Logging ban hits Lincoln Forest

A federal court order issued last week temporarily banning all logging on federal forests in the Southwest could cost White Sands Forest Products $700,000 this year.

A U.S. District Court judge stopped logging until a biological opinion is issued by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on the accumulated effects logging has on the endangered Mexican spotted owl.

The Alamogordo-based White Sands Forest Products holds the only permit to log in the Lincoln National Forest around Ruidoso and Cloudcroft.

If the ruling stands, the company will not be able to harvest about 2.5 million board feet of trees on 1,200 acres, said Ron Hannan of the U.S. Forest Service.

Electric company gives customers September refunds

Texas-New Mexico Power company customers will receive a credit on September electric bills.

More than $1.2 million will be refunded to New Mexico customers. An average customer using 500 kwh of electricity will receive about $10, officials said.

The credit results from a refund the company received from one of its power suppliers.

Indians willing to negotiate compacts

The New Mexico Indian Gaming Association yesterday said its members are willing to negotiate changes to gambling compacts they signed with Governor Gary Johnson.

Johnson and 14 tribes signed the compacts in February, opening the door for full casino gambling on tribal lands.

However, the state Supreme Court ruled in July the governor didn't have the authority to sign the compacts without legislative approval.

The Indian nations say the compacts remain valid. Johnson has sent surveys to Democratic and Republican caucuses to get feedback on changes they'd like to see in the compacts.

"Mescalero Inn" plans studied

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Preliminary renovation plans for Carrizo Lodge buildings were reviewed by Ruidoso officials yesterday, about the same time a "Mescalero Inn" sign was erected outside the buildings.

The major portion of the draft plans involve expansion of the kitchen area and laundry, village planning director Cleatus Richards said.

Gambling is not proposed in the draft plans for the Carrizo Canyon Road complex, Richards said.

"Mrs. Rita Chino responded to a direct question, and said there are no plans to put gambling machines in the complex," Richards related.

Richards said he spoke with Rita Chino Tuesday at the Mescalero Inn property Tuesday. She is Mescalero Apache Tribe President Wendell Chino's wife.

Wendell Chino said today he has "nothing to say" about plans for the Mescalero Inn.

The Carrizo offices, 12 condos and historic restaurant were purchased Aug. 8 by Gaim-Ko, Inc. from C-Net. The remaining 45 condos at the complex are still owned by C-Net.

Gaim-Ko President Ray Gallegos — whose company also supplies gambling machines for the Mescalero's Inn of the Mountain Gods — leased his Carrizo property to the tribe the same day his company bought it.

Gallegos has said the property will be used to ease Inn of the

Boarders scoff at new park

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Without any ramps at Ruidoso's new skating park, skateboarders must get their kicks rolling across the asphalt slab.

For the past week, village officials have been asking other communities what type of insurance they have to cover potential accidents on skateboard ramps.

The $20,000 asphalt slab park is on village-owned land behind fire station #2 on White Mountain Drive. It was opened to the public about three weeks ago.

"We use it, but it gets kind of boring 'cause there's nothing there — it's just all flat," said Matthew Muholland, a member of the ad hoc committee created to make recommendations on the construction of the skateboard park to the village council.

Muholland said he thought the village would provide ramps, but now understands the skaters must raise the money for them.

"They said they'd go to the first step with the asphalt, and take care of the other things later on," Muholland said.

Two-thirds howl at wolf recovery plan

White Sands targeted as release site

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Two-thirds of the people who wrote comments at an open house Tuesday strongly rejected a proposal to reintroduce the Mexican wolf into southern New Mexico.

"Get rid of it permanently," one of the 44 opponents wrote on comment sheets distributed at the Alamogordo open house by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

A Tularosa resident suggested keeping wolves in zoos and using the tourist money generated there "to help find real jobs for wolf huggers."

Many complained that the plan is a waste of tax money since the government previously paid trappers to wipe out the predator. Others predicted dire consequences in the form of livestock losses and attacks on household pets.

Nineteen visitors wrote comments in support of the project.

"I like the idea of some monitoring of the wolf population," wrote an Alamogordo resident. "Ranchers will be concerned about loss of livestock, but if they are adequately compensated, I see no reason to stop reintroduction of the wolves."

Several other advocates worried wolves will be killed by ranchers and hunters if they are reintroduced.

Of four alternatives presented by the wildlife service, Alternate D was picked by 15 persons, most of whom opposed the reintroduction.

Twelve of those favoring reintroduction of the wolf picked Alternative A, the agency's proposed action, as the most logical approach.

"The (agency) and cooperating agencies will monitor, research, evaluate and actively manage the wolves, including preventing dispersal outside the wolf recovery areas and removing or translocating wolves causing significant conflicts," according to the agency's written summary.

Under Alternative A, the unavoidable and unintentional killing of wolves in connection to legal hunting, trapping or driving would not be considered a violation of federal law with prompt notification of the agency. Killing a wolf in defense of human life also would be permitted.

On public lands leased for grazing, livestock owners would be allowed to "harass" wolves to scare them away from livestock or to kill or injure them, if they are attacking livestock. Either action must be promptly reported.

Criteria also is included for pre-approval of killing problem wolves.

The Fish and Wildlife Service plans to hold a public hearing on the endangered wolf plans in Socorro, but a date has not yet been set.

Written public comments will be accepted through Oct. 31. People can also request written information. Write to David Parsons, Mexican Wolf Recovery Program, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, P.O. Box 1306, Albuquerque, N.M. 87103-1306.

A Tularosa resident suggested keeping wolves in zoos and using the tourist money generated there "to help find real jobs for wolf huggers."

Four wolf release alternatives listed

Following is a summary of the four alternatives being considered by the Fish and Wildlife Service concerning the reintroduction of the Mexican wolf.

Alternative A — This is the Fish and Wildlife Service's proposed action. Up to five families of wolves would be reintroduced into the White Sands Missile Range area west of Ruidoso or up to 15 families in the Blue Range Wolf Recovery Area in east-central Arizona, followed by a second reintroduction into the other area "if necessary and feasible." Wolves would be allowed to disperse naturally into secondary zones.

By the year 2004, approximately 120 wolves would exist in the 6,000 square-mile area. White Sands accounts for 1,000 square miles and the Blue Range for the other 5,000.

No private or tribal land use restrictions would be imposed for wolf recovery without the agreement of the landowner.

Alternative B — The same as Alternative A, except wolves would not be allowed to roam outside the primary recovery zones. Also, the initial releases would involve four family groups over a two-year time period at White Sands, with a goal of 14 wolves by 1998; and eight in Blue Range over a four-year time period, with a goal of 20 wolves by the year 2000. The zones would also be cut in size by one-third and four-fifths, respectively.

Alternative C — Wolves would receive full protection under the Endangered Species Act, and be reintroduced into the same two areas. Five family groups would be released at White Sands and 14 at Blue Range. The government would not stop them from roaming.

No one could kill or harass the wolves; the only exceptions would be to protect human life or through a special scientific permit.

Alternative D — No action by the government, except to "encourage" protection and expansion of wild wolf populations if any are discovered. Agency officials say no confirmed population of the Mexican wolf now exists outside captivity.

Ruidoso man charged with beating mother in her home

A 33-year-old horsehoer allegedly beat his mother with a shovel after breaking into her Ruidoso home Friday night, exactly a month after another alleged assault against her.

The 69-year-old victim was allegedly struck eight times by her son Buck Tomlinson. She suffered a broken rib, three lacerations to her head, and injuries to her jaw, arm and back, police said.

She was treated for her injuries at the Lincoln County Medical Center and released the next day, police said.

Police arrested Tomlinson about an hour after the attack, allegedly finding him in his car with a bloody shirt and bloody shovel.

Tomlinson was charged with aggravated burglary and aggravated battery. Each charge is a third-degree felony punishable by 2-4 years in prison.

Tomlinson pleaded innocent to charges during his Monday morning arraignment, and is being held on a $150,000 bond at the county jail. He is scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing at Ruidoso's Magistrate Court at 9 a.m. Sept. 7.

A hearing on the July 25 misdemeanor assault charge is also scheduled for Sept. 7.

Police said Tomlinson gained entry into his mother's home Aug. 25 by removing a pane of glass near the door, police said.

The victim told police she was watching television around 8:45 p.m. Friday when she heard a noise at the front door. She went out into the front hall and saw her son, who allegedly knocked her to the floor with a shovel then dragged and kicked her, police said.

Detective Jim Biggs said Tomlinson admitted to being intoxicated during the beating, and said he doesn't remember any of the violence.

"If I done that to my mama, you can take me out and shoot me," he allegedly told Biggs.

Tomlinson, who police said has lived at his girlfriend's Ruidoso house for about a year, had just been released from jail three weeks earlier for the alleged July 25 verbal assault against his mother.

In that incident, police said the two had been traveling in a car July 25 when he became angry, called his mother an obscene name, and then said he "needed" to "beat" her.

He was arrested on a petty misdemeanor assault charge July 26 and held for a week at the county jail on a $10,000 bond.

He was released Aug. 2 without posting bond, with the condition that he have no contact with his mother.

Developers offer suggestions to improve county subdivision regs

By DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Differing opinions about how to build subdivision roads and who should pay to maintain them turned a sparsely attended meeting last week into a lively debate among county officials and developers.

"My problem is that I have clients who want to build roads and they don't know what it's going to cost them," said Ruidoso surveyor Tim Collins during the special meeting Thursday in Ruidoso. Eighteen people showed up for the meeting.

County Manager Carol Cooney said county commissioners are aware of the deficiencies in county subdivision regulations. The document has been under review for more than six months. Additional hearings will be scheduled for public input before final approval.

Commissioners also have been trying to come up with different methods of paying for future repair and maintenance of subdivision roads. They want to continue to cut the county's annual subsidy of the road department ($392,212 this year, down from $484,869 in 1994-95), allowing the money to be funneled to other community needs.

Commissioners earlier this year eliminated a per front-foot road assessment when lot owners along unpaved subdivision roads complained. The owners contended they did not receive the same level of roadwork as residents along surfaced roads.

Private roads proposed

White Mountain Estates developer Bill McCarty suggested the commission allow private roads in gated communities as an alternative to county-maintained roads.

"The communities form homeowners associations and that relieves the county of any obligation to maintain or repair the roads," McCarty said.

Ronnie Paulger with RUI Inc., supported McCarty's proposal for private roads.

"The first commission that agreed to take over roads for infinity didn't realize the pressure on county revenues," Paulger said. "Some things new in the marketplace are gated communities — higher density areas that attract people who are sensitive to security because the areas they lived in before had it. Private roads land themselves to that approach."

A county legally cannot maintain roads if public access is restricted.

Other subdivision regs changes proposed by developers include:

- requiring developers to provide comprehensive disclosure statements to lot buyers, spelling out who is responsible for road maintenance;

- reducing the 28-foot width requirement for county roads

- hiring a professional engineer to help determine if subdivision roads meet county standards.

- and coming up with a less expensive alternative to performance and construction bonds.

Park

Four free ramps were offered to the village Thursday by a local sport shop owner, but the gift was turned away.

"Right now they're in our barn, but we're trying to find a place to put them," said Faith Mountain Sports and Collectibles owner Lana Robertson. "I don't understand. It's not fun for kids to skate back and forth on asphalt all day."

Liability concerns

Village officials said they don't have the liability insurance to cover skateboard ramps.

"Village insurance will not cover ramps unless it gets a specialty carrier," said Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Director Debbie Jo Almager. Anyway, "The village council only authorized the construction of an asphalt slab."

Using asphalt as opposed to concrete cut costs in half, she said, and teens on the ad hoc skateboard committee said they could accept the asphalt.

Almager said she has asked Santa Fe administrators what type of insurance they're using for their skateboard park, and she is waiting for a response.

Only when ramps are at least 20 feet high do injuries become common, Almager said. The highest ramp proposed for use at the asphalt slab park is five feet, she said.

Even if low-cost insurance is found, the council will still have to authorize installation of ramps at the park, she said.

Ruidoso Councilor Robert Donaldson, who also sits on the skateboard committee, said councilors will also check out Farmington's skateboard park when they attend a municipal league conference there this week.

"We're going to take care of those kids one way or another," he said.

Ramps ready to go

The ramps offered free to the village by Robertson and her husband Derrel last week were handcrafted by their son, Sonny. The four ramps are each two feet high.

The college student is a skateboard enthusiast, and has built ramps for a park in Albuquerque, Robertson said.

Sonny was inspired to build the launching ramps in July after seeing the "pathetic" lifts the skaters were using at the "Friends" park on Jack Little Drive, his mother said.

That "park" was on a former tennis court on private property. Skaters had transformed the old court into skateboard turf long before main street merchants clamored for a ban on skating downtown, Austin Koontz said.

About the time councilors voted in mid-July to ban skateboarding, in-line skates, bicycles and jogging on downtown sidewalks, the tennis court owners had their local Realtors shoo the skaters away.

One Realtor, who preferred to remain anonymous, explained the property owner had serious liability concerns about the skaters.

"He said he knows they need a place to go, but they just moved in all these ramps without permission or anything," the Realtor said. "Now, they've finally got a home."

Ramps test skill

Koontz, a high school freshman, said he and his friends "ellie over" some railroad ties around the slab, but even that thrill is short lived.

"If we could just get some ramps there it'd be more fun," he said.

The flat, asphalt surface blackens wheels and causes them to stick when it heats, Koontz said.

Plans

Mountain Gods laundry, restaurant and parking congestion.

According to the draft drawings shown to village officials yesterday, work is planned for three different buildings at the complex: the restaurant/lounge; an office building; and the building containing some meeting rooms, apartments and a laundry (formerly used for Carrizo Canyon art school classes), Richards said.

Major remodeling is planned for the restaurant's kitchen, and substantial plumbing improvements are also in draft plans for that building, Richards said.

The preliminary construction plans don't appear to impact the maximum occupancy level of the buildings, Richards said.

"It's more a refurbishment of the kitchen and laundry to update and make more efficient those operations," Richards explained.

Richards, building inspector Larry Hill, and state government construction official Pat Vandegriff reviewed the plans "in detail" with Mescalero Inn construction manager Rich Walker and a plumbing contractor Wednesday, Richards said.

The plans have not been finalized, and inn officials left no drafts with the planning department.

"There's still a possibility the plans will go before the whole Planning and Zoning Commission," Richards said. "I'll reserve that determination until we get in hand the actual plans."

Walker and Inn of the Mountain Gods employees started renovation work two weeks ago, but the village stopped the work Aug. 18 because no plans or applications for work permits had been filed with the planning department.

The buildings border the Mescalero Apache Reservation but are in the Ruidoso village limits. The land was annexed by the village in 1993 and then connected with the village water system.

Village officials said Walker told them last week that tribal officials are seeking to make the property tribal trust land, a preliminary step in adding it to the reservation.

Richards said he hopes the Mescalero Inn plans will be ready for submission to the department later this week or early next week.

Local firemen join fight for Jerry's kids

Ruidoso firefighters are seeking donations this holiday weekend to help fight muscular dystrophy.

Firefighters will be stationed at the corner of Sudderth and Eagle drives to accept donations from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Those who wish to give donations at a different time are welcome to stop by the fire department.

"We're doing this in conjunction with the Jerry Lewis telethon for muscular dystrophy," said fireman Thomas Chavez.

The fundraising effort is joined annually by firefighters throughout the United States, he said.

Last year, firefighters raised $7 million to fight the progressive disease which deteriorates the body's muscular system.

The Ruidoso units have been participating in the fundraiser for the past five years, Chavez said, and have raised between $5,000 and $8,000.

OBITUARIES

Nancy Pritchett

Services for Nancy Jo Pritchett, 80, of Lubbock were held Saturday morning at Sunset Church of Christ. Officiating were Don Williams, dean of Lubbock Christian University, Bill Morman, a nephew, and Dan Rouse, minister.

Graveside services were held Saturday afternoon at Spur Memorial Cemetery in Spur, Texas. Ms. Pritchett died Aug. 23 in Cortez, Colo.

She was born Jan. 7, 1915, in Spur. She graduated from Spur

She worked for Crum and Foster Insurance Company until retiring in 1989. She was an artist, working with wood and pottery.

Survivors include three brothers, Cleston of Ruidoso, Doyle of Fort Worth, Texas, and Randolph of Camp Hill, Pa.

