ON THE SIDE

Man killed in one-car accident

A 23-year-old man from Mexico, who apparently had been drinking with two companions, was killed Sunday in a one-car accident south-west of Corona.

The dead man's name with his relatives are notified. That could be a problem, according to a police spokesman in Alamogordo, because all police have to go by is the man's green card, a federal work permit for aliens.

The victim was driving a 1978 Dodge pickup and was headed east, leaving the Cibola National Forest on Lincoln County Road AO28 when the accident occurred, State Police Officer Robert Eshon reported.

The driver swerved and plowed into an embankment, rolling the pickup 2.5 times, Eshon wrote in his report.

Passengers Briseno Garcia and Mardieto Valencilla, both 22, from Durango, Colo., were taken to a hospital in Albuquerque.

Seatbelts were not used and alcohol was involved in the accident, Eshon noted.

Deer killed near Tennis Court home

A deer shot twice and left to die was found by a Tennis Court Drive resident near his home Wednesday night. Ruidoso police said the shots may have come from the Scenic Drive area.

The animal was still alive when police arrived at the scene, though the gunshot through its chest area and right side had left it paralyzed.

An officer was forced to shoot a bullet between the deer's eyes to end its suffering, police said.

Graffiti, mud mess up house, center

A substantial amount of graffiti was scrawled on a wall outside a Ruidoso residence last week, police said.

The spray-painted tags, appearing Wednesday at Grove Street, read schizo, lucky and I.Q.

The same morning, personnel at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center reported hunks of mud had been splattered against the doors and under the carport.

Skateboarders strut their stuff in front of merchant Garrett Trent's store in downtown Ruidoso. A new park bench lying partially on Trent's property has become a point of assembly for some teens, so the merchant has asked village officials to remove it.

Ruidoso councilors decide fate of skateboards tomorrow

The conflict between skateboarders and downtown Ruidoso business owners has escalated this summer. Some shoppers say they enjoy the teens, while others say they are intimidated by their presence.

Tomorrow, the Ruidoso Village Council will consider a new law banning skateboards, in-line skates and bicycles from a two-by-three block area downtown. The public hearing begins at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

If approved, the ban would affect skating and biking on Sudderth Drive sidewalks from Grindstone Canyon Road to Country Club Drive.

Those caught violating the new law would be issued a warning for the first offense, a $50 fine for the second, and $100 for the third and subsequent offenses. Councilors are scheduled to vote on the ordinance after hearing public comments.

Below are a few of the diversified opinions about downtown skateboarding.

Merchant fed up with boarders

A new park bench in front of Garrett Trent's well-lit store has become a favorite hangout spot for teens and skateboarders, so Trent is asking Ruidoso officials to remove it.

The bench sits partially on his property at the 2620 Sudderth Drive business. Although it helps lure weary shoppers to his Trent's Gifts store front, it also appears to be a meeting hub for the would-be skaters.

"There's sometimes 20 people out front there, and only three or four of them have skateboards. The rest just hang," Trent complains.

The cedar bench, one of about 14 installed last fall as part of the MainStreet rehabilitation program, will be moved this week, says Assistant Village Manager Alan Briley.

"Because of all his complaints, I'm going to have it moved by the (MainStreet) contractor," Briley says. "There's no problem in changing its location, and there's a lot of other merchants all through there who want benches."

Trent attributes this season's business slump to the crowd of kids who gather in front of his store, he says for hours on end. They hang on the railing (also installed by the village) or sit on the bench while watching their friends jump off the rolling boards, flip them in the air and slap them against the pavement, Trent says.

A number of the kids smoke and cuss, he says, dissuading tourists from entering his gift shop.

"It doesn't take much to deter customers from coming in when there are hundreds of other shops to choose from," Trent says. "My right to run my business should supersede their desire to just hang, when they have a billion other places to hang."

Trent is also taking action to keep his store property clean to the "unruly hangers" at night. He has signed a release with the police department requesting they arrest any skaters for trespassing, even if he isn't around to see them or complain.

Skateboarder just seeks place to ride

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Skating downtown leaves a bit to be desired, says Wes Tembey, but for the moment the curbed walkways are about the only place that meets the skateboarder's needs.

Tembey, chairman of the Ruidoso Village Council's ad hoc committee on skateboarding, suggests skating the sidewalks is limiting and lacks certain challenges.

"There's better places to skate, but there's no place with lights," the high school student says. Yet most of the places that are well lit, easily accessed and offer more freedom of space — like the school grounds — forbid skateboarding.

If skating is banned downtown, Tembey says he would find another place to do it.

"I'm dedicated to skateboarding and will do it even if they ban it completely and say I can't, 'cause that's the way I feel about it (the sport)," Tembey explains.

Village officials have authorized the construction of a skateboard park behind fire station #2 on White Mountain Drive, with hopes it will appease some of the downtown merchants' complaints while giving the skating enthusiasts a safe place to skate.

Clearing of land for the 20,000 square-foot skateboard park has already begun, despite some of the neighboring residents' complaints that they don't want it there. Officials say that, weather permitting, the park should be completed in about two weeks time.

Others have voiced skepticism about whether the kids will actually utilize the park, or if it will resolve the merchants' primary complaint about kids loitering downtown.

"The kids want to be seen," Mayor Jerry Shaw reasons. "It was the same when I was a teen and wanted to drag main, not the back roads."

Tembey, who can be found skating downtown most nights, continually interrupts his conversation to say hello to strolling strangers. He makes a point to please see Boarder, page 2A

DWI problem on rise in this county

by DIANNE STALLINGS
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The state of New Mexico has launched a campaign to reduce drunk driving, but Lincoln County's statistics during a four-year period indicate drivers in this county may be headed in the opposite direction.

Local officials aren't sure why the numbers are climbing. It could be that police officers are cracking down on intoxicated drivers, said Ruidoso Magistrate Judge William Butts.

Or the heavy tourist travel around Ruidoso may be skewing the numbers, said Jim Davis of the University of New Mexico, where annual traffic safety bureau report books are assembled.

Ruidoso and Taos routinely are included in the list of higher accident areas despite their small populations, because they are tourist centers, Davis said.

"I don't think Ruidoso's number for alcohol accidents appears to be totally out of line," Davis said. "But looking at all crashes, with the road to the ski area and the racetrack, the number would be more in line with a town population of 8,000-9,000, instead of Ruidoso's estimated number of less than 5,000."

In 1994, Ruidoso experienced 296 crashes, up about 50 from 1993, he said. Two were fatal and 114 persons were injured, an increase from 81 injured in 1993. About 45 of the accidents, or 15%, involved alcohol, Davis said.

With one DWI conviction per every 83 people in 1993, Ruidoso ranked 23rd out of 41 selected cities listed by the state for their higher rates.

The county moves up

Lincoln County ranked 21st out of the state's 33 counties in total DWI arrests in 1990, but moved up to 17th place by 1993, according to the most recent statistics available from the state.

"I really don't know what the problem is," said Charlie White, who was hired as the county's first DWI coordinator in March.

"Everyone knows it's illegal to drive drunk. You can go to a kindergarten, high school or an old folks home and they know it's illegal."

"What we get a lot of times from the young people is that there's nothing to do (for recreation in the county), and all they want to do is booze and cruise," White relates.

White doesn't buy the argument; he grew up in the small community of Vaughn, just north of Lincoln County. It has a population of 633 today.

"If you want to see a place with nothing to do....," he said of his hometown. "We didn't cruise and booze, we always found something to do. Around here they have theaters and movie shows, lots of stuff."

"Booze was real easy to get (by minors) when I was working as police chief in Carrizozo. Trying to get the people passing the booze to the kids was like trying to pull teeth."

Under new tougher DWI laws, people under 21 who blow a .02 on a machine that registers the amount of alcohol in blood automatically lose their licenses for six months, even without a conviction. Those over 21 can lose their license for 90 days.

A major disappointment has been the number of repeat offenders in his court, Judge Butts said.

"I don't think the rate has changed on that (county-wide 25%-32% repeat offenders)," he said. "I think people either are ignorant of the new tougher laws that mandate jail time, or they think it always happens to somebody else."

"I think people either are ignorant of the new tougher laws that mandate jail time, or they think it always happens to somebody else."

JUDGE WILLIAM BUTTS
 RUIDOSO MAGISTRATE

Attacking the repeat offender problem was one of the main reasons Butts worked hard two years ago with local law enforcement, judicial officials and the county commission to win a state DWI grant.

The $70,000 grant allowed the county to hire a DWI coordinator (White) and a special DWI probation officer to ensure that convicted DWI offenders fulfill their sentences. Part of the sentences usually include attending a DWI school, receiving counseling, performing community service, paying a fine or probation fee and serving some time at the county detention center.

"We'd like to cut the recidivism (repeat offender problem) down into the single digits, but we have a long row to hoe on that one," White said. "A lot of repeat offenders fell through the cracks before. Since they were caught once and nothing happened, it has contributed to the recidivism."

