ON THE SIDE

No news yet on nuclear partners

Although some of the original 33 utilities have dropped out, enough have signed up to move ahead with a plan to store their nuclear waste on the Mescalero Apache reservation, said the project manager for the lead utility.

Scott Northard of Northern States said he was unprepared Friday to release specifics about the number of partners or details of the agreement. He said some information may be released in a week or two. The deadline for signing on as a partner passed May 19.

Northern is a stockholder-owned public utility.

More forest land protected for owl

An extra 240,190 acres of the Lincoln National Forest has been designated as critical habitat for the endangered Mexican spotted owl.

Most of the acres (216,757) are in the Sacramento District of the forest. The rest, 23,433 acres, are in the Smokey Bear District.

Because of the designation, the Forest Service must consult with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service before allowing activities that could disturb the habitat. Land uses could be limited to protect the species.

The designation came after a U.S. district judge ruled that more areas can be protected. Fish & Wildlife officials contended they couldn't designate more land because Congress passed a moratorium this year on any new protections under the Endangered Species Act.

Local leaders support Domenici grazing proposal

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Two prominent Lincoln County ranchers support the Livestock Grazing Act of 1995, a bill just introduced by U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.).

The bill is meant as an alternative to controversial Rangeland Reform measures initiated by Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt.

"I think it's a real big improvement," said Arabella rancher John Cooper, head of the Upper Hondo Valley Soil and Water Conservation District.

Cooper and fellow rancher Stirling Spencer, a Lincoln County commissioner, didn't even criticize the proposed slight increase in grazing fee formulas.

The bill would:

- allow ranchers to retain ownership of improvements on leased government land, based on their proportionate share of the cost and labor;

- subject the federal government to state water rights law;
- carry slightly higher federal land leasing fees;
- and localize management plans.

When he submitted the bill May 25, Domenici said he hoped the measure would end the "so-called War of the West."

"We have worked to resolve the most egregious aspects of Secretary Babbitt's plans for the West," Domenici said. "Having done this, those who by law are permitted to use our western public lands should be able to operate their businesses in an environment that is not eternally quaking from the threat of regulatory changes from Washington."

"In essence, we are calling for an end to the battle and the realization of a stability that will allow a historic way of life to continue to flourish in this modern world."

"We also move toward the use of more scientific knowledge and away from arbitrary whims of federal managers," Domenici said.

Babbitt has been under pressure from eastern congressmen and environmental groups to curtail the leasing of public lands for livestock grazing with tougher management requirements, higher fees and government ownership of improvements.

These groups contend grazing is damaging public land and is being subsidized by the federal government.

Ranchers counter that they build and repair most of the improvements on the land and they pay taxes on it, justifying lower fees than private land leasing, where the owner is responsible for those obligations. With proper grazing rotation over the past two decades, the land is in better shape than it has been since grazing began, they argue.

Committee to review

Spencer said he hasn't seen the final version of the bill, but reviewed a 92-page draft.

"A group of various people got together and made a request for about four pages of corrective changes (to that draft)," he said. "If those changes have been incorporated in there, and a lot of it is definition, I feel very comfortable with the bill," he said.

That comfort should not indicate that he thought there was anything significantly wrong with the existing formula and management plan, Spencer said.

"If the final request for changes on those four pages has been incorporated, then the administration of those lands will be in the best interests of the public of the United States (without going into some kind of confrontation over range land reform)."

Domenici's bill will be referred for consideration in June and July to the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. Domenici is a member of that committee.

Congressman Joe Skeen (R-New Mexico), who owns a ranch in Lincoln County, last week added his name to the list of co-sponsors to a companion measure introduced in the House by Congressman Wes Cooley of Oregon. Included among the 12 Senate sponsors were Bob Dole of Kansas and Orrin Hatch of Utah.

Major features of grazing proposal

One of the features Lincoln County Commissioner Stirling Spencer likes in Sen. Pete Domenici's bill is that it moves away from Babbitt's "one size fits all" approach and creates a more localized effort to oversee the use of public lands.

"This point is very important," Spencer said. "It brings the standards and guidelines down to the local area. The lands in northern California are run much differently than ones in New Mexico. We're year-around grazing and in Montana, they're seasonal. It's actually to the advantage of the land and the public to have it more locally scrutinized."

The proposed fee increase isn't a back breaker, he said.

"The New Mexico livestock industry is down 30% and in the middle of a drought, but I don't think the proposed increase from about $1.70 an animal unit month (AUM) to $2.10 will break the industry," Spencer said. Babbitt at one time proposed increasing the fee threefold.

"We paid $1.86 (now), so it would be a little increase, but I Please see Grazing, page 2A

State regulations could force local preschool out of business

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Owners of a unique Ruidoso preschool say state regulations may force them out of business.

State officials want to classify Starlite Montessori school as a day care center.

New Mexico Children, Youth, and Family Licensing Bureau (CYFLB) regulations may cause the 12-year-old Montessori school to become classified as a day care center, accept children no younger than five years old, or cease operations.

Currently, Starlite Montessori offers its educational curriculum to children from three to six years old. The establishment is classified as a preschool by the American Montessori Society in New York City. It also has an occupancy license from a state building inspector classifying it as a preschool.

Starlite Montessori has been informed by the CYFLB that because it teaches children under the age of 5 years, it must have a day care license and not be considered a preschool, said Dick Cull, who operates the school with his wife Shaula.

"We are stunned and feel that this is absurd and a violation of our rights and the rights of parents," Cull said. "After 12 successful years of teaching the Montessori philosophy and seeing it work for the children in our community, we are not willing to consider ourselves a day care center."

The CYFLB regulations that have the Culls concerned have been in effect since 1987. Starlite Montessori began operations in 1983, before kindergarten became mandatory in the public schools.

"Perhaps they simply overlooked us or didn't realize we were here," Cull said. "They just showed up one day and asked to see our day care license and I told them we are not a day care."

The Culls are concerned about wording in the regulations that will not allow the school exemption from CYFLB control. This concern comes from a paragraph that says if children under five are being accepted, the establishment must conform to day care licensing regulations.

Regarding exemptions from the controls, the regulations state, "These regulations do not apply to private schools accredited or recognized by the New Mexico Department of Education, operated for educational purposes only for children age five years or older."

"All we want to do is change the paragraph wording from five years or older to three years or older," Cull said.

Becoming a day care facility would mean Starlite Montessori must conform to CYFLB regulations requiring the addition of a diaper changing area and kitchen, and acceptance of "drop-in" children, he said.

"We don't accept any children into the Montessori program who are not already potty trained and out of diapers," Cull said. "Our classes are from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. five days a week, so we don't serve meals, although we do offer snacks as part of the learning experience."

Montessori schools operate throughout the nation. The name Montessori comes from an educational method developed by Maria Montessori, the first woman to attend medical school and become a Doctor of Medicine in Italy. Montessori, who was born in 1870, worked with handicapped and socially deprived children and eventually developed her Montessori Method of teaching.

Starlite's brochure indicates that Dr. Montessori believed that from birth to about five or six years old, children possess what she called the "Absorbent Mind," where children absorb skills from their environment.

"In the Montessori class, the little ones benefit greatly by their continuous contact with the high level of learning and control going on among the older children, and they often unconsciously absorb these skills," the brochure says. "Since each child works at their own rate, the older children are not held back by the younger ones. The older children learn patience, kindness, and understanding in dealing with those not as advanced as they."

Because people of various ages work together in real life, preparing children for the real world is the goal of the Montessori class, the brochure says.

