NO. 91 IN OUR 47TH YEAR 50 CENTS

Voters to decide on state-wide lottery

by FRANKIE JARRELL
Ruidoso News Editor

With the clock set to run out at noon Saturday, state lawmakers are pushing to finish the work of this 60-day session.

State Representative H. John Underwood (D-Ruidoso) is pleased with several of the measures passed during this session, but he's especially proud of the ethics bill that was passed unanimously by both the Senate and the House.

Underwood headed the Ethics Task Force that came up with that bill, and he'll be right in the forefront of a "signing party" at 3:30 p.m. today in Governor Bruce King's office.

"This is a first," said Underwood. He said the ethics bill includes accountability provisions, lots of reporting requirements and reporting regulations for lobbyists.

The Legislature bypassed the governor's office on the issue of a state-wide lottery and video gaming. Gambling of various sorts just keeps coming back before the Legislature, and Governor King has said he won't sign any gambling bill into law.

This year, apparently weary of tossing the issue back and forth just to have it end in the governor's waste basket, lawmakers took action to place the question before state voters.

"People are so tired of seeing the issue coming up before them; they want the people to vote. Everybody's kind of tired of it," said Underwood.

Underwood said the plan calls for the lottery and video gaming question to be on the next special or general election ballot.

"We believe there will be enough issues to have a special election in November of 1993 for people to vote up or vote down on the lottery," said Underwood.

Softball sells Ruidoso through big tourneys

by KRISTIE SAATMANN
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Making a recreational program successful in terms of dollars and cents can be tough in a small village, but looking at the impact it makes on other aspects of the economy may be a more accurate measurement of whether it should continue.

The village softball program has lost about $18,500 for the past three fiscal years since 1989, but supporters of the program say it provides more benefits than can be realized in revenues for the village government.

They say it provides a needed recreation for adults and also brings thousands of dollars into the community from the purchase of lodging, food, gas and entertainment. Softball also gives Ruidoso one more selling point to attract a variety of visitors back for another look.

A league of our own

At the end of March, league teams will be forming in the county to begin play at the end of April through August. This past season 11 teams with 184 men played in the men's league, while about 90 women made up the six teams for the women's league.

In September, a co-ed league was formed, which had four teams.

The league usually acquires its players through newspaper and radio announcements and word of mouth, but this year Carrie Wise, village parks and recreation department coordinator, sent out flyers to area businesses to encourage them to put a team together. Each league could use a couple more teams to make it even more competitive, she said.

The leagues here draw teams from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Carrizozo, Capitan, Mescalero and as far as Corona.

The cost of the league is $385 per team of 15 to 20 players and teams are also required to have insurance. The cost of the insurance is $200 but it covers anything related to softball, including travel.

Patsy Page, who was hired as the softball technician for last season, said Ruidoso's fee may be $75 to $100 more than the larger villages, but these places have more teams to split costs among. The teams here realize the time and maintenance that goes into the program before they can play, she said.

She said if there were any problems or questions at the games she tried to take care of them. The leagues also have a board of directors, made up of players, to settle any complaints or to make policy decisions.

Page also maintained and chalked the infield for league and tournament games.

Women's teams played on Monday and the men hit the fields on Tuesday and Thursday. She scheduled these league games, making sure teams from Corona could play double-headers so they wouldn't have to drive down twice a week.

Jim McGarvey, men's area director for the United States Slo-pitch Softball Association (U.S.S.A.) and a softball player, said last year six or eight teams from the league went on to state competition, which was more than some of the larger

Line up for state funds

Lincoln County is looking for funds in Santa Fe this session, but some of the requests may get whittled down or cut before the session ends at noon Saturday.

State Representative H. John Underwood said the ones that look the best for funding are Carrizozo sidewalks, Corona streets, a senior citizens center in Corona, some funds for city hall in Ruidoso Downs, and some funds for the Ruidoso MainStreet program, said Underwood.

He's also optimistic that he'll bring home some funds for the Lincoln County Fairgrounds.

"Those are the projects that I've had people from taxation and revenues come and talk to me about, so those are the ones I think are going to get funded," said Underwood.

Librarian resigns here

Ruidoso Public Library director Mary Lou Gooch has resigned after 25 years of service.

Gooch, who joined the village staff in July 1968, submitted a letter of resignation to the Ruidoso Village Council which was received during a special called meeting Wednesday.

During that meeting, the council passed Resolution 93-8 supporting the MainStreet project and a commitment to the funding already in place.

The new resolution was a request by the State of New Mexico, according to Village Councilor Jerry Shaw. She said once the resolution is received in Santa Fe the Joint Powers Agreement can be signed by state officials and funding will be secured. She said the village can then advertise to bid.

Shaw said a discussion followed on the special services contract for the construction phase.

She said the council was given a memo by deputy manager Alan Briley regarding a special services management contract.

Septic owners stand by for fee

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The concept of charging residents for a service that does not exist appealed to the mayor and village council recently, and, if left unchallenged, could open doors to all kinds of "pay, but don't play" possibilities.

During the last council meeting, Molzen-Corbin and Associates were given the nod by the Ruidoso Village Council to pursue Resolution 93-7, authorizing the pursuit of funding from the state revolving loan program for certain improvements to the regional wastewater treatment plant and collection lines in the village of Ruidoso.

Ruidoso Downs, the village's joint powers partner, also voted on a similar resolution.

A "Whereas" of that document reads, "The village will evaluate and initiate user rate increases as needed to support the loan payments."

One of the concepts submitted by the Albuquerque firm apparently set the council drooling: charge all septic tank owners a $5 per month impact fee.

Residents having a sewer line in front of their house already pay a $6 availability fee. They would be assessed another $5 per month for a total of $11.

"I would think people would want that fee to motivate the people to hook on," Alonso said.

Areas on septic that would require lift stations to hook up to sewer lines would be hit hard financially.

Residents living in the woods where no city sewer line is available would have to pay $5 per month for a service that doesn't exist.

Some residents feel this type of fee could lead to being charged for a variety of services not available.

There was little discussion by Mayor Victor Alonso and the council regarding the fairness or the legality of the act.

Councilors did express a concern that it may provide too much incentive for residents to join an existing line and thereby drive down the amount of new money coming in to pay for the rehabilitation work.

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst said his board was told of the different fee options by Molzen-Corbin. The mayor said options are being considered, but he said his village would probably stay clear of any additional assessment on septic tanks.

The Downs raised sewer rates $2 for the first year, starting in January of 1993, and the rates will jump $1 each year for the next three years. Those charges are to defray normal operating costs.

The current commodity rate for the Downs is 50 cents per thousand gallons. Officials are considering raising those rates to $1 to offset future repairs in their joint powers agreement with Ruidoso.

Downs village clerk Leann Weibrecht said some of the normal operating costs may have to be pulled into the repair line item. She said it was too early to determine all the options.

The Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs joint powers agreement costs are currently split at 91 percent Ruidoso, 9-percent Ruidoso Downs.

Molzen-Corbin figured that the split should be 88.8 to 11.2. Downs officials are saying an agreement is an agreement.

Molzen-Corbin's project engineer Julie Zamora said based on 6,000 users, an across the board increase would be $4.75.

To reduce that figure, Zamora said commodity charges could be increased and septic tank charges could be implemented.

"Your cost to the septic tank dumper doesn't come close to what it costs the plant to do that," she said. She asked the council to consider charging a monthly fee to septic tank users.

Councilor J.D. James was concerned about double charging residents with a $5 impact fee and another charge for processing the effluent. He said if he pays $5 per month, the dumping fee charged to the company that cleans his tank should be waived.

Village manager Ron Wicker said that idea was in the original discussion. He said the customer would still have to pay the hauling fees. He said he didn't know how much credit the hauler would give the customer.

"The dumping fee is so minimal, it doesn't even factor in," Zamora said. "What you have to pay is $100 or whatever to pump your tank out, once every two years is typical, on top of a monthly charge."

Alonso clarified that everyone on septic would have to pay.

"Some people right now that are within 100 feet of sewer are paying an access fee," said Alonso. "What you're saying is everybody now, within the village, will be paying a septic tank fee."

Zamora agreed.

Alonso asked how much money would be generated.

When she said over 40 percent of the revenues, it drew whistles from the council.

In a phone call Monday, Zamora was asked for a history of this type of assessment.

Zamora could not provide an example of where this type of impact fee has been implemented. In fact, she said there may not be an example. She said she would talk to her boss and get back to The News. She communities such as Alamogordo sent.

Ruidoso also has a huge league compared to other small towns in the state, he said.

Teams can earn a position in the state meet by playing in two sanctioned tournaments and placing in the top three at one of those. The teams can also win a berth through their final standings in the league.

The league teams are made up of players from 18 years old and up, and they come from all types of professions. McGarvey said they are business owners, police officers, firefighters, doctors and lawyers as well as school teachers.