The new system with White and the DWI probation officer is working well, Butts said.

"They're usually in court on big docket days (when a heavy caseload is up for action)," he said. "The program is excellent because they follow up with counseling and ensuring the full conditions of sentencing are fulfilled."

Tougher court

Offenders who violate the conditions of their probation with another DWI end up in jail.

"I immediately put them in jail under a no bond situation," Butts said. "They have the same constitutional rights as any driver, but under an attorney general's opinion, the court has the authority to hold those accused of probation violation with no bond, because they already have been convicted on the original charge. It could be 30-60 days before the court hearing."

His court, one of two magistrate courts in the county, handled 218 DWI cases in the fiscal year ending June 30, Butts said.

Regional effort afoot to preserve Fort Stanton as historical site

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A regional effort is being organized to convince state officials to preserve Fort Stanton as an interpretive historical site.

Failing that, the group hopes to ensure the new occupant of the fort preserves its historic integrity and embarks on a restoration project.

Mike Bilbo of Roswell, one of the organizers of the 1st New Mexico Volunteer Infantry Regiment, is working with Lincoln County residents Linda Sanchez and former state legislator John Underwood of Ruidoso, alongside supporters in El Paso.

Bilbo has started a letter campaign among the 200 members of his re-enactment garrison and 500-member battalion in the Southwest. The campaign voices opposition to converting the fort into a minimum security prison, or into any other use that would cut off public access or allow further deterioration.

"A lot of different people from a lot of different agencies are working on this," said Sanchez, an author, historian and teacher. She stressed the group is not trying to stop the 'request for proposals' process already underway, in which state officials are seeking proposals for the use of the fort from private companies.

Although many people from different disciplines are involved in the effort, the group is not in a position to submit an offer to the state on its own, she said.

"Ideally, we would like it to be a historic interpretive site," Sanchez said. "Barring that, we would like to see it become the southern extension office of the state cultural affairs office."

"Maybe a couple of offices could share the fort, such as the Park Service and the BLM (Bureau of Land Management). The problem is, they have very little money."

Northern New Mexico has a cultural affairs office, and the south needs one, too, Sanchez said.

"We're forgotten in the southern part of the state and we're tired of being stepchildren when we have such a rich cultural heritage," Sanchez said.

That heritage is especially interesting at Fort Stanton, where General "Blackjack" Pershing once served, and where the now famous all-black Buffalo Soldiers were stationed.

"We're forgotten in the southern part of the state and we're tired of being stepchildren when we have such a rich cultural heritage."

LINDA SANCHEZ
LINCOLN COUNTY RESIDENT

"And we're lucky it's all pretty much intact and doesn't have to be restored like Fort Davis," Sanchez said of the fort in Jeff Davis County, Texas. "Ultimately, it would cost more to do that than to preserve it now."

The former state hospital at Fort Stanton was closed in March at Governor Gary Johnson's order. The governor cited the high expense connected to its operation. It had employed about 200 people, and the Lincoln County Commission is pushing for another labor-intensive use.

"More than jobs are at stake," Sanchez said — but jobs could be part of the picture. For example, the fort could be used to train apprentices in restoration techniques while working on fort buildings.

"Those skills are in demand all over the country," Sanchez said.

Whatever company or department responds to the state RFP with the best offer, Sanchez said the state should require that the historic integrity of the fort be maintained. Fort Stanton is listed on the National Register of Historic Landmarks.

The intent of the federal law protecting such landmarks is to keep existing buildings intact or restored faithfully, Sanchez said.

"If they add new buildings on the 1,200 acres, they must be in keeping with historic integrity," she said. "Someone must be responsible for monitoring."

The widespread state and national interest in the fort has caught the attention of state General Services Secretary Steven Belfort, Sanchez observed. "I think he finally understands that a lot of people are watching him," she said.

History can be lucrative. The restored Fort Davis National Historic Site in a sparsely-populated section of southwestern Texas (about 30 miles north of Alpine) draws 60,000-70,000 visitors annually, according to a spokesman at the fort.

The State of New Mexico already has set aside $750,000 for restoration at Fort Stanton. That's a good start, Sanchez said.

Sanchez and Bilbo said they fear proposed prison-related uses might result in damage to buildings.

Bilbo's group will set up an example of 19th century Army camp life in the settlement of Lincoln Aug. 5-6. The living exhibit and re-enactment will be staged at the Lincoln Heritage Trust Museum area during the annual Billy the Kid Pageant.

"Saving Fort Stanton as a public interpretive site would bring a substantially new and large visiting clientele into Lincoln County," Bilbo wrote in a letter to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, to re-enactment members and to other organizations he contacted.

"Thousands of people each year visit other sites of the Civil War and Indian wars," he wrote. "Restored forts are especially treasured and hard to find."

"The (Sierra Blanca Regional) airport is incredibly situated to support this potential visitor population. They would discover Ruidoso and Lincoln and the other unique features of the county."

"This is the critical moment to go for this tremendous resource. To turn the fort into a public interpretive site is an absolute golden opportunity for a significant increase in regional visitation and nationwide marketing of this and other attractions in and around Ruidoso."

To stage events at a fort today, Bilbo's unit has to go out of state to Colorado, Texas, California, Nebraska, Kansas and South Carolina, he said.

Bilbo contended the historical community hasn't been consulted or given an opportunity to prepare a case for historical preservation and interpretation of the site. However, he wrote that it's not too late to grab the attention of state officials.

For more information, contact Sanchez at P.O. Box 91, Lincoln, N.M. 88338 (505-653-4025 at work and 653-4821 at home); John Underwood, 1096 Mechem, Ruidoso, N.M. 88345 (258-9090); or Ken Donaldson, 4936 Grapeland, El Paso, Texas (915-585-7846 at home and 915-5668-8329 at work).

Donaldson is working with another group involved in historic re-enactments, Sanchez said. He has assured Bilbo that the members will volunteer their time to come up from El Paso and do preservation work at the fort.

"A lot of people care about the fort, not just (the public perception of) a bunch of little old ladies in Lincoln who read history books," she said.

Ruidoso Police Detective Wolfgang Born points out graffiti at teenagers' self-made skateboard arena on private Jack Little Drive property. Some of the same graffiti symbols have appeared in the Midtown area during the past few weeks.

Merchant—Boarder

But in order for police to make the arrests, Trent must display visible "no trespassing" signs. The signs are directed toward the skaters, he says, but he was told by police he couldn't specify a certain group because it would be discriminatory.

"I didn't want to put them up, but I'm just tired of picking trash up off my property and having damage done," Trent says. "I hope they don't have to arrest anyone, but I just don't want them on my property."

He plans to display the signs after store hours so they won't create a negative image for potential customers.

It is the teens' alleged activities during the evening hours that upset Trent the most. He says he has appeared there at night a couple of times and smelled marijuana burning and found empty beer bottles strewn on the ground.

"If this is allowed to continue, eventually one of them is going to get hurt and my insurance company would be liable," he says. "I'm sure they wouldn't be happy knowing all that is going on."

In the morning he says he finds discarded cigarette butts and trash, damaged furniture, breaks in the railing and screws gone from his porch roof.

"It's minor stuff, but aggravating," he says. "The skateboarders have attracted an unruly crowd that doesn't want to do anything but hang downtown and be seen by their friends."

The Ruidoso Police Department has received dozens of complaint calls regarding skateboarders, but only a few that are criminal complaints.

Police say ordinances exist that prohibit obstruction of sidewalks, skateboarding on the street, polluting, vandalism, harassment, etc., and they'll seek to prosecute people for those violations.

of doing this, he says, to let people know that they shouldn't feel threatened by skateboarders or teens in general.

Tembey says he looks forward to skating in the new park, although there is pleasure in being downtown where friends tarry and pass along. He also concedes that the skating conflict is at a boiling point and will likely go against his favor.

"It's too bad that a couple of us are ruining it for the rest of us," Tembey says.

His words have been echoed by numerous residents, tourists and merchants, as well as police.

"It's not that skateboarding is bad, but some of the kids doing the skating," says police Detective Wolfgang Born.

Police need alleged victims to file complaints and identify suspects, because unless police witness misdemeanor crimes themselves or have witnesses, they cannot make arrests.

Born says a downtown skateboard ban may help alleviate merchants' concerns, but adds that the majority of kids causing problems aren't necessarily the die-hard skaters.

Some of the problems appearing downtown, like the surge in graffiti tagging, may continue whether or not there is a skateboard park.

At an old tennis court on Jack Little Drive where some skaters have installed skateboard ramps and jumps, graffiti is rampant.

Painted on the courts and ramps are symbols of anarchy and yin and yang; a picture of a skull with three 6's above its head; a medieval type of machete; and graffiti tags.

