The Ruidoso police were called to the downtown area Monday to chase off a couple of skateboarders using the new MainStreet sidewalks. The problems associated with skateboarding won't go away, according to officials at the Ruidoso Police Department. Assistant police chief Mike Lovelace said that nearly every day some merchant or resident calls regarding skateboards on their property. He said Chief Richard Swenor also hears from the other side, parents who say what is there for my child to do. Although skateboarding on private property is off limits, that doesn't stop the skateboarders. Lovelace said he has viewed substantial damage to merchant walls resulting from the activity. Skateboarding on village property is generally acceptable, according to Lovelace. But on one piece of village property it could be very costly. Last year, the village spent $15,000 in resurfacing two tennis courts. The courts have several surboard gouges at the end of one court, nearest Sudderth. Although a faded sign at the entrance of the courts reads, "NO Skateboarding" and warns a $500 fine may be imposed, the sign has been ignored.

Parents air complaints at school information forum

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The need for continuity in discipline and curriculum continued to be the thread that bound together more than 200 parents frustrated by problems they see in the Ruidoso school system.

They gathered in the Ruidoso Middle School gymnasium Monday for a second meeting to vent their complaints and to get answers, or failing that, to spur action by school officials.

And in a "turn about is fair play" move, superintendent Mike Gladden read a list of district committees that need more parent participation.

Dave Anderson, who identified himself as a resident of Ruidoso for 20 years and a substitute teacher, told parents it's easy to criticize, but what's needed are solutions.

In the one month he has been filling in for a teacher who left, Anderson said he has seen that not enough parents are involved.

He urged them to go to their children's schools to see for themselves the graffiti or the high school gymnasium, which he described as "trashed."

"The teachers have their hands full," he said. "I don't think you should be taking your children out of school. You need to find out the problem and improve the situation."

"The place is a mess. Discipline is a problem. ISS (in-school suspension) doesn't work, but it was tried. They need input to see what will work."

Although Anderson indicated he had some of the possible solutions on a pad he was carrying, he never went over the list. A parent stood up to complain that in spite of being involved and offering a solution, "the elected officials we brought our problems to did not listen to us."

When several other parents said they felt their complaints and input were ignored, Gladden said a person's perceptions often hinge on whether they get what they want.

"Responsiveness is something seen as if you do what they want, you've been listening. If you don't, you haven't listened," he said.

Although in a minority at the meeting, two women stood up to thank Gladden for listening and responding to their problems.

Parent Jack Wood said he was raised in a school that catered to migrant children. Each year his education was put on hold to accommodate their schedule. He urged Ruidoso school officials not to allow local children to suffer the same fate because of troublemakers.

"Remove the troublemakers from class," he said.

"What are you going to do with the child when he's out of the classroom?" asked Van W. Witt of Roswell, Lincoln County's representative on the State Board of Education.

How about putting them into a Special Assignments Class (SAC), someone asked.

John Fritsch, who handles the SAC at Ruidoso Middle School, said "It's not a fun time."

Students assigned continue to do all of their homework and class work.

"They are sequestered," he said. "It's a confinement type situation."

Principal Paula Papponi said the program has succeeded because it's a team effort. Students can be referred to SAC, but not until they have been given due process.

"We emphasize to them that we always like them, but not always the choices they make," she said. "It's time out in the SAC room. We focus on student assistance. They're busy from the time they come in until the time they leave. It's a chance to appreciate being in a regular classroom and it benefits the teacher."

"It is not used for major infractions, only for people who don't pose a safety threat to themselves or anyone else in school."

Ruidoso Magistrate Judge William Butts explained to the audience why many students are given second chances and he listed some examples.

He opts for community service on driving infractions to save parents the expense of higher insurance premiums. In many cases, incarcerating a student would make it impossible for him to finish high school, further impeding his possibility of success.

"But some of these guys start as freshmen and have been given four years of chances before they get to you," one man said. "Taking hats off is not the solution to gangs. We need people who know about gang problems, not a group of people saying let's try this or that."

County manager Wynham resigns

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

In a move Tuesday that shocked Lincoln County Commissioners and rocked many county employees, Andy Wynham resigned as county manager.

While the issue that propelled commissioners into a closed to the public session on personnel for three hours was Wynham's decision to take on the relatively minor job of Carrizozo municipal judge, apparently, other complaints surfaced once the discussion started.

"Before this, we had a pretty good working relationship, but I felt if this one issue could break that apart, I couldn't see a resolution," Wynham told The Ruidoso News Tuesday evening.

Wynham was selected by the Carrizozo Board of Trustees last week while he was out of town to fill a $200 a month vacancy created by the death of Judge S.M. Ortiz. Wynham said he anticipated conducting an evening or Saturday court that would not interfere with his job as county manager.

In submitting his resignation, Wynham proposed three conditions, which commissioners accepted.

He will work through the end of the day, May 17, the effective date of his resignation from his $50,000 a year job.

The county will pay 26 weeks severance pay, including the cash equivalent of the employer's portion of the county's health insurance plan, through November 22 of this year.

He released the county from any

Parents and school personnel assembled for meeting honed in on the need for consistency in discipline and curriculum Monday to hear complaints and solutions from grade to grade, as well as constant to problems plaguing schools. The three parental involvement.

Witt, who was a high school principal for 15 years, said that teachers usually say everything would be better if they could get rid of about five percent of the students.

"When you send someone to Springer, you are working only on the student. In most cases, it's the family unit that needs to be worked on."

Dwight Andrews pointed out that at $150,000, the program will cost about $10,000 for each student.

But Wirth said some may only stay a few months and the cost is based on a full school year, meaning more will benefit.

"Compare that to $30,000 per person to keep them in Springer," Wirth said.

"Assuming they get incarcerated," Andrews interrupted. "Police Chief Dick Swenor will tell you there aren't many."

"How much will go for administration rather than to students?" asked Dave Dale.

"My plans are for the administration cost to be zero, just one more job for me," Wirth said. "The money would go for teachers, supplies, rent and utilities."

Another question asked whether the grant is recurring.

"No, but we already have set up a mechanism for finding funding through the Division of Children, Youth and Families," Wirth said. "If you develop a good program, you don't want to see it last only one year."

The criteria for selecting students for the program will be developed through a committee process with public input, he said. The center will stress therapy and intervention, keeping them away from others to protect them from themselves. He sees the program directed "at those kids where we think we can make a difference."

Ruidoso Village Councilor Leon Eggleston asked what happens if parents refuse to be part of the program.

Family contracts are required, spelling out obligations. The agreements will be worked out with judges, public defenders and district attorneys. The option might be a stiffer sentence.

Gladden said that in addition to trying to come up with a more consistent district policy on discipline,

ACT Scholars

Ruidoso High School students Kathryn Cox, Crystal Taylor and Melissa Currin received ACT Scholar Certificates from the New Mexico State Department of Education. Certificates are awarded to seniors in New Mexico public and private schools who exhibit high achievement in academic skills. These students scored 27 or higher on the ACT and have a grade point average of 3.5 or better. About five percent of all graduating seniors in New Mexico received an ACT Certificate.

County

clams regarding his employment contract signed October 5, 1993. He offered to help with the transition even after he was hired the county.

Wynham was left in March 1992, but worked for a year and a half without a contract.

Commission Chairman Monroy Montes said the board directed Wynham and his assistant Martha Guevara to begin advertising for a new manager immediately and "to keep the selection open as wide as possible for about 30 days."

Of Wynham's resignation, Montes said, "I think he outgrew this commission or we outgrew him, because we got real incompatible really quickly. I wish him luck where ever he goes."

Montes said Wynham's decision to apply for the position of municipal judge without first consulting the commission and his stance that no conflict existed was the wedge that precipitated the resignation.

"He refused to believe there was a conflict," Montes said. "It was a real irreconcilable difference."

In choosing a new manager, Montes said, "I will be looking for something in between (former manager) Nick Pappas and Andy, they were so diametrically different, one was so aggressive and the other so passive. Neither (approach) works in Lincoln County. I don't know if that combination exists. It's a tough job with a short life expectancy."

Wynham said, "Bottom line, it didn't just revolve around the judicial thing."

"It seems they didn't want to work it out, to exercise some reason. They said it was the last straw, but when I asked what other straws there were, they didn't really seem to have much."

"One commissioner pointed out that I didn't have an Attorney General's opinion yet (on whether raises recently approved by the commission for elected officials violate the State Constitution and legal limits on annual earnings)."

Earlier in the day, Wynham had explained that the request for an opinion must be handled by a district attorney or a state representative and he was working with State Representative H. John Underwood (D-Ruidoso), but the question had not yet been sent.

During the closed session, small complaints seemed to escalate the longer the discussion went on, Wynham said.

"It got way out of line. (As with married couples who start dredging up small irritations during an argument), once you say it, you have hurt the person and made the issues real."

"They indicated in the closed session that they might establish parameters for my activities," Wynham said. "I took it that my outside activities would be restricted. I didn't think I could be an effective county manager (under that arrangement)."

Wynham said he left the session at one point and was joined by Commissioner Stirling Spencer, who said he couldn't see a resolution.

"I could see they were struggling," Wynham said. "I could see it would be impossible to repair."

What surprised him the most is that the day before the meeting, Wynham met one on one with each commissioner and had come away thinking they understood how he could handle both responsibilities and that he considered the judgeship just another way to help his community. He already volunteers as a Carrizozo fireman and on an ambulance.

"I don't consider it employment," Wynham said.

He said when he talked to Montes Sunday, "he told me to go on down and get sworn in (Monday) and we would discuss it Tuesday."

Mayor Cecelia Kuhnle administered the oath of office about 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Wynham said he does not see a conflict with the few hours a month he may spend as judge. The last time someone was sentenced to jail in Carrizozo was a year ago last November and four tickets were handed out last month for speeding.

Wynham said he has no other employment lined up. Ironically, when he was first hired, some commissioners expressed concern that he might not stay or become part of the community. But he did become involved and expected to stay a long time, Wynham said.

"It's a real sad thing," he said. "I enjoyed working for Lincoln County and thought it possibly would be my home for a long time, but I may have to leave to find work."

"If they want to talk to me and try to work it out, I'm willing. I personally believe I'm a good county manager."

Commissioner Bill Schwettmann said the division developed over different philosophies about the role of a county manager.

"I think it was a difference of opinion on what Andy thought of as a manager's role and what commissioners expected," he said. "It was an accumulation of things. We just decided his direction and ours were not the same."

"I think (the resignation) was a surprise to all of us."

"None of this was done with animosity. It just looked like maybe we couldn't get back on the same track together. He was one who suggested a resignation. We agreed to it and I think we were very generous."

"This is no reflection on him as an individual. We don't want to hurt anybody. He's done a lot of good things for us."

"Maybe the judgeship had something to do about bringing it to a head, but the more we talked about it, the more we starting comparing notes."

Asked if the commission changed any part of the job description to better fit what the board is seeking in a county manager, Schwettmann said no.

"We're following almost to the letter the original advertisement," he said.

"The job summary as far as I'm concerned is contained in one sentence," Schwettmann said. "I think it explains what I might expect from a county manager."

"It reads that the county manager serves at the pleasure of the Lincoln County Commission as administrative assistant to the commissioners, assisting them in the fulfillment of their duties and responsibilities.

"He is to assist, not to guide. I think we're big enough that if we make a mistake, that's up to us," Schwettmann added. "He's a fine young man. He taught me a lot and I appreciate it. I wish him luck."

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said, "I think the main thing I can say is that Andy is an excellent manager and very knowledgeable about his job. I think I will be looking for a manager with as much ability as he has."

"I was frankly surprised it turned out the way it did. Things happened. I knew he was aggressive when he was hired and I think the job demands a certain amount. Maybe he was too aggressive, but we need the 'go get'em' attitude he had."

Commissioner Wilton Howell said the split resulted from a combination of issues, "not the judgeship as far as I'm concerned."

In looking for a replacement, Howell said, "I would like to have someone more like our attorney who presents both sides of a case and lets commissioners make decisions. I prefer not as aggressive a lobbyist, who decides what's best for the county. That should be up to commission with their constituents."

"The manager should present the facts pro and con and let us make the decisions. Andy would get too involved."

Howell, who voted last fall against the two-year contract with Wynham, said he "was kind of shocked" by the manager's resignation.

"But if you have a horse you can't ride, you can't stay with him, you're in trouble," he said. "I'm not real happy that he resigned. That was not my intention. My intention was to get his attention and nothing more than that."

Commissioner Stirling Spencer, a friend of Wynham's, said, "The majority of the commission and the manager apparently couldn't come to terms over the duties and inside and outside interests of the present manager and therefore, the manager apparently thought it in the best interest of the county to sever the relationship."

The vote to accept resignation was unanimous.

"It seemed like there was an impasse in philosophy," Spencer said. "So here we go again."

"I don't know what we look for. I was very pleased with his performance. The man seemed always to be concerned, reliable and to spend an inordinate amount of time in carrying out the mandates of the commission. It looks like there were overriding issues from the majority of the commission and the manager."

"I don't really look for (a new manager), because I've been through it before."

"We are a small county with limited resources, although we have a healthy county government, so it sometimes is hard to attract qualified people. But I think we will and county residents can be assured the county will be in good hands."

Parents

over the past few months, the board also has adopted a sexual harassment policy for teachers and students.

A student assistance coordinator has been placed at the high school, mimicking a program already in place at the middle school.

Dub Williams, a former coach and teacher who helped organize the two meetings, told parents not to wait until a crisis before going to school officials.

"Why wait for a crisis," he said. "You have to have an avenue of input all the time. Unless we get families back involved, we're not going to solve this problem. Education is the key to success in life. We need to support our children through this phase of life."

"But it's also necessary for parents to have recourse when something happens at school. If everyone buys into it, it will work. Parents' voices have got to be heard and if they're not heard, we're not doing the right things in this village."

James Boren said he moved to Ruidoso three years ago with two teenage sons to get away from the high crime rate in Austin, Texas.

