Recycle your Christmas tree

A local company is recycling Christmas trees for free. Just bring your trees to White Mountain Compost Co. on Close Street and Gavilan Canyon Road, behind McDonalds, during business hours. Regular hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays-Fridays, and 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays. It will be closed Dec. 31 and Jan. 1.

Ruidoso resident killed in Christmas one-car accident

A Ruidoso resident was killed early Christmas morning when her vehicle rolled five times near Lubbock, Texas.

Amy Miller, 25, was pronounced dead at the scene. She was driving her 1987 four-door Nissan and was ejected when it rolled. She was not wearing a seat belt, said Texas Department of Public Safety dispatcher Carlson Trusler.

Miller's passenger, Joey Venegas, 18, also of Ruidoso, suffered shoulder injuries. He was released Thursday from Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Miller was driving east on Spur 327 on the outskirts of Lubbock when she lost control of her vehicle at 2:10 a.m., Carlson said. She was near the road's intersection with U.S. Highway 62/82.

Carlson said the trooper's report did not indicate a possible cause of the accident, the cause of Miller's death, or the speed of the vehicle.

Paradise Canyon house catches fire

Ruidoso firemen were called to a house fire at 422 Paradise Canyon Road at 6:11 p.m. Thursday.

The home is owned by Mike Torres of Truth or Consequences, firemen said. The renters were unharmed. More details were unavailable Thursday night at prestime.

Predicting 1997 weather is for birds, not ranchers

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

When John Cooper's 18 horses started bucking and whining one recent day, it was sign that a sharp change in weather was on its way.

"The horses tell you of an approaching storm," related Cooper, an Arabela rancher. "They were really frisky tonight. That's usually (a sign) of a real change in weather."

But whether their racket or the bawling of the cows is a foreboding of cold or snow is anyone's guess, he said.

"I mostly listen to the radio and look at the barometer," Cooper conceded. "That's the only way I've been able to predict weather."

He and other long-time ranchers chuckle and talk tongue-in-cheek when asked how they know from experience if a winter's going to be harsh or mild, because there's just no way to really know.

"I don't know anything about predicting the weather," said Pete "Gnat" Gnatkowski of rural Ancho. "I don't watch little furry animals to see what the weather will be or anything like that."

Gnatkowski watches for strong winds from the east, takes a glance at the TV, or simply tries to "take the weather as it comes."

Fred Pfingsten in the Hondo Valley takes a similar skeptical view of predictions.

"I heard on the weather it's going to be terrible," he offered. "If it goes ahead like it started to in the last two or three days, it will get winter started. It's liable to get hard now!"

Pfingsten used to get some hint of the approaching winter severity by the thickness of corn husks, but he no longer grows corn.

"And there's a lot of old proverbs, but I forget them all now," he said.

The old days

But before radio and TV, finding some way to tell the weather was vital to the ranchers if they were to succeed, says Dan Storm of Hondo Valley, who authors a column in The Ruidoso News.

"In the old days they had to depend on the signs, because they needed to predict to know whether there was enough wood to keep warm enough, or enough rain for grass for the cows," he said.

"I don't watch little furry animals to see what the weather will be or anything like that."

Who predicts weather?

"There's an old saying that the only people who predict the weather are newcomers, and well, it's true," said Hollis Fuchs, a government soil conservationist in Capitan. "The longer you live in a place, particularly a place like this, the more you realize you can't predict the weather."

All types of long-range forecasts exist through recorded averages of precipitation and temperature.

Storm loves watching the behavior of animals around his ranch, and tries to catch their hint of what's in the air.

"I kind of like watching the birds and ducks. They can tell how cold the winter is going to be," Storm said. "This year they were kind of scattered in their flight, and it looked like they hadn't made up their minds yet on how cold it would be."

But trying to predict the weather in this area might be more difficult than it is for ranchers in other places, he added.

"We're a puzzle because we're on a mountain way to the south surrounded by desert," Storm said. "We get some desert weather mixed with our mountain weather."

Cooper and Pfingsten look at the weather forecasts in the Old Farmers Almanac — but mostly for its entertainment value.

"It has good jokes," Cooper said. "They miss it pretty regularly." Pfingsten said of the almanac's weather predictions, "but it kind of gives a fellow an idea of what the long range is."

The 1997 Old Farmers Almanac winter forecast for the Southwest calls for a warmer and wetter winter than normal. It says January will be cool but pleasant, with thunderstorms and snow showers starting in the north and moving south in the latter part of the month. February will warm up with showers mainly in the middle of the month, and March should be relatively cool and damp.

An uplifting experience

Skiers try out Ski Apache's new quad chairlift. More than 2,000 skiers were on the Ski Apache slopes Christmas Day, said ski area official Riker Davis, on par with other recent Christmas Days. Even more skiers are expected to show up every day this weekend, Davis said.

Man charged with killing friend

Henry "Buddy" Adair, 50, of Ramon in far northeastern Lincoln County, faces an open count of murder in the shooting death of his friend, Garvin Griffin, 52, on Dec. 15.

Adair, the son of Chaves County Commissioner Joe H. Adair and the brother of Chaves County Senator-elect Rodney Adair (R-Roswell), has posted a $25,000 bond and is awaiting a preliminary hearing in magistrate court.

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Office received a call from Adair at 10:57 p.m. Dec. 16. According to the call sheet notations of the dispatcher, Adair said he had just shot his friend.

The dispatch card on the incident was missing from the list released to the media last week, but was found this week following a request from The Ruidoso News.

Ramon, little more than a place-name on U.S. Highway 285 about 70 miles north of Roswell, is near the Leigh Murphy Ranch, located just over the DeBaca County line, where the death occurred.

The ranch was formerly known as the Old Yeso Ranch, said Mike Hill with the public information office of the New Mexico State Police in Santa Fe.

The investigation was handled by officers with the Roswell State Police office, Hill said.

Adair, a former teacher, is in the DeBaca County Jail and the case is being prosecuted by 10th Judicial District Attorney Patricia Park of Tucumcari. She could not be reached for comment.

