Commission reconsiders road fees

Controversial road front footage assesment is back

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Four years after Lincoln County dropped road front footage assessments, county commissioners will take another look at the approach in their search for ways to pump up the road department budget and improve road maintenance.

Commissioners will start their regular meeting an hour early at 8 a.m. Tuesday, and they'll get together at Ruidoso village hall instead of in Carrizozo.

"I've had several calls from people wanting additional services in different subdivision in outlying areas," Commissioner Wilton Howell said Thursday. "The only way we can do that is to increase the income in the road department. I think some people will be at the meeting saying they don't mind paying some more, if they can get more service."

If a source of revenue can be found to supplement the road department, it would free up about $375,000 to $400,000 that commissioners have been drawing from the general fund each year. That money then could be used toward construction of a new county detention center, Howell said. The county jail in the courthouse in Carrizozo is crowded and doesn't meet all state and federal standards.

"If we put that one mill toward detention facility, we can solve the problem without a new tax," Howell said. One mill equals $1 for each $1,000 of taxable property value. New Mexico taxes on one-third of market value.

"This is not a tax," Howell said of the assessment. "This is a user fee generated where they are using the service. Two of the main complaints voiced to me are that people want the service they paid for and don't want to pay for somebody else's service."

Four years ago, commissioners dropped the front footage assessment after a group of citizens and a former county attorney (who Howell pointed out helped write the assessment ordinance) challenged the way the county was applying it — across the board and without an accounting of any "extraordinary" work performed. The objections followed a commission decision to increase the assessment from 10 cents a front foot to 20 cents.

"They said extraordinary maintenance is paving," Howell said. "In my opinion, it's when you are spending more on a particular road than surrounding properties generate in taxes."

Johnson to speak at Camp Sierra Blanca graduation

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The graduation class is small — just two teenage boys — but the event is important enough to draw Gov. Gary Johnson to Camp Sierra Blanca to deliver the main speech today.

For the first time since the minimum security camp for young male offenders opened last August in Lincoln County, the governor will tour the facility supervised by the state Department of Children, Youth and Families (CYF).

He'll arrive at 3 p.m. and stay to deliver his words of wisdom at the graduation at 4 p.m. The two boys are numbers 18 and 19 to graduate from the program, the first of its kind in New Mexico, run by Associated Marine Institutes based in Florida.

Graduations occur on the last Tuesday of each month. As a few boys leave, a few more are admitted to maintain the camp's population of 50 boys. The camp, about 13 miles northeast of Ruidoso, previously has been used as both a men's prison and women's prison.

Boys sent to Camp Sierra Blanca are low-risk. The program is being used to help reduce severely overcrowded juvenile facilities in other parts of the state.

"These graduates have gone through programs with a strong emphasis on education and vocational skills," Johnson stated in a news release on his visit. "The camp has given them the opportunity to turn their lives around and become productive members of their community."

Proposal puts CV Bureau in limbo

Mayor Robert Donaldson says bureau will continue but perhaps in a different form

Convention bookings are not all there is to the Ruidoso Convention and Visitors Bureaus, say coordinators.

"It has to do with the concept of sales," said Joan Bailey, director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce through which the village has contracted the services of the Ruidoso Convention and Visitors Bureau (CVB).

"It is not just the booking of that convention center, whether it is a special event, a convention, a meeting or a wedding reception. It is about the selling of it. And the selling of it continues even after that reservation is made."

"I think for the people who have not been involved in sales, there is a gap of information that is occurring there. And that is why we feel so strongly about keeping this position. Whether it stays at the chamber of commerce or not. It needs to stay in the private business sector."

The village's three-year contract with the chamber and thus the bureau ends on June 30. Rather than seeking bids on a similar contract, the village council has split the contract in three parts: the operation of a visitors center, advertising services and a contract to solicit special events, pending approval at Tuesday's council session.

Sandi Kuykendall, director of the Convention and Visitors Center, and Bailey are concerned that village leaders understand the bureau's role as the

"So much of this could have been alleviated if those of us who had been involved ... these last three years could have been brought in and you (village leaders) could have asked us a bunch of questions," Bailey said.

Donaldson's proposals are all for the good reasons, she added. "We all want to get the best and full use of the convention center. We all agree on

Village holds 'emergency meeting' to purchase garbage trucks critical to collection service

• Ruidoso Village Council called an emergency meeting Thursday to purchase two garbage trucks that may have otherwise taken as long as a year to acquire.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A bare bones Ruidoso Village Council on Thursday afternoon met in an emergency session to secure two garbage trucks that wouldn't be available after today.

"If we don't buy them now ... it could take 12 to 18 months," Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson said Thursday before the vote. "The primary purpose is to get these trucks. It's absolutely critical to the operation of our collection services."

The trucks, a total cost of about $267,000, will be needed when Ruidoso assumes garbage collection services from the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority. Ruidoso, in the process of separating from the authority for several months, initiated the process because of numerous complaints about the service provided by the authority.

Donaldson, at the Thursday session, said Ruidoso would start its own garbage collection by Sept. 1, if not sooner.

