On the side

Garage sale results in pet sponsorships

The spay and neuter sponsorship fund of the Lincoln County Humane Society is $675 healthier as a result of the annual summer garage sale at The Ruidoso News.

The money will be used to sponsor animals for adoption, by reducing the cost of the sterilization procedure that is required by state law, Ruidoso village ordinance and society contract.

Sierra Vista open house due Tuesday

An open house and parents night is planned for Sierra Vista Primary at 5:30 p.m., Tuesday.

It's a chance for everyone to see how the district's latest school construction project turned out. Supt. Mike Gladden said this project was constructed without a major hitch.

Gymnastics group seeks bus ideas

The Ruidoso Gymnastics Association has called a meeting for Tuesday night to discuss alternatives to using school a bus to attend gymnastics events.

Bonnie Richardson, a director, said the Ruidoso schools has advised that school busses are over-filled and no longer can be used.

The meeting will be at 6 p.m. at the Gymnastics Building near Ruidoso Downs.

Downs trustees in session tonight

Ruidoso Downs trustees will hear monthly reports, consider telephone bids, and discuss 911 renumbering and commercial zoning during a regular meeting at 7 p.m. today, in the Village Hall.

Also on the agenda is a public hearing on a no-burn ordinance which would make it unlawful to burn trash or vegetation in Ruidoso Downs.

Public hearing for Parks & Rec

The Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department's next public hearing is scheduled for Oct. 4 at 7 p.m., at Village Hall.

The hearing will discuss items for inclusion into the 10-year Master Plan to be completed in late December.

Bob Hudson, director of parks, recreation and cultural affairs with the City of Farmington, will address the hearing.

More information is available from Debbie Joe Almager, parks and recreation director, at 257-5030.

Hotel site lease near Council review Tuesday?

A proposed hotel site lease between the Village of Ruidoso and developer R.D. Hubbard may be ready for public release Tuesday.

If a proposed lease is ready, the Ruidoso village council Tuesday will set an official public hearing in October to discuss the lease.

The council has been negotiating with Hubbard on the lease since this spring. An old lease expired last year without a hotel ever being constructed.

Hubbard is nearing completion on architectural plans for the hotel, which would be located by the Links at Sierra Blanca golf course. It is projected to have 152 rooms.

Also on Tuesday's council agenda:

— An appeal of a planning commission decision concerning Flavio Vigil's addition to a home at 111 Third Street. After constructing the addition without a building permit, Vigil was ordered to either tear it down, buy more land behind his house to meet setback requirements, or (after tearing it down) construct an addition on the front where setback requirements can be met.

— Staff recommendation to restrict Center Street to one-way traffic. Traffic would run southbound, with parking on the west, on Center between Sudderth and Wingfield.

— Bid award for a new street sweeper to replace the old one. Town Manager Gary Jackson says the new sweeper will work much better and has better mobility on turns.

— Update on village request for the state to install traffic lights at the intersection of Highway 48 and Cree Meadows. Jackson says the highway department now wants closure of Country Club Drive's access to Cree Meadows to be part of the deal, because all three streets converge nearby and that causes a dangerous situation. The highway department doesn't want to put in permanent lights until a Highway 48 reconstruction project is completed, so the village is asking for temporary lights, Jackson adds.

— A report on the Golden Aspen Rally from organizers. The council meeting begins at 6:30 p.m. in the village hall, 313 Cree Meadows Drive.

Record, but peaceful, crowd for bike rally

An estimated 15,000 motorcyclists, a record high, rumbled into Ruidoso for the Golden Aspen Rally over the weekend.

"It was very mild, very quiet compared to the last few years," said Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane. "I think the newspaper helped by advertising the roadblocks. I really didn't need to set them up after that."

Ron Andrews, promoter of the annual rally, said he was "real pleased" with the turnout, although bigger brought a few extra headaches. "My Texas mentality always tells me bigger is better, but I found it also meant some new problems," he said.

"I think the traffic got out of hand at one point, but with the help of the State Police and the local police department, they got a handle on it quickly."

The weather also cooperated, providing mild, sunny days and cool evenings. The Saturday parade drew several thousand bikers, who mesmerized on-lookers with shiny chrome and rumbling motors as they left Furr's on Mechem and headed two to three abreast through Mid-town and back to the Civic Center.

"We're still counting pieces of paper to come up with a figure on registration, but the American Motorcycle Association, the group that gave us the title of National Western Conference, came up and estimated close to 15,000 in town," Andrews said. "Of course, all of them didn't register with us."

"The closest number we could find to that in researching microfilm at the library was 12,000 back at the 1979 rally."

McSwane said officers at his three evening roadblocks handed out about 40 citations for offenses ranging from open containers of alcohol in vehicles to driving on a suspended license.

"I think we had a couple of arrests, but mostly we stayed out of town and worked the county. We did assist in the bars Saturday night and at the Flying J Ranch with traffic control," he said. "Everybody was cooperative."

McSwane said he kept seven deputies on the road and they were backed up eight members of the Sheriff's Posse.

Capt. William S. Relyea of the State Police said he sent 10 extra officers to Ruidoso, plus the five who normally work the area.

