Council reviews marketing methods

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Councilor Frank Potter told the council during workshop Tuesday that it is time for the village to develop the tools to market the village as God intended, through tourism.

Potter outlined a seven-point plan that will be reviewed by the council with other ideas developed at the workshop. Village manager Gary Jackson will bring a revised plan to the council in a general session in April.

Potter's plan includes:

—a need for a comprehensive marketing/advertising plan.

—a need for an effective means to disseminate advertising information.

—awareness that advertising/marketing efforts are many times duplicated and/or fragmented.

—a need to market the area as a whole and thereby maximize advertising dollars.

—a need to expand or broaden advertising base to cover areas that need to be covered.

—a need to establish a unified voice to state agencies/officials for tourism advertising concerns/dollars.

—a need to develop a convention/tourism guide.

Potter emphasized that he is not an expert in the field, but he said that consolidating advertising dollars and beginning a workable plan is imperative.

Mayor Jerry Shaw told The Ruidoso News after the meeting that Potter was not wanting to create another Regional Advertising Board (RAB).

The RAB was created several years ago and consisted of the same members of the Lodgers Tax Advisory Board (LTAB).

The members met at the same time, often adjourning one board to move into the other. Participation never reached county wide as projected. Several communities did not want to put their lodgers tax money to a common cause. RAB became confusing for its board members and eventually was dissolved by the council.

Potter said a single entity is needed to avoid the confusion of having too many hands from too many boards.

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce director Joan Bailey agreed with Potter. She received a letter from a Mexico firm stating that Ruidoso is being removed from a destination area because of the poor service received by an area lodger.

Bailey also mentioned that professionals working with groups indicate they fear what they might end up with once they are in Ruidoso. She said promises are made, but no one is available to confirm all those promises once a group has arrived at Ruidoso.

"They are used to working within a certain system. We don't have that system in place yet," Bailey said.

Civic Events Center director Kathleen Michelena separated the two groups being discussed into travel agents offering tour groups, and meeting planners interested in booking conventions.

"What do you do with the people when they get here?" Michelena asked. "The biggest problem is the

Downs ups pay, kills livestock limits

by PAMELA CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Village of Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees voted three to one Monday to increase the pay of the governing body.

As of the March election, Trustees Margie Morales and Ray Hayhurst will receive $100 per meeting — twice what they receive now. The raise for other trustees, the mayor and the judge will go into effect in 1996.

The mayor and judge elected in 1996 will receive $550 a month.

Trustee Judy Miller maintained her objection to the raise and attempted to compromise with the board by suggesting a ceiling of $200 per month.

"We're allowed up to four special meetings a month, and that would give us $600," she said.

The other board members believe it is unlikely that so many special meetings would be called.

No one in the unusually large audience objected to the raise.

Trustee Charlotte Craig moved to adopt the ordinance and Trustee Ray Hayhurst seconded the motion.

Traffic code amendment

The board also adopted an ordinance making it illegal to ride in an unenclosed portion of a truck. In special cases, such as parades or when taking animals to the vet, truck owners may obtain a permit from the police department.

Judge Harold Mansell asked how this ordinance should be enforced at the race track.

Mayor Hayhurst said that even though the track is under police jurisdiction, track security probably will be authorized to write tickets.

Trustee Miller suggested making an exception for the track, in effect giving them a standing permit to allow grooms to be shuttled back and forth in truck beds.

Trustee Hayhurst, however, insisted that the rule apply everywhere.

"Riding in the back of a truck is dangerous for anybody, on the racetrack or on the highway," he said. "It kills people."

High school student and groom Heath Battles suggested that at the track it might be OK to let people ride in truck beds if they didn't sit on the sides and if the driver observed the speed limit.

Trustee Charlotte Craig backed up Battles, conceding that grooms have to get back and forth fast.

Downs Fire Chief Nick Herrera objected to this idea.

"A wreck at 15 miles an hour will eject people from the vehicle," he said.

Mayor Hayhurst said the village will work out the details of enforcing this ordinance at the track with Ken Shockey, head of security. They may simply give truck owners permits to haul people around at the track.

Trustee Margie Morales moved to adopt the ordinance as written, and Trustee Ray Hayhurst seconded the motion. It passed with unanimous approval.

The party's over

Downs resident Jim Levinson requested the village's assistance in deterring partiers who hang out on his deadend street every weekend.

Levinson lives on South Spring road, a dead end street that appears to lead to Inspiration Heights Apartments.

"We constantly have people looking for the apartments," said Levinson. "I don't mind giving directions, but around 2 or 3 a.m. every Friday and Saturday, you can bet there's going to be drunk people running through my yard."

Levinson said he calls the police regularly to have partiers arrested, and officer Chris Condon recalled an incident when a drunk driver wrecked in Levinson's yard, then drove away.

"I don't park my car in the yard because I'm afraid they're going to hit it," said Levinson. I have a two-year-old and a three-year-old that I don't want playing out there."

Levinson said the one dead-end street sign is not working. At a loss for a solution to Levinson's problem, the board offered to put up another street sign, reflectors and a sign directing people to Inspiration Heights.

Leann Weibrecht, village clerk, said delivery on the signs would take four to six weeks. The village also gave Levinson permission to block off the street with a gate.

Livestock amendments killed

Horse owners lined the walls at the Downs board meeting, ready to nip in the bud an attempt to prevent residents from bringing additional horses, mules and ponies into village limits.

Mayor Hayhurst said the amendments were proposed in response to numerous complaints that people were bringing livestock into areas where it was prohibited by covenants.

"The only way to enforce a covenant is for the people to go court," said Trustee Craig.

Instead of taking legal action to enforce the covenants, however, residents were complaining to the board of trustees.

According to the amendments, anyone who had kept horses since July 11, 1977, could continue to do so if they complied with maintenance and acreage requirements. Even those owners, though, could not replace animals that died.

The audience was further outraged by provisions that would prevent them from bringing horses home if they had been gone for more than 30 days. Many residents, especially those with race horses, agreed that this provision would turn the Downs into a ghost town.

"That's why we all bought our

ENMU enrollment jumps

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Registration at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso this spring has jumped more than 23 percent from the same period in 1993.

Officials counted 548 students registering for classes compared to 420 a year ago. Of that number, 145 enrolled in community education classes, which are not for college credit.

Classes are conducted in Ruidoso, Hondo, Mescalero, Capitan and Corona, Miller said.

"We have 15 people enrolled in Spanish in Corona," he said.

The instruction center registered 565 students for the fall session in 1993 compared to 389 in 1992.

Participation in computer classes continues to be heavy, as it does in the course on paralegal studies, the welding program and the People's Law School, Miller said.

"The first year, we had 20 people enroll in that series (taught by local lawyers and judges) and this year it grew to 35," he said.

"We only canceled two classes this session, one on banking and another on bilingual education here. However, we opened another section of bilingual in Tularosa."

A few new instructors have been added to the staff, but the turnover is very small, he said.

"The current faculty is teaching more classes, we dropped a couple of offerings and picked up a few new faces, such as Jodi Bennett, who's teaching cultural anthropology and probably archaeology during the summer," he said.

Registration for the center's eight-week summer session will begin in mid-April. Inserts showing the class schedule will be distributed in The Ruidoso News. The session will run from June 6 through July 29 with a break for the July Fourth holiday.

lodging establishment. You have no place to put these people. Once placed, the lodging establishment lacks the education to treat tour busses.