Among the tags are CB, CBP, CD and Crazy. The graffiti markers have been sprayed at least 13 points along the downtown area during the past couple of weeks. Tossed to the side of the old courts is trash and an empty can of blue spray paint — something that is illegal for local merchants to sell to youths.

"Will they allow their new park to get ruined like this?" Born asks.

Bucked bullrider bears no grudge, plans return

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Christopher Smith bears no grudge against Cricket the bull, even though Smith ended up in the hospital for three days with a lacerated spleen.

"I've ridden him several times before and made money on him. He just made a good trip and I made a bad trip," the 20-year-old Smith said philosophically Sunday.

Smith, who lives in Nogal with his father, artist Wes Smith, rode Cricket in the Sunday evening rodeo at Capitan July 4th.

"He spun me around and turned back on me," Smith said. "We met in the air. He didn't have any horns, it was just the pressure from his body."

The bull weighed about 1,350 pounds.

Smith was loaded into the ambulance about 9:30 p.m., but initially refused treatment. About 20 minutes later, he wasn't feeling well and climbed back into the ambulance for a fast trip to the Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso.

Doctors didn't have time to do a X-ray scan and he was rushed into exploratory surgery, which showed internal bleeding.

"They cut me open and put sponges in there to absorb the blood," Smith said. The sponges don't have to be taken out. They eventually dissolve, he said. The experience hasn't discouraged Smith, who's been riding about four years in rodeos.

"I should be able to compete again in two months," he said. The next big rodeo event in this area is Sept. 7-8 in El Paso.

Smith does plan one major change, however. Next time out of the chute, he'll be wearing a protective vest.

"I always thought the vests were uncomfortable before and restricted me, but I'll have one on from now on," Smith said. "I don't think I would have been in the hospital if I had been wearing one last Tuesday."

Downs municipal courts seldom handle aggravated DWI first offenses, because they carry a mandatory 48 hours in jail," he said. "So the cases are filed in state (magistrate) court and that has increased our burden (since January 1994) immensely."

Another impact is the new law that prohibits good time (time off for good behavior) for first and second offenses, Butts said.

"Our county detention center's maximum load is 38 inmates," Butts said. "The judges would love to give more severe sentences, but where would we put them?"

Tourists and alcohol
"We have way too many DWIs for our small population," White said. "Add alcohol to mountain roads, and the combination can be lethal."

"One of the problems is our tourists," he said. "Those rascals can make life miserable for people in my position."

"We want them to have a good time in the mountains. We're not saying they shouldn't drink, but they shouldn't be driving when legally impaired."

"Use some common sense. A designated driver doesn't cost a nickel."

DWI coordinator plans courtesy ride program for Lincoln County

A courtesy ride program that delivers driver and car home at the same time is being developed in Lincoln County.

Many intoxicated drivers insist on sliding behind the wheel instead of going home with someone else, because they don't want to leave their vehicles, said Charlie White, county DWI prevention coordinator.

"They go to a bar and drink themselves silly and have no other way to go home," he said. "That's one of the programs I'm trying to get grant money for now; a safe ride program for driver and car, and enough money to get the advertising out that there will be one."

An educational campaign also is needed to show people that the real shame lies not in admitting you are intoxicated, but in driving in that condition, he said.

Seeing is believing for some people, White said. Later this summer, he hopes to stage a drinking impairment demonstration in front of an audience of all ages.

"We'll have a breath machine there (to measure the blood alcohol level)," he said. "And we'll work with volunteer drinkers."

County DWI statistics demonstrate problems

Statistics compiled by the state Traffic Safety Bureau for Lincoln County show that:

— in 1990, one person in every 214 in the county was involved in alcohol-related traffic crashes. That increased to one in 205 in 1991, one in 152 the next year and one in 92 for 1993.

— persons under the age of 18 accounted for 20% of those involved in alcohol-related accidents in 1993. That doesn't necessarily mean they were at the wheel.

— in 1992, minors represented 54% of the 283 DWI arrests. In 1993, that figure decreased to 46% of the 261 arrests, then dropped to 43% of the 329 arrests last year.

— the county's repeat offender rate runs between 25% and 32%.

— the economic impact in the county of compensating for the loss of property, paying for prosecution and imprisonment of DWI offenders hit $1,111 per capita in 1993.

— 15 people died from 1990-93 in alcohol-related traffic accidents and 129 people were injured.

Rue convicted of threatening official

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Despite arguing he was only exercising his freedom of speech, Ruidoso construction contractor Barney Rue was found guilty June 29 of threatening a village official.

Rue was charged with assault and disorderly conduct following a heated verbal dispute Jan. 25 with Village Planning Administrator Cleatus Richards.

Municipal Judge Mike Line concluded Rue was guilty of both charges after listening to nearly two hours of testimony. Line imposed a $329 fine as punishment for three convictions.

Three witnesses testified Rue told Richards, "You're a dead man in Ruidoso," and even Rue acknowledged he might have said it. But the context of his words and the manner in which he spoke them was disputed.

Rue, who had employed the legal defense of attorney Don Dutton, immediately filed an appeal of Line's ruling. The case will go to district court.

"The expression of anger is protected by the constitution," Dutton said. "In the context of Mr. Rue's comments, he wasn't saying 'You're physically dead,' but 'economically dead.'...If he had planned to do harm, he would not have left the room."

Dutton said the village law against assault refers to the immediate, sudden or imminent threat of receiving battery, and Richards did not testify that Rue ever tried to touch him or that Rue had to be forcibly removed from the room.

Village attorney John Underwood argued Rue assaulted Richards by uttering "fighting words" at him, and that Rue made a disturbance in city hall with his disorderly conduct.

"Saying 'You're a dead man in Ruidoso' would cause the normal person to believe something bad was fixin' to happen," Underwood concluded.

Richards enforces planning and zoning ordinances, and his department had frustrated Rue by denying him a permit to build a residential driveway that exceeded the 12% slope grade ordinance.

Rue complained that 75% of the buildable lots in Ruidoso exceeded the grade requirement, and enforcement of it would squelch the local building industry.

Rue is the owner of Barney Rue Dirt Contractor, Excavating & Paving, and has been in business for 36 years in Ruidoso. He complained during the court hearing that Richards had effectively shut down a part of his business by enforcing ordinances against the clearing of lots without a site development plan.

"I've been after him to be more lenient," Rue said. "You do not get anywhere with him; he continues to deny (requests)."

The ordinance has since been changed.

During the 10-minute encounter in Richards' city hall office, Rue allegedly yelled, "You're a dead man. You're a dead man in Ruidoso. I'm going to get your job. You'll kill the business for the contractors in Ruidoso."

Richards and Roseanna Painter, the planning department secretary, both testified they heard Rue utter these threats in a loud, angry voice while leaning forward on Richards' desk.

Painter said she then intervened, telling Rue three times not to get "too upset" and saying she would show him how to try to change the ordinance.

Johnnie Romero, a Ruidoso Police Department officer who happened to be in Richards' office at the time, also testified she heard Rue exclaim, "You're a dead man. You're a dead man in Ruidoso."

But Rue testified he had spoken in his usual, expressive way of his concern for the local building industry. He recalled saying, "If you enforce this stupid ordinance, it's going to kill construction here. We've finally got construction going here again, and you're going to kill it. We're all going to sit here and die in Ruidoso."

Rue said he then added that Richards would not be needed at his job because, with such an ordinance, there would be no construction in town.

Happy Birthday to Gerald and Geraldine Tully

The Dreamer

DAN STORM
COLUMNIST

Gerald Tully and his twin sister were born July 12, 1903 in Fort Stanton to James V. Tully Sr. and the former Ora Gilmore. For their birthday, I thought I'd talk a little bit about this long-time Lincoln County family.

Others born to this union were Fred, Susan, James Jr., and Kivas.

When they were quite young, Gerald and Geraldine were brought to the Hat-T Ranch in Glencoe where Gerald still lives. Geraldine makes her home in Alamogordo.

The twins grew up here on the ranch and later in life helped their mother and father run the post office and general store in the building which still stands beside the Tully home. In those days the highway was south side of the river.

In 1923 the highway was moved to the north side, and the Glencoe Post Office and General Store was a landmark for many years.

Gerald had attended gradeschool at the Roswell Ranch School, and later graduated from Tularosa High School where he was a star athlete. Later he studied at New Mexico State University.

Rodeo Career

A life-long rancher, Gerald in his youth began entering rodeos in the surrounding area, and rose to the very top in roping. The annual Gerald Rully Roping, held each summer at the Tully Ranch, was established in his honor. Gerald was a contestant in this event up through his 90th birthday.

Beside his life as a rodeo contestant, Gerald had experience in a wide variety of activities. He was a schoolteacher for a while in San Patricio. He worked in the mines in Mogollon Mountains, and on the "King's Highway" between Silver City and Truth or Consequences.

He was an athlete, playing baseball, basketball and bowling; and always remained in top physical condition.

