Man shot twice near Capitan bar

A shooting outside the Rodeo Bar near Capitan Wednesday sent one man to the hospital and another to jail.

Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane and three deputies investigated the incident after receiving a call at 9:44 p.m.

James Manley, 28, from Fort Stanton and Albert Ralph Cameroz, 49, who lives near the bar, were arguing outside the bar when Cameroz allegedly pulled a 25 caliber handgun and shot Manley twice, the sheriff said.

One bullet hit Manley's leg and the other hit his groin area. Manley was taken by Fort Stanton ambulance to the Lincoln County Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Cameroz was arrested at the bar for aggravated assault, aggravated battery and possession of a controlled substance under an ounce. He was still in jail on a $10,500 bond Thursday morning.

Community center on school agenda

A new community center will be part of the Ruidoso School Board's discussion tonight.

The board meets at 7 p.m., Nov. 3, at 200 Horton Circle in the administration office.

Items on the agenda include an update on the collaboration between the school district and the Village of Ruidoso about a new community center, federal regulations concerning safe handling of injured persons; a report on a $5,000 performing arts grant, and the refurbishing of a portable classroom at Ruidoso High School.

School board meetings are open to the public.

Hopper named new emergency manager

The title is new, but the face is familiar.

Connie Hopper, a member of the Capitan Board of Trustees and long time school drug awareness officer with the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department, is the county's new Emergency Services Coordinator.

Hopper replaces Maggie Bohks, who is retiring after more than 14 years with the county. Bohks and Hopper are working together for the next two weeks to ensure a smooth transfer.

The position, which covers emergency medical volunteer services in the county, as well as emergency management for disasters, will pay $21,457 a year after the probation period.

Gambling stakes higher in Ruidoso

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Nowhere in New Mexico are the stakes higher and the debate louder about Amendment 8.

That's because here in Ruidoso, the proposed state constitutional amendment to legalize video gambling could have far-reaching effects on the economic and social fabric that binds the community.

Previous legislative attempts to legalize gambling have proposed limiting it to a handful of resort communities, including Ruidoso.

If this amendment passes, it will be up to the legislature early next year to decide the details — what communities will have gambling, what type of businesses will have it, what kind of taxes will be imposed on its revenues, and where that tax money will go. If the legislature can't make a decision, gambling will be wide open.

The amendment proposes a state lottery alongside wagering on video machines games of chance.

Opponents of the proposed amendment say they're not comfortable trusting the legislature to come up with good regulations after the fact.

They contend gambling would drastically drive up property values, drive out many long-time residents, encourage destructive compulsive behavior and create mostly low-paying, non-skilled jobs.

And most importantly, they say, it would change the nature of the town forever.

But those favoring the move insist the town has been surrounded by gambling for decades at Ruidoso Downs Racetrack and, more recently, on the neighboring Mescalero Apache reservation at Casino Apache.

They point to the loss of an estimated $20 million in ticket sales to states bordering New Mexico that have lotteries.

Proponents say gambling tax revenues could repair government infrastructure and stabilize a local roller coaster economy, while offering a lifesaving new video gaming business to the mainstay of the town's summer season: the racetrack.

Nix to gambling

Local clothing store owner Herb Brunell said his primary concern is the impact on property values.

"In my opinion what's going to happen is what's happened in other states like Colorado, where people think gambling is going to bring a tremendous amount of influx into their community," Brunell said. "So they begin to pay more than what value there is in a piece of property, or buildings. It really concerns me that we are going to have a false economy based on the thought that gambling is going to be so much money into the community."

"I just don't believe that's going to happen. We're just betting on people's greed. Some will get high paying jobs, but not many folks. It will create $4.50 an hour jobs, but it's not going to bring high wealth to many people."

Brunell said he's also worried that the family atmosphere in town will be damaged.

"Many families can't afford the kind of thing that's going to happen to them when they get bit by the gambling bug," he said.

A survey in Albuquerque several years ago showed that when the state fair and horse racing came to town, a decrease in payments on accounts occurred, Brunell said.

"So the money is diverted from the real needs of the family," he said.

Brunell doesn't have absolute faith that the legislature will draft tight regulations for gambling.

"Horse racing is tightly controlled by the state and the present gambling we have is controlled by the people who own it, the Indians," he said. "If amendment eight passes, and the state legislature doesn't pass some kind of controls, we're going to be in deep trouble."

Pros and cons of gambling

These are some of the major arguments for and against Amendment 8.

PRO

— A lottery and video gambling would boost the state's economy, creating new jobs and enhancing tourist areas such as Ruidoso.

— Ruidoso is already surrounded by gambling at Ruidoso Downs Racetrack and Casino Apache. Passage would give the town a piece of the pie and allow improvements to streets, water and sewer systems and other services.

— Racetracks need video gaming as a way of competing with gambling on Indian reservations.

— A lottery would keep money in New Mexico that now flows into bordering states with lotteries.

CON

The amendment should have designated where the revenues would be spent. Leaving it up to the state legislature to decide and write the regulations is risky.

— Property values could become inflated and drive out long time residents.

— Gambling would divert money needed for the support of families, and it encourages destructive compulsive behavior.

— Many hidden costs, both social and monetary, are associated with a lottery and regulating gaming.

Use of county equity earns thousands for roads

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A new, money-generating approach to leasing and buying equipment caught some Lincoln County Commissioners off guard last August, when County Road Manager Bill Cupit first laid out his plan.

It seemed risky. But to their surprise, officials with the State Department of Finance and Administration didn't nix the idea. They told the county to try Cupit's plan.

The proposal was simple, but more in line with private business, where Cupit grew up professionally before joining the county four years ago.

Instead of turning used equipment back to the company where it had been leased for purchase, Cupit suggested taking advantage of the county's equity in the machinery.

He proposed buying six leased motor graders used to blade roads at a cost of $449,000, then selling them for about $660,000, with the excess being used toward the purchase of dump trucks. The county also would lease newer models of the bladders.

Regular maintenance by the county contributes to the higher value of the machinery to be sold.

Two months later, the plan appears to be working out just as Cupit had hoped, as buyers from Hong Kong, Japan, California, South Carolina and other points across the map travel to the county road yard in Capitan to examine the six motor graders. Bids to purchase the units from the county are due Nov. 8 and the commission is scheduled to take action Nov. 10.

The county set a minimum bid of $99,000 per unit, Cupit said. The graders have good maintenance records and have been appraised at $100,000-$110,000. The county could generate $150,000-$270,000 in the sale and apply the money toward the purchase of three needed dump trucks, Cupit said.

"The commissioners had told me if I could come up with extra money, it would be put toward that," Cupit said.

All of the new motor graders have been delivered. Monday, Cupit and lead operator Mike Points showed off a new power broom, a motor grader and a chip spreader. The spreader is part of the equipment needed to chip seal roads, a new direction in road maintenance for the county championed by Commissioner Bill Schwetmann and backed by the rest of the board.

County Manager Carolin Cooney said residents of the county should see "even better maintenance" in the future with the department's new equipment.

Gambling saved Cripple Creek and fueled big changes

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Gambling revived the small mining town of Cripple Creek, Colo., but the price tag was steep. The town mayor said it cost residents their special lifestyle and wiped out most local businesses.

Mayor Henry Hack of Cripple Creek said he and the city council supported gambling for the town of 535 residents when the issue was placed on the state ballot in 1990.

"We had reached the bottom of the barrel where there just wasn't anything to fix these old buildings," he said. "Of course, if you're not in a situation where you feel you need (casino gambling), I think the...lottery is probably a good way to go. (Casino gambling) will change things, really."

But town residents didn't think any other options were open, Hack said. The council sent in a petition to place Cripple Creek's name on the ballot along with Central City and Blackhawk, two other former mining towns.

Statewide voters approved the proposal, 574,620 to 428,096, according to the Colorado Elections Division. Later, similar constitutional amendment proposed for the town of Parachute and other Colorado communities failed to pass. This year, Manitou Springs will be up for a gambling vote.

"Like the governor said, I don't believe gambling is the way to go, but he didn't tell us any other way to go, either," Hack said. "We were in a spot where something had to give, because every day we were getting in a little worse shape. The old buildings were gone, the roofs were gone. It isn't all good, but we were in a financial state where gold mining had quit and it helped us out. "People say to me, 'You ruined your town.' I say, you're here once or twice a year and you take a look at it and think it's quite quaint. You don't have to live with that stuff year after year and try to hold it together."

The town has 47 parking lots

Neil Simon comedy opens tonight at Ruidoso Little Theater

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

One of Ruidoso's favorite theater picks, a classic comedy with a twist, returns to the stage tonight.

Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple, Female Version" opens tonight at the Ruidoso Little Theater.

Simon reworked the original

Odd Couple story of two mismatched roommates and replaced the male lead characters of Oscar and Felix with female leads Olive and Florence. In director Leon Eggleston's Ruidoso production, Sandra Fredrickson plays Florence and Sandy Knox plays Olive.

"What we have here is a hilarious play," said Eggleston. "We have a great cast and crew."

Eggleston is assisted in the production by Margaret Norbury and Steve Smith.

"We first performed this play about four years ago," said Eggleston. "We brought it back because it was our audience pick of the year."

"Hopefully we'll be held over." Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple, Female Version" will play every Thursday, Friday, and Saturday through Nov. 19. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

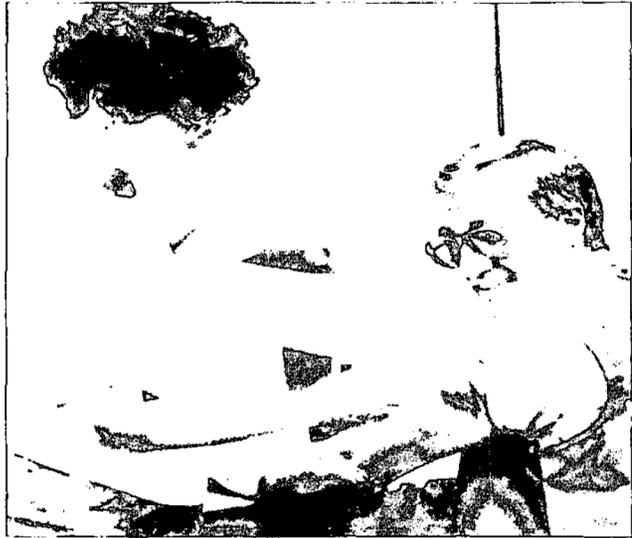

Eggleston suggested early reservations because seating is limited. Tickets cost $7 for adults and $6 for seniors and children. For reservations call the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce at 257-7395.

The Ruidoso Little Theater is located at 2961 Sudderrth Drive next to the main post office.

Opening night proceeds benefit the Altrusa Club

Doesn't hurt a bit

Mike Mohrhauser manages a smile of sorts as nurse Norma Zaborowski plunges a needle in his arm during the Annual Health Fair co-sponsored by the Lincoln County Medical Center and the county health department. Public nurse Theresa Luna said 1,000 flu inoculations were given, leaving only 20 vaccines. "The people who helped out were wonderful," Luna said. "Everything went so smoothly." About 450 county residents who lined up in the different communities during the fair also were screened for cholesterol and glucose levels.

Council nixes Vigil variance

An addition to the vacation home of Flavio Vigil will have to be torn down, moved to the front of the property on Third Street in Ruidoso or brought into compliance with construction codes and setback regulations within 120 days.

