'93 Art Festival unfolds

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

For the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, the clock is ticking.

At noon on Friday, the doors of the Civic Events Center will open to the public for the 22nd annual Arts Festival.

"We just have a few more things that we have to address," said chamber director Joan Bailey. "It's like we are putting on a huge theatrical performance."

Bailey, the chamber staff, and a group of dedicated volunteers will start preparing the Civic Events Center (CEC) for the event Thursday night at 5 p.m. The artists will start their preparations at the event at around 7 p.m.

However, the public will not be allowed in until noon sharp.

"Last year we had people lining up outside the door, but we won't let them in until noon," said Bailey. "We are very strict, but the artists need all the time that they can get so they can make the best presentation of their work."

Among the things to address for Bailey and the others, will be the logistics of a new location.

The CEC will be the home for the Art Festival for the first time this year, after bouncing around for the past 21 years.

"Here we are sitting with over-cast skies and we aren't concerned about the rain," said Bailey. "We are headed into the beautiful surroundings of the Civic Events Center."

This year's Art Festival, in the workings since January, will feature a combination of 125 artists from around the nation, including nine from Lincoln County.

There is also a selection of 23 different categories from which the

Planners get tough on landscaping

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Better communication and a landscaping plan were asked of local church officials by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission Monday.

The P&Z agenda called for Gateway Church of Christ officials to discuss the lack of landscaping on property they acquired about two years ago.

Planner Cleatus Richards said church official Cleston Pritchett was supposed to be at the meeting. He wasn't, and on Tuesday Pritchett said Richards never notified him.

Although the commission is under the impression that Gateway has been notified of the landscaping problems for the past 18 months, Pritchett told The Ruidoso News that he has been contacted twice by Richards over a year ago and not since then.

"Our main concern is that it has been 18 months and landscaping (for the church) hasn't been accomplished, and we wish it to be accomplished," P&Z chairman Robert Donaldson said.

Pritchett was concerned that The News had shown a picture featuring the vacant parking lot and not a closer shot of the work done in converting the old Safeway store into a church.

He said some of the landscaping shown in the United New Mexico Bank picture is on their property through an agreement with Safeway. He said the bank put in a sprinkling system and has been taking care of that property for a number of years.

Wyatt Sparks, a member of the church, was at the P&Z meeting for other reasons. He filled in as a representative for Gateway.

Sparks said the interior of the building hasn't been finished, although a lot of money has been spent. He said they have talked to landscapers about a sidewalk treatment similar to the one at Cattle Baron.

Sparks complained that another church has been building without landscaping its property.

"The Catholics that bought our old building, they came with a nice landscaping plan and they haven't turned a spade in two years," Sparks said.

The commission told Sparks that the Catholic building he was talking about is not occupied.

"Well, they just started their interior. They got their plan approved and they still haven't done anything on it," Sparks said.

Donaldson said he is concerned about the lack of communication.

"Cleatus has contacted somebody (from your church) a number of times with no response," he said. "I would like for someone from the church to come forward and finalize a plan, and if possible set up a time table."

Donaldson said the work that has been done on the old supermarket has been a big improvement, but further communication is needed.

Donaldson said he realizes the interior is a priority, but he believes a smaller committee could work on the landscaping so that local residents will see improvement.

Commissioner Mike Radziewicz said the village had to maintain equal and fair treatment.

"If a builder or private developer comes in, he has to set certain limits and certain things have to come before the commission before a certificate of occupancy is issued by the building department. Why do we treat a church differently?" Radziewicz asked.

Richards said it was the commission's decision to allow an exception for Gateway because of the nature of the work.

"If we don't put a time limit on them now, soon it will be winter and we are hitting our best planting season now," Radziewicz said. "If we can't get something started in 60 to 90 days, we're looking at another nine months. Then we're looking at two and one half years and that is unreasonable."

Donaldson said the building has undergone major improvement, and leeway was granted because church members were "doing it on a shoestring budget."

Richards said he would like to see a solution to the problem and a timetable for completion brought back to the commission by the last meeting of August.

Radziewicz, referring to the shoestring budget, said the commission shouldn't consider money.

"If a person comes before us and says he has a lot of money or not a lot of money, that's not a consideration for P&Z. That shouldn't be a consideration for a church either," Radziewicz said. "We're talking fairness here, and separation of church and state."

Donaldson agreed, and moved that Gateway come back to the commission by the last meeting of August.

Richards said the committee should use the revised plan that he (Richards) submitted as a starting point.

Donaldson amended the motion, but said he is hopeful that the

Woodman, spare that tree! says the judge

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The big pines owned by Pioneer Savings were awarded a stay of execution thanks to a restraining order filed by resident Charles Rennick of Ruidoso.

Rennick and his neighbors along 5th Avenue have tried to block construction of a Lincoln County Human Services building that would eat up many of the big pines that front their property.

The Ruidoso Village Council recently ruled that the lot was zoned C-2 and that the owner had a right to develop his lot under that zone classification. The residents had objected that the size of the building didn't blend with their neighborhood and also caused the removal of too many big pines.

The General Services Division (GSD) has yet to sign the State Department of Human Service's lease contract for Roswell builder Don Elwell. GSD Deputy Secretary David Ortiz said that he would meet with the human services officials on Thursday to discuss Elwell's bid award.

State Representative H. John Underwood, a two-term Ruidoso Democrat, asked for an investigation of the request for proposal and has brought the matter before the Legislative Finance Committee.

Underwood's concerns had nothing to do with the removal of trees, but that the lease bid awarded to Elwell was about $100,000 higher than the second bidder.

Rennick said he drove to District Court Judge Richard Parsons in Carrizozo to who turned him down. Rennick then filed a motion to challenge Parsons, and then was sent to Alamogordo before Judge Sandra Grisham who signed a 10-day restraining order which stays the building permit.

"They can't cut the trees for 10 days is what it amounts to," Rennick said. "To get the stay, I had to file a suit. So, I filed a suit against the village and Elwell. If they hadn't started cutting the trees, I wouldn't have filed the suit."

CrimeStopper tips lead to an arrest in bus station assault

Three CrimeStopper tips paid big dividends with the arrest of a transient charged with the Greyhound Bus Station robbery Memorial Day weekend.

Morrone Canada, 21, was captured Wednesday night in Pamona, California, according to Ruidoso C.I.D. Commander Lanny Maddox.

Canada was charged with robbery and assault with intent to commit a violent felony.

According to police reports, Canada entered the Greyhound freight door that Sunday afternoon and grabbed clerk Shirley Estavillo from the back and started choking and beating the elderly woman about the face until she fell. He then began pounding her head on the floor until she stopped struggling.

Schools ask parents, students for input on revised athletic code

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

An athletic code that raised the ire and objections from parents of some students in the Ruidoso school system last year has been revamped.

But new athletic coordinator Juan Baca and superintendent Mike Gladden want to be sure everyone has a chance to review and comment on the proposed new code to avoid a repeat of last year's dissension.

"We would like feedback on this before next Thursday (July 29)," Gladden said. School board members will look at the proposal during a special meeting at 2 p.m. July 29.

"This will be for discussion," Gladden said. "It is not a board policy, but we will seek the board's support of the code."

The revision was the result of surveys circulated last year, subsequent meetings by a 10-member committee of educators and parents, in addition to refinements offered by coaches.

"The major change is that last year, the code did not make any allowance for a first offense," Gladden said.

The proposed new code will provide for a seven-day suspension from all athletic contests on a first offense, plus five hours of service to the coach of the team on which the student played when the offense occurred.

Since possession of illegal drugs, alcohol or tobacco is prohibited, if the violation involves those items, the student also will be required to attend and complete a substance abuse program, which will be outlined at a parent conference.

All of the requirements are to be completed within 10 days or the student will be suspended from more athletic contests until the hours are fulfilled.

"The parents will be notified and a conference arranged (when an offense occurs) so that they know all the requirements," Gladden said. "It should be clear cut and the parents should know about the extra work required."

Criticism last school year in large part centered around the severity of the punishment for a first offense, which was removal from a sport for the remainder of the season.

A second offense would result in suspension from the athletic program for remainder of that particular sport.

A third offense would require the student to be removed from the athletic program for a calendar year.

"For example, if the offense occurred at the state track meet and the student was a junior, he or she couldn't go out for football or basketball in their senior year," Gladden said. "We feel the student must really have a problem if there are three offenses in a year."

Baca noted that another change concerns offenses that occur on a road trip or on school property. The student will be suspended immediately from the athletic program for the remainder of that sport.

"That's even on a first offense, because we see that as different when someone deliberately takes liquor or drugs with them," Baca said. The other types of offenses might occur at a party or some time not connected with school or school functions.

Last year, the code required removal from sports for one calendar year, if the offense took place during a school activity.

One thing that hasn't changed is that a student has no process of appeal, Gladden said.

"But things should go in a positive nature at the conference (with parents and school officials)," Gladden said. "We all will be focused on the kids. I feel it's very positive to require them to attend an appropriate course."

"We will encourage the parents to attend the course with the student," Baca said.

The code provides that if the student neglects the exemplary standards required for sports participation for any reason, the coaches, athletic director, building principal, the parents and the student will confer.

To participate in sports, a student must have no more than one large part centered around the severity of the punishment for a first offense, which was removal from a sport for the remainder of the season.

Provisions dealing with hair style and length are less specific. The section reads that hair will be kept clean and groomed "in such a way that it will not create a distraction to my teammates or opponents." During athletic contests, "it will be kept in a manner that will not cause a rules violation or present a safety hazard," according to the code.

If a student is removed from a squad for disciplinary reasons, or quits after working out for a sport, parents will be notified. If the student wants to be rescheduled for another sport before the end of the season, the head coach of the sport from which the student quit or was removed, must agree.

"We hope this is more clear cut to parents," Gladden said. He noted that coaches are to sit down with athletes and their parents before the start of each season to go over the code. After parents sign the code in triplicate, one copy will be kept by the parents.

"We will not be going on hearsay," Gladden said. "Either the coach, parents or police must witness the violation or the student must admit it."

One element removed from the proposed code that bothered critics last year was a provision that seemed to encourage students to report violators. It threatened them with equal punishment if they did not remove themselves from a situation in which others might be violating the code.

Also gone from the new version is the statement that if a student failed to follow the instructions of his/her coaches, the student would be subject to the same disciplinary action as if an offense involving alcohol, drugs or tobacco had occurred.

To register comments or for more information, call Gladden at 257-4051 or Baca at home at 336-7821.

art is picked. "That's what's so great about this Art Festival," said Bailey. "You just get to see so much different art."

Along with the art festival will be a collection of nine different food booths for festival goers to choose from.

A special feature of this year's

Art Festival will be a special silent auction. The auction will feature the work of 49 of the artists.

What makes the auction so special, will be that all of the proceeds will go to the Chamber of Commerce's Scholarship fund.

"A hundred percent of the proceeds will go to helping someone go to college with a scholarship," said Bailey.

Bailey said that in the chamber office, the phones have been ringing off the hook, due to people calling asking for lodging.

"We're having a hard time finding places to put all of these people," said Bailey.

Overall, Bailey sees the Art Festival as a great event that brings the community together once a year.

"It's a whole lot of fun that people just won't want to miss,"

According to reports, Estavillo then opened the cash drawer and handed him all of the money, about $300.

Severely beaten with cuts about the head, Estavillo still refused admittance to the hospital and has since recovered.

Maddox said his sources told him that Canada left the community immediately after the robbery.

Estavillo was told by Maddox of the arrest early Thursday morning. "Thank God," she said. "You've made my day. Now I can sleep."

