Fire guts trailer home

An electrical shortage in a ceiling fan sparked a fire that caused extensive damage at a Davis Drive trailer early this morning, Ruidoso fire officials say.

A barking dog alerted sleeping trailer owner Randy Bausch to the danger, and Bausch escaped safely, Fire Chief Virgil Reynolds said.

About 14 firefighters responded to the 1:42 a.m. Friday fire alarm, and doused the blaze in about 15 minutes, Reynolds said.

"The place was pretty well gutted," Reynolds said of the estimated $10,000 damage centered in the living room and kitchen.

Ruidoso snow play
site proposed

A new winter snow play area at the Eagle Creek Sports Complex was given a tentative approval by village councilors this week.

But the steps for government approval are barely out of the starting gate. Before proceeding with Tom Dorgan's concept of a commercial ice rink and sledding area, a lease agreement for the Eagle Creek land must be arranged.

The portable rink and the play area would be open from Thanksgiving to Easter, Dorgan said.

Some of the target land is owned by the Eagle Creek Water Users Association, a private corporation jointly owned by Ruidoso and Capitan.

Also, Eagle Creek sport fields will be used by student athletes during some of the winter months, so Dorgan might have to reschedule his plans for the year.

Village officials said they will talk with the Eagle Creek group at its meeting next month. If the board approves the idea, an appraisal would be done on the land.

Open house on fort inmate plan

An overview of the proposed New Mexico Inmate Work Camp planned for Fort Stanton will be given at an open house at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17 at the fort.

State officials from departments involved in the program will be there to answer questions.

The program is designed to provide labor for conservation projects in forests around Lincoln and Otero counties while giving inmates useful work to perform.

Youngsters hope for big spenders at county fair's livestock sale

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

For months, they lovingly feed, comfort and groom pigs, goats, rabbits, steers and chickens in anticipation of the day of judging at the annual Lincoln County Fair.

For many members of county 4-H and FFA chapters, the judging and sale of their animals is the only source of money for future projects and for a reward at the end of their months of labor.

They're hoping to see lots of buyers at the Junior Livestock Sale.

"People need to know it's a real heavy burden for these kids to pour all of their money into the animals and then no one buys them at the fair," said Emily Stephens, whose children raise a host of animals. "And then many of the people who do buy aren't well heeled. I know there are some out there with the money to offer these kids some encouragement in an effort that teaches them responsibility and keeps them busy in a healthy way."

In many counties, local restaurants hotly compete for the top steers, pigs and goats, posting signs to let people know about the high quality of the meat, she said.

For those who aren't interested in putting the choice meat in their freezer and don't want to breed the prize winners, they can purchase the animal as recognition of the child's effort and in support of the event, and then return it to the owner or donate the meat to local charities.

"At an average of about 70 cents a pound for pigs, you can save an incredible amount of money buying through the fair," she said.

Some animals never make it to the sale, such as rabbits and chickens.

"Just because it's a small animal doesn't mean there are no expenses," Stephens said. "And rabbits are a year-long project compared to pigs that take just a few months of care."

Some steers, goats and pigs also don't make the cut. Buyers also can come early and offer a fair price to those with animals who didn't win their competitions and will not be at the sale.

Stephens is trying to interest individuals and businesses in creating a pool of money and/or prizes for those children whose animals don't win or can't be sold, so they don't come up empty-handed at the end of months of hard work.

To register for the sale at 1 p.m. and the buyers lunch at 11:30 a.m., call the county extension office at (505) 648-2311 in Carrizozo or co-chairman Jean Cunningham at 354-2451 in Capitan. Buyers also can bypass the lunch and just show up for the sale.

For more information about consolation prizes, call Stephens at 354-3352 or contact members of the county fair board.

Matthew Stephens gives an affectionate scratch on the back to his speckled Sussex rooster, one of the fowls he hopes will win at the Lincoln County Fair.

Arson suspected in two home fires

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Suspected arson fires hit two Ruidoso homes just five lots apart within an hour Wednesday, police report.

Ironically, the Ruidoso Police Department is just down the street. A police officer spotted one of the fires before it caused damage to the residence.

One of the houses is on Texas Street, but also has frontage on Wingfield Street, the address of the other fire.

Damage was extensive in the kitchen of the 119 Texas Street house, where a window was broken when something flammable was thrown inside. An ignition source was also tossed in, Detective Jim Biggs said.

"There were distinctive burn patterns on the floor to suggest arson," Biggs said.

The ignition source could have been matches or a cigarette, but no evidence was found because the kitchen was so extensively torched, Biggs said.

Ruidoso firefighters responded to the fire in four minutes and doused the blaze in about 15 minutes. They were alerted by police at 3:43 p.m. after a woman who saw it ran directly to police headquarters.

The unoccupied house was used for storage by owner Jimmy Rankin, police said. The stored items were in other rooms and fortunately "dodged the bullet," Biggs said.

The other fire, at 304 Wingfield Street, only charred a few logs in a woodpile, police said.

Biggs, who spotted that blaze at 2:21 p.m., said there's a good chance both fires were set by the same person.

"It seems real coincidental, doesn't it?" he said.

Biggs was returning from the Ruidoso Magistrate Court when he saw a smoky haze hovering near the road. He then saw "flames licking" under the deck of the house.

Firewood under the deck had been placed on top of a sheet of cardboard, which caught fire and set the wood ablaze. A can of wood sealant was on top of the logs, Biggs said.

Police haven't spoken with the owner of the home yet, nor are they sure that anyone lives there. The name D. Blake was on a piece of paper taped above the front door.

An investigation continues, and police may have a suspect, Biggs said.

The suspect — a young Hispanic male wearing a sweatshirt with a college logo — wasn't seen Wednesday in the area. But one of the neighbors along the street told police she'd seen the stranger peering in a window about a month ago, and saw him again in the neighborhood two weeks back.

Federal grant could be savior for Glencoe Rural Events Center

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County commissioners may get a second chance with a $130,000 federal grant to turn the Glencoe Rural Events Center into a winning proposition.

But not all of the commissioners may be interested.

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.) announced Tuesday the grant had been awarded to the county by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The grant is for an indoor arena at the center on U.S. 70.

But the director of the federal grant program said it's not a done deal.

"The announcement may be premature," said Mike McDow, program director for the Rural Business Service of the Rural Economic Development Division.

The county's pre-application scored high enough against national competition for the money to be set aside for the indoor arena project, he said.

The next step is for the county to send in a formal application and to satisfy requirements tied to the grant that include some preliminary engineering and architectural work, McDow said.

The center has been a source of contention on the commission since the state Legislature appropriated $250,000 two years ago to purchase the former sales barn and $40,000 for improvements and first-year operations.

The vote to accept the center passed 3-2, with Commissioners Bill Schwettmann and Stirling Spencer voting against the motion.

"...the usage the first half of this year has been doubled over all of last year. That tells me people have accepted the center and are using it. If that's true, it's a good investment."

L. RAY NUNLEY
LINCOLN COUNTY COMMISSIONER

The next year, commissioners expected to apply for more money to build an indoor arena and complete substantial improvements that would attract major horse shows and exhibits. But state money dried up and the center was used mostly for small local events and one larger event, the annual Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium.

Recently, commissioners asked for proposals to buy or lease the center. Two were received and are being considered.

The position of center manager was cut, although Linda Wallace stayed on in the county manager's office to help with events already

Capitan may sell share of Eagle Creek water group

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Representatives from the villages of Ruidoso and Capitan charted a course Wednesday for Ruidoso to buy out Capitan's share of the Eagle Creek Water Users Association.

If that can't be accomplished, Capitan could move toward involuntary dissolution of the association formed in 1966 and offer its share of water rights, land and other assets to a third party. Capitan trustees could then use the money from the sale to develop a wellfield near the town.

Capitan hasn't received any water through the association since its water line deteriorated eight years ago. Ruidoso officials have blocked attempts to build a new line, saying it would be too costly for an unreliable source of water.

"I don't think either side wants to see the process break down and see Ruidoso lose the water rights (of Capitan's portion of the association)," said J. Robert Beauvais, Capitan village attorney.

Both sides are putting together their desired ingredients for a memorandum of understanding on a buy-out. The memorandum is scheduled to be presented to the Ruidoso Village Council and Capitan Board of Trustees before the end of the month.

Beauvais and Ruidoso Village Manager Gary Jackson expressed optimism about the process Thursday. But the two men acknowledged the major obstacles probably will be how to appraise the land and establish the value of the association's water rights.

Ruidoso would like the appraisal to be based on the current use of the land as a watershed. Capitan officials contend it should be appraised based on its highest and best use (recreation, development or grazing), a standard that would boost the value.

Capitan trustees at a special meeting Monday authorized Mayor Norman Renfro and Beauvais to meet with Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw, Village of Ruidoso Attorney John Underwood and Jackson.

Capitan's representatives on the association board told trustees that Ruidoso members are hostile toward the idea of completing a pipeline that could deliver water to Capitan.

Currently, only Ruidoso benefits from the association partnership by pumping water (please see related story).

Capitan's association members also complained that Ruidoso employees read the water meters. The village then bills itself, maintaining control over the records.

An audit of the finances of the association would be a step in the buy-out, Beauvais said.

Exactly how the sale would be managed still is a point of negotiation, Jackson said.

As a step toward the buy-out, the association may be dissolved, allowing the two municipal partners to change the ground rules, Beauvais said.

Existing rules require that any money paid for water stays in the association's coffers.

"So Ruidoso is taking out of one of its pockets to develop Eagle Creek to improve its water supply and we get nothing," Beauvais said. "If we dissolve the association, we will be two municipalities dealing with a different agreement and we can renegotiate rights and responsibilities of each side."

The mood between the two villages seemed more upbeat Thursday after the meeting between mayors. "I agree it was a very fruitful, positive discussion," Jackson said. "This is the discussion level, so we can come up with a document both villages can deal with."

The memorandum is scheduled to be completed by Aug. 16 and taken back to both elected boards for ratification in special meetings by Sept. 1.

Capitan officials say Ruidoso is unfair

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Eagle Creek Water Users Association operates like it was a water department for Ruidoso, association representatives from Capitan complained Monday.

Only Ruidoso receives water from the association, that village's employees read the water meters and its water department manager serves on the association board, said Bennie Coker, one of Capitan's members on the association board.

"We're in a situation where we can't get anything done," Coker said. "They want to move their water rights into Eagle Creek wells and not pay the association for any water used. It's very unfair."

Capitan trustees told Mayor Norm Renfro and Village Attorney J. Robert Beauvais to meet with Ruidoso officials to map out steps toward a sale of Capitan's assets in the association.

Newly appointed association representative Deborah Ingle told trustees she found discrepancies between invoices sent to Ruidoso based on a meter reading and the amount the village ended up paying for the water.

The association owns several hundred acres of prime real estate and 6,500 acre feet of water rights, she said.

"(The water rights are) worth $9 million and if we settle for anything less than $4,500,000 (a half share), we'd be getting robbed and that doesn't include the land," Ingle said.

Capitan hasn't received water from the association for eight years, since an existing water line deteriorated. They need to build 1.9 miles of water line to hook up to the association supply. Ruidoso's members on the board have refused to move ahead with the project.

By introducing a motion to complete the line and then voting it down at the last association meeting, the Ruidoso members blocked any attempt by Capitan to bring the issue back up for a vote in the future. Under parliamentary rules, a Ruidoso member would have to bring the issue back to the table, Beauvais pointed out.

Capitan Trustee Lamoyne Carpenter recalled that in 1990, the association voted to improve the water delivery situation in three phases. The 1.9-mile portion to connect Capitan to the water line was to be the third phase, but that never has occurred.

Ruidoso members also objected to a rate increase proposed by Capitan, Coker said.

Country Club Village subdivision gets village bond deadline reprieve

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Country Club Village subdivision is back in the works after the Ruidoso Village Council extended its development bond.

The project calls for 77 townhouses and 15 condominiums across from the Cree Meadows Country Club. It was put in limbo when a Texas developer ran into financial trouble last year.

Village planner Cleatus Richards said "I still think it's a good project," and he's satisfied developer Glenn Neans now has the finances to finish the subdivision.

Councilors gave the go-ahead Tuesday for a second six-month extension of the project's $487,063 bond. It now expires Dec. 31.

The Country Club Village problem "lets people know why we require bonding," Mayor Jerry Shaw said. "People complain about red tape, but sometimes red tape is necessary." Without it, the village could have been stuck with a partially completed project if new funding hadn't come along.

With the extension, bond holder and building contractor Carl Kelley can complete required infrastructure and utility work at the site.

Richards said he learned from Neans, just prior to the June 30 bond deadline, that a New Hampshire group is offering financial backing for the project's completion. Neans said he plans to resume construction in early August.

Richards contacted the group, which confirmed the Texas developer's information.

Planning and zoning commissioners first approved the project in 1994, and Kelley's company Please see Reprieve, page 3A

 Draw Engineers set about leveling the land that August. At the same time, Kelley installed some of the required utilities and started construction of two structures.
 But money wasn't coming through from Neans, the project financier, and when the infrastructure work wasn't completed by the village's Dec. 31, 1995 deadline, officials became concerned.

They issued a six-month extension on the bond to let Kelley find some way to take the project over, or for Neans to find the means. Commissioners also told Neans that the two naked wood structures left standing at the site when construction was abandoned had become hazardous, and they ordered one be dismantled and the other boarded up.

 "Hopefully, this extension will allow the completion of the project," Richards said. "I hope it will still be timely marketwise — it was a good, strong market for the project before."
 All the infrastructure improvements — roads, water and sewer lines, and drainage — should be done by December. Then the lots can be sold for development, he said.

Glencoe

 scheduled and to handle other projects.

Commissioner J. Ray Nunley said some strings would be attached to the new grant, but he's not sure what.

"If we can work within the parameters (of the federal requirements), I'm all for it for this reason — that the usage the first half of this year has been doubled over all of last year," Nunley said. "That tells me people have accepted the center and are using it. If that's true, it's a good investment."

Commissioner Wilton Howell credited U.S. Rep. Joe Skeen (R-N.M.) with pushing for the grant approval and setting aside the money. His office affirmed Wednesday that Skeen put the grant in a House appropriations bill. Skeen's ranch is located near the Glencoe center.

Howell also gave credit to former county manager Carolin Cooney and Wallace for going after the grant as an alternate source of revenue for improvements.

"If this department thinks the project is important, it got the support of Pete Domenici and Joe Skeen's office thinks it has merit, it bolsters my opinion," Howell said. "I think it's a good opportunity. I don't know how the $130,000 will go toward an indoor arena, but I would support in-kind work by the road department.

"I know we have sought proposals to dispose of or lease it, but my idea was to find a group interested in managing it so it still was available for use by the people of the county."

An indoor arena has been the major feature lacking in the center to attract horse shows, he said.

"The cowboy symposium always has roping and cutting events and had to go to another arena off premises," Howell said. "This would keep everything in one place."

Keeping the symposium in Glencoe for its annual October event translates to more than $1 million in benefits to the local economy, including a minimum of $50,000 in sales tax, Howell said.

A more skeptical Schwettmann said, "First I'd like to see the color of the money to make sure it's there. We've been promised so much by the state, more than the federal government, and they haven't delivered."

"What would a $130,000 arena do for us, just increase the investment to $380,000 with revenues still at $10,000 or $20,000 a year?" he asked.

But then Schwettmann added, "But I'm open minded. I'm willing to see what they proposed. I don't mind it being a success. I'd like that very much."