"Softball provides the only recreation for adults here," he said. McGarvey said Ruidoso has had slo-pitch softball since about 1981 and had fast-pitch before that. He and Page agree if Ruidoso didn't have leagues many of the teams would go out of town to play.

"If it came down to no leagues, the teams would go somewhere else to play. That wouldn't be good for Ruidoso because the teams would be paying an entry fee to support Roswell or Alamogordo," Page said.

Tournament time

Many of the league teams also participate in the tournaments here in Ruidoso. Last year Ruidoso was to host four men's tournaments and five women's tournaments but two were rained out. Nine teams also participated in a new co-ed tourney last fall.

One of the tournaments drew 27 teams, while another brought in 23, Page said. She received the entries and any calls about the tournament from teams wanting to attend. She also set up the brackets for the tourneys.

About 50 different teams came to compete in tournaments this past season with about 13 players per team, but many also brought their families with them. A majority of them rent rooms at least one night and have to purchase gas and food. Each player usually brings a spouse, family members or friends.

Page said she called the motels to get rates for the teams to stay during the tournament. She also sent out packets with information from the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce on dining, lodging and recreation in case players had extra time between games.

"Some of the people camped out but they still went to the grocery store for food," she said.

Teams come from Alpine, Lubbock, Odessa, Midland and El Paso in Texas and from as far as Las Cruces in the state to compete in Ruidoso tourneys.

McGarvey has submitted six tournaments to the state director for Ruidoso this season, but he has not received a response yet to see if they can have them. He said one tournament each for men and women is scheduled for May, June and July.

Most of the tournaments this past season were either Class E, which is for those teams that are more recreational, and Class D, which is more competitive. Highly competitive teams from Class C, B and A also play in tournaments and the state meet.

"Some of the league teams here are recreational and others take it a step further to go out and compete," McGarvey said.

One of Ruidoso's regular tournaments, Cool Pines, earned national recognition last season in a softball magazine with a story and pictures.

"People love to come up here because it is so nice and cool compared to other places in the summer," McGarvey said.

"The fields here are in excellent condition. We play all over the place and outside of Albuquerque ours are the best," he said.

Page said the infield could use a little filler and if possible they should get a covering of some kind for the infield to preserve it. They did have to cancel a few games because rain made the infield too messy and a cover would have avoided this, she said.

"Ruidoso is great"

Page and Wise worked together to do the publicity for the tournaments. They get the word out on its tournaments through flyers, public service announcements in newspapers and on radio stations, as well as a U.S.S.S.A. directory of tournaments that is sent to directors in other communities.

Wise said the posters are created in-house to reduce the cost. They do have the expense of postage and long distance telephone calls from people who want to find out more about a tournament.

Page said much of the information on the tournaments gets out by word of mouth from the players who come here to play. She said she would give them the information and they would go back and tell other teams they know.

"I always hear comments from the players that Ruidoso is great and they want to know when the next tournament is," she said.

The teams usually come up on a Friday to play Saturday morning, and many stay Saturday night for Sunday games. Although there are concession stands at the fields, they don't eat all of their meals there. McGarvey said on any tournament day restaurants will be full of people in softball uniforms.

"Indirectly the town makes money on this program," he said.

McGarvey, along with Jana Townsend, the women's area director for U.S.S.S.A., check to make sure the teams' rosters are legal and that they have insurance for the tourney. Teams must also have paid a $25 sanctioning fee to play in a U.S.S.S.A. tournament.

The tournaments are governed by that association's rules, while the leagues can follow whatever rules they want, he said. These tourneys also have an umpire's group to work them with Richard Silva as umpire-in-chief. McGarvey said Silva does a great job, which is also good for the program.

The village pays for umpires for the sanctioned tournaments, while the leagues must pay for the umpires for their games. Last year they had 12 umpires for the season.

Prizes for tournaments such as trophies, bat bags and T-shirts are included in the village budget.

Page said the village parks and recreation department helps maintain the area by mowing the outfield and the area beyond the fields. They would also take care of any problems with the water and plumbing. Page kept the restrooms and the whole area clean.

The village is in the process of advertising for a person to serve as the softball technician for the coming season. They have not set a timeline for someone to be hired for the position but it will be in time for the person to prepare for the summer season.

Dollars and cents

According to Ruidoso village manager Ron Wicker the revenues for the program in the 1989-1990 fiscal year were $26,931, while for 1990-1991 it was $17,594. For 1991-1992 revenues totaled $18,131.

Revenues include the concessions sold, fees charged for the leagues and fees for any tournaments they have.

Wicker said the expenses for the program for 1989-1990 were $43,048. In 1990-1991 expenses were $37,608 and in the last fiscal year they were $37,584.

The top expense for the program is salaries which are about $10,000. Utilities are also about that much and supplies such as bases, bats and softballs are $7,650. Concession expenses are about $4,400 and maintenance is $2,400.

The net loss for the softball program for 1989-1990 was $16,117. In 1990-1991 the loss was $20,014 and in 1991-1992 it was $19,453.

Wicker said the village is trying to approach all programs to see if they can pay for themselves.

"They may not all be able to do that but that is what we are striving for. Softball does bring in a lot of people and indirectly we may benefit," he said.

Wise said last year members of the league discussed whether it wanted to take over the program. The big concern for them was the cost of insurance and utilities and they didn't go any further with it, she said.

McGarvey agreed that the expenses would be too much for the league to handle. He said the tournaments could be more successful if they were run by an individual who could spend more time on them.

Other communities also have an advantage in that they can play year-round while Ruidoso is limited to just three months.

"I guess it's a pet peeve for the village that the program doesn't make money, but it shouldn't have to. It's a city recreation program," he said.

Eagle Creek Sports Complex

All the softball games are played at the Eagle Creek Sports Complex, which was completed in 1986 with funds from a cigarette tax and a grant from Lands, Water and Conservation and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. The plans began for a complex in 1984 and the village parks department had original wanted to develop it at White Mountain Elementary.

The village decided to move it to its current location on Ski Run Road when the Eagle Creek Intercommunity Water Supply Association agreed to a long-term lease for the 22-acre site. All of the work to create the complex was done with village equipment and manpower.

The village leagues play on two of these fields and a senior league of younger boys compete on the third field that was developed.

Wise said she is amazed at the number of people that one field for younger players draws out as spectators. The bleachers around all the fields are filled almost every night, especially when a couple good teams are playing, McGarvey said. Kids are always playing on the playground equipment and many people take advantage of the concession stands, she said.

About 60 to 70 little league football games are also played there and the newly formed high school soccer team practiced on the fields last fall.

The cigarette tax is still generating funds, and Wicker said they have budgeted about $13,000 from it for the coming fiscal year for the parks and recreation program.

It's a tradition

Page said she remembers playing in a softball league on a single field in Ruidoso Downs in the early 1980s, and some of the same teams are still playing today. Other teams are a combination of teams from those days.

"It's really a tradition. It's a past-time people enjoy. Some are out for the exercise and others just love softball," she said.

"Last year we had a good turnout. If we can keep it up and keep more teams coming it could turn into a profitable program. If nothing else it keeps people coming to Ruidoso and spending money. Softball is big in a lot of places, why not here?" she said.

didn't.

Zamora told the council during their regular session that people on septic tanks averaged a clean out every two years.

Other sanitation engineers contacted say the average time range to clean a tank would be closer from 10 to 15 years if the tanks were installed correctly.

The wide disparity of those figures would give reason to question if Molzen-Corbin had other figures that differed dramatically between professionals in their $9-million dollar initial projection.

Officials of the New Mexico Public Service Commission (PSC) said that they have no jurisdiction over government villages. They regulate private developers. However, PSC officials said they knew of no developers that have attempted to charge residents for a service they couldn't deliver.

The News called several PSCs from neighboring and other states. They were very cooperative in giving information, without charge, to The News.

Professional engineer Bob Crouch, formerly of Carlsbad, New Mexico, and now supervisor of water-wastewater for the PSC of Florida said he knew of no case where a monthly impact fee would be charged for a septic tank.

"A permit fee to install a septic tank, is usually granted by the county or by the health department," Crouch said. "If sewer service is available, county option or local ordinance can force people to hook to the sewer system and get away from septic tanks, but if there is no line available, there shouldn't be a fee."

"It would behoove the city to go ahead and put those lines in. But if they're not providing any service at all, that sure seems like a back door approach to collect a tax," he said. "I have never heard of that, and I don't think it's very fair, paying for no service."

"From what I understand, many of the people of Ruidoso are not full-time residents anyhow," he said. "I'm on a septic tank that has never been cleaned out in 15 years. If it is operating properly with microbes eating those materials, the effluent running through the lateral field properly, you could go 15 years is not unusual at all."

"Somebody is trying to scare you when they say two years. If that's true, I'm going to get into the septic tank service business and come to Ruidoso," Crouch said.

Zamora further justified impact charges because of the high cost to the village to treat such condensed sewage.