Michael Stout of Roswell, Adair's attorney, told reporters following a bond hearing in Tucumcari on Dec. 18 that if it is necessary for Adair to enter a plea to the charges, it will be one of innocence.

"This is not a case of murder," Stout told the Roswell Daily Record. "I think that Mr. Adair will prevail on the merits...The case has been grossly overcharged," Stout said Adair posted bond. No preliminary hearing has been set.

Provisions of his release on bond include posting 10% in cash, he cannot leave the state, no use of drugs or alcohol, and no firearms.

State Police spokesman Hill said the two men had been friends for many years, but he had no other details of how or where the shooting occurred. Griffin was a rock mason, whose family lives in Tularosa.

Three hurt when RV goes off road

Three Slaton, Texas residents were injured on Christmas Eve when their recreational vehicle plunged off U. S. Highway 70 and into a canyon about three miles east of Fox Cave in Lincoln County.

Rex Thomas and Mary Ann Worley, two of the injured, were reported in stable condition at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso on Thursday.

Linda Lankford, also of Slaton, was transported to Lubbock Methodist Hospital early Christmas morning. The hospital did not make available a report of the woman's condition.

Slaton is a community of about 6,000 population about 10 miles southeast of Lubbock.

State Policeman Chad Davis conducted the accident investigation. No report had been filed late Thursday.

Senior Patrolman Alex Henson and Officer Todd Cullers of the Ruidoso Downs Police Department were at the scene at the request of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

Officer Henson said the west-bound RV smashed through the guardrail on the south side of the highway just east of mile marker 272 sometime before 10:30 p.m.

The Ruidoso Downs officers secured the scene until county and state officers and emergency medical technicians arrived. Henson said one of the women was pinned under the vehicle, which was lifted before she could be removed.

Henson said a dog also in the RV had not survived; its body was found when the vehicle was moved.

Season's Greetings (and some seasonal ideas to start '97 right)

As the year draws to a close, we want to thank you for the opportunity to provide you with dependable electric service. We also want to offer a few suggested resolutions to get the new year off to a good start.

1. Resolve to take a few simple steps that can reduce energy waste. If you have a fireplace, that's a good place to begin.

When the fireplace is not in use, keep the damper tightly closed to prevent warm air from escaping. You also can manage the amount of energy you use by keeping your thermostat set no higher than 68 degrees in the winter and no lower than 78 degrees in the summer.

2. Resolve to use good safety sense around power lines. If you're doing outdoor projects around the house — taking down holiday lights for instance — make sure your ladder doesn't come in contact with power lines. And if you have children, make sure they know to never touch power lines with anything.

3. Resolve to simplify your life. One way might just be our automated bank drafting program.

4. Resolve to make your community even better. A little volunteer effort can go a long way — and our Customer Connection matching contribution program can help your community efforts go even further.

For more information about any of these subjects, call or visit your local office.

"No predictions. I just hope the Cowboys don't make it to the Super Bowl."

— Dwayne Rogers, Ruidoso High School girls basketball coach

"No predictions. I just hope the Cowboys don't make it to the Super Bowl."

— Gerald Montez, Capitan High School athletic director/boys basketball coach

"Green Bay Packers are going to win the Super Bowl, and they'll beat the Cowboys in the playoffs if given the opportunity."

— Gerald Horacek, Carrizozo football and basketball coach, and Packers fan since Green Bay was "terrible"

"I predict that the Dallas Cowboys are going to wake up and stop kicking those weeney field goals. They're just waiting, holding back, then they'll peak and then everybody is going to be a Cowboy fan."

— Dionne Lewis, Capitan girls basketball coach and Cowboys fan since "womb-time"

"I predict I'll never, ever be a Dallas Cowboys fan. Maybe when they end world hunger, find a cure for AIDS and make contact with beings from another solar system."

— Laura Oyler, sports reporter for The Ruidoso News

"I predict Ruidoso will continue to grow in the loving spirit I've never seen here, as I have in the last year. There's lots of beautiful people moving here, and not just on a part-time basis but as year-round residents."

— Linda Flack, Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission

"Every home in the village of Ruidoso will have at least one working smoke detector."

— Fire prevention officer Loretta Kirk, speaking on behalf of the Ruidoso Fire Department and Ruidoso Firefighters Association

"I hope our winter's just late and we'll get tons of snow in the New Year and skiing will be great and that will mean plenty of water."

— The new Spencer Theater will be successful.

"They'll be beginning construction of the (Ruidoso Convention Center) hotel."

"It will be a wonderful and prosperous year for Ruidoso."

— Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw

"Denver breaks the AFC jinx and wins the Super Bowl."

"Inspired by good will, the Republicans will start working with the Clinton administration instead of against it."

— Chay Rennick, Ruidoso assistant village attorney

"California probably won't slide off this coming year, so there won't be oceanfront property available in Phoenix, yet."

— Peggy Jones, Ruidoso artist

"If the state Legislature has any sense, gambling will be expanded to save the racing industry."

"And, I'll eventually be run out of town."

— Emmett Downes, host of Ruidoso's Harp and Shamrock Irish radio show

"I predict that the newspaper is going to move down into the old Wal-Mart store."

— Mike Daulton, manager of Wal-Mart

"It's going to be a better year."

— Lisa Larson, Ruidoso Police Department receptionist

"It's going to be a year with challenges ahead, none of which can't be overcome working together as a community with common goals and purposes."

— Ruidoso Village Manager Gary Jackson

"Peace, harmony and prosperity will become permanent residents of Ruidoso."

— Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox

"Due to the University of New Mexico's judicial education program 'Bruises and Roses' bringing a wide spectrum of the judicial system together for training and strategy in domestic violence, I think the persons charged with domestic violence will get better treatment and there will be better prosecution, and I think the Legislature will mandate more training in handling domestic violence."

"I also predict the courts will keep better track of convicted criminals because of our new on-line computer system coming in March that will let us check all the courts in New Mexico to see if they're on probation or there are warrants for their arrest."

— Ruidoso Magistrate Judge William Butts

"We'll have 100 inches of snow on top of the mountain in the next three months."