Saying Farewell to August and Hello to September

This is being sent to you about an hour after midday on Aug. 28 and will reach you on Aug. 31.

So now we are saying farewell and thank you to the beautiful month of August, and hello and a hearty welcome to September, the month in which fall begins - on Sept. 23.

We are still in glorious summer. Just the same, there are signs here and there of little messengers of early fall. The sunflowers are showing their golden faces by the wayside among the flowers of summer - like the black-eyed Susan, coveflower, morning and evening primrose, Indian paintbrush, and wild snapdragon.

The late rains delayed the blooming of the summer flowers. And the cool nights might have caused the sunflowers to think that fall is about to arrive.

August Full Moon

On the 10th, the golden full moon rose above the hill to the southeast in a sky of light mist and slow-moving clouds in a moonlight night picture of now-you-see-me, now-you-don't.

When a light cloud passed over the face of the moon, it was turned into a skyborne pearl

THE SILVER LINING

The Silver Lining

DANIEL AGNEW STORM

When no clouds were in front of the moon, you could see that it was encircled by a misty, airy circle of orange, then another larger circle of rainbow colors, and a still larger one of purple-blue.

This moon and cloud pageant was a nighttime benediction over the dreaming mountain world.

The Ripening Rays

This time of year, when the sun begins to travel a little lower on its journey through the sky, its rays seem to strike you slantwise and make you think the weather is better than it is.

These sunbeams are sometimes called "the ripening rays" because apples begin to ripen at this same time of year.

This year in the Ruidoso Valley there are no apples to ripen, yet there have been plenty of walnuts falling in the past two weeks, and lately the ground under the trees is covered. I keep wondering why the squirrels do not carry the nuts away. Maybe they are waiting for the green outer covering to dry up.

The Gramma Grass

Just in the last two or three days, the seeds of the gramma grass have suddenly begun ripening, too. Their little seed pods seem to be shaped like small purple flags, waving on their slender stems about a foot and a half high.

The New Mexico grass is the pride and joy of the grazing creatures. You can almost see the calves grow, and the grown cattle begin to look like show animals.

The ripening of all the grass seeds and the full leaves on the many kinds of browsing bushes - these are some of the many wonders of the recent rains.

September Birthdays

So here we are on the doorstep of September, one of my favorite months of the year.

Among the September birthdays are those of Paul Jones on the 7th and my brother Mark on the 4th.

Let us thank our Lord always for our blessings, among them the birthdays of loved ones and friends.

RHS dedicates memorial park

Ruidoso High School's new memorial park will be dedicated at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 9.

The park, located in the front of the school, is dedicated to RHS students who have died during their high school years.

The public is invited to attend the dedication.

RHS is located at 125 Warrior Drive.

Call 258-4910 for more information.

Homecoming week full of events

RHS Homecoming week is Sept. 5-8 and is sponsored by the student council.

"The week will consist of many spirit-arousing activities," council treasurer Audra Allison said.

Events include dress-up days during the week, plus a pep assembly on Friday, Sept. 8 featuring the RHS 24 Karat Gold Band, cheerleaders, and a student council skit, Allison said.

At the end of the assembly, homecoming candidates will be introduced. During halftime of the Warriors versus Robertson football game on Friday night, the homecoming court will be announced and the new king and queen will be crowned.

The final homecoming week activity will be a dance from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 9 at RHS. Music will be provided by a DJ from Las Cruces.

For more information about RHS Homecoming activities, call the school at 258-4910.

New Mexico State University's summer camp tries to lead handicapped into scientific arena

Sheryl Erhard of Alto designed home pages for the World Wide Web at the Astral Animators Summer Science Camp at New Mexico State University this summer.

Erhard, daughter of Richard and Nancy Erhard of Alto, was among 18 high school students from New Mexico and West Texas learning about electronic publishing during the 2.5 week long camp.

The program, sponsored by the Regional Alliance for Science, Engineering and Mathematics (RASEM), is designed primarily for students for disabilities, although other students interested in technology also participated this summer. RASEM is based at NMSU's College of Engineering.

"They learned about computer animation, video and audio, and how to tie it all together in a home page for the World Wide Web," said

RASEM co-director and NMSU associate professor of engineering technology Barbara Powell. "Now they can go back to their schools and become the technology leaders."

The students may eventually place personal pages on the World Wide Web, a new technology that allows Internet users to combine text, photographs, audio and video in electronic "pages."

At the camp they attended lectures, worked in computer laboratories, and produced storyboards, videos, photographs, and video animations.

The students also took field trips to Alamogordo and White Sands National Monument, Powell said.

"The goal of RASEM is to encourage students with disabilities to enter science, mathematics and engineering fields," co-director Bill McCarthy said.

McCarthy, who uses a wheelchair, said he was discouraged from pursuing an engineering career by a high school counselor.

"Many students with disabilities are counseled away from science, engineering and mathematics courses and careers because of an obsolete notion that such endeavors may be too physically or intellectually demanding," McCarthy said.

The RASEM center, funded with $1.5 million for three years from the National Science Foundation, opened this summer at NMSU's College of Engineering.

Sheryl Erhard of Alto shows off her computer skills at the Summer Science Camp at New Mexico State University. Erhard, along with 18 other students, learned about electronic publishing during the camp.

"If I can't find the problem, I talk to the engineers who created the car."

 It's one of the reasons you're more likely to get your Ford, Lincoln or Mercury vehicle fixed right the first time here than anywhere else. Only a Quality Care technician can use the Technical Service Hotline to call on the factory engineers when they have a problem they can't solve. Or plug into OASIS...a database that lets our technicians get the latest information about your vehicle. So, if you want your car or truck fixed right the first time, come in for Quality Care. SCHOOL

New families help fund Capitan's school system

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

An influx of new families into the Capitan School District has compensated for the loss of students when Fort Stanton state hospital closed in March.

When comparing current numbers to students enrolled before the fort closed, the district has only lost a total of two students. Subdivision construction workers have been cited as one big reason.

Two weeks after school started in Capitan, the district enrollment sits at 668 students, 26 more than projected in the 1995-96 fiscal budget of $3.5 million.

"That means a minimum of $52,000 in additional money if the district holds onto them (for the official count)," Supt. Diana Sonnamaker Billingsley said Wednesday.

The state counts students in each school district on the 40th day of the session to determine how much money to pay each school district. The payment is based on a tentative figure this year of $2,113 per full-time equivalent student, weighted for special programs and different grade levels. Before the end of the school year, the state could readjust the figure.

"The Fort Stanton closing was offset by new people moving into the district, not by transfers from Ruidoso," Billingsley said. "All the building at Ranches of Santerra (a new subdivision on Sierra Blanca Airport Road) has attracted workers into the Alto area." The Capitan district extends well into Alto.

Billingsley said she won't be able to pinpoint the exact loss from Fort Stanton until Sept. 13, when student enrollment will be reviewed more in-depth. At one point, the estimated loss was as high as 30 students, but later was revised to about 13. When the fort closed, 200 employees were either thrown out of work or accepted transfers elsewhere within the state employment system.

To meet the expected shortfall in enrollment, the school board last summer downsized some programs and the staff took pay cuts. At this point, administrators haven't looked at whether these decisions will change.

Although having more students will definitely require ordering more textbooks, school officials still are reviewing class sizes to determine if new teachers have to be hired, said School Board President Beverly Payne.

"I haven't been provided with any of that information yet. We're still looking at class sizes," Payne said Wednesday.

The 668 students represent two fewer than last year's enrollment, but because the district had anticipated a much greater drop, it should be in good shape financially, Billingsley said. The enrollment breakdown is 189 students in high school, 154 in middle school and 225 in the elementary school. All of the figures are close to the ending numbers last school year.

Student applications sought for latest Senate Youth Program

The selection process has begun for the 1996 United States Senate Youth Program.

Two outstanding New Mexico high school students will be chosen to spend the week of March 2-9 visiting Capitol Hill, the White House, the Pentagon, the State Department, the Supreme Court and other highlights in the nation's capital.

Each participating student will receive a $2,000 college scholarship, take part in a mock session of Congress, and visit with senators, representatives, government leaders and policymakers.

Each year, the 34-year-old program brings two students from each state, the District of Columbia and Department of Defense Schools to Washington, D.C. for an intensive week-long governmental study.

Names of selected students will be announced Dec. 13. Interested students in New Mexico should contact their high school principal or:

THE WAY

The why

MEREDITH KEETON
STUDENT COLUMNIST

It's 10:30 in the morning and just beginning to warm up. The street is virtually empty, which is good considering we will be racing up and down the Upper Canyon hills at speeds that I don't really like to think about.

I remember when we used to get up early and I would skate down to Emily's house, where we would both put on our skating clothes. Shortly after we got ready and filled our water bottles, we would hurry into town to go blading on the smooth new sidewalks.

That was the perfect kind of day. We would spend most of it skating, and when we got tired we would put on our shoes and go sit in the coffee shop drinking iced lattes and Irish cream shakes.

We got warmed up on a flatter part of the road, and the cars start coming. Most of the drivers stare and make sure to pull way out away from us when they pass by, but some seem to think that it's fun to send us diving off the road in fear of being run over.

People ask us why we don't just wait until the skate park is finished, but the answer is simple: we are addicted. Since the first time I put on skates in the fifth grade I was hooked, and I've gotten Emily into it too.

We love in-line skating. The feeling of having the only suitable place in Ruidoso — Midtown — taken away from us because of someone else's mistakes is indescribable.

I've heard a lot of bad things about the skate park already. "It's asphalt. It squishes when you step on it," one unhappy skater said.

I wonder how the people who planned it could have overlooked that. When asphalt gets hot it gets sticky, which ruins wheels. Personally, I would rather continue skating on the mountainous, potentially dangerous road near my house than go to the skate park and ruin my wheels. They're not exactly cheap. I really "thank" those who were involved with the decision between concrete and asphalt. The village government saved money, but we won't.

We skate for a couple of hours and escape the heat by heading down to Emily's house. So here we are. No more smooth sidewalks. No more iced lattes at In-espresso-ble. No more freedom to exercise our bodies in a way that is fun.

I wonder if the merchants who thought we looked had in Midtown will think we look any better when we are overweight and bored sitting in Midtown eating greasy French fries. I wonder if they will remember how much fun they took away from us, how much we loved skating, and mostly how harmless we were. I wonder if they will think of where we are now.

They used the argument that it was unsafe for us to skate in Midtown, that we could be in danger, but I guess they just don't realize how dangerous this is.

I will continue to skate here. There is simply nothing that could ever replace the feeling you get when you conquer a killer jump or finally make it up that big hill. The wind around you, the scenery flashing by, the amazing feeling of gliding...it's not something that they can take away. If nothing else, we can always remember how wonderful it used to be...

Starlite Montessori granted new license

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Starlite Montessori has received a temporary 120-day license to operate as a preschool and not a day care center, attorney Alan Morel said yesterday.

The Department of Children, Youth and Family (CYF) has granted the license. It is effective Tuesday, Sept. 5, Morel said.

CYF Secretary Heather Wilson held a public meeting in Ruidoso on Aug. 17. At that meeting, Wilson said she will work to have the school open by Sept. 8.

The controversy over licensing arose after CYF officials tried to make Starlite Montessori conform to a 1987 law requiring the school to be licensed as a day care center, because children under the age of five attend.

Starlite offers its educational curriculum to children from three to six years old. It is classified as a preschool by the American Montessori Society in New York City and on its state occupancy license.

"It's going to be licensed as a preschool, not a day care center," Morel said. "And we will be able to serve up to 20 children."

Morel praised the cooperation of the state officials in helping obtain the license.

"I've never had cooperation from a state agency like I've had from these people," he said. "They've bent over backwards to help us and they're to be applauded."

CRIMESTOPPERS "CRIME OF THE WEEK"

The Ruidoso-Lincoln County Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest and Grand Jury indictment or Magistrate Court Bindover of the person or persons who committed this crime or any other unsolved felony crime in Lincoln County. Let's work together to call a stop to crime.
Phone 257-4545

The New Mexico State Legislature has passed an amendment to the penalties for persons who commit the crime of graffiti, effective July 1st, 1995. This new law states that whoever commits the crime of graffiti to real or personal property when the damage is greater than one thousand dollars is guilty of a fourth degree felony and shall be required to perform one hundred-sixty hours of community service within a continuous eight month period immediately following his/her conviction and shall be required to make restitution to the property owner for the cost of damages and restoration as a condition of probation or following any term of incarceration as a condition of parole. A fourth degree felony as defined in New Mexico State statute is any crime punishable by eighteen months in a state penal institution, a five thousand dollar fine, or both. Don't allow your participation in this senseless crime ruin your future. Remember the Crimestoppers phone line is manned 24 hours a day seven days a week. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545.

This is Chief Larry Maddox, for the Ruidoso Police Department, urging you to be a crimestopper!

The 37th running of the All American Futurity will be televised on the NASHVILLE NETWORK as part of a one-hour special entitled "TNN's All American Celebration." The program airs twice, first at 7 p.m. CDT and then at 11 p.m. CDT.

Shake The Bank

Qualifying Time: 21.470
Trainer: Juan Gonzalez
Jockey: Henry Garcia
Owners: Hector Roldan and Ramiro Alpizar, Mexico City, Mexico

SHAKE THE BANK: Undeclared filly ran the co-fastest qualifying time with her 1 1/4 length victory in the first division of the trials...Arrived at Ruidoso Downs July 31 after winning four straight races, including two futurities, at the Hipodromo de Las Americas in Mexico City...After her hometown success her owners believed she deserved a chance to "run with the best," so they paid the $50,000 supplemental fee to make her eligible for the All American. She is the first All American qualifier to have raced in Mexico.

OWNERS: Mexico City residents Hector Roldan and Ramiro Alpizar form the Serpino Cuadra (Spanish for stable) partnership.

JOCKEY: Henry Garcia rode Shake the Bank for the first time in the trials. A winner of more than 1,000 quarter horse races, including 47 stakes and nearly $10 million in earnings, Garcia finished second in the 1993 All American with Heza Fast Man.

TRAINER: Juan Gonzalez took over the training responsibilities from Antonio Otero, her conditioner in Mexico.

Winalota Cash

Qualifying time: 21.47
Owner: Andra Meridith, Odessa, Texas
Trainer: Gregg Sanders
Jockey: Billy Peterson

WINALOTA CASH: Hopped at the start in the All American Trials and was at least a length behind the leaders early on before rallying strongly to win by 2 3/4-lengths, the largest margin of victory in the 18 trial divisions...His time tied Shake The Bank as the fastest of the day.

OWNER: "This horse is like a miracle, like a gift from God. We've been in the horse business for 13 years and he's the best one we've ever had," said Jamie Meridith, husband of owner Andra. The Meridith's acquired Winalota Cash from trainer Roy "Cotton" Barrington by trading a couple of horses and paying $6,000 cash.

TRAINER: Gregg Sanders is currently ranked ninth in the Ruidoso Downs quarter horse trainer standings with seven victories...Has qualified for six futurities this year, three with Winalota Cash.

JOCKEY: Billy Peterson first came to Ruidoso Downs last summer and ranked among the top in both the quarter horse and thoroughbred standings...A Utah native, Peterson came to Sunland Park in the fall of 1993 to ride there and also complete a bachelor's degree in Business Administration at the University of Texas-El Paso. He will graduate this December with a 3.9 grade point average.

Winners Dash

Qualifying Time: 21.55
Trainer: James McArthur
Jockey: Tami Purcell
Owner: Jerry Windham, College Station, Texas

WINNERS DASH: Ran the third-fastest qualifying time in the trials, taking the second of 18 divisions by a length...Has won three of her six lifetime starts...Qualified for the Rainbow Futurity and was fifth in the finals to Feet Down First, another filly trained by McArthur.

TRAINER: James McArthur, a 54-year-old native of El Paso, has two previous All American Winners — Easy Date in 1974 and Eastex in 1984. He won the Rainbow Futurity in July with Feet Down First, who has been sidelined by injury... "Winners Dash is all heart," says McArthur. "I think she's a little better, stronger, and more seasoned than she was for the Rainbow and the trials. But this is really tough, tough, race," added McArthur.

JOCKEY: This is the first All American mount for Tami Purcell. The 35-year-old native of Dripping Springs, Texas is quarter horse racing's all-time leading female rider, and has won more than 1,346 races.