While he received a good response from middle school officials, he said he was not treated well at the high school.

"If others were treated like I was, no wonder they don't go up there," he said.

He launched into details of his family's struggle with one son whom they could not control and who has been removed from their home. When his son was first charged with a crime, juvenile authorities took no action against him, Boren said.

He said he never was notified that his son had missed 70 hours of school until he noticed the boy wasn't doing homework and he checked.

"By this time (his son) had total disrespect for authority, because the high school was letting him get away with anything," Boren said. "He cussed out two teachers and nothing happened. He didn't get that at home."

"I'm very frustrated. It's an embarrassment. I'm just saying some parents do try, they do care. We need a system that lets them know there are parameters."

Turning to curriculum, former substitute teacher Vicki Johnson said students are not receiving the required number of hours each day on phonics and math.

One woman complained because spelling is not counted in fifth grade, but when children arrive in sixth, it can affect grades.

Papponi said the staff walks a tight rope in trying to build self esteem and encourage creativity, while correcting spelling, punctuation and construction.

"We start with having them put down their wonderful ideas without compromising their creativity," she said. "Then we teach them how to edit and structure, carefully and gently guiding them in writing complete sentences, spell and punctuate while patting them on the back for their ideas. We pat them on the back for making good choices, which helps them build self-esteem."

Responding to parental questions about low scores on standardized tests, Wirth said 44.6 percent of the students in the Ruidoso district are mobile, move in and out, giving the district the second highest mobility rate in the state after Gladden.

When the next tests are administered, officials also will track the scores of students who have been in the system from fifth grade through twelfth and other determined periods "to get an idea of those kids who really are products of our schools, to see how they are doing," he said. "If you look at national tests scores, Iowa and South Dakota do the best, but they also exclude all but their top students from the tests. We have all of our students take them."

After the state's accreditation visit last October, the district began working on its long term education plan for student success.

"The consensus was the focus would be on reading and language arts, math and advance problem solving," Wirth said.

"We will be held accountable for those goals from now on."

Former high school principal Mike Kakuksa, now a member of the state board that screens students for appointments to military academies, said, "The fact is there is no consistency in education leadership, no vision of what to do K-twelfth, no interchange between grades."

"We need more coordination of curriculum from grade to grade, including spelling, reading and mathematics."

"Curriculum is on-going. You have to work with it all the time, not one day a year."

Separate grades could be given for content and mechanics on each submission, he said.

Witt agreed, saying that spelling should count throughout the curriculum.

Nan Wierwille said a classroom consists of a large group of students with varied needs.

"They can get (an education) in more than one specific way," she said. "It's good when parents come in and get their own perspective of what is right for their child in a teacher."

"Spelling is progressive. We team up with different partners to gain different emphasis and strengths."

Witt said parents also need to work at home with their children on spelling.

White Mountain Elementary principal Frank Cannella said parents will see consistency in the system approach to math with the recent adoption of the Saxon book series. The recommendation came from a committee of parents, teachers and administrators who visited other systems. It's a more basic approach, he said.

Beverly Gould urged parents to work at home with their children on spelling.

She was distressed to hear the Spanish program was being dropped at her daughter's school and fought back with a petition campaign.

"This is what parents can do, organize, not just gripe," she said. "As soon as Mr. Gladden received the petitions, he was in a meeting with Papponi working out solutions. I won't get exactly what I want, but I did get a response. I didn't get the run around."

"Make a public outcry, go to the state to secure funding, contact a senator to secure state funding and a mandate for bilingual education."

Gould suggested dropping one principal from the clustered three elementary schools and using the saved money for more programs.

"We need to be there at these meetings if we're going to make a difference," she said. "We need to go after issues we care about by circulating petitions and letting authorities know. Anyone wanting to help with the Spanish language acquisition committee, can call me at 257-7898."

Former high school bookkeeper Sue Randle asked Gladden how principals can plan when for the last two years, school budgets have been frozen early in the year because enrollment failed to meet budget projections.

Gladden said that action was the choice of staff in a budget pinch to prevent cutting programs or eliminating raises. Enrollment projections for next year are modest at 2.8 percent, he said.

Randle also challenged the use of club activity funds to pay for substitutes. She said it was never allowed when she was on staff.

District business manager Caron Snow said it was not a common practice of the district, but it was not illegal and had occurred only once at the request of the activity sponsor.

Randle said the district has a fiduciary responsibility to ensure the money contributed is used for the students. Assistant high school principal Danny Flores said the money was used to pay for a substitute sponsor to go on an activities trip.

As the meeting entered its third hour, Williams tried to wrap up major points. Gladden said the school district:

- will not drop the cheerleading program.

- has been working with Papponi at the middle school and he thinks it will be possible to offer Spanish.

- intends to continue offering drama. "It would be foolish to drop drama, which has built up over the last three to four years," he said.

- was able to place elsewhere in the system eight assistants whose positions were eliminated at the elementary level. It's up to each principal to work within the school site budget to meet the particular needs of their schools.

- declined comment on particulars relating to reassignment of Jody Blanton from volleyball coach to classroom teacher, in spite of sharp criticism from attorney Karen Parsons and others, based on legal confidentiality requirements.

- will schedule an athletic period, but the time has not been determined.

- In pushing for more parent involvement, Williams said a local PTA (Parent-Teacher Association) was disbanded years ago when attendance shrank to just two to four parents and all the rest teachers.

- Gladden read off a list of forums available for parents including:

- attending board meetings
- participating in the drug free schools and communities program

- participating in the YES (Youth Empowerment for Success) program

- joining parent councils at each school, meetings now poorly attended

- be part of Blue Ribbon Committees formed to promote special projects

- volunteer for special advisory committees under parental programs
- volunteer for needs assessment committees

- come to schools to help in class or visit with teachers.

Dub Williams, a former coach who helped organize the meeting with parents and school officials, sits at the head table with Ruidoso School Board president Ron Hemphill and district superintendent Mike Gladden before listening to complaints.

Chamber retreats, celebrates tourism week

by PAMELA CROMWELL

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
The roof still leaks, but the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is pleased with this year's accomplishments, which have given direction to next year's goals.

Directors expect to continue building their membership, strengthening their community ties and, of course, improving their own work site.

At a working retreat last weekend, the board of directors welcomed five new members who look forward to reaching these goals: Dan Austin, Fred Gerth, Margie Morales, Laura Reynolds and Chad Smith.

Chad Smith is a business man who owns Carpet Market. He has lived in Ruidoso two and a half years and said he looks forward to being part of this growing community.

Fred Gerth has lived in Ruidoso almost six years. He is president of the Rotary Club and owns High Country Insurance Agency.

Laura Reynolds is director of sales and marketing at the Enchantment Inn. She's lived here three and a half years and has a strong interest in promoting tourism.

BILLY DICTSON

Dan Austin is a returning chamber director, renewing his role as treasurer. He is with Hemphill & Austin Accounting and has lived here since 1982.

Margie Morales is a native of Ruidoso and serves on the Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees.

New and old directors at the retreat agreed that the chamber board needs a higher profile in the community. "There's too much association with Joan Bailey as the Chamber of Commerce, and I'm not," said the executive director. "The board creates policy, and I just carry it out."

In that vein, the board is resurrecting a defunct President's Club to maintain personal contact with members and welcome new businesses to town. Incoming president Jos Gomez will also be more visible as a chamber representative at public events and meetings.

Bailey reported that membership is up 21 percent, and the board expects that trend to continue.

"We've gotten more response from the membership since we've become more involved in the community," said Bailey.

The chamber has supported school programs, hosted weekly television shows, awarded scholarships and recognized outstanding members of the community.

Tuesday the chamber sponsored the Second Annual National Tourism Luncheon, inviting the community to hear guest speaker Bill Dictson talk about rural economic development through tourism.

Dictson showed a video produced by New Mexico State University used to train people in the tourism industry. According to the video, 12 million people visit New Mexico annually, spending about $2 billion a year. The average stay is four days, and an additional four hours is worth $300 million a day.

To persuade visitors to lengthen their stays, the video emphasized that everyone — especially front-line people like gas station attendants, store clerks and wait staff — should be familiar with area attractions. Dictson said communities who help each other stand a better chance of increasing regional tourism.

The board of directors also reviewed their fiscal situation and discussed fund raisers for building renovations. Over half of the chamber's funding comes from membership dues and the rest from special events like Aspenfest, Oktoberfest and the Art Festival.

The Chamber of Commerce building was originally built through volunteer efforts. Directors are looking for a way to bring the building into ADA compliance, repair the roof and possibly add storage. They are planning a golf tournament in the fall to start the building fund.

Briefs

Enchilada dinner fisticuffs result in police charges against one, not two

The Ruidoso News reported on April 28, on an altercation between Lawrence "Mike" Jones and Joseph Duquette during the Rotary Club Enchilada dinner.

The story indicated that Duquette and Jones were charged with assault and battery, which erroneously inferred the police brought the charges against both persons.

It should have read that officer DeWayne Goar brought assault and battery charges, and disturbing the peace, against Jones only.

According to police, Jones brought assault and battery charges against Duquette. There were no arrests.

Duquette has been summoned by Judge Mike Line to the municipal court at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 11, to answer the charge.

Jones has been summoned for 3:30 p.m. Thursday, May 12, to answer charges in Judge Line's court.

Hearing deals with county issues

The Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District (SNMEDD) will conduct a series of public hearings on current and future business, community and economic development activities.

The public is invited to the Lincoln County hearing at 10 a.m. Monday, May 9, in the commission meeting room at Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo.

The hearing will invite public input and concerns specific to Lincoln County and the communities of Capitan, Carrizozo, Corona, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

SNMEDD is state planning district VI, which encompasses Chaves, Eddy, Lea, Lincoln and Otero counties. It is the largest planning district in New Mexico, covering more than 26,000 square miles, and the second largest in population, serving nearly 250,000 people.

EMS offers first aid training

Ruidoso Emergency Medical Services will be offering a short training session on first aid for choking victims for local restaurants.

If interested, please contact Lance Hill or Don Merritt at 257-8290 to arrange a day and time at your place of business.

These sessions will be offered through June 30, and will be set up as calls are received. Each session will last approximately 30 minutes.

There is no charge for these sessions.

Highway crews to be at work

The New Mexico State Highway and Transportation Department will have crews working in the following areas:

Stripping crews will be working in Ruidoso, Capitan, Carrizozo, as well as elsewhere in the state; and striping crews will be working in Ruidoso.

MainStreet Ruidoso project manager Miller resigns

Project manager Don Miller turned in his letter of resignation to MainStreet President Don Dutton earlier this week.

Miller, who has been project manager for about a year, joined MainStreet while former project manager Mary Maul was still on staff; and took the reins after her consulting contract expired.

Dutton contacted The Ruidoso News to put to rest rumors throughout the MainStreet project area about Miller's resignation.

"Don Miller gave me a letter of resignation which I will now present to the board of directors," said Dutton, who just took on the job of MainStreet president.

Dutton, a long-time MainStreet board member, is serving with a recently formed board with several new members. The new group is still in its organizing stages and hasn't yet selected officers.

Dutton said Miller is calling together the board for him and he'll present the letter to the entire board at the special meeting.

As the Midtown streetscape project winds down, the three-year MainStreet program is into its seventh year.

MainStreet began as a public/private partnership among the federal government through the historic trust division, the state through Main Street New Mexico and the village through MainStreet Ruidoso. Funding and in-kind services from all three levels of government were to be replaced with private funds over the three years.

But, those private funds haven't materialized and the Village of Ruidoso has funded MainStreet for more than a quarter of a million dollars, and also offered in-kind support through village hall services.

As the major construction has progressed, the assistant village manager has been assigned almost full-time to oversee the project.

The village budget proposed for next year did not include a line item to fund MainStreet, and that omission has board members scrambling.

MainStreet already gave notice to its landlord, Ann Bolton, that it will vacate the office it rents on Sudderth Drive.

The MainStreet board of directors will meet at 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 11, at the Civic Events Center. The meeting is open to the public.

Dutton said the decision to replace Miller depends on funding. "I would like to see MainStreet continue," he said, "and that would mean looking for a director."

Dutton has urged MainStreet supporters to call the village council and encourage them to fund MainStreet for one more year.

Meanwhile, construction on Sudderth is proceeding and probably won't be suspended until July.

P&Z cracks down on builder

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Building without a permit may cause one Ruidoso resident to dismantle a two-story addition to his home.

Flavio J. Vigil, appearing before the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission, applied for a rear and side yard variance Monday, months after the fact, and according to the building inspector, flawed with a number of construction violations.

Vigil's property is located off Third Street in the Pine Lodge Subdivision.

According to planner Cleatus Richards, Vigil started a 21-by-13-foot two story addition without site development approval or a building permit.

Furthermore, Richards said there were serious questions as to compliance with New Mexico Uniform Building Code regarding work completed to date on the two story addition.

The setback for the addition also violates setback requirements, especially at the rear lot line, four feet eight inches, where 20 feet is required.

Additionally the property has been red tagged due to excessive accumulation of trash, appliances on the property, much of which appears to be building material used for the addition.

Vigil also appears to have built the two story addition partially engulfing a giant pine that Richards said poses a dangerous problem and will have to be removed.

Richards said that Vigil's disregard of the building code requirement has resulted in the applicant's current predicament.

Richards recommended removal of the illegally placed addition not meeting Uniform Building Code Standards and the removal to be completed within 120 days.

The commission voted to table the item until inspector Larry Hill inspects the property again from the inside with Vigil and comes back to the commission with a recommendation.

The commission discussed the possibility of repositioning the two story structure to the front of the house if the irregular building construction, somehow, could be corrected and brought into compliance.

Also Monday, Clarissa Ann Bolton's request for an amended commercial site development was approved conditionally by the commission.

Bolton intends to use the office, now rented by MainStreet, as her office and a retail area of similar size in her J. Roberts store will be converted to storage space.

The planning director noted that an office addition was converted without permit.