The ordered trucks should be delivered from California by then — one on July 28 and the other in the first week of August, said Len Stokes, owner of Progressive Environmental Services and a consultant to the village.

Stokes has been searching for garbage truck vendors to supply the type of equipment needed by the village. The only trucks he found meeting those specifications were the two in California. The manufacturer agreed to hold the trucks until Friday, he said. If the village didn't act before then, the village would wait anywhere from a year to 18 months to acquire the type of truck needed, Stokes said.

Because of large overseas orders for garbage trucks, availability currently is very limited, Stokes stated in a letter to Briley. The trucks sought by Ruidoso are designed for right-hand drive, right-hand pick-up. Stokes said the design is a safety factor, since the trucks will be able to move with traffic.

In a special emergency, sole-source purchase, the council approved the expenditure of about $163,000 from the village's general fund. The remainder would be paid upon delivery, Stokes said.

Village Manager Alan Briley said the village will apply for seven-year amortizing loans on the equipment following the council's passage of a joint powers agreement/resolution to reform the Lincoln County Solid Waste

The Lady Godiva mine is again in operation with a good force of men working. If more miners are employed in this district they must come from the outside, there are none left idle here.

The Old Abe Co. is now supplying three companies with water for operating mines: the South Homestead, the Godiva and the Old Abe Co.

Paul Mayer secured the contract for the new route established between White Oaks and Carrizozo station. The trip from Carrizozo here may be easily made in an hour and a half. The distance is 12 miles. The stage will depart for Carrizozo at 8 o'clock in the morning in order to meet the south bound train at Carrizozo station.

The public schools close here next Friday.

Authority. The agreement is needed before loans can be approved, he said.

The Ruidoso Village Council is the last member of the authority to vote on the agreement, which has been continued to the council's Tuesday session for a vote.

Gary Jackson, former village manager, said earlier the village could assume garbage collection services for the same fees as charged now by the authority, based on a study by village staff. The fee for residential services is about $7 a month.

The entire cost of equipping Ruidoso for garbage collection services is expected to be about $800,000, Briley said.

The council, though scheduled to approve the agreement during Thursday's special session, could not take an action since three members were absent due to illness either themselves or of family members. Tammie Maddox, village clerk, said the council needed an absolute majority to take action on ordinances and resolutions. Council action on a purchase does not require an absolute majority, she said.

Ruidoso will receive the equipment it formerly owned before joining the authority in 1991. However, most of that equipment is worn and "on its last legs," Stokes said.

FEES: the potential money raised from the assessment is $260,000 a year

When commissioners dropped the assessment, they made it clear subdivision roads would receive only the minimal maintenance the county could afford.

"If this is what they want, this is what they'll get," was the response.

"That could very well be why people are screaming and hollering," Howell said. "In the past four years, we've shorted the road department by $1 million by not having a user's fee."

Many lots only have 200 feet of road frontage and that came to $20 a year under the previous assessment, he pointed out.

This time, Howell would like to see a 30 cent assessment.

"I don't know whether it will pass or not, but we need to rededicate that mill to the detention center," he said.

At 10 cents a mile, one mile would produce $520 for each side of the road, for a total of $1,040 per mile. Although he acknowledged that the commission could not impose the assessment across the board, Howell said with 260 miles of subdivision roads, the potential is for $260,000 a year. Thirty cents would triple that figure.

"You can't blanket-apply the assessment," Howell said. "Some (subdivisions) may not be receiving services or are defunct. We'd want to look at individual subdivisions and ones with extraordinary maintenance should be assessed."

Commissioner Monroy Montes said such assessments are a good method of meeting extraordinary needs in a subdivision.

"I think the real issue for me is that a lot of people think it's for all county roads," he said. "We keep trying to educate them that it's not. The law was enacted by the state Legislature to give counties the ability to take care of extraordinary maintenance on subdivision roads only."

"I think it can help all of us and give the road department more money."

The boys range in age from 14 to 18 years and stay for six months or until requirements have been completed.

A six-month after care program in a boy's community helps provide successful reintegration and includes job placement, school participation or both, and weekly contact with program staff.

To date, 14 graduates are successfully reintegrating into their communities while three have been placed back in the program for failing to maintain a high level of accomplishment.

"Staff at Camp Sierra Blanca have high expectations for these young men," said CYF Secretary Deborah Hartz. "I also have high expectations for the graduates, I expect them to be successful in life and not come back into contact with our juvenile justice program."

county's subdivisions and most of the assessment opponents, said he hasn't heard from his constituents on the rebirth of the issue.

"But that's because we have no real plan yet," he said.

"I don't see anything wrong with it if people in a subdivision come to us and say they are willing to put into a fund just for that subdivision at so much a front foot," Schwetmann said. "I can't say how Alto will react, but people here didn't object when it was in place last time."

However, Schwetmann said it would be inappropriate to assess property owners along a gravel road for "extraordinary" maintenance.

"If some commissioners are trying to put an assessment on all subdivisions, it would be wrong, legally and morally," he said. "Right now, it's just another plan of the month that sounds good, but I've yet to see it go anywhere."

