Internet hookup pulled on TrailNet for 5 days

BY JULIE BAXTER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Telecommunications giant MCI disconnected LGI/TrailNet last week after the local Internet provider's system was tampered with by a hacker.

Thursday's disconnection left 4,000 TrailNet users in Ruidoso, Roswell, Alamogordo and Socorro literally cut off from the rest of the World Wide Web until Monday afternoon.

The hacker first breached the TrailNet system Oct. 19, wiping out three of the company's four domain name servers, the systems which verify sending and receiving e-mail addresses. The hacker managed to get into a security change in the software while TrailNet was upgrading its operating system. That initial breach caused TrailNet to go down for 24 hours.

By Oct. 21, according to TrailNet co-owner and lead technician Stryder Styarfyr, the company was working on the last of the three servers to be erased, when the hacker struck again and erased two more. The fourth server remained untouched, or so TrailNet technicians thought at the time, and was used to bring the other servers back on-line.

"We reinstalled name resolution files using data from the fourth server," Styarfyr said. "We thought we were clean, but..."

The hacker violated that fourth server, too, making a minor change that caused e-mail responses to go to a company that TrailNet has no authorization to use. That company contacted MCI, complaining about the unauthorized use.

"Tuesday we started to rebuild," Styarfyr said. "Wednesday, we got a call from MCI. They walked me through it point by point to try and find the error."

He said he followed MCI's instructions to the letter and was left with "the impression that all was well."

"Thursday they called to say they were shutting us down," Styarfyr said, adding that the security representative he spoke with was belligerent, almost to the point of being "zealously hostile."

A spokesman for MCI at a Washington, D.C., office declined to talk to a reporter about the situation Monday and could not be reached Tuesday.

Styarfyr said TrailNet made repeat-

Town plans meetings on growth

• Ruidoso's strategic planning committee will hold public meetings on developing a survey for residents and businesses.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

From tourism to infrastructure, the issues surrounding Ruidoso's growth will be the subjects of at least five public meetings in the next few months, Village Manager Gary Jackson said.

Information gathered from the meetings will be used to determine what questions should be included in the village's strategic planning survey.

"The point of last night's meeting was to start the process of how the questionnaire will be administered and what the questions will be asked," Jackson said of the Vision Steering Committee's initial meeting.

"Remember, this is just the first phase of the process."

The village initiated a

Supporters of Paul Ortega and Fred Peso gather under signs and banners touting their candidates in the Mescalero election Tuesday. Backers of other candidates assembled their own camps of support outside the only tribal polling place. Peso challenged incumbent Wendell Chino because Ortega ran for tribal vice president against Fred Kaydahzinne. Elections results are expected to be announced today.

Montes quits as chairman

He's upset county is seeking state funds

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Citing his unease with commission actions over the past few months, Monroy Montes has resigned as chairman of the Lincoln County Commission.

"Today, I relinquish the gavel," he said during a special commission meeting Friday. "I can no longer be chairman. I feel strongly about it. It's a matter of integrity."

His announcement caught most of the other commissioners by surprise. He has been chairman for the past five years.

E.J. Fouratt, a member of the county's road review committee, urged commissioners to immediately renominate Montes as chairman, but no action was taken.

County Clerk Martha Proctor also recommended Montes' reappointment, saying he is the best of the many chairmen with which she has worked the past nine years.

Montes left after enumerating the incidents that prompted his resignation from the top position on the board. Vice Chairman Wilton Howell picked up the gavel to finish the meeting.

At a special commission meeting Monday in Ruidoso, Montes said he had no regrets about his decision.

Montes on Friday said he was uncomfortable with majority votes by commissioners in two incidents and that he thought the way the commission's regular meeting in November was moved from Ruidoso to Carrizozo was improper.

He commended the commission actions in two incidents involving the state were misleading and that personal conflicts were interfering with the operation of county government in an open manner.

Specifically, he cited:
• The commission's decision to apply for $46,000 in disaster aid from the state Department of Public Safety when the county had enough money to cover the situation.

• Applying for a Community Development Block Grant and referring to the county fair building in

Police promote 1st woman to sergeant

Ramona Sabo

Toni K. Laxson/Ruidoso News

• Hard work and persistence pay off in a male-dominated field.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ramona Sabo wasn't given a promotion recently at the Ruidoso Police Department.

She earned it, said one of her superiors.

"There were three other corporals, male corporals, who tested, and Ramona tested the highest," said Lt. Wolf Born, head of criminal investigations, of the candidates for police sergeant.

"That's why she got the promotion. Not because she's a female, or because she's a white woman or whatever. She beat everybody on the test."

After 11 years in law enforcement and seven years with the Ruidoso Police Department, Sabo recently became the first woman to hold the rank of sergeant in Ruidoso, said Debbie Rogge, human resources director for the village.

Sabo, 33, doesn't try to hide or gloss over the rough times she's gone through as a female police officer.

"It's a male-dominated world, it really is," she said. "And I was aware of that when I came into it. A lot of people think the dispatchers should be females and the officers should be males."

Her promotion was not related to the sexual harassment-discrimination lawsuit she filed against the village in August, say both Born and her attorney, Robert Beauvais.

In the lawsuit, Sabo said she had been subjected to offensive language and crude depictions by fellow officers. She also was discriminated against in her work "schedule, work assignments and standing," her lawsuit said.

Beauvais said her promo-

Don't count on a spontaneous evening at the Spencer Theater this winter.

Theatergoers in the market for performance-day tickets got left on the outside of the glass atrium lobby looking in.

Six of the remaining 12 shows on this year's inaugural season schedule are sold out, and two more have limited seating available.

Spencer Theater box office manager Mari Hein said the sold-out performances include A Cowboy Christmas (Dec. 12), The Romeros (Dec. 20), the Prague Chamber Orchestra (Feb. 13), Marcus Roberts (Feb. 21), the Assad Brothers (Feb. 28) and Altan (March 20).

Limited seats are available for A Christmas Carol (Dec. 3-5)

Four bright planets enliven the skies of November and December. Why not make their acquaintance this evening? Dazzling Venus, the brightest of the four, blazes in the southwest as twilight fades. Three factors make it shine so brightly. Venus is currently the closest planet to Earth; it's close to the Sun; and it's covered with highly reflective clouds.

Water experts hear Ruidoso River success story

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Conservationists from across the state gathered in Ruidoso last week to share ideas and experiences in forming watershed associations to protect and improve New Mexico's land and rivers.

Many of the speakers at the Soil and Water Conservation Society's "Organizing Watershed Activities" conference cautioned that progress sometimes can be slow. They seemed astonished at the rapid success of the Ruidoso River Association.

Dick Wisner, representing the local association, related the story of how the group was formed, how members studied the subject for six months and then secured a $200,000 grant to finance the first project, all within one year.

"We were in the right place at the right time," Wisner said. "The 1996 drought slowed the water and the pools were so low you could see tiny dorsal fins protruding. It was plain to see that after so many years (of heavy use) the river needed us."

The initial group was small but diverse. The members included a chemical engineer, a naturalist and fly fisherman, a person used to organizing community projects, and a business man. They read everything relating to river health, including a book called "The River Network," and they defined their mission: To Preserve and Protect the Ruidoso River.

They learned that what happens miles away in the watershed around a river can impact what is seen downstream and that their approach had to be broader than first anticipated, Wisner said. They began to build credibility within the community and relationships with government agencies that would be involved or helpful in river-related efforts such as the state Environment Department, the Game and Fish Department and the U.S. Forest Service. They incorporated as a non-profit entity in February.

Members also agreed that whatever the differences of opinion within the group, they would speak publicly with one voice, Wisner said.

While doing that, they went door-to-door to drum up membership, which now has reached 600, he said.

The environment department helped the group secure a three-year $200,000 grant in April under the Clean Water Act, now waiting for final written approval from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, he said.

Essential to the effort was an attitude of cooperation and conciliation by association members, Wisner said.

