Lewandowski stays on as waste manager

Don't mail in those resumes yet. It looks like Joe Lewandowski will be staying on as general manager of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority. Board members had approved a $6,000 raise to $42,000 a year for Lewandowski, but he told them last week he intended to resign to work as a consultant. By Monday, he changed his mind. "I reconsidered, because I realized this is a crucial point in the authority's history (facing a first rate increase proposal)," he said. "I thought I needed to stay to be able to go to the different councils and show them the figures. It would be the wrong time to leave. I don't want to see it fail and to bring in a new manager would be difficult. Besides, I have a new challenge now."

MRS committee to meet Wednesday

The Regional MRS Information Committee has scheduled a meeting for 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 27, at the Ruidoso Administrative Center. The purpose of the meeting is to conduct general discussion regarding the current status of the MRS issue. The public is encouraged to attend.

Summer visitors can still use the library

Visitors who were listed with the Ruidoso Library before the temporary card policy was dropped this year, are invited to continue with the same privileges, according to head librarian Nancy Eckert. Eckert said when a visitor comes to the front desk with a temporary card, that card will be honored as if it is a permanent card. No further cost will be involved.

Rennick appointed to a state board

A Ruidoso man was among Governor Bruce King's recent appointments to state boards and commissions. Charles Rennick of Alto was appointed to the Board of Architect Examiners for a three-year term.

Garbage authority proposes rate hike

By DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Commercial garbage collection rates in Ruidoso will jump dramatically, if members of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority approve a proposal officials say is needed to avert financial disaster. Manager Joe Lewandowski told the authority board Monday that to continue to offer special services free, to provide for equipment replacement and to combat illegal dumping, rates must be raised or other financial action must be initiated. Ruidoso's commercial rate of $9 a month per container is the lowest of 19 different towns and counties contacted, he said. Its residential rate is fourteenth out of 16 at $6 a month, with Lincoln County on the bottom at $5.25. However, the county's commercial rate of $45 a month was in the upper 50 percent, close to Hobbs at $54. If approved by the county and the five villages that are members of the authority, it would be the first rate increase for Ruidoso in eight years. The option preferred by members is to increase the residential rates of Ruidoso by $1.50, the county and Capitan (now $5.25 and $7.50) by 50-cents, and Ruidoso Downs by $1.25 (from $8). Commercial monthly rates would jump to $29 per container in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs (currently $18), would stay the same in the county (at $45) and would go up to $32 in Capitan from the existing $29.

The total impact would be to increase revenues to the authority by about $320,000 a year. That would cover the expense of the free services, create a replacement and repair fund for equipment and allow the authority to take over billing from the Village of Ruidoso. It also would provide enough money to create extra crews for Please see Garbage, page 2A

McGary moves studio to King's

By DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Over the last five years, world famous bronze sculptor Dave McGary has shared his phenomenal success with the county that he now calls home. As his honors and prestige have grown, his local operation has expanded with them, pumping money into the economy and enhancing Lincoln County's reputation as an art center.

And he's about to deliver again. McGary has embarked on what will be the most significant bronze sculpture in New Mexico and has announced plans to move his entire operation to the former King's building on Sudderth Drive. Visitors will be able to stroll through a gallery, wander among sculptures in a landscaped garden and stop in the studio to watch craftsmen put the finishing touches to McGary's creations.

The huge building also will be perfect to accommodate work on the 225-foot long "Free Spirits at Noisy Water" bronze monument to the American horse commissioned by R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard. "It's really exciting to take a parking lot and turn it into a park and a piece of art and something that people can interact with," McGary said of the piece that will cover part of the entry to The Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs. "It's going to be a huge bronze. It's great to be working with R.D. Hubbard, who thinks big. It's really exciting, and Joan Dale's enthusiasm is infecting. "The Hubbards are going above and beyond the call of duty to invest in this." McGary said he mentioned to Hubbard last year that the parking lot in front of the museum screamed for a big piece of art. "He liked the idea and said he'd have a national competition," McGary said. "He opened it up for all comers from across the country and that geared me up to another level, to offer something monumental in more than just size." He received word from the Hubbards that he had won when they flew into Ruidoso on their jet, told him his design had been chosen and then took off again while McGary and friends were celebrating on the runway. "I'm concentrating on the masterwork now, which is 12 feet long," McGary said. The piece depicts seven breeds of horses in motion: quarterhorse, thoroughbred, Arabian, Appaloosa, Pinto, standard bred and Morgan. It's designed as a tribute to the role the horse played in the development of the American West. From the masterwork, the monumental sculpture will be developed. He will resculpt the pieces and send them to a foundry in Wyoming, then finish the work at the by then remodeled King's building. "The piece will show eight horses one and a half times life size," McGary said. "It will measure 30 feet from the top of the horse to the base and about 250 feet in length, about the size of a football field. It will be wonderful, with waterfalls and landscaping. "This is going to be the most significant piece of sculpture in the state of New Mexico and one of the most in the United States." By the August 20 unveiling of the architectural rendering at the museum, McGary hopes to have bronze marquettes of the quarter horse ready to offer. "I hope a lot of people come and buy a piece of this special monument to the horse," he said. The finished work is scheduled to be ready for the public in June 1995. Meanwhile, McGary said renovation of the vacant King's building will take about four months. He hopes to move in by November or December. He was inspired to relocate to town by what he heard and saw during the Community Update luncheon, co-sponsored by MainStreet Ruidoso and The Ruidoso News. "I got excited about the direction the town is taking," McGary said, referring to a streetscape sidewalk and landscaping project under way by the MainStreet organization. "I have seven acres on the road to the airport that I was going to use for a new studio, but that King's building has been calling me for one and a half years, and I decided to listen."

Board votes to reassign coach

By DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
In a unanimous vote and without discussion, the Ruidoso School Board Tuesday removed Jody Blanton as head volleyball coach. The physical education teacher and her supporters took the news quietly and filed out of the board room after the official decision. School board members had been ordered by a district court judge to take action on a recommendation by superintendent Mike Gladden to reassign Blanton, who has headed the program for about five years. Although no comments were allowed from the audience at the time of the vote, later in the meeting, several persons asked the board to reconsider, and for the first time during the two board meetings concerning Blanton, someone stood up to criticize the former coach. Angela Haas said she was at the meeting to speak against keeping Blanton. "I'm not saying everything she did was bad, but I played for her for four years, and for four years I got no support from her whatsoever," Haas said. "I've heard a lot of people saying bad about her for years."

Blanton supporters, "It's easy to stand up in public and pat a person on the back, but asking someone to stand up and discredit someone.... Then he added, "It was not a job (the coaching assignment), it was an assignment and a bad one at that." (Blanton still is under contract as a physical education teacher.) Dan Bryant, who said he attended the meeting as a parent, and is a member of the law firm of Parsons, Bryant and Morel, said he had brought 63 more signatures to add to the 250 already in favor of Blanton staying on as coach. Bryant's law partner, Karen Parsons, has spoken passionately in Blanton's favor during three previous meetings. Bryant noted that opinions at the last meeting, even with short notice, overwhelmingly were in favor of Blanton. He contended that sampling represented the feeling of the general public. He asked the board to reconsider, noting that it's difficult for a coach to please all of the students and parents, past and present.

school district has been denied." Gladden may have additional facts that would explain the recommendation for reassignment, but he has not been willing to discuss them, Bryant said. "I ask you to do what is really in the best interests of the program," he said. "This runs counter to everything this country stands for, because we stand on due process, notice and opportunity to be heard." Blanton could not be reached for comment about her plans after the meeting or Wednesday, but Bryant told The Ruidoso News, "I'm not aware of any plans by Jody to leave the school system. "She has a number of options available, some of which involve the legal process and some that don't. "I have advised her to let everything settle for a week and come back and look at it Tuesday or Wednesday of next week to make some decision." Former Ruidoso High School bookkeeper Sue Randle asked board members to search their consciences for possible bias on the Blanton issue. "You never say a word. There are board members who have children in her program, and all I say is be ethical and excuse yourself, if you have issues with her that might cloud your judgment," Randle said. When contacted by The News later for specifics, Randle said, "I didn't say they did have issues or conflicts, I only asked them to question themselves." Board member Susan Lutterman answered Randle. "As a school board member, I make policy. I vote how I feel is Please see Board, page 2A

"Mrs. Blanton assured you at the last meeting that if there were concerns, she would address them. She asked for a meeting with Gladden prior to this session. He refused. You have a successful program and the way to keep it is to keep Blanton, to allow her to continue to inspire these girls. "I'm deeply disappointed the vote was unanimous, especially by you, without discussion in this public forum. It appears to us the decisions have been made behind closed doors. We feel our ability to have input into the operation of the

The complex will include a gallery and production section, as well as administrative and sales offices. The staff will expand from 45 to 60 persons, he said.

"We've been running ads in some of the larger towns like Roswell, El Paso and Albuquerque," McGary said. "Right now I'm almost two years behind in orders, so we could double the staff if we could find the people."

"Ninety-eight percent of all the money I make comes from outside and then is circulated in the community. The staff will grow to 60, so the economic impact is really important. It's also an asset to have this type of a business downtown."

Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw said having McGary as a downtown feature should be a big plus for the town.

"What he has in mind is perfect for that building and really in step with the concept for the downtown area," said Shaw.

"It just gives us another big anchor, something for people to do and it plays up our art legacy."

Tom Battin, former president of MainStreet and president of Ruidoso State Bank, said the new relationship between McGary and downtown Ruidoso should be mutually beneficial.

"It will become a destination place for people to see how the bronzes are finished and to view his work. The downtown traffic also should be a big asset to his operation," Battin said. "I'm extremely pleased that Dave feels that way (about the MainStreet work). We're really lucky to have him."

McGary said he's proud to be a part of Ruidoso.

"A lot of people ask why I don't live in Santa Fe or some other art center," he said. "I have the luxury to choose and I like Ruidoso. The people have been very supportive and that means a lot."

The demands on McGary's time go well beyond the Hubbard assignment and catching up on orders.

"I'm truly utilizing my slogan, 'There are no limits,'" he said. "I'm really pushing that right now. I have a major exhibit in Florida coming up, a one-man show in Cairo, Egypt, as the guest of the government, and the United Nations wants to sponsor a worldwide tour. I have a tour of major museums in the United States set for 1996-97."

Knock first!

Ruidoso Paving's heavy equipment operator Ralph Morrison couldn't stop his runaway paving roller as it headed downhill, but a Fox Hollow condo wall did. Luckily, the lodgers didn't arrive the night before as planned, so they missed the intrusion that rearranged the bedroom. According to Morrison's wife, he sustained a bruised back and was released from Lincoln County Medical Clinic the same day. Police at the scene said Morrison was aiming for some trees to slow the roller down, but missed.

Probation officer sets up shop at RHS

Youthful offenders who attend Ruidoso High School won't have far to go to meet with their probation officers during the next school year.

The Ruidoso School Board on Tuesday approved allowing the state juvenile probation officer to maintain an office and conduct counseling sessions at the high school, subject to a review in six months.

"I think it would be good for the community," said principal Ron Hodges.

Board member Mike Morris, presiding in the absence of board President Ron Hemphill, said he has concerns about inviting "troubled kids" into the school for the sessions.

Vice principal Danny Flores said the meetings will involve students still in school, who are on probation.

"Right now, someone is designated to come to the high school who visits with the principal and with the kids," he said.

"We look at this as an opportunity to work together closely. They're already getting much of the information now. These are not chronic troublemakers. It's usually those kids on six months probation or less. (The probation officer) would be there to help these kids make the right choices (at the moment they need advice) and not have to schedule an appointment a week away."

In other business during Tuesday's regular meeting, the school board:

- heard from Paul Wirth, director of support services, that a site for the adolescent day treatment center has been selected at 819 Gavilan Canyon Road.
- heard from Wirth that the district has been approved for a half-time teacher to handle the Graduation and Dual Role Skills (GRADS) program for school age mothers. Wirth said next year, money for a full-time teacher is expected.

- announced an open house at Sierra Vista Primary for 2 p.m., Sunday, August 14. Acting president Mike Morris invited everyone in the community to stop by.
- approved a home visitation program for kindergarten teachers at Nob Hill Elementary, which allows teacher, student and parent to become acquainted before the start of school.
- I've made visits in the past and it makes a lot of difference on how comfortable you are with your class and the same for students coming into the class," said teacher Pat Sullivan.

"I had more parents come into the school and be more involved and I felt more of a connection."

The teachers will visit homes the first week of August and then between August 17 and 29, spend another week visiting. Two days will be set aside for children to visit the school before classes begin August 19.