Commissioners Rex Wilson and L. Ray Nunley, and Duane Williams of the county road review committee could not be reached for comment.

Other items on the 32-issue agenda include:

- A special audit of the facilities fund requested by commissioners.

- Cost estimates for restroom improvements at the county fairground.

- Uniform provisions for county board membership.

- A final preliminary budget hearing at 10:30 a.m.

- Hearings at 1 p.m. on amendments to the county subdivision ordinance, to discuss front footage assessments and to consider a proposed ordinance amending the county personnel policy to eliminate benefits for part time employees.

- A summary review of Elk Run Subdivision requested by Teri Ann Sodd.

- A summary review of Whitney Subdivision requested by Ken and Susan Whitney.

- Consideration of a good time policy for inmates at the county detention center in Carrizozo and review of a policy on the radio monitoring program for inmates.

- A discussion by Wilson on control of campaign signs.

VILLAGE NEWS

Curfew change

Reduced curfew hours will be considered by the Ruidoso Village Council at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. The ordinance amendment was continued from the past council session because of the lack of an absolute majority.

A new weekday curfew for minors would apply from Memorial Day until Labor Day. The curfew would begin at midnight and end at 5 a.m. After Labor Day, the hours would switch back to 10 p.m. on week days and midnight on weekend nights.

Changes to animal control laws

Dogs and cats in Ruidoso would need to be restrained by either a fence of some sort or a tether, according to a proposed ordinance up for consideration at Tuesday's council session.

Currently, the law only mandates that pet owners or the people responsible for the pets keep them on the owners' property.

The ordinance amendment was continued from a past session because of a lack of an absolute council majority.

Board term limits to be eliminated

The Ruidoso Village Council intends to do away with an ordinance putting a term limitation on board and committee members.

The limit is currently at three terms for the voluntary board members.

Mayor Robert Donaldson said the ordinance, enacted last year, was created too hastily without considering the number of valued board members that would be lost.

Court automation fee

The Ruidoso Village Council will vote Tuesday on increasing the Municipal Court's automation fee from $3 to $6 dollars.

The fee increase is mandated by state legislation. The fee would take effect July 1.

New hearing policies for council

Several new policies regarding how the Ruidoso Village Council conducts its sessions and public hearings will be considered Tuesday.

A vote on the new policies was continued from the past council session because of a lack of an absolute council majority.

The policy changes are:
• The council agenda will be closed at 10 a.m. on Wednesdays before council sessions instead of at noon on Thursdays.

• Items on the agenda will be considered at the Wednesday pre-agenda meetings. People requesting to speak to the council on an issue may be referred to a village department or a village board, depending on which action would be most expedient. If an issue is not resolved through those channels, then the item will be brought before the council at a later session. Mayor Robert Donaldson has said.

• Information about agenda items will be submitted to the village prior to the Wednesday agenda meetings. People wishing to be on the agenda must submit a detailed written summary of their presentation, including their name, address, whether they are a village resident, property owner or business owner.

• People wishing to be on the agenda should use 10 minutes as a guideline for the presentation time length. Donaldson has said that no one will be cut off if they go beyond that 10-minute guideline.

• Village manager reports will be moved to the beginning of a council session rather than following public hearings and regular agenda items.

Break from LCSWA

The Ruidoso Village Council is to consider Tuesday signing on to an official break from the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority.

A vote on a joint powers agreement/resolution was continued from the council's past session because of a lack of an absolute majority. The agreement allows Ruidoso to have separate garbage collection services from other members of the authority, but allows the village to keep a partial interest in the Otero/Lincoln County Landfill. Ruidoso is the last member of the authority to sign the agreement.

Ordinance review change

Ruidoso village councilors are scheduled to vote Tuesday on a proposed change on the village's process of reviewing planning and zoning ordinances.

Currently, the council is required to send all proposed changes to planning ordinances to the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission for recommendation. The proposed policy would allow the council to amend ordinances up for review without first seeking a recommendation from the commission. The policy would apply only to those ordinances passed by the council within an 18-month period.

Schedule hearing on lodgers tax

A public hearing date is to be set by Ruidoso village councilors regarding a proposed increase to the village's lodgers tax. Currently, the tax is 4 percent. The proposed tax is 5 percent.

Additional, the council is expected to discuss village policies on how to disperse lodgers tax revenues among tourism events and entities, Village Clerk Tammie Maddox said.

Currently, the village divides $30,000 of lodgers tax revenues every year among requesting entities such as the Golden Aspen Motorcycle Rally and the Museum of the Horse.

Center Street goes two-way

Center Street, in Ruidoso's midtown area, will be converted from a one-way street to two-way traffic.

The Ruidoso Village Council approved the measure last week. The action did not require a pure majority, which the council did not have with three members absent.

Village Manager Alan Briley said there have not been any negative comments from business owners on Center Street about the traffic change.

Briley said the street had been two-way before 1994, but was changed after a mainstreet improvement project put in sidewalks along the street. The sidewalks were to encourage use of a public parking lot on Wingfield Street, across from the Ruidoso Police Department, Briley said.