"Septic tank pumpage is extremely concentrated," said Crouch. "Most of our sewer treatment plants, unless they're large, will charge a good sized fee because it can destabilize the sewer treatment process. But if that septic tank is built properly, it doesn't have to be drained very often."

Crouch said there were standard rules for septic tanks anywhere whether they were in a mountain area or a plains.

He said anywhere you put in a lateral field, it has to percolate correctly.

He said the local health department should have the approved rules.

Mike Bamer general manager of Anderson Mill Municipal Utility District, outside of Austin, Texas, said that in his state an entity that collects impact fees cannot indiscriminately spend the money.

He said a prior plan of providing services had to be developed and approved before any money could be collected. He said the money could only be used for the designation of that plan and no other purpose.

"If it's passed it throws it back to the Legislature to draw up rules and regulations," said Underwood.

Underwood said the video gaming could still be restricted to resort towns or to towns whose residents want it.

As far as video gaming on Indian reservations, Underwood said, "anything that we enable ourselves to do, then we're enabling the native Americans to do."

Lawmakers have spent a lot of time on bills dealing with the issue of driving under the influence (DUI), and Underwood said the final product is a good one.

"I think it's a wonderful bill," said Underwood. "The penalties have been stiffened and we've got mandatory penalties on all but the first offense with low blood alcohol (under .16)," he added.

Even on the first offense, the charges are aggravated if the blood alcohol level is higher.

"At .16 and above, you're subject to mandatory jail sentence within the first 48 hours, even on a first offense," said Underwood.

Below .16, the judge still has the discretion of imposing a deferred sentence on the first offense, he explained.

"The people still have the opportunity to make one mistake, but if the one mistake they make, over .16 they're going to jail no matter what," said Underwood.

He said on the average DUI arrest, the blood alcohol is .18.

Underwood said the Legislature raised taxes on alcohol to pay for all the new measures, and that increase is on package liquor and drinks served in bars and restaurants. That tax probably will start in July.

"We've provided some $9 million to the courts for automation of every court in state," said Underwood. The entire state will be computerized within 12 months, which will alleviate a continuing problem of judges not being able to find out if DUI offenders are being arrested for a subsequent infraction.

The new law makes DUI a felony on fourth conviction, and provides for treatment.

"We passed a six cent gasoline tax for education," said Underwood.

He expects the conference committee to come back with a plan to raise gasoline tax from 16 cents to 22 cents.

"It hits us all equally," said Underwood. "We earmarked five of six cents for education."

Bamer was told Ruidoso's plan is to rehabilitate the sewer lines.

"(Big laugh) That's what prompted Texas to legislate Senate Bill 336," Bamer said. "We had rapid development and the city saw a revenue source so they levied capital recovery fees, which later was changed to community impact fees. As a result, the money generated was not designated to go anywhere in particular other than to rehabilitate existing water and sewer systems."

"The city wanted to serve this area out here and people with money were waving it in front of them. The city saw a tremendous tax base potential. In this case, people actually paid and were stuck with nothing at all. As a result, Senate Bill 336 was enacted to require a three- to five-year plan be developed to designate where money would go and rehab was definitely not part of it, without a doubt."

"I still believe in open, honest and fair government," Bamer said. "I really want this government to get back to where we're the government and we're here to help you; not we're the government and we're here to get whatever we can from your pockets," he said.

Underwood said he, along with other lawmakers, want to bring the minimum teacher salary up to $22,000.

The other one cent will go into federal highway money.

Underwood said he and Senator Pete Campos (D-District 8) are putting together a package to improve US 54 from Santa Rosa to Las Cruces. He said they hope to make that road a four-lane highway.

Also, he and Senator Campos are asking for funding to rebuild U.S. Highway 70 from Clovis to Las Cruces.

"I'm really excited about 70 and 54; those are two projects I was really hoping to get, and with the help of Pete (Campos), we've been able to break through and get that."

Underwood said he and Campos have been able to accomplish a great deal working together.

Susan Rogalla (left) and Sally Sandora, two of the cast members for Ruidoso Little Theatre's production of "Fast Girls," are pictured in rehearsals for opening night at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday), March 18, at Carrizo Lodge. Shaw said Briley wanted to know who is to be doing the inspection and construction management of the contract for Main Street.

Briley said he received correspondence from Bohannon Huston recommending the village enter a special services agreement with them for an amount not to exceed $112,000.

Briley said this was about an 11 percent cost of the total construction estimates. He said the norm was four to seven percent and that Albuquerque doesn't allow anything over six percent construction management fees from their consultants.

According to Briley, Bohannon Huston said because of the complexity of state and federal highway requirements and paperwork, and the fact that the project will be started, stopped, then restarted, and the fact that Ruidoso is three hours away from Albuquerque, costs were somewhat higher than normal.

Briley presented the village with three options: enter into special services with Bohannon Huston and monitor their hours closely; re-advertise for RFP to see if the village can get a better price from anyone else; or hire a temporary, part time inspector and have other existing staff do the paperwork and overall construction management.

Briley said the third option could save the village 50 percent in management fees.

"Based on other federal projects I've been involved with," Briley said. "It will take an estimated 10 to 15 hours a week for Cleatus (Richards) and I to administer this project correctly and assure excellent quality in both construction and paperwork."

He said this would be time taken away from normal duties.

The council approved the third option. According to Shaw, village manager Ron Wicker said he had a candidate that could do the job.

The council passed a motion to start negotiations with Carrizo Lodge that will bring a water line to the condominiums, according to Shaw.

Carrizo representatives were to return to the next village council meeting outlining the costs of the project.

The project would include annexing property along Carrizo Road. Carrizo Lodge representatives asked for a June finish.

Commish tells trash group to get it together

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Just because they share the county's name with the Solid Waste Authority, doesn't mean county commissioners want to handle its garbage complaints.

So maybe the authority should change its name, Commission Chairman Monroy Montes has suggested.

Montes sent a letter to authority chairman Frank Warth Monday passing along complaints he and Commissioner Wilton Howell have been receiving about the operation.

The authority is a coalition comprised of the county and its municipalities with the goal of handling garbage collection and disposal.

Montes said he decided to write the letter, not as commission chairman, but as an individual member, after finding out that Howell was receiving similar calls about billing, the siting of dumpsters and about dumpsters overflowing with debris.

"A lot of the calls also were from employees and I felt it was not my place to address them since I don't sit on the board," Montes told The Ruidoso News.

"I checked with (county manager) Andy (Wynham) and he said his office also was fielding calls.

"I think the authority board needs to know it has problems, just as any government entity does. I also want county residents to know I am not responsible for those problems.

"This is not a reflection on (authority manager) Gene Green or any board members. I just felt they should know. I hope they don't feel I am attacking them. I was just acting as an individual commissioner."

Howell echoed Montes' position. "We were just funneling information that we felt the board needs to be aware of," he said. "I can't say whether the problems are being addressed or if they are real, only that I am receiving complaints. We want to let the people know who to contact."

In his letter dated March 5, Montes wrote that it was with great hesitancy, but necessity, that the commission voted to give the authority the right to charge for and provide waste collection in the unincorporated areas of the county.

"We expressed that such a charge had never been imposed in the rural areas, nor was it customary for there to be such a charge in a non-urban area. This is why the service provided by the LCSWA must be of high quality," he wrote.

Of the complaints being received by commissioners, they "range from the way the billings are handled to consistently over filled dumpsters. There are other complaints about dumpster locations, handling of white goods and trash around dumpsters. Also there are internal complaints, indicating generally low morale among the employees.

"I am asking that you and your board take action to assure the county of Lincoln that you are a viable entity.

"I would even like to ask that you consider changing the name of your organization. There seems to be too much confusion by the public, evident by the fact that these complaints are being channeled through our offices and causing undue burden on our staff and resources."

Warth said Wednesday he does not consider the complaints relayed by commissioners to be valid.

"As far as internal complaints from employees, I think it's because we've been making them work and follow administrative directions," he said.

In his reply to Montes, which reflected a discussion of the authority board after a closed-to-the-public executive session Monday, Warth wrote that commissioners can be assured the authority is viable.

"In fact, the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority is a leader in the state of New Mexico in providing solid waste services in accordance with the statutory mandates of the Solid Waste Act," Warth stated.

"Furthermore, in partnership with Otero County, our authorities are leaders in the development of a regional landfill. We are enclosing a copy of a joint letter to Governor (Bruce) King on our regional landfill efforts. Because of our leadership and widespread recognition by the Environmental Department, it would be impractical to consider a name change at this time. We suggest that any complaints that are received at the county offices be referred directly to the authority office at 378-4797."

Warth reminded the commissioner that before the authority began collecting garbage in the unincorporated portions of the county, property owners were paying for the services of a commercial collector through their taxes.

