Commission will pay sheriff legal fee

The legal fee charged by an attorney to represent the Lincoln County sheriff in a dispute with county commissioners was approved for payment Tuesday.

Commissioners voted 3-2 to pay about $1,000 charged by J. Robert Beauvais when he represented Sheriff James McSwane in his fight to continue the operation of a drug task force in his office.

Commissioner Chairman Monroy Montes and Commissioner Wilton Howell voted against the motion by Commissioner L. Ray Nunley.

Earlier in the meeting, Nunley offered a motion not to pay Beauvais and it passed unanimously. But during a closed session with County Attorney Alan Morel, Nunley became convinced that the county would end up spending more money by not paying and facing more legal expenses defending that position.

McSwane was allowed to apply for grant money to continue the task force, but agreed to some manpower and budget limits imposed by the commission.

L.C. Cowboy Symposium will be held Oct. 12-15

The best cowboy poets, musicians, craftsmen and chuckwagon cooks in the country will gather at the Glencoe Rural Events Center east of Ruidoso Downs on Thursday through Sunday, Oct. 12-15, for the 6th annual Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium.

Johnny Gimble and the former Texas Playboys headline the entertainment, which will feature dozens of others throughout the expanded four-day event.

A Western Trade Show, trail rides through historic Lincoln and the Mescalero Apache Reservation, chuckwagon cook-off, and horse training clinic round off the events.

The Ruidoso News will publish a special section next Thursday, Oct. 12 covering the Cowboy Symposium. Call 378-4142 for information.

Candy throwing prohibited

Candy throwing is prohibited during Saturday's Aspenfest Parade, Ruidoso officials say.

The prohibition extends to all spectators and participants of the annual Aspenfest. It stems from a concern of accumulating litter and the safety of children running into the street for the treats.

Sheriff accused of attempt to frame county commission

by DIANNE STALLINGS
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The district attorney was asked Wednesday to investigate allegations that Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane and his deputies tried to frame county commissioners on drug charges.

After a 45-minute closed executive session Tuesday, Commission Chairman Monroy Montes directed County Manager Carolin Cooney to contact District Attorney (D.A.) Bert Atkins about allegations contained in a notice of legal action filed by Ruidoso attorney Gary Mitchell.

McSwane denied Wednesday that he or his deputies tried to coerce two women to entrap the commissioners.

"I can assure you those individuals (mentioned in the legal notice) were never coerced, asked to commit a crime, asked to frame anyone or to do anything considered inappropriate by anyone in this department," he said.

He acknowledged that the two women, Molly McBrinn (Foster), 40, of Ruidoso and Shelly Woods, 38, of Ruidoso Downs, were questioned about suspected illegal activity and people who might be involved.

Some commissioners said later they expect Atkins to place the investigation in the hands of another district attorney, because McSwane's wife works in Atkins' Carrizozo office.

"Freda McSwane is a legal secretary with my office. She will be entirely shielded from this investigation," Atkins said from his office in Alamogordo Wednesday. "I'm more concerned about the conflict that might exist between my office as prosecutors for however many number of cases the sheriff's department currently has with us. That would be the area of conflict I would focus on if I felt we needed to bring in a special prosecutor."

Cooney is putting together a packet to give him today while he's in Ruidoso, Atkins said.

"We're going to review it and if we feel there's something there that requires a prosecution, we'll probably review that with a neighboring D.A. or the Attorney General's office," he said.

He has no idea how long the process may take, Atkins said.

Allegations detailed

In his notice to the commission, Mitchell wrote that McBrinn and Woods were arrested Sept. 27 by Deputy Angelo Vega for allegedly bringing contraband into the county detention center.

"These girls were held illegally for something that is not even a crime in the state of New Mexico," Mitchell said Wednesday. "They shouldn't have been incarcerated. If somebody had bothered to read the statutes, they wouldn't have incarcerated them overnight. Another officer told them to read the statutes. They didn't or if they did, they just ignored it."

The two women spent the night in jail. The next morning, the complaint against them was dismissed by the district attorney.

Vega still didn't release them, Mitchell said.

Commissioners express shock

Lincoln County Commissioners expressed shock Tuesday at the allegations against Sheriff James McSwane and his deputies.

The commissioners were in the middle of a discussion when the notice of legal action from Ruidoso attorney Gary Mitchell arrived. The notice caught them by surprise and Chairman Monroy Montes declared a short recess.

Following are reactions by three commissioners:

— "I know the commission has no real investigative power over the sheriff's office, but we have a responsibility to the people of Lincoln County to lay to rest allegations and we have a budgetary responsibility," Montes said. "I have no interest to engage in an on-going feud with the sheriff, but at the same time, citizens are poorly served by finger pointing."

— "I find it offensive a deputy of the sheriff or anyone associated with the department would suggest setting up a commissioner," said Commissioner L. Ray Nunley.

— "I'm not engaged in any contest with the sheriff, only what citizens have brought to me (in complaints)," Commissioner Wilton Howell said. "There must be some court or agency outside this group that can look at these serious allegations. That way, if someone is guilty of the crime, they will do the time. If not, we can all get on with our business."

Allegations in attorney's notice

Allegations against the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office contained in the legal notice sent by attorney Gary Mitchell included:

— Molly McBrinn Foster and Shelly Woods were falsely charged and falsely imprisoned overnight by Deputy Angelo Vega;

— members of the sheriff's office made statements that the commissioners and Ruidoso police officer Pete Esquibel were involved in a conspiracy;

— deputies attempted to have McBrinn and Woods engage in illegal activity in violation of state laws;

— Vega, along with other members of the sheriff's department, engaged in a conspiracy;

— members of the sheriff's office violated the civil rights of the two women;

— and Vega included false information (inflated amounts of drugs) in drafting a search warrant in connection to a case in which he was using McBrinn as an undercover informant.

Bright autumn colors welcome Aspenfesters

by DON HIXON
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

When autumn colors of gold and crimson erupt throughout the forest landscape surrounding Ruidoso, thousands of visitors begin the pilgrimage to view the natural glory of the season.

The yearly transformation of leaf colors, plus annual Aspenfest, Cowboy Symposium and Oktoberfest celebrations, could bring as many as 40,000 people to the region during October, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce officials predict.

Leaves shifting from green to golden are triggered by the change in the weather. Colder nights and shorter days cause trees to cease manufacturing chlorophyll, the sunlight-gathering pigment that gives leaves their greenish color. This lack of chlorophyll soon causes the leaves to begin changing to the reds, yellows and golds associated with autumn.

Along with oak and maple, aspens are among the most prominent of the trees that change color. Aspen trees are the most widely distributed native tree in North America, and besides being beautiful, they are a critical part of plant and animal communities, Forest Service officials said.

During the winter, aspen groves and forests provide food for rabbits, deer, elk and birds, who are partial to the tender buds, twigs and bark of the trees.

The Forest Service suggests several ideal viewing locations for those planning to take a tour of the Ruidoso autumn leaves.

— Monjeau Lookout: This site can be reached by traveling north off Ski Run Road on a five-mile, bumpy gravel road leading to an old fire lookout station. Visitors can walk among the aspens and others are visible in the distance while driving.

The yearly transformation of leaf colors, plus celebrations, could bring as many as 40,000 people to the region.

— Tan Bark, Nogal Canyons: Take Forest Road 108 past Bonito Lake to Forest Road 400 near Nogal Peak, then follow that road down Nogal Canyon on the other side of the mountain to the town of Nogal, then follow N.M. 37 back to Highway 49 to Ruidoso. Rangers say this loop gives a view of some of the best fall colors, but a high-clearance vehicle is recommended.

— Ski Run Road: Maple, oak and aspens are already showing their colors along the 18-mile paved road off N.M. 37 to Ski Apache, west of Ruidoso. Fantastic views around Sierra Blanca Peak, the Mescalero Apache Reservation and the Lincoln National Forest are all visible from Windy Point Overlook below the ski area.

More information and maps are available at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, 720 Sudderth Drive (257-7395), and the Smokey Bear Ranger District office, 901 Mechem Drive (257-4095).

Chino faces off with V.P.

by DIANNE STALLINGS
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Mescalero Apache President Wendell Chino and Vice President Fred Peso will face off in the tribe's Nov. 7 general election for president.

They pulled the most votes of the three candidates for president in Tuesday's primary. The break between the former allies possibly stems from Chino's successful push to replace Peso's cousin as head of the Bureau of Indian Affairs on the reservation.

Neither candidate has granted an interview about their platforms. Chino has led the tribe for more than 30 years. Peso first was elected to the tribal council in the early 80s and became vice president two years ago.

Unofficial results show that of the more than 1,300 qualified voters of the 3,500 tribal members, 825 cast ballots, about 63%. Of that number, 19 were deemed invalid. Seven were absentee ballots.

According to a tribal member who is not a member of the election board, Harlyn Geronimo received 148 votes compared to Peso's 178 and Chino's 472.

Rufina Laws, a leader against the tribal council's plan to store spent nuclear fuel rods, filed to run for the presidency. She was later disqualified by the election board, because she recently moved to Ruidoso after waiting for three years without success for a housing assignment on the reservation.

For vice president, Keith Miller, who previously served in that post, racked up the highest number of votes at 471. He will run against Joseph Geronimo, an outspoken nuclear storage project opponent, who received 142 votes. Gwen Shaffer chalked up 51 votes and Harrison Toelanny, chief tribal court judge, received 136.

For the four open council seats, the four incumbents pulled the highest number of votes. They are Fred Chino Sr. with 305, Raymond Kirgan with 288, Berle Kanseah with 281 and Rphael Mendez with 264.