The owner of a business on Center Street at the time told the council he did not want to lose parallel parking along the road. Because of the lack of space for sidewalks, parking and two-way traffic, the street was converted to one-way.

Now, that conversion is to be undone. Parallel parking on the west side of the street will be eliminated, Briley said. The conversion will occur slowly, with signs going up first to notify people of the coming change in traffic flow before it happens, he said.

Village charter proposed

Tony Seno, a Ruidoso resident, intends to present the Ruidoso Village Council with a proposal for a home-rule village charter.

Currently, Ruidoso operates under state statutes that determine the powers allowed to a municipality, a village representative said.

Seno's proposal is based on the charter used by Santa Fe, he said, with a few exceptions including the appointment of a permanent seven-member government oversight committee. The committee's task would be to receive, acknowledge and respond to complaints and grievances concerning the village and its operation, according to the proposal.

The proposed charter also would allow initiatives and referendums based on a petition signed by 10 percent of registered voters. And an elected official could be recalled with a vote that was 50 percent of the votes the official initially received, according to Seno's proposal.

Bureau: Donaldson said it would not be dropped that."

She doesn't want the issue to become adversarial. But, "It is so imperative that we do not dismantle and do away with it," she said.

Donaldson at a Monday budget workshop told the council he proposed breaking the CVB into components.

"I didn't say we were going to drop the convention and visitors bureau," Donaldson said Wednesday afternoon. "We are still going to do meeting sales and meeting planning — all of that kind of stuff that has been done in the past. Some of it may be in house, some of it may be through contracts."

"We are not going to let the small meetings slide. You want to fill the days when you don't have events ... but they don't create economic development. A large special event can have tremendously more economic development."

Kuykendall said the bookings do have economic impact based on a study by the state's tourism department. The study shows the average convention visitor spends about $498 per visit, compared to $217 per visit spent by a vacation traveler, according to Paul Narbutas, a research manager for the department.

Using those numbers, Kuykendall said the 25,467 out-of-town conventioners expected this year will have an economic impact on Ruidoso of almost $13 million.

In three years, bookings at the center have increased from about 60,000 to 105,000 for this year, Kuykendall said.

Responding to an earlier comment from Donaldson that the conventions are primarily for small government groups, Kuykendall said: "Only 14 percent out of that 105,000 are government, including local."

Bailey said she is concerned about what she seems to be hearing from village hall that bureau work can be taken "and simply transferred to the staff at the convention center — and that is not going to work."

Bailey said she and Kuykendall met several weeks ago with Donaldson who told them about his interest in pursuing a different marketing direction.

"It appeared that it would be very uncertain if there would be a continuation of the CVB," Bailey said of the meeting.

Kuykendall said she did not think Donaldson knew about the bureau's other projects in the works, such as an effort to launch a regional marketing plan for motor coach tours, or the regional website that was being created as part of that effort.

Donaldson said none of the CVB projects would be dropped.

"They are built in the marketing part of the RFP (request for proposal), so that won't be left off," Donaldson said.

Also, "big conventions come here on their own without bureau marketing," he said.

"It's like the Rotary convention here this week," Donaldson said. "Sandy didn't have anything to do with that in terms of bringing it."

I did, the president of Rotary. And that's the case in most cases. And yes, we use the chamber. I find the chamber more helpful than the visitors bureau in terms of helping set things up."

Kuykendall said she did, in fact, work to bring about the Rotary Club convention now underway. She started working on it two years ago when Jim Stover brought it to her attention, Kuykendall said.

"The other Rotary clubs, for instance, came to me and said, 'We are thinking about booking at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. But we would also like to see your facility.' And I spent hours with them, convincing them to come to our facility. And I have since spent many hours providing customer service for them."

She can provide the numbers and hours documenting the time she has spent on the various conventions that come in, she said.

"I sent a report to the council, about a month ago, listing (several conventions) and told them how much time went in to selling to these people and providing services to them," she said.

"So he knows that's not true."

The bureau also is working on a project that will increase the convention center's revenue on government conventions by 200 percent, she said.

"So I actually think that the government business is well worth going after, we just need to change our strategies," she said.

The main thing is that people understand what is going on, she said.

"Everyone can read about it. Because otherwise, it might have just happened. This is important, very important information. Tourism is our number one industry in this community. And this actually very strongly impacts our pocket-book. People need to know."

Church groups sued over Alto girl's death

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The parents of a 13-year-old Alto girl who drowned at Elephant Butte Lake in October 1997 have sued for unspecified damages the church groups and staff that supervised the trip.

Brad and Allison Thorne filed suit in 12th Judicial District Court in Carrizozo April 29 claiming negligence and wrongful death.

Named as defendants are Gregg A Horst, a camp leader and employee of Crossfire Youth Groups and American Missionary Fellowship; Bob Walker, a director of Lone Tree Camp; David Jacques, a director of Lone Tree Camp; Tim Worrell, doing business as Sports Adventure and chief operating officer of Lone Tree Camp; Michael Flanagan, general manager of Sports Adventure; David S. Munro, camp leader; Danilee Maddox, camp leader; American Missionary Fellowship; Lone Tree Camp; Sports Adventure; Capitan Youth Group; and Crossfire Youth Groups.