Vigil lost his appeal to the Ruidoso Village Council last week of a Planning and Zoning Commission decision to deny a variance to rear property line setback requirements. The variance would have allowed the addition to remain at the back of his home. He based his appeal on hardship and was represented by attorney Don Dutton.

Village staff said construction on the home in Pine Lodge subdivision was undertaken by Vigil without village approval of a site development plan or a construction permit.

The zoning board in late September gave him the options of obtaining additional adjoining property and bringing the structure into compliance with the state's uniform building code, or removing the addition. The board granted a side yard variance that would allow Vigil to attach the addition on the front of the property where sufficient setback is available.

 to spend their last dollar on gambling," he said. "Well, they can go out today to the Inn or the racetrack right now and spend their last dime. If they're gamblers, they're gamblers."
 Extreme jumps in property values are associated more with casino table-type gambling, not video gaming, Lynch says.
 "I just don't see what we (would be) offering here is any different than what's already here, but we'll have it in town," Lynch said. "I see it more as a stabilizing effect. We've done this roller coaster effect for years and years, up and down. I would like to see some stabilization, and jobs increase. Naturally, I want to see good control."
 Nancy Carlson of Coldwell Bankers Realty said her 16 agents vacillate on the issue, but most favor it.

They believe the legislature will allow expanded gaming at the racetrack and new hotel to be constructed in Ruidoso by the company, Wilson said.
 The resulting money may keep the racetrack afloat and stabilize purses, while video gambling draws more tourists to the area, he said. Wilson said he's also working on establishing scheduled air service.
 "That's something that's really holding the community back and something we're working on right now," he said. "Somehow or another, the playing field has to be somewhat leveled. We don't have any interest in shutting (Mescalero Apache President) Wendell Chino's operation down whatsoever. At the same time, we can't survive the competition unless we have the opportunity to have some expanded gaming of our own. It's just a simple fairness issue."
 "There's a lot riding on this. Racing is a $367 million a year industry in New Mexico and supports about 9500 jobs."
 Wilson said he has confidence that once public attention is focused on the legislature, it will do a good job writing regulations.
 "There are great models all over the place that maintain absolute integrity of the systems," he said. "I think the pressure will be fairly intense for the legislature to adopt a good regulatory system. The way it's worded, if that doesn't happen, open gaming could be all over the place."

"They'd like to see it come in, if it is regulated," she said. "They don't want to see Ruidoso property owners forced out because of inflated property values."
 "When (State Rep. H. John Underwood) spoke to the Board of Realtors, he said 'trust me,' because it is wide open. (The state legislature) has total authority to do whatever they want to do. I feel strongly enough about it that I probably will go up and sit in the hearings as they are formulating the regs on it. Several of us will go up to fight to keep this thing under control and not destroy property values."

Racetrack woes
 Mark Wilson, president of Hubbard Enterprises, which operates the Ruidoso Downs racetrack, said the issue is a matter of survival for tracks across the state.
 "We feel like if it doesn't pass, we are not going to have any ability to keep quality racing at Ruidoso or anywhere else in the state. We believe that there may well be a straight lottery implemented regardless of whether Amendment 8 passes," he said. Studies have shown a negative impact of 15-23 percent on racing, if a lottery is passed in a state, he added.
 "We're losing money right now," Wilson said. "If your throw another 18-20 percent on top of that, there is no way we can stay in business."
 Hubbard Enterprises officials support the amendment because

Village prepares
 Ruidoso Village manager Gary Jackson isn't taking sides on the issue.
 "I do, however, support economic development and gaming would be consistent with our #1 industry in Ruidoso, which is tourism," he said.
 Jackson's main thrust will be to ensure the village is prepared for the growth by updating its development and related regulating ordinances, while lobbying the legislature for limits on gaming.
 "We would want to give the council an element of control right from the start so the village is not caught off guard if the rush comes," Jackson said. "I have confidence that either of our legislative candidates would go up there and attempt to place limits. Wide open would not benefit the city as a whole."

Hubbard bets on growth at racetrack

by PAULINE YOSHIHASHI
 Staff Reporter of
 The Wall Street Journal
 (Reprinted with permission of The Wall Street Journal. Copyright 1994, Dow Jones & Co., Inc. All rights reserved.)
 At Hollywood Park, one of thoroughbred racing's most venerable sites, Randall D. Hubbard, chairman and chief executive officer, is betting that growth is in the cards.
 Hollywood Park Inc. has just cut the ribbon on an around-the-clock card club at the Inglewood, Calif., track, a key element in the company's $100 million master plan to develop the 335-acre complex near Los Angeles International Airport. The 60,000-square-foot club currently operates 150 gambling tables, three restaurants, exercise facilities, lounge, private karaoke suites, retail space—and, of course—a wagering that's available in almost every nook and cranny except the washrooms.

 While casino-style gambling like slot machines and roulette is illegal in California, card clubs have become an increasingly popular venue for betting on card playing. At Hollywood Park, players rent a seat at a table where one of a number of varieties of poker or popular Asian card games is being played. Unlike Las Vegas card games like blackjack, player bet against one another, not the house.
 (By state law, public companies such as Hollywood Park aren't allowed to operate card clubs; the company's club is being run under contract by an outside management team.)

Mr. Hubbard also believes ailing racing facilities may be good sites for card clubs, video poker, slot machines and other lucrative forms of gambling. And as he gazes out over his bustling card club, Mr. Hubbard says the track's biggest hedge against the dwindling number of racing fans may literally lie beneath his feet. If slot machines, video poker or similar games ever become legal in California, the company could put scores of the devices on line just as fast as they could be plugged in; the wiring and hardware are all in place.
 With that in mind, Mr. Hubbard, a 59-year-old former schoolteacher and glass-industry mogul, has been scouting the nation for tracks. He personally owns Ruidoso Downs in New Mexico and the Multnomah Kennel Club in Portland, Ore. He owned a 60% stake in The Woodlands in Kansas City, Kan., until earlier this year, when Hollywood Park bought the horse and dog racing facility for $20 million.
 Hollywood Park also just bought Turf Paradise in Phoenix for about $34 million in stock. But earlier this year its offer to acquire the famed Pimlico and Laurel tracks in Maryland was rebuffed by the tracks' controlling family.
 Mr. Hubbard understands the politics of gambling and how a proven track record can be useful with politicians. "Tracks have been regulated for 50 years," he says, referring to the industry's regional political clout. A majority of states already have some parimutuel-related businesses, from horse and dog breeders and owners to racetrack and jai-al frontons, so they're familiar with legalized gambling industry.

which states they're targeting next, but they acknowledged that several, among them Kentucky, Texas, Arkansas and Maryland, may interest them.
 Despite the California legislature's failure to legalize casino-style gambling this year, Hollywood Park is still bullish on the state. The company last week signed a letter of intent with a closely held local partner, Compton Entertainment, to develop a 200-table card facility in Compton, Calif. The club, to be dubbed the Pyramid Casino, is expected to cost between $30 million and $40 million; Hollywood Park hopes to obtain a majority stake if state law is amended to allow publicly traded companies to operate card clubs.
 Moreover, the company still has plans for the Hollywood Park site. G. Michael Finnigan, president of gaming and entertainment, says the company intends to team up as a minority partner on a 16,500 seat live music facility. It also has blueprints for a retail shopping mall and even a police station to be located on land that would be donated to the city.
 Hollywood Park's ambitious strategy remains novel in the racing business. For example, at the Santa Anita racetrack, a healthy competitor in Arcadia, Calif., officials say they're considering adding other forms of entertainment to complement the big retail shopping mall next to the track. But so far, there aren't any plans for poker or other games. "We're still focusing on racing," says Stephen F. Keller, chairman, president and chief executive of Santa Anita Operating Co.
 The track here has shown operating improvements since Mr. Hubbard took over three years ago, and the company reported net income of $5.2 million, or 26 cents a share, on revenue of $63.2 million for 1993.
 Mr. Hubbard says Hollywood Park would be willing to team up with other companies as it looks for ways to expand. "If we develop other forms of gaming in places like Kansas and Arizona, we'd want a partner who's a successful operator casinos," Mr. Hubbard says. "We think we know how to run a racetrack, and we think we can run card clubs. But the next level of complete destination resorts is a totally different area."

 today. It used to have "a couple of cops," Hack said. Now 27 are on the payroll.
 The population of the town has increased from 535 to about 800, according to a city hall clerk.
 "Gambling" took most of the town things, the grocery stores and all of the shops that we did have that weren't doing too well," Hack said. "They took them all. They were supposed to go in and do a portion of it and leave the rest of the stuff as it was."
 "We tried to control it, but it didn't seem to work out right. I just wanted everybody to have 100 machines and of course, now that got voted down pretty much by the city council and the gaming people."
 "We had a town with the necessary things, but today we don't even have a grocery store. But eventually, I think we will get it," Hack said. "What we are short of today is low priced housing."
 "It did help us put the town back in shape as far as the infrastructure, sewer and water and all that sort of stuff."

Property values initially went down as gambling revenues relieved the burden, but then the state came in and re-evaluated. Taxes went up, Hack said.
 Some opponents sold their property for three or four times what it was worth and left the town, he said. Others traded their objections for jobs.

Indeed, gross revenue for parimutuel horse wagering was $2.86 billion in 1993, down from $2.93 billion in 1992, according to Gaming & Wagering Business and Christiansen/Cummings Associates. By comparison, gross revenue for all forms of gambling rose 14% to $34.7 billion from $30.4 billion in 1992.
 Mr. Hubbard believes the racing industry can help save itself by attracting a new generation of younger bettors. He also believes technology can bring the sport of kings into people's homes. A national racing channel that would allow bettors to place wagers from their homes may be "the salvation of racing" if laws can be changed and some technical glitches ironed out, he says.

Whatever the future holds, Mr. Hubbard's ambitions go well beyond wooing railbirds and poker aficionados to Hollywood Park's tables. That's partly because horse racing is one of the few kinds of legal gambling that is actually declining in popularity.
 "The on-track business is never going to be what it used to be," says Mr. Hubbard, a lifelong horseman who won control of Hollywood Park in 1991 after a bruising proxy fight with Marjorie Everett, the former chairwoman.
 Mr. Hubbard believes the racing industry can help save itself by attracting a new generation of tables, three restaurants, exercise facilities, lounge, private karaoke suites, retail space—and, of course—a wagering that's available in almost every nook and cranny except the washrooms.

 While casino-style gambling like slot machines and roulette is illegal in California, card clubs have become an increasingly popular venue for betting on card playing. At Hollywood Park, players rent a seat at a table where one of a number of varieties of poker or popular Asian card games is being played. Unlike Las Vegas card games like blackjack, player bet against one another, not the house.
 (By state law, public companies such as Hollywood Park aren't allowed to operate card clubs; the company's club is being run under contract by an outside management team.)

