Join a barn raising bash this Saturday

Bring a hardy appetite and hammer, wear jeans and a sweatshirt for the old fashioned barn raising at Lone Tree Bible Camp Saturday. Director Tim Worrell said camp supporters hope to see the walls, trusses and ceiling go up on phase one of the dining hall for Fort Lone Tree. Plan to show up between 7:30 and 8 a.m. Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be served. To find out more about the barn raising eight miles southeast of Capitan off U.S. 380 at the base of the Capitan Mountains, contact David Jaquess at 354-3134.

Celebrate St. Paddy's at Sun World Savings

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce invites members of the business community to Business After Hours. Socialize from 5:30 to 7 p.m. today (Thursday), March 17, at Sun World Savings. That's St. Patrick's Day, so don't forget to wear green!

MainStreet plans take center stage

A review of public parking and restrooms in the MainStreet project area is the subject of a special council workshop meeting scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 22, at village hall. The public, downtown merchants and business owners are encouraged to attend. For further information, contact Alan Briley at 258-4014.

Come and celebrate

Friends and family of Bert Minter are welcome to stop after 1 p.m. Thursday, March 24, at 214 West Third Street in Capitan to celebrate Minter's 91st birthday and enjoy some refreshments. The reception has been arranged by Minter's daughters, Ida and Loraine.

Community celebrates with lunch

MainStreet Ruidoso and The Ruidoso News invite the community to celebrate its successes and look forward to a bright future with a Community Update Luncheon at noon Friday, March 25, at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center. Michael Cerletti, secretary of the New Mexico Department of Tourism, will be the keynote speaker for the community gathering. A dynamic speaker, Cerletti will report on the state of tourism in this area that depends so heavily on that industry. State Representative H. John Underwood (D-Ruidoso) will be a featured speaker for the almost annual luncheon, which wasn't held last year, but is back in place as a testament to MainStreet's progress over the past year. Nuclear waste officials meet in Washington D.C.

Participants of a meeting at Mescalero last week to explore possibilities of forming a consortium to develop a private nuclear waste storage facility are testifying today before a federal sub-committee in Washington D.C. A joint oversight hearing on the nation's spent nuclear fuel interim policy was scheduled to begin at 9:45 a.m. today. The House of Representatives' subcommittees on Energy and Mineral Resources, Oversight and Investigations and the Committee on Natural Resources called the meeting. James J. Howard, chairman and CEO of Northern States Power Company, who convened the meetings in Mescalero that included representatives of 34 utility companies, also was scheduled to take part in one of three panels today. Frederick Peso, vice president of the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe, is listed as a participant on a panel that also includes Nuclear Waste Negotiator Richard H. Stallings. First up in today's witness list is Congressman Joe Skeen (R-NM), who represents the Southeastern part of the state, including Lincoln County and the Mescalero Reservation. Northern States Power, a nuclear utility company based in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and the Mescalero Apache Indian Tribe have signed an agreement setting the stage for a private nuclear storage system. Last week's meeting, called by Northern States' CEO, was called to gather partners in such a development.

A private storage facility will undergo the same federal nuclear licensing and regulatory processes as a government operation, but the costs of a private development would be much lower, according to participants in last week's meeting. During the Mescalero meeting, participants toured the Three Corners area where the tribe has indicated it is willing to develop a temporary storage site for high

MainStreet & village battle high costs in streetscape development

Councilors and the mayor asked why they hadn't been notified earlier. Burnett admitted that village officials were third choice in communication behind MainStreet's Mary Maul and Alan Whitesel of the New Mexico State Highway and Transportation Department. As of March 1, Burnett said Bohannon-Huston had incurred $140,708 in costs, which didn't include profit. Burnett said he wrote Briley in early April that his company was willing to limit his fee increase to the village at $48,000 and absorb $27,000. Newly elected MainStreet president Tom Battin said he would examine the detailed overages and come back to the village with information that would allow them to make a decision on the adjustment. As of March 1994, that adjustment has yet to be reconciled. At the following village council meeting, April 26, 1993, Briley told the councilors that the MainStreet project had hit a snag. Only one bid was received, by D&S Construction out of Santa Teresa. That bid was for $1,356,491. Bohannon-Huston estimated the cost to be $988,177, about $350,000 less. Briley said the state highway department had opened bids for 21 projects the previous Friday, thus eliminating many businesses that would have bid. The council took Briley's advice to wait until after the season and re-advertise. He told the council it would take 180 days to complete the project and that cold weather was no problem. There was no mention of Bohannon-Huston at the last council meeting in April, however there was a closed session that involved land in the River Trail area. One owner was trying to save her bridge along the river to prevent being landlocked from her property. She was unaware that there was a river trail proposed along her land. On May 10, the council held a workshop to review the third quarter budget for 1992-1993, and discuss the preliminary budget for fiscal 1993-1994. Battin attended the workshop and, on behalf of MainStreet, requested $43,000 for the new budget, a $2,000 increase over the previous budget. Battin reported the only salary position was to be increased from $1,500 to $2,000 for the executive director promotional status. He didn't clarify what that meant. It was after those budget meetings, director Don Miller was given a $1,000 per month increase by the MainStreet board. Friday, May 21, MainStreet board members talked over a possible office relocation and the engineers' consulting fees. A barbecue was scheduled at Miller's house. The following Tuesday, Battin appeared before the council regarding the change in the lodgers tax ordinance. Battin said there were no immediate plans for requesting lodgers tax funding for a visitors center; however, consideration was requested for strategic planning to provide the opportunity to invest the funds. The council adopted Ordinance 93-06 to parallel the state ordinance. Councilors Jerry Shaw, Bill Karn, J.D. James and Frank Cummins voted "aye," and councilors Barbara Duff and Ron Andrews voted "nay." At the MainStreet board's regular meeting Thursday, June 17, members were still in shock at losing the resort hotel planned by R.D. Hubbard. In an attempt to encourage Hubbard to reconsider, the MainStreet board unanimously approved a resolution be sent to Hubbard thanking him for all he had done for the community. Miller explained that until new budget money was released by the village, MainStreet would have to operate in the red. He said MainStreet was $5,000 short in operating funds for the last part of June and most of July. He asked for and was granted authorization to establish a line of credit with an area bank to cover the lack of funds. Miller said he and Briley were going to Albuquerque that Friday to meet with Bohannon-Huston and discuss the original bid estimates for the construction program. The purpose of the trip was to try to reduce the project budget. The board also told Miller to immediately look into placing permanent receptacles in the Midtown area and to ask the village to repair the crosswalks. On June 29, Councilor Ron Andrews quit the council. That evening, the council entered another closed to the public session. One item discussed was regarding the property owner and her Short Street bridge in the river trail area. An apparent agreement was made to extend her time to bring the bridge up to compliance. On Friday, July 9, Councilor Jerry Shaw was appointed mayor of Ruidoso. Frank Potter and Joe Gomez also were appointed to the council during the special meeting. MainStreet met July 15 and plans for the Riverwalk (river trail) were unveiled at their meeting. "The theme we are suggesting is the promotion of Lincoln County through public art," Miller said. Miller's plans would include public art, such as sculptures, to chronicle attractions throughout Lincoln County. "The concept would be reasonably sized public art with placards to tell the story of Lincoln County," he said. "What we are talking about is strictly the theme," said Miller. "Once the theme is approved we will work on developing the program." Miller said that MainStreet will be finding an architect for the project. He also would be working with the Corps of Engineers to determine the best manner in which to proceed with the plans in the flood plain area. TO BE CONTINUED

Incumbents ask for four more years

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Two Lincoln County commissioners and County Clerk Martha Proctor are breathing easier knowing they won't face any opposition in the elections this fall. But State Representative H. John Underwood, a Ruidoso Democrat, has two Republicans after his job in District 56, which covers all of Lincoln County and Mescalero. Underwood, Ruidoso village attorney who also has a private practice, first was elected in 1990 and faced no opposition two years ago. His opponents this time around are well-known former teacher and coach Dub Williams, who has been active in the Water Defense Association, and Caren Cowan Bremer, executive director of the New Mexico Wool Growers. Lincoln County Commission Chairman Monroy Montes from district 5, is unopposed as is Commissioner L. Ray Nunley in district 2. "I'm kind of surprised," Montes said Wednesday. "I think everybody needs to be challenged. I don't know why I wasn't." "I don't know if it's good or bad, because with campaigning it kind of gets you out talking to the people, but I still plan to do that." Nunley obviously was happy with his free ride. "I'm pleased that no one filed against me and I hope it's because I've done good job," he said. "I'll continue to try to do just that." Commissioner Bill Schwettmann from Alto, a Republican elected two

Downs village board rescinds its collective bargaining regs

by PAM CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees repealed the collective bargaining ordinance Monday, leaving the state to regulate labor management relations.

The board also adopted a resolution officially supporting the recycling pilot program. The Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority is accepting calls from people who want to sign up for the program. Participants receive free, blue recycling bags in which they can put newspaper, tin, plastics #1 and #2 and aluminum.

