Women meeting at Events Center

"Choices, Challenges and Creativity" is the theme of the 1994 Southeastern Women's Conference, billed as "a conference for women and those who care about them," at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center this weekend.

The conference begins with an evening meditation program at 7 p.m. on Friday, and continues through Saturday.

Otero and Lincoln trash groups meet

A joint meeting of the Otero County and Lincoln County solid waste authorities is set for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Civic Events Center.

On the agenda is a discussion of a fee for disposing of asbestos at the regional landfill owned by the two coalitions south of Alamogordo.

Nunley appointed to board by gov

Gov. Bruce King has appointed Lincoln County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley to the State Agency on Aging.

"I'm really pleased," Nunley said Tuesday. "I think not only can I serve the seniors of the state, but I can also positively affect the local area."

The board is advisory in nature and passes recommendations to the State Legislature on how to spend money it has allocated for senior citizens.

Parent advisory unit being formed

Ruidoso High School's Parent Advisory Committee is now forming for the 1994-95 school year. Meeting time is 7 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Ruidoso High School Meeting Room. All interested parents of high school students are urged to attend. For additional information call Karen Anderson at 257-6562 or 258-9298.

Children donate to humane shelter

The children of the Jakarta International School in Indonesia donated $125 to the Lincoln County Humane Society to sponsor dogs and cats for neutering.

The class follows the plight of the animals by reading The Ruidoso News. Teacher Deborah Harris, who has a summer home in Angus, subscribes for them and has been pleased to see the students take ideas for humane treatment of animals back to their countries.

Women just passing through, the old-fashioned way

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Three women passing through Lincoln County this week have recaptured the old days, in some ways.

They stopped to talk Wednesday as a warm breeze rustled the grass, and flies buzzed around the legs of the eight horses in the field by their covered wagon. But unlike the old days, they stopped just off of Highway 70.

The adventurers are crisscrossing the country in this horse-drawn covered wagon. They're taking a couple of days off to relax in Ruidoso before resuming their trek toward California.

Leader of the expedition is a former nurse, Finitia Medrano, who

"I see a culture worshipping a pioneer spirit. So by doing this, it allows me a format to talk to people."
— Finitia Medrano

owns the wagon. She left Council, Idaho and headed for Titusville, Florida in March of 1993.

Medrano, dressed in handmade buckskins, gives a husky laugh when asked about the purpose of traveling across the country in a covered wagon.

"Being an intelligent, thinking person, I see a culture worshipping a pioneer spirit," she said. "So by doing this, it allows me a format to talk to people."

What does Medrano want to talk to people about?

"People see what I've written on the side of the wagon in four-foot-high letters, ("Pulling for Christ, Coast to Coast"), and come up to me and ask me if I'm a Christian. I used to have a harsh response for people who asked me that but now I've mellowed a bit.

"Actually, I have an answer prepared for people who simply must have one," she said.

Pointing to the wagon she laughs again. "I have a quart of salt water from the Atlantic Ocean and I'm going to the Pacific Ocean to pour it in because I heard it was a quart low."

Medrano may have mellowed a bit, but she still shoes her own horses and packs a big iron on her hip.

Asked about some of the things she has learned during her travels, Medrano responded, "One thing I've discovered is that 90 seconds of inconvenience is enough time to drive 90 percent of the people in this country to murder."

Poetry is another of Medranos' passions. She writes prolific prose, mostly cowboy and environmental verse.

"I've found a wonderful way of life," she concluded.

Another member of the wagon crew is Emma Crosby, 33, who hails from a small town 80 miles west of London, England.

Crosby started her trek alone in Brunswick, Georgia, riding a Spanish mustang caught in the wilds of Nevada.

She met Medrano about three weeks ago and joined up with the covered wagon.

"I'm just here for a laugh, for a good time," she said. "I'd already been across the United States twice in a pickup truck and I decided to do it differently this time.

"I like horseback riding and didn't want to end up a little old lady sitting in my rocking chair regretting what I didn't do," Crosby added.

Crosby plans to return to England in March, get a job and make enough money to come back to the United States.

Mescaleros enraged by state's flyers

Mailings oppose nuclear storage

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A one-page flyer covering the possible hazards of storing nuclear spent fuel rods and published by

"It is unethical and probably illegal."

— Fred Peso, tribe vice president the State Department of Health has been mailed to about 800 Mescalero residents.

The Mescalero Apache tribal council has been working toward construction of a temporary storage facility for radioactive waste from power companies for the past three years and recently, entered into a partnership with 35 utilities.

"We simply wanted to give people information and to tell them they have different options and should think and talk about it," said Carolyn Hutchinson, public information officer for the state health department. Department officials decided to send the flyers, "because we think this could be considered a health issue," she said.

However, Fred Peso, vice president of the Mescalero tribe said the pamphlet is an inappropriate attempt to turn members against their own tribe.

"In an apparent attempt to influence a tribal election and turn members against their own tribe, the state...recently filled the post office boxes of Mescalero Apache Tribal members with copies of an inflammatory pamphlet purportedly explaining spent fuel rods as a health issue.

"The propriety of this pamphlet is questionable, considering that the tribe soon will schedule a referendum on whether the Mescalero should pursue a proposal to create a spent nuclear fuel storage facility on tribal lands. This referendum is the tribal members' opportunity to voice their feelings on the proposal; the tribe has the final say on whether the project goes through, not the governor of New Mexico."

John McKean, Gov. Bruce King's spokesman, said the flyer and its emphasis on the dangers of such storage shouldn't surprise anyone.

"We didn't approve the flyer in advance, but we did receive a copy of it," he said. "There shouldn't be any surprise about that (sending the flyers). The state of New Mexico fervently opposes storage of spent fuel rods. We think it's a bad idea.

Flyer — Road to nuclear fuel rods storage won't be short

A good part of the governor's opposition is based on the threat to the health and safety of the state's citizens."

Hutchinson said she did not have the actual cost of the publication and mailing, but termed the expense "very minimal."

Peso said King shouldn't be using tax dollars to pursue his personal political agendas.

"It is unethical and probably illegal," Peso said. "If the (health department) is concerned about public safety, why wasn't this flier mailed to the residents of Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Los Alamos and Alamogordo, where the federal government operates reactors and stores spent fuel?"

Peso said the pamphlet is an attack on the Mescalero tribe and its sovereignty as a nation, and "is designed to raise fears and questions about the tribe's spent fuel storage proposal, without providing any information about the proposal itself."

"It contains a biased, unbalanced viewpoint, using rhetoric, not facts."

Peso said the pamphlet contains inaccuracies.

"For example, the flier expressed concern about transportation risks from the several hundred rod shipments, which don't begin to approach the number of nuclear material shipments that move in and out of New Mexico annually," he said.

"It also uses demeaning caricatures on the cover... Inside are silly poems. The tribe considers these pictures and poems condescending in approach."

"The tribe sees this pamphlet as driven by political, rather than health concerns. It does not list any health agency phone number or contact person for information."

Peso contended the pamphlet "is the latest in a string of anti-Indian activities by...King" and noted that the governor vetoed several bills in 1993 related to tribal economic development.

The site currently proposed is in the Three Rivers area of the reservation in Otero County, at the western foot of the Sacramento Mountain.

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A long and complicated road lies ahead for those proposing to bring spent nuclear fuel rods to the Mescalero Apache reservation outside of Ruidoso.

Members of the Radioactive and Hazardous Materials Committee of the State Legislature heard some of the technical details of the process during a meeting in Ruidoso Thursday.

Chairman Tom Rutherford, a state senator and Democrat from Bernalillo, explained that its role has expanded from its original task of dealing only with the Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP), an underground repository near Carlsbad for waste produced by the defense industry.

The situation with the Mescalero is perplexing to members, he said.

"The state over the years has become used to a fairly active role of participation at WIPP, including working with an environmental evaluation group, and assistance from the federal government for highway and training of health care workers."

"The problem here is a little different, because we're dealing with someone other than the federal government and because the relationship is not clearly defined with the sovereignty of the Native Americans."

"I know you don't want it (storage)," Rutherford said. "I don't want it. The issue now is how to get a handle on it, so that we can deal with it, to assist it I suppose, if they want to do that."

To get that handle, the state is relying on the Radioactive and Hazardous Waste Materials Act, passed in 1981, that says no person shall store or dispose of radioactive waste or spent fuel until the state has concurred in the creation of a disposal facility, except where specifically preempted by federal law.

Charles Haughney, chief of the storage and transport systems branch of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), provided the technical data for the morning session. He assured State Rep. H. John Underwood, D-Ruidoso, that Indian sovereignty won't allow them to bypass rules.

"Absolutely not," Haughney said. "They'll be subject to all regulations. They can't go this alone. They're part of the United States."

No one from Mescalero or Northern State Utilities, one of 35 partners of the Apache in the siting process, has contacted his branch, Haughney said.

"The licensing process hasn't started. We've had no meetings with the consortium and no discussions with them. We really don't even know who they are," he said. "Nonetheless, when the licensing process is underway and we meet with the applicant, all those meetings are open to the public. Some will be here and some in Washington, D.C. and some could be in other locations."

Meeting summaries will be available through his office and will be placed in a local library, he said.

"If it is licensed for construction, we almost certainly would establish an inspector on site and he would continue well into receipt of the material," he said.

When an application is received, a notice is published in the Federal Register. Formal open hearings will be scheduled, if requested.

ROBERT LIGHT

"Local residents and government entities would have standing to be included, but they must have reasonable contentions that something is wrong," he said. "A contention is a matter in controversy and something not easily dismissed."

While that process is underway, the NRC staff will start a review of the safety analysis and an environmental report, which will be used in the writing of an environmental impact statement.

A three-judge panel hears the issues and renders the decisions. The five member (NRC) commission has first appeal rights and beyond that, the federal courts.

"That's the licensing process," Haughney said. "We also have a quality assurance program identical to applications for reactor plants."

After five years in cool storage ponds, the heat produced by the material has been reduced enough to be moved to dry casks, Haughney said. Most will be submerged 10 years or more before being transferred into casks while still under water.

Although the heat production declines, the radioactivity remains lethal for thousands of years.

"You can't handle this material directly," he said of the transfer process. "You can't even come close to it. That's why shielding is a crucial part of the design."

"I think the thing that bothers people is that they have this vision that a reactor accident that could occur at a working reactor might occur in one of these storage casks, but this is a completely different world," he said. "The place when the fuel rods are most likely to become a reactor is while they are in the water, not dry storage. But the design criteria is specifically designed to prevent that."

The NRC may soon certify a dual-purpose cask for storage and transport, which would eliminate the need for fuel handling on site, reducing the chance for accidents and fuel exposure, Haughney said.

"When loaded, a cask weighs 125 tons, so even a slight drop would cause the force to be reflected back into the assembly," he said.

A fuel bundle is nine inches square and 10 feet high. The standard cask holds 24 bundles in a cylindrical canister of one inch thick steel. The surrounding cement structure can accept the cask in a vertical or horizontal position, depending on the design.

In response to questions from State Rep. Ramon Huerta, D-Bernalillo, Haughney said the shield consists of 24-30 inches of concrete and 12 inches of steel. Two steel lids seal the cask.

"There are no dual-purpose casks yet. There are transportation casks, but only a handful," Haughney said. "If we're going to do this, the nation needs a new transport fleet and I'm just starting to get applications for that."

"One of most important things are the pre-operational conditions and testing with dry runs to find flaws," he said. "As a result, we haven't had a problem with actual loading. I will specifically require that as part of the license."

State Rep. Robert S. Light, a Democrat from Carlsbad whose constituents live with WIPP, asked Haughney to explain the urgency for interim storage.

"A lot of people feel interim storage can go away, if the power plants keep spent fuel rods on site. What is the federal government's responsibility to take it off site (by 1988)?" he asked.

"It's pretty murky," Haughney said. "Without the operating repository (planned for Yucca Mountain, Nevada) there is bound to be uncertainty."

"Let's look 50 years from now and all reactors are shut down. Say there is no repository. I would argue from the standpoint of operation practicality, and even from safety, it would be in the national interest to have a smaller number of sites, say 70, storing fuel," he said.

"In my personal view, the concentration of material makes sense, especially because of the dwindling supply of people qualified to handle it. It doesn't have anything to do with the 1998 argument." But he added, "It doesn't sound like a productive undertaking to me to try to find off site (sites), where people don't want it stored."

In speaking against the Mescalero project, Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw told committee members that tourism and nuclear fuel storage don't mix.

"We had some concerns about tourism, but it (WIPP) doesn't seem to provide anything more than curiosity," Light said, noting that Carlsbad is visited by one million tourists a year. "Granted there is no waste there yet, but people are interested in knowing what's going on.

"We've had no ill effects," he said. "I don't want to say your evaluation is wrong."

Shaw, who also heads a regional information committee on nuclear waste storage, told Light, "I appreciate that your council collectively agreed this was good for your economy in Carlsbad. We collectively do not believe it is good for our economy in Ruidoso."