Outstanding Horseman

All his life Gerald had a great fondness for horses, who responded to his good treatment by faithful service in his life on the ranch and in the rodeos.

Marriage to Wynema

Gerald's star of good fortune shone brightly when on Nov. 9, 1940 he was united in marriage to the former Wynema Hutchinson in Saint Anne's Chapel, Glencoe. The Rev. Ted Howden was in charge of the services; and our mother played the organ.

They raised four children: Gerald "Gerry" Mackey Tully; Tom Barrow; Pamela Bernard; and Tricia Tully-Mitchell. They have seven grandchildren.

Remembering Early Days

On the approach of Gerald's birthday, I remember the early days when we first came here, and my brothers and I walked the two miles on the dirt road down to the Tully Store and Post Office to fetch the mail and buy groceries. We always had a friendly welcome from Mr. James V. Tully Sr., Gerald, Geraldine, and James V. Tully Jr.

The first church services we attended were in the home of the Tullys, before there was a church building.

Gerald is an inspiration to all of us for remaining ever young through his years.

He is a true Westerner, a Christian gentleman, and a good friend and neighbor.

We wish Gerald and Geraldine many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

School board makes election decision

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Ruidoso School District residents' taxes could increase if the Ruidoso School Board decides to go ahead with an election to support the local branch of Eastern New Mexico University.

The election would ask for a one mill property tax increase. School district residents already pay one mill toward ENMU, since a Feb. 1991 election approving it.

If the school board approves the election at its meeting tomorrow, residents will vote on Tuesday, Sept. 26 whether to double their tax support of ENMU's Ruidoso off-campus instructional center.

A new state law requires more funding from school district residents versus the state's general fund, ENMU officials said.

"The new law says that everybody (in various college taxing districts) now has to go to two mills of property tax or higher, and that will make a regular consistency between all of the two-year institutions," ENMU-Ruidoso director Jim Miller, said.

Should voters decide on the one mill additional levy, a person with a $60,000 home with a tax valuation of $20,000 would pay $40 a year towards ENMU-Ruidoso operations, instead of the current $20.

Other school board business includes:

— program assessment and goal setting for Gavilan Canyon School;

— end-of-year report about the Graduation, Reality and Dual Role Skills (GRADS) program at Ruidoso High School;

— an update on negotiations with Aramark Corp. to take over district cafeteria operations; — and a report on upcoming school board goals.

The school board meeting is at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, July 11, at the district administration office, 200 Horton Circle.

Ruidoso councilors close in on final budget

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Although the Village of Ruidoso Downs remains opposed to entering into a contract for animal shelter services with the Lincoln County Humane Society, the governments of Ruidoso, Capitan and Lincoln County have said they will.

The Ruidoso Village Council will review and discuss a 1995-96 contract drawn by Jim Riggins, the shelter director, at its 6:30 p.m. meeting tomorrow at city hall. The contract will allow for approximately $44,500 in shelter services.

Ruidoso may cover the estimated $4,000 cost for Ruidoso Downs animals. About 7% of the shelter animals come from the Downs, Riggins estimates. The money has been budgeted because the shelter lies in Ruidoso and turning animals back onto the village streets may create a bigger problem, Ruidoso councilors concluded.

The shelter's main outside source of income was lost this spring when its thrift shop closed.

Councilors are scheduled to finalize the village's 1995-96 budget of $19.5 million, which includes the shelter's request, at Tuesday's meeting.

Until this year, Ruidoso was the only government entity to give the shelter money.

Meetings held this spring proved successful with Capitan trustees, who have budgeted $4,441 for the 7.17% of animals arriving from there. Lincoln County Commissioners budgeted $6,194 for their 20% of animals impounded at the shelter. The county funding will cover six months and that contract will be reviewed and possibly renewed at the mid-year point.

Only Ruidoso Downs would enter into a contract and offer funding.

Ruidoso Downs operates a small holding facility for stray animals that is manned by one officer working five days a week, Riggins said.

"It's common knowledge that if you bring them an animal (without tags) it is killed in three days, but if you bring it to us, we put it up for adoption," Riggins said.

Commissioners have long agenda

A representative will be selected Tuesday by the Lincoln County Commission to serve on a committee reviewing Fort Stanton lease proposals.

Commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

The committee will be composed mostly of state officials, and it will decide which lease proposal best meets the criteria specified.

The committee appointment is part of a lengthy county commissioner agenda of 30 items that will include:

- scheduling an inspection and open houses at the new senior center in Corona;
- a road department report;
- opening of bids for ambulances, road base course and cattle guards;
- discussion of the closure of the Capitan landfill;
- and establishing a policy for legal fees of elected officials.

Sheriff James McSwane last month hired an attorney to represent him in a funding dispute with the commission, instead of using the county attorney who already is on the county payroll.

Some commissioners say the private attorney's fee should come out of McSwane's own pocket. Others say it can be taken from his budget as long as it doesn't come from the county's general fund.

New massage therapist now at Aesthetics Salon.

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

When Beth Miller was a child, she used to rub the members of her families' backs.

"They kept telling me that I should do massage for a living," Miller recalled.

The years have passed, but after having five children of her own, Miller decided to pursue a career in massage therapy. She now operates her business from Aesthetics, a hair, skin and nail salon in Ruidoso.

Miller attended the New Mexico School of Therapeutic Arts in Las Cruces in 1993-94 and after receiving her license, she returned to her hometown to practice.

"It's so important in today's modern world to have some form of relaxation," she said. "We live in a culture where touching is something that doesn't happen much, and as a massage therapist I try to impart some peace to my clients."

Swedish massage with an emphasis on relaxation is her specialty, she said, although she also does other forms of massage such as deep muscle work.

Miller charges $45 an hour for her massages.

"I generally run overtime by five or 10 minutes," she said. "I believe in giving a baker's dozen."

Many of the clients who are having other services performed at Aesthetics like just getting a short massage, Miller said.

"It can be as short as five minutes if they just want some work on their neck before they get a hairstyle," she said. "If they want 15 or 20 minutes for work on their shoulders, I can do that, too."

Because many people can't get away from their jobs, Miller will travel to the workplace to give massages alongside accepting appointments at Aesthetics.

Appointments with Miller may be scheduled by calling Aesthetics at 257-4039.

BB Gorman Card Company opens Ruidoso retail store

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

One-of-a-kind art graces the walls of one of Ruidoso's newest businesses, and most of it only costs $2.95.

BB Gorman Card Company recently opened at 925 Sudderth Drive. The company specializes in an exclusive line of hand-painted greeting cards.

The B's in BB Gorman stand for Brett and Breck, the husband and wife team that conceives, designs and creates the greeting cards that fill the new store.

"Breck is the one that actually comes up with design ideas for the cards," Brett said. "I do the silkscreening of the design and then she does the additional handpainting."

This is the Gormans' first retail venture, but they have been wholesaling their cards for several years.

"We started a wholesale card business in Albuquerque in 1990," Brett said. "We moved to Dallas in 1992 because our son was born with kidney disease and needed a transplant."

The Gormans' son, Brady, received a new kidney and the family moved to Houston, Texas to recuperate.

"Brady is doing fine now," Brett said. "We wanted to move to Ruidoso for several years and finally decided to just do it."

Wholesale of the greeting cards still makes up 99% of the company's sales, he said.

"This is the first storefront operation we've ever had," Brett said.

BB Gorman Card Company also features prints and lithographs by Doheman and Downe Burns, Breck's father and brother; handpainted shirts and aprons by her mother Sheri Burns; and sterling silver and pewter jewelry from Enchantment Jewelers in Albuquerque. "The Burns are a very artistic family," Brett said. "I'm just the labor."

The Gormans' card creations are featured at various attractions throughout the country, including the Gene Autrey museum in Los Angeles, Calif., the Charley Pride and Glenn Campbell museums in Missouri, and the Will Rogers Memorial Museum in Oklahoma.

BB Gorman Card Company will also custom design and produce cards for special occasions such as weddings and holidays, Brett said.

"We do considerable custom work for some of the big resorts in the country," he said.

BB Gorman Card Company is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and accepts most major credit cards. The phone number is 257-4535.

Miller joins New Mexico Amigos on goodwill tour

Every year, 260 of New Mexico's most prominent citizens charter a jet and make a Goodwill Flight to other states and countries. This year, Ruidoso's Susan Miller was selected as a member of the New Mexico Amigos, and made her first Goodwill Flight. Susan is the sole member from Lincoln County.

The Amigos have been making Goodwill Flights since 1962, when a group of community leaders first organized their own tour to promote New Mexico's golden anniversary as a state. That first tour was so successful, the governor appointed the Amigos as goodwill ambassadors for New Mexico.

Today the organization includes business presidents, former New Mexico governors, the state speaker of the House, university presidents, and other civic business, industrial, and professional leaders.

Susan Miller

"I consider it an honor to have been asked to join this group," Miller said.