"This is a worthy project," said Mayor Joe Hayhurst. "We'd like to see everybody get involved."

People who want to sign up for curbside recycling should call 378-4697.

The Ruidoso Downs Auxiliary is joining the campaign to clean up the Downs. On May 15, they will award $100 to the property owner who best cleans up his or her place.

Second place wins $75 and third wins $50.

The auxiliary is also sponsoring an Easter egg hunt at 9 a.m. Saturday, March 26, at the Downs park.

An Easter bonnet parade will follow at 10 a.m., with contest categories for ages infant to 7, 8 to 14, and 15 and older.

Shirlene Fitzner, auxiliary president, said scholarship applications are available through the high school. Seniors can apply for the annual scholarship.

Community

Guests at the lunch will hear updates from MainStreet President Tom Battin, as well as Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw and County Commission Chairman Monroy Montes.

Tom Rigsby, president of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, will report to the community on his organization's progress, as will a representative of Ruidoso Downs Racing, Inc.

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst was invited, but will be unable to attend the meeting.

Don Dutton, a member of the MainStreet Ruidoso board, will serve as master of ceremonies for the program, which is sponsored by 29 progressive area businesses, whose stories will be told in a Progress Edition being distributed the week of the Community Update Luncheon.

Ruidoso Flower Shop, one of the sponsors for the big event, will transform the civic center for the lunch, which will be prepared and served by Cliff Herring and his catering staff from K-Bob's Restaurant.

Herring's food and staff got rave reviews at the Governor's Conference and at last month's Salute to Women lunch, and he promises this lunch will be even better.

The lunch will start off with tossed fresh salad greens with dressing, followed by a hearty helping of grilled chicken with lime marinade. Also on the menu will be potatoes Brady, baby carrots with buttered brown sugar glaze, hot rolls and butter, coffee and iced tea.

The meal will be topped off with strawberry shortcake.

Tickets for the luncheon, which will benefit a MainStreet Ruidoso project, are $12.50 each, and are available at any of the sponsors, including K-Bob's, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center and The Ruidoso News.

Checks for the tickets should be made out to MainStreet Ruidoso, and $2.50 of the $12.50 price is tax-deductible.

Purchase tickets before 5 p.m. Wednesday, March 23.

years ago when the commission was expanded from three to five members, will face Democrat Preston Lee Stone in November.

Stone operates a ranch and sits on Otero Electric Cooperative's governing board. First elected in February 1983, he spent 10 years on the Capitan School Board, serving many years as chairman. He decided not to run for re-election when his term expired in February 1993.

Stone previously has volunteered as an emergency medical technician and with his wife Willa, has been involved with the with rodeo club and 4-H.

Schwettmann, an engineer, announced his candidacy for reelection to a four-year term earlier this month.

Commissioners are paid $10,500 a year.

Republican Joan Park, who currently works in the treasurer's office and previously announced her candidacy, will be pitted against Democrat Steven Eugene Brewer.

A 20-year resident of the county, Brewer said he is the descendant of local pioneer families.

"With a high school education, I feel as qualified to run as any other candidate," he said. He promised to hire local residents, if elected.

Brewer previously worked at Fort Stanton, with the county road department and with two large food chains. He's married to Juanita Brewer, who works in the county assessor's office.

The county treasurer is paid an annual salary of $30,130.

County Clerk Martha Proctor, who has won two previous two-year terms as clerk, was pleased that she won't have to campaign this year for a four-year term.

"I'm thrilled to death," she said. "I'm actually honored that voters have enough confidence in my ability to serve for another four years, but I'm also humbled, because I realize there's always more room for improvement. I'll continue to run a progressive, yet conservative office."

"With no opponent this year, I can spend more time working on my job than campaigning."

The county clerk earns $30,130 a year.

A new law this year doesn't allow write-in candidates for county offices.

Four candidates are vying for the new position of Division IV Judge of the Twelfth Judicial District.

On the Democratic side are James Wayland Counts and District Attorney Bert Atkins; as Republicans, Frank K. Wilson and Wayne Jordon.

District judges are paid $69,719 a year and the term runs for four years.

In other judicial offices, Gerald Dean is unopposed as Division I Magistrate Judge.

The most hotly contested race in town is for Division II Magistrate Judge. Incumbent William R.

Butts, a Democrat, will face Danny B. Garcia in the June primary. Garcia recently ran unsuccessfully for Ruidoso municipal judge.

Three Republicans will compete for that Party's nomination: Trinidad Zepeda of Ruidoso Downs, Paul Wersich of Ruidoso and Ken Nosker of San Patricio.

Magistrate judges are paid $47,060 a year.

Zepeda moved to Lincoln County in 1992 from Kansas, where he worked as a Finney County sheriff's deputy for five and a half years.

The 41-year old Lincoln County sheriff's deputy and his wife, Eva, have two children of their own and have raised nine other children.

Paul Wersich also works for the county sheriff's department, as a narcotics agent. He has more than 30 years in law enforcement.

He was with the El Paso Police Department for 23 years and was captain of detectives when he retired and moved to Ruidoso 11 years ago.

"I feel I can bring a new concept to magistrate court," he said. "This is the people's court and should be run at the convenience of the people."

He would conduct at least one night court a month to accommodate those who work during the day.

"I feel the rights of the criminals have been considered more than the rights of the victims," he said.

Nosker, a former county commissioner, previously announced his candidacy.

Counseling Center faces more demand, less money

by PAMELA CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

With a staff of three, The Counseling Center (TCC) provides mental health care to all of Lincoln County.

Except for private therapists, TCC is the only mental health agency in the county. The center currently has a waiting list of longer than six weeks, and the demand is growing.

Katherine Cooper is the manager and supervising therapist at TCC.

"We hate to ask people to wait," she said. "The sooner we can see them, the better."

Cooper currently has a caseload of 77 clients. Mary Satonica, prevention specialist, and Paul Gallegos, alcoholism counselor, each carry a similar caseload.

In addition to one-on-one counseling, Gallegos and Satonica each travel to the county jail once a week. They and Cooper lead therapy groups, and one week a month they each answer the on-call help line 24 hours a day.

Then there are emergencies — a suicidal or psychotic person may have to spend the night in jail because there are no other facilities to house people who may be dangerous to themselves or others. The only padded cell in the county is in Carrizozo.

"There is a lot of need," said Cooper. "The three of us are scheduled pretty thin. We don't get to do psychotherapy for an hour once a week, the way we'd like, and we frequently don't get to do the kind of intensive therapy with kids we want to do."

Because of the increasing number of young people who need therapy, TCC is hoping to bring another therapist on staff by the time school starts.

According to Jeff Schwehn, TCC clinical director, this case manager or home-based family therapist will work intensively with children and families.

Cooper said that most so-called problem kids are acting out because of systematic problems in the family and sometimes because the child is hungry, sick, or otherwise neglected.

"That doesn't mean it's the parents' fault or something," said Cooper. "There are a lot of things beyond a parent's control."

Working more closely with families could prevent future mental illness in many kids.

"Most of the problems I see in adults are the result of childhood neglect or abuse," said Cooper. Many mental illnesses are also caused by chemical imbalances.

TCC is asking the Children, Youth and Family Department to fund a three-month start up for the position, and continued funding will have to come from Medicaid. TCC, which is contracted by the state, receives additional funding from the Village of Ruidoso and Lincoln County.

According to Jim Kerlin, TCC

executive director, Lincoln County does not have a solid base of insured or paying clients, so TCC relies mostly on public money.

"We're asking the county commission and the city council for expanded support," said Kerlin. "As our staff has grown, the demand for services has doubled."

The Ruidoso Counseling Center provides a microcosm of almost all the services in Otero County. The Lincoln County Commission gives The Counseling Center in Ruidoso one third of the funding that Otero gives the TCC agency in Alamogordo. The Alamogordo office is supplemented by 10 additional mental health services, whereas there are only three additional services in Lincoln County, none of which provide therapy.

"We're doing it all in Lincoln County," said Kerlin. "And we get very little funding other than local support."

TCC is contracted by the state. Ruidoso is the only village that contributes to TCC.

"We asked Ruidoso Downs, but they said they were unable to help," said Cooper. "I don't think we've asked the smaller villages."

"Though our costs have increased, state funding increased in only one area, and some areas went down. We've lost about $85,000 in cuts in the last five years," said Kerlin. "Now we're providing a lot more services with less money."

TCC is asking the county to double its support from $10,000 to $20,000. According to Kerlin, rural services cost more than urban, an estimated $75 an hour in Lincoln County, not including the cost of a psychiatrist, compared to a total of $62 an hour in Otero.

Lincoln County is expensive because of transportation costs. Some mental health clients are taken once a week to Otero County to learn social and life skills.

"This keeps people out of state hospitals, and they get to be independent," said Cooper. "It really improves their quality of life."

"It's part of deinstitutionalizing and mainstreaming mentally ill people," said Schwehn. "And it saves the state lots of money."

Though Schwehn had no figures for Lincoln County, he said that Otero County hospitalized only six people last year compared with 58 in the 1987-88 year.