"I have to believe it would be harmful to the area, if in no other way than psychologically."

Former prison employee voices training criticisms

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Criticism by a former employee that training has been neglected for staff at Camp Sierra Blanca minimum security prison was answered Tuesday by warden Sandra McFadin.

The camp also has received community criticism recently in the wake of the escape of six prisoners.

Since she was appointed about a year ago, heavy emphasis has been placed on training in an effort to be accredited by the American Corrections Association, McFadin said.

She said all personnel at the camp receive 40 hours of additional training each year. Most of the training is provided by the Corrections Academy in Santa Fe, but some may be in the form of special courses such as resuscitation techniques.

"The academy is free to us. Why wouldn't I take advantage of it?" McFadin said. "We've had lots of training, although it's very hard on us to send people there, because of the shortage of staff."

"They came here just before July (for training), because we had to have 40 hours for everyone by a deadline."

Former employee Michael J. Pumphrey said that in his 10 years at the prison, he received little training.

He said the lack of training was pointed out to McFadin when she took over and she told the staff more emphasis would be placed on that aspect. Pumphrey said he doubted if that pledge ever was fulfilled. He resigned shortly after McFadin came on board.

But McFadin said she did carry through and made sure that her staff received the training required under the State Department of Corrections Policy and Procedures.

Alan Shuman, academy director, said it's up to a warden to schedule in-service classes on site with the academy or send staff to already scheduled courses. All officers received a seven-week certification course when they are hired.

"Camp Sierra Blanca and Roswell don't have staff development specialists and will usually send people for short courses or will have us come down," he said. "They can supplement with local conferences or other agencies and colleges."

Shuman said he isn't aware of the camp's training history.

"It's been isolated over the years, otherwise I would say there would be no way (training was not given)," he said. "I know on occasion we have gone there, but our main mission is to train them here."

McFadin said training includes dealing with manipulative inmates, the games criminals play, stress management and many other topics.

Her sergeants and lieutenants must take an additional 80 hours in management, she said. "It's the department's goal that every corrections institution in the state be accredited. The camp, Roswell and the penitentiary in Santa Fe are not. Taking 40 hours a year in training is one of those requirements."

Big Gold Wing win

Patricia Williams tries out the seat of the 1994 Gold Wing Interstate she and husband Ronald Williams won at the Golden Aspen motorcycle rally last weekend. The bike was donated by Hacienda Motorcycle of Safford, Ariz.

The couple decided to ship their old bike back home to Portage, Mich., and enjoy the four-day ride the way they came out — together. This was their first trip to New Mexico and the rally.

Room running out at Ruidoso's eternal resting place

by JOANNA DODDER
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

If you plan to stay in Ruidoso for the rest of eternity, you'd better pick your burial site within the next few years.

Ruidoso's public cemetery is likely to be full within six years, says Debbie Jo Almager, director of the Village of Ruidoso's parks and recreation department.

Approximately 1,750 people have been buried at the village cemetery on Mechem Drive, dating back only to the early 1950s. Almager has calculated that no more plots will be available for purchase in six years, because an average of 73 plots are sold each year (about half those are burials) and there's about 430 lots left. Many of those lots stand alone, too, while buyers often want two adjoining lots.

Almager oversees the cemetery operations. It's uncommon for a municipal government to own a cemetery, and it's even more uncommon for the parks and rec department to run it. Village officials figured that department already has equipment for lawn maintenance, so parks and rec took over operations last year.

In preparing for a revised 10-year master plan for her department, Almager came up with the above figures. There hasn't been much talk about what the village will do when the cemetery runs out of space.

"We need to address it pretty soon, because I want to finish the master plan by the end of the year," Almager said.

A public hearing on the parks 10-year plan will be on Oct. 4, and the subject may come up at that time.

The cost of maintaining the cemetery may come up, too, because the village subsidizes the costs to a large extent. The village budgeted $38,000 last year.

Maintenance is often time-consuming: it takes six full-time people three weeks to remove fallen pine needles as required by the citizen's oversight board, and it takes two or three people a week to mow the lawn.

An adult can purchase a burial lot for $300, plus a $200 digging cost on weekdays. Almager says the village would have to charge a total of $1,000 to cover its costs. Three years ago, lots cost only $150.

"We're still the cheapest in town," Almager confirms.

While this may be a morbid subject for some, Almager takes her new duties in stride. However, she had no preparation for the job.

"I got my BA and Master's in recreation, but not in cemetery lots," she cracks.

Her only experience comes from her family, and that's pretty limited. Her father likes to visit cemeteries and look at the names on headstones, but she never paid much attention to the shapes of the gravestones until now. Many are quite beautiful, she says as she points out a marker made from a tree trunk. Others tell a story, such as the number of military markers for Vietnam veterans.

Almager then relates how her grandfather spent $45,000 on an elaborate headstone for his wife, one with a rosary and bench that was shipped from Italy.

In recent months, Almager has also become much more educated about people's idiosyncrasies when they're picking out a gravesite for a loved one. One person may want a plot between trees, yet in the sun, while another wants one completely shaded. While picking out a plot for a loved one, people inevitably start thinking about where they themselves might want to be buried, Almager says.

The site where the majority of lots are left, in the northwest corner, is not the most popular with buyers, but Almager thinks it's a pretty area.

Local residents tend to want to be buried in town, although other cemeteries exist in the valley. Many people with summer homes also choose to be buried here, too.

Some people change their minds. "We had this one person actually put up a 'for sale' sign on it, and he sold it," Almager relates.

Once the loved one is buried, different people have different idiosyncrasies, too. Some plant unusual things, or erect rock walls. As a maintenance time-saving measure, this won't be allowed in the northwest corner.

No more dogs are allowed to be buried with their loving owners, either (two have been buried there in the past).

Almager says she's only been spooked once in the cemetery. Employees called to tell her they hit something hard in a plot that was supposed to be empty after a woman moved her dead husband. They wanted Almager to check it out, and she wasn't too thrilled.

She arrived to find that a previous digging crew just put planks down and covered them with dirt when they dug the man up, to save time when they redug the hole.

Other than that, Almager doesn't find cemeteries spooky or morbid any more.

"It's really peaceful, actually," Almager says.

No burning in Downs

Residents of the Village of Ruidoso Downs will be unable to burn lawns or trash beginning this Saturday, Oct. 1, because of the new no-burn ordinance passed by the Village Council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The ordinance states that "it shall be unlawful for any person to set a fire or to cause or procure a fire to be set to any trash, refuse, inflammable vegetation or forest material, or to any other flammable substance on his own land or that of another person."

Ordinance violators could face a misdemeanor charge and a $300 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

Special burning permits may be considered by the Board of Trustees at regularly scheduled meetings.

In other business, a village hall telephone system bid for $6,547 from G.T.E. was accepted, and laptop computer for Police Chief David Hightower was approved.

Joanna Dodder/The Ruidoso News

Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Director Debbie Jo Almager surveys the space behind her that's left for new burials at Forest Lawn Cemetery. The cemetery contains many unique grave markers that tell stories about loved ones.

Women's conference debates three 'C's'

"Choices, Challenges and Creativity" is the theme of the third annual Southeastern Women's Conference scheduled this weekend at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

Billed as "A conference for women and those who care about them," the event will begin at 7 p.m. Friday with a session of guided meditation and deep relaxation presented by tia Beal, an integrative Yoga therapist.

Beal will also present a two hour seminar on the various forms of meditation and other self-regulatory activities from 2:45-4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Those planning to attend may register by phone (257-2120), and additional information is available from Karen Morris at 258-5290.

Morris noted that this conference, the third in Ruidoso, is more of a "home-grown" affair, demonstrating the knowledge and background of Ruidosans.

It's also open to men—"those who care about (women)"—for the first time.

A registration fee is charged, but Morris noted that partial registration is possible at lower cost.

Those attending the conference will hear presentations on such topics as "Women's Unique Health Needs," "Women in Transition," and "High Altitude Gardening and Cooking."

A panel discussion on educational choices for children (public schools and home schools) will be led by Dr. James P. Miller, with both state board of education and state home school association representation.

Keynote speaker for the conference is Diane Denish, who ran for lieutenant governor in the last primary election and owns the Target Group, which specializes in market surveys and fund-raising for non-profit organizations.

Denish will be sharing her "New Mexico Roots" and how to play the "Balancing Game" of career-woman/wife/mother. She will be speaking from 8:45-9:45 a.m. on Saturday.

Also speaking at the conference will be native Ruidosan Denese Watkins, who will present a workshop titled "When I Grow Up I Want To Be Me!"

DENESE WATKINS

The workshop will be from 1-2:30 p.m. on Saturday, with an emphasis on learning to simply "be," rather than always trying to "do."

Free blood screening, many exhibits, and a luncheon and fashion show are also part of the conference. It is presented by the Southern Women's Conference Committee through the Eastern New Mexico University Ruidoso Instructional Center, and The Altrusa Club of Ruidoso.

Parents offered help

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The frustrations of dealing with parenthood oftentimes seem overwhelming, and unfortunately children don't come with a set of instructions.

Helping parents deal with these frustrations is one goal of a new free program in Ruidoso called Parents As Teachers (PAT).

Funded through a grant from the federal Individuals with Disabilities Act, alongside local school district funds, PAT is presently limited to five families.

Because the program is in its infancy, organizers are seeking volunteer instructors, who will receive three weeks of training.

PAT director Pat Sullivan, a Nob Hill Elementary school teacher, is coordinating the beginnings of the program.

"People who are interested in becoming PAT certified parent teachers fill out an application," she said, "After the application is approved, they are sent to a one-week training session at an active PAT site."

PAT is based on the concept that experiences in the beginning years of a child's life are critical in laying the foundation for school and life success, and that parents, as children's first teachers, are their most influential ones.

The program is designed to provide parents of children, from before birth to age three, the information and support they need to give their children the best possible start in life.

Nationwide success of PAT inspired Peter Jennings of ABC news to do a story on national television several months ago.

"We really want families to apply for the program," said Sullivan, "The more interest we receive, the more funding we may be able to justify."

According to Sullivan, PAT will work closely with Gayla Starnaland, local coordinator for the Graduation, Reality, and Dual-Role Skills (GRADS) program. GRADS is an in-school program for pregnant teens and young parents.

"It seemed natural to work with GRADS because they have families lined up who could benefit from the PAT program," Sullivan said.

One source of volunteers for PAT may be the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). RSVP Director Sandee Dutchover said she is working closely with Sullivan to line up volunteers for the PAT program.

Because of their life experience, the purpose of RSVP is to get seniors back into the community, Dutchover said.

"Our senior volunteers must be 55 years or older," Dutchover said. "We try to find places for our volunteers all over town and for the PAT program we hope to find seniors interested in working with kids."

Seniors who are interested in volunteering for the PAT program should contact Sandee Dutchover at 257-4556. Others willing to volunteer, or who would like to receive the program's services, may call Pat Sullivan at 257-9041 or 354-2664.

The Silver Lining

Memorial services were held September twenty-sixth at Church of the Holy Mount for Henry Alden Deyo, who was called home by Our Lord on September twenty-first.

The Reverend John W. Penn welcomed the congregation to the celebration of the life of Henry Alden Deyo. The opening hymn was "When Morning Gilds the Skies."

Father John then recited the following prayer: "Oh God of Grace and Glory, we remember before You this day our brother, Henry. We thank you for giving him to us, his family and friends, to know and to love as a companion on our earthly pilgrimage. In Your boundless compassion, console us who mourn. Give us faith to see in death the gate of eternal life, so that in quiet confidence we may continue our course on earth, until, by Your call, we are united with those who have gone on before; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Lay Reader Dr. Ronald Annala read from the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Romans: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."

Also from the Gospel According to Saint

by Daniel Agnew Storm

ington; and their daughter, Janet Pugh of Madison, Wisconsin.

Janet thanked everyone present for their kind and faithful friendship extended all these years to her mother and father.

Father John read the following prayer:

"Lord Jesus Christ we commend to you our brother Henry, who was reborn by water and the Spirit in Holy Baptism.

"Grant that his death may recall to us Your victory over death, and be an occasion for us to renew our trust in your Father's love.

"Give us, we pray, the faith to follow where You have lead the way, and where You live and reign with the Father and the Holy Spirit, to the ages of ages.

John: "I go to prepare a place for you...that where I am there you may be also."

The choir sang a choral anthem, "Glorious Things of Thee are Spoken." Father John led the congregation in reciting the Twenty-Third Psalm: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want..."

A Deeply Spiritual Man

Father John, in the Homily traced the outstanding career of Henry and said that he was "a learner" with a wide knowledge of many subjects including history; and that he was most of all a very spiritual man.

Members of the congregation welcomed Henry and Jane Deyo's son, of Seattle, Wash-

The Aspen Tree for many years has been a special spot in Ruidoso.

Most of us knew Henry by his middle name, Alden. Jane and Alden have long been one of our most favorite couples, and it was always a joy to visit their Aspen Tree.