Ruidoso public schools have adopted a similar philosophy recently with their Mentorship program. The Mentorship program pairs eighth graders from Ruidoso Middle School with kindergarten

Apache says she lost job, home for anti-nuke stance

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

An opponent of the plan to store nuclear waste on the Mescalero Apache reservation says she was suspended from her job and stripped of her home as punishment for her stand.

But tribal officials say their criticism of Natalie Fossum's job performance as day care center director and the decision to put her house up for sale have no connection to her opinion about the storage proposal.

In a letter to Fossum dated May 15, Tribal President Wendell Chino wrote that the tribe would no longer sponsor the day care program due to complaints about Fossum's performance and her alleged negative comments about the tribal administration.

He didn't mention nuclear storage in the letter and there was no reference to her being fired, Chino said during an interview Tuesday.

Fossum's criticism of tribal leadership violates a requirement in the tribe's personnel policies, he said.

"One of the requirements of employee conduct is loyalty," Chino pointed out in the policies.

The section reads that employees shall be expected to demonstrate loyalty to the tribe, its leaders and the employees's supervisor.

"Criticism should be directly discussed with those persons involved and not publicly. Disloyalty shall be grounds for dismissal," the policy states.

"On the reservation, they say she talks to them about (nuclear storage), which is her right to do up to a point," Chino said. "Whether it's city, state or tribal government, employees are limited to some degree about politicking, not taking the administration to task for it. But I didn't make that an issue, because I had enough documentation from parents who have submitted complaints."

Fossum said she was asked to meet with Chino May 12.

"(Chino said he took action) because I had made some bad comments about (tribal Vice President Fred) Pesó and himself and some comments about their business ventures pertaining to the (nuclear waste storage project)," she said during an interview last week.

"He said, 'I have given you a home to live in and now I'm going to get it appraised and sold.'"

Chino said he told Fossum, a single parent of three children, about the proposed house sale to forewarn her.

"I just took advantage of the opportunity because she was there, to pre-warn her that one day we're going to put on sale one of the houses she occupies," Chino said.

He said he abides by the tribal constitution and personnel policies in his dealings with all employees.

"Some people get the attitude that Wendell Chino does as he pleases on the Mescalero Apache reservation, that he rules with an iron fist. No one is more democratic than I am," Chino said.

The president has the authority to appoint employees of the executive branch of tribal government and direct them in their work subject to the personnel policies, the constitution states.

Pesó, who spoke for the tribal administration while Chino was in Washington D.C. last week, also denied that Fossum was being targeted for her opposition to the nuclear project.

"It was an administrative decision to pull the funds from the program and those have been reinstated, and she has not been released from her job," Pesó said.

Background

Fossum became an active opponent of the nuclear waste storage plan when tribal officials set aside January election results that rejected the proposal.

The tribal council scheduled a second vote in March in response to petitions calling for a new referendum. The plan to temporarily store up to 40,000 metric tons of spent nuclear fuel rods from power plants passed in the second election six weeks later.

At a tribal council meeting two weeks ago, friends and family members asked the council to help Fossum.

"We went to the council and they said they couldn't do anything because Mr. Chino and Sara (Misquez, Chino's administrative assistant) aren't here right now," Fossum said.

"My mom told them, 'You people were elected as officials of the tribe and if you cannot stand up to him (Chino) instead of being afraid of him and giving him everything he wants, then you have no purpose on this council.'"

Fossum contends that one day after she spoke publicly of her opposition to the nuclear waste storage project, she began to be harassed and that the treatment has continued.

She has been accused falsely of wrongdoing and a whisper campaign has been started to discredit her, Fossum alleged.

Employees who were upset about being directed to take courses in early child development were encouraged to file written complaints against her instead of following the chain of command and trying to resolve problems with her directly, she said.

"One of my staff was told...I was being watched, everything I said, everywhere I went," Fossum said.

In his May 15 letter to Fossum, Chino wrote that Misquez had received complaints by letter from former employees of the day care center.

He said the complaints alleged that Fossum was unable to properly supervise employees, was arbitrary and accepted no input from the staff.

During the Tuesday interview, Chino produced a half dozen letters of complaint about Fossum, several dated in May this year, after the second election. A few were dated in 1994, before she took her stand on nuclear waste storage.

"These were reasons enough to call her in after my administrative assistant (Misquez) had some sessions with her," Chino said.

"I've done nothing arbitrary on my part," Chino said. "I think I am protected by all these documents (tribal constitution and personnel policies). I have to live by these too and if I don't, I can be taken to federal court or they can file a grievance with the tribal government."

Home sale not related to stand, officials say

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The decision to sell the house occupied by former day care director Nettie Fossum is not related to her anti-nuclear waste storage stance, Mescalero Apache tribal officials insist.

"We have four houses being appraised. They will be put on sale and tribal members who may want to bid may do so," Tribal President Wendell Chino said Tuesday.

That process could take two to three months, he said.

Most homes on the reservation are allocated to tribe members by the tribal administration and are not privately owned, Fossum said. Selling the home she has lived in for the past six years would be a departure from the norm, she contended. In her case, the decision amounts to retaliation for her opposition to the proposal to store nuclear waste on the reservation, she claimed.

Pesó said Fossum's home is one of a group purchased by the tribe and designated to be resold. Other tribal members live in public housing projects supervised by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and some private homes, he explained.

The four or five homes in previously non-Apache privately-owned pockets throughout the reservation were bought with tribal money along with the land and water rights, to stop uncontrolled subdividing of the land and in an effort to consolidate the reservation, Chino said.

"There is no personal vendetta," he said.

"I guess there was just a misunderstanding in communication," Pesó said.

Fossum said the situation is more than a miscommunication, contending, "They have violated my civil rights."

Day care center remains open for now

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The day care program continues to be offered at Mescalero despite the removal of Nettie Fossum as director.

Although Tribal President Wendell Chino said Tuesday he thought Fossum had resigned from her job as director, Fossum said Wednesday that she still is on leave, awaiting action from the administration. She continues to be paid her $21,840 annual salary, Tribal Vice President Fred Pesó said.

An interim director has been appointed and the program is operating, Pesó said.

Fossum has been director of the center since 1991. She was president of the center's Parents Committee in 1989, before the operation became a tribal program and secured federal grant money.

In a letter to Fossum dated May 15, Chino wrote, "In view of your criticism of the tribal administration on and off the reservation, we concluded that the (administration) will no longer be involved with the day care. The administration will only provide space for the program and the program will pay a small rent to the Tribe."

As of May 15, control of the center was to be returned to Fossum as director and to the parents, he wrote. He wished her success in operating the program.

But contrary to the contents of the letter, the tribe did stay involved by placing Fossum on leave and appointing an interim director.

Fossum contends she was told that no salaries would be paid from a federal Child Care and Development Block Grant after the May 15 date. Without money, it would have been impossible to keep the program afloat, she said. About $31,000 of what's left in the center's $138,426 budget was raised by parents, she said.

That money was never withheld, Pesó said. "Those funds were always available," he said. "Only the tribal money was withheld."

Federal money was allocated for the day care center for the first time in 1991, with the Tribe as the lead agency, said Peggy Boulanger of the Dallas Regional Office of Child Care Development Block Grant.

"Our concern is that the services to the children not be interrupted. We don't want the children hurt," she said. For purposes of the grant, Fossum is an employee of the tribe, not of the federal program, Boulanger said.

The federal grant serves 46 children in 31 families, she said. She did not know how many of those children are among the 80 who attend the day care center.

If a substantial change occurs in the program, the tribe must submit a plan amendment, she said.

New town water source on line Grazing

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The new $1.8 million Grindstone Water Treatment Plant has been given the go-ahead to start pumping treated lake water into Ruidoso's intricate pipeline system.