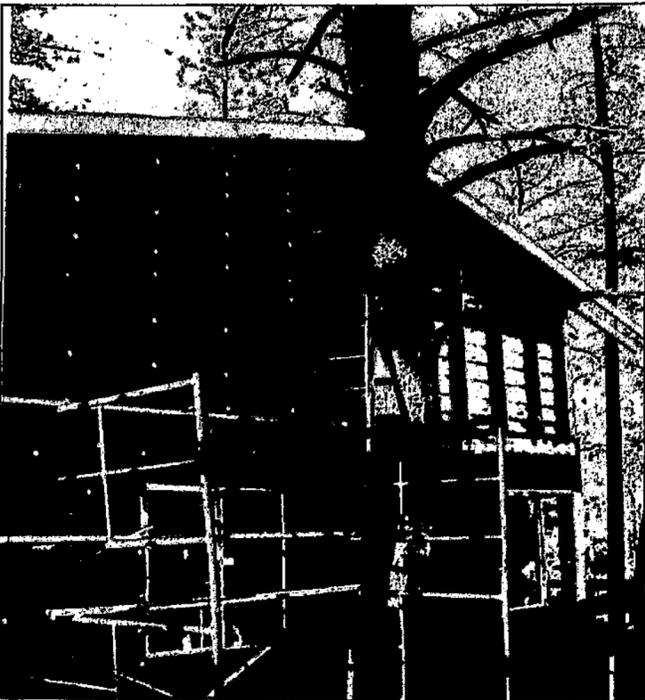

Neighboring property owner Jennie Dorgan wrote a letter of protest to the commission saying that store owners should not be allowed to apply for storage areas and then freely convert that storage area to retail sales, avoiding parking and other considerations.

In other action, the commission:

- conditionally approved a side yard variance for Yvonne Embres. The condition was utility easement and plat approval worked out with the planning department.

- approved a request for a replat of three lots in Innsbrook Village by John Barraclough.

- approved a request for a replat of two lots in Pine Point Estates by Walter Evans.

A local resident builder, without permit, squeezed his two story structure against an 150-foot pine tree. Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission will vote whether or not to force razing the structure at the next regular meeting.

Head coach picked to lead Warriors

Los Lunas coach Les Carter will be the new football coach at Ruidoso High School, if the School Board follows the recommendation of the administration selection committee.

"He will be recommended to the school board at their meeting May 10," said district superintendent Mike Gladden.

"He has turned the Los Lunas program completely around in their competitiveness and sportsmanship. He just comes to me highly recommended by many people over the state."

Carter has been head football coach at Los Lunas for the past five years. The team has made the 4A playoffs for the last three years. Carter also has coached wrestling, golf and track.

But if he heads to the mountains, Carter's duties will consist of being head football coach and teaching physical education.

"Why would Carter leave his top performing 4A school near Albuquerque to tackle a 3A school with a struggling football program?"

"He loves the area and feels we at one time had the tradition of being very competitive and would like to restore that," Gladden said.

"We had three quality individuals in the final running. The choice was difficult, but this Les Carter just stood out. He has proved himself, that he can turn a program around. He's ready to make a commitment to our program."

With more than 15 years of experience and a master's degree in education from the University of New Mexico, Carter will be earning top dollar on the district's salary matrix, a $34,687 base salary. He also will receive a $2,500 increment as head football, another $1,000 increment for weight training, and possibly some other increments for additional coaching assignments.

Gladden said an athletic period will be available for coaches, but exact scheduling still will have to be resolved.

"We had conditioning the fourth period this year," he said. "So we really have tried to work with coaches to find the approach that we feel as a group would be most effective."

Conference call meeting questioned

The basis for setting up a conference call meeting of the Lincoln County Commission has been challenged by the New Mexico Foundation for Open Government (FOG).

Robert H. Johnson, executive director of FOG, sent a letter to the civil division of the Attorney General's office last week asking its director to take a look at the situation.

Johnson, who helped draft the new provisions of the open meetings act that now allow conference calls, said commissioners violated the intended use of the alternative.

In the April 26 letter to Daniel Yohalem, Johnson said the commission inappropriately expanded the interpretation of the section to mean that it can conduct a meeting entirely by conference call.

"We know the amendment was offered and accepted so that when one or two members of a public body could not attend a meeting, they would be permitted to join by speaker phone to take part in the actions of a quorum," Johnson wrote.

"There was never any suggestion that an entire public body could convene by conference telephone. We believe this is clear in the wording of the subsection.

"However, as the enclosed story from The Ruidoso News reports, three members, a quorum, simply chose not to leave their places of business, from which they customarily travel to meetings. Instead, they seized on the absence of two other members — one in Albuquerque, the other in Houston — to arrange a conference call for everybody."

"We believe this subverted the mandate of the statute that meetings must be held in public."

It appears it was not otherwise difficult or impossible for the chairman and two members of the (commission) to meet in Carrizozo to form a quorum for the public meeting. They just didn't want to make their regular trip from Ruidoso and Hondo Valley. They may have thought that would be inconvenient — but certainly, it was neither difficult nor impossible."

Kay Roybal, public information officer for Attorney General Tom Udall, said it would take several days for the situation outlined in the letter to be reviewed and a response prepared.

A miffed county manager Andy Wynham said Tuesday that Johnson should have contacted him first before wasting taxpayer's money by getting the attorney general's office involved.

"This is the only time we have done it (conducted a conference call meeting) and if he had called, it would have been a chance for him to recommend what he considers the correct parameters," Wynham said.

The manager pointed out that the public was notified in advance of the meeting March 30 and how it was to be conducted. Arrangements were made to allow the public to listen to the meeting over a speaker phone at the county courthouse, and for reporters from both local newspapers to be on line.

"What is FOG trying to do, ensure open government or waste taxpayer's money?" Wynham asked. He added that for a 10-minute meeting, commissioners would have been reimbursed for the gasoline to travel to Carrizozo (about $15 each) and the newspapers may not have covered the session on a non-controversial issue.

Village of Ruidoso asks for and gets funds from county commission

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A few years ago, the Lincoln County Commission rebuffed efforts by a former mayor of Ruidoso to gain county support for activities provided by the village of Ruidoso. It was a different story Tuesday. The reason may have been because new village manager Gary Jackson was doing the presentation instead of former mayor Victor Alonso; or that the request this time around didn't include support for Sierra Blanca Regional Airport, which the village exclusively claimed when it appeared to be a money-maker; or the big factor may have been that village officials were asking for only $12,500 instead of more than $1.6 million.

Reasonable request

Jackson asked support for emergency fire fighting outside the village in areas not covered by county volunteer departments, for the public library and for the village swimming pool.

"These are areas we are responding to that don't have mutual aid agreements (on fire fighting)," Jackson said. "We don't have legal jurisdiction there, but they are so close, we have responded."

Commissioner Stirling Spencer asked whether the village receives reimbursement from any other source for those calls.

"Not on these," Jackson said. The areas include Cedar Creek, U.S. 70 from Charokee Village to the Mesalero Apache Reservation, Gavilan Canyon to lower Gavilan, Carrizo Canyon and a few other small spots.

Jackson said the number of people involved in the 107 calls has varied during the period he checked since 1989, but he used a figure of $250 a call as a non-scientific estimate of cost.

He requested a total of $4,500 for the fire calls.

Commissioner Bill Schwetznann said he had no problem with that

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said that although the village has moved ahead with annexation on a portion of Gavilan and that it's a good approach to solving the problem, it takes time to accomplish. "I think we have an obligation,"

Jackson told commissioners that the village intends to continue to provide the fire-fighting service, but councilors felt it was reasonable to ask for county support.

Commissioners agreed to give the library $4,000 and the swimming pool, $4,000. Users of the pool also pay $2.25 admission or $6, if they intend to use the water flumes.

"Will this be a recurring request?" Schwetznann asked.

"We will track it during the year and if we feel there is a need, we will bring it to you on a more timely basis next year," Jackson said.

"I appreciate this a lot more than the last request (in April 1992) when (Alonso) wanted $1.6 million to subsidize the village," chairman Monroy Montes said.

Nunley offered a motion to approve the request "in the spirit of cooperation," and it passed unanimously.

But when commissioners dealt with their own $8.8-million budget, approval failed to muster a 5-0 vote.

Budget passes

Spencer cast the lone nay, telling The Ruidoso News later that he thinks the commission is sinking too far into deficit spending over current revenues, even though because of a previous surplus, the overall numbers are in the black.

"We're getting too far away from our revenue base," he said. "A few years ago, we were moving toward wiping out the deficit and now we're moving back the other way, $100,000, then $200,000 in the hole."

However, Spencer defended his vote to award salary increases to elected officials based on what appeared to be a six-year drought for these officials; if a raise wasn't approved this year.

"Year after year, these elected officials trim their department budgets. I know they were elected at the current salary, but I've always believed that people are our biggest resource," he said.

He continues to disagree with the commission's decision to purchase a Glancee sales barn and turn it into a rural events center (financed in part by a $200,000 allocation from the State Legislature). The money needed to operate the center could have been used better in the road department or other parts of the budget, Spencer said.

Barn complaints

Later, Ken Weil of Alto launched into his own debate about the wisdom of purchasing the former horse sale barn.

He told commissioners that many county voters don't understand why things are happening this way.

"I read reports that the barn is in disrepair" and the legislative appropriation won't cover everything that needs to be done.

He said he was under the impression that no county tax money would be used to operate the center, but now the commission has approved a $62,000 budget for 1994-95.

"If that's not tax money, where is it coming from?" Weil asked.

Montes said he previously pledged that no "new" tax dollars would be used, no additional tax burden would be imposed.

"These are existing tax dollars," he said.

"But they're still from the general operating budget and it takes away from the sheriff's department for another deputy or a new car for the planning department," Weil said. "Yet, you're dedicating them to a barn with no income."

Hopes that the center might become the next home of the (Hereford, Texas) Cowgirl Hall of Fame have been extinguished, he said. "I understand now, we're not even in the running for it."

According to an Associated Press story, the four towns still being considered for the relocation are Granbury, Fort Worth and Abilene, Texas, and Dodge City, Kansas.

Weil seemed to become more insistent the longer he spoke. Montes asked if he was there for a confrontation.

"We've done nothing behind closed doors," Montes said.

"There was one meeting where no comments were allowed from floor," Weil responded.

"We were very busy that day and it already had been discussed extensively," Montes countered.

Commissioner Wilton Howell then jumped into the fray, pointing out that of the $62,000 in operation money, $40,000 is from the state. The balance from the county isn't much more than the county puts in for the county fair, he noted.

Building report

A report will be completed by a building inspector before the county closes on the barn purchase.

"I invite you to come down with me and take a look at it," he said to Weil, who added that $14,000 had been budgeted for the remaining months of this year to lease and operate the center.

"And not a dollar has been spent yet," Montes said. "This is anticipated to generate money. If not, I will have a problem with it."

"But I've seen nothing in the way of proposals for revenue," Weil said.

"I think this is one of those situations where you plant the seeds first," Howell said.

"I would think you would go out and look for a proposed harvest first," Weil responded.

Montes said one money-raising event, the annual Lincoln County

Cowboy Symposium, is booked there.

"That's a three-day event," Weil said.

Under the projected county budget for 1994-95, commissioners approved a general fund of $3,527,512, an increase of $123,997 over last year. They also OK'd a road department budget of $972,984, a decrease of $81,528 from last year. Those two funds totaling $4,500,496 essentially cover the operation of the county. The rest of the funds take care of debt service, are pass through monies from state and federal sources such as fire departments or are connected to special tax levies.

Total expenditures are listed as $6,852,875, with an ending cash balance of $2,105,484.

Other business

In other budget items, the commission:

—approved the previously requested $5,000 allocation for the village of Corona to help subsidize the cost of garbage collection until its contract runs out with a private collector and the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority can initiate service.

—as an emergency item, approved a call for proposals to build a new portable water tank to be used by the road department to spray down roads before surfacing. The existing tank presents a danger and could burst at any time, sending enough water out its seams to turn over the truck pulling it, said county road manager Bill Cupit.

—approved $85,000 in capital outlay for a new tractor (as part of a tractor trailer rig) for the road department out of state gas tax revenue.

—included $20,000 under an item for a Community Development Block Grant to purchase land for a senior citizens center in San Patricio.

Montes said at a grant hearing last week, officials questioned why the county had not already purchased land for the building as a show of good faith in requesting a community development grant to build a center.

"I told them I'd be opposed to buying the property first before the grant award decision," Montes said. "There's no need to spend all or any, but it shows commitment."

Nunley said he also has contacted the Bureau of Land Management office in Roswell about the possible acquisition of public property for the building.

—included under capital outlay $3,800 from the State Legislature and $2,000 from the county, to be used toward the purchase of another electronic voting machine to help with early voting in elections.

—agreed to allow the county clerk to take advantage of new legislation providing for an equipment recording fee up to $3 a document. Clerks statewide agreed to a $2 per instrument increase (bringing the charge from $5 to $7 in Lincoln County, with subsequent pages staying at $2 each).

The money generated by the increase (estimated at $20,000 a year) is to be used to buy equipment to keep the clerk's office technologically in step.

—agreed to put back enough money in the treasurer's budget to cover supplies, dues, conferences and registration fees, each by $500. Commissioners simply forgot to put them back in when examining the budget the first time around.

—rejected a new vehicle for the planning division, even though county manager Andy Wynham said $9,000 for a new vehicle would provide a more reliable method of transportation and fewer repairs.

Howell said the commission can look at the item against mid-year. Commissioners suggested possibly using one of the cars scheduled to be replaced in the sheriff's department.

—approved setting aside $800,000 for facilities expansion.

Warrior golfers three-peat as district champs; Jeff Chapman takes individual title at Oñate

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent

The Ruidoso Warrior Boys Golf team won its third-straight District 3-AAA Championship Wednesday by almost 20 shots over their chief rivals in district golf, the Deming Wildcats.

Hosted by Oñate High School, the tournament was held at the Las Cruces Country Club.