The Thornes state that on Oct. 11, 1997 their eight grade daughter was in the care and under the supervision of the defendants and was suppose to be going to a balloon festival in Albuquerque with others from Trinity Southern Baptist Church.

They had signed a blank permission slip for Stacey, their only child, to go on the trip, but had asked about the destination, they say in their suit. However, heavy winds caused the balloon festival to be canceled and the group instead went to Lone Tree Lakeshore Camp in Sierra County, which was closed for the season, but reopened to accommodate the 14 children and adult supervisors. They planned on taking a boat tour of the lake, but windy conditions also canceled that excursion.

About 5 p.m., some of the children wanted to go swimming. Although the children started out in shallow water, high winds produced strong waves that washed them into deeper water, the Thornes state. The children were in full view of adults on the porch, they claim. Worrell and Flanagan were storing boats for the winter.

The adult supervisors had to shed their street clothes to enter the water and that delayed the rescue effort, the Thornes state. The rescuers passed over Stacey for other children who already had life jackets, although at one point, someone said a child was under the water and drowning, they claim.

After the camp leaders brought the children to shore, a roll call was taken and Stacey was missing, but 911 was not immediately called, the parents state in the suit.

Their daughter was left to drown, the parents contend. Her body later was recovered in about 18 feet of water in a sharp drop-off around the corner from the shallow water where the children began to play.

The Thornes claim the defendants were negligent on a number of counts including:

• Failing to provide safe conditions for the young campers and proper supervision.

• Failing to give Stacey proper attention and exposing her to danger without adequate control.

• Failing to provide enough life jackets for all of the children.

• Failing to find out who could and could not swim. Stacey could not swim.

The Thornes contend the camp staff should have known it was a bad time of year to swim and been aware the rough conditions on the 30-mile long lake constituted a hazard.

The parents are asking for actual and punitive damages, as well as burial expenses.

Worrell could not be reached for comment Thursday.

A shorter leash

Since the village council of Ruidoso first mentioned toughening up laws regarding pets, some residents have reacted in outrage arguing that the proposal is overkill and it's just another way of government sticking its cold, wet nose where it doesn't belong.

While some may argue that they are responsible pet owners, the fact remains that pets are animals despite how well they are trained. If they are not tethered or fenced properly no one can say in all certainty what they might do or what might happen to them if they are not properly supervised.

Those in favor of keeping dogs on a shorter leash argue that the dogs that aren't properly confined mess up their property. Some dogs also can become aggressive when they have wandered off their master's property onto somebody else's property or even on public property.

Both offenses are avoided by keeping the dog fenced or tethered.

One need look no further than the occasional roadkill in the street to see another strong argument for the proposed regulations.

The "shorter leash" regulation might prove to be an inconvenience to the owner and the pet but a small price to pay to avoid heartache if an owner truly loves his or her dog.

The council will consider this ordinance Tuesday at a public meeting at Village Hall.

Treading water

With the anticipated recommendation from the Ruidoso Capital Improvements Advisory Board concerning impact fees — that none should be imposed — Ruidoso is still no more closer to resolving its water problem than it has ever been.

Mayor Robert Donaldson pointed out that impact fees cannot be used to improve the current water system but can only go toward the needs of "new development."

Other possible solutions mentioned by the mayor include "stand-by fees," which are charged to landowners and used in anticipated development or fire protection.

Donaldson said he and the council will review the situation from a "comprehensive standpoint" to develop a plan that will address the water problems Ruidoso faces.

Donaldson said he wants to make sure that everybody pays their fair share and that no group is subsidizing another.

Of course, utility rate hikes are also possible ways to raise money to pay for improvements that the council must look at as well.

The village leadership needs to take a hard, long look at something as vital as water availability and water quality. But not too long.

Concern with commission meetings

To the editor:

As a resident of White Oaks, I am concerned as to the various locations of Lincoln County Commission meetings. I am vitally interested in many of the issues coming before the commission.

One of the issues was the proposed location of a new county jail and a court complex to be located other than the Lincoln County Courthouse.

The Ad Hoc Jail Committee appointed by the present Lincoln County Commissioners had a recent meeting at the Ruidoso Downs Senior Center at 8 a.m. on a Sunday.

Next there was another meeting sponsored by the village of Ruidoso at the Ruidoso Civic Center where Commissioner Monroy Montes informed those present of the plans for the new jail.

Now, reading the legal, I find that another meeting is scheduled in Ruidoso on May 12 starting at 8 a.m. at the Ruidoso Village Administrative Office at 313 Cree, Ruidoso. A budget hearing is scheduled for 10:30 a.m.

There are many issues that the taxpayers of Lincoln County should be aware of because it is the taxpayers dollars that are paying for meeting at different locations.

There is a Lincoln County Courthouse that is centrally located in this county for the very purpose of informing the public of decisions made by county commissioners.

It is very difficult for many residents to make meetings when they reside in White Oaks, Yeso, Ramon, Corona and Oscura, Capitan. Measure the distance. It is easier for resident taxpayers of Alto, Ruidoso Downs and Ruidoso to attend meetings at the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo.