The next four highest vote-getters were Oliver Ray Enjady with 242 votes, Virgil Comanche with 205 votes, Evelyn Breuninger with 186 and Teddy Rodriguez with 171. Comanche and Rodriguez have expressed their opposition to tribal plans for construction of the storage plant for radioactive spent nuclear fuel on the reservation.

Official results were not available from the tribe. They were not posted when an employee of The Ruidoso News checked at tribal headquarters in Mescalero.

When a reporter called, a woman who would not give her name said, "I'm not allowed to give it out, sorry."

Peso also refused to release the figures, saying what happens on the reservation is tribal business.

Eliminated in the primary were Joey Padilla with 170 votes, Ray Little with 72, Eugenia Mendez with 94, Alan Duffy with 77, Christie LaPaz Jr. with 169, Leland Lester with 116, Nine Tortilla with 142, Betty Smith with 144, Charles Smith with 73 and George Klinekole with 92.

Ruidoso attorney to research rights vs. tribal annexation

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Village Council directed Village Attorney John Underwood Tuesday to research the village's legal options regarding the Mescalero Apache Tribe's petition to make property in the village part of the tribal trust.

"I don't know how we'd find out what our rights are without the (special) legal services," Mayor Jerry Shaw said after the session. "Actually, what this amounts to is, we're trying to find out what they're up to."

Included in Underwood's research will be similar case studies and an evaluation of the fiscal effect of the loss of taxes on the approximately 30 acres of property.

Underwood said he is unaware of a state precedence of an Indian nation petitioning to add incorporated land into its trust.

The Mescalero tribal council passed a resolution Aug. 15 asking that the Carrizo Lodge be part of the tribal trust lands, and passed the notice on to the BIA's field office in Mescalero.

That BIA office is working with the tribe to compile information to send to the BIA's Albuquerque office, said Delbert Mendez of the Mescalero BIA office. The Albuquerque office will decide whether to grant the petition. The tribe could then seek to make the Carrizo property part of the reservation.

The property includes a restaurant in an historic building, offices, 12 condos and 24 acres of undeveloped property owned by Gaim-Ko. The company has leased the Carrizo property to the tribe, and it has since been renamed the Mescalero Inn.

Gaim-Ko also supplies gambling slot machines to the tribe's Inn of the Mountain Gods, which lies a few miles up Carrizo Canyon Road from the Carrizo Lodge/Mescalero Inn.

Remodeling applications filed with the village say there will be no change of use at Carrizo.

Underwood's assignment to learn more about Indian law comes in addition to the 720 hours of basic services Underwood is contracted to provide the village this year. Underwood will be paid $70/hour for an unspecified number of hours.

"It's a prudent and timely move for the village to be pursuing and analyzing its legal options at this point," commented Village Manager Gary Jackson.

The councilors' unanimous vote followed a closed, executive session regarding pending litigation in which the village "is or may" become a participant.

League on town's side

The New Mexico Municipal League is also looking closely at the tribe's plans. The NMML unanimously passed a resolution proposed by the village of Ruidoso.

The resolution expresses concern about tribal "annexation" of property within villages and cities.

The resolution asks the state to "evaluate the fiscal impacts of this situation and evaluate the legal options available to protect against the erosion of existing tax bases."

The NMML represents all 99 municipalities in the state.

County hospital board will vote about state Open Meetings Act

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Lincoln County Medical Center board of directors will vote Oct. 19 whether to start conducting its meetings under rules of the New Mexico Open Meetings Act.

Gene Walton, vice president of legal affairs for Presbyterian Healthcare Services in Albuquerque, delivered that news to the Lincoln County Commission Tuesday. Presbyterian leases the hospital from the county.

The hospital board doesn't agree that it's legally required to follow the act, but it may vote to follow it anyway because of an attorney general's office opinion.

Reacting to a request from The Ruidoso News, the New Mexico Foundation for Open Government (FOG) asked for an attorney general's opinion on whether the LCMC board is subject to the state law.

Assistant Attorney General Elizabeth Glenn concluded Aug. 29 that the LCMC board falls under the open meetings law. Hospital officials disagreed with that stance in letters to the AG's office.

As the state law requires, the hospital will publish a notice of the

Oct. 19 next board meeting before it occurs, Walton said.

The first item of business Oct. 19 will be to vote on the Open Meetings Act, Walton said. But even if the vote passes, that doesn't mean Presbyterian has given up.

Last month, hospital administrator Valerie Miller said acceptance of the AG opinion could affect other Presbyterian hospitals in New Mexico. She refused to say what other hospitals she was referring to.

"We plan to open up a discussion with the attorney general again, because we believe this is fundamentally wrong," Walton said. "I don't know where it will end. We will comply until someday we are able to convince them they are wrong."

The only support for Walton's position came from Commissioner Stirling Spencer, who said he has some reservations about applying open meeting requirements to hospital meetings when sensitive issues may be discussed that don't fall within items reserved for closed executive sessions.

"It's the people's facility and they need to know what's going on," Commissioner Wilton Howell told Spencer.

Hospital Board Chairman Dub Williams, a state representative from Glencoe, insisted that the meetings are open to the public and anyone can get on the agenda by calling ahead of time. He didn't say whether he supported the open meetings act.

The hospital board sometimes has sections of its meetings closed to the public that would not be allowed to be closed under the Open Meetings Act.

Commission Chairman Monroy Montes said the hospital could seek changes through the State Legislature, especially because Williams is the Republican state representative for the county.

"However, if the board had been adhering to the Open Meetings Act, maybe we would not had some of the discussions that occurred here today, some of which probably would have been better held in front of the hospital board," Montes said.

He was referring to complaints from doctors and others in the health care field that the hospital administration is trying to stifle competition.

"They brought them in and told them they had to work for the drug task force or otherwise they're going to be sent to the penitentiary," Mitchell said. "I think the thing they wanted them to do was work on the commissioners and they wanted her (McBrinn's) knowledge of any involvement of commissioners and the Ruidoso Police Department in drugs. They were implying strongly there was an involvement and she, as part of her work in the case, would have to work on that."

"They implied a police officer here in Ruidoso was protecting these commissioners, which is absolute nonsense."

About 3 p.m. Sept. 28, McBrinn was brought into a room with Vega and was offered a deal if she worked with the task force, Mitchell wrote in the notice.

"That was a damnable lie in that the charges had already been dismissed and Ms. McBrinn's release ordered," Mitchell wrote. "After coercion, threats and inappropriate conduct, Ms. McBrinn was coerced into working with Deputy Vega and the Lincoln County Drug Task Force."

She was ordered not to talk to her attorney or Ruidoso police officer Pete Esquibel, Mitchell stated.

"In addition, Ms. McBrinn was asked to set up Lincoln County Commissioners," Mitchell wrote. "The sheriff and the (drug task force) have an on-going feud with (commissioners) because of the commission's refusal to automatically fund the drug task force," he wrote.

Mitchell contended McSwane was involved in the coercion of the two women.

At first because the women were frightened, they went along with Vega's request and McBrinn tried to set up someone in a drug purchase, Mitchell said.

"Ms. McBrinn finally realized that the actions they were called upon to do involved trying to set up innocent people," he wrote.

At that point, she contacted another Ruidoso police officer and Mitchell.

"If I were these commissioners, I would be suing them for defamation and extortion. I wouldn't take it," Mitchell said Wednesday. "It's an attack on their families. Not a single shred of evidence exists anywhere that these commissioners are involved in any of that. I think the bottom line is that they (the task force members) know there's nothing there and they were just hoping to write somebody's neck on it."

"Just the implication alone creates problems in a community."

Ruidoso airline flight schedule adjusts for passenger choices

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Most flights along the month-old Ruidoso Lone Star air route have been fuller than expected, a Lone Star Airlines executive said Tuesday.

However, one daily weekday flight frequently lacked passengers so it has been eliminated, David Rescino said. That flight was a late-night roundtrip between Roswell and El Paso.

In its place, a second Monday flight to Dallas from Roswell and Ruidoso has been added.

A roundtrip weekend flight from Ruidoso to Roswell to Dallas has also been added.

"We've kept the good flight and have gotten rid of the bad one," Rescino said. "We expect to get more Dallas customers with the extra flight."

The airline's four-city route began Sept. 5.

Rescino said the average number of passengers on the Ruidoso-Roswell-El Paso-Dallas air route has been higher than expected.

More than 1,000 plane seats are currently booked along the air route. With the exception of Lone Star's Chihuahua-Dallas route, this route has the highest number of pre-booked seats, Rescino said.

About 75% of the computer-booked reservations are for October and November, and the remaining portion fall in the early part of December, he said.

"It's not a surprise to reach that level; it's a surprise to reach that level so quickly," Rescino said. "Jumping to 1,000 bookings in only 30 days is, to me, amazing."

Rescino had projected an average 23% of the planes' 18 seats would be filled on flights during the first month of service. But to his surprise, the actual average load factor of September's weekday flights averaged 32.3%.

"It's a 50% improvement over what we had hoped for," Rescino said.

Sierra Blanca Regional Airport Manager Tim Morris said a breakdown of passenger counts during the first month of service shows:

— 113 passengers flew from Ruidoso to Dallas;

— 64 flew from Ruidoso to El Paso;

— 460 flew from Roswell to Dallas;

— 131 flew from El Paso to Dallas;

— and one flew from Roswell to Ruidoso.

Counts of passengers last week were the highest yet, with a 47% average load factor, Rescino said.

The percentage was boosted with the elimination of the unpopular El Paso flight, and the inclusion of the extra Dallas flight, Morris said.