Miller has lived in Ruidoso/Alto for 33 years. She began her career as an elementary school teacher, and in 1981, she became an independent real estate professional. As an agent for Century 21 Aspen Real Estate, Miller has achieved Top Producer of the year and Lister of the Year since 1987. Last year Century 21 International ranked her as #68 out of 70,000 agents in the nation.

As a new Amigo, Miller is part of the team that represents New Mexico all over this continent. This year the Amigos have just returned from Montana, Alaska, and Canada, where they stopped in Great Falls, Juneau, Anchorage, Calgary and Vancouver.

"It was an exhausting, wonderful trip," Miller said. "Now I need a vacation to recover."

This fall the Amigos will hold their annual meeting in Ruidoso.

Ruidoso teenage girls learn about State Corporation Commission

Two young women from Ruidoso, Kara Castanon and Julie Phillips, were selected to take part in a mock State Corporation Commission hearing recently.

The young women were briefed by State Corporation Commissioner Gloria Tristani and the SCC legal staff, who prepared them to conduct the mock SCC hearing. This exercise provided a "hands on" experience of how the State Corporation Commission functions. The SCC regulates various businesses.

"It was very gratifying for me as an elected official to see so many young women interested in the political and governmental process," Tristani said. "Good citizenship begins with an understanding of the system in which we live, and a willingness to participate."

The young women were part of what is called the New Mexico Girls' State Corporation Commission. The event is sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary and is held each year for high school juniors from all over New Mexico. This year, 288 young women came together to learn about all levels of government.

Tristani was also the keynote speaker for the opening night assembly of the 48th session of the Girls' State Corporation Commission, at New Mexico Highlands University.

Sisneros joins Military Institute

Justin Sisneros of Tinnie will be the fourth generation of the Sisneros family to attend the New Mexico Military Institute.

The New Mexico Military Institute has completed its awarding of the New Mexico Legislator Scholarship. Justin Sisneros of Tinnie, was sponsored by New Mexico State Representative Dub Williams, House District 56.

Justin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sisneros of Tinnie. Justin has been a student at Hondo Valley. This August, Justin will attend New Mexico Military Institute for High School. The scholarship is worth $2,437 a year, which will pay tuition, fees, room and board renewable for up to four years.

Justin's great-grandfather, grandfather and father all are graduates of NMMI.

Fine is 1st runner-up Miss Teen New Mexico

Janice Kae Fine, 18-year-old daughter of David and Kay Krezer of Ruidoso, was recently chosen first runner-up in the 1995 Miss Teenage New Mexico Pageant.

Fine was also named first runner-up in the talent division. She was selected Miss Congeniality by the other contestants.

She is currently a sophomore studying hotel-restaurant management.

She was awarded a four-year tuition scholarship to Johnson and Wales University in Providence, R.I. She attended Johnson and Wales this past fall, where she served on the Collegiate Ambassador Team, was active in student government and was honored to become a new member in the Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority.

She was also selected to the National Dean's List.

Janice Kae Fine

Fine has returned from college for the summer in Ruidoso. She works at the Cattle Baron Restaurant as a hostess. She has also been invited to serve as a formal staff member for the Miss Teen Program. Her first pageant was Miss Teen West Texas in late May.

Moore works on USS Independence as aviation boatswain's mate

Navy Airman Apprentice Dale G. Moore, the 21-year-old son of Roger Moore of Ruidoso, is currently working on the flight deck aboard the USS Independence (CV 62), the Navy's only forward deployed aircraft carrier, stationed in Yokosuka, Japan.

Moore, a 1991 graduate of Ruidoso High School, is an aviation boatswain's mate and plays a major role in launching and recovering aircraft.

The 36-year-old Independence is the centerpiece for the Navy's Seventh Fleet, carrying 5,000 crewmen.

After having recently completed a four-month repair period, during which the ship received many equipment upgrades, the Independence returned to the waters off the coast of Japan to begin training for a deployment to the Arabian Gulf in support of Operation Southern Watch later this year.

Moore said he has a lot of goals he'd like to accomplish on the cruise.

"I want to complete as many Navy qualifications as possible," Moore explained.

During the at-sea training, Moore and the rest of the flight deck crew braved 60-knot winds and temperatures that dropped below 20 degrees to keep the carrier's aircraft safely flying.

Even though being on the ship is very demanding, "I am able to visit different places around the world," Moore said.

Real Six Time qualifies for Rainbow Futurity

Carlos Marquez's Real Six Time, recent winner of the Grade I Ruidoso Futurity, took the next step on his way to winning the second jewel of the Quarter Horse Triple Crown by qualifying to the Grade I $541,200 Rainbow Futurity, Thursday at Ruidoso Downs.

The Sam Sandoval-trained gelding won the first of 15 trial divisions by a half-length and checked in with the second fastest time of 19.80 for the 400-yard distance. The son of Six Fortunes broke sharply from the one post and was sixth in the early stages of the race. Under constant urging by jockey Tome Green, Real Six Time quickly hit full stride to overtake the leaders and assumed complete control midway down the racing strip to prevail in strong fashion.

"He broke a bit tardy, but about 100 yards down he was in front. I was getting after him a bit just in case because being in the first trial we didn't have any times to go by," said Green, who also piloted the gelding to victory in the May 28 Ruidoso Futurity.

Real Six Time will make his next start in the July 23 final.

Run Em Up, winner of the Grade I West Texas-Sun Country Futurity at Sunland Park, dominated his foes in the final division by two lengths and qualified with the third fastest time of 19.82. The son of Runaway Winner failed to qualify for the Ruidoso Futurity after stumbling at the start and losing jockey Ken Hart out of the gate in the trials.

Hart, who has ridden the Tim

Guidry-trainee in all four of his lifetime starts said, "He left really good, but he started weaving in and out because of the shadows on the track."

Trainers James McArthur and Jack Brooks were the only conditioners with multiple qualifiers. McArthur, a two-time winner of the All American Futurity, won three trials and qualified all three to the final. The veteran trainer captured the third trial with the fastest qualifier Feet Down First, the 11th with Winners Dash and the 14th with Temerity Wrangler.

Brooks, whose lone Rainbow win came in 1988 with Merganser, trains fifth-fastest qualifier Pretty Jet High and Heavenly Note, the ninth fastest.

Rainbow Futurity qualifiers and their times are: Feet Down First (19.78), Real Six Time (19.80); Run Em Up (19.82); Trick Effects (19.90); Pretty Jet High (19.915); Winners Dash (19.915); Dash Back To Me (19.925); Temerity Wrangler (19.960); Heavenly Note (19.965); and Kelleys Merger (19.965).

Forsythe's Tune rallied to win the Henriette Wyeth Stakes.

Owners sing praises of Forsythe's Tune

After Sunday's Henriette Wyeth Handicap at Ruidoso Downs, Laura and Rick Navarette of Albuquerque, will have trouble getting Forsythe's Tune out of their head. Forsythe's Tune, a mare they claimed for $10,000 in February, repaid them with their first stakes win when she ran down the favored Thirty One Special by a head in the $10,000-added Wyeth Handicap. Leisure Kite was another length back in third in the field of seven fillies and mares.

It took every inch of the even mile for Forsythe's Tune to catch Thirty One Special, who led for nearly the entire race. Jockey Rick Houghton, who piloted the second favorite, began to ask Forsythe's Tune at the top of the stretch.

"In the turn for home I thought she would gallop past them," Houghton said. "But then in mid-stretch she acted plum exhausted. But then somehow, she managed to get on by her."

Forsythe's Tune covered the eight furlongs in 1:39 4/5, claiming her seventh career win and boosting her earnings to $56,824. The stakes victory was a first for owners Laura and Rick Navarette, who own and operate a general contracting firm in Albuquerque.

"I'm really excited for Rick," Laura said. "He's wanted a stakes blanket for a long time, and now he has finally got one." The Navarettes have owned horses for the last several years.

Winners Dash nosed out Dash Back To Me in the 11th Rainbow Futurity Trials race. Both horses qualified for the Rainbow Futurity Finals to be run July 23. Feet Down First was the fastest of 10 qualifiers on Thursday at Ruidoso Downs.

Challenger Six runs away with $10,000 Master Salls Handicap

Challenger Six pulled off a mild surprise Saturday at Ruidoso Downs when he went to the lead and never was threatened in the $10,000 Guaranteed Master Salls Handicap.

With Jerry Rodriguez in the irons, Challenger Six sped over the 870 furlongs in 45:27, finishing 1 1/2 lengths in front of Sign of True Hope on a fast track. The favored Streakin Victory was a nose behind in third place in the field of six quarter horses and two thoroughbreds.

Challenger Six ran as an entry with sixth-place finisher Stamen. Both quarter horses are owned by Rocking R Farms and trained by Fred Danley.

"Challenger Six ran a really strong race," Danley said. "He's come on strong since we started running him at the 870 distance."