"We were not throwing stones at anyone," he said.

The group wanted well-thought-out solutions and a strategy that would be a win-win for all sides. Luckily, they were not dealing with a corporation dumping pollutants into a river or a major opponent, he said.

Apathy, indifference and misunderstanding on the part of local residents were bigger obstacles, because they were didn't know the river had changed from its heyday as a high quality cold water fishery, he said.

Educating the public was the next step and that's where the bulk of the budget has gone to date. The association has sponsored annual river clean-ups, hoping to make people more aware of where litter ends up in a river town and expose the inhumane practices still occurring along its banks.

"Midschoolers were repulsed by the number of (drowned) dogs and cats with rocks around their necks they found in the river," Wisner said. "Enough furniture was found to furnish an apartment."

The association also sponsors Project Wild workshops in local schools and publishes a monthly newsletter.

Signs will be going up on bridges to remind people that they are crossing a high-quality river.

Once the grant money arrives, the association will focus on reducing sedimentation and nutrients in the river, as well as restabilizing the banks, Wisner said.

Other speakers included Dr. Bill Flemming from the University of New Mexico, who covered watershed resource planning and management, and Cy Sokoll of the Natural Resource Conservation Service, who spoke about partnership approaches. Other experts covered technical details and how to implement a project.

Some of the major themes running through all of the presentations were that a community must be involved from the beginning, that all viewpoints should be given a voice and that compromise is necessary.

TRAILNET: Ruidoso's Internet access cut off for 5 days

ed calls to MCI's security department, the legal department and finally the president's office. He said MCI reconnected TrailNet around 3:30 p.m. Monday.

"We were trying to give them every possible chance to make redress," Styarfy said, "even though they never gave us that same chance."

While the phone calls were flying between TrailNet and MCI, users were without computer access to the rest of the world. Business people, students and pleasure seekers alike were left with no way to contact clients, teachers or friends via the Internet.

"I'm an artist, but I primarily use the Internet for following stocks," said Ruidoso resident J.L. Schuller. "It costs me money when I can't make trades in a timely fashion."

Schuller said he also uses the Internet to keep in touch with friends across the country and the world.

"I had to do a lot of long distance calling over the weekend," he said.

Tamara Corriea, a TrailNet employee, is a student at the Gemology Institute of America and said the cut off left her without her lessons. "I (couldn't) do my homework, I (couldn't) receive or send e-mail," she said.

Earl Adamy uses the Internet every day as an independent software developer. He said it's hard to put a dollar amount or a total on the inconvenience the outage has caused him.

"It's hard to say. It's like if somebody said your telephone's out for four days. It's a hell of an inconvenience; maybe you miss important phone calls you don't even know about," he said. "I don't think you can really quantify it. You can say you feel naked without it, feel very ill at ease."

"I probably spend an average of a couple hours a day on-line doing research, getting technical support. I'm able to download software updates. I've always done business that way."

He also uses the Internet for personal pursuits like research and shopping.

"There's simply a lot of research and information that you can get on-line that you can't expect to get in a small community like this."

Adamy is also critical of the process that led to TrailNet's disconnection by MCI and of the recent "down time."

"I'm not picking on the people at TrailNet. I'm sure they're doing the best they can. The Internet to me, and I'm sure a lot of other people, is a vital resource," he said. "I view the Internet today the same way I view any other utility."

Adamy's main concern is that TrailNet's backup system wasn't up to par.

"The nuts and bolts of maintaining a reasonable amount of uptime is backup," Adamy said. "The name of the game is when (computers) fail, you've got to be able to get them up and running. You should be able to get them back in an hour or two."

He questioned why TrailNet's entire system wasn't backed up before the new operating system was installed, so at the first sign of trouble the backup could have been put in place.

Styarfy said there is an adequate backup system in place, which allowed TrailNet to get the system up and running so quickly after the hacker made his mark.

"We did a reinstall in three days, rather than rebuilding the entire system," he said. "Every single day that goes by a good 10 percent of the information (on the system) changes. People add e-mail, subtract home pages. It's backed up every 24 hours."

Citizens for the newly organized village of Green Tree, N.M., marched to the polls last Saturday and elected their first mayor, trustees and village clerk.

The election was a rather quiet affair with very little electioneering done. The most noticeable feature to the election was the fact that 78 out of a possible 92 votes were cast.

When the votes were counted it was found that Jack Parnell had been elected mayor and Lem Coltharp, Harold Willingham, George Fuchs as trustees, and Jess Harrie had been elected village clerk.

Jack Parnell was born in Hico, Texas, and moved to Portales, N.M., in 1945. He moved to Carrizozo in 1938 and to Capitan in 1939. He established the Palo Verde Electric Co. in 1949.

GROWTH: Vision survey planned

strategic planning process this summer to use as a guide for Ruidoso's growth. Part of that process includes surveying residents and businesses about what they think the village's priorities should be.

The visioning steering committee, composed of members of the village's boards and commissions, will develop the survey with the help of a Phoenix consulting firm, BRW Inc. A representative of the company, Michael Graham, attended the Monday night meeting.

The company helped Ruidoso develop its last survey, done in the mid-1980s, as well as the village's comprehensive plan, Jackson said.

"The staff is attempting to do much of the (new) comprehensive plan update," Jackson said. "But the question is something we need assistance with — especially with the number crunching on it."

The steering committee will review the old survey to see if any of the questions are still applicable, he said. The new survey will be both bigger in the number of questions asked and in the number of people it reaches, Jackson predicted.

The former survey included 24 questions for residents and 16 questions for businesses, he said.

"The dilemma is how to you design a survey extensive enough in scope to cover the issues, but does not intimidate (the people it reaches)," Jackson said.

The goal is to have a random sample of about 1,500 residents and 250 businesses answer the survey. Their responses, said Jackson, will in theory reveal the "pulse of the community."

He said the process of going through the meetings and developing the survey will probably take between four and six months.

The committee, in discussing what questions should be included in the survey, will hold public meetings on five subject areas: 1) public services, 2) facilities and infrastructure, 3) economic development, business, tourism, 4) environment and 5) parks, recreation, arts, culture.

Public services will encompass issues such as public buildings, the library and law enforcement.

Discussion of facilities and infrastructure will include topics such as streets, village transportation, water, sewer and garbage collection.

Economic development topics include development of the tourism industry, housing issues, convention and trade shows, transportation opportunities, main street development, industrial growth and economic incentives to encourage commercial growth.

Environment aspects include forest health, protection of the Rio Ruidoso, hillside protection, beautification, litter, health, hospital services and growth management.

The last category — a combination of parks, recreation, arts and culture — will tackle subjects such as open space and trail areas, recreational activities and facilities, the arts council, historic preservation and promotion, and education.

Other topics may be added to the list during committee discussions, Jackson said. Nor will there necessarily be only one public meeting per topic, he added.

The first meeting will be 6 p.m. Dec. 8, Jackson said. Both the location of the meeting and its topic will be determined later. Two committee members — Morgan Clough and Ron Anderson — will determine the first topic and set the ground rules for all the meetings, Jackson said.

Also during the meeting Monday, committee members elected Bruce Eldredge as chairman. Eldredge is director at the Museum of the Horse and the head of the village's Arts Commission.

MONTES: Commission chairman steps down

Capitan as a community center to be eligible and more likely to be funded.

Not abiding by a motion to conduct three regular board meetings in Ruidoso in the 1997 calendar year and some commissioners agreeing outside the public view to move the November meeting back to Carrizozo.

"We have a letter from the Department of Public Safety declining our application for disaster aid, because we have the capacity to absorb the expense," Montes said. "We have a document showing $1.3 million will be left in the general fund at the end of the year."

"We have the ability to absorb (the damage from rain). When we took action to declare ourselves in need, we were misleading the state. There's a requirement that you have to have exhausted all resources and we haven't done that."

Although the vote was not unanimous, a majority vote represents the entire commission, he said.