"We're confident that this market will be a success in the long term," Rescino said.

Airline revenues with the Ruidoso route are also 50% higher than anticipated, even with the reduced ticket prices offered during the first month of service, Rescino said.

At least $55,000 worth of tickets have been pre-purchased in large blocks by Ruidoso-area residents, Rescino said.

"It's an indication the community is very supportive of the service, and we're very grateful of that," he said.

Those tickets haven't necessarily been booked yet, as the seats purchased during the route's premiere month are good for a year.

Included in the block purchase sum is the $25,000 worth of tickets Ruidoso Downs Race Track owner R.D. Hubbard purchased when the airline announced its new service.

Wendell China, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, also indicated he would purchase $25,000 worth of tickets, but to date he has not, Rescino said.

Weather doesn't stop passengers' delivery

Lone Star Airlines has accommodated passengers whose flights in and out of Ruidoso have been canceled because of inclement weather, said David Rescino, an airline executive.

During the first month of service, one Ruidoso flight has been canceled due to bad weather.

When this happened, the airline diverted an incoming flight to Roswell and provided ground transportation for those coming to Ruidoso. Transportation was also provided for outgoing passengers to the Roswell airport.

The threat of a bad weather cancellation should be lessened when Ruidoso gets its more sophisticated instrument approach system on line.

"We're in the process of installing a localizer for precision approaches," said Tim Morris, manager of Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

He said he hopes the Federal Aviation Administration can have the localizer (distance measuring equipment) installed before the Christmas holiday.

Right now the airport is using a system that is "like a radio beacon," Morris said. In the event of lightning and thunderstorms, transmissions in that system can be affected.

When visibility is less than a mile, and instruments can't take over for landing because of low-lying cloud coverage, flights also have to be diverted, he said.

The recent federal publishing of a Global Positioning Satellite (GPS) approach system will also help to guide planes precisely within a 16th of an inch, Morris said.

The communications equipment for the GPS is on the planes, and the satellite data can be transmitted when flight crews program in at certain latitudinal and longitudinal readings.

Outlaw skateboard ramps appear

by KATHLEEN McDONALD Ruidoso News Staff Writer

A variety of ramps erected by skateboarding enthusiasts at Ruidoso's new North Park are illegal, a village official said.

"The ones out there have not been approved and have to be removed," Village Manager Gary Jackson said.

The park was created this summer as an alternative to skateboarding downtown when skateboarding was banned there. It currently consists only of a flat asphalt slab while village officials study liability concerns associated with ramps.

Jackson called the appearance of the illegal ramps on the asphalt slab a "daily battle" and said that village workers have already removed them once, a little over a week ago.

"They reappeared later in the day."

"They will probably have to be confiscated" if not removed for good by their owners, Jackson said.

However, four other ramps now in storage have been approved by a private safety consultant and may be erected soon, Jackson said.

These ramps were donated last month by a local sport shop owner and approved by a private safety consultant as being eligible for the liability insurance coverage.

Village councilors must still vote to authorize usage of these ramps.

They must also approve payment of a $500 per month liability insurance fee to cover the ramps, a fee quoted by the village insurer, Jackson said.

The council will take up the matter at its 6:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting at the village hall.

Jackson said his office received word Monday about the council to insure the ramps.

The insurer also issued recommendations the village must follow in order for liability coverage to be provided. Those recommendations will entail more village expenditures.

Recommendations include: — allowing only those ramps provided by the village and inspected by the insurer. All others will be confiscated by the police department;

— providing toilet facilities and a fresh drinking fountain. The dependence upon Fire Station #2 (in front of the White Mountain Drive park) for these necessities could become a nuisance to working fire station personnel;

— fencing the perimeter of the park with a security gate to control hours of operation. Also, the entrance must be built with an overlapping gate;

— use railroad ties around the inside perimeter of the security fencing to help support of the bottom of the fence;

— the Parks and Recreation Department must maintain and periodically inspect the condition of the facility;

— close the park during inclement weather.

The recommendations also included posting a sign at the gate entrance detailing rules of usage, i.e.:

— skate/blade/board at your own risk. The village of Ruidoso is not responsible for any injuries that may occur;

— parent or legal guardian is required to be in attendance at all times if a skater is under 13 years of age;

— no alcoholic beverages or glass containers;

— do not use fire station except for emergency injury notification;

— skaters must wear head protection, elbow pads and knee pads to use this facility;

— no loitering or non-use within the inside perimeter of fencing;

— opening hours.

"The recommendations are reasonable and not insurmountable," Jackson said.

Last Full Moon Night at White Sands Monument

The final Full Moon Night for 1995 at White Sands National Monument will be held on Saturday, Oct. 7. The evening program begins at 7 p.m. at the park amphitheater at the end of the Dunes Drive.

The theme for this month's program will be the ranching heritage of the Tularosa Basin and the Sacramento Mountains. The program will be hosted by G.B. Oliver III and will include members of a number of the area's pioneer families, who will share personal stories of the early days in the area.

Monument Superintendent Dennis Dittmanson invites both local residents and area visitors to the program to gather around the campfire and learn more about the "cowboy" culture and its ties to the Vehicle re-registration notices that were mailed in September for October renewal were duplicated statewide because of a processing error. Customers who receive the duplicate notices should disregard the second billing.

Motor Vehicle Division employees in all field offices have been notified of the error and have been instructed to verify the customer account before accepting a second payment.

"The processing problem has been identified, brought to the attention of those responsible and corrected so further errors of this nature will not continue to occur. We apologize for the inconvenience this may cause our customers," said Gary A. Montoya, Motor Vehicle Division Director.

County Shriners host potentate

Lincoln County shriners will host a visit by their potentate Friday and Saturday, Oct. 6 and 7 in Ruidoso. The official visit is in conjunction with Aspenfest.

Potentate Dale Pipher of Belen will meet with local Shriners to discuss the activities of Ballut Ahyad Shrine Temple and its support of the hospital program. Tim Rich is president of the Ruidoso Shrine Club. The local Shrine Club currently has nine children being treated by Shrine Hospital doctors, said local Crippled Children's Co-chairman Jerry Wright.

The Shriners have never made a charge to a child, parent, insurance company or any governmental body for the treatment of crippled or burned children.

"We're very proud of the Ruidoso area Shriners for their hard work over many years to help the kids," Potentate Pipher said. Ballut Ahyad Shrine Temple serves the entire state of New Mexico and has 462 children in the treatment program, Pipher said.

Reaping the harvest

Fall is a time to celebrate the summer's harvest and marvel at the golden colors in the mountains. While surrounding valleys still celebrate the traditional harvest of fruit and grains, we in Ruidoso look back at a different kind of harvest: tourists.

A tourism-based economy is great as long as we keep in mind that even this clean economy has its inherent problems to keep in check (such as an unstable tax base, a need for an oversized utility infrastructure, and low-income jobs in the service industry).

Like farmers and ranchers, the tourism industry depends on the weather, but to a lesser extent. And we sometimes want different weather than what's good for the fields. This weekend we're hoping the aspens are in their prime.

Judging from the latest gross revenue tax statistics (a 4% increase for January through July vs. 1994), Ruidoso has seen a modest increase in tourism. The gross receipts tax is similar to a sales tax. June was great; July was not.

These statistics may be indicators of where the community needs to add events, as officials start to plan new projects with the help of a newly hired special events coordinator.

October seems to have plenty of events already, and they are some of the locals' favorites: Aspenfest, the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium and Oktoberfest.

The first two celebrate some of this county's inherent attractions: nature and the West. That's the angle officials need to keep as they think about new events. They should seek plenty of public input, too, since this kind of planning would attract some fun ideas.

This weekend features Aspenfest, part of which can be interpreted as a celebration of the chile harvest. If you want to clear your sinuses and smell that fall in the air, the state Chili Cookoff and roasted chiles are the ticket.

The parade, crafts fair and hot rod display are friendly, laid-back ways to welcome fall. We hope you all enjoy the weekend — and take time out to see nature's contribution to Aspenfest in the surrounding forest.

GUEST COMMENTARY

Senator seeks ideas about legislative issues

by PETE CAMPOS
state senator (D-Santa Rosa)

The 1996 New Mexico legislative session is just around the corner. To achieve an agenda which is prudent, caring and thoughtful, I need your thoughts concerning the major issues of the day.

As the state enters this important time, I believe it is valuable to remind ourselves of common values to guide us in our dealings with each other, our government and the people served by our government.

In all our actions, we should pursue a course that relies on direct communication with each other and with all New Mexicans. Together, we can seek rational, prudent and thoughtful changes in government.

With all the issues facing New Mexico, it is more important than ever to engage in frank, open discussions so that public officials and the public are fully informed.

the underlying causes of crime: poverty, lack of community involvement, poor education and dysfunctional families.

Education

As New Mexico considers the possibility of educational reforms, we must keep in mind one of the most important purposes of a public education: to provide for the development of the whole person. We must help students acquire the skills necessary to be good workers, better managers, wise business owners, good professionals, caring parents, positive role models and involved citizens.

We must remain committed to pursuing the goal of preparing our children for the work force, family life, community involvement and citizenship. This includes ensuring that our children avoid harmful substances, enjoy good nutrition, enter school ready to learn something new each day, have opportunities to participate in after-school activities and are kept safe.

for a low-growth increase in state expenditures that stabilizes the number of state workers without reducing services.

Gambling

The legislature continues to grapple with the question of how much and whether to expand gambling in New Mexico. This is a particularly difficult issue because so many entities are involved: federal law enforcement agencies, federal courts and other agencies, sovereign Indian tribes and pueblos and New Mexico industries.

