each participating ski area designates a pacesetter whose time is compared to Schalpy's. Ski Apache's pacesetter is Rick Zarndt.

As each recreational skier, such as Heath, races, his or her time compares to the pacesetter's. If that time falls within a certain percentage of the pacesetter's time, the skier wins a medal.

Since skiers represent all ages of both sexes, their times are adjusted accordingly. Thus, a 36-year-old man must come within 20 percent of the pacesetter's time to win a gold medal.

Percentages vary from age 4 to 80-plus.

As Heath lined himself up in the starting gate for his second run, his goal was clear.

"I'm only .2 of a second away from a silver."

Starter Kent Young of Ski Apache's Race Department gave Heath some tips and out he flew.

He streaked to the finish line to the cheers of his wife, Betty, other racers and skiers riding Chair #2. His time flashed on the board: 33.4 seconds.

"You did it!" announced Wendy Vincent over the loudspeaker. "You got the silver!"

"I've been skiing since 1978 and always wanted to do this," said a grinning Heath, and Betty pinned on his medal.

"Today I finally did and look, a silver!"

Although not everyone who races will win a medal, it's fun to try, seeing weather permitting, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Cost is $5 for the first two runs and $1 for each additional run.

See you at the races!

Locals rank with state's fastest skiers

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Several local skiers are among New Mexico's fastest, according to the NASTAR ratings released this fall.

Stephanie Chastain, Stacy Gude, Shelley Streck, Carla Grover, Jane Kennedy, Donald Hoover, Terry Tankersley and Nathan Kossof of Ruidoso; Pam Topper of Fort Stanton; Sally Canning of Lincoln; Yvonne Lanelli, Manuel Castro and Gustav Lleras of Alto were ranked on the Top Ten of their respective age and gender categories as part of the first Budweiser Challenge All-Star ratings.

Ratings were based on the skier's best handicap of the 1991-92 season.

Racing at Ski Apache, Chastain's best handicap was a 21, which means she was 21 percent behind the time posted by last season's NASTAR National Pacesetter, U.S. Olympian Matt Grosjean.

Chastain was ranked first among women ages 21-29.

Gude's handicap of 25 ranked her second in the same age group.

Topper's handicap of 30 placed her first in women aged 30-39. Streck was fifth with a handicap of 39.

Canning was seventh with a handicap of 42.

In women ages 40-49, Grover's handicap of 20 placed her second; Lanelli's 21 placed her fourth and Kennedy's 40 placed her tenth.

In the men's groups, Kosssof's handicap of 20 ranked him fourth in ages 21-29, ahead of Lleras' eighth-place finish with a 25 handicap.

Tankersley's 12 placed him seventh ages 40-49.

Hoover's 37 ranked him seventh in ages 60-69.

Castro's 30 ranked him first in ages 70-79.

For first place finishes, Castro, Topper and Chastain received sunglasses.

All Top Ten finishers received posters listing their rankings.

Other Ski Apache skiers who placed in the Top Ten but who do not live in the area included Carolyn Mitchell, John Shumard and Guy Wilemon of Roswell; Dawn Cole and Jim Cowman of Clovis; and Michael Nolan of Alamogordo.

Pam Topper and Sally Canning are two of NASTAR's Top Ten skiers.

NASTAR ranked racer Pam Topper of Fort Stanton joins Izumi Isherwood on the slopes of Ski Apache. The two pause to enjoy the view down Mescalero, a most difficult run, before pursuing their favorite sport. Topper was among a group of local skiers listed among New Mexico's fastest in National Standard Racing (NASTAR) rankings released this fall. Photos by Yvonne Lanelli.

Antifreeze leaks cause harm to animals, car owners

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Antifreeze attracts dogs and cats like ice cream does children. But a few laps of the liquid could spell death to family pets. When a stream of the greenish antifreeze slithered down the curb on Begonia Road December 30, alarmed residents gathered their pets and called the Ruidoso Police Department.

The deadly mixture was traced to a vehicle parked at Carpet Mart on Sudderth Drive. The owner, Bryan Smith, subsequently was charged with two petty misdemeanors: throwing and draining of refuse into rivers, streams and bar ditches; and (discharging) destructive or injurious material on the roadways. Smith is set for a first appearance in municipal court in front of Judge Charles Hawthorne on January 14. His attorney, Michael Line, told The Ruidoso News Wednesday that his client did not intentionally discharge the antifreeze.

"It seems to me this was a situation where my client's hose broke on his car," Line said. "It was nothing intentional."

"He was doing some work and put a gallon in. His hose broke as he started up the car. It's not a situation where he set out to dump his trash into the river."

"I reviewed the statutes and they appear to require an intentional action, so I guess we'll be there (Thursday) afternoon to plead not guilty or to work out a reasonable way to handle it.

"My guy doesn't like that stuff running down the curb either, but there were circumstances beyond his control. He regrets that it happens."

Veterinarian Lynn Willard of the Ruidoso Animal Clinic said it is the ethylene glycol element in the antifreeze that's toxic.

"It creates crystals in the kidneys and once formed, they destroy all the kidney function," he said. "It's a very lethal drug, but the taste draws animals. They love it. But it will cause a very painful death."

If a pet owner is sure their animal has consumed antifreeze/coolant and acts quickly, Willard said he can induce vomiting in a race against the system's chance to absorb the substance. The treatment can be very effective in counteracting the effects and ridding the system of the toxin.

"Unfortunately, only about 10 percent of the time do we know for sure," he said. "The rest of the time, we're only dealing with symptoms."

Those symptoms include the animal being very lethargic and uncoordinated, especially in its rear legs. The animal also will vomit.

"It's very painful and the pain causes the animal to vomit," he said. "Eventually, it will go down on all fours and falls into a coma."

"We can run tests to determine if antifreeze was consumed. We have a treatment aimed at binding the ethylene glycol with an alcohol product that keeps it from forming crystals."

"But time is of the essence. How quickly the treatment is administered has a direct relationship to the prognosis for recovery."

His clinic has treated four animals this fall that consumed antifreeze.

"The lethal dose is very low," Willard said. "It doesn't take much."

A lethal dose for a dog is one-third of a teaspoon per pound of body weight. For a cat, it only takes one-eighth of a teaspoon.

"If someone suspects their animal may have consumed antifreeze/coolant, get in touch with your veterinarian right away," Willard said. "If they wait, that's when we run into trouble."

Concern over the safety of the animals in the neighborhood and possible pollution of the nearby river is what concerned Betsy Seiler when she came home that afternoon in December and saw the stream of green anti-freeze.

"I found a puddle right in front of my house," said Mrs. Seiler, who owns several cats.

"I followed the line up the street to where it was coming out of a car. It was running down the gutter. I talked to the owner (of the business) and he said it belonged to his brother, who had left."

The police department was notified, but by the time they arrived, the car had been moved, Seiler alleges.

