Student with gun suspended

An 11-year-old Ruidoso Downs boy arrested for bringing a gun to school has been suspended from school, Ruidoso superintendent Mike Gladden said. A school hearing will determine whether the boy will be expelled.

"According to the law, he must be expelled," Gladden said.

The federal Gun-Free Schools Act strictly prohibits bringing weapons into a school. The hearing authority will decide if the boy should be expelled for the remainder of the year and forced to repeat the 5th grade next year. The hearing is supposed to protect the child's rights, Gladden said.

The White Mountain Intermediate fifth-grader was caught with a loaded Colt .380 semi-automatic revolver Wednesday, Nov. 26. He showed the gun to a peer at school, and the other child immediately reported it to the principal, Gladden said.

"I would hope that what comes from the publicity be positive and reinforce the importance of parents to control access to firearms and other dangerous items."

MIKE GLADDEN
RUIDOSO SUPERINTENDENT

The student was taken to the principal's office around 10:30 a.m., where school officials found the gun tucked in the boy's waistband, Gladden said. The child was arrested by Ruidoso police and charged with unlawful carrying of a deadly weapon on school premises, a fourth-degree felony, police said. "The situation was handled in an excellent manner," Gladden said.

Members of the school's parent council were called to White Mountain and helped compose a letter that was sent home to parents, informing them of the incident, Gladden said.

Gladden is proud of the fact that another student reported the crime, and that students were not in danger at any time, he said.

"I would hope that what comes from the publicity be positive and reinforce the importance of parents to control access to firearms and other dangerous items," Gladden said. "If we work together on that, maybe we won't become like other school districts with those problems."

Gladden believes the boy took the weapon from his home, but no one has been allowed to question the child. Police turned him over to juvenile probation officers, who later placed him under house arrest and released him into his parents' custody.

His parents refused to let police question the boy, said detective Wolfgang Born.

Armed robbery suspect waives hearing

Midway through Vicente Montes' preliminary hearing on armed robbery charges Tuesday, testimony was halted.

His cousin Amber Herrera had just been called to the witness stand at the Ruidoso Magistrate Court and was testifying that Montes was in Ruidoso during the time of the Nov. 4 First Savings Bank robbery.

Montes, 19, the son of Lincoln County Commission Chairman Monroy Montes, had said during his arraignment last week that he wasn't in town during the robbery.

Montes was arrested and charged with the robbery Nov. 25, exactly three weeks after Herrera said he was visiting her in Ruidoso.

She told the court that Montes arrived at her home Nov. 3 with two of his friends, Isaac Chavez and someone named Albert.

Herrera was saying two of her friends were also at her home when Montes and his friends arrived, when defense attorney Gary Mitchell interrupted.

He asked to confer with Judge William Butts and Assistant District Attorney Viola Rhodes, and then announced Montes wanted to waive the hearing and take his defense before the district court.

Butts and Rhodes agreed to the waiver, and Montes was taken back to the county jail where he's being held in lieu of a $500,000 bond. A district court arraignment will be scheduled in the next 30 days, and a hearing will follow in the next six months, Rhodes later said.

A Crimestoppers tip led police to Herrera, and police called her in for questioning. She identified Montes in a videotape of the bank robbery.

"We'd rather take up issues regarding family members in district court," which would have jurisdiction over the trial anyway, Mitchell explained later about the hearing interruption.

A preliminary hearing is for the benefit of the defendant, Rhodes later explained, and it can be waived at any time.

Mitchell said he hadn't asked for the preliminary hearing earlier because he only got the information on the case Tuesday and was reading part of it during the hearing. He was asked to co-counsel Montes earlier this week with Albuquerque attorney Leroy Duarte, who was not in court Tuesday.

Duarte is defending Montes on other charges filed this summer, accusing Montes of an armed robbery at an Albuquerque liquor store.

Montes is also being charged with the Nov. 19 murder of an Albuquerque man in a traffic dispute there.

Late Monday, Mitchell had attempted to have Butts excused from hearing the case because of the judge's past hearings with Montes. Butts attempted to comply, he said, but was advised he couldn't because the request has to be made four days prior to the hearing.

Butts added that Montes would get a "fair, impartial and unbiased opinion" from him Tuesday.

Trespassing is constant problem during hunting season, some local ranchers say

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Hunting season often means headaches for Lincoln County ranchers who are pestered by trespassers and occasionally lose a cow to a wayward bullet.

The number of prosecutions statewide for hunting violations were down last year from the two previous years, according to statistics from the state Department of Game and Fish. But Ancho rancher Bill Hightower said the problem with trespassing hunters is about the same year to year.

"It's no worse, no better this year," he said. "It's pretty much a constant."

He doesn't have a problem off season, except for an occasional weekend rabbit hunter, Hightower said.

His call for help to the Sheriff's Office last month came just days after seven complaints were recorded in a space of four days.

Other people reported hunters: — shooting on their property posted with no trespassing signs; — shooting from the side of the road near Sierra Blanca Regional Airport;

— trespassing on the grounds of a minimum security prison at Camp Sierra Blanca;

— shooting toward a person's home in Oscura;

— trespassing on Ranches of Sonterra subdivision land off Sierra Blanca Airport Road;

— and spotlighting deer.

"It's a bad situation and always has been," Hightower said. "People don't have a map that tells them where they can hunt. I've caught people on my property that say all of the state of New Mexico is state land and I have no right to run them out."

Some will leave when Hightower shows them the exit, wait until he's out of the area and come right back, he said.

"That's what happened (on Nov. 15)," he said. "Hunters I lease to saw me run some (trespassers) out and when I left, they were up on the hill and the other people came right back in," Hightower said.

He's cautious when approaching trespassers, because he doesn't know how they'll react, Hightower said.

"A lot of them drink a little. You walk up to somebody a little bit

Lincoln County commissioners still unsure about salary increases

by DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County elected officials are the lowest paid in a survey of the 14 New Mexico counties in the same property value class.

But for the second time, commissioners put off action Tuesday on a request to raise salaries to the limit allowed by state law.

With Commission Chairman Monroy Montes absent, they split on a vote to conduct two hearings on the issue in January.

Commissioner Sterling Spencer, who leaves office this month, proposed the request be placed on the agenda of the next regular commission meeting when Montes and Rex Wilson, the new commissioner from Spencer's district, will be able to vote.

His motion passed 3-1 with Commissioner Wilton Howell voting against it.

The raises would cost the county an additional $88,392 a year for the 10 elected officials, said County Assessor Patsy Serna.

She projected that more than $30 million worth of property will be added to the county's tax rolls next year, generating about $210,000 in additional taxes.