"I can understand the letter Joan got from Mexico. Within this entire community, there are only a handful of lodging establishments that pay 10 to 15 percent commission to travel agents to book into cabins where only four to seven exist."

"When you're operating a tour package, you're operating 100 percent of the package. You have to work it out from beginning to end with the breakdown, including tips," Michelena said.

Councilor Barbara Duff, a strong advocate for the lodging community, expressed concern that some lodgers should work harder in the upkeep of their buildings.

"We have 3,000 rooms in this town," said Duff. "There are a lot of the lodgers that have not maintained these older properties. I've heard complaints, three incidents when people checked in, their money was taken ahead of time only to find the accommodations were less than desirable. No refund was given, instead they were told 'you settled for three days, take it or leave it.' Everybody knows that one bad comment can destroy all of the good work in marketing the community."

"If we need education or we need tools, part of that is what we have to offer when they get here," Duff said.

Duff said some of the lodgers are in for a rough time with new regulations enforced by the state.

"Nevertheless, they are a part of our tools we need when visitors come to Ruidoso."

If we can get these lodgers, including the merchants downtown that are having adverse thoughts on Main Street, to work together, that's where our education should start," Duff said.

Both Potter and Michelena agreed that planning for groups is often a year in advance and that a major tool, an airline, was missing.

Michelena said Branson, Missouri, is often mentioned as a growing community without major hotels. She said they are selling their town and shows through travel agents and wholesalers.

"Wholesalers from Canada and Mexico pull this whole thing together, bringing in their airplanes. There has to be availability," she said.

In selling Ruidoso, the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDCLC) was mentioned.

Mayor Shaw suggested that a new direction should be taken. She said economic development is a county wide project and should involve every area of the county, using county money.

Mark Doth, marketing director for Ruidoso Downs Race Track, said the focus of economic development for Ruidoso should be tourism.

"This is a beautiful area. Why do we need to go out and sell industry in this area. We need to sell tourism. That is our economic development. That's what we should concentrate on. That's where the dollar should go," Doth said.

Doth said the village has too many boards go into different directions.

Doth said his budget for race track promotion is about $300,000. "$250,000 to market the whole town of Ruidoso is peanuts," he said. He said with that sparse budget, the village and entire area has to be sold. He said personnel becomes critical.

"We don't have the manpower to do the things we have to do in this town," Doth said, referring to an overloaded condition at the chamber.

Doth said he echoed Potter's sentiment for the need of a centralized marketing source that concentrates not only on marketing the village, but handling the people once they have reached their destination.

Potter mentioned as attractions of the area, the Mescalero Apache Indian Nation, Ruidoso Downs Race Track, Ski Apache, Tinnie Mercantile and art galleries, Lincoln Historic District-Billy the Kid Country, Capitan Smokey Bear, Valley of the Fires State Park and Three Rivers Petroglyphs.

Councilor Joe Gomez said the community has the personnel capacity to do the job.

"Let's think on how we can arrive at one solution to the problem. We need the proper direction, that is, how do we want to organize this," Gomez said. "Let's get a direction and then let's carry it out."

Village manager Gary Jackson said his staff would coordinate the various issues presented, look at any cost benefits and consensus assumptions, then develop a summary to present to the council at a regular meeting.

Shaw gave Jackson until the April 5 meeting for the presentation.

Shaw said that with the additional time, jumping three general meetings, Jackson will gain more input from the chamber, EDCLC and Civic Event Center officials.

She said Jackson would welcome any new concepts from councilors and members of the chamber and EDCLC boards.

bringing new horses into residential areas. Jackye Brewer suggested that anyone in the Downs who didn't want to live next door to horses should move.

Trustee Miller finally moved to kill the proposal, saying that with the race track and the Museum of the Horse, it was ridiculous to outlaw horses in the village. Her motion was seconded by Trustee Craig.

land out here," said Linda Wallace, "because we could have horses."

Another resident said that he and others had invested in good fencing and barns, and that if he couldn't sell the property to a horse owner, the property value would fall about 40 percent.

Trustee Craig said the idea of the amendments was to prohibit

MainStreet project history remembered

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Part 1 in a series

Phase one of the village sidewalk program, the major topic of downtown merchants since groundbreaking on November 15, 1988, will end today, Thursday, according to village officials.

The last section of concrete is scheduled to be poured this morning.

Improving downtown sidewalks has been talked about for more than 15 years, but it was not until the fall of 1988 when the new MainStreet director Mary Maul was hired, that the sidewalk project took off in earnest.

At that time, Sudderth Drive was a patchwork quilt of repairs that hadn't seen a major resurface in over a decade.

Sidewalks, where visible, were so small in areas people couldn't pass and in some cases, couldn't walk because the concrete was broken and uneven.

The MainStreet project arrived under the good graces of Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr. and his council Elmer Pirelli, J. D. James, Jess Tinson, Tom McNeil, Al Junge and Larry Simon.

After the first year, MainStreet officials patted themselves on the back during an annual meeting at village hall.

"We've laid a strong foundation and we're ready to take off," said outgoing president Margaret McDonald Lahey that April 3, 1989. "We're working on sidewalks, we're thinking about parking and we need your input," she told the membership and new president Herb Brunell.

State director Ursula Boatright and state architect Ed Boles were at that meeting. They helped local merchants get started before a resource team of development professionals visited the village in June.

Based on interviews, on-site examinations and evaluations, that team provided a report to help Ruidoso carry forward with its downtown revitalization plan.

That plan advocated the same approach used nationwide for MainStreet towns, working together, hiring and supporting a full-time project manager and using the four point MainStreet approach of organization, design, promotion and economic restructuring.

Ruidoso's first project manager resigned before MainStreet was fully organized and the board hired Maul to serve in that position.

Under Maul, the village applied for more than $1-million in grants to be used for improvements, including new sidewalks in Midtown.

MainStreet members, while waiting on the sidewalks, began sponsoring a bench project to improve the looks of the downtown area.

In October of 1990, The Ruidoso News reported on a public meeting conducted at Cree Meadows Country Club for public input into the redevelopment plan.

Eddie Fowler, owner of Win, Place and Show, was at the meeting and said he was against trees.

"I am against trees ... trees have to be taken care of. I feel (more) lighting is OK."

Fowler said planners should "keep all the parking you can."

Marian Treat, owner of a downtown Curio and gift shop, said she was opposed to trees and removing parking from Sudderth.

"Fix our sidewalks, but don't take away parking," Treat said.

Last week Treat told the current village council to fix other merchants' sidewalks, but not hers. She said her building was in such a decrepit state that any work on the sidewalk might shift her building and create severe damage.

Planners at the time were outlining goals to maximize off-street parking, create green areas and increase the attractiveness of the downtown.

Maul told of two surveyors with the highway department that quit because of the difficulty of determining right of way boundaries on Sudderth in Midtown.

On June 13, 1991, the MainStreet Redevelopment Master Plan for the village was prepared under a contract by Fort Worth, Texas, planners Carter and Burgess Inc.

At that time, MainStreet was preparing for its annual membership drive in June. Maul set a workshop to bring board members "up to speed" on the status of MainStreet and Mike Line, new president of MainStreet, had Bonnie Maddox to report on the "Spruce Up" campaign, where members ordered flowers and plants at reduced rates to help upgrade the appearance of downtown Ruidoso.

On April 2, 1992, Maul announced that phase one of the MainStreet project to improve the streets and sidewalks of Sudderth Drive from Fern Street to Country Club Drive was 90 percent complete with construction to begin in the spring of 1993.