"I believe it's more a case of ignorance," she said. Apparently, Smith was not aware of environmental regulations covering the release and disposal of toxic substances.

Fire Chief Virgil Reynolds said his department sent out two men, who realized the material could not be flushed because it would wash into the river. An official with the state environment department was contacted and said the material should be covered with dirt or sand. Once absorbed, it could be removed and treated as the village handles other oil/petroleum products.

Reynolds said five to six employees from the village street department delivered mounds of sand, which they used to absorb the antifreeze. They then shoveled it back into the truck and hauled it away.

"The whole experience took up the time of a lot of people and was costly to the city," Seiler said.

The maximum punishment that could be imposed on conviction for the two offenses is a $500 fine and 90 days in jail.

Dear Frankie and Dianna,

As the present operation and eventual expansion of the Shelter grows, so much of the credit is due to the Ruidoso News. Your fantastic news coverage concerning our various activities and goals have obviously intrigued a multitude of your readers. Therefore, what our organization is presently and what it will be in the future... is basically your achievement.

Please accept the Humane Society's gratitude for all the wonderful weekly photos and articles on pets available at the Shelter; the 17 Dec "Adopt-A-Pet for Christmas" article which, as you know, made it the most successful one ever; the 24 Dec article and photo on the outcome of the "Santa Claws & Paws" remote broadcast and the 24 Dec writeup on our Thrift Shop. The 26 Dec, the Thrift Shop had new customers (one from Burke, VA) that had been unaware of our existence, until reading your article the day before Christmas. # Rep. Underwood hears from Capitan villagers

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Restoring public respect for state legislators through the adoption of far-reaching ethics legislation will be one of the main thrusts this year for State Representative H. John Underwood.

The Democrat from Ruidoso outlined his approach for the 35 people attending a town hall meeting Tuesday in Capitan. Underwood annually meets with residents from communities throughout his district to discuss issues they propose for legislation or want the legislators to consider in the future.

Underwood serves as co-chairman of the state ethics task force of 27 members. He told the audience Tuesday that during the 60-day legislative session starting January 19, he will introduce a 65-page ethics bill.

The bill will cover campaign finance reform and conflicts of interest.

"It will account for every cent every lobbyist spends and all the financial interests of the legislators," Underwood said. "The approach is based on disclosure."

If the bill manages to struggle through legislative debate intact, it will include money to cover the cost of sending the information back to local libraries to give access to people back home, he said.

After the meeting, Underwood said the intent is to phase the regulations into the county and municipal levels of government as well.

Turning to income sources for the state, Underwood said he thinks a lottery bill will pass during this session and that Governor Bruce King will sign it.

"Currently millions of dollars are going outside New Mexico for lotteries in neighboring states," he said. "New Mexico is a poor state. I don't want to see us left behind as the rest of the nation moves along."

He does not favor tying the income produced by the lottery to education unless there is a mandate that binds the legislature to keep its support of education at a certain level, regardless of what additional money might come from a lottery. He cited the problems with Florida's lottery as an example of public education being hurt without that guarantee.

JOHN UNDERWOOD

Minus that assurance, he would prefer the money go to non-recurring expenditures or the general fund, Underwood said.

He is not against Indian gambling, the representative said. "What I don't agree with is if they have the right (to have gambling on reservations), we should, too," he said. He would like to see residents of target communities be able to vote on local gambling.

As it is, the situation has "put a line between the communities and the Indian nations, fostering less cooperation and more conflict."

The loophole that stood in the way of the Mescalero Apache Tribe and gambling is that while the Indian Gaming Act adopted four years ago mandates the state negotiate a gambling package with tribes, it does not require the governor to sign an agreement, Underwood said.

"It's a constitutional issue whether the federal government has the power to force a state to negotiate," he said.

Many problems have been associated with gambling on reservations, including allegations that the tribes have been "ripped off," by the managers of the operations, Underwood said. He'd like to see stiffer regulations governing the activity.

A way to satisfy both sides might be to go into a cooperative promotional agreement, Underwood said. "It seems we're cutting off our nose to spite our face. The county could advertise that it's the home of video gambling."

Jack Johnson, who said he is a retired police officer and previously worked at The Inn of the Mountain Gods on the Mescalero reservation, said the gambling operation there was "one of the cleanest operations as you can find."

Ruidoso benefited from much of the gambling action, because many of the visitors couldn't afford to stay at the Inn and had rooms in town, he said.

Underwood said the state also could benefit by requiring a percentage of the profit as part of the package.

"We're talking $5 limit games, a more family oriented type of gambling," he said.

On the down side of gambling, property values escalate, forcing long-time residents to leave because they can no longer afford to live in a community with gambling; and resulting in older historic structures being plowed under for new buildings.

"I want to see a long hard look and debate," Underwood said.

But Capitan elementary school principal Jerry Newsom said, "I think if we did (approve gambling), a few years down the road, we'd be looking at it as we are now at drive-in liquor places."

Earlier in the meeting while discussing new directions the state may take to combat its horrendous record of deaths due to drunk drivers, Underwood had asked his audience whether closing drive-up liquor sales would help.

A heavy majority of hands shot upward in support of closing drive-up liquor windows.

"The majority here think it would help reduce the drunk driving problem, but in the other meetings, it's been the other way around," Underwood said.

Lincoln County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley and local Republican Party chairman Mike Kakuska said McKinley County has been successful in cutting its accidents tied to drunk driving by shutting down drive-up windows and by having the courts clamp down on offenders.

Underwood said he has received stacks of petitions from people supporting the drive-up window system. They argue that the owners would lose their competitive edge against Furr's and other large supermarkets that sell liquor and might lose their investments.

Newsom told Underwood that he realized people might be impacted economically, "but you have to ignore that or everything will be so watered down, it will be ineffective."

"If it hurts our pocketbooks, so be it. The ball is in your court."

Being required to go into a business to buy liquor would give the seller a chance to evaluate whether the buyer was old enough or already impaired. That is tough to do while the buyer is sitting in a car, several people pointed out.

Underwood said the number one goal of the legislature this session will be to do something about the driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) laws in the state.

"New Mexico leads the nation in deaths involving alcohol," he said. He recently received letters from remaining members of two families that nearly had been wiped out by drunk drivers while traveling through the state.

The legislature is under the gun to do something or it could see Triple A and other auto clubs officially declare New Mexico a dangerous state to be avoided. Being heavily dependent on tourism, a move like that could be devastating, he said.

Imposing mandatory jail sentences and fines on first offenses is one of the major moves under consideration, Underwood said.

"We need to let people know that this is no longer a good ole boy state and that if you are caught, no matter who you know or who you are, you're going to jail," he said.

A recovering alcoholic, Underwood said he understands the importance of getting offenders off the road and into treatment. Although he could see waiving a fine in return for meaningful community service or treatment, he does not favor waiving jail time for any reason.

"I was fortunate that I didn't have an accident while I was driving and drinking, but I lost several years of my life (to alcohol)," Underwood said. "You can't coddle (a violator) even while you are seeking to treat them."