"While the county collection was handled by the contractor, we agree that white goods and trash collected around dumpsters (specifically U.S. 380 and U.S. 70). That condition no longer exists. In fact, the writer feels that these two problems have significantly improved since the authority began pickup," Warth wrote. "As far as white goods are concerned, the authority cannot be on site when the appliance hits the ground. However, the pickup driver reports the condition and the appliance is picked up on a scheduled basis. The trash problem is improving with the increased number of dumpsters, however, there are certain people who would rather throw trash on the ground instead of in a dumpster and the authority would welcome suggestions on how to change that behavior."

He noted that within the next two weeks, the authority will put into service a new truck, which should greatly improve county collection.

Warth said complaints about dumpster locations should be directed to the authority office.

"As you realize, everyone cannot have their personal dumpster unless they become a commercial account. However, if the authority office is notified about the objectionable location, they will try to work out a reasonable solution," he wrote.

Complaints from employees should go to the operations manager or the general manager, he said.

"It is a fact that the employees the authority inherited were loosely supervised," Warth wrote. "When the authority took over, we set schedules that assured eight hours of work for eight hours of pay. To further improve our operations in the near future, we will install a time clock at the compactor. Management also reserves the right to schedule the use of and select the equipment to be used for a particular task."

Mid school artists exhibit work for education week

Ruidoso Middle School art students are celebrating National Middle Education Week this week by displaying selected work at several locations.

Student projects can be viewed at Aspen Tree Book Store, Brunell's Department Store, Ruidoso Public Library and the First National Bank.

Also, earlier in the school year the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club entered eighth grade work in their regional Art contest; the Ruidoso winners from this contest are on display at The Museum of the Horse. These pieces will soon be taken to the state competition.

According to art teacher Carolyn Chubb, the students want to thank the above businesses for their willingness to show their work. She said they hope everyone will be able to visit these locations to view their projects.

Wrap up hot water comfort and button down energy savings

An insulation blanket can dress your water heater for energy success, especially if the heater is located in an unheated area of your home. Insulating the hot water pipes leaving the heater and adding a heat trap loop can also save energy.

Another way to save on the cost of heating water is to keep the heater set between 120° to 140°F. As a final money-saving accessory, consider a timer for the heater so that the heater doesn't cycle on when you're not home.

For more information about saving energy, call or visit your local Texas-New Mexico Power Company office and ask for the free booklet, "Energy Management Guide."

County Commission prepares to pay indigent health care costs

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County Commissioners don't want any last minute surprises when the State Legislature finally makes up its mind about how to finance medical care for indigents.

On a recommendation from county manager Andy Wynham and county attorneys Dan Bryant and Alan Morel, commissioners Monday agreed to advertise for a public hearing on a tax to help pay for medical care for the poor.

In explaining the reason for the move, Bryant told The Ruidoso News that the commission is committed not to increase taxes countywide. For that reason, they are considering cutting from a one mill property tax levy dedicated to the support of the Lincoln County Medical Center an amount equal to what would be generated by imposing a one-sixteenth of a cent sales tax. Part of that property tax money currently is being used to pay for medical care of indigents at the hospital.

Bryant said commissioners have differing opinions on which type of tax is the best approach.

"Property taxes only hit property owners and not the entire population, while gross receipt taxes (sales taxes) catch the whole population and spread the burden more broadly," Bryant said. "On the other hand, some argue that sales taxes hit those on fixed income and lower incomes the hardest."

He explained that counties have been under the gun since 1991 when the State Legislature attempted to solve the Medicaid money shortage by thrusting the burden downward.

The Statewide Health Care Act was passed. It said counties should contribute to the state an amount of money equal to what would be raised by a one-sixteenth of a cent sales tax. They could impose the tax or get the money elsewhere. However, miswording left the contribution as voluntary and not many counties coughed up the money, Bryant said.

In 1992, the bill was amended to make the contribution mandatory.

Bryant said Lincoln County commissioners were under the impression that if they put in place an indigent health care tax, it would carry with it a requirement for an administration to run the program and procedures for applications. The county took the position that it already was caring for its indigents through the hospital tax millage levy.

Last week, Wynham was reviewing the act and realized that the tax could be imposed without an administrative staff. A fund could be created and the county could simply write the state a check each year.

As a result, he requested the commission schedule a public hearing for discussion of a possible tax at its meeting April 1. The regular commission meeting April 6 will be canceled.

The move is to prepare for whichever way the Legislature zig-zags in the warring moments of the current session in Santa Fe.

Bryant said Senate Bill 694 has stalled, although initially it appeared to have great support and easy sailing.

"It contains a real complicated formula that would become law and allows for funding a statewide program," Bryant said. "If that passes, the one-sixteenth may not be necessary."

The plan would produce enough money, using sources already committed to paying for the medical needs of indigents as the state's 26 percent of a formula with the federal government providing the other 74 percent toward New Mexico's Medicaid costs.

"But the bill may get stuck and if commissioners hadn't advertise for the possible tax, they could get stuck too and have to pull the money from the general fund," Bryant said. "So this is a safety measure in the eventuality that the bill does not pass."

Approval for the public hearing passed 4-1 with Commissioner Wilton Howell casting the lone negative vote, in part because the issue was not on the original agenda and came up at the last minute.

"I'm not for a tax increase and it's my understanding there are other ways we can finance it," Howell told The News. "I won't support the tax, so I didn't support the public hearing for the tax."

During the session, commissioners Howell and Stirling Spencer apparently overcame their recent disagreement in print.

Howell had talked to The News about upcoming negotiations over a lawsuit challenging the acquisition of private land in the county by the Bureau of Land Management.

Spencer had responded in print and was critical of Howell's remarks.

The two men apparently made their peace Monday and were back on target as members of the negotiating team, scheduled to meet with bureau officials March 25.

Silver Lining

Wintry storm leads the way to springtime

The Blizzard Moves in on the Spring Parade

On the eighth of March the small apricot tree was full of fragrant fruit blooms, and bee music resounded all through the tree and all around the yard. The fragrance of the first fruit blooms of the year was like springtime benediction, filling all the air with spring charm and making your heart rejoice. The scrub jay and the robin lifted their bird voices in melodies of praise to the Queen of Seasons. The light breeze from down the valley carried the incense of new leaves, alfalfa, clover and the fragrant plum and apricot blossoms from down around Picacho.

The blooms here in the Vale are two weeks later than normal. Surely, after such a mild winter, you would think the spring parade is safely under way.

And sure enough, this storybook spring weather kept right on until the twelfth.

The Breath of Winter

With all the Vale the very picture of early spring, and with the first day of spring only eight days away, winter weather came charging in on the twelfth.

The day began with a blast of icy air riding in on a north wind, carrying cold rain, half snow, freezing fog and mist. All the sun was out of sight under heavy low-driving clouds, and the temperature never rose above 26 all day. That night the temperature kept dropping and settled at 12 in the early morning hours.

Through the years you know that a cold snap can move in on mild spring weather; and yet something told you this was unusually the Carolinas — snow in Georgia and Alabama, records of snow and cold broken from Maine to Florida.

And now on the fourteenth, the wind has changed from the north to the west, and the springtime parade takes up where it left off. And all is well in the Mountain World.

Jane Lancaster

At services at Saint Anne's Chapel on March 14 the beloved lady Jane Lancaster was remembered in our prayers. She was called home by Our Lord on March 12 and memorial services were planned for March 17 at the Church of the Holy Mount in Ruidoso.

Spring Weather Returns

Here it is midmorning of March 15, and the messengers of spring have bounced back from the record cold snap. Little Corina, the black Storm Ranch cat, is on her pallet by the window looking out at the sun.

The American flag is floating in a mild western breeze. New blooms have appeared on the small apricot tree, and the bees are making up for lost time on this day of bright sunshine and blue sky as the mountain looks forward to Saint Patrick's Day on the seventeenth and the first day of spring on the twentieth.

All the mountain-world is awakening to new life and Mother Earth is rejoicing. Let us thank God for the approaching joyful days of spring and all our many other blessings.

sudden and unusually cold.

On the thirteenth the sun came out and the temperature rose up to 40, and yet the north wind still blew icy cold, carrying traces of snow. It was a sight to see the bees battling against the wind, still working the blossoms which remained on the sheltered side of the house.

The bees flying back after the wind blew them away, and the blossoms still shining crystal white though showing signs of enduring the frost — this showed you the spirit of spring fighting back against the tide of late winter suddenly in full flood.

With our lives closely tied to the fortunes of bees, blooms, birds and trees, you could not help but feel a little of the shock they felt at this wintry blast.

Why was it so cold and so sudden?

Just the Edge of the Mighty Storm

Listening to the news that night, you now understood. This little spell here in Lincoln County was just the barest outer edge of a massive, sudden and relentless wave of cold, snow and tornadoes — from top to bottom of the entire eastern region of our country. Fourteen-foot drifts of snow in Virginia and

Tourism increases in state and in Lincoln County

The New Mexico Department of Tourism (DOT) responded to a record 290,870 inquiries in 1992, a nearly 32 percent increase from the previous year, but it wasn't the only one breaking records this past year.