OWNER: Jerry Windham is one of the country's leading owners and breeders of quarter horses, and has bred the earners of more than $1.2 million...Winners Dash is his first All American qualifier.

Fishers Dash

Qualifying time: 21.57
Owner: Vessel's Stallion Farm
Trainer: Danny Cardoza
Jockey: Kenny Hart

FISHERS DASH: Will attempt to join A Classic Dash (1993) as the second California-based juvenile to win the All American this decade...Dominated his trial foes by 1 1/2-lengths over a good track during a rainstorm in his first start at Ruidoso.

OWNER: The Vessel's Family founded Los Alamitos Race Course in the 1950s and is one of the most prominent families in quarter horse racing.

TRAINER: Trainer Danny Cardoza, a former jockey, rode Pie In The Sky to victory in the 1979 All American and will attempt to become the first person in history to win the All American as both a jockey and trainer...He rode a total of 10 All American starters with his first mount coming in 1977 and last in 1992.

JOCKEY: Jockey Kenny Hart qualified three horses to the All American this year, but chose to ride Fishers Dash...His friendship with Cardoza dates back to 1969 at Los Alamitos where they duelled for two decades as the top riders in the jockey colony...At the age of 47, Hart is regarded as one of the greatest quarter horse riders of all-time.

Cash-On Deposit

Qualifying Time: 21.650
Owners: R.D. and Linda Matthews, Dallas, Texas

JOCKEY: Kip Didericksen
TRAINER: C. Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath
CASH ON DEPOSIT: Fifth-fastest qualifier with his length victory over Kelley's Merger in the third division. Was sent off at 26-1 odds in the trials, the biggest longshot to win that day...Had some close seconds in four prior starts and ran on Lasix for the first time in the trials.

TRAINER: C. Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath, who also qualified Six Delights.

JOCKEY: Kip Didericksen won the 1990 All American for Gilbreath with multiple champion Refrigerator and is one of quarter horse racing's all-time leading jockeys...The 29-year-old veteran made a comeback this June, returning from a 2 1/2 year health-induced retirement because weight problems. The first week of his comeback he won the Ruidoso Derby aboard Ronas Sound for Gilbreath.

OWNER: R.D. and Linda Matthews of Dallas, Texas, have raced and bred Quarter Horses since 1979 and this is their first All American Qualifier. "It feels very good to have finally qualified a horse for the All American. I'm elated. We've tried hard, and we've had some good horses. But we've never had this happen," Matthews said.

Six Delights

Qualifying Time: 21.665
Trainer: C. Dwayne "Sleepy" Gilbreath
Jockey: Sam Thompson
Owner: Mary and Jack Evans, Jr., Allen, Texas

SIX DELIGHTS: Talled his first win in five starts with his 3/4 length victory and sixth fastest qualifying time in the fourth trial...Qualified for both the Ruidoso and Rainbow Consolations. "I think he could have won the Ruidoso Consolation," says trainer Gilbreath. "But he got run over right out of the gate."

TRAINER: Gilbreath already has two All American trophies. He won in 1990 with world champion Refrigerator, and in 1983 with longshot On A High, who tied for the 10th-fastest qualifying time that year and won the shake to get into the field...Gilbreath also qualified Cash on Deposit for this year's All American, and will saddle three starters in Sunday's All American Derby (Six Cantu, Ima Jewel Dash and Kubi Kubi).

OWNER: Jack and Mary Evans have owned and bred quarter horses for 25 years and Six Delights will be their first All American starter. The Evans' live in Allen, Texas, about 25 miles north of Dallas. "This colt is real special," says Mary. "He's followed me since he was a baby. I always said that I knew he was going to run."

JOCKEY: Sam Thompson qualified both Six Delights and Cash On Deposit for the All American...This is Thompson's first year of regular riding at Ruidoso Downs, and his first mount in the All American.

Some Swinger

Qualifying time: 21.67
Owner: G.C. Broughton Jr., Big Spring, Texas
Trainer: Richard Fry
Jockey: Chris Zamora

SOME SWINGER: Both he and Winalota Cash share the honor of being the most experienced horses in the field with eight career starts to their credit...Ran a close second to co-fastest qualifier Shake The Bank in the first trial division and qualified with the sixth fastest time... "He is the most solid horse in my barn. He's not the most talented, but he doesn't make mistakes. He got sick in the middle of the summer and the trials helped him a bunch," said trainer Fry.

OWNER: G.C. Broughton, Jr., has only owned quarter horses for two years after spending over 15 years in the thoroughbred business...Is a member of the Ruidoso Downs Jockey Club...Is currently a farmer, but has previously owned banks and a John Deere Dealership.

TRAINER: Both Fry and jockey Zamora will attempt to win the All American for the second consecutive year after capturing the 1994 edition with Noblesse Six...Graduated from Tarleton State University in Stephenville, Texas with a degree in agriculture and a minor in mathematics...Was a math teacher at Gatesville (Texas) High School until 1979 when he began training full-time.

JOCKEY: Has been one of the most successful jockeys in New Mexico for the last 10 years...Is the son of Albuquerque-based trainer Felix Zamora. His wife, Jamie, who also grew up in the racing business, is his agent. Rides both quarter horses and thoroughbreds and ranks seventh on thoroughbreds with 19 wins and fourth on quarter horses with 17 tallies, which ranks him near the top in the combined standings.

Naturally A Winner

Qualifying time: 21.69
Owner: Ernest S. Bess, Palestine, Texas
Trainer: John Goodman
Jockey: Qualified by Ken Hart
NATURALLY A WINNER: Is one of three supplements in this year's race and is the least experienced with only three career starts and earnings of $3,660. He is also the only other undefeated horse in the All American along with Shake The Bank...Was a $5,500 yearling purchase at last year's Heritage Place Yearling Sale.

OWNER: "We supplemented this horse because after his second start, Kenny Hart told us he could be the fastest 2-year-old he'd ever been on," said part-owner Don Bess, father of primary owner Ernest S. Bess who resides in Palestine, Texas. Jim Johnson of Brownsville, Texas, paid the $50,000 supplement and now owns one-third of Naturally A Winner.

TRAINER: Goodman, 55, is the only conditioner in history to saddle a Triple Crown Winner. He accomplished the feat with Special Effort in 1961...Also won the All American in 1980 with Higheaster-Jet...Last qualified a horse to the All American two years ago with Shiny Dancer, who finished seventh.

JOCKEY: Undecided.

Western Heart

Qualifying Time: 21.695
Trainer: John Bassett
Jockey: Qualified by Luke Myles
Owners: R.D. Hubbard and Edward C. Allred

WESTERN HEART: Was the ninth-fastest qualifier, winning the 14th division of the trials...Was bred by R.D. Hubbard and purchased by Allred for $72,000 at the 1994 Ruidoso Select Yearling Sale. Will enter but will not run in the All American Final because he suffered a fractured cannon bone in his right front leg during the trials...Is expected to return as a 3-year-old.

OWNERS: R.D. Hubbard and Edward C. Allred have owned several horses in partnership, including Quick Fun, runner-up to Refrigerator in the 1990 All American. Their last starter in the race was Cowboys Rodeo, ninth to A Royal Quick Dash in 1991.

Evening Snow

Qualifying Time: 21.70
Owner: Abigail K. Kawanakoa, Honolulu, Hawaii
Jockey: Luke Myles
Trainer: John Bassett

EVENING SNOW: Scored an upset in the Rainbow Futurity Consolation and then came back to win the 15th division of the All American Trials in 21.70 over a slow track...The 10th-fastest qualifying time was the second straight win for the Oklahoma-bred, who is now peaking after recovering from a hock injury earlier in the summer.

OWNER: Abigail Kawanakoa was the 1994 A.Q.H.A. Champion Owner. She won the 1993 All American with A Classic Dash, who now stands at Double Bar/S Ranch in Moreno Valley, Calif.

JOCKEY: Luke Myles, a 44-year-old native of Hugo, Okla., is looking for his first All American victory after five previous tries...His first was in 1971 aboard ninth-place finisher Stormy Man, while his last was in 1991 with Leaving Memories. Myles picked up the mount on Evening Snow after Western Heart, the horse he rode in the trials, was scratched because of injury.

TRAINER: John Bassett came to Ruidoso Downs for the first time in 1983, saddling Heza Fast Man, runner-up to Winalota Cash in the All American A Classic Dash was also owned by Kawanakoa, who Bassett started training for her this year.

Purcell gets the ride of her life from horse racing

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer
It was quite by accident that Tami Purcell became a quarter horse jockey — let alone the top female in the sport.

She was training to be a firefighter in the cadet academy for the City of Austin while working as a computer programmer, when Purcell made a contact at Manor Downs Racetrack that would change her life.

"I was looking for a place to put my barrel racing horse when I ran into some people that had racehorses," recalls the Dripping Springs, Texas native.

Purcell kept her horse at Manor Downs, and then started helping with the racehorses.

"The next thing I knew I was galloping a horse. Then I was working a horse. Then I gated a horse. And then I decided I wanted to ride a race," Purcell says. She got to the point to where she could ride a few races.

And then what?
"The next thing I knew I was quitting my job and going full-time to Trinity Meadows (Race track)," Purcell recalls with a laugh. "It happened really fast."

It didn't take Purcell long to ride her first winning mount at Trinity Meadows. She won her first race there on a horse named Smooth Talker.

She's been racing ever since — and winning her share of races. This 15-year veteran of racing is the leading female jockey in quarter horse racing, with more than 1,800 career victory rides.

Purcell hopes to add another victory Monday when she rides Winners Dash in the All American Futurity. If she directs Winners Dash to victory, Purcell would be the first female jockey to win quarter horse racing's richest sprint.

"I feel real good about her," Purcell says of Winners Dash. "I like her and she's my shot."

The 2-year-old filly, who ran in the Rainbow Futurity, was the trials' third-fastest qualifier with a time of 21.550 seconds.

Even though this will be her first All American Futurity, Purcell would rather not speculate on what it would be like to win.

"My main hope is that it's a clean race for everybody," Purcell says.

She'll ride in Houston today and Friday before arriving in Ruidoso for the weekend. Purcell will ride in the All American Derby consolation Saturday. She will be in the irons of First Down Leveaux in the All American Derby finals Sunday, and then ride Winners Dash Labor Day.

It's not often she gets to ride in Ruidoso, a place she describes as "the ultimate place to ride" because of its tradition. She races mostly in Texas and Louisiana.

At 5-foot-1 and 108 pounds, Purcell has to admit she's better built for racing than firefighting (by the way, she did pass her firefighter's test). The 35-year-old says she doesn't need to diet or sit in a sauna to keep her weight down.

"I eat three meals plus. I eat healthy," Purcell says.

Fifteen years of gymnastics and barrel racing from grade school through high school gave Purcell the flexibility and power to handle racehorses, which range in weight from 900 to 1,300 pounds.

Although she's ridden both quarter horses and thoroughbreds, Purcell prefers the former.

"I started out with quarter horses and that's my first love, but I have a big respect for thoroughbreds," Purcell says.

She enjoys the different challenges thoroughbred and quarter horse racing present. The challenge of thoroughbred racing is setting up the race, Purcell says. The sheer speed of quarter horse racing is the challenge that attracts her to the sprints.

"In quarter horse racing, there's no time for mistakes, whereas in thoroughbred, if there is a mistake, sometimes you can overcome it," Purcell relates. "It's important (in quarter horse racing) to leave the gate good, get away, get out of trouble. There's no recovery time if you don't."

This season Purcell has been riding mostly for James and Donna McArthur. She qualified three mounts for the Rainbow Futurity and ended up riding Feet Down First to victory in the finals.

How does she decide which horse to ride?

"It's very difficult (to choose)," she admits. Purcell says the first thing she looks for is how well a horse pulls up after a race, and then she considers the horse's times and how it's been doing throughout the season.

Tami Purcell, the nation's leading female quarter horse jockey, won the Rainbow Futurity aboard Feet Down First. She'll ride Winners Dash in Monday's All American Futurity.

"Are they (the horses) staying at this level? Are they getting better, or are they tapering off?" Purcell notes of each horse. Finally, she considers what horse she clicks with the best.

Purcell is married to Keith Fontenot, a former rodeo clown who is now a chemical company salesman. They met when Purcell kept beating a racehorse Fontenot co-owned with a friend.

"My home base is out of the black suitcase that I have. That's about as homely as I get," Purcell says. Purcell and Fontenot make their home in Baton Rouge, La. Fontenot's support and the encouragement of her family keep Purcell going.

"You compete in this business for so long, you can get very tired. The road gets very grueling," Purcell says. "He's been my second, third and fourth wind. He's been wonderful."

But does she have any regrets?
"I have been all over the country. I've met some fantastic, wonderful people, and I've learned a lot — maybe more in my early years of racing than people learn in their lifetime," Purcell says.

She does wish she could spend more time with her family, but adds, "I hate to ever even say I regret anything. I've been fortunate. I plan to continue riding as long as I stay healthy... I'm sure I'll always be on the back of a horse somewhere."

Prep football teams seek improvement in second games

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports
Ruidoso football coach Les Carter is not sure how his Warriors will stack up pound-for-pound or inch-for-inch against his team's next opponent, Gadsden High School. Nor does he know the names of the Panthers' starting quarterback or returning running backs.

But that's because Carter has yet to receive a roster or football program from Ruidoso's Friday night opponent.

What Carter does know about Gadsden is based on scouting reports, and it's enough to have the second-year coach confident heading into the home opener Friday night.

The Panthers fell to El Paso Cathedral, 19-6, in the opener for both those teams Aug. 25. In that game, Carter's scouts saw a team that is not nearly as quick as the Warriors.

Speed to contain the Panthers and executing the fundamentals will be the keys to a Warrior victory.

"If we tackle well, which we didn't do very much of last week (against Artesia), we'll be all right," Carter said.

The Warriors also must handle the Gadsden front line to be successful tomorrow night.

Expect Ruidoso to be ready to play right from the opening kickoff. The Warriors had a sluggish start in their season-opening 34-8 loss to Artesia, Aug. 25.

"They learned you just can't wait. You've got to start playing from the beginning, not just the second half," Carter said.

The Ruidoso coach has noticed his players are taking "things in practice more seriously." It's been a good week of practice for the Warriors, he said.

The Warriors are healthy with the exception of offensive linemen Erik Kukuska and Shane Reidhead. Kukuska is nursing a bad back and will see limited playing time Friday night. Reidhead will be sidelined with an injured leg.

Gadsden, which competes in District 3AAAA, is coached by Mike Davis, who is in his second year at GHS. Ruidoso is in District 3AAA, a district for smaller schools.

The Panthers finished 0-10 last year, including a 19-6 loss to the Warriors. Fullback Joaquin Olguin and running back Alex Segura return to anchor the backfield for Gadsden. Carter said the Panthers' quarterback has a good arm, and he can throw the ball well and far.

On defense, Gadsden will play a straight four-man front with three linebackers.
Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

PREP FOOTBALL MATCHUP

Tatum
at Capitan
7:30 p.m. Kickoff

Capitan takes on a young but speedy Tatum Coyote football team Friday night at home.

The Tigers (1-0) are coming off a 37-0 thrashing of Hatch Valley last week. Despite the convincing victory, Tiger coach Ed Davis has concerns about the team.

Capitan has its largest-ever class of senior players, but the Tigers are playing different positions from last year. Offensive timing was out of sync against the Bears, and Davis said the team needs to work on its execution this week in practice.

Davis said the Coyotes are well-coached by Mel Holland. Holland's team has lots of speed — more than Capitan, Davis added.

Tatum finished 5-5 last year and returns only seven letterwinners and three starters from that team.

Junior running backs Sky Jones and Stewart Graham lead the Coyotes' offensive attack. They will try to get outside the line and run wide on the Tigers.

Wright, Grizzlies get second chance in 'Zozo

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer
After the travesty of last year's Carrizozo football season, the prospects for fielding a team in 1985 looked bleak at best.

The Grizzlies program was in a shambles. The school barely had enough players to field a team. Its only victory came by forfeit. Players had to walk off the field at halftime during their game against rival Capitan.

It was not a pretty sight.
I was at the Capitan/Carrizozo football game last fall. After watching the first half and seeing the condition of the 'Zozo players, I was thankful the Grizzlies didn't take the field for the second half.