"It's not so much the severity as the certainty of punishment that matters."

A drunk driver involved in an accident or one driving on a revoked license should be charged with a felony, he said.

One of the proposals being considered to finance the new approach is to add more tax on alcohol, he said.

The offender could be required to pay for any extraordinary devices needed to safeguard society, such as a breath analyzer attached to the starter of a car.

Another crack-down suggestion is to lower the legally drunk blood alcohol level from .10 (1,000 parts alcohol per one part blood) to .08, which Underwood terms a more symbolic than significant improvement.

"If you're really serious that someone shouldn't drink and drive, the level should be .000000," he said. Many other symptoms of intoxication can be used to convict an offender without a test of blood alcohol levels, he said.

Members of the audience also indicated that reducing the number of hours a bar can be opened would help. Underwood said the legislature may consider from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. instead of from the current 7 a.m. to 2 a.m. That same approach could be applied to drive-up windows, cutting their hours down to 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., he said.

The state also will need to develop a better computer system and communication with reservation courts to track suspended and revoked licenses, and the number of previous DUI convictions. Otherwise, judges may not properly punish an offender, Underwood said.

In other points of discussion, Underwood:

—heard Capitan school board superintendent David Lock request that if there is an increase in education financial allocations, it should exceed the amount required to meet new regulations and programs mandated by the state.

He pointed out that an equalization formula adopted several years ago to ensure rural areas were not short-changed in student reimbursement from the state is no longer equal.

It took 10 years to create the formula, but last year the larger districts around Albuquerque nearly destroyed it by crying for help with gang problems and taking money away from smaller districts.

Underwood said he is aware that many smaller communities are based around the local school system. If they die, the community could die.

In a related matter, Underwood said he hasn't heard a word about a rumored effort to revisit and remove the no strike clause in the collective bargaining law passed last year.

"They can negotiate a bunch of pay raises that can't be funded," he said of the National Education Association teacher's union. He pinpointed the pressure as coming "from the Rio Grande corridor."

"If they gang up on us, the best we can do is damage control," Underwood said. "This only deepens the line between educators and the administration and that line is right through our kids."

—was asked by Nunley to be sure that Lincoln County gets its share of advantages from the North America Free Trade Agreement.

Nunley said he would like to see the county become an active part of the free trade corridor.

"We (the state) are in the cat's seat," Underwood said. "There will be some good and bad consequences, but I feel it all will even out in the long run. The border is an artificial barrier. New Mexico probably has more in common with Mexico than any other state. We are on an ocean of opportunity and a whole new world is available on trade. They like us and we like them."

—held out little hope that the state would return any of the income sources to the village that it has removed over the last two years.

—will continue to work toward bringing educational spending back to the 50 percent of budget level provided in year's past. He said the state deficit is too high this year to accomplish that goal.

—heard requests for help from the state in caring for roads, including a route from the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport through Fort Stanton to Capitan. Better access would improve business opportunities, he was told. Underwood said while paving would be out of the question, a chip and seal surface might be arranged.

Cox, Payne tapped for All-Stars

Kelly Cox, a setter, and Tammy Payne, a middle blocker, were named to the All-Star Volleyball Team for 1993 by a committee of head volleyball coaches.

They will be invited to participate in the tenth annual North/South A/AA All Star matches set for June 11 in Roswell. Only graduating seniors are eligible.

In basketball news, coach Norman Cline said both the Capitan girls and boys teams placed third in their brackets at the Smokey Bear Invitational Tournament last weekend.

The boys beat Cimarron 54-47 and the girls tromped Estancia 58-24.

"They both played three good basketball games," he said.

Tammy Payne, Tylic Traylor and Amy Cline were named to the all tournament team by the participating coaches.

Trevor Cox and Kyle Traylor were picked from the boys' side. Traylor also won the free throw contest.

Coming out on top of the tournament on the girls' side, Animas defeated Lake Arthur. Carrizozo took home the trophy for the boys after a tight game of 65-64 with Eunice.

In semi-final play for the girls, Animas downed Capitan 42-38 while Lake Arthur squeaked by Estancia 48-44. In consolation matches, Vaughn bested Eunice 51-48 and Cimarron toppled Carrizozo 49-13.

Carrizozo fared better in boys semi-final games, beating Cimarron 65-58 while Eunice took Capitan 47-46.

In consolation competition, Estancia topped Vaughn with a score of 66-54 and Alamogordo's C-team trampled Lake Arthur 94-31.

Superintendent Lock defends push for Capitan Middle School

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Critics of the proposed construction of a middle school in Capitan point to the fact that the district's teacher-student ratio is lower than many other school systems in the state.

Superintendent David Lock said Capitan's lower figure is one of the reasons the district's academic test scores are higher than many other school systems and the school board wants to keep it that way.

A letter to the editor appeared during the holidays in The Ruidoso News from Joel Crossno of Capitan comparing teacher-student ratios and questioning whether Capitan is over-crowded and can justify construction of a new school.

He criticized the school board for placing an unneeded tax burden on residents, if the proposed $1.3-million bond issue passes February 2. Crossno suggested board members wait until existing bond issues are retired in 1996. In the interim, the district could use the school gymnasiums or portable classrooms instead of creating a new school.

Crossno made some strong points, but Lock contends stronger reasons exist for construction of a middle school.

"When the district built the elementary school in 1980, people laughed and said we would never fill it," Lock said. He pointed out that current enrollment for the elementary school is 309 students and 239 students are attending the high school in grades seven through twelfth.

Crossno accurately listed teacher-student ratios in several other districts, citing Alamogordo at 34 per classroom, Hot Springs at 20 per class and 24 at Hatch. He noted those most of those districts don't consider their numbers as indicating overcrowding.

If that's the case, Capitan's ratio hardly qualifies the system as being squeezed.

The district averages a ratio of 18-1 in the high school, 20-1 in the elementary school and 22-1 for the middle school grades.

Lock said averages are obtained by taking the total number of students and dividing by the teaching staff. That process doesn't reflect special education, which carries a nine students to one teacher maximum and skews the picture. But the fact that the ratio is lower is an advantage the district hopes to keep, he said.

"Anyone knows that the quality of education is better when you have a lower teacher-pupil ratio," Lock said. "For instance, I already had a waiver worked out with the state (to allow a higher ratio for the fifth grade), and I realized it would be economically better with no additional teacher. But for the quality of education, the district hired a third fifth grade teacher to lower the ratio."

"We're not going to put ourselves in a position where the ratio increases and the quality of education goes down. You can look at the state and see where the problems occur."

Every room in the existing school plant is occupied, he said. Some rooms are shared. Even with the construction of a middle school, no rooms would be vacant. The gymnasiums are used for physical education classes and are not conducive to regular classroom work, he added.

Portable classrooms are never a preferred option, he said. Crossno had pointed out that portables would allow the district to handle downward fluctuations in enrollment more economically than a permanent building. They could be moved if they were no longer needed.