The Warriors dominated the tournament by taking the first three individual medals. Jeff Chapman finished as the District individual champion with a one-under par 71, while teammates Ryan Wall and Jimmy Varnadore finished second and third respectively.

All three golfers earned All-District honors.

Team scores for the district championship were Ruidoso, 312; Deming, 331; Oñate, 342; Silver 344 and Socorro, 365.

The tournament was supposed to be a two-team affair between Ruidoso and Deming, but the Wildcats played poorly Monday and Tuesday in the Dona Ana Classic. It was actually the home team, Oñate, that had performed best this week, winning Monday's tournament and finishing second on Tuesday.

The Warriors didn't play in those tournaments, choosing to head into the district tourney fresh — and it apparently paid off as the Warriors continued the strong play that gave them three first-place trophies last week.

For Chapman, it was sweet revenge as the lanky senior played almost flawlessly after starting out two over-par after the first three holes. But it didn't take long for his putting touch to return as he posted four birdies on the day against just three bogies.

Chapman defeated two-time district champion Aaron Salars from Silver City. Salars won the title as a sophomore two years ago, and again last year at Deming — defeating Chapman, who finished third.

Salars had Chapman by one stroke after 10 holes, but when the action switched to the testy 11th, a short, tricky par four over water, Salars pumped two balls into the lake and could not make the difference as Chapman played mistake-free golf to the clubhouse.

Ryan Wall, who had the low-round in two of three tournaments last week, continued his outstanding play despite having a lackluster day with the putter. Wall recorded just one birdie, but it was a big one.

Playing in the second group, there were three players in Wall's group (including himself) tied at six over-par going down the 18th hole. In addition, there were two more 78s from Chapman's group that had just finished.

Since All-District honors go to the five lowest scores, and Chapman had secured the first place medal, that meant a playoff would determine the final four places.

Wall ended that scenario, at least for himself, with a thunderous drive and a nine-iron approach to within 12 feet of the hole. After a moment to study the terrain, Wall then calmly rolled in the putt for the birdie that would give him second place, breaking the log-jam at six-over.

The two players that were tied with Wall, from Silver and Deming, bogied the 18th — which ultimately ended their playoff hopes.

Jimmy Varnadore, another Warrior that has played very well of late, was in the fourth group and actually overbied the 16th hole to get to five over. The senior then made a tough six-footer for par on the 17th to stay at that mark and headed to the final hole tied with his teammate, Ryan Wall for second place.

Varnadore ripped his tee shot in a position almost identical to Wall's but pulled his nine-iron slightly and caught the tree that overhangs the left side of the green.

The ball hit the tree solidly and caromed Varnadore's ball behind it in the rough. With very little chance of getting the ball close from that position, Varnadore punched a shot under the tree and ran the ball 25 feet past the cup.

Varnadore's first putt ended three feet from the hole and he then knocked in the bogie putt that put him in the playoff Aaron Salars and Socorro's J.C. Griego for 3rd, 4th and 5th place, and a place on the All-District team.

The first hole of the playoff saw all three golfers record bogies.

The second hole saw Varnadore and Salars make routine, two-putt pars while Griego bogied after missing a four-footer.

The third hole of the playoff was the hole that sent Salars to the locker room as Varnadore hit another good drive to Salars duck-hook. Salars played first and hit an excellent second shot from 200 yards to the back fringe of the green.

Varnadore's seven-iron was his best approach of the day and landed 10 feet from the hole. Salars chipped the ball four-feet past the cup and Varnadore's putt was just 18 inches away.

Salars putt rimmed the hole and missed and in an act of class that demonstrated how much tournament golf he has played, Salars picked up his opponent's marker and shook his hand, conceding the putt for the win.

Remarkably, the Warriors had finished first, second and third as individuals.

Matt Cantu shot 86 and Eric Stephens shot 89 to round out the Warrior scoring.

An exuberant Ron Wall had this to say about his third district championship as head coach of the Warriors.

"It was just an amazing day. The kids were all business last night in the hotel and this morning at breakfast. It was easy to tell they came here to win first and have a good time second," said Wall.

"I was so proud of the way that Jeffrey (Chapman) played, it was almost perfect, he got his putter going and he hit the ball very well, he is the best golfer in the State and he played like it today."

"Ryan and Jimmy also played great rounds today too. Both kids could have let it get away from them but fought hard and kept positive and they were rewarded for it," said Wall.

The Lady Warriors didn't have the day that the boys had, but they did get the chance to, experience pressure of the district championship, which will ultimately help them down the road.

Playing with three eighth graders, a sophomore and a senior, the girls finished fourth, beaten by Oñate, Socorro and Deming.

"We are just very young and we played like today. The girls definitely felt the heat of the district tournament today," said Becky Austin, the girls head coach.

"I'm not overly concerned because we knew that Oñate was next to impossible to beat. We just came here to see what it's like to be in a pressure situation that will hopefully prepare us for the State tournament next week," said Austin.

The boys junior varsity ended its season with a third-place finish behind Socorro and Deming.

Scott Christensen shot 84 followed by Byron Soules, 89; Brian Phillips, 94; Stephen Houghton, 97 and Jacky Roe, 100.

Track team finishes fourth in Lovington

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent

The Warrior track team finished fourth in both divisions of Saturday's Lovington Invitational track meet. A State qualifying meet, the Lovington event had teams from the host school, as well as Artesia, Portales, NMMI and of course Ruidoso.

The girls got a blue-ribbon performance from Sarah Dix, whose 17-6 effort in the Long Jump netted first place by eight inches over the second-place finisher from Portales. That mark qualified Dix for the State Tournament.

The Lady Warriors finished one-two in the 3200-meter run with Stephanie Haas and Bridget Tam finishing first and second. Haas, a senior, recorded a time of 12:30.09; while Tam, who just moved up from the 8th-grade team, stopped the clock in 12:47.58.

Haas then came back to take first in the 1600-meter run in 5:56.63.

In addition, the team got a State qualifying effort from Jody Randle in the High Jump. Randle finished fourth in the event, but broke the 5-foot mark. Brandi Pfeiffer finished fifth, just behind Randle.

The girls 400-meter relay team finished second in 52:79, just behind Lovington and repeated that finish in the 800-meter relay. The relay team finished third in the 1600.

Bridgette Tam also turned in a good performance in finishing second in the 800-meter run, beaten just a second.

Pfeiffer checked in third in the 200-meter Dash, beaten by just 77 hundredth-seconds by the winner.

The boys team took first place in the long jump as Kyle Humphreys turned the trick with a leap of 22-1/2 — a full 18 inches better than the second-place finisher.

Humphreys checked in second in the 200-meter Dash and the 110-hurdles.

Rex Comanche also had a sharp effort in finishing second in the 800-meter run. The sophomore hit the wire in 2:11.30.

David Huistadler got points for the Warriors with a pair of fourth-place finishes in the 110-hurdles and the 300-low hurdles.

Anthony Torres checked in third in the 100-meter dash and the Warriors also got third in the 800-meter relay.

The Warriors travel to Oñate High School for the District 3-AAA Championship Friday and Saturday.

Corona cowboy wins regional all around cowboy

Justen Washburn of Corona was named all around cowboy and saddle bronc riding champion for the Southwest Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association at the NIRA rodeo in Stephenville, Texas, on April 30.

Washburn represents Eastern New Mexico University as a member of the intercollegiate rodeo team. He competes in saddle bronc riding, bull riding and team roping.

Washburn is a graduate of Capitan High School and is a senior agricultural business major at ENMU.

He is a member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association and has qualified for the Turquoise Circuit finals for the past three years.

Washburn is the son of Joanne and Royce Washburn of Corona.

Wheels for Bike-a-thon to run Sunday, May 14

Ron Anderson calls on all Ruidoso residents to join the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Wheels for Life Bike-A-Thon starting at 1 p.m. Sunday, May 16, at White Mountain School.

Volunteer workers and riders are needed for this bike-a-thon to raise funds for the world-famous research center in its battle against childhood cancer and other catastrophic childhood diseases.

"We're looking for riders and helper who will contribute their time and talent to help children live," said Anderson. "We really need lots of riders, since they are the ones who can make this bike-a-thon successful."

In the Wheels for Life Bike-A-Thon, riders ask sponsors to make a donation based on each mile completed. All riders turning in money will receive a certificate. Those who raise $30 or more will receive a certificate and a special St. Jude T-shirt. When $75 or more is raised, the rider receives a sports bag in addition to the certificate and T-shirt.

"The real prize, though, is the pride everyone can take in giving children a chance to live a normal life," said Anderson.

Contact Anderson at 268-9298 for details on riding or sponsoring a rider.

The Optimist Club has planned another special event, a bike safety course, in conjunction with the bike-a-thon.

The class will begin at 1 p.m. at White Mountain School.

Wager on the Kentucky Derby at Sports Theater

The 120th running of the Kentucky Derby will be simulcast in the Ruidoso Downs Sports Theater, Saturday, May 7.

The race will be part of a 17-race program which includes six races from Churchill Downs and eleven from Sunland Park. All six races from Churchill will be stakes events.

The Sports Theater will open at 9:30 a.m. with first post time of 11 a.m. The approximate post time for the Kentucky Derby is 3:34 p.m. MDT.

Admission is free and a special breakfast buffet will be available.

The first jewel of thoroughbred racing's triple crown is expected to attract the nation's top three-year-olds, including early favorite Holy Bull. The gray colt has won all but one of his eight career starts which includes a three-and-a-half-length triumph in the Grade II Blue Grass Stakes on April 16.

Owned and trained by Jimmy Grell, Holy Bull is expected to be on the early lead as he has led from start-to-finish in every one of his victories.

Another horse to watch in the 12 to 15-horse field is the California-based colt Brocco. The versatile performer comes off a solid 1 3/4-length tally in the Grade I Santa Anita Derby on April 9 and looks to be in top shape for a repeat effort on Saturday.

Two other horses that should threaten include Lexington, Stakes winner Southern Rhythm and Arkansas Derby runner-up Blumin Affair.

The Kentucky Oaks, the female equivalent of the Derby, will be simulcast in the Sports Theater on Friday, May 6.

Trash trackers

Thirty-two people dedicated their Saturday morning to cleaning up Rio Ruidoso, collecting more than 200 bags of trash, seven tires, two bedsprings, a Lions Club sign, a roll of chicken wire, and even a dead animal from the river shores and waters. Organizer Dick Ramsay of Carol's Flies in B.J.'s Gun Shop said most baggers were members of the Desert Fly Fishing Guild from Roswell and the Mesilla Fly Fishers from Las Cruces. Six were from Ruidoso. After picking up trash and planting about 200 willows to stabilize the banks from the look out tower to behind Frank's Fruit Market, they celebrated with a tailgate party at Pizza Hut.

Inn will offer tennis clinics

On Saturday, May 14, the Inn of the Mountain Gods will host USPTA's Across America Tennis Day.

Sponsored by the United States Professional Association, this celebration of physical fitness will take place nationwide on this date.

Stretch Meadows, USPTA tennis pro at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, invites interested area residents and visitors to participate in scheduled tennis activities.

USPTA's Across America Tennis Day events, which are free to the public, will be at the tennis complex at the Inn of the Mountain Gods resort on Carrizo Canyon Road.

Beginners' clinics are scheduled on Saturday morning — 9 a.m. for kids and 10:30 a.m. for adults.

In the afternoon, A and B adults tennis players are invited to play in a social round-robin tournament at 1 p.m.

Capitan students take computer challenge

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

It's usually sports that puffs Ron Becker's chest with pride, but last week, it was mental muscle that had him beaming.

Two of the students in Becker's gifted class at Capitan Elementary participated in the New Mexico Supercomputer Challenge and were among the 77 teams that finished out of the 160 that started.

"This is the fourth year for the program, but the first year we have been involved," Becker said. "Teams entered statewide, but only those that finished the entire challenge were invited as a reward to the Los Alamos Laboratories to be part of the awards assembly."

Keith Witham, a freshman, and Elissa Reamy, a senior, started last October and finished in April. They traveled to Glorieta for a three day kick off conference and then twice to Socorro to refine their computer project.

"The computer time and travel was taken care of by (technological) sponsors," Becker said. "It allowed the students to hook up to the largest computer in the world."

"I'm real proud of them to finish in the upper half the first year."

All the school district had to provide was an IBM compatible computer and modem.

"Elissa also competed for a leadership scholar," Becker said. "She was one of 19 students recommended."

"It was a good experience overall with the exposure to the main computer and to see what it could accomplish," Witham said.

"I think the point was like a big science project, incorporating the use of the supercomputer."

"We had to write a program ourselves or work with someone who could design it specifically for our project, which was on bone cancer."

"We tried to use the computer to figure the growth rate and pattern of a tumor and to do the graphics as well. You can write that into the program, so that it will simulate the growth on-screen."

The first trip to Socorro was more to listen about available resources and to give officials a review of their progress.

"The second time we actually gave a presentation, sort of a pre-judging," Witham said.

The winners of the challenge worked on extremely complex problems and had been competing for several years out of metropolitan high schools, he said.

"It's a little more difficult for a smaller system like Capitan where the resources aren't as unlimited."

Briefs

Free shots for Capitan kids offered May 14

Free immunizations will be offered in the Capitan area from 12:30 to 2 p.m. Monday, May 9, at Capitan Elementary.

Part of the Alice King/Lovelace Immunization Program, the first statewide public/private partnership of its kind, the program is returning to rural areas after a previous visit in March.

Parents must accompany their children and should bring shot records, if available.

The revisit is necessary because children should receive immunizations at two months, four months, six months, 15 months, five years and 15 years of age.

The Federal Center for Disease Control estimated fewer than half of the nation's children younger than two years receive all recommended vaccinations to protect them against serious, sometimes deadly, diseases such as measles, mumps, tetanus, polio, whooping cough and rubella.