Maddox said that bond for Canada was set at $125,000 with no 10 percent by Magistrate Judge Bill Butts. He said Canada will be extradited to Ruidoso sometime next week to await trial.

Planners

church can come up with a plan that will exceed the village's.

One commissioner asked what could be done during this planting stage.

Sparks said it is his understanding that the early spring is the best time to plant trees, around February.

Radziewicz said he has been planting trees in the area for 15 years, and July is the best month because of the rains. He said you can plant in the spring and have about a 75 percent mortality rate.

Richards said successful landscaping at the civic center was accomplished in the late summer and fall months.

"They're planting right now," said Richards. "And we've had no loss of material at all."

Sparks said there could be no guarantees, and if the money isn't there, it can't be done.

Radziewicz said he became very hot under the collar when Richards told him, when he was building his motel, that you have to stick by the rules.

"I did stick by the rules," Radziewicz said. "I realize Mr. Sparks is not here as a representative, which further upsets me because they didn't bother to send a representative again. They should have had a representative here today."

The motion passed for the church, a plan and a timetable to be at the last P&Z meeting in August.

In other business, the conceptual plan for a private development on Country Club Drive passed for Glenn Neans, an Austin, Texas, businessman.

The property is a 14-acre tract located across the street from Cree Meadows Country Club, and is owned by Roy Crocker. A driving range inhabits part of the tract.

The development proposed is 80 townhome lots, one high density apartment tract, one community center and one common area.

Neans said plans on single level housing specifically accommodate the physically impaired.

He said the high density apartment tract is not a top priority at this time, and the community center will be built when justified.

Neans said that a homeowners association will be formed right away, and after a percentage of occupancy has been reached, the property and community center will be turned over to that association.

He said the development will be private, with the streets maintained by the association. He said he is looking for an entrance gate that requires a card to open.

The plan was approved unanimously.

The commission also approved commercial site development for Tim and Nan Wierwille. The applicant is requesting permission to develop a 50-foot by 20-foot building for art gallery purposes in Midtown.

Several downtown businessmen were concerned that the building might adversely affect their business.

"They have a piece of property; they have a right to develop. Not developing is not really an alternative," Donaldson said.

Alden Deyo of The Aspen Tree bookstore said to allow another business building in town would reduce parking and that would reduce business.

Chairman Donaldson asked how business would be reduced.

Deyo said it would reduce the number of people who can walk downtown because of insufficient parking.

Donaldson said there was no parking on the proposed site and that the plan would increase parking by three spaces. He said that would not reduce business and any increase of parking is an asset to all the downtown businesses.

"It's only the people that are walking that create the business downtown," Deyo said. "If they don't have a place to park, they're isn't anybody walking."

"I don't follow your logic," Donaldson said. He said currently, it is illegal to park in that area. With the building, three parking spaces will be added.

"That's three plus, not three minus," Donaldson said.

Donaldson said the concept of downtown is a shopping mall, and rather to have holes, buildings fill those holes when it doesn't cost downtown businesses any parking.

Deyo said calling the downtown area a shopping mall was a misconception of the MainStreet program. He said the MainStreet program is about widening sidewalks so that people can walk in safety.

Donaldson said the MainStreet Program not only talks about sidewalks, but parking and the kind of businesses that provide a proper mix.

"That's a shopping center," Donaldson said. "If you don't sell it (the shopping center concept) to the residents of Ruidoso that are paying for this, they won't want to spend the additional money."

"We're taking our downtown, which is dysfunctional, and creating a shopping center concept. The solution to the parking is not individual businesses creating individual parking for their business, its shared parking. People park at their gallery, walk through, and then go next door to look at your business," Donaldson said.

He said the problem in downtown at this time is owners telling customers to move their cars after they have visited their stores.

He said new signage directed at parking areas on El Paso and Rio streets will help alleviate some of the parking problem.

"From the taxpayers' point of view, I think it (directional signage of side street parking) will be the greatest thing that has happened to this town in some time," Donaldson said. "But, it is going to have to come through cooperation. Businesses in malls understand that type of competition."

Donaldson said no one from J.C. Penneys stops customers from walking through their stores to get to Dillard's.

"They (Penneys) think that's great. They have a shot at that customer," he said. "They're intent may be to go to Dillard's, but they may stop. That's the attitude we have to create downtown."

Donaldson said village ordinances were amended in February to allow the commission to grant parking variances.

Deyo said the two new buildings downtown would cause him to reconsider the use of his parking lot.

"I would like you folks to know, that the additional pedestrians generated by these two new businesses and the resultant number of cars that need to be parked, are going to mean that we are going to have to reevaluate the utilization of our parking lot," Deyo said. "I don't know that we will change at this point, but we will certainly have to reconsider the situation. In the past, our parking lot has been open to everyone, we would like to keep it this way."

Deyo said other businesses are using his lot for their employees and themselves.

"I think you're making a big mistake if you don't run those employees and business owners out of your lot," said Donaldson. "I think you make a gross mistake to run customers out of your lot."

Deyo said he might have to close this lot.

"That's within your power," Donaldson said. "However, you would be making a big mistake if you ran customers out."

The commission also approved: —a replat for Kevin and Nancy Fleharty of Ponderosa Heights Subdivision. Fleharty wants to combine Lots 9 and 10 into one lot containing 10,715 square feet.

—approved a variance for Jack Edwards. Rieker to demolish and rebuild a smaller home on his lot at 106 Slay Road.

Black bears like going out to eat in Ruidoso

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Visitors to Ruidoso as part of their vacation experiences often look forward to seeing black bears lumbering down from the high mountains in search of food.

"They do a lot of foolish things like hang meat on their front porches or lay watermelons quarters on the garbage dumpsters," said game warden Ron Moore.

"Then later they complain because the bear comes back and rips a screen door or tears into the garbage container. They don't seem to understand that the bears aren't going to abide by good manners and leave when the people tire of the novelty."

Moore said that after spending two months responding to complaints only to find obvious abuses by the callers, he's cracking down.

"I have been spending two to three hours each day on bear calls, and most are not necessary," Moore said. "With a little common sense on the handling of trash, bird and pet food."

"I tell the people if they don't want the bears on their porches, put away the bird food and the hummingbird feeders, but they don't want to do it."

"To be frank, the hummingbird feeders really aren't good for the birds any way. The liquid doesn't contain the nutrients the birds need and get from natural food sources. Sometimes, people leave them out too long, the birds migrate late and get caught with no food along the way. Plant flowers if you want to see the hummingbirds."

Moore said he has started issuing citations to people who deliberately attract the bears with food baits, feeders or other lures.

"If the complaints are bad enough, I'm left with only one option, destroying the bear," Moore said. "People don't usually want that and then they understand. Studies show that just relocating them doesn't work. They will travel as much as 300 miles to come back. And chances are, if it's a good habitat they're taken to, some bears already will be there with their territory staked out."

Moore reminded visitors and residents that "we live in the woods." Besides bears, deer and even an occasional mountain lion shows up when the pickings are slim further up the mountain. He said some people who call to complain about a bear seem irritated that he doesn't get excited about their situations.

"We'll never get rid of them (bears) as long as we have the (garbage) dumpsters," Moore said. "With all the possible chances for interaction, use common sense and it will be a pleasant and not a tragic experience."

Moore met with Joe Lewandowski, general manager of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, to discuss the possibility of latching the dumpster lids to prevent bear access, as is done in the Cloudcroft area. In a report to his board last week, Lewandowski said that approach is not part of the picture for this summer, but may be used next year at key sites frequented by bears.

"I've had no camper complaints, although everybody is seeing them (bears)," Moore said. "I hear rumors of them getting into houses, but I haven't been on any calls involving a bear inside. One did get into a pigeon coop."

Last year, he responded to three calls with bears that entered homes in the Alto area through screen doors or windows.

"Someone walked in on one and it was a race to see who could get out the fastest," Moore said.

House trash should be kept inside or deposited into a dumpster, not put outside on the porch or in the back of a pickup truck, he said.

"They just follow the smell," he said of the bears. "The bears are here, but I don't think it's a problem and with the rain starting, they may head back up. It was too dry before for anything (berries) to grow."

Downs LTAB approves two requests for promotion funds

Ruidoso Downs Lodgers Tax Advisory Board met Monday and heard requests from two organizations for a total of $7,000.

The board, responsible for making recommendations to the Village Board of Trustees concerning the lodgers tax, heard and approved two requests for funding.

The first request came from the Friends of Smokey. The group is asking for money to promote the 50th Anniversary of Smokey Bear. The events will be kicked off in October and will run throughout the year.

The second request came from Apache Trails. Apache Trails was asking for $2,000 for tourist promotion for the area.

The recommendations will be heard on Monday at the next regular meeting of the Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees.

Food Bank needs food, cash

Officers of the Lincoln County Food Bank say the bank's food supply and cash-on-hand are in critical need of help.

Bob Messick, president of the food bank, states that the crisis has resulted from an unusually high number of families requesting food during June and July.

This was accompanied by the usual slack in the donations from the "Food Wheel" church and service organizations during the vacation months when many members are out of town, said Messick.

He also reminded area residents and vacationers that non-perishable foods may be dropped off at the Ruidoso, Hollywood, Alto, Capitan and Carrizozo post offices (look for the blue plastic containers with LCFB labeling).

Checks can be mailed to: LCFB, PO Box 1372, Ruidoso NM 88345. The food bank is a completely volunteer organization and receives no funds from federal or state organizations.

Lodgers board can't meet — lacks members and business

The Lodgers Tax Advisory Board (LTAB) didn't meet this week for lack of a quorum.

According to village clerk Tammie Maddox, the agenda was light and most of the money has been allocated this year. Maddox said the board has a new time to meet and that has caused some confusion, with one member, Ed Hyman, showing up at the old time of 4:30 p.m.

The new LTAB meeting time is 3 p.m. the third Tuesday of each month.

Just one member, Linette Moore, was present for the regular meeting, with members Patricia Espinosa and Bob Carey absent. The five-member board is one member short.

Roswell All Stars victorious in Little League baseball regional tournament

Over as quickly as it started, the Regional All-Star Tournament ended Tuesday night at the Ruidoso Little League field.

The tournament, which started July 9, ended with a deluge of rain and runs during the championship game.

Roswell's Noon Optimist team came out on top with a convincing 27-4 win against the Alamo Optimist team.

Roswell controlled the game from the start scoring 13 runs in the top of the first inning. They scored all 27 of their runs before the Alamogordo team brought in a run.

The game, although already controlled by Roswell, had to be postponed due to a rainstorm that hit during the second inning. But, once the rain stopped, Little League Association volunteers quickly removed the tarps from the infield and got the game under way again.

"The tournament took a lot more work than normal," said Jim Stover, vice-president of the Little League Association. "We had a lot of rain to deal with."

Despite the rain, Stover, association president Scott Schrader and other volunteers kept the field in good condition for the duration of the week and a half tourney. Only one game during the tournament had to be canceled because of the rains.

"We had some excellent people willing to go out there and take care of the field," said Stover.

In fact, even with all of the rains, the field was one of the things that visiting teams complimented the most about the tournament.

"The other coaches kept saying that they were really impressed with the field," said Stover. "Several nights we had rain on the field but it held up really well. We were really fortunate that we had all that sand and gravel donated."