"Be patient. We are beginning to see the light at the end of the tunnel on this," Maul said.

Board president Line said that MainStreet organization is a lot of people working hard for a common goal: At that April meeting he recognized several guests who helped MainStreet, State Representative John Underwood, Senator Pete Campos, New Mexico MainStreet director Julie Johncox and Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonso. "Without Mary (Maul), this project couldn't be done. People either do what Mary wants or wear ear plugs," Underwood said.

In July 1992, Maul reported to the MainStreet board that plans were a little bit behind schedule, but there shouldn't be a problem because the state highway department had put them on the fast track. She said she had been in contact with the highway department since the beginning of the project, and has kept the highway department official informed on changes.

Maul, at that point, said plans should be approved by the department in six to eight weeks.

She said sites for restrooms had been located, but they weren't part of the streetscape improvement. Estimated cost of the restrooms was $60,000.

MainStreet president Alden Deyo sent a letter to Mayor Alonso and the council stating that MainStreet was willing to help the village on its plans to eventually have public restrooms.

The council was told funds to begin construction on the first phase of the streetscape would not be available until after the first of October, 1992. The group should then be ready to put out bids for construction.

Maul left the project in 1993. MainStreet continues Monday.

Bonito firefighters called out to douse hot tub fire

An electrical fault in a hot tub set off the fire alarm in a residence on 929 Deer Park Drive in Alto village at about 2 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Bonito Fire Department (BFD) responded and found no obvious smoke or flames outside the apparently unoccupied house.

With a key from the alarm system company, they entered and found the interior filled with smoke. An apparatus in the hot tub had malfunctioned and caused a great deal of smoke.

Firefighters located the source and disconnected the power, thus preventing further damage.

The house belonged to C.E. Burdine of Dallas, Texas who was not there at the time.

Firefighters praised the Burdine's alarm system which alerted not only them and their dispatcher, but also the alarm company which brought out a key to admit the firefighters inside.

"The point here is if you have an alarm system, someone with a key to the house needs to know that alarm is going off," said a BFD official.

Flores leads wrestlers to state tournament

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent
Julian Flores, fresh off his 103-pound Championship last weekend, leads the Ruidoso Warrior Wrestling team to the State Tournament, scheduled to start today.

Usually held in Albuquerque, this year's State Tournament will be hosted by Aztec High School, some two hours from the Duke City. Scheduling conflicts with Tingley Coliseum that could not be worked out forced the move.

The tournament, which concludes Friday, will feature every varsity wrestler in the state, no matter what their season record was.

The Warriors' best hope at an individual State Champion is Flores, who has had a remarkable season. With each passing week Flores has grown stronger and even when he wrestled poorly, he has managed to win.

Last week at the District 3-AAA Championships, Flores was the top seed, and proved that was no fluke, easily disposing of his first two opponents and defeating his Championship opponent easily after a slow start.

Jose Prieto will compete at 112 pounds for the Warriors and returns to action after a nagging injury sidelined him two weeks ago. Johnny Flores, Julian's brother, will represent the Warriors at 119 pounds. Johnny, who also plays football for Ruidoso, has also had a good season — barely missing a district Championship last week.

Beau Jarvis also offers the Warriors a good chance at a medal. Jarvis was a high seed at district, but finished third after being upset in his semi-final match.

The Warriors dark horse for a medal is gutsy Matt Bates. A junior, Bates has improved dramatically from year-to-year, and knocked off an opponent in the district tournament that has defeated him twice this year.

Sergio Guerro and Eustace Gallardo were also third place finishers last week. Both wrestlers have shown rapid improvement over the year and wrestling their best of the year right now.

Warrior head coach Gerald Ames is optimistic about his teams chances at state.

"This the best team we've had in a long time. We're particularly good at the lighter weights, so Julian, Johnny and Beau really have a good chance to shine.

"But since every kid in the state is going, their will probably be some upsets, it should be very interesting," said Ames.

Other Warriors making the trip include Gunner Johnson, Bill Cash, Shaun Cobb, Billy Austin and Scooter Bussell.

RHS Lady Warriors end regular season

The Ruidoso High School Lady Warriors will end the regular season Saturday when they travel to Deming for a meeting with the Lady Wildcats.

Deming, returns virtually all of their players from a State Tournament team last year, and with the exception of Socorro, the Lady 'Cats have been the class of the league.

Socorro is in front of the District 3-AAA race with a perfect 8-0 mark. Socorro will play Deming at Deming Saturday night with the District Championship on the line.

The Lady 'Cats have lost just one game in the district, to Socorro.

As far as Ruidoso is concerned, the first Deming game was the only time the Lady Warriors suffered at legitimate blowout in district play.

That game, played on January

29, saw the Lady Warriors get pounded 63-39.

But the Lady Wildcats will most likely have a much more difficult time this time as the Lady Warriors have played much better of late.

The guards — Crystal Taylor, Danielle Morris and Dawn Moore — have improved their ball handling skills and the tandem also has done a good job of working the ball into the hands of the Warrior scorers, Sarah Dix, Brandy Pfeiffer and Kristie Ryan.

Those three seniors — Dix, Pfeiffer and Ryan — play as well inside as anyone in the district. The problem is the entire team is prone to turnovers.

Pressing teams have caused the Lady Warriors trouble, and with the athletes that Deming has, it's reasonable to expect a press.

If the Lady Warriors can take care of the ball well enough to keep the turnovers down, and Dix and Pfeiffer have a good shooting night, Deming could be in trouble.

On the other hand, if the Lady 'Cats are successful in applying pressure in the Warrior backcourt, it could be another repeat of the first game.

Head coach Dennis Davis obviously has great respect for the Deming team.

"They play very good team ball. The first time we played we just didn't do very much right and everything went just about the way they wanted.

"If we are going to stay with them, then we'll have to take care of the ball a lot better. They're good, but our post people can play with anyone, so if we can get them the ball, we'll be in the game," said Davis.

While Friday night's clash will be the final game of the regular season, the District 3-AAA tournament will tip-off Monday as the Lady Warriors will probably travel to Oñate for the first round.

The girls played Oñate very close in their first meeting and not so well in the rematch on February 8. Game time, wherever the girls play, will be at 7 p.m.

If the girls win Monday night, they will play again Wednesday. The semifinals are scheduled for Friday with the championship game scheduled for Saturday night. All games will be played at the site of the higher seed in the district.

Achy Breaky leads league

As of February 8, Achy Breaky Hearts bowling team replaced the Inn at Pine Springs in the number one slot. Winning four out of four games last week, the Hearts now stand at 16-4.

Inn at Pine Springs slipped to number three just beneath the Underdogs. Both teams have a 15-5 record. The Scorebusters dropped from second to fourth with a record of 14-6.

Filling out the lower half was Smokey Bear Motel & Restaurant holding at fifth with an 11-9 record

Village makes a pitch for softball

The Parks and Recreation Department is already dusting off home plate in anticipation of summer's favorite sport, softball.

According to a release, the Parks & Rec is now registering girls ages 18 and under for slo-pitch softball teams.

Four divisions will be offered: Midget for ages 10 and under, Pee Wee for ages 12 and under, Junior for the 13 to 15-year-olds, and Senior for ages 18 and under.

Registration forms may be obtained through the schools or by calling the Parks and Recreation office at 257-5030.

The fee of $25 per child, which includes a team T-shirt and award, is not due until April.