Or, are we being discouraged from attending meetings?

Historical headcounts

To the editor:

(A reply to Mr. Don Queen's letter on White Oaks from May 1)

Points taken by Mr. Green are well done — populations in towns are difficult to find — U.S. census figures help — yet, let us say we would do a population count of Ruidoso in 1998 — there would be vast variables — what month? who would be counted? taxpayers?

visitors? tourists? — yet I suspect Mr. Queen's figures are close to correct — one must err on the side of a conservative count? No?

History is always difficult to write about especially in the topic of ghost towns. Like White Oaks, where some of the old residents still live, opinions vary.

In writing the eight or 10 histories that I have done, I always try to understate numbers, yet we lovers of the "golden age" want and respect input from valid first person sources. In doing books like "White Oaks," or "Old Mogollon," or "Pancho Villa" I seek all the old timers I can find ... old records, old letters, photos, and any valid data. I learned from Paul Horgans writing, "Don't do a book 'till you have a basket full of raw data!"

Yet historians can never do more than paint a "general picture." Often the reader must fill in the missing "jigsaw pieces."

As the great western historian Dr. Sonnichsen said "the door to history remains open for but a short time, then it closes forever!"

We must appreciate input by men like Don Queen — that is history, too.

FOOLS AND NEWCOMERS

KGB acknowledges Rosenberg was a spy

(This is the second part of a two-part series that started May 1.)

By MORROW HALL

As suspicion increased between the Soviet Union and its erstwhile allies at the end of World War II, United States agents worked hard to crack the complex KGB code by which Soviet agents communicated.

That code has never been completely broken. It was "double-encoded" — encoded twice — and American agents were only able to decode fragments here and there, beginning in 1946. But those fragments revealed a lot.

A cable sent by the KGB chief in Washington on November 27, 1944, had been intercepted. It spoke of an undercover agent operating in the United States whose code name was "Liberal." In 1947, part of that message was finally decoded.

"Liberal's wife..." it read in part. "Surname that of her husband, first name Ethel, 29 years old. Married five years. Finished secondary school..."

This gave U.S. agents something to investigate.

A scent of spies

The conspiracy trial of Alger Hiss, which began in 1948, was based on information received from a former Soviet agent named Whittaker Chambers. When information he provided late in the trial proved Hiss's guilt, FBI agents interrogated Chambers with new energy, and a row of dominoes began to fall.

Chambers gave the agents information that led to Harry Gold, who soon admitted his treason.

Gold led investigators to Klaus Fuchs, a Los Alamos physicist, who had, through Gold, provided the Soviets with theoretical and practical information that accelerated their atomic weapons development, and then to David Greenglass, the young soldier who had worked at Los Alamos and who had matched his part of a Jell-O box top with Gold's.

Greenglass crumbled in the face of FBI questioning. He told the agents he had been recruited by his brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg.

Greenglass's sister, Ethel Rosenberg, had been 29 years old and had been married to Julius for five years back in 1944. The puzzle pieces were falling into place.

High profile cases of treason, inflamed by the shrill red-baiting campaign of Sen.

Joseph McCarthy, were brought against Gold, Fuchs, Greenglass and the two Rosenbergs.

Fuchs was a zealot who believed what he had done was right; Greenglass and perhaps Gold were in it for the money. They all admitted what they had done.

But the Rosenbergs denied their guilt until the end — which was electrocution at Sing-Sing Prison in New York on June 19, 1953.

"I consider your crime worse than murder," Judge Irvin R. Kaufman told them when he sentenced them to die. "We have evidence of your treachery all around us every day — for the civilian defense activities throughout the nation are aimed at preparing us for an atom bomb attack."

The truth revealed

The decoded fragment of the KGB message that helped lead to Ethel Rosenberg was never brought up at her trial. It would have let the Soviets know the United States had broken part of the code.

Many believed that the Rosenbergs were innocent, and their two sons spent the next decades trying to clear their names. Unfortunately for

Seeing past mountains

Sometimes we wonder what Li'l Abner and Daisy May would think about the world we live in today. (Do we have to explain that Li'l Abner was a most popular comic strip character that kept more than one generation chuckling about his simplistic view of the world from a "hillbilly" perspective?)

The connection here, of course, is "hillbilly" — those isolated folks who lived for generations in the Alleghenys or the Ozarks; mountains our sixth grade geography book referred to as "old worn down mountains," unlike the West's "young, rugged mountains."

The thing about Li'l Abner was that he sometimes seemed a bit slow to catch on. And the world didn't exist beyond the "cricks and hollers" of those fictional mountains. It was an unconscious commentary on the times; times when our horizons were limited by geography. Not so our own mountains, whose towering presence dominates our lives.

These ruminations, of course, are political: Our mountains don't block our views of the state and nation, but — in New Mexico at least — they do seem to block state government's view of us.

Much of that has to do with politicians looking at the biggest voter pool — the Rio Grande Corridor from Santa Fe to Las Cruces.