Mr. Hubbard also believes ailing racing facilities may be good sites for card clubs, video poker, slot machines and other lucrative forms of gambling. And as he gazes out over his bustling card club, Mr. Hubbard says the track's biggest hedge against the dwindling number of racing fans may literally lie beneath his feet. If slot machines, video poker or similar games ever become legal in California, the company could put scores of the devices on line just as fast as they could be plugged in; the wiring and hardware are all in place.
 With that in mind, Mr. Hubbard, a 59-year-old former schoolteacher and glass-industry mogul, has been scouting the nation for tracks. He personally owns Ruidoso Downs in New Mexico and the Multnomah Kennel Club in Portland, Ore. He owned a 60% stake in The Woodlands in Kansas City, Kan., until earlier this year, when Hollywood Park bought the horse and dog racing facility for $20 million.
 Hollywood Park also just bought Turf Paradise in Phoenix for about $34 million in stock. But earlier this year its offer to acquire the famed Pimlico and Laurel tracks in Maryland was rebuffed by the tracks' controlling family.
 Mr. Hubbard understands the politics of gambling and how a proven track record can be useful with politicians. "Tracks have been regulated for 50 years," he says, referring to the industry's regional political clout. A majority of states already have some parimutuel-related businesses, from horse and dog breeders and owners to racetrack and jai-al frontons, so they're familiar with legalized gambling industry.

Indeed, gross revenue for parimutuel horse wagering was $2.86 billion in 1993, down from $2.93 billion in 1992, according to Gaming & Wagering Business and Christiansen/Cummings Associates. By comparison, gross revenue for all forms of gambling rose 14% to $34.7 billion from $30.4 billion in 1992.
 Mr. Hubbard believes the racing industry can help save itself by attracting a new generation of

Ruidoso classes team up for learning

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso 6th graders are teaching 2nd graders better oral skills.

Kim Graham's sixth grade class reads to Sarah Garrett's second grade class twice each week as part of a special program developed by the teachers.

"The older students stimulate the interest of the second graders to the point that our students' oral skills have improved tremendously," said Sierra Primary School Principal Don Weems.

Graham's class, from White Mountain Intermediate School, walks next door to Garrett's class at Sierra Vista Primary to read stories for 45 minutes. Each sixth grade student reads to two second graders. Half of the sixth graders read to the younger students on Tuesdays and the other half reads on Fridays.

The close proximity of the two schools in the White Mountain Education Complex is a major factor in the success of the story reading.

Sixth grade students must keep up with their schoolwork to participate in the program.

"The reading program is working out very well," Weems said. "It provides Ms. Graham with more one-on-one time with her remaining students."

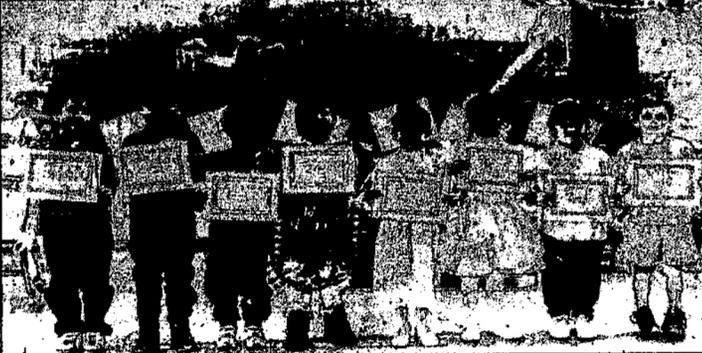

After reading a designated story, usually dealing with a subject being studied, students may select a story from a classroom or library book.

The idea has been so successful that other teachers have begun working with similar concepts, Weems said.

Mrs. Rhoten's first grade and Mrs. Denne's fifth grade will be pen pals this year. Mrs. Denne's fifth graders also read a story about pumpkins to the first graders. Afterwards, the first graders used watercolors to illustrate the pumpkin theme.

These two classes will be doing a variety of activities together throughout the year including shared reading, art, writing and making books together, Rhoten said.

Tigers vie for trip to state tourney

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer
Mental preparation will be the focus of Capitan's girls volleyball team when it takes the court Saturday.

The team hosts Hatch that morning for the opening match of the Region G volleyball tournament for Class A schools.

Coach Pam Allen's Tigers face Hatch Valley High School at 10 a.m. Saturday in the friendly surroundings of its own gym.

"We're going to have to focus — as we've had to all season — on being alert on every touch of the ball, on concentrating well and on playing hard with a lot of enthusiasm," Allen said.

Allen said her team is "very good" when the athletes are mentally ready and "average" when they're not.

Even though she has a junior-dominated team, Allen said, "I don't think we can call them inexperienced any longer."

Middle blockers Sheryl Dockery and Catherine Sidwell lead the Tigers at the net, but Allen depends on senior outside hitter Jessica Cline to be her team's floor leader.

"We have good tradition with the girls athletic program and pride — bumped them from what many considered to be a sure state title.

Even though Dexter graduated a majority of players from that 17-0 team, the Demons haven't forgotten. Coach Tina Lee's starting lineup features four senior starters. And, Lee said, last year's loss will serve as motivation for this team.

Those seniors have led Dexter to a 14-4 record and district runners-up.

"One of our biggest strengths is, we've got a really good outside hitter in Jessica Barba," Lee said.

Lee's other seniors are setter Mica Luna, defensive specialist April Montgomery and outside hitter Tiffany VadenBout.

Animas counters with a young team that defeated Hatch Valley High School for the district crown.

"We're a relatively young team," sixth-year coach Kate Shelton said. "I've lost all my seniors except for one."

Shelton's team leader is senior outside hitter Joanie Jackson. She lists her team's strengths as teamwork, hustle and "overall tenacity."

Animas and Dexter met earlier this year at the Cloudford Tournament and the Demons dismissed the Panthers in three games.

Amber Livingston rejects this kill attempt during Ruidoso's straight-game district playoff win over Socorro Monday, Oct. 31. The Warriors beat Socorro 15-3, 15-11 and 15-6 behind Livingston's 17 kills. Hot Springs ended Ruidoso's season the next evening. The Warriors took fourth place in the district and finished 10-11 overall.

Hot Springs ends RHS spikers' season

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Ruidoso's rollercoaster ride through the volleyball season ended Tuesday at Hot Springs High School in the quarterfinals of the district playoffs.

The Warriors ended the season with a 10-11 overall record and fourth-place district finish.

"We played well at times, but it was frustrating," interim coach Janie Roland said of her team's efforts against Hot Springs.

"I was really pleased with how they tried to put it together at the end of the season," she said, adding the team had to overcome adversity.

Former Ruidoso volleyball coach Jody Blanton, who had coached the Warriors for five years, was removed from the job by superintendent Mike Gladden last May.

Replacement coach Sid Wright then resigned early in the preseason of volleyball to concentrate on the boys basketball program. Roland then took over the program on an interim basis.

"We came around at the end of the season," Roland said. "They're some of the finest young ladies I've been associated with. I'm going to miss them to pieces."

Warriors drill Socorro

Ruidoso advanced to Tuesday's night match with a three-game spanking of Socorro. The Warriors jumped to an early lead and never looked back, posting a 15-3, 15-11 and 15-6 win.

"We played awesome," Roland said.

Junior Amber Livingston dominated play at the net. The 5'10" junior was unstoppable, recording 17 kills and three and a half blocks. More than once she put down two kills in a row for the Warriors.

When Livingston wasn't pounding the ball down Socorro's throats, her teammates were. Juniors Angelica Figueroa and Lindsay Willard each recorded five kills and two and a half blocks. Setter/hitter Heather Stover added four kills and assisted on two blocks.

The only time Ruidoso lost its focus was midway through the second game. After surging to a 9-1 lead, the Warriors committed four errors and Socorro cut the lead to 9-7.

Warrior coach Roland called a timeout. The team regrouped, then went on to score a 15-11 win in the second game.

In the third game, Figueroa pounded a kill off the Socorro blocking tandem for match point.

Ruidoso faces the truth — or its consequences

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The Ruidoso High School football team puts its two-game winning streak and, more importantly, its playoff hopes on the line Friday. The team will take on Hot Springs High School tomorrow night.

The Warriors face another do-or-die situation. "If we win, we're in," Ruidoso football coach Les Carter said. "It means in the playoffs."

Ruidoso's 17-7 victory over Cobre last Friday night, combined with Hot Springs' 32-12 win over Santa Teresa, set up tomorrow night's showdown. Both teams sport 2-2 district records. If the Warriors win they will be the District 3-AAA runner-up. If they lose, their season is finished.

"It just comes down to who plays the hardest," Carter said. "We've got to come out and control the ball and play defense the way we've been playing it the last couple of weeks."

Carter described the visitors from Truth or Consequences as scrappy. Hot Springs, 5-4 overall, doesn't have any flashy offensive threats in its run-oriented, ball-control offense.

It's been the Ruidoso defense that has come alive in the last couple of weeks for the Warriors. Ruidoso yielded only 13 points to Socorro and Cobre.

Meanwhile, the Warrior offense

"He really played well," Carter said of his senior quarterback, who also completed four of six passes for 36 yards.

Rex Comanche carried the ball 14 times for 85 yards. David LaMay added 32 yards on seven rushes while Kyle Humphrey picked up 28 yards on nine carries.

Carter said his team must rely on a team effort to win.

Warrior runners bid to reclaim district title

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The Ruidoso High School boys cross country team will try Saturday to lay claim to what has been theirs five of the last six years — the District 3-AAA championship.

The Warriors slipped to fourth place at last year's district meet, after having won the title five years in a row.

Coach Ronny Maskew said his runners will need a team effort if they are to return to the top.

"We don't know if we can win the district, but we know we can contend for it," Maskew said.

Even though Maskew has a relatively young team, his Warriors are strong enough to capture the team title. The Warriors return five of their top seven runners from last year.

A trio of juniors lead Ruidoso — Ezra Sandoval, Johnny Martinez and Kody Sparks. "All year long they've been our top three," Maskew said.

A strong freshman class complements the Ruidoso upperclassmen.

"We feel like we have the best group of freshmen we've had in a long time," Maskew said.

Maskew's freshman class battling for a spot on varsity includes Alley Hosotavitt, Kenneth Gray, Zack Pafford and Mike Huestedler.

Rounding the Warrior squad are Tim Skinner, Eran McManemy, Sam Chee and Becenti Platero.

Last year's district champion Silver High School returns the district's individual champion, Mark Wheatley. Maskew said Cobre High School is much improved, but he doesn't know much about teams from Hot Springs or Santa Teresa high schools.

The Warriors defeated Cobre at a meet earlier in the season, but they haven't raced against any of the other teams.

Tam leads girls team

Talented freshman Bridget Tam paces the Ruidoso girls team. The Warriors are young — only three of the seven varsity runners have experience. And that experience consists of one year each.

Maskew said Tam has a shot at the individual title Saturday.

"She has steadily improved throughout the year and we're expecting her to fight for the district championship," Maskew said.

Who will win the team title is ambiguous at best.

"The girls' championship is up for grabs," Maskew said. "We really don't know what the other teams have. We're just going to have to go in there and stay with the pack."

"It might come down to who does the best job on Saturday."

Competing for the Warriors will be senior Pam Higginbotham, junior Nanty Palmer, sophomores Althea Palmer and America Sandoval, and freshmen Heidi Mitchell and Christy Smith.

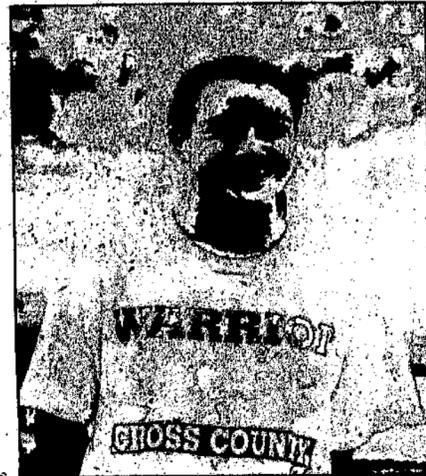

Even though he has an inexperienced team, Maskew hasn't lowered his expectations.