According to the release, girls need not be experienced players. Practice clinics will be conducted in April and teams will form in May to play Wednesday nights at Eagle Creek Complex.

The Parks and Recreation Department is recruiting coaches and umpires, and staff especially encourages women to fill these roles.

Clinics will be conducted in March, and people interested in participating should call Parks & Rec.

Boys play final home game this Saturday

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent

The Ruidoso Warrior Basketball team will play its last home game of the year Saturday as the tribe entertains the Deming Wildcats in a District 3-AAA battle.

Deming, who owns wins over the Warriors and Cobre in District competition, is nowhere near the caliber of Silver, Socorro and Oñate. Those three teams are in the midst of a battle for the top spot in the district, while the Warriors, Deming and Cobre are competing to see who won't finish at the bottom of the pack.

Ruidoso brings a 33-game losing streak in district play including a 21-point loss to the Wildcats earlier in the year.

That game, played in Deming, saw the Warriors shoot a dismal 29 percent from the floor, while the Wildcats set the nets on fire, shooting nearly 60 percent on their home turf.

The Warriors, have played three very good games since then and should be rested, as they have not played a game since last Friday — an 18-point loss to Socorro.

While 18 points sounds like a lot, it was Socorro's three-point shooting that gave them the win. In reality, the Warriors probably played their best inside game of the year, since the loss of Casey Kearns in early January.

Another factor to consider in the Warriors behalf is that Raul Davis has been on an absolute tear. The 5'10" junior post man has scored 26, 26 and 30 points in his last three games.

When Davis is on, no one in the district, maybe the state can stop him. But, like his teammates, Davis is subject to get a little "cool" while shooting the ball — that's the bad news.

The good news he can heat up very, very quickly.

Rex Comanche has also played well of late. In fact, against Socorro, only Davis and Comanche scored in the first quarter — and only Todd Young chipped in a two-pointer in the second quarter.

Basically it was Davis and Comanche who trailed Socorro by 15 after two quarters, not bad for a 2-on-5 game.

But for Ruidoso to break its district losing streak, the Warriors will have to be hitting on all cylinders. They must get scoring from senior Jeff Chapman, junior Daniel Espinosa and sophomore Cory Hood — and let's not forget the hero of the Tularosa game, J.R. Chino.

The Warriors like to shoot the threes, and that's OK, if they fall. If Ruidoso relies on trifectas to win the game, they will come away empty handed. The Warriors must play well inside and box-out their opponents while rebounding.

Deming is tall, like most of the Warriors opponents, but they don't have the athletes that the Silvers and Oñates have.

In the first game, Deming shot the ball like throwing marbles in a barrel. If the Wildcats shot like that all season long, they would be 13-6, not 6-13.

"I'm pretty pleased with the way we've played lately," said boys coach Paul Kirkwood.

"We just play in a very tough district ... there are some good team in our league. Deming is one that we have a chance to beat, if we play well. Since we've lost some kids along the way, the ones that are still out have played their hearts out ... I'd just like to get them a win somewhere along the way and I think we really have a chance Saturday," said Kirkwood.

The Warriors wrap up the regular season next weekend with a two-day, two-game road trip at Cobre and Silver. The locals will play Cobre on February 25 and will try Silver on the following night.

Cobre defeated the Warriors by five points February 5, just one night after Ruidoso fell victim to powerful Silver.

Cross your heart and hope to win big race

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

It's coming next week — Ski Apache's most photographed, most anticipated, most fun event of the season — the seventh annual Cross Your Heart Cup runs Wednesday, February 23!

As entrants busily sew costumes and glue sequins, race organizers announce prizes and categories for the all-women's (almost) costume race.

Remember, it's not only how fast you are, it's how fun-spirited you can be!

First, the speed categories and prizes: if you place in the top three in ages 21-29, 30-39, 40-49 or 50-plus (herein after called Foxy Fifties), new this year — major sponsor Budweiser will award prizes of jackets, hats or T-shirts.

Next, the few categories and prizes: if you win Best Costume, Best Boobs (real or enhanced), Best Form in the Gate, Biggest Flirt, Best Buns, Golden Thigh, Young Buns (age 16-20 only), or Tootsie (more about that later), you'll draw for a prize donated by local sponsors.

More prizes! Every entrant is automatically entered in the door prize drawing held at the traditional post-race awards party and video fest held Wednesday evening at the bar at Casa Blanca. (You must be present to win.)

About those tootsies ... sure, guys can race, but only if you dress as a gal. Some of Ski Apache's most stalwart fellows disguise their manliness behind foam rubber and wigs for the spirit of Cross Your Heart!

Cost: $10 which includes two runs, an artistic souvenir headband from Pro Ski Sports, souvenir pin from Budweiser, and all the fun you can stand.

New this year: a portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Family Crisis Center.

Questions? Call Ski Apache's Ski School Desk at 336-4366, ext. 111. See you at the races!

Ski Apache Handicapped Skiers raises funds

by YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Ski Apache Handicapped Skiers Association (SAHSA) kicks off its annual fund raising this month with a silent auction, grand prize drawing and race.

For 16 years, SAHSA has provided skiing opportunities to persons with mental or physical disabilities.

The program, the third largest in the nation, depends upon fund raising and local involvement to support its activities.

The Auction

SAHSA volunteers will be seeking goods and services to be sold at the traditional silent auction from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, March 8 at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

"In past years we've enjoyed a wide array of auction items including clothing, furniture, accessories, jewelry, dinners from restaurants, hair stylings — you name it, someone's donated it," said Lisa Maue.

The Grand Prize

Also this month, volunteers are selling tickets for a season pass to Ski Apache for use next year. The winner's name will be drawn the night of the silent auction at 9 p.m. Winner need not be present to win.

Ticket donations for the season pass valued at $700 are $2 each.

New This Year

In addition to the traditional silent auction, bidders can bid "Live" on fine art donated by prominent artists.

Art volunteer Teri Sodd coordinates this event. To donate to the art auction, contact Sodd at Mountain Arts at 257-9748.

Also new this year, auction tables will be set up in sections. Each section will close to bidding at different times.

"This will avoid the 9 p.m. bidding frenzy and make bidding easier and more fun," says Maue.

The Big Race

Fund raising festivities finish with the always popular Business persons' Handicapped Ski Championships Wednesday, March 9, on East Easy Street at Ski Apache.

Two local business people team with a local SAHSA student to win medals.

"Thanks to the enthusiasm and cooperation of Dr. Paul Wirth and his staff, we've had physically disabled students in the Ruidoso school system learn to ski. They'll be up there showing their stuff," promises Maue.

Entering the race is easy. Simply call volunteer race association Cindy Lynch at Gary Lynch Realty at 257-4011 and donate a $25 entry fee.

Racing, however, requires special skills and a sense of humor.

"All business people race on only one leg and ski with outriggers, forearm crutches with short skis attached," advises Maue. This "handicap" leads to not only fun on the slopes, but also a sense of what the SAHSA students go through, says Maue enthusiastic.

If you want to race but aren't sure how you'll do on one leg, Maue offers race clinics beginning at 8:45 race morning.

We need you!

"We need everyone's help to make this a success," say Maue, Lynch and Sodd.

"We need lots of volunteers who'll collect auction merchandise, sell the tickets for the season pass, plus help out auction night and at the race the next day. We also need businesses to donate bid items and refreshments for the auction."

Adds Lynch, "This year we have so many handicapped kids who want to race and need business partners. There's no limit on the number of business people who can race."