The same situation came up when commissioners in a 3-2 vote last month chose improvements to the county fair building over a mobile health clinic for a CDBG application, Montes said.

He had been told by Tony Elias of the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District that a recreational facility would not be eligible for the grant. But somewhere in the commission discussion, the fair building began to be called a community center, which would be eligible for the grant, he said.

"I think that's misrepresentation of the facts," Montes said, adding that he refused to sign the grant application. Monday, Howell, as acting chairman, said he also would not sign because of the labeling change.

"I'm not against the project," he said. "I'm not lining up against Capitan."

The deadline to submit the application is Friday.

Montes contended that he is open to improvements at the fairgrounds, but by using county money.

"I'm not (commission) district oriented," he said Friday, noting his work to improve the county road department and enlarge the county jail. "I like to look for things that we can get funded (through grants). I'm not trying to derail the CDBG."

Howell said because of the confusion over the scheduling of the commission meetings in Ruidoso, while he is acting chairman, he will require votes on issues and will not accept informal consensus. A new chairman cannot be appointed by the board until the January meeting.

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley had no comment on Montes' statements regarding the grant and disaster aid application.

Commissioner William Schwettmanner said the fair building was the first and only project mentioned for a CDBG grant until the commission meeting last month.

"I hope it continues to be a viable project," he said. "If the chairman won't sign, I think it behooves us to sign as commissioners."

Commissioner Rex Wilson said he appreciated Montes' remarks.

"It took courage and I will take them to heart," Wilson said.

DEATHS FUNERALS

Virgil Lee Comanche Sr.

Virgil Lee Comanche Sr. died Thursday, Oct. 30, at his home in Mescalero. He was 60.

A prayer service was held Friday at St. Joseph's Mission and a funeral was held Saturday at St. Joseph's.

Mr. Comanche was born Jan. 6, 1937, in Mescalero. He moved to California in 1969 and lived there until 1978, when he moved back to Mescalero.

He worked for the maintenance department for the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

He was in the Navy during the Korean War and was a member of the Reformed Church.

He is survived by a wife, Lee Santiago of Barstow, Calif.; three daughters, Lisa Dawn, Karen Ann and Virginia Louise; a brother, Bruce Dean; three sisters, Marjorie Lou Fulson, Virginia Kazhe and Cleta Pearl Hosetosavi, all of Mescalero; a granddaughter, Vanessa Peso; grandsons Gary Loretto, Christopher Loretto, Quanah Loretto, Bryan Kenoi and Joel Kenoi.

He was preceded in death by two sons, Virgil Lee Jr. and Bryan Christopher.

Roland Keith Haas

Roland Keith Haas of Ruidoso Downs died Saturday, Nov. 1, at his home. He was 61.

Mr. Haas was born in Clinton, Minn., on April 28, 1936. He moved to New Mexico in 1974 and lived in Ruidoso Downs for the last 13 years.

Mr. Haas, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses since 1954, was an elder with the church for the last eight years and was involved in building Kingdom Halls of Jehovah's Witnesses around the state for the past 13 years.

He is survived by his wife, Shirley; his mother, Maxine; three sons, Dean Haas, Mark Mobley and Greg Mobley; two daughters, Brenda Kuroski and Linda Johndreau; a nephew, Noel Salisbury; a sister, Betty Hauger; 14 grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

A memorial was held at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses in Ruidoso on Monday.

Doris B. Shoemaker

Graveside services for Doris B. Shoemaker of Ruidoso will be 1 p.m. Saturday at Forest Lawn Cemetery with the Rev. Jim Howland officiating.

Mrs. Shoemaker died Monday, Nov. 3, at Lincoln County Medical Center. She was 82.

Born March 19, 1915, at Pottstown, Pa., she moved to Ruidoso in 1970 from Hurst, Texas. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

She married George Shoemaker on Nov. 28, 1935, at Pottstown. He died in 1983.

Survivors include two sons, James of Laguna Beach, Calif., and David of Sausalito, Calif., and a granddaughter, Sarah, of Laguna Beach.

The family has suggested memorials to the First Presbyterian Church memorial fund.

Capitan furniture shop burns

A furniture shop in Capitan burned to the ground late Monday.

Capitan Fire Chief David Cummins said his volunteer department was paged at 9:10 p.m. about a fire at Larry Caywood's Furniture Shop on Mountain View Road.

"It was a hot one," he said Tuesday.

Four units and 16 firefighters responded from Capitan. With help from three Bonito Volunteer Fire Department units, the fire was brought under control in a half hour, Cummins said. But it took until 1 a.m., before all the crews left the scene.

One unit from Ruidoso Downs stayed to help with cleanup and to check for any remaining embers.

A unit also responded from Fort Stanton, but wasn't needed, he said.

"We make it a habit to call for backup, because you never know whether a fire could spread," Cummins said.

Damage was estimated at $100,000, he said. The fire was centered in a wooden frame structure that had been added onto a metal building.

A state fire marshal told Cummins the source of the fire was some type of open flame, but the chief said he had no other information.

No other buildings were endangered.

"They're pretty long," she said. "If there are any cancellations then we start going down the list, calling people."

Those on a waiting list have been ready.

Performers' complimentary tickets returned to the theater will be for sale, said Brad Cooper, Spencer Theater publicist.

The overwhelming response to the winter season has affected the theater management's plans for the summer season.

"We're considering adding shows or holding options to add shows," said Cooper adding, "I think the public will have a much better idea and move much faster (in buying tickets)."

Tickets remain available for Anonymous 4 (Dec. 7), clown Bob Berky (Feb. 6-7), Spalding Gray (March 27) and IMAGO Theatre Mask Ensemble (April 3-4).

Citing high demand, the Spencer Theater will offer scheduled tours of the $20 million facility beginning this week.

Tours are slated for Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. To make sure enough tour guides are available, Hein suggests visitors call ahead to reserve a tour time if possible. The box office phone number is 336-4800.

Access to the theater is restricted because of security and insurance reasons.

OUR OPINION

A rule ripe for change

It will take a while, no doubt, to determine whether the Ruidoso Village Council solved a problem or created 3,000 others when it voted last week to allow a Ruidoso landowner to make two building lots out of one larger one.

Pretty clearly it was one of those cases where the letter of the law was observed, while common sense went down the drain — all understandably to avoid the possibility of a lawsuit. Breaking a law, naturally, is what brings on lawsuits, or criminal charges.

As with most land questions in dear (but dry) old New Mexico, the rock-bottom issue is water.

It all started sometime ago when a landowner in the Town & Country Estates subdivision asked for division to split a property into two lots. Others in the subdivision, citing property covenants and an uncertain water supply, fought the request in the Planning and Zoning Commission.

There, the homeowners won; the commission denied the split-lot request made by Beulah Shaffer, even though it was sufficiently large to meet overall village guidelines.

Covenants on the Town & Country Estates property prohibited reducing the size of building lots. And other property owners in the subdivision cited water problems in last year's drought, during which — as one woman said — "when I ran the washing machine, I couldn't run the dishwasher."

Despite the P&Z recommendation to reject the lot-split request, most of the village councilors last week took a look at the village's regulations and concluded they had no choice but to approve the landowner's request, because the property in question did meet the minimum for subdividing — at least 10,000 square feet with a 75-foot frontage.

But village planners recognized the hole in the argument: With that precedent in place, anybody in the village with a sufficiently large lot could subdivide, build — and, over time, severely impair the village's infrastructure, and especially the water supply system. An estimated 3,000 lots qualify.

As planner Cleatus Richards noted with understatement, "That could require fairly substantial improvements to accommodate those additional lots."

It also, by rule of law, adds some 3,000 lots to those available in the village limits for development, perhaps thereby knocking down some arguments for the expansion of Ruidoso's boundaries. The problem, of course, is that the original water lines in a subdivision were designed to accommodate a certain number of connections — not twice that number.