That estimate also is true for New Mexico. Many parents are not aware of the dangers of childhood diseases or the need to begin their child's immunization program as early as two months of age. Parents of children in rural areas often have difficulty accessing services at clinic or doctor offices during traditional service hours.

Early childhood immunization is a cost-effective disease prevention measure supported by President Bill Clinton, as far less expensive than treating preventable diseases once they occur.

The primary partners involved with this program include Lovelace Health Systems, First Lady Alice King of New Mexico and the State Department of Health.

Cue up for Capitan senior eight ball challenge

Lincoln County residents 55 and over are invited to compete in an eight ball pool tournament Saturday, May 14, at Capitan Senior Citizens Center.

Contestants must be at the center by 8:30 a.m. to register. Separate five-year age brackets for men and women have been set up. Games will be played according to the 1994 New Mexico Senior Olympics State Rule Book. Pre-registration will be accepted at the center from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

The entry fee is $3 for each contestant. The tournament will serve to qualify contestants for the State Senior Olympics Games, August 3-7 at New Mexico Highlands University in Las Vegas, New Mexico.

For more information, contact Wayne Mason at 354-2866.

Smokey and friends celebrate

Smokey Bear and his friends hope to see a big turnout for the furry brun's Fiftieth Anniversary Year, fourth annual dinner at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, May 14, in the Capitan School multipurpose room.

The fourth annual Friends of Smokey dinner will begin the celebration of Smokey's gold anniversary as the symbol of fire prevention for the U.S. Forest Service, which will be highlighted by a series of events in Capitan and the surrounding area.

The dinner will feature a beef entree catered by Capitan Future Homemakers of American. Entertainment will be provided by some of the area's finest talents competing for prizes. The winner will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Second prize is a $25 bond and third, $10 in cash. Call 354-2873 after 5 p.m. to sign up.

Capitan performer Joni Autrey also will entertain. Tickets for the dinner are $8 a plate and are available from Friends of Smokey members, at the Smokey Bear Museum, the State Historical Park in Capitan, or at the door.

Smokey Bear will tee off as the honored guest at The Links of Sierra Blanca Gold Course on May 21 in Ruidoso during the first annual Friends of Smokey Golf Tournament. Entry fees are $100 a player and include a luau dinner and dance at the Enchantment Inn following the tournament. Contact The Links for more information.

For a run down on other events, write Friends of Smokey, Box 545, Capitan NM 88316.

Book Fair fun

Teachers and students browse through the Capitan Elementary's annual Book Fair, wide selection of books available at before selecting titles to take home.

ACT scholar recognized

Andras S. Bailey, a senior at Capitan High School, was recognized as an American College Testing (ACT) Scholar by the New Mexico State Department of Education for posting composite testing scores of 27 or high, plus a high school grade point average of 3.5 or higher. Bailey, a senior, is the daughter of Judy and Chris Bailey and was born in Presque Isle, Maine.

She has earned a 3.78 GPA and hasn't received a "C" grade in her high school career. Bailey, 18, has been an honor student and active in band, where she plays the trumpet.

Developers get the go-ahead for new Lincoln County subdivision

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The largest subdivision proposed in Lincoln County for more than a decade received approval Tuesday for the first phase of development.

The Ranches of Sonterra, being constructed by Properties of the Southwest, is scheduled to sprawl across 4,813 acres of the former Bar M Ranch, owned by the late Pat Dunning and the Barham family. It will span the Rio Bonito and run along the ridges and canyons leading to Sierra Blanca Airport.

Situated between the Capitan Mountains and Sacramento range, 148 lots will be contained in the first phase on 1,193 acres. The remaining property will be developed in three to four more phases.

The Delaware corporation already has smaller developments underway in several Texas locations. Its mother company, Patterson Corporation, has a main office in Boca Raton, Florida.

In approving the development plat (physical layout and commitments for improvements), county commissioners complimented company officials and county planning officer Patsy Sanchez for coming up with a comprehensive disclosure statement to be given to prospective lot purchasers.

Included in that statement was an acknowledgment of an existing $2,972,000 mortgage on the land held by Gordon Barham, R.C. Barham and the Barham Family Trust.

As the developer sells the lots, certain proceeds will be paid to the mortgage holder, who then will release the mortgage on each separate lot. Independent builders will handle construction, although some may buy property to build speculation or model homes. Financing terms offered by the developer on the lots include 11.9 percent interest with 20 percent down, with no penalty for pre-payment.

"The Planning and Zoning Board has reviewed it. Their recommendations are in your packet. All required state submittals have been received," county manager Andy Wynham told commissioners.

About the only difference is that the developer changed the name of some of the streets, he said.

"Is there a Schwetzmann Drive,"

Commissioner Wilton Howell jokingly asked company president Charles Patterson, who lives in Alto outside Ruidoso and in Wamberly, Texas.

No one could spell it and they'd want more money for a bigger sign," Schwetzmann joked back.

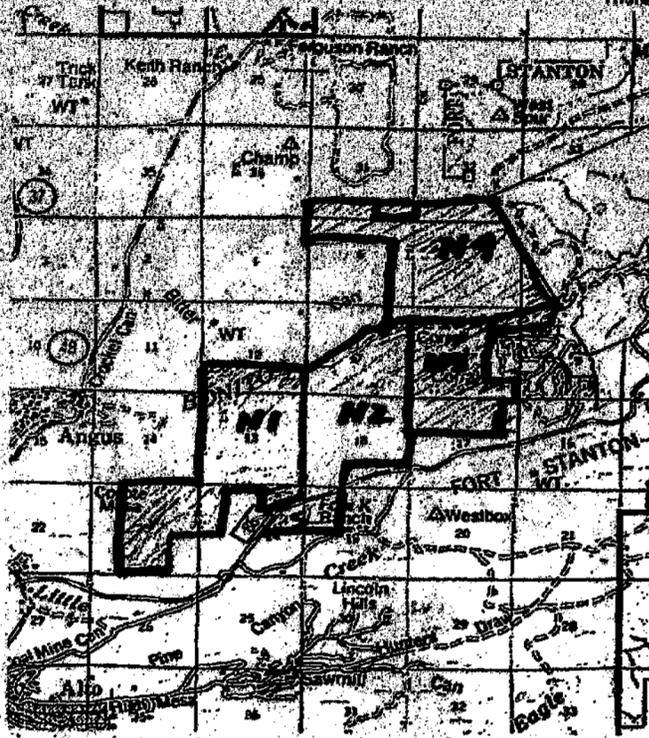

Schwetzmann then declared a conflict of interest on the issue, because his engineer's seal appears on the documents, "although I don't get paid."

The other commissioners said they welcomed him sitting in on the discussion and would leave it up to him whether he thought a conflict might exist. When it came time for a vote, he abstained. It passed 4-0.

Surveyor Tim Collins, who handles most of the developments in the county and the village of Ruidoso, explained why some small variances were requested in the grades of a few streets and one intersection.

"The road that exceeds the required grade at an intersection only serves two lots," he said. "There is another access if it is snowing."

Company officials noted that an Artists Linda Smith and Gary Morton, who will both exhibit their work in Carlsbad this Saturday, are shown here with one of Morton's paintings.

Area artists exhibit in Carlsbad

Linda Smith and Gary Morton of Ruidoso Downs will participate along with 23 other artists in the second annual Roundup on the Pecos art show and sale in Carlsbad on Saturday, May 7.

Other area artists in the show include Vic Payne, Mimi Jungbluth, Rick Jackson, Wes Smith, Michael Wood, George Kovach and Phil Bob Berman.

Last year's inaugural show exceeded all expectations with sales over $100,000. This year more than $70,000 has been presold to sponsors and patrons who will make their selections when the show opens.

Theater celebrates with free movies

Sierra Cinema is celebrating its re-opening next week with free matinees and donations to charities.

New owner Deborah Marcom sees the theater as a community center, and she is a strong supporter of education.

To thank Ruidoso for her warm reception, she is inviting everyone to free matinee showings of Geronimo and Tombstone. Evening admission will be regular ticket price ($5 for adults, $3 for kids), and half the proceeds will go to youth groups.

Thanks to the support of Columbia Pictures, Marcom said, half the Geronimo proceeds will go to the newly formed Mesalero Apache Boys and Girls Club. Buena Vista Pictures agreed to let half the Tombstone proceeds go back to the community, too.

"My daughter and I are real excited to be here," Marcom said. "Everyone in Ruidoso has been very friendly and helpful."

Marcom is looking forward to providing family entertainment for the community. For starters, she plans this summer to show morning matinee kid shows, rated G.

Developers row

Key figures in the new Ranches of Sonterra subdivision prepare to answer questions from Lincoln County Commissioners about development plans. They are (from left) project manager Jim Powell, engineer and local representative Kelly Kifer, president Charles Patterson and sales manager Ed Libby.

8.8-acre lot (number 85) has been set aside for a park along the river. Picnic tables will be provided and a park area created (with parking) by July 1998, that will then be given to the homeowners association.

Conditions outlined in the company's disclosure statement include that all utilities will be overhead and roads are to be completed by July 1995.

Buyers also are put on notice that no water rights go with the river. They may not pump or divert water.

Phase two of the development probably will start in about six months, Collins said. A total of 465 tracts are anticipated when the subdivision is completed, ranging in size from five acres to 63.7 acres.

Initial sales prices will start at $23,000 for the smallest tracts and go up to $160,000 for the largest.

The restrictive covenants in place as part of each sales agreement includes that only one residential dwelling (with a minimum of 1,500 square feet of heated living space) can be built per tract, except for a guest-servants house of at least 500 square feet.

Plans must be approved for all construction by the Architectural Control Committee prior to work beginning. Manufactured homes and mobile homes are prohibited.

Side lot setbacks for construction are 25 feet, rear lot at 50 feet and 100 feet from any public road.

Horse breeding from time to time by individual property owners is a permitted use, but restrictions are established on grazing.

Livestock is limited to one horse per two acres, except animals for 4-H projects, which are allowed as long as they are properly confined.

Dogs and cats, not limited in number, also must be confined on property and licensed. The control committee determines when a nuisance situation exists.

Wall art

Students from Karen Reeder's art class at Ruidoso High School add another mural to the school walls. This is the first artwork designed by a student to grace the high school halls. Edward Blake, pictured above, designed a mural that honors a proud Native American history and the Apache spirit that lives in these mountains.

Mescalero congregation dedicates site, begins building new church

Indigenous churches on Indian reservations are almost unheard of, except at the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation. There the Carrizo Christian Fellowship (CCF) is building the first Mescalero church to be run independent of any missionary denomination.

The church congregated Sunday at the building site for a ground-breaking ceremony led by their founder and pastor, Frederick Kaneseawah. In a cathedral of pines and sky, amidst the blowing ashes and smoke of a few burned out tree stumps, the church members raised their voices in praise and thanks to God.

Several distinguished guests and church representatives were on-hand to dig out the shape of a cross, taking turns at three golden shovels symbolizing the Holy Trinity.

Principal among the guests were the Reverend Richard Vandusen, pastor of Anointed Christian Fellowship in Vail, Colorado; C.A. Branum, Ruidoso building contractor; Eldon Spitty, Mescalero evangelist; and Sandra Platero, Tribal Government Representative.

Kaneseawah said Vandusen was literally God-sent to help build this church.

"God told him there was a reservation in the south that needed a church, and he looked on the map and found us," said Kaneseawah.

Kaneseawah is grateful for Vandusen's investment, and he is especially thankful for the support of President Wendell Chino and the Tribal Council, who granted the church two acres of land on Carrizo Road. The Forestry Service and church members have already started clearing the land for phase one of the building. Kaneseawah saw the need for an indigenous Christian church four years ago.

"All the churches here are missionary churches," he said. "This is something we're doing for ourselves."

Kaneseawah's family and friends supported his efforts. His sister opened her house for a meeting place, his brother, sharing the vision, joined the ministry, and under the guidance of the Reverend Tommy Good, the church grew and prospered.

Now a congregation varying from 30 to more than 100 meets in a small tarp-roofed greenhouse, but soon members will have a 2,000-square-foot facility complete with classrooms and a kitchen.

It appears that all forces are working in CCF's favor.

"This isn't the work of a man," said Kaneseawah. "This is God's work."

Representatives of the youth ministry at Carrizo Christian Fellowship helped break ground for the new building.

Hardin-Simmons University honors RHS grad Trina Cox with top award

Trina Cox of Ruidoso and Chris Burling of Sugarland, Texas, received the Brewer Science Medals at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas.

The medal goes to outstanding senior students who major in the natural sciences, according to Dr. Taylor Rankin, head of the department of biology. The gold medal, endowed by Dr. F. Earl Ingerson, honors Dr. John H. Brewer, who for many years was professor of microbiology at Hardin-Simmons.

Cox is a geology major and Burling is a biology major.

"In addition to her excellence in the classroom, Trina Cox has served with distinction in the HSU Geology Club, including a stint as president during the present academic year," said Rankin.

Last summer, she was one of only 16 students accepted for an internship with the NASA Lunar and Planetary Institute. While there she conducted research on lunar samples collected during the Apollo 16 mission.

She plans to attend graduate school in the Texas Tech department of geological sciences beginning the fall.

Cox, a graduate of Ruidoso High School, is the daughter of Randall and Celeste Cox of Ruidoso.

The congregation of Carrizo Christian Fellowship are the first non-missionary church with a ground-breaking ceremony on tribal land. Pastor Frederick Kaneseawah (center with shovel) led a ground-breaking ceremony on tribal land.

Energy Savings Flow When You Save Hot Water.

You can turn on energy savings with these few easy steps to reduce the amount of hot water you use:

- Keep your water heater set at 120° to 140°. If you have a dishwasher, check the manual to see if it recommends any water temperatures.
- Use less hot water. Wash clothes in cold or warm water and use cold water rinses. A low-flow shower head will also reduce water use. Remember, too, that small leaks add up to big waste.
- Use water heater insulation, especially on heaters that are located in unconditioned areas of the house.