And, of course, everybody's invited to bid at the auction and cheer at the races!

For further information, call Maue at 354-3191 or 336-4416, SAHSA headquarters.

Capitan candidates face questioners

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The toughest questions tossed out during the Chamber of Commerce candidates night Tuesday landed in the lap of Capitan Mayor Frank Warth.

While the mayor, in his bid for re-election March 1, recounted numerous grants that he secured and others he still is pursuing for the village to help with services, his detractors hammered home their grievances.

Several griped about potholes in the streets. One man said he's lived in the village nine years and hasn't seen any improvements, except in the subdivision roads.

"It's difficult to find money and even if we get it, it takes three years to complete it," Warth said, noting that the village has applied for a $1.2-million Community Development Block Grant. He also recently asked the State Legislature for more than $200,000 for street improvements.

"If you can't fix the streets, at least fill the pot holes," said Alex Trujillo.

Ron West said he's lived in the village 14 years and is concerned that good police officers never seem to stay on the job.

"Why couldn't we hold on to them?" West asked Warth.

"I guess they didn't like me, didn't like to work or to report stuff," Warth said.

"Because you won't work with them," West said, accusing Warth of funneling money away from police equipment and pay toward other projects.

He said Warth told him only certified officers would be hired when he expressed interest in the job, but one non-certified officer was put on staff.

Kathleen Hellman, who butted heads with Warth during the summer over the handling of last July Fourth's celebration, asked him how he felt about supporting Capitan businesses.

"I always try to buy from our people first," Warth replied. "It depends on the size of the order. We have a $300 to $400 a month charge account at the local hardware store and about the same for gasoline."

Hellman then asked Warth his feeling about the fairground and annual fair.

"I feel strongly that it should be here," Warth said, adding that he lobbied to that end when some Lincoln County commissioners briefly proposed moving them to Glencoe.

Hellman insisted Warth told her he wished it would be moved, because it attracted trash. She said Warth changed his stance when it became politically incorrect.

Warth denied he ever made the remark about the fairground and said his reference was to the dumpsters located at the fairground.

West also complained about the lack of activity for kids. When he suggested a recreation center, a woman in the audience pointed out that once a center is built, money is needed to maintain it "and where would you get that?" she asked.

Warth said a youth group is meeting in old city hall trying to organize activities. The board of trustees also agreed last year to work with the Capitan school board to create a ballfield, but school officials never came back, he said.

Trujillo asked why the wetlands sewage treatment system was developed close to town.

Warth said no land was available further out.

He recently asked for seeds from the State Forestry Division and $8,800 is left in the grant to plant trees, Warth said.

"We have to keep the fence there because of state requirements, because there are pathogens and we can't let the public run loose," Warth said.

When he was elected four years ago, he wanted to solve the garbage problem and the village now is part of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, a coalition that owns a landfill jointly with Otero County entities. He wanted to implement the E911 emergency telephone system and that has been accomplished. He wanted to secure grants for neglected infrastructure, which he has done. And he wanted to make strides with the village's water problems.

The village is buying more water rights, but needs to complete a water line from Eagle Creek to ensure it will be in good shape, Warth said.

Primarily grant money paid for 40 new fire hydrants, to develop the wetlands sewage treatment system and he is working on a $12-million project for street improvements.

"That's one of the reasons I'm running, because we didn't get that grant last year and I want to try again," he said.

He recently asked the State Legislature for $226,000 to work on three roads in the village.

Warth said he supports zoning for the community.

"I was chairman of planning and zoning and believe it is necessary for a growing community," he said. "If we pass an ordinance, it automatically would increase all of our property values. We need it to maintain our quality of life."

Norman Renfro, a former trustee and Warth's opponent for the position of mayor, had an easier time behind the microphone.

He decided to run at the urging of several residents and because "I feel like there just are not enough local people involved in local government."

"There should be more local input to provide a better chance of getting things done, getting more volunteers involved."

Renfro said he also wanted to see more employee involvement in forming the annual village budget.

"I know all the employees," he said. "Most were there before (when he was on the board). All are well qualified. I feel they should have input in forming the budget, especially in their departments. They know what they need to run their departments. Our employees should have a lot to do with running city government."

He would cultivate a better relationship with the fair board and fire department, Renfro said.

He suggested using cooperative agreements with the state to pay for road improvements. The village wouldn't need cash, only materials and labor.

Warth later pointed out that to date he has secured two grants from the State Highway Commission for a total of $150,000 for road work.

"I think I did better than a co-op agreement," he said.

Renfro, now retired, but former owner of the Smokey Bear Motel and restaurant, illustrated his backing of the fairground.

"I've been in business here 24 years and I know what the fair, the Smokey Bear Stampede and the Billy the Kid pageant can do in gross receipts," Renfro said. "I honestly don't think I could have made it without them."

He said the village must purchase more water rights to supply its residents, to develop the Eagle Creek pipeline and to construct storage facilities to create a reserve during dry years.

Warth later said the Eagle Creek Water Association (formed by the villages of Capitan and Ruidoso) will receive a $557,000

Capitan Mayor Frank Warth watches Norm Renfro, his political opponent and a former village trustee, make a pitch for election during a candidates night sponsored by the local chamber of commerce. The pub-loan from the Farmers Home Administration to repair the water pipeline. It will not cost the village a penny, he said.

"I realize that there are several projects Frank Warth initiated in Capitan and I support them all," Renfro said. "But we need more local input, then more people will be satisfied with the result."

"I haven't been in government for a couple of years, but I think I know what we need here."

Dorothy Smith, who serves on the village planning and zoning board, noted that although a master plan was adopted in 1988, zoning has not been implemented.

"I think we need planning and zoning, but not up-town," Renfro said. "It should fit Capitan's needs, not have a hog farm in town, but not override us so it's too much."

The first under the spotlight for the two open seats on the board of trustees was Byron Carpenter, who said he grew in Capitan and owns Carpenter Electric.

"I'm young and want to be involved," he said. "Water is a necessity and we need to figure how to get it here. We need to concentrate more on that than on sewage," adding that the treatment areas should have been further out of town.

"The streets need work. Some of the holes will knock your alignment out," Carpenter said.

He'd like to see more activities for young people.

"I want to see my boys grow up here and see things happen," he said.

Gallery owner David Posley asked where Carpenter intended to find the money for projects.

"We'd have to get the community involved," he responded.

"If I can't get one person involved (when he called earlier for volunteers to serve on the zoning board), then how will you get volunteers?" Posley countered.

"I was sitting up here or I would have raised my hand," Carpenter replied. "I'm interested, because a lot has been abused since (a master plan) was approved."

Carpenter said he wants to see progress.

"You've got to compromise to get what's best for the village," he said. "Keep an open mind. I'm not saying I'm the best man, but I'm concerned."

Next in the lineup was Alfred LeRoy Montes, who has served on the board of trustees for four years and previously was municipal and magistrate judge.

As his accomplishments, he listed keeping water rates and property taxes from being increased.

"Things like that interest me because so many of the people here are retired state employees and working people, who can't afford to stay if rates go up," Montes said.

Noting his unwavering support for the annual fair and maintaining the fairground at Capitan, Montes said he, Renfro and trustee Gilbert Montoya fought to give the fair association $1,000 a year.

"We got it through and it's news to me that they weren't getting that money," Montes said, saying he read that information.

Warth interjected that $1,000 has been budgeted for the fair association, but to date the money has not been requested by the group.