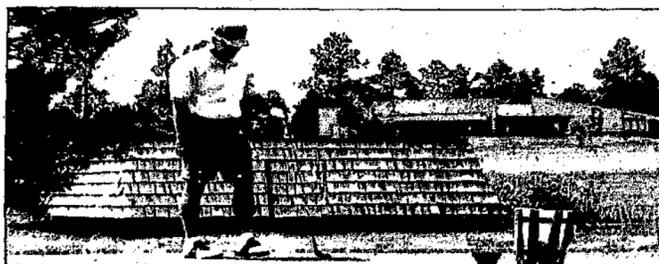

Although the tournament was hosted by Ruidoso, the Ruidoso All Star team was knocked out after only two games.

The first loss came at the hands of the Noon Optimist squad 8-0, the eventual tournament winner, in the first game, while they lost to the Valley team 7-1 in the losers bracket.

"Our team practiced real hard and did the best they could," said Stover. "We had a lot of new players and we saw Tuesday that there were some real powerhouses in our region."

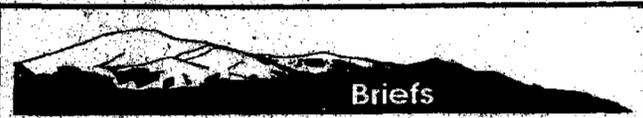

The Roswell Noon Optimist All Star team huddles before taking the field after a rain delay during the Regional All Star championship game on Tuesday.

Tourney time

Golfers from throughout the area came to Alto Country Club this week for the Snow Capper Golf Tournament. The member-guest tournament, in its 20th year, features 240 golfers. These golfers pictured, Gil Klaus, Marvin Herd, Rob Robinson, Jimmy Carpenter and Johnny French do their best to have that winning shot. The tournament started on Wednesday and will be played until Friday at the Alto Country Club.

Warriors scrimmage tonight

Members of the Ruidoso Warriors football team will be in action tonight at Warrior Stadium.

The team will be a part of a seven-on-seven tournament starting at around 6:30 p.m.

Artesia and Capitan are scheduled to be at the tournament. Mayfield High of Las Cruces and Tularosa were invited but have not called to confirm the invitation.

Ruidoso High School football coach Mike Gaston arranged the tournament after he took his team to a similar tournament in Albuquerque earlier in the summer.

Gaston said he also wants to get his team back into the swing of football after taking so much time off.

"The kids start practice in about three weeks so we need to get them thinking about football and being competitive again," said Gaston.

According to Gaston, the tournament should be a simple one, with teams trading off on offense and defense after about 15 plays on each side.

"We'll make it real simple," said Gaston. "We're just doing it to get the kids a little experience."

After tonight, the next chance to see the Warriors will be August 20 with a scrimmage against Tucumcari at Warrior Stadium.

The Warrior season will officially open on August 27 with a battle at Artesia.

Racing

1993 Ruidoso meet declared a success at halfway point

Midway through this 70-day summer stand, some new faces on the racetrack are making an impression as well as many seasoned veterans. Handle and attendance figures have shown increases from last year and the battle for the top spots in the jockey/trainer standings should be exciting all the way up to closing day September 6.

The obvious choice for Horse-of-the-Meet honors so far is Wayne Dallas Treacherously, winner of the Grade I $326,000 Ruidoso Quarter Horse Futurity. The gelded son of Runaway Winner, who captured the Sun Country Futurity at Sunland Park in April, is the only horse in the nation to win two Grade I futurities this year.

The Sam Sandoval-trained is undefeated in six career outings with earnings of nearly $175,000. Three of his victories have come over the local racing strip.

Treacherously ran the seventh fastest qualifying time for the Grade I $554,000 Rainbow Futurity and will make his next start in the July 25 final.

Deceptively, last year's Quarter Horse of the Meet here, is back in top form after winning the Grade I $283,043 Derby on July 4.

Top jockey Joe Martinez heads for the finish line aboard Cream To The Top to win the $41,772 Rainbow Derby Consolation.

The Bruce Bell-charge also ran a strong third in the Grade I Kansas Derby on May 31 and has won two of four starts this year with earnings of $110,000 for owner Roger Knight Jr. The Runaway Winner filly is being pointed towards the Grade I All American Derby on Labor Day Weekend.

On the thoroughbred front, Leonard Monti's Last Don B. is the only multiple stakes winner. The 6-year-old gelding scored an impressive victory in the Governor's Handicap and set a new 7 1/2-furlong track record.

Last Don B. returned two weeks later to beat a solid field in the Mescalero Apache Handicap going six furlongs.

Saint Patties Lucy, winner of the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity and Set Records, the Norgor Futurity victor, are the two most talented two-year-olds on the grounds. Saint Patties Lucy easily defeated her New Mexico-bred foes in the Kindergarten and has won both her starts here this summer. Set Records, a well-bred son of Sauce Boat, cruised home by 7 1/2-lengths in the Norgor and his time of 1:03.4 is the fastest 5 1/2-furlong time of the meet for a 2-year-old.

The Fred Danley-charge Amandas Nice Boy also merits consideration after winning the July 18 Rio Grande Futurity and placing in both the Norgor and Kindergarten Futurities.

The jockey standings have two clear cut leaders in both the quarter horse and thoroughbred categories. Joe Martinez is having a great meet as the leader in the quarter horse standings with 23 wins. He also has 18 thoroughbred winners which ranks fifth behind Oscar Ceballos with 30. Ceballos won the $80,000 Ruidoso Budweiser Breeders' Cup in June and leads by nine over Todd Fincher with 21 wins.

Luke Myles is a distant second in the quarter horse ranks with 14 victories.

Among quarter horse trainers, Jack Brooks and Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath are neck and neck with seventeen winners each. Cliff Lambert Sr. with 17 thoroughbred triumphs, holds a narrow advantage over Fred Danley who has notched 16 wins.

Handle figures are up considerably from last year's figures in nearly all categories. The track had the best Memorial Day Weekend in history and the best Fourth Of July Weekend this decade in terms of attendance and handle.

Overall handle is up 4.3 percent in only 37 race days compared to 41 last year at this point. Average handle has shown the biggest increase with a 15.6 percent upturn from 1992.

Average attendance is up 7.2 percent from 1992. Overall attendance is down only 3.3 percent in four less race days than last year.

Thoroughbred Last Don B. is the only multiple stakes winner so far this season. Last Don B. is shown hearing winning the $12,755 Mescalero Apache Handicap.

All Flags Flying aims for two straight in the Friday feature

The 6-year-old gelding All Flags Flying seeks his second straight victory as he goes to post the probable favorite in the $10,000 claiming feature Friday afternoon. The one mile route is open to 3-year-olds and up and offers a purse of $4,200.

All Flags Flying, a Massachusetts-bred by U.S. Flag, came from off the pace to score a one-length victory against $10,000 claimers July 15 for his first career win at Ruidoso. The Coy Hendrix-trained gelding ran in fifth position early on in the one-mile contest, but had moved into third at the top of the stretch.

Under steady urging by jockey Eric Perner, All Flags Flying rallied strongly in the stretch to outfinish Master Charge and Summingsfollowinme for the victory. The time was 1:41.4 over a sloppy track. The gelding had lit the board in two of four starts at Ruidoso prior to his last outing. All Flags Flying campaigned in Southern California before coming to New Mexico and recorded one win in four starts at Santa Anita this spring.

The gelding is owned by Hendrix and Edwin Boyd.

The speedy gelding Summingsfollowinme finished a respectable third behind All Flags Flying in the July 15 race and should also be respected in the compact field of seven.

The 4-year-old Kentucky-bred son of Summing, set the pace in his last outing, but tired late in the stretch to finish 2 1/2-lengths behind the winner. Trained by Mindy Willis and owned by Sharon Henthorn, Summingsfollowinme has only three starts this summer and seems to be in top shape for a strong effort Friday.

Edwin Mayer's Town Trickster, last year's Claiming Horse of the Meet at Ruidoso, also deserves a look in the feature.

Treacherously dominated his foes in the Rainbow Futurity trials and is the top choice so far for horse-of-the-meet during this 70-day race card at Ruidoso Downs.

Round the barrel

Court Franklin reaches for the flag as his horse rounds the barrel during a recent Play Day rodeo event at the Lincoln County Fairground in Capitan. The rodeos offer young cowboys and cowgirls some summer fun while learning the skills that they may need on the ranch later or to compete in the adult equivalent event.

Pony Express rides again in August

The 25th Lincoln County Pony Express will run Saturday, August 7, from Capitan Gap to White Oaks.

That initial historic event that sparks the pages of western history, is unique in that the Pony Express carried the mail for such a short time, wrote Dorothy Guck in a news release.

The first Pony Express lasted only 19 months — from April 1860 to October 1861 — from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Sacramento, California, 1,966 miles. During that time, the Pony Express galloped 650,000 miles, and carried 34,753 pieces of mail — losing only one sack, wrote Guck in an article that gave the history of the Pony Express.

Rules have increased over the years, including a requirement for western gear and dress, each team furnishes its own mail pouch and teams must stay on and follow the marked course. First and third horses must be presaddled, and the race starts promptly at 8 a.m. August at Capitan Gap (turn off U.S. 380 one and a half miles east of Capitan).

The first lap runs to Hammond; second to Encinosa school; third to John Robinson turnoff; and fourth to White Oaks Museum, all fully marked. The riders must dismount and run with the mail pouch to deposit it in the hands of the U.S. postal officials.

This year, teams from New Mexico and Colorado are expected to compete, and many participants of earlier races. Avid rooters cannot impede the races, but can find vantage points before the start to watch, along, but 50 feet off the side of the route, or by being at the finish line in White Oaks.

Anyone wanting to send a letter to be mailed via Pony Express, boxes will be placed in several locations in the county with envelopes for $2 each, to be addressed and returned to one of the boxes.

A day of family fun will entertain you at White Oaks after the race is finished.

A new arena has been built for a kids rodeo, adult steer roping and exhibitions of cattle and horse work.

There will be a First Aid tent for scratches or sunburn problems, and hamburgers and soft drinks for sale.

"If you have never been to historic White Oaks, you might like to have a tour of some of the buildings and the cemetery where the first governor of New Mexico is buried," invites Guck.

"Or, bring a picnic lunch, a camera and enjoy the old West style of life."

The road to White Oaks is off Highway 54, four miles north of Carrizozo, then nine miles east.

Conservation group to meet, elect officers

Three supervisors of the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District will be elected at 7 p.m. September 2.

Nominating petitions must be signed by at least 10 eligible voters and returned to the district office by August 5. Nominations also will be allowed from the floor.

Owners of land within the district are eligible to serve as supervisors. The positions currently are filled by John A. Cooper, Ernest McDaniel and Alfred Gonzales.

The vote will occur during a meeting at the home of Bob Boehinger, milepost 281.6 on U.S. 70 in San Patricio. All owners of land within the Upper Hondo district are eligible to vote. Persons may be asked by election officials to provide a tax receipt or other documentation of land ownership to verify eligibility to vote.

Absentee ballots will be available on request by mail between August 6-18. They will be mailed by August 20 and must be received by the district on election day or before to be counted.

Absentee ballots requested in person will be available between August 20 to September 1.

Nominations should be mailed to the district office, Box 900, Capitan, NM 88316. For more information, call Sue Stearns at 354-2220 or 648-2941.

Payne prospers

Tamela Payne of the Capitan chapter of Future Farmers of America has been picked for a $1,000 scholarship from the Santa Fe Pacific Foundation by the National FFA Organization. A 1993 graduate from Capitan High School and the daughter of Curtis and Beverly Payne of Capitan, Payne will use the scholarship money to pursue a degree in veterinary science at New Mexico State University.