Danley and owner Frank Richardson both added they were surprised that entry-mate Stamen didn't perform better.

"I guess I was expecting Stamen to run the same kind of race. But he's been kind of cheating on us, and it looked like he didn't want to go between horses," added Danley. Owner Richardson, who spends his summers in Ruidoso but makes his permanent home in Houston, said when he bought the two runners as a package in February of 1994 he believed Stamen would be the preeminent horse. Both horses are 6-year-olds. To date Challenger Six has earned $86,276, compared to Stamen's $68,897.

Jerry Rodriguez broke the winner out of the number seven post in the starting gate.

"When I got an easy lead I tried to hold him back a bit, and then we got to the lane and I let him roll and he responded good," said the jockey.

"I think the reason he didn't run better in his last race was that he'd just gotten back from running at Remington Park in Oklahoma, and he was tired."

Sign of True Hope, under Gilbert Villescaz, paid $7.40 and $3.00.

"I was really hoping I could win this race. Twenty years ago I rode Master Salls, the horse the race is named for," said the veteran rider.

NOTES: Casey Lambert, still in pain from a dislocated shoulder, took off his mounts following the first race. Jockey Christopher Zamora won three races Saturday.

Gamble pays off, bride-to-be says 'yes'

Renee Sherwood thought she was just coming out for another day at the races until, between Saturday's first and second races, long-time beau, Craig Renfro, suggested she look up at the Ruidoso Down's electronic message board. There, in flamboyant type, blinked what Craig really had on his mind:

"Renee will you marry me. I love you, Craig," it read, sporting a message for all to see, exactly four years to the day when the couple first began their courtship.

Craig thought the time a fitting one, and the racetrack

"DAK" board an unusual way to pop the question. Yet, by the third race, Craig didn't have an answer, despite encouragement from spectators, in neighboring seats.

What was Renee's reluctance? "I'm still in shock," she said, but when asked directly, her response was unqualified: "After four years with this guy, the answer is definitely, yes."

More excitement awaited the happy couple, when general manager Scott Wells ushered them to the Winner's Circle to receive the crowd's rousing approval and good blessing.

Craig and Renee met in Lubbock, Texas, where he worked in a health club and Renee in a neighboring office. Craig has a home in Lubbock, but the couple doesn't yet know the date for their wedding. Renee said, it's still too soon since seeing her marriage proposal in lights to think about any other prenuptial arrangements.

The couple regularly visits Ruidoso Downs - it's one of their favorite quick getaway vacations. On this anniversary visit, it ended up being an even more landmark occasion.

These Outlaws have something to prove — on and off the ballfield

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer
It's a weekday evening and local men's softball teams make their way to the diamonds at Eagle Creek Sports Complex. One of the teams arrives in a van. They're already dressed in some of the best-looking uniforms in the league — black baseball pants with white shirts, matching hats and stirrups. The T-shirts have a stylized McDonald's logo on the front, and "Outlaws" scripted on the back.

Quietly, the Outlaws team gets out of the van, heads to the field and warms up for the upcoming game. Except for the armed security officer at the entrance of the dugout, you would never know the Outlaws team on the field is a group of inmates from Camp Sierra Blanca Adult Rehabilitation Center — a minimum security facility near Fort Stanton.

The Outlaws have more on the line than just the game. Whether it's practice, a tournament game or league contest, they're tested both physically and mentally every time they step on the field. Will they work as a team? How will they handle adversity? Can they outplay their opponents? Can they meet the behavior requirements to stay on the team? How will they interact with other teams?

There's no doubt they can play. The Outlaws are in sixth place of 15 teams in the Village of Ruidoso Parks and Recreation League for men. They've finished third in both local tournaments — the Sierra Blanca Opener and the Cool Pines Classic. At the Sierra Blanca Opener, umpires chose the Outlaws for the sportsmanship award in Class E competition. And they've qualified for the United States Slo-Pitch Association New Mexico State Tournament for men's Class E teams.

Some might question, however, if they should be allowed to compete at all. Members on the team have been convicted of a variety of crimes, including trafficking controlled substances, aggravated burglary, embezzlement and armed robbery.

All of them started in maximum or medium security facilities, and worked their way to Camp Sierra Blanca because of good behavior. They are serving the final months or years of their sentences at Sierra Blanca, a work-release facility designed to rehabilitate inmates for re-entry into society. The players and prison officials agree that the softball team is just one more step in the players' rehabilitative process.

Captain Dee Standridge has accompanied the team to most of its games. Standridge was instrumental in assisting the inmates' ability to field a team. At times, he's their only fan at games.

"The camp has, over a period of years, always supported efforts of this type, inmate participation in the community," Standridge says. This year, Standridge says, a group of inmates had the "esprit de corps" to do what it takes to put together a good team. They've raised the money to pay for their league and tournament entry fees and umpire fees. They practice three times a week. And, most important, they meet the strict conduct codes to stay on the team.

"When you come into a penitentiary environment, whether it's a maximum high security, 24-hour lockdown or the lowest level, a minimum, you came in by yourself. It is an individual thing. Short of the gang cliques, there is no unity amongst the prisoners," Standridge says. "This is the only opportunity they really, really have to be a part of something that serves a good purpose."

For the players, being on the team is a privilege they don't want to lose. Inmates must have good attitudes and a clear conduct record for a year to be eligible to play — that means no major or minor violations such as disobeying an order or failing to keep their areas tidy.

"I really require a high standard of behavior," says Sandra McFadden, Camp Sierra Blanca's warden. "They know if they don't live up to the standard, they don't play. They are so conscientious of maintaining this higher standard of behavior, it improves their behavior at the facility itself."

Infielder Jesse Churchman, who is serving time for drug trafficking, says being a team member "matters a lot." For Churchman and his teammates, playing ball builds morale and relieves pressure. Outfielder Rick Grover, who was convicted of trafficking drugs, agrees with Churchman. He says having the privilege of playing gives him incentive to maintain a clear conduct record. Grover says working with the team and his peers will help him prepare for re-entry into society.

"It's kind of like an incentive to keep yourself straight," adds Donnie Wilson, who is serving time for forgery.

Nearly all of the team members played organized baseball or softball in either little league, high school, or the military.

"I think that's why this team is so competitive, because we come from a variety of athletic backgrounds," says Steve Archibeque, convicted of armed robbery.

While the team has excelled on the field, they have also impressed their opponents and the parks and recreation staff.

Softball league coordinator Brenda Kamholz says the team is exemplary both on and off the field. Umpire in chief Dusty Cocchiola says his crew has had no problems with the team.

Ruidoso Village Parks and Recreation Director Debbie Jo Almager agrees. She reports no complaints from the public.

"At some time or another, society needs to trust them again," Almager says.

But the public's trust was seriously compromised last summer when an inmate walked away from the Camp Sierra Blanca grounds, and ended up murdering an elderly man.

Standridge understands why the public might have concerns about the team.

"The foundation was laid for public perception when there were several bad things that happened last year," Standridge says. "We're not a fenced institution. We're trying to control escapes through security, but when you have the absence of fences you cannot be 100% sure that nothing is going to happen."

Standridge, who has 12 years of experience in the Department of Corrections, was hired this year specifically to improve security at Camp Sierra Blanca.

"I control just about anything. I have an intelligence network. But one thing I cannot control, nor will I have a warning of an impending escape, is if a guy gets a 'Dear John' letter," Standridge says. "If they get one and she's in Roswell or anywhere remotely close, it's going to happen. It's not a matter of if, it's just a matter of when." But Standridge is confident of the facility's security. He says the facility is a model minimum security institution.

"Nobody can touch us as far as living conditions or custody and control staff. Particularly our warden has been a key figure in getting rid of that perception that Lincoln County has," Standridge says.

The Outlaws are aware of what the public might think of them. In fact, that's how they got their namesake.

"It kind of fits us (Outlaws) because in most people's eyes we are," says shortstop John Thompson who is serving time for firearms violations. Co-captain Churchman adds, "We've made mistakes, but we're not all bad."

The players are aware of the teams who do support them.

"The Nads and the Whoppers and Sharks support us," Wilson says. "They are really behind us since the very beginning of this. They treat us good as gold."

Some good-natured ribbing occurred when Outlaws played the team from Carrizozo, but that was because a majority of the ZoZo team consists of Camp Sierra Blanca staff.

"Nobody has ever said anything except positive things about this team in my presence," Standridge says. "I know nothing negative has been said to them or they would have said something to me."

Standridge credits the inmates with the desire to field a team. Co-captains Lance Johnston and Churchman were the main forces behind the idea.

"They're the ones who said we can do this. We really can. They're the ones who pulled it together and they came forth and presented it to me," Standridge says. Standridge supported the idea as long as the inmates could raise the money for the league and tournament entry fees. He told the team they couldn't use any money from the recreation fund. Donations, car washes and other fundraisers have footed the bill for the team.