REGULAR ITEMS

Following is the action taken at the regular Ruidoso Village Council meeting held Tuesday, July 30 at village hall.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

Commissioners approved amendments to the forest protection ordinance drafted by village attorney John Underwood. Changes in the ordinance let property owners freely (without permits) remove trees with maximum diameter of 10 inches; all immature, diseased or dead trees; any trees within a 10-foot zone around homes; and immature trees over the recommended population level of 40 square feet per acre. All other proposed tree cuttings require permits, site inspections or Planning and Zoning Commission variances.

REGULAR ITEMS

Approved a preliminary plat and final plat of a 135-acre Alto subdivision to be named Kokopelli Mesa, which is within the village's three-mile planning and zoning jurisdiction. Ref. Inc. applicant: D.T. Collins, agent.

Approved a second six-month extension of a bond period to Dec. 31, 1996 for the completion of lot improvements at the Country Club Subdivision on Cree Meadows Drive.

Approved a request by D.T. Collins for a waiver on the council's temporary moratorium on new subdivisions within village limits. Collins said he had completed field work, plans and an application for a new subdivision of two Upper Canyon development lots into three just prior to the council's action, and had dated papers proving the work had been in progress.

Approved selling 4,400 square feet of village property at Grindstone adjoining Lot 9, block 7, second addition to the Wingfield Homestead Subdivision to establish a permanent access to Santa Maria Drive. Karris and Tom Anderson, applicants. A price will be negotiated.

Approved an addendum to the village contract with the Lincoln County Medical Center to add a 6% surcharge on ambulance bills to cover billing costs. The ambulance is run by the Village of Ruidoso. The addendum to the contract is contingent upon the approval of the state Department of Finance Administration.

Awarded the contract for an environmental assessment for the crosswalk runway at the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport to Molzen-Corbin and Associates, contingent upon Federal Aviation Administration and state approval. The total cost of the project, funded 90% by the FAA and 5% by both the state and village, will be close to $8 million.

REGULAR ITEMS

The village will have to do budget adjustments of about $7,000 for its share in the costs.

Approved the concept of a snow play area at the Eagle Creek Sports Complex, proposed by Tom Duggan, and requested a separate agreement with the Eagle Creek Inter-Community Water District Association which owns part of the land. Duggan, who has prepared the play area to include a skating rink and sledding area, says the area would be open from Thanksgiving to Easter. That might conflict with sports being played during some of those months, said Debbie Jo Alvarado, director of the Parks and Recreation Department. Duggan was also asked to reconsider the line open of his concept because some of the field space is needed for high school sports practices when new fields are being developed at the Ruidoso High School.

Approved as a special assignment for the village attorney the revision of the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Extrajurisdictional Zoning Ordinance so that it will be more useful and conformable.

BOARD APPOINTMENTS

CONSENT REGULAR ITEMS

Approved council's previous meeting minutes.

Approved the co-op agreement with the state Highway and Transportation Department.

Renewed for one year the professional services contract for legal services with John Underwood.

Approved resolution 96-14, the travel policy for the village employees and elected officials.

Cancelled the Aug. 27, 1996 regular council meeting so officials can go to the New Mexico Municipal League annual conference, which will be held at the Ruidoso Convention Center Aug. 26-30.

Approved negotiations with Leadhill Harbort for the engineering services contract at the airport.

Approved out-of-state travel for the mayor and village manager to attend the National League of Cities Conference in San Antonio, Texas.

Renewed the joint powers agreement with Ruidoso Downs for the narcotics enforcement unit. There are no changes to the agreement.

County should pursue Glencoe center grant

The high likelihood of a $130,000 grant for the Glencoe Rural Events Center makes the idea of keeping the center under the wing of the county government a better idea than ever before.

County commissioners have struggled over whether to lease or sell the center practically since the state gave them money to acquire the center two years ago. Initially, Capitan residents were worried the county fair would move to Glencoe, but commissioners have assured people that won't happen.

Commissioners' main worry now is the lack of enough use to cover operations, and a lack of grant money to develop the site. But the offer of a $130,000 federal grant (if commissioners submit a final application and agree to up-front costs and services) shows grant money hasn't dried up. The pre-application scored high enough that the grant is assured, a federal official said.

The money would be used for an indoor horse arena, a perfect addition to the center. The Hondo Valley heritage has a great deal to do with horses, and horse shows are popular in southern New Mexico and West Texas.

Commissioners told center manager Linda Wallace to look for funding, and she found it, with the help of U.S. Rep. Joe Skeen, who just happens to have a ranch in the Hondo Valley.

We urge the commissioners to send in that final application and give the people in the Hondo Valley an attraction they can be proud of — and let Wallace concentrate on attracting horse shows once the arena is built.

POLICY

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's daytime telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed, however the author's hometown will be included. The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Letters should be 500 words or less, be of public interest and should avoid name-calling and libelous language. The Ruidoso News reserves the right to edit letters, as long as viewpoints are not altered. Shorter letters are preferred and generally receive greater readership.

Letters may be hand delivered to The News office at 104 Park Avenue or mailed to P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

The News has the right to reject any letter.

Judge's stay on casino closure ruling is unfair

TO THE EDITOR:

I think Vasquez's decision to give the Indians a stay on their illegal gambling is a disgrace to this country. This sets a bad example for the people that try to live by the laws of the land.

She is telling the drug dealers, murderers, and rapists to go ahead and deal, rape and murder as long as they are appealing their convictions. For her to rule the Indians were gambling illegal and then to make a complete turn around and give them licenses to keep gambling, is ridiculous. This issue might have been settled in 30 days, now it could take years. It's just too bad federal judges are appointed and not voted in.

Beware of Wildlands Project

TO THE EDITOR:

What is the latest nightmare of the green advocacy groups? This time the insanity is called the Wildlands Project, a project that seeks to return at least 50% of the land area in America to core wilderness areas where human activity will be barred.

These core wilderness areas are to be connected by corridors that may be several miles wide and surrounded by "buffer zones" in which there may be managed human activity, providing that the first priority is biodiversity protection.

Who originated this plan? Dave Foreman, co-founder of Earth First! Dr. Reed F. Noss developed the plan with grants from The Nature Conservancy and the National Audubon Society.

Noss says that "the collective needs of non-human species must take precedence over the needs and desires of humans."

What groups are embracing this nightmare? UNESCO, the Sierra Club, the Nature Conservancy, the U.S. Department of the Interior, and the Environmental Protection Agency among others.

The Wildlands Project is no simple plan to protect our wildlife or the environment, rather it is a massive plan to restructure society, using nature as the organizing principle.

Why doesn't the U.S. Congress do something about this frightening project? Congress has never seen a legislative proposal to adopt the Wildlands Project. All it sees are the incremental steps to implement it — the so-called environmental protection measures.

The Department of the Interior and the Environmental Protection Agency are going after your private property by the development of a Ecosystem Management Policy. Your taxpayer dollars have already paid for a national study of endangered ecosystems.

Without a massive outcry of the American people, the Wildlands Project will destroy our freedoms, our property rights and devour our nation's prosperity.

Rewilding America must not become a reality.

Federal taxes are being misspent

TO THE EDITOR:

Your newspaper recently reported on a proposed meeting between Ruidoso Mayor Shaw, village council members and Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe of about 3,000 members. Also recently, Mr. Chino claimed the Indian reservation of several million acres is a sovereign nation.

Mr. Chino, together with his attorneys and the representative of the BIA (or Bureau of Indian Affairs Real Estate Service), it was stated, simply annexed seven acres of Ruidoso land, making it part of the reservation. This in spite of 15 pages of legal jurisdictional arguments and objections presented by Ruidoso government officials.

As an American taxpayer citizen, this puzzled me until I happened to read the telephone yellow pages under "Government," (and I would encourage everyone to read these). The BIA Real Estate Division is a federal agency supported by American taxes.

Does this mean that President Chino has power over all but possibly the federal government? Does this mean that he is correct in today's paper, defying State Government?

I also noticed that our local taxes can not afford to fight for the annexed seven acres. Nor can our taxes provide Head Start and preschool day care. But I notice under the heading "Federal Government," there are about 26 departments supported by American citizens' federal taxes on the Mescalero Apache Reservation.

Is it possible that the tribal Indians are ready to take on the responsibility of American citizenship, sharing our privileges and tax burdens, affording the American taxpayer the equal rights we hear so much about for everyone else?

American women have fought in the past for the land, for schools, for churches, for the right to vote and job equality. We now equally carry the burden of escalating misspent taxes.

THE SILVER LINING

Young animal somehow takes care of self

Little Savvy Crosses the Flood

About midday of July 29 the heaviest rain fell in Ruidoso that I can remember. This brought the rain to its highest level this year — in fact, in a long time.

One thing I have always worried about is that a very small calf might try to cross the flood, or be too close to the bank.

On my way out later that evening, the little home bunch of cows was over across the flood. And, as I stopped to look at them, most of the grown cows waded across to the pickup, from force of habit.

They had all the grass in the world, but they came over anyway, no doubt thinking there was some special feed in the pickup. As the cows waded across, the water came up to their bellies. This allowed that the stream was way over Little Savvy's head since he was two months old, about two feet tall.

One yearling stayed over with Little Savvy, and they walked up the bank as the other cows followed the pickup.

Then at a place where the river was even deeper than where the other cows had crossed, the yearling struggled across.

There stood Little Savvy, and I wondered why his mother "Savvy" had left him in this danger.

Was I going to have to jump in and rescue him if he tried to cross? I had visions of the time years ago when I had tried to cross on foot and got washed down 75 or 76 feet before

The Silver Lining

DANIEL AGNEW STORM
COLUMNIST

I crossed. And then the water was not too high.

Little Savvy lowered his head as he looked at the water. Then with a run he made a great flying jump, landing on his front feet in the stream, and with two more jumps he was out walking toward the other cows as if nothing out of the way had happened.

When I told this to Wayne and Marilyn Ward as they drove me over to Lincoln for pageant practice, they said, "Maybe he had been watching the Olympics, and had won a gold medal in his special event: 'Jumping Across the Flood.'"

In many ways, you see how young creatures are endowed with ways to care for themselves and the words come to mind: "God works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform."

More About The Mile Run

You remember a few days ago we went over Rudyard Kipling's poem about "Timing each minute of a mile with 60 seconds worth of distance run."

Kipling seemed to be saying that this was next to impossible, that is, to run the mile in under four minutes.

Evidently the mile runners of England accepted Kipling's challenge, because the first man to run the mile in under four minutes was Doctor Roger Banister, followed by two other Englishmen also running under four minutes.

Dr. Banister seemed to think little of this event, saying: "I just run for the sport of it." This was some years ago. Shortly after Dr. Banister's run, two other Englishmen, Steve Ovett and Sebastian Coe, took turns setting and breaking the world's record in the mile.

Old Lincoln Days Begins Today

Old Lincoln Days begins today, with the first performance of the pageant tonight.

Old Lincoln Days was established by Wilbur and Louise Coe, as part of New Mexico's 400th birthday, and also to honor the pioneers of New Mexico and the west.

The pageant is in a class by itself, being the only western historical show that is performed in the same place where the actual historic event occurred.

The pageant is held right next to the courthouse from which Billy the Kid made his escape, surprising everyone but himself and his tough, independent all across New Mexico.

Gladrags restaurant dressed for success

by PAMELA CROMWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

For almost three years, Ruidosans have been craning their necks as they drive by the glass-front building at 207 Eagle Drive, wondering if anything was happening there. Some of us like John Thompson, had visions of what a beautiful restaurant the place would make.

Thompson's dream has finally come true with the partnership of Logan Miller. They have brought 207 Eagle Drive to life and called it Gladrags, promising "dining as it should be" to Ruidoso. Fulfilling the dream, however, has had its pitfalls.

In 1992, Thompson was recruited by John Houghton to be the executive chef at a new restaurant he was building on Eagle Drive (now Gladrags). Along with architect Mike Smeltzer, Thompson helped design the building. Custom-carved chairs and tables were delivered by Ernest Thompson.

John Thompson turned down an offer to work in London, England and attend the Cordon Bleu European school of cooking. Then plans to open the restaurant fell through.

Thompson returned to restaurant consulting until he could arrange to lease Houghton's building and open his own riverside restaurant there.

With its angular faces and wall-length windows overlooking the Rio Ruidoso, Gladrags became a Ruidoso landmark before ever becoming a business.

So lovely is the building that Logan Miller thought it was a house when he first saw it.

"I fell in love with it," Miller said. "I pulled over and looked in the windows. I wanted to live there."

Now Miller practically does live there. Through a coffeehouse meet-

"I fell in love with it (the building). I pulled over and looked in the windows. I wanted to live there."

LOGAN MILLER
GLADRAGS RESTAURANT OWNER

up, Miller learned of Thompson's plans for the Eagle Drive property and helped him make those plans reality.

"He's the best thing that ever happened to Gladrags," Thompson said. "We've turned out to be good friends, and that's part of what will make this work."

The partners have very different backgrounds. Miller, who moved here from Austin, Texas eight months ago, was a court reporter for 25 years. He spent the last eight years in partnership with his wife Beverly in the salon business.

Logan Miller and John Thompson are partners in style at Gladrags, the long-awaited restaurant located at 207 Eagle Drive.

Thompson was trained as an executive chef at the exclusive Greenbriar restaurant resort in Virginia. He has studied with top chefs from all over the world, and spent a few years in France. While the regret over not attending Cordon Bleu still stings a bit, Thompson will soon be certified in culinary education. He wants to apprentice new chefs into the profession.

"You have to love it if you're going to do it," he said.

Two sous chefs assist Thompson in the Gladrags kitchen. David Burgess and Chris Faviell have extensive experience and skill.

"A master pastry chef from France came in here the other evening and ordered the strawberry sabayon," Thompson said. "She loved it so much she went into the kitchen to give David a $5 tip."

Thompson and Miller have hired 10 employees, all selected for their conscientious approach to customer service.

"We have a professional staff," Thompson said. "Everyone cares, and they love what they do."

The customer service philosophy at Gladrags includes fresh, health-conscious food. The chefs bake their own bread and make their own mozzarella cheese. They use no salt in cooking, and try to balance cholesterol-heavy ingredients with cholesterol-cutting ingredients.

The dinner menu features gourmet pasta dishes, choice beef, fresh seafood, and flavorful chicken. Dinner prices range from $8.95 to $13.95. Lunch prices range from $2.95 to $5.25 for hearty sandwiches, picturesque salads, and hot soups.

Gladrags also features a small bar serving espresso and "power juices." A beer and wine license is still forthcoming.

Vegetarians will be happy to know that Thompson caters to the herbivore. Along with pasta dishes, he has vegetarian specials, and he even designed the kitchen so the smell of cooking meat doesn't offend vegetarian sensibilities.

While smoking is not allowed indoors at Gladrags, smoking is allowed on the patio, where customers can relax under canopy umbrellas near the noday river.

Blues music plays in the background at Gladrags, and on Friday and Saturday nights musicians like Sam Dunahoo, Tomas Vigil, and Sean Loudermilk perform on the patio.

"Gladrags is going to be the place," Thompson said. "It was built for the locals. It's a convenience for the tourists."

Gladrags serves lunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Dinner is served from 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. or later Tuesday through Thursday, and until 10 p.m. or later Friday and Saturday. Evening reservations can be made by calling 257-3753.

Pamela Cromwell/The Ruidoso News

Ron and Karen Anderson (back) laugh it up over lunch at Gladrags with friends Dan and Sally Wimberly. Gladrags opened July 27, and has been filling up with customers eager to try something new.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Ruidoso is favorite weekend vacation

With landslide victories in two newspaper reader's choice elections, Ruidoso is without a doubt the favorite weekend vacation spot of Clovis and Lubbock residents.