Checking with village clerk Deborah Cummins Wednesday, The Ruidoso News confirmed that $500 has been budgeted from juvenile recreation for the association and $500 from the general fund.

To avoid a conflict with the state's anti-donation regulation

(government giving to private entities), the association must submit a bill for services or goods before the money can be distributed. Usually, the distribution does not occur until the end of the fiscal year in June. Montes said when he read about a proposal by two county commissioners to move the fair to Glencoe and establish a fairground there, he phoned the undecided commissioner and urged others to lobby against the action. The idea subsequently was dropped.

He said he favored zoning in the village "as long as it's not way out of line."

One woman complained that Warth's efforts to hold down expenses had resulted in the mayor buying some items outside Capitan to avoid the high sales tax. Montes responded that he doesn't believe in buying out of town unless an item can't be purchased in Capitan.

Answering a question from Trustee Montoya about the current village police officers, Montes said as long as people don't complain and call him about them, "I feel they're doing a good job. With the prior officer, my phone and doorbell were ringing."

John Lunsford, the third candidate for trustee and the owner of Windwalker Construction and Mechanical, said he has three years of college courses in business management and has been self-employed for 13 years.

Although Windwalker is relatively new in Lincoln County, his family has lived nearby.

In his plumbing, heating and cooling businesses, Lunsford has employed up to 30 people, he said. He is licensed in both Texas and New Mexico.

"I think everyone needs to pull together as a unit and give more input to the people who run the city," Lunsford said. "My philosophy is to be open-minded and seek input."

He advocated planning and zoning, "but in a small community, it needs to be simple. (The text) needs to be published. I've heard a lot of concerns about it. Most are dead set against it that I've talked to."

Small town government also needs to be simple, he said.

"Confuse people and you won't get anyone to volunteer for anything. I believe in volunteering. From what I hear, you need to pull together and you need more volunteers."

Lunsford said he was 1989 vice president of the Catibad Softball Association with 280 teams. He then volunteered to donate weekend labor toward the construction of a teen center, because "children are our future."

Lunsford advocated hiring certified police officers or requiring them to become certified within one year.

Connie Hopper, a Lincoln County sheriff's deputy and director of Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) in the county, was teaching a parents' class and was not at the candidates night.

Reading from a statement she submitted, moderator Dick Beck said Hopper was born in Roswell and has three grown daughters and seven grandchildren.

She's lived in Capitan 18 years, and is interested in issues involving law enforcement, fire services and water uses.

She thinks Capitan can progress and still maintain a small community lifestyle. She invited anyone with questions to contact her at 354-4200.

John Whitaker was the first municipal judge candidate to speak and showed a good sense of humor about himself and the four-year office.

"I'm running because I need the money," he joked. "My kids (two daughters in college) are costing me a fortune."

He served as an acting alternate judge most of last year, Whitaker said. He currently works at the Shell Station convenience store and his wife teaches social studies in the Capitan school system.

"When the judge (Jimmy Stewart) said he wasn't going to run, I thought why not give it a try," Whitaker said.

His 28 years in the Air Force should be a plus in the office. As a first sergeant, he was required to resolve many disputes, he said.

"I believe as soon as I become totally familiar with the statutes, I could do you a pretty good job as mayor... as judge, I mean," he said. "That was a Freudian slip, but maybe..."

Jack Johnson, who has lived in Capitan 21 years, said he served in law enforcement for 26 years and was a state police officer for 13 years. He currently works as a mail carrier for the postal service.

Noting that all three candidates are good people, he said, "I think the biggest thing you have to decide is which of the three running fits the job best."

His qualifications include thousands of times in court, acting as liaison with the magistrate court for the state police and many special law-related courses.

"I think I'm a compassionate person, however, I can be very firm," Johnson said.

He would like to see two changes in the local municipal court; using community service instead of fines in some cases and conducting at least one night court a month to accommodate those who work.

Mary Lunsford cited her years as a magistrate judge in Catron County as qualifying her to serve as municipal judge.

When the judge in her area became ill, she was appointed in 1979 and was elected to office in 1980, working with the state police, the FBI, game wardens and drug enforcement officers.

She also served on a town council as vice president and treasurer, and was vice president of the volunteer fire department in that county.

Although Lunsford and her husband own Windwalker Construction and Mechanical in Capitan, they also operate a farm and raise registered quarter horses.

"I intend to get around and meet more people," she said. "I'll do a good job for you."

Capitan schools face growing discipline problems

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A rash of student suspensions in a one-week period rattled the usually smooth mood in the Capitan School District.

The discipline problems surfaced in comments from a substitute teacher and athletic trainer at the school board meeting Thursday.

Ken Crenshaw, a professional trainer who works with coach Ron Becker and the basketball team, told board members, "I think there's a major problem with the kids' attitudes."

Substitute teacher John McGrath called the situation a powder keg with 50 people standing around with a match and wondering where to put it.

"The battle lines are drawn between teachers, parents and students."

"I know a lot of students with big-time behavior problems," McGrath said. "As a substitute I've been told 'You can't touch me. I'll see you in court.' Students tell me I have to have just cause to remove them when they're disrupting the class."

"I think we have some excellent, motivated students, but others are standing in the way."

High school principal Darrel Stierwalt later told The Ruidoso News that 10 students ranging from ninth graders to seniors had been suspended the previous week. Six suspensions were connected to frequent "skipping" of classes by students and four were students accused of "thumping" underclassmen.

"Our policy says students are not allowed to intimidate other students," Stierwalt said. "But we had some seventh graders crying because of the older kids thumping them."

Stierwalt said he appreciates the concern of McGrath, Crenshaw and others, but he does not believe the situation is critical at this time.

"We're growing and suffering the same problems as other districts," Stierwalt said. "Lots of people moving into the district come from different backgrounds, a lot from single parent homes, perhaps where the parent is not as involved in their education as they would like to be, because they are working."

"It seems like (last) week, it snowballed. We feel the need to be really be strict about letting students out of class. I think we trusted students too much and for whatever reason, they decided to abuse that trust. I had four boys travel to school on the bus and never show up in class."

Part of the discussion with the school board included the need for some alternative other than out of school suspension.

"The (out of school) suspensions are useless," McGrath said. "You gave the students exactly what they want, to be out of school. You gave the parents the problem and they may not be there."

Stierwalt acknowledged the negative aspect of the suspensions.

"We only have out of school suspension and I think those pushing for in-school suspensions have a good point," he said. "But you've got to pay someone to do it. They have to be a strict disciplinarian. The question remains, where would we get the money. There are a lot of things we'd like to do, but don't have the money."

"Parents have been supportive of suspension, but the 10 students are mad."

With either type of suspension, the work missed cannot be made up and the student receives a zero. But with an in-school suspension, they are confined to one room and are kept under tight supervision.

"We have some negative attitudes filtering down from other areas," Stierwalt said. "We're experiencing growing pains."

"We still have a great school, but we need to do some retraining."

During the board meeting, Crenshaw said the problem is two-headed and consists of a breakdown in family values in the home and an animosity among the school, staff, board and administration.

"It's the toughest job on earth and a few are trying to do the right things and are not getting support," he said. "The kids have no respect or understanding of values. I see it again and again and again."

"I have tried to educate them on values beyond the basketball court. It's a big city epidemic that's filtering down to small schools. If I can help in any way, feel free to ask and I will do it."

Board President Tom Trost told Crenshaw he appreciated that a professional trainer for a major league team would volunteer to help Capitan's students.