Improvements are slated for U.S. Forest Service recreation areas

Major development is planned for the Baca Recreation site east of Capitan, under a proposal by the U.S. Forest Service to construct and rehabilitate several facilities.

To ensure public comments can be incorporated into the analysis of that project and others in the Lincoln National Forest near Ruidoso, Carlsbad and Alamogordo, they should be submitted by July 30.

The Baca site

Once a Civilian Conservation Corps camp and forest service ranger station, the Baca area has become very popular for families and large group camping activities. It is situated on Forest Road 57 off State Highway 380 east of Capitan inside the Smokey Bear Ranger District.

To protect the environment and cultural resources of the area, service officials want to concentrate the usage in appropriate sections to avoid the more sensitive segments of the property.

To encourage that pattern of use, service officials propose developing family and group areas, providing pavilions, a water system, tables, fire rings and grills.

The gravel road would be rebuilt and spurs developed. A parking area and dump station are planned. Interpretive and information signs would be installed with improved access at all points.

Three Rivers

Heavily used Three Rivers on Forest Road 579 off U.S. 70 between Alamogordo and Carrizozo, requires extensive erosion control.

At the base of the White Mountain Wilderness within the Smokey Bear District, the site would be improved to allow more access to those with disabilities.

The existing campsites would be rehabilitated, new camp sites would be constructed, restrooms would be replaced and potable water would be provided.

Traffic control, tables, fire rings and trash bins would be improved.

The road system would be paved and a host site created. Interpretive and information signs would be installed.

Schoolhouse site

The Schoolhouse project area consists of a small piece of land north of Alamogordo on State Highway 48 on the way to Bonito Lake northwest of Ruidoso.

The site in Schoolhouse Canyon, which is part of the Smokey Bear District, should be restricted to day-use only, service officials contend.

"There is a need to protect the resource and correct unsanitary conditions by semi-hardening the site and providing day-use activities only, with access to the southeast section of the White Mountain Wilderness," officials state in the proposal.

The proposed project includes grading and graveling the access road and parking area, providing restrooms, information and entrance signs, fire rings and tables.

All facilities would be accessible to persons with disabilities.

Sitting Bulls Falls

Sitting Bulls Falls, located in the Guadalupe Ranger District on Forest Road 276 off State Highway 137 near Carlsbad, was used as a recreation site by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Two of the corps constructed ramadas still stand there today.

The proposal is to rehabilitate existing facilities incorporating a corps theme in accordance with the existing structures.

To accomplish that, the metal ramada now at the site will be replaced with structures similar to the corps ramadas. Rehabilitation also will take place on existing restrooms, trails and parking, including a host site, new paved trails, signs, tables and fire rings.

Access to restrooms and picnic sites will be barrier-free as far as possible to the water fall.

Haynes Vista

Closer to home, a new vista construction is being proposed adjacent to Haynes Canyon Research Natural Area on the Sunspot Scenic Byway (State Highway 6563) south of Cloudfrock.

The project would include construction of a viewing platform, entrance and interpretive signs, benches on and around the viewing platform, an information kiosk and a hardened trail.

All facilities would be accessible to persons with disabilities.

"This vista would serve as a welcome and introduction point to the Sunspot Scenic Byway," service officials wrote.

"Interpretive/educational signs would be added to provide information on the Tularosa Basin, White Sands National Monument and the Haynes Canyon Research Natural Area. The vista overlooks all of these features."

Tunnel Vista

Tunnel Vista project area is located on U.S. 82 about eight miles west of Cloudfrock within the Cloudfrock Ranger District.

The concept is based on rehabilitating the existing highway pullout and designing a scenic and interpretive vista for the tunnel and its surrounding landscape. Rehabilitation would consist of repaving the current pullout, adding a viewing platform, trash receptacles, rock wall, interpretive signs and landscaping.

Access for the disabled would be provided.

Trestle Vista

The proposed project on U.S. 82 one mile west of Cloudfrock focuses on the remnant of a old logging railroad trestle that operated from the 1880s to the early 1940s.

The concept would be to reconstruct the existing highway pullout and design a scenic viewing and interpretive vista for the Mexican Canyon Trestle.

Reconstruction would consist of expanding the current pullout and constructing a larger, safer parking area. Barriers at the edge of the vista are proposed for visitor safety and to protect the Trestle from vandalism. The addition of interpretive signs would give visitors information about the railroad and trestle. All facilities would be accessible to persons with disabilities.

Comments on any of these projects should be mailed to Lincoln National Forest, Attention Erin Connelly, 1101 New York Avenue, Alamogordo, NM 88310.

For more information, call Johnny Wilson, recreation staff, or Erin Connelly, assistant recreation staff, at 505-437-6090.

County offers some help to improve Carrizozo's streets

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The town of Carrizozo will receive some financial help to pave two side streets around the Lincoln County Courthouse.

The County Commission last week approved $15,000 to nearly cover the entire cost of repaving Northside and Fourth Avenue.

That's a bargain price, Carrizozo Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel told commissioners. Because the two streets were bid as an alternate as part of a $477,500 federal Community Development Block Grant package, the cost is much lower than it would be if they had been bid separately.

Unfortunately, the two streets don't qualify under the grant program. However, Eleventh Street, behind the courthouse does. The two side streets will complete the circle around the structure.

The exact cost was estimated at $8,100 per street. The commission gave the nod to a flat $16,000 and included that figure in the final budget, also approved at the meeting. The work will consist of removing the hot mix top, reworking the base course and replacing two-inches of surface material.

The county will pay the town and the town will pay the contractor. The project should take two to three months to complete, Kuhnel said.

In other business, the commission approved adjustments in the final 1998-99 budget, which included an increase in expenditures from an estimated $7,471,763 to $7,649,320.

County manager Andy Wynham said the difference primarily reflects the Medicaid funding at Lincoln County Medical Center.

On the other hand, projected revenues are down to $6,685,000 from $6,732,000 originally anticipated. The two major areas of loss were connected to law enforcement, Wynham said. A federal drug enforcement grant was estimated at $100,000, but came in at $70,000. A $22,000 grant anticipated for the DARE school drug education program was turned down.

On the very big plus side, the county's beginning cash balance for the budget year, which had been estimated at $3,973,000 turned out to be $5,280,089.

"The departments were very careful not to spend in the last quarter of the year," Wynham said, commending the elected officials and their employees.

The commission still will have to subsidize the road department by just under $250,000 from the general fund.

Eliminating the subsidy "can't be addressed in one fiscal year," Wynham said.

—reached an understanding with Jerry Cazares about the business aims of R.C. Bulls (which Cazares said he will be renaming J.C. Bulls).

Cazares said in the future, commissioners should not react to rumors and complaints, but should check for themselves. The rumors were unfounded, he contended.

In a unique approach, patrons can ride real bulls at the restaurant, besides enjoying music and dancing. The atmosphere is wholesome, he said.

The state turned down a picnic license for the opening of the business, which would allow Cazares to serve liquor for 72 hours. State officials said it is an on-going business, not a special event for which the license was intended.

That's no problem, Cazares said. In fact, having no alcohol creates a better family atmosphere, he said. However, he may try to secure picnic licenses for holiday weekends.

Cazares said he relied on the state to give him accurate information about licensing, but the first person who really helped him was Wynham. Then Commissioner Wilton Howell came out to see the operation first hand.

The situation brought to light that commissioners no longer should be signing documents as one member of the board authorizing action.

Commissioner L.Ray Nunley had signed for the picnic license, but thought it was only to cover a Fourth of July weekend event, he said.

Chairman Monroy Montes said that procedure for issuing such licenses has changed.

"No longer can one commissioner sign," he said. "Now it must be run through the county manager, because it's causing problems and it's easier to collect the $10 per day."

"As I read it, it doesn't negate a commissioner's right to sign, but we have delegated it to the manager," said Commissioner Stirling Spencer. "If the commission meets and votes to issue a license, it doesn't matter who signs," Wynham said. "But that's why you voted to make it an administrative function. It never comes to the commission."

"One commissioner really has no authority to sign anything unless authorized by this board," Montes said. "(For example) if Commissioner Bill Schwetzmann signs something and no one else knows, there could be real problems."

Nunley said employees of the sheriff's department have brought him travel vouchers to sign.

"Tell the sheriff he has to do things in a timely manner or someone won't get paid," Spencer said. "I'd sure like to see that happen," Nunley said. "I've gotten into trouble twice."

"I think it comes down to, if you need a liquor license for the last super, you've got a problem."

Hospital recruits new surgeon

by GARY CAMPBELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lincoln County Medical Center board of directors find themselves one step closer to having a new general surgeon on staff.

The doctor, Jurgen Rebstock, formerly practicing in California, has agreed to move to Ruidoso and join the LCMC staff.

The catch however, is that Rebstock still needs to be granted a license by the State Medical Board.

That process has been in the works for the last month and a half according to hospital administrator Valerie Miller.

Rebstock's license has been held up because he went to medical school in Berlin and the medical board doesn't approve of his transcripts in their current form. The board does not give any weight to the fact that Rebstock has been a licensed physician in California for more than 20 years and as a part of his schooling he interned in the United States.

But, according to Miller, Rebstock is scheduled to meet with the board sometime in the next two weeks, which is something that is required before a physician can get a license.

"He will be here probably by the first of August," said Miller. "We expect to have him here and fully functioning as a general surgeon."

The licensing is needed before Rebstock can get malpractice and other medical insurance.

Rebstock will serve as a general surgeon. Currently the LCMC staff has one general surgeon and another family practitioner that do most of the general surgery.

For the month of June, those two surgeons, along with the other specialized surgeons, performed 92 operations.

"When I first got here, we were lucky to do 60 a month," said Miller. "We are doing the same amount as several hospitals twice our size."

Miller added that a general surgeon averages 20 operations per month, and adding another surgeon will increase the hospital's productivity.

Rebstock also will bring with him to the hospital a new way of doing gall bladder surgery.

The procedure called laparoscopy is performed by inserting a small tube into the body as opposed to making a large incision such as the current procedure.

Along with the smaller incision, comes a smaller recovery period. The recovery takes about two days in the hospital and about a week at home.

"I don't know whether we have the equipment that he needs for it," said Miller. "But, I think we do."

Another item of discussion during the LCMC board meeting was a pay raise given to the hospital's staff.

Originally hospital administrators had agreed to give the staff a five percent pay raise. The hospital could not find that money for the raises, so they decided to give the staff a four percent lump sum increase. This means that the full-time employees get a one time check for four percent of their annual base income. Employees with an "average of less than full-time hours, will get an adjustment on the amount of their check."

LCMC board member Dub Williams embraces LCMC scholarship winner Jeri Ann Keeton.

The board also recognized 1993 LCMC college scholarship recipient, Jeri Ann Keeton.

Keeton, scheduled to attend the University of New Mexico in the fall, received a total of $2,000 toward her education from the hospital.

Keeton announced during the meeting that she will be going into some form of nursing in the future.

A friend

Village clerk Tammie Maddox was surprised at the last council meeting with a plaque presented by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. The plaque read "for being a friend, a great help and making our days brighter."

Racing writers gathering here

Ruidoso Downs Race Track and the Museum of the Horse will be hosting a unique writers workshop beginning August 24 through September 6, 1998.

The application deadline for the Writers for Racing Project's Sierra Blanca Writers Workshop has been extended to July 30.

The workshop, which is a gathering of undergraduate, graduate and post-graduate writers from around the country, will be taught by author Gary Gildner, whose credits include a National Magazine Award for Fiction, the Pushcart Prize, a Robert Frost Fellowship and two NEA and Fulbright Fellowships.