Capitan mauls Loving Falcons Tigers rank at top in state Single A football poll

Continuing its undefeated season, Capitan tore into the Loving Falcons Friday, defeating the Single A state champions for the first time since 1987 with a 28-14 win.

Coach Ed David said the Tiger defense became a key factor in the game by holding Loving to only four first downs and 18 yards rushing.

The Tigers proved more active on the ground, piling up 240 yards rushing and only 48 yards passing. The Falcons took flight with 123 yards passing.

Josh Peralta scored the first TD on a 10-yard run and quarterback Michael Fish worked double duty to send the extra point home. Fish finished out the first quarter with a 32 yard field goal.

Multi-threat Fish was back on the scene in the third quarter with a 10-yard run TD, plus putting away the extra point.

Neil Montes finished up the Tigers' scoring spree with a 15-yard run. The extra point failed.

Although Capitan was ranked number one over Fort Sumner in polls released earlier this week, Davis dismissed their impact.

"No one knows about the ranking," he said. "That all is a bunch of sports writers who think they know what they are talking about."

Capitan will meet the Texico Wolverines Friday at home. Davis urged residents to come out and show their support for this young, tough team.

The junior high Tigers also turned in a winning performance last week against the Ruidoso Warriors on home turf.

James Tracey scored the first touchdown in the drive to the final score of 28-12.

After Tracey's tremendous rushing play, Andrew Longbotham scored the second TD and at half time, the Tigers were purring with a 12-6 lead.

Two more touchdowns followed in the second half on pass plays, first with Raymond Harris plowing into end zone and then Graydon Silva. Ruidoso also scored in the second half, but it wasn't enough to conquer the Tigers, who exited the field with a 3-1 season record.

Klay Jones and Bobby Ray Silva, Capitan sports reporters with the gifted program, contributed to this report.

Tigers score in v'ball tourney

The Capitan Classic started out grim for the Tigers, who turned in lackluster performances and lost all of their three pool matches.

But their opponents soon learned not to be lulled by a false sense of confidence when the Tigers decided to play for real. In the first game Friday, Capitan faced Fort Sumner, losing 14-16, but rebounded to win the match three games to one with scores of 15-4, 15-5 and 15-7.

The win thrust Capitan onto the positive side of the bracket, pitted against the defending Class Four state champions from Roy.

The Tigers came to play Saturday, defeating Roy for the match by three games to one with scores of 15-10, 15-9, 16-18 and 15-7.

Coach Pam Allen said the Tigers played their best team game of the year.

"We were alert and anticipated Roy's offensive attempts to score," she said.

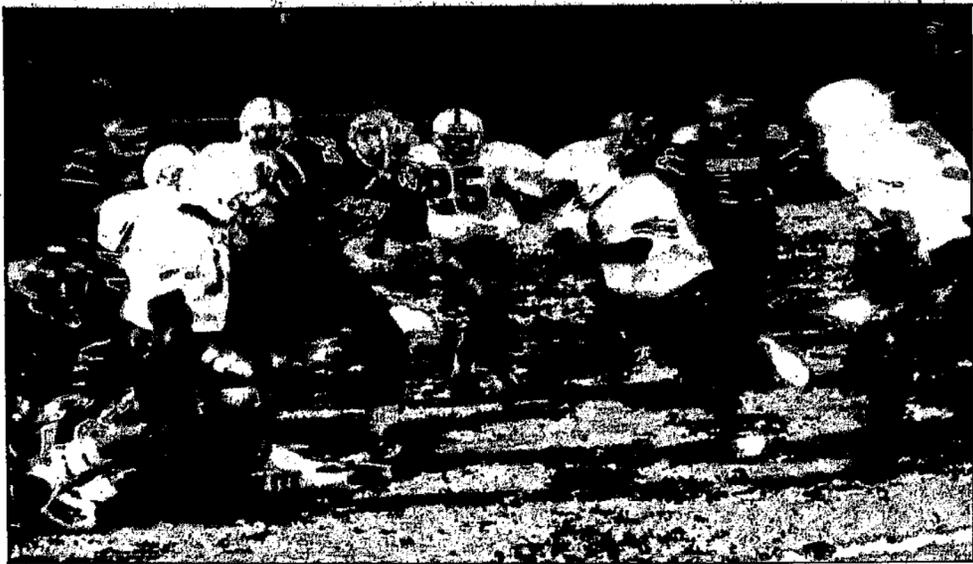

The Tigers advanced to the championship round against the Grady Broncos that night. The Broncos proved tough opponents, turning in close games, but not tough enough to trample the Tigers.

Capitan claimed game one 17-15 with Jessica Cline serving the last two points. Game two went the Tigers' way 15-12. Grady started to roll in game three, defeating the Tigers 13-15, but nothing could stop Capitan's own as they roped the Broncos and championship 15-

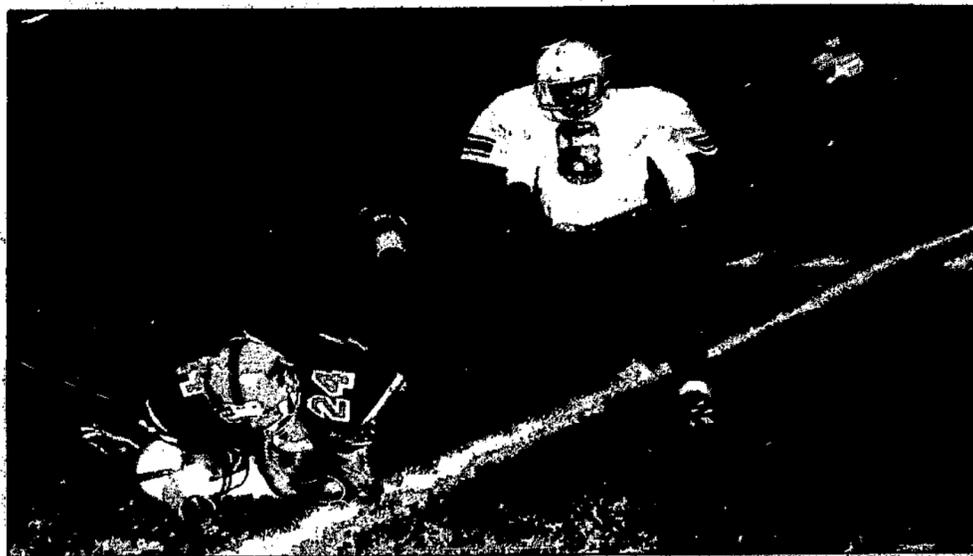

10. Cline, Catherine Sidwell, Sheryl Dockery and foreign exchange student Elaine Pichiliani were named to the All-Tournament Team. The Tigers' season record is 7-1.

The eighth grade Tigers lost a tough match against Tularosa last week. Tularosa came on strong in the first game, winning 15-17. The Tigers regrouped and started serving, wiping out the roses 15-0. But they couldn't keep up the momentum and Tulie came back to beat them 15-6. Erin Autrey served 14 points in the second game.

Heather Wooddell, Amanda Bird and K'rin Autrey, Capitan sports reporters with the gifted program, contributed to this report.

Junior Josh Peralta was all over the field last Friday against the Loving Falcons. At top, he's about to be buried by the Falcon defense. At bottom, it's a touchdown drive.

Volleyball team leaves Artesia dry

Remarkable flexibility by Heather Stover, with solid help from Amber Livingston and Angelica Figueroa, resulted in a Ruidoso High varsity volleyball victory over host Artesia Tuesday night.

Coach Janie Roland cited Stover's dual role as center and hitter in one rotation to pull a win out in a match that went four games, 15-13, 15-9, 3-15 and 17-14.

Coach Roland commented that the girls "went flat" in that third game, or "maybe they were hungry." Livingston during the match served seven in a row and tallied a variety of kills, digs and blocks.

They, along with Figueroa and Lindsay Willard, provided strong hits throughout.

The junior varsity fared less well, going 7-16, 15-5 and 12-15, but Coach Roland lauded their effort. She noted that two Jayvee players, Heidi Streck and Kristy Donaldson also played with the varsity in their winning effort.

Jeff Chapman helped the Ruidoso Warriors team to a second-place finish in the Scorpion Fall Invitational Golf Tournament at Farmington's Pinon Hills Golf Course last week. The Farmington Scorpions, who are favored to win the AAAA state championship, took first. The Warriors' Eric Stephens finished second individually with an excellent 80 over New Mexico's top-rated course.

Braves fall to Tigers, look ahead to Bobcats

The Ruidoso Middle School Braves fell to 2-2 on the season with a 28-14 loss to the Capitan Tigers Thursday.

The Braves scoring came on a 88-yard touchdown pass from Corey Saenz to Garvin Grant on the opening drive and a second-half run.

"Despite playing a larger team, we didn't give up. Without a couple of long passes we're certainly in the game. I feel good about the way the kids played and acted, and I see a lot of improvement," said Coach Borde Williams after the game.

The Braves will play the Hagerman Bobcats Thursday at 6 p.m. at W. D. Horton Stadium.

While the Braves were having trouble in Capitan, the Warrior Freshman squad was manhandling the Dexter Demons at home, 35-0.

quarters, making for a nail-biting overtime finish.

The Ruidoso 9th grade football team followed up an impressive 12-point double overtime tie with Portales by trouncing Dexter in a home game Thursday, Sept. 22. The recent victory now places the local freshman club at 1-2-1 on the year.

The record is a bit misleading, however. The team has improved significantly throughout its four games this season. In the opening game, the team matched up well defensively with a considerable Alamogordo crew in Alamo. The defensive play of Justin Brown and Seth Bassett, particularly, stood out in the contest. However, Ruidoso failed to generate much on the offensive side of the ball, coming out on the short end of the score after only a 6-0 deficit early in the 4th quarter.

The following match-up with Socorro's mix of JV and freshman players ended in a respectable, though disappointing 12-6 defeat for the young Warriors on their second road trip in as many weeks. Jason Lopez effectively guided the offense at quarterback, as Keanan Zuazua proved more than reliable at tailback behind an improving line led by Joe Bob Rainey and captains Moose Stewart and Andy Schrader.

At home against a sizable Portales group, game number three could have been a disaster for the squad due to several injuries and fewer bodies at practices throughout the week, but the freshmen met the challenge effectively with noteworthy performances by Thomas Lapaz, Clint Ratliff, Micah Destefano and Jihad Kansou. The contest went 0-0 through four

With the overtime opportunity to score on four downs from the opponents' ten yard line, Portales chose to go on offense to begin the first extra period. The Warriors' goal line defense held for several downs before surrendering a score, and the squad rallied to deny the Rams their point after touchdown.

Ruidoso then scored on the third down off a pass from Lopez to Jake Graham to tie and send the game into a second overtime.

Portales scored quickly to once again put the burden on the Warrior offense. Following losses on first and second downs, and an incomplete pass in the end zone on third, the team was faced with a do-or-die 4th down.

The inspired frosh group subsequently tossed a "hook and lateral" pass play from Lopez to Graham, with Graham pitching to Zuazua to score. The PAT was blocked, but the Rams decided they'd had enough, calling the game a draw. Though a tie in the record book, it was seen as a victory for the home team.

Defense has been a strong suit for the young Warriors all season and that trend continued in the recent shut-out over the freshman Dexter Demons. Time and again over the course of four games the squad has come up with big goal line stands, playing tough when it really counted.

Johnny Adams sparked the defense vs. Dexter by accounting for a big interception. The offense complimented even more this time around by scoring four touchdowns against the Demons — two attributed to newly acquired tailback Levi Price, and two by wingback Graham (both off of the arm of QB Lopez).

Special teams play was additionally equal to the task by returning a blocked punt for a touchdown, while kicker Andy Schrader converted on all five PATs.

Impressive play by Bill Rice and improving Andy Cano on the line, as well as more playing time by Tyler Cluff, Jose Cordova, Ronnie Wright and Casey Link in the backfield aided in the big win.

The freshmen Warriors will be playing Fabens in Las Cruces this coming Saturday, Oct. 1; at Capitan on Saturday, Oct. 15; home vs. Santa Teresa on Thursday, Oct. 20; and at Gadsden Wednesday, Oct. 26 to fill out the second half of their schedule.

Warriors must regroup for Fabens Wildcats

by KENT BEATTY

The News Sports Correspondent
The Ruidoso Warrior Football team must find a way to get back on solid ground after last week's disastrous 40-6 wholopping by Portales.

The Warriors travel to Fabens, Texas Friday night for a meeting with the Wildcats, a team that Ruidoso man-handled last year. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

The last game before District 3-AAA play begins, the Fabens game gives the locals a chance to gain confidence before meeting red-hot Santa Teresa in two weeks.

The Wildcats, 2-2 on the season, have opened things up a bit this season. Quarterback Armando Gutierrez is speedy and might be a threat on boot-legs from the Wing-T attack — but the junior has developed a liking for the forward pass this year as well.