"I think things will be turned around," he said.

At that remark, McGrath stood up.

"I appreciate the attitude, but what does that mean?" he asked Trost, who replied that school superintendent Diana Sonnamaker was looking at disciplinary procedures.

McGrath said morale is low among staff and students.

"I can't think of a single group that doesn't have something awful to say about the others because of discipline problems."

McGrath said "looking" at the situation isn't good enough.

"We need to make definitive concrete objectives and attack it directly," he insisted.

Trost said remarks like "due process" are a reflection of the dominance of lawyers on society.

McGrath said for years, "we've knocked ourselves out trying to protect individual rights, but you can't do it if teenagers are holding the district, town and state hostage."

"This needs to be nipped in the bud. There are a lot of big city problems here. Parents haven't done their job. Teachers haven't done their jobs. They blow them off and say they can't handle them. The administration too. It's self serving to spread the blame around."

Trost said he has faith in Sonnamaker, who was hired last summer.

"I think she's grabbing the bull by the horns and doing things," he said.

McGrath said he also has seen a response lately "and that's great."

"What can we as parents and as community members do to help and make that job easier?" McGrath asked.

"Teachers and students shouldn't be afraid to come to school and dot their jobs. We need back and forth dialogue. Do you need us to spend more time with you in class?"

"We want our children to be safe and get a good education. We want to help. We just don't know what to do."

Trost said a start would be for parents to come in and talk to Sonnamaker. Stierwalt said meetings with parents and staff are scheduled to find out whether needs are being met.

Fighting Tiger teams tame Cloudcroft and Hagerman opponents

The Capitan Tigers won their fourth and fifth district games last week, in back-to-back victories against Cloudcroft and Hagerman.

Friday, the Tigers dominated Cloudcroft with a final buzzer score of 56-43. Jamel Mahboub scored a startling 21 points.

The junior varsity also tasted victory with a 52-37 win.

On Saturday, the Tigers edged past the Hagerman Bobcats 46-40 for a home court win to finish out the district season. Double digit scorers in this neck-to-neck duel were Capitan's Michael Fish and Trevor Cox, both with 16 points.

Capitan's junior varsity also skunked Hagerman, winning with a solid 48-33 victory.

Contributing to this report were Capitan sports writers Phillip Koreny and Travis Jaquess.

As citizens of Lincoln County, we can deter the impact of this type criminal activity in our community by getting involved, and reporting any suspicious activity to the local law enforcement agency in your area, or by calling Crimestoppers.

Museum presents 'Lillie Langtree'

This Saturday, February 19, at the Museum of the Horse, the lights will dim and a legend of the theater world will take center stage once again. The Museum's monthly membership program features the renowned Lillie Langtree.

The show will begin at 7 p.m. and is free to the public.

Known as "the Jersey Lily", Lillie Langtree was the first lady of high society to go on the stage in Great Britain. Lillie married a wealthy Irishman, Edward Langtree, and overnight became a dazzling leader of London Society and an intimate friend of Edward VII, the Prince of Wales.

As an actress she toured the British Isles, South Africa and the United States. On the stage, her presence attracted poets and writers and even backwoodsmen who lauded her for her beauty and loveliness.

In reality, Lillie's beauty and social standing may have given her more attention than her acting ability.

Still, Lillie Langtree organized her own acting company and managed the Imperial Theater. Oscar Wilde wrote a play for her, and Judge Roy Bean named a town after her!

This exotic flower of the stage comes to life again at the expert hand of VanAnn Moore.

According to a recent release, "VanAnn Moore is song, energy, enthusiasm and theater all in one."

Members of the Museum of the Horse know this to be true. VanAnn has presented such notable characters as Susan Shelby Magoffin and La Tules at previous membership programs and all were enthusiastically received.

Moore has played more than 30 major roles in musicals, plays and operas. Moore graduated cum laude as "Best Actress of the Year" with a B.A. degree in Communications and Theatre from the University of Colorado. She received a masters degree in theater and music under a full performance grant from the University of Denver.

As artist-in-residence for the New Mexico Arts Division, she has written, directed and performed numerous one-woman shows. Her musical theater performances have won VanAnn Moore international acclaim.

Her seemingly limitless repertoire of characterizations, dazzling vocal ability and enchanting personality result in standing ovations wherever she performs.

Everyone is invited to enjoy VanAnn Moore as Lillie Langtree this Saturday evening at 7 p.m. at the Museum of the Horse.

Chuckwagon jamboree tickets are going fast

Tickets to Chuckwagons of the West Jamboree are going fast, so fast that James and Cindy Hobbs of the Flying J Wranglers have added another performance to the May jamboree at the Flying J Ranch outside of Ruidoso.

Originally, two shows were scheduled — on Wednesday and Thursday, May 18 and 19 — but due to popular demand, a Friday night show has been added.

The Friday night line-up will be as follows:

Bar D Wranglers from Durango, Colorado; Circle B Cowboys from Rapid City, South Dakota; Triple C Cowboys from Tucson, Arizona, and the Flying J Wranglers from right here in Lincoln County.

Jim Dunham, gunfighter and western historian, also will perform on Friday.

"The third night is already filling up fast, so local folks need to get their checks in for tickets soon," said Hobbs.

The annual Chuckwagon Jamboree is a great event for western music fans that is rotated among the different chuckwagon supper locations. It will only happen here one every seven or eight years.

"So come on out and eat some beans and yodel along with the rest of the crowd," invites Hobbs.

To order tickets, call the Flying J Ranch at 836-4830.

Voters need information

If you plan to vote in Ruidoso's municipal election on March 1, you owe it to yourself and your community to learn as much as you can about the candidates in that election.

Voting is a right and a privilege, but it carries some responsibility, too — it's up to voters to be informed when they close those curtains and cast their ballots.

Tonight's candidate forum, starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center, will offer voters a chance to see all the candidates for mayor, municipal judge and council in one place at the same time. Each candidate will have a chance to speak for three minutes, and the audience will submit written questions to be read aloud by the moderator.

So, attend the FREE forum, hear what the candidates have to say, ask them questions and be prepared to choose the best people to serve this village.

More information on candidates will be provided in our election special to be published in the Thursday, February 24, edition. Citizens can listen to the candidates at the forum, read their statements in our section and then, if questions linger about a candidate, call them on the telephone and discuss issues with them. Then, before you vote, weigh each candidate's strengths and weaknesses, compare their experience and consider their plans for the future.

The more you know, the better choices you can make for your hometown.

Speaking of the more you know, Ruidoso Downs citizens sure surprised some observers Monday when they turned out in force to protest any changes to the livestock ordinance, but had no comment when the trustees doubled their own pay.

It was not a surprise that Downs residents made it clear that they live in a town that's economy is based on the horse industry — thus they successfully lobbied to retain the right to keep horses (and other livestock) in town. But, it was shocking that they sat mutely while the Downs board voted to pay trustees $100 a meeting.

Two years from now, when all trustee spots will have been on the ballot, that raise will cost Ruidoso Downs trustees at the very least $4,800 a year. Citizens of the Downs, population 920, apparently are very satisfied with their elected officials.

Thought for the day:

"Beware of people carrying ideas. Beware of ideas carrying people."

Village needs strong leaders to "grow up"

TO THE EDITOR:

A lot of us can remember when Ruidoso was called Harmony Valley. We were a sleepy little village, but this is no longer the case despite sometimes bad management, wrong decisions and weak leadership.

