Ed Hyman, radio personality and station owner, dies

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Former Ruidoso radio station owner Edward D. Hyman, 75, died of cancer Sunday at his home in Ruidoso.

A service of celebration for the longtime resident is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Saturday at the Museum of the Horse with Rev. Harry Riser officiating.

Born May 9, 1922, in Minneapolis, Hyman became a radio announcer while still in high school. He later worked for KONO and WOAI television stations in San Antonio.

For seven years, he hosted a morning show that was the highest rated locally produced television show in the country. A few years after moving to Ruidoso 33 years ago, he and his wife, Marion, purchased KRRR radio station in Ruidoso.

Hyman also was past president of the Associated Press and was a card carrying member of the Screen Actors Guild. His voice became familiar to Lincoln County locals and communities in Texas during his years announcing race action and results at Ruidoso Downs. More recently, he did radio and television promotions for On Track Inc., based in Ruidoso.

Hyman's work in radio and television focused on the promotion of his home communities. That dedication also extended into his private life. He was a member of the Ruidoso Evening Lions, chairman of the Ruidoso Lodgers Tax Committee, served on the board of directors for the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce and was a member of the New Mexico Horseman's Association, as well as the owner of a successful race horse.

During World War II, Hyman flew with the 357 flight squadron and was the last pilot to land in the European Theater. He was discharged as a major. He married Marion Miller on March 6, 1948, in San Antonio, Texas.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Nita Garland and her husband Don La Cruces and Karen Hyman of Fullerton, Calif.; a son, Mike

Mescaleros fail to pay gaming fees

• Tribe is one of two not paying the state required revenue shares.

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF REPORTS

The Mescalero is one of only two gaming tribes not to send the state money as required by new gambling legislation, according to state officials.

"We have not received a payment from the Mescalero tribe yet," said H.L. Lovato, a spokesperson for the New Mexico State Treasurer's Office, on Tuesday afternoon.

Neither tribal President Wendell Chino nor other Mescalero representatives could be reached for comment Tuesday.

According to the new gambling legislation, gaming tribes are required to hand over regulatory fees as well as 16 percent of their revenue from gaming machines each quarter.

The legislation went into effect Aug. 29, and Sept. 30 was the end of the quarter, so the tribes' payments represent only 33 days of revenue, Lovato said. The total revenue share submitted Monday by tribes amounted to almost $2.8 million.

Tribal officials as well as Gov. Gary Johnson have said the 16 percent revenue share is too high. When the Mescalero signed a gaming compact with the state in July, Chino said it was done under protest because of the terms dictated by the Legislature. He described the 16 percent rev-

School enrollment slips, but funding may be OK

BY JULIE BAXTER
RUIDOSO NEWS EDUCATION WRITER

Enrollment in Ruidoso schools is down from the 1996-97 school year, but the news isn't as bad as district officials had originally feared.

Oct. 15 marked the "40th day" in the district — the day when student enrollment is tallied to determine the amount of state funding.

In September, the picture looked bleak. Preliminary counts showed the district's enrollment down 33 students from last year's funded enrollment of 2,394. That 33-student decline was also significantly lower than the numbers the district had projected when building its budget this spring.

In terms of state dollars, that loss of students could have added up to more than $400,000. But after all the numbers were totaled, the district only found itself with an 11-student deficit from last year's funded enrollment. In dollars, the deficit adds up to $21,649.

Caron Snow, district business administrator, said the monetary loss of projected students was lessened by an increase in need for ancillary services. Snow said ancillary services include employees such as physical therapists, occupational therapists and speech therapists.

"Those kinds of needs have been identified and increased our units as of the 40th day," Snow said.

Units are what state funding boils down to.

The number of basic education students and students with special needs is plugged into a state formula to determine the number of units. State money is then distributed to districts using a unit value. This year, the unit value was set at $2,175.

Special education students, Snow said, equal more units

Mescalero man killed in hit-run

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Authorities continue to search for a driver who struck and killed a 37-year-old Mescalero man Thursday night on U.S. Highway 70 about 15 miles west of Ruidoso.

Allen Raymond Smith was apparently trying to cross the highway when he was hit, said Capt. Alfred La Paz with the Bureau of Indian Affairs law enforcement office.

"He was struck by possibly a small Chevy Blazer or a Bronco ... that slowed down and then drove away," La Paz said.

Smith probably died instantly, he said.

"It looked like he had a massive head injury," La Paz said, adding that the back of the man's skull had been broken.

Witnesses said the accident occurred about 8 p.m. Thursday, and described the car to authorities as being painted green on top and white below, he enue share from gambling machines as being almost extortion.

As of Tuesday, the only other tribe to have not made a payment to the state is the San Felipe, according to reports. Another tribe, the Taos Pueblo, had not made payment as of Monday but said the payment was on the way.

While no specific penalty for nonpayment is written into the gaming bill's legislation, it would fall to the gaming commission and its representative to enforce payment, said an official with the New Mexico Attorney General's Office.

"In the statute we don't have enforcement," said Kay Bird, a spokeswoman for the office.

Johnson has not yet appointed a gaming commission. He has said that the commission, which requires three full-time paid positions, had not been funded by the Legislature and so could not be created.

Lovato said this is not the first time the Mescalero has not sent in required payments to the state.

In July 1995, when the state received a cumulative $900,000 from gaming tribes, and again in January 1996, when the total was $2.3 million, the Mescalero did not send revenue shares as required, state records show.

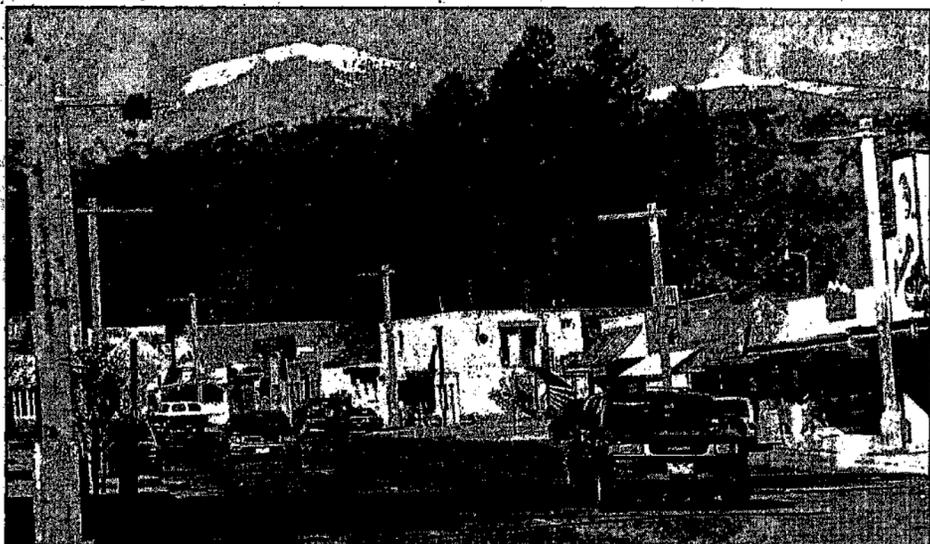

"We have not received any kind of money from the Mescalero," Lovato said.

Forest Service to burn off brush

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso residents living along the edges of the Lincoln National Forest may smell smoke in the air this winter.

But check with the U.S. Forest Service before grabbing the family pets and children's photographs. Part of service officials' plan to reduce the risk of wildfire to the community includes burning off previously cleared underbrush and trees.

"We've been thinning the small stuff underneath the tree canopy in a 600-foot-wide path so that a wildfire can't travel up to and through the canopy," said Dave Cummings, who handles timber management and fire prevention for the Smokey Bear Ranger District. "We have a very concentrated urban interface with the forest around the village and even west of Alto and south of Ruidoso Downs."

Wildland/urban interface is defined as any area where potentially dangerous combustible wildland fuels are found adjacent to combustible homes and other structures: a zone where manmade improvements intermix with wildland fuels.