One thing the Warriors have going for them — Fabens remembers the whipping that they got last year, and the Warriors remember giving it to them.

It's the second straight road game for Ruidoso.

Ruidoso residents baiting bears with food, game warden says

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A tree on Spruce Street was lined with trout, and earlier in the year, Game Warden Ron Moore found bologna hanging from the limbs of a pine.

But still, some people refuse to believe that bears are being baited or that humans are often to blame for encouraging them to visit.

"Despite the statement in one of the letters to the editor that appeared in the paper and said it was ludicrous to say people were luring them, this is what I see all the time," said Moore of the State Department of Game and Fish.

Baiting contributed to the death of a mother bear earlier in the month when she attempted to enter a home through a screen door. Her cub escaped, but Moore left a trap near the dead animal in the hope the cub would return.

According to the Ruidoso Police Department dispatch, at 8:48 a.m., Sept. 17, a call came in asking Moore to help catch what the caller thought might be the cub.

"It turned out to be a yearling, but the day after the mother was shot, the cub did come back," Moore said. "He was in the trap, but it didn't spring. I darted him, but we couldn't find him, even with dogs. Either he died from the dart, from the drug or he'd just had enough and moved away from the area. I hate to have to dart a small bear."

Cubs usually stay with their mothers 1 1/2 years, including their first winter, he said. Without her protection and food gathering ability, a cub has little chance of living until spring. Moore had lined up two zoos willing to take the cub, if it had been captured.

Watermelon scraps in the area indicated the twosome were being baited.

In another incident, Michael Caldarella of Anthony was charged with shooting from a public roadway after he shot a bear in a dumpster with a bow and arrow Sept. 1.

A resident on McCarty Drive reported a man stalking a bear with a bow and witnessed Caldarella call out to prompt the bear to raise its head out of the dumpster for a clear shot. The bear didn't pose any danger.

Caldarella was found by officers behind Storybook Cabins still in pursuit of the bear. The wounded bear was located at 7:23 p.m. on St. Vitus Dr. and was killed by State Game officers.

A charge of propulsion of missiles was dismissed in municipal court and the remaining charge was handled in Magistrate Court by Judge William Butts.

Caldarella, 50, pled guilty. He was fined $130 and $31 in court costs, according to magistrate court records.

Other bear reports recorded by police dispatch include:

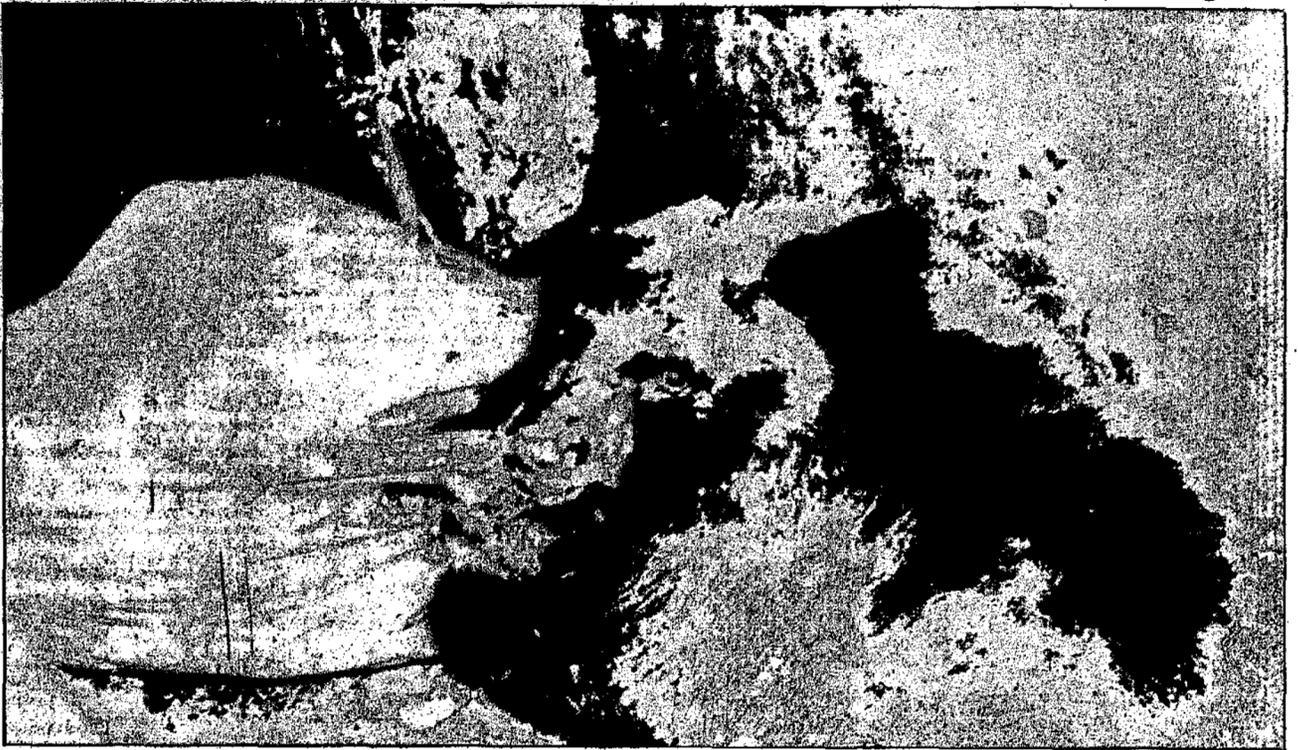

—1:29 a.m., Sept. 13: a man reported a person with a flashlight in a yard on Evens Drive was flash-lighting bears.

—1:42 p.m., Sept. 17: Officer Robert Achterberg responded to a report of a bear cutting across the back of a business on Sudderth Drive. He was unable to locate the bear.

—8:26 p.m., Sept. 17: a caller from Paradise Canyon Road and Meander Drive reported that someone hit a bear with a vehicle and the bear went up a tree, but seemed all right. Two officers responded.

—8:29 a.m., Sept. 18: a caller advised that bears had turned over a dumpster and it was blocking the road. An officer responded and the container was moved.

—6:46 p.m., Sept. 18: a caller on Sudderth Drive advised that a bear was walking down the street and people were harassing it.

—4:51 p.m., Sept. 20: a caller on Metz Street said a bear in his backyard appeared to be injured. An officer determined that although the leg was injured, the bear was all right.

8:17 p.m., Sept. 24: a caller reported a bear on a front porch eating apples on Cherokee Lane. An officer responded, because the caller was afraid.

9:54 p.m., Sept. 24: a caller reported a very large bear at dumpsters to the rear of the apartments in Camelot, but the bear was gone by the time an officer arrived.

7:47 p.m., Sept. 24: a caller reported that neighbors on Spruce Street have been putting out bait to lure bears. The State Game and Fish officers were notified.

3:50 a.m., Sept. 27: a man reported a bear in his backyard on Willy Horton Road. His dog "is going nuts," he told the dispatcher.

Don Hixon/The Ruidoso News

After gorging himself on the easily accessible leftovers, the cub does a dance on the dumpster lid before scampering away.

When the photographer leaves, he returns to the goodies, however. He weighs only about 50 pounds, so he has room to grow.

Booths open today for early voters

Today's the day. No waiting until November 3. Voters across New Mexico can head to their county clerk's office this morning to cast their ballots.

Registered voters don't have to offer any excuses. They don't have to send the ballots back by mail. They can vote in the office.

Under a law passed by the state legislature in 1993, anyone who is registered can either vote or request a ballot to be sent back by election day.

"The primary (in June) was the first time it was used statewide, although some special school district elections in 1993 utilized the system," said Lincoln County Clerk Martha Proctor.

Absentee ballots may be requested right now and issued any time after Sept. 29, Proctor said. Absentee ballots may be mailed to voters today through Nov. 3. The ballots must be returned to this county clerk's office (in the county courthouse in Carrizozo) by 7 p.m., Nov. 8.

Proctor will keep her office open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 5 to allow early absentee voting in person.

If voters can't touch base at the courthouse, absentee ballots may be requested by calling the clerk's office at (505) 648-2394 or by sending a letter or card to: Lincoln County Clerk, P.O. Box 338, Carrizozo, N.M. 88301. A friend or relative also may stop at the office and pick up a previously requested ballot.

Voter registration for the general election will close Oct. 11. Contested non-judicial local races include the district 4 county commission seat, where incumbent Republican Bill Schwettmann faces Democrat challenger Preston Stone, a rancher and former Capitan school board member.

Joan E. Park, deputy county treasurer, is hoping to step up into the treasurer's slot on the Republican ticket. She is pitted against Democrat Steven Eugene Brewer.

Home boy Stirling Spencer, now a county commissioner, is running as a Republican for State Lands Commissioner against incumbent Democrat Ray Powell Jr., who was appointed to the post by Gov. Bruce King. State Rep. H. John Underwood, a Democrat from Ruidoso, faces Dub Williams, a former teacher and Republican.

Wild horse round-up proposed by Rep. Skeen

Congressman Joe Skeen, R-NM, announced that the Army will receive $1.5 million to round up the wild horses on White Sands Missile Range (WSMR) and process them into wild horse adoption programs.

An amendment authored by Skeen was added to the 1995 Defense Appropriations bill, which was finalized by a joint House/Senate Conference Committee Sept. 23.

Skeen was a member of that conference committee, because of his position on the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee.

"This is the most humane, cost-effective response to the tragedy that occurred at White Sands earlier this summer," said Skeen, referring to the wild horses that died or were euthanized by the Army because they were starving to death.

This measure allows the Army to decide which wild horse adoption program to divert the horses to. Several options are possible, including the BLM's wild horse program and a similar program offered by the State Corrections Department.

The Army has said the herd will be thinned from its current size of 1300-1500, to between 800 and 500 horses. According to Skeen, range conditions can support a herd of that size.

This is the second time in five years that Skeen has offered a legislative solution to address the problem of horses that run wild on the Missile Range. The Congressman added language to the FY90 Defense Appropriations bill that would have allowed the Army to conduct a roundup of the wild horses and transfer those animals to the BLM's wild horse program. However, the roundup was never conducted because the Army, the BLM, and the State could not come up with an acceptable means of conducting the transfer.

"I hope the Army will work quickly to resolve this situation," Skeen urged.

Yes there is something doing this weekend

To the ladies, bless 'em.

This weekend is theirs in Ruidoso, as the third annual Southeastern Women's Conference convenes at the Civic Events Center.

Well — mostly theirs. This year the meeting, sponsored by the Southern Women's Conference Committee through the Eastern New Mexico University Ruidoso Instructional Center, and the Altrusa Club of Ruidoso, is opening its doors to the other gender.

So it's actually "a conference for women and those who care about them..." Which, when you get right down to it, includes husbands, all the kids and miscellaneous other males.

This year's conference, organizer Karen Morris notes, also is a departure from the past in that almost all the presenters are "home grown." It's remarkable, she says, how much expertise and talent Ruidoso's women possess.

About the only out-of-towner for the two-day meeting is Djane Denish, an Albuquerque businesswoman, New Mexico Tech regent, and Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in the June primary election.

A variety of women's interest topics is on the schedule, ranging from relaxation through Yoga therapy to women's health needs, educational choices for kids, high-altitude baking...a very nearly "you name it, we've got it" menu of presentations.

Add a luncheon and fashion show, and it's hard to see why any woman in Ruidoso wouldn't want to take part. The price is right, and the event proves once again that there's always something of interest going on in Ruidoso.

Our National Anthem

Oh say, can you see by the TV's bright lights O.J. driving around with a gun to his forehead? Or Lorena with knife giving Bobbitt a trim or Tonya's crude pals whacking Kerrigan's skate knee?

In the media glare like a deer we just stare losing sight of what counts as our heads fill with air.

In a land where high tech shows us endless sordid tales from bad to worse, we have all become voyeurs peering at the perverse.

Letters to the Editor

Of bears, bows and arrows, and justice

TO THE EDITOR:

We were in Ruidoso over Labor Day weekend and enjoyed our time very much. It was nice to see most of the cabins near ours in the Upper Canyon occupied. But something happened Friday afternoon about 5:00 that I have not seen covered in The News, and we are curious about some details.

We had not yet arrived, so our information came from others who saw or heard about what happened. Bears have been common this summer starting late in the afternoon. One made his visit about 4:30 to 5 p.m. as usual.

He was spotted by a man in camouflage clothes, who was carrying a bow and arrow. This man shot at the bear and missed. Later he hit the bear. The latter was seriously wounded. I understand that the police were called and that the hunter and another who was reported to be a "bear tracker" were arrested. I understand that someone from the Fish and Game Department had to be called to dispose of the wounded animal.

I realized the facts may not be complete, because we were not actually present, so perhaps you could find out more about what happened. We and some of the neighbors were upset that someone would try to kill a bear within the village limits, and that a "bear tracker" would even say it was legal.