"Portables is what we would have to go to if the bond issue does not pass," Lock said. The last time the district went to the voters, asking for $1.8-million to build a middle school and auditorium, the voters said no. This time, the school has no auditorium.

Lock doesn't like portables, because "they isolate students from the rest of the school," he said. "Look at the pattern of use in the nation. Districts go to portables in emergencies and as soon as they can, they go to a permanent facility. They're just not a good answer historically. You can't equip them as you can a regular classroom and they wouldn't eliminate the problem of mixing the different age groups."

Figures, averages and economics aside, the major point for construction of a middle school is to provide a home for grades six through eight, Lock said. During those years, students undergo significant physical and emotion changes and growth. They are no longer "elementary" children. Yet, they are not high school students, either, he said.

"The state has advocated that districts across New Mexico go to the middle school concept," Lock said. "They feel through research that it is the most effective way of organizing a school district. That way, we have kids in similar setting developmentally. This is when they start to break away from mom and dad and the opinions of their peers become most important. It's more effective to keep them separated."

The 15,000-square-foot school would house seven classrooms, science and computer labs, as well as restrooms and an administration area. The design will allow for expansion.

The impact on voters who are property owners would amount to 96 cents for each $1,000 of taxable value of their property in 1994.

For tax purposes, the county assessor uses one-third of the property's assessed market value. A person with a home assessed at $60,000, would be taxed on $20,000 and would pay $19.82 more in taxes next year.

According to school officials, taxes would decrease in 1995 to 71-cents per $1,000 value. In 1996, current outstanding bond debts from previous projects will be paid off. From 1996 through the retirement of the middle school bonds in 2002, taxes would go back to their 1992 level. The new bond issue would run until the year 2002.

"I just don't know if the community realizes how much Capitan has grown in the last few years," Lock said. In 1989-90, the district's elementary school enrollment was 245 compared to 309 today. The middle-high school grades were 210 compared to 239 students currently.

"This is just my personal opinion, but I think Capitan will continue to grow," Lock said. "It's a bedroom community for Ruidoso and I think that village saw its hardest time with the oil bust of 1985."

The trend throughout the nation is for families to move from metropolitan areas to the Southwest. I don't see that as changing."

A public meeting on the bond issue and school construction is scheduled for 7 p.m. January 19 at the school cafeteria.

CAPITAN MIDDLE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE

Your vote is vital to the future of Capitan Schools. The School desperately needs extra classroom space to maintain quality education.

Your vote for the $1.3 million bond issue on Tuesday, February 2, will help Capitan Municipal Schools construct a needed facility for mid-school grades 6-8. Money from the bonds will be used to design and construct a 15,000 sq. ft. facility with seven classrooms and science and computer labs, administrative office space and bathrooms. The extra classrooms will provide enough space for the current student population, and the design will allow for expansion.

Capitan Schools ask voters to help preserve the schools' quality education by providing enough classroom space to maintain current student/teacher ratios shown by test scores to provide education above the state norms in most cases. Capitan's addition of the Head Start program for four year olds also creates a demand for space. Building a middle school will provide additional rooms for the 6-8 grades and will open up classrooms in both the elementary and high school. At present enrollment, there will be 63 sixth graders at Capitan School in the 1993-94 school year, 52 seventh graders and 40 eighth graders or 155 student grades 6-8. With that enrollment, the proposed middle school would have 22 students per classroom. Projections for the 1994-95 school year show 37 sixth graders, 63 seventh graders 52 eighth graders.

Capitan Schools have grown 70 students in the last two years.

A positive vote for the bond issue will cost property owners 96 cents of taxes for each $1,000 of taxable value of the property in 1994. Taxes will decrease in 1995 to 71 cents per $1,000 value. In 1996, current outstanding bond debts from previous projects will retire. From 1996 throughout the retirement of the middle schools bonds in 2002, taxes will go back to their 1992 level. That means someone with a $60,000 home, assessed for taxable value at one-third that or $20,000 assessed will result in about $19.82 more in taxes in 1994.

THE NEED

The Capitan Board of Education is dedicated to the appropriate instruction for all students and to the maintenance and repair of all school buildings in the District. In addition, the Board must continue to maintain and build classrooms in order to meet anticipated growth in enrollment.

The proceeds from a successful election will go towards the construction of a new middle school. The following questions will appear on the ballot for voter approval:

GENERAL OBLIGATION BOND QUESTION

"Shall the Board of Education of Capitan Municipal School District No. 28, County of Lincoln, State of New Mexico be authorized to issue general obligation bonds of the District, in one series or more, in the aggregate principal amount of not exceeding $1,300,000 for the purpose of erecting a middle school and erecting, remodeling, making additions to and furnishing school buildings and purchasing or improving school grounds or any combination of these purposes, said bonds to be payable from general (ad valorem) taxes and to be issued and sold at such time or times upon such terms and conditions as the Board may determine?"

PASSAGE OF THIS BOND QUESTION WILL ENSURE CONTINUATION OF QUALIFY EDUCATION FOR ALL STUDENTS IN THE DISTRICT

WHO MAY VOTE?

- 1.) You may vote if your are a registered voter in Lincoln County, and
- 2.) Live within the boundaries of the Capitan Municipal School District.
- 3.) You do not have to be a property owner to vote.

P&Z slams the door on townhouse proposal

A zone map amendment to allow townhouses near the corner of Hull Road and Paradise Canyon Drive was denied by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission Monday, January 4.

Owner Jim Runyan and agent Johnny Mobley requested R-3 multi-family residential zoning which allows up to 14 units per acre.

Based on the lot size of 2.94 acres, this would allow development of 41 units, according to planning director Cleatus Richards.

Richards said development will be limited by flood plain consideration. He said portions of Hull Road frontage is within the flood plain as is the northerly portion of the tract.

The land use master plan designates the property for low density, R-1.

Mobley said the request for R-3 zoning approval was for about 15 to 20 townhouses, depending on availability of land.

Richards said notifications were sent to property owners and three objections were filed.

Reasons for objections included too much traffic congestion, opposition to any zoning changes to the area and multi-family use for the property.

Bronko McDugan, president of the Timbers Townhouse Association across the street, said he was seeking further information with respect to plans regarding parking, entry to the property and traffic.

Jeff Chapman, carrying a power of attorney representing the owner at 300 Country Club Drive, said that owner objected to the zoning change for numerous reasons including the 110 townhouses currently for sale in Ruidoso.

Chapman said the townhouses should be built on land that is already zoned for multi-family use. He said there is a lot of this type of land designated and not developed.

Dagmar Ames was recognized as an adjoining property owner opposed to the request because the property, if rezoned, could occupy up to 41 townhouse units.

Ames said it is very difficult for the adjoining property owners to make an informed judgement with no plans designating the number of units or how they would be placed on the property.