Assistant Village Manager Alan Briley said bacterial tests taken last weekend revealed there were no contaminants in the newly constructed plant.

The tests were performed by a certified Department of Health laboratory in Albuquerque.

"We were making sure the water is safe to drink before we turn it on to anyone," Richard Sanchez, village water department director, explained.

By mid-week, engineers began filling the treatment tanks for seven days of operation testing.

"This includes putting water into the system," Briley said. A small part of the village should be on line with the system by Tuesday.

The seven days of tests will assure both the village and the plant constructors (Drew Engineers of Ruidoso) that all the valves, filters, pumps and blowers function as designed to produce quality drinking water.

Ruidoso's current demands are for approximately 2,000 gallons per minute, or 2.8 million gallons a day.

"We'll start phasing (portions of) the town in, one pressure zone at a time," Sanchez said.

The Grindstone Lake water is expected to be softer than that treated from the Alto Lake plant, previously the area's only treatment plant. The Alto plant treats 2.5 million gallons per day.

The two treatment tanks in the new Grindstone plant will treat 350 gallons of water per minute, adding up to one million gallons each day, Sanchez said. Ruidoso's current demands are for approximately 2,000 gallons per minute, or 2.8 million gallons a day. The extra demand is met via the area's 17 million gallons of tank-stored water.

think if it doesn't look like knuckling under, a little increase is warranted," Cooper said. "The main thing is to have a (formula) that stays in place instead of changing it at every whim."

An AUM is used in calculating the fee and Domenici has proposed the term be defined as the amount of forage consumed in a month by one cow, bull, steer, heifer, horse, burro or mule or seven sheep or goats.

Babbitt had suggested five sheep or goats.

"There have been several studies recently that sheep are more environmentally friendly to range land," Cooper said. "The 5-1 ratio has been in use as long as I can remember, but the true ratio should be something like seven to one."

Other points

Other subjects covered in the bill included:

— water rights
Babbitt's plan would give the federal government title claim to water developed on federal lands for the use of livestock grazing.

"(Domenici) is holding them to the state's water law," Spencer said. "The feds have a chance to participate but only under state law."

"That's the way it should be," Cooper agreed. "Our state engineer is a little unique in the West, in that he is the czar of the water. He has long since said Mr. Babbitt is wrong, that the waters of New Mexico would be adjudicated according to his law."

— rights of ownership
Babbitt's plan would give the federal government title claim to all improvements by ranchers on federal land.

"What Domenici's plan does, it give an incentive to the steward to go ahead and do these things," Spencer said.

"When (the plan was for the federal government) to own all improvements, it virtually stopped any improvements on the land, because the return to the rancher wasn't that significant," Cooper said. "Now they'll receive credit for what they do."

— subleasing

To protect the family aspect of ranching operations, a subleasing charge would be applied only if the sublessee is not the spouse, son, daughter, grandson or granddaughter of the original permittee. Elderly permittees would be allowed to sublease without a surcharge.

"This protects the family heritage," Spencer said.

— membership of resource advisory councils

This section would limit membership on the councils to residents of a community within or adjacent to the grazing district served by the boards and would require that members have education, training and experience in rangeland management issues. They must also demonstrate a commitment to seeking consensus solutions to resource management issues.

Some environmentalists in other parts of the state contend this provision may bar interested persons from serving on the councils. Spencer endorsed the idea behind the wording.

"The problem was, people who really didn't have an understanding of the soil, the rain, the area, the different species of grazable material, would get on this board," Spencer said. "They want people on there, whether they really agree or not, who know something about the management of the land."

— environmental impact studies

"Right now in the western states, they have to go through a whole new plan and review even if there has been no change to the land," Spencer said. Domenici's bill would allow a permit to continue without an environmental study if government agents see no change or some improvement, Spencer said.

"The way it is now, they have to go out through the whole process whether there is no change," Spencer said.

"I think that's a really needed change," Cooper said. "These land management people are up to their eyeballs in work. Local people pretty much have the thumbs on things."

Environmentalists say the lack of review may give the rancher too free a hand on the land.

— the permit period would be extended from 10 years to 15 years.

Ladybugs fall freely into the hands of Alan Briley, assistant village manager, as he scrapes layers away from the access manhole to a one million gallon water storage tank. The tank was recently relocated to a hill above the new Grindstone Treatment Plant, and will store treated water piped from the plant. Thousands of the good luck bugs, which signal summer has come, have made the warm sides of the metal tank their new home.

"It's another typical example of government sticking its nose where it doesn't belong," Williams said.

Should efforts fail to change the situation, the school would close rather than become a day care facility, Culla said.

Scenic loop idea on state meeting agenda

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A proposed "Billy the Kid" scenic highway loop through the Ruidoso area will be reviewed Tuesday by the New Mexico Scenic and Historic Highway Council in Santa Fe.

Selected routes must clearly demonstrate the area's intrinsic historic value, the public's interest in that history and environment, and site preservation value, among other factors.

The Village of Ruidoso, sponsor of The Kid loop, began pursuing the program late last year upon the suggestion of the Convention and Visitors Bureau ad hoc committee. The route, if designated, will direct motorists through Ruidoso on Highway 70, into Capitán via Highway 48, through Lincoln on Highway 380, and back onto Highway 70 through the Hondo Valley.

"The whole point is to try and promote the area," Village Manager Gary Jackson said.

At the June 6 meeting, the council may grant a tentative approval and ask the village to provide more information about the "Billy the Kid Loop," or the route may gain complete approval.

State-designated scenic byways are eligible to apply for federal grants for highway improvements. If outright approval is granted,

Mature driving class starts June 7

A 55 Alive/Mature Driving course will be offered Wednesday and Thursday at the Ruidoso Woman's Club by Wayne and Mable Mason.

The course fee is $8. The class will meet both days from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

The course is sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons. Attendance is required both five-hour days to receive a certificate of completion.

Registration for the class ends today. Call 354-2666.

THE DREAMER

A Perfect Day on June the First

About midday of the last day of May, the west wind, which had been charging down the valley for so many days, suddenly stopped, and here came the northeast wind with a touch of cool weather.

By late afternoon it turned fairly warm and the cows went to the shade, with the four young calves lying down all close together.

After grazing awhile toward evening, all the cows lay down in the meadow.

Then at twilight all the calves got up and began playing, running races in circles, jumping and kicking, and butting heads.

They kept up their games on into dusk and darkness — celebrating the last day of May.

June Begins Still Calm and Fragrant

Now today, on June the first, in the early morning, the cows and calves were all out in front of the house and out on Blue Bird Meadow, grazing happily, celebrating the first day of June.

You could feel the peace and happiness all through the mountain land.

The sky above was light blue all around, and the sunny air was still and quiet — with the American flag hardly moving.

And now just a little after midday, all the world is still in a quiet, peaceful, dreamy

The Dreamer

mood, resting during the heat of the day which is now 92 degrees, the hottest of the year.

So you see the true June weather arrived right on time.

The Blossom of the Wild Grape

Down by the riverside where the stream is running unusually strong for this time of year, the vines of the wild grape with their light green leaves are climbing high — to the tops of walnut, oak, and wild cherry trees.

As you walk along the singing streams a blossom fragrance — long familiar and welcome every June — reaches you on the warm dry air.

There they are among the new leaves and tendrils, the tiny blossoms on the clusters — which in late summer will bear purple wild grapes.

Here is a fragrance that once you inhale it, you will recognize immediately, and will remember always.

Through the hot dry of June, the hottest, driest month, it will come drifting up from the riverside like the very breath of life itself.