I am confident that the Legislature, by working together, following the prudent course and communicating well at every point, can forge a solution to the question of expanded gambling in New Mexico. It will not be easy, and it will require the citizens of our state to offer their input and to recognize that compromises must be made.

There will be, of course, changes in government. The people have demanded it, and it is clear that some change is needed. But change simply for the sake of change is not good; it must be based on demonstrated needs, and it must be pursued rationally and responsibly.

Some areas which I hope to concentrate on during the 1996 session include:

Crime Prevention and Corrections

New Mexico's crime prevention and corrections policy must be broad-based and rooted in the understanding that the only truly effective way to make our communities safer is to prevent crime, not just punish offenders.

Swift, sure punishment is also necessary, of course, and the more than 3,000 men and women behind bars in state prisons are evidence of our willingness to remove offenders from society. But we have been told time and time again that crime is a young man's business and that crime rates are largely driven by the number of young men in our society.

Clearly, the most effective, least costly way to make our communities safer is to address

Health Care

A health care revolution is underway in the United States and New Mexico will not avoid it. While there continues to be a good deal of resistance to the notion of a single-payer health care system, it is clear some changes are on the way.

Clean Environment and Landscape

We must work to enhance and preserve New Mexico's well-known natural landscape. As our state's population increases, this will prove more difficult, but not impossible. We must work together to ensure that the air, water and land quality is not jeopardized as our state develops.

Smaller, Prudent Government

Government will grow in New Mexico, but it does not need to grow very much. As we look at the zero-based budgeting concept, where each expenditure is scrutinized and judged against whether it is accomplishing the purpose for which it is intended, we should strive

Welfare Reform

Similar to the health care revolution, national welfare reform will affect New Mexico. Our job is to see that the effects are in the best interests of all our residents. It is too early to know with any degree of certainty what changes will eventually be made, but I am confident the transformations in New Mexico will be rational, prudent and thoughtful.

In conclusion, it is important for all of us to realize that government is our partner. Government and society are both changing. I want to help with these changes and will continue to insist that any changes be the result of a well-reasoned process and be implemented as expeditiously as possible.

As your senator, I believe part of my role is that of a facilitator and problem solver. I hope you will reinvest your trust in government officials, because we cannot govern without your trust.

I will seek balance in everything I do and make decisions, on your behalf, in a thoughtful and timely manner.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Quit whining TO THE EDITOR:

This is Why:
I am writing my letter on behalf of Meredith Keeton's whining in "The Why" column on The Ruidoso News school page. Every column I have read from her so far has only placed me in an irritable mood. The negativity gets old. The problems won't be solved by complaining. Besides, we have a student body executive board that will take all situations and weigh them out. If you want to make a difference, be in student council and change what's wrong, not make it more difficult.

In regard to Meredith's first column on skating, it left no impression on me. I'll tell you what, though, how about selling your non-cheap skates, buy yourself some cheap ones, and with the rest of the money, hire some workers to build you a concrete sidewalk to Emily's house. During the night, while you lie in bed, you can reminisce on the good old days, because now you're facing the future. Then maybe you'll come to appreciate the heart the community has to even make a park. So it may be asphalt? I see a lot of skaters skate in school parking lots.

The next column was merely a crying session. I personally don't believe my freshman year should have been an open campus. Half of us didn't have cars, much less be able to drive them with caution. I stayed at school every day my freshman year and the cafeteria food was much worse.

Here's some advice for you: save your money for your senior year and bring a sack lunch. That way you eat what you like, you don't have to wait in line, and you have a well-balanced diet.

The last column that I've read so far was completely and utterly uncalled for. You are a freshman, you have lived through nothing to make you wiser, obviously. In the course of time you are supposed to gain responsibilities (that's part of being wiser).

As a freshman, you are not pushed around harder until you mature, then you're expected to grow up. We are the future. If we live the rest of our lives as freshmen, there's no hope. You don't have to be a corpse to be mature. It's called self-control, common sense, and self-reliance. Just because people grow up and mature doesn't mean they can't have fun.

The next column you write should be positive. You are an excellent writer and I believe you have great writing skills. Don't waste them.

Thunder KOs Foster in eighth round Tuesday

Heavyweight James Thunder knocked out Melvin "Top Gun" Foster in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night at the Foxwoods Resort and Casino in Ledyard, Conn. The fight was a non-title bout.

Thunder, who trains in Ruidoso at Ron Weather's camp, landed a right that put Foster down for the second time that round and the third time in the match. Referee Steve Smoger stopped the fight officially at the 1:03 mark of the eighth round.

The win improved Thunder's record to 28-6 with 22 KOs. Foster, a former Golden Gloves heavyweight champ, fell to 20-3-1 (15 KOs).

The 29-year-old Thunder controlled the fight from the opening bell. He stunned Foster early in the second round with an overhand right. Smoger gave Foster a standing eight count before letting the fight continue.

Wright to miss game over controversial call

Carrizozo six-man football coach Sid Wright won't be on the sidelines Friday as Grizzlies take the field Friday against Vaughn. Wright was suspended for one game when he was flagged twice by an official during Zozo's game with Floyd Saturday. Coaches flagged twice by officials receive an automatic one-game suspension.

The New Mexico Activities Association notified Wright and the school district of the suspension Tuesday.

With his team leading 52-18, Wright left the sidelines to attend to injured player Patrick Hansell. Hansell had just been speared under the chin by a Floyd player. Wright left the sideline without first being summoned by the head official.

"When he got hit, it looked like he got shot. He just fell," said Wright, who feared Hansell sustained a neck or head injury.

Hansell was transported to the Portales hospital by ambulance. He was held for observation several hours before being released. Wright said Hansell will see limited action Friday.

Carrizozo school officials have asked the N.M.A.A. to investigate the incident. Officials sent a letter explaining Wright's actions and a videotape of the game.

"If the situation is like everyone says it is, then it warrants an investigation," Carrizozo principal Randall Earlwood said. Earlwood will help assistant coach Randall Robbins coach the Grizzlies Friday.

"I just wonder what his (the official's) response would have been had this young man been paralyzed," Wright said.

Tigers open district play hosting Reserve

The undefeated Capitan Tiger football team hosts district foe Reserve at 7:30 p.m. Friday. It will be the Tigers' District 3A opener.

The Mountaineers are 3-3 overall and 0-1 in the district. Cloudfcroft defeated Reserve Sept. 29.

Capitan coach Ed Davis said the Mountaineers are much improved under the direction of first-year coach Dean Overcast. Reserve has good size and fair speed, and the Mountaineers are more disciplined as well, Davis said.

The 5-0 Tigers might be tempted to look past Reserve to next week's opponent, rival Cloudfcroft.

"You can't afford to relax and lose one (district game)," Davis said. "We've worked hard on making sure we don't overlook Reserve. Our players are mature enough not to."

Capitan bumps off Cloudfcroft

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Capitan evened its district record with a critical win on the road Tuesday. The Tigers downed rival Cloudfcroft 11-15, 15-4, 15-10 and 15-12, improving to 5-6 overall and 1-1 in district play.

The Bears put up a solid fight but once the Tigers settled down, they dominated the net and the match.

"Cloudfcroft came ready to play and they were serving tough," Capitan coach Bryan Masse said. "They didn't let anything hit the floor."

Masse classified the Tigers' win as "big" because it came on the road against a scrappy team. The Bears play great defense, place their hits and serve well, he said.

"They are capable of upsetting anyone in our district," Masse said.

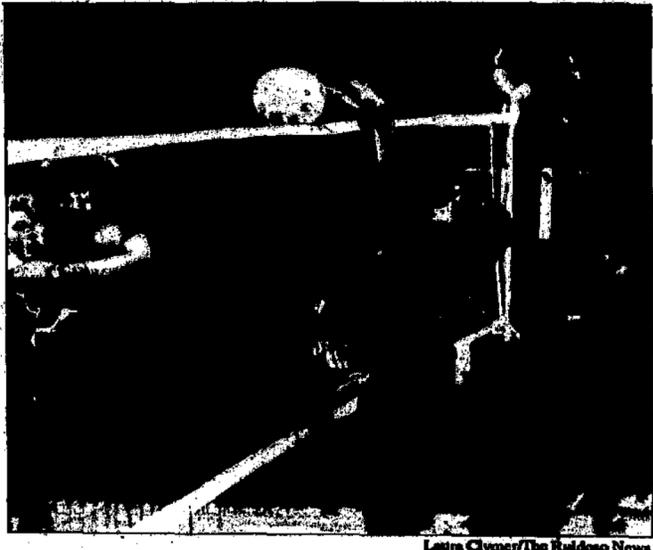

The victory was also important considering the Tigers dropped their district opener against Dexter Saturday at home.

"We came out intimidated a little bit. We weren't relaxed at all," Masse said of the Dexter match.

It showed, Dexter jumped all over the Tigers in the first two games, winning 15-7 and 15-11. Capitan finally got settled down and won the next two, 15-10 and 15-7. But the deciding fifth game belonged to the Demons, 15-7. In that last game, Capitan helped the Dexter cause by committing service errors early and late in the game.

"We hustled and tried hard, but we just didn't play relaxed," Masse said.

The Tigers were feeling the effects of the flu as well. Three starters were slowed by sickness, but Capitan battled back with strong play from Mandi Aldas and Ann Holt off the bench, Masse said.

Capitan has already had its share of sickness and injuries this season. The Tigers lost another starter Monday, when setter Andra Fisher sprained her left ankle near the end of practice. Fish was on crutches for the Cloudfcroft match and is out indefinitely.