For the third consecutive year, Ruidoso has been voted by the readership of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal as their first choice when selecting a "weekend getaway" vacation. Reporter Chuck Evers said no one else even came close to beating Ruidoso.

Readers of the Clovis News Journal also chose Ruidoso this year as their "best weekend getaway" spot. This is the first year of the "Best of Clovis" People's Choice Awards. Reporter Candy Devall said the vote for Ruidoso was overwhelming. The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce capitalized on Ruidoso's good standing by purchasing ads in the two newspapers that promote upcoming fall events.

net.news/virus/

Judith Timmons of Ruidoso Computer Systems reports that many people are concerned about computer viruses reaching them through the Internet. She receives advice from the Net on how to protect your computer.

Many large Internet sites transfer their data from virus-free CD ROMs, but others do not. So while it's unlikely that you'll contract a computer virus by downloading files from the World Wide Web, it is possible.

To protect your computer from unwanted invasion that might do anything from erasing your files to unformatting your hard drive, you need a virus-protection program. The program should be updated periodically to keep up with new viruses, Timmons said.

There are many virus-protection programs available, such as Norton Anti-Virus. McAfee's WebScan for Windows is effective and easy to use. It can be downloaded directly from the Web, and you can charge the $65 to your credit card. That Internet address is www.mcafee.com/mstore/mstore.html.

Weaver and loom play a lifetime duet

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
When Maggie Doyle sits down at the loom, the scene resembles a pianist attacking a concerto.

Her arms dance through the air as she flings the weft yarn through the rainbow of warp thread colors in patterns created by the play of her feet on the loom pedals.

Doyle doesn't mind having an audience for her performance at Handwoven Designs, the shop she and Georgia Van Pelt operate on Lincoln Avenue in Capitan.

"It's a chance to educate people on what weaving really is and the amount of planning and work that goes into a shawl or vest," she said.

The shop showcases their different styles from the two-tone, more muted colors of Van Pelt to Doyle's vibrant combinations.

Doyle learned how to weave literally at her grandmother's knee.

And that knowledge, coupled with her talent, has not only provided a livelihood but also has earned her success and eventually, a large serving of freedom.

Doyle grew up in Sioux City, Iowa, but spent summers with her maternal grandmother in Kansas.

"She was a mail order bride from Ireland," Doyle explained. "She was nearing 30, not a very marketable age in those days, but she still asked for a round-trip ticket."

Fortunately, love turned out to be part of the long distance arrangement, and Doyle's grandparents enjoyed a lengthy marriage.

"She always wove," Doyle said. "Her family operated a small weavery."

Her grandmother started Doyle out at the age of eight by having her do the grunt work — tying knots, measuring and other things weavers don't enjoy doing.

"When she died, I was 18 and she willed her loom to me," Doyle said. "I lent it to a museum and it burned, as well as a bedroom set she brought from Ireland."

Although Doyle always spent some of her time weaving, for years she was occupied with going to college, being married and raising two children.

She earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education and art education. She taught four years at the mid-school level through a Artist In School grant program that ended when the federal government's philosophy changed.

"My children were small then, and I wanted to be a stay-at-home mom," Doyle said. "It wasn't full time work, but weaving provided a supplemental income. I also put my ex-husband through college. I felt lucky, because not a lot of mothers are able to do it. I wanted my children to grow up in a small town."

Some friends showed Doyle and her family Capitan, and she spent the next 17 years there except for a short stint in Las Cruces.

All that time, she worked on a loom in her house and developed markets for her goods, frequently traveling with her children to merchandise shows.

"I was gone about 10 weekends a year and picked where I wanted to go," she said.

Through her shows, Doyle has developed many buyers in the East, who are interested in her one-of-a-kind pieces. She also writes for Hand Woven, a trade periodical, and she gives workshops.

"No one really knows me in the outside, but in the world of weaving, I have recognition," Doyle said.

Weaving appeals to her because she never makes exactly the same item twice, and the art is a continuous learning process.

She decided to move into a shop when her children grew up and left home. Van Pelt wove for pleasure, was retired and wanted to learn the business.

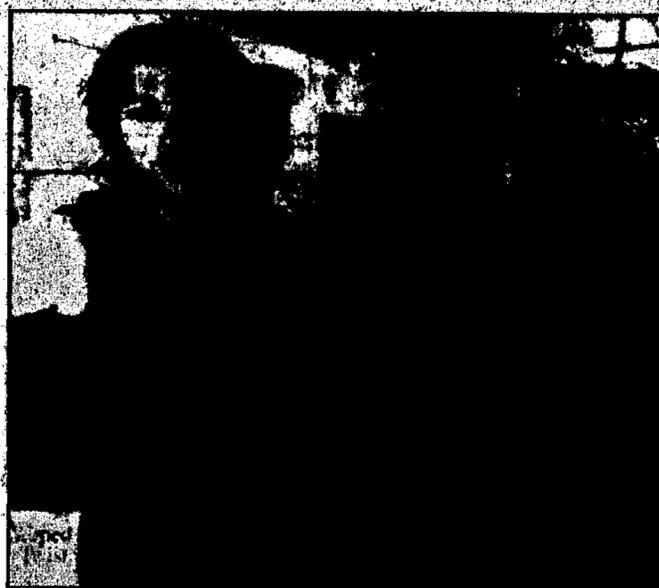

"It is a symbiotic relationship," Doyle said. "After a year, I felt the shop was too confining to be here full time. I love to travel and just got back from months in Africa and Alaska. It's easier to leave if someone will be here to help, and she's learning the business."

"I'm very visual and color is important," Doyle said. "Being in a different environment causes me to look at color in different ways."

Doyle uses a 60-inch loom and prefers to do everything from scratch including dyeing and often, spinning raw wool.

"I dye the yarn for every piece," she said. "I dye two different kinds at once."

Because mohair and Shetland wool, for instance, take on dye differently, one is a slightly lighter shade and the same pot of dye creates companion colors for her pieces.

Maggie Doyle shows one of her woven shawls, a striking blend of colors from deep purple to royal blue.

Weaver Maggie Doyle plays her creative tune with wool on her loom at her store in Capitan, where visitors are welcome to watch her performance.

"I even used to raise sheep, but that's 10 times worse than kids," Doyle said, and she soon discarded that romantic notion.

She still insists on all natural fibers.

The amount of time it takes to make an item depends on factors including her mood, the amount of moisture in the air and how well her sewing machine is working for the final assembly.

One morning this week, she had woven four pieces. She expected to yield a total of five jackets and eight vests out of the 11-yard long warp she was working on at the loom.

The real work in weaving is the preparation, Doyle said. It covers 10 hours of dyeing, then tying off 522 threads on the warp (the threads that run vertically to the weaver).

The weft (also called woof) is the yarn used to shoot through horizontally as the warp threads are separated in patterns controlled by foot pedals.

"The process is very mathematical and technical," Doyle said. "I use a calculator. Otherwise it takes me hours to figure out."

She works from a pattern posted on the frame of the loom.

Vests are most in demand, but Doyle also creates shawls and other outer wear. For special orders, she has woven rugs, pillows and linen curtains.

Prices vary based on how complicated the work is, and its size. Generally, hats and scarfs run $25, coats about $500.

In 1984, Doyle won the Competitive Textiles contest sponsored by the Smithsonian Institute. Her hand-spun coat with rya-knotted sleeves traveled throughout the country for one year and then was placed in the permanent Smithsonian collection.

Handwoven Designs is on Lincoln Avenue in Capitan, between village hall and the Angle Tree Exchange. Since both women sometimes are out of the area, before driving over, call 354-2008.

Doing business with government

No business is too small to do business with government agencies, according to the Small Business Development Center in Alamogordo. Government is a multi-million dollar market. The range of products and services purchased by governments is ever widening.

The New Mexico Procurement Assistance Program is conducting a workshop on "Doing Business with Government" from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 8, at Texas New Mexico Power, 1100 Mechem.

At the workshop, business representatives will learn how to identify those government agencies (federal, state and local) that purchase their products or services, how to get on mailing lists, how to market to government agencies, and much more.

Advanced registration is required to plan for seating and materials. A $20 handbook contains agency phone numbers, addresses, marketing tips, and information that any business doing business with government needs to have at its fingertips. The check is payable to NM Procurement Assistance Program.

For more details about the workshop, call Joe Conway at New Mexico Procurement Assistance Program, (505) 437-5215, or Judy Garcia at New Mexico State University Small Business Development Center in Alamogordo, (505) 434-5272.

This workshop is sponsored by Eastern New Mexico University, Ruidoso and is co-sponsored by Texas New Mexico Power Company along with the Southeastern Business Development Center of Roswell and the New Mexico State University - Alamogordo Small Business Development Center.

Trustees OK Capitan budget

by DIANNE STALLINGS

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
Two street construction grant projects account for 42% of Capitan's 1996-97 budget.

Village trustees approved the final $1,537,579 budget Monday, an 18% increase from the last fiscal year that ended June 30.

Two phases of street construction under the federal Community Development Block Grant program total $643,846.

The village began the fiscal year July 1 with a cash reserve of $398,908. That amount will dip down by about $104,000 by the end of the fiscal year to make up the difference between expenses and expected revenues of $1,432,846.

The village will see less money this year for state cooperative road construction and will be spending more money on water rights, explained Village Clerk Deborah Cummins.

"The only fund of concern to me is the water fund," she told trustees. "Its beginning cash balance is $50,114, and the ending balance is projected at $11,516, but we have cut every expenditure."

The budget contains no major purchases and no employee raises, she said. Salaries are budgeted at $275,630. The village will make payments of about $4,100 toward the repayment of 1968 and 1977 water revenue bond issues.

A $27,500 planning grant will be used to create maps of the village for planning purposes.

The water department operation, budgeted for $332,433, and general administration for $239,603 contain no significant increases.

In other action Monday, trustees:

— postponed a decision on whether to apply for a fourth phase of a street construction project or for water improvements under the block grant program.

Cummins said the village fell $60,000 short for the third phase of the street project. By applying for a $300,000 fourth phase, that portion put on hold could be completed and the additional money could be used for sidewalks and street lights.

In connection to the third phase, trustees awarded the project to Armstrong Construction based on a modified bid of $315,448.

— heard residents complain about flooding on 4th Street. The homeowners suggested street modifications to eliminate the problem, and they were critical that the street project engineering company had not anticipated the problem.

— decided to only allow parallel parking on Smokey Bear Boulevard near the intersection with Lincoln Avenue, to improve visibility.

Meetings seek comments on German Air Force expansion

The United States Air Force will host four scoping meetings to gather input for an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on the expansion of the German Air Force at Holloman Air Force Base.

Anyone wishing to submit verbal or written comments may present them at the scoping meetings. Those closest to Ruidoso will be held Monday, Aug. 5 at the Alamogordo Civic Center, 800 First Street, and Thursday, Aug. 8, at the Carrizozo City Hall Conference Room, 100 4th Street. All meetings will be held from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The Air Force is proposing to relocate 50 German Tornado aircraft, associated equipment and approximately 650 support personnel to Holloman AFB and a new tactical target complex within the existing McGregor Army Range in New Mexico north of Fort Bliss.

The EIS is being prepared so the move will comply with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. The Air Force invites affected agencies, Native American tribes, and the interested and affected public to participate in the scoping meetings to identify environmental issues that should be addressed in the EIS. The environmental issues analyzed in the EIS will be used in the decisionmaking process.

Written comments may also be mailed to the attention of Ms. Sheryl Parker, HQ ACO/GEVA, 129 Andrews St., Suite 102, Langley Air Force Base, Va. 23665-2703. For further information, contact Holloman AFB Public Affairs, (505) 475-5406.

The formal scoping period ends Thursday, Aug. 15. However, the Air Force will accept relevant comments throughout the environmental impact analysis process.

WSMR wild horse adoptions Saturday

Horse enthusiasts have an opportunity to adopt feral horses from White Sands Missile Range on Saturday, Aug. 3. The adoptions will take place on the missile range. The horses will be made available to people who apply to the missile range and are approved in advance.

The horses are a mix of quarter horse, thoroughbred and draft horse blood. They have been captured from the heart of the missile range. This adoption program is an ongoing effort by WSMR to keep the feral horse population on the high desert military installation at a supportable level. Persons interested in adopting horses should call the missile range Public Affairs Office at (505) 678-1134 as soon as possible to request an application. The forms will be returned by mail or facsimile.

PERSONALITIES

Piece by Piece for peace of mind

It's never too late to discover your talents, learns Judy 'The Quilt Lady' Beavers

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Crawling into bed beneath a warm, patchwork quilt puts a pleasurable cover to any long day.

Piecing together those bright mosaics of cloth is a passion that fills Judy Beavers every day.

"I'm addicted," she confesses.

"It's my joy. My passion."

Since the Ruidoso Downs resident took up the needle in 1969, she's won awards, joined quilting retreats and started her private "Quilt Lady" business.

"I wish I'd gotten into this earlier," Beavers relates of her passion, "because I don't think at this point I can finish all the quilts in my mind. Every time I see a new pattern I just can't wait to start."

Anyone who enters this woman's home can immediately tell she's into quilting. A 10 or 12-foot-long double bar quilting machine runs the length of a living room wall; walls are decorated with quilts (as well as other crafts and antiques), and quilted place settings and dolls are set about.

Quilts, of course, cover the beds of her loved ones — husband Robert, owner of B&B Ready Mix and soon to open a saddle shop; son Brad, a senior at Ruidoso High School; and adult sons Justin and Dusty when they're back home.

Possibly the only reason brilliant quilts aren't billowing out the windows of Beavers' home is because she has a quiet little hobby room at home's west end.

The room is filled, ceiling to wall, with completed quilts, quilts in progress, and hundreds of carefully folded cloth pieces ready for new arrangement.

"It's my stash," Beavers explains. "If I wake up in the middle of the night I can come in here and grab different pieces."

Beavers, 53, is a certified quilt-in-a-day instructor, earning the certificate in 1991 under the tutelage of Eleanor Burns, the cable TV quilting queen.

This fall Beavers will teach two quilting classes at Eastern New Mexico University in Ruidoso. She has also taught in Alamogordo and Roswell, Las Cruces, Belen, Clovis, Albuquerque, and El Paso, Texas.

Beavers' quilting machine lets her make multiple quilts for hire.

Previously, she worked for the railroad in her hometown of Belen, and then in Clovis where she met her husband Robert in 1968. Since they moved back to Robert's family homestead in Ruidoso Downs in 1969, she's also worked in a variety of jobs for businesses like a flower shop, the Ruidoso Downs Turf Club, bookkeeping for Robert's sand and gravel business, and most recently, until May, at the Ruidoso Downs Post Office.

She's proud of all these jobs, especially her days with the railroad where her father worked for 24 years. Of course, she has symbolic pieces of cloth representing those employs. One day soon, Beavers says, she will weave them into a story quilt.

A story quilt shares memories by telling a story or stories about one's life.

Beavers' story quilt is still being pieced together in her mind: a block of a shirt one son refused to take off when he was a boy, a patch of the college football jersey of another, fabric worn by another son who died at age three....

Thus far, she has only physically gathered about 20 of the necessary 30 blocks. This quilted work will be the most personally evocative of all, and possibly, she relates, the reason she hasn't physically made it yet.

"It is very emotional," she explains, "putting all your feeling right out in front for all to see — there it is."