"We focus on preventing hospitalization," said Cooper. "We work on alcohol and drug abuse, self-esteem, overall wellness, self care."

Cooper said she tries to teach people to take responsibility for themselves. Depending on the needs of the client, counselors may focus on coping skills, general awareness and education, or specific issues.

Group therapy is a method Cooper would expand if she had the resources.

"A group reduces the person's feelings of isolation, and clients can learn from each other, maybe gain insights they wouldn't have had working with just one other person, the therapist," she said. "This is an opportunity to share health instead of dysfunction."

Cooper leads a stress management, relaxation group and a group for intensive therapy.

Paul Gallegos facilitates two groups: a relapse prevention group for recovered alcoholics, and a therapy group for people who have just begun recovery. Satonica is starting a substance abuse prevention group for adults in April.

TCC has also been contracted by the state to screen drunk drivers for alcoholism.

Once convicted of DWI, the driver must pay TCC $100 in cash for the screening, in addition to court fees. TCC then gives the court a recommendation and provides counseling if necessary. Cooper said statistics show that a person caught for DWI has probably driven drunk about 500 times.

"Alcoholism is the kind of thing that the alcoholic usually can't see as a problem, so most are referred to us by the court or someone else," said Cooper. "We have a very good working relationship with the county. Probation officers know us by name and refer people to specific counselors here. Probation officers would rather see someone in therapy than see them incarcerated."

In the final analysis, therapy of any kind, especially preventive or early therapy, saves taxpayers money and gives mentally ill people a better chance of avoiding hospitalization.

Cooper believes that demand for services at TCC is growing because the word is out that they not only help people recover from serious problems like drug abuse or sexual assault, but they also help people deal with depression, family strife and other difficulties.

"There are times in almost everyone's lives when they need help dealing with something," said Schwehn.

The Counseling Center is located at 1707 Sudderth in the Plaza shopping center, and the telephone number is 257-5038.

TCC often refers clients to the following private therapists:

Bob Walters, Ph.D (psychologist) 257-6090.

Birgit LaMothe, Ph.D (specialist in marriage/family counseling) Ruidoso office: 257-6149, Capitan office: 354-2761.

County trash budget is on target

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Budget projections for the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority are looking up with expenses and revenue neck and neck.

The budget is on the agenda for review during the regular monthly meeting at 10 a.m. Monday, March 21, at the recycling center at 222 Second Street in Ruidoso Downs.

In his manager's report, Joe Lewandowski wrote that at the end of February, the average percentage for the year should be 67 percent used or received.

"We have exceeded our budgeted amounts on some items, but on the whole budget we are still below budget at 63.6 percent," he noted. "Also, our revenue is below the 67 percent budgeted (at 63 percent)."

The tribe has been studying this possibility for several years using

With our collection efforts and the increase in services and revenues over the next four months, I believe we will still hit 100 percent of our revenue projections."

Other information contained in his report included:

—that 899 containers have been repaired in-house since June 11.

—that during the last month, employees responded to 110 calls for clean up around containers, 47 calls for extra emptying of containers, 63 for pins needle pickups, 39 for limb and brush pickups, and 70 for miscellaneous carpets and appliances for a total of $29.

The estimated cost of that service is $5,010. The cost since June 11, was estimated at $53,555.

—that county residential accounts overdue are being reduced.

Bills over 30 days due in November totalled $80,955, but in March were down to $21,010.

Overdue bills at the Capitan landfill totalled $8,971 in November and were down to $3,372 in March.

The accounts of 26 residential county customers were turned over to the attorney for collection and for filing of liens totalling $2,556.

Lewandowski said the authority has made bond payments of $87,665 toward the construction costs for its regional landfill in Otero County. The authority already has been reimbursed $4,985 by the city of Alamogordo. Eventually, the remainder of the $82,679 also is expected to be reimbursed as operation revenues begin to be generated.

grants from the Department of Energy. Since the federal government changed administrations, nuclear waste negotiators and, apparently, nuclear energy policies, Mesquero tribal leaders have lost faith in this process.

A spokesperson for Northern States, said the participants in the meeting at the Inn of the Mountain Gods showed a lot of interest in this new private deal. He said it will take about a dozen or more partners

Permits regulate Grindstone boating

The Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department is currently selling boat permits for the upcoming season, which is from April 1 to October 31.

A season permit is $35 per boat, day permits are $5, and three-day permits are $10.

Changes in Grindstone Lake rules and regulations do not allow non-motorized vessels to exceed 18 feet in length.

Fishing from a boat is allowed from sunrise to sunset, offing from shore sunrise to 10 p.m.

Anyone who fails to comply with lake rules and regulations may be asked to leave, may receive a citation, could lose their boat permit, or may be charged up to $500 in fines and imprisoned for not more than 90 days.

Planning & Zoning adopts new rules and regs for its meetings

Rules of conduct of business for the Ruidoso Planning Commission (PC) will be amended Tuesday, March 21, at village hall.

The commission will also hear three requests for amended commercial site developments beginning at 2 p.m.

Rules changes for the PC include: in the event a regular meeting lands on a holiday, the meeting shall be exactly one day later (the old rule was one week later); special meetings may be called by the PC chairman or quorum of the commission when necessary (the old rule applied to the chairman only); and changes to the printed agenda shall be in accordance with the Open Meetings resolution (the old rule called for changes at the beginning of the next meeting).

Ron Krugjohann is requesting to amend his commercial Midway Townsite to remodel the interior of the building. Krugjohann wants to create a bakery, the Village Buttery, with a seating area of 12 customers. Krugjohann said the bakery would be mainly a walk up business by nature.

Village planner Cleatus Richards said he would recommend approval if Krugjohann cut his seating capacity from 12 to 10 customers, to eliminate the need for one more parking space.

Roasted Corn, a vending operation by Sheri O'Neill has asked to establish a 10x15-foot booth at the Midtown property called Ruidoso Store owned by Wayne Morgan.

Richards said O'Neill's requested location is by an entry drive and would interfere with parking and with circulation to shared parking on adjoining property.

He recommended an alternative location in the area using parking stalls.

Business owners Ralph and Marion Treat are asking for amended commercial site development to partially fence lots 6 and 7A with single rail pipe fence 28 inches high. The rail fence would be placed on El Paso Street frontage, along the west property line of Lot 7A and partially along east property line of Lot 6. Entries would be closed with chain when business are closed. Rail fence is to be painted white.

Richards said he would recommend approval of the single rail fence with the following conditions:

1. That parking area be laid out and developed in substantial conformance with a sketch plan prepared by the village staff.

2. That parking area be surfaced and spaces delineated with wheel bumpers.

3. That razor wire be removed from the existing fencing.

In the March 7 planning meeting, the commission approved a replat for Donald and Paula Phillips for their property in the Black Forest Subdivision. The replat cures an encroachment.

Frank Roberts' request for a replat of Lots 23 and 24 of Holiday Acres was approved.

Rope jumpers earn money

Students at White Mountain Intermediate School are jumping at the chance to fight heart disease, according to physical education instructor Debbie Sanchez.

During the month of March, the fourth annual Jump Rope for Heart event will be staged at the school. By jumping a total of 180 minutes in their P.E. classes, students will win prizes and raise money to benefit the American heart Association Ruidoso's affiliate.

Jump Rope for Heart is sponsored by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. Besides raising money, the event promotes a healthy lifestyle of proper nutrition, exercise and not smoking, encourages teamwork and builds school spirit.

To support the jumpers or help the effort in other ways, contact Sanchez at 258-4150.

Financial planning aid offered

College admissions and financial aid counseling for graduating high school seniors planning to attend any college or university is now available by appointment through the ENMU-Ruidoso office, 1400 Sudderth Drive.

The ENMU staff is willing and able to assist with financial aid applications, admissions information and the scholarship process for Ruidoso High School and other Lincoln County high school seniors and parents.

For an appointment call 257-2120 in Ruidoso.

CRIMESTOPPERS
"CRIME OF THE WEEK"
Graffiti

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay a $500 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and Magistrate Court Bindover of the person or persons responsible for the graffiti in Ruidoso this past week. Crimestoppers will also pay cash rewards for the recovery of stolen property or the solving of other felony crimes.

Phone 257-4545

A cooperative effort between the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce and the Ruidoso Lincoln County Crimestoppers to deter graffiti from being a part of our mountain scenery is currently underway. This intentional damage to property is not only considered visually unacceptable, but is also costly to the citizens of our community. It has a bearing on our insurance rates, our real estate values, and our village in general. As citizens of Lincoln County, we can deter the impact of this type criminal activity in our community by getting involved, and reporting any suspicious activity to the local law enforcement agency in your area, or by calling Crimestoppers.

The Crimestoppers phone line is manned twenty-four a day, seven days a week, and you do not have to give your name to be eligible for a cash reward. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545. Anyone wishing to call collect, may do so within Lincoln County.

RHS tracksters gain experience at West Texas Relays in Odessa

Ruidoso High School track team competed at the West Texas Relays March 11 and 12 in Odessa, Texas. It was the event's 50th anniversary, and there was much fanfare, including an appearance by former Dallas Cowboys.