Current vegetation conditions in the national forest are unnatural and potentially highly flammable, Cummings said. They are the result of a century of fire suppression, past public values and agency policies, coupled with a growing trend of people moving to the wildlands.

"This has caused a fire environment prone to catastrophic fire that could periodically overwhelm our best efforts to prevent and suppress wildfires," he said. "Preventing catastrophic wildfire requires a major change in the way we view wildfire. We can no longer entirely count on fire suppression with fire engines, air tankers and hand crews."

But the possibility of catastrophic wildfire can be lessened by:

- Reducing natural and unnatural fuel buildup.
- Breaking up large, continuous areas that are at higher risk from wildfire.

In the block of forest northwest of Ruidoso, service employees last year removed dead tree limbs and other debris, then put them in piles 6 feet in diameter and 4 feet high.

"We propose to burn them this fall after the first (significant) snow so that the fire can't get away," Cummings said. "We hope for a east wind so it will blow the smoke away from town, although we know it may settle at night in the valleys."

Drug traces found in theft suspect's car

Ruidoso police arrested a Roswell man and woman last week when a syringe with traces of methamphetamine was discovered in their truck, according to police reports.

Sgt. Ramona Sabo stopped Marion Lee Nulf Jr. and Connie J. Reed about 4 a.m. Oct. 23 at the Super 8 Motel on U.S. Highway 70, where she was investigating a report of attempted theft, police said.

A clerk at the motel had called police earlier, saying he watched a man on a remote monitor unsuccessfully trying to break into a cola vending machine at the motel.

Ruidoso Downs police Officer Kenneth Arther, who was on a hill above the motel, radioed to Sabo that a pickup truck was leaving the motel parking lot while she was there talking with the clerk.

Sabo stopped the pickup, discovered that neither Nulf nor Reed had valid driver's licenses and began impounding the 1989 Ford pickup truck they were driving.

During the impound procedure, Sabo found the syringe, which tested positive as having a small amount of methamphetamine in it.

She also discovered a drill and tools under the truck's seat which are commonly used to break into vending machines, reports said.

Nulf was charged with eight crimes, including drug possession, and had bond set at $16,000. Ruidoso police said he made bond and was released over the weekend.

Reed, who was charged with drug possession and drug paraphernalia possession, had bond set at $6,000. She remains at the Lincoln County Detention Center in Carrizozo, a jail employee said.

$100 stolen from school

Someone took a money bag from the fine arts building at Ruidoso High School, Ruidoso police said.

Cathlene McIntosh, a teacher with the school, told police the bag, containing $100, had been taken from her desk in the fine arts building, as well as a pile of compact disks behind her desk.

Doorknobs smashed at intermediate school

Fourteen doorknobs were damaged during a break-in last weekend at the Sierra Intermediate School, Ruidoso police said.

Principal Daniel D. Flores told police he noticed the doorknob to his office had been damaged Monday morning. A check around the school revealed that 14 doors in all had been damaged, apparently by someone bashing the doorknobs with a fire extinguisher, police said.

Some sports equipment, such as basketballs, was missing from the school, but police did not know if the theft was tied to the break-in, police said.

$1,500 in furniture stolen from store

Almost $1,500 worth of furniture was taken from Hacienda Furniture earlier this month, Ruidoso police said.

Jerry Dibble, who is with the store, told police that a bookcase, a wooden trunk, a desk and a chest were among the items taken.

Economic incentives

Why do little alarm bells begin to chime somewhere off in the distance when we hear words like "land donations" and "tax abatement" for business? Why indeed, when it's almost an article of faith that "new business means more jobs," and everybody benefits.

Look at Rio Rancho and Sandoval County, for heaven's sake, where Intel has invested hundreds of millions of dollars and hires thousands of people to manufacture microchips for personal computers.

Sandoval County's commissioners issued tax-free industrial revenue bonds to get Intel to locate there in the first place, and have issued more since, in billions of dollars, to help it expand.

But Intel is one huge enterprise, and even with all the incentives in place, we read occasionally that it keeps going back for special consideration of one kind or another. Can't really blame Intel; it's obviously good business if you can get it. And every state in the country would just love to have an Intel plant.

Any number of New Mexico communities have sought to sweeten the pot to attract new jobs with industrial parks and low rent, forgiveness of property taxes, "business incubators" and such, because so much of New Mexico is so low on the economic totem pole.

And now Ruidoso is looking at economic incentives of one kind or another to build its business community. An ad hoc committee will be set up to advise the Village Council on creating an economic incentive plan consistent with Ruidoso's tourism-based economy. Such an incentive plan, it appears, is necessary under state law before a municipality can offer any type of economic development package.

A broad-based economic development committee, knowledgeable and dedicated, can do much to help Ruidoso. This one would have members representing the village government, the chamber of commerce, real estate, banking, utilities and retail merchants.

First hints from Village Manager Gary Jackson sound promising; an inquiry from a manufacturer of air and water purification filters that might initially hire up to 40 people, another from a manufacturer of metal detectors. (Neither, however, tourist-based.)

A bit puzzling is how Ruidoso might offer incentives for tourist-based enterprises, beyond possibly reduced rates for use of the Convention Center and more promotion using lodgers' tax money. It's pretty hard to justify, for example, incentives to retailers. A few years ago a developer got the bright idea of using tax-free industrial revenue bonds to build a new motel in a New Mexico town with many other already built motels. It's still talked about in that community as one of the biggest local political goofs ever. The motel, happily, never was built.

Economic development is a very big undertaking. We wish that ad hoc committee, when it's named, the wisdom of Solomon and the patience of Job.

The blessing of good neighbors

During the few days before my birthday I received some very wonderful birthday presents.

For the past several months the Storm ranch has not been flying the flag that has long been a signal that all is well. Folks call me up asking if I am all right, adding what happened to your flag. One time Jake Harris came over to see if I was all right, saying, "I haven't seen your flag for a while."

In the past Ron Wright has come by to put up the flag; and on the 23rd he came down with his "cherry picker," put up a large brand new flag which was given to me by my niece, Carrol Jane Elliott.

I look out at the red, white and blue colors floating in the breeze with the Indian Summer colors on the hills in the background. I thank Ron Wright for this great birthday present.

Bringing home the cows

Then on the 25th Dub Williams corralled some cows of mine that had been gone from here around the house for several months.

Then that same day his sons, Neale and Borde, brought down seven cows and five calves, making two 15-mile roundtrips. This was a great help and I was glad to see some of my favorite cows and calves two days before my birthday. Many thanks to Dub, Neale and Borde.

Then on the 26th, today, Adam and Aleck Romero and Bill Dunlap came over after church and helped me brand calves.

These three acts of neighborly kindness made my heart rejoice once again over the blessing of good neighbors.

Birthday remembrance

I have already received birthday cards from friends of many years and new ones as well, which are always a most welcome feature of birthdays.

Mrs. Patty Renick telephoned me that she had baked me a birthday cake.

Kin folks visit

My niece Carrol and her husband Bill Elliot of Houston came and stayed several days at brother Mark's new house, and Carrol was able to admire her gift flag flying.

True Indian Summer begins on the 25th. Jack Frost painted the leaves their true autumn colors when on that day he brought in a heavy breeze along with a very light snow, which traced out the autumn colors of the leaves. The bronze oak and golden poplar all had a light trim of snowy white. The oak brush was gleaming in the bright sun all along the hillsides in blending orange, crimson, pink, purple and sunlight yellow — all out in full Indian Summer colors, all in a day.

The time change

Mostly you hear about folks being late on account of the daylight savings time change. But this morning I got up at 5:30 to be on time for church and around sometime a little after 9 o'clock I wondered why no one was at the church and then realized I was an hour early.

I am always reminding folks to change their watch ... and failed to take my own advice.