Johnston and Churchman coach the team as well, and that can present its own problems.

"It's a challenge because you've got individuals that are more apt not to take criticism," Johnston says. "You're in an institution where you are supposed to be a tough guy and you're not telling me what to do. Stuff like that. As far as coaching, we all work together."

Churchman adds, "We get in our spats on the field, but we talk about it."

Although they've been fortunate to have a core of 10-12 players this season, the Outlaws also have the challenge of dealing with player turnover.

"We don't ever have the same guys," Johnston notes. "We're battling with the aspect of new guys coming to the team all throughout the season. We're kind of like a young team all throughout the season."

Standridge says with a smile, "A guy is going to sacrifice his position on the team for probation."

McFadden still isn't sure if the Outlaws will be allowed to go to the state tournament in Clovis, but she would like them to participate.

"I don't know what I'm going to do yet," McFadden says. "I want to be sure they have escorts."

Thus far, the team has proved to McFadden that it deserves consideration. She says the team is a source of pride for all the inmates at Camp Sierra Blanca, and the team's participation represents positive interaction with the community.

McFadden notes, "They're going to be out there. They're going to be our neighbors someday, somewhere."

(Ruidoso News intern Jung Wha Yoon contributed to this story.)

John Thompson follows through on a cut at the plate. Thompson is among 15 inmates who play on Camp Sierra Blanca's Outlaws softball team. Members of the team raised the money necessary to play in the village's parks and recreation men's league and tournaments.

After completing a defensive play, shortstop John Thompson gets a high five from teammate Steve Archibeque (right) as he comes off the field with second baseman Jesse Churchman (left).

Devious Dimples cruises in feature

The well-bred 9-year-old Devious Dimples grabbed an early lead and was never seriously challenged en route to a 1 1/4-length victory in the $4,500 quarter horse allowance feature, Friday at Ruidoso Downs.

The gelded son of Breakin Six out of Dashes Dimples scored his fourth career win in 18 starts for trainer Richard Fry. Devious Dimples was sent off the 8-5 favorite in the field of seven after facing stakes winners Dash Its Couper and Ronas Sound in his last two outings.

The gelding covered the 400-yards in 19.90 seconds for owners Dwayne Kuntz, Bill Reed and Mike Abraham of Abilene, Texas.

NOTES: My Rachel, winner of last year's First Lady Handicap, colicked and died Wednesday in the Ruidoso Downs barn area. The 7-year-old Kentucky-bred mare by Nepal was owned by Mandysland Farm and trained by Jon Zimmerman. My Rachel earned more than $115,000 in her career and won three stakes on New Mexico tracks the last two years, including her last start in the Las Donas Handicap in Santa Fe on June 25. Jockeys Casey Lambert and Jacky Martin were injured in separate incidents during Thursday's Rainbow Futurity Trials. Lambert dislocated his shoulder in the first race and had to take off the remainder of his mounts Thursday and all his mounts Friday. Martin was injured in the starting gate in the fifth race and had to take off the remainder of his mounts, although he was not seriously injured.

LINCOLN COUNTY SCRAPBOOK

A glimpse into Lincoln County's past, compiled by Polly E. Chavez with excerpts from "A History of Lincoln County Post Offices."

Tinnie

The Tinnie Post Office was established Apr. 27, 1990 with Isidro Analla as postmaster until Nov. 12, when Pedro Analla became postmaster. He remained two months and Sallie A. Murray took the office and remained until the Raymonds bought the store from the Anallas in 1906. Most of the people at that time were Spanish-Americans. The Raymonds had a little blond daughter named Tinnie. The people thought she was beautiful and got Mrs. Raymond to change the name of the post office to Tinnie in honor of the little girl. A petition was circulated and nearly everyone signed it. The name was changed to Tinnie April 5, 1909. Robert O. Anderson bought the building in 1959. In the early 1980s, the Tinnie Post Office was moved from the Tinnie Silver Dollar to the present location.

To Jupiter's right and lower left is a roughly vertical curve of three lesser, white stars. These denote the head of Scorpius, or more practically, the Crown of the Scorpion, though what this creature would be doing with a crown is left unexplained. Add the two similar white stars on either side of Antares, and you have one of the summer sky's prettiest regions.

OBITUARIES

Tommy Nevarez

A prayer service for Tommy Nevarez, 50, of Ruidoso was Sunday, July 9 at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Capitan, where the funeral mass was held Monday, July 10 at 10 a.m. The Rev. Dave Bergs officiated and burial was at Capitan Cemetery.

Mr. Nevarez died Monday, July 3 at his home in Ruidoso. He was born April 8, 1945 at Ancho, and had lived in Lincoln County all of his life. He was a member and past president of the Carpenters and Joiners Union, and graduated from Carrizozo High School in 1964. He was a nurse at Casa Alegre in Ruidoso and formerly at Ft. Stanton Hospital.

He married Irene Marie Peralta on March 15, 1966 in Carrizozo.

He is survived by his wife Irene of Ruidoso; five daughters, Michelle Jacqueline Chatman, Marcelle Marie Rakar, Marlene Joy Hall and Marjorie Marquette Nevarez, all of El Paso, Texas and Marsha Monique Johnson of Swienfurt, Germany; three brothers, Fermin Delgado of San Diego, Calif., Ralph Delgado and Tony Delgado both of Carrizozo; two sisters, Angie Delgado of Carrizozo and Lupe Otero of Los Lunas; five grandchildren, Malisa Jade Nevarez, Jordan Kyle Johnson, Shaun Austin Rakar, Melanie Marie Rakar and Eriq Jamiel Chatman; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his mother, Rita Nevarez Delgado; a daughter, Marlen Joy Nevarez Sr.; a son, Tommy Nevarez Jr., and a sister, Arcenia Knapp.

R. Quinton Marshall

A memorial service for R. Quinton Marshall will be held at the New Mexico Military Institute Memorial Chapel in Roswell at 3 p.m. Thursday, July 20. Mr. Marshall died Thursday, July 6, at the Lincoln County Medical Center.

Quinton was born in Roswell on Nov. 3, 1929 to James Quinton and Dickie Crosby Marshall. He attended Roswell schools until 1948 when he entered NMMI. He graduated from the NMMI Senior College in 1952 and was commissioned into the Army Branch. He then attended the Armor Basic Officers Course and then Army Aviation Flight Training at Fort Sill, Okla. Quinton served with the 25th Infantry Division as an Army Aviator in Korea and Hawaii. He was released from active duty in 1955.

Mr. Marshall was a self-employed landman and businessman. He was well-known in the U.S. Polo Association as a professional polo official. He authored and published a book on the techniques of umpiring polo.

He was elected to the NMMI Alumni Association in 1981, serving until 1986.

Quinton is survived by Gerda Reynolds White of Ruidoso; sons Michael G. Marshall and James S. Marshall of Albuquerque; and two daughters, Paige and Dru Marshall.

The family suggests memorials to the Alumni Foundation of NMMI or the Assurance Home of Roswell.

State Rep. Williams criticizes Endangered Species Act as Western States meeting nears

The federal Endangered Species Act (ESA) is a flawed piece of legislation that cannot be repaired, says Dub Williams, State Representative for New Mexico's District 56 and Ruidoso.

Williams is a member of the Western States Coalition that will be meeting in Albuquerque July 12-15 to address this issue, as well as numerous others facing natural resource use across the nation.

The ESA, passed in 1975, is up for reauthorization in Congress this year, with the debate expected to reach its peak following the present recess.

The ESA has failed to accomplish its purpose, Williams concluded, and cannot be repaired by amendment during the reauthorization process.

"...there is no incentive for the public to protect species."

DUB WILLIAMS
NM STATE REPRESENTATIVE

"We need to strike an effective balance between human and economic needs and the needs of plants and animals," Williams said. "But, we need to draft new legislation that spells out what Americans and Congress expect, and one that leaves no room for bureaucratic interpretation."

"The ESA presently does not even mention 'recovery' or 'conservation,' Williams added.

"In addition, there is no incentive for the public to protect species," Williams said. "If a species is identified or critical habitat is designated, landowners and the public lose value and access. We need to develop an act that will encourage citizens' involvement and improve coordination between them and their government."

"Finally," Williams said, "the ESA requires no sound, scientific data for species listing or critical habitat designation."

"New legislation should include rigorous standards for listings that take in exhaustive peer review."

Outlaws show us the way we all should play

Inmates at the Sierra Blanca minimum security prison wanted to play ball so badly this year, they went out and raised the money themselves. Businesses helped sponsor them, they held car washes, and they even had fundraising activities in the prison, to pay for uniforms and league and tourney entry fees. The Outlaws have one of the best-looking uniforms in the league now, something they can be proud of.