"You'd like to win but you also have to be conscious of their capabilities," he said.

The girls race starts at 11 a.m. at James Stadium in Silver City. The boys race follows immediately after the end of the girls race.

The top three teams and top 15 individuals will qualify from the boys and girls race for the state meet to be held Saturday, Nov. 12, in Gallup.

Individual results from the Albuquerque Academy meet held Monday: BOYS — (53) E. Sandoval, 18:44; (70) K. Sparks, 19:13; (81) J. Martinez, 19:39; (98) T. Skinner, 20:03; (99) A. Hosotavitt, 20:04; (108) Z. Pafford, 20:32; and (111) K. Gray, 20:44. GIRLS — (37) B. Tam, 22:31; (80) C. Smith, 25:39; (86) A. Sandoval, 25:56; (87) P. Higginbotham, 26:02; (96) N. Palmer, 26:55; (101) H. Mitchell, 28:02; and (108) A. Palmer, 32:30.

Freshman Bridget Tam has been a standout on the girls team for the Warriors. Coach Ronny Maskew said Tam has a shot at the girls individual district title this Saturday.

Roving retirees lend their muscle and time to projects

DiAnne Stallings/The Ruidoso News

Ed Bohm, a retiree volunteer from Colorado Springs, saws off some rough edges on a flatbed, which will be used to move a frame at Lone Tree Ranch south-east of Capitan. He's part of a team of volunteers there through Nov. 8.

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

They arrive in recreational vehicles from all over the United States, bringing their special skills and willingness to work with them.

Converging on projects to aid the needy or to mold young children, Roving Volunteers in Christ's Service (RVICS) lend their muscle and time.

Seven couples, all retirement age, have been helping near Capitan Gap at Lone Tree Bible Camp for the last two weeks.

Marilyn Olson, one of the local group's leaders, said RVICS volunteers must commit to three months of service at a time, although that period will be split up among several assignments, each about three to four weeks.

"A lot will work as much as nine months a year," she said. "They must have an RV and take care of all of their own supplies and expenses. The host provides electric, water and a place to park."

The volunteers know a year ahead where they will be going, although they may not know the type of work required until they arrive.

At Lone Tree, the men have been repairing the main lodge and installing a drainage system to prevent water from damaging that structure. The women, who only work on their assignments in the morning, have been pulling weeds, painting where needed and varnishing platforms that will be used for tents during the summer, when children arrive for camp. The afternoons are spent in individual housekeeping chores, while the men put in a few additional working hours.

Tim Worrell, administrator of Lone Tree Bible Ranch and Fort Lone Tree (for younger children), said the help is invaluable.

"Another group was here earlier and repainted several buildings," he said. "In the future, I hope to use some of the volunteers to sand blast a Pullman car we hope to restore to give guests the unique experience of staying in their own private railroad car rooms."

The 300-member, Orlando-based RVICS organization was formed 17 years ago.

Olson, who's from Minnesota, said she found out about the group from her husband's brother-in-law.

She and husband, Ken, have been working with RVICS for eight years.

"We can do most anything that's needed," she said. "There's usually someone with the expertise to help."

Volunteer Linda Barnes, a retired mental health worker, said many people read about the program in Guidepost Magazine or hear about it from other volunteers stopping at RV parks.

Barnes said she enjoys working in an atmosphere where there is no swearing, no smoking and no arguing.

"We aren't associated with any particular church," Olson said. "I like to say we're interdenominational. We get together each morning for devotions."

When they leave Lone Tree next Tuesday, most of the couples will point their RVs toward El Paso. They know the destination, but they don't know what type of work they will be assigned.

Olson said it doesn't matter. "It's amazing how much fun work can be when you don't have to do it."

The Silver Lining

Special Services at Church of the Holy Mount

Members of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County gathered for services at Church of the Holy Mount in Ruidoso, Oct. 30.

The Reverend Canon John W. Penn preached an inspiring sermon based on the Gospel According to Saint Mark: "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and all your soul and your neighbor as yourself."

The Reverend Bob Ratton read from the Gospel According to Saint Mark, "When Jesus saw that he had answered him wisely, he said to him, 'You are not far from the Kingdom of God.'"

The Prayers of the People: The Reverend Jan Davey asked blessings on the birthdays of Margaret Grover, Elizabeth Flores, Roberta James, Marel O'Hara and Vikki Luckenbach and for the wedding anniversary of Valton and Marjorie Hall.

Barbara Rizzo was installed as a member of the Church Altar Guild. The Reverend Anna Gaddy served as one of the Chalice Bearers in the Holy Communion service. The Reverend Leon Livingstone was presented a large cake in recognition of his years of service. Lay Reader Dan Storm read from the Book of Deuteronomy and from the Letter of the Apostle Paul to the Hebrews.

Jane Deyo Honored

Choir Director Danny Flores, his wife Terri and their children, Elizabeth and Eric, presented Jane Deyo the copy of a poem in honor of her 20 years of service as organist for Church of the Holy Mount. A verse follows: "The organist knows every song and how they ought to go; She makes them rumble like a storm or plays them sweet and low. At times you think them very near, at times they're soaring high like angel voices, singing far off somewhere in the sky."

The service concluded with the singing of the hymn, "Praise my Soul the King of Heaven" accompanied at the organ by Jane Deyo.

October's Last Day

This is being sent to you just before noon on Oct. 31, and will reach you on the 3rd of November, the Thankful Month.

Today Mother Earth is wearing her bright Indian summer colors in celebration of the final day of one of the most glorious Octobers in many a day. The sun sheeps down from a sky of late October blue — all around the mountain horizon.

All through the mountain world you feel a spirit of rejoicing, making your heart and your step light with the pride and joy of life. And we all feel grateful to God for the beginning of November, the time when we all feel especially thankful to God for all our blessings.

Lee McKenna, chairman of the Lincoln County Humane Society, shares a lighter moment with Jim Riggins, recently hired to manage the remodeled and expanded society shelter on Gavilan Canyon Road.

Humane Society shelter, new director make perfect match

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Writer

A former director of the Doña Ana Humane Society shelter in Las Cruces, Jim Riggins was looking for a new challenge and a change of scenery.

The Lincoln County Humane Society needed a manager for its renovated and expanded shelter, someone who could handle computers, recordkeeping, public relations and daily operations.

It didn't take long for the two to get together.

Riggins started last week as the new shelter director at the facility just outside of Ruidoso on Gavilan Canyon Road. And he's already instituted some new methods of tracking animals as they are brought to the shelter and work their way through the system. Adopting families should end up with a more complete picture of the dogs or cats that they choose.

"This is a beautiful area and very progressive in its thinking on animal issues," Riggins said, referring to a Ruidoso ordinance requiring spaying and neutering of pets, as well as the area's support of the humane society's other efforts.

"Although the program still is in its beginning stages, I'm excited to be on the steering end of development, Riggins said. "There also are stresses involved in facilities as large as Las Cruces. This will be a lot more positive experience."

Riggins, 32, supervised the Las Cruces shelter for six years and was assistant director for two. His duties included supervising 12 full-time employees and 75 volunteers, as well as community service workers assigned by the courts. The shelter handles 13,000 animals a year. The society in Las Cruces also leases offices to animal control and operates a 2.5 acre pet cemetery.

As a member of the board of directors of the Doña Ana society, Riggins was in charge of a companion animals program. Part of that assignment included public speaking, educational outreach programs and vision projects.

TO THE PEOPLE OF LINCOLN COUNTY

In 1993, William R. Butts was appointed magistrate Judge for Division 99. He is now running for that position. We, lawyers who work with judges know how hard-working, honest, fair, knowledgeable, compassionate, open minded, and humble yet tough Judge Butts is. We are indeed blessed to have such a human being working for the people of our County. We strongly endorse him and recommend his election to the office of Magistrate Judge for Division 99. Justice will be served by him and, most important, so will the good people of Lincoln County.

Chamber technically homeless

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce technically has no lease to operate out of a building owned by the Village of Ruidoso, officials learned recently.

Those attending the Chamber board of directors meeting Wednesday were told the chamber property lease expired about 15 years ago. The village owns the land.

The village and chamber have started work on a new lease.

Chamber Director Joan Bailey said Village Attorney John Underwood told her the building belongs to the chamber as long as it is doing business from the location. Should the chamber leave the building, it would revert back to the village.

Chamber directors decided Thursday it would be prudent for the chamber to get its own survey of property lines and an appraisal of the building.

Let's try running government as business

There's a couple businessmen running for office this time around, and we're inclined to vote for them. A successful businessman should be a successful governor, we surmise.

The governor is responsible for managing a lot of people and a large budget, and Gary Johnson has experience with managing money and people in a different way than Gov. Bruce King. It's time for someone new, and we're pulling for Johnson. As one person on our editorial board put it, "He's the best of the worst."

Although we don't like Johnson's waffling about his opinion on nuclear storage on the Mescalero Apache Reservation, in reality the governor won't have much to say about whether nuclear waste is stored there.

Collin McMillan, again, is a successful businessman. At the same time, he has the best understanding of issues facing our local constituents, such as ranchers and the military installations (after his experience at the Pentagon). He is a southern New Mexican. We're picking McMillan for U.S. senator.

Joe Skeen, the hometown boy, is undoubtedly our man for U.S. representative. He's done a good job of representing Lincoln County and the region, and so has his staff. He's taken the time to assist with matters small to the region but important to individual communities, such as helping the Corona seniors get a new building.

Bond issues B and C worth voting for

"I do, then, with my books as I do with my friends: I would have them where I can find them," the great American Transcendentalist essayist Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote in the early years of the 19th century.

Emerson's equally legendary friend Henry David Thoreau was famed for his contempt of government and politics; and, although less visceral on those subjects than Thoreau, Emerson shared some of the same sentiments.

It is quite possible, however, that Emerson (and perhaps even Thoreau) would find something on New Mexico's general election ballot this year worth voting for.

It's been lost in the mudfest into which some of the state's major campaigns have settled. Indeed it is altogether likely that most New Mexicans have heard very little about it.

But buried in the 1994 General Obligation Bond Issues which voters will be asked to decide on Nov. 8 are a pair of proposals which would make books, like good friends, a lot more accessible to a lot more people than presently is the case.

For state schools and universities, faced with the painful task of playing catch-up after years of shrinking library budgets, there is Bond Issue B. A proposed $81 million capital expenditure, the measure is designed simultaneously to boost the acquisition of new books at our educational institution and to remedy deficient library collections which, in some instances, have actually threatened the loss of accreditation.

State residents for whom public libraries are the primary source of fine literature and other reading materials also stand to gain if voters give the green light on election day.

Bond Issue C, as it is known, would put an addition $2.5 million into, among other things, the state's 70 chronically under-funded public and community libraries.

Some of that money would also find its way into New Mexico's widely-used rural bookmobile program. Operating in all four quadrants of the state—with headquarters in such places as Belen, Ft. Bayard, Tucunari and Cimmaron—the bookmobile program has emerged in recent years as one of the state's most popular services.

"For a lot of people who live in small municipalities and remote rural areas, and who cannot get to bookstores or libraries, the rural bookmobile service is really the only game in town," says Antoinette Beatty, president of the N.M. Municipal Librarians' Association.

According to Beatty, the bookmobile programs have been successful not only for the leisure reading they make available to the people they serve, but because of other informational services they provide.