Monica Johnson filled in for Fish against the Bears. As with any team, it took awhile for Capitan to get in sync with its new setter.

Earlier in the season the Tigers lost middle hitter/blocker Catherine Sidwell to an ankle sprain. Sidwell has returned with a vengeance, but the senior's timing is still a bit off because of the layoff.

As far as Masse is concerned, it's somebody else's turn for injuries and illness.

"We've had our share, but if we can just fight through it, keep improving and stay focused, we'll be all right," Masse said.

Capitan has improved because the Tigers are getting a better grasp on the Masse system. The first-year coach was hoping to run more complicated offensive schemes, but had to simplify things early in the season.

Capitan is adjusting to the new defensive coverages, and Masse hopes to run specific offensive plays when Fish returns to the lineup.

The Tigers face another District 6AA foe in Tularosa Thursday. Capitan hosts the Wildcats at 5:30 p.m. for a junior varsity match. Varsity action should start around 7 p.m.

Tigers down Hagerman

Capitan blew past Hagerman in a non-district match Sept. 28. The Tigers avenged an early-season loss to the Bobcats with a straight-game 15-2, 15-9 and 17-15 win at home.

"We really took it to them," Masse said. "We kept the momentum from the tourney championship match (Sept. 23) against Grady."

Another big meet for the Warriors

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

With the first of two tough meets behind them, the cross country Warriors have set their sights on their next big event — the Lubbock Invitational Saturday.

Ruidoso was one of 35 teams competing at the Gallup Invitational last Saturday. Most of the teams were from the northern part of the state, but the prestigious invitational drew teams from Arizona and Colorado as well.

The event had the atmosphere of a state championship meet, complete with thousands of spectators and lots of competitors. The 5,000-meter race was run over the course that will be used for the state meet. Ruidoso coach Ronnie Maskew estimated more than 240 runners competed in each of the boys and girls races.

It was truly an event for the Warriors to remember and an experience to draw from.

With all that considered, the Warriors ran pretty well, Maskew said.

Official times and team results were not available at press time, but Maskew does know freshman Erica Romero finished 60th overall in the girls race. Kenneth Gray and Ezra Sandoval led the boys team with 92nd and 93rd place finishes respectively.

Maskew is also pretty sure the Warriors as a team finished better than district rivals Cobre and Silver, but he won't know for sure until he receives the official results from Gallup.

Maskew knows the Warriors' times will be slower than those they have posted earlier this year because the Red Rock State Park course was 200 meters longer than the standard 3-mile distance.

"It's a great course to run because it's scenic," Maskew said. "But because it's sandy, it's little bit slower, too."

Ruidoso's runners will face an even larger number of competitors when they visit Lubbock Saturday. Each race in the Texas invitational will have anywhere from 300 to 400 runners from schools across west Texas, Maskew said.

The combination of the Gallup and Lubbock meets should provide the Warriors experience they can draw from when the district and state championships come around.

After running those two meets, it's hard to imagine the Warriors being "psyched out" by the number of entrants or the course at any meet.

To get a physical edge, the Warriors will continue to work on speed and endurance.

"We are working on hills and some distance interval training," Maskew said.

Gallup Invitational

Ruidoso girls individuals: Erica Romero, 50th; America Sandoval, 97th; Sierra LeCrosne, 120th; Jessica Daniels, 134th; Christy Palmer, 141st; Nancy Palmer, 150th.

Ruidoso boys individuals: Kenneth Gray, 92nd; Ezra Sandoval, 93rd; Kody Sparks, 101st; Kent Sparks, 118th; Zac Palford, 121st; Kyle Sparks, 159th; Johnny Martinez, 141st.

RHS rested, ready

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

It's been more than a week since Ruidoso football players have had the chance to hit somebody — other than their teammates in practice.

Needless to say, they're getting a bit tired of beating up on each other.

The Warriors will have a chance to block and tackle, run and pass against a common opponent at 7:30 p.m. tonight, when they take on Santa Teresa in the District 3AAA opener for both teams.

Ruidoso brings a 3-2 record to the table, while the Desert Warriors sport a 2-2 mark.

The last time the Warriors took the field was Sept. 22 against Portales. The Rams blanked Ruidoso 43-0.

Since then, coach Les Carter's troops have had the opportunity to refine offensive plays and defensive schemes, and heal mentally and physically from the first five games of the season.

The time off was well spent, Carter said. The Warriors have worked on perfecting different defenses, as well as offensive plays that have worked.

"Last week was a good mental week, and this week we've had real good practices," Carter said. "Our kids are excited. They're ready to get into the district (play)."

Playing Thursday night instead of Friday evening should have short-term and long-term advantages for Ruidoso. Santa Teresa played last week, losing to Clint, Texas, 7-0. The Desert Warriors have only six days to prepare for Ruidoso. Ruidoso, however, is eager to play because of its week layoff.

Plus, the Thursday game means Ruidoso will have an extra day to prepare for its Oct. 13 meeting with Silver High School. That's not saying Carter and the Warriors are looking beyond Santa Teresa.

"We've got to play to our potential. We can't take anyone lightly," Carter said.

The Desert Warriors depend on the big play offensively. They like to spread the field and throw the bomb.

"We have to take away the long play and make them run the ball," Carter said. The Warriors must also keep pressure on the STHS quarterback.

The Ruidoso offense can help its defense keep the Desert Warriors in check as long as it controls the ball. Ruidoso will strive to find a balance between its running attack and its newly discovered passing attack.

The 250 yards the Warriors gained via the airways Sept. 22 was the silver lining in the dark Portales cloud.

"It was a confidence builder for Pascal (Enjady) and the whole team," Carter said of the Warriors' offensive performance against the Rams.

Enjady, a junior quarterback, finished 20-for-35 for 246 yards. Throughout five games, Enjady has completed nearly 52% of his passes. He is 42-of-81 for 546 yards, three interceptions and two touchdowns.

A team can rack up 500 yards in offense, but if it doesn't cross the goal line, yardage doesn't matter, Carter said, referring to the five times the Warriors had the ball inside the Portales 20-yard line.

Leading the Warriors' rushing attack are seniors Rex Comanche and Kyle Humphreys. Comanche is averaging 4.3 yards per rush, while Humphreys picks up 3.2 yards a carry.

Defensively, Comanche and teammates Byron Soules and Jackie Roe lead the Warriors. Jesse Franknecht, who has 20 unassisted tackles, anchors the defensive line for Ruidoso.

Ruidoso will be without lineman Joey Bewley, who dislocated his shoulder in the Portales game. Shane Reidhead, Trey Brantley or Andrew Tenorio will get the starting defensive tackle assignment against Santa Teresa.

Who will take control?

Every District 3AAA team enters its game this week with at least a 500 record, but Carter thinks his Warriors have an advantage.

"With the teams we've played — the Artesias, the Portaleses — we feel like our schedule has prepared us well," Carter said.

He doesn't expect his team to face a better quarterback than Artesia's Josh Whitmire, or a team as physical as Portales, in the district.

"It's a matter of who will take control," Carter said of the district race.

The Warriors want to take control right from the start with a win over Santa Teresa.

"Last year we had our back against the wall. We had to win (to make it to the playoffs). We don't want to be in that position. We want people chasing us," Carter said.

Police chief hired

A new police chief is on duty for the village of Capitan.

Carrol Durbin, a rancher who formerly worked for the Roswell Police Department, was hired last week by the board of trustees. He will be paid $1,700 a month.

Tony Cano, the village's previous police chief, resigned after pleading no contest to forging a vehicle title registration document. E.J. Fouratt of Capitan filled in for the last two months until a new chief was chosen.

Trustees also will be reviewing applications for a second police officer to help the chief and officer Carlos Britos. Johnny Parker, who handled animal impounding and police duties, resigned in July for another job. Applications for that position will be accepted through Friday, Oct. 13.

Carpenter sentenced

Capitan Trustee Byron Carpenter was sentenced last month to six months in the Lincoln County Detention Center on a domestic violence charge.

The complaint originally was filed in September 1994 by Nadine Griego. It was reopened on July 25 of this year, according to district court records.

Carpenter, 34, was jailed Sept. 10 without bond. He was sentenced about two weeks later.

On Sept. 27, a claim for child support was filed against the trustee in Lincoln County District Court by the states of New Mexico and Mississippi on behalf of Debbie A. Krause.

Park clean-up

Rusty Martin (at top) rakes the dead leaves and grass at Veterans Park in Capitan as part of a 5th grade clean-up project financed by a Keep New Mexico Beautiful grant. The project is being supervised by teacher Tiffany Menix and parent volunteer Karen Castillo. The students will grow wildflowers in a lab during the winter, then plant them in the park and around the school in the spring. Above, shovels are manned by Jacob White, Patrick Griego, Nalon Muniz and Jerry Trujillo.

Wine served with meals at Ellis Store

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Patrons of the Ellis Store Bed and Breakfast in the historic settlement of Lincoln now can enjoy wine with their gourmet meals. The Lincoln County Commission Tuesday approved a beer and wine license for the business.

Emory Lofton, who is co-owner of the business with David and Ginny Vigil, said meals are served Wednesday through Saturday by reservation only. The state has approved the Ellis Store application.

Last year, voters approved allowing beer and wine licenses in the unincorporated parts of the county. The Ellis Store is the first to apply for such a license.

"It will never be allowed to operate as a bar," Lofton said.

One resident wrote to the state complaining that the store had served wines with meals illegally before the owners had a license.