Fragrant lilacs survive spring cold spell

Lilac Trees

There is an old favorite song that goes:
 Jeannie, I dream of lilac time
 When I return, I will make you mine.
 For you and I in our love dream can never die.
 Jeannie, I dream of lilac time.

The blooming of the lilacs is a landmark time in the spring all throughout our country and also across the water.

Along about April 20 the lilacs begin to bloom. Then came the unseasonably cold spells and some of the bushes decided to hold off for a while.

Yet, two hardy varieties came smiling through and I was able to bring a few for the altar at St. Anne's Church April 24. This morning, May 1, Eleanor Shockey called up asking if I had any more lilacs for the church, that her flowers were still a little late blooming, so I took down a few more.

Then here comes Nellie Ruth Jones, with two tall vases full of lilacs in the prime of color and fragrance from her yard.

So it was lilac time at St. Anne's Chapel.

The Reverend Jan Davey returns from England

The Reverend Jan Davey in charge of ser-

By Daniel Agnew Storm

...vices on May 1, had just returned April 30 from a three-week trip to her native England. In her own county of Berkshire she visited her two brothers and a sister. Then she went down to Wales, that gallant little country, famous in song and story, where she visited the relatives of her husband, Bill.

Jan said the fields of daffodils, primroses, and bluebells welcomed her throughout England, a country world famous for its flowers.

Debbie Sanchez playing on the new organ sent cathedral harmony echoing throughout the church. In prayers of the people, Debbie asked the blessings upon the wedding anniversaries of Kenneth and Irene Nosker and Joe and Gail Nuesale.

The Reverend Ann Gaddy returns to St. Anne's

It was good to see the Reverend Ann Gaddy at church for the first time in a month.

She is recovering well from a knee operation and at church she returned the borrowed walker to its owner, Mary Cooper.

The Reverend Anna will now walk with only the aid of a cane and she hopes to hold services next Sunday, May 8, at St. Anne's. We rejoice that the Reverend Anna is recovering so well and that she will be back holding services again.

About midmorning on May 1 two western bluebirds flew in and perched on the power lines right close to the house and sang a few notes. They had arrived to help the mountain bluebird celebrate the first of May.

Also the orange and black grosbeak, first cousin to the oriole came and fed for the first time right in front of the kitchen door. The tame little phoebe had been gone for a few days during the cold weather and had returned in the midafternoon to her perch under the eaves of the house.

All day the wind had been blowing in all directions and now at sundown the wind is still. The robin and dove are singing an evening lullaby here at the close of a perfect first day of May.

Jane K. Ortiz

Prayer vigil for Jane K. Ortiz, 78, of Carrizozo was scheduled for Wednesday evening at Santa Rita's Catholic Church. Mass of the Resurrection was planned for 10 a.m. today (Thursday), May 5, at Santa Rita's. Burial was to follow at Evergreen Cemetery in Carrizozo.

Mrs. Ortiz died Tuesday, May 3, at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso. She was born January 8, 1916, at Pecos.

She has lived in Lincoln County all of her life and in Carrizozo since 1936. She was a member of Santa Rita's Catholic Church.

She married Manuel M. Ortiz in December 1936 at Carrizozo. He preceded her in death on February 16, 1970. She was retired from the Motor Vehicle Division of the State of New Mexico.

Mrs. Ortiz is survived by two sons, Lawrence Ortiz of Espanola/Los Alamos area, and Art Ortiz of Las Vegas Nevada; and two daughters, Lillian Ortiz of San Diego, California, Eugenia Vega of Carrizozo.

Survivors include a brother, George Kimbrell of Pecos, a sister, Andrea Salas of Pecos, and six grandchildren: Vinca Vega, Tina Vega, Julie Vega, Nancie Vega, Bryan Ortiz and Rebecca Ortiz.

She is survived by one great-granddaughter and a lifelong friend, A.S. Orsco of Carrizozo.

REMEMBER MOM

Dear Mom,

This Mother's Day letter is printed in the newspaper and thousands of people will read it. All I have to say is why I love you. What a piece of cake.

First off, remember when I was little and used to get sick? I would feel miserable, but you wouldn't leave me alone. Against my will, you pulled me out of bed and into the bathtub. I had to change from my comfortable pajamas while you changed my sheets that weren't even dirty. You slapped that smelly Vick's salve on my chest and up my nose. Have I ever told you I loved you for doing that? Well, I do now.

Remember how in high school, you would clean my blue suit and then lay it on the lint infested summer chenilles? Believe it or not, today, that becomes a fond memory.

We're a thousand miles apart, yet, the little things you did and said years ago seem to keep us close today. Like how you called lunch, "dinner," and dinner, "supper," always a glass of water at each meal; the prayer (never too long); and a whole banana pie when I came home from school at noon.

"Eat your food, the people in China are starving," you'd say. I probably should have starved a little, Mom.

I love you for not being prejudiced. I am now, but it's not because of you.

When I came home from school, you were always there and that felt good. "Did you turn in your paper?" "I don't want you running around with that Beeler kid." I might not have liked what you said, but we always talked.

I love you because you didn't smoke or drink or let cats stay in the house. You know, Mom, some women like cats. You should have warned me. Some guys even wind up marrying women who like cats. But that's OK. I forgive you. Kind of.

Remember how I would force you to sit in the living room, phone off the hook, and listen to record after record without any interruptions. You probably should have smacked me, but you didn't. You sat and listened and never interrupted. It meant a lot to me then; and it does now. I can't remember the last time I had 30 uninterrupted minutes of total concentration on anything. I love you for indulging me.

Lastly, I remember how each April Fools day you would wake me to tell me a blue bird was right outside my window. It never changed, year after year, it was always a blue bird. For 50 years you have been calling me on April Fools day to tell me a blue bird is outside my window. A very long joke? I call it "tradition," and I love you for it.

I know I'll never be what you dreamed me to be, Ma. It doesn't really matter. It was a long shot at best. But you did get a loving son, and my thoughts are only of you this Mother's Day.

Love ya, Ma,
Sonny

Dear Mom,

Although my articles have appeared in newspapers for the past 21 years, they consist of words from other persons. They reveal the emotion and thoughts of strangers.

To sit down and express my own feelings about the one person in my life I know has loved me since the moment I was born, regardless of what I have said, accomplished or not accomplished, is difficult.

Your constant emotional support, the knowledge that you were always there carried me through many crises and anxious hours, gave me the confidence needed to move around life's potholes.

No matter how hard I try sometimes, I can't shake the inexhaustible optimism you instilled in me as a child, the ability to adjust to sudden twists and turns and keep on going.

I know the warm and close bond that exists with my own children can be traced to the strong sense of family that you created when I was a child and sustained when I became an adult, whether we were apart a few days or a few years.

Thanks for your love, which formed the basis of my outlook on life.

Dianne

To Ruth Brown (My Mom),

Happy Mother's Day and thanks for sticking by us and putting up with all of us, especially through all the hardest of times (which seemed like all the time!)

Joe T. Martin

Congratulations to Esther Salas whose essay on her mother was selected winner of this year's Mother's Day competition

Happy Mother's Day!

What's Special About My Mom

The special things about my mom is she's a good doctor to me, my sister, and brother. She's a good cook. She's teaching me how to cook. My mom sings gospel at church. I'm glad that she's a life saver. But most of all, I like her because she loves me. My mama name is Dana L. Salas.

By Esther Salas

Dear Mother,

Pop psychologists taught us some years ago to say, "My mother made me do it," and I have to confess to you that I'm still saying it a lot.

You see, Mom, you are the one person who has had the greatest influence on my direction, choices and life path than anyone else, and I love you for it.

"What would my mother do?" goes through my mind each time I'm faced with choices — from how to cook a roast to what to do about a family problem.

Of course you know that doesn't mean I always follow that path, and there was a time when the unsaid question led me down the opposite path. And then when I made some impulsive, yet life changing choice, you were there to help me out when my world came tumbling down — like when I moved back home bringing two little kids.

Did I ever thank you for going to Chuck's parent-teacher conferences the year his teacher thought he was a little gangster? You were the one who figured out a teacher wouldn't talk mean about a little boy to his grandmother.

And, did I say thanks for hauling a couple of rambunctious kids all over Lubbock in the silver streak, while I was always working? Remember the French fry fights and the continuing dispute over whether to listen to country music or rock? You were a great referee.

Life can get kind of rough out here, Mother; but you've given me the courage to stand up for what I believe. As an editor, when I'm tempted to take the easy way out, to back off on some issue or other, I think, "What would my mother do?" and I'm out there again sticking my neck out.

Your strong religious and political beliefs have given your family a firm foundation, and I'm proud to be your daughter. And, most of all, thanks for being my excuse for who I am and what I do; after all, my mother made me do it.

I love you,
Frankie

Mom,

Thank you for all that you are doing and you have done for me. I love you a lot. I really mean it, too! I'll get your present soon! Sorry I can't spend Mother's Day with you.

Happy Mother's Day!
Love,
Shari

Mom,

Thank you for putting up with me throughout my whole senior year. I know it's been tough. I'm sorry I can't spend Mother's Day with you. I love you lots.

Love,
Nikki

Rose,

Even though you're not my real mom, I still love you very much. You are the best stepmom I could have.

Thanks for being there.

My Mom

She's kinda stubborn, kinda sweet, She's always been there for me. My mom's funny in too many ways, She makes me laugh all through the days. My mom's not cruel, and definitely not a fool. I love her very much, And, hey, that's cool!

Love yo Mom!
Michelle Hancock

Mom (Janet),

I have never seen someone who could care so much about a child who gives her grief. Thank you for bringing me into the world.

I love you more every time I see your face. I love you! Happy Mother's Day!
Love, Audra

Dear Mom,

Thanks for 47 years of love. Through good and bad times, sickness and health you were there to take care of me and correct my misguided ways.

Loose rains gave me plenty of chances to choose which road to take. Some were good, some were bad, but you were there with your wisdom to guide me without pushing too hard.

You were accepting of my decisions, whether you agreed or not.

I love you,
Bud

To my mom,

Words cannot express the way I feel about you for all the things you have done for me. You have stood by me through my younger years and accepted me as an adult and a mother myself. We share a common bond of motherhood. Thank you for showing me the right road to take even though we disagreed on most of them.

Thank you for being my mom!
Love, your daughter,
Melanie

Dear Mother,

Thank you for always being there, even when I'm wrong. I thank God for you every day.

Now it's time to get to work

Some really good things came out of this week's public information meeting involving school officials, parents and members of the public. No, not everybody got what they wanted, but everyone did have a chance to be heard, and that's good. To listen does not mean to agree, but it does imply attending to another person's views.

A community whose people will fill a gymnasium and sit (on hard benches) for three hours to talk about education is certainly a place where the welfare of schoolchildren gets top priority. That's just what happened in Ruidoso on Monday, and that's good.

Of course there were people in this gathering who were there through some personal agenda, but that's not always bad. On the contrary, the passion that leads to progress and change is usually ignited from a very personal situation.

Some genuine concerns were aired — worries about spelling, math books, career counseling, athletics and finances. And, the best thing that came out of the big meeting was the assurance that those parental and community concerns are shared by school leaders. Administrators and teachers explained how, why and when textbook and curricula changes are developed and adopted; they indicated they're open to listen to suggestions.

Monday's meeting could easily have exploded with neighbor turning against neighbor, but instead ended gracefully with all the participants better informed about educational issues. The next step will be to see these same 200 or more people take meaningful action by staying involved at the school level, through school and related committees and by attending and taking part in school board meetings. Without "follow through" those three hours were just wasted.

In the end, the best thing that resulted from the big general meeting, was a reminder that forums exist already for parents and others to deal with all the educational issues named:

—First, school board meetings are open to the public, and everyone in the community can call the school administration office and be placed on the agenda to speak on relevant topics.

—Second, for specific concerns involving individual students, teachers and issues, parents always can set up appointments to talk to a certain teacher, a principal or the superintendent. The school board is the next step in that process, which will include a lot of communication, but it may not result in exactly what you want.

—Third, it was pointed out on Monday that each school has a parent council, with open meetings. The Drug Free Schools and YES programs are two other organizations that work hand-in-hand with the schools, and parents and other members of the public are welcome and encouraged to take part in their meetings and activities.

—Fourth, parents and others can join committees that work on school issues, including curriculum development, discipline and finance.

—Fifth, booster organizations work with various sports, too; and that's another chance to be involved in the school system. Volunteers work in the classrooms at Nob Hill.

Being involved is not as easy as just talking, but that's where people can make a real impact on the educational system. If you're concerned about education, go back to school as a volunteer.

Letters To The Editor

Former chamber exec adds to story on CVB

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with interest Mr. Stallings' April 18 article on the advertising workshop conducted by the village council on the previous Wednesday.

The good news, that anticipated "lodgers tax" revenues will generate some $900,000, however, might well have been the lead to the story. That is good news, indeed. In mid-1989, if memory serves me correctly, those revenues were approximately $100,000 to $120,000.

What has prompted me to write, however, is the once sentence paragraph noting that "while the CVB was located at the chamber, most of its money was drained ... in rental charges and operations." As no source for this statement was quoted and with intimate knowledge of the chamber's operation during that period, I must believe that the offered information is the writer's opinion.

In response, herewith is my viewpoint regarding the period referenced between mid-1985 and mid-1989, after which time I could no longer clearly know what transpired.

After response to a village request for proposal, under conditions of the subsequent 1986 renewable contract with the village, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce board of directors assumed responsibility for creation, budgeting, administration, staffing, management and quarterly fiscal reporting for a convention and visitors bureau. No compensation for this responsibility was allowed the chamber from lodging tax funds, those being assigned specifically for advertising and promotion of tourism and/or special events.

Under terms of the same contract, funds available for all administrative costs of the CVB were to be provided annually from a one-third split of a Village of Ruidoso general fund match of lodging tax collections. This matching fund was created by the village council in mid-1985 and, curiously, entitled the Economic Development Fund.