Activity, including walk-ins, phone calls and mailings, at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce was up 40.8 percent in 1992 from 1991. The largest increase was in the area of mailings, which jumped up by 93 percent from 1991. In December alone the chamber sent out 19,806 pieces of information compared to 10,267 in 1991.

Phone calls had increased by 51.2 percent and walk-ins were up by 12 percent.

An aggressive advertising campaign in magazines such as Texas Monthly and New Mexico magazine have had a tremendous impact on these numbers. People are also becoming more familiar with the area and are returning to Ruidoso on a regular basis.

The chamber has already reported continued high inquiries in the first few months of this year. It has also started a new television advertising campaign in the northern part of Mexico, which is also becoming familiar with this area.

On the state level Department of Tourism Secretary J. Michael Cerletti said 48 percent of last year's volume was generated by the state's advertising campaign, compared to 46 percent of the volume the year before.

April 1992 was our biggest month. We handled more than 37,000 inquiries, a one-month record for us. March 1992 was our second-highest volume month. We handled nearly 36,000 inquiries," he said.

California generated almost 15 percent of the inquiries last year, followed by Texas (10 percent), New York (six percent), Illinois (six percent) and Florida (four percent).

International inquiries, Cerletti said, accounted for almost three percent of the inquiries. Canada generated more than half of the non-domestic inquiries, followed by Germany, the United Kingdom, Japan and France.

"The ad we placed in USA Today (circulation 7.5 million) one weekend last March was our most productive advertisement in 1992," he continued. "It generated more than 12,000 inquiries."

Cerletti pointed out that part of the increase was due to tourism department's expanded inquiry fulfillment capacity. In September 1991 DOT shifted its fulfillment program to the Los Lunas Correctional Facility, where DOT's toll-free telephone lines were expanded from two to eight, and 10 minimum security inmates were trained to handle DOT's telephoned and written inquiries.

"Before the expansion, only two of every five calls were getting through," he said. "Today, 96 percent of the calls are getting through. The more calls we answer, the more people will choose to vacation here."

Cerletti also noted that DOT's nine welcome centers counseled 643,309 visitors in 1992, a 10 percent increase over the previous year. Contributing to the record were new centers in Texico, which opened in November 1991, and in Santa Fe, which opened last July. They counseled 32,433 visitors and 24,372 visitors respectively.

He said the New Mexico Hotel and Motel Association reported that the state's 1992 occupancy rate was 69.9 percent, up seven-tenths of a point. There were higher occupancy rates from January through March, May through July, September and December. The state's average room rate in 1992 was $62.03, a $4.76.

Golfers begin season with outing at El Paso Eastwood

The Ruidoso High School golf team starts the defense of its District 3-AAA title Monday, in El Paso at the Eastwood Invitational, at the Ascarate and Underwood Golf Courses.

The team will prep for its opener with the first of four benefit scrambles Sunday at Cree Meadows. The scrambles, which pay for the traveling expenses for 50-plus Warrior golfers, are scheduled for four of the next five Sundays at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club, the Inn of the Mountain Gods and The Links at Sierra Blanca.

The cost of each tournament is $25 per person plus cart fees, and anyone that pays for all four tournaments in advance pays $80 and will receive a Ruidoso Warrior team cap.

The Warriors, who won their first ever district championship last season, return in 1993 with a solid nucleus of players from last year's squad. Junior Jeff Chapman will lead the Warriors in El Paso after posting a qualifying score of 74 over on Alto's front nine and The Links at Sierra Blanca's back nine.

Chapman posted several good scores for the Warriors last season, including a spectacular 72 at The Links in the Leroy Gooch Invitational. That score led all 110 players after the first round.

Ryan Wall will hold down the number two man position when the teams tee off in El Paso. Another junior, Wall comes to the Warriors after qualifying for six varsity events last season.

While consistency has been a problem for him, some work on his short game has been of some benefit and he recorded some sub-80 rounds last summer in the Sun Country Junior Tournaments. Wall qualified for El Paso with a solid 82.

Sophomore Eric Stephens is the only non-junior on the boys team who qualified for El Paso. Another returning letterman, Stephens is the hardest worker on the team and his scores should continue to fall during the season. His 84 during qualifying nailed down the number three position for the opening tournament.

Jimmy Varnadore returns as the number four man, a position that he held for much of last year's season. The junior consistently shot scores in the mid-to-high eighties as a sophomore and has shown no real signs of rustiness after both the football and basketball seasons.

The final spot on the boys squad belongs to first-time qualifier Victor Cocchiola who recorded a score of 92 in the qualifying, nudging Daniel Espinosa by one shot. Cocchiola was the part-time Warrior quarterback last season and has played golf since eighth grade, although not seriously pursuing it until this season.

The girls team, under the direction of first year coach Becky Austin, will also make its debut in the Eastwood invite and returns its entire squad from last year. A preview of the girls team, along with the results from the El Paso tournaments will appear in Thursday's edition of The News.

Track team treks to Tularosa

Warrior track stars will compete at the Rose Relays in Tularosa on Saturday after a tough opening weekend at the West Texas Relays in Odessa.

More than 1,600 high school athletes from Texas vied for the top spot in the meet, which was the first for the Warriors who were the only representatives of New Mexico. All the girls competed in one division, while the boys were in the middle of three divisions.

The Warriors knew it would be tough going in, but the two-day meet will provide valuable experience as the season progresses.

Jackie Lynn gave an outstanding performance in the 800-meter run to earn first place in a time of 2:01.84. Jason Dix finished sixth in two events, the long jump with a distance of 18 feet, eight inches, and the 300 meter hurdles with a time of 42.5.

Sarah Dix flew to a fifth place finish in the long jump with a distance of 16 feet. Jody Randle tied for third place in the high jump at a height of five feet.

Several relay teams made the cut to make it to the finals but couldn't quite take a medal.

Scorpions, Rebels win Indian Club tourney

Fun and trophies were the rewards for participants in the Ruidoso High School Indian Club's fifth annual Mescalero basketball tournament on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The winner in the women's division of the double elimination tournament was Scorpions, sponsored by Carole Hanks. The Scorpions stung the Angels 58-54 in the championship game, but it took four points in the last few seconds to capture the win.

The Angels traveled the longest distance to the tournament from the Alamo Indian Reservation near Magdalena.

The Headstarters took third place by defeating the Classics, sponsored by the Mescalero Tribal Store. Also participating were B.A.M.F., sponsored by Josephine Via, and Pure Shots, sponsored by Rosie Shanta.

The men's division winner was Mescalero Rebels, sponsored by Mike Rocha, who skimmed by the Trailblazers, sponsored by Ricky Carvarubia. The Trailblazers had been in the winners bracket all during the tourney before the first contest with the Rebels. The Rebels took the first contest 59-56 and widened the margin in the championship match, 64-55.

The Cuties, sponsored by Abraham Chee, crowded out the Doubletake team, sponsored by the Starr family.

The Misfits, sponsored by Sonny Apacheta, and the Players, sponsored by Gabe Aguilar, also competed in the tourney.

The winner of the most valuable player award for the women's division was Amy Billhymmer of the Scorpions. Kenny Moss of the Trailblazers captured the MVP for the men's division.

Members of the all tourney team for the women's division were Billhymmer, Gleda Bob of Classics, Tre Escalanti of Pure Shots, Josephine Duffy of Headstarters, Karen Sandoval of Angels, Fran Monte of Angels, Sarah Kazhe of Scorpions, Claudia Adams of B.A.M.F., Laverne Platta of Headstarters and Patsy Page of Classics.

Moss, Marvin Yuzos of Rebels, Huston Geronimo of Cuties, Allen Kirgan of Doubletake, Randy Bell of Rebels, Rex Comanche of Players, Tim Enjady of Doubletake, Louis Diaz of Cuties, Mike Ortiz of Misfits and Larune Lewis of Trailblazers were selected for the men's division all-tourney team.

The top four teams received trophies, while the first place winner also earned t-shirts. The all-tourney winners and MVP winners received plaques and t-shirts.

The Indian Club was pleased with the turnout.

SKI PAGES

Ski team is full of surprises

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News
Part three of a series
True or False? All ski racers live in mountain towns such as Ruidoso, Squaw Valley, California or Lake Placid, New York.
If you answered "true," you haven't met the Ruidoso Ski Team (RST). Parts one and two of this series introduced the world to junior racing. Part three focuses on the international, cosmopolitan flavor of the local team.
True, many RST members live in or near Ruidoso, training during the week or on weekends, just like their counterparts in ski towns all over the country.
Others don't. Instead, they live in such un-ski-like locales as Juarez or Chihuahua, Mexico. For them, ski team becomes a full-time total family commitment of driving long hours to Ruidoso every weekend to practice plus driving longer hours to races in Arizona or northern New Mexico.