We agree with the council that it's time to take a long, hard look at those lot size rules (maybe in combination with that ongoing development impact fee study), and find a middle ground.

The abrupt addition of 3,000 problems is a few too many for any village to handle, even Ruidoso.

THE DREAMER

Ed Hyman warmly remembered

Services were Nov. 1 at the Museum of the Horse for Ed Hyman, who was called home by our Lord on Oct. 26.

The Rev. Harry Riser, in charge of services, gave the opening prayer. Then Ed's daughter, Karen, shared recollections of happy days with her father, and recited a poem about him which she had written herself.

Wilber Richarz spoke of his days as a childhood friend of Ed, and also of time served with him during World War II in Europe, when Ed was a P-51 fighter pilot.

Ed's son-in-law, Don Garland, read a letter from the historian of Ed's outfit, the 387th Fighter Squadron that had been stationed in Yoxford, England. Don mentioned this historian also was chief mechanic for the airplane Ed flew.

Gerald Marr shared recollections of Ed's service on behalf of New Mexico horsemen, and also his work in the promotion of horse racing and tourism in the state.

Jim Biggs, a detective for the Ruidoso Police Department, shared memories of working for Ed at Radio Station KRRR. Cy Leland III recalled days when he began working for Ed while still a teen-ager.

BY DAN STORM
COLUMNIST

Cy said that after his retiring, Ed "worked for me for five years at Leland TV, and helped me immeasurably in my small business."

Ed's daughter, Karen, read a poem written by her father.

It had been the custom during the '60s and '70s for Ed, as a feature of the daily sign-off of his broadcast, to play a recording of his daughter at age 5 or 6 reciting "The Lord's Prayer." This recording was played at the memorial service for her father.

The memorial American flag was presented by Romeo Klein, on behalf of the American Legion, to Ed's widow, Marion.

The service closed by the playing of "Granada," a favorite song of Ed and Marion.

Remembering Ed

Back in the late 1950s, it must have been, the radio station was rigged at the tip top of the hill back of the police station.

I and my dog, Shady, began a "Silver Lining of the Air," and presented songs in English and Spanish. (My Hispanic friends still roll on the ground laughing while they imitate my Gringo accent.)

Shady and I kept up the program for many years. Anyhow, we became great friends of Ed Hyman. Ed was a man of great happiness who looked on the bright side of life, and brought happiness to others.

Earlier this year, Ed was present at Dan Storm Day in Ruidoso Downs and spoke some kind words I will remember always.

Ed Hyman always will hold a fond spot in our hearts, and we rejoice that he is safe and happy with loved ones who have gone on before, in Heaven.

Last birthday-month day

On Oct. 31 a birthday party was held for me at the Ruidoso State Bank, where they treated me to a great dinner in company of Don Swalander, and all the ladies working at the bank, complete with birthday cake and singing of Happy Birthday.

They presented me with a handsome winter coat with a card signed by everyone. This was at 11:30.

Then about 12:30, just across the way, the Ruidoso News staff was ready with a birthday celebration featuring hot dogs, cooked by Editor John O'Keefe. ... I was presented with a gift certificate, and a card signed by everyone at the Ruidoso News.

Thanks, everybody, for one of the greatest birthday seasons of all the 88.

LETTERS POLICY

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues.

Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's daytime telephone number and address. The phone number and street or mailing address will not be printed; however, the author's hometown will be included. The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Letters should be 500 words or less in length, be of public interest and must avoid name-calling and libelous language. The Ruidoso News reserves the right to edit letters, so long as viewpoints are not altered. Shorter letters are preferred and generally receive greater readership.

Letters may be hand-delivered to the News office at 104 Park Avenue or mailed to P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, NM 88345, attention of the editor.

The News reserves the right to reject any letter.

Linking the past with Butch and Sundance

To the editor:

Like my neighbor, Emadair Jones, I enjoy reading articles about the Old West written by Drew Gomer. The Oct. 31 issue mentions the names of a few notorious persons that were in my family's past.

My Aunt Avvon used to reminisce about her acquaintance with Butch Cassidy. She, at the age of 13, arrived in Browns Park, Colo., in 1900. That's when my grandfather, a foreman for the Oscar Burgland outfit in southern Utah, moved about 1,800 head of cattle to Browns Park and thence to Baggs, Wyo., for sale to another outfit. Because Browns Park was a sheltered area, good for wintering stock, grandfather decided to stay. His business became raising horses for the U.S. Cavalry, not to mention having a few spares to exchange for the jaded ones ridden by the likes of Butch Cassidy and Sundance. And, no rider ever left the place hungry. Grandmother saw to that.

Browns Park is in the northwest corner of Colorado and extends into the northeast corner of Utah and over the southern border of Wyoming. It is located midway between Hole-in-the-wall near the present Kaycee, Wyo., and Robbers' Roost near Hanksville, in southeastern Utah. The extreme ends were notorious outlaw hangouts. Browns Park was less known, but very desirable because of its proximity with borders of three states. Outlaws running from the sheriff of one state could ride across the state line and stop without fear of being pursued across that border. A generalized trail linking the three hangouts has been dubbed the Outlaw Trail and my family has lived on parts of it in both Utah and Colorado.

The story about Butch and Sundance hosting a Thanksgiving dinner in 1895 is still spoken of in those parts. That dinner, incidentally, was held at the Bassett Ranch, home of Ann "Queen of the Outlaws" Bassett. Parties of that nature were common and my aunt told how "dances" were held in those days. The host would invite all friends and neighbors for 40 to 60 miles around to his cabin for a dance. He would butcher and prepare a beef or two for his guests. A local family provided music. Everyone arrived in wagons, buckboards or on horseback and set up camps around the cabin. They brought extra food, as in potlucks. The dance might last as long as three days. Among the women and girls there were no wallflowers. All the cowboys and outlaws saw to that. My aunt's favorite dance partners were Eb Bassett, Ann's younger brother, and Butch Cassidy.

Another of the names mentioned is Tom McCarty. My grandfather knew him well, having lived with his family as a teen-ager near Monticello, Utah. When Tom gave up outlawing to correspond with grandfather and registered his pleasure that my mother, the first girl born after a strong of four boys, had been named "Enola," the name he had proposed to grandmother many years before.

Where's the navigator guiding the excitement?

To the editor:

We have been given a wonderful gift.

The Spencer Theater sits atop the mesa promising to take us on a journey. A journey into the incredible world of the arts.

As opening weekend approached, and the excitement and anticipation rose, we all wanted to be a part of it. And it was fabulous just as we had imagined; the glitz, the glamour, the magnificent performances — the orchestration of it all was so perfect. (I had tears in my eyes and chills down my spine.) Where you there? Thank Rand Harmon.

And the schedule of events to come is outstanding. We will have the finest in music, theater, and dance to enjoy. There's something for everyone! What a wonderful winter we have to look forward to! Do you have your tickets? Thank Rand Harmon.

I'm curious. What will happen this summer? What will happen to the educational programs planned for our children? What will happen to the theater?

I am still in shock, as is the entire town. Why such a talented and experienced person, one who has demonstrated his ability so well, would be replaced. A man of intelligence, imagination and vision, a shining star in our little village, is gone. And he will be greatly missed.

Spencer Theater does not hold the illuminating promise it once did, in my eyes. It has become tarnished. And what should we expect? I'm not sure.

We began the journey with excitement, anticipation and hope, but now we've lost our navigator.

Reliable Internet service essential for village development

I'm an independent software developer who requires reliable Internet access for my business.

COMMENT

BY EARL ADAMY
INTERNET USER

My wife and I surveyed much of Colorado and New Mexico before deciding we'd like to move to the Ruidoso area.

Lack of local Internet access precluded the move because we simply could not justify the substantial long distance costs required to connect to out-of-area Internet services available from AT&T, MCI, GTE and US West.

Last fall we learned that LGI/TrailNet would begin providing local internet service to the Ruidoso area. As soon as the service was up, we initiated planning for our move. I signed on as soon as I got the computer unpacked on Jan. 13.