"We should be able to cover it (the raises)," she told commissioners. "Elected officials have had no pay increase since January 1991. Whether we receive it or not, I will be here from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

County officials are eligible for the increase, because property values have remained at more than $300 million for two years.

A chart prepared by County Treasurer Joan Park showed that Lincoln County salaries are at the bottom of the list of 14 counties in the same category.

The difference between Lincoln's elected officials and those in the next lowest paid county of Curry was about $5,000 a year per person.

The difference increased to more than $7,500 compared to the other counties, including neighboring Chaves, Eddy, Otero and Valencia.

For instance, Lincoln County's sheriff is paid $31,510 and the sheriffs in Curry and Eddy counties are paid $36,685. Sheriffs in the other 11 counties are paid $39,253.

The county clerk, treasurer and assessor are paid $30,130 in Lincoln County compared to $37,653 in most of the other 13 counties.

Park said while she didn't object to public input on the subject, she thought commissioners were better judges of the competency of the other elected officials and whether they were efficient in their jobs.

County Clerk Martha Proctor reminded commissioners that she has updated technology in her department, has maintained a good working relationship with the commission, has worked many weekends and late nights to meet her job responsibilities and is looking at more work as the county's population increases.

Capitan resident E.J. Fouratt, who serves on the county's road review committee, urged commissioners to approve the raises.

"They all do a good job, except one department, and they don't get involved in litigation," he said, apparently referring to the sheriff's office as the exception. Sheriff James McSwane and his office have been sued several times and the sheriff has been at odds repeatedly with the commission over budget items.

"Some of you say they (the other elected officials) knew the salary when they took the jobs," Fouratt said. "Well so did the hospital (management firm), but you're giving them $1.2 million to improve the hospital. Things change."

Commissioners L. Ray Nunley and Howell were quiet about their positions, saying they wanted to first hear more public input.

Acting Chairman William Schwettmann put the item on the agenda last month for discussion and Spencer said he favored the raises.

Although he would not benefit as a commissioner, his position could receive up to nearly double the $7,015 annual salary he is scheduled to receive as probate judge. He was elected to that position in November and will be sworn in with other officials Jan. 2.

"I think it's clear that this is something we were supposed to bite the bullet on," Spencer said. "It's hard because we're part of the bullet and would be giving ourselves raises." It probably will be another seven years or more before county officials will be eligible for another jump in salary, he said.

County Manager Frank Potter said the salaries of the chief deputies in each department, which usually are based on a percentage of the annual amount paid to their bosses, will be discussed in January in his new employee classification plan.

A district court ruled this summer that commissioners in mid-term could approve salary increases, something the attorney general previously said was against state constitutional law. Attorney Gen. Tom Udall is appealing that decision.

If they approve raises, commissioners would see their salaries go up from $10,005 to as high as $15,012.

testimony. Two bank employees, manager Eddie Gibson and one of two tellers, had already testified that Montes was one of the two men who robbed the bank. Ruidoso police have an arrest warrant out for the other suspected robber, Alberto Rojas of Albuquerque.

The two men came into the 2713 Sudderth Drive around 10:15 a.m., bank employees said. After the teller made eye contact with them, the man identified as Montes ran across the lobby while pulling panty hose from his neck to his cheek bones, bound over the counter and made her get down on the floor. He then forced another teller out of a back room, made her get down, and robbed the cash drawer.

A teller identified Montes to police before his arrest, after looking at five photos. She first noted that she recognized two photos of former schoolmates, she told the court. Montes also appeared familiar, but at first she didn't know why except that Ruidoso is a small town, she said.

A few hours before pointing Montes out as the robber, Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox stimulated her memory with hypnosis.

At Mitchell's inquiry, the teller told the court she requested the hypnosis "to get things straight...just the sequence of events."

The robbery took about 40 seconds, she said. The man she identified as Montes "said he was going to kill me," the teller said. However, she never saw him with a gun or knife.

The robber took approximately $2,200 from the cash drawer, manager Gibson said. Gibson had been in his office during the robbery, but had caught sight of the two men when they entered the building. One, whom he also identified as Montes, ran toward the teller station while pulling a stocking up from his neck, he said.

This man was wearing white tennis shoes, sunglasses and a ball cap, Gibson said, and he had a distinguishable nose.

The other robber entered Gibson's office, brandished a gun and pulled a homemade ski mask over his face, Gibson said. He made Gibson get down on the floor, pointed the gun at him, and said, "Stay down on the ground or I'll blow your blank blank head off," Gibson said.

Gibson told the court he watched the videotape of the robbery about 10 or 15 times before the court hearing, several times more than the tellers. But immediately after the robbery, the staff followed bank security guidelines and didn't review events together so they'd be "independent in what we know and remember" when reporting to police, he said.

Following Gibson's testimony, Ruidoso detective Jim Biggs told the court about shoe prints found on the teller counter and a print in the dirt outside. He also dusted about 13 fingerprints at the scene. Results on the fingerprints are not back from a state lab yet, he said. The shoe prints haven't been sent for testing because Biggs thought he'd need them in court, he said.

Biggs showed the court the bank videotape of the robbery, which revealed white sneakers on the man who jumped the counter. Both suspects wore baggy clothes and disguises on their faces.

After the video, Biggs presented a pair of white canvas Converse All-Star Chuck Taylor tennis sneakers as evidence. He said the Albuquerque Police Department found the shoes in Montes' Albuquerque apartment after searching it last week.

New state liquor regs proposed

The Alcohol and Gaming Division of the state Regulation and Licensing Department (RLD) has proposed new liquor regulations for New Mexico, RLD Superintendent Robin Dozier Otten announced.

The proposed rules address many issues of interest to licensees and the general public. They include rules covering special dispenser's permits, minors on licensed premises, definitions, sales of liquor by clubs, alcohol server training, and restaurant licenses. They also contain a new fine schedule.

The new rules comply with several state laws requiring the Alcohol and Gaming Division to adopt regulations.

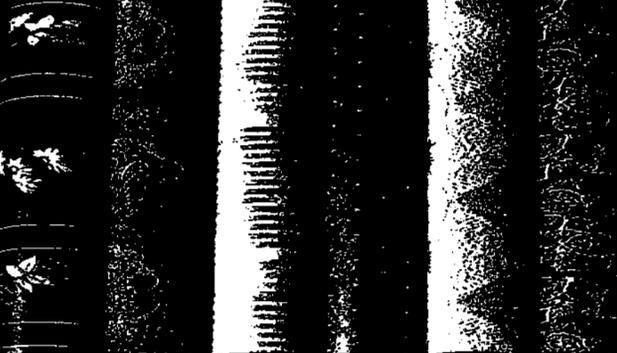

A public hearing on the new rules has been scheduled for 9 a.m. on Thursday, Dec. 12 at Morgan Hall of the State Land Office, which is located at 310 Old Santa Fe Trail in Santa Fe. Copies of the proposed rules are available by contacting the Alcohol and Gaming Division, 725 St. Michael's Drive, Santa Fe, N.M., 87501. The telephone number is 827-7066.