I hope you will rejoice with me and all the other Oct. 27 folks, and give thanks to the Good Lord.

Hardin's fascinating history has a sidelight

To the editor:

Here I go again! I hope Mr. (Drew) Gomer doesn't mind my adding my two cents to his interesting article about John Wesley Hardin. People do seem to be interested.

John Selman was tried for killing Hardin. And my grandfather, Albert Fall, was asked to help with the defense. He took the jurors down to the bar and showed them how possible for Selman to be looking Hardin in the eye when he shot him in the back of the head!

The defense was as that, considering Hardin's reputation and the fact that he had threatened to kill Selman on sight, it was understandable that when Selman walked through the door and found himself looking into the eyes of one of the deadliest gunmen of his time, who had vowed to kill him, he shot — without waiting to realize they were looking at each other in the bar mirror. Besides, if he hadn't shot then, it might have been possible for Hardin to whirl around and shoot him. There were some who said Hardin was going for his gun when the bullet hit him.

I believe that trial ended in a hung jury, with the majority voting for acquittal. Years later, when talking about it, my grandfather made the remark that getting Selman off was pretty much a waste of time, since he went on and got himself killed not long afterward.

In the interest of our fascinating history ...

Why compare prices favorable to Wal-Mart?

To the editor:

How much money did Wal-Mart pay you to put in that comparison shopping list in Friday's paper? I can't believe you would do such a thing! In my opinion, all it does is encourage people to quit shopping locally and go out to Wal-Mart.

I for one, and others in my family, are not being swayed by the statistics. First of all, there is something more to shopping for groceries than just prices. I doubt seriously if (Wal-Mart's) Gail Peden would carry out my groceries to the car like Bob Crumpton so often does. And I doubt if Wal-Mart would be willing to order something special that wasn't in stock normally, like Greg Stewart has done for us.

These two men have more class than Wal-Mart will ever think about having. It is always a pleasure doing business with the other two stores, Furr's and Thriftway. Hang in there, guys! I'm sure there are others out there that feel just like I do.

'Frequent shopper' card leads to comparison

To the editor:

A couple of weeks back I was shopping at Furr's Super Market armed with my "frequent shopper" card. I was in a hurry, but I wanted the extra savings ... when all of a sudden the lights went out. Not being able to see, I left (sorry about not replacing the items ... on the shelf; I still needed my items so I went to Thriftway.

They had lights. I started shopping and to my surprise I was finding items at a lower price than at the ... chain store, some even lower than the "frequent shopper" prices. So I asked myself a couple of questions.

1. What is a Frequent Shopper Card?
2. Should Furr's penalize people for not shopping frequently by making them pay higher prices?
3. How many times do they sell our names off that list?
4. Isn't anything private anymore?

I have decided I will trade with Thriftway where everyone gets the same low prices and you don't have to stand in line, because I think everyone that works there can check groceries when needed.

I like it! Big city prices and little town service.

Magic theater moments for students at 'Rabbit'

To the editor:

We would like to thank the Spencer Theater for making it possible for our entire student body to attend a special showing of the "Velveteen Rabbit." It was a magical moment for our students. The students were in awe of the performers, the music and the unparalleled elegance of the Spencer Theater.

This project was made possible by the collaboration of the Hubbard Foundation, which provided the bus transportation.

On behalf of our students, we would like to publicly thank these two organizations for providing this experience for them. It is an excellent example of the caring attitude that the Ruidoso community routinely extends to our children.

Remembering a hero who helped end World War II, and begin the Atomic Age

The author, son of a Swedish missionary to China, was born in the United States but grew to manhood in neutral Sweden during World War II. He came to the U.S. again in 1949, at age 23, and after a career in aerospace and aviation in California, retired to Carrizozo in 1994.

By Joseph Fern
FROM A LETTER TO HIS SON, OCT. 4, 1997.

Today we drove 63 miles from Carrizozo to the Stallion Exit on the north end of White Sands Missile Range, then south 17 miles to "Trinity Site" where the first atomic bomb was exploded on July 16, 1945. On this day, my thoughts went back many years to a dear friend of mine Addo Ranpalo, whom I met in Sweden during World War II. Addo was instrumental in bringing the Manhattan Project to a successful conclusion.

I was standing in the chow line at the only oil refinery during the War in Sweden, Kine Kleva. Ahead of me were two men that in nearly whispering voices were speaking a foreign language. I took interest, perhaps, due to the fact that my own parents were then in China and had not been heard from for years. Their last letter had been en route for three years and arrived heavily censored.

Yes, I was interested in making their acquaintance and was, indeed, accepted into their circle of two. During those years every foreigner in Sweden was cautious. Most refugees were interned in camps, except for American aviators who crashed in southern Sweden after raids over German territory, and Addo along with his aged Estonian friend whose name has been eradicated by time.

Yes, we became a group of three. Many hours of conversation were devoted to Addo's escapades as one of WW II's most remarkable underground operatives.

Before going any further, it is important for you to know that in your ancestral past we fought the Russians at Poltava under King Karl XI, losing that battle. All of Scandinavia at one time or another has battled the Russians. Of interest to you should be the fact that your Uncle David and I sang at "patriotic meetings" in Sweden in support of the Finnish General Mannerheim's victorious battles against the Russians just prior to the outbreak of WW II.

These meetings served two purposes; that of enlisting Swedish volunteers for the Eastern Front, and to inspire the Swedish women to sew white camouflage drapes for the Finnish Army.

Addo Ranpalo had been an Estonian Army officer who survived the German invasion of his small country before eventually fleeing south before the advance of the Russian Army. His mastery of the German language became one of his outstanding defensive weapons.

Upon his arrival in Prague, Czechoslovakia, he befriended a nightclub singer who gave him shelter for two weeks. His short stay in Prague provided the time he needed to painstakingly, with the aid of a magnifying glass and a sharp instrument, carve a replica stamp of the official German Eagle with swastika that was used on all travel documents.

His ultimate aim was to make it to Sweden first and eventually to America. However, for his travel toward freedom he lacked the official forms. By ripping a paper from a note pad and copying all pertinent information by freehand, he added his "official" stamp along with a handwritten note, "When in the  are the official forms going to come through?"

With this homemade document, Addo began to travel northwestward toward Denmark through German occupied territory. His document was accepted by the Germans with laughter and only once severely questioned. Addo was armed with a concealed German Luger, but proudly boasted that it was never needed.

He finally arrived in Denmark and was shortly enlisted into the Danish "underground."

He was accepted as a trusted ally, his credentials beyond reproach. Yes, we must have spent a thousand hours listening to his experiences in Europe!

At that time, some very important political prisoners were held captive in the basement of the Danish Police Headquarters in Copenhagen.

The Danish Intelligence knew through the Danish patriots that Dr. Bohr was one of those inmates at this location. Dr. Bohr was needed for the Manhattan Project. A plan was devised by the British in which the Danes was to pinpoint bomb the building in a special raid with "time release" controlled bombs.

The Danish Underground was then to storm the headquarters and retrieve Dr. Bohr. A group was assembled comprised of the elite of commandos of the Danish underground, only some 30 men, and Addo Ranpalo. The raid came off successfully, and as Addo said, "With my heart pounding a little faster!" It was after this raid that the Danish underground smuggled Addo across the strait into southern Sweden. The Swedes transferred him up to Kine Kleva to be with his "own" two other Estonians at the refinery.

This is where we met.

Addo was never interned in any refugee camp. One night, Addo looked both of us straight in the eye; his stare telling us that he had something of great importance to say. Slowly and in a subdued voice he said, "You both know that my fiance and mother still remain in Estonia. I have successfully made contact with a Swedish fishing boat to drop me off at the Estonian coast. I will then bring my loved ones out to the coast to rendezvous with the fishing boat in three days. I should return in about a week."

Knowing him to be an experienced operative, we did not question his plans. Furthermore, we had learned the art of subduing our own curiosity in the war environment. Within a few days Addo was gone.