Scholarship money from the Project and the American Quarter Horse Association is still available to qualified applicants, according to the Project's National Director, Karl Garson.

"Acceptance into the workshop is based on the quality of previous writing submitted by the applicant. From the start this project has sought to bring the best writers to the best sport, horse racing," Garson said.

Those interested in the Sierra Blanca Writers Workshop should contact Karl Garson at the project offices at PO Box 3098, Princeton, New Jersey 08543-3098; or call (609) 275-2947 for information.

Silver Lining

Christmas in July 1993 is a big success

Christmas in July One of the Best

The annual Christmas in July Bazaar sponsored by Saint Anne's Guild of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County, was well attended and very successful. Lucie Page, president of the guild, expressed appreciation for the good spirit shown by the workers and the response of the public.

Chairpersons of the various divisions, along with some of the items, and names of those helping out, are as follows:

Crafts: Sheila Crawley—Jean Riddett, Barbara Rizzo and Marge Garner. Among the items: button covers, wooden Santas, hand-crafted T-shirts, clay pot nutcracker soldiers, fabric covered boxes, wooden hand painted Angel Gabriels, various Christmas decorations.

Baked goods: Pat Tate—Liz Munro, Majel Powell, and Shirley Stevenson. Items: rum cake, cheesecake, breads of all kinds, pies, pickles, pasta, seasoning.

Garage sale: Nancy Cronin-Frank Crawley, George Cronin, David Whatley and Bob Whiteley. Items: a very great variety.

Candy: Cathy Annala—Barbara Rizzo. Items: English toffee, peanut brittle.

Luncheon: Diane Whiteley—George Rizzo, Gib Munro, Ruth Wardlaw. Menu: beef taterina, herbed bread, salad, beverage, dessert.

Special Christmas cards depicting the front of the Church of the Holy Mount from the inside were on sale by Susan Penn, Ingrid Schmitz, Stan Thomas and Sandy Thomas.

The Raffle: Sandy Thomas, Jane Deyo and Susan Penn.

An attractive feature of the day was the raffle of a quilt, a Victorian doll and two pillows featuring the states of Alaska and Hawaii.

The quilt was made of squares featuring the 48 contiguous states of the union with the state flower, state tree and state bird em-

by Daniel Agnew Storm

broided pictorially, together with the date of entry into the union. Squares the same as on the quilt were sewn onto the two pillows for Alaska and Hawaii.

The Victorian doll was made by Peggy Alford.

Money for the material and the quilting by the senior citizens was given by Alene Luck, who then gave the quilt for the drawing.

The pictorial embroidery on the squares was done by Sylvesta James.

The quilt, the pillows and the doll are the work of very gifted people and are real treasures and valuable mementos of this Christmas in July.

The Christmas tree with realistic-looking snow, pine cone and handcrafted decorations was a charming centerpiece in the room. And the soldiers made from clay flower pots and dressed in true military attire.

Children who helped out with the luncheon are Erica Cronin, Annalise Haussler, Pamela Shows and Misty Longwell.

All the crafts were works of great originality and charm; the dinner was great, and the baked goods were fine and the candy the best.

Susan Penn presented me with a loaf of lemon pound cake which was truly grand.

All in all the entire celebration was a heart-warming example of America at its best, a program presented by folks with willing hands and kind hearts, to which the entire community responded with fine support and good will.

We thank all those who made this year's Christmas in July a day long to be remembered.

Birthdays Remembered at Saint Anne's Services

At last Sunday's services at Saint Anne's Chapel, the Reverend Anna Gaddy based her sermon on the Gospel according to Saint Matthew: "The kingdom of Heaven may be compared to someone who sowed good seed in his field..."

Stan and Sandy Thomas led in the singing of the hymns.

In the prayers of the people, John Cooper gave blessings for the birthdays of Mary Cooper, Stan Thomas, Donald Riddett, Cora Sweeney, Elena Shows, Erica Shrecengost, Pat Sullivan, Barry Herd and Kendra Hart.

And for the anniversaries of John and Mary Gurley Landrum and Jake and Ingrid Schmitz.

Old Lincoln Days

Old Lincoln Days will be held this year the sixth, seventh and eighth of August.

This year's Billy the Kid is John Shrecengost. John is Kid number nine. The others being Peter Hurd, John Davis, John Thomas, Tom Taylor, Earl Taylor, Bill Shrecengost, Bert David Shrecengost and Thomas Shrecengost.

The day in Old Lincoln was begun in 1940 as a local celebration of New Mexico's four hundredth birthday or Cuarto Centennial. During World War II it was discontinued and revived in 1949, and has continued annually since that time.

The recent rains have dressed up the countryside of the historic village of Lincoln to welcome you to the three days celebration.

Real leaders take action instead of reacting to crises

Our new mayor and council have plenty of challenges ahead, but they took action last week to overcome one of their greatest problems. Over the past three years employee morale has fallen to an all-time low, and the mayor and council approved a raise for all employees that is one way of showing the municipal workers that they're important to this town and its leaders.

That's just a first step, and we would challenge Mayor Jerry Shaw and the council to take a bold approach in establishing goals and priorities and seeking to implement them for the good of the village.

A piece of unfinished business needing immediate action is the sign ordinance, a workable and logical document that has gone by the wayside to the detriment of this village. Former mayor Alonso never liked the sign ordinance, and spoke against it as a councilor. It was well-researched and passed, then debated and redebated several years later during the hearings on the village comprehensive plan. Over and over, the commissioners and councilors studied and talked; they finally agreed that the sign ordinance works and it should be enforced.

And then, during the Alonso Administration, the sign ordinance was put on a back shelf and the council enacted a moratorium on its enforcement. Is it really appropriate for a council to leave an ordinance on the books and instruct enforcement officers not to enforce it? A committee said more personnel would be needed to enforce the sign ordinance, but that was just a smokescreen. How hard is it for the village planner or enforcement officer to write a ticket or call the police and ask them to write a ticket?

But, the sign ordinance is not being enforced, and village businesses are investing in signs and banners that don't meet village standards. They'll complain loudly when the village gets around to making them comply and requires them to take down oversized signs, banners, flags and such.

Meanwhile, the signs, banners and flags are getting bigger and bigger, and the village is beginning to look more like a flea market than a resort community. The moratorium on enforcing the sign ordinance represented a short-sighted approach. The ordinance has been fully studied over the years and it fits this mountain village. It should be enforced.

And, after closing this chapter of leftover business, our new mayor and council can set forth their own agenda — one we hope will be established through study and debate rather than by reacting to crises.

And we played on Remembering peaceful summers in Ruidoso

We sat screaming at the top of our lungs! At long last our voices were heard, and some grownup came to our rescue. Mother's hobnob had hemmed us in the playhouse!

In reality, the playhouse was a two-room, three-sided shed housing a bed and other discarded furniture. Many happy hours were spent in those two rooms.

It was our safe haven from the sudden thunderstorms that brought sheets of rain pounding the tin roof with its thunderous, deafening noise. Even shouting, we could hardly hear ourselves, but we played on in the cool, damp air.

Growing up on Carrizo Creek Road in Ruidoso was a continual adventure for three spunky little girls.

When not in the playhouse, my two cousins, Evadean and Nadine, and I were off to see what the day would hold. There was a mountain to climb, a creek to swim in and even grandmother's chicken coop to explore!

Whenever we weren't fighting, we would string around trees, bushes and stumps that served as Spider Woman's web. On the creek bank, we played "Tarzan and the Magic Fountain of Youth" or whatever Tarzan movie we had last seen.

Many days were spent on the mountain under the tall pines. As we ran slipping and sliding on the slick pine needles, Evadean swore "honest to God" that a mountain lion was lurking around, just waiting to eat us up!

Some days, we took a sack lunch and didn't come home until late in the afternoon. Occasionally, mother would come down to the creek, holler to find out where we were on the mountain and then, satisfied that we were all right, go back to her chores.

Perhaps our most refreshing activity on those warm summer days was damming up the creek and floating on inner tubes. When an occasional "water moccasin" happened along, we nearly drowned ourselves as we hurriedly got out of its way.

On lazy afternoons, tired of playing taxi with the wheelbarrow, we lay on our backs in one of the rooms of Uncle Claude's uncompleted house. There we studied the mysterious forms of the fluffy, white clouds that floated high above us.

Nadine, the oldest, informed us that if we dug far enough, we could reach China. "Yes," Evadean said, "but we would have to go through hell first 'cause everyone knows that hell is down, and heaven is up."

About that time, one of us would get mad and go stomping off home, threatening never to play with the other two again.

However, on Saturday afternoon, the three of us would either go to the skating rink or to the picture show. Walking to town, we picked the tiny wildflowers, and nibbled on the tangy, tart leaf of the sheepsheaders that grew along the narrow dirt path.

As much as we enjoyed spending the afternoon at the skating rink, going to the show was better. The wonderful musicals of Howard Keel, Bing Crosby, Doris Day and Marge and Gower Champion delighted us; the gloriously exciting pirate adventures on the high seas enchanted us; and riding along the trail with Hop-A-Long Cassidy, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry made us believe that right always triumphed over wrong and that the cowboy always got the girl.

Walking back home, we stopped at the Five-and-Dime for paper dolls or a new coloring book. Our last stop was Cook's Drug Store where, sitting on high stools, we argued about what flavor of ice cream was best.

During those lazy, carefree days of childhood, our lives were simple. We had no worries or cares, just an occasional fuss. But tomorrow was another day, and we played on.

Optimist shares her perspective One family's favorite vacation

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading the editorial in Monday's (July 12, 1993) Ruidoso News, I was as confused as that little boy who was sitting by his mother listening to the preacher extol in glowing terms, his dead father; he tugged and tugged on his mother's sleeve until she stooped down to hear what the boy was saying. The puzzled lad whispered in a loud tone so that everyone could hear, "Ma, are you right sure, real sure that's Pa up in that coffin?"

From reading your editorial, I'm not sure I recognize some of the persons mentioned, but, of course, I wouldn't have only lived in Ruidoso for 48 years in November. And my being too young couldn't have anything to do with the thought that I might be confused, since I'm only 88 next month.

By the way, I've seen all the administrative councils come and go over the years. All tried and all made mistakes.

I've made a list of the worst, most costly mistakes (in my book) and have not found anything to criticize too strongly and much to praise in the Alonso Administration. They were often too involved trying to rectify the mistakes of previous administrations. "Good job" to that council considering what we citizens gave you to work with.

All one woman's opinion, but then my perspective is different.

"Two prisoners stood at the bars. One saw the mud, the other saw stars."

I look for stars; that's what I find. Let's all remember, it takes both sunshine and rain to make a rainbow.

TO THE EDITOR:

Every three years our family has a family reunion. Three years ago, this June, I was in charge of the reunion and decided to have it in Ruidoso.

We had family coming from Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Texas and New Mexico. There were 30 of us who got together.

The Chamber of Commerce of Ruidoso was extremely helpful in giving me information to send to everyone. It included information on lodging and all the special activities in the area.

We decided to stay at the DanDee Cabins. They were located in such a beautiful area with the river so close.

There were so many activities to include in our short visit. The girls loved all the shopping in the village. What a variety of shops. The guys took to the river and some played golf at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. What a beautiful place! Of course, we ride horses, played miniature golf and got wet on the bumper boats.

Our family from Wyoming Colorado really did love the great view from the Ski Run Road almost as much as the ones from Kansas.

We had a family picnic at the Cedar Creek pavilion. It was a real nice facility, so clean and kept up, and it allowed all of us to eat and play together.