As the Capitan crowd cavorted and celebrated the victory, I watched the demoralized 'Zozo team and couldn't help but empathize with them. I didn't feel sorry for them — there was no pity involved — I just felt like they deserved better.

Now let's go back to the end of the boys basketball season in Ruidoso. First-year coach Sid Wright is forced to resign from the head coaching position less than 12 hours before the Warriors' opening-round district playoff game with Cobra.

The boys basketball program at Ruidoso wasn't in a shambles, but some thought it was. Wright had taken a team that was routinely pounded by 20, 30 and even 40 points the year before, to a team that was respectable on the court.

But the team's players had to be confused. Running New around town — as they do in Ruidoso — about who was really calling the shots for the Warriors, or who school administrators really wanted to be calling the shots.

From the Bench

LAURA CLYMER
SPORTS REPORTER

From my perspective, it was a classic case of the ends justify the means. Was anyone really surprised when Ben Sanchez was named head coach for this year? Sanchez was their man and they were going to get him in the head coaching spot one way or another, regardless of Wright's performance as a coach.

Why they couldn't wait until the season was completely over, I'll never know. It would've been the proper thing to do.

Like the 'Zozo football team, I empathize with Wright, too. I didn't feel sorry for him. I just empathize with him.

For this reason, I suppose it's ironic that Wright has ended up coaching at Carrizozo this year, where he's trying to rejuvenate a football program.

The Grizzlies won't be playing 11-man football when they open the season in El Paso Saturday at Northeastern Christian Academy. They will be playing the six-man version.

Six-man football is fast-paced and exciting, Wright says. It's also high-scoring, which appeals to Wright, whose cage teams pressed and ran the fastbreak whenever possible. I'm looking forward to seeing six-man for the first time.

Size is not as important as speed and quickness in six-man. The field is smaller than a regulation-size football field. It's 80 yards long by 40 yards wide. Every offensive player is eligible for a pass, even the three down linemen. You have to get 15 yards for a first down. A field goal is worth four points instead of three points.

"This is a running game because it's just wide open," Wright says.

After a shaky start — Wright initially had only eight players signed up — the Grizzlies' roster has grown to 15. Wright expects another two or three players to join the squad. Numbers are good in the lower level programs as well.

Despite some in the community who wanted Carrizozo to play 11-man football this year, the decision to play six-man was in the best interest of the students.

"If you don't have 25 healthy kids, you're kidding yourself if you want to play 11-man," Wright says.

Carrizozo scrimmaged five-time state champion Mountainair Saturday and won. The Grizzlies racked up 270 yards of offense, scoring offensive touchdowns, a defensive touchdown, a safety and a field goal.

The town is excited about the success of the team. More and more of them are watching practices from their cars. A school that not many expected to field a football has not only fielded a team but, judging by their scrimmage, fielded a pretty darn good one.

The successful scrimmage is a positive sign for both the Grizzlies and Wright — a pair deserving of a second chance.

Who do I feel empathy for now? No one. I just feel sorry for the kids in last year's Ruidoso boys basketball programs. They were taught the false lesson that the end justify the means. It simply doesn't.

Capitan's girls volleyball team opens the 1985 season tomorrow when they host Tatum in a non-district match. Joann Chris Worrell and Stacy Cowan team together to block a kill attempt during a scrimmage game against Goddard's junior varsity team Saturday.

LINCOLN COUNTY SCRAPBOOK

A glimpse into Lincoln County's past, compiled by Polly E. Chavez with excerpts from "A History of Lincoln County Post Offices."

Hondo

Recorded history of the Hondo Post Office began in 1900 when John S. Williams was postmaster. Mail sacks were first used to carry the mail from Roswell to Carrizozo. Horses were changed several times each way.

Hondo is not only at the junction of two main highways (U.S. 70 and U.S. 380), it is at the junction of two rivers as well, the Rio Ruidoso and the Rio Bonito.

No one seems to know why the name "Hondo" was chosen. Some of the oldtimers say that it was originally known as "La Junta," meaning "meeting" or "joining."

Perhaps in the process of mispronunciation, the word "hondo" evolved. On the other hand, perhaps the site was named for the crossing on the Rio Bonito, which was deep and difficult to cross by vehicle (in Spanish, deep means "hondo").

Hondo has several celebrity boxholders, including TV news commentator Sam Donaldson,

Man sought for allegedly trying to shoot Ruidoso Downs stepfather

by DON HIXON
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Police are still looking for a man who allegedly fired two shots at his Ruidoso Downs stepfather Aug. 24.

Manuel Berela, 20, was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. The charge carries a maximum penalty of three years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Berela's stepfather, Alexander Skoropad, 46, returned to his home at the Willow Tree Trailer Park after work at 2:30 a.m. Aug. 24 to find Berela in Skoropad's bed with a gun, according to a report by Ruidoso Downs police officer Todd Cullers. Skoropad allegedly told his stepson to "get her the hell out of my house."

Berela then allegedly grabbed a .44 caliber pistol loaded with five rounds, pointed it at Skoropad, and a struggle for the gun ensued, the report says.

As the two men struggled on the bed, the pistol was fired twice. One shot went through the wall and lodged in the porch, and the other bullet went through the floor and into the ground, the police report says.

Berela's mother Rhonda then grabbed the gun and put it under the bed, the report says.

Skoropad went to the Ruidoso

Downs Police station to report the incident at approximately 2:55 a.m.

Downs police officer Todd Cullers, backed up with two Ruidoso police units, then went to the trailer park but Berela was gone, the report says. Police recovered the gun and ammunition at the house.

Berela is five feet six inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and has black hair and black eyes. Police don't know where he lives.

If anyone has information about Berela's whereabouts, they are asked to contact the Ruidoso Downs Police Department at 378-4001.

Judge finds probable cause for heroin charges against two men

The case of two Ruidoso men arrested last weekend for allegedly trafficking cocaine was bound over to district court Tuesday morning.

Magistrate Court Judge William Butts found probable cause for felony charges against Zeke Duran, 39, and Leonard Padilla, 45.

Both men pleaded innocent to charges of trafficking a controlled substance with intent to distribute, a second-degree felony punishable by 6-12 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Because Padilla has a former drug trafficking conviction against him, the above charge could be elevated to a first-degree felony if he is convicted, police said. A first-degree felony is punishable by 12-24 years in prison.

Duran and Padilla also pleaded innocent to charges of conspiracy to traffic and distribute illegal drugs, a third-degree felony punishable by 2-4 years in prison, and misdemeanor charges of possession of drug paraphernalia.

The two men are still being held at the Lincoln County Jail. They've been locked up since Aug. 19 when Ruidoso drug agent Pete Esquibel and Ruidoso Downs Police Chief David Hightower allegedly found about a gram of black tar heroin in Duran's car. The drugs were allegedly wrapped in 20 separate pieces of tin foil, police said.

The officers also found a recorder in the car that taped Duran's and Padilla's conversation just before the bust on a Ruidoso Downs street. On the tape, the men could allegedly be heard saying in Spanish, "the cops are here," and "hide the heroin," Esquibel said.

Historical marker honors All American

Ruidoso Downs Racetrack will be honored Friday, Sept. 1 for establishing the All American Futurity, American quarter horse racing's richest event. This prestigious event was first held in 1959.

For this accomplishment, Ruidoso Downs will be presented with an American Quarter Horse Historical Marker. This is only the second marker to be dedicated. The first went to the Texas Cowboy Rodeo and Reunion in Stamford, Texas, site of the first AQHA-approved show.

The Historical Marker Program is a new, educational outreach project administered by the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center and Museum on behalf of the American Quarter Horse Foundation in Amarillo, Texas.

Winning the first running of the All-American Futurity in 1959 was Galobar, a two-year-old sorrel filly out of Josephine R and by the famed sire, Three Bars. She was ridden by jockey Cliff Lambert. Galobar won an impressive $125,000 for running 400 yards in the All American Futurity, and was named the High Money Earning Horse that same year. Today, participants in the All American Futurity race for a purse in excess of $1 million.

American Quarter Horse racing is conducted at more than 110 tracks throughout North America, with total purses reaching some $50 million. In addition, horse racing ranks among the top spectator sports in America.

More than 3.3 million horses are registered with the American Quarter Horse Association, the world's largest equine breed registry. AQHA's international headquarters are located in Amarillo, Texas. The next Historical Marker dedication will recognize Hacienda Moltacua, on Sunday, Sept. 10, in Tucson, Ariz.

For information call 808/376-5181.

Elegant ball marks end of racing season

The annual All American Ball at the Museum of the Horse will be held Sunday.

The ball honors the finalists in the 37th running of the Grade I All American Futurity, the world's richest quarter horse race. Each year the finest two-year-old quarter horses in the nation compete in front of the crowds at Ruidoso Downs Race Track with hopes of joining the elite ranks of the All American Futurity finalists.

Only the top 10 finest and fastest horses will break from the gates in the All American Futurity. In that 21-second dash down the track, only one lucky horse owner will become a millionaire.

Tickets to the ball are selling quickly. They may be purchased at Ruidoso Downs Race Track or the Museum of the Horse for $60 per person.

For the first time in years, reserved tables of six and eight are also available. However, there are only a few left so interested parties should act now.

As in years past, the evening will include dancing to the music of the crowd-pleasing Wichita Linemen and a dinner buffet. A video tribute to the All American Futurity finalists will be shown, and a humorous tribute will be made to the jockeys in the race.

The balls runs from 8 p.m. to midnight. For tickets and information, call 378-4431.

Public judges needlework

Talented local stitchery artists will compete for cash prizes in the 5th annual All American Needlework Fair at Stitch 'N' Stuff in Ruidoso this holiday weekend.

The creators of beautiful hand-stitched items will showcase their work while competing in three categories: needlepoint, crossstitch and crochet/knitting.

Prizes for each category are $50 for first place, $25 for second place and a $10 gift certificate for third place. There will also be a grand prize of $100.

The public is cordially invited to be the judges of the competition from Friday through Sunday. The winners will be announced at 10 a.m. on Labor Day by Stitch 'N' Stuff, located at 2306 Sudderth in the Village Plaza.

For information call 257-9428.

New novel revolves around local Futurity mystique

Author Margaret Falk went inside the quarter horse racing industry to write her latest novel, "Dark Horse."

Appropriately, Falk will host book-signing sessions in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs on the weekend of the All American Futurity, a main topic of her book.

Falk particularly enjoyed exploring the world of quarter horse racing set against the pine-clad backdrop of Ruidoso. She describes this town as a place where she says wealthy women buy their denim, diamonds and lace at pricey boutiques while down-and-out trainers dig a dollar out of their jeans for doughnuts and coffee in styrofoam cups.

A former horse owner, Falk admits her experience with horses did little to prepare her for racing.

"It's another world," she says. "There are so many factors: what distance the horse should run, what class he should run with, and then you have to hope that the racing secretary will write that perfect race for him."

But "Dark Horse," coopting the top fraction of quarter horses, the ones who by breeding, talent, financial backing and luck beat out the multitude of other hopefuls for 10 spots in the All American Futurity, with a winner's share of $1 million.

Falk wondered what would happen if a person got a horse to the All American, only to discover on the eve of the Futurity that the animal was an impostor and would have to be scratched. Her book's character, Dakota McAllister, is the only one who knows the truth about her filly, and she knows that this race will salvage her late father's tarnished memory. Add to the mix a dangerous sociopath who wants Dakota dead, and has killed before.

To learn about this high-stakes sport, Falk followed racehorse trainer Zip Peterson as he traveled the racing circuit from Arizona to New Mexico.

Falk first met Peterson at Rillito Race Track in Tucson, Ariz. Falk went to the race office and asked them to link her up with a racehorse trainer. They found her the perfect match in Peterson, who trained All American Futurity starter Contessa Cash in 19898.

The book is published by Zebra Books.

Call to Post Brunch at Downs racetrack Friday

Ruidoso Downs Race Track will host the Call to Post Brunch Friday.

The American Quarter Horse Association will unveil and dedicate a new historical marker at 10:45 a.m. on the ground floor of the grandstand just outside the general offices.

This historical marker honors the All American Futurity and its role in American quarter horse history. Along with Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Hubbard, AQHA dignitaries will be on hand for the event.

Following the dedication ceremony, guests will go upstairs to the Turf Club on the third floor to witness the official drawing of post positions for the All American Futurity qualifiers.

The public will also have the opportunity to meet the owners, trainers and jockeys of the 10 finalists for the world's richest quarter horse race.

Admission to the dedication and brunch is $12 per person. The events are open to the public. The ticket price includes general parking, the buffet brunch and reservations in the Turf Club for those who wish to stay and enjoy a day of racing.

Tickets may be purchased in advance by contacting a Ruidoso Noon Optimists Club member or by calling the general offices at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

Flat, asphalt slab isn't skateboard park

We were sitting back, waiting for the Village of Ruidoso to finish its skateboard park, when we found out it may already be finished.

It's just a flat, asphalt slab right now. Apparently, village officials are having trouble getting a company to insure anything more, because companies fear someone could get hurt if ramps are installed.

Hopefully, village officials will move quickly to find an insurance company willing to do what they were created to do. Lloyd's of London is often a last resort. An asphalt slab just won't do.

When we advocated starting with a small-scale skateboard park, in an editorial earlier this summer, we didn't mean something on that small of a scale. How can you have a skateboard park that's flat? And on top of that, skateboarders say asphalt is awful on their wheels. Why didn't somebody find this out before it was too late?

It seems unfair that skateboarders have been banned from downtown since July 18, but still have nothing to even remotely replace their favorite haunt. We recall councilors saying it was unfair to take something away without offering an alternative.

GUEST COMMENTARY

Lincoln County UFO show crashes on TV

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Big-headed alien or crash test dummy? I had to conclude the latter after watching "Alien Autopsy; Fact or Fiction," on T.V. Monday.

The "docu-drama" examines purported new evidence about the possibility of a flying saucer crash in eastern Lincoln County in 1947.

The program was promoted as an attempt to shed light on the controversy surrounding reports of a unidentified flying object (UFO) that allegedly crashed with three aliens aboard. The crash has become known as "The Roswell Incident."

The military continues to claim that the craft was simply a sophisticated weather balloon.

Hosted by Jonathan Frakes (Riker, or "Number One," on the television series "Star Trek: The Next Generation"), the show had black and white film footage of a humanoid creature being autopsied.

Prefaced by warnings that the show contained graphic scenes, I promptly cooked myself a juicy steak and sat down to wait for revelations about mysterious visitors from another world.

The program says a small-time producer, seeking vintage movie footage of 50s rock-n-roll acts, was given a film of the autopsy of an alien. The source of the film is supposedly an 80-year-old former military photographer. Naturally, the superior ethics of the producer prevents him from telling us the filmmaker's identity.

Attempting to locate the former photographer, the producers of "Alien Autopsy" hire a detective. The shamus is obviously brilliant, because without explanation, he immediately announces that the filmmaker must live in Florida (I could only assume that he determined that everyone over the age of 80 lives in Florida).

With hidden camera in hand, the detective sets out to discover the filmmaker's identity. His confidence never wavers, even though all he can come up with is hidden camera pictures and an audio tape of a fella who says he once talked to another fella in a bar who told him he took pictures of aliens, but then wouldn't say anymore (perhaps because he passed out).

Now we all know that conversations in bars should always be taken as gospel. Thoroughly convinced in the authenticity of the film, I anxiously awaited the airing of some of those graphic scenes that I'd been warned about.

No such luck. First I had to listen to the stories of several people who had supposedly actually handled pieces of the crashed space vehicle, but were threatened with bodily harm or death if they ever breathed a word about it. Why they no longer fear retaliation is unexplained.

After more reminders of the graphic scenes still to come, I actually did feel a bit nauseated, mostly because of the attempt to make me believe that a crash-test dummy reject, with a big head and body cavity filled with jello and ground beef, was actually an extraterrestrial being.

Calling in a group of Hollywood special effects "experts" and film analysts, the program next sought to dispel any doubts still remaining about the autopsy's authenticity.

According to the film experts, because of a series of codes on the film, the reel containing the autopsy footage could have been from 1927, 1947 or 1967 (hey, that narrows it down by about 40 years). Then we see the special effects people studiously watching the grainy, out-of-focus footage, finally proclaiming it a "film we would have been proud to have produced" (now I really am feeling ill).