Is it worth it?
Juan Carlos Elizondo thinks so. He was the Ruidoso Ski Team member who last year represented his country, Mexico, in Alpine skiing events at the Winter Olympic Games in Albertville, France. His Olympic experience began as a child at Ski Apache's slopes with RST.
His Olympic debut inspired all of the team, especially those members from Mexico, said RST coach Hubert Seigmann in an interview last year, members such as David Arellé and Javier Gonzales of Juarez. These young men will form part of RST's contingent attending Rocky Mountain Division Championship races later this month.

Other dedicated young skiing Mexicans include Juan Carlos's brother, Ivan Elizondo, along with Ricardo Solarzano, Alex Barney, Eugenia and Ximena Gonzales, Karla Diaz, Adriana, Alejandro and Ricardo Ayub, Estuardo and Guillermo Alvalias, all of Juarez and Juan Arreola of Chihuahua.
RST members from both sides of the international border derive much from this unique, multicultural ski team. Desert dwellers go skiing every week. And locals learn there's more to the world outside their mountain town.

Trio qualifies for Prater Cup

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News
Three local junior racers will ski at a championship race in Colorado this month.
Shannon Conley, Michael Kelly and Austin Koontz will represent the Ruidoso Ski Team (RST) at the Prater Cup in Crested Butte, Colorado, from March 17 to 21.
The Prater Cup represents the season's end championship final of the United States Ski Association-Rocky Mountain Division (USSA-RMD) for junior racers ages 11 and 12.

To be invited to the Prater, the young racer must accumulate points by finishing in the top 50 percent of USSA-sanctioned races in New Mexico and Arizona.
Twelve-year old Shannon is a four-year team veteran. Her goal at the beginning of the season was to make the Prater. She qualified in regional races in Flagstaff and Santa Fe.

Michael, also 12, made the Prater last year and set as his goal to finish in its top ten.
Austin aspires to finish in the top five. The 11-year old is a six-year team veteran.

Skiers set sights on junior olympics

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News
At the beginning of ski season, it was a goal. This month the goal became reality as four racers prepare for the season's end championship ski race in Vail, Colorado, from March 24 to 28.
Ruidoso Ski Team (RST) members Mackey Tully, Javier Gonzales, Brian Kelly and David Arellé will ski at the Junior Olympics, the United States Ski Association-Rocky Mountain Division championship for junior racers ages 13 and 14.

To qualify for the JO's, as the race is popularly known, a young hopeful had to earn points by finishing in the top 40 percent of sanctioned races held in New Mexico and Arizona.
Fourteen-year old Mackey is a JO veteran, having qualified before. This season the six-year old team veteran hopes to place in the top 10 in a race that draws qualifiers from three states, Arizona, Colorado and

New Mexico.
Also qualifying again was David Arellé of Juarez, Mexico. A team member for five years, David is one of several young Mexicans who make up approximately one-fourth of RST.
Fellow Juarenzeno Javier Gonzales is only in his third year on the team, but he aspires to place in the top 10 as does teammate Brian Kelly of Ruidoso, a second-year team member.

Ski Apache Ski Report

Congressman Steve Schiff (R-New Mexico) visits with Michael Kakuska in Washington D.C. Kakuska, who lives in Ruidoso, is federal relations director for New Mexico Association of Secondary School Principals. Kakuska, an educator, is chairman of the Lincoln County Republican Party.

Local man calls for education reform

Ruidoso resident Mike Kakuska, federal relations director for New Mexico Association of Secondary School Principals, challenged Congress last week to stop the neglect of American children and youth by supporting education funding increases and reform efforts.

Kakuska, former Ruidoso High School principal, was one of 100 school leaders in Washington D.C. for the 13th annual Federal Relations Conference sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP).

During the four-day conference, the educators attended presentations on education initiatives and strategies by Congress and the administration, according to a news release.

Speakers included the National Education Goals Panel Chairman and Nebraska Governor E. Benjamin Nelson, Senator Nancy Landon Kassenbaum (R-Kansas) and Representative William D. Ford (D-Michigan).

"In this new political era, it is imperative for school leaders to work with our elected officials for positive change in our schools and communities," said Dr. Timothy J. Dyer, NASSP executive director.

"We must continue to cultivate our relationships with our lawmakers if we want to influence effective changes in federal education programs."

While on Capitol Hill, school leaders urged support for President Bill Clinton's fiscal year 1993 economic stimulus package, which would provide $500 million for Head Start, $735 million for Chapter 1, and $2 billion for the Pell Grant program.

They also advocated support for the following measures in this year's reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

1. Increased flexibility in the Chapter 1 program through the expansion of school-wide projects.
2. A comprehensive health, social services and education program.
3. A new technology initiative.
4. Expanded professional development opportunities for teachers and principals.

In addition, conference participants asked Congress to adopt an omnibus school reform package that would concentrate resources for improved instruction at the school level and adequately assess student achievement without establishing a national test.

"Support for education programs will assure that our children and youth of today inherit a land filled with promise and potential," emphasized Dyer. "In advocating for the children and youth of America; school leaders help establish hope for the future."

Community organizes to help youth

by KRISTIE SAATMANN
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The success of youth in the community is the number one priority for a new group who sees the problems young people face daily.

The group of youth service providers and interested community members is calling itself "YES, Youth Empowered for Success and met Thursday at Ruidoso High School to begin making plans on how these problems can be solved.

Dr. Paul Wirth, special education coordinator for the Ruidoso School district and head of the new group, reviewed the group's mission statement and beliefs designed by the steering committee.

The mission of the group is to mobilize the related communities served by the Ruidoso School district, to develop a communications network among the communities, to establish a team effort among diversified youth service providers, to ensure public awareness of critical needs of the youth and to support programs addressing youth issues, thus providing for the fundamental needs of the young people.

Middle school students created several logos for the YES group and it will likely select one to use so people can recognize the organization.

The members of the group will also be working on a services providers directory of all the agencies, groups and individuals who can aid the youth in the community. Wirth said it will contain names, addresses and telephone numbers and since it will be on a computer they will be able to update it each year to make sure everything is still accurate.

The directory will be put together by Manisha Shaver, from Mesalero who is currently attending New Mexico State University. She is working on a degree in social services and is completing her practicum at Nob Hill school.

A form has been sent out to many of the agencies involved and many of them have already requested the directory when it is completed.

The real work for the group came later in the meeting when the members began to identify the challenges that impact the youth in the area. The challenges were divided into four categories, social, family, education and health.

The large group then divided into four to find possible solutions to the challenges in the community, and after a brainstorming session each group came back to present its ideas.

Challenges under the social heading are violence, vandalism, gangs, parent role models or the lack of them, values, conflict resolution, cultural sensitivity, peer pressure coping skills, recognition of positive and community awareness and responsibility for youth.

Problems that need to be addressed under the family category are latch-key kids, non-traditional families, parental substance abuse, family communication, effective positive parenting skills, parent or home and school relations, quality affordable day care, protection from domestic violence and lack of parents.

Group members determined the challenges for education are truancy, drop-out students, alternative education, home schooling, home-school relationships, achievement recognition, remedial programs, guidance-career counseling and adult basic education and English as a second language courses.

Health issues, emotional and physical, which impact the young people in the area are substance abuse, teenage pregnancy, sexuality and sexually transmitted diseases, suicide, safety, belonging, self-esteem and nutrition.

For several of the challenges the members of the group agreed the solutions may be the same, such as providing parenting skills courses, but they need to offer them through any avenue possible such as school, church or service groups.

Community awareness and involvement is also going to be key in solving some of these problems.

"The children all belong to the community and this community belongs to the kids," said Roger Sowder, Nob Hill principal.

Community activities that allow younger and older people learn more about each other can help the youth find role models to follow. Suggested activities from several of the small groups included Big Brother/Big Sister programs, mentorship programs and tutoring provided by retired people in the community. Although it may be a long term project, creating a youth center could also offer activities and a place to be.

Keeping the current support programs is also important. The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, DARE program, SADD, Little League, PALS, Lifeguards and extended day program at Nob Hill and White Mountain schools already offer some youth an alternative activity.

Recognition of the students for achievements they accomplish may also be an important key to helping them overcome some of the challenges. Possibilities include having the information in the local newspaper, television and radio stations. They would also like to see businesses and service organizations sponsor such items as student of the month and have the students' photograph and information in their store window.

To ease the problems in the family, the group would like to see more parent-friendly schools and businesses. If a parent can't make it to a student conference at the set times, the school officials involved should be flexible in finding a time that will work. If a parent has a sick child or needs to handle a problem with a child, the parent's employer should also be willing to work time out.

For the physical well-being of the youth in the community, the group would like to see a summer nutrition program started and also basic safety training. Public service announcements on what guns and knives can really do to people could also make young people realize how dangerous they are.

Wirth and several volunteers will now get together to put all of the solution information together so the group can begin prioritizing what it needs to do.

YES will meet at 6:30 p.m. April 1, at the Ruidoso High School library to take the next step in accomplishing some of these solutions.

"Community ownership of this project is vital," Wirth said.

Billy the Kid rides again

The Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs will present its March membership program at 7 p.m. this Saturday, March 20.