You cannot help but wonder how a bloom so tiny that you need to be very close even to see it, can have such power — to cast a blossom benediction throughout the desert-dry day — to send a message on the air that cool water is nearby.

A Favorite Verse

Once again we are reminded of a favorite verse by the American poet, James Russell Lowell.

"What is so rare as a day in June
Then, if ever, come perfect days.
And Heaven tries Earth, if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays."

Our Old Friend the East Wind

Now about an hour after midday, the east wind, that faithful bringer of rain, is moving into the vale.

The season of high hopes and dreams-come-true has now arrived.

Let us be ever grateful to the Lord for our blessings.

State wants $1 million for lease at fort

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The state is asking for a minimum of $1 million from companies interested in leasing the former Fort Stanton state hospital in Lincoln County.

County Commissioners will discuss that figure and other aspects of the second draft of a request for proposals (RFP) during their meeting that starts at 9 a.m. Tuesday in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

The $1 million figure caught commissioners by surprise, said County Manager Carol Cooney. The annual operating costs for the historic fort complex previously had been estimated at about half a million dollars.

The commission is interested in seeing the fort come to life again with new jobs. The shutdown of the fort has financially hurt the Capitán area and its school district.

Commission lobbyist H. John Underwood, a former state representative, has asked the state's General Services Department (GSD) to allow economic development, restoration efforts and other positive impacts to be considered as counting toward that annual lease figure, Cooney said. The initial reaction appeared to be favorable, she added.

The former military fort and tuberculosis hospital has been standing empty since it was closed by Gov. Gary Johnson in March. Johnson contended its hefty operating budget wasn't justified. More than 200 employees were laid off.

Responsibility for the fort will be transferred from the Department of Health to the GSD July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. In the interim, the GSD is putting together the RFP that will be sent to companies interested in leasing the large historic complex.

The county will get one out of seven slots on the selection committee that will review the RFPs when they arrive, Cooney said. Some commissioners think the county is fortunate to be given one position, while others think that's not enough, she said.

Temporarily, Underwood's name has been inserted in that position, but it will be up to commissioners to decide whether to extend his contract to cover that work, Cooney said.

The rest of the selection board will be filled with four GSD representatives, the state historic preservation officer and the director of the economic development division for the state.

In other business on Tuesday's commissioner agenda, they will discuss whether to obtain special firefighter training for road department employees.

During a recent fire, a county motor blade and its operator were available to help firefighters, but they could not be used because the county driver lacked training.

Pocketful O Pennys takes Friday feature

The inexperienced Pocketful O Pennys claimed the third win of her six-year career when she pulled off a mild upset in Friday's $4,000 featured race at Ruidoso Downs.

With jockey Billy Peterson aboard for his first win of the afternoon, the 3-year-old Pocketful O Pennys drew away to win the 5 1/2 furlong sprint by 2 1/2 lengths over the favored Sue's Enchantment.

Idunceadawn was third in the group of eight sophomore Thoroughbred fillies.

Owned and trained by Coy Hendrix, Pocketful O Pennys is a California-bred daughter of Pocketful in Vail. Winning mutuels were worth $9.60, $4.80 and $2.60.

Sue's Enchantment returned $3.60 and $2.20 for place and Idunceadawn hung on for a $2.80 show payoff.

FINISH LINES: The Twin-Trifecta has not been won since the meeting opened on May 13, and after 11 racing days the carryover has built up to $78,102 for Saturday. Jockey Todd Fincher, who leads the riders among Thoroughbred winners, also moved to the lead in the quarter horse standings after doubling with quarter horse winners Speeduino in the first and the first-time starter Jan Claire in the fourth. Racing resumes Saturday with the first live event at 1:15 p.m. The $10,000 Norgor Derby is the featured event of the afternoon.

Alamogordo man wins big at track

Gerald Stallberg, a hay farmer from Alamogordo, enjoyed the best racing luck of his life Saturday when a Steward's disqualification resulted in his having the single winning Twin-Trifecta ticket worth $95,337.60.

A regular fan and one-time horse owner at Ruidoso Downs, Stallberg moved into the winning 2-9-8 combination in the second half of the Twin Trifecta after the stewards disqualified Prince of Flame (no. 10) from second to fourth place for interference.

After taxes, Stallberg took home a check for $68,644, the richest winning ticket of his life.

"I play the Twin Trifecta all the time," he said. "But the biggest ticket I've ever cashed before this was for $3,000. I was hoping they'd take the number 10 down."

Stallberg explained that he included Kelzell, the 17-1 longshot winner of the fourth race, only because he had been partners in the horse here last year.

"When I was partners in him he couldn't outrun me," laughed Stallberg. "I guess he made up for it today."

Stallberg plans to put his Twin-Trifecta earnings toward the new house that he is building at his farm in Alamogordo.

Saturday's was the first winning Twin-Trifecta since Ruidoso Downs opened on May 12. The record Twin-Trifecta payout of $294,041 was on June 28, 1990.

A two-part wager, the Twin-Tri requires fans to pick the Trifecta in the third and fourth races. Stallberg initially invested $140 in the wager, and had two good exchanges going into the fourth race after the 7-8-3 combination of Crusan Solo, Fast Loom and Risque Zak won the first leg.

In Saturday's featured event, Paradise Stranger came off the pace to tally a half-length upset over Herewego in the $10,000 Guaranteed Norgor Derby.

After taking the lead from Jena Jinsky at the top of the stretch, Paradise Stranger held off Herewego in the final yards to cross the wire in 1:12 1/5 for six furlongs.

The Norgor Derby was the third win in only six career starts for Paradise Stranger, who is owned by Las Cruces dairyman Mike Weatherly and trained by Simon Buechler.

"He could turn out to be a pretty nice colt," said Weatherly following the race. "We thought he had a lot of talent last year but he had some problems so we just sent him home."

The Derby was the second straight victory for Paradise Stranger. The Texas-bred returned $9.20, $4.20 and $3.20. The winner ran as an entry with Poly's Mink, another sophomore owned by Weatherly, who has 15 horses in training at Ruidoso Downs. Poly's Mink finished fifth after a troubled start.

Herewego, under Todd Fincher, paid $4.20 and $3.40, and Jena Jinsky, the only filly in the field, hung on for a $2.80 show payoff under Dave Lidberg.

Jena Jinsky, victorious in the Road Runner Handicap in her last start, overcame a bad start but regained the lead early.

"She was standing a little awkward in the gate," said jockey David Lidberg, who replaced an ailing Gilbert Villegas. "She just got out. She's a little tiny filly, and she ran real good against this company."

INSIDE THE OUTDOORS

Anyone who watches the Saturday fishing shows on television would think that this sport is extremely complicated. An angler needs a $25,000 boat and motor, several different rod and reel combinations and a million different lures.

Like all sports, it can be complex and expensive, but it can also be a relatively simple sport.

Let's look at this sport from the perspective of someone who wants to try fishing without taking out a second mortgage on their house.

Many have graduated to the $25,000 boat and thousands of dollars of equipment, but it really isn't necessary, to just go fishing.

There are several options. First of all, in most areas of the state there are fishing clubs or organizations that are more than willing to help a beginning angler. Many of the folks in these groups are very helpful and will even take interested folks out fishing with them and share costs. Some groups even sponsor fishing clinics to teach folks the basics. To find these groups, just go to the local sporting goods store and ask.

Another simple way to learn about fishing is through the local video store or library. There are thousands of fishing videos and books available and many are aimed at first-time anglers. Just rent a video or check out a book and listen to the experts.

Good anglers can also be found at any fishing area. Pack a picnic lunch, head to the lake and watch for the guy or gal catching all the fish. Most sportsmen are more than willing to brag a little and share their secrets.