"We probably made seven or eight DWI arrests and a few minor traffic arrests, but basically, it was pretty quiet," he said. "We're there more in a preventive mode."

Village Manager Gary Jackson said he rode with Police Chief Lanny Maddox Saturday night.

"Overall, it was pretty well organized. Things were pretty orderly. I heard there were some 23 arrests, but most problems were individuals, not any groups," Jackson said.

Forty-seven people were booked into the Village of Ruidoso jail from Wednesday, Sept. 21 through Sunday, Sept. 25. Most were alcohol-related charges, including 16 DWI charges and 19 charges of drinking in public. Related drinking charges included four people who were charged with being a party to a crime by riding with an alleged

Activists oppose nukes

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Backed by a banner declaring, "No nuclear waste on Indian lands," a panel of anti-nuclear activists and three Native Americans urged members of the Mescalero Apache Tribe to reject overtures from nuclear power companies promising money and jobs.

The price of storing nuclear waste on tribal land is just too steep for this and future generations, they said Thursday.

The press conference that drew the five together was arranged by Rafina Laws, who ran unsuccessfully against Mescalero President Wendell Chino earlier this year and has been a critic of the tribal council's plan to store radioactive spent fuel rods from nuclear power plants.

They assembled in the headquarters of the Ruidoso Upper Canyon Association, which has become a lead community group in the effort to block the storage plan.

A moving afternoon speech by Dorothy Purley of Laguna Pueblo related how her people in the village of Paguete welcomed the Anaconda open pit uranium mine in 1953 as a savior.

"It seemed like a dream come true," she said. "It gave my people on the reservation employment. Since most of us were economically poor, it was a God-send to us."

"At that time, we did not have any knowledge of the potential dangers of radiation and health hazards to come. The only thing we saw were dollar signs and that the Pueblo of Laguna was highly regarded for its self sufficiency.

"If we had only known about the dangers in the beginning, I truly doubt that we would have allowed them to use our land."

As years went by, the operation enlarged and dynamite was used.

"The hills and valleys were being torn and destroyed," she said. "They ripped out the land that was used to plant our crops. They gutted our orchards which were filled with fruit trees. I remember feeling a heaviness in my heart seeing the places where my childhood friends and I used to play being torn apart. Now all that is there is an ugly scar."

With the mine in operation, life seemed good for the most part with "fat pay checks," she said.

"We tried to shut our eyes and not notice the destruction that was taking place right before us. We were only concerned with raising our families and making a living. I cannot ever recall anyone talking

It's a long, long road to rod storage unit

The state legislature's Radioactive and Hazardous Materials Committee heard technical details about fuel rod storage in a hearing here last Thursday.

A detailed review of the hearing will be in this Thursday's newspaper.

about radiation and its dangers. Once in a while, we would see white men walking around with a gadget in their hands that looked like small radios. Since most Native Americans are taught asking too many questions is not respectful, we never bothered to ask too many questions.

"I have since learned that the company had prior knowledge about the effects of radiation and the potential harm it would cause as far back as 1953 when they first started employing my people. We were never told about it or warned about the dangers."

Today, the mine is only 100 feet from the village and tunnels have been built under the settlement, she said. Buildings, including her old family home, have collapsed from blasting, but the company is no longer there to repair the damage.

Purley started working for the mine in 1975. Most of her job assignments entailed great exposure to the uranium ore. She stayed eight years.

"As a result, I have developed lymphoma, which is a cancer to the immune system," she said.

Before coming to Ruidoso, Purley said she sat down on the edge of a cliff by her village, cried and asked forgiveness, because all she saw was a "vast wasteland."

"I implore my fellow Native Americans not to make the same mistake and not to leave the legacy to their children."

Degradation 'world-wide' issue

When the environment teeters on the edge of critical degradation, it should be viewed as a worldwide problem and is more important than complaints about discrimination, gambling or poor housing, says one of the nation's Native American leaders.

Storage of high level radioactive nuclear waste anywhere in New Mexico would just add to the much damaged environment already existing in the state, Dennis Banks, founder of the American Indian Movement, said Thursday during a press conference on a proposal to store spent fuel rods on the Mescalero Apache reservation.

"If the environment is at risk, then we as a living species are at risk," he said.

Banks was one of five speakers who attended the conference following a meeting of a state legislative committee on the technology of nuclear fuel storage. (See related story.)

Mary Olson with Nuclear Information Resource Service in Washington D.C., read an open letter to the Mescalero.

"I am just terribly ashamed of my generation of dominate culture American are even considering sending the most hazardous material we ever produced in a society to the lands of Native Americans," she said.

The result could be genetic alteration. "It could abolish a people," she contended.

"It is not your sovereignty that is at question here. If this waste was bound for Mexico, Canada or Haiti, we would oppose it. No one would say we were challenging the sovereignty of these nations by opposing a nuclear dump," Olson said.

The spent fuel from nuclear power plants across the nation will pose a health danger for 12,000 human generations, she said.

DWI violator, and two who were charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Patricia and Ronald Williams from Portage, Mich. won the big door prize of the four day event, a 1994 Gold Wing Interstate donated by Hacienda Motorcycle of Safford, Ariz.