Airplane veers off runway during Ruidoso landing

A single-engine aircraft flying into Ruidoso from Texas Sunday veered off the runway and ended up in a ditch, police say.

Neither the pilot, Arthur Lee Daniel, Jr. or his wife Sarah were injured in the morning mishap, which airport personnel are calling an incident and not a crash.

However, the 21-year-old plane sustained substantial damage to its nose and landing gear, said Sierra Blanca Regional Airport Manager Tim Morris.

Daniel, an El Paso resident, told police that recently he'd been experiencing trouble with the aircraft's landing gear, Morris said.

Crosswinds at the time of the incident were between 10 mph and 28 mph, Morris said.

"So, it could have been a combination of the crosswind and the landing gear," Morris added.

The four-seater Bellanca Super Viking aircraft was just touching down at the mesquite airport when it started veering off to the south of the runway. The plane left the tarmac, traveled about 650 feet, veered back over onto the runway, traveled across it and back off before stopping in a ditch, Morris said.

"We've had several incidents like this involving crosswinds," Morris said, "but generally, they're able to get back on the runway."

Plans are in the works to construct a crosswind runway, a federal, state and local project which should eliminate difficult landings when there's heavy crosswinds. Construction should begin in 1998, after an environmental impact report is cleared by the Federal Aviation Administration, Morris said.

Six planes have crashed at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport since it first opened in 1988. The crashes involved six fatalities and several injuries, but none of them were due to crosswinds, Morris said.

The last crash was in 1994, he said.

Hydrant not broken during fire, official says

Rumors about faulty village fire hydrants near a Flume Canyon house fire are not true, a village official says.

The rumors suggested the hydrants were not working, enabling the fire to destroy the house Oct. 22.

One of the hydrants had to be turned on, but it took less than a minute, Water Department Manager Richard Sanchez said.

The hydrant's flow was strong, but several days later it was found to be leaking and so it was replaced, he said.

When drought isn't a concern in Ruidoso, all the village fire hydrants are tested by the water and fire departments for potential problems, Assistant Village Manager Alan Briley said. The comprehensive pressure and volume testing is done about every two years, primarily in the winter.

However, this intense testing hasn't been done in about three years because of the drought, Sanchez said. The pressure testing uses up to 60,000 gallons of water per hydrant.

During the drought, hydrants have been randomly "exercised" throughout the year to make sure they work and to clear sediment out of lines, Sanchez said.

The comprehensive pressure testing won't start again until the village moves into the moderate phase 2 of its water contingency plan, Briley said.

Recent tests of some of the village's approximately 600 hydrants revealed 40 hydrants that weren't working properly, Sanchez said.

Six of the hydrants had to be replaced and the other four, which leaked or had broken stems, were fixed.

Those hydrants were at Third and D streets; Rio Arriba and Mechem Drive; Leon Farrar Drive and University; Cuervo and University; Snowcap Drive; Harvard Place and Parr Drive; Flume Canyon and Black Forest; Begonia Road and Sudderth Drive; Hickory Drive and Sudderth Drive, and Begonia Road.

An order was just placed for 80 more hydrants to keep on hand at the water department so faulty ones can be replaced quickly.

drunk with a gun and you don't have anything, words can lead to something else," he said.

With only two game wardens in the county, more than three million acres and only five small towns, stretched thin is an understatement, he said, adding that the officers tend to concentrate in problem areas like Corona.

"I called the cellular phone of our local guy, but he was busy," Hightower said. "I called the sheriff's department, but didn't get any response until the next morning when the game warden called to see if everything was all right."

By then, the situation was over, Hightower said. Game Warden Ron Moore said most of the hunters he cites for offenses have licenses. One of the most serious problems is hunters firing their rifles in town. In one recent incidence, someone killed two deer just off Mechem Drive across from a commercial area.

Sometimes Hightower receives help from hunters he allows to use his land.

"I've got 72 sections of land and 65% of it is private land," Hightower said. "The hunters I lease to encounter people coming over the fence and run them out."

Locals know a few extra twists, Hightower said.

He's been lucky to lose only one cow to a hunter's bullet, Hightower said. One of his neighbor's cows was shot and partially butchered this year, he said.

Although the sheriff's office didn't have a compilation of the number of citations issued for hunting-related offenses, Undersheriff Bob Miller said the number of incidents is about the same as in past years.

More calls may be coming in because more land has been developed in the county and there are homes interspersed with pastures and fields, Miller said.

"Some of the old, large ranches have been broken up and people are guarding their property," he said. "They're more aware."

"We pick up a lot of calls from the game department, because they're short-handed."

Schools examine health education

by PAMELA CROWWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Lincoln County and Mescalero schools are considering a new, grassroots approach to health education that will allow local communities to decide how to help children become healthy adults.

Today's children are the unhealthiest generation the United States has ever seen, according to the National Center for Disease Control. Conditions such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol and obesity are becoming common in young children, the experts said.

The problem lies in poor lifestyles, cutting away physical activity, and unhealthy diets, said Wanda Gielow de Figueroa, clinical nurse specialist and coordinator of the local Maternal Child Health Planning Council.

"There is a larger incidence of high blood pressure in children. Autopsies on children show high plaque build-up on the arteries," Figueroa said.

Figueroa is introducing local schools to the grassroots health education model called Healthier Schools. She is also uniting the area's school districts to get funding from the state Department of Health to do a Benson Asset Survey.

Originating in Minnesota, this survey is a standardized test for 6th-12th graders that shows the healthy and unhealthy aspects of a child's lifestyle.

"It looks at assets instead of deficiencies, so we can build on our strengths," Figueroa said.

Developed by the Center for Disease Control, the Healthier Schools model reinforces the healthy aspects of children's lives and corrects the unhealthy ones, Figueroa said.

"It's looking at key components that will make healthier adults," she said. "This is just as important as reading and writing, because without health skills, these kids will be too sick to benefit from reading and writing."

Healthier Schools and the Benson Survey were piloted in New Mexico last year in Truth or Consequences, Silver City, Mora and other communities when the State Department of Education adopted the model. They chose Healthier Schools to empower local school districts to control their own health education curriculum.

Health education in Lincoln County and Mescalero is hit and miss right now, Figueroa said. Because there is no "health curriculum" for teachers to follow, a student can go through many grades and not get much health instruction, she said.