Inside the Outdoors

BEN HANSEN
N.M. GAME & FISH

There are lots of sources of information out there, and some that shouldn't be overlooked are friends and neighbors that fish or even the local conservation officer.

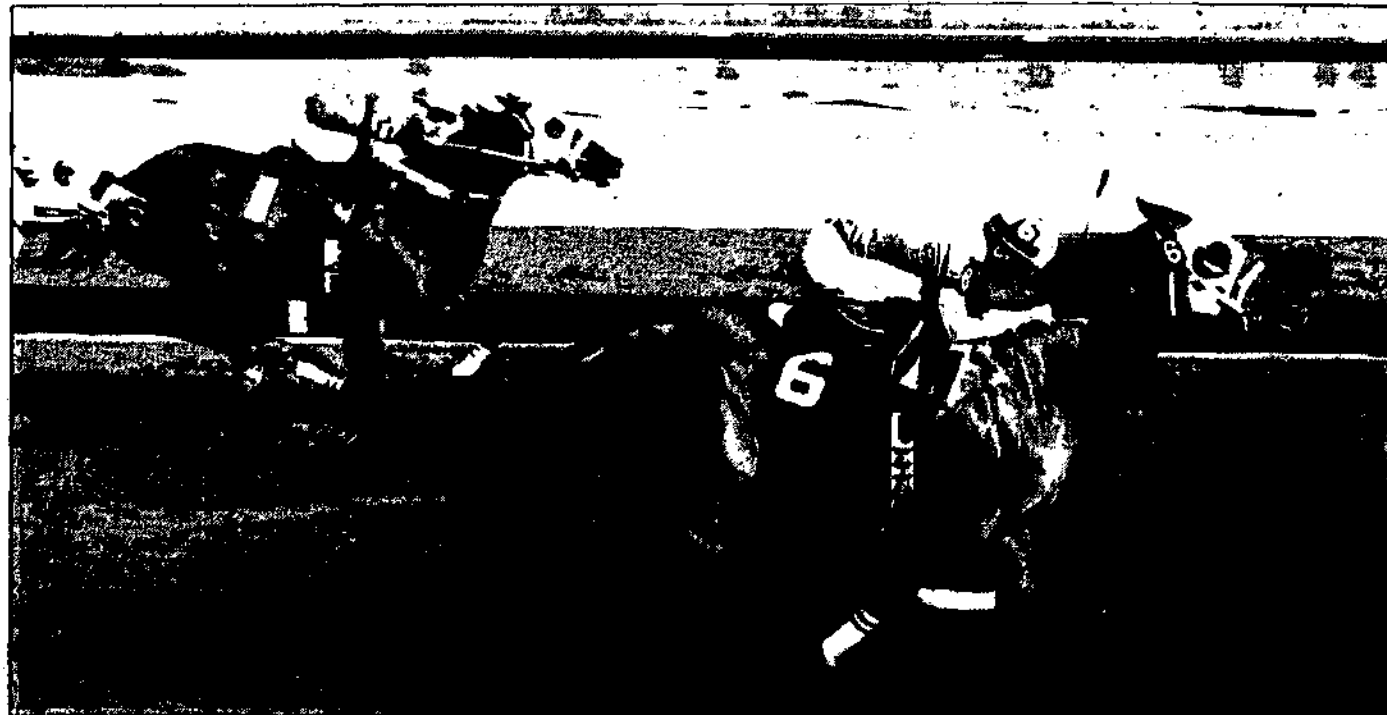

Now since I fish, here's my advice to a first-time angler. Go to the local sporting goods store and pick out a spincasting rod and reel combination. They are simple to operate, versatile, and fairly inexpensive. While there, pick up an assortment of hooks, sinkers and bobbers. For line, those fishing for trout should use four to six-pound test line while warm water anglers (catfish, bass or walleye) should use 10 to 15-pound test. Don't forget to buy a fishing license and pick up a copy of the fishing regulations.

Next, head for the bait shop and get some worms or minnows. There are thousands of artificial lures available, but live bait still catches lots of fish.

Then, head for the local fishing hole. Practice casting a few times with only a sinker on the line. Then tie on a small hook, put on a small sinker eight inches above the hook and put a bobber on the line about three feet above the sinker. Hook on the bait and cast it into the water and you're fishing. That is really simple and it didn't cost an arm and a leg.

This is the way thousands of folks started fishing. Many have graduated to the $25,000 boat and thousands of dollars of equipment, but it really isn't necessary, to just go fishing. Try it — it may be the beginning of a lifetime of enjoyable outdoor recreation.

Special Phoebe pulls mild upset in Rainbow

Special Phoebe races to the finish line to win the Rainbow Silver Cup.

Gwendolyn Eaves' Special Phoebe broke perfectly and was never threatened en route to a powerful victory over a talented field of older quarter horses in the Grade II $31,389 Rainbow Silver Cup, Sunday at Ruidoso Downs.

Trained by Chris O'dell and ridden by Casey Lambert, Special Phoebe established a commanding lead in the early stages of the 440-yard dash, then cruised home under no urging by his jockey to win by a length. The final time was :22.03.

"She was just gone when they opened the gate and then just cruised the rest of the way. I was going to hit her midway through the race, but I didn't have to because she's the type of horse that is so competitive every time, she gives you everything she has," said Lambert.

The 4-year-old daughter of Special Effort earned $11,140 for Eaves of Midland, Texas.

Heavily favored Treacherously broke poorly and finished sixth. The first start of the summer for Treacherously was disastrous, according to jockey Nancy Summers.

"It was an awful race, put it that way. He was standing perfectly in the gate, but when they sprung it open, he threw his head and we were already spotting the field five lengths," Summers said.

18-1 longshot Mollie Six finished second under jockey Sam Thompson, while Teresa Briggs and ZV Silver Bullet ran third.

Buzz teaches generation to swim in Ruidoso

by JUNG WHA YOON
Ruidoso News Intern

Ellen "Buzz" Bizzell has taught a generation of Ruidoso children to swim in her 19 years at the 30-year-old Parks and Recreation Swimming Pool, and she hopes to move on to the next set of offspring before she quits.

Bizzell began working at the pool in 1976, when she was 15. It officially opened in 1965. Today, Bizzell is the manager, lifeguard and water safety instructor, teaching all the swim lessons and lifeguard classes.

"I got into lifeguarding because it seemed like a lot of fun," Bizzell said.

She stayed all these years because of the children.

"I've really enjoyed seeing all the kids learn to swim and then seeing them come back and graduating from high school," Bizzell related.

Bizzell is extremely proud that in her 19 years at the pool, no one has drowned. She cites an emphasis on preventative lifeguarding as the reason. Her lifeguards only have to get in the water one or two times each season for an actual rescue.

Sixty hours of training, which includes classes in professional CPR, first aid and lifeguard training, are required to become a lifeguard. Bizzell feels it has become harder and harder to recruit new lifeguards because of the difficult certification process.

A hardworking staff that starts the job months before the pool opens has Bizzell feeling happy about the people she has hired.

The staff has to work for two months to get the pool ready for a three-and-a-half month season. They begin in April, draining the pool, scrubbing algae off the walls and repainting. Bizzell gets through work by remembering it is worth it, because the children of the community have a place to play all summer while school's out.

It has been a busy summer so far. The pool has reached its capacity of 125 people nearly every day, and occasionally staff have to stop letting people in.

When asked about the controversy over whether Lincoln county residents who live outside of town should pay more for Ruidoso government services, Bizzell replied that the pool is a community pool and everyone should get to come.