Richards said a decision to zone could not be made on an anticipated plan. He said that would get into an area of contract zoning which is illegal.

He said property is zoned for the use that the district allows. He said current owners may only plan 20 units, but may later go for maximum uses.

"Once land is zoned, it is zoned for whatever is permitted in that district," Richards said.

Richards further advised that the master plan in that area did not provide for other than low density development.

Mobley said his involvement in the project was that he signed a group from El Paso to purchase the property based on rezoning. He said sales for up to 10 units had already been made and the plan by owners was to sell units prior to having them built.

Village attorney Pat Ortiz said there was a demand for more details, which would give the impression toward approval, but would not be binding.

She said to approve zoning based on an approximate plan for number of units could not be enforced.

Ortiz said approval needed to be based on a more conceptual basis.

Commissioner Arden Eckersley moved to deny the request for rezoning.

Chairman Robert Donaldson opened the floor to further discussion.

Commissioner Michael Radziewicz said 41 units would be overbearing on the property because of the immense flood plain and could provoke a very dangerous situation.

Commissioner Scott Ingram said any more traffic to that intersection would be worse for the community. Donaldson called for the vote. Donaldson, Eckersley, Ingram and Radziewicz voted aye, to deny; Commissioner Con Miner voted no.

The P&Z also voted on an amendment to clarify the commission's ability to grant variances to parking requirements of the zoning code.

The village staff recommended that the following language be substituted for the last sentence of code 10-5-11 J:

"The planning commission may grant a variance of the parking requirements only where the granting of such variance is not contrary to the public interest, will avoid unnecessary hardship and serve substantial justice while meeting the spirit of the zoning ordinance."

Village of Ruidoso Downs takes on its own animal control duties

by KRISTIE SULZBACH
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A hike in the cost of a service will make Ruidoso Downs a little more resourceful in providing the service for itself.

Ruidoso Downs trustees decided Monday night not to renew a contract with the Lincoln County Humane Society to provide a shelter for animals picked up running loose. The village took care of its own animals until December 1, 1991, when it began the one-year contract with the society.

The village paid $300 per month to the society for the first year of the contract, but the society asked for an increase to $750 per month beginning with the new year. Although the contract ran out December 1, 1992, both parties thought it didn't run out until January 1 and the village paid $300 through the end of this month.

Mayor Joe Hayhurst said they had been kicking around the idea of doing it on their own and asked animal control officer Tom Armstrong what his comments were on the idea.

Armstrong said it may be a good idea to do it again to get the revenue coming back to the village. He said all they need is a place to shelter the animals. Animal control is an up-and-down type of job, and they won't always have a lot of animals to handle, he said.

Trustee Judy Miller asked if it would be possible for the village to serve as the animal shelter for at least part of the county down the valley.

Mayor Hayhurst said they have talked to officials from the county to discuss the possibility, but they first need to determine if they can do it for their own animals.

Village clerk Leann Weibrecht said the society did offer the village the option of paying $300 per month until the beginning of the new fiscal year when a balloon payment would be due to pay the remaining amount of the $750 per month from February 1. Trustee Charlotte Craig said paying the $750 per month plus the amount the shelter gets for tags is too much, especially when the village could do it.

Mayor Hayhurst said he spoke to the local office of the Environmental Department about the requirements for a shelter. The shelter would need to have a concrete floor off of a water source, and they would need a veterinarian available to care for the animals. He said he spoke to one vet that would be willing to do the work and bill them monthly for it.

Currently when an animal from Ruidoso Downs is taken into the Humane Society shelter the owners pay a $25 impounding fee, a boarding fee and a licensing fee, all of which the society keeps for the care and paperwork and a rabies shot fee which goes to the veterinarian.

The licensing fee for Ruidoso Downs residents is $5 for an unaltered animal and $3 for an altered animal. Ruidoso Downs residents are not required to spay or neuter their pets.

Armstrong said he had picked up 11 dogs in December and all of them went to the society shelter. He also handled four cats and two horses in the month. He issued 11 warnings.

Trustee Ray Hayhurst asked if it is automatic that the animals go to the shelter or if some of them could be taken back to their owners to be warned or cited.

Armstrong said the problem is that when the dogs are loose, the owners are at work. He said he just takes them to the shelter and those people handle it from there. The village also has an ordinance that if an animal is running loose without a license or rabies shots it is to be impounded.

He said he tries to follow up on the animals he impounds as much as possible. If he sees them back in Ruidoso Downs he checks to see if the owners have taken care of getting the rabies shots. He said people follow through about 50 percent of the time. They have to pay the fee whether they get it done or not, he said.

Trustee Hayhurst asked Armstrong if he saw any problems in running an animal shelter themselves. Armstrong again said he didn't know of any, except having a decent place to house the animals.

Weibrecht said that she talked to the village maintenance crew and they said they could build a good shelter for less than the amount of the balloon payment. It would be a heated building with pens inside with several individual runs and a draining trough. An exact location has not been selected, but the village does have land available to build on.

Trustees Miller and Hayhurst said they would be willing to pitch in to help with the shelter.

The village would have a little more than two weeks to get the facility ready before the agreement runs out February 1.

In other business, trustees heard the 1991-1992 audit report from Don Wingfield of Woodard, Wingfield and Cowan of Roswell.

He said he had two main items that he wanted to make the trustees aware of and both were concerning bond issues. About two years ago the village used reserve utility funds to make a bond payment and the reserve was never replenished, he said.

Wingfield said he advised village clerk Weibrecht to establish certificates of deposits for the amount that was taken out of the fund, $14,400. Weibrecht said she is already holding a $140,000 CD for it and they will be setting aside $1.50 per water customer per month to establish a fund to repair the water system.

The sales tax revenue bond is due in 1995, with a balloon payment of $225,000, Wingfield said.

After that is paid off the money will go to help pay off the street paving bond, which has a large payment due in the year 2000.

He said the report has a clean opinion but he did have a little trouble reconciling the accounting books. It wasn't the fault of the village or of the computer company that set the system up, but when the village began to computerize its accounting in the late 1980s the beginning balances entered were not correct. He said that problem has now been resolved.

Wingfield said he also audited the court and police department to check the process to ensure the money from citations is deposited correctly. They audited the close-out of the senior citizen center building fund too, he said.

The trustees and Weibrecht had no questions for Wingfield following his presentation.

Police chief Will Hoggard asked the trustees to change the village ordinance on driving while under the influence to make the maximum blood alcohol level for a person to be .08 instead of .1. He said this will help get the message out that they don't tolerate DWI in Ruidoso Downs.

Village attorney Bob Beauvais said several other communities have made this change or are considering it. He said there is a good possibility comprehensive legislation concerning the matter will be passed in the coming session. This would essentially anticipate what the legislature will likely do statewide, he said.

The board also approved ordinances to amend the water and sewer rates to establish one new minimum rate per meter. As of January 1 the minimum rate for 4,000 gallons of water was $14.50 per month. The minimum sewer rate is now $8.