There's a bit of irony in her late blooming talent; Beavers claims she could never even hem a dress. But there's a difference in the craft compared to sewing. Sewing involves sizing things and stitches of straight lines, whereas quilting lets the stitcher piece together patches in a freestyle, varying motion.

Both of Beavers' grandmothers quilted, but not her mother or her two daughters. Beavers finally learned from her friend Jeanene Perry.

She'd bugged Perry for years, Beavers said, as her interest to learn the craft grew with their friendship.

"Quilts are comforting, make you feel like you're being cuddled by your mother or something," she says, gazing at her grandmother's "Postage Stamp" quilt that drapes her country kitchen wall. "I'm not sure what it is; it makes you feel nearer to home."

It took six months for Beavers to Please see Quilt Lady, page 4B

complete her first quilt, a hand-sewn Morning Star design.

She was immediately turned on by the achievement, and she hasn't stopped since. Now she's able to complete a handsewn quilt in a month's time, and she can do a machine sewn quilt in just two or three days.

Beavers' passion has spread now to her sister Sharon in Iowa, and of course to the dozens of others who've attended her classes.

"It's such therapy," she says. "I think everyone should quilt. It gives such peace, gives such satisfaction."

About twice a year, with a core group of 18 friends, she attends three-day quilting retreats (sometimes at the Beavers house), where the women support one another and share stories, jokes, recipes, fabric and patterns. On the second day they always do "show and tell," when each person displays the quilt in progress the last time they were together.

"It's like kids at a slumber party, everyone bringing their own thoughts and cloth," Beavers relates.

These days Beavers is often hired to make the final quilting touches on blocks someone else already pieced together. Those she makes from scratch sell for around $250. Those created by hand have triple the value.

"Those are love quilts, works of love," she says of puffer looking patches sewn on the handcrafted quilts. "You have to love someone to make one because they are painstaking and take much more time."

Beavers has made three of these, one for each of her sons. She wants to do more of these love quilts — and do more in tandem with her friends. That, she says, is where she finds her greatest peace.

"I regain myself," she says simply.

Fifty New Mexico cows whose hair turned gray after the first atomic bomb exploded near Alamogordo have been under observation in a pasture near Oak Ridge, Tennessee, where they were shipped for study of the effect of atom rays. According to reports, these cattle have increased in weight steadily and soon will be shipped to market if no new developments appear as a consequence of atomic radiation.

The Fourth Army has opened the old CCC Camp, north of Ruidoso, for the benefit of deserving enlisted men, who in groups of 150 will be given a week recreation here.

Harris Shelton, nationally known western artist, has reopened his Ruidoso studio for the remainder of the season. The studio is located on the main canyon road about a mile above the post office.

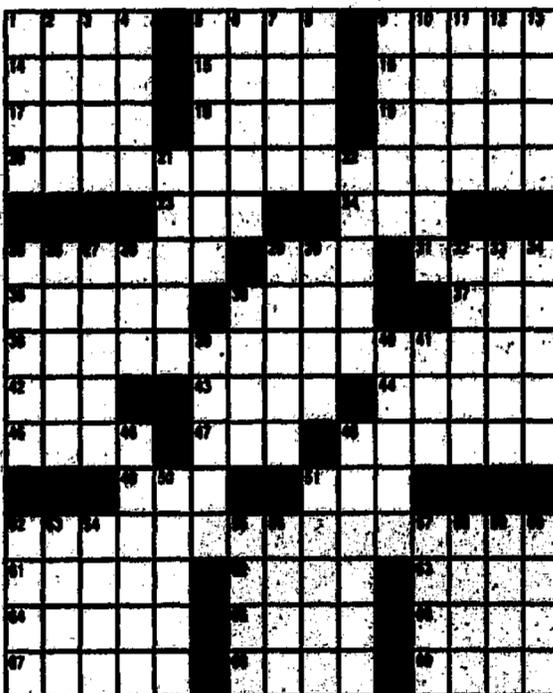

Last week County Agent Radcliff assisted the women in the White Oaks community to organize an Extension Woman's Club. Mrs. Robert Huffmyer was elected president; Mrs. R.A. Crenshaw, Jr., vice president.

PAST TENSE

A week in the life of an El Paso marshal

El Paso today is a long way from the way it was in 1881, when the city fathers were casting about trying to find the right man to "tame the town." According to El Paso's premier historian Leon Metz, there were "only three streets worthy of name" — El Paso, Overland, and San Antonio streets.

Nevertheless, it was big enough to be considered a metropolis for the time and area, and had more than its share of outlaws and gunmen to keep the citizenry entertained.

But it was an entertainment that had made the citizens oh, so weary. Several men had filled the position of city marshal (the equivalent of today's chief of police), but none had been satisfactory, for various reasons.

While he was a native Texan, it is unclear whether Dallas Stoudenmire came to El Paso from the Dallas area, or down from New Mexico. At any rate, he had a reputation as a good — which is to say dangerous — man with a gun.

Stoudenmire accepted the position of town marshal on April 11, 1881. At the time of Stoudenmire's appointment, the position was being filled by Bill Johnson, the town drunk.

Immediately upon his appointment, the 6-foot, 2-inch Stoudenmire went in search of Johnson, who had the keys to the jail in his possession. Stoudenmire found Johnson, who was unaware that he had just resigned, at the corner of El Paso and San Antonio streets, reeling drunk.

The new marshal was in no mood to deal with Johnson diplomatically. "Johnson," he snarled, "I want the keys to the jail." Johnson pulled a key ring from his pocket that held two identical keys. "One of these belongs to my stable," he informed Stoudenmire, "I will go home soon and see which is the right one and bring it to you."

This was the wrong thing to say. "Damn you, I want them now!" barked the new marshal. Stoudenmire grabbed Johnson and, shaking him, yanked the key ring from Johnson's hand and stalked off down the street.

Unfortunately for Bill Johnson, the public nature of his confrontation with the new marshal had the attention of the town's lawless element, who had grown rather fond of the idea of the town drunk also being the town marshal. From that moment on, they never let Johnson forget this insult to his pride. They plied him with liquor and reminded him of the insult throughout the next week, which was exactly the amount of time that Bill Johnson had left to live.

But before the showdown between the old and the new marshal could take place, another, more deadly showdown rocked El Paso.

Feelings between the Anglos in El Paso and the Mexican population across the river had been more tense than usual lately, as several American desperadoes had been shot trying to escape from the jail in Juarez not long before.

In keeping with the racial feeling of the time, most Anglo-Americans didn't care if the Mexicans had been justified in shooting the fleeing men. They only cared that Mexicans had killed Americans, which was, in their eyes, an unpardonable crime.

It wasn't long before two young Mexicans were murdered on the U.S. side of the border, and, on April 14, 1881, when a group of armed Mexicans came to retrieve the bodies, many in El Paso objected to their presence.

Gus Krempkau, an American who spoke Spanish, was enlisted to help with the retrieval, and did so.

When Krempkau returned with the party of Mexicans after they had recovered the two bodies, Dallas Stoudenmire watched wordlessly while the inquest was held and then the Mexicans began to head back across the river. As they did so, Stoudenmire thrust his hands in his pockets and wandered over to the Globe Restaurant on El Paso Street for a bite to eat.

He never gave a thought to Gus Krempkau, who was now left alone to face the wrath of his Mexican-hating neighbors. Among these neighbors was George Campbell, an ex-city marshal himself, who, at the time, was heavily under the influence of Justice Juice.

Past tense

DREW GOMBER
THE RUIDOSO NEWS

And then there was Johnny Hale. Hale was a local rancher who was under suspicion of both rustling Mexican cattle and having a hand in the deaths of the two Mexican boys. He too, was on hand and drunk.

As Krempkau walked out into the street and grabbed the reins of his mule, he heard George Campbell bellow that "Any American that is a friend of Mexicans ought to be hanged!"

Turning toward Campbell, Gus said, "George, I hope you don't mean me."

"If the shoe fits, wear it," replied the drunken ex-marshal, and went to grab the reins of his own mule. It seems that this was as far as Campbell wanted to take the argument.

Not so Johnny Hale, who had been watching the confrontation between the two men from Keating's Saloon. Stepping out into the street, Hale pulled his weapon, apparently using Campbell's body to shield his action from Krempkau. Hale shoved the pistol under Campbell's upraised arm (Campbell was in the act of untying his mule) and took aim at Krempkau.

"Turn loose, Campbell, I've got him covered," said Hale, and then pulled the trigger. The bullet slammed into Krempkau's body near his heart and exploded out of his back, leaving an enormous exit wound.

But Gus wasn't dead yet, and managed to pull his own revolver as he sagged to the ground. Despite the fact that he was dying, Krempkau began to squeeze off shot after shot.

In the restaurant, Dallas Stoudenmire leapt to his feet, pulled his guns and rushed out into the middle of the fray.

Seeing Johnny Hale standing with a gun in his hand, Dallas quickly decided to eliminate Hale from the fight first.

As Hale darted behind a pillar, Stoudenmire took careful aim, and like the practiced professional that he was, killed an innocent bystander further on down the street.

But hey, something like that could happen to anyone, and Dallas didn't let it bother him as he aimed his second shot at Hale, who was now peering from behind his pillar, trying to see where everyone was. The bullet hit Hale squarely in the forehead, killing him instantly.

George Campbell, whose pugnaciousness had started the altercation, was sobering rapidly. When Gus Krempkau had returned fire after being shot, it was aimed at Campbell, who Krempkau probably figured was the one that shot him.

As Campbell made the almost unbelievable mistake of pulling his gun in the midst of all this (instead of high-tailing it for parts unknown), Krempkau's first bullet slammed into Campbell's right wrist, shattering it. Krempkau kept firing as Campbell picked up his pistol with his left hand. His next bullet hit Campbell in the foot. His other shots missed, but they did clear the streets of any other innocent bystanders — quite rapidly.

At this point, Dallas Stoudenmire was turning from the recently deceased Johnny Hale to find himself facing George Campbell with a gun in his hand. Campbell was backing away, waving his pistol back and forth and making the highly unlikely statement that "Gentlemen, this is not my fight."

Stoudenmire, facing an armed drunk, disagreed. He immediately opened fire on Campbell and sent a bullet slamming into George's belly. Campbell fell on his face, and, rolling over, looked up at Stoudenmire and said, "You big son-of-a-bitch, you murdered me."

Whether or not that statement is true is still open to debate.

In the end, four men lay dead or dying in the street: Johnny Hale was very dead on the sidewalk, Gus Krempkau was breathing his last in the street, and George Campbell lay mortally wounded (he died the next day). The innocent bystander, of course, lay dead further up the street.

The entire shootout had taken all of five seconds.

In the aftermath, the saloon crowd, who feared and hated Stoudenmire, became quite vociferous in their belief that George Campbell was murdered by the new marshal. In return, Dallas began cracking down on them and their operations.

The saloon men, led by a set of brothers named Manning, found this intolerable. They felt it was time for the marshal to be forcibly retired. Casting about for someone to perform this service for them, they came upon Bill Johnson, who had been drunk as a skunk ever since losing his job and being humiliated in the street by Stoudenmire.

Johnson was perfect for the job. If he were to actually kill Stoudenmire, so much the better. If Stoudenmire were to kill him, well, he was, after all, just the town drunk.

On the night of April 17, as Stoudenmire and his brother-in-law Doc Cummings approached the intersection of El Paso and San Antonio streets, neither man noticed Bill Johnson cradling a shotgun in the shadows as he sat on a large pile of bricks in front of the brand new State National Bank Building.

Unfortunately for himself, Bill was drunk again and let loose with both barrels of his shotgun a tad prematurely. This left him in a rather unenviable position: drunk, with an empty weapon, facing two men he had just tried to murder.

Stoudenmire and Cummings didn't give him a chance to reload. Bill Johnson sprawled across the pile of bricks with eight bullets in his chest.

Stoudenmire's first week in office was coming to a close. He had been busy, and was something of an instant celebrity, but he himself did not have long to live.

Like many others, then and now, Stoudenmire began to drink too much. He managed to lose his job, and in September of that year he was killed in a saloon brawl by the Manning brothers, to virtually no one's surprise.

Dallas Stoudenmire, marshal of El Paso.

Teen and her horse make winning duo

□ Ruidosoan goes after second world championship in jumping

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Fifteen-year-old Tara Coombes of Ruidoso hopes to orchestrate the perfect swan song for her favorite horse at the American Quarter Horse Youth Association (AQHYA) World Championship Show in Fort Worth next week.

Coombes and her 19-year-old quarter horse Showum Savannah are competing in the jumping competition. The Aug. 7-10 competition will be the final one for Showum Savannah, the horse on which Coombes won the world championship in jumping in 1994 when she was only 13 years old.

After finishing fourth in 1995, Coombes can't think of a better retirement gift for the bay gelding than to reclaim her jumping title this year.

"He's like a best friend," said Coombes, who's been competing on Showum Savannah for the last six years. "He's a very hyper horse. (But) he's caring and I feel like he understands what I'm telling him.

Ruidoso sophomore Tara Coombes demonstrates the form that won the world championship in jumping in 1994.

He never has a bad day."

Coombes and her family relocated to the Ruidoso area last spring. She's familiar with Ruidoso because her mother is racehorse trainer Claire Greenwood and her father, Leroy Coombes, used to be a jockey.

It's hardly surprising then, that Tara developed an interest in riding and competing.

"I guess I could ride before I could I walk," said Tara Wednesday from her trainer Shane George's facilities in Texas.

Coombes will compete in six different competitions at the world championships on two horses. She'll ride Showum Savannah in the jumping event only, and then saddle her feisty palomino, Willie Do It Leo, for western riding, showmanship, hunter hack, equitation over fences and jumping events. Coombes and Willie Do It Leo have teamed together for five world championships in palomino class events.

Eye-catching

Ruidoso's Tara Coombes will compete in six different competitions at the world championships in Fort Worth next week.

Here's a list of the events and what the judges look for:

- Western Riding: how well horse and rider change leads

- Showmanship: how well the rider is presented in the ring and how well the horse responds to commands

- Hunter Hack: how calm and pretty the horse jumps two fences

- Working Hunter: horse and rider attempt to clear eight jumps

- Equitation over Fences: how good is the rider's form over jumps

- Jumping: horse and rider try to clear all fences and then compete for fastest time.

Even though she'll compete in those other events, jumping is by far Coombes's favorite.

Smiling Salamanders

The Diamond Sals women's softball club had plenty to grin about after posting a 4-2 record at the USSSA Women's Class D State Tournament in Alamogordo last weekend. The Sals finished in seventh place out of 32 teams. Members of team include, from left to right: front row - Debbie Sheehy, Rogene Cless, Beth Boag, Debbie Shafer, Amy Miller, Lisa Shaw, Kody Coker and Laura Clymer; back row - coach James Stephens, Trish Eanes, Sue Keaton, Nicole Holder, Gwen Jones, Claudia Branum, Kristi Cruce, Dione Lewis and coach Albert Richardson. The local team will travel to Oklahoma City Labor Day weekend for the Greater Southwestern Divisional Softball Tournament.

State's best juveniles chase Rio Grande Futurity laurels

Twelve 2-year-old thoroughbreds, who qualified in the July 19 Rio Grande Futurity Trials, will match strides Sunday in the six-furlong, $69,119 Rio Grande Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The Rio Grande is restricted to New Mexico bred, and the winner will take home a check of $34,559.

Sunday's feature race looks to be a wide-open affair because of the absence of the filly Soiree, who took the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity and Kachina Stakes earlier this year. Many of the horses in Sunday's field have fallen prey to Soiree already this year.