"I can't identify that," a medical doctor watching the autopsy proclaims about some of the goo in the dummy's body cavity, as if that's supposed to make me a believer.

Not to be skeptical, but when I see what looks like a dummy filled with a lot of unrecognizable organs, I'm not prepared to believe that it is the body of a man from space, much less proclaim it a masterpiece of filmmaking.

Frakes then gives us a lesson about the authentic dated look of the clock on the wall, the telephone and the medical instruments themselves. He offers fascinating insight such as, "You hardly see those kinds of trays anymore." (Ever hear of movie props Number One?)

In defense of the producers of "Alien Autopsy; Fact or Fiction," there was a sprinkling of comments from doubters.

"In my opinion it's an elaborate hoax," said one moviemaker, whose comment was followed by Frakes asking why anyone would perpetrate such a hoax.

Excuse me, but just take a gander at all of the speculative pseudo-scientific UFO books in any bookstore and the hundreds of docu-dramas on T.V. about the subject. It doesn't take a big-headed being from an advanced civilization to figure out why people do such things.

So I will wait for other, more compelling evidence that space aliens have visited our world. I think I have a hot lead from a fella I met just the other day at the Hollywood Bar.

POLICY

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed, however the author's hometown will be included. The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Letters should be 500 words or less, be of public interest and should avoid name-calling and libelous language. The Ruidoso News reserves the right to edit letters, as long as viewpoints are not altered. Shorter letters are preferred and generally receive greater readership.

Letters may be hand delivered to The News office at 104 Park Avenue or mailed to P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Election results were awesome

TO THE EDITOR:

AWESOME! is how I feel about the outcome of the recent bond election. It's great to work in a community that can come together and support critical issues for the betterment of their community.

As an employee of the Village of Ruidoso, I am responsible for overseeing two of the issues recently passed, the senior citizen center and the athletic fields. I encourage any citizens to call me if they have any concerns regarding those two issues.

On behalf of the staff of the Parks and Recreation Department, we would like to say "Thank You" to all the voters who voted yes in the recent bond election. We would also like to extend a special thanks to the Recreation Joint Powers committee, Ruidoso Little League Association, Lincoln County Youth Soccer Association, members of the Parks and Recreation Commission and Ruidoso Municipal Schools for all their support. Thank you. "Recreation is essential, recreation is life!"

Please write about HR1020 opposition

TO THE EDITOR:

Of interest to readers concerned with the Mescalero nuclear waste storage, be advised that I have ad-

Taylor, Executive Director for Operations of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

This expresses our opposition to the storage of commercial nuclear waste at Mescalero and hopefully will be disseminated to the NRC officials prior to the Aug. 30 meeting with representatives of the Mescalero Tribal Council.

Also mailed to them were official resolutions opposing nuclear waste storage in all of New Mexico from: the State of New Mexico, the Town of Carrizozo, the Village of Capitan, the City of Alamogordo, the Village of Ruidoso, the Village of Ruidoso Downs, the County of Otero and the County of Lincoln.

I received from the Nuclear Information and Resource Service the following sample letter which we request that readers copy and send to their representatives:

Please oppose House Resolution 1020 and any other legislation which would establish a centralized "interim" radioactive waste storage site. This bill would initiate the unprecedented and dangerous transportation of lethal high-level nuclear waste through 43 states and thousands of communities like mine.

It would squander the Nuclear Waste Fund without providing a permanent or safe solution, and would increase local taxes to pay for equipment to identify and respond to nuclear transportation accidents!

Artist brings skies indoors with pastels

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The rich color and texture of Peggy Jones' pastels bring the brilliance of Western skies inside to viewers.

"Some people just don't believe they are pastels," Jones said during an interview at her home in Ruidoso. "They have to go up and take a closer look. They're convinced the work is oil."

"I used to get a lot of flack because they didn't look like pastel."

The way she applies pastels is similar to oil painting. Jones uses her fingers and a heavy application of a buttery type of pastel that can be moved around the surface like paint.

She turned to pastels during a period in her life when she was busy raising a family, but driven to return to serious art.

"It was less expensive to buy the pastel materials than oil, pastels require less space, they're dry and non-toxic," Jones said. "My son was about two when I got into it. He drew on a couple of my works and was around the (pastel sticks) all the time."

Getting there

Her father told her she started drawing on top of the television set when she was three. She painted her first oil at five. Teachers bought her art work in high school.

Her mother viewed her talent as a gift from God and evidence of the creative genius of her father, who was an inventor, Jones said.

"I knew in second grade that's what I was meant to do," she said.

A teacher at her school encouraged her by allowing the young student to take home drawings to copy. While she still was in elementary school, her work was chosen for the Laguna Art Festival in California.

She left high school early, because she didn't fit in, Jones said. She found that the insulated creative life had left her unprepared for real life.

"I determined I had no training for the real world, no knowledge about how to get scholarships," she admitted.

To earn a living, she gave up fine art for graphics. She stayed away from pure art for 20 years.

She worked for newspapers in paste up and ad design, including the Los Angeles Times. At least three times as her husband followed one opportunity after another, she had to re-start her graphics career from scratch.

Moving was nothing new. Her father often uprooted her family. Jones' last stop in Ruidoso marked the completion of her 30th move.

"I married a rolling stone and had a child (daughter) at 24," she said. "You don't do fine art when you're doing graphics all day."

In 1982, two years after the birth of her son, she started painting in her dreams, Jones said. She knew it was time to start again.

By that time the family had moved to Albuquerque. She used the opportunity to explore her fascination with horses.

"The first time we moved to New Mexico in 1981, I remember saying to myself, 'This is it,'" she said. "I love the openness and emptiness of it. I knew I never wanted to live in congested areas again."

In 1983, they moved to Ruidoso.

"I didn't want to leave Albuquerque. I was tired of moving and it was beautiful there," Jones said. But her husband convinced her by promising she could stay home and paint.

She soon found a new source of horses at the Peables farm on Fort Stanton Road. She'd spend days taking photographs of their Arabians and then go back home and work in pastel. At one point, well-known Western artist Gordon Snidow accepted her work into his local gallery. She was on a roll.

Peggy Jones works in her studio in her Ruidoso home. She says she loves the open landscapes of New Mexico.

Artists of Lincoln County

Because of the intense sunlight, many homes in Phoenix keep windows shielded. One patron brought two of her large skyscapes and used them as artificial windows to the world outside.

Her divorce in 1989, plus the recession that followed her from New Mexico, brought back insecurities about her ability to earn a living and support her children. Although she had been accepted into several galleries, she stopped exhibiting and learned a new trade, hair styling.

Recharging her art

But two changes pushed her toward art again: "moving to Ruidoso two years ago and marriage to her second husband, Peter Schuyler, a goldsmith and framer. He understood the needs and lifestyle of an artist.

"I never really left it (art)," she said. "While I was going to school and not in galleries, I explored new avenues artistically and didn't worry whether they were saleable. I got into figure work, which is a hard sell typically."

Although her work always has been realistic, she found new surfaces and worked with new sizes.

"I had some fun," she said.

Living in Ruidoso also allowed her to reduce her overhead and to put her high school-age son in a safer environment, she said. The major disadvantage is that she's three hours away from a large city.

"But artists can ship anywhere," she said.

Although she continues to work with horses, her focus has changed

Please see Artist, page 2B

Then in 1985, the bottom fell out of the gas market, dealing a huge economic blow to Ruidoso, and she headed to Phoenix with her husband.

"I hated it," she said. "Moving in July from here was a big shock. I watched the wholesale destruction of farming areas just like in Orange County (California), when you would see grove after grove turn into houses.

"The area had nothing but incredible skies. Looking up helped me not to look down and around."

One of her skyscapes edged by the mountains and fast-disappearing fields, called "Last View of Chandler," was accepted at the Chandler Center for the Arts.

Peggy Jones' pastel paintings are so vivid that many people mistake them for oils.

from a more sentimental style - coils frisking - to a dramatic and powerful interpretation of portions of the horse, such as the bank of the head, the curve of the spine.

"I love doing the backs of horses and nudes," she said. "I get into shapes; the part, not the whole, which creates a more abstract interpretation."

"One of things that drew me to horses was the light, color and shapes of the muscle. That crosses over to human references."

Over the years, pastels also have come to be more accepted, she said. "Some galleries still won't carry pastels, because they can get twice as much for oils, but I'm glad to see more acceptance," she said. "It's easier for me."

She maintains a fairly steady schedule for painting, trying to create at least one piece each week.

"I lived so long with deadlines, I'm used to setting goals," she said. "I feel I'm running out of time. I feel I wasted 20 years. I realize that there's only one way to get better at doing it, and that's by doing it. I want to get a lot better. I started late and I have a long way to go."

Recently, she started doing still life, something entirely new for her.

"It's an on-going process," Jones said. "Every piece you do is a new experience. Sometimes you think you really blew it and other times it's great."

"I can't duplicate a work. I look at some of my past work and I can't remember how I did it."

She trained with well-known Hondo Valley-based artist Ann

Templeton during a trip the two took to California.

"She's helping me explore oils. I'm more comfortable with pastels. I have so much fun with it," Jones said. "You always feel guilty to be an artist - one of the chosen few who gets to live a life where they can look forward to every day."

Jones was juried into the Knickerbocker Artists Show this year in Sedona, Ariz. Her work appeared recently in Albuquerque at the Gateway Gallery Show and her nudes have shown in Scottsdale, Ariz.

A reception marking the opening of her show at the Hondo Art Gallery is scheduled for 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 2. The show will feature her landscapes, equine portraits and female nudes.

PEOPLE

Artists work on tree sculpture in Japan

Local artist and architect, David Smith, has returned to Japan for the second time this summer to continue working on a monumental sculpture with former Ruidoso resident and world-renowned sculptor, Lincoln Fox.

The project, sponsored by UNEP (United Nations Environmental Program) and originated by the Peace Tree Foundation in the United States, is being produced in Japan and will be the main attraction at World Park Festival '95 in Nagoya, Japan.

Smith and Fox are working with Japanese counterparts to produce the 32-foot monument, the "Tree of Life," for the Oct. 1 1995 opening of the festival. The monument consists of a 14-foot globe topped by a "peace tree." The roots of the tree envelop the earth while the base of the tree is formed by four "earth mothers" facing the four cardinal directions. Spiraling upward, the trunk and major branches are formed by 17 life-size figures of all races and ages.

Viewers may walk into the "inner chamber," the interior of the globe, where they see the history of mankind in symbols inscribed on the inner surfaces of the earth's continents.

On the outer surface of the continents are included more than 50 life cast faces of the people from

The 32-foot "Tree of Life" sculpture, co-created by David Smith and Lincoln Fox and Japanese artists, will grace the grounds of the World Park Festival in Nagoya, Japan. The "branches," actually life-size figures, are supported by a globe that viewers may enter to see the history of mankind in symbols on the continents inside the globe.

around the world and are created by renowned Santa Fe artist, Willis Shallit.

This project is the initial phase of a "World Peace Park" network which will feature the bronze monument at locations around the world. Currently in the planning stages are parks in Kenya, Jordan, Japan and several locations in the United States.

Smith's bronzes and paintings can be seen at the Honda Gallery and Stetson Art Center, both in Ruidoso.

Mandy and David Mader

Mr. and Mrs. David Mader

Odell and Patty Spurlin of Ruidoso announce the marriage of their daughter Mandy to David Mader, son of George and Barbara Mader of Alto.

They were married July 22 at the First Christian Church, with the Reverend Bill Kennedy and the Reverend Canon John Penn officiating.

The bride's father, mother and brothers gave her hand in marriage at the traditional Christian ceremony.

The bride wore a floor-length white satin gown with a cathedral-length train, and a round scooped neckline with fitted bodice accented with seed pearls.

She wore garters worn by her mother and the groom's mother, and carried a bouquet of white silk roses.

The church was decorated with vases of white silk roses, tulips, magnolias and ivy. A grapevine heart decorated with flowers and ribbon was hung from a cross.

The matron of honor was JoAnn Taylor of Ruidoso, a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were LeeAnn Southard of Ruidoso, Wealyn Standard of Carlsbad, Debbie Matier of Alto, and Jane Mader of Los Angeles.

Best man was George Byrne of Santa Maria, Calif. Groomsman were George Mader of Houston, Texas, Larry Shearer of Capitola, Pat Spurlin of Ruidoso, David Suter of Los Angeles and Richard Cintron of Los Angeles.

A reception was held at Cree Meadows Country Club following the ceremony. A DJ provided music.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas and Disneyland, the couple returned to Ruidoso where the bride is a first-grade teacher at Sierra Vista Primary School.

Mr. Mader is owner/operator Mader's Mobil Service, and owner of the Chevron Pit Stop.

Election 1996 will be one of the most important for the state's Democratic party, say county Democrats.

Offices for state representative and state senators will be up for election in 1996.

A primary concern for Democrats statewide, and in Lincoln County, is to elect enough Democrats to the Legislature to gain a solid majority needed to override the governor's vetoes, local Democrats say. Election for governor is in 1998.

That discussion will be the focus of the annual Lincoln County Democratic Party September get-together from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16 at Pat Healey's home on Sudderth Drive, Ruidoso. Unlike the past years' barbecues, this year's event will be a "fiesta" with various games, Mexican music and other fun events mixed with business. State Senator Pete Campos and Corporate Commissioner Eric Serna are scheduled to speak.

Plans for the fiesta were made and other business was conducted during the August meeting of the Lincoln County Democratic party at the home of James and Lynda Sanchez.

Lincoln County Democratic party chair Cece Griffin reported on the State Central Committee meeting in Taos and a meeting of the New Mexico Legislative Campaign committee.

Griffin said the local party needs to focus on Democratic candidates for the legislative district and county offices. State representative district 56, which includes all of Lincoln County, Mesalero Apache Reservation and Tularosa, has a majority of registered Democratic voters, she said.

County offices open for election in 1996 are county commission districts 1 and 3, assessor, sheriff and probate judge.

Griffin listed her losers and winners of the Republican proposed federal cutbacks. The losers are cutbacks on funding for programs for education standards, low income energy assistance ($1 billion), summer youth employment, Head Start, National Endowment for the Arts, foreign aid, Amtrak and others, she said. Winners are Job Corps, housing for military families, development of a missile guidance system and others.

Griffin directed precinct chairs to hold precinct meetings in November.

For information about the Sept. 16 fiesta, call 257-7558.

Knights of Columbus donate to school system, area handicapped skiers

Ruidoso Knights of Columbus Council #6887 has contributed $415 each to Region IX Schools and Ski Apache Handicapped Skiers Association.

The money, which amounts to 90% of the net from the Knights' Tootsie Roll drive, will be used toward the purchase of equipment to help developmentally disadvantaged youth. The other 10% will be used elsewhere in New Mexico for the same purposes.

The Knights of Columbus is a Catholic, family-oriented, men's fraternal organization. In 1994, the 15 million Knights worldwide gave more than $100 million to charitable and benevolent causes. Knights also have about 50 million hours of volunteer service to church, community and youth programs.

Leroy Peck, Sr. (District Deputy) came from Roswell recently to install Ruidoso Council #6887 officers for the 1995-96 fraternal year.

The new officers are Grand Knight Fred C. Knapp, Deputy Grand Knight Stanley B. East, Financial Secretary Edmund M. Carter, Chancellor Jack C. Reed, Recorder Chris P. Garza, Treasurer Manuel A. Landa, Advocate Alan E. Morel, Warden Lawrence W. Redner, Inside Guard George H. Serva, Outside Guard Lee Gutierrez and 1-year, 2-year and 3-year trustees, Joseph A. Koeber, Sr., Alberto Robles and Robert Nya, respectively.

The GFWC has a "boosters club" for spouses who attend conventions. Special programs and tours were planned for the boosters.

Jarratt at international Women's Club meeting

Charlotte Jarratt of Ruidoso, president-elect of the New Mexico Federation of Women's Clubs, was in Seattle, Wash. recently for the 104th Annual International Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The theme was "Leadership - Women in the Spotlight."

Approximately 700 GFWC volunteers from across the nation and overseas attended the three days of business meetings, workshops, and a leadership training session.

Founded in 1890, GFWC is an international organization of 8,000 community-based volunteer women's clubs working to address issues such as child abuse prevention, illiteracy and safety for older Americans. The GFWC-Ruidoso Federated Women's Club has belonged to the state federation and GFWC since 1934.