This year we will be in Colorado Springs, but already there are plans in the works to come back to Ruidoso for our next reunion. We all loved it and will be seeing you in three years, if not before.

Pot maker's craft is more than just a little creative and unique

Dale Thompson, who first began chiseling intricately designed, minute wooden bowls while living in Ruidoso, is coming home for a special demonstration show.

He'll be working on his thumb-sized creations from noon to 5 p.m. Friday at the Canyon Art Gallery at Carrizo Lodge.

In just a few years since he created the technique, he has parlayed his hobby into a full-time, lucrative business.

Several months ago, he moved to San Antonio, Texas, where his meticulous work and ingenious blends of wood continued to intrigue judges and promoters.

"I've turned down 61 invitations to juried shows, I've been so busy," Thompson said. He also recently was featured in New Mexico Magazine and has been interviewed for articles in Custom Woodwork Magazine, the Houston Chronicle and Texas Highways Magazine.

Last week, his work was featured at a fine arts gallery in San Antonio.

"Orders have been coming in from all over the country," Thompson said during a recent interview while he was packaging six bowls for shipment to a buyer in San Francisco.

Nine galleries exhibit his work and he has been invited to exclusive juried shows as far away as Ocean Reef in North Key Largo, Florida.

His fascination with life in miniature started in his teens and five years ago, he threw his energies heavily into the pots.

"It was relaxing. It gave me peace of mind," Thompson said.

More than 50 types of woods, as well as gold, silver, bone, elk horn, coral, turquoise, cholla cactus and fawn nut are the ingredients for his "IMA LITTLEPOT" bowls.

Each pot is built up by laminating slender slabs of wood into blocks to be transformed on the lathe into the beguiling little bowls. Sometimes, the layers are interrupted with pieces of bone, coral or turquoise.

"Not until I start turning, do I know what it will be," Thompson said. "The wood tells me what its shape should be by how it cuts and behaves." One pot contains 140 pieces of wood in a quarter-inch section.

He also has experimented with wider, more open lips on his bowls, achieving a crystal-thin rim.

Pots sell for $40 to $385, depending on their complexity.

Customers are guaranteed one of a kind, he said.

"Every bowl is different, because the wood grain is never the same."

TRINA CELESTE COX, Hardin-Simmons University (HSU) senior from Ruidoso, is one of 18 students chosen for the Lunar and Planetary Institute (LPI) Summer Intern Program for undergraduates at the NASA Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Dr. Charles L. Lane, head of the HSU department of geology, said it is a "significant honor" to be chosen for the LPI Summer Intern Program.

Cox, a geology department assistant, was recipient of the McAlister Endowed Memorial Geology Scholarship this past year.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Randall Cox of Ruidoso. She is a former member of the First Baptist Church of Ruidoso where her parents continue as active members.

JOHNNIE AND NITA BURKE

Burkes celebrate 50 years

Johnnie and Nita Burke will celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a dinner party Wednesday, July 21, at the Carrizo Lodge.

The party was hosted by their children and grandchildren. The couple was married July 21, 1943, in Dumas, Texas. They have lived in Ruidoso since 1960.

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie W. Moore of Ruidoso announces the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Kimberly Ann Moore, to Brian Wynn Scrimshire of Ruidoso. Scrimshire is the son of Marlon Scrimshire of Ruidoso and Denise Whittemore of Stamford, Texas.

The couple has planned a wedding for 2 p.m. Saturday, August 7, at the First Christian Church.

BRIAN SCRIMSHIRE AND KIM MOORE

The Graham Brothers have been entertaining the home folks for years, but they're taking their lively country and western music show on the road these days. The brothers also are working on their own album.

Graham Brothers open Lynn Anderson show

The Graham Brothers, a native Ruidoso country and western band, played the opening set for a Lynn Anderson concert in Truth or Consequences recently.

They had just returned from an engagement in Houston, Texas.

According to a news release, their slogan is "Country Music at its Best," and they strive to live up to their slogan.

The Graham Brothers Band plays for concerts, private parties, wedding receptions, family reunions and civic events.

Slick, Hoyt and Dale Graham were born and reared in Ruidoso and have entertained in this area all their lives.

Arnold Adams joined the brothers two years ago.

The group is now working in the studio putting together an album of their own. The Graham Brothers hope to release their album in October.

Practice is under way for this year's "Billy the Kid Pageant"

Billy the Kid is practicing to ride again for the 44th consecutive year in the "Billy the Kid Pageant" in old Lincoln.

Participants are practicing at 7 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday evening for the performances scheduled at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, August 6 and 7, and at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, August 8, at the pageant grounds in the historic town of Lincoln.

Admission to the pageant is $3 for adults and $1 for those under 14.

The folk pageant is just one element in a full weekend of events during Old Lincoln Days.

Food booths, crafts and exhibitions will take place all up and down the street, and the museums will be open for visitors to learn more about Billy and Lincoln County.

Along the street will be cowboys, mountain men and the cavalry.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the annual fiddlers contest will tune up in the park in the center of town.

At 11 a.m. Sunday the big parade will roll down Lincoln's one street.

For more information on the pageant or on Old Lincoln Days, call 653-4047 or 653-4025.

What'll you bid, Santa?

Even St. Nick couldn't stay away from the Christmas in July Bridge Tournament that drew 250 bridge players to the Ruidoso Civic Events Center recently. Players shown here include Greg Crews of El Paso, Texas; Gene Templeton masquerading as Santa; Mary Drews of El Paso; Tootie Whitworth, of San Angelo, Texas; and Frank Hart of El Paso.

McGary exhibits work in D.C.

Sculptor Dave McGary will be exhibiting 13 images of Native Americans in Washington, DC this July. The exhibit of Dave's work will be located at the Russell Senate Rotunda from July 26 through July 30. The exhibit opens at 9 a.m. and closes at 5 p.m. daily. Visitation during this week is expected to reach more than 5,000.

Building.

McGary's interest in art was encouraged during his youth. As a teenager he was singled out by the sculptor Harry Jackson to study the art of bronze making in Italy. Upon returning to the United States, he secured a job at a Prestigious foundry in Tesuque, New Mexico.

Senators Pete Domenici and Frank Lautenberg have invited the members of the Congressional Art Caucus to a reception and the exhibit honoring Dave McGary, Tuesday, July 27, at the Russell Senate Caucus Room, in the Senate Office

For the past decade McGary has run his own bronze finishing facility near Ruidoso. His work has become well known throughout the United States and in many foreign countries for its historical content and attention to detail.

Art Festival moves inside at civic center

Every thing has to start somewhere. Even the Ruidoso Art Festival.

That beginning for the festival was 22 years ago at School House Park by the tennis courts, with a group 90 artists featuring their arts and crafts and was originally called the Arts and Crafts Fair.

What started out as a small, mainly local, event near the tennis courts has grown to a three-day festival that is respected by many, said Chamber of Commerce executive director Joan Bailey.

"Now artists and others plan their vacation around the event," she added.

The Ruidoso Art Festival — always the third weekend in July — will unfold Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 23-25, in its brand new location at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

The elegant indoor location is a far cry from the first festival in the park, and it's a lot different from the big tents that housed the festival for many years in the parking lot at Ruidoso Middle School.

The festival then moved to an area behind the Sports Theater near Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

But now, due to weather and other considerations, the festival is moving inside at the Civic Events Center.

But, regardless of the location, the event serves as one of the Chamber of Commerce's major fundraiser.

"The Art Festival represents a third of the Chamber's yearly operating budget," said Bailey.

Ticket prices will be $2.50 for adults and $1 for children. On Friday afternoon, patrons will be able to buy a three-day pass to the event for $5 apiece.

The gates will open at noon on Friday, and the festival will close at 8 p.m., reopening from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

"It's not unusual for people to come two to three days during the festival," said Bailey. "People like to browse on Friday and come back Saturday and Sunday to buy. Or, people often forget to buy something that they wanted."

According to Bailey, that list of wants at the Festival could get pretty extensive with the work of 126 artists to choose from.

"It's a great time to plan ahead and buy Christmas or other gifts," said Bailey. "There won't be anybody in the family that won't just have to have something that is being offered at the festival."

As a new feature to this year's festival, there will be a silent auction of art offered by the various artists. All of the proceeds from the auction will go into the Chamber's scholarship fund in order to help the group give college money to worthy Ruidoso High School students.

As usual, all of the chamber staff, and a plethora of volunteers will be helping out.

"It's just a whole lot of hard work, because it means so much to this chamber," said Bailey. "But it's a whole lot of fun, too."

Chamber staff members expect to see all of their hard work pay off and bring about 10,000 people to this year's festivities over the three-day period.

The importance of the event extends beyond a simple head count. It is a place to go and relax and meet your neighbors.

"Being a citizen here, I still get really excited about this weekend," said Bailey. "It's a neat, neat weekend. Another example of a typical event in Ruidoso."

NO MORE TENTS AND UMBRELLAS!

There's no place like home

Home at last.

Or at least it would seem that way as the Art Festival moves into the Ruidoso Civic Events Center this year for the first time.

"I would like to think that we have found a home," said chamber executive director Joan Bailey. "It's our first year at the civic events center so we'll have to find out what will happen."

Bailey and her chamber will need to decide if the logistics of moving into the center will compliment the event.

Another factor will be the affect of having the festival inside as opposed to being in the outdoors.

"It was a very difficult decision to move," said Bailey. "We tried to be considerate of the artists."

According to Bailey, many of the artists prefer to be outside because of the beautiful surroundings here in the mountains of Ruidoso.

But on the other hand, that beautiful surrounding can quickly turn into strong summer showers.

Last year's event was a perfect example of that.

On the first day, Friday, people were entering the outdoor tents near the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater at near record pace.

Those crowds quickly subsided as a deluge of rain covered the area.

Although none of the art was damaged in the rain, people stayed away fearing that it would rain again.

"Overall, attendance was down 13 percent because of the rain," said chamber staff member Jack Muhn. "In that short period of time we estimate a loss of about $5,000."

Bailey said that rain had almost become an annual event during the festival, but last year's proved to be almost more than they could handle.

"Last year was it," said Bailey. "Just too much to deal with."

So, to protect the artists and festival patrons from the mud and muck and rain the Festival is heading, at least this year, to the Civic Events Center.

According to Bailey, this will now be the fourth location for the Festival.

"As far as I can remember this is our fourth move," said Bailey.

The festival started out 22 years ago at the tennis courts by the swimming pool, then later moved to Ruidoso Mid School. For the last three years, the event has been held in tents outside of the Sports Theater by the track.

Part of the reason that Bailey would like to stay in one place is that it takes much of the organization to just to find a location.

"It's very difficult to find a home for this every year," said Bailey.

Also, every time the event moves, it's almost like it is a brand new deal.

"It's like starting over every time because you never know what is going to happen when you get there," Bailey said.

Also, there is the advertising aspect and just letting people know where it is going to be.

Basically the Chamber would like to find a permanent home.

"Whether it be the Civic Events Center, or anywhere, we just want to really have a home for it," said Bailey.

On the cover

Potter Tim Wierwille, whose work is marketed through his White Mountain Pottery, is our feature artist on this year's Ruidoso Art Festival special section. Wierwille's exhibit was among the top 10 in last year's Ruidoso Art Festival, and his work has been a consistent winner in past arts fairs.

Area artists shine at Ruidoso Art Festival

The Ruidoso Art Festival annually brings in quality art from throughout the nation.

But, the Chamber of Commerce doesn't have to go that far to find some of the best artists.