— Ruidoso Councilor Bob Sterchi

"I predict 1997 will again be a great year for Lincoln County and I also feel within the year, Capitan and Ruidoso will solve their Eagle Creek problems and will once again become friends and work together."

Weather

Fuchs said, "but there's more we don't know than we do know."

Scientists have been able to roughly predict drought in cycles of every 20 to 22 years, he said, but even that can be way off. Readings of the 1994-95 precipitation in the Ruidoso area don't indicate drought, he said, but "if you lived in Ruidoso at that time, you certainly know it was."

The annual records can give an inaccurate account because the precipitation might not have come at the right time, and what really provides water supplies is snowpack, not rain, he said.

The rate of accuracy in the almanac's predictions are good enough to know there's something to the writer's "family secret," and it most likely is that reliable seat-of-the-pants mysterious science called intuition, Fuchs said.

"I'm going to, for my own interests, predict a hell of a good winter with lots of cold (to kill drought-happy insect pests), snow and a hard snow pack," Fuchs laughs. "Maybe if we send out enough positive vibes, it will happen — we've got to have faith."

OPINION

Tidings of great joy sound on the DWI circuit

Perhaps nobody except Charlie White can get terribly excited about drunken driving statistics. But White is an optimist, and he's got something to brag about as 1996 wanes into the limbo of left-behind years.

He runs Lincoln County's anti-drunk-driving program, which operates on a $100,300 state grant, and with judicious use of that money, his program came out as one of the five best in New Mexico. That, according to an independent evaluation by a firm hired by the Local Government Division of the Division of Finance and Administration.

Among other things, Lincoln County registered a sharp reduction in the percentage of non-compliance shown by program participants (that's DWI law-breakers, folks). Just 17% of 180 offenders failed to comply with the terms of their probation or parole — a huge decline from 40% in 1995 and 92% in 1994.

More significantly, only one of the 180 in the supervised probation program was re-arrested during the period. And alcohol-related traffic deaths were cut from four to two.

The study, by Rocky Mountain Group Ltd. Co., also eliminated some prevailing myths about who drives drunk in tourist-friendly Lincoln County. Charlie White's data shows that the average DWI offender in the county is a 33-year-old non-Hispanic white male with a high school diploma. He is employed, married and earning about $14,000 for a family of three.

White gives high marks to the collaborative effort of police officers, judges, defense and prosecuting attorneys, civic organizations, governing bodies, the business community, the schools, the media...just about everybody, in fact...for the success of the program.

With all those facts and all that participation, White also recognizes the broader impact of an improved drunk driving record in the county:

"This support...demonstrates a genuine concern for the safety and well being of our tourists and others who live, work and travel in our beautiful part of the state."

(Note: The following letter has been sent to all New Mexico legislators.)

Please refuse to authorize tax money to be paid to corporations or other private entities that will be used by those corporations or other private entities to pay corporate or other private entity interest, bond debt or other debt.

Financial distress is everywhere we look so why do we keep on milking small business and the people to feed the rich and super rich bankers and giant corporations? Feeding tax money to the bankers via the corporate bond market is no different than feeding tax money to the bankers via the government bond market. There is no difference between using taxpayer money to pay for government bonds, corporate bonds or other private debt.

Taxpayer money should not be used to pay for private entity interest and debt, just as taxpayer money should not be used to pay government interest and debt.

Small business and labor are wallowing in a cesspool of debt and taxes. Vote "no" on funding the new prisons with taxpayer money that is used to pay for corporate or other private sector interest and debt.

Please do not authorize the payment of tax dollars to be used by corporations or other private entities to pay corporate or other private interest, bonds or other debt. Obligor taxpayers to pay fees to corporations or other private entities which then use that taxpayer money for paying corporate bonds and interest is a fraudulent and deceptive use of taxpayer money because it is merely an indirect, hidden way of using debt/slavery bond money to finance prisons. Using tax dollars to pay fees to corporations or other private sector entities will burden small business and the people with the same tax burden, whether that debt is direct government bond debt or indirect, hidden corporate debt or other private debt that is paid with tax money.

Take a stand and say no to making small business and the people pay and pay their hard-earned money to keep on feeding the rich and super rich bankers, insurance companies and giant corporations. Send our financial slave masters a message that they cannot ignore. Please vote no on financing the new prisons with tax money that will be used to pay fees to corporations and other private entities to pay private bonds and interest.

Substituting corporate bond debt or other private sector debt for government debt is merely a trick to deceive the taxpayers into donating their tax money to pay corporate bond debt and interest or other private interest and debt instead of, or in addition to, government debt.

Please, walk the moral high ground on this matter. There is a better way to finance the new prisons, a debt-free and tax-free way, if you have the political will.

'I have what I have given'

Funeral Services for A.E. (Chink) Beavers

Funeral services were held Dec. 23 for A.E. "Chink" Beavers, who was called home by our Lord on Dec. 19.

The Reverend Randy Widner read from the letter of the Apostle Paul to the Thessalonians: "Wherefore comfort one another with these words..."

Then "How Great Thou Art" was sung by Michael Widner, Randy's son.

The Reverend Wayne Joyce spoke of the many years of friendship with Chink, and mentioned the strawberry field on the old Beavers farm, below where the Museum of the Horse now stands.

The Reverend Wayne then read from the Gospel according to Saint John: "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, there you may be also." He also read from the Book of Revelation: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

At the graveside, the Reverend Mr. Joyce read from the first chapter of Saint Peter and the 23rd Psalm: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

pallbearers were James Waide, Ben Hall, Jim Shaw, Tim Taylor, Kelly Casals and Cotton Stevens.

Chink Beavers and his family have been friends of the Storm family since they came into the valley in 1926.

In the Smokey the Bear fire in 1950 on the top of the Capitan Mountains, we cut fire lanes with axes. This was in the days before chainsaws.

Chink was fireman in one of the axe crews and I was one of his axe swingers. Smokey the Bear was rescued close by there where we were working.