Still, the Librarians' Association head points out, "Like all library services they have been very financially-stressed for some time now, and this (Bond Issue C) would offer some help in that aspect."

Major issues will be decided by New Mexico voters on Nov. 8, up to and including who will serve us in the office of the governor, the U.S. Senate, Congress and sundry other high offices.

Perhaps just as important will be the question of where and whether state residents might find a good book with which to prick the curiosity and enrich the mind.

Which is why, of course, the business of balloting for books this election day deserves a good deal more attention than it has received in the course of this dreadful (and dreadful long) campaign season.

Gambling isn't crap shoot

TO THE EDITOR:

I read with interest the Editorial "It's a crap shoot" in the Thursday, Oct. 27 paper. The Editorial Advisory Board presents a logical opinion concerning Amendment 8 and as a citizen and a taxpayer of this county, I respect your collective opinion.

I, however, do respectfully disagree. What it appears to me is that you are asking the voters to uphold what now is effectively a gaming prohibition, not unlike the liquor prohibition that existed earlier in this century. As with then, gaming in these forms exists just across the border. Smuggling trips to Canada were the norm. In your modern prohibition people in incredible numbers cross adjoining state lines to support their lotteries and their state coffers.

As for the other forms of gaming in the amendment, by driving about 10 minutes from Ruidoso to the "Sovereign Nation Of The Mescalero Indians" there you will find a highly sophisticated gaming casino that detracts from those institutions that you are concerned about and ironically that exists without our vote, yet that "Sovereign Nation's" citizens will get to participate in the determination of our gaming destiny.

Your point about too much being left up to the legislature is well taken but if the record of our legislators such as John Underwood is any indication, I for one will put my faith in their ability to make a "good deal" for the citizens of Lincoln County.

Prohibition simply cannot be the proper path for us to follow. We need to enter the playing field with other states and "Sovereign Nations" on at least equal terms. What are our alternatives, wait until next year or the next? I think not. Let's put our economy first, lets make this the place to come and play.

Vote for anyone except Bruce King

TO THE EDITOR:

Who in their wildest imagination would have ever thought they would see the day when former Governor Tony Anaya would endorse Bruce King for re-election? Yet, he did at the meeting of the State Democratic Central committee in Las Cruces recently. It is widely known that for years there has been considerable friction between King and Anaya. But was this an endorsement or the "kiss of death?"

As many will recall, Anaya's term as governor was among the most controversial in recent history and Anaya left office with a very low approval rating. In Anaya's endorsement of King, he went on to mention how BAD BRUCE is. He said, "We need to make Bruce a better Democrat. What we've had under Bruce has been government by clique." Anaya said he will set out to woo disgruntled environmentalists back to King.

How can Anaya or King or anyone else hope to woo any of the many groups whom King has turned his back on for three and half years and expect that Bruce King will change his ways just three weeks prior to election? Does Bruce think voters are stupid? It is long overdue to stop this government by clique. People are sick and tired of this type of treatment.

Please go vote and vote for anybody but Bruce. He's a lame duck governor and if he hasn't done it in the past 12 years in office, he sure as heck is not going to do anything as a lame duck governor for the next four years.

King, Mondragon allowed nukes

TO THE EDITOR:

Of the three candidates seeking our vote for governor, only Gary Johnson has not already allowed nuclear material to be shipped into and stored in New Mexico. During the three King administrations (during two of which Mondragon served as lieutenant governor), high level nuclear material was shipped to and stored in New Mexico.

The question isn't how many pounds, but how many tons! King and Mondragon asked no questions and left it to the military to determine our best interest. King and Mondragon never asked how much or where. Johnson on the other hand wants the facts and wants to play a role in New Mexico's future rather than roll over and let federal bureaucrats determine what's best for New Mexicans. Let's hold King and Mondragon accountable for both their actions and in-sincere rhetoric when we vote.

Amendment 8 helps Ruidoso

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of Hubbard Enterprises' investment in Ruidoso Downs Racing, Inc., I am writing in response to your editorial opposing Amendment 8 which ran Oct. 17.

Though we appreciate the concern you showed for the racetrack, we believe your general opposition to Amendment 8 will dramatically hurt, rather than help, Ruidoso Downs and, more importantly, the entire Ruidoso community. Here's why.

If amendment 8 doesn't pass the following will likely occur.

1. Native American casino style gambling will continue in New Mexico and Ruidoso. At other places in the country where horse racing has had to go head-to-head with casino gaming, the casinos win, racing loses. For instance, Canterbury Downs, which was built in Minnesota for $100 million, is now empty, dark and closed. Why? Because a Native American casino was built within five miles of the racetrack, and the track couldn't get any form of expanded gaming in order to mitigate the impact of Indian casino gaming - gaming that doesn't pay state taxes. By comparison, the lottery and video gaming which would be allowed by passage of Amendment 8 would pay state taxes amounting to as much as $90 million per year. These are taxes that can fund computers in classrooms, policemen on the streets and a variety of other health and human service programs.

2. A paper lottery may be passed anyway. Studies that have reviewed the impact of lotteries on racing have concluded that racing will suffer a 15-23% drop in business. The impact in New Mexico is estimated to be 18% (James Hayes, Economic Impact of Horse Racing in New Mexico). Does anyone believe Ruidoso Downs, its horsemen, or the community wouldn't feel an additional loss of 18%?

3. Resort gaming development will continue in surrounding states. Colorado, for instance, is making it easier for resort towns to offer gaming and it's paying off in new jobs, higher income, and better transportation services. Texas is now considering casino gaming, and the government of Mexico is exploring expanded gaming in its states, particularly those along the border. If Ruidoso doesn't have this important tourist recruitment tool, it will be next to impossible to attract scheduled air service, fund quality hotel and resort development, and continue to provide competitive summertime horse racing. Even the Mesalero's successful Inn of the Mountain Gods will be negatively impacted if Ruidoso begins to lose tourism to destination resorts in surrounding states - destination resorts with a diverse blend of gaming options.

There is a way for Ruidoso to win. That's by the entire community supporting passage of Amendment 8, and then working very hard in Santa Fe to allow expanded gaming at the racetrack and as part of an overall resort development. Working together we can utilize the lottery and video gaming to increase tourism, attract jobs and position Ruidoso as a world-class, year-around destination resort. The way to start is to support Amendment 8. So please, vote for 8 on Nov. 8.

Support amendments 12, 13

TO THE EDITOR:

One of the most important choices voters can make on election day is to support constitutional amendments 12 and 13. These amendments will improve the operations of New Mexico's severance grant and land grant permanent funds.

Together these funds are large, about $6 billion, and provide important financial support to New Mexico, almost $400 million per year. These payments go to direct beneficiaries such as the public schools and universities, and to the state budget. I support amendments 12 and 13 because these funds do not currently operate as well as they should. The amendments will fix two problems.

The first problem concerns the rules that determine which common stocks the funds can buy. Some of these rules are out-of-date. For example, the funds cannot own stock in Intel Corporation because it has not paid dividends for 10 years in a row. This rule might have made sense 50 years ago. With the rapid rate of change in U.S. business, it does not make sense today. The amendments will improve the investment rules.

The second problem concerns the payments the funds make to the direct beneficiaries and the state budget. The current rules require the funds to pay out all interest and dividends each year. During periods of high inflation and high interest rates the funds pay out more than they really earn because the purchasing power of the dollar is declining. In a real sense, we are stealing from our future. There is a second serious effect. These rules push the fund to buy bonds and stocks that pay high interest in order to earn funds that can be paid out. Unfortunately, these are not the best investments.

I have calculated that this strategy has cost us over $1 billion dollars in the last 20 years. Amendments 12 and 13 require the funds to pay out a conservative 4.7% of the value of the funds and also provide for a slow predictable growth in the payment of at least 2% per year. This change will improve the operations of the funds.

I have heard two objections to passing these amendments. Neither is valid. Some people claim that the funds will buy more stocks and fewer bonds and this will make them riskier. For long-term investments like these funds that is not true. On a year-to-year basis common stocks are riskier than bonds. For longer periods they are not.

For example, there is no 10-year period in this century when common stocks did not earn more than bonds. This includes the Great Depression!

The second objection is that the new payment rule can require the funds to pay out more than they earn. That is true in any particular year because the value of financial assets fluctuate. It is very unlikely to occur for extended periods. People who raise this objection do not seem to realize that the current rules require the same thing.

For example, in the last year the funds paid out almost $400 million, but earned nothing because the value of some of their investments declined. The current rule is worse because it guarantees that the funds will pay out more than they earn whenever interest rates are high and it provides no opportunity for the funds to catch up later. The new rules avoid this by making payments a conservative 4.7% of the value of the funds.

Constitutional amendments 12 and 13 are financially complicated. Their purpose is simple: to improve the operations of these important funds and to increase the benefits to New Mexicans. That is why the legislature passed the amendments, why the State Investment Council voted overwhelmingly to support the amendments, why the direct beneficiaries support the amendments, and why I urge you to vote for them.

Student can help board of regents

TO THE EDITOR:

Abraham Lincoln once said, "I go for all sharing the privileges of the government who assist in bearing its burdens." President Lincoln sets the stage for addressing the importance of Amendment 8 to the

New Mexico Constitution. Amendment 8 will allow a student an opportunity to serve on the Board of Regents of our state universities. This student will be granted full voting privileges on issues that directly affect students and the university.

Students are continually in contact with problems that occur on a university campus. A student will be able to better facilitate beneficial change for the university. By having the ability to quickly identify problems on the campus, a student regent can offer solutions to problems facing the university. Currently the regents are not in direct contact with the campus. Most of their information is second-hand.

A student can provide solutions to problems that face our state's universities. By giving students a voice in decisions that directly affect them, the people of New Mexico will be endorsing the idea of democratic participation. It is time to give students the right to influence their future. By working together we all have the opportunity to improve our university, communities and state.

Remember Abraham Lincoln's words and allow those affected by government to participate in it. Vote YES for Amendment 8.

Teacher will be great legislator

TO THE EDITOR:

Election time is almost here and I feel that I have to talk to you about one of our candidates. I went to school here at Ruidoso High and had many great teachers. For some reason our school gets the teachers who really care. But I am not writing this to tell you what you already know, so I will get on with it.

I had the honor of having one teacher in particular who I will always remember. When this man asked you how you were that day, you could tell that he meant it. If he ever took you aside to give you advice or give his opinion on something, you knew that it would be beneficial for you to listen so you hung on his every word, just like how a father talks to his children about life and tells them things in a way that they know he's doing it with their best interest in mind. Well, that is the way you felt in this man's classroom. If you ever needed someone to listen, all you had to do was ask him for the time.

He cared. He wanted to teach us to care, so we would someday have it easier than he did. He gave his time, his knowledge, his patience, and most importantly his love. I don't know how tall he was but when he stood in front of his classroom he was the tallest, strongest man God ever put on this earth. Fortunately, I got to have him before he retired, so that my class of 1988 was the last class he taught. But every student that was ever taught by this man should feel the same thing I do.

In some aspects this letter and the fact that I will vote for him on election day may seem a small thing in light of all he has done for me.

But Mr. Duh Williams deserves this person's support and the trust and support of all that know him and were blessed enough to have been taught by him. And in some way it makes me feel better that Mr. Williams will still be influencing my life after election day.

Bingaman too much like Clinton

TO THE EDITOR:

Sen. Jeff Bingaman does not truly represent the people of New Mexico. He represents the Clinton Policy.