Heading up the list of contenders is Donchalistentoundun. The grey son of Tilt The Odds disappointed his connections earlier in the year, running fourth in the Rio

HORSE RACING

Grande Kindergarten. Prior to his early races here at Ruidoso Downs, the Fred Van Winkle-owned homebred captured the Riley Allison Futurity at Sunland Park in impressive fashion and looked to be a threat for 2-year-old honors. Donchalistentoundun captured his trial handily July 19, and will again have the riding services of Carlos Rivas.

Another one to watch is Tana's Boy. The third-place finisher behind Soiree in the Rio Grande Kindergarten won his trial quite easily to get to the final. The bay gelding by Bellvoy out of Tana Doll will once again be ridden by leading thoroughbred rider, Fernando Gamez. Tana's Boy will have to overcome the number 12 post position in the starting gate, but his running style is such that it may not be a factor.

One more horse to watch is Moore Blind Love. The bay filly by Dawn Of Creation was making her first start in the trials where she ran impressively to nose out Bold Spirit at the wire. The James Paul Jr. and Johnie Jamison-owned filly drew the two hole, and will once again have the riding services of Nicky Madrid.

Older New Mexico-bred quarter horses battle in Saturday's Zia Handicap at the mountain oval.

Frothing at the gate, chomping at the bit

As with any athlete, horses have good days and bad. Even the champions such as Cigar, Secretariat and Man 'O War had off days, where the likelihood of winning might be affected. Whether it be a slight ailment or soreness, or maybe a weather or climate change, all these factors can affect the performance of a racehorse.

Winning at the Races

PAUL RYNEVELD

Because we are at nearly 7,000 feet at Ruidoso Downs, altitude can affect how a horse performs in the mountains. Even the fittest horse used to lower elevations needs acclimatization in order to compete at this high mountain oval.

As a rule of thumb, horses who ship in a few days before the race will not be affected as much by the altitude compared to the horse who ships in a few weeks before. This is because it takes a few days for the altitude to hit them. The race that the horse runs in the first case scenario, however, will probably take a lot out of it. It will be physically taxing and will require a longer recovery time.

The second case horse will probably run a bad race the first time out and then come back after rest and perform much better in its second start. Keep in mind however, there are always exceptions to this rule. Certain experienced trainers know this and know how to get their horse ready for the big races at Ruidoso.

So what do you watch for in the paddock and post parade as the horse is warming up to go to the gate? Here are a few factors to look for, but these should only be incorporated into your handicapping strategy and not necessarily be used outright.

Horses who, on low humid or hot days, wash out or get extremely sweaty to the point of frothing are good ones to stay away from. The typical trainer pulls the water and feed bucket from the horse 12 to 24 hours prior to race time. This is to help alleviate or prevent cramping, much like in a human runner needs to run on an empty stomach.

A horse who is washing out is losing vital water and electrolytes before they even run. A common saying around the racetrack is that the horse "ran his race" before leaving the paddock. Keep in mind many trainers spray their horses off on hot and humid days prior to arriving in the paddock so the horse will be wet. It is the white foamy frothy sweat that we are looking for here.

Also, there are some extremely nervous horses who do this every race and still win regardless. This is especially true if they are younger and less experienced horses. If you see an 8-year-old gelding washing out and sweating everywhere, it might be a good one to skip over.

Watch the horses warming up if you can or at least in the post parade. A horse who is chomping at the bit and biting the pony horse or trying to race the pony is usually a good sign. This horse feels good and feels like competing.

On the other hand, if the horse looks lethargic or is being pulled by the pony, there is good reason to believe that this horse may not be up to the task today. Some horses will pin their ears and resist breaking into a canter or gallop as they head to the backstretch. These horses are generally sour and really do not want to run. The "sour" horse is one who probably has had many starts so far in the year and is pretty much tired of running. The horse's form will reflect this in that it keeps running towards the back of the pack even against lesser quality horses.

The ears of the horse tell you a lot. If they are straight up, that horse is alert. Ears to the side and drooping, stay away. This horse is not likely to perform well today. Once again, pinned ears generally typify a sour or for lack of a better term, "ticked off" animal. This horse probably won't run out of spite.

As far as bandages, this can be rather tricky. Most of the time, rear bandages are for extra support so the horse does not run down or burn his heels on a sandy track. When bandages appear on the front, they

Billy the Kid escapes again

Each year people flock to Old Lincoln Days for the fiddlers contest and other events during the three-day festival. Highlighting the weekend's action is the "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid."

Buffalo soldiers, mountain men, members of the Texas Fourth Cavalry of Lubbock and the First New Mexico Volunteers complete with a fife and drum corps will invade the historic town of Lincoln during Old Lincoln Days Aug. 2-4.

For the 47th year, "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid" takes center stage at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

John Schrecengost portrays Billy the Kid for his fourth year. A senior at Capitan High School, Schrecengost is the third generation of his family to portray the famous outlaw in the annual Old Lincoln Days pageant.

Dan Storm, a well-known local historian and Ruidoso News columnist, will once again take up his shotgun and portray Buckshot Roberts.

Also on tap for the weekend is lots of good food, craft booths, old-time photos, a horse-drawn trolley, a fiddlers contest, a parade, and cowboy poetry.

The parade is at 11 a.m. Saturday. The fiddlers contest starts at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Lincoln Park. All fiddlers are welcome to attend.

Many of those with roles in the 1996 production of "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid" are descendants of actual participants in the Lincoln County War. The players continue to use an original script written with the assistance of Frank Coe, who took part in the Lincoln County violence, and Yginio Salazar, a friend of Billy the Kid. Famed Hondo Valley artist Peter Hurd portrayed Billy the Kid in the pageant's first-ever performance.

Cowboy poetry will precede the performance at the pageant grounds.

Tickets to the performance are available in advance from the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce or may be purchased at the gate for the same price of $3 for adults and $1 for children under 14.

The folk pageant centering around the life of the legendary outlaw Billy the Kid was first presented in 1940. The episodes of the pageant are based on historical facts of the notorious Lincoln County War, and in particular it's focus is centered upon the best remembered of its fighters, Billy the Kid. The play covers the killing of John Tunstall, which precipitated Billy's wrathful vengeance, the Battle of Blazer's Mill, in which the courageous Buckshot Roberts stood off Billy and his 12 cohorts, the siege of the McSween House, and Billy's incarceration in the Lincoln County Courthouse and his remarkable escape.

Mayhill poet in national book

William F. (Bill) O'Brien of Mayhill has just had original poetry published in "Tapestry of Thoughts," a treasury of today's poetry compiled by the National Library of Poetry.

The poem is titled "One Dream at a Time," and the main subject is to take life, one day and one dream at a time.

The National Library of Poetry seeks to discover and encourage poets like Bill O'Brien. He has been writing for 15-20 years and his favorite subjects and ideas are life, love and people.

Poets interested in publication may send one original poem, any subject or style, 20 lines or less, to The National Library of Poetry, 11419-10 Cronridge Drive, P.O. Box 704-1379, Owings Mills, Md. 21117.

Riders chase Pony Express hoofprints

The annual Lincoln County Pony Express Trail Ride takes off from White Oaks at 8:30 a.m. Friday and arrives in Lincoln in time for the 11 a.m. Sunday Old Lincoln Days Parade.

Wellwishers are welcome to send off the riders or greet them on their arrival.

A breakfast for the public will begin at 7 a.m. Friday at the White Oaks Volunteer Fire Department barn. It lasts until the grub runs out.

The cowboy's breakfast includes homemade buttermilk pancakes, sausage patties or bacon, scrambled eggs, homemade elderberry jelly, juice, coffee, and all the fixings for $4.

If your appetite is less hearty, you can get the cowgirl's breakfast (homemade cinnamon roll, juice and coffee) for $2.

About 30 members of the Lincoln

What: Lincoln County Pony Express Trail Ride

County Sheriff's Posse and nine others have signed up for the three-day ride.

Friday night they'll camp in Aragon Draw near the Weddige Ranch. They cross Capitan Gap Saturday and spend the second night at Fort Stanton.

Both nights they'll have chuck-wagon dinners and be entertained by musicians and poets.

The Pony Express will deliver mail to be postmarked in Lincoln. Posters with original artwork by Bert Seabourn are also on sale at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and businesses around Lincoln County for $10.

The Lincoln County Pony Express Trail Ride began its annual journey Friday from White Oaks. The riders arrive in Lincoln just in time for Sunday's 11 a.m. Old Lincoln Days Parade.

Ruidoso Little Theater's newest production is the Neil Simon comedy, "Star Spangled Girl." Cast member Melissa Barks plays 1964 Olympic swimmer who obviously has a leg up on a San Francisco publisher played by John Russell. Paul Adamian portrays Russell's co-worker.

RLT unfurls its version of the 'Star Spangled Girl'

"Star Spangled Girl," a comedy by Neil Simon, is Ruidoso Little Theater's premiere production at its new home called 'The Castle' on U.S. Highway 70 West.

The summer production, directed by Kelli Jackson, will open Thursday, Aug. 8 for Altrusa members and will continue to play every Thursday through Saturday through Aug. 31. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Two Sunday matinee performances will be presented at 3 p.m. on Aug. 18 and 25.

There will be entertainment during intermission. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for seniors and children 12 and under. Reservations may be made with Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce, 505-257-7395.

Noted writer reads short stories here.

Residents and visitors will be treated to a rare opportunity at 7 p.m. Saturday when Pulitzer Prize nominee Lee K. Abbott, a sometimes-resident of Lincoln, will read from his highly regarded short stories.

The event takes place at the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

Abbott, chairman of the Creative Writing program at Ohio State University, is in Ruidoso as part of the faculty for the Sierra Blanca Writers Workshop.

Admission is $6 for adults, $5 for seniors, $4 for children and free for museum members.

Book chronicles pioneers crossing Rio Pecos in Texas

A century ago, the raging water of the Pecos River spilled out of New Mexico's Sangre de Cristo Range, snaked across New Mexico to West Texas and plunged into the Rio Grande.

Throughout history, courageous pioneers were determined to brave the deadly waters to reach the west. Legendary tales of wagon-train dramas, cowboy adventures, and Indian savagery surround the Pecos River and attest to the age-old theme of man versus nature.

With his thorough research of archival documents, familiarity with the land and people, and interviews with Pecos River "old-timers," Patrick Dearen has chronicled the Trans-Pecos region of Texas. A follow-up to his "Castle Gap and the Pecos Frontier," the carefully documented "Crossing Rio Pecos" chronicles the stories of men and women who risked their lives to cross these gateways to the west — Horsehead, Pontoon, Pope's, Emigrant, Salt, Spanish Dam, Adobe, "S," and Lancaster.

Patrick Dearen, author of six books, including "Portraits of the Pecos Frontier" and the novel "When the Cowboys Die," currently resides in Midland, Texas with his wife and son.

The book costs $15.95. This and other Texas Christian University Press titles are available from the TCU Bookstore, local bookstores or University Publishing, Drawer C, College Station, Texas 77843-4854 (1-800-826-8911).

Eagle Ranch gallery features cowboy artist

R. Loren Schmidt, a true "Cowboy Artist," is the featured talent at Eagle Ranch Art Gallery for the month of August.

A reception to meet the artist will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 2, at the Eagle Ranch Gallery, 7288 Hwy 54/70. The show runs Aug. 1-31.

Loren not only has been drawing and painting since childhood, he has been a full-time cowboy most of his life. Currently living in Tularosa, Loren has given up making a living as a full-time cowboy in exchange for an easier lifestyle, but no less competitive career in fine art.

The unique combination of gifted artist and working cowboy has led the film industry to his doorstep. Last year he worked as a horse wrangler in the film "Crazy Horse," and he was again in front of the camera in the art department of "Lazarus Man." "Dances With Wolves" also saw his talent in action.

Loren was born in 1953 in Bridgeport, Neb., where his family owned and operated a large cattle ranch. Loren was immersed in the cowboy way of life at an early age, but his artistic promise was also evident as a youngster. Drawing on whatever he could find, he was often chastised for sketching in his school books. At the age of 12, Loren's family moved to Colorado and he went on to college there on a track scholarship. After several sojourns to work as a cowboy, he completed his education at Montana State University in 1979 with a degree in Art Education.

Following graduation, he worked for the Hammer Bar/320 Ranch near Yellowstone National Park as a cow camp cowboy. This was a remote and lonely job, with the nearest road some 20 miles away. However, this gave Loren an opportunity to hone his artistic skills and to absorb what living with nature has to offer to the artistic mind.

On one occasion, Loren went to a Miles City bucking horse sale. There he met and became good friends with the Crow Indian family of Rod Caulifield. Their association made a significant impact on Loren's life and artistic development. Loren spent much time on the Crow Reservation and considers the Caulifields his second family.

Although a primarily self-taught artist, he is fortunate to have known, studied with and been encouraged by many elite artists belonging to the Cowboy Artists of America. Gary Carter, Bob Shoefly, Dick Amundsen, Donald Puttman, Malcolm Tervo, and the Contways have all given encouragement and instruction to Loren, he said. It is significant that Loren was invited to the Montana Artists Workshop sponsored by the Cowboy Artists of America. This workshop was held on the historic 320 Ranch where Loren once worked as a cowboy.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. The public is cordially invited to meet and see the work of this outstanding western artist.

New Mexico Ballet offers classes for children

Ballet New Mexico, under the directorship of Maestro Victor Moreno, is preparing to host pre-autumn ballet classes for children and adults in Ruidoso and the surrounding communities.

Pre-ballet classes for children ages 3 to 5 will be held 3-5:45 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays. These classes, which help condition young muscles to be limber for ballet and other sports, give children and parents the option of Monday and/or Wednesday classes. The cost is $30 per month for one weekly session, or $45 per month for two weekly sessions.

For adults, Maestro Moreno is offering ballet fitness. The ballet fitness class, which is becoming ever more popular in the community, offers the more feature dancer or other athlete a chance to condition, stretch and strengthen muscles using classical ballet techniques. The classes work well with skiers of all levels.

Ballet fitness is held 8:30-9:45 a.m. or 7:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Tuition is $30 per month twice a week or $55 per month four times a week. Ballet New Mexico is also offering a special four-month $100 rate on this class.

In addition, Ballet New Mexico will feature tap and jazz training beginning on Aug. 5.

All classes are held at 1204 Mechem Drive in the Rainbow Center, Ruidoso. For more information, call Moreno at 258-4889.

TRAIL TALK

Hikers find solitude along Norman Canyon

The Norman Canyon Loop is a great hike to get away from the crowds of people who flock to many of the more common trails. Even though the hike is accessed from the popular Nogal Trailhead, minor route-finding difficulties in upper Norman Canyon limit the number of hikers and provide a feeling of solitude.

The hike begins at an elevation of approximately 8,320 feet at the Nogal Trailhead located in upper Nogal Canyon.

The path climbs gently up Nogal Canyon Trail (Trail 48) onto the ridge forming the watershed divide. The route follows Norman Canyon Trail (Trail 34) down Norman Canyon to the Tortolita Canyon Trail (Trail 54). The hike continues back up the Tortolita Canyon Trail to the intersection with the Nogal Canyon Trail, which is retraced back to the trailhead to conclude the hike.