Trustee Hayhurst was also appointed as liaison to the fire department.

In other business, Beauvais reminded the group that last year during the legislative session a collective bargaining agreement was passed which applies to all local governments. One option it gave to the governments was to allow them to form a local Labor Relations Board. A state board has already been formed to deal with complaints and appeals on the state level.

A local board should be formed by April 1 to deal with any complaints or appeals locally. Beauvais said most municipalities and counties are looking at doing it. He said he developed an ordinance for Ruidoso Downs based on a model from the state municipal league and suggested it be put on the agenda for the next board meeting to discuss before the April 1 date.

The group then moved into executive session to discuss pending litigation, but no action was taken.

Cuts should start at the top levels

When government officials set out to control costs by cutting employees and offices, they're often tempted to protect the top layers and decrease the number of employees who do the real work.

We all applaud the United States Department of Agriculture for making moves to cut costs and straighten out an agency that is considered to be one of the worst in the nation for waste. But in its zeal to impress the public with big cuts and changes, the department is protecting the top layers and cutting out the staff in the field offices who maintain contact with the people in the agricultural industry.

Closing field offices, including the ones in Capitan and Carrizozo, is shortsighted. Offices that work as close liaisons with the people who need their help are most important in the whole scheme of things at USDA. Field personnel are the ones who can identify specific needs and be sure their agency is fulfilling its purposes.

On the other hand, management offices and the people who staff them are often drawn into a morass of paperwork that builds level after level of red tape between the leaders, the workers and the people in the agriculture industry.

If the plan to close local offices progresses, the people of Lincoln County will lose the help and support we've come to rely on from the Conservation District. This county will lose eight jobs if the two soil offices and the Farmers Home Administration office in Ruidoso all are closed. Such losses probably are parallel to plans for other such areas, and in all cases the closures are at the wrong level.

Instead, the feds should consolidate regional management-oriented offices and keep the field offices operating close to the people they serve. For instance, in New Mexico, just one operations office would be needed, and that could be maintained in Albuquerque to lead field offices throughout the state.

The people of Lincoln County should send the Secretary of Agriculture a clear message, that the ag department's place is close to the soil, water and people, not in an ivory tower.

SantaCops coordinator looks back on 1992

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the Ruidoso Police Department, we would like to extend our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to each and every individual who contributed time, money or talent toward making the 1992 SantaCops program successful.

In this, the fifth year of SantaCops, clothes, toys and food baskets were distributed to a total of 266 families in Ruidoso and Lincoln County. SantaCops list from these families includes a total of 447 children.

Ruidoso Wal-Mart Associates raised $10,000 through the sale of raffle tickets and proceeds of this raffle were used to purchase new clothing items for the kids on SantaCops list.

SantaCops cash donations totaled $9,054.46. Of these funds, $5,216.11 was used to purchase turkeys, hams and food items needed. Additionally, $2,334.78 was used to purchase necessary toys.

Canned goods and staple food items not used by SantaCops were donated to the Episcopal Church for use in the Monday night dinners that they prepare for those in need. Remaining turkeys were stored by the Church of Christ to be accessible to the Food Bank, the Episcopal Church or to be distributed as necessary to those in need.

Countless items of good used clothing and good used coats were distributed to grateful recipients. Used clothing items and toys not used by SantaCops were distributed to First Baptist Church and the Humane Society.

New toys received after SantaCops deliveries are being kept at the Ruidoso Police Department to be used throughout the year as an aid to officers dealing with children in child abuse and other traumatic situations.

Cash funds remaining will be kept on deposit to be used either as emergency food and clothing needs arise throughout the year, or if not needed for that purpose, there will be seed money to begin making purchases for SantaCops 1993.

It is assumed... that individuals donate to SantaCops out of a sincere desire to lend a hand to someone less fortunate than themselves. Invariably, in listing people organizations or businesses responsible for making SantaCops a success, I either inadvertently miss recognizing someone for their contribution; or I catch the dickens from individuals that I do recognize, when all they wanted was to help someone else; never giving a thought to a tax write-off or receiving accolades publicly for an intended secret good deed.

For the above reason, my 'thank you' is made in general to all who helped in any manner — you all know who you are. To those who are too busy — or perhaps too jaded to take a few moments to think of someone other than yourselves, perhaps this coming New Year would be a good opportunity to make a resolution to get priorities in life on the right track and joining with SantaCops in the true spirit of Christmas.

In closing, a note to the small minority of people who may have received SantaCops help when it was not needed, or perhaps you just felt 'entitled to it,' we at SantaCops are discovering who you are. SantaCops operates in good faith to assist people when requested, and if we have made a mistake on the side of kindness, at least we can all sleep at night. To the 'takers' in this world, I will personally be visiting you all, to discuss the matter of your conscience — or lack thereof — in regard to the matter of fraudulently receiving when you should know that it is more blessed to give than to receive!

Despite this small minority noted, there were still many more genuine tears of joy and gratitude shed by those truly in need. Numerous people who received SantaCops help in the past were at the workshop this year alongside other volunteers giving of themselves in return for what they had been given. Four families on this year's SantaCops list to receive assistance were at the workshop helping because they did not want to receive 'something for nothing,' some families that SantaCops helped in the past called to tell me they were doing better this year, and asked that we please help someone else instead of them.

These individuals restore my faith in humanity and from this evidence that SantaCops has come full circle, Ruidoso and Lincoln county should be proud of the fact that once again, they have made the magic of Christmas occur.

Cynthia L. "Lou" Wardwell,
SantaCops Coordinator
R.S. Swenor,
Ruidoso Police Chief

Thanks to road crews

TO THE EDITOR:

We would like to thank a group of people that put in many hard hours, both early and late, and do a fine job that all of us depend on. I'm talking about the Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs street departments, the Lincoln County Road Department and the New Mexico State Highway Department.

Without their efforts on keeping the roads and streets open by removing snow during and after snowstorms, everything, including our school buses, would stay parked until the snow melted, whenever that may be.

When a storm does come in I'm out at 5 a.m., checking the bus routes and the road crews will already be hard at work blading and salting. This means they must have started about 4 a.m. or so when almost everyone else is still warm in bed. I've never heard compliment them on a job well done, but I have heard complaints about some little spot they have missed but nothing about miles and miles of road that was cleared of snow.

So here it goes fellows: Thank You, Thank You, Thank You!

Ervin-Henderson are married in a formal ceremony, October 10

Melissa Henderson and Larry Ervin were married Saturday, October 10, at the First Christian Church in Ruidoso.

Dr. James Giles, uncle of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A reception followed at Cree Meadows Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of William and Kenda Henderson of Ruidoso.

The groom is the son of Joe Ervin of Portales and Judy Davis of Roswell.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk and beaded French Alencon lace. The beaded lace bodice featured a basque waistline. Renaissance sleeves were embellished with beaded French Alencon lace to the point.