Chink Beavers will always hold a fond spot in our hearts, and we rejoice that our good friend is reunited with loved ones who have gone on before to be in Heaven with our Lord.

Remembering our Pets

On his Christmas Shamrock and Hare program, Emmett Browne struck a responsive chord in the hearts of all of us by his tribute to our faithful animal friends.

This reminded me of the time my dog, Shady Logan, warned me of a grass fire that had started near the house.

Let us remember our own animals, and also more at the Humane Society Shelter through the Christmas season and throughout the year.

"I Have What I Have Given"

Every year Donna Bonnell gives me a Christmas present in the form of stamps for my Christmas cards.

As I was winding up the writing of the last few Christmas cards, I noticed with each card I stamped I felt a little better.

All under the pinon tree are Christmas gifts, and I wonder to myself, "What have I given?"

And every year at this time I remember something said by the Spanish writer Miguel Cervantes, author of "Don Quixote." Cervantes was also a patriot.

In his later years, a neighbor came by his home and said, "You have served our country in war spending time in foreign prisons. You have written great stories known all over the world. You have helped your neighbors all your life, and now in your old age you have nothing."

Cervantes responded, "I have what I have given."

for the good of all folk.

"Next I hope that Gov. Gary Johnson, Senate President Pro Tempore Manny Aragon and House Speaker Raymond Sanchez will come to realize that they were elected to serve all people in New Mexico, not just their respective parties, and that they will again work together to solve our gambling, prison, roads and other problems."

— Captain Municipal Judge Jack Johnson

"I predict that the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority will reach 20% in its recycling efforts."

— Jerry Wright, manager of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority

"In 1997, I predict you'll see a smaller and less ambitious Lincoln County government."

"And to my friends in Ruidoso, I predict you'll see the reintroduction of legal banners in the village."

— Lincoln County Commissioner Wilton Howell

"I predict the village of Capitan will reach a settlement with the village of Ruidoso over the Eagle Creek Water Supply Association and it will be beneficial to both of us."

— Capitan Mayor Norm Ranfro

"I predict the crime rate in Lincoln County will decline, because of better cooperation among all of the county law enforcement agencies."

"I also predict the Ruidoso will win the Super Bowl."

— newly-elected Sheriff Tom Sullivan

"The varying factions of Ruidoso and surrounding areas will band together to form a synergistic approach to accomplishing our community's well-being."

— Bill Chance, Ruidoso councilor

"We have a window of opportunity at Fort Stanton and Camp Sierra Blanca in taking them to the goal we all want."

"Non-partisan action in Santa Fe will result in health care and prison reform."

"Ruidoso is just beginning to see its goal realized of becoming America's vacation paradise."

— State Rep. Dub Williams (Ruidoso-Glencoe)

"I hope 1997 brings better relations between people. That's what I would like to see."

BUSINESS

Holiday sales surge and sag downtown

by PAMELA CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Christmas shoppers hit the streets of Ruidoso for some last-minute gift-buying right before Dec. 25. Midtown store owners gave widely varying reviews of this year's shopping season, making December 1996 the best of times and the worst of times.

"This is the best season we've ever had, and we've been in business 16 years," said Ann Bolton, owner of J Roberts clothing store.

J Roberts is 15% ahead of its best Christmas on record, and Bolton expects things to only get better. About 75% of her December profits will come between Christmas and New Year's Eve, she said.

Store owners throughout Ruidoso confirmed Bolton's post-Christmas experience. Tourists tend to spend Christmas with family and friends, then finish up vacations with a weekend or longer in Ruidoso, shopping and skiing.

"I think of lot of gift money gets spent here," said Karen Anderson, owner of Wild Wild West.

Like many others, Anderson saw heavier-than-usual local traffic at the beginning of December. Then sales increased with an influx of tourists.

But December got a weak start for some other merchants, then picked up around Christmas.

Still others concluded December has been disappointing.

Galleria West credits a lack of snow for slow December sales. Lotions and Potions, The Attic, and Sky's the Limit reported slow but steady business. Cowboys Indians & Outlaws slashed prices to 50% to stop a holiday sales slump, said store representative Merry McIntosh.

"We've been in business since 1989 and this is the worst Christmas ever," McIntosh said. "It's the economy. All the (trade) shows are off, all around the nation. People just aren't spending like they were."

As usual in the Ruidoso market, some thrive while others struggle through the beginning of the winter season. One sign of encouragement is that ski and sporting goods stores seem to be off to a healthy start.

Rocky Mountain Sports is steadily renting ski equipment, as is Ski West Sports, which has group reservations almost booked through the New Year.

"December has been right on," said Tish Nutting of Ski West. "The skiers are enjoying the snow. Rentals are good and retail is better."

At Faith Mountain Sports and Collectibles, Lana Robertson said she's not as busy as last year, but sales are about the same or better.

A few merchants are not content to let weather and the unknown variables of Ruidoso's economy push them around. Candle Power and Ruidoso T-Shirt Co. hired a Santa Claus (Ken Hardin) to put people in the gift-buying spirit. Sally Sandora, owner of Candle Power, said this December is better than last year's.

"Numbers are way up from last year," she said.

Ann Bolton, who drapes J Roberts in white Christmas lights, suggested merchants sponsor a parade of lights to draw visitors for Christmas shopping.

"The money you spend (on decorating) you get back 10 times," Bolton said.

A Christmas lights contest sponsored by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and Texas-New Mexico Power prompted more business owners to decorate this year. Upper Canyon Inn, Visions, and Rush Ski Rental won first, second and third places respectively in the contest's commercial division.

Cattle slaughter numbers decrease during November

New Mexico ranchers sent fewer cows to slaughter this November than last, though the cattle were fatter.

Cattle slaughtered in New Mexico during November 1996 totaled 3,000 head, 400 head less than last November. Total live weight slaughtered, at 2.79 million pounds, is down 13% from a year ago. The average live weight for cattle slaughtered increased to 945 pounds.

Marketings of fed cattle during November totaled 21,000, up 2,000 head from October. Cattle and calves on feed Dec. 1 for the slaughter market in New Mexico totaled 133,000 head. This total represents a 3% increase from the previous month and the largest inventory in 1996.