Julie Phillips in Miss Teen of America competition in California

Julie Phillips, daughter of David and Sandra Phillips of Ruidoso, was among the 160 young women competing for the Miss Teen of America title at the 12th Annual Miss Teen of America program, Aug. 4-13 in San Diego, Calif.

Although Phillips didn't win, she had a great time in San Diego, her mother related.

While in San Diego, candidates enjoyed visits to the San Diego Zoo and SeaWorld, and were special guests at a San Diego Padres baseball game.

Recovered from a triple bypass operation and then a heart attack last May, art teacher Jerry Rice is welcomed back to Capitan by his students (from left) Shereé Gillen, Chelsea Finney, Mandy Arp-smith, Annaliese Haussler and Lem Bartley. Rice said he won't be smoking during break times anymore. He's given up tobacco and has changed his eating habits.

Police chief sentenced on felony

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Capitan Police Chief Tony Cano pleaded no contest Wednesday to forging a vehicle registration title. District Judge Richard A. Parsons placed Cano, 52, on probation for one year and withheld adjudication of guilt, according to attorney J. Robert Beauvais, who represented Cano.

By withholding a determination of guilt, if Cano successfully completes his probation, his record will be clean. That means he can keep his law enforcement certification, state retirement and other benefits. Parsons also ordered Cano to pay $1,500 restitution to the victim, Sharon Mendoza. Her estranged husband, Romero Mendoza, is charged with conspiracy in the same case and may face deportation to Mexico, Beauvais said.

The case was heard at 8:30 a.m. before the usual morning court session in Carrizozo. Beauvais, whose office is in Ruidoso, is the Capitan government's attorney.

Cano was placed on 30-day administrative leave without pay earlier this month after being charged with the felony. He turned in his badge, gun and other inventory. He remains on administrative leave.

Cano was hired by the village in September 1993 and may be fired without cause, because he serves at the will of the trustees.

A special meeting may be called for 7 p.m. today at village hall to consider his employment status.

Livestock sale makes more money

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Livestock sales at the annual Lincoln County Fair earlier this month brought in $37,215 for young exhibitors, about $3,000 more than last year.

A total of 47 animals were sold, more than last year's 42, said Barry Herd, extension agent for Lincoln County. Most prices were well above market; for example, the top price for beef was $1.90/pound compared to the market price of 52 cents.

Most of the buyers were from Lincoln County. C&L Lumber topped the pack by paying $2,275 for a steer raised by Dominique Rus (Ruidoso FFA) that weighed in at 1,350 pounds. His per pound price at $1.75 was not the highest, but the steer was the heaviest.

A 1,660-pound steer raised by Julie Barham (Capitan FFA) was purchased for $1.90 per pound by Furra Grocery for a total price of $2,014. Court Franklin's steer, weighing in at 1,320 pounds, was bought by the Capitan Buyers Club at $1.50 per pound for $1,716.

Top dollar per pound for lambs ($11) was paid for Corona FFA member John Gnatkowiak's champion western whiteface, with a total bid of $1,332 by PCA of Roswell.

Court Franklin's 116-pound heavy blackface went for $10 a pound to K-Bobs in Ruidoso. Franklin is with the Capitan 4-H.

Three lambs each went for $9 per pound. They were raised by Ashley Millar, Trevor Sanders and Shelby Gowen, all members of the Capitan 4-H.

*But the dollar figures don't stand for profit. It costs a lot to raise an animal," Herd said. "To compete, they must own a steer 150 days and a lamb 75 days. They keep records and they see real quickly if expenses outweigh the sale price."

Herd would like to see more out-of-county buyers (six purchased this year) and more individuals and businesses participate, he said. Eighteen of the animals were purchased by buyers' clubs, people who pool their money.

In other categories, the top sellers were:

— Shayla Marshall for a pen of three rabbits at $225 to the Ruidoso Animal Clinic.

— Shayla Smith of the Capitan 4-H for swine at $5 a pound, 215 pounds to Nurwest Bank of Roswell; and to Joe Burchett of the Capitan FFA for the reserve champion Duroc swine at $5 a pound for 210 pounds to the Capitan Buyers Club.

— Amanda Greer of the Carrizozo 4-H for a pen of three grand champion broilers for $160 from ESC General Contractor.

Julie Barham won grand champion and Lyndsey Brumlow reserve champion in breeding cattle. Dusti Franklin won grand and Barham took reserve in steers. Joe Burchett won grand and Robbie Burchett won reserve in dairy. Ashley Millar won grand and Court Franklin won reserve in lamb. Barham won grand and Shayla Smith won reserve in swine.

Ashley Millar, 13, daughter of Mac and Pam Millar of Capitan, made a clean sweep with her lambs at the county fair. She won 1st and champion of breed in finewool cross, 1st in suffix, champion of breed, grand champion of show and 1st in showmanship.

Warriors look to build on 1994 grid success

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Last year's Ruidoso Warrior football players learned how to win. And, more importantly, they learned how to get to the playoffs.

Under Les Carter, the Warriors played in the postseason for the first time in five years. Ruidoso beat Albuquerque Academy in the first round of the playoffs before eventual state champion Artesia eliminated the Warriors.

The 1994 campaign was all the first-year coach had hoped for.

This year's challenge for Carter and his Warriors is to see if they can build on last year's successes.

With 11 seniors back from 1994's 7-5 squad, Carter thinks his team is better prepared mentally for the season because of its experience.

Ruidoso returns key players on both sides of the line of scrimmage, including leading rusher Kyle Humphreys.

"He's real quick," Carter says of Humphreys. "We found out (last year) that we had more success with him running tackle to tackle," instead of running around the outside of the field.

The speedy senior leads an experienced backfield that also features seniors Jackie Roe and Rex Comanche.

Ruidoso returns four senior offensive linemen responsible for opening holes in the defense. Center Jesse Fromknecht (6 feet and 2 inches tall, 200 pounds), guards Robert Guardiola (6-1, 200) and Kevin Pellman (5-7, 165), and a bulked-up Erik Kukuska anchor the line. Joining them is Shane Reidhead, a transfer from Capitan.

"He's been a real pleasant surprise," Carter says of Reidhead.

The Warriors also return two of their top receivers in Brandon Eamello and Byron Soules.

Senior Billy Rogge was expected to step in at quarterback, taking the place of 1994 graduate John Echols. But a season-ending leg injury to Rogge in a preseason scrimmage opened up the position for junior Pascal Enjady a week before Ruidoso's opener.

Enjady's performance against Artesia in the season opener was good enough to convince Carter to stick with the junior signal caller.

Defensively, Jose Prieto joins Guardiola, Soules and Comanche in the Ruidoso linebacking corps. Most of Ruidoso's offensive starters will play defense as well. Joey Bewley, a senior defensive end, fortifies the RHS trenches.

Fans can expect to see the same offensively from the Warriors. Carter's scheme is a run-oriented, ball control offense. Senior Cory Hood, who will play varsity soccer as well, lends his kicking skills to the Warriors. Hood didn't play football last year.

Carter already knows opponents won't be overlooking his Warriors. The state coaches preseason poll ranked Ruidoso No. 8 in Class AAA.

"Some people realize we've got good people," Carter says. "Now we've just got to prove it."

Last year's District 3AAA champion Silver (11-1, 5-0) loses 12 starters from last year. That didn't sway other coaches from ranking Silver No. 3 in the preseason poll.

Carter also expects a challenge from Hot Springs, even though the Wildcats are young. Hot Springs returns 13 starters on offense and defense.

Who will win the district?

"Whoever works the hardest and gets ready to play," Carter says.

Ruidoso head football coach Les Carter will look to a strong, experienced senior class to lead his Warriors back to the state playoffs. RHS spikers return both height, experience in '95

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Ruidoso's first-year volleyball coach Jauna Sanchez inherits an experienced team blessed with height and versatility. With six returning letter winners and a roster that features three players 5-foot, 10-inches or taller, the Warriors look tough on paper.

Sanchez hesitates to speculate how good the Warriors will be. However, she does know the team's success will depend on its ability to pass and serve.

"If we can get real consistent passing and serving, we'll be good," Sanchez says.

That first touch on the volleyball will be the Warriors' most important touch throughout the season. Without a good pass to one of its setters, Ruidoso might never get a chance to set up its strong hitting game — a key, if the Warriors are to improve upon last year's 8-10 record.

Senior Heather Stover, an all-district selection last year, leads the Warriors. The 5-8 setter will direct the Ruidoso offense. Sanchez lists the knowledge of the game, consistency, serving and setting among Stover's strengths.

Stover can not only set, she can hit. "The reason we're running the 6-2 (offensive set) is so she (Stover) can hit. Otherwise, we would run a 5-1," Sanchez says.

A 6-2 offense has two setters on the floor, which frees up Stover to hit. In a 5-1 set, Stover would be limited to just setting the ball.

Joining Stover are senior classmates Amber Livingston, Sheryl Dockery, Angelica Figueroa and Lindsay Willard. Livingston, at 5-11, and Dockery, at 6-2, will be responsible for denying opponents' offensive attacks. Both are strong middle blockers and hitters.

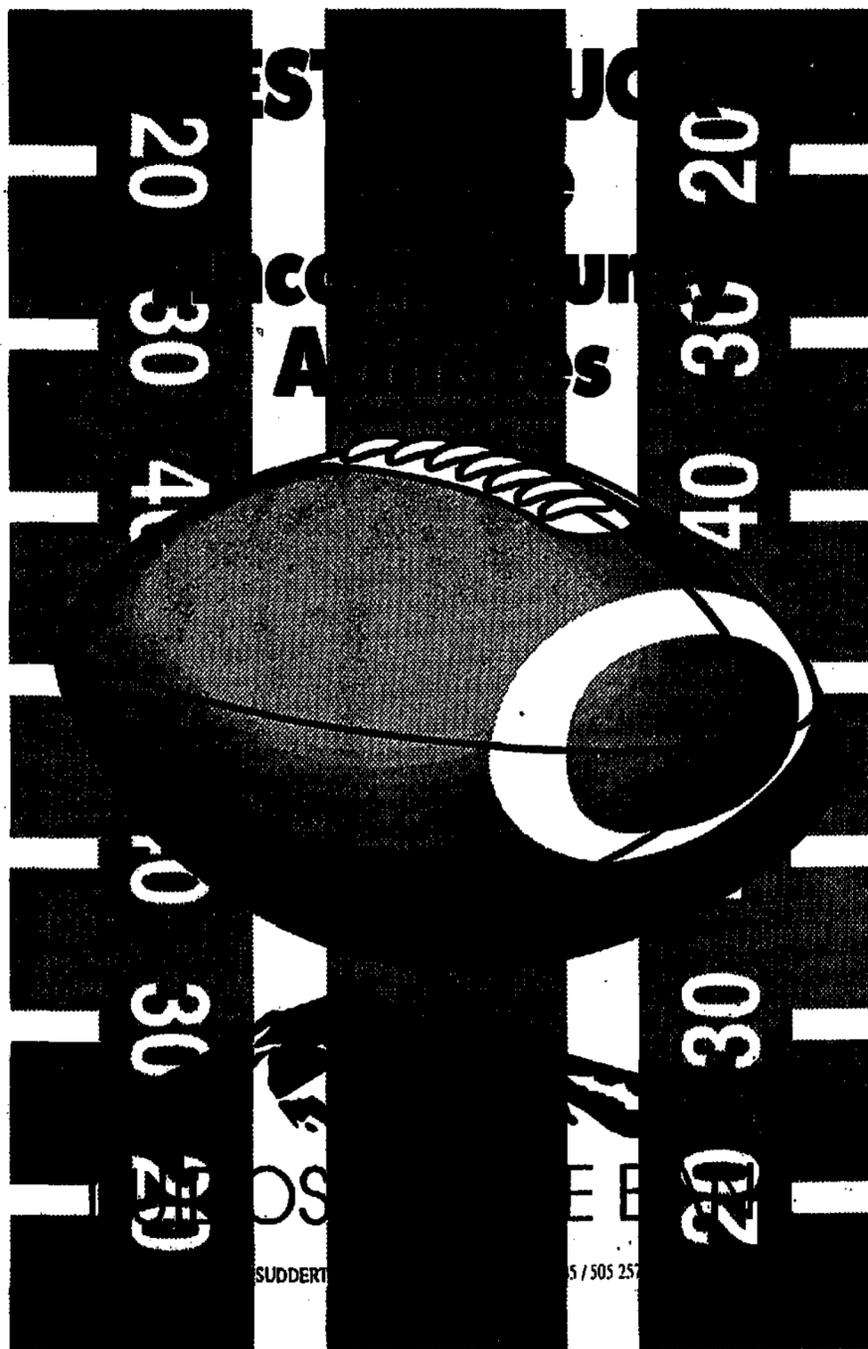

Sanchez says the 5-9 Figueroa, an outside hitter, will be the team's emotional leader.

"We'll depend on Angelica to keep people up," Sanchez says.

The 5-7 Willard plays both setter and back row. Sanchez describes Willard as versatile and an important part of the returning core of players.

Four juniors round out the Warrior squad. A 5-11, middle/outside hitter Kelle Lutterman adds height to the RHS front row. Returning letterwinner Marissa Martinez will see playing time as one of two setters Ruidoso uses in its offensive scheme. Outside hitter Kristy Donaldson, 5-7, is another letterwinner back from last year. Shirryn Williams adds depth to the Ruidoso back row.

Sanchez says as many as five sophomores will vie to suit for varsity contests. They are Bailey Bishop, Amanda Kukuaka, Mandy Lewallen, Jana Morris and Tawnya Reynolds.

Cross country teams race toward districts

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The Ruidoso boys cross country team heads into the 1995 season with a strong group of seniors leading the way for coach Ronny Maskew.

The Warriors, who lost the district title by one point to Cobre in 1994, return senior letterwinners Kody Sparks, Ezra Sandoval and Johnny Martinez along with classmate Tim Skinner.

Joining them are juniors Vicente Platero and Kent Sparks; sophomores Roy Huff, Kenneth Grey and Zack Pafford; and freshman Kyle Sparks. This talented group of underclassmen gives the Warriors depth.

Up to 10 Warrior runners will vie for the seven spots on the varsity squad. It's an enviable position for a coach.

"When you have nine to 10 runners trying to make the varsity and you have only seven slots to fill, it means you have good competition on the team," Maskew says. He hopes that intrasquad competition will make the Warriors a better team.

Up to 10 Warrior runners will vie for the seven spots on the varsity squad. It's an enviable position for a coach.

Maskew says the team will rely on Martinez, Sandoval, Skinner and Kody Sparks to lead the team.

"They really encourage and help the others to do better," Maskew says of the foursome.

Maskew says junior Kent Sparks, who has always run on his own but never for the Warriors, will make a big difference immediately.

"We're tickled to have him out for the team," Maskew says.

The youngest Sparks, Kyle, is a talented freshman, Maskew notes.

The senior boys will help the girls team as well as their own teammates.

The Ruidoso girls cross country team lost 1994 district champion Bridget Tam, who moved to Las Cruces, so the Warriors will have to look to new blood.

Nancy Palmer is the lone senior on the team. Juniors Althea Palmer and America Sandoval are the only other upperclass runners on Maskew's young but talented team.

"America is going to do well for us. She is just a very good, good competitor," Maskew says.

Sophomores Christy Smith and Lily Walstead lead a solid group of freshmen that include Shana LaCrosse, Erica Romero, Erica Oxford, Jessica Daniels and Meredith Keeton.

"All the girls are real hard workers," Maskew says. "Those freshmen are already putting some pressure on the other girls. They're just doing a tremendous job."

But for Ruidoso to fare well, those younger runners will have to progress quickly.

"They've got to come out and compete like juniors," Maskew says.

He hopes by the time the fight for the district title is on the line, his girls will be seasoned runners.

The boys, however, will be out to atone for last year's heartbreaking loss to Cobre. Cobre must replace two runners off its district championship team. Maskew thinks Silver also could be in the hunt for the district title.

Tigers aim to recapture last year's magic

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The $1 million question in Capitan is: how do the Tigers top last year's 11-2 and Class A state runner-up finish?

Coach Ed Davis has 12 seniors back from that team and he hopes they can find the answer. But that is a heavy burden to bear.

After an inconsistent but winning performance in its season opener Friday, Davis says this year's strong senior class needs to play for itself — and not worry about last year.