That does not even consider the number of children and adults in the cabins around where the bear was shot (the first arrow missed) or what a wounded bear might have done to anyone trying to get near him or getting in his way.

I hope to hear that the two men involved were subject to fines and loss of their equipment, and not slapped on the wrist and allowed to go free.

As I said, I would appreciate any follow up on what happened, perhaps with a true count of the events. I really was surprised that The News didn't have someone pick up on it. You have always seemed to me to be up on police calls, accidents, etc.

Ex-employee of camp wasn't trained

TO THE EDITOR:

I am an ex-employee of Camp Sierra Blanca. In July of 1993, (I) and a handful of correctional officers at Camp Sierra Blanca tried to warn the new warden, Sandra McFadin, of the danger of allowing an inmate that has served years of hard time in a maximum security prison, to be classified and sent to Camp Sierra Blanca.

Number one concern at that time was the lack of training that officers were given at Camp Sierra Blanca. At that time Warden McFadin promised that more training would be given. If you were to check training records, you might find that no training has been offered or given to the correctional officers at Camp Sierra Blanca. Training that would help a correctional officer deal day to day with the inmates, to assess mental and personal problems and inmates might be experiencing at any given moment, and a system for that of ficer to report his feeling of the situation.

However, the administration at Camp Sierra Blanca has never accepted or solicited input from the officers that deal most closely with administration and the security personnel at Camp Sierra Blanca, that creates a perfect environment for an inmate to manipulate the system.

Mrs. McFadin and Mr. Sullivan's open door policy, as they called it, is only used for disciplinary action against an officer. They spend more time trying to monitor the activities of an employee and not enough time keeping abreast of the activities of the inmates. Mr. Sullivan was as I understood it, is the chief of security. As is evident of late, this man is not capable of the job. Warden McFadin cannot continue to make excuses. Results and policies that incorporate some sort of accountability are needed at Camp Sierra Blanca.

Blanca.

This is a terrible thing to say, as I have friends at Camp Sierra Blanca, but the next person to get hurt will be a correctional officer that must operate under incompetent administrative leaders.

This is not a joke: anyone that has ever worked at a penitentiary knows what an inmate is capable of with little or no provocation. All the newspaper articles in the world will not solve the problem. Someone has to say it...get rid of the present administration, or hold them accountable for what is happening at Camp Sierra Blanca and quit trying to pussyfoot around the situation, trying not to step on toes will and has gotten people killed.

The Light of Day

Justice remains on ballot

By TOM DAY
Sunmount Syndicate

SANTA FE—When the New Mexico supreme court recently took convicted child-murderer Terry Clark off death row, we heard a lot about the pros and cons of the court decision.

Few people noted that a judge who played a key role in the controversial decision is up for reelection this year. That's right: Voters can register their approval or disapproval of the court decision at the ballot box. All they have to do is vote for or against Richard Ransom, the justice who wrote the opinion explaining why Clark deserves a new sentencing hearing.

The lack of attention paid to Ransom's appearance on the November ballot is typical of judicial elections. As the Fall campaign gets in high gear, we almost know how many cows Bruce King owns and how many triathlons Gary Johnson has run.

But we know very little about the judges who make life and death decisions. As it happens, the Supreme Court's decision to throw out Clark's death sentence was just about inevitable.

The court was following a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that dealt with the same issue. The U.S. high court, in a June, 1994, ruling took up the case of a defendant who had been given the death sentence after prosecutors let a jury believe that the defendant might get out on parole if he was not executed.

In fact, the defendant would not have been eligible for parole, ever. But the jury didn't know that at the time of sentencing.

Clark's case is similar. Prosecutors suggested to the jury that Clark would get out of prison in 10 years if he weren't executed—when, prosecutors cautioned, he might kill again.

"Somewhere down the road," the jury was told, "is another victim."

In fact, Clark wouldn't have been eligible for parole until he is 86 years old. The jury that sentenced Clark to death, for the kidnapping and murder of Dena Lynn Gore, was presented with a also choice: sentence him to death or allow him to kill again in ten years.

Ransom, in explaining the decision reached by himself and two other state Supreme Court justices, made it clear that, "We recognize fully that Clark is guilty of shocking crimes that may well merit forfeiture of his life." Not much here for anti-death penalty activists to rejoice in. So Clark will get a new sentencing hearing, and this time the jury that takes up the issue of his punishment will have a full understanding of the choices before it.

In the meantime, Ransom will be on the ballot—along with two judges from the state Court of Appeals, Chief Judge Pamela Minzner and Judge Rudy Ayudaca.

None of the three has an opponent. Voters will simply vote them in or out. Their campaigns don't really merit the name, "I'm not going to do anything." Ransom says, though he qualifies that by saying he answered a questionnaire from the League of Women Voters and will respond to any media inquiries.

The New Mexico judicial election system in which judges only run once in a partisan election and, thereafter, face only a yes or no vote has caused the quiet state of affairs.

What we've gained is a judiciary that isn't bogged down in partisan politics. What we've lost is a debate over how well our judges are doing.

New library funds on election ballot

Public libraries across New Mexico would be connected by computer links, under a ballot proposal in this fall's election.

The legislature is giving New Mexico voters the opportunity to support better service from the state's libraries. Two bond issues on the Nov. 8 ballot would provide $8 million for libraries.

Bond issue B, the State Educational Capital Improvements and Acquisitions Bond, provides $3 million for college libraries and $2.5 million for public school libraries, among other projects.

Bond issue C provides $2.5 million for public libraries.

Books and computers purchased from the bonds will connect college, public and school libraries from the smallest to the largest communities in New Mexico. This computer connection will transform every library into a state-of-the-art resource center on the information highway.

Current statewide property tax is $1.60 per $1,000 assessed valuation. This is expected to remain about the same if bond issues B and C are passed because bonds of similar value will be retired as these start.

The words "libraries" or "books" do not appear in the wording for bond issue B, although the bill will provide $2.5 million "for acquiring library books, equipment and library resources for distribution to Public Elementary and Secondary School Libraries statewide."

Each of the 89 public school districts in New Mexico would receive from the State Department of Education a per-pupil share for books and other materials in the school libraries, and equipment to allow networking among libraries of all types, under bond issue B.

Ruidoso children's library club spreads happiness across border

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Each year, children in the small border town of Palomas, Mexico, just across the border from Deming, find reason to be thankful when members of the Ruidoso Middle School Library Club come to visit.

Library Club members, for the past five years, have gathered clothes, food, toys, school supplies, and reading materials for the children of poverty-ridden Palomas. According to Middle School librarian and club sponsor Ellie Keeton, the students really go all out to help the children.

"Every year, after we collect the items, and shortly after Thanksgiving, we go to Palomas on a field trip to deliver everything," Keeton said.

"Once we arrive we have a Christmas party for the children. The children of Palomas are so grateful and it gives our kids a different perspective on life."

Currently, the Library Club has more than 60 members enrolled in the program. Members must keep grades up, have good behavior and a positive attitude.

Book fairs, bake sales, and selling carnations are but a few of the fundraising methods used by the club to help finance the Palomas trip as well as other club activities.

"The club sponsors various special events and moneymaking projects, always with an emphasis on promoting and encouraging people to read," Keeton said.

A trip to the Zimmerman Library at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque is another special outing which club members take.

"The trip to the university library shows gives the students a look at a really large library and how it operates," Keeton said.

Club members will also be helping with the New Mexico Library Association Conference, which is scheduled for April of next year in Ruidoso.

The main criteria for a student to join is a desire to be in the club and promote reading, Keeton said.

The Ruidoso Middle School Library Club meets every Monday morning at 8:15 a.m. in the school library.

Agency on Aging answers seniors' Medicare questions

Many older New Mexicans do not understand things such as Medicare hospital (Part A) and Medicare medical (Part B), Social Security, Medicaid, private health insurance, Veterans health benefits, Indian Health Services, state assistance programs and long-term care insurance.

Do I qualify for QMB? or SLMB? There is a program designed to help. Health Insurance and Benefits Assistance Corps (HIBAC) is a program, developed, funded and managed by the New Mexico State Agency on Aging.

HIBAC ensures that older New Mexicans have access to accurate, unbiased information about health care options. HIBAC does not sell, endorse or recommend any specific insurance or health maintenance organization. HIBAC assistance is confidential and free of charge.

Local HIBAC volunteers, working with local senior citizen centers, have more information, as does the State Agency on Aging's HIBAC program at 1-800-432-2080 or 827-7640.

These Energy-Saving Tips Are Over Your Head.

Texas-New Mexico Power Company brings you reliable electric power, plus cost-cutting energy management tips. * For instance, your house needs proper attic ventilation. Otherwise, moisture can build up in the winter and reduce the effectiveness of insulation, and attic temperatures can rise and make your air conditioner work harder in the summer. * For more information, call your local TNP office for our free Energy Management Guide.

McTeigue Fiesta held

The annual McTeigue Fiesta in Hondo Valley, sponsored by the McTeigue family and the Lincoln County Democratic Party, drew a big crowd ready to eat and listen to speeches.

Raymond Sanchez, speaker of the state House of Representatives, spoke during the Sept. 10 event about the state being in good shape and complimented State Rep. H. John Underwood from Ruidoso for what he has accomplished in his first two terms.

Underwood and State Sen. Pete Campos from Santa Rose managed to bring more than $4 million to their constituents in the last three years with the help of Gov. Bruce King, he said.

Underwood gave a breakdown of the money and discussed his role in trying to block efforts to build a nuclear waste storage facility on the Mescalero Apache Reservation near Ruidoso.

Bert Atkins, Twelfth Judicial District attorney, running for the newly created district judge's post, also spoke. Bill Butts, who was appointed 14 months ago to fill the magistrate judgeship in Ruidoso created by the resignation of former judge Jim Wheeler, asked for support at the polls in November. He explained how the court's case load has improved since he was appointed.

Lincoln County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley, the lone Democrat on the county board, also spoke, although he is running unopposed. He reviewed some of his accomplishments since joining the board two years ago.

Scholarship to MacVeigh

Matthew MacVeigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William MacVeigh of Capitan, has been awarded the Truman A. Spencer Scholarship by New Mexico Military Institute for the third time.

MacVeigh, who attended Capitan High School his freshman year, is a high school senior at NMMI this year.

The $1,000 scholarship is given in honor of Truman A. Spencer, Jr., NMMI class of 1953, of Carrizozo. It is awarded annually to an NMMI cadet from Carrizozo or surrounding area who has at least a 2.5 grade point average and an A in department.

Spencer served on the commandant's staff and the NMMI Board of Regents, of which his son, Steven, is currently a member and former president.

The grandson of New Mexico's first statehood governor, William C. McDonald, Spencer distinguished himself in the Army Air Corps as squadron commander of the 42nd Bomb Group in World War II. After the war, he returned to New Mexico and conducted a successful ranching career in Carrizozo. Mr. Truman Spencer, Jr., and family still operate the fourth generation of the Bar W Ranch.

Taken back in time

The Ruidoso Womens Club was taken back in time recently as they enjoyed a unique portrayal of "The Jersey Lilly, Lilly Langtry" by Van Ann Moore of Belen, who is a noted actress, singer and director working through the New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities. The one-woman play featured costumes, backdrops, props and dialogue which transported members and guests to the 1870s, a time of royalty and the Victorian age.

Obituaries

Williams

Clifford O. Williams died Saturday, Sept. 24 at the Mescalero Indian Hospital.

Mr. Williams was born on July 8, 1929 at Binger, Oklahoma to Grace and Francis Williams. He had lived in Mescalero for 40 years, moving there from Binger. He was a member of the Reformed Church and a retired radio disc jockey.

Prayer services for Mr. Williams was Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Mescalero Reformed Church, with Rev. Donald Pettay officiating. The funeral was on Wednesday, Sept. 28 at 1 p.m. at the Mescalero Reformed Church, with the Rev. Bob Schut officiating. Burial followed at Mescalero Cemetery.

He was preceded in death by his wife Lucille Williams in 1987.

He is survived by three sons, Curtis Williams of Pocatello, Idaho, and Peter Valdez Jr. and Ronald Valdez, both of Mescalero; three daughters, Patricia Enjady of Mescalero, Dorine Austin of Las Cruces and Laura Williams of Mescalero; 23 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

Naylor

A memorial service is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 29, 1994, at the First Church of the Nazarens of Roswell for K.D. Naylor, who died Saturday, Sept. 24, 1994.

Survivors include his wife, La Verns Naylor of Roswell; son, Charles N. Naylor of Dallas, Texas; daughter, Diane Flack of San Antonio, Texas; and two sisters, Juna Raybon of Horsehoos Bend, Ark., and Frances Williams of Ruidoso.

The family requests memorials be made to First Church of the Nazarens of Roswell, 501 N. Nazarene of Roswell for K.D. Naylor, Roswell 88201.

Credibility is the cornerstone of our reputation

Our reputation stands on accurate reporting and ethical sales practices. The credibility of our circulation claims is crucial to our advertising reputation. Advertisers need to know that the message they place in our publication will reach their target markets.