- awarded a contract for $16,800 to Karen Tillman to be the Title VII coordinator at $36.33 an hour.

Bogus $100 bill turns up here

A counterfeit $100 dollar bill was discovered last Saturday by a bank teller in a deposit bag belonging to Diamond Shamrock on Sudderth Drive.

Ruidoso State Bank teller Kendra Jenkins alerted personnel officer Jean Stoddard of the bogus bill and a pen test was conducted showing that it was not legal tender.

The bill was retained by the bank and forwarded to the Federal Reserve Bank for verification.

Diamond Shamrock manager Wilma Patterson said the bill possibly was passed on July 14.

Ruidoso police said there were many methods in verifying a bogus bill, including the absence of blue and red threads embedded in the paper, a low grade of paper without a high percentage of rag material, the bleeding of numbers through the seal, edges that are not crisp and sharp and portraits that are out of focus to the point of not seeing hash mark (stripes) lines on the face.

P&Z reviews 5th street development

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

An amended commercial site development plan for the corner of Sudderth Drive and Fifth Street was approved conditionally Monday by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission.

Owner Mark A. Marquez of the Fifth Street Mall project, asked for commission approval to build an 1,800-square-foot building for a clothing store.

Marquez said he plans to include additional parking and to plant trees for curb appeal.

The commission, after nearly an hour of discussion of how to accommodate Marquez' needs, compromised by approving the development providing no more than 60 percent of the property be developed.

In other business, the council:

- approved a front lot line variance for Michelle Howard at Ponderosa Heights Subdivision. Howard will remove her existing mobile home and replace it with a larger unit.
- approved a minor subdivision for a 3.55 acre tract owned by Ronald Andrews. The action sub-divides the tract into three lots of at least one acre each.

- extended preliminary plat consideration for Robert E. Kellerman and his property in the Middle Cedar Subdivision.

Members of the commission said they want additional information to ensure adequate water and septic considerations.

Under old business, a side yard variance was approved for Morris Paul of Ponderosa Heights.

Paul was given approval to construct a carport. The commission said any carport constructed cannot be enclosed later.

best for the student and athletes and district as a whole," she said.

"We've listened for 1 1/2 months and have heard plenty of public input. I have not voted carelessly, but with great thought."

"That's not what I asked," Randle said.

"I have no past history (with Blanton)," Lutterman responded.

Gladden told The News that he would not meet with Blanton because she is involved in litigation with the board (an injunction against hiring a replacement).

pine needle collection, to establish convenience stations for dumping large items, to create a special area for the public to dump at the Gavilan Canyon transfer station, to keep the Capitan landfill open more hours and to put roll-off containers at Glencoe, Hondo and Angus.

"Special services are the work we do that is not part of the regular refuse removal routes," Lewandowski explained. "This includes litter control, bear cleanups, illegal dumping cleanups and the legal bulk items disposal."

"This is the area of most concern to me, because it is quite labor and cost intensive with very little or no revenue in return. This is the major item that will bankrupt this authority if it is not dealt with," he told board members. As many as seven employees, who normally have other duty assignments, are going out each work day to handle the extra free work, which has swamped the usual crew.

The biggest demand for those services originates in the Village of Ruidoso, according to Lewandowski's figures.

They show that 90 percent of the man hours required are focused in Ruidoso compared to one percent in the Downs, nine percent in the county and no demand in Capitan.

The total cost for the last 30-day period was estimated at $23,511, and for the past year since June 11, 1993, at more than $108,316. That amount is offset by only $1,820 in revenue collected for a net loss of $106,496. At 90 percent, the Ruidoso area demand accounted for $95,846 percent of that loss.

The demand for free services also has tripled, from $8,110 last year for the same 30-day period to the $23,511 this year.

"Our landfill bill has grown because of these specials. As I mentioned in the financial statements, in 1993-94, we started dumping the pine needles and smaller items into the transports to save time instead of driving to Capitan (landfill)," Lewandowski wrote in a summary to the board.

"This would allow five or six loads per day (to the landfill south of Alamogordo the authority owns with its counterpart in Otero County) instead of two. Otherwise, we would never have kept up with the work."

He told board members in the meeting that when looking strictly at the garbage collection portion of the operation, all entities but Ruidoso Downs are operating in the black. The Downs should be in that position once a contract with the racetrack in that community has been negotiated. Until recently, the authority had been bound by an agreement with unrealistically low rates, he said.

Rate increases would not be needed if the authority only had to provide normal route services, Lewandowski added.

An alternative to an increase would be for the individual entities that sold their equipment or property to the authority during the first year of operation to forgive the debts.

That option primarily would affect Ruidoso, said Mayor Jerry Shaw, one of the village's representatives on the board.

Authority chairman Wilton Howell pointed out that the option would save the group $90,896 a year in repayment to Ruidoso, $10,000 a year to the county and $3,000 a year to Capitan.

Authority attorney J. Robert Beauvais said forgiving the debt probably would be impossible for the three entities since all have counted on that revenue in their annual budgets.

Residuals said the members of the original authority board provided for rate increases after the first few years.

"They knew they had to stay with the rates that were in effect (in each village) at that time initially, but there was a provision that provided for setting a policy to adjust the rates to a more realistic level later," he said.

"The truth of the matter was that the group made political concessions to get a consensus and to keep members from pulling out. They took a bunch of crappy equipment and a bunch of trappy deals."

"Both Ruidoso and the county negotiated a purchase figure above the appraisal figure on their equipment and threatened to pull out (if the authority board didn't agree)."

"We have needed to make adjustments and should have before this."

But Lewandowski said the village couldn't afford to run the service under existing conditions anymore than the authority.

"All the factors have eaten away at the system you had and I doubt you could do any better now than we would," he said. "So many factors have changed since Ruidoso operated it," including the fact that the state closed down all local garbage landfills.

He pointed out that several new aspects have been added including co-ownership of a $3.8-million landfill, a recycling program, reconditioning of 1,000 containers, higher landfill rates and a longer distance to drive to dispose of the refuse.

"I'm giving you a number and a rate that will allow the authority to do what you want it to do, including taking over the billing, all in one bang, not in increments," he said. "It will build a reserve and capital outlay fund, instead of having to come back in six months."

The authority provides service to 7,400 residential and commercial customers in Ruidoso, about 600 in Ruidoso Downs, about 440 in Capitan and 8,426 in the county.

New drivers required to take DWI class and pay a $16 fee

Drivers seeking a New Mexico drivers license for the first time are now required to pay $16 and attend a DWI school.

The new law, which took effect July 1, applies to new drivers as well as those from other states who move to New Mexico and apply for an in-state license.

It also applies without regard to past driving records and whether or not the applicant drinks.

In addition to the $16 educational fee, applicants must pay $10 for their New Mexico license.

Linda Thompson, field office manager for the local DMV, said the new three-hour DWI awareness course will be shown at least once a month, everywhere a state office is available.

Thompson said the first local class is set for Saturday, July 30, at the Village Lodge, 1000 Mechem Drive.

She said all transfers from out of state have to go through the program, and all teenagers 18 years and under have to go through the program, as well as drivers education class.

Thompson said calls are coming in all the time from those disgruntled with the change.

For further information, the toll free number is 1-800-621-5755.

The program consists of a video-discussion multimedia presentation.

Drivers taking the course will participate in a mock trial of a DWI case in which the student is part of the jury.

The trial is presented in a video format and will be used along with a student handbook.

State Representative John Underwood (D-Ruidoso) said the 1993 legislative DWI package, which included the new assessment and educational requirement, was one of the more emotional issues he's seen before the State Legislature.

Underwood said that for the past few years New Mexico has led the nation in DWI related accidents, and lawmakers rewrote the DWI laws completely in 1993 in order to add that statistic.

Underwood said the DWI package was emotional because of a fatal accident that occurred during the Christmas season of 1992.

In that accident, an intoxicated driver, driving in the wrong lane on a highway near Albuquerque, collided headon with a vehicle carrying a family of five, killing a mother and her three children.

Underwood said legislators were convinced an educational component was necessary to make applicants aware of the seriousness of the problem and the letter of the law.

He said the message was awareness of Driving While Impaired (DWI) laws and prevention. He said nearly 60 percent of all fatal crashes in New Mexico involve the use of alcohol.

Not all applicants are pleased with the cost and inconvenience of the new DWI class. One disgruntled driver wrote an unsigned letter to The Ruidoso News complaining about this new law.

Underwood said that any law that is completely rewritten should be later examined for possible revision.

He said it's unfortunate that the DWI school is not available on a daily basis and that once a month appears unfair to rural communities. He said the DMV should take steps to bring in a video to allow daily presentations.

Underwood said he hopes the state highway and transportation department is committed to making this an interesting class.

Suspect arrested, accused in slashing

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A suspect, accused of slashing a Ruidoso man with a razor-type instrument, turned himself in to the Ruidoso Police Monday.

A warrant had been issued for his arrest three days earlier.

According to police reports, Frank Gonzales, 63, repeatedly stabbed Roger Dutchover after an argument that erupted while they were drinking last Friday. Both men are from Ruidoso.

Magistrate Judge William Butta was called to the station at midnight to issue a warrant for Gonzales' arrest. Detective Wolfgang Born said the judge's effort helped quicken the decision of Gonzales to come to the police station.

Statements in the report indicate Gonzales brought Dutchover's nephew to Dutchover's mother's house located on Junction Road.

After drinking for about an hour and a half, Gonzales and Dutchover engaged in a critical discussion over work ethics.

The argument reportedly escalated into threats of violence.

Dutchover allegedly told Gonzales to get out of his truck. In the exchange of words, police say Gonzales turned and slashed Dutchover four times with what officers believe to have been a sheet rock cutting blade.

Gonzales reportedly jumped from the truck and left.

The report stated Dutchover had a severe laceration on the left upper portion of his chest extending all the way across his left shoulder, approximately 10 inches. He also had a laceration on his left upper chest across the rib area that was about two to three inches long. Another laceration, about two inches long, crossed the right lower portion of his stomach.

The victim also sustained a three-inch cut on the top of his right hand.

Dutchover was treated and released at Lincoln County Medical Center.

Bicyclist injured in car/bike crash

by CHARLES STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Adam Graham, 12, was reported in good condition Wednesday after he was hit by an automobile two days earlier while riding his bicycle along Carrizo Canyon Road.

According to police reports, Caroline "Carrie" Joseph Hannah, 46, of Cloudcroft was heading home about 1 p.m. Monday in her gray Bronco. She said several teen boys were riding their bicycles on the other side of the road. A truck was following them.

Hannah said she didn't feel like there was any danger from the boys and they didn't seem to be riding erratically, but one of the riders headed directly toward her.

"I remember seeing him at the left of the car and he seemed to be trying to steer out of the way," said Hannah. "But then he was at a right angle in front of the car, and I felt the collision, and the boy and the bike were on my hood. The boy slid off the hood just before I came to a stop," she said.

According to Ruidoso Police Officer Jim Biggs, who was at the scene, Graham appeared to be bleeding from a head wound and to have multiple fractures of the right leg. Biggs said there was some bruising in the lower right side of Graham's back. Layne Ostler, 14, was riding with Graham and gave his account of the accident.

Ostler said he was riding down the road side-by-side with Graham, both on the right side of the road.

"He (Graham) got too close to me because he was riding with no hands," said Ostler. "His handle bar hit my handle bar and he went into the other lane. That's when he got hit," Ostler said.

The testimony of Ostler was witnessed by his mother.

Graham, son of Hoyt and Kim Graham of Ruidoso, was airlifted to a Lubbock, Texas, hospital.

Linda Wallace/Special to The News

A Lincoln County heavy machine operator at the rural events center in Glencoe attempts to organize some of the road and drainage materials that will be put up for auction July 30. Besides the county, the school district in Capitan and the village of Ruidoso have added some of their surplus equipment and items to the sale on U.S. 70 east of Ruidoso Downs, which is expected to attract buyers from Roswell.

Inside the Outdoors

Poachers prey on animals in all seasons

Many people think of poachers only during the time when hunting seasons are open, but unfortunately that is not the case. It is a sad fact that poaching occurs throughout the year.

During some portions of the year it seems poaching is more prevalent and that appears to be the case right now. Over the past few weeks, officers of the Department of Game and Fish in southeastern New Mexico have been receiving quite a few reports of poaching incidents.

One type of poacher has been at work in our state, we class them as the "trophy poacher." These poachers are looking for big racks and late in the winter is when they strike.

These poachers use the late rut and bad winter weather to their advantage. The rut makes big bucks more susceptible to poachers. Likewise, winter weather moves deer out of their hiding places in the high country to lower elevations where access is easier for poachers.