Dr. Richard Etulain from the University of New Mexico will present a slide/lecture program on the Ruidoso areas most famous juvenile delinquent, Billy the Kid.

"Billy The Kid: Man and Mystery" is a slide-illustrated talk providing an up-to-date overview of Billy's life.

At the same time, it attempts to raise questions about the Wild West Americans have embraced for more than a century. Billy's biography is also used as a device to spark discussions about the subjects of violence, community and power politics.

Etulain takes an in-depth look at the significant players of the period as he discusses the Lincoln County War. In his own flowing style, Etulain will probe the ethnic dimensions of the conflict, and the movies, books, and histories that have been made and written about Billy the Kid.

"Many Museum members will remember Dr. Etulain from his lively discussion 'The Magic West On Film' in August of last year," said Museum Development Director, Frank Potter.

"His previous slide/lecture was so well received and so informative, we decided to ask him back for another session."

The goal of the Museum's membership programs is to both entertain and educational.

Etulain's discussions certainly meet both of those goals. This program is made possible by the New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities with grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Historic Preservation Division of the Office of Cultural Affairs of the State of New Mexico.

Etulain specializes in the history and culture of the American West and modern U.S. He holds the Ph.D. from the University of Oregon, and has taught at Idaho State University and the University of New Mexico.

McKnight takes the PR reins at Ruidoso Downs Race Track

James McKnight has been named publicity director at Ruidoso Downs for the 1993 summer race meet, announced Max Johnson general manager.

"We are glad to have James back with our organization and we believe that his journalism and racing experience will contribute to a successful 1993 racing season," said Johnson.

McKnight, 24, a graduate of the University of Arizona Race Track Industry Program, also earned a bachelor's degree in journalism. The native of Tucson, Arizona, most recently served as publicity director at Delta Downs in Vinton, Louisiana.

He also served as assistant publicity director at Ruidoso Downs during the 1991 meet.

Paint the town gold

Some things bear repeating, and so we'll say it again: wouldn't it be lovely if this entire area could light up with gold each fall? We could do it easily by planting aspen and poplar trees all over town.

All it would take is a little money, a little work and some group or individual to take the lead in a massive planting program. The trees are available, the price is right and we want to take the lead.

For just a couple of dollars, anyone can purchase a tree to plant in their own yard or to be planted elsewhere in town. Clubs or churches could plant an entire area, or an individual could "adopt" an area to plant a few trees.

Sewer standby charge doesn't fool anybody

TO THE EDITOR:

When we were kids and tried to pull or put something over on our mother that was stupid, she'd look at us and say, "I may be red in the face, but I wasn't born yesterday." We heard that many times growing up, and learned the true meaning of this. Well, it's time I used those words.

I cannot believe the mayor and our elected officials would try to make us residents look so stupid by asking us to pay $5 a month for our septic tank.

I have lived with a septic tank for more years than I'd like to think. We always had it cleaned about every 10 to 15 years — otherwise they were not expensive.

Now, to make money, we are going to be penalized for that hole in the ground.

We have tried to connect to the sewer when we finally hooked up to natural gas. Then it was $1,000! But there was no line in front of our house, and most people know that sewer does not run uphill.

You know we get tired of that 10 cents a phone call and the mayor telling us it's OK to drink that dirty water in the summer; but now this is a bit much. Don't you think?

Red in the face! You know it!!! We want people to retire up here, but let's milk the ones dry that already choose to live here.

What will they come up with next?

TO THE EDITOR:

My name is Hank Thierry, president of the Alameda Alliance, an alliance of neighborhood associations in northern Bernalillo County.

On January 8, I received a phone call from a community activist in the Ruidoso area. She was concerned about a local land use issue (the corner of Hull Road and Paradise Canyon Drive). She had seen me on television regarding an Albuquerque area land use issue.

We talked about what local neighbors and associations could do in these types of situations, we discussed possible options and approaches to the problems.

In Alameda we are now, with the help of our elected officials and public servants creating a way for developers and the community affecting by potential projects, to begin interacting, right at the start of the process.

By entering into a relationship with the neighbors early on, the developer can save money by submitting a plan that is acceptable to everyone, thus creating a better developer-community relationship.

I was very pleased to hear that the Ruidoso zoning change hearing came out in favor of the affected neighborhood. If the above-mentioned and other methods are used in the future, I am sure a balance can be struck between community desires and appropriate development.

Best wishes in your efforts for the future of Ruidoso.

Working together ensures a better village

TO THE EDITOR:

Having spent much of my childhood in Ruidoso, I followed with interest the reports in The Ruidoso News about an attempt to rezone the property at the corner of Hull Road and Paradise Canyon Drive.

Many people got involved. This change would have allowed the construction of up to 41 townhouses!

Letters to the editor of The Ruidoso News were written, 162 signatures protesting this change were collected in about 10 days and phone calls were made in an effort to stop this zoning change from happening.

The Ruidoso News is to be commended for choosing to call attention to an issue that might otherwise have gotten buried in a mountain of agendas which probably aren't widely read.

As it turned out, both the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Ruidoso Village Council denied the zoning change because this would have violated Village Plans, Policies, Codes and Ordinances — not because of phone calls, letters or petitions.

However, how would things have turned out if no one had cared enough to protest?

I urge the citizens of Ruidoso to get involved when they see something amiss. You have the power! If you don't get results, try, try again!

AARP members recently complained about a dirty Ruidoso, and steps have already been taken by the village government to correct some of the problems. AARP members also volunteered to help with some of the cleaning. If you can't get as much help as you would like, see what you, your neighbors and friends can do yourselves. You can make a difference.

Water remains a top priority for Ruidoso

TO THE EDITOR:

It was interesting to see the results of your village priorities survey and unfortunate to see that only about one percent of your subscribers took advantage of this opportunity to express themselves about priorities in the village. This is a worthwhile effort and should be done at least once a year in my opinion.

As you know, my interests in the water situation of the village go back to about 1982, and like others in the survey, I listed water as our primary concern.

In 1983 it was determined by a water committee composed of Newton Page, Dick Hall and Knud Otteson, all capable engineers, that the village was losing 40 percent of the water that went through the filtering plant because of leaks in water mains and pipes.

Ten years later this problem has been corrected, and the loss of this water is less than 10 percent. This means the salvage of approximately 540 acre feet of water which is more than 176 million gallons of water.

The main treatment plant for water in 1990 was a fiasco. It looked like a subway in the Harlem district of New York. Wires hanging from switch boxes, sacks of treatment materials broken open and on the floors, half of the plant inoperative with parts of that half in pieces, submerged, on the bottom of an inoperative water processing tank. This plant was designed to treat two million gallons of water a day. It was less than one-half capacity.

Personally, I cannot see how we were getting treated water to drink unless it was because water from iron sediment-laden water from the Eagle Creek wells was used in conjunction with what little could be treated.

Well water was not required to be treated then, but now any water from these wells or other wells has to be treated, according to the laws.

Ruidoso citizens and visitors will be glad to know that this treatment plant is 100 percent efficient. It is clean and would make an interesting subject for your readers.

A second treatment plant which was abandoned is being restored and will serve as a backup system which we have not had in a long time.

All of this has been done within the operating budget of the village with no additional subsidies for the purpose.

I recommend that Ruidoso people contact the village hall for directions to the plant. This we can be proud of.

Area students get a taste of legal profession in mock trial

Students from Capitan and Hondo will be among more than 200 students from 16 high schools taking part in the final rounds of the 16th annual mock trial competition at the Bernalillo County Courthouse in Albuquerque.

The Capitan High School teacher sponsor is Bill MacVeigh; the attorney coaches are Gary Mitchell and Noel Orquiz.

The Hondo High School teacher sponsor is Ray Sharbutt; the attorney coaches are Dan Bryant and Alan Moril.

The winners will earn a chance to compete against teams from across the United States, Guam and the Virgin Islands at the national finals in Atlanta, Georgia, next May.

State finalists, representing the best of the 34 teams which competed last month in regional matches in Las Cruces, Santa Fe and Albuquerque, have prepared since November to present the hypothetical criminal trial of a high school security guard accused of the attempted murder of a suspected gang member.

Four times in the two days of final competition, student teams playing the roles of lawyers and witnesses will try the case, alternating between the prosecution's and defendant's sides in actual courtrooms and, in many of the trials, before actual judges.

Volunteer attorneys, educators and community leaders complete each three-judge panel which will evaluate the students on their preparation and presentations.

"These volunteers donate literally hundreds of hours of time each year to the competition, in addition to the many long days put in by the teams' attorney and teacher coaches; and the efforts really pay off in an outstanding educational experience for the students," according to Michelle Giger, associate director of the New Mexico Bar Foundation which administers the event.

"The program attracts students with an extraordinarily wide range of abilities and interests," Giger added. "They not only learn a lot about the Constitution, the law and the judicial process, but also have a chance to work on their reasoning and communication skills in exciting and confidence-building kinds of ways."