Clovis and Artesia high schools were the only other New Mexico schools going against strong Texas competitors from Lubbock and Odessa.

According to head track coach Ronny Maskew, the Ruidoso athletes gained some valuable experience and made a good showing.

"They did extremely well for the first meet, even though we didn't get many points," he said.

"This is the most we've ever had make the finals at West Texas Relays."

Sophomore Kyle Humphreys impressed his coaches by placing eighth in the triple jump, an event he learned only last week. Humphreys made the finals with 39-11, and Melissa Miller jumped 29-5.

Humphreys had a distance of 18-4 in the long jump, and Sarah Dix placed fourth in the event with a distance of 16-5. The top performers in the shot put were Brandon Abeita, 38-feet, David Eisenbrown, 35-7, and Matt Norbury, 34-7.

Abeita made the finals in discus with a distance of 132 feet. Norbury and Monique Ramos ranked second and third in the Ruidoso line-up with 92 feet and 96 feet respectively.

In the 3,200-meter run, Ezra Sandoval broke a personal record with a time of 10:56:62. Kody Sparks finished in 11:36, and Stephanie Haas finished at 13:14:65.

Sparks and Sandoval also burned up the track in 1,600-meter event with times of 6:24 and 5:20 respectively. In the 800-meter run, Eran McManemy finished with a time of 2:18, Johnny Martinez finished in 2:24, and Angie Barnes clocked in at 3:06.

Sarah Dix made it to finals in the 100m hurdles, making a 17.95 in the preliminaries and a 18.04 in the finals. In the 110-meter hurdles, Kyle Humphreys surfaced again to place sixth. He made a 17.1 in the finals, and David Hufstedler made a 16.7 in the finals.

Brandon Emello ran the 100-meter in 11.09 and the 200-meter in 23.6. He was followed closely in the 200-meter by Kristie Ryan and Brandy Pfeiffer. Casey Kearns and David Hufstedler ran the 400-meter, clocking in at 52.05 and 57.84.

The 400-meter relay team of Anthony Torres, Casey Kearns, Arthur Rojas and Kyle Humphreys placed sixth in the event with 46.57 final time. In the 1600m relay, Humphreys, Torres, Kearns, and Sandoval took fifth place with a final time of 3:39:86.

Sarah Dix, Kristie Ryan, Brandy Pfeiffer, and Lita Reyes ran the 800m relay in 1:58:45. In the 300-meter hurdles, Dion Gonzales topped Ruidoso's list with a time of 49.96, followed by David Hufstedler at 45.98 and Lisa Reyes at 60.

RHS took 30 athletes to the West Texas Relays, where about 1,500 high school athletes competed.

"It's the biggest track meet in West Texas," said coach Yelena Temple. "I think it was great experience for the kids."

Four Ruidoso skiers compete in the 1994 Junior Olympics

Ruidoso Ski Team members Shannon Conley, Bronwyn Barnett, Michael Kelly and Leslea Gerth have all qualified for the USSA/Rolax Junior Olympics in Winter Park, Colorado March 13 through March 20.

Over a seven-day period these young skiers will race the downhill, super giant slalom, the giant slalom and the slalom.

Conley has been a member of the team for five years and when she began skiing at age nine, competitive racing was only a distance dream.

She reached that goal and set out this year to qualify for the Junior Olympics and to be at the top of the competitors from the south.

She achieved this and says that anyone can do it. Shannon hopes to qualify for Junior Olympics again next year and plans to continue to race through high school.

Bronwyn Barnett has been on the team for three years and this is her first year to race competitively. She found the racing schedule quite challenging and very different from local fun races. It was a real commitment to travel to so many races, but it paid off by earning her a chance to ski at the Junior Olympics.

Racing will continue to be a part of Bronwyn's life next year and she will move out of the Age Class Division and become an Ability Class racer.

Michael Kelly also joined the team three years ago. He set his sights on, not only the Junior Olympics, but also on learning some awesome tricks. This year he mastered the helicopter and does a lot of other jumping in his free time.

He doesn't think the competition this year was any harder than last year's, even though he raced against people from all age groups.

Leslea Gerth also has been on the team for three years and this was her first year for competitive racing. She has improved greatly in her skiing techniques and skills this year.

Her determination and persistence have certainly helped to earn her a place at the Junior Olympics. She is excited about being a part of this challenging event.

Ski coach Hubert Seigmann will attend the Junior Olympics with this group and will be there to coach and encourage them throughout the week.

Leslea Gerth is one of four members of the Ruidoso Ski Team who qualified for this year's Junior Olympics.

Locals head to Ski Apache for annual race

By YVONNE LANELLI
Special to The News

Fast ski racers, cheering crowds, split-second finishes — and you thought the Winter Olympics were over.

Last week, the Ski Apache Handicapped Skiers Association's (SAHSA) Businessperson's-Handicapped Ski Championships teamed local businessmen and women with SAHSA students to race down a short course on East Easy Street at Ski Apache.

Sounds simple enough, but the good-natured businesspeople found themselves skiing with their own "handicap" — they skied on one leg with the other tied down and with outriggers instead of ski poles. Outriggers are forearm crutches with short skis attached. This technique is called three-tracking and is commonly used by persons having the use of only one leg.

When the snowflakes cleared and the totals tallied, SAHSA executive director Lisa Maus announced the results:

Businessmen Hubert Seigmann and Tim Royer with their SAHSA teammate Buck Irwin held the fastest combined time of 59.42 seconds and captured first place.

Not far behind skied the second place all women's team, businesswomen Melanie Koger and Stephanie Chastain and their teammate, 11-year-old Jennifer Hays. Jennifer is neither handicapped nor a SAHSA student, but volunteered to ski in the place of the assigned SAHSA student who did a balance drive for those with little or no strength in their lower body.

The women's combined time: 57.15 seconds.

Only a second and a half behind them came the third place team in 58.64 seconds. Businessperson Ron Anderson and Penny Mayo teamed with Pam Franklin, a Midland, Texas, businesswoman who, like Jennifer, volunteered to take the place of a no-show SAHSA student. Franklin chose three tracking as her handicap.

At the awards ceremony held at Ski Apache's main building after the race, Ski Apache's general manager Roy Parker presented medals to winners as well as to SAHSA students and volunteers for their season achievements.

Recognized as SAHSA veterans with several years in the program were Eric Csesznegi, Jessica Gifford, Sarah Russell and Weston Jensen.

SAHSA first-timers included Tyson Carameros, Buck Irwin and Brandon Widner.

These students learned to ski with SAHSA who adapted equipment and teaching methods to their individual physical limitations such as brain injury, lack of limbs, mental or visual disabilities and others.

Maus also gave medals to local adults and children, not handicapped, who volunteered to ski in place of absent SAHSA students.

In addition to Jennifer Hays and Pam Franklin, these included Odas Hays, Jennifer Bartley, Alica Pena, Amanda Franklin and Clark Collier. Each substitute chose an SAHSA apparatus such as three-track, walker, sit-ski or visual impairment to race.

Wednesday's race finished fund-raising activities begun Tuesday night at SAHSA's traditional silent auction held this year at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

Despite snow-covered streets, many supporters eagerly attended the event to bid on a large variety of donated items and services including fine art. The night ended with the drawing for the grand prize, a season pass to Ski Apache for next year. The lucky winner: Brenda Ellis of Ruidoso.

SAHSA's Board of Directors and Maus thanked their supporters and pronounced all events successful. They anticipate another active year of bringing the joy of motion on snow to those who seldom know it. SAHSA remains the largest handicapped skier programs in New Mexico and the third largest in the country.

Capitan

Search for water rights tops priority list for new officials

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Water, a significant factor that could limit growth in Capitan, dominated the Board of Trustees meeting Monday.

New Mayor Norm Renfro and the trustees decided to discuss acquisition of water rights in public, instead of going behind closed doors under one of the exceptions allowed in the State Open Meetings Act.

Dr. Bernhard Reimann, village environmental, wetland and water adviser and a member of a newly-created water advisory committee, said the village should undertake a study to determine the existing and projected water needs of the community.

Reimann said he already has gathered some base information. To date, the village is obligated to provide water to 1,274 sites, including 590 in the original village boundaries and 684 in the subdivisions.

The village currently serves 592 water accounts, 334 in the original village and 258 in the subdivisions.

"We are only satisfying 47 percent of the potential customers," he said, adding that the percentage could be even lower if some large tracts at the southwest end of the village are subdivided into smaller lots.

"A study should show with some predictability, the amount of water needed today, in 20 and 40 years.

"We need to cooperate with Eagle Creek Water Association to find out how much by law we have to get from here and how much we should store.

"We should store all we possibly can, because that system doesn't carry water year-around."

"We're using about 155-acre feet per annum," Renfro said. "I saw an Eagle Creek study projecting the need today at 116 feet and 300 feet in 20 years, when we're already at 155 acre feet.

Reimann said it should not be necessary to hire a consultant. The water advisory committee members should be able to handle it.