Jacque Johnson of Harrison, Ark. was crowned queen; Don Wilson of Colorado City, Texas, was named king of the parade. The Tucson Valley Riders were selected as the best dressed club, the American Voyagers Association as the largest club, The Blue Knights as the best dressed fraternity and the Texas chapter as the largest fraternity.

Jill Andrews said Richard Smith and Pauline Rolston of Virginia won for the couple traveling the most miles directly to the rally at 2,085. The solo woman traveling the further came 2,400, the solo male, Larry Taylor of Maine, rode 2,450 miles. The longest indirect trip, 16,300 miles, was racked up by Gary Staley from Juliette, Ill., who was on an extended tour.

The oldest woman rider was Ingnorg Carlson of Tucson at 73 and the oldest male, Ed Morris, is 82.

The oldest bike as far as Andrews could determine was a 1947 Harley Davidson.

The youngest licensed driver of a motorcycle was Joshua Graham from Imperial, Texas. In a new category this year, People's Choice for Best Biker Buddy, non-human class, a red Pomeranian named Rocco, owned by Pat Doyle of Garland, Texas.

The President's Award from the chamber of commerce went to Bill Etheridge of Borger, Texas.

John McGrath of Lincoln won a European Motorcycle tour worth $3,200 sponsored by Beach's Motorcycle Adventure.

She related pollution problems at several communities, including leaks into water supplies.

Olson said the nuclear industry wants to build as many as 200 more nuclear power plants in the next 10 years, "but one of the things they need is a place to send the spent fuel already created.

"By taking it into your home, you help the industry continue to radiate more communities," she said. "They want to send it some place out of sight and out of mind."

Problems already are occurring with casks, she said.

"In Michigan, faulty welds have been found in one cask, another in Maryland is not holding the pressure right, another in Virginia is getting hotter than expected. We only have used cask storage for six years. We just don't know enough about it, except that material inside is lethal.

Olson said her organization has information sheets and will supply them to anyone interested

Shean Bjoralt of Green Peace and the Prairie Island (Minnesota) Coalition Against Nuclear Storage, reported on increases in the rate of cancer in communities downwind from nuclear communities and warned of the potential dangers, if proper security is not maintained.

He and Joe Campbell of the Prairie Island Environmental Protection Committee will be stopping at several communities affected by nuclear reactors to widen their network.

Warrior 'bad boys' whipped by Portales one more time

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent For the second time this season, the Ruidoso Warrior football team members were bad boys. At least that's how many times they've been to the woodshed for a good, old-fashioned whipping.

The Portales Rams beat Ruidoso in every facet of the game Friday night as they put up 40 points on the board to the Warriors' six in Greyhound Stadium, near Portales.

Ruidoso got an equal whipping three weeks ago against the No. 5 ranked Las Vegas Robertson Cardinals.

The Warriors, 0-5 in coin tosses this season, got the opening kickoff after Portales deferred to the second half. The Rams' strategy was simple. They knew Ruidoso wanted to throw the football and the 15-20 mph winds that howled through the stadium were dead into the Warriors' face.

Ruidoso got the opening kickoff, and like so many times before this season, couldn't find the handle. The Warriors would start on their own 12-yard line against a team that has owned the Warriors over the last ten years — and it was homecoming night in Portales.

As expected, the Warriors came out throwing the ball. Incompleted passes toward Byron Soules and Jackie Roe and a two-yard Kyle Humphreys run sent the Warriors packing in their first series. Three-up-and-three down.

A poor kick gave the Portales explosive Veer-option the ball on the Warrior 39 yard line. It was deja vu for the Warriors. Just like the Artesia and Robertson games, the Ruidoso defense found itself setting up shop in its own territory to start the game.

Two plays later, the ball was on the 15 yard line as Kris Summers ran up the middle for 24 yards on the second play from scrimmage for the Rams. Ironically, the play was just a straight dive play. No tricks ... nothing special ... the same offense that Portales always runs.

The Warrior defense tightened a little, but Portales scored in nine plays. The PAT was missed and the Warriors trailed the Rams 6-0.

Another poor kick return gave the locals the ball on their own 13. Three plays later it was another punt, and Portales was licking its chops on the Warrior 44.

Twenty yards in penalties stalled Portales at the Warrior 34, and the first quarter ended with Portales leading by a touchdown.

The Warriors, after gaining one yard in total offense in the first quarter, began their third possession way out on the 20 yard line. With a little more breathing room, the Warrior Run-and-Shoot offense moved the ball fairly well.

Quarterback John Echols went 5-7 in the passing department, picking up three first downs along the way. Ruidoso got down to the Portales 25 before the offense sputtered, giving the Rams the ball back on downs.

Ruidoso would leave the game 2-3 and smarting after their worst beating of the year.

Ruidoso has beaten Portales just twice in the 11-year series. That is a remarkable statistic considering the Rams rarely make it out of district play and that the schools are so close in size.

The fact is, Ruidoso just hasn't been able to stop Portales defensively, and the last two beatings the Rams gave the Warriors are proof of that.

Thank goodness Ruidoso doesn't have to play Portales anymore and the Warriors are ticking down to district play.