A full A-line skirt flowed into 12-inch scalloped beaded Alencon lace and was bustled into a ballgown skirt for the reception. Her headpiece, designed and made by her mother was a beaded lace crown. A small pouf held two veils of sparkling illusion. One swept 120 inches which was sprinkled with pearls and rhinestones.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a blue lace garter made by her mother, adorned with a heart engraved with "Melissa and Larry 10-10-92."

For something old, Melissa wore her great-grandmother's gold wedding band. Something new was her gown, and for something borrowed she wore pearl and diamond earrings belonging to her aunt, Elizabeth Quick.

For luck, she carried a penny minted in the year of her birth.

The church was decorated with masses of pale pink roses in crystal vases draped in tulle. Pew candles lined the aisles of the church. The bride carried a bouquet of Porcelina roses and the wedding party carried bouquets of pale pink roses. ring bearer was Weston Ervin.

Musical selections, "There Is Love," "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do" and "Only God Could Love You More," were presented by Tresa Willingham.

The couple spent their honeymoon in California.

The bride is attending ENMU in Portales and will graduate in May.

Ervin is general manager of Cattle Baron Restaurant in Las Cruces. The couple will be relocating in the spring.

Museum of the Horse presents Chautauqua

The Museum of the Horse continues its membership programs on January 23 as VanAnn Moore portrays Susan Shelby Magoffin.

The performance begins at 7 p.m. at the Museum of the Horse, and is free to the public.

Susan Shelby Magoffin was only 18 years old when she set out on the greatest adventure of her young life. Her husband, Samuel Magoffin, was a veteran Santa Fe trail trader. Together, Samuel and Susan traveled from Independence, Missouri, to Chihuahua, Mexico, on one of the most memorable frontier journeys ever made by an American woman.

This journey was an extended "honeymoon safari" since Susan was only a bride of eight months when they departed in June of 1846.

The rugged journey took the Magoffin wagon train across the great plains of Kansas and Colorado, down through the mountains of New Mexico to the capitol city of Santa Fe. After a short stay of six weeks, the Magoffins continued their trip along the Rio Grande river to El Paso del Norte, and then south to Chihuahua where they remained for several months.

Susan Magoffin rejoined her family in Kentucky 15 months later, and was hailed as the first white woman to ever traverse the Santa Fe trail.

Susan Magoffin kept an excellent journal of her travels during this critical time in her nation's history. 1846-1847 was one of the busiest years of trade from the Eastern United States to the West. These were also the years of the Mexican-American War.

Susan Magoffin wrote about the people and events that changed the course of history.

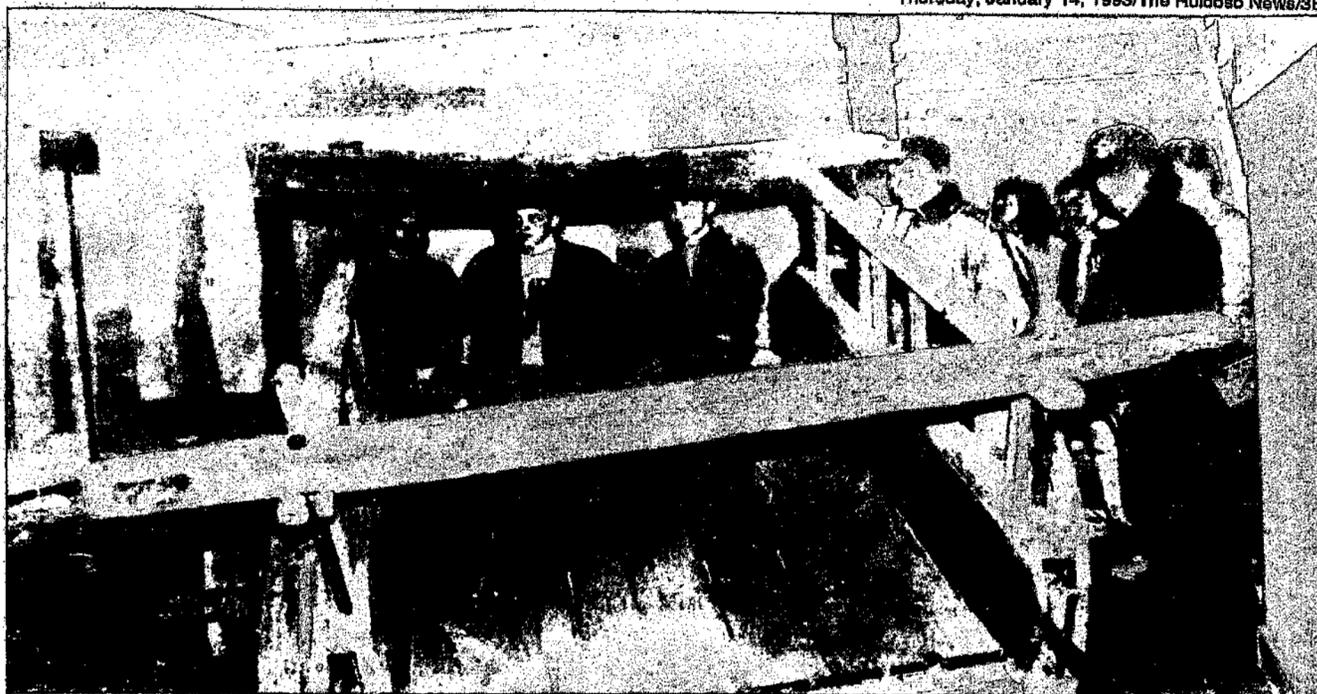

The Magoffins traveled under the protection of the advancing Army of the West which would eventually conquer the Mexican provinces of New Mexico all the way to California.

VanAnn Moore, a singer and actress who lives in Belen, has 35 major roles in plays, musicals and operas to her credit. As part of the New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities Chautauqua program, she presents six one-woman historical characters in concert-dramas.

Moore graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree Cum Laude from the University of Colorado and holds a Masters in Art degree with honors from the University of Denver. She has performed throughout the United States, Europe, Japan, China, Australia and New Zealand.

Moore was the only solo performer selected to perform from the southwest at the first National Chautauqua in the United States and Canada.

The Museum of the Horse is proud to present Susan Shelby Magoffin's personable and exciting story about the West from a woman's perspective and personal experience. For more information, call 378-4142.

Finding the facts

Students in the Ruidoso High School DECA program tour the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs Friday to learn more before beginning a project to promote memberships in the museum. Several of the students (top) examine a Mexican ox cart and (lower, left) marketing director Laura Doth explains they are still trying to date the vehicle. (Lower, right) Doth shows the group a vehicle that could be used by a nanny to take the children of the family out. DECA students will now develop a telemarketing program to let the community know about the opportunities available through the museum. Doth said she is pleased to have these students get involved with the Museum.

Tim Palmer named to edit Baptist magazine

Tim Palmer, a former editor of The Ruidoso News, has been named managing editor of the Missouri Baptist news journal Word and Way.