In addition to identifying the water rights currently owned by the village, the study also would pinpoint rights that could be acquired at reasonable rates and the possibility of piping from different areas.

To finance the acquisition of water rights, the water committee on behalf of the village will seek out grants and low interest loans. The sale of bonds, raising user fees or taxes would be last resorts, Reimann said.

In response to a question from water advisory committee member David Strickland, Reimann said the search for water rights should continue, but at the same time, village officials need to know how much water is needed since the village has been in a deficit situation for the past two years.

Village clerk Deborah Cummins said officials with the Office of State Engineer said the village currently is allocated about 140 acre feet of water a year, for a total of 700 acre feet by the end of a five-year period, which is now in the third year.

Unfortunately, the village ran short in 1992 by nine acre feet and in 1993 by 18 acre feet, she said.

The village needs to purchase at least 15 acre feet of water rights each of the five years to bring it above the amount of water it is pumping.

"Some of that will be offset when Eagle Creek comes on line and that water starts to flow," said village attorney J. Robert Beauvais. The Eagle Creek Water Association is scheduled to receive a Farmers Homes Administration loan to finish a pipeline from Eagle Creek to Capitan.

Tularosa rights

Strickland asked whether water rights might be available in the Tularosa basin that Capitan could purchase and then swap with Alamogordo for water rights in the Bonito system, which is located in Lincoln County, but used to supply Alamogordo.

"If we don't buy some rights, we'll just end up leasing them," he said. The village earlier in the meeting had approved paying $3,600 to the Eagle Creek Water Association for water rights used over the village's quota from January 1992 to December 1993.

"We have the money available in the budget for water purchases," village clerk Debbie Cummins said.

Trustee Gordon Ross, who served on the association board during that period of water use, said the Ruidoso members were very generous to Capitan and agreed to wipe out a large segment of the water debt.

"It's a real bargain," he said. "The village wasn't billed before now, because the board recently went back and looked at usage and saw that Capitan hadn't paid for the overage. They could have charged more, but members from Ruidoso decided to help Capitan and pare the bill down."

"In reality, the village hasn't drawn Eagle Creek water in three to four years, but we have rights sitting in that well from Eagle Creek," Beauvais explained.

The State Engineer could have levied a fine against the village as high as $10,000 a day for failing to have enough water rights, he said.

"We were given last year as a dispensation, but they could substantially fine us," he said. "We're running an increasing deficit and if we take more people on the line, that's going to grow. At the end of five years, we have to settle up."

Negotiations under way

Beauvais said negotiations on a block of water rights was initiated before the election earlier this month when Renfro beat former mayor Frank Warth.

"Before the change of administration, we put out requests (for offers of water rights) and there was only one response," Beauvais said.

"I negotiated and have reached the last, best offer, and am ready for board action to ratify or reject."

David Lee is acting as agent for Ron Green of the Lincoln Valley land Company, who has 6.1 acres for sale, Jeremy Jordan, who has one acre and for Ira David and Charlotte Lee, who has five acres.

The 12.1 acres represent agricultural acres, which translate to 39.33 acre feet of water or 3.25 acre feet per agricultural acre. An acre foot is equal to the amount of water required to cover one acre, one foot deep.

Beauvais said the owners are asking $6,200 per agricultural acre for a total of $75,200 in cash or less than $2,000 per acre foot. The last rights purchased cost $10,000 per acre, he said.

"The rights are going to get scarce and they are going to get expensive. My only suggestion is to make every effort to locate what we can and buy it," Beauvais said. "I agree that we need a long range plan, but I think we're in such a deficit, we need to purchase as long we have the budget."

Strickland noted that a $10,000 a day fine "buys a lot of water rights."

"Capitan is becoming very popular," Beauvais said. "The village is obligated to serve several hundred more lots and if they are built on, they have to have water."

While the current offer for water rights is for cash, future purchases may be spread out over three years for repayment to make more money available for other water rights to be acquired.

On a motion by Ross, the trustees voted unanimously to purchase the 12.1 agricultural acres of water rights at $6,200 an acre.

Reimann said if the Farmers Home loan comes through, it's possible the Eagle Creek pipeline will be connected within nine months to one year.

"What we need is rights in addition to Eagle Creek surface and well water to supplement, he said.

Beauvais said the sellers of the rights must secure approval of the sale from the State Engineer, because the rights are being moved up stream to the Capitan well.

Acting on a suggestion by Reimann, Renfro said he wanted the meetings of the water advisory committee also to be open to the public.

Reimann serves on that committee with Strickland and former mayor Bennie Coker.

To ensure that meeting dates and agendas will be posted and the public will be allowed input, Renfro proposed changing the committee to a village board.

Beauvais recommended making that change by passing an ordinance creating the board. An ordinance will be drawn up and published hearing conducted.

lie hearing conducted.

The trustees also stated their support for the county Fair Association and said they would be willing to contribute $1,000 toward advertising events at the fairground, freeing up association money for trophies, prizes and other needs.

Beauvais reminded trustees that the village may not donate to the association, but it can pay for services received. Advertising the community would fit that description, he said.

Anti-donation woes

In the past, the trustees have paid for the use of the building and arena by the community. But Beauvais said since the county commission has urged a fee to be charged for use of the county facility as part of the association's management agreement, the village couldn't justify that expense.

"And $1,000 for the use of the building for one election would be a stiff fee," he said.

"If it was up to the association, we wouldn't charge (community groups)," said association member Jody Roberts. "But that's the wording (County Commissioner) Wilton Howell insisted we put down."

Beauvais suggested quarterly reports be submitted to show how the money is spent.

Clark Cummins reported that a survey on income levels in Capitan has been completed and about 63 percent of the households are low to moderate income, qualifying the village to apply for a Community Development Block Grant.

When Renfro invited comments from the audience, Dorothy Smith of the planning and zoning board suggested that new water advisory board should handle recommendations to the trustees on water rights and use issues instead of the zoning board.

In other appointments ratified by the trustees, Renfro named:

—himself to a one year term on the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development Council

—Ross to the Lincoln County Economic Development Corporation

—Frances Shaw, Dorothy Smith, Lois Aldrich, Jim Malcolm and Wayne Mason to the cemetery board.

—Dorothy Smith, Joe Geomots, David Posley, Freda Hicks, Jim Russell and new members Van Shamblin and Gilbert Montoya to the planning and zoning board.

—LeRoy Montes, David Rouleau and himself (for a three-year term) to the Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas board.

—John Whitaker as alternate municipal judge. Court time was set for 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday.

—new Trustee Connie Hopper as public safety adviser.

—Trustee L.C. Cozzens as personnel adviser.

—new Trustee Byron Carpenter as street adviser.

A new mayor and two new trustees joined the Capitan Board of Trustees Monday for their first regular meeting in village hall. In the center is Mayor Norman Renfro, who defeated incumbent Frank Warth for the top spot. At far left, Byron Carpenter won a four-year term, as did Connie Hopper, at right. Trustee Gordon Ross (next to Carpenter) and Trustee L.C. Cozzens both have two years left in their terms.

Park makes bid for treasurer job

When she heard that Janice Silva Ware was not going to seek re-election as Lincoln County treasurer, Joan E. Park decided to take the plunge.

As chief deputy treasurer, she knows the operation of the department, Park said. She has more than 10 years experience in accounting and bookkeeping, a portion in the employment of the State of New Mexico, where she was classified as a financial specialist in government accounting.

Since she began working in the treasurer's office, Park has upgraded many of the manual daily procedures to personal computers, which the office recently acquired.

She has attended various seminars and workshops to further her knowledge of the fundamentals necessary for the treasurer's office.

"I have gained the hands-on knowledge and expertise necessary in effectively running the treasurer's office with efficiency and leadership," Park said. She has command of tax collection, distribution and investment of public money, she said. Most important is the working experience acquired regarding policies and procedures to properly apply them to governing laws and statutes.

"While education is helpful in understanding the involved accounting operations, there is no substitute for a working knowledge which is only gained by first hand experience," she said.

"I believe the instruction and education I have acquired under treasurer Janice Silva Ware will allow for a smooth transition to a new administration."

Noting that Ware's method of operation was proficient, Park said she will continue to build on that solid foundation.

"My desire is to serve with the same courtesy, concern and accountability that the public has come to trust," she said. "Continuity is important when administrative change is unavoidable."

"One of my goals will be to continue upgrading the office to keep up with changing times and new technology. In doing so, I believe the results will be a more cost efficient tax collection process, which is vital in our changing economy."

the other elected officials and their offices to deliver a better county government for residents, she said.

Park said she believes that no single aspect of county government is more important than another.

She will run in the Republican primary and is a member of the Federated Republican Women, where she serves as newsletter chairman. She also is a member of the Republican First Monday.

Born in Roswell, Park and her family have lived in Lincoln County for eight years, but she has a much deeper legacy here. Her great grandfather, J.W. Owens, still holds the record for being the Lincoln County Sheriff the most consecutive years from 1902 through 1908. Her grandfather, Omer Owen, served as deputy sheriff and homesteaded what currently is known as the Weddige Ranch. He also named "Give a Damn" Canyon in the Capitan mountain range.