Lofton said sometimes a picnic license has been used for larger functions, allowing temporary sales of beer and wine. On other occasions, private parties were staged and a license was not needed, he said.

"When we first opened, we offered wine with meals, but an investigator came down from the state two years ago and explained the law," he said. "Now we offer only non-alcoholic beverages."

He said meals are the same price with or without the beverage.

Commissioner Wilton Howell said although he recalled being served an alcohol drink while dining at the store, he thought the owners were trying to correct the situation by obtaining the license and it was not the commission's job to cross-examine them.

It's one of the reasons you're more likely to get your Ford, Lincoln or Mercury vehicle fixed right the first time here than any where else. Only a Quality Care technician can use the Technical Service Hotline to call on the factory engineers when they have a problem they can't solve. ## SCHOOL BRIEFS

Mescalero High School will play sports this year; mascot selected

The Mescalero High School has found a way to add several sports this year, the high school's first year.

"Mescalero High School will initially be participating in athletics on an independent level," school Superintendent Bill Butler said. "We are currently scheduling basketball, track, golf and skiing events for the Chiefs."

As independent teams, the Chiefs will not be eligible for post-season play. Other teams with holes in their schedules may be able to play against them during the regular season.

Mescalero High students recently selected their school mascot and colors, too.

The school mascot is the Chiefs, and the school colors are purple, black, silver and white.

Preschool teacher's excellence rewarded

by DON HIXON

Ruidoso News Staff Writer

When preschool teacher Cathy Overdorf enters her classroom, the students' eyes brighten and young cheeks flush with excitement.

Overdorf is loved by her students. They eagerly cluster around her like baby chicks calling her nickname, "Mrs. O," and she is happy to give them her attention.

"I've always loved the little children," Overdorf laughed during an interview at Nob Hill Early Childhood Center where she teaches.

Overdorf was recently honored as the first recipient of the Award of Excellence at the eighth annual Magic Years Conference. The conference is sponsored by the New Mexico Division of Early Childhood (DEC), the Council for Exceptional Children and the New Mexico State Department of Education.

"Cathy is constantly working to improve methods of teaching," past president of the Council for Exceptional Children Gail Beam said. "She's always looking for innovative classroom ideas. Her work with children is well-known throughout the state, and that was the foundation for her being the first recipient of the award."

Overdorf was selected by a committee to receive the award because of her work with young children. She received a $100 cash award, a fully paid one-year membership in the DEC organization and a plaque commemorating the event.

The Award of Excellence is not the first award given to Overdorf. She received the Rural Education Award in 1993 through the Los Niños Project, a state program.

Teaching is a way of life for Overdorf. Her husband, Rick, teaches science at Ruidoso High School and Ruidoso Middle School and she has been an educator for 24 years. The past 11 have been spent teaching in Ruidoso, and for the past eight years she has been teaching preschoolers at Nob Hill.

Overdorf also teaches development classes at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso, performs child diagnostic procedures for both the Ruidoso and Capitan school districts, and is certified in the Parents As Teachers organization.

She received her bachelor's degree in elementary and early childhood education from Eastern New Mexico University-Portales, a master's in reading, and special education certification. She also is a certified educational diagnostician.

"As an educational diagnostician, I'm certified to do evaluations for special education students," she said. "Even when I was in school, I worked at the preschool lab and with Head Start when it first got started in the 70s."

Overdorf, along with a team of seven other instructors, teaches approximately 60 students during the school day.

Award-winning Nob Hill Early Childhood Center schoolteacher Cathy Overdorf blows a few bubbles with students during playground time.

"One of the things that I'm excited about this year is that we now have a program where we don't separate children with special needs from the other children," she said. "This is called a full inclusion program and we've seen great results."

One of the best things about being an early childhood teacher is that she gets to play with the children and watch them grow, she said.

"It's wonderful, helping young children learn and explore," she said. "Besides, I get to play with them all day long."

The early childhood classroom is filled with educational activities.

Computers, puzzles, a play kitchen and toys designed to stimulate creativity are all part of the preschool experience.

"We try to diversify quite a bit so that we're meeting all of the children's needs and interests," Overdorf said. "I just love to have fun with the children and watch them grow."

Overdorf heads to the playground where the students clamor to be the first to ride down the slide with her. Then she sits in the sandbox with a group of children and blows soap bubbles.

Surrounded by the happy young faces, Cathy Overdorf looks like she is exactly where she belongs.

LINCOLN COUNTY SCRABOOK

A glimpse into Lincoln County's past, compiled by Polly E. Chavez with excerpts from "A History of Lincoln County Post Offices."

Roswell

In the spring of 1872, Van C. Smith let his friends and correspondents know that "Roswell" was the name he had chosen for his place on the Rio Hondo, in Lincoln County. In 1873 he was able to persuade the postmaster general serving under President Grant to establish a post office in the place he had named after his father, Roswell Smith. Van C. Smith became the first postmaster. In 1878, Postmaster Marshall A. Upson had a request from A.A. McSween to have McSween's mail placed in a special sack at the Roswell Post Office so it would not have to pass through the Lincoln Post Office. McSween said the request was made to expedite his mail; however, it was generally known in Lincoln that McSween did not want the postmaster at Lincoln to know too much about his business. Before coming to New Mexico, Upson was a reporter on the New York Tribune. He did the ghost writing for Sheriff Pat Garrett's book, "The Authentic Life of Billy the Kid."

Not all of the Tunstall/McSweeney faction, known as the Regulators, were present in Lincoln on the morning of Monday, the 1st of April, 1878, when the Lincoln County War had been in full swing for nearly three months.

Many historians believe that if they had all been there, several lives may not have come to an extremely sudden and that fateful morning. Those who were present, namely Billy the Kid, Jim French, Fred White, John Middleton, Henry Brown and Frank MacNab, were considered to be the "bothead element" of the Regulators. If others of their number had been present — calmer, more level-headed men such as Dick Brewer and Doc Scurlock — perhaps tragedy would have been averted.

But that was not the case. Sheriff William Brady, a close friend of both Murphy and Dolan, (the men who had been maintaining a stranglehold on Lincoln's economy prior to the arrival of John Tunstall and Alexander McSweeney), had gone to great lengths to appease his friends in the performance of his duties. A former soldier who had served with Murphy in the army, he was 48 years old.

Deep in debt to Murphy and Dolan, Brady was naturally rather predisposed to favor his friends in any given situation. He was hated by the Regulators, to a man. That April Fool's Day they planned a lethal, humorless joke.

In those days, there was a corral behind the Tunstall Store that had an adobe wall adjoining the street. It was there that the Regulators posted themselves and waited.

About 9 a.m., Brady and four of his deputies, George Hindman, Billy Mathews, George Peppin and Jack Long, began their fatal walk down Lincoln's only street. As they drew abreast of the Tunstall Store, all hell broke loose. The concealed riflemen rose as one and swept the street with a lethal fusillade.

Brady, who was hit in the side and head, died instantly. George Hindman, who was hit only once, staggered a few feet and then collapsed, very dead.

Jack Long, only slightly wounded, lurched up the street to safety in the Torreon. Peppin and Mathews, neither of whom was hit, crashed through the front door of Lola Sinneros' house across from the Tunstall Store where they took up defensive positions.

And then, for reasons that were never made clear, Billy the Kid and Jim French vaulted the adobe wall and raced toward Brady's body. Why they did this is anybody's guess. One possible reason is that Brady was carrying a highly-prized Winchester that he had previously confiscated from the Kid, although this does not explain French's willingness to rush into such a life-threatening situation.

Brady's surviving deputies had begun to return fire, and Murphy men were rushing to the scene from all over town. The middle of that street was not a healthy place to be. Historian Frederick Nolan claims that little street to have been the most dangerous thoroughfare in America in the year 1878.

Both French and the Kid were hit by the same bullet, in the side and thigh, respectively. Both retreated to the adobe wall they had just come over.

Backing down the alley next to the Tunstall Store, firing as they went, all but the Kid leapt on their horses, galloped down the alley on the opposite side of the building, wheeled into the street and thundered out of town.

As they did so, many of the Murphy men ran out into the street behind them, firing wildly. At the edge of town, one of the Regulators, John Middleton, dismounted, went down on one knee, took aim and returned fire. The Murphy men scattered as Middleton remounted, joined the other Regulators and vanished into the hills east of Lincoln.

The bodies of Brady and Hindman, covered with blood, lay in the street for several hours after the shooting stopped. Hysteria gripped the town, and a rider was dispatched to Fort Stanton for help.

Seeing that one of the assassination squad had not escaped, the Murphy/Dolan men conducted a search of the Tunstall Store. Luckily for the Kid, Sam Corbet, Tunstall's clerk, had devised a plan to conceal the wounded Billy.

Corbet had pulled up several of the floorboards — enough so that a man could lie down in the space — and then sealed Billy in it.

So there was Billy, just a teen-ager, lying under the floor on his back with a pistol in each hand, listening to the enraged voices of his enemies as they stomped around above him. His luck (or maybe theirs) held, and he was not discovered.

Legend tells us that later in the day, his wound dressed and healed enough to ride, the Kid mounted his horse behind the Tunstall Store and galloped out of town in the direction of San Patricio, bullets whistling all around him. Once out of rifle range, he dismounted, took off his hat, and made an elaborate bow in the direction of the town.

As Frederick Nolan comments in his masterful "The Lincoln County War: A Documentary History," "It's a good story. It may even be true."

A Few Early Leaf Pictures by Jack Frost

Jack Frost the leaf artist of the Fall and Autumn has already paid a visit to the upper reaches of the valley. By the wayside you are greeted by the crimson woodbine climbing the cliffs and the walnut leaves turned lemon yellow, and the Box Elder along the river and shades of gold and amber.