Bank announces stock dividend

Pioneer Savings Bank stockholders as of Dec. 31, 1996, will receive a semi-annual dividend of 25 cents per share by Jan. 24. The bank's board of directors declared the dividend payment at its Nov. 19 meeting.

The semi-annual dividend equates to a 5.8% annualized rate of return based on Pioneer's most recent stock price of $15.50 per share, said president and chairman of the board George W. Mitchell.

As of Oct. 31, the total assets of Pioneer Savings Bank were $247.6 million. Net worth of the company was $16.2 million, which equals a book value of $16.09 per share of capital stock.

Earnings for the first 10 months of 1996 exceeded projections with a net income of more than $1.7 million as of Oct. 31, Mitchell said. These earnings were after a $883,000 one-time FDIC assessment, Mitchell said.

The size of the assessment is based on deposits. It is levied against all thrifts as part of the recapitalization of the Savings Association Insurance Fund.

"We expect Pioneer's net income to exceed $2.2 million, or about $2.25 per share of capital stock by year end," Mitchell said.

Pioneer Savings Bank has its corporate office in Roswell with offices in Ruidoso, Alamogordo, Carlsbad, Hobbs and Las Cruces. The bank has been in business in New Mexico since 1901.

A man? A myth? Or a legend?

A conversation with the patron saint of children

By LAURA CLYMER AND PAMELA CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writers

"Twas the night before Christmas in my snug double-wide
Not a critter was stirring, not even outside.
My furnace was off; it had failed me once more,
So close to the fireplace I lay down on the floor
My stocking was hung by the chimney with care
With no hope that St. Nick soon would there.
When up on the roof, I heard such a clatter
I arose from the floor to see what was the matter.
'Midst a dark cloud ashes there came a great thump;
A man stood there grumbling and brushing his rump.
I snatched up the poker but the man gave me pause,
"Laura, don't hit me! It's me, Santa Claus!"

I have to say this man didn't resemble the jolly old elf depicted in Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's Christmas story. He was filthy from descending chimneys, and his clothing resembled an outfit I'd seen on a man hitchhiking on Highway 70. His beard was not as full and white as I expected, but a beard it was. And he reeked from smoke, more from the fires he'd landed in I think, than from the pipe between his teeth.

Actually, he resembled a gnarled old sailor more than a saint. I put on my glasses to study him better, and I believed the man before me was either Santa Claus or a cleverly disguised robber.

"What, no cookies and milk?" he asked, his eyes scanning my modest living room.

"Well, I've got a couple of Powerbars and some Powerade," I offered. "Wait a minute, what are you doing here? You claim you're good, ol' Santa Claus, but how can I be sure? After all, I have a keen, analytical mind because of my liberal arts education, and I demand the facts, sir."

He gave me a significant look and scratched his schnoz, or maybe he was just laying his finger aside of his nose, a supposed habit of St. Nick. He settled heavily into my recliner, a wreath of smoke encircling his frost-bitten head, his cheeks rosy from cold and exertion.

"I'll give you the exclusive, because I know you're a reporter of high integrity - that's why I've brought you a 1997 GMC Sonoma extended cab truck (navy blue of course), a new Rawlings softball glove and a lifetime subscription to Sports Illustrated for Christmas," he said.

"Don't move. Let me get my notepad and camera," I answered.

I sprinted to the kitchen and located the tools of my trade, and what proceeded is the most unusual interview I have ever conducted. I have no way of knowing if the person I spoke with is truly the legendary, saintly gift-giver, or if he was simply a kind, somewhat deluded, chimney sweep. Decide for yourself. You can confirm some of the information he gave me in a reference book called The Christmas Almanac, available at the Ruidoso Public Library.

Q: For the record, what is your real name?

A: Nicholas. I was born in Asia Minor around A.D. 280. My mother Nonna was quite shocked to find herself pregnant since she was supposed to be barren. I guess you could call me a "miracle" baby. That's part of how I became known as the patron saint of children. Actually, I'm also known as the patron of students, Russia, bankers, sailors, pawnbrokers, vagabonds and thieves - believe it or not.

Q: How did you become known as Santa Claus?

A: It's a long story, but here are the basics. My name was changed from Saint Nicholas to a variety of names during the Protestant Reformation. It became unpopular to honor Catholic saints - including me. I've been called Father Christmas by the English, Christkindlein by the Germans, and Pere Noel by the French. But it was the Pennsylvania Dutch, who called me Santa Claes or Christkindlein, who are responsible for my American names. Popular mispronunciation turned it into Santa Claus or Kris Kringle. Americans, you can't pronounce anything to save your souls, especially those Texans.

For example, Laura, how do you pronounce Ruidoso? It's not Ree-ahh-dosa, is it? I didn't think so! Sorry, I digress.

Q: What do you do for a living?

A: First of all, I'm not a toymaker! That's why I employ elves - it's hard for them to get work elsewhere, you know. I began my career as bishop of Myra, which is now Demre in Turkey. I was a bishop and the rumors of my death have been greatly exaggerated. It's reported that I died in 343, possibly after all that nasty business when emperor Diocletian was persecuting the Christians.

Q: I've heard you described as the patron saint of children. How did you get that title?

A: I've always been considered pretty saintly, ever since I was a baby. I was precocious for my age, and even observed fast days while I was nursing. Then, there was this little boy in Myra and he was kidnapped by pirates from Crete. The child was sold into slavery, the cup bearer for a far-away king. Naturally, the child's parents were despondent. I knew how happy my birth had made my mother. It was only right to return this child to his family.

Q: How did you do that? Doesn't the myth say he was magically returned to his parents without a drop spilled from the chalice of wine he was about to serve the king?

A: Ahhhhh. Well, that's technical. In fact, it's classified. But if you do well with this interview, I might consider going on the record with just exactly how I zip around so quickly from place to place.

Q: Don't you use turbo-charged reindeer? Or are they really stealth jets with red-nosed lights and a penchant for hay?