Remember, these folks are looking for big racks and often if they find a trophy animal they shoot it and just take the head, leaving the rest of the animal to rot.

There are also a lot of folks out there who know that during the late winter, deer and elk are easier to poach. Some are classed as the "commercial poachers."

These folks take this opportunity to make money from our wildlife. They kill deer, elk and antelope and sell the meat for a profit.

Also, during the winter a lot of birds of prey arrive in our state to avoid the cold up north. Hawks, owls and eagles are killed and their feathers and talons end up on the black market as fashionable jewelry.

No matter what the "type" of poacher, it is important to realize that these folks are stealing your wildlife. Our officers work to try and catch poachers, but the job is often difficult.

There is a lot of country to cover in our state and in some cases our officers may not even know that a poaching incident has occurred. To help catch these thieves the Game Department could use your help.

If you witness a poaching incident, find evidence or hear about one that has occurred please contact the Department of Game and Fish. If you can't get in touch with a Conservation Officer report poaching to the state police or sheriff's office.

You can even report poaching incidents through Operation Game Thief. Those calling OGT need not give their name or testify in a court and if the information leads to the apprehension of a game law violator the caller will be eligible for a sizable cash reward.

The more information you can report the easier it will be for conservation officers to catch the culprit. However, never put yourself in danger to try to gain information on poachers and never confront them, that's our job. But if you can, jot down a vehicle license plate number, a vehicle description, a physical description of the violators along with what clothing they are wearing.

Also, remember the exact location where the violation occurred, there may be some evidence at the scene.

If you can, help us to try to stop poaching, because game law violators are stealing your wildlife.

WE HAVE THE RIGHT ANSWER

Advertisers who want to place their print ads in a quality publication ask the question: "Is your circulation audited?" We're very proud to answer "Yes." We are a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations because we share ABC's belief that circulation audits are an essential assurance of value. ABC is the premier circulation auditing organization in the world, and has been since 1914. Each year, ABC auditors test and verify that our circulation figures are facts, not claims. An ABC audit is the sign of a sound investment for advertisers. Not all publications are audited, but they should be. # Hungry bears picnic in dumpsters and garbage cans

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The possibility of spotting a black bear and other wildlife draws thousands of people to the Ruidoso area each year.

But when the bears decide to lay claim to a nearby garbage container, raid it each evening and leave behind scattered debris, sometimes the fascination ends.

A local garbage collection group, the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, has petitioned the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish to capture and relocate bears that have adopted garbage containers as their private food source.

A state official Wednesday said the request appears impractical, depending on how many bears and sites are involved.

"I would need to know the extent they could want," said Tom Moody, Game Department supervisor. "I don't believe it would be practical to trap and relocate the bear population of the White Mountains."

"On the other hand, we do and are responding to complaints where private property is damaged. I don't believe removing the bear population would be an acceptable solution to another good segment of the people there, but if we could pinpoint specific nuisance animals."

The resolution to the Game Department was approved by the authority Monday as part of a broader effort to combat the problem of bears tearing through dumpsters.

General manager Joe Lewandowski also is to continue his attempts to try other options such as relocating container units, installing latches, ordering a different bin style and scheduling more pickups to deplete the amount of garbage left in containers.

Six residents of the Upper Canyon and Cedar Creek areas during the authority meeting Monday added their complaints and possible solutions about the bears and illegal dumpers, who fill up containers with construction waste.

Elbert DuBose of Riverside Cabins said he has been fighting the problem for six or seven years. This season is especially bad, because the lack of rain until last week, diminished the bears' natural food sources and pushed them to move into town to find food.

And once they're trained to the dumpsters, even when a food source is available further back in the forest, they choose the easier route and stick with the dumpsters," Lewandowski said.

One bear even banged on the door of a truck when a container was being emptied, as if to say let go of my food, the manager said.

Ted Brumble and Leon Armstrong asked authority members to relocate a group of dumpsters from their current site about one mile up Cedar Creek Road to an area closer to the headquarters of the U.S. Forest Service and Mechem Drive.

"We have a lot of contractors dumping (at the container cluster)," he said. "Any time you line up 10 to 12 dumpsters in a row, you get that. We just don't need 10 dumpsters in that location."

Authority Chairman Wilton Howell said he's bothered by the attitude of residents who see violations, but don't call the information into the sheriff's department, police department or authority.

"I would appreciate if you see someone abusing the system, that you turn them in rather than turn your head," he said.

Brumble said a neighbor confronted an offender and was threatened. Howell said not to risk injury by personal confrontation, rather turn in the license plate, company number or vehicle description to the authorities.

"I can't put a man out there to guard the sites," Lewandowski said. "It takes people to call us with the license number and company names and we can look into it. Certainly, the responsibility falls on others to help us. This is not our fault. How can we be blamed for this."

Brumble pointed out that disposal units for campers are stationed in the group camping and the picnic areas at Cedar Creek.

They have latches to stop the bears and the openings are too small to be used for construction waste.

"What I'd like to see is replace the style of dumpster with a smaller number designed like the camping areas," Brumble said. "To collect the bears and relocate them is not the answer to our problem in Cedar Creek."

The bears hanging around dumpsters also represent a danger to campers, he said, adding, "Quite a few pitch tents about 50 yards from the dumpsters and we get campers who don't understand about our bears."

Armstrong pointed out that a creek runs through the dump site area and could be part of the drinking water resource. He said the state health department might be interested in the garbage bears drop in the water and is left there by cleanup crews.

Armstrong recommended changing the dumpster units to a rear-end loader with side doors and latches.

Lewandowski pointed out that the authority bought the containers mostly from Ruidoso and the bulk of additional units were ordered under a previous manager. He agreed that rear end loaders are more sturdy and bear proof.

When Carrizozo comes on line with the rest of the county next year, an opportunity will exist to order some more units. He could pick the rear end type and then move those with the appropriate truck to the bear areas, shifting the existing units down to Carrizozo.

Armstrong said the resolution asking for removal of bears amounts to camouflage.

"The forest people will tell you that the bears will come right back in a day," he said. "I spoke with the manager last year about latches. You waste more manpower (picking up messes) than it would cost to put automatic latches on the lids. Some people may throw garbage at it, but it can't be worse than it is."

Howell said the authority is looking at the possibility of installing latches on the existing container lids.

"The problem with latches is getting people to use them properly," Lewandowski said. "Someone needs to be sure they are latched in the evening. It's hard enough to get people to put their garbage in a dumpster, let alone latch it."

He said the Crown Point and Eagle Creek Condominium complexes both have a person responsible to ensure the latches are locked down.

"We could put manual latches on these, but automatic won't work. The lids twist," Lewandowski said.

Armstrong said by moving the containers closer to the forest service district office on Cedar Creek Drive, the site also would be close to Mechem Drive.

"The bears won't come down and the public would demand you people keep it clean," he said.

Lewandowski explained that sites for dumpsters are difficult to find. In the Village of Ruidoso, they are stationed closely together, but in the county, the sites are further apart and more than one unit is used per spot.

DuBose complained that in Upper Canyon, "I'm the one picking up from the bears and hosting everyone else's garbage."

He explained that weekend home owners above him in Black Forest don't want their area littered with garbage and they bring it down to the dumpster near his property.

"Everyone wants to carry it down to someone else," he said. "They leave the bags outside my container rather than leave them in Black Forest, because the bears get them."

He asked the board to move the dumpster.

Lewandowski said he already has moved the container several times, because of previous complaints from other residents. "The people don't want them (near their homes)," he said.

It's a situation the authority has inherited, Lewandowski said.

"The bears are worse than many people up here have ever seen. Is that the authority's fault?" he said.

Last year, a crew would go out on the bear run to clean up from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. and then get the wood chipper and work on the yard debris. This year, they're out most of the day.

Armstrong suggested removing the sign on Cedar Creek Road that indicates county garbage containers are ahead. It invites people to toss their debris.

At the cluster site, a larger sign warning violators about fines and stating the rules also would be a good idea, he said.

"I think there's also a higher volume of trash than before, especially with the construction in Alto, said Jerry Wright, a Ruidoso village representative on the authority. "We have more full time residents than before."

Gary Jackson, village manager, agreed, adding that water accounts in Ruidoso have grown to 7,000.

In other business, the board adopted modified Roberts Rules of Order for the conduct of the meetings. One of the modifications allows the chairman, as a county commission representative, to make motions and vote on issues.

World Championship Classic trials highlight today's horse racing action

Two trial divisions for the Grade I $52,000 World's Championship Classic, featuring the nation's finest older quarter horses, head the 18-race program Thursday at Ruidoso Downs.

A total of 12 horses entered the 440-yard trials including Specially Fast, a two-time stakes winner this summer.

The 4-year-old gelding Specially Fast looks like the one to beat in the second trial which is the eighth race on the program. The Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath-trained began his 1994 campaign with a decisive win in the Grade I Rainbow Silver Cup in early June, then followed that effort with a nose triumph over Lawyergunsandmoney in the Grade III Jet Deck Handicap on July 4.

Specially Fast, by Dash For Cash, has been a solid graded stakes competitor the last two years and should be in top form again Thursday.

1993 World Champion Mare Royal Down Dash and Lawyergunsandmoney also should be considered the biggest threats to Specially Fast in the second trial.

Mr Jet Moore Handicap victor Yawls Rabbit and Fun Cash, the fourth place finisher in the Jet Deck, stand out in the first trial.

James Lewter's Yawls Rabbit has been a consistent stakes competitor all year and should be the probable favorite in the first trial. After his Mr Jet Moore win, the 4-year-old By Yawl was a close runner-up in the Rainbow Silver Cup and third in the Jet Deck.

Fun Cash won his Ruidoso debut by 1 3/4-lengths on June 11 and has won three of six outings this year.

Rainbow consolation is on deck Saturday

The $96,023 Rainbow Futurity Consolation and the $10,000 Ruidoso Derby Prep Handicap head a quality 22-race program on tap Saturday at Ruidoso Downs.

The program is supplemented by the full 10-race card from Hollywood Park. The Grade II $200,000 Swaps Stakes for three-year-olds going the classic thoroughbred distance of 1 1/4-miles is the Hollywood feature.

Heading the field of twelve three-year-olds in the one mile Ruidoso Derby Prep Handicap is Acrylic, winner of the Jockey Club Handicap on July 2.

In his last start, the Kentucky-bred colt by Track Barron battled neck-and-neck with Pirate's Spirit throughout the 7 1/2-furlong contest and narrowly hung on for a nose win at the wire.

The Chris O'Dell-trained has won two straight stakes for owner Patrick Petelski of Albuquerque.

Multiple stakes winner Pirate's Spirit and Norgor Derby winner Fine Dance have the best shot at snatching Acrylic's win streak Saturday. The race is designed to prepare the sophomores for the $25,000-added Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby at 1 1/16th miles on August 14.

The 400-yard Rainbow Futurity

Consolation reunites the second 10 fastest qualifiers from the July 7 trials.

Jimmy Harrel's Hank The First, who missed getting into the rich final by 1/100th of a second, looks like the horse to beat in the consolation. Miss Nickolee, a $25,000 supplement to the Rainbow trials, and the well-bred filly Sweet As Cash also must be considered in the race.

Boulderdash Bay and Kczartessa take stakes doubleheader Sunday

Seven to one longshot Boulderdash Bay, who failed to finish in his last start, survived a vicious pace duel then drew off down the lane for a 3 1/2-length victory in the $34,800 Land Of Enchantment Speed Handicap, Sunday at Ruidoso Downs.

The 4-year-old gelding by Spotter Bay covered the six furlongs in a quick 1:10.3 over a sloppy track. The time was the second fastest of the meet for the distance.

Jockey Todd Fincher was confident in Boulderdash Bay's chances in the race although the horse had never started at Ruidoso.

"I'd never been on the horse before, but I saw him beat (5-2 favorite) Macho Ego in Albuquerque and I knew this horse would be tough just by watching him," said Fincher who has chalked up four stakes wins this meet.

The race set up with four horses battling for the lead and Boulderdash Bay a half-length off the sizzling pace of :21.3 and :44.2. In the turn, Fincher angled Boulderdash Bay to the outside and he passed the tiring leaders to gain a head advantage over Macho Ego. In mid-stretch, the gelding had pulled clear of the rest of the field by two lengths then cruised home for the win.

"I wanted to lay close to the pace and not get too much mud on him and he did everything perfect," said Fincher. "He got a little green down the lane, but he had never run here before."

The effort was a big improvement from Boulderdash Bay's last start in the Sangre de Cristo Handicap in Albuquerque when he bolted in the stretch and threw his rider.