Local businessman Rick Evans, then a village councilor, conceived this fund to specifically provide for construction of a Ruidoso convention center and to ensure that a convention and visitors bureau existed for promotion. The resultant ordinance required the village to annually match collected lodging taxes, dollar for dollar from the general fund. Two thirds of the match was placed in escrow for the convention center construction and any related bond debt retirement. The remaining one third was for the creation and annual operation of a convention and visitors bureau.

Support for this ordinance was widespread when announced it was to be tied to a tax increase charged for occupancy in local lodging establishments. The tax went from two percent to three percent and at that time resulted in an approximate $35,000 annual increase in funds available for advertising and promotion.

The creation of this partnership and the chamber's operation and oversight of the CVB had a positive result for promoting Ruidoso; a comprehensive and annually updated marketing plan; increased publicity of Aspenfest to include a cooperative advertising umbrella for all fall events; an expanded Aspenfest weekend; Oktoberfest; the publication of a fall brochure; the New Mexico Journalist of the Year award and banquet; familiarization tours for state association meeting planners; the annual river stocking of 20- to 22-inch trout; the Connoisseur Classic (winter's only non-ski special event); a comprehensive photo library that many Ruidoso businesses have used to enhance their brochures.

This and much more was made possible because of the alliance created by the Economic Development Fund ordinance and the chamber's subsequent sincere management of its contractual responsibility. I cannot recall a single instance when CVB funds were "drained" by the chamber for any purpose. In fact, I feel sure that the board of directors and council would have taken serious offense to such misapplication. And let's not forget that we now have that convention center so coveted in the days when its site was an abandoned eyesore.

If one can recall those bygone September through late October days when a long pistol shot was possible down Sudderth, without endangering anyone, one can see the real value of what is recalled in these paragraphs.

I do hope that this personal recollection will help in reshaping the apparent opinion referenced above. Also that credit is given to all of the private citizens and public servants who labored together in successfully pushing against the tide of terribly difficult financial times presented to the residents of Ruidoso, during the mid-1980s to the early-1990s.

John Jeffers

Volunteers save the day

TO THE EDITOR:

How do you thank someone who has saved your home, your trees and your animals?

On April 20, lightning struck a tree not more than 400 yards from our house. It exploded and set a grass fire that was fanned by gusts of up to 25 mph spreading it rapidly over what ended up to be 85 acres.

Thanks to the quick thinking of Jim and LaDonna Mooney, who called the New Mexico State Forestry, Capitan District, ... and (thanks to) the U.S. Forest Service man and woman ... and also the Block Ranch employees, the fire was contained.

The firefighters remained on duty until 12:30 a.m. to check for "hot spots" and make sure it was over. I'm deeply indebted to these people for their bravery and diligence.

We are so fortunate to live in this wonderful area, but it does have a few draw backs. Along with the rains, come the lightning bolts.

We're also lucky to have trained professionals to help us subdue Mother Nature.

Woman's Club installs officers

The Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 11, at the club house on Evergreen Street to install officers for the coming year and to conduct a memorial service.

Jan Arnett will be installed as president, with Anndy Patterson as vice president and program chairman. Myrtle Arrington will take on the job of corresponding secretary, with Colleen Cavanaugh as recording secretary and Jena Pierce, treasurer.

The historian-ecrapprook chairman, an appointed position, will be filled by Mary Louise Kratiger.

According to a news release, the club lost one of its oldest members this year, Hazel Kennedy. Odelle Burrows will conduct the service in honor of Mrs. Kennedy. The current president, Paula Davis, and members Jan Arnett, Kattie Sue Harmon and Sue Crews attended the 82nd annual state convention in Portales in April.

The club won numerous art awards, and also took third place in the community improvement contest for its project to refurbish the club house, including installing new siding.

Also in attendance at the convention was state Dean of Departments Charlotte Jarrett, District Four President Genevieve Duncan and Community Improvement Project chairman Bobbie McDonald.

State President Shariene Glock of Las Cruces has chosen, as her special projects, the establishment of a permanent park and grounds improvement at the Space Hall of Fame in Alamogordo and improving the trail for the blind, La Posada Encantada, near Cloudcroft.

Contributions for trees to be planted at the Space Hall of Fame have come from all the clubs in the state, many named for family members or friends.

On Saturday, May 7, club members and workers from the U.S. Forest Service will meet at La Posada Encantada to upgrade the trail and signs.

According to a news release provided by the club, this project at the Space Hall of Fame is an outstanding conservation undertaking that will be an ongoing program for many clubs.

Student Ambassadors plan a picnic

The Student Ambassadors of ENMU-Ruidoso were formed in 1992 to promote the benefits of education at the local campus and to provide social activities to the students.

The group, whose members are nominated by instructors and current ambassadors, also is available to assist students, faculty and staff of ENMU-Ruidoso.

The ambassadors are planning the third annual college picnic for students, faculty, staff and families at noon Saturday, May 21, at the Cedar Creek picnic area pavilion.

Drinks and paper goods will be provided and guests are asked to bring a covered dish.

Games and door prizes will add to the family fun.

Support from local businesses will be appreciated by the ambassadors, and anyone wanting to make a donation to the picnic may call 257-2120 for more information.

Any students interested in becoming an ENMU-Ruidoso Student Ambassador, can contact the college office at 257-2120 for more information.

Ruidoso school kids Jumprope for Heart health

During the month of March, students from White Mountain Elementary School got the jump on heart disease.

They jumped rope during their physical education classes for a total of 28 hours. There were 58 students who spent time and effort for the American Heart Association by asking family, friends and businesses to sponsor them. They raised $2,200.78.

Coordinators Debbie Sanchez and Sheila Espinosa would like to thank the students, families and community for their overwhelming support to a very worthy cause.

"This year's event was one of the best ever," said Sanchez. "Everyone had a great time, but even more important, the students learned about the importance of physical fitness and reducing the risk of cardiovascular disease. Those lessons will pay dividends throughout their lifetimes."

Jump Rope For Heart is sponsored by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance to benefit the American Heart Association, Ruidoso Affiliate. Monica raised support, research and educational programs to fight cardiovascular diseases, one of our nation's top killers.

On Campus

TERESA HARRELSON, a graduate of Ruidoso High School, was recognized at Wayland Baptist University's Recognition Chapel in Harrel Memorial Auditorium on the Plainview, Texas, campus.

Harrelson, a senior religious education major, was awarded the Spinning Wheels award.

She is the daughter of Philip Harrelson of Tularosa.

TODD BERRY OBERHEU AND DEANNA THOMPSON

Engagement announced

Dale L. Thompson of San Antonio, Texas, and Dawn Swearingin of Ruidoso have announced the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Deanna Gail Thompson, to Todd Berry Oberheu of Amarillo, Texas. Oberheu is the son of Cecil and Freda Jones of Amarillo. The couple will marry at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 18, in the Community United Methodist Church of Ruidoso. A reception is planned immediately following the wedding in the Sierra Blanca Room at the Swiss Chalet. The bride-to-be, a graduate of Ruidoso High School, is a senior at Texas Tech University majoring in wildlife management. Oberheu is a 1993 graduate of Texas Tech University with a major in social work. He is employed by the Methodist Hospital System in Plainview, Texas. The couple will make their home in Lubbock while the bride-to-be completes her education.

RHS grad interns in DC

Rene Parker, the daughter of Troy and Phyllis Parker of Ruidoso, served as an intern in the United States Senate during the week of April 11 through 15. Parker, a 1990 Ruidoso High School graduate, is a senior at Rhode Island College in Providence, Rhode Island. She will graduate in May with a double major in political science and public administration with the second highest grade point average in her class.

She worked in the office of Senator Claiborne Pell (D-RI). While in Washington she attended Senate hearings and Senate floor debates. Parker also will be the recipient of the Senator John H. Chaffee award in the political science department at Rhode Island College.

Rene Parker of Ruidoso is shown with Senator Claiborne Pell (D-RI) while serving as his intern in the U.S. Senate.

Hondo Fiesta Dancer Denise Maldonado performs in an exquisite handmade costume sewn by her grandmothers Agueda Quintela and Gonsagita Sanchez.

Hondo dancers practice for 42nd annual fiesta

The annual spring rite of the Hondo Valley begins with a dazzling array of colorful handmade costumes and mesmerizing music in the 42nd Annual Fiesta.

This year's theme, La Luna Sobre el Valley (The Moon over the Valley), depicts the beauty filled nights in the Hondo Valley.

When the moonbeams filter through the ancient cottonwoods and cast a glow on the tranquil water of el rillito (the little river), a magical and nostalgic feeling overtakes the soul.

The 1994 Fiesta will rekindle these feelings with traditional song and dance performed in a setting of a moonlit Hondo Valley night.

The Hondo Valley dancers will be performing at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, May 14, in the gym at the school.

Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for children and students. To obtain the best view, reserved seating is available for $6. You may reserve seats for Saturday evening by calling 653-4411.

A Mexican dinner will be prepared and served by the Burrito Express from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria on both evenings. This meal costs $5 for an adult plate and $3 for a child's plate, with a discount price for senior citizens.

In a continuing effort to preserve their Hispanic heritage, more than 100 students from kindergarten through 12th grades will be participating in this year's performance. The program, which Fermin and Cirenia Montes began in 1948, has blossomed into a magnificent show drawing many people to the Hondo Valley each year.

Since 1948, innumerable individuals, including former students, have worked together to keep the program alive and flourishing.

Hondo graduates and former dancers Elizabeth Sanchez Chanez, Porfiria Montoya Zinn, Cecelia Torres Sanchez and Frank Herrera are now dance instructors.

Freelancer wins writing award

Getting up close and personal with a hive full of honeybees plus traveling around Lincoln County proved rewarding for local freelancer Yvonne Lanelli.

Her story and pictures, Honeybee hobbyist harvests sweet reward about Alto beekeeper Glen Hinkle won first place in a communications contest sponsored by the New Mexico Press Women.

The article, which appeared in The Ruidoso News last fall, won the features category for non-daily newspapers with 5,000 or more circulation. As a state winner, the article will be automatically entered in a national contest sponsored by the National Federation of Press

Women. Winner of that contest will be announced at the national conference in June in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Three articles about Lincoln County that appeared in The Ruidoso News' Summer Visitors Guide last May received honorable mention in the category of travel articles, open competition.

Lanelli has been a freelance writer/photographer for 10 years. Her work has appeared in several regional and national magazines as well as The Ruidoso News.

"I love writing about our area and the interesting people in it," Lanelli said.

Graffiti

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay a $500 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and Magistrate Court Bindover of the person or persons responsible for the graffiti in Ruidoso this past week. Crimestoppers will also pay cash rewards for the recovery of stolen property or the solving of other felony crimes.

Phone 257-4545

A cooperative effort between the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce and the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crimestoppers to deter graffiti from being a part of our mountain scenery is currently underway. This intentional damage to property is not only considered visually unacceptable, but is also costly to the citizens of our community. It has a bearing on our insurance rates, our real estate values, and our village in general. As citizens of Lincoln County, we can deter the impact of this type criminal activity in our community by getting involved, and reporting any suspicious activity to the local law enforcement agency in your area, or by calling Crimestoppers.

The Crimestoppers phone line is manned twenty-four a day, seven days a week, and you do not have to give your name to be eligible for a cash reward. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545. Anyone wishing to call collect, may do so within Lincoln County.

Concert association brings music to the mountain

Expand your horizons by joining Ruidoso Community Concert Association.

Enjoy great artists and attractions from throughout the nation and the world during the sixth season of the local concert group.

Experience live performances by renowned artists without having to travel to New York, London, Moscow or other cultural centers of the world.

Ruidoso Community Concerts will bring music to the mountains with four concerts: Thursday, October 20; Monday, January 16, 1995; Monday, February 6, 1995; and Monday, March 27, 1995.

Exhilarate in hearing and seeing the finest the entertainment world has to offer at an incredibly low price. Community Concerts is without a doubt the best entertainment value anywhere.

Ruidoso Community Concert Association kicked off its sixth season in April with a dinner for the board, and now directors and volunteers are gathering members to enjoy the upcoming musical performances.

Besides enjoying the varied local program of four concerts, members can enjoy other live musical performances throughout southern New Mexico. Members of Ruidoso Community Concerts are eligible and welcome to attend concerts in Alamogordo, Artesia, Carlsbad, Deming, Las Cruces and Silver City.

But, admission to all these concerts, both the local ones and those in reciprocal concert towns, is by membership only, so join by May 31, to take advantage of the lowest prices.

The membership drive is under way now, and will continue through May 31, when membership prices will go up.

Join now or renew your membership through the end of May, for a low price of $27 for one adult, $65 for a family (two adults and children age 18 and under in household), and $12 for a student.

After May 31, the membership is $30 for adults, $15 for students and $70 for a family.

Call Bob and Charlotte Rowe at 336-4015 anytime to join Ruidoso Community Concerts, or fill out the membership blank on page 3, and mail it with a check to Ruidoso Community Concert Association; PO Box 1184; Ruidoso NM 88345.

During the week of May 23 to 27, volunteer workers will be present at The Aspen Tree in Midtown from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day to sign music lovers up for the season.

Ruidoso Community Concerts is made up of local people who have made a commitment to provide their community with good music at a reasonable price.

Bob Rowe is the president of the organization, with his wife, Charlotte, serving as secretary; and Roy Crocker as treasurer. Paul Vordermann is membership chairman, Coni Foster is in charge of publicity and Dorothy Bailey is concert chairman.

Sally Avery heads up the patrons program, an essential part of the concert association's success.

The patron plan provides an opportunity for individuals and businesses to participate, financially, in the support of the premier musical entertainment in the Ruidoso area.

Now beginning its sixth season, the Ruidoso Community Concert Association is supported entirely by local contributions and season subscription memberships. The association receives no grants or other governmental support, and is not associated with any other group.

All of the board members and other workers are volunteers, receiving no payment except the satisfaction of bringing quality musical entertainment to our community.