Friday night, the Warriors face the Fabens Wildcats for their fourth road game of the year. One year ago, the Warriors ambushed the Wildcats for a 30-point win and their most impressive win.

Obituaries

H. Alden Deyo

Memorial service for H. Alden Deyo, 71, of Ruidoso were scheduled for today (Monday, Sept. 26) at 11 a.m. at The Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount. Officiating were to be Father John Penn. Graveside services will be held next week at Monson, Mass.

Deyo died Tuesday, Sept. 21 at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso. He was born April 18, 1923 in New York City to Evelyn and Henry B. Deyo. He graduated from Tulane University in 1954. He was the City Planner in Lafayette, Louisiana from 1954 until 1956. He moved to Dallas in 1956 and worked for the City Planning office and for ten years was the director until 1968 when he moved to Lubbock. In 1968 he became the Lubbock Regional Director of Planning until moving to Ruidoso in 1973. He was on the City Planning Commission for Village of Ruidoso, a charter member of Ruidoso Mainstreet, a Paul Harris fellow with the Ruidoso Rotary Club and former member of the White Mountain Search and Rescue. He was owner of the Aspen Tree Book and Gift Shop in Ruidoso.

He married Jane Morse Cushman on Sept. 8, 1945 in Bridgeport, Ct.

He is survived by his wife Jane of Ruidoso; a daughter, Janet Deyo Pugh of Madison, Wis.; and a son, Richard Alden Deyo of Seattle, Wash.; a brother, Harland N. Deyo of Caldwell, N. J.; and a sister, Anna Deyo Howerton of Boise, Idaho. Four grandchildren surviving are Karen and Brian Pugh of Madison, Wis. and Andrew and Elizabeth Deyo of Seattle, Wash.

The family has requested memorials to the Ruidoso Rotary Club, American Cancer Society or Home Health of Lincoln County. Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Gentle hearts long for new homes

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Two of the prettiest faces in the Lincoln County Humane Society shelter belong to Snowflake and RCA.

An Australian shepherd mix with blue eyes, white eyelashes and a white coat accented with black, Snowflake is sweet natured and affectionate.

"She came in one of the many litters dropped at the shelter," said society board member Jim Slocum, who has been helping run the kennel while the group searches for a new director.

"She's very sweet and about 12 weeks or less old," he said. "We have all sort of heeler, terrier, sheltie and border collie mixes, which will be small to medium size full grown. We have long hair and short, including a nice red chow and his sister, who's black, red and white. And then we have a few little brown pups, who may be lab mixes. Their parents are a big question mark, but they sure are cute and healthy."

With some new procedures and additional space, shelter volunteers are hoping that puppies will be stay disease free.

Society president Lea McKenna said pet owners must take responsibility for the litters they produce through negligence and hold the pups until they have receive their Parvo/distemper inoculations.

Without the shots, pups' chances of survival are cut drastically. It is heart breaking to watch a pup with Parvo or distemper struggle to hang onto life.

Foster families can help those litters where owners refuse to keep them the extra weeks and arrange for the shots. The family or individual "foster" the litters in appropriate housing until the shot series is completed by the society. Then the little ones are brought back to the shelter for adoption. Not only is their health protected, but the pups or kittens also tend to be more sociable and more likely to be adopted, McKenna said.

If the owners live in the village limits, they must spay their females or neuter their males over six months of age to comply with local law. Failure to comply can result in a hefty fine. The ordinance aims at ending the needless suffering and deaths of unwanted puppies and kittens.

"Times have changed," McKenna said. "You just don't understand the magnitude until you have been down here at the shelter and seen all of the wonderful animals who come in, but never leave.

Dianne Stallings/The Ruidoso News

Dianne Stallings/The Ruidoso News

"It used to be that there weren't so many and people resented being told they couldn't breed a dog. But 14 million dogs and cats a year killed in shelters, and that figure is low, because it doesn't count those dumped in the countryside to die. The only humane way is to spay and neuter, stop the reproduction.

"It's also a staggering bill in terms of cost to the taxpayer. If people realized that, maybe they would start putting pressure on friends and relatives who allow litters, maybe they would tell them to stop costing them so much money."

Back at the shelter, a six month old medium sized dog named RCA or Arcy for short, already is socialized and ready to go.

She looks like a cross between a Beagle Harrier and terrier with big brown eyes, a white coat with brown and black accents.

"She's frisky, but not destructive," Slocum said. "What she needs most is exercise. She's ready to be spayed, is extremely friendly and seems to love everybody. She just needs some attention."

Those who appreciate the special gifts a pet provides, can help the chances for adoption by sponsoring an animal for the cost of their spay or neuter. Adults also are welcome to walk the dogs in the afternoon to give them exercise and the human attention they crave.

Community groups could help the shelter by donating a $350 cage assembly for the new shelter wing. Every additional kennel means one more dog who can be helped.

For more information about Snowflake or RCA, call 257-9841 or stop at the shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road.

Donations for cages ($350), for T-shirts or totebags with the society logo ($12.50 by mail), and sponsorships ($50) for spaying or neutering, may be mailed to the society at P.O. Box 2832, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

Counseling couple opens center in Alto

Marriage and family counseling services are now available in Alto. Dr. Walter Becker, a licensed clinical psychologist, and his wife, Françoise Becker, a licensed marriage and family therapist, have opened an office to serve the needs of the community for individual, marriage and family therapy.