This year's festival includes a selection of nine artists from throughout Lincoln County. The artists will be coming from Capitan, Nogal, Alto, Ruidoso Downs and of course Ruidoso.

Here is a quick look at the Lincoln County Artists who will be in the show:

Gentleman Jim Page will display his collection of furniture.

Page has been in woodworking since 1978 and has experience in crafting wood into shapes ranging from small wood boxes to his current specialty a hardwood rocker recliner.

In Page's experience with various art shows he has been awarded several awards.

In 1987, Page was named best in wood at the Fourth Avenue Street Art Fair in Tucson, Arizona. Later that year, he has awarded as one of the Top Ten Artists at the Utah Arts Festival in Salt Lake City, Utah.

In 1988, Page was named second in Wood at the Tubac Arts Festival in Arizona.

Page's most recent award came in 1990 when he was awarded Best in Wood at the Tempe Festival of the Arts in Tempe, Arizona.

Another Lincoln County representative will be Vicki Conley of Piñon Pottery in Ruidoso Downs.

A majority of Conley's pottery is hand made on a wheel, but is functional stoneware. Her work includes dinnerware and southwestern entree baking and serving pieces.

Conley also has a special line of Nerriage vases. To make these vases she uses a Japanese technique of layering, rolling and cutting different colored clays to form intricate slabs which are then thrown or slab built into vases.

Also in Conley's repertoire is a series of New Mexico Mission Platters. The missions are built in relief directly onto the platters. Each of the platters comes with a historical description of the mission that it is depicting.

Conley has been a part of the Fourth Avenue Street Fair in Tucson, the Renaissance Craftfaire in Las Cruces, and a part of the Ruidoso Art Festival since 1987, among others.

An artist who will not need to travel far for the Festival is Ken Payne.

Payne, of Ruidoso, hand shapes and colors wool hats.

Payne also adds a special leather band to each of the hats.

Each of the hats has an individual impression of a well worn and often used hat. Many of his hats replicate hats of the old west, while others have more of an Australian outback feel to them.

When Payne first showcased his hats in the Ruidoso Art Fest in 1990, his hats were placed in the "Top Ten" of the show. Payne has also received awards at the Cloudcroft art shows.

Payne currently has his work in shops in Aspen, Colorado; Chicago, Illinois and in Madrid.

Another Ruidoso artist is Liza Cabot.

Cabot currently specializes in hand painted canvas and leather gear bags, and free standing, leaded glass and mixed media panels.

Cabot is also currently creating and marketing original design work for surface decor and interior architecture. She is also an art teacher at Ruidoso Middle School.

From Alto come the Many Moons of Don and Gloria Zeitelhack.

The pair is a husband and wife team who have been working together since 1970. The two create a complete line of handcrafted belt buckles and jewelry, many of which are one of a kind.

Don does the metalsmithing and handsculpting in either gold, silver or bronze. He is also known for his burst series of designs which is composed of sunbursts, moonbursts and starbursts.

Gloria does all of the lapidary work inlaying exotic stones and shells in the design. Gloria has a landscape technique in which she uses mother of pearl shell to create landscape designs. This technique is a one of a kind.

Each piece of the couple's work is signed with a double arrowhead to represent each of their love and creativity combined into each piece of wearable art.

The two have participated in 34 different art shows including five for more than 10 years. In 1991-92 they were named among top 10 artists in the Ruidoso Art Festival.

Yet another Ruidoso resident included in the show is native American artist Toby G. Christopher.

Christopher, owner of The Warrior's Legacy in Ruidoso, began his artist career after researching his ancestry. Christopher found that the old ways of the Plains people were rapidly vanishing.

Christopher now specializes in a variety of native American art including stone and wood sculpture, oil and water color and old style artifacts.

Christopher has been featured in several art exhibitions in California and has been a part of many juried art shows.

Tim Wierwille of White Mountain Pottery will also represent Ruidoso and Lincoln County in the show.

Wierwille will bring his 21 years of experience into the festival.

Wierwille was an apprentice for Santa Fe Master Potter Frank Willett in the early '70s and has been creating a style of his own ever since.

Wierwille brings several pottery series with him into the show, including his White Mountain Series, his Misty Mountain Series, and his pit-fumed series, just to name a few.

The only entry from Nogal for the 1993 Art Festival will be artist Virgil C. Stephens.

Stephens is an award winner with his collection of pencil drawings.

Stephens' art has been shown in 10 separate shows and he has been awarded eight different awards for his drawings. Stephens' drawings are currently in 10 galleries throughout California, Arizona and Colorado.

Stephens is a two-time featured artist on the television program "The Arizona Cowboy", and a one-time featured artist on "The Incurable Collector" in 1989 and "Prime Time" in 1990.

The final Lincoln County offering in the Art Festival is Donna Spray of Alto.

Spray has been designing jewelry using direct metal techniques since 1976.

She uses an oxy-acetylene torch and bronze wire and creates exciting and unusual shapes and textures by flowing and manipulating the metal while it is molten. The pieces are made one at a time and are greatly influenced by the landscapes of the southwest.

Spray's work has been included in more than 30 juried art shows throughout the southwest. She has also previously been a part of the Ruidoso Art Festival.

Although a majority of the artists came from other destinations, the Lincoln County representatives in the show are proving that this area should not be overlooked.

Judges assure that show is topnotch

Have you ever wondered how someone gets a booth at an art festival?

Well, each art festival uses its own system, some even let everyone in.

But, that's not the case with the Ruidoso Art Festival, and the careful selection process may be one reason the 22-year-old event is so successful.

The Art Festival is a juried show. That means that anyone interested in entering must send in samples of their art. In this case, three slides of the artists' work are required.

The slides are then seen by an unnamed jury of competent people. All of the jurors have an art background of some kind, but their identities are kept confidential to maintain the integrity of the process.

The jury will compare and contrast each of the sets of work while scoring them.

"All the judge does is grade the artist among the others in the category," said Jack Muhn of the chamber.

The judging is strict due to the prominence of the event and that hasn't always been popular with the artists who are turned down.

"The judges have their individual tastes and therefore the judging is often arbitrary," said Muhn. "We'll have someone get in one year and not the next. I've already gotten calls this year."

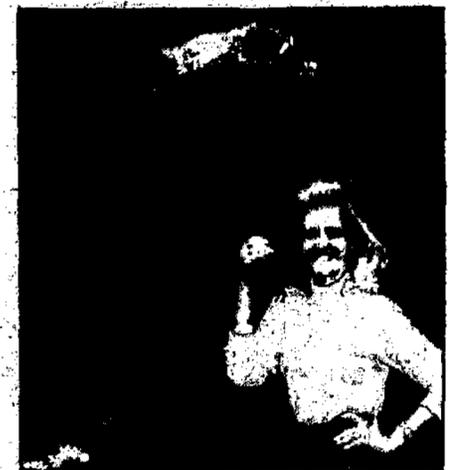

The judges also have instructions to give special consideration to local artists, so that the area will be well represented.

"We are very proud of our local artists and we want to encourage them to be in our show," said Bailey.

Once the grades are handed down, they are compared with the others in each category. Then, a percentage of the artists are picked to represent each category.

This year a total of 340 artists applied for the show, while only 126 were juried in.

"It's the creme de la creme of artists from all over," said Bailey.

Tops in '92

Cindy Burleson, pictured above with one of her sculptures, won best of show in last year's Ruidoso Art Festival. The Texas artist will be back this year.

Conley creates art that works

Her trademark blue glaze distinguishes the pottery of Vicki Conley, and it took years to arrive at just the right combination.

"It's like a recipe using seven to 10 different chemicals. My light blue glaze is extremely popular," she said. "At first I did a lot of brown, like others, but the blue really took off and accounts for about 80 percent of my sales."

The Ruidoso Downs potter emphasizes functional pieces such as salsa jars, tortilla warmers and dinnerware that have become favorites with her buyers.

Her work will be on display in a booth at the annual Ruidoso Art Festival July 23-25, in the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

"I've been a potter for 13 years," Conley said. "I got started as sideline during graduate school. I did it for fun a couple of years, but when I decided to quit work and stay home with our daughters, the business grew as the kids grew."

Currently, her sales are nearly equally divided between arts and crafts shows and shops such as the Aspen Tree in Ruidoso and the Copper Butterfly in Cloudcroft as well as stores in Santa Fe, Las Vegas and Albuquerque.

She will also be showing at Art Fest

VICKI CONLEY

USA in Ruidoso Downs August 19-22 and 26-29.

Although she produces some strictly decorative pieces, Conley said she enjoys creating useful items for the kitchen — a grease jar, a sun-tea dispenser and a replacement pot for Mr. Coffee makers.

Her decorative pieces follow two basic lines. One utilizes a Japanese technique laying different colors of clay resulting in a swirled design. The other depicts 1776 missions of New Mexico on collectible wall plates.

Horses star in area's new museum

Surrounded by the juniper speckled hills where Mescalero Apaches and Billy the Kid kicked up the dust of history, Ruidoso Downs, the home of the world's richest quarter horse race, presents the perfect setting for a museum dedicated to the horse.

Homage to the horse centers around an exquisite collection of saddles, tack, carriages, sleighs, wagons and other accessories brought together by Stradling, whose story creates the perfect backdrop for her museum.

A spirited, independent woman, Stradling earned her pilot's license at 16 and walked away from the easy life of Eastern wealth and into the rugged world of the West. She married a rodeo cowboy, learned roping from Will Rogers and was drafted into the Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

Her first museum and the seed of today's collection was established in Patagonia, Arizona, 33 years ago. In 1989, a failing Stradling contacted R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard about bringing her collection to Ruidoso Downs. In the fall of 1991, curator Gary Miller was hired to renovate an old convention center and create the museum. Stradling died three months before the opening May 23, 1992.

The museum's exhibits illustrate the horse as a common thread linking nearly all cultures throughout history, serving as a companion, a working tool and as a means of transportation.

Although Stradling spent most of her adult years in the West, her collection of tack and equine accessories spans many cultures and eras. A dazzling collection of 120 Kachina dolls, myriad prehistoric baskets, bowls, textiles, jewelry, weapons and other artifacts are the anchors for the multi-cultural exhibit.

The museum also plays host to other cultural events locally, including an exclusive sale of works by members of the Santa Fe Watercolor Society last month. The exhibit of paintings will hang until September 6.

The museum gift shop is designed as a continuation of the collection, using desks, sleighs, wagons and old steamer trunks to show off the merchandise.

"We are not a static museum," Doth said. "We want people who haven't visited in six months, to know there will be something new waiting for them when they come back."

Located on U.S. 70 on the western edge of Ruidoso Downs next to the race track, the Museum of the Horse is open year-around. Special educational and group rates are available. For more information, call (505) 378-4142.

Garrett's subjects are from the heart

Gary Garrett is a true New Mexico artist. Living in Ruidoso since 1983, he was born in Hobbs, attended school in Clovis and after a tour with the Marine Corps, studied fine art at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

Unlike many New Mexico artists, native or transplanted, he does not specialize in "Southwestern Art." His time in the Marines greatly influenced his broad base of interest for artistic subjects.

His love of wildlife and his concern for endangered species has prompted a series of paintings featuring white tigers, Mexican wolves and other rare or endangered animals.

His paintings of old cars and trucks seen rusting away in fields all across the United States evoke a nostalgia for a time when life moved a little more slowly.

Some of the most poignant paintings, and Gary's personal favorites, are his paintings addressing the subject of runaway teens. The pressures that teens exist under today are a real concern to him. His painting "Lost Angel" hangs in the offices of the Covenant House in New York, a national shelter for runaway teenagers.