Park graduated from Goddard High School in Roswell in 1972. She currently is in her fourth semester at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso, pursuing an associates degree in business management with emphasis in accounting.

Park teaches youth Sunday School at Trinity Baptist Church in Capitan. One of the accomplishments listed by Park as most significant was the development of the Capitan Christian Drama Club for youth, where she serves as adviser. Her hobbies include playing and teaching piano, singing, reading, cooking and arts and crafts.

Park and husband, Brady, have been married 21 years and have one son, Denver, 19.

Conference planned

High school students who would like to help bring about positive change in their communities or schools are invited to participate in the 1994 New Mexico Fifth Annual Peer Leadership Conference on Substance Abuse Prevention.

The gathering, announced by State Children, Youth & Families Department Secretary Wayne Powell, is set for March 26-27 at the Glorieta Conference Center.

The department's Risk Reduction Services Division, Drug Free Schools and Communities Program, the New Mexico National Guard, the University of New Mexico Continuing Education and Community Services and YES to L.I.F.E. are collaborating to put together the conference.

For two days, more than 1,000 high school students will meet with leading prevention trainers who will conduct workshops on 28 of the major topics facing students today, including gun control, drunk driving, television violence, child abuse, abortion, sex education, the economy and the environment.

The participants will debate, discuss and then prioritize the 28 issues into a "Seven Point Policy and Strategy Statement" to be presented to Governor Bruce and First Lady Alice King at the closing ceremony of the conference.

Top high school orators win medals in Optimist Club Oratorical contest

Two Ruidoso Middle School students will be headed to El Paso next month to compete in the zone Optimist Oratorical contest.

Ryan Humphreys and Brook Fryer were the gold medal winners in the local competition staged by the Ruidoso Optimists at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Silver medal winners were Zac Pafford and Raquel Reimann. Heidi Mitchell and Tyler Cluff earned bronze.

Eight-six contestants entered and the field was narrowed to 14 for the Ruidoso final contest, based on the theme "Optimism: The Right Stuff."

To be eligible, contestants had to be 14 by January 1, 1994, and must have written their own speech, four to five minutes in length. No props could be used.

Each contestant was judged on poise, content of speech, delivery and presentation. The judges were Mary Bradley, Karen Tillman, Vera Wood and Jan Holleman.

Chairman John Obermiller from

El Paso coordinated the event. Emmett Hatch is president of the local group. Teachers Dierley Stierwalt from Ruidoso Middle School and Jolie Soukup from Tularosa High School were advisers.

Other contestants included Justin Brown, Olivia Hightower, Audrey Moore, Jackie Onsurez, Andy Schrader, Bridget Tam and Joe Ray Tidwell from Ruidoso and Christina Poitra from Tularosa.

The Optimists started oratorical competitions in 1928.

Optimist oratory contest chairman John Obermiller and one of the judges, Vera Wood, confer after the competition conducted by the Ruidoso Optimist Club.

Ruidoso Optimist president Emmett Hatch congratulates oratory gold medal winners Ryan Hymphreys and Brook Fryer, both of Ruidoso. They will compete in El Paso.

New program extends help past high school

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A new program designed to find opportunities after high school graduation for disabled students was launched last week in Lincoln County.

Under the umbrella of Region IX Cooperative Education Center, the Transition Alliance program will be headed by Gary Cozzens. The region covers the seven school districts of Capitan, Carrizozo, Corona, Cloudcroft, Hondo, Ruidoso and Tularosa.

Working with high schools in those districts, the transition program coordinator will try to place students who are completing high school studies in activities that suit their goals, including post-secondary education, vocational training and jobs.

The program is financed by a 15-month "Circle of Life Grant" from the New Mexico State Department of Education's Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. The program also is supported by a group of local interested citizens named the Transition Alliance Group (TAG), which meets quarterly at the Region's offices in Ruidoso.

Although working under separate financial sources, the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) work study program, supervised by Dolores Rue, and the transition efforts of TAG will combine to provide comprehensive, secondary and post-secondary educational experiences and vocational opportunities for students of Region IX, Cozzens said.

"This is a brand-new program," he said. "Before these students kind of floated.

"Most already have been identified in the school systems by Dolores. Once they become seniors, I pick up.

"We're starting from scratch, so I'll be contacted potential employers and next month, Eastern New Mexico University in Roswell will be putting on a junior-senior day for us.

"One boy yesterday said he wanted to be a Marine, so I had a recruiter come down to talk to him. These kids don't have major disabilities. We want to get them out and functioning on their own."

A resident of Capitan, Cozzens is a graduate of Portales High School and Eastern New Mexico University. He recently completed active service as a commissioned officer in the Marine Corps.

For more information about the program, contact the Region IX office at 257-2368.

after graduation programs for Ruidoso high school seniors David Silva (standing) and Marcus Peña. The program aims to place students with disabilities.

Silver Lining

The luck o' the Irish to you on St Paddy's day

Saint Patrick's Day

Now after the birthday month, so full of special days, comes St. Patrick's Day way up in the middle of March all by itself on the 17th, the day before the first day of spring.

St. Patrick's Day is a world-wide holiday. Outside of Dublin, Ireland itself the biggest parades in the world are held in New York and Boston.

The patron saint of Ireland was born in the year 389 in what is now Wales when England was occupied by the Romans.

Oh, holy youth

St. Patrick's grandfather and father were both clergymen and since early childhood he showed signs of his destiny.

When he was about 14 years old he was captured by a band of Irish pirates and taken to Ireland where he was put to work as a shepherd.

Here he began teaching Christianity to his capturers who developed a great fondness for the youth and his teachings.

After six years, in a vision he was urged to escape. This he did, and made his way to the coast of France where he studied in a monastery.

He soon began hearing voices from Ireland saying, "we pray thee holy youth to come and walk among us as before."

Missionary to Ireland

After many turning points in his life, St. Patrick was sent as a missionary to Ireland. Here he introduced Christianity to the people and from there throughout Ireland and to what is now known as Scotland. And through his work Ireland became a stronghold for the Christian faith.

The Irish in America

The story of the Irish in America begins in the 1840s when a potato failure spread dire famine throughout the land. They came to this country by the thousands — surely some of the most thankful people ever to arrive in a new home. Since that time they have played a colorful role in our history, building railroads, serving in the cavalry and spreading happiness and goodwill.

Today the clouds are drifting in from the south, ready to bring rain, to turn the world green and flowery to celebrate St. Patrick's Day and the arrival of spring.

Obituary

Jack Mayfield

A memorial service will be conducted at a later date for Jack L. Mayfield of Capitan, who died March 13 at Eastern New Mexico Medical Center South.

Mayfield was born March 23, 1912, in Kansas. He retired in 1976 after 35 years in a career as a teacher, coach and principal.

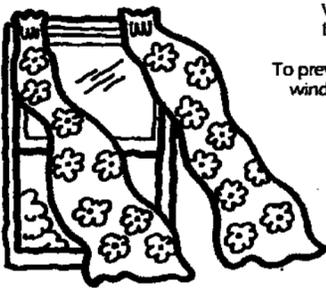

He married Myrum Mae Bright in 1936, and she preceded him in death in 1967.

Mayfield had lived in Capitan for the past 31 years.

He was preceded in death by five brothers and one sister.

Survivors include his daughter and son-in-law, Myrum Mayfield Whitaker and John D. Whitaker, and two granddaughters, Melinda and Melanie Whitaker, all of Capitan. He is survived by two brothers, one sister and several nieces and nephews.

Stopping Energy Loss From Windows Is A Breeze.

Windows are great when you use your air conditioner or heater, but during months when you let a breeze cool your house, windows can reduce your home's energy efficiency.

To prevent windows from wasting energy, make sure any cracks around the window are caulked. Heavy drapes that fit tight to the wall can also help improve your home's efficiency. Other options to consider are thermal drapes, curtains and shutters and, for the summer, solar screens installed on the outside of windows.

For more information about saving energy, call or visit your local TNP office and ask for the free fact sheet, "Straight Talk about Window Treatments."

McGary's talent, sculptures are larger than life

by PAMELA CROWWELL
Pueblo News Staff Writer

Anyone who stands in the powerful presence of a life-size sculpture by Dave McGary is likely to marvel at the detailed head work, the realistic features, the life-like facial expressions.

While even the artist himself may have difficulty explaining the creative process, the production process is remarkably "mysterious."

At a private studio near Noga, McGary sculpts the original, starting with a framework of "bones" called an armature. Then he molds over the armature an anatomically correct, nude human form in clay and wax. Then McGary sculpts the clothing over that.

When the work of art is complete, the original goes to one or more foundries for casting in bronze.

McGary studios use eight different foundries across the U.S. Some do the body of a sculpture, others do only small parts such as hands, weapons, or headpieces. The foundries then return to the studio an edition of the sculpture, usually consisting of 30 master-

Sculptor Dave McGary is the only U.S. artist whose work will be displayed at the United Nations "Art and the Earth" exhibition.