I found both access and service spotty, when compared to the excellent service I had enjoyed prior to moving here, but was assured service would get better as more local phone lines were added and a new "T1" trunk line was under construction to improve access to the Internet backbone. A March rate increase seemed certain to help fund the promised service improvements and by June I was getting comfortable enough with the rate of improvement to pre-pay a year's access.

Things seemed to take a turn for the worse this summer and I've continued to experience disconnects, no answer, e-mail problems, poor response on the world wide web (WWW), and Internet newsgroups with incomplete content. There have been several periods during which service has been unavailable for more than a few hours, two of which have occurred in the past several weeks.

On Oct. 19, a hacker allegedly wiped out the company's Internet servers and they were not fully restored for several days. As I write this on Nov. 3, full Internet access to the world outside Ruidoso has been continuously unavailable since Oct. 30.

Repeated calls to the firm's support and administrative lines during business hours elicited busy signals. It wasn't until Saturday night that the company got around to sending an e-mail to its customers regarding the outage. While I'm certain LGI/TrailNet has reasonable explanations for all of the difficulties, the fact is that the community is unable to count on reliable access to the Internet.

As a home-office-based, "connected" professional, reliable Internet service is as critical to me as electricity and telephone. I'm certain that many others in this community depend upon the Internet for news, research, shopping, investment and business activities.

I read that our government and economic development officials are considering the adoption of tax incentives to lure business to the area.

While I believe that most larger businesses will not find here the transportation facilities, proximity to markets, or specialized skills which they require, this area does offer the amenities and lifestyle required to attract many of the professionals (programmers, writers, researchers, graphic artists and others) who are free to live where they like as long as they can reliably use the Internet to connect customers, vendors, family shopping and research facilities.

The community needs an Internet access provider which is accustomed to meeting the reliability requirements of a utility, has an established local communications infrastructure, and which has experience providing a full complement of internet services.

GTE, our local phone company, owns a major share of the nation's Internet backbone and (like virtually all of the regional Bells) already provides Internet service to thousands of subscribers in hundreds of local communities. Our officials should launch a concerted effort to bring GTE internet services to the Ruidoso area.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Local students make National Dean's List

Eight students from Lincoln County are among the approximately 115,000 students included in the 20th annual edition of the National Dean's List 1996-97, recently published by Educational Communications Inc. of Lake Forest, Ill.

Students are selected for the honor by their college deans, registrars of honor society advisers and must be in the upper 10 percent of their class, on their school's dean's list or have earned a comparable honor. Students are eligible to compete for $50,000 in scholarships.

Ruidoso students to make the list are Beverly De Coteau-Carusona, who attends the Institute of American Indian Arts; Carol Logsdon, who attends Eastern New Mexico University-Roswell; Angie Olvera and Jennifer Johnson, who attend New Mexico State University; and Mandelyn Sodd, who attends Eastern New Mexico University-Portales.

Also on the list are Stanna Chavez of Corona and Donna Cannella and Stacy Wall of Alto, who attend New Mexico State University-Las Cruces.

Vietnam Veterans offer scholarships

The Vietnam Veterans of America Inc., New Mexico State Council and the New Mexico Vietnam Veterans Foundation Inc. are offering a limited number of Doug Cochrane Scholarships to sons, daughters, stepsons and stepdaughters of Vietnam Era veterans.

For more information and an application, call (505) 268-1101 or write Vietnam Veterans of America Inc., New Mexico State Council, Doug Cochrane Scholarship, 406 San Mateo NE, Suite 124, Albuquerque, 871089. Applications must be received by Dec. 22.

Manufactured Housing scholarships available

The New Mexico Manufactured Housing Association has created a permanent scholarship endowment fund. This is the first education scholarship fund of its kind endowed by a manufactured housing association in the United States. The fund will be used to grant scholarship money to New Mexico high school graduates who live in a manufactured home for the college or university of their choice.

For information on applying for a scholarship, call (505) 883-6240 or your high school counselor's office.

Duracell Competition opens to pairs, 7th- and 8th-graders

For the first time, the Duracell/National Science Teachers Association is open to seventh- and eighth-graders and to two-person teams. In the 16th annual competition now under way, students in seventh through 12th grade are encouraged to participate individually or in pairs for more than $100,000 in U.S. savings bonds.

The Duracell rewards the creativity of students who invent battery-powered devices. Recognized as the nation's leading invention contest, 100 great ideas will be winners in the 1998 competition and every student who enters will receive a prize.

Entries from grades seven to nine and 10 to 12 will be judged separately. In both categories there will be a first place winner of a $20,000 bond and two second place winners of $10,000 bonds. In both categories there will be five third-place awards of $1,000 bonds, 12 fourth-place awards of $500 bonds and 30 fifth-place awards of $200 bonds.

Students on winning teams will divide prize money equally. Sponsoring teachers of the top three winners in each category will receive $2,000 gift certificates for computer equipment. Teachers sponsoring all 100 winners will receive gifts.

For entry packets call 1 (888) 255-4242 or visit the World Wide Web at <http://www.nsta.org/programs97/duracell.htm>.

The Anniversary of a Great Discovery

King Tut's Tomb

Howard Carter (1873-1939), who discovered King Tut's tomb, had to open the stone sarcophagus (sar-KOF-uh-gus), or coffin, and three other coffins, one within the other, before reaching King Tut's mummy.

Howard Carter

Unlike most archaeologists, Howard Carter did not graduate from college. Like his father, he became an artist. At age 18, he was sent to Egypt to trace the art in Egyptian tombs. He became an assistant to a famous archaeologist. After discovering King Tut's tomb, he became famous, too. While Howard Carter did not get to keep any of the King Tut treasures he found, his writings and lectures made him rich.

Valley of the Kings

King Tut died around 1337 B.C., about 1,000 years after the great pyramids were built. These pyramids were such an easy target for robbers that later rulers decided to go underground. They preferred to hide their graves deep in the desert rock and sand. King Tut's tomb, along with as many as 63 other tombs, was discovered in a deserted desert area known as the Valley of the Kings.

Finding the tomb

There is an old saying that "you can't take it with you." This means that you can't take your riches to the grave when you die. The pharaohs, or rulers, in ancient Egypt did not believe in this. They took their treasures with them when they were buried. The Egyptians believed they would be reborn and able to use these grand things. This week we will celebrate the 75th anniversary of the discovery of the richest tomb ever found. King Tut's tomb was discovered on Nov. 4, 1922. The treasures had been buried for more than 3,000 years.

This discovery was called the greatest find in the history of archaeology (AR-kee-OL-uh-gee), the study of the remains of people who lived before us.

The famous curse

Some people believed that there was a curse on the people who opened King Tut's tomb. The idea started when Howard Carter bought a new canary shortly before the tomb was discovered. Carter's workers thought the little yellow bird would bring good luck. When the canary was killed by a cobra, the symbol of the Egyptian kings, some believed that its death was revenge against the men who tampered with a pharaoh's grave. While some of these men did die unexpectedly, most of them, including Howard Carter, lived to old age.

What King Tut Took

Who was King Tut?

There is an old Egyptian saying: To speak someone's name is to bring him or her back to life. Because of the discovery of his treasure-filled tomb, King Tut's name has been spoken time and time again. King Tut's real name was Tutankhamun (TOOT-ahng-AH-mun.) He came to the throne in 1347 B.C. and ruled for just about 10 years. He married but had no children. He died when he was 18 years old. Most experts describe his rule as unimportant. However, what makes him very important is that his grave had not been robbed of its treasures. While vandals had entered it twice, they took only a few jewels and oils.

Tut's cartouche

In Egyptian writing (called hieroglyphs), each symbol stood for a sound or an object. The names of pharaohs were enclosed in oval shapes. The scribes, or writers, felt that the oval would protect the ruler's name. These royal ovals are called "cartouches" (car-TEWSH-es).