That's why we subject our circulation records to independent verification by the largest and oldest circulation auditing organization in the world — the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Credibility is ABC's business. In fact, thousands of newspapers, magazines, business publications and farm journals have selected ABC to audit their circulation records.

And hundreds of advertisers and advertising agencies rely on ABC-audited data for print media planning. Their support has made ABC the standard in circulation auditing.

We're proud that our publication measures up to ABC standards. Advertisers can rely on our ABC-audited circulation.

pursuant to the provisions of 7-38-33 thru 59, NMSA 1978 the Lincoln County Treasurer will offer for sale at public auction beginning on October 6, 1994 at 10:00 a.m. at the County Courthouse in Carrizozo, New Mexico, the following described personal property, the sale to continue until all the described property has been offered for sale. THE TERMS OF THE SALE ARE AS FOLLOWS:

1. A sale properly made under the provisions of 7-38-33 thru 59, NMSA 1978 constitutes full payment of all delinquent taxes, penalties and interest that are a lien against the property at the time of sale, and the sale extinguishes the lien. The property is sold subject to the lien for property taxes for the year of the sale, provided those taxes are not yet delinquent. The buyer at public auction, or his successor in interest will be liable for those property taxes when they become due.

2. The description of the following personal property is designed to permit the identification and location of personal property; by potential purchasers, or taxpayers. The Lincoln County Treasurer warrants no title to properties purchased at public auction sale.

3. Section 7-38-74 NMSA 1978, prohibits officers or employees of the State of ANY of its political subdivisions engaged in the administration of the property tax from directly or indirectly acquiring an interest in, buying or profiting from any property sold by the county treasurer for delinquent taxes, except that an officer or employee may purchase property sold for delinquent taxes if he is the owner of the property and was the owner of the property at the time the taxes became delinquent. Any officer or employee violating Section 7-38-74 is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) or imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than five years, or both; and he shall also be automatically removed from office or have his employment terminated upon conviction. A personal property sale in violation of Section 7-38-74 is void.

4. Successful bidders are required to make payment in full of the amount bid before leaving the premises on the day of the sale. Payment is required to be by money order, certified check, cashier's check or personal check which is accompanied by bank letter of credit for the amount of or in excess of the amount of the personal check drawn to the order of the Lincoln County Treasurer.

5. Upon receiving payment for the personal property sold, the Lincoln County Treasurer shall execute and deliver a certificate of sale to the purchaser. The certificate of sale transfers all the former property owners interest in the personal property as of the date of the sale. The purchaser takes the personal property free of any unrecorded or untitled interests unknown to him at the time of the sale.

6. The sale price of personal property at this public auction sale is not to be taken or considered as being the value of the property for property taxation purposes.

7. All persons intending to bid upon property are required to register and obtain bidders numbers from the auctioneer and to provide the auctioneer with their full name and address. Certificate of sale will be issued to registered names only. Conveyances to other parties will be the responsibility of the buyer.

8. The auctioneer reserves the right to withdraw from sale any of the properties listed below; to sell any of the properties listed together; or to sell only a portion of any of the properties listed below. If any dispute arises between or among the bidders, the auctioneer's decision with respect to the dispute is final, and the auctioneer may auction the property again, in his discretion. The auctioneer reserves the right to reject any and all bids. The personal property listed below may not be sold for less than the listed minimum price.

Chili aficionados ham it up in state's biggest cookoff

Chili aficionados and cooks from across the country will gather on Saturday, Oct. 8, for the 13th Annual New Mexico State Open Chili Cookoff at Tall Pines Trailer Park on Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso.

"This year looks to be the biggest cookoff ever," said event promoter Paul Crown. "Because of the timetable of this year's Aspenfest, we are not in competition with the Texas and Las Cruces events."

Crown expects more than 100 entries to participate in the annual cookoff, which is sanctioned by the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI), and sponsored by Budweiser and Ruidoso State Bank.

Gates open at 10 a.m. Saturday, with show teams to perform at 1:30 p.m. and the fun continuing until 6 p.m. On Sunday the chili cookoff will be open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Admission is $2 on Saturday and free on Sunday.

Ted Scofield, CASI's official "Mouth of the Chili World," will once again be master of ceremonies as chili cooks and chili eaters get into the act and ham it up during the showmanship competition.

Lone Star Express will provide musical entertainment throughout the day.

Visitors to the chili cookoff will get a chance to sample the chili and can expect plenty of excitement in the games and events scheduled throughout the day. Try your hand at the tortilla toss, the lemon roll, or egg tossing competition.

Plenty of cooks always show up for the New Mexico Championship, partly because the top three cooks are automatically accepted into the world championship cookoff in Terlingua, Tex.

Cooks can camp free Friday night at Tall Pines, and can set up camp from 6-10 p.m. Friday and from 6:30-10 a.m. Saturday.

"This chili cookoff is the biggest in the state of New Mexico, as well as being one of the top 10 in the country," Crown said. "We get people from Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Arkansas and all the way from Washington state."

Crown expects more than 4,000 people to attend the cookoff, which raises money for charity.

"One of the biggest objectives for the chili cookoff is raising money for the Ruidoso Rotary Club Scholarship Fund," Crown said. "Last year's proceeds to the fund exceeded $2,600."

The Cookoff officially begins at 9 a.m. Saturday when beer sales begin and cooks get together for a meeting. Cooking begins at 9:30 a.m.

Games and contests are scheduled from 1:30-3 p.m. and the chili is to be turned in for judging between 2 and 2:15 p.m.

"For the public, chili tasting is from 2:15 until 3:30 p.m.," Crown said. "That's the People's Choice Chili Givaway."

The announcement of winners and award presentations is at 4 p.m.

Cost to enter the cookoff is $20 and entries will be accepted right up until the time for the cooks' meeting on Saturday, Oct. 8.

Trophies will be presented to the top 10 chilis, the first through third place state chili, the first through third place showmanship and the top chili in the people's choice category.

To enter, write to Ruidoso Chili Society, PO Box 280; Ruidoso, NM 88345; or call (505) 257-5123.

Kickin' Back In The Pines

Original Moon Pie band reunites in Ruidoso

There'll be a hot time in the cool pines on Saturday night.

The Legendary "Moon Pie 'Daince' Band" takes the stage Oct. 8 at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events

Center, starting at 8 p.m.

During the sixties, a small group of accomplished Anthony area (west of El Paso) musicians matured and developed a unique style. Their blending of Southwestern cultures is reflected in the mix of musical styles - from country to rock to jazz to rhythm and blues to you-name it.

The band's rousing version of "El Rancho Grande" comes complete with Spanish lyrics, running unexpectedly into "Orange Blossom Spécial." They captured the flavor of this part of the Southwest with original albums like "Echanted Mesa" and "Flower in the Sand."

Ruidoso has long been Moon Pie's second home. The very first job for Moon Pie was in 1973 at the renowned Buckeroo Lounge in Ruidoso. Many locals fondly remember the magic of those early performances.

During the 15 years that Moon Pie worked together, they built a reputation for versatility, quality, and good times. This is one chance to relive those memories. For those who weren't there, it will be a chance to experience firsthand a living local musical legacy.

This Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce-sponsored concert/dance reunites the original members for the first time in more than seven years.

Members include Randy Jones, who now resides and performs regularly in the Ruidoso area. Jones is at home on the guitar, banjo, and rapid-fire mandolin along with some mean vocals.

Jack Woodberry (guitar and vocals) is a perfect compliment to Jones, with his bluesy southern style.

Doug Neal (bass and lead vocals) and Dave Rutledge (drums) demonstrate the depth of their long-time musical association by the high-energy drive and direction they give the band.

Andre Casillas completes the formula with his deft jazz style keyboards.

And don't be too surprised to see guest performances by other former members.

The Moon Pie Daince Band is easy to relate to. They boogie, they make you happy, and most of all, they make you want to "daince."

(Tickets for the Aspenfest Moon Pie 'Daince' Band Reunion concert are on sale now at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce for $5 per person in advance and $6 at the door. Call (505) 257-7395 or 1-800-253-2255, or stop by the visitor information center located at 720 Sudderth).

Kickin' Back In The Pines

Children decorate duds, pets and bikes in parade contest

Floppy eared dogs, narcissistic cats, nibbly hamsters and even slinky pet snakes may be part one of the most colorful events of the annual Aspenfest parade.

Children are invited to decorate their bicycles and their favorites pets for a Saturday morning stroll down Sudderth on Oct. 8.

The competition often results in outrageous concoctions sparked by the unbridled imaginations of the creators.

Participants should plan on assembling at the intersection of Mechem and Sudderth across from Pine Tree Plaza at 8:45 a.m.

Judging of the bicycles and the outfitted pets is scheduled for 9 a.m. to give everyone plenty of time to prepare for the parade kick-off at 10 a.m.

Parade chairman Karen Morris said applications are available at schools and at the Greater Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Three prizes will be awarded in each age group, plus three prizes in the pet competition, said Morris.

The bicycle divisions will cover kindergarten through third grade and fourth through sixth grade.

The decorations should reflect the parade theme of "Kickin' Back in the Pines," she said.

"It could reflect any type of recreation, such as a ski theme, spring and autumn theme, sports, fishing, or just about any recreational activity that makes them feel good," Morris explained.

Winners will receive gift certificates.

"After the judging, the winners will receive their prizes and then march in the parade, but they should exit at the Ruidoso State Bank store parking lot," Morris said, "It will be roped off and there will be a security guard. Parents should plan on being there to pick them up and watch the rest of the parade."

Water for the pets will be available at the parking lot and on a golf cart that will move with the animals to ensure that they do not overheat.

Parents are invited to make it a family affair and march with their children, Morris said.

For additional information call the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce at 257-7395.

Kickin' Back In The Pines

Country music legend Ray Reed leads parade

Ray Reed always did play western music the way God meant it to be played, and for that, he is being honored this year with a nomination to the Western Swing Society Hall of Fame.

He is also being honored as the grand marshal of this year's Aspenfest parade in Ruidoso, which will be held Saturday, Oct. 8.

Locally, Reed is known as the last survivor among the founders of the All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, an annual quarterhorse race with the biggest purse in the world. He also founded the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium to help highlight the cowboy way.

Reed has held fast to his traditions, turning down a chance at the Hollywood limelight because they wanted him to forsake those traditions.

"I never did go for that fake stuff," Reed said in an early interview. "I believe people like to see the real thing and hear the true Western songs sung as they should be sung."

At age 80, his comments sound much the same.

"I'm still trying to tell the American people what a cowboy is," he recently told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "I'm still trying to rescue some of them from the sinful world brought on to us by The Beatles."

Reed knows of what he speaks, having grown up as a real cowboy. At age 12, he started playing at dances held in ranchers' homes, traveling by horseback up to 20 miles for the privilege.

"We played swing," Reed relates. "We didn't play hillbilly music. And we didn't sing through our noses either."

Reed has organized more than a half-dozen bands, including the Encinitas Ranch Hands and the Cross-B Boys.

While he was a trapper, Reed became acquainted with Bob Crosby and formed the Cross-B Boys, touring much of the country to perform alongside Crosby's one-man cutting horse exhibitions.

Reed first saw the Ruidoso area during that band's premiere, and immediately fell in love with it.

Settling in Ruidoso after Crosby's death, Reed divided his time between cowboy work and singing at the Navajo Lodge.

A prolific songwriter, Reed's music has been recorded by the likes of Bob Willis.

"A cowboy can cook, paint, play good music and sing without singing through his nose," Reed reiterated. "He has some culture about him and some morals. I try to show the modern world what we stood for."

They'll be kickin' back in the pines at parade

Ruidoso will be "Kickin' Back in the Pines" at the Aspenfest parade Saturday, Oct. 8, and that's appropriate for this laid-back time of year in the high country.

"Kickin' Back in the Pines" is the theme for this year's celebration. You might expect to see something like a bear in a tree with a fishin' pole - in the parade, of course.

"You don't have to come here to Ruidoso to be entertained. You can just kick back," explains Aspenfest chairperson Karen Morris.

Last year saw 114 entries, and the numbers could easily be higher this year, if only because it's an election year and candidates will be stumping for vote.

The parade begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, starting at the intersection of Meham and Sudderth streets and continuing down Sudderth Drive for about 2 1/2 miles. Up to 8,000 people are expected to line the streets, but with that long of a parade route, there's a great seat for everyone.

Parade entries start lining up at 7:30 a.m. Sudderth will be closed from about 9:30 a.m. to noon, but there's a detour available. Sidewalk improvement work taking place in mid-town won't affect the parade.

Alongside a host of floats, marching bands and riders, the ever-popular Shriner Clubs from places like Alamogordo, Clovis, El Paso and surrounding communities will be back for the parade this year. They have a variety of hilarious themes, including quarter-scale 1932 Fords, Highland war pipes and drums, mini motorcycles, miniature fire trucks and go-carts.