The two of us left spent evenings together, but I can vividly remember how difficult it was to communicate with Addo's aged friend who had picked up but a few words of Swedish. A week went by, and then two. No Addo. We both began to suspect the worst. I wrote to the Swedish Refugee Commission inquiring as to Addo's whereabouts. Within days I received a response instructing me to write Addo a letter and the Commission would then forward my letter to Addo. Following this instruction, I never heard a word. Had Addo Ranpalo finally met with defeat on his own home soil...captured, murdered, or imprisoned? I never saw him again.

This is why today, while visiting Trinity Site, my thoughts focused on Addo whose unsurpassed bravery brought Dr. Bohr to our America to become a part of the Manhattan Project. Yes, indeed, Addo was one of my few closest friends; a genuine man who unknowingly helped to shape history. Perhaps my remembrance of Addo will serve as posthumous recognition to his name and to his accomplishments.

26,373 property tax bills mailed; first half payment due by Nov. 10

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Employees in the Lincoln County treasurer's office were celebrating Monday as they hauled boxes containing 26,373 property tax bills to the post office in Carrizozo.

It may be a great feeling for them to have completed the biggest job of the year, but they're the only ones cheering.

"Nobody else seems to be happy to hear we put the tax bills in the mail," said chief deputy treasurer Beverly Payne-Calaway.

At least in New Mexico, property owners can spread their tax bills over two payments, she pointed out.

"Nobody else seems to be happy to hear we put the tax bills in the mail."

Beverly Payne-Calaway,
chief deputy treasurer

The number of tax bills increased by 238 from last year, less than 1 percent, representing new parcels created by divisions of property.

The amount of tax money the bills will produce jumped in the same time period by $750,986 to $10.9 million.

The money goes to help support the state, the county, its municipalities, school districts and special taxing districts. The first half payment of each tax bill is due by Nov. 10 and is delinquent after Dec. 10. The second half payment is due April 10 and is delinquent after May 10. Property owners may choose to pay their tax bills in full by Dec. 10, Payne-Calaway said.

Before the end of the tax year, the department will have collected about 93 percent of the taxes due, based on past experience. That leaves 7 percent delinquent.

Although Treasurer Joan Park's regular staff numbers five, she hires extra help during the busy tax season.

Commission considers turning over ambulance service

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

They like what they've seen the past few months, but before turning over supervision of the county ambulance service to Ruidoso EMS, Lincoln County commissioners want to know what it's going to cost.

In a meeting Oct. 17, they asked Jim Stover, who heads the paid professional service in Ruidoso, to come back next month with more specifics. The Ruidoso service took over responsibility for the Alto/Sierra Blanca Airport Road area a few months ago.

"The main thing I'm interested in is what happens to the people (volunteers) we already have," Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said. "It's an emotional issue for volunteers."

Stover told commissioners at their meeting last week that when some of the volunteers first heard about the proposal they thought their volunteer positions were going to be replaced by paid emergency medical technicians.

"Once they understood (that wasn't going to happen), they welcomed the additional support from the hospital (which manages the village-owned service)," Stover said. "Most of them want extra training."

Having one central agency of coordination should be more efficient, Stover said.

He would use some of his emergency staff members, who are instructors, to provide the training where it is needed instead of requiring volunteers to drive from places as far north as Corona to attend classes.

"The key is getting help to those out there in the borderland so we don't lose them," Stover said. "This will enhance their abilities."

By supervising the volunteers and offering training, Stover hopes to add more people to their ranks, relieve some of the pressure resulting from balancing a job and the demand of being on call, and provide a source for new volunteers, as well as back-up from Ruidoso.

"Some volunteers put in enormous hours because they know they're the last line," he said.

Commissioner William Schwettmann said it's good sense to keep the volunteer groups, because Ruidoso couldn't respond first to an emergency in outlying areas, but could back them up if their units were called on other emergencies.

Chairman Monroy Montes said that before commissioners decide the future of the volunteers he wants to hear from them directly.

Stover advocated paying volunteers for hours they spend on call, not only for the number of calls to which they respond.

They now receive $13 a run. That's all right in an area such as Carrizozo where calls are frequent, but in Corona, a volunteer may have to sit at home for hours without compensation, because he or she are on call, but no emergencies occur.

"It's pay as you use versus pay for the availability," Commissioner Rex Wilson said. He said volunteers aren't in the business for the money, but are dedicated and love the work.

Stover said he won't need more money to pay for "on call," but will use the $30,000 per year set aside for emergency run reimbursement in a different method of distribution.

"You want availability," he said. Ruidoso attorney Gary

Mitchell, who serves on the board of the Lincoln County Medical Center, the hospital that manages the Ruidoso service, said providing ambulances is not a money-making proposition. He said it's a service that a community offers knowing it may have to subsidize at some point or help in some other way.

"You're talking a long-term commitment like they have in Ruidoso," Mitchell said. "You need to make a decision to take better care of the citizens, but it's also their choice when they live in outlying communities."

Providing good emergency medical care is costly and requires constant updating of equipment and knowledge, Stover said.

"EMS service is not something you buy one time and it's finished," he said. "It's something that has to be nourished year to year."

Report planned on meeting with GSA director

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Texas-New Mexico Power Co. building on Mechem Drive.

▶ 6AA VOLLEYBALL PLAYOFFS

Tigers await another shot at Tulie and regionals

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Chivalry paid off for Capitan volleyball coach Bryan Massé and the Tigers the other night.

Massé yielded the call on a coin toss that broke a tie between Capitan or Dexter and determined who would be seeded No. 2 for the District 6AA volleyball playoffs.

"Let's let Sally (Knight) call it," Massé recalled telling Capitan athletic director Gerald Montes before Montes left for Roswell, where the coin toss took place.

The Dexter coach chose tails, which failed this time.

That means the Tigers get to play at home Thursday for a crucial semifinal match between the winner of Cloudcroft and Dexter.

Thursday night's winner earns a berth to the district championship where the Tularosa Wildcats wait with an 18-1 overall record and an unblemished district mark. More importantly, Thursday's winner is assured a trip to the Region 6 tournament.

Capitan found itself tied with Dexter when it dropped its final two district matches of the season last week. The Demons swept the Tigers in three last Tuesday, 15-13, 15-7, 15-8. Then Capitan fell in a five-game heartbreaker to Tularosa on Thursday. That dropped the Tigers to 3-3 in 6AA play and forced a tiebreaker.

In the District 6AA, ties are broken first by comparing district record, then district head-to-head and finally by coin flip.

In all likelihood, the Tigers will play Dexter on Thursday. The Demons hosted Cloudcroft on Tuesday. It's been a long season for the Bears, who have yet to win a district match.

Capitan and Dexter have split their matches this season, each winning at home.

"This one is the rubber match. This is the one where you get to go on (to regionals)," Massé said.

What will be Thursday's determining factors?

"Whoever's playing the best ball. Whoever's making the least amount of mistakes. Hopefully that will be us," Massé said.

In the Tigers' win over Dexter on Oct. 7, it took five games to dispose of the Demons. Dexter needed just three to beat Capitan last Tuesday.

So what will Massé do to combat the peaking Demons?

"They leave certain areas of the court open, so we're going to work on that," Massé said. "We've got some smart hitters who can hit it, not necessarily with a lot of power, but to the right spots."

Thursday's match and even Saturday's championship could be anyone's to claim.

"Dexter is playing really good volleyball," Massé said. "We're all right there. There's not a whole lot of difference in any of us. It's going to be close."

Thursday's match begins 6 p.m. in Capitan.

Should the Tigers win Thursday and play the Wildcats Saturday in Tularosa, it'll be the rematch the Tigers have hoped for.

"Obviously they are a very good team. We've played them well both times. Both of them have been seasaw, marathon matches," Massé said. "To know that we've gone five with them twice and gone to the wire both times is good for us."