To reach the trailhead, take Hwy. 48 north out of Ruidoso approximately 10 miles to the junction with Hwy. 37. Turn left onto Hwy. 37 and go approximately 9 miles to the intersection with United States Forest Service (USFS) Road 400 just before the village of Nogal. Turn left onto USFS Road 400 (Nogal Canyon Road) and go approximately 8 miles to the trailhead located at the upper end of Nogal Canyon. The trailhead is situated about 100 yards past the point where USFS Road 400 leaves the bottom of Nogal Canyon and begins to switchback up the slope toward the Bonito Creek drainage. USFS Road 400 is a good county-maintained dirt road for the first 4 miles but deteriorates over the last 4 miles. The road is marginally passable by car. A high-clearance vehicle is recommended.

Upon reaching the trailhead, notice a mine adit sunk into the canyon wall on the north side of the creek. The adit is approximately 30 feet deep and was driven into altered volcanic rock with a high pyrite content. The bottom of the mine typically stands in water.

The hike begins by ascending the Nogal Canyon Trail (48) for 1 1/4 miles to the intersection with Tortolita Canyon Trail (54). Although the trail climbs 800 feet over the 1 1/4 miles, the grade is gentle and the hiking is easy.

The dominant tree along the initial section of this hike is the Gambel oak. Numerous open meadows separate the oak stands and are good places for a chance to see elk grazing.

The route turns north on Trail 54 for about 75 yards until the intersection with Norman Canyon Trail (34) is reached. A sign is present but only shows the direction of Tortolita Canyon Trail (54). Regardless, the Norman

Trail talk

JOHNNY HUGHES
THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Canyon Trail follows a fence line east up the ridge for 1/4 mile to the marked intersection with Pennsylvania Canyon Trail (51). The Norman Canyon Trail veers to the north and emerges on the ridge between Norman and Tortolita canyons. The ridge is mostly open grassy meadows and the trail becomes very diffuse.

To create a hike with an easy difficulty rating, turn back at this point and retrace your route back to the trailhead. This alternative is less than 4 miles, has a net-elevation gain of only about 800 feet and can be hiked in around 3 hours. Otherwise, stay on the ridge and proceed north until the ridge narrows and the trail becomes visible again.

Upon arriving at a rocky knoll with several cliffs, the trail leaves the ridge and side-hills around the east side of the knoll. When the trail begins to disappear again just past the knoll, notice the ridge extending to the right (east) down into Norman Canyon. Follow the faint trail down the ridge to a relatively flat bench. Past this bench, the ridge plummets steeply into Norman Canyon so it is easy enough to recognize. The trail turns right (south) and goes off the ridge and down into the canyon.

The trail quickly becomes obvious upon leaving the ridge as it descends steeply through Gambel oak and pinon pine trees. The route passes a couple of prospect pits and an adit on the way down the slope. The entrance to the adit is partially caved but still recognizable. The mine extends about 18 feet into the slope. The adit and prospect pits are located along a fault that contains a carbonate vein rich in barium, manganese and iron. Unfortunately for the prospectors who worked this area in the late 1800s and early 1900s, the ore contained only marginal amounts of gold and silver.

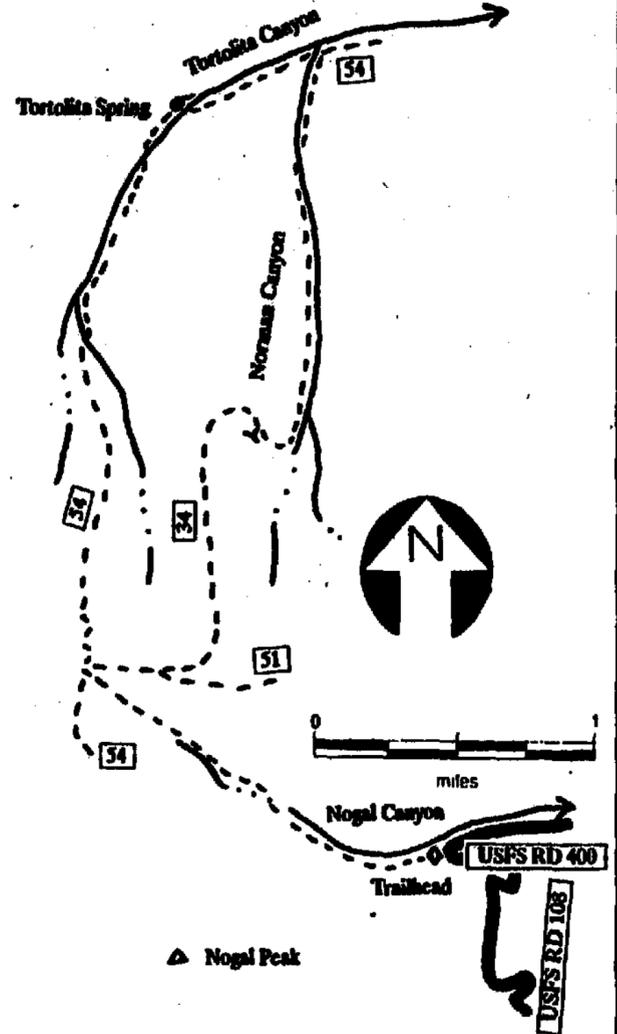

The trail fades as it enters the upper part of a large meadow present in the bottom of Norman Canyon, but can easily be picked up again at the bottom of the meadow on the west side of the canyon bottom. Near the bottom of the meadow, a hand-dug, rock-lined water well is present. It is still approximately 20 feet deep, but is generally dry, as is the adjacent creek bed.

The Norman Canyon Trail is easily picked up again on the west side of the streambed as it exits the meadow and heads north down Norman Canyon. In places, the trail is still recognizable as an old road that once traversed the canyon. After proceeding down the canyon for about 1/2 mile, ponderosa pines and some Douglas firs begin to make their appearance in the canyon.

The route turns west on Tortolita Canyon Trail (54) at the junction of Norman and Tortolita canyons. The USFS topo map is slightly misleading regarding the trail locations in this area. The intersection of the Norman and Tortolita trails occurs right at the junction of the Norman and Tortolita streambeds rather than a few hundred yards up Norman Canyon, as shown on the topo map.

Follow Tortolita Trail (54) west along the south side of the Tortolita streambank. After hiking 1/3 mile, the trail crosses over the streambed to the north and enters a meadow. Tortolita Spring is present in the center of the meadow and consists primarily of a series of seeps. A pipe is stuck in the ground in one place and can have variable flow from it, ranging from nothing to as much as 1 gallon per minute. Outfitters' improvements in the area detract from the otherwise remote setting.

Norman Canyon Loop

Norman Canyon Loop

- GENERAL DESCRIPTION - A 7.5 mile round-trip hike into a remote part of the White Mountain Wilderness.
- SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS - Solitude. Views of Nogal Peak, Diamond Peak and Church Mountain. Excellent area to view wildlife.
- NET ELEVATION GAIN - 2,440 feet.
- DIFFICULTY - Moderate.
- ESTIMATED HIKING TIME - 6 hours.

Tortolita Trail can be picked up at the upper end of the meadow on the north side of the streambed, not the south side as shown on the topo map. A trail does exist on the south side but quickly leads the hiker up into a tangle of Gambel oaks and is definitely not the best route (trust me).

Tortolita Trail (54) continues up (south) Tortolita Canyon for another 3/4 mile to the trail intersection shown on the topo map. Trail 54 crosses over the streambed at this junction, proceeds through a small meadow, and then begins climbing up the ridge just west of Tortolita Canyon. The trail is moderately steep and fairly loose as it climbs up the ridge. The other fork of the trail remains in the bottom of Tortolita Canyon. This unnamed and unnumbered trail ultimately rejoins Trail 54 but does not offer nearly as good of views.

Continue following Trail 54 south to the intersection with Nogal Trail (48). Retrace the route back down Nogal Trail to the trailhead to finish the hike.

Camping places are abundant along most of the route described. As with many areas in the White Mountain Wilderness, the primary concern for campers in this area is water, or the lack thereof. The only remotely-reliable source of water is at Tortolita Spring. My advice would be to day-hike this route prior to backpacking in to check the water availability.

An excellent view of Nogal Peak is just one of the many scenic vistas hikers will enjoy along the Norman Canyon Loop in the White Mountain Wilderness.

Big appetites welcome at Texas House

Shy personalities and modest appetites are not options at the Texas House Cafe, where big "hellos" and the biggest burgers in town greet customers.

Located in the historic Wingfield Homestead, the Texas House features country-style cooking, a variety of Mexican dishes and mesquite barbecue, smoked on the premises.

"You can eat just about anything you want here without having to go to a speciality place," says Pete Blanchard, who owns the Texas House with his brother, Jim.

Pete has more than 20 years experience in the restaurant business. He and his brother bought the Texas House in June 1995, and since then they've poured their efforts into making the restaurant a favorite of Ruidoso residents.

"Our goal is to serve some good food and cater to the locals," Pete says.

That's not to say the Blanchards don't have an appreciation for winter and summer visitors; they do. They just understand that locals are the bread and butter of their business.

Attracting the local business is one reason the Blanchards elected to stay open all night Fridays and Saturdays. It is an experiment that has worked well.

"The graveyard is one of our better shifts," says Cheryl Mark, general manager of the cafe and a Ruidoso resident for 28 years.

The Texas House serves breakfast, lunch and dinner seven days a week. All meals right down to the dinner salad are of generous portions.

For example, the "For Pete's Sake Burger" is 22 ounces of meat served on a mammoth bun. Pete Blanchard challenges anyone to find a bigger burger in the state. The regular charburgers are a modest 10 ounces each.

Daily lunch and dinner specials are offered as well. The menu features steak, shrimp and chicken dinners, and beer and wine.

The Texas House was built in 1929 on the original homestead site of Charles Wingfield. Charles Wingfield and his family came to Ruidoso in a covered wagon in 1884. Charles' son Ike became one of Ruidoso's founding fathers.

Inside, customers enjoy a comfortable, casual dining experience. Antique knickknacks and old pictures dot the walls. The fireplace and friendly atmosphere make customers feel like they're eating at home, which is just the way the generous and gregarious Ike Wingfield would have liked it.

Those who prefer to enjoy the sunny Ruidoso days and mild summer nights can sit on a deck that wraps around the west side of the house. The deck was built last October.

The restaurant's wait and kitchen staff aren't afraid to strike up a conversation with customers.

The Blanchards have also added live entertainment to the Texas House's offerings. Every Friday and Saturday night from 7 to 11, local musicians sing and play for patrons. Amateurs take the stage Tuesday evenings.

The Texas House, located at 2811 Sudderth Drive, is open seven days week from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 24 hours Friday and Saturday; and until 10 p.m. on Sunday.

Tribal council to meet with Ruidoso, county officials Thursday

An unprecedented special meeting between the governing bodies of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, Ruidoso and Lincoln County will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Mescalero Inn on Carrizo Canyon Road. Tribal president Wendell Chino called Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw last week to tell her he wanted to hold the meeting, about a week after he told The Ruidoso News of his intentions.

Shaw will be out of town on personal business; Mayor Pro Tem Leon Eggleston will serve in her place.

The tribal council wants to present a report on the economic impact of tribal enterprises on Ruidoso. The tribe's financial adviser, Rob Burpo, said he compiled the report over the last couple of months.

"This is a priority item to him (Chino)," Burpo explained. "It goes back to his inaugural speech and the 'extending an olive branch to Ruidoso.'"

Ruidoso Downs man hangs self

Martin Moreno, 26, was found early Tuesday hanging from a tree next to his front porch at 538 Turkey Canyon in Ruidoso Downs.

"There were no signs of struggle, no scuff marks," said Ruidoso Downs Police Chief David Hightower. "It's a clear-cut suicide."

Police did not question Moreno's wife, Lucy Castillo, who came out of the trailer home crying after police arrived on the scene. Moreno's wife and children were sleeping when he hung himself with a clothesline in front of their home, police said.

Police asked Castillo to stay inside with her children while police and an agent from the Office of Medical Investigations did their work.

Hightower said there was no suicide note, but he was told that Moreno and his wife had fought the night before.

Moreno's body was discovered around 5:30 a.m. by two Lincoln County Solid Waste employees stopping to pick up trash.

Ruidoso Downs officer Todd Cullers responded to the 911 call and was assisted by Ruidoso Sergeant Robert Aehterberg and Detective Jim Biggs. The investigation has been turned over to Downs Detective Chris Condon.

Campers find body in Lincoln Forest

by JOANNA DODDER

A decomposed body was found in the Capitan Mountains Sunday by campers, and police believe it is a Roswell woman missing since June 1.

"I believe she died around the time she was reported missing," Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane said. "We don't suspect foul play."

A truck belonging to Marilyn Elaine Boyd, 38, was found near the body, and so was a purse with her driver's license in it. A nearly empty bottle of rum and approximately 185 empty diet pill packets were also found near the body, McSwane said; only one pill remained. Police suspect these items may have contributed to her death.

"She was a pharmacist; she would know what to do" to commit suicide, McSwane said. Boyd's husband Don, 47, is also a pharmacist, said Chaves County Chief Deputy Pat Jennings. Mr. Boyd works at Nash Pharmacy in Roswell. Mrs. Boyd also worked there and at other pharmacies, Jennings said.

The Chaves County Sheriff's Office took a report from Don Boyd on June 3 about his missing wife, Jennings said. The Boyd home is just outside the Roswell city limits.

"She was having some problems and was upset about some things," related Jennings, who declined to elaborate on Boyd's position.

Protest planned vs. state's fort proposal

by DIANNE STALLINGS
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Supporters of a proposal to turn Fort Stanton into a "living fort" center say they will demonstrate Aug. 17 against the state's plan for a prison camp.

Officials with the state Forestry Division and Department of Corrections want to turn the fort into an Inmate Conservation Corps camp, a minimum security prison where inmates would work on forest conservation projects.

The state will hold a meeting on its proposal at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17 at the fort.

Sally Burkstaller and others who don't want a prison at the historic fort told Lincoln County Commissioners Tuesday they will attend the meeting to voice their opposition.

County commissioners, who also oppose the prison plan, said the timing may be right to stall the project. They noted Gov. Gary Johnson fired Karl Sannicks as corrections secretary Monday for criticizing Johnson's directive to privatize the state's prisons.

The governor has rejected the county's offer to find a tenant for the fort. The county was notified this week in a letter from Lou Gallegos, chief of staff in the Office of the Governor. The fort, originally established in 1857, is located about 15 miles northeast of Ruidoso.

Gallegos wrote that the state Legislature twice failed to appropriate money to maintain the fort while the county took over on an interim stewardship basis. The county's plan for the fort also lacks sufficient detail, he wrote.

Feds still want Apache casinos to close

by KATHLEEN McDONALD
 Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The Mescalero Apache Tribe's casino is not protected by a federal judge's stay in another case, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office said Tuesday.

The U.S. Attorney is not seeking to close nine New Mexico casinos operated by Indian pueblos while the stay in their case is in effect. A federal judge put a stay on her ruling that the casinos are illegal and must close, until a decision is made on the pueblos' appeal.

Another federal judge made a similar ruling on the Mescalero and Jicarilla Apache casinos, but a stay has not been granted in that case.

"It remains possible for the U.S. Attorney to take action" against the Apache casinos, U.S. Attorney's Office spokesman Ron Lopez concluded Tuesday.

U.S. Attorney John Kelly has not decided what that action might be, Lopez said.

Until the stay was issued, Kelly said all Indian casinos in New Mexico must close by the July 27 deadline contained in a court agreement signed by the pueblos.

Lopez said it is not contradictory to expect the Apache to comply with the pueblos' agreement, while also saying the stay in the same case does not apply to the Apache.

"The essence is that the tribes are operating gambling illegally," Lopez said. Kelly "always felt they must close down," Lopez added.