Other early entries include the Holoman Air Force Base honor guard, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse color guard on horses, Mrs. New Mexico America, a horse-drawn trolley from Ruidoso's care center, a horse-drawn sleigh with Santa, a U.S. Border Patrol mounted group and local fire departments.

"There's just going to be a big variety," said Ruidoso Valley chamber employee Billie Dentler. "I think it's going to be a really neat parade."

Gene Roten will head up the group of parade judges this year.

Marching bands compete

Spectators watching the sunlight bouncing off shiny instruments and the vibrant lines of uniforms may not realize the pressure being faced by the bands marching in the Aspenfest Parade on Saturday, Oct. 8.

Instead, most people will just enjoy the music, marching and timing of the seven marching bands which have entered this year's parade.

The bands are competing in a contest complete with professional judges, who are posted along the route watching with a critical eye.

The judges will be stationed at Cherry Blossom Building, or the Wild Snail, said Karen Morris, Aspenfest chairperson.

Turnout for the contest is good even though a large band contest is happening at the same time in Las Cruces.

"The Las Cruces contest has stopped some bands from being able to come," Morris said. "The good thing about this is it allows smaller bands to obtain the experience and to participate."

Bands will march in the parade and exit behind Sour Dough Buns. From there the bands will go to the Horton Stadium where the remainder of the contest will take place.

"Not only will the parade be fun, but it will be good for the smaller schools since it might be the first time they have had the chance to compete," Morris said.

Dick Felts, band director for Ruidoso High School and Middle School, is the chairman for the band contest.

Artists display wares and get children involved

Artists from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona will display their unique wares during the 9th Annual Ruidoso Gymnastics Association's annual arts and crafts fair Aspenfest weekend.

The fair will be in its old home on the vacant lot across the street from The Gazebo.

Stop by between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 8, and from 9:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9.

Once again this year the fair will feature a kids activity area. What's more fun than looking at art? Making it, of course, and youngsters will have their own area for doing crafts and having their faces painted.

A number of artists will offer mixed media, with a good selection of fabric art, art to wear, jewelry and ceramics.

Pottery, woodwork, dolls, acrylic and quilts will be available for sale, too.

Around 75 booths will be placed on the lot right on Sudderth Drive — in a terrific spot to watch the Aspenfest parade.

Besides plenty of arts and crafts, this year's fair will offer a great selection of food and drink.

The Ruidoso Gymnastics Association will sell hamburgers, hot dogs, baked goods, soft drinks and popcorn.

The fair benefits the gymnastics association's building fund, and past events helped raised enough money to build a brand new gym in Ruidoso Downs.

Oldtimers join in potluck, stories

You can call yourself an oldtimer if you ever lived in the Ruidoso Valley for at least 15 years.

That's the definition offered by the Ruidoso Oldtimers Association Reunion, anyway.

The oldtimers sponsor a scrumptious potluck dinner each year during the Aspenfest celebration. It will be held this year on Saturday, Oct. 8, starting at 6:30 p.m. in the senior citizens center by Ruidoso's public library.

If you've lived here for 15 years, or if you ever did, you're invited.

We're talking about some pretty tasty morsels here, the kind of variety that only appears at potlucks. So if you're eligible, you're smart to show up and gorge yourself.

"We have some of the greatest cooks in the world here, I think" boasts Dixie Sigler, secretary-treasurer of the Ruidoso Oldtimers Association.

In between the chewing, the stories are another great reason to attend the oldtimers gathering. People often show up with old pictures or newspapers, Sigler relates.

"The great part of it is, we talk and reminisce," Sigler says. "One person may be there and remember things the rest of us forgot, and just get us rolling on the floor."

The reunions have been going on since 1963, and it's the perfect time of year to hold them since many former residents return for the Aspenfest, anyway.

No reservations are required. Just show up with a covered dish. The association provides the service, bread, drinks and cream and sugar.

A $2 donation is also requested, with the money going to the Ruidoso High School's scholarship fund.

Golden aspen groves only short drive from town

Visitors and locals alike find autumn in the Sacramento Mountains breathtaking. Rich, vibrant colors splash the countryside as in an artist's pallet of color. Streams reflect the golden hues of the changing leaves. Sunlight filters through the salmon and shrimp tones of ivy as it climbs up toward the sun.

Time seems to slow as the magical effect of the fall settles upon the valley and mountains. The lazy Indian Summer days are perfect for creating memories that follow one throughout a lifetime.

When the trees in the Hondo Valley start turning orange, yellow and brown, it's just a matter of time before Mother Nature splashes her magical golden paintbrush throughout the rest of Lincoln County.

Aspenfest, named for the stately mountain trees that grace the higher reaches, are the stars of Ruidoso's annual fall festival.

Visitors and locals always find plenty to do during Aspenfest — from a street dance on Friday to a parade Saturday, the annual arts and crafts exhibition under the trees and much more.

But the big weekend owes its existence to the brilliant golden aspens.

Be sure and take a leisurely drive up the mountain and watch the aspens light up the forest.

Those beautiful golden aspens are the real stars of nature's annual show.

From late September through early October the leaves of these tall trees turn a bright gold and as they fall they litter the ground with brightness, like a floor made of gold doubloons.

Aspens stand regally throughout the Lincoln National Forest — many within a few minutes drive of Ruidoso.

Depending on your sense of adventure, these viewing areas can be reached via paved routes or by taking some of the forest roads in the vicinity.

All along Ski Run Road, also known as State Road 532, are many spectacular vistas of aspen trees, as well as smaller pockets of the tree right along the road at the edge of Eagle Creek.

This paved road leads up to Ski Apache Resort and has several turnouts along the way providing panoramic views of the White Mountain Wilderness and the Ruidoso and Bonito valleys.

About halfway up is Oak Grove Campground, a forest service campground with picnic tables, cooking grills and toilets, but no running water. The use of the facility is free.

If you're willing to take a gravel forest road that is at times quite steep and rock-strewn, Forest Road 117 to Monjeau Lookout is worth the trip. A broad view of the northern slope of the White Mountains, with a view of the Capitans and Jicarillas, is available at the lookout.

Also, access to the Crest Trail is possible just below the lookout. By taking a short hike to the west, you will pass through large meadows, and by heading uphill off the trail you can reach the top of the ridge for a full view of the Eagle Creek basin.

Further up the trail the way becomes a little steeper, but another large meadow can be reached providing you with a view westward toward the Tularosa Basin and eastward back into the Eagle Creek basin.

The trail is at between 9,000 and 10,000 feet in elevation, so be sure to take your time and take along plenty of water.

Below the Crest Trail access is a small picnic/campground that also is a good spot for aspen viewing and beautiful views. Trails also lead from this spot, but should be reserved for more experienced hikers.

As the aspens change, so do the scrub and oak throughout the area. These hardwoods turn a bright red during their autumn change.

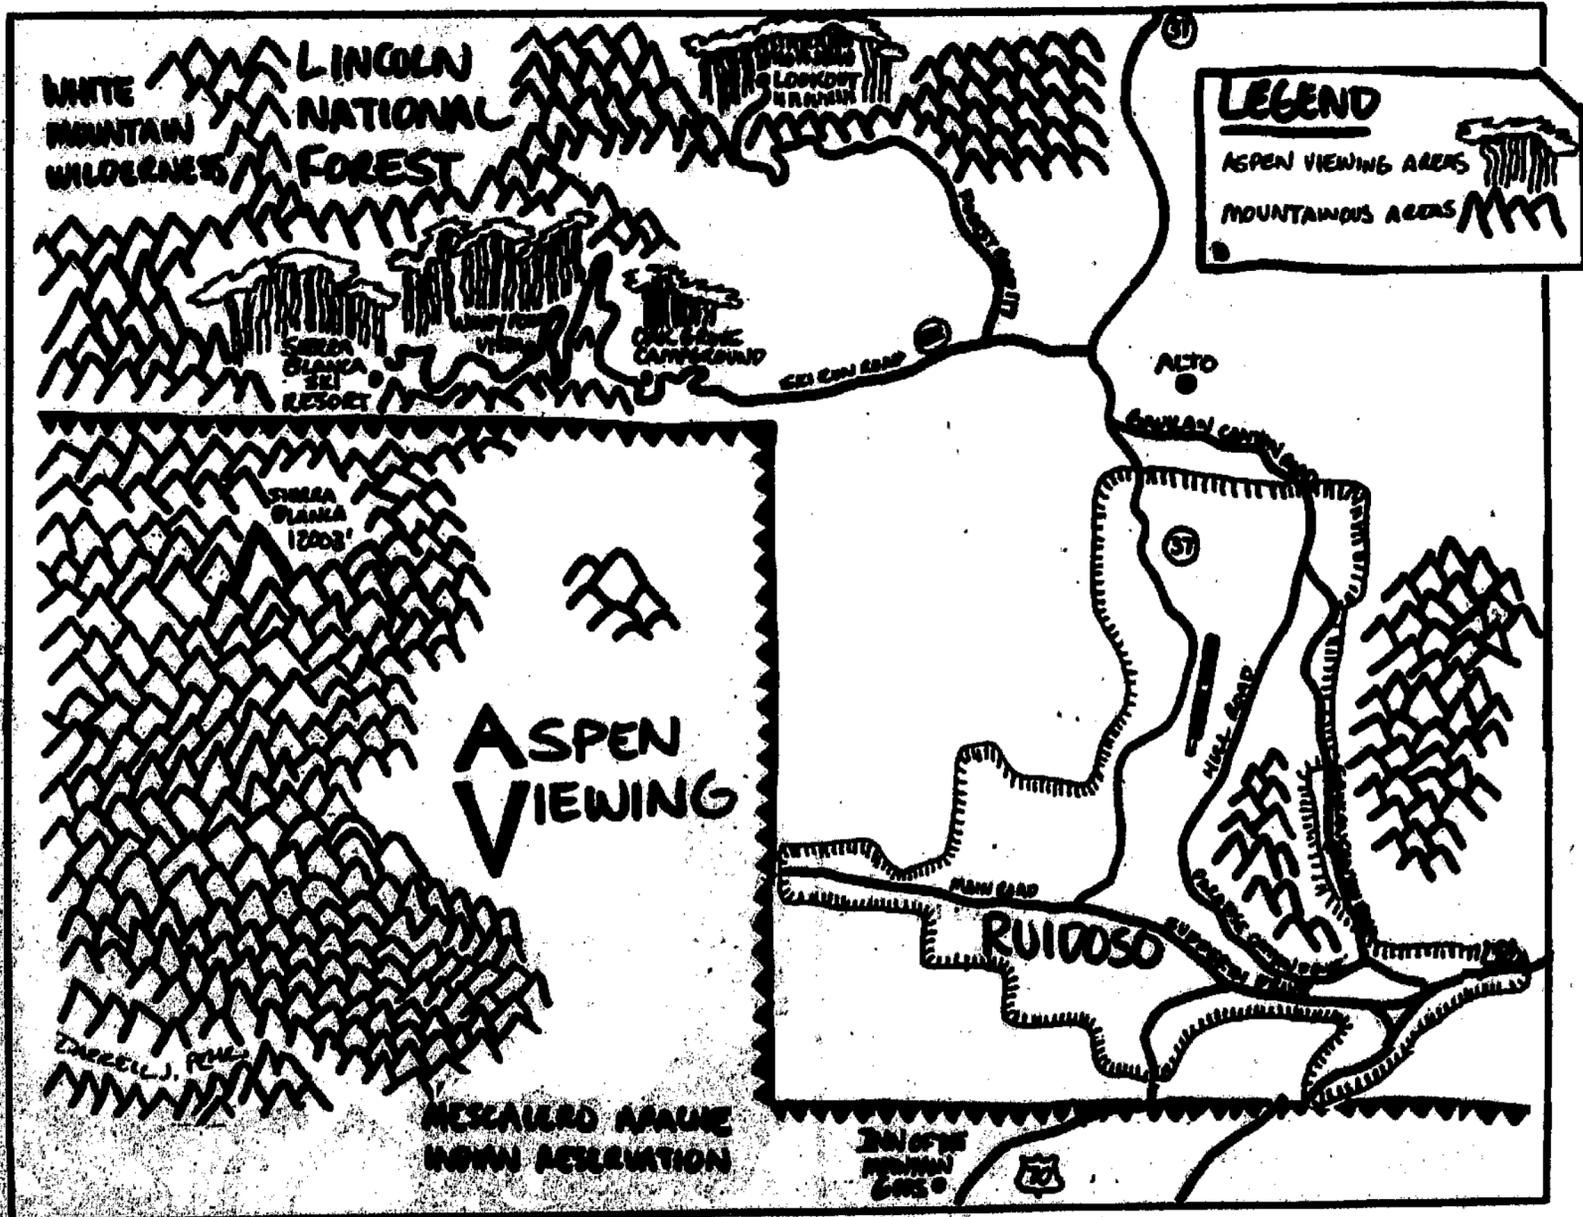

A drive through Nogal Canyon or from Bonito Lake can bring you to the Crest Trail access where you can hike to the top of Nogal Peak.