For Tut's happy afterlife

As Howard Carter peered through a tiny hole in the door of one of the rooms in the tomb, someone asked, "Can you see anything?" His answer was, "Yes, wonderful things." These included a basket of fruit, feathered fans, statues of servants, knives and even two chariots. Here are just a few of the items. We can tell something about King Tut by what he took with him to guarantee a happy life after death. These are on display at the Egyptian Museum in Cairo.

Something to do

This small statue shows King Tut as a boy going on a mythical hippopotamus hunt. It is a symbol of overthrowing evil.

Furniture

Tut probably used this chair when he was young. He came to the throne when he was only about 8 years old.

Makeup

Both men and women wore makeup and perfume. Keeping clean and smelling good were important. The lion on top of this cosmetic jar stood for strong character.

A mirror

Ancient Egyptians paid a lot of attention to their looks. Tut's mirror case was designed in the shape of the symbol of life. Mirrors were often placed in Egyptian tombs.

King Tut's mummy

A solid gold mask covered the shoulders of King Tut's mummy. It weighs about 20 pounds and is decorated with precious stones. A false plaited beard was placed on his chin. Tut's mummy was inside a stone sarcophagus and three coffins that fit inside one another. The one holding the mummy was of solid gold.

SERGEANT: 'I wanted to be able to go out and help people'

tion will not affect the lawsuit. Sabo earned the rank of sergeant because she simply scored higher than the other candidates, he said.

Sabo, who gained the status of corporal in 1994, got her start as a dispatcher working for both the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and Ruidoso Downs. For a while, she worked 60 hours a week between the two agencies. She was hired by the Ruidoso department in 1990 and was promoted to a street officer within a year.

"I chose to get into dispatching because I wanted to help people," Sabo said. "Then I started riding out (street patrol), and I wanted to be able to go out and help people — to actually, physically help people instead of being behind a desk."

With her recent promotion to sergeant, Sabo goes from being a plain clothes detective who works during the day to a street patrol officer who works a rotating schedule that often includes midnight shifts.

"It was one of the conditions of taking the position of sergeant — going back to patrol," she said. "I like both, so it really doesn't matter to me."

Work isn't a problem for Sabo, Born said.

"She does what she needs to to get the job done," he said. "She doesn't mind getting her hands dirty."

In fact, Born said the department needs more female officers like Sabo. Currently, there is one other female police officer with the department. In the past two years, the department usually has an average of three officers, Rogge said.

Out on the streets, Sabo said she hasn't run into too many problems because of her sex anymore than male officers.

At times, she's had to raise her voice to get control of a situation, but "there's situations when the men have to raise their voices to get control," she said. "It all just depends on the situation. The women tend to fight the male officers more than they do the women officers when they go to arrest them."

One time, however, when she and a male officer were escorting a man to the jail, the suspect jumped Sabo, put her in a headlock and attempted to get her gun. The suspect elected to jump her rather than the male officer, she said.

However, Sabo has proved herself a good officer, Born said.

"She showed some of the people who didn't think she should be out on the street that she could do that," Born said.

"There were a lot of people who, when I decided to make the transfer from dispatch to the street, that I would never make it," Sabo added. "I think it was because I was a female and a lot of them didn't want me out here. I had to prove to them that I could handle it."

In the test for sergeant, candidates obtain points in five categories: a written test (35 points), an oral review board (30 points), seniority (15 points), evaluations/certification (15 points) and at the police chief's discretion (5 points).

Police Chief Lanny Maddox didn't give any of his five points to Sabo, for which she is grateful, she said.

"I'm glad he didn't give me any points," she said. "I didn't get (the promotion) from anybody — I earned it."

Horse thief suspect arrested

A man suspected of stealing two horses was arrested this past weekend, authorities said.

"They didn't get away and the horses were recovered," said James Townsend, owner of the Grindstone Stables from where an appaloosa and a buckskin had been taken. "And some people helped out" with the recovery, he added.

A Mesalero woman provided Townsend with important information about one of the men accused of taking the horses, he said. The woman, Martaine Ortiz, had been upset to learn that a man her family had taken in was the suspected horse thief, Townsend said.

She showed Townsend and stable manager Kevin Kennedy where the horses had been kept on her property after they were taken from the stable sometime during the night on Oct. 28. The horses had been moved the next day to Ruidoso Downs, Townsend said. Ortiz also provided Townsend with a description of the man and his truck.

"She did everything in her power to see that he was brought to justice," Townsend said.

Sheriff's Deputies arrested Jason Lueffus, 32, of Ruidoso, Friday and charged him with the theft. Lueffus is in the Lincoln County Detention Center with a $10,000 bond set by Judge Gerald Dean Jr., a prison employee said.

Another suspect, a Ruidoso Downs man, had not been arrested as of Tuesday afternoon, a prison official said.

Townsend said one of horses had been shipped to Artesia by the man. That horse was recovered by the New Mexico Livestock Board. The other stolen horse was found in Ruidoso Downs, Townsend said.

Neither of the horses was hurt. However, they could have been killed because horses are branded and easily identifiable, he said.

After a 38-16 decision over rival Cloudfcroft, Capitan Tiger Dakota Hall enjoyed victory smiles with his teammates.

Tigers return 3A grid title to Capitan

BY STEVE BENNETT
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

Behind the "in your face" blocking of its offensive line and a swarming defense, the Capitan Tigers captured the District 3A football championship by dismantling the Cloudfcroft Bears, 38-16, Friday.

Tiger head coach Ed Davis was still charged about the game Monday. "It's a great thing to win a district championship. I can't say enough about these kids. They deserve all the credit," Davis said.

The 3A crown means the 6-4 Tigers get to stay at home to play the Dulce Eagles in the Class A quarterfinals at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

A three-pronged Capitan running attack of Raymond Harris, James Tacey and Josh Long led the Tigers against their Bear rivals.

"We had 582 yards in total offense. I was pleased with the whole offensive unit - the line blocked well and the backs ran hard," Davis said. "When Raymond broke that first TD, it was executed exactly like we draw it up on the chalkboard. It's hard to do better than that."

With solid blocking, Tiger junior running back Harris scored two touchdowns and ran for 258 yards - 188 yards rushing and a 70-yard kickoff return. Harris left the game with a neck injury in the third quarter but on Monday, Davis said Harris will be in action this week against Dulce.

Although Capitan's defensive unit held Cloudfcroft largely at bay, Davis and defensive coordinator Pat Ventura had a few trying moments.

"I was worried about what Cloudfcroft did to us Friday," Davis said.

Ventura added, "We did some good things on defense and we had a couple of mental lapses. When they broke that reverse for the touchdown, we had lined up all wrong."

Capitan's defense did bend, but it didn't break. Moreover, two big defensive plays saved one touchdown and set up another.

Warriors take care of business and Cobre

• Ruidoso can return to the post-season football playoffs with a win in Truth or Consequences Friday.

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

One down. One to go. The Ruidoso Warrior football team confidently and somewhat quietly kept its Class AAA playoff hopes alive with a sound 42-12 thrashing of Cobre Friday.

Les Carter's Warriors can clinch the District 3AAA runnerup spot with victory over Hot Springs Friday. Even though the Tigers lost to Santa Teresa, Hot Springs has an outside shot at the playoffs if it can upset the Warriors.

Ruidoso is 4-5 overall and 2-1 in the 3AAA. The Tigers are 3-6 overall and 1-2 in district play.

In Friday's game with Cobre, the Warriors never let the Indians have much of a chance. Ruidoso took the opening kickoff and marched 61 yards in 10 plays for its first of three scores in the opening quarter of play.

Junior quarterback Corey Saenz hit wide receiver Josh Varnadore for a 10-yard scoring pass to give the Warriors a lead they would never relinquish. Brett Meyer's two-point run made 8-0 Ruidoso with 7:25 in quarter.

How big was that opening drive? Carter said it set the tone for the game.