The Beckers relocated to Alto from Southern California where they were in private practice for the past 20 years, presenting workshops and seminars on marriage and the family, and teaching college and graduate courses in psychology.

Becker received his Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Fuller Theological Seminary where he served as assistant professor of marriage and family ministries. He specializes in working with individual adults and married couples.

Françoise Becker, M.S., received her graduate degree from the University of Southern California and has served on the adjunct faculty of Fuller Theological Seminary. Experienced in marriage and life cycle issues for women, she is a retreat and conference speaker. Her degree in gerontology also equips her to deal with the problems of the retired and elderly.

Children who need help are usually seen in the context of family therapy, the Beckers report. Problem kids or teens, although often viewed as the identified patient, are usually acting-out the conflicts and tensions of the family system. Treatment of the child involves bringing in the whole family, or at least the parent(s) of the child. The Beckers are scheduling short-term married couples groups for spouses who want to work with other couples in enriching the marriage relationship. Working in a group to resolve marital discord and learn new communication skills can be an energizing and rewarding experience, say the Beckers, adding that they are also planning groups for single parents.

Most insurance plans cover a portion of the expense for outpatient counseling services by a licensed practitioner under mental health benefits. The one hour counseling sessions are by appointment only, and evening and weekend times are available. For more information, call the Gray Fox Counseling Center at 336-7721.

Regional water planning aired

Citizens, elected officials and staff of local, state and federal agencies will meet at the Special Events Building of the Indian Pueblo Cultural Center in Albuquerque Sept. 26-27 to review recent progress in New Mexico regional water planning and to look at the future.

The Regional Water Planning Dialogue, a statewide cooperative forum to support and promote the wise stewardship of water resources for New Mexico through community-based regional planning, has invited all New Mexico legislators, as well as the three gubernatorial candidates, to join us in discussing how the state can respond to these challenges.

Every interested citizen is welcome to an informal get-together between 6 and 9 p.m. on Monday evening, where a general discussion of New Mexico water issues and the role of citizens will be followed by music, food and talk on a one-to-one basis. At 9 a.m., Tuesday morning, members of the Dialogue advisory board will discuss the role of grassroots water planning in protecting the resource as well as the community.

More information is available from Chris Nunn at 266-5264 or 277-1959 in Albuquerque.

Michael Widener demonstrates weight lifting equipment at the new Southwest exercise equipment, a tanning booth, a Health Club. Widener is trainer and manager of the club, which features Nautilus fitness equipment and free weights. The club also has a tanning booth, a health club, a weight room and personalized training.

Southwest Health Club opens

Exercise enthusiasts and those wanting to begin an exercise program will be pleased to know that a new health club has opened in the Ruidoso area.

Featuring a full range of Nautilus fitness equipment and free weights, Southwest Health Club recently opened remodeled facilities adjacent to Southwest Hair Design at 103 El Paso Road.

Trainer and manager Michael Widener, who has a degree in business from Eastern New Mexico University, has recently been certified as a Nautilus equipment trainer by the School of Fitness and Nutrition in Pennsylvania.

Widener's father, Randy Widener, owner of Southwest Hair Design, encouraged his son's weight training several years ago.

"My dad started me lifting weights when I was 17," said Widener, "I played tennis and was the number one seed for the Warriors from 1990 - 91."

Widener promises to help members get the full benefit of the equipment.

"All the equipment in the world will not do anyone any good unless it's used correctly and in a safe and efficient manner," he said.

Among the new Nautilus machines at the club is the recumbent bicycle.

"The design of the bicycle makes it much more comfortable and efficient," said Widener.

The bicycle allows users to "tour" using several different scenarios which are seen on a screen while exercising. As an alternative, cable television may be watched on the screen instead.

Another machine at the club is the Nautilus Weight Assisted Chin-up/Dip Machine which, according to Widener, helps eliminate strain and enables an increase in exercise repetitions.

"Because a chin up exercise works all the major muscle groups of the upper body while also being great for working the abdominal muscles, the chin/dip machine is great," Widener said.

The club also has seven "passive exercise" toning tables designed to work on all parts of the body with no fatigue, strain, or strenuous effort.

According to Widener, the Slender Quest program is especially beneficial to those people with heart conditions, arthritis, high blood pressure, and physical handicaps.

Southwest Health Club also has a Wolfe System tanning bed which uses a 34 bulb system and an Acumassage table.

Nutritional needs are addressed by lines of supplements including Highland Labs, and Marine Minerals.

"Our food no longer supplies the nutrition that our working bodies need, so we sell a full line of supplements" said Widener.

The health club will limit membership to 120 people.

"We feel that we could not deliver quality service to any more than that," Widener said.

Membership cost is $49.95 per month for unlimited usage of the facilities.

For additional information contact Southwest Health Club at 257-5902 or stop by 103 El Paso Rd.

Farm census shows New Mexico slide

New Mexico had 14,279 farms in 1992, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census' latest census of agriculture. A total of 46,849,244 acres of land was in farms during that year.