As a full-time Parks and Recreation Department employee, Bizzell moves to other chores when the summer ends, from helping to write grants to assisting special projects. While she hopes to work full-time for another division of the department in the future, she isn't making any such plans yet.

"I think I still have a good 10 years in me," Bizzell laughed.

History and relaxation merge at Lincoln's Wortley Hotel

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Sounds of workmen constructing Billy the Kid's scaffold could be heard by those having lunch at Wortley Hotel in Lincoln on April 28, 1881.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Olinger had brought five of the county's six prisoners into the Wortley for a meal, leaving Billy locked in the jail at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Suddenly, Olinger heard gunshots. Running across the street, he was shot and killed from an upstairs window as The Kid made his escape.

Just a month after The Kid's escape, Sheriff Pat Garrett, who shot and killed Billy on July 14, 1881, purchased the Wortley Hotel for $275.

Records of exactly when and who built the Wortley Hotel no longer exist. One theory is that it was constructed in 1872 by L.G. Murphy, primarily to house and feed workers hired to build Murphy's Big Store, a general store he was building across the street from the hotel. Murphy was a major figure in the infamous Lincoln County War.

Sam Wortley, who had worked as manager and cook of the establishment, bought the hotel in March of 1879 but sold it only two months later for $500.

Wortley may have only owned the hotel for a short time, but the name stuck and The Wortley Hotel it has remained.

The Wortley was purchased by Dan and Judith Richey of Albuquerque in August of 1994 and after a thorough cleaning and renovation, the hotel officially reopened on May 20 this year.

The Wortley Hotel is open and friendly, with down home cooking from chef Cecil Chaffins, who built a reputation for fine food at the establishment and returned when it reopened.

Natural 18-inch thick adobe walls give the Wortley a sense of peace, tranquility and solidity. Each of the eight rooms has its own fireplace and is furnished with a brass bed, marble-topped bureau and other period furniture.

Rooms also have central heating, their own bathrooms and showers and open directly onto a porch.

After a day of sightseeing in Lincoln, visitors can relax on the Wortley's 92-foot-long covered porch, stocked with rocking chairs.

Six-inch planked floors and antiques make dining in the Wortley Hotel an unforgettable experience. The aroma of fresh baked bread, pies and cobblers fill the dining room as Chef Cecil works her magic. The menu features items such as Huevos Rancheros with authentic New Mexican red or green chili, homemade soups and the hearty Wortley Burger.

The Wortley Hotel accepts all major credit cards and is open for breakfast and lunch from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. every day. Dinner is served on Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Room reservations are recommended, especially for weekend visitors. Call (505) 653-4300 for more information.

Alternative Health Fair coming to Civic Center

Everything from biofeedback to vitamins will be showcased at Alternative Health Fair '95, on Sunday, June 18 at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

The annual event is twice as large as in 1994. More than 30 alternative health practitioners will offer demonstrations and products dealing with alternative medicine and healthy lifestyles.

"We have so much more to offer than last year," said Sandra Davis, promoter of the event and chiropractor at the Centre for the Healing Arts. "We fully expect up to 1,000 people to attend."

Exhibitions at the fair will include chiropractic demonstrations, acupuncture, biofeedback, massage, reflexology, skin care, nutritional therapy, energy readings, rapid eye therapy, and body balancing. There will also be many booths with vitamin and mineral supplements, herbal teas, organic clothing, books and organic food.

"There will be many free samples of products," Davis said. "Some of the exhibitors will be providing mini-massages, reflexology treatments and energy body work for free or for a small charge."

Davis is encouraging people to bring a sample of their drinking water to the fair so that it may be tested for purity. There will also be blood pressure checks and breathing analysis testing for emphysema, asthma and cardio pulmonary problems.

Those attending the fair will receive a free raffle ticket with the price of admission. The raffle winner will receive a Back Revolution traction and exercise machine with a retail value of $500, Davis said.

Alternative Health Fair '95 will begin at noon and close at 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 18. There is a $2 per person admission charge. For more information call Davis at 257-7555.

Brown receives state award

Arlene Brown

Arlene Brown, MD., a family physician in Ruidoso, was awarded the Wyeth Ayerst Award for community service.

This award is sponsored by the Wyeth Ayerst Company and is presented to all states to the physician most deserving of recognition for community service above and beyond the call of duty.

The honor is voted on by members of the New Mexico Medical Society, the state's professional organization of physicians, which represents more than 90% of practicing doctors.

Brown, a diplomat in the National Board of Medical Examiners and the American Academy of Family Physicians, graduated from the UNM School of Medicine in 1980. She serves as an associate clinical professor in the department of family, community and emergency medicine.

She has been an active member and officer of many professional and community organizations. She founded and serves as president of the Ruidoso Family Crisis Center, which provides shelter, counseling and legal aid for victims of family violence. Brown teaches sex education to Ruidoso mid-schoolers yearly and helped to organize a family planning clinic for the Ruidoso area.

"She was clearly the winner of this award, she is clearly a winner period," said NMMS, in presenting Brown with the Wyeth Ayerst Award.

New driveway construction law passed by council

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

New driveway construction requirements were approved by the Ruidoso Village Council Tuesday.

The ordinance had been on the Planning and Zoning Commission's drawing board since February, and final changes to it gained commission approval May 15.

Previously, all driveways in hilly Ruidoso were restricted to a maximum 12% grade, so vehicles wouldn't slide onto city streets. But contractors complained to the commission and council that the seven-year-old ordinance was too restrictive, so workshops were held to come up with a compromise.

The final version of the new ordinance has been endorsed by the Lincoln County Home Builders Association. Elements include:

- no steepness restrictions for driveways at single family and duplex residential developments;
- a six-foot paved landing area with a dip section (acting as both a trench and a landing area) where the driveway meets the road, for both commercial and residential developments;

— and a minimum 18-inch diameter drainage pipe running beneath the landing area.

P&Z will waive the drainage pipe requirement if the applicant demonstrates it is unnecessary.

The former ordinance piqued the temper of a local contractor, Barney Rue, who allegedly threatened Village Planning Director Cleatus Richards in late January.

Rue's alleged threat that Richards was "dead in Ruidoso," followed a heated argument about the ordinance while the two were at city hall.

Richards filed a criminal complaint with the police department Jan. 25, and Rue was charged with disorderly conduct and assault.

Rue must appear before Judge Mike Lines at municipal court June 15 at 2 p.m.

Wild mustang, burro adoptions June 17 in Ruidoso Downs arena

Wild mustangs and burros will be arriving at Beavers Arena in Ruidoso Downs on Saturday, June 17.

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) will offer approximately 50 horses from a BLM managed herd on Socorro. The horses were rounded up this past April, and consist of a multitude of colors. The majority of the horses range in age from 1 to 4 years of age.

In addition to the wild horses, approximately 10 burros will be available for adoption.

With the limited availability of burros during this time of the year, the Ruidoso Downs adoption may be the only adoption in New Mexico that will have burros available during 1995.

The adoption will be open to pre-approved applicants only. People are encouraged to complete their application packet before Friday, June 16 to insure pre-approval is granted in time for adoption. The application asks adopters to describe their ability to provide adequate feed, water and shelter for a horse or burro. The packet also contains a veterinarian's certification form that must be completed and returned with the application. The certification form is used to certify that the facility meets BLM's requirements. The adoption fee of $125 per horse, or $75 per burro, is payable in cash or money order on the day of the adoption.

To apply for the Adopt-A-Horse program, write to the BLM at 221 N. Service Road, Moore, Okla., 73160, or call (405)790-1000 for an application packet. In addition, application packets may be obtained by contacting B & B Redi Mix in Ruidoso Downs or any BLM office in the state of New Mexico.