Dexter 3, Capitan 0

Last Tuesday in Dexter the Demons cruised to a 15-13, 15-7, 15-8 victory. Capitan built a 12-3 lead in the first game before the Demons rallied.

The comeback sapped the momentum from the Tigers, Massé said. Capitan looked sluggish the rest of the night.

Dexter also made some changes in its lineup since the last time the teams met. Now in the Demon lineup is a 6-foot middle blocker who had played junior varsity most of the season for Dexter.

"They're a bigger blocking team now," Massé said of Dexter.

Tularosa 3, Capitan 2

The Tigers bounced back on Thursday and played district-leading Tularosa toe-to-toe for three hours.

Again, however, Capitan surrendered an early lead of 12-4 in game one and eventually lost the match 15-13, 12-15, 15-9, 13-15, and 15-12. In the fifth and deciding game, the Tigers held leads of 9-4 and 12-7 before losing.

Capitan closed out the regular season in Melrose with a sweep of the Buffalo 15-2, 15-10, 15-8, to finish 11-8 overall.

The Ruidoso cross country teams hosted its own invitational last Thursday. The Warrior boys finished fourth overall, just one point behind Ocate. The Ruidoso girls took fifth in the team standings. Leading the Warrior girls was Erica Romero (#501), right, who finished sixth overall. Joshua Romero, above, heads up "The Hill" during the race. He finished 50th overall in the boys race. The Warriors will compete in the Albuquerque Invitational Friday before heading to districts Nov. 7.

Snowmaking crews ready for Friday start

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Ski Apache crews will crank up their snowmaking machines beginning Friday.

Between 50 and 60 guns will spew manmade snow on the lower slopes of Ski Apache, said Denny Grover, head of the snowmaking crew.

Four, seven-man crews will start 24-hour shifts as soon as conditions permit on Halloween, and continue until the scheduled opening of the ski area on Thanksgiving.

"We don't have candy for trick or treaters," Grover added with a laugh.

The first loop on the snowmaking schedule includes both sides of the Capitan run, Deep Freeze and Top Notch trails, and the beginner areas around Chairlifts 3 and 5. Grover's crew will check the pumps and guns in a mock run through Thursday.

The onset of fall the last two weeks has dropped temperatures below freezing. The ski area received up to three inches of snow in some spots because of an early winter storm last Wednesday, and another three inches Friday night.

Temperatures at Ski Apache dipped to 11 degrees as late as 10 a.m. Saturday. Crews could have made snow all day Saturday, Grover said. Temperatures have been averaging in the low 20s and upper teens.

"We've definitely got some cold air around," Grover said.

The snow from last week will help snowmaking efforts as well.

"It's going to be making snow on snow instead of on rock and dry ground," Grover said.

Tigers and Bears battle for grid title again

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

The stakes for Friday's showdown between rivals Capitan and Cloudcroft just got higher.

Cloudcroft anted up with a 26-20 upset win over Reserve for the Bears' first victory of the season.

The Cloudcroft win means more than just bragging rights are on the table this Friday. Now, so are the District 3A title and a first-round playoff game at home.

Capitan, a 40-6 winner over the Alamogordo sophomore team Saturday, enters the game with a 5-4 mark and 1-0 district record. The Bears are 1-3 and 1-0 respectively.

"They're an awful dag-gummed good 1-3 team," Tiger coach Ed Davis said of the Bears.

He expects a test from Cloudcroft.

"Cloudcroft will play their best game of the year against us and hopefully we'll play our best game of the year," Davis said.

And like other rivalries, you can toss out records. It's like both teams are 0-0, Davis said.

"It's going to be a war. I don't think you could pick a favorite to win it right now," the Tiger coach added.

Capitan 40, Alamogordo 6

The Tigers ran through, around and past the Alamogordo sophomore team Saturday, posting a 40-6 victory.

Capitan amassed 596 yards of total offense. All of it on the ground.

Two Tigers rushed for more than 200 yards each. Josh Long picked 218 yards rushing with two touchdowns, while Raymond Harris slithered and sprinted for 212 yards and two TDs.

James Tacey rushed for another 166 yards in the rout.

The only reason those guys picked up all those yards is because of the offensive line," Davis said. "They did a super job. Our line deserves credit."

The unsung Tiger offensive line does its job by committee. Davis rotates as many as nine players in the trenches. They are Jake Gray, Zeke Greer, Matt Daniel, Martin Gonzales, David Worrell, Jason Montes, Fernando Saiz, Timmy McGarvey

Robert Page and Jady King.

Capitan opened a 20-0 half-time lead and never let the young Alamogordo Tigers get into the game.

Davis' offense didn't skip a beat Saturday despite the loss of starting quarterback Justin Joiner. Freshman Joey Saiz took the snaps.

"He audibled for us. He did a good job," Davis said of Saiz. Joiner will probably return.

to the Tiger lineup for Friday's game, said Davis. "But now we have confidence that we have a good quarterback either way."

The playoffs (subhead)

Friday's winner hosts a first-round Class AA football playoff game with either

McCarty or Dulce of District 2A. Both teams have 1-1 district marks. Dulce is 3-3 overall, while McCarty is 4-4.

The loser plays District 2A champ Escalante in Chama, not Davis' idea of a pleasant trip.

What's biting

Bohito Lake is fairly good in the evening on small dry flies, such as midges, gnats and small caddis and propeller flies early and late. Some trout have begun their up stream spawn run.

Grindstone with the first freezes of the year expect surface temperature to decrease drastically and trout should be spending more time near the surface. Try streamers, Pistol Pete's and some small dries along the bank.

Lake Mescalero is very productive in the mornings on caddises, hornberg's, mosquitos, Adam's and Adam's parachutes, most productive out of row boats.

Rio Ruidoso is clear and somewhat low, fish are mobile and difficult to locate (but once located the action has been great), however the head head nymphs, green rock worms and copper gordons have been most productive.

"Look for trout in unusual places. It's a great time to fish the spots you always meant to."

'Fluffy Ruffles' a Sunday comic

Question: I have a picture that I believe is printed on cloth. It depicts a man tipping his hat to a woman in a long dress. The title above it is "Fluffy Ruffles." There's a poem that reads, "She's back in town with cheeks aglow, Now leaves are sear and yellow. And though she loved me a while ago, Now can't she snub a fellow?" There's also the name and address of a laundry. Do you have any idea what it was all about?

Answer: "Fluffy Ruffles" was a Sunday comic about a woman who was too beautiful and well-dressed to hold a job. Wallace Morgan drew the comic strip in the early 1900s. It ended in 1910.

Your picture was a laundry's promotional giveaway.

Q. My original Alvin and the Chipmunks harmonica still works. Is it worth anything?

A. Alvin and the Chipmunks were "born" as recording stars in 1958. Their prime-time animated TV show, "The Alvin Show," ran from October 1961 through September 1962. Reruns aired Saturday mornings from 1962 through 1965 and again in 1979. A sequel, "Alvin and the Chipmunks," debuted on Saturday mornings in 1983 and was renamed "The Chipmunks" in 1988.

Alvin memorabilia doesn't command high prices yet. The harmonica, made in 1959, is worth $35 if you still have the original display card.

Q. My mother has an old Indian necklace made of many strands of small coral beads. They can be twisted to give the necklace a different look. What's it worth?

A. Coral necklaces were made by members of the Santo Domingo and other pueblos along the Rio Grande in New Mexico. Necklaces of many strands of small stone beads are called "heishi."

Contemporary necklaces of that description sell for about $300. A vintage version would be worth about $700.

TIP: Look through the wrong end of a telescope you plan to buy. If it can be focused, all the parts are there.

Q. My grandparents were from Turkey. When they died, they left me an old doll with a wooden face. It's a man dressed in a native Turkish costume. I think he's made from papier-mâché. He is marked "Ertugrul O Zsoy Turk El Ialari Ataturk Bulwari." Is this a one-of-a-kind thing? Are there more like it?