"We felt like we needed to control the ball and that's what we did," Carter said. "We moved the ball well. We were able to throw it well."

The Warriors wasted little time getting on the scoreboard again. Nose-guard Jason Leadingham picked off the first three Warrior interceptions on the ensuing Cobre offensive possession.

From the 27-yard line, the Warriors went for paydirt on the first play. Saenz and Varnadore hooked up again for another TD strike, making it 15-0.

When the Indians did mount a drive it usually stalled because of penalties or turnovers. Cobre might have made a game of it after the second Ruidoso touchdown, but after moving the ball to the Warrior 42-yard line the Indians committed a holding penalty which killed the drive. Another time, the Indians picked up a first down on a fake punt only to fumble the ball away on the same play.

The Warriors scored for the third time on their third possession when Saenz scampered in from 12 yards out. It capped a 67-yard drive. Meyer's kick upped the RHS lead to 22-0.

Ruidoso finished with 353 yards in total offense. Saenz was the Indian-killer with 15 rushes for 60 yards. The Warrior signal caller passed for 154 yards and three touchdowns on 9-for-

Cesar Legaspy finds room to run around the right side during first half action in Ruidoso's district win over Cobre, 42-12. Legaspy finished with 47 yards rushing on six carries.

16 passing. Varnadore was his favorite target with five catches for 103 yards.

Ruidoso's 199 yards on the ground allowed the Warriors to control the clock and keep it away from Cobre. In the first half alone, the Warriors had the ball for 17 of the 24 minutes.

For Cobre coach Brian Miller, the game wasn't as frustrating as the last two Indian outings. Still ...

"We played a little harder than we have," Miller said. "We couldn't stop their quarterback. Offensively, we beat ourselves."

Miller is in his first year at Cobre, and trying to turn around the Indians' losing ways.

The difference between his ball-club and the Warriors is confidence. "Ruidoso believes that they're going to win. We just think we're going to win," Miller said.

Game recap

The Indians finally got on the board with 11:55 to go in the fourth quarter. Danny Garcia's five-yard run broke the Cobre goose egg.

Ruidoso responded with 54-yard drive behind the running of fullback Adrian Herrera. Herrera plunged across from two yards out for a 36-6 Ruidoso lead.

Juan Warner's interception led to Ruidoso's final TD, a 9-yard pass from Saenz to Garvin Grant.

Coach Carter had choice words for this official.

Alive and spiking

Ruidoso visits Cobre for a semifinal match with the Indians

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

The Ruidoso volleyball team is one win away from a state tournament berth. The Warriors will have to take an out-of-the-way route through Cobre to get to Santa Fe, however.

Fran Webb's Warriors advanced to the District 3AAA tournament semifinals with a win over Hot Springs on Monday in Truth or Consequences. "We won, but we had to make it exciting," Webb said.

After winning the first two games, the Warriors lost a close third game and the fourth before pulling it out in the decisive fifth game. Game scores were 15-6, 15-13, 14-16, 7-15, 15-8.

Ruidoso improved to 8-12 overall, and now has won four of its last five matches. "For one thing we've got to never think that Cobre is out of it. We can never count them out."

The victory means the Warriors head west again, this time to No. 2-seeded Cobre for a semifinal matchup with the Indians.

The match is scheduled for 7 p.m., but Webb asked Cobre officials for an earlier start of either 5 or 6 p.m. That way the Warriors would arrive home earlier from the four-hour road trip.

To deliver a victory, the Warriors can't look past the Indians or the "little things" such as passing and serving. "For one thing we've got to never think that Cobre is out of it. We can never count them out," Webb said. "We've definitely got to stay focused. If we have them on the ropes, we've got to finish."

The Warriors learned that lesson Oct. 18 when the Indians rallied from a 2-0 deficit to steal a district victory.

The Indians are too quick and scrappy on the floor for the Warriors to rely on a finesse game. Webb wants her middle hitters to pound away at the Cobre defense, which is not known for its good blocking.

"We need to make them pick up some good hits and make their blockers work," Webb said.

Even if the Indians get a piece of a Ruidoso hit, the spike might force a bad pass, or at least not make it as easy for the Indians to set up their offense.

Finally, the Warriors can't let their confidence wane, either.

After Monday's fourth game when the Tigers had rallied, Webb described the War-

Capitan spikers will have to finesse their way to state

What does Capitan volleyball coach Bryan Massé think of the Animas Panthers, his team's Region G Tournament semifinal opponent?

"They've got the tradition. They've got the experience and they're on their home floor," Massé said.

Sounds foreboding, but Massé was anything but ominous Tuesday as he spoke about his Tigers' chances in regionals.

"It'll be a tough match. We'll have to play well and play smart," Massé said. "If we do that, we'll be all right. We've got a darn good volleyball team and if we just play our game we'll be all right."

Capitan takes on the host Panthers in the second semifinal of the Region G Tournament on Saturday in Animas. District 6AA champ Tularosa meets District 5AA runnerup Hatch Valley in the first semifinal at 1 p.m., followed by Capitan and Animas at 3 p.m. The Region G championship is set for 7 p.m.

Animas is as tall as the Tigers are short.

"They have two 6-1 girls and two 6-footers," Massé said. "They're huge. They're big. But they're not as quick as we are. They play power ball. They don't vary their shots a lot or dink a lot, because they don't need to."

Six-foot freshman Lindsay Bush is the only Tiger who can look at the Panthers eye-to-eye.

Capitan will try neutralize the Panthers' size with hits around the blocks, or through the blocks when the middle hitter is tardy getting in position. Offensively, the Panthers

Hatch Valley is the common denominator at regionals. The Bears have lost to Animas three times this year and fell twice to Tularosa, but beat Capitan in four games way back in September. Three years ago, the Bears made the finals as well, which leads Massé to this conclusion: Four of the best teams in the state will be in Animas on Saturday, but only two can go to Santa Fe.

Collecting French porcelain

Perfume bottles shaped like Oriental men, soup tureens that look like huge shells and vases covered with human and animal heads were among the unusual designs produced by French porcelain manufacturers in the 19th century. When the rococo style was revived, the affluent demanded very elaborate porcelains.

Jacob Petit was one manufacturer who met the demand. His firm in Fontainebleau, France, made vases, clock cases, figurines, candlesticks and full sets of dishes.

Now, Petit's small perfume bottles encrusted with three-dimensional figures as well as Oriental-inspired designs for figurines and decorative wares are in great demand. Pieces are marked with the blue letters "J.P."

One unusual soup tureen looks like a huge seashell. It probably was made to serve fish chowder or other fish soups at a large dinner party. The design must have been popular; a German factory made almost the identical tureen about 1910.

Question: My husband's family has a painting done on a spider web that was brought from Austria at the turn of the century. The picture is visible on both sides of the double glass pivotal frame. Have you heard of this?

Answer: There were many strange types of pictures made in Victorian times. Paintings on spider webs were done by professionals and sold as oddities to tourists. There is an example hanging in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Q: The back of my pine chair is round, and when the back is flipped forward, the chair turns into a table. When was it made?

A: Table chairs were introduced in the 17th century. They also were made in the 18th and 19th centuries for use in country homes. They sell for $1,200 to $7,500.

Q: My grandparents were from Turkey. When they died, they left me an old doll with a wooden face. It's a man dressed in a native Turkish costume. I think he's made from papier-mâché. He is marked "Ertugrul O Zsoy Turk El Isleri Ataturk Bulwari." Is this a one-of-a-kind thing? Are there more like it?

A: There probably are more like it. The mark you describe was used on dolls made in Turkey in the 1930s.

Q: My mother gave me a pair of earrings with clear stones in them. I thought they were diamonds, but she called them "Fabulite." Do you know what that is?

A: "Fabulite" is a trade name for synthetic strontium titanate, which resembles diamonds. The material was created in 1953 and also was sold under the names "Starilian" and "Diagem."