All pre-approved adopters must be registered and present at the adoption site by 9 a.m. on June 17, in order to have their name submitted for the lottery drawing that will determine the order of selection. All pre-approved adopters are invited to register and preview the horses from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, June 16. Registration and preview will begin at 7 a.m. on the day of the adoption.

Senior volunteers honored at banquet

DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Magic literally filled the air at the First Annual Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) Appreciation Banquet Friday at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Magician Jamie O'Hara performed for more than 75 RSVP volunteers and supporters at the event.

Ruidoso's RSVP program started July of last year. It allows seniors to share their experiences, abilities and skills by responding to community needs. The local program has 42 volunteers and 26 work stations.

RSVP volunteers serve at such places as the Ruidoso Humane Society, city hall, the U.S. Forest Service, Ruidoso public schools and the Ruidoso police and fire departments.

The RSVP program is funded by grants and fundraising. It was established nationally in 1971. It is an outgrowth of the Corporation for National Service and the National Senior Service Corps.

O'Hara's performance was preceded by a buffet dinner and a short speech by the president of the RSVP advisory council, attorney David Thomsen.

"I want to thank everyone for all their support and dedication for RSVP," Thomsen said.

Thomsen introduced Ruidoso Village Manager Gary Jackson, who told the audience that the village was pleased with the response to the program.

Following Jackson, volunteer coordinator Charlotte Seitz and program director Sandee Dutchover Jourden, assisted by O'Hara, passed out RSVP coffee mugs and certificates of appreciation to the 42 volunteers.

Sleight of hand was next on the agenda and magician O'Hara proceeded to dazzle the audience with card, scarf and hat tricks, spiced with plenty of humor.

RSVP is always seeking new volunteers for the program, Jourden said. To become involved in the program or get additional information, call the RSVP office in the Ruidoso Senior Citizen's Center at 257-4565.

Celebrant Singers perform Wednesday

The Celebrant Singers, a Christian music ministry, will present a community concert at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 14, at St. Eleanor Catholic Church in Ruidoso.

The concert is free, although a free-will offering will be taken.

Concertgoers will be treated to contemporary Christian music, praise and worship, and personal testimony and ministry. Featuring 10 singers and a 12-piece orchestra, Celebrant Singers aim to inspire and bless as they share the Gospel of Jesus Christ through a musical celebration.

"Celebrant Singers is not just another music group. Our objective is to share the love of Christ," said Celebrant Singers founder Jon Stemkoski. "It's a powerful ministry! It will touch your heart. Bring your family and friends — it's an experience you won't soon forget!"

During 1995, seven teams of Celebrant Singers will present more than 1,400 concerts in some 17 nations, six Canadian provinces and all 50 states. They were also one of the first Christian groups of its kind to conduct outreaches in the previously-closed nations of Bulgaria and Albania.

"While similar groups traditionally have had an exclusively Protestant audience, Celebrant Singers is the first full-time contemporary Christian singing group to have a widespread ministry among America's 60 million Roman Catholics," Stemkoski added. "Since 1977, we've sung in over 3,000 parishes throughout North America."

In 1984, Celebrant Singers ministered in St. Peter's Square before an Easter week crowd of over 120,000 people. Stemkoski and Celebrants were also honored by a private audience with Pope John Paul II. They recently participated in Denver's World Youth Day, before the Pope's arrival.

In addition to live appearances, Celebrant Singers have released seven recordings to date.

Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers is an outreach of Stone Ministries, Inc., a non-profit Christian corporation ministering to the needs of people through music and the arts.

Glad to be rid of cheesy amusement park

Some people may miss the wacky Y Knot amusement park at the "Y" in Ruidoso, but our editorial board has concluded it's good to be rid of the rides because they qualify as an eyesore.

A few of us never did figure out what those drawings on the amusement rides represented, but we figure they'd look better in an Andy Warhol art museum.

In case you haven't heard, a microbrewery is planned to replace the unsuccessful amusement park. Since beer would be brewed on site, it will need a special small brewery business license from the state, but no liquor license (which is hard to find in this state). Village officials mentioned the owner also runs the Chaps bar in Alamogordo. The village permit requires work to begin on the new use by October.

Across the street lies the beautiful Rotary pocket park, adorned with a variety of flowers. It used to be ugly, too, when it was a quarry.

Matching flowers at the new microbrewery would really set off this section of the highway. If the owners can't find the time to take care of the flowers, maybe they can approach the local Garden Club women who take care of the flowers at the Rotary park.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Humane Society cared for Mikey best way it could

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is in response to the one written by Fran Johnston (The Ruidoso News 5/29/95 Saturday Edition) titled "Who's to blame for Mikey's death."

There are many sad and heart-breaking conditions that persist in America and that are a direct result of companion animal overpopulation and the resulting low value assigned to animal life. Mrs. Johnston (and her friend) discover in her letter some conditions in our local area that allowed the loss of a severely injured animal they cared about. We at the Humane Society care about them.

The question asked in Mrs. Johnston's title — "Who's to blame for Mikey's death?" — is clearly answered in the first two paragraphs of her letter. Domesticated animals are just that, domesticated. Especially in the case of canines, they do not thrive, enjoy, or even survive without a home. Every homeless dog you may encounter, including Mikey, are in the process of dying. The only question is what horrible form this ultimate end will take, be it virulent diseases such as parvo or distemper, poisoning, automobiles, abuse or starvation.

In Mrs. Johnston's letter she writes about how Mikey "just showed up one day to play" and then "kind of stayed." She writes of him being "his own man" and his "excursions" when he would go "wandering." This is the period that is vital in saving animals, eliminating pet population and disease, and reducing suffering. The State of New Mexico even recognized this through a state ordinance requiring all residents discovering or harboring a stray to immediately notify and surrender the animal to the authorities. Although this story of Mikey's travels does have some Norman Rockwell appeal, it is the true tragedy of this story.

While Mikey was healthy and uninjured, and during the days of his roaming, there was plenty of time to take Mikey to the shelter or have him picked up. If he had been impounded he would have been held for three days for the owner to claim, providing that his health and temperament were acceptable (and Mikey was truly sweet). He would have been vaccinated, fed a few good meals, had his toenails clipped and a bath, and been moved to adoptables and placed in a new home. Not only that, but like all of our animals, the Humane Society would also follow up and insure that his home was satisfactory and that he was neutered and afforded veterinary care.

We resent Mrs. Johnston's inference that because Mikey was not pure bred, and thus we could not make money off of him, that he had lower standing with us. Pure breeds are rarely in evidence in our shelter and we are one "not for profit" organization that is certainly that.

Unfortunately, when we received Mikey he was severely infected and swollen and in deep shock. We had background information to suggest that he had been long homeless and saw no reason to prolong his suffering any longer. Most animal shelters are like ours, where funds are not plentiful and where the most animals possible are helped with the resources available.

Sadly, 20 million surplus animals are euthanized in our country's shelters each year. These are for the most part perfectly healthy, uninjured animals for whom there are just not enough homes. Though our local euthanasia numbers are very low and encouraging, we still fall far short of saving every animal, especially severely distressed ones such as Mikey.

As is usually the case when a third party is writing in quotes for another, our staff has been misquoted and/or misunderstood throughout Mrs. Johnston's letter. However, we will choose not to banter in the letters to the editor. Instead we will welcome and encourage inquiries from local citizens as to our policies and practices.

We cannot speak on behalf of all the local agencies, officials, and elected bodies labeled "incompetent," "unjust," and "abusive" by Mrs. Johnston's letter, but on behalf of the Humane Society and the animal shelter staff, we would wish that Mrs. Johnston could walk one day in our shoes, and gently take a frail paw, and look into a set of trusting eyes, and see them close...and still hold on to a dream.