Here are some good examples of this from his voting record. He is for gun control and confiscation. He voted for the Clinton-backed Brady Bill (Congressional Quarterly Vote #394, 11/20/93). He voted for the Clinton-backed strict gun control state waiting period (CQ Vote #395, 11/19/93). He also voted for the Clinton-backed "Crime Bill" which outlawed certain semi-automatic rifles, even the rifles that target shooters use at Camp Perry (Cong. Vote #295, 08/25/94). Rifles (semi-automatic or not) are involved in less than .1% of all serious crime (FBI Crime Statistics).

Sen. Bingaman voted for Bill Clinton's whopping 429% cattle grazing fee increase. Sen. Bingaman made the following statement with regard to Secretary Babbitt's grazing reform: "This proposal clearly moves in the direction of being responsive to the concerns that have been raised in our state." (Albuquerque Journal, 03/19/94).

I think that it is time we replaced Sen. Bingaman with a man who will truly represent the people of New Mexico, that man being Colin McMillan.

Yes, Gary, diet is related to violence

TO THE EDITOR:

One gubernatorial candidate has recently aired a commercial that definitely merits serious consideration regarding its content. The commercial went like this... "Gary Johnson says domestic violence is related to nutrition. Governor Bruce King says baloney!"

As a long time researcher in longevity, health, diet & food, I can say that too little attention has been paid to diet and its quality. Believe it or not, diet strongly affects emotions, nerves, attitudes, strength, stamina and mental health. Remember, it has long been said, "A Healthy Mind is a Healthy Body."

To further illustrate how diet affects human behavior, I would advise Governor King and other interested New Mexicans to read the following books:

1. DIE, CRIME AND DELINQUENCY by Alexander Schabas (internationally known criminologist).
2. NUTRITION AND PHYSICAL DEGENERATION by Dr. Weston A. Price

Perhaps if Bruce King or his Washington state-based consultants FDR & Associates took the time to study the issue, they would discover how little they know about this highly complex subject.

Yes, Gary Johnson is right! Diet does play an important role in human behavior. New Mexicans can do without Bruce King's "baloney." New Mexicans deserve better!

King is lame duck

TO THE EDITOR:

Bruce King's cronies are campaigning harder than Bruce. On a recent visit to the King-Madrid headquarters, it was interesting to see the ONLY volunteer present were King and Madrid.

This group of "fat cats" are building quite a nest egg while a lot of hard-working state employees are barely making minimum wage. What makes matters worse is the fact that King is allowing his "chosen few" to campaign at taxpayers' expense, on state payroll time and are using taxpayers' office supplies, cellular phones and taxpayers dollars to pay the utilities.

They talk about "pork" in Washington — well, in New Mexico state government one has to ask "Where's the beef?"

You many very well find some beef at a Bruce King barbecue, but you'll find plenty of PORK at the Round House Trough.

Can we really afford four more years of this crap? What we don't need is a LAME DUCK GOVERNOR.

Hans L. Sisneros

King's experience outshines Johnson

TO THE EDITOR:

As a registered Republican for many years, I am quite proud of the Republican delegation New Mexico currently sends to Washington. I also have some sense of what it takes to work within a public agency as a result of having served as a member of the New Mexico Health Policy Commission in 1991 and 1992.

Let me tell you folks, there is a world of difference between operating in the private sector and public sector. In the race for governor this year we have one candidate, Bruce King, with over 35 years of public service and we have Gary Johnson with none. Now it does not take much common sense to see who has the best opportunity to make a positive impact on the lives of most New Mexicans over the next four years as well as establish a harmonious working relationship with our state legislature.

As a member of the health policy commission, I have seen firsthand the genuine interest and concern of Bruce and Alice King have for the citizens of New Mexico. I have also seen the growth of New Mexico and its economy under Bruce King's leadership these last four years in the areas of personal income growth, jobs (approximately 80,000 new jobs), reduced unemployment, and positive budget surpluses together with reduced taxes for New Mexico.

For me—for New Mexico—there is only one choice for governor, Bruce King, and I will be pleased to cast my vote to retain Governor King for four more years.

Tourist likes new sidewalks

TO THE EDITOR:

I'm sick of another letter from a greedy merchant. All they see is dollar signs before their eyes.

The downtown is looking wonderful where they have finished, and the street lights look quaint and in keeping with the old fashioned look of the town.

From the tourist point of view it is far better to put up with some inconvenience this year, than to walk on cracked, sagging sidewalks for the next 20 years.

At least now I can push my granddaughter in her stroller when we go shopping. Before, that was impossible.

Face it lady, the tourist numbers the merchants and without us, you won't need those parking spaces, so quit complaining.

Thanks, Hal, but I'm not confused

TO THE EDITOR:

Thank you Hal Rhodes. I am not confused. Our great president who promised us welfare reform but brought us gay rights. The president who said he wanted to give us universal health coverage but quietly took away medical care from the retired military. Sorry, but despite the best efforts of President Clinton, I am not confused.

Working in system versus changing it highlights differences in legislative race

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

They come down on the same side of most issues, so why is retired teacher Dub Williams challenging State Rep. H. John Underwood in his bid for a third term?

"One of the big things is that I think we need a two-party system. We need to give folks a choice," Williams said.

What appears to separate Democrat Underwood from Republican Williams is that while the incumbent has learned how to use the system to benefit District 56, Williams would like to change the system.

"I think my philosophy as to how we need to let people help themselves is different," Williams said. "It seems to me that the person who worked for the money and earned it should have more say over how it should be spent."

"Whether we're getting it back from Santa Fe or from Washington D.C., it really turns out that it's the money of the people to start with. I don't believe there ever has been a government that has created any wealth. The wealth comes from the people. I keep hearing from people that they'd just like to have less government in their lives."

Underwood has been successful at getting some of that money back to the people of Lincoln County, to the tune of $4 million.

The money helped pay for a new civic events center in Ruidoso, and installation of sidewalks, street lights and trees in the downtown section of the village. It is also being used to build a water plant at Grindstone Reservoir and started an alternative school for troubled teens. It went toward repairs at the Carrizozo community pool, remodeling of the fairground at Capitan and creation of a senior citizens building in Corona.

Underwood lobbied hard to save Fort Stanton Hospital, which was about to be closed. The largest employer in the county, it now has been converted into an essential part of the state's health care system. He helped remove the gross receipts tax from horse care and agricultural products to ensure sales within the state were not harmed.

"I helped pass a bill that prevents juveniles from taking guns on campus, but I'm not in favor of gun control," he said. "I'm supportive of turning federal lands back into state lands. I have voted a conservative agenda, because I think that's reflective of my constituents."

H. John Underwood

Underwood said he decided to run for a third term because several projects still need to be completed and he's in a better position to benefit his district.

"I think there's such a learning curve when you first go into a new situation, that it takes at least two years or the first term to figure out where the bathroom is," he said.

During his second term, Underwood said he found the keys to the vault. In a third term, with seniority and prime committee appointments, he said more good things could happen, such as finding money to improve Ruidoso's sewage system.

It's that higher level government intervention, even when it means money, that worries Williams.

"We need to get away from this thing called mandates from the state or federal government," Williams said. "It's a tax shifting thing. Even if they fund it, they're simply sending back the tax money you've paid. Too often, they say you will do this, but don't give the money. I think we're going to have to get back to the mentality that we do things for ourselves. We've gotten away from that."

Williams said government can be useful, however. He cited a bond issue for a senior citizens centers and services that passed several years ago.

"I think it's an excellent way to spend money," he said. "We have many elderly without care givers (who are) reluctant to prepare meals for themselves. This gives them socialization, a good meal and makes life a lot more bearable for them."

To ensure that he is responsive to residents of the district that covers all of Lincoln County and portions of Otero and Chaves counties, Williams said he will ask community representatives what they think he could do to serve them better.

Both candidates favor passage of the amendment to allow a lottery and video gambling.

"We've done exactly what we should have done. The people will have the say and then the legislature needs to decide how the money will be spent and not put it into the general fund," Williams said. "It should be designated for aging or education or some specific area."

"On the other hand, I think we have to be real careful when we get to the point that we are going to fund anything based on gambling, because the amount may fluctuate." Williams noted that Ruidoso has been closely connected to horse racing for decades and that New Mexico is surrounded by lottery states, saying those states bleed off money that could be spent in New Mexico.

Brief analysis of proposed constitutional amendments

These brief analyses of the proposed New Mexico Constitutional amendments are provided by the New Mexico Legislative Council Services.

AMENDMENT 1:
Eliminates the provision authorizing recall elections of school board members.

AMENDMENT 2:
Increases the minimum number of signatures required on a grand jury petition. Currently, a grand jury petition must be signed by 200 registered voters or five percent of the county's registered voters, whichever is less. The proposed amendment would require the petition be signed by 200 registered voters or two percent of the registered voters of the county, whichever is less.

AMENDMENT 3:
Adds a student member to the board of regents of major state colleges. Beginning with the next vacancy on each board of regents, the governor would appoint a student from a list of students compiled by the president of each educational institution.

AMENDMENT 4:
Changes the name of the state highway department commission to the state transportation commission.

AMENDMENT 5:
Constitutional Amendment 5 has been withdrawn by proposed Constitutional Amendment 14.

AMENDMENT 6:
Authorizes counties to borrow money for the purposes of repairing buildings and purchasing land for open space. The current constitutional provision permits a county to borrow money for erecting, remodeling and making additions to necessary public buildings, as well as other activities regarding roads, bridges, water and sewer systems, airports, landfills and libraries.

AMENDMENT 7:
Changes the name of the New Mexico state hospital at Las Vegas to the New Mexico center for gerontology and psychiatry.

AMENDMENT 8:
Legalizes a state-operated lottery and wagering on video machine games of chance. The proposal also authorizes the legislature to enact legislation to regulate the conduct of a lottery and games of chance.

AMENDMENT 9:
Amends the section often referred to as the "anti-donation clause." Currently, that clause prohibits the state and its political subdivisions from lending or pledging credit or making the donations to persons, associations or corporations. Several exceptions exist authorizing expenditures for the sick and indigent and certain scholarship programs.

The proposed amendment would allow the state, county or municipality to provide land, buildings or infrastructure for facilities to support the development or expansion of business.

The amendment also requires the passage of general implementing legislation.
AMENDMENT 10:
Adds the requirement that an incumbent judge receive at least fifty-seven percent of the votes cast in the nonpartisan judicial election.

AMENDMENT 11:
Deletes references to voter qualification restrictions on age and residency and modernize references to persons who do not have the capacity to vote. Specifically, it lowers the voting age from 21 to 18; removes specific residency requirements, authorizing those requirements to be established by law; and changes the reference to "idiots and insane persons" who cannot vote to "persons found by a court to be incapacitated" for purposes of voting.

AMENDMENT 12:
Changes the method for distributing money from the severance tax permanent fund. Currently, all interest and dividends earned from the severance tax permanent fund are distributed to the general fund for state government operating purposes. All capital gains are retained in the fund. This amendment proposes to add all dividend and the average of the previous five fiscal years' market values of the fund. This annual distribution may not exceed the prior year's distribution plus eight percent or be less than the prior year's distribution plus two percent.

AMENDMENT 13:
Changes the methods for making distributions from and investment of the state's land grant permanent funds, which are known simply as the permanent fund.

The amendment proposes to change the distribution of income from the permanent fund in the exact manner proposed by Constitutional Amendment 12 for the severance tax permanent fund.