Kelly filed a request Tuesday for the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals to make an expedited ruling on the pueblos' appeal. If the request is granted, the appeal could be handled in a month or two instead of the usual eight months to two years.

However, Kelly did not ask the court to lift the stay, as gambling opponents requested.

"For him to ignore the stay is wrong," Dr. Guy Clark of the New Mexico Coalition Against Gambling said.

The group met with Kelly Thursday, asking him to seek an expedited appeal and an end to the stay, Clark said.

"He did really well, I think, on half of what we asked," Clark said. Coalition members also asked Kelly to take action against the Mescalero and Jicarilla Apache tribes, Clark said.

"He said he'd be looking at that," Clark related. "That means it could take as long as possible."

Clark charged that state Attorney General Tom Udall and Kelly are dragging their feet on the issue, and suggested they are not enforcing state law and the federal Indian Gaming Act.

Victor Marshall, the anti-gambling coalition's attorney, said he sent a letter last week to U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno, asking her to give directions to U.S. Attorney John Kelly on how to "start prosecuting the law."

"The (federal) department has done nothing but vacillate, flip-flop," Marshall complained.

Congressman Joe Skeen campaigns in Ruidoso area

by KEITH GREEN
Ruidoso News Publisher

"We need a little more 'functionary' and not quite so much 'visionary' in the White House," longtime Congressman Joe Skeen (R-NM) told Ruidoso Rotarians during a visit Tuesday.

That was about as close as Skeen got to presidential politics during his informal remarks.

He reminded Rotarians that for years he has been working on opening the Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP) near Carlsbad for the storage of low-level nuclear waste, and said it finally is going to happen in 1997.

"And it's about time; we have drums of the stuff sitting on top of aquifers all over the country," Skeen said.

He also is seeking to get the federal government out of the water business, by returning watershed irrigation districts to private control.

"And we're making sure private tract owners and fishermen and boaters won't be losers by the move at Elephant Butte Lake," Skeen said.

The Picoche sheep rancher and longtime (since 1980) conservative member of the U. S. House of Representatives chairs the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture.

In an interview after the Rotary meeting, he said one of his long-term goals has been privatization of lands in the West.

"Land is our heritage, and the government owns most of it. I want to see it go to the states, at least, and to private ownership whenever possible," Skeen said.

Skeen owns 15,000 acres in the Hondo Valley, on which he runs some 2,000 head of sheep. A third of it was patented land when he acquired it; the rest was state and federal land he acquired when regulations changed to allow purchase or (in the case of federal) land exchange of tracts.

On the subject of the Mescalero Apache efforts to store commercial nuclear waste, Skeen said Tribal President Wendell Chino perhaps hasn't given up, but currently both public and private storage efforts have been blocked.

"I admire him as a great leader of his people, in fact you could say we're friendly enemies, but an attractive vacation area is just no place to store nuclear waste," Skeen said.

The congressman, who was just the third person in the nation's history to reach the Congress by a write-in vote (Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina was the first), also said he is not taking his own re-election for granted. "I'm working at it," he said.

He is being challenged for his seat in the U.S. House of Representatives by state Rep. Shirley Baca of Las Cruces.

LOCAL BRIEFS

County says yes to $130,000 arena at Glencoe center

Lincoln County commissioners Tuesday decided to meet the requirements to accept a $130,000 federal for the Glencoe Rural Events Center.

The vote was 3-2. Commissioners William Schwettmann and Stirling Spencer remain opposed to keeping the center a county facility. They propose negotiating to sell or lease it to a spice packaging company.

But the rest of the commission said the money from a federal Rural Economic Development grant program will pay for an outdoor arena and some bleachers.

The addition will be the first step in attracting horse shows, rodeos and other competitions, said center manager Linda Wallace, who applied for the grant last year.

Eventually, an indoor arena and more holding pens also will be needed, she said.

The commission's obligations include using county road equipment to prepare the site for construction, and preparing engineering plans.

Physical exams for athletes Monday at RHS

Sports physicals for Ruidoso athletes will be available from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12, at the Ruidoso High School.

The physicals are for Ruidoso high school and middle school fall sport athletes only.

The student health center will be open after the start of school to accommodate any late incoming athletes and students participating in winter sports.

If students prefer, they can get a physical from their own physician.

Physicals are required before athletes can attend practice.

Parents must be present at the school physicals to sign appropriate forms, unless they have made arrangements to pick up the forms prior to Monday.

Athletic physicals offered in Capitan

Physicals required for participation in Capitan school athletics will be given free at 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10 at the high school.

The new gymnasium opened Tuesday for volleyball play. Two-day practices are set to start Aug. 12 in football and volleyball.

For times or more information, contact athletic director Gerald Montes at 663-4531, football coach Ed David at 354-4247 or volleyball coach Bryan Massé at 354-4250.

School begins in Capitan with a half day on Monday, Aug. 19.

Fort

Since the corrections and forestry agencies are interested in using the fort and are going to ask the Legislature for money in January, the state General Services Department "must give priority to the needs of state agencies for using state facilities," Gallegos wrote.

But the rebuff didn't dull commission enthusiasm for Burkstaller's proposal for a state park, resort, convention center, campground and historic center at the fort.

She was back at the commission meeting Tuesday to ask for a resolution supporting the concept of a "living fort."

Since an article appeared July 17 in The Ruidoso News on Burkstaller's plan, she has received more than a dozen letters of support and many more people have called or stopped her to say they back the idea, she said.

She would like to see the state model Fort Stanton after Fort Robinson in northwest Nebraska, which can house 700 people and has a full recreational program.

"But we would be able to stay open year-around instead of seasonal, we're larger and we're 14 years older," she said. "Fort Robinson's claim to fame is that Crazy Horse was incarcerated there. Fort Stanton has Kit Carson, Blackjack Pershing, the Buffalo Soldiers and the key players in the Lincoln County War."

Attendance at the Nebraska fort has grown from 170,00 in 1976 to nearly 400,000 last year, she said.

Commissioners approved a resolution supporting her efforts, and urged her also to seek help from the county's U.S. Congressional delegation.

It may take several years to convince the state or raise enough seed money, but the resort project would have a long-term positive impact on a county tied to tourism, Burkstaller said. Fort Robinson brings in more revenue than it costs to operate it, according to officials there. The fort was closed as a state hospital in March 1995 by Johnson because of high operating costs. Schwettmann noted the fort and land was valued 40 years ago at $822,000 without water rights.

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley told a group from Capitan who support Burkstaller's efforts to lobby the governor, even if the forest camp is approved.

"We'll go to the other governing bodies in the county and keep on building support," Burkstaller said. She also hopes to organize a group to visit the Nebraska fort, where superintendent Jim Lemmon said he will show them the complete $1 million operation that brings in many times that amount in tourist dollars.

The county has no money to develop Fort Stanton, but it can be a catalyst to help a citizens' group as it plows through state and federal politicians, Commissioner Stirling Spencer said.

A petition is being circulated to be presented to the appropriate government entities, Burkstaller said.

potential motive for suicide.

The New Mexico Office of Medical Investigator conducted an autopsy this week to determine the cause of death, but preliminary results had not yet been filed Tuesday. That office is also attempting to verify the body's identity through dental records.

Campers from Roswell found the body Sunday, not far from a Boy Scout camp, McSwane said. The truck was well-hidden, parked near trees about 200 yards off an unimproved road, and the body was about 15 feet from the truck, McSwane said. The road is accessed from the north by Highway 248.

The site lies in a section of the Lincoln National Forest that was closed May 20 through July 2.

"Her husband was surprised she went there," Jennings said, although the couple had visited the area once before.

Please support youth at county fair

This week is the culmination of up to a year's worth of hard work for dozens of Lincoln County youngsters. They have raised animals with intimate care, feeding them day and night, in order to win a ribbon at the Lincoln County Fair. Some will reach their goal; others will not.

But there is a higher purpose to their efforts than just winning: they are learning how to be responsible citizens in this world.

We urge you to show them you appreciate these common-sense values, by purchasing an animal at the livestock sale at 1 p.m. Saturday or by putting money into the pool for small animals and those that don't win.

Ruidoso's banner law should be unfurled

As Will Rogers once said, "All I know is what I read in the papers."

So, having lived in Texas for more than two years, I have depended on The News to keep up with the goings on in the village of Ruidoso.

I now reside in Ruidoso.

The use of advertising banners has been a news item recently, and the issue presents a basic problem which deserves attention. Consider this: the folks who live in and enjoy Ruidoso are composed of three distinct groups.

First, there are those who retired and bought homes here, living mundane lives while enjoying retirement and the lack of responsibilities.

The second group, a subset of the first group, differs because its members own and operate a business to supplement their income. This group depends on sales to retirees along with a more important group known as TOURISTS. Without this group, the retirees and those in business would not exist. In fact, most of the two former groups were TOURISTS in the beginning before they decided to live permanently in Ruidoso.

The third group, of course, consists of TOURISTS which are so important to the town. So Ruidoso is a TOURIST town with the promotion of tourism as everyone's primary goal.

For the past several months, The News has reported how the lack of winter snow followed by an unusually dry spring with the always-present fire danger has done much to reduce the number of visitors (TOURISTS) to our village. And businesses have suffered greatly. Now it would appear that we are determined to exacerbate the problem even further. To imagine that a local businessman was compelled to go to court in order to hang a display banner at his place of business to promote the sale of roasted peppers defies imagination. But it happened in Ruidoso.

If an advertising banner, hung properly and in good taste, is contrary to the local sign/banner ordinance, the ordinance should be considered suspect and re-examined.

Banners/signs are a standard fare in TOURIST towns. They set the tone of the town and do much to encourage the interests of the TOURISTS.

The Ruidoso businessman who refused to follow the village sign ordinance which banned his pepper banner took his case to court.

On June 18 District Judge Richard Parsons ruled against the plaintiff in favor of the village, saying the ordinance is constitutional and would remain in effect. Judge Parsons outlined several reasons to support his ruling which, to a non-legal mind, leaves some unanswered questions.

He states, in part, "Traffic congestion and safety is a major concern with several hundred businesses wall to wall along a major thoroughfare." To my knowledge, there are no traffic records available which would show that signs/banners, properly displayed, would cause traffic congestion or accidents.

The village ordinance which restricts signs/banners to several specific locations and only allows advertising pertinent to community or civic events is a double whammy to the real advertising purpose in general, which is to promote TOURISM.

In line four of Judge Parsons' ruling, he states that "One purpose is to preserve the special qualities inherent in the village to attract TOURISTS and residents alike."

Controls and restrictions are necessary for banners, but they shouldn't be banned.

In the larger cities, certain areas are set aside for promotions for the visiting TOURISTS and the local citizens. Banners and signs are seen everywhere, encouraging visitors to spend their money — that is what TOURISM is all about.

If Ruidoso is to grow and prosper, it will be the TOURIST trade that does it. The retirees won't do it, and neither will those in business, without the TOURIST dollar.

If we are to draw our share of the TOURIST trade, we must look the part and act like a town that welcomes TOURISTS.

Appearance is of prime importance, and signs/banners are part and parcel of the proper appearance.

Ruidoso should have a sign/banner ordinance. Certain controls are important and necessary if excesses are to be avoided. But outright banning will not accomplish what logical controls will do.

It is hoped that the current village sign ordinance will be given a revisit by the council for some rethinking about just what our long-range objectives are.

(Al Junge is a former Ruidoso councilor who helped form the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority. He has written columns for The Ruidoso News for many years.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ruidoso Chamber needs more room

TO THE EDITOR:

I recently had the pleasure of attending the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet and enjoyed watching some very deserving people in Ruidoso receive commendations for their efforts throughout the year. I was also pleased to hear Chamber Secretary John Garcia expound on the efforts the Ruidoso Chamber has made in attracting more tourism to this area.

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce is in dire need of a larger, safer environment. I've probably been inside the current facility on more occasions than many current transplants — perhaps even more than many locals — and I certainly understand why more space and a major remodel are in order. They simply have too little room, and some rather disturbing safety problems to deal with that promote an undesirable environment both for the staff and thousands of visitors your center attracts on a regular basis. So to see a united front of progressive businesspeople roll up their sleeves and address the problem is gratifying!

For a community the size of Ruidoso to garner over 500 chamber members and show signs of growth and prosperity is a feat in itself, and that says that somebody's doing something right. Keep up the good work, and continue to count on me as time allows to assist in your many efforts to provide Ruidoso with a proactive, energetic chamber of commerce that provides activities and events that benefit everyone in the area both socially and economically.

Private wells still nightmare

TO THE EDITOR:

In an earlier letter, I called private wells "a nightmare." Well owner Jim Alston retorted, and he was right. Well owners got their permits either because the waterworks did not reach them or because it failed them when they needed to protect thousands of dollars worth of landscaping. These people, on their own, were just solving a problem that the municipality was unable to.

Nonetheless, private wells are still a nightmare for at least three reasons: 1) Each one permits extraction of a million gallons per year. 2) Permits are utterly unrestricted, and the State Engineer Office (SEO) is handling them out like grocery discount coupons. 3) All of them will be pumped together and at maximum at the worst possible time — when drought causes the waterworks to empty the river by diversion at the headwaters to Gradytown. Pumping a well creates a drawdown cone, and in the Upper G Canyon, that empty cone must be filled by the river as it passes. When the number of wells increases from a dozen or so to several dozen, there goes the river.

Why doesn't SEO curb the issuance of private permits? Because in its big picture of the Pecos River and its tributaries, private wells are trivial compared to irrigation and municipal diversions. Saving a beautiful and noisy river is a local matter and not SEO business, even if the river is the most valuable asset of the community. The village could petition SEO to issue all new permits with endorsements warning that pumping may be restricted by local authorities during times of low storage or low river flow, and SEO would almost certainly comply. Fair warning would deter indiscriminate well drilling, but the council has apparently not taken any such action. The nightmare is not over.

The Ruidoso School Board meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday, August 13, at the Ruidoso Municipal Schools Building, 200 Horton Circle.

Parents from the Parents As Teachers group will give their evaluation of the program.

The board will review beginning-of-school activities such as registration, orientation, and scheduling. School bus and food service contractors will be chosen, and new hires and resignations will be approved.

The school board is meeting this weekend for its annual retreat. Agenda items include evaluating the school district's strengths and weaknesses; how to make schools better for students; an education plan for student success; and goals for the 1996-97 school year. The goals will be presented at Tuesday's meeting.

The retreat begins at 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 10 at Superintendent Mike Gladden's home off U.S. Highway 70 east of Ruidoso Downs. His driveway is the second one on the left east of Fox Cave.

The retreat is open to the public. However, the Friday night portion of the retreat at school board President James Paxton's house is closed to the public. The 6 p.m. Friday agenda lists litigation, personnel and collective bargaining as agenda items.

4-H alumni eligible for college money

The Lincoln County Association for Family and Community Education will award two $600 scholarships to Lincoln County students who have completed their freshman year in college or are enrolled in a trade school in New Mexico.

Applicants must have been active in 4-H. Application forms can be picked up at the Lincoln County Extension Office in the county Courthouse in Carrizozo. Call 648-2311 for more information. Forms must be returned by Aug. 15.

Correction

An article on the Southwest Therapeutic Massage Institute, which appeared in the July 10 issue of The Ruidoso News, incorrectly reported the school's tuition as $3,952. The correct number is $3,592 for 24 weekends/80 hours of intensive instruction in massage therapy and related practices.

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTON HEAD, S.C. — A doctor has discovered that an ingredient found in a small fruit grown in Asia, combined with an ingredient praised by the U.S. Department of Agriculture can help cause significant weight loss.