"The concern is that the state will start mandating what has to be taught," Figueroa said. "The Healthier Schools model puts the decisions in the hands of the community."

The yucca plant is the model's symbol, Figueroa said. The roots are parents and community members; the leaves are the components of health education; and the blossom is the student.

Along with the Benson Survey, Healthier Schools allows individual communities to focus on what's important to them in health education. One school district may focus on firearms safety, while another may focus on sex education.

The Benson Asset Survey lists 40 assets that help a child stay healthy. Questions on the survey include: How many times do you eat dinner with your family? Can you list five other adults you can talk to about a problem?

With at least 30 assets, a child is less likely to smoke, drink, have unprotected sex, or risk his/her health in other ways, according to the Benson Survey. Benson surveyed 1,000 communities across the nation and found that most American children have only 16 assets.

"We want to look at what we can do to develop assets," Figueroa said. "Benson gives ideas based on survey results. We have brochures on how the community and church can help."

Colorado officials are so impressed with the Benson Asset Survey they are having every 6th-12th grader in the state take the Benson survey this year. The survey is expensive, though Figueroa has been told how much it will cost to survey Lincoln County and Mescalero. Colorado's funding comes out of its Department of Education, but Figueroa is asking New Mexico's Department of Health for $15,000 for the Lincoln County/Mescalero survey.

The Albuquerque and Roswell school districts paid for this survey out of their own pockets last year, Figueroa said. So far, Roswell has gotten its preliminary results from Benson, and Albuquerque is taking its final results into the community.

"I'm getting all the districts (in Lincoln County and Mescalero) together because getting group support improves our chances of getting the money," Figueroa said.

Figueroa is confident the schools will receive the grant. Mescalero and all Lincoln County school districts have approved or are in the process of approving the Healthier Schools model and the Benson Asset Survey.

"Within a year's time, we can guarantee that all our children will be learning specific topics in health care," Figueroa said.

Ruidoso High School currently has a mandatory health/life skills course established last year.

While the Department of Health grant will probably cover the expense of the Benson Survey, implementing a health curriculum will be up to each school district.

"It may not be expensive," Figueroa said. "It may just be a case of identifying curriculum needs, maybe shuffling health educators."

The schools could partially pay for teachers and materials through Medicaid reimbursement, Figueroa said.

Capitan pilots model for area's Healthier Schools

The Capitan School District is the first in Lincoln County to explore Healthier Schools, a model designed to allow local communities to control how children are educated about health.

Wanda Gielow de Figueroa, coordinator of the Maternal Child Health Planning Council, used the Capitan School District last year to test how well Healthier Schools would go over in Lincoln County. She formed a health education committee of parents, school administrators, church leaders, school nurses, and other community members.

The committee asked students, parents, and teachers what they need and want in a K-12 health curriculum, creating guidelines for teachers. Allowing a community to decide for itself how to teach its children has powerful implications when it comes to touchy issues like sex and drug education, Figueroa said.

The Capitan committee was at first adamantly opposed to sex education in the schools, believing parents alone should handle that, she said. After discussion and previewing a video on sex education, though, the committee endorsed a sex education program in the classroom.

"This is a grassroots movement," Figueroa said. "It's trying to get local people to take charge of their lives."

Capitan's churches are closely involved with the health education committee, Figueroa said. The Healthier Schools model takes an aspect of a child's world, including the school, the church, and family discussions at the dinner table.

Santa Coach is coming to town

Santa Claus is coming to town Friday Dec. 6, and will be on hand at 6-7 p.m. at the Ruidoso High School gym to pose for photos and listen to wish lists.

High school cheerleaders say their "Santa Coach" may bear a strong resemblance to high school coach Les Carter. They got Santa to help them raise money for their trip to National Competition Dec. 27.

Pictures with Santa cost $5 each, and lap-sitters may want to hang around for the Warriors basketball games immediately following.

Cloudfcroft schools purchase forestland

by PAMELA CROWWELL
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

The U.S. Forest Service has denied an appeal of the sale of forestland to the Cloudfcroft School District. The citizen's group that filed the appeal may now take its case to court in a lawsuit.

Despite public protest, the Cloudfcroft School District is buying 40 acres of the Lincoln National Forest for $214,000. A new high school and supporting facilities will be constructed on the site.

After considering the Friends of the Forest appeal, public comments, and administrative recommendations, the Washington Office of the USDA Forest Service upheld the regional office's decision to sell the land.

Janice McDougle found the land exchange to be "reasonable and consistent with policy, regulation and law," she said.

The Cloudfcroft Schools originally requested a "land exchange" with the Forest Service in 1988, and more than 800 protests have been filed with the Forest Service since that time, said 12-year Cloudfcroft resident Mitzie Brownfield.

Brownfield's name was used on the official appeal made by a citizens group called Friends of the Forest when the Forest Service agreed in October to sell 40 acres known as Sunshine Valley. The group of 33 citizens oppose the sale, and recently collected about 300 signatures petitioning the Forest Service to decline the school district's offer.

The property is part of Cloudfcroft's greenbelt southwest of town.

Friends of the Forest and other citizens, both residents and non-residents of Cloudfcroft, opposed the sale of Sunshine Valley for several reasons, including:

- the location would trap students at the new school if there was a forest fire;

- building the school would require clearcutting old growth trees;

- the expense of purchasing the land, clearcutting trees and installing water and sewer lines may be unnecessary because of other options available through the village of Cloudfcroft and the Forest Service;

- and as part of Cloudfcroft's greenbelt, Sunshine Valley helped protect the village from overdevelopment.

Though the Forest Service refers to the transaction as a "land exchange," the 40 acres of forestland will be traded for cash instead of non-federal land, said Lands Staff Officer Johnny Wilson.

Friends of the Forest consider that action illegal, and will probably file a lawsuit, said Jim Flynn, the group's leader.

"The law says public land can't be sold," Flynn said. "We'll see what the judge has to say."

Forest officials expect to complete the exchange by the end of December, with the Cloudfcroft schools taking possession at that time.

Flynn believes the Forest Service and the Cloudfcroft School Board have ignored the direction of the public they are supposed to serve. School board members have made up their minds and proceeded without paying heed to public outcry, Flynn said.

"A public body (the school board) has taken the bit in its teeth," Flynn said.

School officials could not be reached for comment by press time.

Flynn is mobilizing the Friends of the Forest to raise money for taking their fight to court. Anyone interested in contributing to their cause may send a donation to: P.O. Box 870, Cloudfcroft, NM 88317.

History teachers invited to apply for free institute

History teachers can attend a two-week summer institute on New Mexico history and The New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities (NMEH) will pick up the bill.

Teachers of the state's history or those who include it as a significant part of another class are invited to apply for sponsorship to the June 1997 residential institute. Applications are due March 1, 1997.