And 59 percent of the farms sold less than $10,000 in agricultural products.

The state's leading agricultural products in 1992 were cattle and calves, with sales of $615.26 million, down from $624.40 million in 1987, five years earlier.

The average of operators in New Mexico was 56 years, and farming was the principal occupation of about half (7,540) of the 14,279 operators.

The Commerce Department census also found that 30 percent of total agricultural sales were for crops, the balance ($883.51 million) from sales of livestock, poultry and their by-products.

On the expense side, production cost state farmers $1.05 billion in 1992.

Warrior golfers finish second to Farmington at Invitational

The Ruidoso Warrior golf team finished second to favored Farmington in the Scorpion Fall Invitational Golf Tournament. Posting a score of 399, Ruidoso finished 12 strokes behind the Scorpions, who are favored to win the AAAA State Championship next spring.

Eric Stephens finished second individually among the 60-plus golfers with an 86. Other Warrior scores included Scott Christensen, 85; Paxton Wright, 88; Stephen Houghton 89; and Rhett Hightower, 94.

Other schools at the tourney included Gallup, Los Alamos, Taos, St. Michaels and Grants.

The Warriors entertained the Lovington Wildcats Saturday in an informal "get-together" at Cree Meadows. The warriors defeated the 'Cats, but neither team played particularly well.

DAVID AND VIRGINIA VIGIL

Rural wine-beer license query on election ballot

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Fine dining falls short of being fine when customers have to sip a soft drink instead of a vintage wine. David Vigil, owner of The Ellis Store, a bed and breakfast business and gourmet restaurant by reservation only, hopes Lincoln County voters will change that situation next November after the general election.

"I'd be serving beer and wine in a restaurant setting only," said Vigil, who opened the business in the historic settlement of Lincoln in May, 1993. "Wine is a normal requirement to go with a gourmet meal. We're not opening a bar. I don't even serve dinner to drop-in people. There probably are a couple of other businesses that would like to do the same thing, if the licenses were available."

Vigil collected 120 signatures of registered voters and submitted a petition calling for a special election on the question of allowing beer and wine sales in restaurants located in unincorporated portions of the county.

The law calls for 5 percent of the registered voters to schedule a referendum. Lincoln is a local option county, which allows the issue to be decided by election.

County Clerk Martha Proctor verified that the total number of registered voters living in the unincorporated area was 2,353 on July 25. The minimum number of signatures needed was 117.

The vote on allowing beer and wine licenses in unincorporated parts of the county will be the general election ballot Nov. 8. Voter registration for the election closes at 5 p.m., Oct. 11.

Rosalie Dunlap, a long-time resident and business owner in Lincoln, said most people in the community favor the move by Vigil.

"A few may object on general principle, but they definitely are in the minority," she said.

County commissioners contacted said they haven't received objections to the proposal.

"Why not vote yes?" Vigil said. "It will increase revenues for the county and the state through sales tax and the cost of the license. It's not like opening a bar. You must serve food, and sales from food must exceed those for beer and wine by a considerable percentage."

Mary Ann Hughes, director of the Alcohol and Gaming Division of the New Mexico Regulatory and Licensing Department, said it takes about five months to obtain a beer and wine license.

"You don't go out on the open market and buy one like a liquor dispensing license," Hughes said. "The fee (for beer and wine) is $1,000 a year, $100 extra for Sunday sales. Applicants must be fingerprinted and that can take a while with the backup at the FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation), which screens the prints. An application must be filed here, a hearing is required on the state level and at the local level, advertised two weeks in advance."

The procedure is entirely different with privately owned liquor licenses, which can be sold and inherited.

According to the county clerk's office, voters in 1982 approved the sale of liquor on Sunday in unincorporated portions of the county. It passed by 1,782 to 1,046.

An earlier election on beer and wine may have been conducted in 1980, but apparently, failed, he said. County staff hasn't been able to find related records.

Incorporated villages in the county already allow beer and wine licenses.

The Dreamer Timely report on fall's arrival

This is being sent to you about a half hour before high noon on September 23, the end of the first day of fall.

Early in the morning a cool breath of air moved into the vale from the North East carrying misty clouds which soon covered the sky.

Now, just before mid-day the mountain world is under a gray sky, and the temperature has risen from forty-four in the morning to only fifty-six. The air is still cool and carrying the flavor of moisture.

Early Fall Visitors

Early in the morning out feeding in the pathway to the front door, here was a Stellar Jay—the typical Blue Jay with his top knot hat—to pay me a special fall visit. He had flown down from his home in the pine and fir country, the first time I had seen one this year.

Then, from their home in the cedars next to the house, the little tame cotton-tail rabbits came into the yard. They were half grown now with long ears, large bright eyes, and tan markings on their gray coats. Over the hill to the east you now hear the call of the Pinon Jays, "Waa-ha-ha-ha, Waa-heh-heh." One by one, and then by twos and threes, and soon by the dozens, they glide in and begin feeding all along the pathway to the house, and right up to the doorstep.

This is the largest gathering of these Royal

Blue winged friends I have ever seen up close. It is truly a rare sight, and they hold me in their spell as I watch them — closely crowded together, hopping and walking as they feed, and flying up into the cedar tree, they call out to other Jays who are within hearing.