"We have a bunch of young men who just don't know their capabilities," Davis says.

The Tigers are definitely capable. They return eight starters offensively and nine defensively.

The team's second-leading rusher Neil Montes returns to the backfield as does Jayson McSwane and Kali Bagby. From Carrizozo, transfer Wayne

"Our backfield is so even, it could change in the first quarter."

LaBelle, a fullback, bolsters the Tiger running corps.

But the Tigers have to replace all-state quarterback Michael Fish, who has graduated to play ball for Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

Montes and senior teammate Josh Peralta are trying to fill those vacated shoes. And up until the season opener against Hatch Valley, both players were pretty even. Right now, Peralta will get the nod. Last year Peralta played running back for the Tigers.

Even though they return eight starters on offense, only two of those players will play in the same position they did last year.

"Our backfield is so even, it could change in the first quarter," Davis jokes when talking about player positions.

Seniors Jeremy McGarvey, Keith Cox and Justin King anchor the offensive line for the Tigers.

Split end Ernie Trujillo, who led Capitan in receiving last year, is back.

So is senior Jerome Mendoza, who will handle the kicking responsibilities.

Joining Capitan's largest-ever senior class are 34 underclassmen. Junior Kyle Jones will help on the offensive and defensive lines, and Davis expects sophomores Matt Daniels and Tim McGarvey to see playing time.

The Capitan defense lost only its starting linebackers from last year. Trujillo and LaBelle will step in to fill those holes.

Davis expects District 3A foes to improve.

"Everybody's going to be better than they were last year," Davis says.

Animas and Cloudcroft hope to challenge the Tigers. Animas returns eight starters on both offense and defense. Cloudcroft made the playoffs last year but lost out in the first round.

"We want to establish ourselves and keep the tradition going," Davis concludes.

Warrior kickers should boot way back to state

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

In just its second year of varsity soccer, the Ruidoso Warriors made the state tournament last season. But the RHS kickers received a rude awakening from powerhouse Albuquerque Academy in the first round of play. Academy shut out the Warriors, 7-0, to end Ruidoso's season.

If the Warriors are to improve upon last year's 11-5 mark, they must prove they learned from that playoff loss, says head coach Dean Hood.

"That game last year against Academy plus a couple already this year taught us not to get frustrated if we get down early," Hood says.

The Warriors return seven seniors, including their leading scorers. When considering the team's returning letterwinners, there is no reason the Warriors shouldn't be back in the state tourney, Hood says.

Forwards Danny Schrader and Leif Anderson along with midfielders Matthew Ensor, Cory Hood and Beau Jarvis form the core of the Ruidoso offensive attack. Senior keeper Matt Norbury and fullback John Montero return defensively.

"One thing we have going for us is that we have a lot of kids who can score," Hood says.

Hood's team plays an offensive-oriented game. The Warriors put two players in front (Schrader and Anderson) and five in the middle. Rounding out the midfield position are juniors Jimmy Stover and Piper Adamian and senior Randy Randolph. Randolph rejoins the Warriors after a two-year absence.

The aggressive front requires three good fullbacks. Unfortunately, that is where the Warriors are inexperienced. Hood plans to rotate Zack Carey, Jose Maldonado and Isaac Sanchez into the fullback rotation. Sophomore Scott Sebastian will see playing time there as well.

Ruidoso should be the team to beat in district play because of its experience and versatility. The Warriors were 5-1 last year. Hood says Silver is improving every year, and fans can't count out Santa Teresa.

"There's no reason we shouldn't be in the playoffs," Hood concludes.

Beau Jarvis is one of seven seniors returning for Ruidoso soccer coach Dean Hood. The Warriors hope to improve upon last year's 11-5 record.

New Capitan coach plans to uphold tradition

by LAURA CLYMER

Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Capitan's new volleyball coach, Bryan Massé, hopes to keep the Tiger tradition of good teams alive and thriving.

Massé has a tough act to follow — namely, Pam Allen's. Allen, who coached the Tiger volleyball team for eight years, posted a 154-19 mark at CHS. Her teams won seven of eight district championships.

But Allen has since departed for Artesia. And Massé and the Tigers aim to keep that winning tradition going.

Massé knows all about that Tiger tradition. He considers Allen one of the pioneer coaches in the state for girls volleyball and admits to learning a lot from the long-time coach.

Massé is no slouch on the court, either. He's coached volleyball for 15 years, including head coaching stints at Tatum and Melrose, where he produced six state finalist teams. He hopes to have his seventh finalist team at Capitan.

"We're going to work to where our serve and serve receive are our strengths."

Gone from last year's 15-4 squad are Jessica Cline, Stacie Sidwell and Sheryl Dockery. Cline and Sidwell graduated and Dockery transferred to Ruidoso last winter.

Still, Massé has six letterwinners returning for the Orange and Black.

A pair of seniors lead the Tigers. Five-foot-10-inch Catherine Sidwell is the team's top middle hitter/blocker.

Her classmate, Chris Worrell, anchors the back row for Capitan.

Worrell is willing to dive on the floor to dig up any spikes, Massé says. Worrell's hustle combined with Sidwell's leadership give the Tigers a strong, experienced duo.

Bolstering the front line are middle hitters Mandi Aldaz and Coye Robbins. Aldaz is a 5-7 junior, while Robbins at 5-8 has a "lot of raw talent" for a sophomore, Massé says.

Massé also has a pair of solid setters sharing the setting responsibilities for his 6-2 offense. Andra Fish and Joni Autrey will set up the Capitan hitters. Sophomore Monica Johnson also will see playing time at setter.

Michelle Wilson and Shelby Gowen saw varsity time last year, too. Both are solid all-around players with digging and hitting skills.

Newcomers to the team include Trisha Seidel, Casey Cunningham, Cristina Gonzales, Jessica Robertson, Julie Barham and Ann Holt.

Massé says the team hustles, moves well and works hard, but the Tigers need to become better hitters, servers and serve receivers.

"We play pretty decent defense," he says. "We're going to work to where our serve and serve receive are our strengths."

Massé hopes to employ a quick hitting offense to compensate for the team's lack of height. He has added specific plays and a backcourt attack to the Tiger arsenal — something Allen didn't use before.

Running offensive plays keep the players fresh, interested and challenged, Massé says.

Expected to challenge Capitan for the District 6AA championship is last year's runner-up, Dexter.

The Tigers open the 1995 season Friday at home against Tatum.

Football still alive at 'Zozo

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Contrary to what some think, football is alive and well in Carrizozo. It's not the 11-man version, but the fast-paced, exciting 6-man game.

In last year's grid campaign, Carrizozo won only one game, and that was by forfeit. Then the season turned downright demoralizing when the Grizzlies had to walk off the field at halftime against rival Capitan because of a lack of healthy players. "Zozo finished the season, but the future of the program was in doubt.

After much discussion within the Carrizozo community during the 1994-95 year, school officials decided to put a team on the field. Initially, the school board voted to try to field an 11-man squad, but when the numbers didn't materialize, the school elected to field a 6-man team.

Leading the Grizzlies in their 1995 campaign is former Ruidoso teacher and coach Sid Wright. Wright, who was forced to resign as boys basketball coach at RHS last year, has coached football, both 11-man and 6-man, in Texas.

"The town is really excited," Wright says. "Since the first practice, we continue to get more and more fans parking around the football field and watching our practices."

Wright's roster has grown from eight players to 16. By kickoff time of their first game Sept. 2, Wright expects to have 17 Grizzlies dressed out.

In 6-man football, the field is shorter (80 yards) and narrower (40 yards) than a regulation-size football field and every player on offense is eligible for a pass. Speed and quickness are essential.

And the Grizzlies have plenty of both qualities.

Senior quarterback Jim Brown, senior running back Jeff Maynard, and junior running back Willie Silva give "Zozo plenty of wheels in the backfield.

"You try to cover them one-on-one and you're going to lose," Wright says of the trio.

Playing the line are Bonifacio Samora, Chad Roper and Bud Maynard. Roper and Samora are excellent rushers and hard hitters, Wright says.

With a roster of 17, Wright has the luxury to play lots of kids and give his key offensive players a breather on defense. But more important, the full roster means the Grizzlies will be able to finish the football season.

Carrizozo inherits Corona's schedule because the Cardinals didn't field a team. The Grizzlies open the season against El Paso's Northeastern Christian Academy.

"All I expect them to do is work hard," Wright says. "And if they work hard the rest will take care of itself."

Corona spikers still improving

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Last year, Corona volleyball coach Yvette Garcia directed the Cardinals to seven wins — the most in three years for the small northern Lincoln County high school.

Garcia is gone, but first-year coach Ronnie Dunsworth plans to build that success.

Dunsworth has six letterwinners from that 1994 team. He will look to seniors Shayla Marshall and Lindsey Bonds to lead the Cardinals.

Marshall is the team's setter. Bonds and junior Kim Riley are the top returning hitters for Dunsworth.

Junior Anna Garza and freshmen Monica Allirez and Amy Bonds give the Cardinals depth.

Of 14 girls in the high school, Dunsworth has eight on the team. He describes them as "the cream of the crop." They are active in lots of school activities and are good students, says Dunsworth, who coached junior high girls volleyball in Texico last year.

"We're strong fundamentally and defensively, and we've got good servers and hitters," Dunsworth says.

New VB coach at Hondo High

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Hondo Valley's first-year volleyball coach Abdel Ibrahim will look to seniors Lisa Gutierrez, a 5-foot-6 outside hitter, and Santa Ontiveros, a 5-4 defensive specialist, to lead his young Eagles team.

Gutierrez and Ontiveros are the only two upperclassmen on the Eagles' roster. Sophomores Jackie Sanchez, a 5-7 setter, and Maria Alvarado, a 5-0 defensive specialist, join the two seniors as the other returning letterwinners.

Ibrahim has coached tennis and soccer for more than 20 years. This is his first head volleyball coaching position, but the native of Cairo, Egypt sees his vast coaching experience as an advantage.

"I can incorporate all the techniques of coaching I have," Ibrahim says. "I intend to make something happen here at Hondo, but it might take some time."

Last year the Eagles finished third in their district. Mesilla Valley and Hagerman should be tough again.

Other members of the team include: Sandra Medina, Karla Martinez, Patricia Sanchez, Adrienne Richardson, Bethany Sanchez, Christina Chavez, Frances Apache and Yadiya Lerma.

A Great Place To Live

Clean water, fresh air, a strong sense of community spirit and a friendly population make the Village of Ruidoso Downs a special place to visit and live.

Neighbors aren't just the people that live on your block in this small town of 923 residents. People visiting or relocating to Ruidoso Downs soon find the community friendly and neighborly. Folks at the police department or village hall, and the town's many business people, always have a minute to spare to talk about the weather or simply shoot the breeze.

Ruidoso Downs was first laid out as a town in 1933. Originally the village was called Palo Verde but in 1947, the federal government opened a post office and required a name change because there was already a town named Palo Verde in Arizona. The town was renamed Green Tree.

Residents voted to change the village's name to Ruidoso Downs in a special election in 1958, partly to identify it with Ruidoso Downs Racetrack and partly so that it would show up on highway maps. The name became official in 1961 when a new village post office opened.

Village services

With its own village council, police and fire departments, senior citizen's center, post office, churches and 80 businesses, Ruidoso Downs offers residents and visitors all of the services necessary for a comfortable and fun lifestyle.

The Ruidoso Police Department employs six full time officers and is located in the new Village Hall at 122 Downs Drive. The Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department has 15 trained fire fighters. Ambulance and medical services are provided by Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso.

Village council consists of four trustees, the mayor, the village clerk and village attorney. The council meetings, open to the public, are at 7 p.m. the second and fourth Monday of each month. Trustees, who invite and encourage residents and visitors to attend those meetings, are always willing to hear comments from community members about how projects or procedures can be improved to benefit Ruidoso Downs.

"Mostly everyone knows everyone else and we work together to get our community to grow," Joe Hayhurst, Ruidoso Downs mayor said.

Ladies Auxillary

One of the most active organizations in the village is the Ruidoso Downs Ladies Auxiliary. With about 20 members, the auxiliary promotes many different activities and events, one of the most successful being the annual All-American Arts and Crafts Fair on Labor Day weekend.

Artists and craftspeople from throughout the southwest and beyond gather under a giant circus tent next to the senior citizen's center to show off and sell their creations in a festive atmosphere that's fun for the entire family. The auxiliary is a strong organization in the community that participates in many activities, including area clean-up campaigns, to improve Ruidoso Downs.

Current auxiliary president Shirlene Roberts believes that when you live in a small community, you try to make it the best it can be.

"We are working next to try to get a beautification program in place for the village," Roberts said.

Five Ruidoso Downs mayors celebrate the opening of the new Village Hall. Left to right — Dick Bunt, mayor from 1960 to 1962, Norm Wheeler, mayor from 1976 to 1982, J.C. Day, mayor from 1982 to 1986, Bones Wright, mayor in 1990 and Joe Hayhurst, current Ruidoso Downs mayor since 1992.

Recently the auxiliary leased a trailer across from village hall where they will have a permanent meeting place and office.

Some of the other activities the auxiliary is involved in include an Easter egg hunt, and donating money to various organizations such as the senior citizens center and the fire department.

Senior Citizens Center

Another project the Ruidoso Downs Ladies Auxiliary assisted the village with was the building and opening of the Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens Center in 1991.

The bright, modern, new building, located off of Highway 70, is a testament to the auxiliary members' dedication to the community. They joined village leaders in getting the money to build the facility, and they continued to contribute by furnishing the center.

Auxiliary members and village residents also helped furnish the kitchen with utensils and supplies by sponsoring a pot-luck party. Downs residents brought food and kitchen items to help stock the center's kitchen.

The Senior Citizens Center serves many purposes throughout the year including use as a polling place for Precinct 10, which includes Ruidoso Downs residents. Seniors gather throughout the year to play cards and dominos, socialize and plan community events.

Cool, clear water

Water for the village has the reputation of being extremely pure, pouring from Hull Spring, located in a mountain in Ruidoso Downs.

Hull Spring has been flowing at a constant 350 gallons per minute, day in and day out for as long as anyone can remember.

Nobody is sure where the spring originates. It is thought that it comes from the Guadalupe Mountains.

Because of the constant flow, the purity of the water, and the fact that it is so large, state engineers still occasionally ask to see the spring.

Water quality from the spring is exceptionally pure.

Over the years, many people have found the Village of Ruidoso Downs to be the kind of place residents are proud to call home and visitors are invited to see what makes the community one of the best small towns in the Southwest.

Highways:

Ruidoso Downs is served by U.S. Highway 70. this is well-maintained and rarely closed for any length of time because of inclement weather.

On July 15, 1995, the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico will unveil "Free Spirits at Noisy Water". This incredible landscaped monument is the inspiration of noted American sculptor, Dave McGary, and features the figures of eight one-and-one-half-times-life-size sculptured horses. The seven classic breeds represented in this exceptional piece are the Thoroughbred, the quarter horse, the appaloosa, the Paint Horse, the Arabian, the Morgan and the Standardbred. The Paint mare is joined by a foal running by her side - making the eighth horse.

The eight figures will be galloping through a fully landscaped area that is 225 feet long. The finished sculpture will rise to a height of almost 36 feet. As the world's largest equine monument, it will grace the entrance of the Museum of the Horse.

The dedication weekend of July 14-16, 1995 is filled with many fun activities. There will be a formal evening on Saturday, July 15. Master of Ceremonies Sam Donaldson will preside over the festivities, along with nationally acclaimed entertainers Michael Martin Murphey, Don Edwards and Waddie Mitchell. Optional events include a VIP dinner party on Friday, lunch and a day at the races in the Ruidoso Downs Turf club on Saturday afternoon, and a tour of McGary Studios followed by a sumptuous brunch.

In order to support the creation of this beautiful sculpture, the Museum of the Horse, exclusively, is selling limited edition bronzes of each of the breeds in the maquette state (24" long and 17" high). A bust of the Quarter Horse and a masterwork which includes all eight horses is also available.

For further information regarding "Free Spirits at Noisy Water", the dedication weekend, and the pieces available for sale - please visit the Museum of the Horse on Highway 70 East in Ruidoso Downs, or call 1-800-263-5929.