All along that corridor campaign signs are becoming as thick as the orange barrels. That's one thing we have in common and might eventually earn us some attention in Santa Fe; orange barrels indicate growth.

The point is that Ruidoso's permanent population grows, we will be looking at what the state does (and doesn't) offer. But the very makeup of Lincoln County — all those summer folks, — has served mightily to prevent that Li'l Abner attitude from developing.

them, the truth finally came out after the collapse of the Soviet Union.

Alexander Feklisov, an 83-year-old retired KGB officer, broke the half century of silence just last year.

Julius Rosenberg was a spy for the Russians, Feklisov said, but he didn't provide much regarding the development of atomic weapons. One thing he did give them was a working proximity fuse that enables a missile to explode near a target even if it misses.

Ironically, it was such a fuse that brought down the U-2 spyplane of Francis Gary Powers in 1960, seven years after the Rosenbergs were executed.

Ethel Rosenberg was not an active spy, Feklisov said, but she probably knew what her husband had been doing.

Thus ends one of the darker pages of New Mexico's scientific history.

Next week: Who or what was Guadalupe Hidalgo?

Elsewhere: 1953, the year in which the Rosenbergs were executed, was the year Dwight Eisenhower became President and Joseph Stalin died.

Letter in error

To the editor:
I am writing in regard to K.M. Bearden's letter regarding Magistrate Judge Butts, which was published recently in an April, 1998, edition of your newspaper. As an attorney who practices frequently in the Magistrate court, I feel compelled to correct a number of assertions contained therein, which I believe to be grossly inaccurate.

With regard to the author's statement the Judge Butts "... never sends anyone to jail," this is simply untrue. It has been my experience that far more DWI defendants spend time in jail than those who do not.

K.M. Bearden makes a number of suggestions for changes which could be made to the system, such as suspending a drunk driver's driving privileges for three months, and a fine of at least $200. With regard to the first suggestion, the magistrate judges in New Mexico simply do not have the power to suspend driver's licenses. Instead, the Motor Vehicle Department is given the statutory authority by the New Mexico state legislature to suspend licenses via administrative revocation proceedings. The author's demand that the judge impose a $200 fine also seems misplaced. It clearly does not take into account the fact that when all of the mandatory costs attendant to a DWI conviction are factored in, every DWI defendant is assessed, at a bare minimum, nearly $200 in costs regardless of whether any additional fines are imposed.

Lastly, the author makes a number of references to Judge Butts' record, such as "... he always says time served," and "he never sends anyone to jail." The author implies that he or she is intimately familiar with Judge Butts' record on the bench, yet I note that he or she has failed to make reference to even one specific case in support of the writer's opinion. This should give your readers pause to consider whether K.M. Bearden's statements are based on fact, or merely opinion and conjecture.

Outstanding generosity

To the editor:
I would just like to let the people of our area know about some outstanding generosity. The Spencer Theater invited our sixth grade drama class, directed by Waynta Wirth, to perform twice in their magnificent facility. The stage crew and other staff assisted and guided as we rehearsed and performed there for three days, just as they do for professional troops. What an experience for the students and teachers! Dr. and Mrs. Spencer and staff, thank you so much.

The Hubbard Foundation provided transportation for the entire White Mountain Intermediate School to attend the day performance of our production. Thank you Dee and John Dale Hubbard and Jim Stoddard.

It is our good fortune to have this kind of support from citizens. Our hats are off to you.

Cleaning up Ruidoso

To the editor:

It was very heartening to see the groups of people ... (on) April 25, cleaning up Gavilan Canyon Road. The roadsides around Ruidoso have gotten pretty dirty looking over the past two years. My three-year-old son, five-year-old daughter and I cleaned up a half-mile of Eagle Creek Canyon Road the weekend of April 18. We picked up 112 aluminum cans, mostly Bud Light, Michelob Light, Pepsi and Mountain Dew. There were a dozen or so Rolling Rock bottles and a number of plastic drink bottles. We found plenty of Wal-Mart blue plastic bags, two yellow Furr's bags and some soggy Bud Light cardboard cartons. If I knew who drank the Bud Light, Michelob Light or Rolling Rock, I might have delivered their cans and bottles directly back to them. As it was, we recycled the cans and put the rest into dumpsters.

It takes so little effort to throw trash into a container and so much work on someone else's part to clean it up from the roadside. I applaud the groups of adults and young people who spent their Saturday picking other people's trash so that we all can enjoy the undistracted beauty of Ruidoso. Just a little more thoughtfulness on some people's part could reduce the enormous effort on the part of others in cleaning up the Earth, as my children would say.

Against pet restraint

To the editor:

I have been tempted to write about several issues in the past not to by my good wife. I never asked her permission on the "pet restraint" issue our village council will be casting their votes on at their May 12 meeting.

I was informed by one of our council members that the council intends to pass this pet restriction ordinance. They should know that they cannot pass a law that will "fix" all the problems associated with people and their animals.

As a young school administrator, I thought that the more rules I put in place, the better my school would run. Oh my, was I wrong! I found out that I had to deal with each problem independently. I am a responsible pet owner and I accept all associated responsibilities. I strongly resent the thought of our local village council taking it on themselves to tell me what I can and cannot do with my pets when they are on my property under my supervision.