The first place check was worth $20,880 to owner-breeder R.A. Canning of Ruidoso. Jimmy Jones trains Boulderdash Bay.

Hurray For OJ returns to action

The four-year-old quarter horse Hurray For OJ who ran seventh in his last start only days after his namesake O.J. Simpson was indicted, returns to action in a $5,400 allowance race Saturday at Ruidoso Downs.

Hurray For OJ, owned and trained by James Moore of Roswell, had a bad start and was bumped hard in the early going of his last race and finished far behind in the 350-yard dash for $3,500 claiming horses.

The lackluster performance broke a streak of four straight in the money finishes for the gelding.

If you lose you might win

Ruidoso Downs general manager Scott Wells (right) presents Mrs. Bill Mitchell of Rock Springs, Texas, with an official Super Bowl football autographed by Dallas Cowboy quarterback Troy Aikman after her name was drawn July 17, at the track. A similar Troy Aikman football will be given away during drawings following the races every Saturday and Sunday through the end of the race meet. Losing mutual tickets can be entered in the drawings.

Fast fillies get top billing in Kachina stakes trials

The Kentucky-bred daughter of 1988 Breeders' Cup Sprint victor Groovy, has two wins and two places in four career starts for owner Marcus Green of El Paso, Texas. One Groovy One drew the one post in the second trial.

Dunceadawn, a full sister to Dessie Sawyer Futurity winner Dunceadawn, comes into the trials off a 3/4-length maiden win over a solid field of fillies on July 3.

One Groovy One, runner-up in the $42,837 Petticoat Stakes in Santa Fe and impressive maiden winner Dunceadawn head a group of 2-year-old fillies in two trials for the $25,000-added Kachina Stakes, Friday at Ruidoso Downs.

A total of 21 fillies entered the six furlong trials which will be run as the seventh and last races on the nine-race program.

The Cliff Lambert-charge One Groovy One battled for the early lead as the 7-5 second choice in the 5 1/2-furlong Petticoat.

Pot of gold beckons top horses in the 1994 Rainbow Futurity

Ten of the nation's top two-year-old quarter horses will race in the $535,787 Rainbow Futurity this Sunday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Meltdown will face an uphill battle in the race for that pot of gold at the end of the Rainbow. First place wins $221,105.

The chestnut colt, trained and ridden by the successful futurity winning duo of trainer Jack Brooks and jockey Jacky Martin, will attempt to become only the fifth horse in history to win the first two jewels in the quarter horse triple crown.

Meltdown won the Grade I $399,515 Ruidoso Futurity on May 29, but didn't fare so well in the Rainbow trials where Meltdown was bumped from both sides coming out of the gate.

Meltdown, owned by Enrique Carrion of Veracruz, Mexico, still won the trial by 2 1/4 lengths, but failed to post the top trial time.

That place went to The Incredible Dash who ran the 400 yards in :19.69.

The sorrel gelding is trained by Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath and will be ridden Sunday by jockey Bruce Pilkenton.

Second place qualifier, Blinded By The Light, was clocked at :19.865; and the third place qualifier was Meltdown.

Before last year, only three horses, Tiny's Gay (1974), Special Effort (1981) and Deceptively (1992), had managed to conquer the first two jewels of the Quarter Horse Triple Crown. The crown included the Kansas, Rainbow and All American futurities until last year when the Ruidoso Futurity replaced the Kansas as the first leg.

On July 25, 1993, Treacherously joined this elite group and stretched his undefeated streak to seven with a one and a half-length victory in the Grade I $554,580 Rainbow Futurity. He completed the 400-yard dash in :19.68.

Bull buster

Wes Mitchell of Capitan, 19, relaxes at the Lincoln County fairground arena after winning the bull riding competition at the Smokey Bear Stampede. He competed against 104 other top contenders riding some of the toughest bulls on hoof. He walked away with $657 in winnings and qualified to go to the North American Rodeo Commission in El Paso in November, representing New Mexico in the nationals.

Trustees debate the size of ambulance and garage

Capitan village trustees are wrestling with the problem of fitting a new and larger ambulance into a building that's too small.

Or maybe it's not too small, Mayor Norm Renfro said Wednesday.

The trustees received news Monday that the Lincoln County Commission is buying an ambulance for use in the village by the volunteer emergency medical technicians (EMT).

After examining old records, they learned that the village owns the land and the county owns the building that has been used as an ambulance bay.

Renfro said EMT Mike Long is researching the measurements of the new ambulance.

"I don't think it is too small,"

Renfro said. "It's just a bit wider than the one we use now."

In other action, the board approved an ordinance creating a water advisory board with members Dr. Bernie Reimann, David Strickland, David Cummins and Benny Coker. A fifth member probably will be appointed by Renfro from the board of trustees.

The board also voted to acquire 10-acre-feet of water from the Eagle Creek Water Association. The price still is under negotiation. An acre-foot is the amount of water it takes to cover an acre of ground one foot deep with water.

The trustees approved a final budget of $1,284,528, up slightly from last year because of the possible purchase of Eagle Creek and other water rights.

'Zozo schools pick new superintendent

A former bilingual and special programs administrator from Portales has been named district superintendent for the Carrizozo school system.

Dr. Elna Stowe already has settled into a new home in town. She said Thursday that she's busy getting ready for the 1994-95 school year and the district's 230 students.

Stowe, 52, replaces James Bayless as superintendent. She earned a master's degree from Eastern New Mexico University and her Ph.D. program was split between the University of New Mexico and California Coast University.

Parents give high marks to Capitan education

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Parents who responded to a survey on the quality of education in Capitan turned in good ratings for the local school system.

The results of the 145 surveys returned were presented last Thursday to school board members.

School superintendent Diana Sonnamaker said the only area parents indicate improvement is needed is in the elementary physical education program, with 39 disagreeing that the program is adequate compared to 78 agreeing and 28 who answered that they don't know.

"We're looking at that now," she said.

Although not one of the statements about the school system gathered more disagreement than agreement, those with highest negative numbers were that the school has adequate supplies (23), that it provides adequate music and band instruction (25), that the discipline policy is adequate (28), and that the discipline policy is enforced equally (30).

Fifty-four parents disagreed that students who participate in activities such as vocational organizations, athletics or music should pay the extra costs or help raise the required money instead of "expecting the school to use 'educational' dollars for the trips and equipment."

Seventy-nine parents agreed with the statement and 11 didn't know.

Breezing through with high positive scores were statements indicating that parents are kept well informed about their children's academic progress, that they are encouraged to be involved in their children's education, that students are taught problem solving skills and that teachers encourage critical thinking skills.

Parents also indicated they think teachers in the system are well qualified, that the classes meet the needs of their children and that the physical facilities generally are in good shape.

Board votes to require police background checks

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

To guard against the possibility of hiring someone with a history of child abuse, the Capitan School Board wants all new employees fingerprinted and checked for criminal records.

"The reason is because sometimes staff will transfer from one school to another and you don't know the real reason," said board member Beverly Payne, who proposed the addition to the personnel policy during a board meeting last Thursday.

"This way, we can ensure anyone doesn't have a criminal background, that the people working around our children, all the way to the janitors, don't have a background in abuse."

"This policy was recommended during the law conference we went to."

The administrative staff also will be cautioned to pay special attention to unusual patterns, such as frequent changes in jobs and moving great distances with each change.

"They'll do some extra calling when they see something like that," Payne said.

Currently, district staff calls former employers to learn about a possible new hire, said district superintendent Diana Sonnamaker.

In another issue, Floyd Goodloe and Sherry Underwood, representing Parents Against Outcome Based Education (OBE), submitted changes they would like to see in the district's stated goals, plus a list of nine additional suggestions.

The group contends OBE is too oriented toward teaching politically correct values and the ultimate aim is to take away local control of school systems.

The list would prohibit the distribution of contraceptives on campus from any school-based health clinic, would prohibit psychological testing without written approval of the parents, would segregate sex education classes by gender and require that they emphasize morality, abstinence and responsibility.

The group also urged caution about the methods used in promoting the "Drug Free Schools" program, which includes values clarification.

Three areas where the board has shown support in the past centered on the group's position that schooling should be promoted as a state and local matter as opposed to receiving dictates from the federal level; that the district should resist efforts by the state and federal governments to be included in a state wide tracking system; and that the district resist (educational) competencies for personal qualities and values established by the state.

In comparing changes proposed by the group to the existing district goals, the parents are asking for phonics to be used in teaching reading, writing and speaking. They want students to be able to communicate the difference between evolution and creation.

They urged that participation in the arts, drama, music and literature be limited to "classical" literature and through a structured format that emphasizes traditional virtues.

The district's last two goals state that students "will demonstrate the knowledge and skills necessary to participate in the social, political and economic life of the nation and the interdependent world; and will demonstrate knowledge of the cultural diversity of the state, nation, and world; their customs, languages, people and history."

The group wanted the two changed to one goal: "(Students) will receive instruction in national and world history and geography and will be knowledgeable of the cultural diversity of our state, nation and world, include the social, political and economic life of our nation. Will embrace our nation's traditional principal of patriotism, which includes a working knowledge of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution."

Board members asked Sonnamaker to review the proposed changes and to consult with other leaders and groups in the community.

In other business, the school board:

—approved a list of items to be deleted from inventory and sold at auction July 30 at the Lincoln County Rural Events Center in Glencoe. The county is staging the auction, but invited other government entities to take advantage of the opportunity.

Among the items approved for auction were a lawn mower, a carpet cleaner, several vacuums, Gibson and Frigidaire refrigerators, an Apple printer, a Putt Putt golf practice board, an Imperial freezer, carpet shampooer and a roll-up garage door with motor.

—approved Tom Owen as the new school grounds keeper.

—approved increment schedules for coaches and other extra duties. The highest figure of $1,750 went to head coaches Ed Davis in varsity football, Ron Becker in boys varsity basketball, Norm Cline in girls varsity basketball and Pam Allen in volleyball.

Bald eagle still is endangered in New Mexico

The recovery of the American bald eagle may result in the nation's symbol being upgraded from endangered to threatened species throughout the lower 48 states, except in the Southwest.

New Mexico, Arizona, western Texas and a small portion of southeastern California remain designated as areas where the species is likely to become extinct.

Officials with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service note that the eagle population in that region is small (about 30 nesting pairs), isolated from other populations, and still is vulnerable to natural or human-caused catastrophic events.

Historically, bald eagles nested throughout most of North America, including 45 of the lower 48 states. However, by 1940, habitat loss and uncontrolled shooting prompted Congress to pass the Eagle Protection Act, which prohibited killing or selling bald eagles. In spite of those efforts, eagle continued to decline as widespread use of DDT after World War II caused reproductive failure among eagles and other bird species.

The bald eagle was declared endangered in 1967 when Congress passed the first Endangered Species Act.

Last Thursday, an adult bald eagle nicknamed "Hope" was released to the wild to mark officially the comeback of the American bald eagle from its endangered species status.

Mollie Beattie, director of the service, released the 10-pound female eagle at Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge in Maryland. The eagle had been rehabilitated at the Baltimore Zoo and Tri-State Bird Rescue and Research in Newark, Delaware, after suffering a broken wing.

Bald eagle numbers in the lower 48 states have climbed from about 417 nesting pairs in 1963 to more than 4,000 pairs of adult birds in 1993. Biologists estimate 5,000 to 6,000 juvenile bald eagles also survive in the lower 48. Eagle populations in Alaska are considered healthy and are not listed as endangered or threatened.

Beattie said a cleaner environment, habitat protection, strict law enforcement, active management and public awareness have contributed to the return of the symbol of the nation's independence.

Currently, eagles are listed as endangered in 43 states and as threatened in Minnesota, Michigan, Oregon, Washington and Wisconsin.

The service's proposal would reclassify the eagle to "threatened" throughout most of the lower 48 states. A threatened species is one likely to become endangered.

Service officials note that the dangers to the bird's long term survival still exist. Concerns remain about contaminant problems in the Great Lake Region and for Southwest bald eagles, which will continue to be listed as endangered.

A threatened designation more accurately reflects the species' improving status, but does not remove the protection afforded the bald eagle.

Nuclear waste shipments likely to arrive in New Mexico by rail

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The small town of Carrizozo often has found itself at the center of disputes, from Superfund clean-ups to holding onto its Lincoln County seat designation.

Earlier this week, a consultant to the Mescalero Apache Tribe announced that the railroad tracks through Carrizozo may be used to carry high level radioactive waste from out of state power plants to a temporary storage facility on the tribe's reservation in neighboring Otero County.