It is a sight to see Corina, the black Storm Ranch cat, wading through the tall stems of the gramma grass, which to her must seem like a forest. Now she lies down in a bed of green grass while the small seed-pod bags wave overhead.

The crow, circling low in the sky of blue, sends out his calm call, telling us all is well in our Mountain World.

Let us thank Our Lord for the arrival of October, and all our other blessings.

The New Mexico State Legislature has passed an amendment to the penalties for persons who commit the crime of graffiti, effective July 1st, 1995. A fourth degree felony as defined in New Mexico State statute is any crime punishable by eighteen months in a state penal institution, a five thousand dollar fine, or both.
Don't allow your participation in this senseless crime ruin your future. Remember the Crimestoppers phone line is manned 24 hours a day seven days a week. The Crimestoppers phone number is 257-4545.

Versatile Garcia family performs Saturday

The Garcia Family Band performs at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center.

The versatile Garcia Family Band will perform during the Aspenfest celebration at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Ruidoso Convention and Civic Events Center.

The nine members of the Garcia band play just about anything their audience likes to dance to — including country, polka, ballads, popular tunes and mariachi.

The band has recorded 45 singles, albums, cassettes and CDs. Most of the songs they recorded are original compositions of the elder of the band, Luis Miguel Garcia.

The band is based in Anthony. Lead singer Jose Luis Garcia has received many awards for his abilities, including the PRESEA Frontera Internacional in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, and the Hispanic Music Award as the best male Ranchero singer in El Paso, where he is a radio disc jockey.

Jose Luis and his two brothers were the threesome forerunners of the Garcia Family Band. They began entertaining audiences as children with their guitars and singing in the 1960s, when they were called "Los Hermanitos Garcia."

Later, the Garcias joined others in a 14-piece band called La Ritmera Garcia. During the past four years, the youngest Garcia generation has joined this band and it has become a sole venture of the Garcia family.

Tickets can be purchased before the dance for $5 for adults and $2 for children six and younger. Tickets are $6 at the door.

Taste the Southwest at the chili cookoff

A judge at a previous New Mexico State Open Chili Cookoff studiously samples the goodies.

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Eyes will water and tongues will burn in Ruidoso this weekend as vats of red chili and savory meat are served up during the 14th annual New Mexico State Open Chili Cookoff.

The cookoff will be at the Tall Pines Trailer Park on Sudderth Drive. It runs 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8. Visitor entry cost is $2.

Chili cookoff chairman Paul Crown expects to get about 100 entries in the contest, alongside as many as 3,500 visitors.

"This is a prestigious cookoff," Crown said. "It's where a lot of chiliheads come."

The cookoff follows guidelines prepared by the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI). Participants must use red chiles, and no fillers — rice, beans or macaroni — are allowed.

Cooks use most every type of meat to make their dish stand out, Crown said.

"I've seen elk, deer, beef, pork, armadillo, and snake," he said. "They'll cook about anything that will cook in a pot."

Teams from as far away as Washington, Arkansas, Arizona, Texas and California are expected to pay the $20 cookoff fee, Crown said. Entries will be accepted right up to the start of the cooks' meeting at 9 a.m. on Oct. 7.

The championship's top three winners will immediately qualify for the World Championship next November in Terlingua, Texas.

This year's Ruidoso contest is dedicated to Tex Scofield, CASI's official "Mouth of the Chili World," who died four months ago, Crown said.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Ruidoso Rotary Scholarship Fund. Last year's contest raised about $2,600 for the fund, Crown said.

Cooking teams prepare 2-3 gallons of chili, so there's plenty to go around.

Although visitors won't be able to taste the stews until 2:15 p.m. (about two hours after cooking teams turn in samples for judging), a concession stand will sell "festival food," sodas and beer all day.

Also, music by Lone Star Express will begin after the parade and continue until 5 p.m. Saturday, except for a break during chili showmanship judging from noon to 2 p.m.

Chili tasting will cost a quarter a spoonful and will last until 3:30 p.m.

Brilliant paint jobs, rejuvenated engines and plenty of chrome roll into town Aspenfest weekend for the "Run to Ruidoso" Rod Run Saturday at School House Park.

More than 300 customized classic cars and hot rods are expected to participate in the eighth annual Ruidoso rod run, which is co-sponsored by Early Time Street Rod Association of El Paso and the Southern New Mexico Street Rod Association of Las Cruces.

"We will draw cars out of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Oklahoma, and we might even get a car out of California," said Ron Duschay, a member and director of the Early Time club.

Only cars built in 1969 or earlier are allowed to participate in the rod run. Owners of the vehicles will vie for up to 25 trophies in a variety of categories.

The Ruidoso rod run competition won't be judged like a typical car show which judges vehicles by classes, Duschay said. Club members will make trophies and decide the winners. For example, a club member might decide to give a trophy for the "Best Flames" painted on a vehicle. That member will make the trophy and choose the winner.

Duschay expects 15-20 clubs from around the Southwest to attend.

"The people seem to like it up there (Ruidoso), and they always look forward to coming to the mountains," Duschay said of the rod run's participants.

Owners of the street rodders spend from $10,000 to $40,000 rebuilding and painting the vehicles, said Duschay, who has a 1947 Chevrolet pickup under construction.

Car enthusiasts can catch their first glimpse of the fancy vehicles starting Friday. Registration begins at 2 p.m. at the Inn at Pine Springs, located on U.S. Highway 70 in Ruidoso Downs. Registration continues from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday at the School House Park on Sudderth Drive near the Ruidoso library and pool. All the souped-up sets of wheels will be parked at School House Park Saturday.

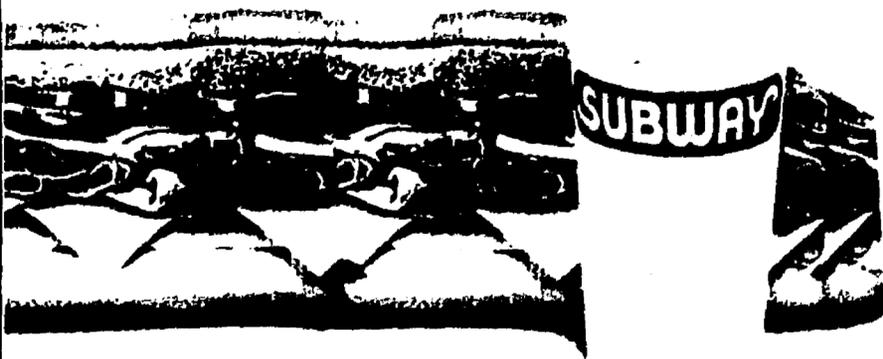

At 1 p.m. Saturday, participants will drive to five locations for a "Poker Run" around Ruidoso. At each stop, drivers draw a playing card. When they return, whoever has the best poker hand wins. Trophies will be given out sometime between 4:30 and 5 p.m., Duschay said, and then the gathering ends.

"We really encourage members to drive up there (to Ruidoso) and drive around town. That's what we feel like rodding is all about — driving your car," Duschay said.

Hot rod owners will show off their shiny engines at Saturday's show.

8 Parade runs down Sudderth Saturday

A parade at 10 a.m. Saturday leads off the weekend's Aspenfest celebration in Ruidoso.

This year's theme of "Olé Fiesta" promises a colorful lineup.

"It's a chance to highlight our downvalley heritage," said parade chairman Ron Anderson. The Hondo Valley east of Ruidoso has a strong Hispanic heritage.

Nationally-known artist Michael Hurd, whose family has a long-time influence in the Hondo Valley, will be the parade's grand marshal.

Viewers can look for a variety of floats, color guards and bands in the parade. The Ruidoso Ski Team will be there on rollerblades, and children will deck out their bicycles and pets for top honors. Actor Richard Farnsworth of Lincoln will also participate.

The deadline for parade sign-up at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is noon Thursday, Oct. 5.

Prizes will be given for the top floats, pets, bikes and bands. The top float gets a traveling trophy, and the top three receive $100, $50 and $25, respectively. There will be 1st-3rd place prizes (savings bonds and gift certificates) for pets and bikes. Six awards will be handed out for bands, which will be judged as they pass the Gazebo shopping center.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, a Battle of the Bands will take place at the Ruidoso High School football field.

The hour-long parade begins at the intersection of Sudderth and Mechem drives, and ends up at Two Rivers Park next to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce building. The route has been shortened this year to make it easier on the participants, Anderson said.

Children on their bicycles will pull out of the parade at the Ruidoso State Bank parking lot so their parents can easily pick them up.

Along the parade route, next to the Chili Cookoff site on Sudderth Drive, visitors will find nine food booths and a pony ride for the children. The booths are also open Sunday.

The Ruidoso High School 24 Karat Gold Band will be at this year's parade (pictured last year, below), as will some unusual contraptions (like this miniature car in last year's parade, pictured above). Last year's parade also included Scottish bagpipers (pictured at right).

Chili cookoff

Cookoff winners will be announced by Crown between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m.