The many natural attributes of our village such as, the climate, pine trees, mountains and the river are beginning to create a giant that is bursting at the seams. We are fast becoming known nationwide as a wonderful place to visit and or retire.

Never before in the history of Ruidoso have we needed a strong more positive leadership than now if we are to grow in the right direction.

It was a most fortunate day when Jerry Shaw was appointed mayor. Many residents took the attitude "wait and see." They have waited and they have seen the dedication and tireless efforts to clean up the streets, remove downtown banners, secure a treatment plan for Grindstone Dam and many other projects too numerous to mention.

Last, but not least, is her regular office hours, her open door policy to give all people a fair and impartial hearing regardless of race, color or creed.

March 1, is just around the corner. We hope you voters will consider the many positive and wonderful opportunities that are in store for Ruidoso, and recognize the need for a strong and progressive leadership.

Go to the polls March 1 and elect Jerry Shaw mayor — for a better tomorrow, for a better Ruidoso.

Thanks, congratulations and a challenge

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to take this time and space to show my appreciation to K-Bob's of Ruidoso for recognizing our Ruidoso Middle School Lady Braves A team in their undefeated basketball season.

My thanks go out to the coaches, teachers, parents, fans and newspaper that supported them throughout, and also all those involved with the Ruidoso Little League program, which is entirely volunteer.

That usually is a thankless job, but the results are entirely worth it.

Most of the time I think we (myself included) offer more criticism than help to youth groups of any kind — athletic, church or academic — and I just want to thank the community for the support they do give and have given in the past.

There are many activities out there to help kids learn and achieve, some known; some we may need to invent since finding the ones they are most interested in is the challenge for each individual kid, but once they find it by someone's guidance or by their own doing can be more rewarding than money could ever be.

If you have a little spare time on your hands once in a while, what could possibly be wrong with donating that time to something positive for kids — sports, reading, choir, hiking, science, etc., etc.

Somebody has got to do it, we can't keep saying it was everybody else's job. It is each and every one of our problem so all we have to do now is just do it. No excuses.

Just remember, the kids of today will be running the country tomorrow.

Handicapped parking abuse annoys reader

TO THE EDITOR:

Let's talk about something that really gets my goat. We here in Ruidoso have a great number of people who obviously have no concept of the term "handicapped parking" or they are just plain stupid and can't read.

Yesterday, while waiting on my wife, I watched six local people park in the handicapped parking and almost run to get into the store. None of the cars had handicapped tags.

I almost blew a fuse out of frustration. I can only imagine how our physically challenged citizens must feel.

If the police are interested, I have the license plate numbers, colors and makes of cars. I would be glad to make a citizens complaint if the police will follow through.

You know, if all of us law abiding citizens would band together we could put a stop to this blatant disregard for our friends who depend on this courtesy.

I must say one of the vehicles that parked in the handicapped area had a tag, but it was obvious the person parking there was not handicapped. Apparently someone in her family deserves the tag but she was using it at her own convenience.

This to me is a slap in the face of all the deserving people by someone who knows first hand the difficulties the handicapped have to overcome.

I am not aware of the fine imposed on this parking violation, but it should be very severe. If the local police could make the effort to crack down on this, maybe that will help put a stop to it.

To the lady in the red Ford explorer and you others, watch out! I'm going to be watching and taking down all information and if the police will help, we'll stop you.

Kudos to mayor for cleaning

TO THE EDITOR:

I want to thank (Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst) for his efforts of trying to clean up the Downs. As a property owner and resident of Downs, I think everyone should be proud of (Hayhurst).

I have gone to a lot of work and expense in keeping our property clean and maintained. A lot of others here do the same. To allow someone four months to clean up something that should take a day at the most seems unreasonable, especially someone who should be setting an example.

The Downs area is the first thing strangers see when they come to Ruidoso. Volunteers should offer their help in keeping the median planted and watered. It would help the appearance so much.

The Downs has one of the major parts of the economy of Ruidoso — the racetrack, Museum of the Horse and the Sports Theatre — all three of which are maintained and kept very pretty.

There are also other businesses in this area. Two areas that should be looked at very closely are the horse lots and the businesses along Highway 70 coming into town.

Everyone should maintain the same.

I appreciate (Mayor Hayhurst's) pride in our community and taking (his) civic duties seriously.

quantitative responses to the Scholarship Nomination Form and the extent to which they demonstrate the qualities of leadership, scholarship, character and service, according to a news release.

The National Honor Society Scholarship program, now in its 46th year, will provide scholarships of $1,000 each for 1994.

Silver Lining

Valley friends share sorrow, celebrations

Ronnie Wingfield

Services were held February 9 at the Wingfield-Dunlap cemetery in Tunstall Canyon at Glencoe for William Ronald Wingfield, affectionately known as Ronnie, who was called home by our Lord on February 8.

Ronnie was a horseman, outdoorsman and conservationist, and a member of a pioneer Lincoln County family. His grandfather and great-grandfather were ranchers in the Three Rivers country.

He was a student of New Mexico history, especially of Lincoln County. He was a true westerner, always ready to help friend and stranger alike; and he was my good friend and neighbor for many years.

Ronnie will always hold a fond spot in our hearts. And we rejoice that he has gone on to meet loved ones in heaven with our Lord.

Happy Birthday to Della Bonnell

Della Bonnell was born February 20, 1937, in Roswell to Leo and Louise Joiner. She spent her earlier life in Hondo and was graduated from Hondo High School as salutatorian in 1955. On December 14, 1957, she was married to David Bonnell in the Tinnie Baptist Church. They have three children: Ruth Bradley, Joel Bonnell and Paul Bonnell, and three grandchildren: April Jannie and Cerina Bonnell and Krystyn Bradley.

As a child, Della was a model in some of the paintings of artist Peter Hurd. She studied art at Eastern New Mexico University and is a very gifted artist in pen and ink, wash, oil and watercolor. Her favorite is portraits. Della has been Glencoe postmaster for 12 years. We think the world and all of her and wish her many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

Happy birthday to Eudocia Burk

Eudocia Ambriz Burk was born February 20, 1917, in Mexico to Pascidio Cervantes Ambriz and the former Esther Ruiz. At the age of three, she and her parents and elder sister, Marie and her younger sister, Camerina; a babe in arms — all walked across the bridge in El Paso carrying their worldly belongings in hand. They first went to Hagerman and then to the Frank Coe Ranch.

She remembers Frank Coe coming through the deep snow with his pack horse loaded with toys, candy and other Christmas gifts for the family. "I can see him yet," says Eudocia. "He was a very kind man."

Later the family worked for George and Phoebe Cole, and for Mayme and Elzy Perry, and Burt and Sidney Bonnell. About 1933, her family moved to their little fruit farm nearby. Eudocia went to the Bonnell ranch grade school where her teacher was Susan Tully; then at Stetson school where her teachers were Ola Jones and Marie Bishop.

Later she was graduated from Hondo High School as valedictorian in 1937. In 1940, she married Otho Burk and they lived in Ruidoso Downs for years. Eudocia and Otho were always good friends of the Storm family.

Eudocia still lives in Ruidoso Downs and is a member of Wayne Joyces' Ruidoso Baptist Church.

Remembering her Glencoe days, Eudocia says, "I will always remember the great kindness of the Glencoe families. I will always thank God for how good they were to us. This has made me love people, all people."

We wish Eudocia many happy returns of the day and all the Lord's blessings.