Governor Bruce King and several other elected officials including Ruidoso Democrat and State Representative H. John Underwood have pledged to stop the transportation of the nuclear waste over the highways or rails of New Mexico.

But consultant Miller Hudson says that if the joint venture between the Mescalero and 83 power plants materializes, 800 to 400 shipments of spent reactor fuel rods would be hauled to the storage site on tracks through the Tularosa Basin.

Arriving at a pace of one or two a week, the trains would each pull three flat cars of nuclear waste and no other cargo. The material would be contained in specially designed casks to withstand collisions.

The safety of the transport procedure has been one of the major items of contention between the tribe and opponents of the storage proposal. Opponents range from top state officials to Ruidoso's village council and a few grass roots environmental organizations.

Hudson said emergency response crews will travel on the trains.

Scott Northard, manager of technical standards for Northern States Power, the Minnesota power plant operator that has taken the lead in working with Mescalero, was quoted in an Albuquerque Journal article as saying rails were chosen as the cheapest method of transport. A map released with the article showed a possible route running through Lordsburg and Deming, then turning north through Alamogordo to edge Mescalero, then continuing north through Carrizozo, Vaughn, Santa Rosa and Tucuman before heading east.

Hudson said three rail routes into Mescalero all converge on a north/south portion of Southern Pacific tracks that hug the western edge of the reservation.

A small spur line would have to be built from the main rail to the actual storage site, which probably will be designated for the Three Rivers section of the Apache land.

Temporary storage is being sought by the power companies, because they are running out of on-site space and a permanent facility planned for Nevada is possibly more than 20 years away. The Mescalero project is targeted to open in about seven years and to handle storage for another 40 years.

Mescalero vice president Fred Pego has said the proposal will be put to a tribal referendum probably before the year's end. He said nuclear storage will bring jobs and other economic benefits to the Apaches to help them become self-sufficient in combination with their other enterprises including a container welding business, a timber products business, a luxury golf resort and a ski resort.

However, members of Ruidoso's council and others have contended that the potential danger connected with nuclear fuel storage will damage the area's tourist business, a main source of revenues.

With more than 30 of the nation's largest nuclear power companies each agreeing to kick in $15,000, the Mescalero Apache Tribal Council is ready to take another step in its private venture to build a temporary storage facility for radioactive waste.

According to tribal consultant Miller Hudson, all 38 of the companies that previously paid $5,000 are considering or have agreed to join the second phase of the project and to foot the bill for legal and design work.

Utility representatives were at the Apache resort, The Inn of the Mountain Gods, recently working out details of the agreements.

Planned to provide storage for 40 years, the estimated lifetime cost of the project is placed at $2 billion.

Silver Lining

Valley says goodbye to Ula Perry Gipson

Ula Perry Gipson

Memorial graveside services were held July 15, at the Perry Ranch Cemetery for Ula Perry Gipson, who was called home by our Lord on June 27.

The Reverend Bill Jones gave a prayer of thanks to God for the blessing that Ula has been in our lives. He then read from the book of Ecclesiastes: "To every thing there is a season and a time to every purpose under the Heaven: A time to be born and a time to die; a time to plant and a time to pluck up that which is planted."

The Reverend Mr. Jones said that Ula's life was in harmony with the passage of scripture, because in her ranch life that she dearly loved, she was aware of the importance of doing things at the right time, in planting her garden and in the care of the ranch animals.

The Reverend Mr. Jones said Ula had a bright smile and a friendly greeting for friends and strangers alike, that she was happy with the Spartan life on the ranch in the hills.

Came west in a covered wagon
Ula May Perry Gipson was born November 16, 1897, in Glen Grove, Texas, to Jim Perry and Mary Jane Perry.

When she was four years old, she came west with her family in a covered wagon driving a herd of goats. They came first to Nugal and then to Glencoe where she lived most of her life on a ranch south of Glencoe.

In 1912, she was married to Lloyd Stringo Gipson. One son, Jimmy, was born to this union.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her son, Jimmy, and four brothers, Elay, Lewin, Pearce and Howard.

Ula is a true pioneer Christian lady. She will always hold a fond spot in our hearts and we rejoice that she is now reunited with loved ones who have gone on before to be with our Lord in Heaven.

A cool day in July
After 10 days of the hottest weather in memory, the mountain world began to cool off a little at a time.

From the mountain thunder showers, cool air drifted down into the lower country. Yet rain itself was slow in coming down.

However, today on the 17th, I was up in Ruidoso and drove through a wonderful rain which extended down through Ruidoso Downs. This was a little before noon. By the time I arrived at the house, a little bit of the rain had followed me down.

Then began a slow soaking rain, the pride and joy of Mother Earth. This lasted all afternoon, until now, five o'clock.

Here in the Vale, the clouds are solid, close down over the hilltops and the temperature is a cool 60 degrees and all the air is a joy to inhale, so pure and fresh, clean, washed by the slow and steady all-afternoon rain.

Corina, the Storm ranch cat, is on her pallet by the fireplace, no doubt thinking this is early winter and time to build a fire and it really is like a day in the fall, after so many days of temperatures over 100 degrees.

So all in all, the weather spirits have been very kind to us here in the land of the piñon and pine.

Let us thank the Lord for the July rains and all our other many blessings.

Filmmaker discovers Clutter's pet store

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A local pet shop may become the model for a movie set as part of a film starring Dustin Hoffman and Morgan Freeman.

Angi Neff of Warner Bros., a Time Warner Entertainment Company based in Burbank, California, in early July contacted Clem Clutter, owner of Clutter's Pet Shop on Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso. She sent him film and asked him to photograph the interior and exterior of the shop.

"I always remembered your store as being very quaint, friendly and welcoming," Neff wrote in her letter to Clutter. "So, if you could photograph your store from the inside and out, in as many angles as you can cover, I would appreciate it. This would give us some better ideas of how to create an interesting pet store environment. We will probably build the set from scratch on a movie soundstage."

Neff, who is with the set decoration division of Warner's, wrote that the film is called "Outbreak," and is a medical thriller that should be released next summer.

She told Clutter, "There's a scene in a small town pet store and the ones that we've looked at in Los Angeles have no character or atmosphere. It's very frustrating."

Clutter said Neff used to live in Ruidoso and used to come into the shop as a little girl.

"We took the pictures and already sent them back," Clutter told The Ruidoso News Monday.

Of the possible national exposure for his shop, he said, "Well, I feel great. We're trying to get Ruidoso on the map and every little bit helps."

Clutter has operated a pet shop in Ruidoso for about 14 years.

Contacted by The News at her office in Burbank, Neff said she has fond memories of Clutter's shop and Ruidoso.

"I grew up in West Texas, but spent a lot of time in Ruidoso," she said. "In the summertime, my dad raced horses and we went skiing in the winter."

Cece Griffin (left), chairperson for Lincoln County Democrats, presents Dorothy Talley with a plaque in appreciation for her hard work and loyalty. Talley is moving to Alamogordo.

Democrats honor loyal party worker

Longtime Lincoln County Democrat Dorothy Talley was honored Thursday for her many years of dedication to the party. Talley, who has sold her home in Lincoln County and purchased one in Alamogordo, was surprised during the Democrats' potluck dinner at the home of Louise Babers in San Patricio.

"We're sad to lose Dorothy," said Lincoln County Democratic Chairperson Cece Griffin. "Her smiling face will be missed," she added. Talley assured her friends and neighbors that she'll be back to see them — Alamogordo is right next door.

Griffin reported that Thursday's meeting was well-attended. She announced future plans and read a letter of thanks from First Lady Alice King for the contribution made to the boys and girls ranch in memory of her mother who died recently.

According to a news release, elected officials and candidates for election were introduced and offered a chance to speak.

Griffin recognized State Representative H. John Underwood who spoke of the State Legislature's continuing opposition to a nuclear waste disposal site (MRS) in this state.

Representative Underwood said he plans to introduce a bill next session that will ensure that no nuclear waste be transported into the State of New Mexico.

Underwood told fellow Democrats that he has enjoyed serving Lincoln County and looks forward to bringing more good things back to the people of Lincoln County in the future.

Underwood then introduced 12th Judicial District Attorney Bert Atkins, who is the Democratic candidate for district judge in the new district that encompasses Lincoln County. Atkins said he is most interested in prosecuting drug traffickers and he pledged to do a good job as district judge if elected.

DA Atkins introduced County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley, who is running unopposed for another term on the county commission. Nunley thanked Underwood for the many things he brought back to Lincoln County, especially the senior citizens center in Corona and other improvements for the senior centers throughout the county.

Nunley then introduced Preston Stone, who is running against an incumbent Republican county commissioner.

Stone said if he is elected, Lincoln County can always depend on him to be honest, hard working and interested in all facets of the county.

Stone has served on the school board in Capitan.

Chay Rennick, who recently was appointed by Governor Bruce King to the state architecture board, reported on a seminar he attended in Sausalito, California. He said Democrats from all over the nation attended the educational and instructional classes on the latest campaign techniques.

Robert Goddard provided information on the new voter registration process.

Anyone can register by picking up a form and filling it in themselves. A registrar is no longer needed. Goddard said you still can register the old way by going to county offices, banks, city halls and motor vehicle offices.

Chris Weatherford, coordinator for the new chapter of Mothers Against Driving Drunk "MADD," spoke to the group concerning the DWI legislation, that good things that have happened and other things that can be done to make New Mexico highways safer from drunk drivers.

Griffin reminded the group that Lincoln County Democrats will be selling hot dogs at the Ruidoso Art Festival this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

New Mexico Indian tribes reach agreement with U.S. attorney on electronic gambling

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Mescalero Apaches joined seven other New Mexico Indian tribes by entering into voluntary agreements not to expand their electronic or video gambling operation.

U.S. Attorney John J. Kelly announced the agreements earlier this week. They will be effective until a resolution of the controversy over Indian gaming in the courts or through some other avenue.

"The Mescaleros agreed to limit their machines, but I cannot release that number," Steve Kotz, assistant U.S. Attorney told The Ruidoso News Wednesday. "I don't believe a reduction is involved."

"The standstill agreements are reached and in place, but that's just between the U.S. Attorney's office and the gaming tribes."

Governor Bruce King and other state officials contend video gaming is illegal, because no compact have been signed between the state and tribes, as required under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act of 1988 passed by the U.S. Congress.

The tribes maintain that video games fall under the state's "charity night" exceptions to gaming laws.

The issue is before the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. While that drama is played out before appeal judges, the agreements will allow Kelly to collect information he needs to investigate possible criminal activity without facing a court challenge by the tribes, Kotz said.

Kelly has withdrawn grand jury subpoenas issued by his predecessor, according to a report in The Albuquerque Journal. The subpoenas demanded information from the tribes on their machine suppliers. The tribes refused to release the information and invoked their status as sovereign nations.

However, under the new agreements, the tribes have pledged their cooperation in any investigation if allegations of corruption emerge.

Although Kotz would not release specifics on each tribe's agreement, Kelly previously said they set a cap on the number of machines an individual tribe or pueblo may operate, with an overall range of from 175 to 275.

Tribes that voluntarily reduced the number of their machines after an inspection last week by Kotz included Isleta, Sandia and Tesuque.

Meanwhile, several Indian leaders including Gene Joseph with the Confederated Tribes of the Gila River Reservations in Washington state, criticized legislation that was designed by the U.S. Senate to resolve the fight between states and tribes over the growing Indian gambling industry.

They contend the proposed legislation will undermine tribal sovereignty and is unnecessary.

The bill would overhaul the 1988 regulatory act, expanding the federal government's role through the Interior Department in setting and enforcing rules. But it would strip governors of the power to veto tribal land acquisitions by tribes.

Existing and new casinos would have to meet minimum standards developed by an expanded National Indian Gaming Commission. The legislation also tries to clarify what types of games the tribe could install.

Art Festival brings together art, food, fun and fundraising

If you like art, food and fun, this is your big weekend in Ruidoso.

The 23rd annual Ruidoso Art Festival will feature works by more than 125 of the Southwest's best artists this Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center. The festival will be from noon until 8 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is still just $2.50 for adults, $1 for children and $5 for a three-day pass.

Artists will be showing and selling their work in oils, fabric, glass, woodwork, mixed media, leather, jewelry, batik, pottery, oils, sculpture, weaving, photography and other media. Only the best artists were juried into this prestigious show by a panel of judges who made their choices on a list of criteria that includes quality and creativity of the work and also variety among media and price ranges. Shoppers can take home a massive piece of fine art as a major investment or purchase art to wear in the form of earrings and jewelry in the lower price range.

The festival is the place to go for hot dogs, hamburgers, burritos, sweets, beer and soft drinks. Local clubs and organizations always cook up some tasty fare to tempt shoppers as they browse and shop to their heart's content.