This favorite New Mexico citizen has helped give our state its name "The Land of Enchantment."

Where are the Acorns and Walnuts? For the first time that I can remember, there are no acorns or walnuts here at Stormvale. This is one feature of an unusual summer. First we had the heavy rains in June, and the record hail storm which stripped the walnut and oak trees of leaves.

I am wondering if this scarcity of acorns and walnuts is wide-spread throughout this area; whether pinions are scarce this year and what these conditions have to do with the Pinion

Jays and bears coming into the yards Early Fall Flowers and Autumn Leaves

The gold and purple autumn daisys have put on their bright colors all in a day, joining the sunflowers who have cheered us all through the late summer. The box elder, first of the leaves to turn fall color, have just in one day brought us a flash of light gold. All among the river trees the woodbine climbing up the cliffs by the wayside has added its crimson to the color harmony of the season.

Clouds Drift Away

Now about an hour after noon, the wind has changed and is blowing from the South; the cloud cover is fading from the sky, as the sun shines through casting the green world below into a dreamy half-light of sunshine and shadow. The air turns warm and fragrant with the incense of the first of the turning leaves and the perfume of the wild flowers of the hillside and mountain meadow.

As you listen to the call of the Robin and the Dove echoing from the hillside, you inhale the life-giving mountain air; and you feel your heart beat high with the pride and joy of life.

Let us send up a prayer of thanks to our Good Lord, for a glorious summer, and the arrival of early fall, and all our many blessings.

One step in a journey that may have no end

In that great Broadway musical "The King and I," Yul Brynner (the king) had one heckuva time figuring out what America was all about as he sought to bring his Kingdom of Siam into the modern (then very much Victorian) world.

Many Ruidosans are feeling some of the same confusion these days as they find themselves drowning in the excess created by another, considerably more modern, society. If you don't believe it, join the bears in checking out the overloaded dumpsters almost everywhere in the village, but don't—like the bears—scatter what you find.

It's worth noting that the multi-government Solid Waste Authority is attacking the problem—and would like to do more if more funds were available. Compounding the issue, naturally, is a federal government that mandates almost everything that impacts the environment; i.e., the need for hauling Ruidoso's solid waste to an Alamogordo land-fill.

The inter-government authority has spent considerable money in adding to removal capabilities, and that should help in the long run. But that does little to impress residents and visitors whose eyes are assaulted by overflowing dumpsters...especially with Aspenfest just two weeks away, and with it another influx of people wanting to see the beauties of Ruidoso. We have considerable sympathy for those people, and the Solid Waste Authority.

We would, however, suggest that it's time for a cooperative, community-wide clean-up within the next 10 days along the highways and in the villages.

As to the long-term, absolutely perfect solid waste solution in our modern world, we agree with the King of Siam — "Is a puzzlement!"

Letters to the Editor

Dumpsters at the heart of Ruidoso's 'bear problem'

TO THE EDITOR:

I was angered and insulted by the article about bears in last Monday's paper.

To suggest, as Ron Moore did, that the citizens of our town are responsible for bears having to be killed or relocated, because we "lure" them to town, is ludicrous! I think the city is responsible for "luring" the bears to town due to the lack of concern and/or initiative to secure the dumpsters around Ruidoso.

My neighborhood has been trashed — literally — for most of this past summer, not because people are feeding the bears, but because the bears are helping themselves to easily accessible dumpsters. What would it take for the city to put some sort of clasp or locking device on the dumpsters around town? A little extra money? A few extra man hours? More than it costs to send five or six people out to "dispose" of a bothersome bear? I doubt it!

Even if some people are baiting the bears, the problem would be minimal if the bears weren't initially baited by open dumpsters. We should take our cues from places like Yellowstone National Park, where they have had "bear proof" dumpsters for years. Even the dumpsters on Cedar Creek should be a good example of how "bear proofing" works. Once clips and chains were installed on those dumpsters, there were virtually no more bear problems this summer.

What angered me about the article is the fact that people are "freaking out" about the bears that do come to town. Why call Animal Control just because a bear wanders through your yard? What not get out the camera instead of the gun? I personally find it thrilling every time I see a bear, and I have seen plenty over the past few months! They want nothing to do with humans and are only interested in finding food. A yell or a loud noise will send them quickly away. To think that some sick people get their "jollies" from shooting bears in residential neighborhoods is really scary!

We are lucky to live in an area where we are surrounded by wildlife on a year-round basis. We all need to be more responsible for our trash and our actions, and the city needs to set the standard.

Sincerely,

Stacy A. Gude
Ruidoso

Thanks to Jarrell; no thanks to bear baiters

TO THE EDITOR:

Two things have been on my mind lately.

First, I want to thank Frankie Jarrell for the years that she devoted to the newspaper and the community. No one who is in the public eye, as she has been, can expect to please all the people all the time. However, I think the majority of people in Ruidoso appreciate her fairness and dedication to accurately reporting the news in and around Ruidoso. The news is not always pretty, but the public has a right to know what's going on, pretty or not. Ms. Jarrell devoted much more of her time and energy to the newspaper than most editors would have. She didn't do it for the money, you can bet. I know because I worked at the newspaper at one time and I know how little it pays. She did it because she is a devoted journalist who did the best job she could to accurately and professionally report the news. I'm reminded of the old adage that you don't appreciate what you've got until it's gone. I hope the next editor will be as dedicated as Ms. Jarrell.