In a study published in a prestigious American medical journal, Dr. Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported that the formula, now called Bio-Max 3000, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as a control group on the same fat-reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition confirms that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Scientists suggest that the mechanism behind the weight reduction includes decreasing sugar cravings and interruption of the "Krebs Cycle," an important step in the body's fat storage process. "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a safe dietary food supplement," says Dr. Conte. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States, with one big exception — it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Max 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

According to a spokesperson for the company, Bio-Max 3000 is now available on a limited basis through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-2446. A 1995 People's Choice award. Bio-Max 3000 is available locally at LONER'S (RUIDOSO BRANCH) 721 Newman Ruidoso 257-3892

Ruidoso News Staff Writer
The Ruidoso High School 24 Karat Gold Band is tuning up for a banner musical season. This year's band is about double the size of last year's, boosted mainly by sophomores and juniors.

Band director Nate Kruse said there are more seniors in hand this year than they've ever had in the past four years. Kruse expects about 60 band members this year.

Student musicians are practicing marching, drill maneuvering, and sectionals this week. They have to be ready for the first football game on Aug. 30.

The color guard, led by Sina Herrera and Chelissa Campbell, is working up new routines to "Seasonal Sketches," the band's show title for this marching season.

"Seasonal Sketches" musically and aurally depicts the four seasons beginning with winter," Kruse said. The winter melody is "In the Bleak of Mid-Winter," arranged by Kruse himself. The music for spring has not yet been selected.

The summer piece is "Danza Final," arranged by David McCulough, who was Kruse's professor at Butler University in Indianapolis. "Autumn Leaves" is the band's tribute to fall.

To polish the 24 Karats to a shine, band section leaders are demanding nothing but the best.

"These section leaders have been incredible to work with," Kruse said. "They don't let anyone dough off. They're pushing for a good program."

Section leaders are Pacasha Baldridge, flutes; Elizabeth Flores, clarinets; DeAnn Shade, saxophones; Tim Miller, trumpets; April Hoffer and Eric Hoopingarner, low brass. Pacasha Baldridge is also drum major and this year's band president.

"I'm really excited about band this year," Baldridge said. "We're bigger and have a lot of talented musicians."

To keep the momentum going, Kruse invited freshmen and eighth graders to a mini-camp last week. First-time marchers learned some fundamentals about marching and playing from Kruse and his section leaders. The top eighth graders from the Middle School Advanced Band will be marching with the high school band, Kruse said. "I'm especially proud of all the freshmen and eighth graders that have been attending our rehearsals," Baldridge said. "If we keep up the way we're going, we can be the best SAAA high school band in no time."

80% of Your Child's Learning Occurs Through the Eyes

Your child's school performance depends on visual performance.

With the school year approaching, it's important to make sure your child's learning won't be held back by vision disorders or deficiencies.

At Lincoln County Eye Clinic, our comprehensive Back-to-School Examination will make sure your child learns at his or her peak visual performance.

That means testing how the eyes work together at different distances, checking muscle balance, eye movement, eye-hand coordination, color vision, depth perception and visual field. Even preventative eye health management.

For your child's best school performance, make sure your child is operating at his or her best visual performance. Call Lincoln County Eye Clinic today to arrange a comprehensive Back-to-School Examination.

LINCOLN COUNTY

A glimpse into Lincoln County's past, compiled from local newspapers by Polly E. Chavez.

Ruidoso News August 9, 1946

Several septic tanks and cesspools are reported overflowing into neighboring properties and into the village streets. The Marshal will notify all violators to correct this situation.

The Pueblo Theater was built in 1940 by Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Blaylock. Later the Blaylocks purchased the Apache Theater and now operate both of these entertainment places. The Pueblo is operated all year around and the Apache only during the summer months.

Production began about six weeks ago in the new broom factory in Palo Verde, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Lohman.

General Patrick Hurley and E.L. Safford, of Santa Fe, Republican candidates for U.S. senator and governor of New Mexico, were guests of honor at a dinner here in Ruidoso Saturday. Lloyd P. Bloodworth, publisher of the Ruidoso News was host and toastmaster for the dinner meeting which was conducted at Nob Hill Restaurant.

In his autobiography, Starlight Nights, the amateur comet hunter and variable star observer Leslie Peltier remembered thinking, as he drifted off to sleep in a bed of sand while camping near Mt. Mansfield, Ohio, "that Vega was so nearly overhead that if she were to fall, she would surely land here in our little valley." Countless August campers have made the same observation from their sleeping bags.

Boys of summer conclude season with tourney

Laura Clymer/The Ruidoso News

Trevor Cox delivers a pitch in men's slo-pitch softball action. Cox and his Capitan Construction teammates are one of 11 teams competing in the men's league tournament, which concludes Thursday night. The championship game is slated for 8:30 p.m. on field B.

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer
The last week and a half of softball has been as concentrated as frozen orange juice for the Ruidoso men's league teams.

Nearly a month of rainouts forced the rescheduling of more than 50 games. The regular season was finally brought to a close Monday night with another evening of condensed softball that would meet the quality control standards at Campbell's Soup.

The Merchants, atop the gold division, played a tripleheader (and won all three), while most of the remaining teams had doubleheaders Monday. All three Eagle Creek Sports Complex fields were used in order to get in the last nine games of the regular schedule.

With those games in the books, the men started league tournament play Tuesday. The double elimination tourney continues tonight and concludes with its championship game slated for 8:30 p.m. Thursday on field B.

Monday night's 9 p.m. games (the final games) determined regular-season champs for the gold and silver divisions, a fitting conclusion to the end of the regular season. The Merchants were three-for-three Monday, including a 26-20 victory over Capitan Construction to clinch the gold division crown. In silver division play, Sonterra II and

SOFTBALL

Casino Apache Sharks both posted 8-1 records heading into the final game. The Sharks prevailed 13-2 to claim honors in that division with a 9-1 mark.

Last year, Radio Shack Attack won the regular season title. The Merchants, however, went on to win the season-ending league tourney.

That feat will be tougher this year. After cruising through the first round with an unblemished record, the Merchants dropped three straight games last week, proving it is vincible.

Eight local teams will participate in the USSSA Men's Class E State Softball tournament this weekend at the Sportsplex in Albuquerque.

Representing the area will be Ace Plumbing, Merchants, NADS, Radio Shack Attack and Sonterra (all of Ruidoso); Mescalero's Casino Apache Sharks and Homeboys; and Capitan Construction.

Six teams from the area played in the 1995 state tourney. Radio Shack Attack placed fifth of 60 teams with a 5-2 record.

Workers to reseed diamonds

Parks and recreation staff will reseed the patchy outfields of fields A and B as soon as the men's and women's leagues conclude play.

If Mother Nature doesn't interfere, the last game slated for the complex is the rescheduled match-up between Diamond Sals and No Excuses for the women's league tournament championship. That game will be played at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12, on field B.

Cost to reseed the two diamonds ranges from $300 to $400, said Debbie Jo Almager, parks and recreation director.

Almager originally thought Ruidoso's Little League soccer would need to use the fields, but that league will continue to play its games on the old fields at the White Mountain School complex. Work on the new White Mountain athletic fields will begin in November, Almager said, with the grading of the area.

Scheduled for play on the Eagle Sports Complex diamonds this fall are the village's coed softball league, three softball tournaments and the Ruidoso Little League football games.

Bold Spirit nips Tana's Boy again

The 12 finalists in the $69,119 Rio Grande Futurity at Ruidoso Downs Sunday broke in a perfect line - which is unusual for 2-year-old racehorses.

And in an equally unusual development, the two farthest from the rail and with the two worst post positions finished best of all.

Breaking from the eleven and twelve post positions respectively, Bold Spirit and Tana's Boy, dueled throughout the stretch of the six-furlong test. Bold Spirit held off Tana's Boy by a nose for the win.

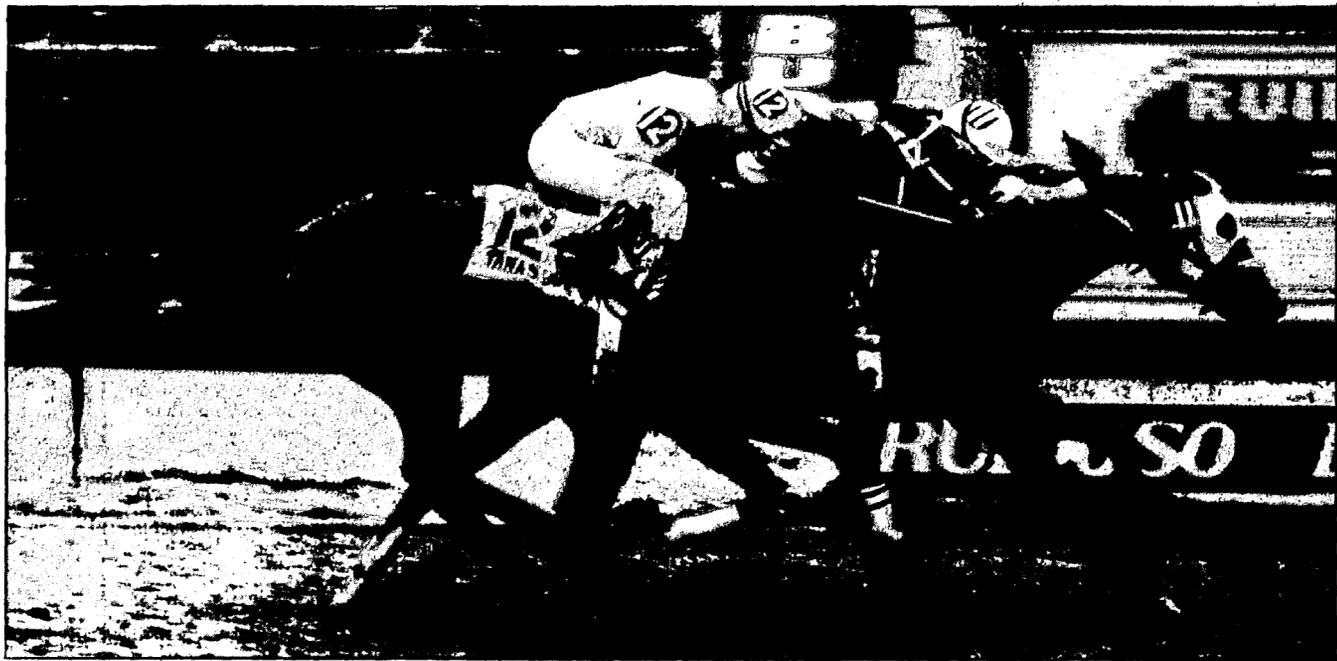

Third place went to the late closing Moore Blind Love, who ended up being disqualified from the show position for interference in the stretch and placed fourth. That bumped up fourth-place finisher Tee Em Up to third place.

Post-time favorite Donchalisentoumdun vied for the lead out of the gate but was never a factor in the late going.

At the break, six horses tried for the early lead with A J Prince taking charge. That one rattled off fractions of 21.4, 44.3 and 57.3. A J Prince tired in the stretch to finish fifth. Final time for the six furlongs was 1:11.3.

Bold Spirit is now three-for-five lifetime with two seconds. The $34,559 winner's share of the Rio Grande pushed the dark bay gelding's career earnings past the $50,000 mark.

Bold Spirit is by Bold Ego out of Silk Royale. He was bred in New Mexico as were all of the Rio Grande starters.

With Nancy Summers in the irons, Bold Spirit edges Tana's Boy in the Rio Grande Futurity at Ruidoso Downs Sunday. The victory was Nancy Summers, who has been aboard in all five of the gelding's starts, came in from her Santa Fe home base to ride the Billie Floyd-trained charge.

Tana's Boy was equally impressive with his effort in the Rio Grande. The bay gelding by Bellvoy seems unable to run past his nemesis Bold Spirit, however. Tana's Boy has finished inches behind Bold Spirit for the second time in his four-race career.

Bold Spirit, and second place Tana's Boy met earlier in the meet when they were beaten by Soiree in the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity. In that race, Bold Spirit nosed out Tana's Boy for second place.

With leading rider Fernando Gamez aboard, the Leon Sutherland-owned Tana's Boy earned $15,206 for his runner-up effort, pushing his earnings near $25,000.

The next test for the juveniles will be Saturday, Aug. 17, with the trials for the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Futurity. The final for the futurity will be Sunday, Sept. 1.

gelding's third win in five tries. After Moore Blind Love was disqualified, Tee Em Up moved up to the show position.

Am News wins Zia Handicap

Am News made his first start in Ruidoso a memorable one, winning the Zia Handicap Saturday.

The sorrel gelding covered the 400 yards in 20.03 seconds, and posted his fourth win in six starts in 1996.

Second was the only 3-year-old in the field, Pyro Shawn. The race's veteran horse, 8-year-old Sitting On A Native, took third.

HOOFBEATS: Horse owner and longtime friend of Ruidoso Downs, L. Z. Brown of Andrews, Texas died over the weekend.

Brown was a member of the Ruidoso Jockey Club, an avid horse owner for more than 20 years and racing enthusiast. Brown owned Dash Its Couper who most recently captured the Rainbow Silver Cup on July 14. Dash Its Couper was the 1994 winner of the Rainbow Futurity which was L. Z. Brown's first major Futurity win at Ruidoso Downs...The twin trifecta will roll into Friday once again. Carryover for Friday's card will be $38,443...Trainer Sleepy Gilbreath and jockey Sam Thompson had a banner day Saturday at the track. The duo won three races.

PET CORNER

These pets are currently up for adoption at Lincoln County Humane Society.
Call 257-9841

Cruzita is a young spayed chow/shepherd mix with a winning personality. She's a perfect match for someone seeking a loyal companion dog or for a family that wants a buddy for a child.

Frances, a young tortoiseshell gray cat, has the kind of charm that brings shelter workers back to see her again and again. Alert and intelligent, this female feline is a perfect pal to curl up with on a cold night.

POOP SCOOP

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

If you believe that classroom dissection of animals is outdated and inhumane, the National Humane Education Society (NHES) has some suggestions on how you can help.

Introduced in the 1920s, dissection is widely practiced in classrooms throughout the nation resulting in the unnecessary deaths of nearly six million animals a year for students who may never even consider a career in medicine or science.

Habitats are decimated and ecologies threatened so that chipmunks, frogs and snakes can be used for dissection. Rabbits, mice, pigs and cats also frequently are chosen.

It's a multimillion dollar business.

Sometimes the means of procuring animals is questionable and they suffer neglect and abuse before dying inhumanely, society officials write.

The dissection experience is so distasteful to some that instead of stimulating a student's interest, it turns them off to a science career.

Dissection teaches insensitivity. Taking life to study life sends a message that certain life is unimportant.

Alternatives are available such as the use of computer simulations and models. In a simulation called Operation Frog, students can move organs using the program that teaches structure and function. Video tapes of human operations also are available.

The most important reason to abandon the practice is reverence for life. Our education system should reinforce the message of compassion for helpless living creatures, which includes children and the elderly as well as animals.

What you can do:

— talk to the science teacher at the beginning of the year to allow other alternatives to dissection for your child or the class. If the teacher isn't cooperative, talk to the principal, superintendent or school board members;

— in some other states, students have a legal right to refuse to dissect. Become active in pushing for similar laws in New Mexico by contacting state legislators;

— request a change in life science curriculum if dissection is included;

— write letters to newspapers, television and radio stations to generate more public involvement;

— and talk to children about the importance of respecting life.

For more help, contact the NHES at 521-A East Market St., Leesburg, Va. 22075 or call 703-777-8319.