New board members hear proposal from CHS senate

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Three new members took their places Thursday at the Capitan School Board table.

Sworn into office by Superintendent David Lock were Beverly Payne, Tim Worrell and Russell Shearer.

The new board immediately elected Tom Trost to continue to serve as president, Worrell as vice president and Payne as secretary.

One of the first pieces of business placed Payne face-to-face with her daughter, Tammy Payne, who is president of the student senate.

Aided by high school principal Darrel Stierwalt, who briefed the board on the new proposal, Payne outlined why the student body would like to see a longer lunch hour and a study hall.

In response to guidelines laid out by Lock, Payne and students Marisa Valenzuela and Dianna Lively detailed the changes and reductions that would be needed in class times, methods to use in evaluating the success of the program and reasons why the proposed arrangement would benefit students.

A public meeting is set for 7 p.m. March 23 in the school foyer for interested parents and students to express their opinions and hear more about the plan. Notes were sent home with students to notify parents.

Lock said, if the proposal is approved, the new schedule could be initiated starting March 29 as a test run for the 1993-94 school year.

Senate president Payne said 30 minutes is not enough time for students to eat lunch. Just putting their books in a locker takes five minutes, then they must wait in line in the school cafeteria, or walk to the local convenience store or run home for a sandwich.

"That leaves 20 minutes to eat," she said. If they're trying to squeeze a meeting into that break, most students will opt for a candy bar and soft drink, she said.

"Then back in the classroom, instead of listening to the teacher, they'll concentrate on not burping," Payne said. "It's an unhealthy and unwelcome practice."

To create a 40 minute lunch from 12:05 p.m. to 12:45 p.m., and a study hall, the senate proposed cutting five minutes from each class period and starting school at 8:10 a.m. instead of 8:15 a.m.

The study hall would last from 9:05 a.m. to 9:35 a.m.

"I think the time would be well used if the teachers enforce it and the students know it is a privilege and they could lose it," Payne said of the study hall.

The half-hour could be used for teachers to discuss honors classes, for students to make up tests, for counseling, for tutoring, to study for tests and for occasional class meetings, Payne said.

The average grade point of high school students in Capitan now is 2.8, she said. "We feel it will go up and so will the scores on national tests," Payne said. "We think there will be fewer zeros in classroom homework and a possible a decrease in disciplinary slips."

The longer lunch period should decrease the number of tardies in fifth period and should aid in better digestion for students, she said.

"Coach (Pam) Allen offered to open the gym for intramural competition during lunch for those who finish early," Payne said.

If abuses occurred, such as an increase in tardiness or student disagreements, the board could cut the lunch break.

"Just about every student signed the petition in favor of the longer lunch and all but one teacher said they would be willing to come in five minutes earlier," Payne said. That teacher was not available.

The plan meets all state requirements for student-teacher classroom time.

"It's 9.7 days over the required time," Payne said. "Taking into account possible snow days, we're still 2.1 days over."

A student-type court is envisioned to consider cases of students who "mess up" during the study hall and lunch hour, she said. Its recommendations would be passed to Lock, who would enforce the punishment.

Stierwalt said the teachers seem to favor the plan, which would cut five minutes from classes.

"They seem to think that students will stay more on task," he said.

Teacher Bill MacVeigh said it's difficult to keep a student's attention for 50 minutes. Teachers and students seem to get on task at the beginning of a class and ease up toward the end.

Trost thanked the students for their time and effort.

"I appreciate you going through the chain of command," he said. "This is what the student senate is for, I'm definitely in favor of it."

He repeated a suggestion he made last year that a senate representative sit with the board at its monthly meetings as an ex-officio member.

Board member Payne asked Lock who will make the final decision on the proposal.

"We'll make an administrative decision and if they are not satisfied, they can appeal it to the board," Lock said.

The board then voted to go into a closed-to-the-public session on personnel, which lasted from 7:35 p.m. to 9:22 p.m., effectively chasing away many of the staff and public in attendance.

No action was taken as a result of the closed session.

In other action, the school board: —appointed Frank Sidwell as a full time custodian and Brian Bett as half time custodian.

—hired on an hourly basis, L.C. Cozzens, a former school superintendent and current member of the Capitan Board of Trustees, to help with budget preparation.

—approved a resolution calling for the State Legislature to increase the portion of the state general fund budget spent on education from 47 percent to 50 percent.

—generally agreed with the concept of using the school complex parking area as a place for visitors on the July Fourth weekend to leave their cars and catch a shuttle bus to other staging areas for events this year and for the big 1994 Smokey Bear Fiftieth Birthday Celebration. The request was presented by Howard Shanks from the Friends of Smokey group that is promoting the celebration.

—approved creating athletic increments for two assistants to help with the girls and boys track season. Coaches Ed Davis and Pam Allen said 80 students had signed up and they needed help. Sherry Gowen and Pat Ventura will fill the assistant posts.

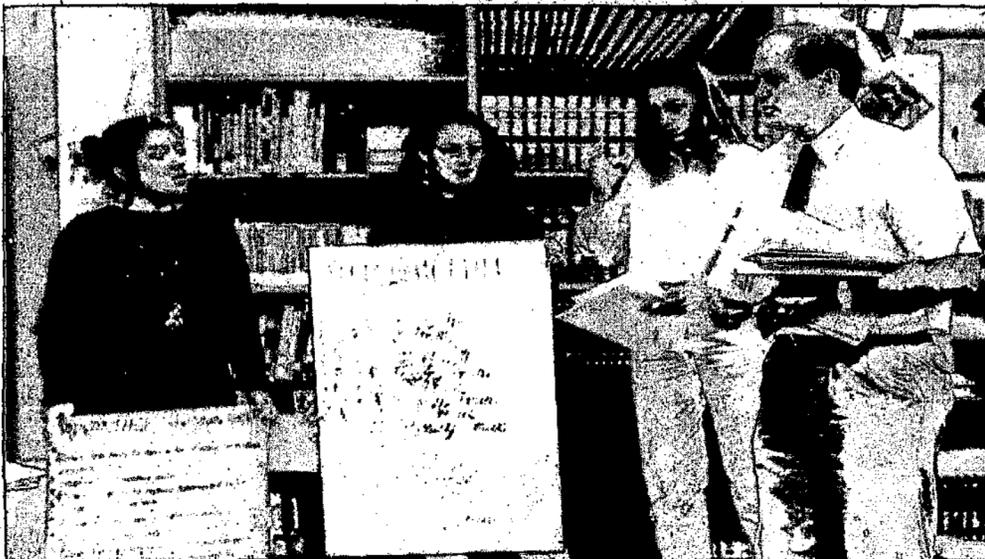

Lock said he would like to see the positions become permanent.

—discussed forming a committee to review applications for superintendent. The deadline is March 26. Ten applications had been received as of Friday.

The committee proposed by Trost would consist of the two principals, Trost, a person from the community and Sandy Gladden, director of Region IX Cooperative Center, which sponsors many special programs in Capitan.

After screening candidates, the top three to four choices would be referred to the full school board.

—thanked Ruidoso State Bank for providing a reception for the new board members before the meeting.

—set a special meeting for 7 p.m. March 25 to go over the draft of a collective bargaining policy, which must be approved by April 1 or the district will run the risk of the state taking over the handling of grievances and bargaining.

—heard a report from Board Member Jack King and Stierwalt that the Future Farmers of America competition March 6 generated

$1,400 for the booster club. The influx of more than 800 students from schools across the state and Texas pleased the business owners in town, who said their traffic tripled.

The competition was the second annual gathering in Capitan. The board gave vocational agriculture teacher Randy Pritchard a pat on the back for a smooth operation.

WE HAVE THE RIGHT ANSWER

Advertisers who want to place their print ads in a quality publication ask the question: "Is your circulation audited?"

We're very proud to answer "Yes."

We are a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations because we share ABC's belief that circulation audits are an essential assurance of value.

ABC is the premier circulation auditing organization in the world, and has been since 1914. Each year, ABC auditors test and verify that our circulation figures are facts, not claims. An ABC audit is the sign of a sound investment for advertisers.

Not all publications are audited, but they should be. Because when advertisers ask "Is your circulation audited?" there's only one answer: "Yes."

Household Tips...

How Can You Tell If Your Lawn Needs Watering?
 If your footprints stay on the lawn, it needs water. Well-watered turf springs back; dry grass does not.

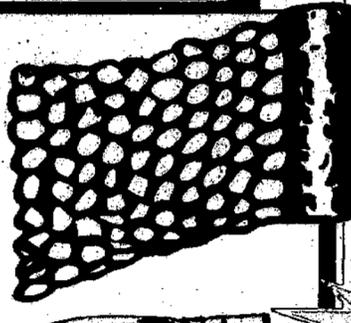

How often Should You Water Your Lawn?
 In general, about 1/2" twice a week will be fine. For sandy soil increase to 1/2" three times a week.