Q: Do you have any information on the age or value of a Mira music box my family inherited? It came with 52 metal tune-sheet discs, and it is in working order. The pamphlet with it is signed by the maker, Mermod Frères.

A: Your family inherited something of value! Frères made fine music boxes in Switzerland at the turn of the century.

The Miras are the size of cabinets, not like the tabletop music boxes we think of today. One sold recently for $7,400 — with just one of the metal discs. Yours likely would sell for much more.

"Come out to the senior centers and meet people. I guarantee you'll come back."

Bart Young,
Retired Senior Volunteer Program

'There's plenty to do'

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Watch him move, listen to him talk and it doesn't take long to realize that Bart Young has taken the "tired" out of retired.

A former coach, teacher and school administrator, Young, 66, now is pouring his energy into activities for the betterment of the community and the elderly — and he's getting a big kick out of the effort.

He helped revitalize the Lincoln County Senior Olympics, serves on the Retired Senior Volunteer Program advisory board, is an elder at his church and donates his time to the Ruidoso Public Library.

"When people retire, there's the one image of them sitting in a rocking chair and then there are the others who go out and make their own way," Young said. "There's plenty to do. As you'll hear many of the volunteers here (at the Ruidoso Senior Citizens Center) say they're busier now than when they were working."

The difference is the deadlines have been removed and the whole process is more laid back, he said.

Born in Sacramento, Calif., Young graduated with a bachelor's in business from the University of California at Berkeley, but after one year with a department store, decided he'd made a bad choice.

He earned a second degree in physical education and took a job as a teacher and coach of baseball, track and field and football in Sacramento. He stayed in teaching 14 years and earned a master's from Northern Arizona University in business, then spent 20 years in school administration. During his career, he worked in Sacramento and Bakersfield, Calif., Yuma and Flagstaff, Ariz., before settling in Baldwin Park, Calif.

He retired in 1992 and his wife, Mary, followed suit and retired from teaching in 1993. They already had chosen Ruidoso, after family vacations in the West the previous two years looking for the right location.

Young had narrowed it down to Evergreen, Colo., and Ruidoso. But the warmer climate and school system (for his high school age son) put Ruidoso on top. The son graduated in 1995 and is attending Adams State College in Colorado. An older brother earned a master's in 1993 from Cornell University and is an environmental engineer in Annapolis, Md.

"Mary and I both got involved right away," Young said. "I always had been athletic and I served on a committee that revitalized the Senior Olympics program in 1994, first as secretary-treasurer and now as president and county coordinator."

Young two weeks ago brought home a gold medal in basketball shooting from the World Senior Olympics in Saint George, Utah.

But he emphasizes that many of the 22 competitions are less physical, such as table tennis and horseshoe pitching.

"The toughest part is getting people to participate in the events as well as be volunteers," he said. "Some of the competitions don't require much athleticism. Bowling doesn't require running and jumping. But on the other side, cycling is very strenuous."

Some look at the Olympics as a time to socialize, he said. Others are quite competitive. Anyone 50 or older can sign up.

Locally, about 60 participate, but Young would like to see many more, especially in golf and tennis. Win here and they will go to state, where 1,500 compete. It's a great way to meet people, he said.

"Getting into a new community was relatively easy," Young said of his forays to raise money for the high school basketball team shortly after he moved here. "Every business I contacted was so friendly and helpful."

He also worked on Project Graduation, an alternative non-drinking celebration for graduates, and he makes it a point to go to fund-raising events for other groups. Those activities combined with his hours at the Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens centers and his church, First Christian, have brought him into contact with city and county officials and state-level politicians.

But he doesn't confine his volunteer hours to organizations where he already is a member. In 1994, he joined a river cleanup and twice a year works on the community cleanup sponsored by the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department.

As a spinoff, he's now a part of the Senior River Rovers, a group that cleans up along the river once a month.

His wife also throws in hours of volunteer work at the Lincoln County Medical Center through RSVP.

All together, Young estimates he spends 10 to 12 days a month in volunteer work. Looming ahead is the big job of moving the public library to new quarters next to Village Hall when construction is finished, probably sometime in early January.

"That's a three-month commitment," Young said.

For people who must be more sedentary or prefer that type of pursuit, the senior citizens center in Ruidoso offers bridge and other card games and dominoes, as well as pot lunches, dancing and a sundae social. A good way to begin volunteering is to deliver meals to shut-ins a few days a week. Some people come on Thursdays to quilt.

The senior center in Ruidoso Downs also has four pool tables, horseshoes, table tennis and line dancing. When the library moves out, the Ruidoso center, which shares the building on Sudderth Drive next to the municipal pool, will expand into the library's old space. With more space, center director Sandee Jourden expects to offer many more activities. Senior centers also operate in Capitán, Carrizozo, San Patricio and Corona.

"Come out to the senior centers and meet people," is the best advice Young can give to someone new in town or someone who has lost a mate and is alone for the first time in decades. "I guarantee you'll come back."

As for Young, he said he never had misgivings about his move from busy Los Angeles County to Ruidoso.

"I had lived there 20 years and had the feeling it was a smog-filled, traffic-filled metropolis, and I wanted out and into the mountains, which I love more than the seashore," he said. "I wanted four seasons and I wanted a small community in a Western state."

And since he arrived, Young has donated his time and energy to ensure the community is a place where many others also will find peace of spirit and plenty of things to do.

Child care touted as profession that is key to development

BY JULIE BAXTER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The role of child care has evolved over the years, and researchers are stressing its importance in early child development.

"Child care providers do the most important job, especially in light of recent research on brain development, but a lot of people still consider them babysitters," said Irene Sanchez, director of the New Mexico Child Care Services Bureau.

An honest opinion on the state of child care in the state from the woman who oversees it all. In town last weekend for the Regional Early Care and Education Conference at Ruidoso High School, Sanchez spoke on the issues and attitudes facing child care providers. Her speech, "Respect: Child Care as a Profession," was aimed at enforcing the importance of good child care and the professionalism it requires.

Sanchez, who has been at the helm of Child Care Services for 10 months, has spent years in both private and public service in the child care industry. The key to good child care, in her opinion, is good education. She said New Mexico is doing well in keeping providers educated, and in light of recent national attention gained through first lady Hillary Clinton's forum on child care in Washington, she said things will continue to improve.

"In terms of education and training for providers we're doing well. This conference in town is an example of the free training available for child care providers. We have a career ladder in place so we can start building the profession," she said.

"The career ladder is a system where training courses apply to community college classes and the associate's degree earned at community colleges applies to a bachelor's degree program at a college or university. We're also looking into support to help ease the financial burden."

The national attention ties in with what's happening on a state level, Sanchez said.

"I see this as a window of opportunity to really build child care as a profession," she said.

Nationally, one of the focuses of the child care forum was providers' pay. Sanchez agreed that pay is an issue, but keeping child care affordable is also key.

"One of the important things that has to happen is there has to be adequate compensation without breaking parents," she said. "We as a country and as local communities need to commit to quality child care."

The importance of good early care is reinforced by recent scientific research, Sanchez said.

"Research has shown the key to child development is the relationship between the child and the environment, and most importantly the adults in that environment," she said. "As a child is exposed to different activities, the brain is actually laying down tracts; the cells are actually connecting. Those cells are very important later in life as they lay the foundation for all learning. It's not about the ABCs, it's about the child being in a warm, caring environment."

State programs she thinks will continue to bolster the child care profession include migrants first handed out this year.

She said the grants were available to help providers attend training or update their equipment, but only about half of the eligible providers applied. But now that the money has been distributed, Sanchez said her office is already receiving calls on the next distribution of migrants, which she promises will happen next spring.

Other financial plans include increasing provider reimbursements and working with chambers of commerce and local business for tips on how to run child care centers like any other successful business.

"It's a very exciting time for child care," Sanchez said. "We're right at that crossroads where we can really start making a difference for children if we work together."

"One of the things I'd like to see happen is lottery money not only going to schools but also being used for child care, so we can start thinking of it as early care and education."