Plans are underway to make the summer institute a regular feature of NMEH's program in an effort to promote public understanding of the humanities in the state.

"The institute is designed to improve the way we educate our youth about the history of our state. This is especially important in a state where events from past decades, even centuries, impact our lives on a daily basis," NMEH's acting director Craig Newhill said.

Teachers will update and improve their own understanding of New Mexico history, then translate it into curriculum and activities that can be used in their classrooms, Newhill said. Teachers may share ideas, concerns and solutions with their colleagues and participating scholars.

The New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities is a public, non-profit organization which supports humanities programs throughout New Mexico. NMEH conducts some programs directly, such as teachers institutes, lectures and Chautauqua presentations, plus many others through grants to community organizations to conduct humanities programs. The institute is supported by grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and by the Marshall L. & Perrine D. McCune Charitable Foundation. For more information about NMEH or to receive an application for the teachers institute, call NMEH at (505) 277-3705.

I hope everyone had a very good Thanksgiving Day. We spent the holiday at the home of our daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. David Coleman of Portland, Texas. Their children, Patricia of Dallas, Scott of Portland, and Daniel, who is a student at Texas A&M in College Station, Texas, joined us.

I have had a time getting back to writing this column. First we had our computer updated, then the printer went on the blink, and somewhere along the way I seemed to be going so much.

As many of you know by this time, we spent three weeks in New Zealand and had a wonderful trip. We met so many friendly people and saw so much of the country. One of the highlights of the trip was the Farm B&B, a visit to a sheep farm where they were shearing. We had a grand tour of the Ashford Spinning Wheel facilities, then on to Tasman Woools near Dunedin in the southern half of New Zealand. While there we stayed in the only castle in New Zealand. What a fantastic view and the only beautiful sunrise we saw — and my pictures didn't come out! It took two different trips but we did get to see the albatross and the different penguins and seals with their babies.

Lincoln Trails

The Lincoln Preservation Board finally had all their members present and were able to elect their officers: President Frances Gallegos, Vice President C.J. Strickling, and Secretary John McGrath.

The Lincoln Pageant group elected new officers recently at its meeting in Captain: President Kent McInnis, Vice President Kent Martin, Secretary Laura McInnis and Treasurer Rosalie Dunlap.

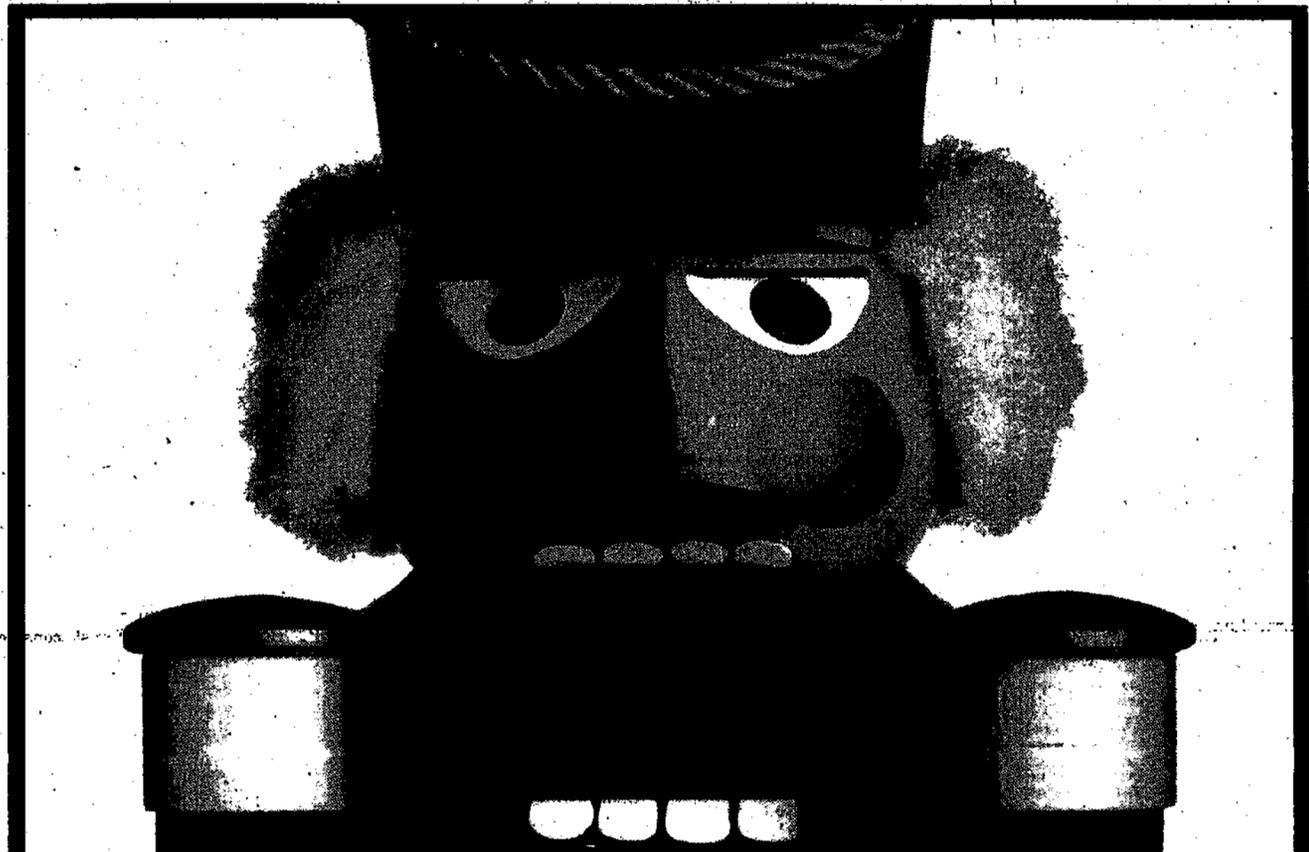

The Lincoln County Historical Society held its annual meeting at the San Juan's Church. Paul Hutton was the guest speaker. Its members also elected new officers: President David Martinez, Vice President Stan Monks, Treasurer Bill McCutchen and Secretary Kathleen Guzeika.

Several Lincoln County FCE members attended the state meeting held in Tucuman. Phyllis Zumbach was elected president of the District 4 area. Congratulations. Now that she has retired from the Post Office she is back to being our good member of the FCE organization.

Twelve members of the Lincoln County FCE journeyed to Artesia recently where they held their County Council meeting at the La Florida Mexican Restaurant. Following the luncheon meeting, they visited the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center. Howard Goetch, the program coordinator and senior instructor, took the ladies on a 2.5-hour tour of the facility, explaining that our tax money was paying for it. After showing them a film, they toured the computer room, classrooms, store, cafeteria and exercise room. They also toured the driving range and other training areas for the men and women students.