AT NOISY WATER

Ruidoso Downs Yesterday

New visitors to Lincoln County may think of Ruidoso Downs as an adjunct to the Village of Ruidoso, but the town boasts a rich history all its own.

When Ruidoso was only a dirt road turnoff, the area that was to become Ruidoso Downs was a major stop from Roswell to Tularosa, first on a stage line and later by bus and car.

Bernice Jones said her grandfather, Lowrey Hale, owned most of the land in the area in the 1880s and built the first house.

Parcel by parcel, he acquired about 800 acres, 100 of which cost $400 in a purchase from Indrice Herrah, and later was called Hale Springs.

Hale also bought a tract from "Doc" Scurlock for $400 that became the site of the White Mountain Inn on the banks of the Rio Ruidoso.

The inn, which still stands, was first used as an overnight stop for stagecoaches and later for buses.

The two-story structure was built by a man named Johnson in the early 1900s.

Long-time area resident Dan Storm said the inn was quite a landmark in the 1920s.

"Roderick and Heck Johnson owned it then," Storm said. "It was the only thing in what was to be Ruidoso Downs.

"The Johnsons sponsored a big Fourth of July celebration with big rodeos around the inn on a flat piece of land.

"They had a swimming pool nearby, but nobody used it much."

Former Ruidoso Downs Mayor Jake Harris said the highway from the east turned north across the front of the inn, then veered west.

"They had rooms for overnight," Harris said. "They served meals and the bus stopped there. Originally it was the only business in this area. Before the buses, the old stagecoach stopped.

There were barns there for the driver to change horses or stay overnight."

At one time the Johnsons operated a general store, a post office and a dance hall. In 1935, a saloon and filling station called Turner's Tavern opened. Jim Mauldin started a garage and in 1936, Ewing Carter opened a general merchandise store that later became Fox Merchandise. That same year, the community's first sawmill was started by Ed Hoagland. Ruidoso Downs was taking shape.

Timber cutting and lumber mills played a significant role in the economic health of the community, but eventually the heavy cutting activity played out the good timber areas.

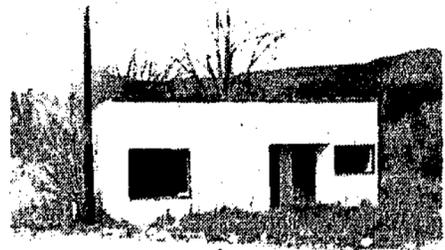

The property owned by Johnson contained the right to the spring that still is the source of water for the community. The spring's lifeline in this arid area was one of the main reasons the community was incorporated.

The community's current identity is deeply entrenched with the Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

When the governor shut down slot machine and table gambling in Ruidoso, promoters decided to try horse racing in earnest. Drawing a circle in a pasture that was visible from the highway, they started ruining the horses.

With little business knowledge, the promoters soon went broke, but a man named Gene Hensley bought the track for $60,000. With Walt Wiggins as promoter, they introduced the All American Futurity, the race that established the track's reputation and now is the richest quarter horse purse in the world.

Today, in addition to the race track and the Museum of the Horse, The Village of Ruidoso Downs sports more than 80 businesses, six lodging establishments, a new senior citizens center with pool tables and shuffleboard, a police force and a volunteer fire department. A new 50-unit Day's Inn motel is scheduled to be fully operational by late July.

The village offers several recreational vehicle parks. G & D RV has 20 spaces (378-4594), Downs Motel has 10 RV spaces (378-4134), and Cowboy's Trailer Park has 28 RV sites (378-8217).

The brand new Ruidoso Downs Village Hall houses the police department, municipal court, juvenile probation department and animal control department. Also at Village Hall is the village clerk, water and sewer and planning and zoning department.

Two churches serve the community,

Ruidoso Word Ministries Church and First Baptist Church of Ruidoso Downs. The Baptist church also operates Ruidoso Christian School, a preschool to fourth grade private school.

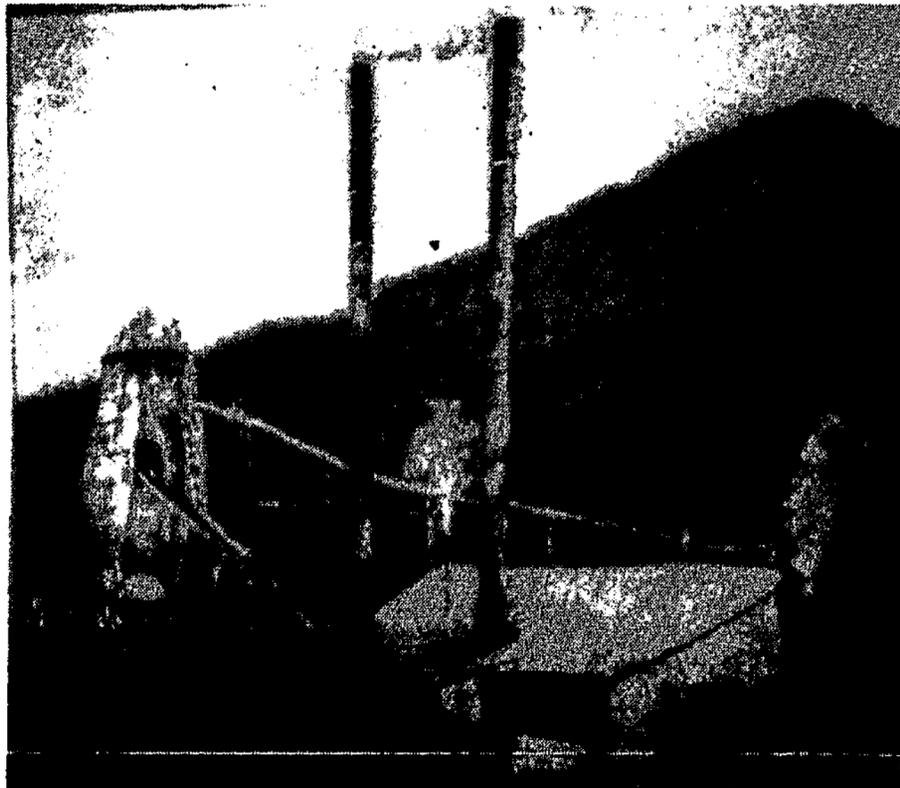

Ruidoso Downs students attend public schools in Ruidoso. Medical care is provided by Lincoln County Medical Center, at 211 Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso.

The population of Ruidoso Downs is currently 923. The village has changed over the years, but it remains a tribute to the spirit of small town America.

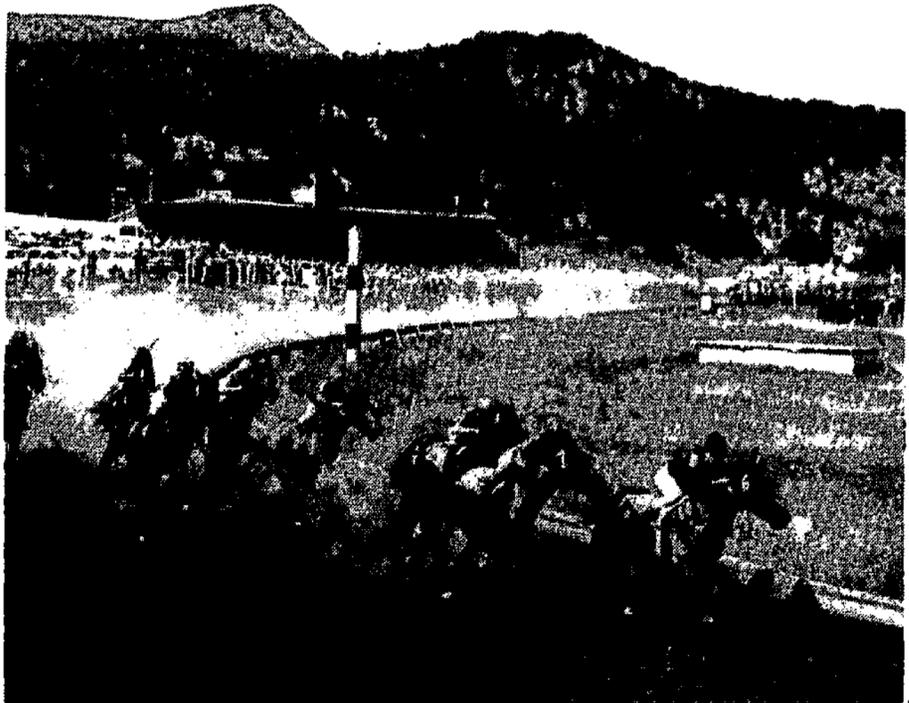

For more information about Ruidoso Downs, call Village Hall at 378-4422.

Smokey Bear

Old Lincoln Days

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Although many people go to the Village of Ruidoso Downs because of the racetrack, there are many other attractions for visitors to enjoy.

Racetrack fun

Ruidoso Downs Racetrack began in the mid-1940s with high stakes quarter horse match races for wealthy ranchers and oilmen, who displayed the talents of their top sprinters before the advent of pari-mutuel wagering. The races were usually held on weekend afternoons in roughly the same area as the current track's location, with purses sometimes reaching $50,000.

The track was originally named Hollywood Park because of the close proximity of an area called Hollywood.

Tommy Hicks and Ted Johnson, owners of the Central Bar and Grill in Ruidoso, set up the inaugural race meet in 1947, consisting of 10 race days and running primarily quarter horses. The average handle was $33,261. It wasn't quite enough to break even, but enough for track owners to continue the venture.

Gene Hensley purchased the track in 1953 for $60,000, changed the name to Ruidoso Downs and in 1959 introduced the All American Futurity, now the richest quarter horse purse in the world.

Current owner R.D. Hubbard took over the track in 1988, initiated more than $3 million in renovations and started the All American Festival, a week-long celebration of community events and world class horse racing, culminating each year on Labor Day with the All American Futurity.

Museum of the Horse

Another Hubbard venture is the 46,000 square-foot Anne C. Stradling Museum of the Horse, a one-of-a-kind exhibition which opened in 1992. It's located one mile east of the racetrack off Highway 70 East.

First established in Patagonia, Ariz., the museum was the brainchild of Stradling, who spent her life gathering a collection of equine related materials, including many one-of-a-kind items.

Stradling grew up in New Jersey, where she participated in fox hunting and polo playing. She later became involved in rodeos and practiced trick and calf roping. After she married, Stradling and her husband moved to Oklahoma, where they operated a ranch for 12 years before moving to Arizona.

Stradling died in 1992, but in keeping with her vision, the Museum of Horse continues to expand and grow.

Currently on display at the museum, in addition to the many permanent exhibits, is "The Imperial Russian Horse: Equine Art from the Reign of the Czars."

This exhibition of Russian art from the Museum of Horsebreeding in Moscow features a collection of paintings and bronzes created by renowned 19th and early 20th century Russian equine artists. The exhibit will be at the museum until Sept. 10.

The Museum of the Horse is open every day except Thanksgiving and Christmas. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. May through Labor Day; and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Labor Day through October; and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. November through April (and closed Mondays).

Cowboy Scrimshire of Cowboy's Stables is saddled up and ready to ride. Cowboy's Stables, located on Highway 70 in Ruidoso Downs, offers one and two hour horseback rides and can accommodate both large and small groups.

Cowboy's Stables

Folks hankerin' to pull on those cowboy boots and hit the dusty trail will find Cowboy's Stables a perfect way to enjoy the countryside.

Cowboy's Stables is located on U.S. Highway 70 near the racetrack. Cowboy's can accommodate both large and small groups, but it's best to call ahead for reservations.

Horseback rides are scheduled for one or two hours on trails that start behind the racetrack. Horses for all levels of riding ability are available at Cowboy's Stables, including horses for children.

Cowboy's Stables are open year round, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week.

For additional information about regular and special rates, call Cowboy's Stables at (505) 378-8217.

The Gift Shop

Memorabilia lovers will find The Gift Shop in Ruidoso Downs a special place to shop or simply to browse away an afternoon.

You may not have stopped by the shop specifically to search for a 12-foot high cast aluminum Statue of Liberty, but you'll find your personal Miss Liberty at The Gift Shop. If you would like a herd of deer romping on your front yard, The Gift Shop has concrete deer lawn figures. Authentic old wagon wheels, clocks, gas pumps, cast iron bells, birdbaths, bird cages and lots and lots of wrought iron furniture and lawn decorations blanket the entire outside front area of the shop.

Inside of the shop, it's like a nostalgia museum, with wall to wall old slot machines, signs, cast iron toys and bottles. The shop also has old and new pottery, jewelry, porcelain dolls, ceramics and collectibles.

The Gift Shop takes all major credit cards and is located at 1719 Highway 70 in Ruidoso Downs. The phone number is 378-4774.

Dining in the Downs

Stop by Pappy's Diner or The Village Cafe in Ruidoso Downs and you'll likely see members of the village council, racetrack jockeys and any number of other locals enjoying their meals.

Pappy's Diner is located on Highway 70 in the heart of the village. Pappy's features daily lunch specials and is famous for the "99er," consisting of two eggs, potatoes and toast for 99 cents.

Pappy's Diner is open 24 hours a day. The phone number is 378-4717.

The Village Cafe is the latest restaurant addition to Ruidoso Downs. Located just this side of the Ruidoso Downs/Ruidoso village limits at 2064 Highway 70, next to the Economy Inn, The Village Cafe features "Home cooking with down-to-earth prices," a complete sandwich and dinner menu and a $1.99 breakfast special that is served all day long. Village Cafe is open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. The phone number is 378-8558.

Lodging in the Downs

Visitors to Ruidoso Downs will find many lodging options.

Budget Motel of Ruidoso on Highway 70 has 20 rooms, cable TV with free HBO, whirlpool/jacuzzi, sauna, refrigerators and maid and valet service. Budget Motel allows pets and a fax machine is available. The phone number is 378-8000.

Downs Motel features nightly, weekly and monthly rooms, small houses, apartments and condos. RV hookups are also available. Some accommodations include hot tubs and laundry facilities. The phone number is 378-4134.

Economy Inn is located at 2019 West Highway 70 next to the new Village Cafe in Ruidoso Downs. The 17-room motel features television, phones, sauna, refrigerators, and maid service. Pets are allowed by obtaining permission and a FAX machine is available. The phone number is 378-4706.

Mitchell Motel, with 17 rooms, is also located on Highway 70 in Ruidoso Downs and has in-room cable television and maid service. The phone number is 378-4610.

Ruidoso Downs' largest lodging facility is the Inn at Pine Springs. With 100 rooms, telephones, cable television, free HBO, a hot tub and complimentary continental breakfast. All of the guest rooms are extra large and many have king-size beds. Suites and junior suites are also available. Business people will find on-site meeting rooms available to various sized groups, from as many as 200 in a single room to a small group. Audio/visual equipment VCR and televisions are available to assist in presentations.

Champions Run Condominiums, located next to the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs, features condos with kitchens, fireplaces and televisions. The facility also has a swimming pool. Pets are allowed and a FAX machine and laundry facilities are available. The phone number is 378-8080.

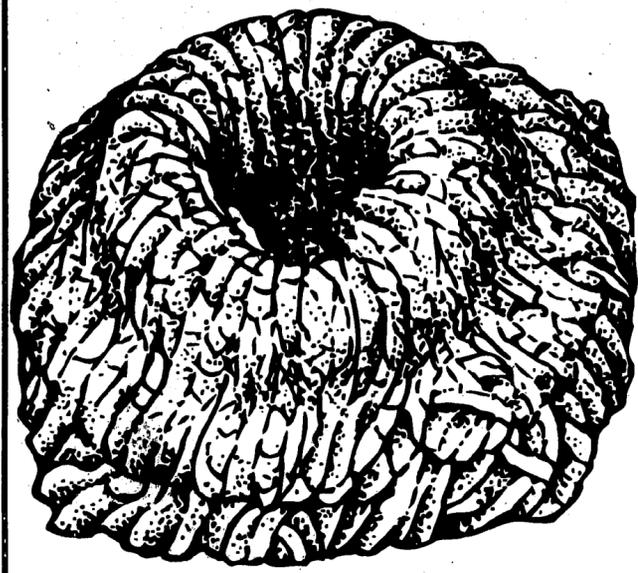

Miss Liberty holds her torch in front of The Gift Shop on Highway 70 in Ruidoso Downs. The Gift Shop is a memorabilia lover's paradise. The shop also features wrought iron, statues, bird cages and bird baths.