The sculptures come back from the foundries in pieces, and artisans at the studio, which is also called a finishing foundry, weld on details like fringe, hands and weapons. They use air tools to blend the soldering. When the sculpture is assembled, it moves on to another part of the studio for coloring.

Using a technique called patina, artisans in another room of the studio give the bronze brown and red tones. The artist uses a small blow torch to heat an area, such as a feather tip, then brushes on chemicals such as potash sulfate or ferric nitrate. This method can achieve the look of real leather or blacken the warrior's hair.

After the patina is done, painters apply the brighter colors like blue or yellow with acrylic paints. They paint individual heads, the buttons of shirts, and they apply color to horses and clothing.

McGary said he creates about three new pieces a year, and his sculptures are in high demand. In the end, a bust sells for about $2,900, a maquette for about $7,000, and a masterwork for about $20,000. The life-size bronzes start at about $75,000.

McGary's inspiration for works like "American Horses," newly installed at the Museum of the Horse, or "Long Soldier," come from stories told to him by Native American friends. McGary, who was adopted into the Sioux tribe in the 1980s, also does extensive research.

"I like to portray Native Americans that have become special to me," said McGary. "I want to document them when they were such a proud people." McGary said he uses bronze because it is an indestructible medium, and he wants his tributes to last.

McGary is currently finishing a life-size statue of "Bears Nest," and he is working on a statue called "American Horses."

"That's American, Horse (the Oglala Sioux leader) on an Appaloosa, which is the quintessential American horse," said McGary.

McGary's work is exhibited in galleries, museums and private collections throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. Two major pieces are in the permanent White House collection.

Artist Dave McGary stands almost as tall as his life-size sculpture "Iron That Walks." (Below left) Artisans at McGary Studios apply patina and paint to complete the realistic detail of McGary's work.

Big bronzes visit the Big Apple

Award-winning local bronze sculptor Dave McGary is one of four international artists invited to display their work at the United Nations Gallery from March 21 through April 29.

According to a press release, McGary's work will open a month-long international exhibition titled "Art and the Earth: A Dialogue with Nature" presented by the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP).

McGary's "Expressions in Bronze" are realistic works capturing the spirit and history of the Native American. The expansive range of McGary's works expressing his love of Native American culture will be displayed through 25 masterworks and three life-size pieces at the U.N. Gallery.

McGary's sculptures have received national recognition, including a commission from the City of Santa Fe for a monumental work entitled "The Founding of Santa Fe."

His masterwork sculptures "Rain in the Face" and "Retired with Honors" were selected for the prestigious Hubbard Art Award for Excellence exhibition. McGary's works, exhibited widely, are included in museums, corporations, and numerous private collections throughout the U.S. and around the world.

Dr. Noel Brown, Director, UNEP North America stated, "Art and the Earth: A Dialogue with Nature" features the works of celebrated artists from the United States, Brazil and the circumpolar world of the arctic and reflects a dynamic interplay between art and the natural world and the various ways human beings interpret nature. From this exhibition, the United Nations hopes to heighten global environmental awareness and promote behavior change through the arts."

A painter at McGary Studio puts the finishing touches on "Iron That Walks" (below left). In the early stage of production, detailed foundry work involves attaching fringe, hands and weapons (below).

Shots to be given Monday

The Alice King/Lovelace Immunization Program, the first statewide public/private partnership of its kind, is returning to Capitan to provide free immunizations during March.

Parents must accompany their children and are asked to bring their shot records (if available) with them.

The program will be from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at Capitan Elementary School on Monday, March 21.

The program is returning because children should receive immunizations at two months, four months, six months, 15 months, five years and 15 years of age.

The federal Center for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that fewer than half of the nation's children younger than two years get all recommended vaccinations to protect them against serious, sometimes deadly, diseases such as measles, mumps, tetanus, polio, whooping cough and rubella.

That estimate is also true for New Mexico. Many parents in the state are not aware of the dangers of childhood diseases or the need to begin their child's immunization program as early as two months of age.

Additionally, parents of children in rural areas often have difficulty accessing services at clinics or doctor offices during traditional service hours.

Early childhood immunization is a cost-effective disease prevention measure that works.

President Bill Clinton recently called for a national free immunization program managed by the federal government, arguing that the cost of free immunizations is far lower than the cost of treating preventable diseases once they occur.

Parents requiring more information should call their local school nurse or school superintendent.

Woman injured by falling tree limb

Dolly Whitten of Sudderth Drive was rushed to the hospital Wednesday after a tree limb fell and broke her hip.

According to sources at the hospital, Whitten was helping her husband, Robert, cut down a tree in their yard. Mrs. Whitten was pulling on a rope attached to the limb her husband was cutting when the limb gave way, falling on Mrs. Whitten and shattering her hip.

Ruidoso Police chief Richard Swenor and officers Robert Achterberg and James Biggs responded. Mrs. Whitten was taken to the hospital by the EMS.

The bizarre accident marks the second time within a year that a person has been seriously injured in a tree accident. A young Apache working in a forested area of the reservation being cleared, was killed when a tree fell on him near the area he was working.

Workers who rushed to the scene said that no one had been cutting on that particular tree when it fell in the area where two workers stood.

A rear end collision near the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce building sent a young teenager to the hospital Wednesday after the car she was driving rammed another stopped in the highway.

According to police reports,

Drug program confiscates twice as much marijuana as in the past

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The amount of marijuana seized in a five-county area of southeast New Mexico in 1993 nearly doubled from the previous year.

Sheriff James McSwane said the White Mountain Task Force contributed to that increase with its undercover work and investigations of the local drug network.

Formed about three years ago and financed through a federal $70,000 grant distributed through the State Department of Public Safety, the task force is a cooperative effort involving the sheriff's department, the state police and the police departments of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

McSwane said this year he'll try for a larger grant, probably the maximum $100,000 to pay for a prosecutor and secretary.

"The Sheriff's Department has been supporting the task force in its request for manpower and we've been involved in all the seizures," McSwane said.

"We're applying again for the grant for the same funding and possibly more for a prosecutor and secretary."

The Ruidoso Police Department

also has supplied an officer and its drug sniffing dog.

Gonzalo Cordova said the task force in all of the counties involved have been successful and the effort will continue.

"That's attested to by the 50 pounds of marijuana we seized in January and the methamphetamines two weeks ago, as well as the 22 pounds of cocaine deputies recovered from a car," Cordova said.

"We anticipate having an even greater impact this year. You'll probably see a greater increase in the number of narcotics seized because all of the law enforcement agencies are cooperating instead of competing."

According to statistics released the Region VI Drug Enforcement Coordinating Council, representing Eddy, Lea, Chaves, Otero and Lincoln counties, special drug enforcement units in those counties seized 3,136 pounds of marijuana in 1992, worth about $3.1-million.

In 1993, they confiscated 6,466.25 pounds with an estimated value of $6,466,250.

The amount of cocaine seized increased from 7,706 grams worth $770,620 to 94,671 grams with a value of $9.5-million. Forms of methamphetamines confiscated went up from 86 grams worth $8,600 to 527 grams at $52,689.

The total street value of all drugs seized jumped from $4.7-million in 1992 to $16,442,736 in 1993.

In property, the units also piled up more value. While 71 vehicles and one aircraft were acquired in 1992, the following year 120 vehicles and one motor home were confiscated as a result of drug-related arrests.

In 1993, the units also acquired 44 semi and automatic assault weapons, eight shotguns and rifles, five police scanners with DLE frequencies installed and two cellular telephones.

Decreases occurred in four categories, including arrests, which went down from 599 to 414. The number of marijuana plants seized decreased from 572 plants to 352 plants, worth $352,000. Heroin dropped from 268 grams to 129 grams with street value of $103,200. Other types of drugs including LSD and prescription declined from 180 units to 147 units worth about $1,470.

State economic development efforts seem to miss the mark

Who doesn't believe in economic development? It would be downright un-American not to want and work toward a stronger economy fueled by diverse enterprises providing plenty of high-paying jobs.

Economic development groups are working all over the world, competing for industries and jobs, and New Mexico and Lincoln County are no exception. The only problem is New Mexico and Lincoln County don't have a very clear idea of what they want or how to go about getting it.

The state Economic Development Department, the group that should be the leader in this area, is battling zero in its high-priced efforts. "The state of New Mexico has paid a Phoenix, Arizona, firm $600,000 in three years to recruit companies to move to New Mexico, but none of the companies has taken the bait," reads an AP report on the $200,000 a year contract. State officials stand by their failing efforts, saying it would have cost them $287,000 to achieve the same unsuccessful results.

But, other states do more for less. Actually this state might be better served to save its $600,000 and boost that savings even more by closing its economic development office.

Lincoln County has suffered the same problems as the state, with the county and villages contributing to a private organization that has never really set realistic goals with an action plan for getting results. This county hasn't spent any $600,000, but it's invested well over $100,000 of taxpayers' money in these shotgun efforts that seem to put a lot of stock in travel and direct mail campaigns, and little emphasis on results.