This amendment also proposes several other changes in investment of the permanent fund.

If voters approve Constitutional Amendment 13, it will not become effective until the United States Congress amends the Enabling Act for New Mexico.

AMENDMENT 14:

The current provisions authorizing a legislative per diem of $75 while the legislature is in session and 25 cents per mile in traveling to and from the capital once each session.

The proposed amendment would raise the per diem rate and the mileage rate to Internal Revenue Service (IRS) rates and would allow legislators to receive mileage reimbursement for traveling to and from the capital up to once a week while the legislature is in session.

It would also allow small per diem for expenses incurred outside the legislative session period.

THE WRONG PLEDGE

A pledge is usually a good thing. The Pledge of Allegiance, the Scout pledge, a pledge of honor. But not this time.

Colin McMillan has taken a pledge to support a huge tax cut for millionaires, and then slash programs like Medicare to pay for it. Veterans benefits, student loans, and other programs will suffer as well.

Colin McMillan's pledge could cut Medicare alone by $180 billion. Senior citizens may see their Medicare deductions triple, while multi-millionaire McMillan would get about a $100,000 tax cut.

And you get to pay for it.

Even National Republican Party Chairman Haley Barbour has admitted Medicare "can and should be" cut.

The National Council of Senior Citizens says that a pledge like this "could rob millions of seniors of the medicare benefits they depend on."

Jeff Bingaman will fight to protect your Medicare.

We can't afford a tax cut for millionaires that hurts a lot of people who need Medicare.

We can't afford Colin McMillan.

Time in court key to district judge

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Trial experience, who has it and how much, seem to be the questions surrounding the two candidates for the newly created Division IV judgeship of the 12th Judicial District.

Created by the 1993 state legislature, the division IV post temporarily was filled last April by gubernatorial appointment, but was thrown open to all comers in the June primary.

Frank Wilson, a former district attorney and Alamogordo city attorney, secured the Republican nomination and Bert Atkins, district attorney in the 12th district, was picked by the Democrats.

"I feel I'm the best qualified candidate," Atkins said. "I have over six years background as the district attorney for this judicial district. Prior to that I was the public defender and also an assistant D.A. for two years. My track record for public service is superior."

"The legal system needs strong people in every area and particularly, we need strong judges on the bench. I feel I'm the best qualified one for that position."

Wilson was one of the nominees (for the division IV seat) picked earlier this year by the Judicial Selection Commission, a panel of 19 judges, lawyers and law persons that review qualifications and recommend appointments to the governor. Having already served as an assistant district attorney and as an appointed district attorney, Wilson said the judge's seat is the next step in his career.

"I've found most of my success as an attorney has been in finding ways to solve problems for people, to get cases settled, to get things resolved," he said. "That takes an ability to apply the law in a way designed to work to solve problems and I think I can apply those same skills, perhaps more effectively and more broadly, serving as a judge."

Wilson said he's the better candidate, "primarily because the length and breadth of my experience and the type of experience is actually in the courtroom trying cases."

"Although Bert has been a good administrator in the DA's office, that does not qualify a person to be a judge," he said. "There are different types of cases. Judges must make instantaneous ruling on (evidence in) cases day in and day out. Being an experienced trial attorney in all kinds of cases is the only way you learn that. That's why I think my qualifications are better suited."

Wilson said he averages a dozen jury trials a year and 20-30 non-jury trials ranging from misdemeanor or felony criminal cases to civil cases, including wrongful death suits.

Atkins said any perception that he lacks trial experience is erroneous.

"Most of my trial experience has been in criminal law. I have tried homicide cases, both as the defense and prosecution," Atkins said. "I have prosecuted the only two death penalty cases that have been brought in the 12th judicial district since the reenactment of the death penalty."

Atkins said he also tried a number of cases as public defender. For the first three years, it was a one-attorney district, he said and he tried several first-degree murder cases at that time.

"I think my trial experience is far superior to my opponent's," Atkins said. "I have to admit that my career has focused on criminal law and public service, but I don't think I'm going to have any difficulty learning the civil procedure."

Atkins said he doesn't think he will be biased toward the prosecution side of cases. Several judges now on the bench formerly were district attorneys, he pointed out. Wilson also served as a D.A., he added.

"I think there certainly will be some initial conflicts," Atkins said about the possibility that he will have to excuse himself from some criminal cases. "The court this year has been primarily assigning Division IV to hear civil matters.

We'll pick that case load up. I should be able to hear children's court very quickly, because the time limits on them are so short. I should be hearing criminal cases fairly soon after that."

"The question on bias isn't new. I had a number of attorneys ask me when I went over from being an assistant DA to the public defender. How do you do that?" Atkins said. "The same question was raised when I came back to the DA's office. Now I say that I do it quite well."

"I have seen both sides. I don't think I will have any difficulty being fair and impartial."

The question of whether Wilson's religious dedication might improperly influence his actions on the bench has been raised during the campaign. The phrase "Jesus is Lord" is printed on his business cards.

"That was one of the first questions asked by the judicial selection commission back in January," Wilson said. "I make no bones about the fact that Jesus is Lord of my life. It's not something that I try to hang on everybody, but it's important to me."

"There are a number of born-again Christians in judicial positions. It's not a problem for them. I don't think it would be a problem for me. I think some of the people who are uncomfortable with that look at some of the television evangelists, the self-righteous, holier-than-thou aspect and things that have been giving Christians a bad name for 2,000 years."

Wilson said his religious convictions would not affect his handling of death penalty cases.

"That question came up in the judicial commission too," he said. "I don't consider myself an advocate of the death penalty, certainly not the way it is not working now."

"But as a practical matter, nowadays, the decision as to whether the death penalty should be imposed or not, is decided by a jury. If I was presiding at a trial and the jury decided, I would have no conflict ethics-wise in signing the verdict."

District judge candidate profiles

A new district judge will be elected by voters in the general election. The state legislature created the division IV judgeship in District 12 to help ease the caseload of the three other judges. Gov. Bruce King appointed James Counts, a Democrat, to the bench last April, but Democratic voters in the primary picked Bert Atkins as their candidate to face Republican Frank Wilson. District judges are paid $82,719 a year and serve four-year terms. Below are some vital statistics on the two men.

Judge Gerald Dean in District 1 is unopposed for re-election. William R. Butts, a Democrat who was appointed by the governor to serve the unexpired term of former judge Jim Wheeler when he retired in District 2, faces challenger and Republican Paul Wersich, a deputy with the Sheriff's Department and former member of the White Mountain Drug Task Force.

Former police officers seek magistrate position

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Prestige and a tidy $47,060 annual paycheck translate to big stakes in the race for Ruidoso magistrate judge.

The two candidates running for the office both come from law enforcement backgrounds and have accumulated many hours of specialized training.

Incumbent William R. Butts, a Democrat, retired from the New Mexico State Police after 24 years. Challenger Paul Wersich retired from the El Paso Police Department after 23 years, and also worked eight years on the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department. Wersich is a Republican who narrowly missed winning the office in his first attempt four years ago against former judge Jim Wheeler.

Each man also has experienced problems with the system.

Butts sued the State Police after the agency allegedly refused to compensate him for injuries to his legs incurred while trying to complete an arrest. Those injuries later led to his early retirement.

"I sued and they settled," he said.

12th District Judge Richard A. Parsons issued an oral directive 1 1/2 years ago prohibiting Wersich from coming to his court except when subpoenaed as a witness.

Wersich contends the situation amounts to a personal conflict between the two men. But the judge says it goes deeper than that.

"It wasn't a spur of the moment thing," Parsons said. "I had granted a motion to suppress (some evidence) and (Wersich) used foul language toward the court. I could have held him in contempt. I considered it conduct unbecoming a police officer. I also was concerned about repeated (allegations) of civil rights violations that have cost the county lots of money."

Wersich has been named as a defendant in four civil suits involving criminal cases.

"I don't think there's a police officer alive who's doing his job that hasn't been sued," Wersich said.

In two of the cases, Wersich said he was part of a team and his name was included as a defendant, even though he had little or no direct interaction with the person who sued. On another, his advice as chief investigator not to pursue a case was ignored, he said. In the fourth suit, a defendant found guilty in a criminal trial sued and the insurance company decided it was less expensive to settle, he said.

Butts applied for the Division 2 magistrate judgeship in 1993 when his father-in-law, Jim Wheeler, decided to retire with 1 1/2 years left in his term.

Butts knew Gov. Bruce King from his years of providing security for the top official of the state.

King selected him "due to my criminal justice career, unquestionable integrity and my honesty," Butts said. In his years with the state, he said he was never disciplined and he attained the rank of captain and district commander.

"I had five counties and 140 miles of Interstate 40 (to patrol)," Butts said. "At one time I had $1.6 million on my desk, drug-related money. My officers and I would pick up kilos of cocaine, hundreds of pounds of marijuana weekly. Our integrity never was questioned."

Butts also served as a scuba diver with the state police search and rescue team for 10 years. After he retired in 1988, he moved to Lincoln County to be near his wife's parents and to raise Appaloosa show horses.

Wersich moved to El Paso from Wisconsin as a child. After high school and serving in the Navy for four years, he tried college, but found it tough to juggle a full-time job and classes. He was hired by the police department, graduated from the police academy, and attained the rank of captain of the detective division.

In anticipation of retirement, he purchased a home in Ruidoso in

Division II Magistrate Court Caseload

Felonies - 229 this year, 185 last year
Traffic Tickets - 1,812 this year, 1321 last year

Since his appointment on July 1, 1993 by Governor Bruce King, Bill Butts has substantially increased the caseload of Division II. This is due in part to his increased availability for court as well as a preference being shown for his court by law enforcement officers.

Commissioner hopefuls differ on views of gambling amendment

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Opinions on gambling and its potential for Lincoln County mark the parting point for the two County Commission District 4 candidates.

Incumbent Bill Schwettmann, a Republican, favors passage of a state constitutional amendment to allow lottery and video gambling.

His Democratic opponent, Preston Stone, is against legalizing gambling.

"I feel very sincerely that if the proper research was done they would find that the states that are in lottery and gambling, that it's been as much of a hindrance to their budgets as beneficial," said Stone, a former Capitan school board member.

"I prefer it not pass, but if the voters say yes, (if) they want it, I do not feel it should be limited to the (Indian) reservations and should be left up to individual communities to decide whether they want it."

Schwettmann said gambling already exists on the neighboring Mescalero Apache reservation, so why not spread around the wealth.

"Why shouldn't we share and get our piece of the pie?" he said. "People are going to gamble. Why not have it, as long as it is well regulated?"

"I think we lost a lot of revenue from the (Ruidoso Downs) racetrack. People might have thought about going to the track, but they stopped to gamble at the (Mescalero) casino and never made it there. Morally, I think, if you're going to gamble, you'll gamble."

"I don't think we should limit it to resort communities. Tell me a community in New Mexico that isn't a resort area."

As far as potential negative impacts, such as increases in crime and property taxes, Schwettmann said that other taxes should decrease, as gambling revenues materialize. He doesn't see a climb in property values as a problem.

"When you have piece of property that doubles in value, you have a big asset," he said.

Both Schwettmann and Stone have impressive community service credentials. Besides Stone's 10 years on the school board, he spent 18 years on the county fair board. Besides the boards on which he serves currently as a commissioner and several professional associations, Schwettmann was a member of the state entity that licenses contractors and a panelist for the American Arbitration Assn.