Our sympathies to the family of George Shanks, who passed away recently. He was 103 years old. He was among the first sheep ranchers Ralph met when he came to Lincoln County in 1952.

We have had some moisture the past week but we can use some more.

LINCOLN COUNTY SCRAPBOOK

A glimpse into Lincoln County's past, compiled from local newspapers by Polly E. Chavez.

Ruidoso News December 6, 1946

The practice of thoughtless visitors to the Ruidoso Canyon at the present pre-Yule season in cutting down evergreens from the grounds of absent cabin owners this week brought a protest from C.C. Chase, local agent for the Ruidoso Realty Company.

Two prizes, $10 for the first place and $5 for second place, are being offered by the Ruidoso Lions Club to residents of Ruidoso for the most attractively decorated home for the Christmas season.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bennett of Seminole, Texas have recently moved to Ruidoso for the winter and will return to Seminole in the spring.

Ruidoso's annual municipal Christmas tree was raised this week at the corner of Main and Center streets in front of Clark's Tailor Shop by the Ruidoso Village Board of Trustees.

FRIDAY, NOV. 8 A teenager new to Ruidoso was arrested for possession of cocaine and less than an ounce of marijuana after he was seen driving recklessly on Crown Drive, police said.

Officers found about a half-gram of cocaine in the 17-year-old's front shirt pocket and a small amount of marijuana in the glove compartment, police said.

The D Street resident was turned over to juvenile probation authorities in Otero County, police said.

MONDAY, NOV. 18

A Ruidoso man reported his 13-year-old God-daughter stole about $1,300 of jewelry when staying at his San Miguel Drive home this summer, police said.

Hazim Khazal, owner of Zim's Cafe, said the girl had left early from her summer stay back to Austin, Texas. When he and his wife noticed the missing items, they contacted the suspect and were told she only took one piece of jewelry which she said her mom pawned at a shop for her, police said.

A Park Canyon home owned by El Paso, Texas residents was found burglarized by police after a street department worker reported the front door of the house was open. Police said drawers and cabinets in each of the rooms had been searched. They contacted the homeowners, Dick and Sally DeBruyn, who said they would inventory the home.

About two houses away police found another residence that had been entered and searched. Like the neighboring house, this one was also entered after the burglars broke a window, police said.

Art's in the blood of Alice Warder Seely

By DIANNE STALLINGS
Ruidoso News Staff Writer

Her art is a mixture of mystery, folklore, symbolism and abstract design, whether it's on canvas, in clay or imprinted on a piece of jewelry.

Alice Warder Seely always has known she was an artist. What she could happen when her father and mother, father are painters and your mother is a sculptor?

Seely's youngest brother is Tom, a sculptor. Tony Abeyta, two sisters are sculptors; one also is liaison between the U.S. Congress and the American Indian Museum of the Smithsonian.

"The others are as gifted, but use art in other ways," Seely said of the rest of her 10 brothers and sisters.

Seely's unique view of life, expressed in combinations of the traditional and modern, will be on view during the Lincoln County Art Loop, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 14-15.

The 100-year-old adobe home she shares with former psychologist-management consultant-store owner David Hall in Hondo Valley is a piece of art itself. Intriguing masks, sculptures, paintings and other items collected by the twosome reveal their preference for stimulating color and patterns.

They formed their alliance in 1992 after being apart for 30 years. They grew up together in Santa Fe and dated in high school, but their lives diverged when Hall attended the New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell, then pursued advanced degrees in psychology at Princeton University and the University of Chicago. He eventually returned to New Mexico and operated The Outlaw Furniture Store in Santa Fe.

His major role now is "artist's helper," Hall said.

Creative years

Her environment as a child was nurturing, Seely said. Raised by her grandmother, material always was available for her to draw and express herself. Seely was asked by a teacher to paint murals around the walls of a classroom in 4th grade, won a design contest in 5th grade and then learned how to silk screen, creating a dress for her mother.

"I used the same design on one of my best selling pieces of jewelry," Seely said.

She quickly moved into oil painting, leather and jewelry and found Seely based this sculpture on Indian folklore.

"I think this place is a lot like Santa Fe while we were growing up. It's a wonderful mixture of Hispanic and other cultures."

a receptive audience for her work in a circle of adults before she was out of school.

She also was exposed to talented and interesting people "collected" by her grandmother and who frequented their home.

Striking with dark eyes and hair, she posed for several artists as a child and they welcomed her into their studios for visits.

After one semester at the University of New Mexico, Seely married and had three children.

The children liked having an artist-mother, but for selfish reasons, she said.

"They were the last to be called in at night, if I was busy," Seely said. "And if I was working on a painting and they asked if they could do something, I'd just (agree)," Seely said.

At the age of 21, Seely started to show her work seriously and sold her first silk screen. She began attending art and crafts shows, including one of the first in Ruidoso, where she camped out with many of the 50 artists showing and earned about $7.25.

Once she committed to art, she threw herself into learning it all, trying watercolor and egg tempera, creating retablos (altar pieces), tackling metal embossing and even experimenting with plastic explosives as an art form at New Mexico Tech.

"The program gave the school national recognition," she said. Seely had an urge to work in three dimensions and turned to clay, turning out figures inspired by Indian folklore. Her fascination with legends extends to her art today.

A painting based on a story about a young couple in Arabela who died in a tornado on their wedding day hangs in her dining room.

"I also sold my line of silk screen clothing for four years," she said.

"When I was on the verge of being so busy I would have to go into manufacturing, I slowed it down.

"David later came up with the idea of using the silk screen design on boxes and lacing the corners. We did that for a couple of years."

But after they were featured in an article in New Mexico Magazine, they were inundated with orders and they stopped advertising.

Jewelry current focus

But in recent years, Seely's jewelry has become the new focus.

Winter storm improves conditions at Ski Apache

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Nearly two feet of natural snow from a two-day winter storm has covered Ski Apache's bare spots, adding base to the ski slopes and libido to skiers' psyches.

"It was just great. We can't complain," Ski Apache official Riker Davis said of the Friday/Saturday storm which delivered 23 inches of snow to the ski area. "After we got that storm, it looked like a winter wonderland up here."

Nearly 4,000 skiers took to the slopes over the four-day holiday weekend — a bit more than two years ago when the mountain opened under similar conditions.