And for fun? How about meeting old friends and making new ones while strolling through the 125 artist booths in the roomy center.

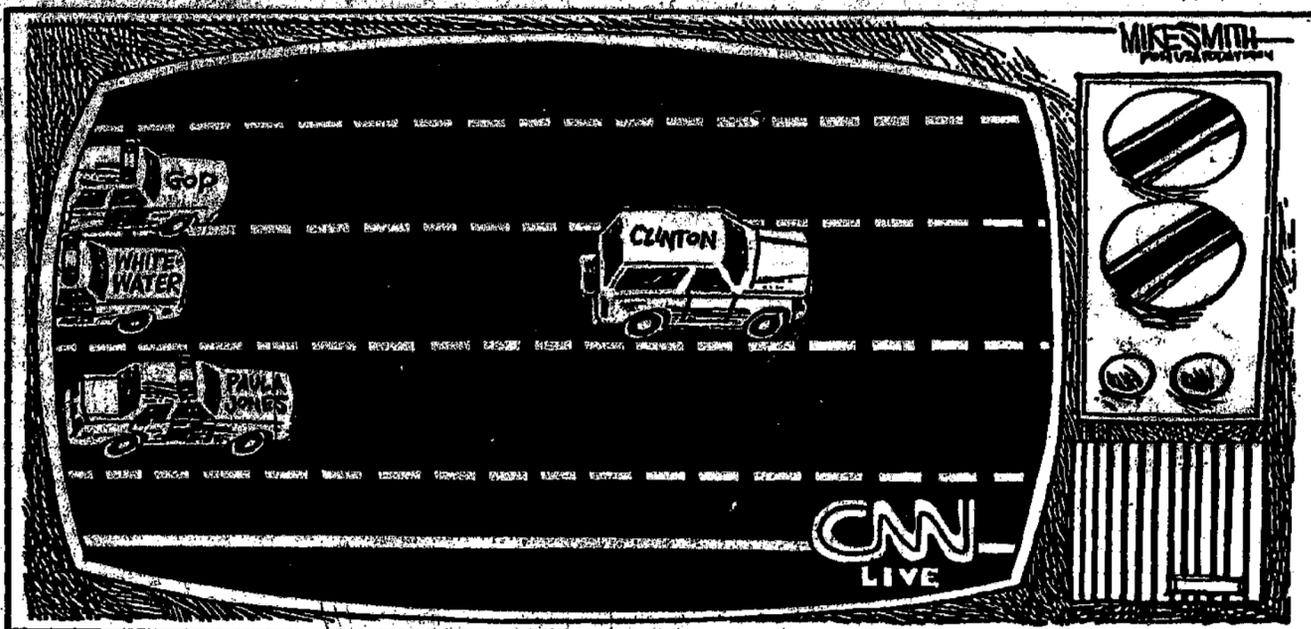

The Ruidoso Art Festival is the major fundraiser each year for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. Besides "the gate," which goes into chamber operations, the festival also features a silent auction with donated art. Proceeds from the auction will go into the chamber scholarship fund.

So, head on out to the Ruidoso Art Festival this weekend — you owe it to yourself and your community!

A (not so) brief discussion on storing spent fuel

by WILLIAM R. STRATTON
Reprinted with permission

Much has been written but little factual information has been reported about the proposal to store spent fuel from nuclear electric power reactors in southern New Mexico. e.g., what is new fuel, what is spent fuel, what is waste, what are the hazards and possible problems and why is New Mexico involved with the nuclear electric power stations?

Many of these questions can be answered and in the belief that accurate information helps the making of rational decisions, I will offer some quantitative facts about this issue.

First, what is the fuel of these power stations? The fuel is slightly enriched uranium (2.5 percent in the example used here) in the chemical form uranium dioxide, a material about as heavy as lead. This material is formed into little cylinders about 1/2 inch long and these are placed end to end in hollow tubes about twelve feet long and about 1/2 inch in diameter that are made of the alloy named zircalloy. These tubes or pins are then placed in a square matrix structure, made of stainless steel, that is capable of holding 289 pins (17 pins x 17 pins) but several of the locations will contain tubes with boron that is needed to control the reactor power. About 140 or so of these fuel elements make up the core of a reactor capable of producing over 800,000 kilowatts day and night. The total weight of the uranium dioxide (in this example) is about 100 tons; of this 100 tons, about 2.5 percent or 2.5 tons will be U-235.

When the reactor is first brought to power, the missioning occurs almost entirely in the U-235 portion; for each atom fissioned, two "fission products" are created with a concomitant release of energy. This energy or heat, of course, is the desired product and is used to heat water which ultimately will spin a turbine to make electricity, the objective of the whole activity. As the fissioning of the U-235 continues, the fuel element loses "reactivity," that is, its ability to help maintain the reactor operational. If the U-235 is gone, the reactor is shut down. However, a mitigating factor comes into play in this reactor design that slows this shutting down process a lot. This is the production of plutonium by the capture of a neutron by the heavier isotope of uranium, U-238.

After a little less than two years, more power is obtained from the fission of plutonium than from uranium and we might say we have a plutonium fueled reactor.

Nevertheless, after about three years, a given fuel element (actually, 1/3 of the core) runs down — there is not enough U-235 and Pu to maintain its reactivity. The power station is then shut down and this 1/3 of the core is replaced. This is what is called spent fuel.

However, lots of value still exists. Almost all of the original U-238 remains; of the original 2.5 tons of U-235, a bit less than 1/2 ton is untouched, the capture of a neutron by U-238 has resulted in there being about 3/4 of a ton of useful plutonium.

Thus, a lot of potential energy remains in this "spent fuel" — it simply cannot be used in the light water reactors. Because it cannot be used in these reactors, it has been called "waste," truly a misnomer.

Radioactive decay invariably moves an isotope toward a stable isotope and gradually the three tons of fission products becomes three tons of stable metals (some of these are valuable). When the fuel is first removed from the reactor it is kept under water for radiation protection and because the heat production from the radioactive decay would cause the fuel and the zircalloy cladding to melt. After several years, most, but not all of the radioactive isotopes have decayed to stable elements and the heat rate is lowered to a level that can be removed by air instead of cooling.

However, two fission products, cesium-137 and strontium-90 decay with half lives of 30 and 29 years, respectively, emit gamma rays in their decay and hence shielding must be provided against this radiation.

This material, then, is the spent fuel or waste being discussed; the fuel pellets are still intact inside the zircalloy pins and these pins are in the stainless steel matrix. The structure is intact. The hazards are the radiation from the Cs and Sr and the existence of the plutonium. These are metals with no tendency to become gases (plutonium has twice the density of lead) even if they could escape from the uranium dioxide pellets and the zircalloy pin and the container in which they are placed.

To explain how New Mexico and the Mescalero Apaches have become involved requires some back-tracking and a little history.

The original intent was that spent fuel would be reprocessed and used again. This plan was developed because the supply of uranium in the world was believed to be limited and the energy content of nearly all of the uranium was to be used, not just the fraction of energy in the U-235. As exploration proceeded, more uranium was found and the decision to or not to reprocess was driven by matters other than uranium abundance, e.g. economics, proliferation possibilities and the desire as a nation to become more nearly energy independent.

The Europeans and the Japanese have chosen the reprocessing route while the United States and Canada have chosen to defer reprocessing at this time. This negative decision for the U.S. was made by president Carter. The economics are marginal now and probably will remain so until the world's high grade uranium ore is used (maybe 50 years) or the real or perceived cost of burning coal is seen as unacceptable.

The electric utilities have been storing their spent fuel underwater in their local fuel storage pools. These have limited storage capacity and several utilities have run out of space. Because the reprocessing option was canceled, the utilities were left, as they say, hanging and twisting in the breeze. Another option was required and in (I believe, 1982 and 1987) the Congress preempted the problem by assuming responsibility for spent fuel and authorized the search for a long term underground storage site and the so-called monitored retrievable storage (MRS) sites for temporary storage.

Money was appropriated for the purpose of subsidizing the investigations of a given MRS site for its suitability and the funds were to be handled by a new office, the Office of the Nuclear Waste Negotiator. This idea of an MRS is the possibility that the Mescalero Apaches started to investigate some time ago. They apparently believe that they have a good site and a reasonably good chance to be chosen to host such facility.

The Mescaleros are now proceeding on a private, non-governmental, plan that will not involve the Nuclear Waste Negotiator or the DOE (or at least they must hope that this is the case). A license from the NRC will be required, however.

The federal system has moved so slowly that several utilities could not wait for an MRS site to be chosen and proposed to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that they be licensed to store their spent fuel out of water, above ground, air cooled and shielded in concrete or steel casks. The Virginia Power company has been the leader and was licensed to store their old fuel in such a manner in July 1986. Several other electric utilities now have such licenses.

Sooner or later, all 108 or so reactors in the United States will reach the same situation. This scheme for storing spent fuel has gone very smoothly in a technical sense. The spent fuel is inert, an involatile solid with multiple barriers between it and the outside world. It is radioactive, but more than adequate shielding is not a problem and the heat rate is easily handled by air cooling.

Finally, why not store the fuel at the reactor sites? Why bring it to an MRS, the Mescalero Apache site or some other location, e.g., Fort Wingate. On the other hand, why not bring it to this proposed New Mexico site.

I believe that, technically, either option is safe and workable and will present essentially no health hazard to workers or the public. Some utilities would rather not be bothered; their business is making electricity and to expend talented people and capital to manage a fuel storage facility dilutes their principal business. Some utilities may not have adequate space.

Why should the MRS be here in New Mexico? My answer is why not? The business provides a new, clean, safe and well paid industry. There will be, no doubt, tax revenues. It can be a harmless model industry taking up only a very small area that will be visited by technical people from all over the world.

The Mescalero Apaches have had the initiative to do this. It would be shameful to forbid this development; they should not be discouraged; they should be encouraged in their efforts to help all of us.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stratton was a staff member at Los Alamos National Laboratory from 1952-1982, working on theoretical nuclear weapon design, the nuclear propulsion reactor program and critical safety, among other things. He was on the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's advisory committee on reactor safeguards from 1967 to 1975, serving as chairman in 1974. His credentials include receiving the American Nuclear Society's Special Award in 1981 and again in 1984.

Couple is married here June 25

Kimberly Willadson and Craig Turner II of Ruidoso exchanged wedding nuptials in a traditional Methodist ceremony in the afternoon on Saturday, June 25, at the Community United Methodist Church in Ruidoso, with the Reverend Bob Bellows officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Gene and Von Willadson of Odessa, Texas. The groom's parents are Gene and Ruby Turner of Ruidoso.

The church was decorated with candlelight adorned with white flowers and ivy.

Music was furnished by Bart Trotter on the fiddle and Jayson Jones on the guitar. Trotter and Jones are with the Flying J band. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride chose a white floor length gown fashioned with a V-bodice and short sleeves, adorned with lace and drop pearls. The six-foot flowing train was styled with an inset floral pattern. The waist length veil dropped from a wreath of white petals and drop pearls. She also wore white lace-up boots.

For something old, she chose satin slippers; for something new, she wore diamond and pearl earrings; for something borrowed, "Love," a poem written by Sam Stout, was read; and her something blue was a blue garter.

She carried a cascading bouquet fashioned of white roses blended in with baby's breath and English ivy.

Kristin Willadson of Odessa was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a tea length royal blue satin gown. Katy Keith was flower girl, Bronson Dickerson was ring bearer and Chelsi Dickerson was trainbearer. All three were from Odessa.

Jason Penn, best friend of the groom, of Colorado City, Texas, was best man. Groomsman was Rusty Hommes of Nogal. Bryan Streety and Randy Cornett of Ruidoso served as ushers.

The bride's mother chose a pink suit fashioned with an embroidered jacket and wore a pink corsage. The groom's mother was attired in a floral pattern jacket and rose tea length skirt. She wore a dark blue corsage.

The reception was at Cree Meadows Country club immediately following the wedding ceremony. The reception area was decorated in a country atmosphere. Candles adorned with potpourri decorated the tables. After a weeklong honeymoon trip to Dallas, Texas, the couple is making their home at 113 Spruce Drive in Ruidoso.

The bride is a student at Eastern New Mexico University, studying elementary education.

The groom is a student at Eastern New Mexico University and works for Jensen Mining at White Oaks. He also is co-owner of Lincoln County Gold Mining Company.

Foster families honored

The Lincoln County Children Youth and Families Department closed out Foster Care Month with a luncheon at the Turf Club honoring Ruidoso's foster families.