After a brief hike on the Crest Trail, a barbed wire fence with an "Oklahoma" gate will be off to your left. On the other side of the fence is the route leading to the summit of Nogal Peak.

This trail is often very steep and rocky so allow yourself plenty of time. The view from the top is spectacular.

The autumn change in leaves happens suddenly and lasts for just a brief time. Contrary to popular belief, the color change is not brought on by temperature changes or freezes, but by the lessening of the amount of sunlight during the autumn days.

If you need more information on trails or where to go in the forest lands, drop by the Smokey Bear Ranger District office on Mechem Drive in Ruidoso. They are happy to help you.

Fancy rods take run to Ruidoso for the weekend

Customized classic cars, hot rods and other automobiles from the era when the car was king will roll into Ruidoso for Aspenfest.

Street rodders from at least half a dozen states will join in the Sixth Annual Run to Ruidoso Saturday, Oct. 8 in School House Park.

Only street-driven vehicles manufactured in 1969 or earlier will be accepted for participation.

The snazzy, pampered cars will be on display all day Saturday at the park, which is located near the public library on Sudderth Drive.

Kids games will be part of the amusement at the park, including a frisbee toss and nerf ball toss with unusual twists. The valve cover races will have wheels to send the valve covers down a ramp.

Judges, who are street rodders themselves, will scrutinize these meticulously assembled cars and present awards for the cleanest undercarriage, the best mild paint or the best wild paint, the best flames, the chromiest motor, the best pin stripes, the best primer, and the best interior. There will even be a "hard luck" award. Winners will be presented with outrageous and innovative handmade trophies designed and crafted by fellow rodders.

"It's not really a car show," explained organizer Robert Acosta. The categories are picked by fellow rodders and presented individually.

Mainly a family oriented event, the Rod Run is a chance for car buffs to show off their handiwork and visit with fellow rodders and their families.

Run to Ruidoso is supported in part by the Southern New Mexico Street Rod Association of Las Cruces and the Early Times Street Rod Association of El Paso, Tex. It is an annual event, and this year will draw more than 300 cars.

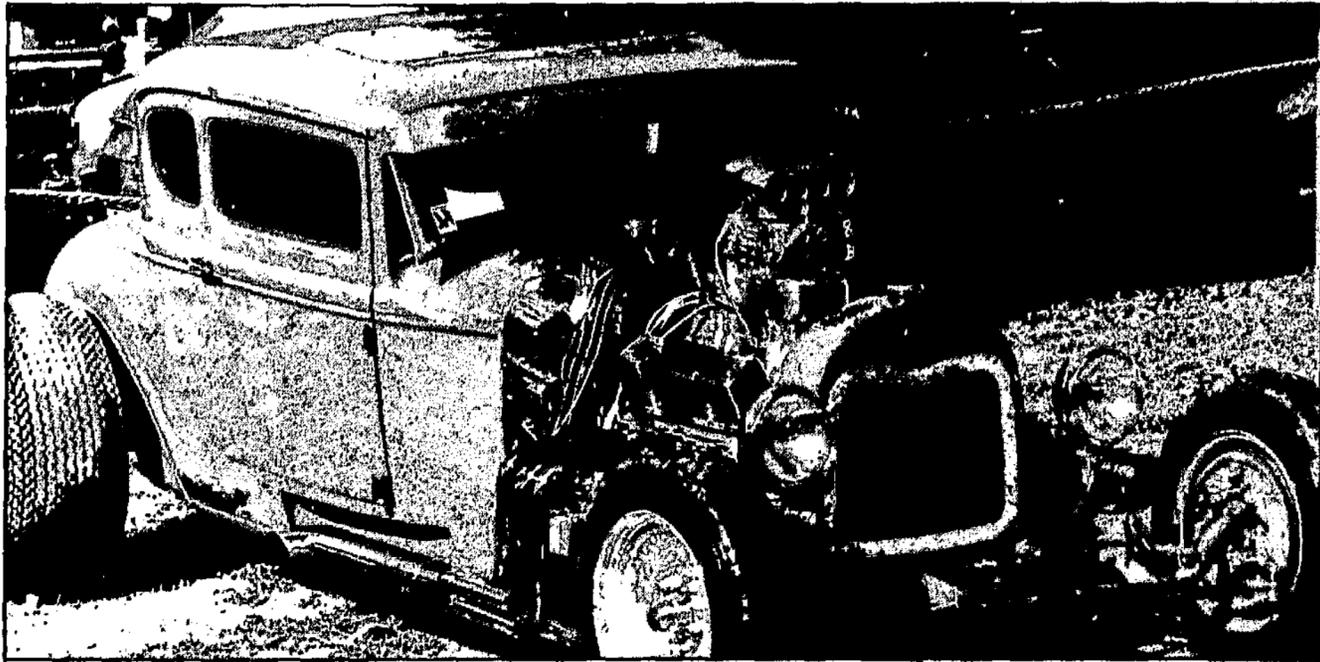

Both regional rod clubs are chartered with the National Street Rod Association.

Some of these "expensive toys" will take part in the Aspenfest parade, but often their parts aren't made for idling so don't miss a chance to visit the display that will take over School House Park from one end to the other.

Besides plenty of great looking cars, there will be T-shirts for sale and refreshment stands in the park.

Registration for the run begins Friday from 2-8 p.m. at the Inn at Pine Springs, then continues Saturday from 7-noon at the park.

The contact for more information on the Run to Ruidoso, or if you are interested in participating, is Robert Acosta. He can be reached at 382-1526.

LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY

A NEWSPAPER/COMMUNICATIONS COMPANY SERVING ARIZONA, COLORADO, KANSAS AND NEW MEXICO

To all our new neighbors and friends in Lincoln County:
We're WorldWest Limited Liability Company. Although we're a new firm our principals have deep roots in the communications business, and that background makes us very pleased to be the new owners of The Ruidoso News.

We know, however, that no matter what the formalities say about ownership, the newspaper belongs to the communities it serves. Staff members and owners hold it in a stewardship relationship to inform and assist and work for the betterment of those communities on behalf of readers, advertisers and all residents. Our experience in the brief time we've been involved with The Ruidoso News clearly shows that you care deeply about the newspaper and that you value this relationship.

Our goal is to have a community newspaper that is fair, accurate, impartial, trusted and playing a leadership role in helping to make Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Capitán, Carrizozo and all of Lincoln County better places to live, work and play for all residents. We want The Ruidoso News to be the best that it can be, and above all a newspaper that earns and merits your respect.

We're pleased to be part of the community. Our company owners and representatives have enjoyed meeting you on our visits and look forward to renewing those acquaintances and to getting to know many others in the future.

If you have concerns or questions, please tell us. None of us associated with The Ruidoso News is perfect. We'll probably make mistakes, and we may upset you, but we want to let you know that we do care. You can write to us at The Ruidoso News, and your letters will be forwarded. Or you can write to us directly at WorldWest Limited Liability Company, P.O. Box 688, Lawrence, Kan. 66044. Our telephone number is 913-832-7100. Or fax us at 913-832-7207.

Again, we're pleased to be associated with The Ruidoso News. We thank you for your support of the newspaper and for the genuine interest you have in it. We look forward to a bright future together.

Sincerely,
Dolph C. Simons Jr., Manager, WorldWest Limited Liability Company, and Dolph C. Simons III, Dan C. Simons and Ralph Gage, other members of the company

Water remains biggest unknown for future regional development

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The villages of Capitan and Ruidoso are surrounded by attractive and highly developable land.

Their climates draw new home hunters from both coasts and between.

But their growth could be cut short, cut off, by one factor more than any other: water.

Already, members of the board of trustees in Capitan have drawn their line. They said two months ago that no more water hookups would be approved for jobs outside the village and no more annexations allowed until a pipeline from Eagle Creek is completed and new water flows in the village lines.

Although, Ruidoso is hooked up and pumping from the Eagle Creek source, Ruidoso councilors are pushing for completion of a water project that will utilize Grindstone reservoir, created as an alternate water source and recreation area.

The two villages are equal partners in the Eagle Creek Intercommunity Water Supply Association. Their partnership goes back at least four decades, always with the aim of providing a source of water and a source of growth for the two communities.

But Capitan especially is suffering, because the association's current $500,000 project is stalled while members try to find a money source.

D.D. Swearingin, whose father Dan was one of the original members of the association board formed in March 1954, himself was a member until earlier this year.

"We were working on a loan from the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) before I left, to do several things: to put an outlet tower in the Alto Lake Reservoir (currently water only can be taken off the bottom), to remove silt from the reservoir to regain storage capacity, to rebuild the intake works at the point of diversion on Eagle Creek about two miles north of the Alto turnoff, and to rehabilitate the pipeline from the top of Angus Hill to the Bonito Lake turnoff," Swearingin said.

"The existing line is worn out and we were going to slip line it."

The stumbling point hinges around loan collateral requirements.

When Swearingin and former Capitan mayor Frank Warth's request for financial help was rejected by the State Legislature, the association turned to the FmHA, but that agency wanted the villages as members of the association to pledge the association's water rights.

"I don't think it's right," Swearingin said. "In my opinion, the loan would be well secured with a first mortgage on the land we own. They're way over collateralized, if they want security interests in our water rights."

The association owns 4,343.8 acre feet of rights in the Eagle Creek drainage area. One acre foot is the amount of water it would take to cover one acre, one foot deep, about 325,851 gallons.

Frank Potter, who serves on the association board and is a Ruidoso village councilor, said the board intends to meet with the New Mexico Mortgage Finance Authority to discuss a loan through that agency.

The association was able to build part of a new pipeline through the cooperation of Alamogordo city officials, Swearingin said.

"They let us piggyback on their construction contract," he said. "We paid for the pipe, basically, and laid new line as they dug (from the turnoff to Bonito from Highway 48 to Cora Dutton Road), except for the portion from Angus to Bonito (about 9,000 linear feet), which still is unusable. So Capitan still can't get water."

Association board member David Rouleau of Capitan said the pipeline section from Bonito to Cora Dutton Road that was replaced with Alamogordo was paid for from a portion of water sale revenues.

"But until the latest segment from Angus to Bonito is complete, it's just not usable. It leaks in so many places," he said. "We don't feel either community is willing to put up water rights. Our assets are well in excess of the amount we would be borrowing."

"Our attorney wrote letters and we went to Washington, but they were unwilling to budge."

"Because of the steep terrain and the condition of the pipeline, the scope is larger."

Alto Lake is an important portion of the equation, Potter said.

"The surface drainage of Eagle Creek is not large enough in summer for much runoff into Alto Lake, which was constructed to increase water access when flow volumes fell significantly below what was predicted," Potter said. "The lake was needed for storage and retention. The drainage for Eagle Creek comes from the winter snow pack. The stream system and lake fill in spring during the April snow melt and in years past, was available during the heavy summer months."

"This year has been unusual. The rains weren't there when we needed them," he said.

Although the mean annual precipitation of the area is placed at 22 inches, the actual amount each year varies significantly, with alternating droughts and flooding.

Potter said Eagle Creek is Ruidoso's main source of water.

"That's why we worked hard to build Grindstone," he said. "Capitan bought wells to supplement."

"Politics is what caused them to form the association," Swearingin said. "Capitan was totally dependent on wells and had very little water supply. The quality was terrible."

The Southern Pacific Railroad (previously the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad), which built and improved three mountain pipelines to provide pure spring water fuel (free from alkaline contaminants found in the Tularosa Basin) for their steam engines, was politically powerful until the 1960s. The company sold off the pipelines when it didn't need water for steam and went to diesel motors.

"The city of Alamogordo purchased the Bonito line and Eagle Creek was bought by Ruidoso and Capitan. My father went to San Francisco with James Earl Harcrow of Capitan, association attorney Frank Boyce and several others representing the state (because the state hospital at Fort Stanton was an association member) to negotiate the purchase from the railroad, which had built the line in 1913," Swearingin said.

"As I recall, the price for the two villages was $10,000 and was paid out at somewhere between 2 percent to 4 percent over a term.

"For quite a while, Capitan had no way to take the water, so the village built the pipelines from their filter plant to the Alamogordo pipeline (the former railroad pipeline from Bonito Lake) by the road to Nogal. The line went cross country to a filter plant on the north side of Capitan. They had an arrangement with Alamogordo to transport Eagle Creek water to Capitan on that pipeline for a very low fee."

About 1988, after disagreements between the city and village officials, Capitan was forced to get off the Bonito pipeline, he said.

"Both villages need to do this project."

The village of Ruidoso benefits in two ways from its connection to Eagle Creek, Swearingin explained. Besides the actual water it receives, the state also allows the village an effluent credit.

"The theory being that Eagle Creek water brought into the Ruidoso drainage (area) through various means is foreign water, not native to Ruidoso," Swearingin said.