A: Actually I started out riding through Europe on a white horse. Then I needed a wagon because my caseload got heavier. As you can imagine, a horse and wagon are not aerodynamic, so I did a flight-efficiency analysis. I considered geese (too many hunters after them), storks (already had a job) and cheetahs (too high octane for me). I settled on reindeer. I'm sure you're familiar with their agility and gentleness.

Q: All right, but how did you get them to fly?

A: That's classified. Let's just say it's something in the North Pole water.

Q: OK, I'll respect that answer. Why did you start bringing gifts?

A: You know, Laura, there are a lot of needy people in this world. So many that I can't even get to all of them. But my crusade began with a poor man who had three daughters. He couldn't afford dowries for them, and considered selling them into slavery or prostitution. To spare them, and him,

Santa Claus says he doesn't mind if people dress up like him during the holidays, as long as they represent him for the right reasons, like Ken Hardin who has been dressing up as the saintly gift-giver for seven years. Here, Hardin listens to a Christmas request from 6-year-old Chris Muse of Hobbs.

Santa Claus: the man, the myth, the legend

I delivered a bag of gold for each girl as she came of marrying age. I did this secretly in the dead of night, dropping the bags down the chimney. Of course, once you provide a dowry for one poor girl, you have to do this for everyone. And since I was the patron saint of children, it seemed fitting to continue this tradition by specializing in their wishes.

Q: Is it true that you know when we're sleeping and when we're awake? Do you really have a list of the naughty and nice?

A: I really don't know when you're snoozing. Do you think I have time to keep track of such things? The naughty and nice list is simply a manipulative strategy developed by parents to control their children. Saints don't operate on threats of retribution. And besides, handling coal is dirty business.

Q: So you are saying I don't have to be "good" to receive a present from you?

A: Honestly, I do give preference to those particularly well-behaved children. There are only so many Tickle Me Elmos to go around. But in general, I believe good begets good. I've had a great deal of success using my saintly skills to reform the wicked. You got something for Christmas, didn't you, and you're a journalist (Ho, Ho, Ho).

Q: Santa, you've brought so much joy to children everywhere. What could we give you in return?

A: Accept your gifts as humbly and silently as they were given, and always strive to be good.

This has been a treat, except the Powerbars do nothing for me. I must be going; night is travelling and I have to catch up with it. Besides, the reindeer get antsy if I'm down the chimney too long.

He bid a hasty retreat, slung his bag over his shoulder, winked at me, and giving a nod up the chimney he rose.

And I heard him exclaim as he rode out of sight, "Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night — and Laura, remember that flying secret is off the record."

WEDDINGS/ENGAGEMENTS

ON THE ARTS

Eagle Ranch features local oil painter

Charles F. Pearson, an award-winning oil painter from Ruidoso, is the featured artist at the Eagle Ranch Art Gallery near Alamogordo throughout the month of January.

A reception for the artist will be held at the gallery at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 3.

Born in Oklahoma, Pearson spent his early youth in Florida, where he attended Florida Southern College and the University of Florida. He later graduated from the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts.

Pearson's personal background spans two distinctive careers; one in national advertising and marketing, and the other in producing commissioned pen and ink illustrations of commercial and client-designated subjects.

Today, Pearson's wide range of unique oil paintings clearly illustrates a finely tuned appreciation of calculated composition with detailed form and realistic texture and value, Eagle Ranch Gallery owners said. He achieves maximum depth and realism. He is well-known for his intense character studies, colorful and luminous landscapes, bold abstracts and familiar scenes of the Southwest. Pearson's work commands immediate attention and popular appeal, gallery owners said.

The gallery is located at 7288 Highway 54/70 between Tularosa and Alamogordo. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week.

Alamogordo celebrates New Year's Eve without alcohol

"First Night Alamogordo '97" is a non-alcoholic family New Year's Eve celebration with the Arts of Otero County from 6:30 p.m. to midnight Tuesday, Dec. 31 at the New Mexico State University-Alamogordo Campus.

The evening will feature warming fires, food booths, mimes and clowns. Ten different performance sites include the Rohovec and the Special Events Center. The performances at each performance site will change every 30 minutes, allowing the audience to go from site to site. There will be an outdoor venue for a teen dance and a "Kids Pavilion." Artists will include the Alamogordo High School Orchestra, barbershop chorus, belly dancers, Senior Citizen Line Dancers, storytellers, jazz bands, singers, actors, Tularosa Ballet Dancers, theater groups, and a martial arts demonstration. Entertainment will culminate in a midnight extravaganza in the NMSU-A new Special Events Center.

To help create the party effect, large barrels are filled partially with sand and placed in different areas making warming fires. A specified group of people will keep the fires going all through the night and make sure nobody gets hurt.

This year several Alamogordo organizations are participating in First Night by setting up food booths in the campus area. A wide variety of food will be available including frito pie, green chili stew, cornbread, pizza, hot links, hot dogs, nachos, hot apple cider, hot chocolate, coffee, cappuccino and espresso.

The goal of "First Night Alamogordo '97" is to create a safe haven for high risk youth, keep the streets safer, and revitalize the community spirit so prevalent in years gone by.

First Night buttons (tickets) are available at the Squash Blossom, Alamogordo Chamber, Cloudcroft Chamber, Horse Feathers in Tularosa, area banks, credit unions, savings and loans, Flickinger Center and at First Night. Buttons are $5 for adults, and children (10 and under) are admitted free. This button will get you into all the performance sites to enjoy the variety of talent.

Second half of concert series slated

Mark your calendars now for the final two performances of the Ruidoso Community Concert Association this season.

The Monumental Brass comes to town Feb. 28 with a broad range of music. The season's finale will be with the Moscow Balalaikas, featuring Soviet classics on folk instruments. All programs will be at the First Christian Church, in Ruidoso.

For ticket information, write to RCCA, P.O. Box 1184, Ruidoso 88345; or call 257-9884 or 257-4088 for information.

When you attend the Ruidoso Community Concert Association shows this season, you'll be participating in a national program dating back to 1929. Community Concerts organized 67 years ago with the intent to bring first-rate musical entertainment to the nation's smaller communities.