Palmer and his wife, Cathy, lived in Ruidoso for four years where he edited The News and she taught at Ruidoso Middle School.

He worked for five years as editor of the Artesia Daily Press in Artesia, a five-day-a-week paper, and worked as a reporter for the El Paso Times in El Paso, Texas.

The Palmers have a son, Geoffrey, 7.

Since leaving Ruidoso, Cathy Palmer has had a number of her novels published.

Historical Society publishes brochure

The Lincoln County Historical Society, in collaboration with the Lincoln County Heritage Trust, recently released its first publication, a booklet titled "Memoirs of a County Doctor" by James Laws, M.D.

Dr. Laws operated a tuberculosis sanatorium in Lincoln from 1904 until 1918, and also carried on a thriving private practice which covered all of Lincoln County.

The memoirs came to light through a visit to Lincoln by the doctor's son, Otis Laws, of Malibu, California.

Ann Buffington, compiled and edited the material into the 52-page booklet.

"Practicing medicine in a remote backwater like Lincoln County at the turn of the century was full of trials and tribulations," said Buffington.

"Dr. Laws was a great storyteller with a vivid sense of detail and a marvelous sense of humor. His memoirs are packed with colorful local characters and anecdotes that illuminate a period in our local history which has been mostly ignored, and they offer a rare glimpse into everyday life in a long-gone and peculiarly Southwestern institution, the TB sanatorium."

Publication is a major venture for the society, according to Alice Blakestad, chairman of the society's publications committee.

"Publishing works of local history is an important goal for any historical society, but is often beyond the reach of small societies such as ours," said Blakestad.

"Private grants have made it possible to break into this field, and we are excited about it. We plan a series of studies on our local history and hope to come out with an annual publication."

Other members of the publications committee are Bob Blakestad, Nora Henn, Walter Henn, Bob Hart and Buffington.

Current officers of the society are Bob Boebinger of San Patricio, president; Bill Thorp of Nogal, vice president; Ann Buffington of Lincoln, secretary, and Bill McCutcheon of Ruidoso, treasurer.

The booklet may be ordered by mail from the society. Cost is $4.50 per copy plus $1.50 shipping and handling charge. Send check or money order to: Lincoln County Historical Society Publications; P.O. Box 91; Lincoln NM 88338.

2. Thank You

I wish to express deep felt thanks on my behalf and the board of Ruidoso Care Inc. (Ruidoso Meal on Wheels). We receive no federal or state funds so we exist only on the basis of donations and the work of our volunteers. A special thanks at this time of year to the many people who have made it possible to feed 40-50 seniors, many of which are homebound, three times a week. Thank you so much to all the volunteers who make this possible and all the clubs and individuals who have made donations to ensure survival of this program.

Sincerely,
Verna Adams, RN
President of the Board of Directors

UPPER HONDO SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT OPEN MEETINGS RESOLUTION

RESOLUTION #1: 1993

WHEREAS, Section 10-15-1 (B) of the Open Meetings Act (Sections 10-15-1 through 10-15-4 NMSA 1978) states that, except as may be otherwise provided in the Constitution of the provisions of the Open Meetings Act, all meetings of a quorum of members of any board, commission or other policy making body of any state agency held for the purpose of formulating public policy, discussing public business or for the purpose of taking any action within the authority of such board, commission or other policy making body, are declared to be public meetings open to the public at all times; and

WHEREAS, any meetings subject to the Open Meetings Act at which the discussion or adoption of any proposed resolution, rule regulation or formal action occurs shall be held only after reasonable notice to the public, and

WHEREAS, Section 10-15-1 (C) of the Open Meetings Act requires Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District to determine annually what constitutes reasonable notice of its public meetings;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED BY the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District on this 7th day of January, 1993, that:

1. Regular meetings of the Upper Hondo SWCD shall ordinarily be held each month at 4:00 p.m. on the first Thursday at the Soil Conservation Service Office, Highway 380 West, Capitan, New Mexico. A proposed agenda will be available from Sue Stearns, District Clerk, at the above address. Notice of regular meetings will be given seven days before the meeting to parties who request it in writing.

Notice of regular meetings will be released at least four days before each regular meeting to the

Lincoln County News and Ruidoso News,

2. Special meetings of the Upper Hondo SWCD may be called by the Chairman or a majority of the members upon three days notice. Parties who have requested notice of meetings in writing will be notified by telephone. Notice of special meetings will be posted at the Capitan SCS office. The local broadcast will be notified by telephone.

3. Emergency meetings of the Upper Hondo SWCD are meetings called under circumstances which demand immediate action by the Board of Supervisors. Although the Board of Supervisors would avoid emergency meetings whenever possible, such circumstances may occasionally arise, and may be called by the chairman or a majority of the members upon four hours notice. Parties who have requested a notice of meetings in writing will be notified by telephone. Notice of emergency meetings will be posted at the Capitan SCS office.

4. Pursuant to section 10-15-1 (E) NMSA 1978, the Upper Hondo SWCD may close a meeting to the public if the subject matter of such discussion or action is included in Subsection E of the Open Meetings Act, Section 10-15-1 NMSA 1978.

If any Board of Supervisors is closed pursuant to Section 10-15-1(E) NMSA, such closure:

(1) if made in an open meeting, shall be approved by a majority vote of a quorum of the Board of Supervisors and authority for the closure shall be stated in the motion called for the vote on a closed meeting. The vote on a closed meeting shall be taken in an open meeting and the vote of each individual member is to be recorded in the minutes. Only those subjects announced or voted upon prior to closure by the Board of Supervisors may be discussed in a closed meeting; and

(2) if called for when the Board of Supervisors is not in an open meeting, the closed meeting shall not be held until public notice, appropriate under the circumstances, stating the specific provision of law authorizing the closed meeting is given to the members and to the general public.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE OF REAL PROPERTY

On January 26, 1992, at 11:30, at the front entrance of the Municipal Building, Village of Ruidoso, County of Lincoln, New Mexico, the undersigned Special Master will sell all the right, title and interest of the above-named Defendants in and to the property described below, to the highest bidder for cash.

The property is described as:

Tract A of the Replat of the Blaney Land Co. Tract, filed February 7, 1990, in Cabinet E, Slide No. 165, Together with all improvements situate thereon; Subject to easements, reservations and restrictions of record.

This sale is being made to satisfy a judgment and decree of foreclosure entered in the above captioned action on December 16, 1992.

The plaintiff's judgment, including interest and costs is $178,185.53 and bears interest at the rate of 10.125% per annum ($49.79 per diem) from December 16, 1992. The amount of interest due as of the above date of sale will be $2,041.39.

The Plaintiff has the right to bid at the sale and to submit its bid orally or in writing. The Plaintiff has the right to apply any or all of their Judgment to the purchase price in lieu of cash and after satisfaction of prior Judgments. The sale may be postponed and rescheduled at the discretion of the Special Master.