A. There probably are more like it. The mark you describe was used on dolls made in Turkey in the 1930s.

Q. My mother gave me a pair of earrings with clear stones in them. I thought they were diamonds, but she called them "Fabulite." Do you know what that is?

A. "Fabulite" is a trade name for synthetic strontium titanate, which resembles diamonds. The material was created in 1953 and also was sold under the names "Starlian" and "Diagem."

CELEBRATING

Halloween

Lindsay Eggleston and her father, Leon, trace patterns on pumpkins in their home. The Egglestons say the annual carving is a way for the family to spend time together as well as find an outlet for creative expression.

For Egglestons, carving pumpkins is a family ritual

When the Egglestons have finished decorating for Halloween, some 20 pumpkins, weighing more than 500 pounds combined, will adorn their front yard.

The centerpiece - a 150-pound pumpkin about 2 feet long with a circumference of more than 40 inches bearing an intricately carved "Welcome."

Trick-or-treaters aren't the only ones who will make the trek to the Egglestons' Upper Canyon home. Many will drive by to admire this year's pumpkin creations.

For the Egglestons, carving pumpkins is a way to spend time together as a family and an outlet for some artistic expression.

"If I see something unusual, I'll just trace it and use it on a pumpkin," said Leon Eggleston, who wears numerous hats in the Ruidoso community: village councilor, Lincoln Cablevision manager, Ruidoso Little Theater supporter, among others.

Monday, Leon and 14-year-old daughter, Lindsay, sat down on their living room floor, where they always do this time of year, and figured out what pattern will go on which pumpkin.

It's the start of a three-day, time-consuming process. But it's one they love.

"The thing is, you have to take your time. It's like an art," said Eggleston, who brought back a truckload of pumpkins from Levelland, Texas. (Ruidoso Little Theater is using about 50 of them for its "Haunted Castle.")

It was about 15 years ago when Eggleston started carving pumpkins. He made his own designs and used what most others would use to clean and carve the pumpkins - kitchen spoons and paring knives.

It wasn't until he found the book "Carve-O-Lantern" that Eggleston learned the right tools make it easier to carve and make it possible to try elaborate designs.

"The art of not cutting off your fingers is having the right tools," he said. "I didn't even know they had these things around," he said of the 3- to 4-inch saws, drills and scoops.

The serrated blades of the small saws cut through the pumpkin much easier and Drivers beware! It's nearly time for the little goblins of Ruidoso to take over the streets.

With Halloween two days away, it could get spooky out there unless some precautions are heeded.

"People need to drive slow and pay attention to what they're doing," said Cpl. Dewayne Goar, head of Ruidoso Police Department traffic and gang units.

Likewise, children need to stay out of the streets, if possible, and beware of their surroundings, Goar added.

It's best not to follow trick or treaters in a car. Goar recommends that parents park their vehicle.

"Walk with child and help watch the traffic for the child," he said.

Goar also suggested children carry flashlights while walking. But, "Just don't shine the flashlights in the drivers' eyes as they drive by."

According to the American Automobile Association of New Mexico, the leading age group of pedestrians injured by car crashes was 10- to 14-year-olds last year.

"This is why a child's costume is the most important aspect of visibility," said Brenda Yager, director of public and government affairs for AAA.

Kids, there's midtown, Castle

From 3 to 5 p.m. Friday, children can trick or treat midtown Ruidoso. Participating merchants will have an orange flier posted in their windows.

Additionally, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce will have candy for trick-or-treaters Friday.

The Ruidoso Police Department will have officers on patrolling the Mid-Town area to assist with traffic.

A couple of officers will drive their squad cars with lights on up and down Sudderth, patrolling midtown during the trick or treat time.

And from now until Friday, check out the ghosts haunting the home of Ruidoso Little Theater, the Castle located on Highway 70.

The ghosts, with the help of some RLIT members, welcome visitors to a special and scary Open House from 7 to 10 each night.

Those with a brave heart can try walking through "The Tunnel," where the ghosts lie and play nightly.

Witches brew, bats and other yummy things to tempt your tastebuds are available if you haven't lost your appetite.

Admission is $3 for children and $5 for adults and senior citizens.

Halloween traces its roots to Celtic festival for the dead

Halloween
Now a children's holiday, Halloween was originally a Celtic festival for the dead, celebrated on the last day of the Celtic year, Oct. 31.

Elements of that festival were incorporated into the Christian holiday of All Hallows' Eve, the night preceding All Saints' (Hallows) Day.

Until recent times in some parts of Europe, it was believed that on this night witches and warlocks flew abroad, and huge bonfires were built to ward off these malevolent spirits.

Children's pranks replaced witches' tricks in the 19th century, but most other Halloween customs are probably survivals from the Celtic festival.

All Saints' Day
In the Christian church, All Saints' Day is the feast of all known and unknown saints.

It is observed on Nov. 1 in the West. During the Middle Ages, the feast was called All Hallows' Day, giving its name to Halloween (All Hallows' Eve), the preceding day.

Trick dupes the nation
Orson Welles' adaptation of H.G. Wells' science-fiction story "The War of the Worlds," broadcast on Oct. 30, 1938, and intended as a Halloween joke, created panic in many areas with its convincing account of an alien landing at Grover's Mills, N.J.

Salem Witch Trials
The witch trials of Salem

Village, Mass. (March to September 1692), were America's most notorious episode of "witchcraft" hysteria.

Belief in witchcraft was carried to colonial America from Europe, where in the two centuries before 1650 thousands had been executed as witches.

The Salem incident began when two young girls in the household of the Rev. Samuel Parris began to behave oddly. The girls had participated in meetings at which incantations had been cast and attempts made to foretell the future.

They were examined by a doctor, ministers, and magistrates, who concluded that they were bewitched. The resulting frenzy spread rapidly. Hearings began on March 1 and by the middle of May, 100 people were in prison awaiting trial.

The new royal governor Sir William Phips, established a special seven-member court to try the prisoners. Jurors were drawn from church membership lists, and the chained defendants had no counsel.

In early June, Bridget Bishop was convicted. A brief delay followed because some judges were uneasy about the validity of spectral evidence—testimony given by witnesses about voices or apparitions perceived only by them.

The trials were resumed after several leading ministers advised the court that such evidence might be used, but only with "exquisite caution."

By Sep. 22 the court had tried and convicted 27 people. Nineteen were hanged, and one Giles Corey, was pressed to death by stones. In addition, about 50 had confessed, 100 were in prison, awaiting trial, and accusations had touched another 200.

With the jails overflowing, the hysteria abated. Cotton Mather delivered a sermon arguing against the mass convictions, and some clergy began openly to criticize spectral evidence. With this support the governor abruptly intervened and freed all who were in jail. The executions stopped.

In the subsequent reaction, jurors admitted their errors, and Judge Samuel Sewall publicly confessed his culpability, as did the Rev. John Hale, chief witness against Bridget Bishop.

In 1711, heirs of the alleged witches were voted compensation for their losses.

This story was written by Oscar Zolner, his bibliographer, Boyer Paul, and Nilsenbaum, Stephen Salem Possessed: The Social Origins of Witchcraft (1974), and, as eds., The Salem Witchcraft Papers, 3 vols. (1977); Brown, David, Salem Witchcraft Hysteria of 1692 (1984); Hansen, C., Witchcraft at Salem (1989); Kirtledge, George L., Witchcraft in Old and New England (1929; repr. 1988); Mappen, Mary, Witches and Historians: Interpretations of Salem Witchcraft (1979); Starkey, M. SAFETY: Tips for going out on Halloween

"Children should wear simple costumes that are easy to walk in and are made of white or light-colored material," she said.

"Costumes decorated with retroreflective material not only look more remarkable but make children much more visible to drivers as well."