Awards were presented to families, recognizing them for their contribution to the children of Lincoln County.

Toni and Tony Bolden were honored as Foster Parents of the Year with a plaque presented by Ernie Holland, district operations manager.

Holland expressed the sincere thanks of the department to the foster families for their dedication and assistance in fighting child abuse and neglect.

Jodie Hart, placement social worker, presented plaques to Mike and Sheila Rankin for caring for the most children in the past year.

Steve and Susan Raterman received an award for two years of service.

Chuck and Donna Bassett were recognized for their service in emergency situations for teen foster care.

Verlin and Carol Trapp were recognized for their contribution as relative foster parents.

Marian Black was voted Social Worker of the Year by the foster parents.

Gene Sylva, county office manager for Otero and Lincoln counties, presented a plaque recognizing Black for her dedication and service.

Special guest David Irving, foster parent liaison from Santa Fe, spoke to the foster parents encouraging them to continue their work as foster families.

"Even when it gets really tough, we do it for the kids," Irving said. "The reward is knowing that what we do can make a difference in their lives."

Jan Kreager, recruitment specialist, said there continues to be a need in Lincoln County for more foster families.

"One goal of the children, youth and families department is to develop a network of foster care that is more neighborhood based, culturally sensitive and located primarily in the communities in which the children live," Kreager said.

"There is an especially great need for more Hispanic and Black foster families. With so few homes, children must be placed in foster homes in other areas if a home is not available to their own community. This means they must live away from family, friends, church and their schools."

"When a child must be removed from their home and placed in foster care, relocating them to another community makes a difficult situation even more traumatic," Kreager said.

On Campus

University of New Mexico first-year medical students are assisting Ruidoso physicians while benefiting from their professional experience.

They are taking part in a preceptorship — an apprenticeship period that the School of Medicine requires for all students seeking an M.D. degree.

RACHEL HESS is working with Arlene Brown, M.D. and DOBSEY CLEMENT is working with Steven Frey, M.D. These Ruidoso physicians are two of more than 200 doctors around the state who instruct medical students in this critical part of medical education.

An additional purpose of the program is to provide future doctors with personal ties to communities throughout the state, to encourage them to set up practices and provide permanent services in New Mexico after graduation.

AMANDA M. GOCHENOUR of Ruidoso was awarded an Associate of Arts degree from New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, after the interim 1994 session. Degrees are awarded upon completion of course work required by the university, colleges and academic departments.

Pony Express race is back on schedule

The 26th Annual Pony Express race will take off at 8 a.m. Saturday, August 6, at the gap road near Capitan.

Riders will have a chance to preview the course during a tour and team meeting on Friday morning. The teams will then be treated to a barbecue at Crenshaw Arena on Friday evening.

Spectators can eat their fill on Saturday at a burrito sale during the awards presentation in White Oaks following the Saturday morning ride. Prizes for the event include money and buckles.

According to a news release, it was originally decided that the race would not happen due to lack of support this year.

However, a committee has returned from The Little Beaver horse race in Dulce, where requests for the White Oaks race were overwhelming. The news release said that Dulce support was great and their police staff was a key part in the safety and success of their race.

The public is invited out for a great day of horse racing, western style.

Public invited to join the caravan to Lake Lucero this Saturday, July 30

Local woman represents New Mexico at national conference

Charlotte C. Jarratt, president-elect of the GFWC-New Mexico Federation of Women's Clubs, along with 17 other New Mexico delegates, attended the General Federation of Women's Clubs' 103rd Annual Convention in Atlanta, Georgia, recently.

She was among 1,000 GFWC members who gathered at the Westin Peachtree Plaza Hotel to attend business sessions, workshops and elect new officers. Jarratt is a member of the GFWC-Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club.

Convention attendees heard from such nationally-known speakers as Dr. Robert Ballard, director of the Center for Marine Exploration at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution; former New York congresswoman, Bella Abzug; Eleanor Cliff, White House correspondent for "Newsweek" magazine; and Dr. Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women.

The 1992-1994 GFWC president's special project was "Stories offer Adventures — Read!" (SOAR) a literacy program with five facets.

New Mexico SOAR chairman, Charlotte Jarratt was pleased that New Mexico had two winners. A

A covered dish luncheon, followed by an afternoon of games, takes place each Monday at the clubhouse.

Everyone invited to free gospel sing

Castle Mountain Music Show announces the third annual gospel sing at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, August 7, at the castle.

The free gospel sing was first offered in 1992 with the purpose of providing a non-denominational environment in which people could get together and enjoy great gospel music and fellowship, according to a news release.

It was such a success that it has become an annual event, continues the release.

The approximately hour and a half show features the Castle's own house band, the Castle Mountain Music Makers, as well as other outstanding area talent.

With such a variety of entertainment, everyone is sure to find something they like. There is no limit as to the age of the performers and last year's show included several selections by children 12 and under.

Donations which exceed the amount needed to cover expenses, advertising and utilities, will be donated to Santa Cops.

The Castle Mountain Music Show features state of the art lighting and sound systems as well as theater seating and air-conditioning.

A concession stand also will be open.

Reservations are requested to ensure adequate seating. Call 257-6180.

Anyone interested in performing at the gospel sing may also call the same number for more information.

The show is located on Highway 70 West, just across the highway and slightly west of Wal-Mart, the only castle in Ruidoso.

"Everyone is invited to attend the gospel sing for a special day of giving praise to the one true King," concludes the release.

Kim Blakey, Roy Black and Eddie Hedin, members of the Castle Mountain Music Makers, will perform at the third annual gospel sing.

23rd Annual Art Festival opens Friday

Artists from throughout New Mexico and Texas have been selected for the 23rd annual Ruidoso Art Festival Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 22-24, in the Ruidoso Convention Center.

The festival, which started 23 years ago as an informal gathering of artists under the trees at School House Park.

Even though the festival has grown and expanded over the years, it's still a community family affair.

Some 125 exhibitors will be exhibiting and selling acrylics, oils, watercolor, photography, pottery, weaving, sculpture and other artforms.

A jury reviews all entries to the show and makes its final selections with a view toward quality, and also toward a varied show that is interesting to visitors.

Besides offering a shopper's delight with jewelry, art to wear and art to display and functional art, the Ruidoso Art Festival brings together community organizations who offer a luscious selection of refreshments in the outdoor lineup of concession stands.

The Ruidoso Art Festival — always the third weekend in July — will be open from noon to 8 p.m. on Friday, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is still $2.50 for adults and $1 for children, with a three-day pass available.

"It's not unusual for people to come two to three days during the festival," said Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Joan Bailey.

That suits Bailey and her board members just fine, since the art festival is the chamber's major fundraiser each year.

Over the years the festival has been staged in the parking lot at the middle school, on the old airport runway where the golf course and convention center are now and in the area behind the Sports Theater in Ruidoso Downs.

Last year, the festival moved indoors for the first time, and the artists and shoppers loved it. Bailey recalled some past years when the festival was plagued by July rains and compared that to showing, selling, shopping and browsing in the comfortable convention center — there's no comparison.

Last year, the chamber board came up with the idea of a silent auction with proceeds to benefit the group's scholarship fund. Artists and festival-goers were so generous to give the art and to purchase it that the silent auction is back this year, too.

The booths and artists are judged before the show opens, with a best of show

About our cover...

"Las Milpas," by J. Chris Morel, is featured on the cover of this year's Art Festival program. The oil on canvas, along with the Austin, Texas, artist's other works, won him the Best of Show award at last year's art festival.

Morel, who recently won the blue ribbon for best oils in the Laguna Gloria Fiestas art festival in Austin, will be back in this year's show.

He recently learned that his painting, "Aspen Solo," was one of 200 to be chosen for the "Art for the Parks" national competition. The final 100 will be chosen next to be included in a year-long national traveling exhibit. The grand prize for that competition is $50,000.

Morel has opened his own gallery in Taos where his works are always available. The artist can often be found in his Taos gallery, which is a working studio and his dream come true.

ribbon and the top 10 artists recognized.

Last year's winner, Chris Morel, will be back in this year's show with his colorful acrylics.

Morel was born and raised on the east coast and holds a bachelor's degree in fine art from Towson State University in Baltimore, Maryland. He lives in Austin, Texas, where he has pursued his career as a professional artist since 1988.

Texas sculptor Cindy Burleson, winner of the best of show in 1992, will be back this year. Her work can be seen in booth 76.

Among the other artists in this year's show are local potters Vicki Conley, booth 99; and Tim Wierwille, booth 87.

McGary creates monumental sculpture to stand at Museum of the Horse entrance

World famous bronze sculptor Dave McGary could live anywhere, but he has chosen to make his home in Lincoln County.

One week he may be in Washington D.C. where his work was featured in an exhibit in the Sam Rayburn office building, or he may be found in New York City, where he was guest of honor at the opening reception for his show at the United Nations.

As his work has gained national and international acclaim, the artists shared his phenomenal success with the county that he chooses to call home.

As his honors and prestige have grown, his local operation has expanded with them, pumping money into the economy and enhancing Lincoln County's reputation as an art center.

McGary has embarked on what will be the most significant bronze sculpture in New Mexico and has announced plans to move his entire operation from Gavilan Canyon Road to the former King's building on Sudderth Drive.

Visitors will be able to stroll through a gallery, wander among sculptures in a landscaped garden and stop in the studio to watch craftsmen put the finishing touches to McGary's creations.

The huge building also will be perfect to accommodate work on the 225-foot long "Free Spirits at Noisy Water" bronze monument to the American horse commissioned by R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard.

"It's really exciting to take a parking lot and turn it into a park and a piece of art and something that people can interact with," McGary said of the piece that will cover part of the entry to The Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

McGary said he mentioned to Hubbard last year that the parking lot in front of the museum screamed for a big piece of art — Hubbard thinks big, and immediately embraced the idea, picking McGary's work through a national competition.

The piece depicts seven breeds of horses in motion: quarterhorse, thoroughbred, Arabian, Appaloosa, Pinto, standard bred and Morgan. It's designed as a tribute to the role the horse played in the development of the American West.

"The piece will show eight horses one and a half times life size," McGary said.

"It will measure 30 feet from the top of the horse to the base and about 250 feet in length, about the size of a football field. It will be wonderful, with waterfalls and landscaping."

By the August 20 unveiling of the architectural rendering at the museum, McGary hopes to have bronze maquettes of the quarter horse to offer for sale. The finished work is scheduled to be ready for the public in June 1995.

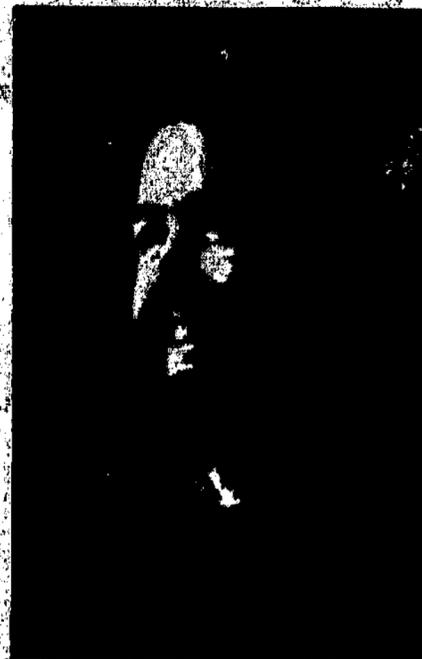

Meanwhile, McGary said renovation of the vacant building will take about four months. He hopes to move into the building by November or December.

He was inspired to relocate to town by what he heard and saw during the Community Update luncheon, co-sponsored by MainStreet Ruidoso and The Ruidoso News.

The complex will include a gallery and production section, as well as administrative and sales offices. The staff will expand from 45 to 60 persons, he said.

The demands on McGary's time go well beyond the Hubbard assignment and catching up on orders.

"I'm truly utilizing my slogan, 'There are no limits,'" he said. "I'm really pushing that right now. I have a major exhibit in Florida coming up, a one-man show in Cairo, Egypt, as the guest of the government, and the United Nations wants to sponsor a worldwide tour. I have a tour of major museums in the United States set for 1996-97.

McGary's work is exhibited in galleries, museums and private collections throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. Two major pieces are in the permanent White House collection.

Mountain Arts displays Southwest art in Midtown

A gallery tour of the Ruidoso area wouldn't be complete without a stop by Mountain Arts Gallery located at 2530 Sudderth Drive in the heart of Midtown.

Owner Teri Sodd is a well known artist, whose annual offerings include the Christmas madonna and an Easter edition. Sodd is well-known for her modern portrayals of the American Indian people.