Ski area officials have reported a snow base that ranges from 28 to 45 inches on open trails. Chair lift 7 and three runs off of it opened Monday, bringing the total number of lifts operating to six of 11 and the number of open trails from seven to 10. Chair 7 Lifeline, Lower Moonshine and Lower Sierra Blanca trails opened Monday. Lower Moonshine and Lower Sierra Blanca trails are green or beginner runs, while the Chair 7 Lifeline trail is an intermediate run.

Snowmaking efforts will continue as long as necessary, Davis said. The crews have moved the area's 55 snow guns to the Elk Ridge runs. Manmade snow is being spewed on Elk Ridge, Bull Run and Elk Ridge lifeline trails.

SKI REPORT

New Snow: 23 inches on Friday and Saturday
Snow base: Varies from 28 to 45 inches on trails open Conditions: Excellent on machine groomed and packed powder surfaces.
Number of trails open: 10 of 55
Number of lifts: Six of 11
Chair 2 to midway and Chairs 3, 4, 5 and 7.

"They will work as long as necessary to provide the best conditions as possible on the lower third, where we have our snowmaking capabilities," Davis said of the snowmaking crews' efforts.

While the snowmaking crews are busy on Chair 8 trails, the ski area's grooming teams are doing all they can to preserve the natural snow on all the mountain's trails. Snowcats groom not only the open runs, but also the upper mountain trails in an effort to maintain the growing base on those trails.

"The grooming crews have spent hours packing down every flake so we don't lose any to the wind," Davis said.

Ski Apache will continue to offer discount lift tickets for adults and children until more lifts and trails are open. The discount adult lift ticket costs $30, children's lift tickets are $20. Half-day lift tickets are $20 for skiing from 1 to 4 p.m.

Bears spoil Warrior girls' opener

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

The Ruidoso girls basketball team found itself in a fog of sorts during its season opener in Cloudcroft, Tuesday, Nov. 26.

It wasn't the kind of fog that has you white-knuckled and leaning over the steering wheel going 15 miles per hour.

It was a mental fog that translated into poor offensive execution and a meager five-for-21 performance from the free-throw line for the Warriors.

When the fog lifted, Ruidoso found itself on the short end of a 52-39 decision to the host Bears.

"We made some mental mistakes — we didn't execute our offense — and then we just got outthusted," said second-year Warrior coach Dwayne Rogers. "We weren't mentally prepared."

Rogers accepted responsibility for not readying the Warriors, and he promised it won't happen again.

Perhaps both Rogers and his Warriors walked into the Bears' gym a bit overconfident. After all, this was a team Ruidoso had defeated twice during summer leagues.

"We made some mental mistakes — we didn't execute our offense — and then we just got outthusted."

RUIDOSO GIRLS BASKETBALL COACH

The Bears didn't let it become three straight Tuesday evenings.

After a nearly even first quarter, Cloudcroft outscored Ruidoso 16-4 in the second eight minutes to take a 28-14 halftime lead. The Bears scored 12 of their 16 second-period points from the charity stripe, hitting 12-of-22 free throws.

The Warriors trimmed the lead a bit in the third quarter, outscoring Cloudcroft 15-9. But when Ruidoso needed to be sharp, it wasn't.

In the fourth quarter alone, the Warriors missed 12-of-16 free throws. Meanwhile the Bears converted seven-

Elida thankful for Tiger miscues

□ Inexperienced Tiger boys squander chance for victory

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

Capitan's young Tiger boys basketball flirted and flirted with victory, but couldn't steal a kiss or even a basketball game last Wednesday.

The Tigers had a half-dozen opportunities to win their season-opener with Elida, but their missed free throws, errant shots and mental blips gave Elida something to be thankful for on the day before Thanksgiving.

"Our lack of experience stepped in. We didn't do a good job of taking care of the ball down the stretch. That's just a lack of experience," said second-year Tiger coach Gerald Montes.

Capitan held an eight-point lead with five minutes to go, but squandered it as the clock wound down. Then the Tigers froze at the free-throw line, hitting just 18-of-40 charity shots for the game including 11-of-23 in the fourth period.

The final minute of the game provided enough excitement to last a season. With the Tigers leading 67-66, a scuffle among the players from both teams broke out with 34 seconds to go. It resulted in double technical fouls and possession to Elida. The home team scored for a 68-67 lead.

Capitan then had its chances — six of them, to be exact. Junior post player Kris Davis missed a shot for the lead. The Tigers snagged the rebound, but missed their next attempt as well. Capitan stole the ball twice and still couldn't put the biscuit in the basket.

Finally, junior Jason Montes was fouled and stepped to the free-throw line for two foul shots with a couple of ticks on the clock. Montes came up empty on both attempts.

The Tigers gained inside rebounding position on the missed free throw. Two more Capitan tip-ins didn't find the mark, and the buzzer sounded to end the Tigers' efforts and the game.

Montes wasn't disappointed with his young team's performance, especially considering the Tigers' lack of experience. Senior guard-forward Cody Turnbow is Montes' only returning varsity letterwinner from last year's 11-13 team.

"I was pleased with our performance. Our shooting was off, but I expected that," Montes said.

Capitan overwhelmed by Elida post duo

by LAURA CLYMER
Ruidoso News Sports Writer

A powerful inside game proved too much for the Tigers, who fell 79-33 to Elida in their season-opener Wednesday, Nov. 26.

Elida's Abby Orcutt, a 6-foot post player, scored 23 points to lead the home team. Orcutt also roamed the perimeter for some of her points, causing fits for Dionne Lewis' Tigers. Orcutt's teammate Kendra Dixon added 15 from her post position.

Capitan got in early foul trouble against the taller Elida players, who took advantage of the Tigers' depleted numbers in the post. That took the Tigers out of their press and man-to-man defenses.

Lewis is missing senior forward Mandi Aldaz and junior guard-forward Coye Robbins.

Both are sidelined indefinitely with leg injuries.

The Tigers struggled on the offensive end, committing 30 turnovers.

"We just haven't been passing well," said Lewis, the Tigers' first-year coach. "We were running away from the passes and not stepping to the pass. But we're working on that and we're getting better."

When Capitan did pass well, the Tigers converted. The Orange and Black shot a nifty 59% from two-point range and 50% overall.

"They hustled so well. They never gave up," Lewis said of her team's efforts. "Hustling is good but we've got to get aggressive with it."

The Tigers return to action for the three-day Roadrunner Tournament starting Thursday.

Capitan plays Fort Sumner at 2:30 p.m. in a first-round game.

Facing the talented teams at the Roadrunner Tourney should help the Tigers, Lewis said.

"It's going to be pretty tough competition, which is what we need before district play," she added. The Tigers enter the tourney with a 0-1 record.

An example of Seely's jewelry. Much of it is quite affordable.

Seely in the living room of her 100-year-old adobe home near the Rio Hondo.