"Dusk is the time of poorest visibility so kids need all the help they can get to be seen by motorists."

Finally, parents should carefully inspect the candy before kids swap candy bars with each other or dig in.

Take all suspicious candy to the Ruidoso Police Department, or the Lincoln County Medical Center's Radiology Department for X-rays. The Radiology Department will X-ray candy from 6 to 9 p.m. Halloween night. There is no charge for the X-ray service.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission warns parents of these Halloween-related hazards. Avoid them, and help make the holiday fun and safe.

• Trick or treat only at homes or neighborhoods you know. Stay away from people you don't know.

• Treats: Warn children not to eat any candy or treats before an adult has checked them carefully for evidence of tampering.

• Costume designs

• Flame resistant: When buying costumes, masks, beads and wigs, look for the label "Flame Resistant." This label doesn't mean these items won't catch fire, but it does indicate the items will resist burning and extinguish quickly.

To minimize the risk of contact with candles and other fire sources, avoid costumes made of flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts.

• Purchase or make costumes that are light, bright and clearly visible to motorists.

• For greater visibility during dusk and darkness, decorate or trim costumes with reflective tape that will glow in the beam of a car's headlights. Bags or sacks should be light colored also.

• Children should carry flashlights to see easily and aid in being seen.

• Costumes should be short enough so that children won't trip and fall.

• Children should wear well-fitting, sturdy shoes.

• Tie hats and scarfs securely to prevent from slipping over a child's eyes.

• If your child wears a mask, make sure it fits securely and has eyeholes large enough to allow full vision.

• Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be made of soft flexible material.

CARVING: Start with the right tools

safer than a regular kitchen knife, Eggleston said. Eggleston has more than 20 assorted tools.

"Don't carve a pumpkin with a knife because you're going to cut yourself if you do," he added.

The tools are for sale in town for a moderate price, and a book with designs and tips sells for $4.95.

If you have to use a knife, Eggleston suggested a thin-bladed, serrated steak knife.

Eggleston cleans out the pulp and seeds with a small, short-handled scoop. He scrapes the walls of the pumpkin where the design is to no more than an inch thick. He cleans the back of the pumpkin walls but leaves them at their original thickness, which will help prevent deterioration.

"You learn over the years to do as little as you have to do — if you carve as many as we do,"

Leon said with a laugh.

The pulp and seeds are used for baked pumpkin seeds and pumpkin pie, of course.

That's where Cindy Eggleston gets in the act.

"Cindy cooks down the pulp and freezes it for pumpkin pies," Eggleston said. "She supports our messes we make."

The Egglestons go all out for every holiday, but Halloween might get a bit more attention than others.

"I'm growing up, Halloween was always about trick or treat. You didn't have to worry about people giving you bad stuff," he said.

The Egglestons' grand display of pumpkins is their way of putting back some of the fun in Halloween.

Some pumpkin carving tips:

1. Look at the pumpkin and determine how it's going to sit before picking out a pattern appropriate for it.

2. Once you've selected the pattern, use T-pins to hold the pattern in place on the pumpkin.

3. "Punch" or outline the pattern with the appropriate plastic tool.

4. Cut off the top of the pumpkin.

5. Remove the pulp and seeds. Scrape the inside of the pumpkin until walls are no more than an inch thick. That will make it easier to carve the designs.

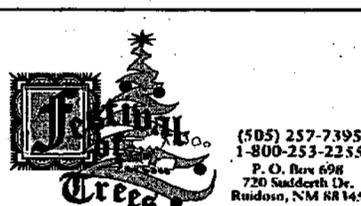

6. Follow the pattern with the pumpkin saws.

Other tips:

• Eggleston uses Christmas lights instead of candles to illuminate his pumpkins. That's because candles cause the pumpkin to decay faster.

• Don't carve your pumpkins too soon. "Once you carve them they start deteriorating real fast," Eggleston said. The Egglestons won't start actual carving until today, two days before Halloween.

Week aimed at having students see red ... ribbons

BY JULIE BAXTER
 RUIDOSO NEWS EDUCATION WRITER

The stories were gruesome — broken bodies, crumpled cars and shattered lives.

The message was serious — drugs and alcohol kill.

Ruidoso Middle School students got some eye-opening talks first thing Monday morning, as the school kicked off Red Ribbon Week. The red ribbons, which stand as a symbol for drug- and alcohol-free students, faculty and staff, were in abundance, as were shocking stories about driving drunk.

Sergio Castro, a counselor at The Counseling Center in Ruidoso, told the students gathered in the school gym about a group of teens who spent a night drinking at a party and paid with their lives.

Five teen-agers, including the intoxicated driver and her passengers, stopped their car in the fast lane of a freeway because one teen was ill. Two cars managed to swerve and miss the car they were riding in, but the third could not maneuver around it, hitting the stopped vehicle at 70 mph. Three teens died in that crash.

"None of them woke up and said 'I think I'll get killed tonight,'" Castro told middle school students. "But things like that happen. It can happen to you. The people dying from drug overdoses, that can happen to you guys, too."

"You guys have got to be aware of what's going on out there. Think about it before you make these choices. This is not a game. It's something that might take your life away, something you have to take seriously."

He also cautioned students to be aware of drugs thought of only as "city problems." He used Rohypnol, also known as the "date rape" drug, as an example. After having a student read from an El Paso Times article, which stated the drug is as common in middle schools as it is on college campuses, Castro told the audience that within the last year two girls in Lincoln County had been raped using the drug.

When Castro asked the students how many of them knew someone who has experimented with drugs or alcohol, a sea of arms raised. One teacher commenting it looked like about 90 percent.

Dinah Hamilton, a counselor at RMS, said that sea of hands is an indication of the choices facing children today.

"This is reality for these kids," she said. "Red Ribbon Week is just an attempt to blitz them with it. It's a message they get all the time, but they need it all the time. We can't be complacent. If we save just one kid, it's worth it."

Charlie White, director of the Lincoln County DWI Task Force, agreed. He said programs like Red Ribbon Week, D.A.R.E. (Drug Awareness and Resistance Education), and S.A.D.D. (Students Against Drunk Driving) are making a difference and saving lives. White said there were two alcohol-related fatalities on Lincoln County roads last year, and only one this year to date. He cautioned the teens to wear their seatbelts, though. This year, White said, there have been nine fatalities on county roads and highways — seven of those because people weren't wearing their seatbelts. "These programs are very effective," White said. "I believe they're responsible for the numbers we've seen. The kids are getting smarter than the adults. If I could get adults to do what these teen-agers are doing, my job would be much easier."

But just because some teens are listening, doesn't mean the battle's won. Just ask eighth-grader Stephanie Lott.

Lott said she knows a lot of people who don't do drugs, but she also knows a lot of people who do. Red Ribbon Week, she said, is something that helps those kids who aren't drinking or doing drugs to stand firm in their convictions.

RMS Principal Sergio Castañón said those students who do stay clean aren't often given the recognition they deserve.

"I think (Red Ribbon Week) is a very positive attempt to give students some education and to help them make the right decisions," Castañón said. "One thing I don't think we do enough of is promoting the kids who don't do drugs. Hopefully, we're reaching them from both ends."

And the students hope the red ribbons will reach the community as well. After the assembly the students filed out to the football field to tie red ribbons on the fence to show the community their commitment to being drug- and alcohol-free.

"People driving by will know it's a drug-free school," said eighth-grader Kourtney Hodges. "They'll know we care."

RHS celebrates 'Haunted Homecoming'

BY JULIE BAXTER
 RUIDOSO NEWS EDUCATION WRITER

Halloween isn't the only spooky, spirited thing happening this week — Ruidoso High School is also having its Haunted Homecoming.

The week will be full of costumes and spirit as students don G.I. Joe outfits, show off their crazy hair, and support their school in a blaze of blue and gold. Along with the daily dress themes, which include untucked shirt and hat day, twin day, G.I. Joe day, crazy hair day and blue and gold day, there will also be dancing, rallies, a parade and a "court session."