More importantly, they can be proud of the way they conduct themselves. Other players and Ruidoso league officials tell us the Outlaws team is a perfect example of how all teams should act. The sportsmanship award the team received at one tournament is testament to this. The players have met little if any animosity from other teams, although some inmates get a feeling other teams want to beat them more than the rest of the teams - not just because they're a good team, but also because of their prison background.

As one recreation official put it, society needs to trust them again, sooner or later. In a short while, they will be out in the free world. The process of getting on the team, as well as the team itself, is a way to prepare inmates for that day.

To get on the team, they must have perfect prison behavior records - a good attitude and clean conduct for a full year. This is a positive form of reinforcement in a world that sometimes only offers negative ones.

Outlaws team members say they view the opportunity to play as an important rehabilitation step. Some came from maximum security prisons and worked hard to reach this opportunity.

Those who aren't familiar with the way the system works apparently need not worry. The team has an armed security guard by its side, and players can't walk anywhere at the ballpark without the whole team. They can't even talk to spectators because this would be an "unscheduled visit." Anyway, they're already out regularly on work release, and the team situation is more supervised than work release.

Nearly all the other teams should be commended for treating the guys well in return. Other players cheer for them in tournaments and wish them good luck. Likewise, the warden and other officials are to be commended for allowing the Outlaws to play, for putting their trust in the team.

The Outlaws have qualified for the state tourney, so we hope they'll be allowed to go. It will be interesting to see how officials and players handle the crowds and potential overnight stay away from "home."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Teens should be part of attraction

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is in response to the letter written by Emily Ruch of Ruidoso.

I think your letter was very good and made some very good points. But why not compromise a little so that maybe everyone can enjoy the tourist season? Why don't you kids become a part of the attraction? You all could do that by simply dressing a little different for the season. Instead of wearing the teenage fad clothes of the time, you could do a little staging and wear some more flashy, moderate clothing, and then you kids would be an added attraction instead of a distraction. For instance, you could all wear red, white and blue, or something like that.

Also, be respectful of the merchants in Midtown, and also to the tourists. Be understanding that the tourists are coming from all over the country, and from cities where there are major "gang problems." And, even though you kids are not a "gang problem," your appearance may make people leery of you.

The merchants in Midtown are not being mean to you kids. But they have to do well in the peak tourist season in order for them to be able to pay their expenses when the season is over. You kids could be a big help to them if you would just compromise a little and lend a hand.

Who knows, you might even benefit a little yourselves. There are street dancers in New Orleans, and they put on a little show with their street dancing and people tip them. All of the street dancers that I saw while I was there were teenagers, and it looked to me like they were doing pretty good with their tips from tourists.

I'll miss everyone in Lincoln County

TO THE EDITOR:

To the citizens of Lincoln County that I have had the pleasure to meet from public speaking, health fairs and serving you through my position at Lincoln County Medical Center, I can truly say, "There isn't a finer bunch of folks."

To the medical staff of Lincoln County Medical Center, it has been my pleasure to work with you since 1982. The ever-changing medical field does not make this easy with all the different regulations and agencies; it was at times a nightmare.

Oh, for "the good ole days of horse and buggy." But medicine is in fact moving into the space age, thanks to computers and modern technology. Only we forgot to keep the patients updated to all in this ever-changing field.

To my co-workers, I wish to thank each and every one who has been so supportive during this difficult time. I could not have made it through this transition without you. I will miss you, as you are very special people. Working in a small hospital is truly the best place, as we become family as well as co-workers. Look at this change in a positive manner and go forward. Take the time to learn new things, and be versatile, as this is the way to go forward and keep up with the changing times. I will truly miss you.

An update on legislative efforts

TO THE EDITOR:

July is here - what a beautiful and beneficial rain these past few days. Our county and village will be green and beautiful within a few short days. How blessed we are to live in Lincoln County!

It seems time to update you on some of my recent activities:

1. Starlight Montessori School: There has been considerable concern by parents, grandparents and friends about the opening of the school for the 1995-96 school year. Rest assured it will be open, after several communications with Secretary Heather Wilson of Children, Youth and Families. Each and every one of you that voiced your concerns to me, thank you for your input. Working together, we can get the job done. Secretary Wilson will be in Ruidoso in the near future to address any concerns about Children, Youth and Families.

2. Fort Stanton: The Department of Corrections has shown an interest in the fort as a minimum security prison. Through efforts of many people, that situation was resolved so that the state will send out its proposals for bids (RFPs) for use in the private sector for the fort. Our hope is that we find some entity that will employ many of our people here in Lincoln County and preserve the historical value and integrity of Fort Stanton.

3. Legislative Education Study

Committee: I just returned from Santa Fe (June 29 and 30) serving on this very important committee. Education is one of the most important issues for the future of our country. Issues include changes in funding formula, technology for the success of our students into the 21st century, and making sure educational opportunities are just as good in Mora, Albuquerque, Ruidoso or Chama. Our hope, work and prayers will be to achieve that equality for every student in our state.

Hope everyone had a safe, happy birthday holiday. Remember what the 4th of July is all about. God bless all and America.

Downtown changed with skateboarders

TO THE EDITOR:

I read Emily Ruch's letter published in the June 26 issue of The Ruidoso News (I subscribe to the local paper because of my interest in your town) and felt the need to make a few comments.

My husband and I have been "tourists" in your hometown for the past 17 years, visiting about three times a year. I cannot speak for all tourists, but I can tell you how I viewed the "skaters" the last time I was visiting.

We drove into town and, as is our custom, took a drive downtown to see what changes, if any, had occurred since our last visit. It is like saying hello to an old friend.

We were saddened to be greeted by several young men standing in front of one of our favorite places, Mountain Arts Gallery. These young men were wearing shorts pulled down around their knees, their underwear was showing, they had on no shirts, and they were wearing bandanas on their heads and roller blades. They were making unkind remarks and gestures to the cars that passed.

The next day we were walking down the lovely new sidewalks and were almost run over by some kids on roller blades. They did not say "excuse me" or "get out of the way," they just laughed and went on.

Early the next morning we saw litter, bottles, cans, and paper all over the streets, apparently left by the kids from the night before.

How sad for those of you (and I am assuming you are not one of the offending kids I saw) who have manners, are courteous, and have a sense of proper dress, that you are being penalized by the few who do not know how to conduct themselves. Please do not blame the tourists for the problem. The problem is caused by the few who offend and litter.

Perhaps if you and your friends put a little pressure on the offenders and told them it is their fault all of you are having a problem, it might make them behave in a more acceptable manner.

I called myself a tourist, but in reality we love your town so much we are in the process of building a home in Ruidoso so our family can enjoy the scenery, climate and genuinely nice people who live there.

I hope you will take these comments in the spirit in which they are intended. I love your town and I know this is a serious problem for all the young people. Please don't let the few ruin the fun of the many. You, Emily, could be the one to make a difference.

PET CORNER

These pets are currently up for adoption at Lincoln County Humane Society
Call 257-9841

Trigger, an 8-month-old male terrier mix, is a tiny bundle of love. He's very smart, full of energy and loves children. He was left in one of the outside cages after hours. He wants a second chance and a new family.

Muggs, a spayed 9-month-old chocolate Labrador, is sweet and loving. She grew up on an emu ranch, but when she and some other dogs began chasing the birds, the owner took them to the shelter.

DOG SCOOP

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

It's summertime and it's not unusual for the shelter to impound several animals a day that have been dropped on ranches in outlying areas of Lincoln County.

"Many of the people who bring them into the Humane Society shelter are exasperated, but sympathetic with the plight of the animals," said Sandy Ford, assistant director of the shelter. "They explain how the animal was dropped off a few days earlier and how they would like to keep them, but they have enough animals of their own. They tell us it is the same thing every time summer rolls around. They usually leave us a small donation or a bag of dog food to help out.

"It reminds me of graffiti. You never see who does it. It just appears overnight.

"Who does it? In the dark of the night or on a silent afternoon, who stops on a road, opens a door and pushes out domesticated pets, leaving them to fend for themselves?

"And I wonder, why do they do it?"

Some of those owners willing to abandon their pets may think there is always more room on a ranch for animals and that the dog or cat will be welcomed, Ford said.

That usually is not the case. "In rural areas, ranchers and landowners are faced with protecting valuable property, poultry and livestock, and they are empowered by state statute to use lethal force to accomplish this," Ford said.

As with any property that is unwanted, there is a right way and a wrong way to discard it, Ford said.

Most people are aware that they could face fines by dumping garbage on the highway. Many may not be aware that there also are laws governing the abandonment of and cruelty to animals, she said.

"Impoundment at the shelter is free of charge and hassle," Ford said. "The most compelling reason to bring them to the shelter is that they will be fed and warm while waiting to be adopted."

The shelter never turns away an animal and night drop off cages are available in an effort to stop abandonments.

Meeting changes

A reminder: the Lincoln County Humane Society now meets at 7 p.m. on the third Wednesday of each month at the Ruidoso Senior Citizens Center.