Next, the problems the bears are having this year are really beginning to rub me the wrong way. I'm curious every time I read the police report in the paper and see all the calls concerning bear sightings. This is the forest and bears live here. I've seen bears more days than not this summer, sometimes up the street at Swiss Chalet (eating out of the open dumpsters). I've never felt the urge to call and bother the police dispatchers every time I see a bear.

I realize that there is always the possibility that a bear will cause a problem that needs to be handled by the police or the game and fish department, but I doubt that those cases occur very often.

Let's face it folks, you live in the forest and there are bears here. They've always been here. We've been hearing from Ron Moore all summer that we need to be responsible. If you care about the bears and don't want them endangered, don't bait them. If you want to try to keep them out of your yard, do your best to keep dog food, garbage, etc., in the house. If you don't want them in your house, make sure you have sturdy doors and windows and close them after dark. And if, every time you see a bear, you get hysterical and run for your gun or call 911, then I think you should consider moving to the desert.

Nature of political union returns to agenda

by HAL RHODES

SUNMOUNT SYNDICATE
ALBUQUERQUE—Last week some 600 New Mexicans—most of them, at least—gathered at Albuquerque's Convention Center and resurrected one of the enduring controversies in our national history: the nature of the political union which binds these United States.

Orchestrated by a "Christian Patriot" from Florida and a Colorado Republican legislator who advocates the "sovereignty" of the states over the federal government, it was a decidedly Far Right affair. And its policy agenda was irreducibly anti-anti-women's right to choose, anti-environmentalist, anti-Washington, anti-you-name-it. And its battle cries, "Take Back our Country" and "Wake Up America," were little more than parodies of those which have allied the Righteous throughout the American experience.

But as its paramount issue the group chose the battered but ever-resilient doctrine of "States' Rights." Specifically its Florida and Colorado leaders urged all those in attendance to pressure the next Legislature to pass what is called a "Resolution for State Sovereignty." Such resolutions have already passed legislatures in Hawaii, Missouri, and California. Their purpose, proponents say, is to venerate the authority of the national government by "returning constitutional sovereignty" to the states which, they claim, was the Founding Fathers' intent.

The Founders assembled in Philadelphia in 1787 precisely to divest the states of their sovereignty, then enrobed in the Articles of Confederation, by creating a federal union with vast authority delegated to the national government under the new Constitution. Those powers not vested in the national government were reserved to the states.

Despite their flawed reading of American constitutional history, the "Wake Up America" group deserves thanks for inviting us to revisit one of the most fundamental issues—and scores of dramatic controversies surrounding that issue—which has shaped the constitutional regime under which we govern ourselves.

That is the near-total abandonment by our schools, universities and mass media of serious and sustained explorations into the subject of U.S. constitutional history. It is now possible in many states for a young person to graduate from high school without ever having taken a course in American civics.

That is central to the successful function of the system of popular government we have inherited. The American states are not sovereign, have not been for over 200 years and can no longer be made so. Never mind legislative resolutions.

The year was 1819. The case, McCulloch v. Maryland. Therewith the U.S. Supreme Court decreed that beyond its enumerated powers, the national government was vested by the Constitution with "implied" powers, and that in relation to the states it—the national government—is supreme.

Many battles have been fought over the doctrine of national supremacy since that time, from a civil war to more recent efforts in the American South to resist federal courts' desegregation orders. Yet the principle remains indelibly fixed in our constitutional system.

MOZART ON TOUR

The music of Mozart, as performed around the world, is the focus of Mozart on Tour, a new 13-part series hosted by eminent conductor and pianist Aridre Previn.

Mozart on Tour tells the story of Mozart's travels and features a piano concerto from each period of his fertile life. Both the documentary sections and the concerto performances were filmed where Mozart lived, composed, and performed: Salzburg, London, Paris, Bologna, Munich, Frankfurt, Vienna, and Prague.

The settings for the performances include such magnificent concert sites as the Teatro Bibiena in Mantua, Schwetzingen Palace in Germany, and Schonbrunn Palace in Vienna.

Joining Maestro Previn for the concerto performances are conductors and soloists from all over the world, each one among the first rank of Mozart performers.

Mozart on Tour airs Sundays at 3:00 p.m. beginning September 25th on KENW-TV. The series repeats Tuesdays at 10:00 p.m. beginning September 27th.

In-School Instructional TV Programming begins September 19th. Many of these programs will change or end at this time.

Johnson & Johnson Is Stuck On Children's Safety.

Johnson & Johnson supports SAFE KIDS, a national program that works to prevent childhood injuries. These injuries, unfortunately, are the number-one cause of death in kids under the age of 15. However, over the past six years, SAFE KIDS has helped to reduce the number of deaths significantly. We're going to reduce that number even more by looking for SAFETY CHECKS near the front of our stores.