The dress themes are all part of Spirit Week, when students will compete for points to earn their class "most spirited" honors.

Friday, students will again be asked to show their spirit at a pep rally where all RHS athletes will take a bow and the Homecoming Court will be introduced. Members of the court who will be vying for the crown of king and queen include seniors Jessie Figueroa, Arthur Miller, Scott Sebastian, Sundae Elwell, Mandi Lewallen and Dawn Rankin.

Other court members are juniors Micah Ensor and Ashley Scott; sophomores Frank Dorame and Brooke Hall, and freshmen

Ben Lundquist and Mindy Brunell. The homecoming king and queen will be crowned before Friday's football game against Coble.

Saturday, the community is asked to come out and support RHS as the homecoming parade winds its way from Western Auto at 400 Mechem Drive to Ruidoso Middle School. Floats from the community are welcome. Pixie Arthur, RHS student council adviser, said the community has been supportive of past homecoming parades. But sometimes the timing has been a problem.

"This is our first parade in a couple of years," Arthur said. "In the past we've had to compete with Aspenfest. This is the first time we've had it on a weekend when something's not happening."

The week's activities will wrap up with the Warrior Masquerade Dance on Saturday night, complete with a costume contest. Only RHS students and graduates can attend.

Arthur said she and the student council are hoping for lots of community support and involvement in homecoming activities.

"I think it's important to the kids," she said. "Kids notice if people are interested in them."

► Show your float

To enter a float in the homecoming parade, call Pixie Arthur at Ruidoso High School, 258-4910. The deadline for entries is today.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

RHS grads earn scholar awards

Amy Andrews and Suzanne Flanary, 1997 graduates of Ruidoso High School, have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of their achievement on the college-level advanced placement exams.

Approximately 10 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP exams. Only about 13 percent of the more than 581,000 students who took AP exams in May 1997 scored high enough to gain this recognition.

Andrews, daughter of Dwight and Sally Andrews, qualified by receiving grades of 3 or higher on four or more AP exams, with an average exam grade of 3.5. She attends Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Flanary, daughter of Kathy Flanary of Ruidoso and Pat Flanary of Roswell, qualified by scoring grades of 3 or higher on three or more exams. She attends Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

AP exams are graded on a five-point scale. Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit and/or placement for grades of 3 or higher, and more than 1,400 institutions award a year credit (sophomore standing) to students with a sufficient number of qualifying grades.

Students break ground on rectory

Students enrolled in the Mescalero Vocational Training Program will be building a rectory at St. Joseph's Mission in Mescalero. A groundbreaking ceremony was held Oct. 17, with the Rev. Paul Botenhagen and tribal member Fred Kaydazine blessing the land where the four-bedroom rectory will be built.

Frank Buchler, director of the training program, said 10 students will work on the rectory four days a week for the next 90 days until the wooden structure is complete.

The materials for the rectory building project were donated by the San Francisco order. The order also made a donation to the training program.

Buchler said he, the students and Botenhagen are all excited about the project. He added that the project is also a great way to learn building skills while making a difference in their community.

"Instead of being out there in gangs, they're doing something good," he said.

ACT tests to be given Dec. 13

Halloween Hauntings

Dracula

Vampire stories have been creeping up on people for centuries. One hundred years ago, Bram Stoker wrote the most famous of them all, "Dracula."

Since then, the story has scared people over and over, in plays, TV shows, comics and books.

During the 1927 Broadway play, nurses stood in the aisles, ready to aid fainting members of the audience.

The first Dracula movie was made in Russia in 1920. Since then, more than 100 movies have been made about this vampire.

Bela Lugosi is one of the most famous actors to play Dracula. He had the role on Broadway and in the 1931 movie.

Dracula's home
The real Prince Dracula lived in a castle in what is now Romania. The fictional Dracula also lived in Romania, in the area called Transylvania.

The shaded area shows Transylvania, the largest area of Romania. It has mountains and forests.

Vampires
A vampire is a fictional creature. It is a dead person who keeps on living by drinking the blood of living people. He or she usually gets blood by biting victims on the neck. Vampires can live hundreds of years this way. A bitten person also becomes a vampire.

- Like Dracula, legendary vampires:
- cast no reflection in mirrors;
 - never cast a shadow;
 - are able to change into a bat, a wolf, or even a foggy mist;
 - sleep during the day in a coffin;

- can crawl up and down walls like a lizard.
- can be frightened away by garlic, or a religious symbol such as a cross;
- can be killed by a stake thrust through the heart. Most vampires can also be killed by the rays of the sun.

The author
Abraham Stoker was born in Dublin, Ireland, 150 years ago. He later shortened Abraham to Bram. Although he is best known for his book, "Dracula," he also wrote children's books and love stories. He wrote play reviews, and managed a theater in London.

The real Dracula

Vlad Dracula took after his dad. His father named himself "Dracul," which means dragon, or devil. "Dracula" means son of the dragon or the devil.

The Dracula story is based on folk tales about vampires. The story is also based on legends about a real-life ruler named Vlad Dracula who lived more than 500 years ago.

The real Prince Dracula killed and tortured many people.

Frankenstein's Monster

Once upon a time, on a dark and stormy night in Switzerland, three people were trapped inside by thunder and lightning crashing around them. They decided to tell horror stories. One of these tales became the most famous monster story ever, "Frankenstein."

Two members of the group were famous poets. One was Lord Byron. The other was Percy Shelley. The third was Mary Shelley, Percy's wife.

After creating that story in 1816, Mary Shelley wrote a book about a scientist named Frankenstein who creates a monster that comes to life. Many consider "Frankenstein" to be the first science fiction novel.

Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley
Mary Shelley was born 200 years ago in England. Her mother, Mary Wollstonecraft, died in childbirth. Mary was raised by her father, William Godwin.

When she was a child she found her best friends in books. She married Percy Shelley when she was 17. She wrote "Frankenstein" when she was only 19.

Much of her life was very sad. She and Percy Shelley lost two of their three children. Her husband drowned six years after their marriage.

She was able to take care of herself and her son by selling most of her writing. She wrote fiction, biographies and travel articles.

Mary Shelley 1797-1851

The monster
In the book, Dr. Frankenstein created his monster and zapped it with electricity to make it live. When Dr. Frankenstein first brings his creature to life, the monster doesn't want to hurt anyone. But people are mean to him because they think he is so ugly. The monster becomes so lonely and so angry at the way he is treated that he starts attacking people. In many of the movies, the monster hates people from the very beginning.

Scary stamps
This year the U.S. Postal Service is honoring the movies and actors who made monsters come alive more than 60 years ago. The movie monster stamps are part of the October celebration of National Stamp Collecting Month. These include Bela Lugosi as Dracula, and Boris Karloff as The Mummy and as Frankenstein's monster.

Boris Karloff as Frankenstein's monster.

Boris Karloff did not become famous until he was 44 years old, when he landed the role of Frankenstein's monster.

Bela Lugosi in real life.

Bela Lugosi was actually born near Transylvania. He was buried in his Dracula cape.

Look through your newspaper for signs of Halloween.

King Tut's tomb was discovered 75 years ago. Next week learn more about him and the scientist who found the tomb.

Movies
More than 50 movies have been made about the Frankenstein monster, including "Son of Frankenstein" and "Frankenstein's Daughter."

Many movies mistakenly call the monster "Frankenstein." It was the monster's creator who was Frankenstein. The first "Frankenstein" movie was made by Thomas Edison in 1910. In his version, the movie has a happy ending. Dr. Frankenstein and his wife are able to make the monster disappear because their love for each other is so strong.

Boris Karloff was one of the most famous actors to play the part of Frankenstein's monster. He acted in the movie in 1931.

Thomas Edison had to invent the motion picture studio before he could make movies.