Seely

"I write things about the jewelry (on cards backing each piece) and this place is inspirational for that, being down by the river," Seely said. The "things" vary from observations about life or the particular design to short poems.

The couple attends several shows each year, ranging from straight art shows for Seely's clay figures and paintings to those specializing in jewelry and some wholesale. They use the Internet, mail orders and every type of quick delivery service to maintain the private and quiet lifestyle they have created since moving to Hondo Valley in 1994.

"I think this place is a lot like Santa Fe while we were growing up," Hall said. "It's a wonderful mixture of Hispanic and other cultures."

Seely continues to pull from scenes of the local culture. San Juan College is buying a painting the artist based on a haunting scene of sadness she witnessed in a nearby orchard after a man died accidentally by electrocution.

She also was involved in a public art project to create a mural at the Alameda Senior Citizens Center. Seely's work is shown in galleries in Scottsdale and Tucson, Ariz., Florida and Michigan.

To contact Seely, call (505) 653-4602. To find her studio from Ruidoso, go east on U.S. 70 to mile marker 284 and turn south. Continue east on the side road to E015, marked by a church and a set of dumpsters. Turn south on E015, cross the river, turn left at the "Y" and go about three-quarters of a mile, just past the sign noting the end of county road maintenance.

Seely at work at her jewelry work table, which will be open to the public during the Lincoln County Art Loop Dec. 14-15.

Pain may be eliminated for millions
 (SPECIAL) - A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work or your money back.

Hopi is a 5-month-old American Staffordshire terrier mix. She's vibrant and sweet. She loves children, gets along with cats and all other animals she's been exposed to — she's a real keeper.

Bella is a fitting name for this gorgeous 1-year-old Hungarian Vizsla with heart-breaking "fawn" eyes. She's gentle, eager to please and well-mannered. Her coat is a rich light strawberry.

(this pix above was taken with dog in jim's arms. May be hard to tell the two apart without color. both short-haired.)

(this pix was taken with dog sitting on the ground. She has a narrower face.)

If you enjoy watching birds feed, but like to mix homemade or alternative treats for feathered friends, the Humane Society of the United States offered some tips.

Experiment with a variety of feeder foods to attract the greatest diversity of bird life to your backyard, society officials recommend.

Suet is a high-energy pure fat substance preferred by birds whose normal winter diet includes insects, spiders and insect eggs and larvae such as woodpeckers, nuthatches, wrens and chickadees.

Occasional suet eaters are bluejays, pine siskins, titmice, cardinals and starlings,

It's beneficial in winter when insects are scarce and birds require more calories to keep warm.

Raw suet spoils quickly in warm weather, so use it only when it's cold.

Commercially rendered suet needs no refrigeration and will not spoil. But in the summer, they should be hung in shaded spots to prevent melting (at 95 degrees).

Special suet hanger with plastic covered wire and feeders without metal staples will prevent injury to birds' legs.

Peanuts and peanut butter also are high-energy fatty food.

The peanut in shells will attract larger birds and shelled variety will appeal to smaller birds.

Almost all of the birds mentioned will feast on peanut butter if it's offered, but some people worry the birds may choke or suffocate from eating the thick, sticky food.

Birds may have difficulty swallowing peanut butter since they don't have salivary glands. Help them out by adding lard, cornmeal and/grit to the peanut butter. Also, give them fresh, clean drinking water. Special feeders of steel can be purchased designed for peanut butter mixtures.

Fruit also can lure species that normally wouldn't visit a seed feeder.

When natural berries are gone and severe weather sets in, dried fruit from supermarkets can be used to supplement the winter diet. Raisins, prunes or currants are more readily accepted by birds is soaked first in warm water, cut into smaller pieces and spread out on a screen platform feeder.

A shallow bird bath or bowl is more likely to attract birds and less likely to harm them.

Keep it free of ice in the winter. NEVER put anti-freeze in a birdbath. It is lethal to wildlife. Once a week, clean the container with a 5-10% bleach to water solution. Give fresh water every day.

Insurance Coverage For Vision Services

Primary, secondary, HMO, PPO...do you know if your insurance plan covers vision service? There are as many different insurance plans as insurance companies. Many insurance plans cover some aspect of vision care. Emergency services as well as diagnosis and treatment of eye diseases are covered by most major medical plans. However, these plans such as BCBS and Medicare usually require that annual deductibles to be met before services are covered. Other plans require a co-payment at the time of the visit. Still others may require a referral from your primary care physician. Your insurance plan may cover services and/or materials based on a calendar year or they may be covered on a 12 or 24 month basis. Do you know how your insurance plan works?

Routine eye examinations and glasses or contact lenses are usually covered on a limited basis by a specific vision services plan. This may include a maximum allowable fee for each covered item, such as frames and lenses, or global coverage for services and materials such as for contact lenses. Some insurance companies which may include vision services are BCBS, The Prudential, Presbyterian Health Plan, UFCW, CIGNA and Brokerage Services as well as Medicaid and Medicare.

To find out more about your insurance plan's allowable vision care services and materials you can call the 1-800 number for benefits on your insurance card or call FAMILY VISION CENTER at 257-5029 and our staff will be happy to assist you.

A World of National Geographic

Specials

Polar Bear Alert

For six to eight weeks a year, the largest polar bear migration on earth passes through Churchill, Manitoba. The tiny town is overrun by aggressive polar bears who raid the local dump, go marauding door-to-door, and wreak havoc on their annual journey north. While the town's residents do their best to cope with the invasion, scientists are provided an optimal opportunity to observe polar bear behavior.

Churchill's efforts to deal with — and protect — their annual visitors are the subject of Polar Bear Alert — A World of National Geographic Special airing Wednesday, December 4th at 7:00 p.m.

The Great Whales

Immediately following is another World of National Geographic Special — The Great Whales. In this era of Free Willy and California whale-watching, the perception of whales as monsters of the deep seems remote.

For centuries, the harpooning and harvesting of whales interested people more than the whales themselves. It is estimated that 100,000 humpback whales once roamed the seas. Now only 5,000 remain.

The heroism of the biologists and environmentalists who have emerged since the early 1960s are the heart of The Great Whales, but it is the whales, singing and splashing, who are the soul of the program.

The Great Whales — A World of National Geographic Special will air on December 4th at 8:00 p.m.

Media Literacy:

The New Basic?

Tuesday, 3rd, 10:00 p.m.

Television journalists Walter Cronkite and Hugh Downs, students, teachers, and leading media educators from across the United States join host John Merrow in this special that challenges American educators to help young people learn to navigate the sea of messages flooding into their lives through TV, movies, radio, music, video games, newspapers, magazines, billboards, logos, and more.

Channel 3 Television from Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, New Mexico