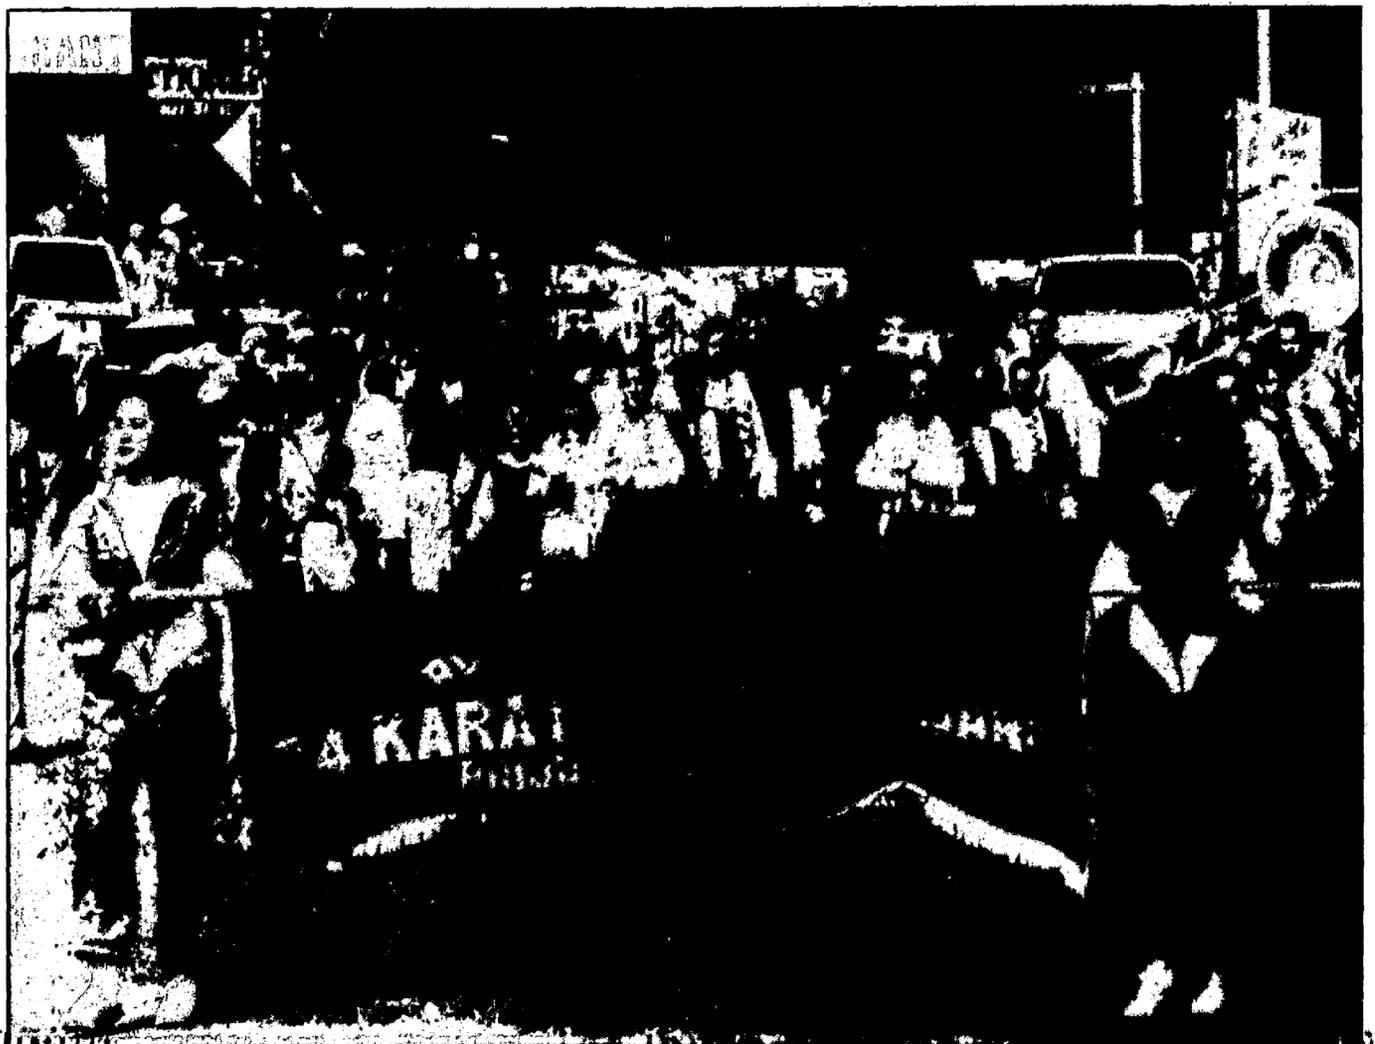

Anyone interested in being a contest judge is welcome to show up at the rock house at the trailer park around 2 p.m. Saturday, Crown said.

About 80 judges are needed for the contest, because different groups are used for the preliminary, semi-final, and final judging.

"The neat thing about judging is, you get free beer, you clean your palate with cheese and veggies, and you have a good time," Crown said.

About 24 plaques will be given away during the award ceremony, Crown said. Ten will be presented to the top 10 chilis; three to the top three showmen; three to the top three state teams; and one to the "people's choice" chili.

"The people's choice is actually the one who makes the most chili to sell for a quarter," Crown said.

Arts and crafts fair showcases the unusual

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Eighty artisans will be showcased during the 10th Annual Ruidoso Arts and Crafts Fair, part of the town's colorful Aspenfest.

The celebration of nature's gilding of the aspens draws thousands of people to the mountain village each year. Fair chairperson Bonnie Richardson expects about 5,000 people to pay the $1 admission fee and pass through the arts and crafts fair entrance.

Staged under the pines along Sud-dertth Drive across from the Gazebo Shopping Center, the fair will run from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8.

Each artist has paid a fee to exhibit. The profits will be donated for equipment and to pay off the building owned by the Ruidoso Gymnastics Association, a non-profit group.

All items displayed must be hand-crafted, Richardson said.

The booths will feature furniture, woodwork, ceramics, pottery, painted clothing, charcoal drawings and water-colors, Christmas pieces, Southwestern bowls and trunks, dolls, flowers, quilts, quilted pillows, polished rock pieces and many more categories.

Some of the most unusual items will be found in the booth of Earl Lusk of Roswell.

The contractor turned artisan creates intriguing wooden jewelry boxes shaped like trees with compartments, drawers and trays in every nook.

What started as a hobby led to Lusk's participation in arts and crafts fairs 12-13 years ago, he said from his office in Roswell, where he works for the Roswell School District.

The tree boxes came later.

"I had a nightmare one night," he said. "I was lying there in the middle of the night thinking about problems and I thought, 'You know, it would be real cute.'"

"We made the first one seven or eight years ago to test the water. It sold the first day. I talked the guy into letting me keep it through the weekend so I could show other people, and it's just kind of taken off from there."

The boxes are made of exotic woods such as purple heart and zebra, he said.

"They're very popular," Lusk said. "They range from our small box in the $15 range as high as $500-$600, depending on the complexity."

"We also do the usual things, the cutting boards, reindeer and such."

His first involvement with an arts and crafts fair was on the promotional end with the Roswell Jaycees (Junior Chamber of Commerce).

"Then I got too old for Jaycees and started participating as an artist," Lusk said. "Since then, we've taken over two shows in Roswell and promote those down here, as well as participate in other fairs."

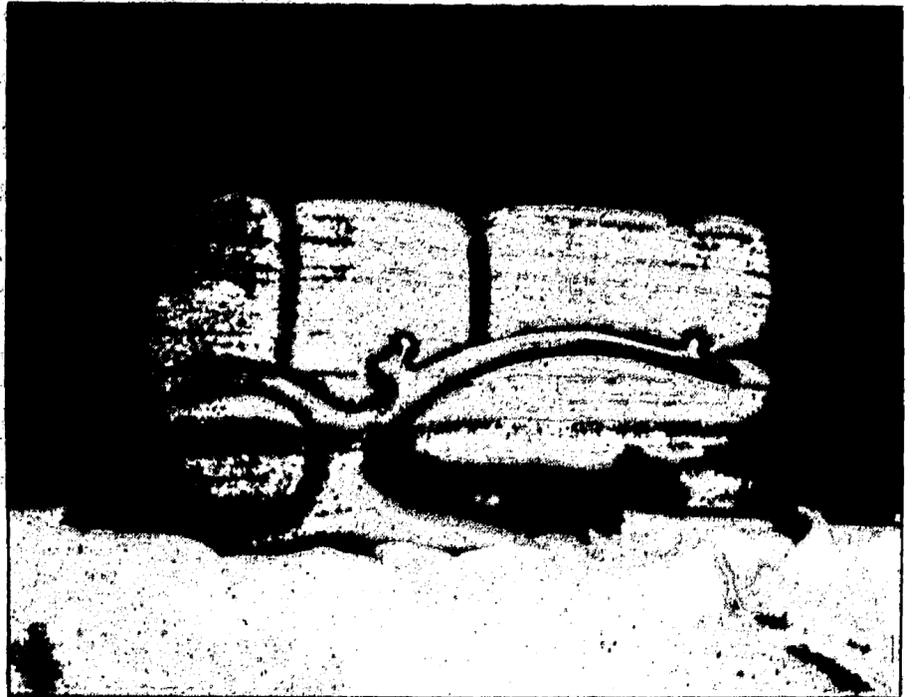

Ruidoso is one of Lusk's favorite stops and produces appreciative crowds each year, he said.

Dina Ortega of San Patricio will be a new exhibitor this year with dried florals, pillows and dolls, Richardson said.

Faye Newberry of Alamogordo will return with her outstanding Indian dolls, clothing and porcelain. Another familiar name, Vicki Conley, will show off her distinct signature pottery.

Refreshments will be on sale by the gymnastic boosters at the entrance to the fair.

Unusual items at this weekend's arts and crafts fair include wooden jewelry boxes shaped like trees, made by Earl Lusk.