"All who feel a strong commitment to the cultural life of our area are invited to become a Patron of the Arts of the Ruidoso Community Concert Association," invites Rowe. He stressed that all contributions are 100 percent tax deductible.

To make a donation, contact Sally Avery at 257-2094 or Rowe at 336-4015, or fill out the form provided on page 3 of this special section.

"It is a rewarding experience to know that you have helped support a local organization that adds so much to the cultural life of our community," said Rowe.

While the board is concentrating on memberships, the concert committee has put together an exciting program that begins with an evening of "Stride, Swing and Boogie Woogie Piano" featuring pianist Judy Carmichael Thursday, October 20.

All concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. at the First Christian Church on Hull Road.

Classical guitarist Terrence Farrell offers a change of tone with his internationally acclaimed performance on Monday, January 16, 1995.

Banjomania will pick up the pace on Monday, February 16, 1995, with a rousing mix of music, comedy and real American tradition.

"Wind for all, and all for wind," is the theme for the final concert of the season, the Vancouver Wind Trio, on Monday, March 27.

Judy Carmichael

Thursday, October 20, 1994

An evening of stride, swing and boogie woogie piano

Judy Carmichael will open the sixth season of Ruidoso Community Concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, October 20, at the First Christian Church.

Carmichael developed an early interest in ragtime when her grandfather asked her to learn Scott Joplin's classic "Maple Leaf Rag."

Following that episode, at age nine, and after only two years of formal piano training, she quit taking lessons when her teacher refused to support her growing interest in that style of music.

Carmichael continued to expand her ragtime repertoire. Her professional debut at age 16 at UCLA's Royce Hall teamed her with Jo Stafford, Paul Weston and Edgar Bergen. The teenage Californian also pursued a career in stage and television using her musical talent to give her an edge over the other would-be starlets.

Even when she realized music was indeed her destiny, she continued to do "side-line" work (playing the part of musicians in movies), but eventually gave it up on the advice of numerous casting agents who told the attractive young pianist, "You don't look like a musician."

In the years that followed, Carmichael widened her focus to include the early jazz piano forms of stride, boogie, swing and New Orleans style.

Although her contemporaries found her interest in classic jazz unusual, early supporter Count Basie nicknamed her "Stride" acknowledging the command with which she played the music considered to be the most technically and physically demanding of all jazz piano styles.

Another early fan, Sarah Vaughan, encouraged her to record her first ensemble album, which she did with members of the Basie band.

Judy Carmichael moved east eight years ago and has maintained her busy concert schedule in Europe and the United States. She has toured for the United States Information Agency throughout India, Portugal and China.

The musician that critics have referred to as "astounding, flawless and captivating" (New York Times) has played in a variety of venues from Carnegie Hall with Skitch Henderson and the New York Pops, to the Peggy Guggenheim Museum in Venice (the first concert ever presented by the museum) to a jazz cruise with Benny Carter.

In addition, Ms. Carmichael has done comic skits and performed her music on radio and TV with Al Hirt and Garrison Keillor, among others.

Carmichael is one of a handful of young musicians who carry on the tradition of jazz from a perspective of its entire history. Choosing to study jazz piano from its early roots on, she explores the music deeply, infusing it with a "fresh, dynamic interpretation of her own" (Washington Post).

The National Endowment for the Arts recently rewarded Carmichael's knowledge of jazz piano with a major grant to present early jazz greats on film and to discuss the history and development of jazz piano with college students across the country.

Carmichael has written a book on stride piano and numerous articles on the subject of jazz. She serves on a variety of music panels at the National Endowment for the Arts and is one of the few jazz pianists honored as a Steinway artist.

She has been included in a number of jazz anthologies and recently, to her utter surprise, turned up in the Simon and Schuster murder mystery "Murder Times Two" as "the stride pianist Judy Carmichael," the main suspect's favorite piano player.

Carmichael has appeared on Garrison Keillor's "American Radio Company," National Public Radio's "Morning Edition," "Entertainment Tonight" and was recently featured on a segment of CBS' "Sunday Morning" with Charles Kuralt. In 1992, Carmichael was sent by the United States government on the first government sponsored jazz tour of China.

Terrence Farrell

Monday, January 16, 1995

International acclaim for classical guitar at its best

Terrence Farrell brings the second season offering in Ruidoso Community Concerts upcoming season. The classical guitarist will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday, January 16, 1995, at the First Christian Church.

Since his professional debut in 1976, Terrence Farrell has become one of the world's most sought-after classical guitarists, winning international acclaim for his concerts, television appearances and recordings.

Born in Salzburg, Austria, Farrell began studying the guitar at the age of eight and eventually became the protege of American guitarist Guy Horn.

He has since gone on to win awards in competitions at the University of Washington, the Palm Springs Opera Guild, and the Monterey Jazz Festival.

His stylish, forceful musicianship has been praised for the eloquent versatility with which it moves from the Classical to the Romantic to the most demanding contemporary compositions.

Audiences and critics alike have been moved by the depth, grace and elegance of his interpretations of both Spanish and rare 19th century American pieces.

The ease with which Mr. Farrell establishes a friendly, conversational rapport with his audiences has made his performances particularly popular.

As a result, he has been invited to play in 24 countries around the world, from North America to Europe and the Far East.

He has twice performed for American presidents and has been a guest performer on the world cruise of the Queen Elizabeth II.

The friendliness of Mr. Farrell's approach, along with his ability to translate complex musical ideas into verbal concepts, has created a great demand for his master classes and seminars, conducted in Europe, Asia and the United States. A guitarist with a sense of humor, he has provided young people with a greater insight into the world of music.

As a "cultural ambassador" to the United States, Farrell often tours for the U.S. State Department presenting American music and culture to foreign audiences.

Mr. Farrell's critically praised recordings for Orion and Troubadour Recordings include, "España De Mi Corazon," "Alla Romanza," "Cafe Rio," "Boogie Bistro" and "A Carmel Christmas" and are available on compact disc and cassette.

His popular recordings, like his personal appearances, provide a diverse selection of music. "España De Mi Corazon" offers the romance of Flamenco and Spanish classics on solo guitar including "La Paloma," Malaguena" and "Granada."

Farrell serves up the smart stylings of the jazz greats of Gershwin, Ellington, Bernstein and more in his "Boogie Bistro" recording.

Beautiful and mellow Christmas gems on solo guitar put listeners of "A Carmel Christmas" in the holiday mood, as do the lively sounds of flute mixed with guitar, mandolin and keyboards in "Merry Christmas."

Farrell plays Bossa Nova favorites on his "Cafe Rio," and turns to romantic classics like "Pachelbel's Canon in D" and "Clair de Lune" on "Alla Romanza."

In keeping with the family tone of all Ruidoso Community Concerts, Farrell can be expected to play one or two of his lullabies by Brahms, Schubert and Debussy that he has recorded on "Lullaby Classics."

As with all Ruidoso Community Concerts, admission to Farrell's performance will be by membership only.

Banjomania

Monday, February 6, 1995

A rousing mix of music, comedy and American tradition

Get ready for a rousing experience when Banjomania heats up the stage during the third concert in this year's series.

Banjomania, which started out as a quartet of three banjos and a tuba, is truly an extraordinary happening, whether on stage at the Grand Ole Opry, the Long Beach Arena, the International Hall in Tokyo or in the sanctuary of the First Christian Church in Ruidoso.

The foursome will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday, February 6, 1995, at the Ruidoso church on Hull Road, the home base of Ruidoso Community Concerts.

Banjomania — whose players, Brad Roth, Doug Mattocks, Don Zeilinger and Steve Simpson, make their headquarters in Riverside, California, travels worldwide to perform, often as a benefit for some charitable cause.

Their performances are punctuated with wild cheering and standing ovations, the inevitable outcome of their fastpaced show which welcomes, even insists on, audience participation.

Banjomania's shows are a rousing mix of music, comedy and real American tradition, with the players enjoying putting on the show as much as their audiences enjoy watching, listening and joining in the fun.

Finger-picking banjo styles fondly remembered from the movie themes of "Bonnie & Clyde" and "Deliverance" are blended with the flashy strumming styles of jazz great Eddie Peabody, to give the listening audience a thrill so special that you have to hear it to believe it.

"If you're not tapping your toe to this music, you'd better check, you might be dead," reads a press release introducing the four musicians.

The group's repertoire includes many tunes from the Golden Jazz Era (1920-35), with a solid contingent of more contemporary tunes from the forties and fifties.

"We are proud of the fact that we have been instrumental in raising nearly $400,000 for worthy causes during the past several years with our periodic benefit concerts," says Banjomania's managing partner, Steve Simpson.

Simpson said they've played at venues seating as few as 250 and as many as 8,000 people; and in addition, have appeared at many major jazz festivals and have performed for large corporate clients in the world marketplace.

Among Banjomania's impressive list of specialty appearances are the Reagan White House, the Carter White House and FUJI-TV in Waratte Itomo, Japan.

Simpson plays tenor bass for the group which he organized and developed. Doug Mattocks plays the five-string banjo, Brad Roth plays the plectrum banjo and Dan Zeilinger performs on the tuba.

The group has made three recordings, which attracted the attention of Japanese industrialist Akira Tsumura who invited the musicians to perform at a diner party at his mansion in Beverly Hills. It was on the basis of that performance that negotiations began for Banjomania's Japanese tour.

Just a few years ago, when Gibson Instruments Inc. returned to the manufacture of both tenor and plectrum banjos, the company chose Banjomania as the group to feature in its national advertising campaign.

Simpson and his group take a relaxed approach to planning their various shows, with everyone different, so Ruidoso will surely see and hear a different performance than Banjomania's past and future audiences.

The only thing that is certain is that Banjomania will play, and that the audience will be captivated.

Simpson said the tuba was a fluke when the group first got together in 1986.

"We were set up for three banjos; Brad Roth asked if he could bring a friend to sit in with us on one session, and Dan showed up with that tuba," recalls Simpson. "The minute I heard him play, I knew we had to get him with us."

Simpson says he developed his interest in banjos during his high school years.

"At that time people like Artie Shaw and Benny Goodman were on the way out. Bill Haley and Elvis were coming in. That music just turned me off, so I started looking for something else. Then I found an old Firehouse Five Plus Two recording and that got me hooked on the banjo."

Vancouver Wind Trio

Monday,
March 27, 1995

"Wind for all, and all for wind"

The Vancouver Wind Trio is heading down south from its headquarters in British Columbia to provide the perfect ending for Ruidoso Community Concerts' sixth season.

The trio will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 27, 1995, at the First Christian Church.

From Vancouver, British Columbia, the city of Expo '86, comes the Vancouver Wind Trio, providing delightful family entertainment through the medium of the world's great classics.

Anthony Averay, bassoonist, leads the trio — his urbane, comfortable commentary and absolutely marvelous British wit combine to present the concert as an evening of relaxed entertainment.

Oboist Hamish Gordon and clarinetist Lorne Buick join Averay in programs that include works by Bach, Mozart and Prokofiev for the "die-hard" classicists, as well as Scott Joplin, Fats Walker and Bill Haley for those who like music in the more popular vein.

The Vancouver Wind Trio performed as cultural ambassadors both at Expo '85 in Japan and at Expo '86 in Vancouver.

In 1987, the trio visited the People's Republic of China for a month of coaching and concerts.

The Vancouver Wind Trio continues to tour extensively throughout Canada and the United States.

Their concerts have been recorded for broadcast on CBC's Arts National & West Coast performance, and are now gathering material for their third album.

Averay graduated as an associated of the Royal College of Music in London. His musical career began as a boy soprano and later head chorister with the prestigious Westminster Cathedral Choir in London.

A very busy orchestral career followed, freelancing with such world-famous ensembles as the BBC Symphony, the Welsh Opera, the London Symphony, the Royal Ballet and the London Festival Ballet, to name but a few, and he has traveled as far afield with them as Scandinavia and China.

Having formed and run the London Wind Trio during this time, it was a logical step for him to found the Vancouver Wind Trio as soon as he arrived in Canada in 1980.

Averay's stage presence and wit have made him a choice as master of ceremonies for many organizations. Although he has given up his professorship at UBC to keep up with the Trio's schedule, Averay still teaches and performs for three weeks every July at the Kamloops International Summer School of Music.

Hamish Gordon, oboist, began his musical studies in Ottawa at the age of 15, on the clarinet, but soon saw the light and changed to the oboe.

Four years at the University of Toronto were followed by a year in the Royal Conservatory's orchestral training program. He then moved to Montreal where he played for three years with L'Orchestre les Jeunes du Quebec. During this three years, Hamish also played with Les Grand Ballets Canadienne, McGill Chamber Orchestra and as an extra with the Montreal Symphony and the Symphony Nova Scotia.

During 1983, while in Montreal, Hamish was a recipient of a Canada Council grant which enabled him to study with Joseph Robinson of the New York Philharmonic.

Since joining the Vancouver Wind Trio in 1987, Hamish has also been engaged to do several concerts with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra; and teaches full time at the Kamloops International Summer School of Music.

In his spare time, Hamish has been studying the ancient art of Tai Chi under the tutelage of an 82-year-old master.

Lorne Buick developed a taste for solo and small ensemble playing as early as high school, competing as soloist and member of the Glebe Wind quintet (which incidentally, included oboist Hamish Gordon) in local and provincial music festivals.

Moving with his family to Chile, Lorne studied for three years with Luis Rossi, who at the time was developing his own handmade clarinets.

During these years, Lorne toured the entire country with the prestigious Hindemith Quintet as well as performing recitals and concertos with orchestra. 10 years later, he is proud to introduce the first pair of Rosse rosewood clarinets to North America.

Returning to Canada in 1981, Lorne finished undergraduate studies with renowned soloist James Campbell in Toronto. A season with the Kamloops Symphony followed, during which he pursued his main interests through solo appearances with the orchestra and the KSO chamber players. He joined the Vancouver Wind Trio in 1985.

In between Canadian and U.S. tours, radio and television broadcasts, special visits to Japan and China, recording and windsurfing, he found time to do a master's degree at UBC.