Art as a way of teaching social awareness is at the heart of Gary's work, and he always strives to leave an impression of beauty and meaning.

Working primarily in acrylics and pencil, Gary is equally skilled in gouache, watercolor and oils.

Commissions are accepted with a wide range of subject matter from old cars and trucks, airplanes to trains, portraits to figurative as well as wildlife.

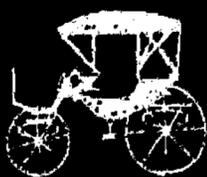

Although Gary does not show his work in local galleries, his work can be obtained through his studio by calling 257-6977.

The Museum of the Horse celebrates the rich heritage of the horse. From a Russian sleigh to an authentic circa 1860 stagecoach,

from saddles, bits, and harnesses to an extensive collection of Indian artifacts, the Museum the Horse has it all! And for a unique shopping experience, be sure to visit

Pottery is what Wierwille does best

Tim Wierwille of White Mountain Pottery is a 21-year veteran of the art of pottery who sees himself as an "absolutely satisfied potter."

"In my opinion, I'm carrying on an old-time tradition," Wierwille said.

The potter began his fascination with creating beautiful, useful objects from clay with his hands when, as a student at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, he took an elective course in pottery and "got hooked."

Wierwille discovered himself "in the right place at the right time" when in the early 1970s Santa Fe master potter Frank Willett needed an apprentice.

Tim worked with Willett for four years before striking out on his own. Wierwille and his wife, Nan, moved to Ruidoso in 1975, and he began his tradition of White Mountain Pottery.

Landscape and especially the mountains of Ruidoso are a powerful influence on the work of potter, Tim Wierwille.

"The environment and the mountains are a continual source of inspiration," he said. "I think everyone in New Mexico realizes that — that's why they're here."

Wierwille said he enjoys the festival because it gives him the opportunity to greet old town friends and meet other artists and see what they're doing.

The focus of Wierwille's work is on collectible, functional, hand-thrown stoneware.

The White Mountain series, Wierwille's trademark during his first years in Ruidoso, portrays a carved sun high above carved mountains.

The misty Mountain series features an abstract landscape scene with a hawk flying high above the mountainous background.

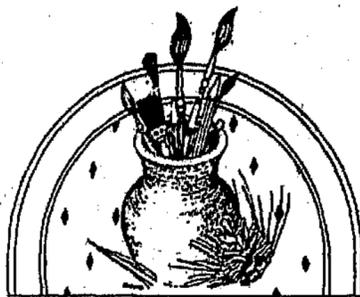

Another popular series that can be found in Wierwille's display is the pit-fumed series. Pit-fumed pieces are decorative only because they are not glazed. The outcome of each piece is determined by the fire set in a "pit" dug in the ground. The fire is fueled by dry weeds, pine needles and wood.

Wierwille sees Ruidoso as a special place in which to live and work. He loves the seclusion of what he calls this "mountain oasis in the desert."

He has a studio, "White Mountain Pottery," on the Bonito River in Angus and enjoys having collectors visit at his studio.

Wierwille's success has come as a result of hard work and determination. But, like the true artist he is, his works are a result of compelling inspiration.

"My family, friends and Ruidoso make me feel like I'm in the right place at the right time," says Wierwille. I'm delighted to call Ruidoso home."

Try the art of golfing at The Links

Ruidoso's newest golf course is the berm studded Links at Sierra Blanca, a dream or nightmare, depending on how good your game is on that day.

The Links sports the best practice range in New Mexico, complete with beautifully maintained tee areas and sandtraps.

Skilled players with a downhill lie will be at an advantage.

Bring a camera in your bag. A picture perfect lake frames Sierra Blanca Mountains in the background.

If you walk away with a good score, you're not just an average golfer.

Check it out, 7,003 yards from the blues. This Jim Colbert course has a monster 581 yarder.

Rated 72 on the par 72, Michael Hicks is the golf pro. Economically priced with a variety of options. For information, call 258-5330.

Summer racing is ducky for skiers

"Take a Quack" at $25,000 invites the Ruidoso Ski Team.

Even though it is the off season, this club just cannot get enough of racing. This race is not on snow; however, but down the Ruidoso River.

Yes, it is the First Annual All American Duck Race, hosted by the Junior Racers and open to everyone.

The gun will sound at 10 a.m. on Saturday, September 4; and the ducks will float to the finish line at Two Rivers Park.

The owner of the winning duck will receive $1,000 cash and the Pokey Paddler (losing duck) will receive $250 cash. A randomly drawn duck number will be chosen just before the race; and if that lucky duck should cross the finish line first, its owner will receive $25,000 cash.

So buy your ducks now from any Ruidoso Ski Team member or any of the following businesses: Aspen Tree Bookstore, Barnett Carpet, Ruidoso State Bank, High Country Agency, Chamber of Commerce, Museum of the Horse, Casa Blanca Restaurant and the Great Wall of China Restaurant.

The ducks sell for $5 each or 6 for $25.

The team will be kicking off sales at this weekend's Ruidoso Art Festival so be sure to stop by their booth.

This event promises to become a major fund raiser for the club that includes not only skiers from Ruidoso, but also Southeastern New Mexico and Mexico. Kids do not have to be expert skiers to join the team, but can start in the development program as young as seven years old.

Racers progress from Age Class divisions (ages 7 through 14) through Ability Class divisions (ages 15 through 24). This club is a member of the Rocky Mountain Division of the United States Ski Association.

The excellent coaching staff provides not only technical training for racing, but also encourages the kids to set goals and take on responsibilities. If your kids are interested in the program or if you have any questions, please call either Vicki Conley at 378-4270 or Jane Tully at 378-4840.

Jacque's is special garden of art

Jacque's Garden Gallery is a very unique art gallery and flower shop combination in the Sierra Mall at 721 Mechem in Ruidoso.

Jacqueline Kastor is an impressionistic landscape and floral artist from Ruidoso.

Her subjects are often of people in their natural settings. Her interest in painting New Mexico is fueled by the beauty of the mountains, the deserts, and the people of the southwest.

Jacque and her husband, Gary, opened Jacque's Garden Gallery in 1985.

Jacque is also a professional floral designer and enjoys combining flowers and art in the gallery. When customers walk into the lush garden setting, they are often amazed to find that the beautiful trees, plants, and flower arrangements are all silk or dried.

"My goal as a floral designer is to have the most realistic looking plants and flowers for my customers and to provide them a beautiful and exciting design for their pleasure."

There is also an extensive selection of baskets, candles, potpourri, and a "year round Christmas Corner." In the late summer, Christmas trees, garlands, wreaths, and other holiday decorations are available.

"We hope that you will find Jacque's Garden Gallery to be a special place in Ruidoso to visit and shop."

Award showcases youthful artists

Lincoln County is home to artists of all ages, and some of the younger ones will show their work in the Third Annual All American Youth Art Award sponsored by Ruidoso Ford, Lincoln, Mercury.

Entries may be submitted now through July 30, at Ruidoso Ford on U.S. Highway 70, and the work will be on display at the Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse August 1 through August 15, during the annual All American Festival.

Artists can let their imaginations run free, as the theme, Adobe Walls, is not mandatory. They sky's the limit on art form, too, and there is no type of art which can't be entered.

Entries will be judged in the four different age groups: five to eight year olds, nine to 11 year olds, 12 to 14 year olds and 15 to 18 year olds.

A total of $2,300 in U.S. Savings bonds will be given to a dozen winners.

Chris and Beverly Carusona invite entries from all over the United States. Out of 75 entries last year, most entries were from New Mexico, but the contest did draw an entry from California, one from Washington and another from New Jersey.

SUMMER SIMNACHER
1993 ART AWARD WINNER

An award presentation will be made at 2:30 p.m. August 15, at the Museum of the Horse. The public is invited to be on hand for the award ceremony, and to stop by and view the exhibit.

For more information about the Youth Art Award, contact Beverly or Chris Carusona at 378-4400.

Rakocy combines art with history

Cherie Hanson is a third-generation Californian who adopted the Southwest 30 years ago.

She graduated from the University of Southern California, and then taught in the El Paso school system where she was head of the Speech and Drama Department at Irvin and Eastwood high schools.

Cherie was active in volunteer work for the El Paso Museum of Art where she's on the Members Guild Board and served as Chairman for the Docent program during Bill Rakocy's tenure as Curator of Education. She also was chairman of the Museum Gift Shop.

Other organizations include the El Paso Art Association where she assisted in holding various offices because she believed the principles set forth by the group to bring appreciation of fine arts to the community and the scholarship fund for young El Paso artists.

She was one of the founders of the Rio Bravo Watercolorists group.

Pastels, acrylic collage, oil and watercolors are the media through which Cherie Hanson expresses her love of everyday things; from realism to semi-abstract, her work is in private and public collections in Texas, New Mexico, California and Kuwait.

Food is part of the fun

Food — it is considered to be one of the common denominators of life.

But, a lot of people just enjoy eating.

The Ruidoso Art Festival will have something to offer both types of people.

This year's festival will feature eight different booths for food and drink.

The Kiwanis Club will be hosting a booth with Kraut and Brauts.

The Knights of Columbus will have a Burrito Booth.

Michael Hicks will have Frozen Lemonade Slush.

Jerry Perry of the Bluegrass Festival will be serving Cobbler and Ice Cream for festival goers.

La Hacienda Del Valle will have Burgers, Hot Dogs, Sausage, Fries and Nachos.

Clare Nielsen will have Funnel Cakes.

B & M Enterprises will supply Breakfast, Hamburgers, Chili Dogs, Frito Pie, Nachos and Cake.

Ray Wood will have Tater Twisters.

The selection will have something to offer for even the most finicky of appetites.

And if you are just looking for a simple beverage, the Chamber of Commerce will have a Drink Booth of its own. Beer and wine will even be available.

Even though the food will be in a separate tent outside the Civic Events Center, patrons will be more than welcome to grab their food and head for the art booths to buy and browse.

McGary gets worldwide attention

Dave McGary, at 35, is becoming a living legend among contemporary artists of the American west. He is considered a master of realism depicting Native American Indians of by-gone days.

His stream of awards during the past decade more than verifies his popularity among collectors and fellow artists alike. His ability to capture the human spirit knows no equal, and his attention to detail in form and historic content are exhilarating.

McGary's work will soon be seen by thousands of visitors to Washington D.C. From July 26 through July 30, the master sculptor's work will be displayed in the Russell Rotunda.

Senators Pete Domenici (NM) and Frank Lautenberg (NJ) will host a reception for McGary July 27, at the Rotunda in the Senate Office Building.

From September 1 through November 30, a life-size Iron That Walks will be on exhibit in the sculpture garden of the Museum of Nebraska Art at Kearney.

Dave will show at the Patron Ball which supports the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyoming, September 26—28; and — most exciting of all — the world's representatives will see eight pieces of sculpture at the United Nations first floor gallery this October.

Opportunities are expanding through McGary representatives in Germany and Japan. A show is in the early planning stages for Japan, and museum placements are under consideration in Germany.

A renewed awareness of the American Indian has precipitated tremendous interest in their history. The high regard for Dave's pieces assures an outstanding future in historical sculptors of the past.

It's a whole new ballgame!

Scenes like these, under the big top at a past Ruidoso Art Festival, will be played out under the roof this year at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center. This year's festival, with 126 artists, will be staged in the big exhibit hall at the village's new showplace. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children, with a special three-day pass available at just $5. The Ruidoso Art Festival, through three previous locations, has maintained a reputation for top art, good food and lots of fun.