So, is it worthwhile to throw good money after bad? Anyone who works hard for their money surely couldn't think so. The economy might be better stimulated by throwing dollar bills out of a helicopter.

Thought for the day:

"Let us say what we feel and feel what we say; let speech harmonize with life."

Letters To The Editor

Isn't competition the American way?

TO THE EDITOR:

I can't imagine why the merchants of Ruidoso are so silly as to not want competition from the civic center art shows.

Or is it just plain greed?

After all, many people come for the shows, but also boost the economy at local restaurants, motels, grocery stores, etc.

And, too, some do go to the local stores for crafts.

What can be the matter with such narrow minded, snobbish people who don't believe in competition?

Do they belong to the old Communist regime?

Wonder and awed.

Students reach out to study geography

TO THE EDITOR:

My name is Jim Mowrey, and I am a fifth grade student at Abraham Lincoln School in Belleville, Illinois.

This year in social studies we have been learning about the 50 states. I would like to know more about New Mexico, especially the area around Ruidoso.

Would you please print my letter in The Ruidoso News? I would like to ask your readers to send me interesting postcards about your state.

Thank you for helping me learn more about our country.

James Mowrey
820 Royal Heights Road
Belleville, OK 62223

TO THE EDITOR:

Will you help me by printing this in your paper?

I need your help. My fifth grade class is studying the United States and its geography.

Will you send me a postcard, pictures, posters, magazines or anything that will help me learn more about your state, our country and its people?

You may be interested in knowing that this project has already been very successful. So far, the class has received a phone call from as far away as Wyoming, mounts of personal photos and letters, books, personal videos, prepared videos, hundreds of postcards, a bottle of Tabasco sauce from Louisiana, information from a U.S. Senator, a necklace from Mardi Gras parade, minerals, and much more.

Policy

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed, however the author's hometown will be included.

The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

We try, whenever possible, to allow people and/or businesses mentioned in a letter the opportunity to respond, usually in the same or the next edition.

Letters must be original and exclusive to The News. No open letters to public figures, copies of letter or poetry will be printed as a letter to the editor.

The Siglers celebrate anniversary

John and Dixie Sigler of Ruidoso will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 26, at Gateway Church of Christ.

The Siglers were married March 27, 1944, in Houston, Texas. They have lived in Ruidoso since 1947.

They have two daughters, Vickie Sigler of Lubbock, Texas, and Margie Wise of Stockbridge, Georgia; and two grandchildren, Sarah Wise and Jeff Wise.

Mrs. Sigler is the daughter of longtime Ruidoso resident, Margaret Whitley.

Friends are invited to celebrate with the Siglers and their family.

Smokey Bear visited Lynda Sanchez' ENMU-Ruidoso Spanish class to demonstrate the value of being bilingual. Much of the literature about Smokey and the Lincoln National Forest is available in Spanish.

Smokey Bear reads "La Verdadera Historia de Smokey Bear" to Lynda Sanchez' Spanish class. Students had to translate the story as part of their grammar lesson.

Smokey speaks Spanish

In celebration of his 50th Anniversary as a symbol of fire prevention, Smokey Bear has been making appearances all over town. Recently he showed up in Lynda Sanchez' college Spanish class, where he demonstrated his bilingual proficiency.

The True Story of Smokey Bear is available in Spanish, "La Verdadera Historia de Smokey Bear," and Sanchez had her class translate the story.

Through this kind of lesson, Sanchez hopes to instill in her students the importance of being bilingual.

RHS DECA qualifies 22 for nationals

At the State DECA Conference in Albuquerque, students from Ruidoso High School competed for top state honors and the opportunity to represent New Mexico at the National DECA Conference March 22-27 in Detroit, Michigan. Students from all 50 states plus Canada, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will compete.

RHS qualified 22 positions to attend the national conference. This was more than any school in New Mexico. Eldorado High School in Albuquerque was second with 12 qualifiers. In the Business and Personal Services Written Event, Frankie Leigh Reynolds took second place, and Nancy Kunkel took third in Advertising and Visual Merchandising. In the Hospitality and Recreation Marketing Written Event, Lindie Reynolds took second, and Byron Soules placed third. Michelle Hasenbuhler placed third in Finance and Credit Services, and Jacob Provincio placed third in the Food Marketing Written Event.

Diego Conci took second and Kendra Eggleston placed third in the General Marketing Written Event. Also in the General Marketing category, Tony Trujillo placed third for Master Employes and Jenny Ames placed first in Supervisory. Heather DeBusk placed second in the Fashion Merchandising Promotion Plan.

The Free Enterprise Chapter Event, chaired by Kristie Ryan, Melissa Currin (who is also State DECA Secretary) and Shirley Chavez, won second place.

The Learn & Earn Project, headed by Mandy Parker, Jenny Ames and John Echols, won first. Also in first was the Chapter Public Relations Project headed by Freda Trujillo, Mandy Sodd and Michelle Hasenbuhler.

The Creative Marketing project headed by Stephanie Haas, Sarah Dix and Anthony Torres placed third.

Ten students received medals for being state finalists: Joey Bewley, Rachel Montes, Anthony Torres, Mandy Sodd, Matt Flip, Adam Chavez, Cliff Wood, Brad Fox, Mandy Parker and Stephanie Haas.

Bewley, Torres, Chavez and Earl Holstein will attend the national convention as delegates at large.

According to Eddie Parker, the group's sponsor, the chapter is getting its projects ready and looking forward to attending the national conference in Detroit.

"This was one of the most successful performances for the Ruidoso DECA Chapter," he said.

Local student scientists take top honors at regional science and engineering fair

Four Ruidoso students brought home awards from the South-eastern New Mexico Regional Science and Engineering Fair.

The fair was sponsored by Eastern New Mexico University in Portales and attracted almost 200 high school and middle school science enthusiasts.

Competing in the junior division, middle schooler Katie Lukens won second place for her behavioral and social sciences project entitled "Do Video Games Affect a Student's Response Time on Tests?"

In the earth and space sciences category, middle schooler JoeRay Tidwell tied for third and is an alternate for state with his project, "Stalagmites and Stalactites."

High school freshman Alex Eckert won first place in the junior division of engineering. His project, "Shape Memory Alloy: Smarter than the Average Bear," was a robotic finger that used only a contracting and expanding wire to simulate human dexterity.

Eckert also won special awards from the Junior Engineering Technical Society and NASA.

One high school student competed in the senior division. Freshman Richard Overdorf won second place in physics for his particle accelerator.

Overdorf also won special awards from the New Mexico Chapter of the American Vacuum Society, NASA, the U.S. Army, and the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps. He also won a $250 renewable scholarship from the New Mexico Military Institute.

Overdorf and Eckert will go to state competition in April.

Katie Hightower, a Carrizozo High School freshman, won first place in physics and the second place special award from the New Mexico Chapter of the American Vacuum Society.

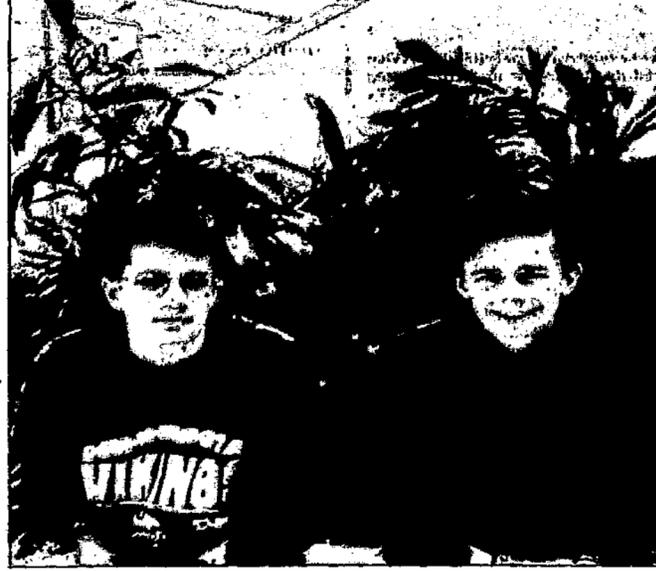

Competing in the microbiology category, Carrizozo freshman Julie Barham won second place and will go on to state.

Keri Shafer, Carrizozo freshman, won second place in the zoology category.

The National Science Teachers Association awarded Mariann Paterson of Carrizozo the Outstanding

Science Teacher Award. Everett Greer, a Carrizozo

senior, won a $500 scholarship from Eastern New Mexico University.

Museum program explores roots of first Americans

The Museum of the Horse will present its monthly membership program at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 19 at the museum.

"We're trying a new format this time," said museum development director Frank Potter.

"Through a cooperative effort with the New Mexico Humanities program, we will be showing a videotape entitled "Seeking the First Americans."

In this program, archaeologists from Texas to Alaska share their search for answers to one of the most controversial questions in North American history. Evidence has been found that the first Americans arrived as early as 20,000 to 30,000 years ago.

A large part of this controversy has developed over the origin of Clovis Man, the stone-age culture of New Mexico dated at 11,000 B.C. This special video presentation is free to the public, and everyone is invited.