Today, approximately 600 towns across the USA belong to the organization. This extensive network means top-flight artists can commit to tours that would otherwise not be financially feasible, explains RCCA President Jerry Mattox.

This season, membership in the Ruidoso Community Concert Association costs $35 per adult for four shows. This low price is attributable in no small part to patrons — both private individuals and businesses — who help underwrite expenses, Mattox said.

In addition, the Ruidoso Association is on a reciprocity list with eight other associations in New Mexico and two in Texas. This enables Ruidoso members to attend programs in other towns at no additional charge. It's the best entertainment deal one is likely to find these days, Mattox said.

Wyatt takes revenge

(This the last of a five-part series about the Earp brothers in Tombstone, Arizona Territory.)

No one will ever know exactly what happened to Frank Stilwell on the night of March

PAST TENSE

Drew Gember
Ruidoso News

20, 1882 in the Tucson railroad yard. Wyatt Earp spoke of the incident many years later and told a fairly interesting story of Stilwell's last few moments on the planet.

Seeing Stilwell, one of the suspected killers of Morgan Earp, lurking in the Tucson railroad yard, Wyatt and his special "posse" jumped from the train and took up the pursuit.

Now, it should be remembered that this "posse" of Wyatt's was hardly conventional. It consisted entirely of Wyatt and Doc Holliday's gambling cronies — most of whom were also noted gunmen of the time. On the whole, they remain shadowy figures to this day. There was "Turkey Creek" Jack Johnson, "Texas" Jack Vermillion, Sherman McMasters and Wyatt's youngest brother, Warren. With the exception of Warren, all of these men would disappear into the mists of history after their Arizona adventure with Wyatt and Doc.

At any rate, they caught up with the hapless Stilwell that night. If Frank had any accomplices — and it's a pretty good bet that he did — they wisely disappeared into the darkness when Wyatt and his men made their appearance.

"One for Morg"

It was about 7 p.m. when Wyatt caught up with Stilwell about 20 yards in front of the railroad engine. Wyatt must have surprised Stilwell, because they were very close to one another — close enough for Stilwell to grab the twin barrels of Wyatt's shotgun and try to redirect it. Wyatt's resolve was greater. As the two men struggled, he gradually forced the right barrel into a position just underneath Stilwell's heart. At this point, his eyes wide with fear, Stilwell peered into Wyatt's face. "Morg!" he blurted out. Then he said it again.

The Earp brothers looked enough alike that they were always being confused with one another. Is it possible that in the last few moments of Frank Stilwell's life, he thought he was being attacked by a ghost?

We will never know, because at that moment Wyatt pulled the trigger. Then he triggered the shotgun's other barrel. Then he and his cohorts proceeded to empty their sidearms into John Behan's late, unlamented deputy. Witnesses heard cheering coming from the railroad yard that night.

Then Wyatt ran back to the train, which was departing. Running alongside the window that his brother Virgil was peering out of, Wyatt held up his index finger. "One for Morg, Virgil!" he shouted. Virgil Earp nodded grimly as the train disappeared into the Arizona night.

The next day George Parsons, Tombstone's indefatigable diarist, noted that "Tonight came news of Frank Stilwell's body being found riddled with bullets and buckshot. A quick vengeance and a bad character sent to Hell where he will be the chief attraction until a few more accompany him."

And it wasn't very long at all until Stilwell had the predicted company in hell.

Two days later, at about 11 a.m., on March 22, 1882, Wyatt and his men rode into the wood camp of Pet Spencer on the south pass of the Dragoon Mountains.

Spence escapes

Spencer, or "Spence" as he was commonly known, was another suspect in the death of Morgan, which, in the eyes of Wyatt Earp, made him a walking dead man. Wyatt didn't think of the warrants in his pocket as warrants, he thought of them as hunting licenses. (Note: Wyatt never did catch up with Spence, but Pete got the message. In order to escape Wyatt's vengeance, Spence turned himself into Yuma Prison for a crime he didn't even commit!)

Spence was not around the wood camp, but another of the suspects in Morgan's death was — Florentino Cruz, or "Indian Charlie," the name by which most people knew him.

Cruz, seeing Earp, Holliday and the others, immediately took flight. The members of the Earp posse were the only witnesses to Cruz' death moments later, and the only one to ever speak of it was Wyatt himself, many years later.

Reminiscing in the 1920s, Wyatt told a tale of how he had given the half-breed a chance to draw his weapon. As historian Bob Boze Bell has noted, Wyatt probably didn't give him anything but a "lead facial."

In any case, Cruz' body was found the next day, as riddled as Stilwell's.

The very next day, the Earp party was involved in yet another gun battle, this one nearly as controversial as the one that took place near the O.K. Corral.

Another cowboy leader dies

As Wyatt and his men approached a place called Iron Springs, they were not expecting any trouble. Wyatt, who was well ahead of the rest of his men, had loosened his gunbelt.

About 50 feet from the springs, something — probably intuition — brought Wyatt up short. Swinging out of the saddle, he began to walk forward, holding his horse's reins in his left hand and a double-barreled shotgun in his right.

Only two of his men were anywhere near Wyatt Earp — Texas Jack Vermillion and Sherman McMasters. Doc Holliday and Jack Johnson were still further back, and Warren Earp had been left some miles to the rear, awaiting a message from town.

After taking a few steps, a campsite came into Wyatt's view. Near it was a line shack.

Lounging in front of the campfire were two men, Pony Diehl and Curly Bill Brocius. When they saw Earp, both men leapt to their feet. Diehl broke for the woods nearby, but Curly Bill decided to make a stand, going for his gun. At the same time, another group of men bolted from the line shack, also heading for the woods. But Wyatt's eyes were glued to Curly Bill.

Pulling both triggers on the shotgun, Wyatt caught Curly Bill squarely in the midsection, all but cutting him in half.

Simultaneously, the other cowboys opened up with their pistols from the timber. Virtually all of Wyatt's men, caught by surprise, turned and headed for cover, leaving their leader standing in the open.