Skateboarders should police peers

TO THE EDITOR:

As business owners in Midtown fronting on Sudderth Drive, we knew it was only a matter of time until our new sidewalks were claimed by skaters when spring arrived. When protests were voiced, we were impressed by the show of organization of these young people simply asking for a place to "play."

Since that time, however, actual happenings have brought concerns to mind. First, when a serious injury occurs, who is liable? If a child is tripped up by a stone on a state-owned sidewalk but is thrown into a storefront, who gets sued? When Mom and Dad run down to see where the blood spots are, will they be trying to determine whose store is liable?

Second, those wishing to use the sidewalks after businesses close seem to think all of Sudderth Drive closes at 5 p.m. Excuse me, but our business closes at 8:30 p.m. and less than two blocks away are two liquor establishments that close much later. At 7 p.m., I have watched in horror as approaching skaters were entering our driveway area as cars were entering or exiting.

Lastly, the personal conduct of some of these young people does not reflect the spirit of the ones that appeared before the village officials and made such a good impression. For example, we have seen young men in skates perched atop a cluster mailbox. On a recent weekend, they attempted to take over our parking lot — while we were open! When we asked them to leave, some became verbally abusive and turned to swinging on some new, young trees planted by the village. And if you think all of them stay on the sidewalks, think again. Many play a game called "skate back and forth across the street before a car rounds the curve."

Bottom line is, eventually someone will get hurt and legal problems will ensue. So, you young ones who are not guilty of misconduct, police your own peers. Make your friends shape up! And parents, if you think your kids are skating safely only on deserted sidewalks, and confining their skating to the sidewalks, park on a side street some weekend evening and just observe. You might be surprised.

Montessori should be classified as private school

TO THE EDITOR:

(The following letter was sent to Heather Wilson, Secretary of Children, Youth and Families, and copied to The Ruidoso News.)

Dear Ms. Wilson:

Our son attends the Starlite Montessori School in Ruidoso, and our plans were to have him attend next year. We have now been informed that this school may have to be licensed as a day care center (child care facility!), and therefore have to comply with child care center regulations.

There are many fine child care centers in Ruidoso and we had a choice to place our son in any one of them. We feel our child can receive excellent child care from his own mother, were this our only concern. Our son is a special child with special needs that neither his mother nor a child care center are equipped to handle. We were careful in selecting a school for him to attend. We felt this action was our right as parents.

This school has for many years been recognized as a leading private school for those who wished to use it.

We also feel portion B-5 of the applicability section of the HED-87-3 (HSD) Regulation should be changed to allow for freedom of choice.

We, as parents, hope you will reconsider and leave our Starlite Montessori School classified and/or licensed as a private school.

Thank you for your important time.

I miss you so very much my dear little Mattie Mo. The games we played and such but you can look down here below. Remember Mama, here and save a place for me above. Someday I'll join you up there but for now I send all my love. Written and dedicated by Dorrie Robinson-Mother!! R-8

CARL ROSS - his children and their families would like to express their heartfelt expressions of gratitude to the citizens of Ruidoso for all their gifts, support and friendship during this difficult time. The passing of Lorene Ross was and is an emotional even that seems to know no boundaries of sadness. You have helped to ease the grief, and without your help and love the strength to endure would not have been possible. The children of Carl especially want to thank you for all the support you have given him with your friendship and words of comfort. We hope someday to repay you in your own times of crisis. We love you all. R-8

Public Television

19th ANNUAL KENW-TV TELE-AUCTION June 5th - 10th, 1995

The 19th annual Tele-Auction is right around the corner! Beginning at 7:00 p.m. on Monday, June 5th through Friday, June 9th, the Auction will feature general merchandise, vacations, gift certificates and celebrity items. There's something for EVERYONE! The Auction will conclude around 11:00 p.m. each evening. On the last day, Saturday, June 10th, the Auction will begin at 5:00 p.m. and end around 11:00 p.m. Over 1800 items, valued at over $100,000, donated by businesses and individuals, will be auctioned off on KENW-TV. The proceeds from the Auction will be used to offset the cost of purchasing programs for the station. This year's programming costs will exceed $360,000. With YOUR help, we hope to raise over $80,000 for quality programming, and you'll have a lot of fun shopping during the Tele-Auction.

SONG JOURNEY

Follows the Trail of the Pow-Wow
In Search of Tradition, Culture, and Inevitable Change

Song Journey is a personal exploration of an enduring Native American tradition: the pow wow. The program follows the pow wow trail from Tulsa to Saskatchewan in search of a deeper understanding of Native traditions and culture — and how traditions change and adapt through time.

Each year, from May through September, thousands of Native dancers, singers, families, friends, and onlookers celebrate culture, tradition, and community at pow wows all over the United States and Canada. From Arizona to Florida, from Washington to Canada, the pow wow trail winds through almost every North American Native community. Some pow wows are small local gatherings, while others (known as contest pow wows) offer monetary prizes and national recognition for the best dancers and singers, as well as opportunities for many to see artists with international reputations perform.

Traditionally, women sing standing behind the men at the drum, but Song Journey reveals changes in some pow-wow protocol as some women choose to expand their traditional roles.

The pow wow combines the past, the present, and the future as we see children and elders dancing to the same beat. Song Journey celebrates tradition, but even more important, it recognizes that tradition is a thriving, living, and changing thing that has an everlasting life all its own.

Song Journey airs Sunday, June 4th at 3:00 p.m. and 11:00 p.m. on KENW-TV.

Channel 3 Television from Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, New Mexico

PET CORNER

These pets are currently up for adoption at Lincoln County Humane Society
Call 257-9841

Jake, a black Labrador/pointer mix, is about 10 months old, sweet, full of energy and loves children. His owners decided not to take him with them when they moved. This time around he needs a loyal owner.

Bingo at five months already is an armful. A Rottweiler/chow mix, he was abandoned at the office of a local veterinarian. He's happy, cute and a good dog for someone who enjoys outdoor exercise.

POOP SCOOP

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

With the temperature climbing even in the cool pines of Ruidoso, pet owners should think twice about bringing their pals along in the car.

It takes less than 10 minutes sitting in a closed car in the sun for an animal to become dehydrated and the mercury to soar. Many animals have been found by owners near death after only a half-hour of shopping.

Leaving windows opened or dogs in the back of a pickup truck aren't good alternatives.

Village law requires dogs to be restrained so they cannot reach beyond the limits of a vehicle, something hard to manage with a dog when the windows are rolled down or it is loose in the pickup bed. The law was passed to prevent a dog from biting an unsuspecting passer, in a misguided attempt to protect his owner's vehicle.

A rolled down window leaves a dog vulnerable to theft or to someone who just decides to open the door and let the dog loose.

State law prohibits traveling in a pickup with a dog or humans in the bed of the truck. According to a Ruidoso police officer, the offense is a petty misdemeanor punishable with up to a $500 fine and/or six months in jail.

The law was passed because of the many deaths and injuries to children, adults and pets due to sudden stops, swerves or rollovers in which they were thrown from the truck and killed.

Even when a vehicle is parked and a dog is supposedly trained to stay, the bed of the truck exposed to the sun soon becomes blistering hot to an animal's footpads.

Pet seat

A concerned pet owner passed along another warning for dog or cat owners who think they are protecting their animals by using a basket-type pet car seat.

The basket may be comfortable, but it doesn't include a method of restraint in case of accident. With a sudden impact, the animal could become a projectile through the windshield.

I'd be interested in hearing from readers who have found effective and protective restraint devices for their animals while traveling.