Since being elected two years ago when the commission expanded from three to five members, Schwettmann has received good marks for his performance.

So why is Stone running?

"I feel that being a Lincoln County native, I can offer a more traditional standard of (local) government than is being offered," Stone said. "Our county is really unique with a differential in each community. The needs aren't the same. The income is definitely not the same. I feel a person raised (here) and who knows Corona from San Patricio and knows the culture of the people will understand better than someone not reared in Lincoln

Preston Stone

William Schwettmann

County.

"I feel now we have five commissioners who represent five different areas of the county. I think I see too much shoving, pushing and pulling among (them). When a person is elected to public office, he or she represents the entire county. We have to work harder to try to come up with a combination in every situation to fit the entire county. There has to be some continuity between Corona and Arabela, Ruidoso and Capitan. Just because Corona sits two miles from the county line, doesn't mean we can forget those people up there."

Stone said he'd like to see tighter control of the budget and less reliance on federal grants.

"I believe in a self supportive government," Stone said.

Schwettmann said Lincoln County manages its money better than most areas of the state.

"I don't like the fact that we're a county well known for having surpluses, but they will diminish when we have capital improvements (such as proposed improvements at the courthouse in Carrizozo) and capital purchases. You need to maintain some surplus for emergencies," he said.

Schwettmann said he's an effective commissioner because he has no other political ambitions.

"I'm not of the age that I'm looking to make stepping stones," he said. "I have no desire to go further. The only thing that would bother me is if you would get people there who aren't sincere and would do and say things so they can make another step to a higher office. What I do is kind of from the heart."

On reforms at Camp Sierra Blanca minimum security prison in the wake of six recent escapes, Schwettmann said he has met with community leaders and the warden.

"We have to have more of an early warning when these prisoners escape," he said. "I flat asked (residents) if they wanted it closed. They said no, we just want more security."

"It's a good facility for the economy, but we can't allow this to happen anymore. They need a fence around the perimeter. We have asked in a resolution that we don't want any more prisoners on work release."

Stone, whose background is in ranching, said he's not in a position to say if tighter security or other specific changes are needed.

"I definitely am opposed to working the inmates," he said. "When we have people walking up and down the street drawing unemployment and people on food stamps, why are we working people who are repaying a debt to society?"

Both men object to the proposal to store radioactive nuclear waste on the neighboring Mescalero Apache reservation.

"We've already done our share in New Mexico with WIPP (the Waste Isolation Pilot Project at Carlsbad for storage of defense waste)," Schwettmann said. "What else do they want from us? Or they're going to think we're the dumping ground for the United States. In our type of tourist-based economy, just the publicity alone is bad."

Stone said he's "highly opposed."

"I don't think because (Mescalero President) Wendell Chino and the BIA (Bureau of Indian Affairs) feel they want to, that they should be able to make private contracts and do this, because there are others besides the reservation that this would affect," he said.

With his civil engineering background, Schwettmann has devoted much of his attention since being elected to road problems and expanding the capabilities of the county road department to chip seal surfacing, a less expensive alternative to asphalt paving.

"The county has an ordinance, approved before my time on the board, that tells subdividers they must pave their roads. After a two-year period, if the roads hold up, the county will take them over for maintenance," he said. "I can relate this to the experience in Alto (where he lives). The county accepted those roads and didn't have one piece of asphalt equipment, so they had to hire outside contractors or had to buy the material and patch holes. If we don't buy the equipment, we're going to find the roads are going to deteriorate and it will cost millions, instead of every two or three years maintenance."

Schwettmann cast a nay vote against the commission's decision last year to purchase a former horse sales barn in Glencoe and turn it into a rural events center.

Stone also has his doubts about the purchase.

Republicans outnumber Democrats

Voter registration for the Nov. 8 election closed Oct. 11. Although Democrats are gaining on registered Republicans, they rank as the majority in only three of the county's 13 precincts—Precincts 9 and 10 in the Ruidoso area and Precinct 11 in Ruidoso Downs. Totals are listed below.

The Difference...

Gary Johnson vs. Bruce King

Jobs and the Economy

"N.M. workers are quitters."
(SF New Mexican 9/20/94)

"I believe in New Mexicans — and so do the businesses that have created 85,000 new jobs since 1991."

Children and Families

"Who knows how many of our [domestic violence] problems relate to poor nutrition?"
(SF New Mexican 9/20/94)

"I created the N.M. Children, Youth and Families Dept., because families are New Mexico's future."

Nuclear Waste Dump

"I'm not saying I'm against it...we need to leave the door open."
(Albq Journal 9/29/94)

"I'll slam Gary's 'open door' shut, and keep it shut. We'll never let high-level waste into New Mexico."

Cutting State Taxes

"Promises to cut taxes, then says he never promised to cut taxes..."
(Albq Tribune 9/29/94)

"We've cut taxes $47 million this year alone — and will cut a total of $189 over the next three years."

Crime and Violence

Supports more carrying of weapons, and locking up 9-year olds in penitentiary with adult criminals.
(Albq Journal 7/7/94)

"I got Three Strikes and the Juvenile Handgun Ban enacted, and will fight to pass Truth in Sentencing."

Gambling Amendment

Says he's against a state lottery and video poker — after he said he was for them during the primary.
(Albq Journal 10/14/94)

"Like I said at the start of this campaign, I support a state lottery, but oppose video poker — you can bank on it!"

Magistrate Experience varies widely in county treasurer's race

1972. But after he retired 10 years later, economic reality struck.

"You find out after three or four years go by that inflation does evil things to your retirement," Wersich said. He joined the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Wersich advocates a night court. "Working people are faced with a real problem. Eight to five, that's it folks," he said. Not only would Wersich pursue evening hours, he'd also like to move around the physical location of the court. One stop would be in the historic settlement of Lincoln, where Wersich would like to set up in the old courthouse for an occasional trial.

His accessibility by living in Ruidoso also would be an asset compared to Butts, who lives in Capitan, Wersich said.

"I would be more available to police officers," he said. "If an emergency arises, I'm right here. There won't be any delay in issuing a warrant."

Butts says night court probably wouldn't be permitted by the supervising court and would be expensive with extra hours for clerks.

"There isn't a magistrate judge anywhere in the state I know of who holds night court," he said. "I am available to the public and police officers seven days a week, 24-hours a day. I have issued warrants all hours of the night and on weekends."

Since Wheeler retired, the magistrate caseload has increased 35 percent, hitting 2,003 cases at the end of the fiscal year.

"Police officers are working harder," Butts said. "I feel the officers have faith in me as a judge."

"I am not a wishy washy judge, but I'm not a hanging judge," he said. "If the crime deserves a harsh penalty and lengthy jail time, that's what a person gets. When I put somebody on probation and they violate it, they are immediately incarcerated without bond. I do not tolerate repeat offenders."

Butts' areas of special interest are DWI and domestic violence cases.

"I would say that 90-95 percent of all DWIs in the 1 1/2 years I've been judge have gone to jail whether it's two days or a year."

"But I don't put a person in jail and forget about them. I will immediately call the counseling center. If you don't get them treatment and try to help them solve their problem, when they get out of jail, they'll be right back in the system."

An additional clerk has been added to help catch up with DWI cases that run as high as 25 a day, but someone is needed to stay on top of each case and ensure offenders have complied with court orders, Butts said.

Butts was instrumental in organizing a committee to seek out grants for a DWI counselor and probation officer.

He sees domestic violence cases every week.

"Usually, I'll set a bond high enough to protect the victim until Judge Parsons can issue a restraining order in district court," he said.

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County voters are being asked in the general election to choose between the current chief deputy treasurer, Joan E. Park, a Republican, and Steven Eugene Brewer, a Democrat who has refused interviews and failed to show up at party functions.

Park, the Republican candidate, was born in Roswell, but had visited Lincoln County for most of her life before moving to Capitan eight years ago.

"It was always a dream to move up here," she said. That dream came true when Park and her husband, Brady, were hired at Lone Tree Bible Camp near Capitan.

Three years later, Park was hired by the First Baptist Church and from there she became accounts payable clerk at Fort Stanton Hospital, staying for about 15 months.

"That was some of my best training for what I'm doing right now," she said. "I had to take an accounting technician test to get the job. While I was there, they upgraded the position to financial specialist, which was another test that was more difficult. Strangely enough, it had a lot to do with bonds and government things that we didn't deal with at Fort Stanton."

When Treasurer Janice Ware's chief deputy quit, Park applied and was hired on July 6, 1992.

She has taken advantage of seminars and special training sessions since joining the county and is working toward her associate's degree.

Park married shortly after leaving high school, but worked as a bookkeeper for an oilman in Roswell and then for an architect.

"My strength has always been in math, numbers and figures, so it was natural," she said.

Her ties to Lincoln County go deeper than just feeling at home among its varied topography and friendly residents. Her great grandfather, John W. Owen, was a county sheriff just after the turn of the century and held the record for the most consecutive years in office until James McSwane surpassed it last January.

"We all work for money, but money is not worth being unhappy for me," Park said about her decision to run for office. "I'm going

On crime, Underwood said he intends to be active in revising "good time" regulations that allow criminals time off for good behavior. The good time should not be applied to DWI sentences, he said.

"In the same regard, we obviously have problems at (minimum security prison) Camp Sierra Blanca. I will introduce legislation that people sent to honor camps can't be above a certain level of offender. To send a violent offender to an honor camp one year into his sentence is ridiculous."

Williams said he would pursue changing the law to require parents to participate personally, such as

Treasurer candidate profiles

Incumbent Treasurer Janice Ware is not running for re-election. The county treasurer is paid $30,130 a year. Here are some of the vital statistics on the two candidates, Republican Joan E. Park and Democrat Steven Eugene Brewer.

to work where I enjoy it or I will just go without it. But I love this work. I like working with the public. It's a balance of getting to use accounting, people skills and general management. I like that.

Park explained that the treasurer's job is broken down into three categories—collecting taxes, investing the revenues collected, and distributing money monthly based on the applicable amount of tax levy to various entities such as the state, county, school districts, soil and water districts and a college branch.

"The board of finance, which consists of the county commissioners and the treasurer, has a policy that requires having 100 percent collateralization and government backed (programs for the investment of county money)," she said. "Right now we're educating ourselves to get into U.S. Treasury bills, because they're getting better interest rates than certificates of deposit. We're trying to branch out."

She thinks the job should continue to be an elected position, although a movement exists to change to an appointed post based on credentials.

"I think it's a job that needs some credentials, but I believe if it became appointed, you take away the elected official's need to please the constituency and then you have a tax collector out there with a gun taking people's property away. And that's not the way Janice has run the office," Park said.

Since joining the office, Park has concentrated on converting to computer technology. When she arrived checks were being written and posted manually.

"That required a three-step process and each step left it more open to human error," she said. "We had one computer in the office when I arrived and now we have four. I've been trying to get things automated. A lot of people think change is bad, but you have to grow."

Brewer declined an interview for this article, and party officials said he had not taken part in Democrat events since winning the nomination.

He told The Ruidoso News last March when he qualified to run as the Democratic nominee, that he is a 20-year resident of the county and a descendant of local pioneer families.

"With a high school education, I feel as qualified to run as any other candidate," he said then. He pledged to hire local residents, if elected.

Brewer previously worked with the railroad, at Fort Stanton, with the county road department and with two large food chains. He is married to Juanita Brewer, who works in the county assessor's office.