At this point, when Wyatt attempted to hurriedly remount his horse, his loosened gunbelt

For those of you interested in the supernatural

This picture (right) taken during the 1920s shows former Tombstone deputy Billy Breckenridge sitting among the cluster of oaks where Johnny Ringo's body was found in 1882. Notice the face that appears to be floating in the tree above Breckenridge. It bears an eerie resemblance to Ringo (inset).

slid down almost to his knees, effectively (and somewhat comically) preventing him from getting back into the saddle. Bullets flew everywhere, but Earp, who seemed to lead a charmed life as far as bullets were concerned, was untouched. There were bullet holes in his pants and his coat, and his saddle horn was shot off just inches from his nose as he attempted to remount.

Firing with one hand, while frantically attempting to adjust his gunbelt with the other hand, Earp was in a decidedly touchy position. But another of his bullets found its mark and Johnny Barnes fell dead in the trees.

Finally, Wyatt made it to safety where he rather coldly received the apologies of his men, all of whom were acutely embarrassed by their headlong flight from the field of battle.

The cowboys retreated with their dead, buried them in secret, and then announced that the battle had never taken place and that Earp had made it all up.

Much to the consternation of Wyatt Earp, many believed them, both then and now. But the plain fact is that neither Curly Bill nor Johnny Barnes was ever seen again.

The mystery of John Ringo

This left only one true leader among the cowboys: John Peters Ringo, and his death is also hotly debated to this day.

On July 13, 1882, several months after the Earp posse had left Arizona, Johnny Ringo was found dead.

Ringo was found in a sitting position in the center of five large blackjack oaks growing up in a semi-circle from one root. A bullet had found its way through his head, entering at the right temple. At the time, Ringo's death was considered to be a suicide, but there were discrepancies with that theory that many found hard to ignore.

For one thing, there were no powder burns on Ringo's temple. Had he done the deed himself, there would have had to be powder burns. But his gun was found in his right hand, with one round discharged, and Ringo was known by one and all to be of a suicidal bent.

His horse was found some miles away with Ringo's boots looped over the saddle horn. An undershirt was tied around his feet, torn into strips. He had not walked very far like this, as the damage to his feet was minimal. No one was ever able to explain this.

And then, perhaps most damning of all to the suicide theory, was the fact that Ringo's gunbelt was on upside down. Clearly someone else had put it on him.

The place where his body was found did not appear to be the same place where he met his death. Is it possible that Wyatt Earp had come back to Arizona (available records indicate that he could have), and, not wishing to hear claims that Ringo, like Curly Bill, had not been killed, he dragged the body to a place where he knew it would be found?

The cluster of oaks where Ringo was found was right next to a well-traveled road.

It was over. Wyatt Earp went on to a controversial (what else?) career as a gambler and promoter, dying of cancer in Los Angeles in 1929.

Doc Holliday finally succumbed to tuberculosis in Glenwood Springs, Colo., in 1887.

Virgil Earp died of pneumonia in Goldfield, Nev., in 1905.

Warren Earp, who never really got in on the Tombstone ruckus as much as he would have liked, was killed in Willcox, Ariz., in a bar-room brawl in 1900. His death has never been linked to the troubles in Tombstone.

And what of Ike Clanton, the man whose big mouth precipitated the violence that began on Oct. 26, 1881? Ike was killed by a correspondence school detective in 1887 as he was attempting to rustle some cattle. True to form, Ike was running away at the time of his death.

Casa del Cocinero is more than a meal, it's a culinary experience

Dishes garnished with the special flair of Chef Cooper Barnett and served in the 20-seat dining room of Casa del Cocinero transform a meal into a culinary experience.

The bed and breakfast on State Road 48/State Highway 37 north of Ruidoso (just south of Angus Hill) serves dinner guests on Fridays and Saturdays by reservation.

Barnett plans a special presentation for Saturday, Dec. 28. The owners of Tularosa Vineyards will bring a selection of six of their wines, one to be served with each course. Reservations are required. The cost is $60 per person.

The menu will feature pepper-charred Ahi tenderloin with chile and cumin mayonnaise, Jicama, shrimp and chorizo chowder, lobster fritters with black bean and mango relish, endive and green chile salad with avocado and salsa vinaigrette, towers of tri-flavored mousse with fresh fruit coulis, and a choice of pancooked shrimp with two tomato and green pepper con-casse or cold smoked beef tenderloin with chipotle raspberry glaze de viande.

Barnett and his wife, Debbie, bought the former Scandia Bed and Breakfast after seeing it for sale while on vacation in April.

They converted a sitting room into an intimate dining room in what Barnett describes as "light and airy eclectic Southwestern" decor with sponged walls, hand-painted decorative borders and richly-colored chairs.

Barnett was born in Carrizozo and his family was from Ancho, but he gained his culinary training in Jacksonville and Bradenton, Fla.

A three-year apprenticeship with the American Culinary Federation led to work in the Ponte Vedra Inn and Club, one of the top 10 resorts in the county.

From there, he became executive chef at Gio's Cafe in Ponte Vedra, where he won two Golden Spoon awards.

Last August, he was executive chef for the opening of Legends in Jacksonville, named one the top 20 new restaurants in Florida.

Buying a bed and breakfast appealed to Barnett, because has stayed in many while traveling.

"You can sit and eat with other guests, who usually are well traveled and well educated and interesting," Barnett said.

His style in the kitchen fuses many cultural flavors in light, but tasteful dishes - "nothing heavy, although I was trained in the classical French style," Barnett said.

The menu is designed ahead of time for each evening, giving guests a choice of two entrees, but a fixed selection of appetizers, soups, salads, desserts and other courses.

"I serve five- to six-course meals and the entire meal is a two- to three-hour process," Barnett said. "My wife and I bring out the food and explain each dish and what goes into its preparation."

Prices range from $30 to $40 per person and often, the meals will follow a theme. Only one sitting per evening is scheduled at 8 p.m.

Barnett also rents the dining room for private parties and caters. Call (505) 336-7815 for reservations.