Just two years ago, Sodd took a new direction with "The Medicine Wheel," a watercolor portraying that symbol for the wheel of life.

Sodd's work may be seen in her gallery, which also features works by many other popular artists. Included are Bill Jackson, Peña, Bob Carver and John Tracy.

The gallery also has Southwest pottery, Indian artifacts and weavings.

The custom framing that Teri Sodd oversees is a true work of art itself. Her mattes are sculpted and designed to enhance any work of art.

Mountain Arts is located in the old Kiva building in Midtown's walking area. The adobe building with its vigas has been revitalized and renewed by Sodd, who has added a charming seating area with brightly colored benches beside her shop.

And, in the back, there's plenty of free parking to encourage shoppers to spend the day strolling through Midtown.

Mountain Arts hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and the telephone number is 257-9748.

Lots of work .... The annual art festival is the major fundraiser for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. Last year's president, Paul Crown, found that his job wasn't over even after the last customer left on Sunday.

Museum of the Horse, Ruidoso, New Mexico*

On August 20, 1994, the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso, New Mexico, will unveil the complete architectural rendering of the 225-foot long, fully landscaped bronze monument to the American West. The work depicts the classic breeds of horse—Quarterhorse, Thoroughbred, Arabian, Appaloosa, Pinto, Standard Bred, and Morgan. The monument was commissioned by R. D. and Joan Dale Hubbard as a tribute to the role horses played in the development of the American West. In a rare McGary offering, the masterwork, maquette and five limited editions of the monument will be sold as part of a benefit program for the museum. ## Bill Rakocy: the man and his work

by CHRISTOPHER FORBES of Forbes Trinchera Ranch

Bill Rakocy, owner and operator of Rakocy's on Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso, is an American original artist, author, historian, teacher, raconteur and unabashed enthusiast of the Great Southwest.

A hundred years from now, it is as an artist that Rakocy will be remembered and while all his other abilities and achievements are evident in his work, I feel sorry that future generations won't have had the fun of knowing the man himself.

Born in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1924, he trained at the Butler Art Institution there before enrolling in the Kansas City Art Institute and School of Design. There he met Chet Kwiecinski with whom he made his first trip to Taos and "parts west" in 1949.

Now, his friends say it is hard to believe that Bill Rakocy is not a native of his adopted Southwest.

Rakocy's work, like the man himself, is completely original. There are hints of masters like El Greco, Van Gogh and perhaps even the great American Regionalist, Thomas Hart Benton, for whom Rakocy modeled in the early 1950s. The bravura brushwork, muted yet vibrant palette and subject matter are Rakocy's own.

Whether recreating the past, incidents in the lives of Pancho Villa or Billy the Kid, or sketching workers at the Bermudez Pueblita Mexicana project in Juarez, Rakocy's love of the people of the Southwest, native Americans, Mexicans, Anglos, is evident. Even his landscapes have a warm human touch.

His series of paintings of historic mission churches, of which my wife and I are lucky enough to own one, are more portraits of beloved friends than just renderings of old buildings.

I think that all who have the pleasure and privilege of viewing Bill's current exhibition will appreciate not only his particular genius, but will appreciate his humanity and the deeper origins of his warmth. In his own words, "I have felt a strong tie to our great Christian Heritage in doing these paintings, remembering the contributions made by the Spanish Padres to Western civilization and culture."

About the writer: Christopher Forbes and his brother, Robert, first met Bill Rakocy almost two decades ago during his stint as Curator of Education at the El Paso Museum of Art. They look back with fond memories on that visit which also included an unforgettable evening in Juarez.

Visit an indoor garden at Jacque's

Jacque's Garden Gallery is a very unique art gallery and flower shop combination in the Sierra Mall at 721 Mechem in Ruidoso.

Jacqueline Kastor well known for her creative floral designs, is an impressionistic landscape and floral artist.

Favorite subjects for the Ruidoso artists are people in their natural settings. Her interest in painting New Mexico is fueled by the beauty of the mountains, the deserts, and the people of the Southwest.

Jacque and her husband, Gary, opened Jacque's Garden Gallery in 1985. They soon outgrew their first small shop, and found a spacious new home in the Sierra Mall.

A professional floral designer, Jacque enjoys combining flowers and art in the gallery. When customers walk into the lush garden setting, they are often amazed to find that the beautiful trees, plants, and flower arrangements are all silk or dried.

"My goal as a floral designer is to have the more realistic looking plants and flowers for my customers and to provide them a beautiful and exciting design for their pleasure."

There is also an extensive selection of baskets, candles, potpourri, and a "year 'round Christmas Corner." In the late summer, Christmas trees, garlands, wreaths, and other holiday decorations are available.

Jacque can put her talents to work for big or small projects — from a room to a table arrangement.

For this year's Salute to Working Women luncheon, Jacque completely transformed a big empty banquet hall in the Ruidoso Convention Center into a virtual flower garden.

"We hope that you will find Jacque's Garden Gallery to be a special place in Ruidoso to visit and shop."

Wierwille combines his love of earth with his art

Tim Wierwille of White Mountain pottery is a 22-year veteran of the art of pottery who shares his love for the earth by creating beautiful, useful objects from clay.

"There is an exchange of energy in bringing a lump of clay to a place where others can use and appreciate it that touches something in me," says Wierwille.

Wierwille feels fortunate to carry on the old-time tradition of pottery making and being in touch with the earth on such a personal level.

"I have always felt 'in my element,' outdoors," Wierwille says. "Nature is a continual source of inspiration for me. New Mexico's larger-than-life environment helps me keep attuned to the beauty and mystery of ol' mother earth."

Wierwille's White Mountain series, his best known trademark, portrays a carved sun high above carved mountains.

"It's one expression of Ruidoso's unique beauty," Wierwille says.

Wierwille sees Ruidoso as an exceptional place in which to live and work.

"I feel simpatico with folks in New Mexico. We have a different relationship to the land here. It's not a case of use and abuse. It's more like a stewardship. I respect that attitude."

Wierwille, at one point, became frustrated with what he felt was blatant disregard for Ruidoso's beauty, namely, roadside litter.

Wierwille said "it was easy enough to complain, but it didn't make me feel much better and it certainly didn't do anything to solve the problem."

Knowing that caretaking of our "mountain oasis in the desert" is everyone's responsibility, Wierwille decided to take positive action.

"I adopted a mile of highway on Highway 48; I feel better, it gives me satisfaction to make time to pick up litter. I want to contribute and be a part of maintaining Ruidoso's environment."

Wierwille and his wife, Nan, moved to Ruidoso in 1975, and he is encouraged by the many changes he has seen in Ruidoso over the years.

"Piecemeal progress sometimes seems slow and difficult but a lot has been accomplished. The MainStreet project is a real lift for the community and visitors alike. Downtown is looking better and better."

Wierwille has seen the completion of the Convention Center, the Links Golf Course, the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport, the Museum of the Horse, the Eagle Creek Sports Complex, a new Bull Run lift line and lodge at the ski area and two new school sites.

"These are all major additions to the quality of life in Ruidoso," says Wierwille.

Being an avid mountain biker, Wierwille promotes the idea of mountain bike trails as another way to enhance locals' and visitors' opportunities to commune with nature. With mountain biking being a booming multimillion dollar industry, Wierwille feels it makes sense to court this audience of tourists who enjoy the outdoors and are looking for places hospitable to mountain bikers.

"I'd love to see Ruidoso do that."

Wierwille looks forward to the Ruidoso Art Festival every year. He enjoys the opportunity to greet old town friends and mingle with the public and other artists.

He has a studio, White Mountain Pottery, on the Bonito River in Angus and enjoys having collectors visit at his studio.

In today's world it's refreshing to see someone so in tune with the earth. Says Wierwille, "My family, friends and Ruidoso make me feel an excitement and dedication to the natural world that continues to grow and grow. I feel blessed to being living such a charmed life."

Vicki Conley creates art that works

Her trademark blue glaze distinguishes the pottery of Vicki Conley and it took years to arrive at just the right combination.

"It's like a recipe using seven to 10 different chemicals. My light blue glaze is extremely popular," she said. "At first, I did a lot of brown, like others, but the blue really took off and accounts for about 80 percent of my sales."

The Ruidoso Downs potter emphasizes functional pieces such as salsa jars, tortilla warmers and dinnerware that have become favorites with her buyers.

Her work will be on display in a booth at the annual Ruidoso Art Festival July 22-24 in the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

"I've been a potter for 14 years," Conley said. "I got started as a sideline during graduate school. I did it for fun a couple of years, but when I decided to quit work and stay home with our daughters, the business grew as the kids grew."

Currently, her sales are nearly equally divided between arts and crafts shows and shops such as the Aspen Tree in Ruidoso and the Copper Butterfly in Cloudcroft as well as stores in Santa Fe, Portales, Albuquerque and Murry, Kentucky.

Although she produces some strictly decorative pieces, Conley said she enjoys creating useful items for the kitchen — a grease jar, a sun-tea dispenser and a replacement pot for Mr. Coffee coffee makers.

Her decorative pieces follow two basic lines. One utilizes a Japanese technique laying different colors of clay resulting in a swirled design. The other depicts 1776 missions of New Mexico on collectible wall plates.

Museum pays homage to the horse

Horses star in the beautiful Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs — from the horses that stand guard over the entryway to the new museum to the horses portrayed among the various art mediums inside the spacious exhibit hall.

Homage to the horse centers around an exquisite collection of saddles, tack, carriages, sleighs, wagons and other accessories collected by Anne C. Stradling during a lifetime of adventure and travel.

Stradling wanted her collection to remain together even after she closed her own museum in Patagonia, Arizona. Ruidoso Downs was the perfect place for such a collection, and Joan Dale and R.D. Hubbard were the right people to turn a dream into a reality.

Stradling, whose life adventures ranged from polo, earning a pilot's license, riding and roping, died just three months before the Museum of the Horse opening, but not before she was assured that her collection was in good hands.

When Joan Dale and R.D. Hubbard acquired the Stradling collection of more than 10,000 items relating to the horse, they embarked on a major project that breathed new life into the old Chaparral Convention Center.

The Museum of the Horse, in the completely rebuilt, remodeled and revitalized Chaparral, took the best of the old and added much that is brand new.

The Museum, which includes a new fine arts section just opened this year, was selected as the tourism destination of the year for New Mexico last year.

The museum is the cultural center for Lincoln County, offering exhibits, shows and programs throughout the year. A fine arts exhibit featuring the works of Olaf Wieghorst opened with a festive reception last week, and the show will continue through the summer.

"Storytellers of Lincoln County," a film by Delana Michaels, will be presented at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 30, at the Museum of the Horse.

The museum gift shop is designed as a continuation of the collection, using desks, sleighs, wagons and old steamer trunks to show off the merchandise.

Located on U.S. Highway 70 on the western edge of Ruidoso Downs next to the racetrack, the Museum of the Horse is open year-round. For more information, call 378-4142.

Summer racing is ducky for skiers

"Take a Quack" at $1,000, invites the Ruidoso Ski Team.

Even though it is the off season, this club just cannot get enough of racing, according to their sponsors. This summer race is not on snow, however, but down the Ruidoso River.

Yes, it is the Second Annual All American Duck Race, hosted by the Junior Racers and open to everyone.

The gun will sound at 10 a.m. on Saturday, September 3, and the ducks will float to the finish line at Two Rivers Park.

The owner of the winning duck will receive $1,000 cash and the Poke Paddler (losing duck) will receive $100 cash. Twenty randomly drawn ducks will win $20.

So buy your ducks now from any Ruidoso Ski Team member. The ducks sell for $5 each or 6 for $25.

The team will be kicking off sales at this weekend's Ruidoso Art Festival so be sure to stop by their booth.

This event promises to become a major fundraiser for the club that includes, not only skiers from Ruidoso, but also Southeastern New Mexico and Mexico.

Kids do not have to be expert skiers to join the team, but can start in the development program as young as eight years old.

LAST YEAR'S RACE

Racers progress from Age Class divisions (ages eight through 14) through Ability Class divisions (ages 15 through 24). This club is a member of the Rocky Mountain Division of the United States Ski Association.

The excellent coaching staff provides, not only technical training for racing, but also encourages the kids to set goals and take on responsibilities.

If your kids are interested in the program or if you have any questions, please call either Vicki Conley at 378-4270 or Bill Kelly at 257-4839.

The Museum of the Horse celebrates the rich heritage of the horse. From a Russian sleigh to an authentic circa 1860 stagecoach, from saddles, bits, and harnesses to an extensive collection of Indian artifacts, the Museum the Horse has it all! And for a unique shopping experience, be sure to visit the fine Museum

Merchandise gift shop.