I read in the May 6 issue about the dog saving a child from a bear. How would this situation have ended if this dog had been restrained.

I encourage the public to attend the May 12 meeting.

THE SILVER LINING

Glorious spring

This is being sent to you at ten o'clock in mid-morning, the hour of the prime of the day; in high tide of glorious spring.

BY DAN STORM
COLUMBIAN

The white lilacs have burst into bloom all in a day, completing a spring lilac picture of purple, lavender, white and purple-red.

The tiny apples and pears are taking shape and color on the orchard trees where only two or three days ago you saw these trees covered with snow white blossoms.

The strong West wind, the heavy winter snow, and the early warm weather have all worked together to cause this year's spring parade to travel at a lively pace.

While spring was late this year, it is now making up for lost time.

You look down toward the river and the sight of brilliant shining green catches your eye. This is all out, king of river trees, all the oak, half-size leaf all in only a day or two.

The river oak's little brother, the oak brush, is now suddenly helping form a vast hillside tapestry, with its patches of new green all along the mountainside among the color of the pine, pinon, cedar and juniper.

"Listen to the Mockin Bird"

So goes the first line of an old favorite song. The Mocking Bird, the state bird of Texas, is one of the favorites in America. It has a beautiful song of its own, and also imitates the songs of other birds, including the Robin, Crossbeak, Oriole, and Meadow Lark.

The mocking bird charms the summer night with his singing, after the style of his distant cousin, the Nightingale, famous in song and story.

Yesterday, May 4, the temperature rose up to 82, rather hot for so early in the years.

On my way home in mid-afternoon, the unmistakable far-carrying notes of this Texas Troubadour came echoing through the warm air from a tree standing in the center of the knoll, the meadow lying at the foot of Storm Mountain.

Only in warm weather does this summer favorite of the feathered world honor us with his presence.

He is the messenger of hot weather and the rain that follows after.

Let us welcome the mocking bird and all his fellow messengers of glorious spring.

And let us give thanks to Our Lord for all our blessings.

No dumping

Fred Knapp, front, and Thomas Chavez, Ruidoso village employees, look through an illegal dump site Monday for clues about the perpetrators. Chavez said other illegal dump sites in the village recently have been reported as well. The trash at this particular site is mostly construction materials, such as carpet remnants and concrete forms. The penalty for illegal dumping ranges from $50 to $500 and up to 90 days in jail, Chavez said. A $50 reward is being offered by the Lincoln County Crimestoppers for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons responsible, he said. The Crimestoppers' telephone number is 257-4545.

Legislators call special session productive

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although Lincoln County's legislative delegation ended up on opposite sides of some issues during the special session that closed late Monday, both State Rep. Dub Williams and State Sen. Pete Campos said it was productive six days.

"We were able to revisit some of the vetoes from the 30-day regular session in the areas of health care, education and public safety," Campos, a Democrat from Santa Rosa, stated in a news release. "These programs are designed to improve the lives of New Mexicans and the economy of New Mexico."

However, items that could be considered were limited by the governor.

"Projects that weren't included on the agenda, but that are important to residents of San Miguel, Guadalupe, DeBaca and Lincoln counties remain high on my priority list and I will continue to seek appropriations for them," Campos said.

The legislature approved legislative appropriations of about $28.9 million from the general fund.

They include:

- $1 million to the children, youth and families department for delinquency prevention and intervention services.
- $1 million in matching money for computers for schools around New Mexico.
- $800,000 to carry out the Rural Primary Health Care Act and $500,000 for health services for children not eligible for Medicaid.

'Intensive' journalism workshop offered to high school students

The New Mexico Press Association and the University of New Mexico will co-host the 18th annual High School Journalism Workshop. This workshop is a week-long intensive journalism immersion program for New Mexico high school sophomores and juniors.

The workshop location rotates between the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque and the New Mexico State University in Las Cruces and the Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

This year's workshop will be held at UNM in Albuquerque May 31 through June 5.

The High School Journalism Workshop is designed to introduce students to the real world of newspaper journalism. It includes instruction from professional journalists, high school journalism instructors, and faculty for the host university's journalism department.

Under the guidance of the instructors and advisors, the students design and create their own 8-page tabloid newspaper, Future Press. The students select, research and write their own stories, shoot the photos, create the ads, and edit and layout the paper.

For more information contact Catherine Ullett at NMPA, (505) 257-1877 or Nancy Wood, Newspapers in Education at (505) 823-3501 or 1-800-641-3451 ext. 3501.

to get back most of his budget adjustment request authority and during the session, the Senate confirmed his appointments for secretary of corrections, of Rob Perry will take over the job he's been handling for months at the corrections department. Debbie Hartz will take over from Heather Wilson at CYF and John Blank will head economic development.

What to do about drive-up window liquor sales dominated the session, Williams said.

"We sent the governor three options: closing all windows statewide, closing by local option vote and closing windows, but limiting the hours alcohol could be sold at convenience stores, gas stations and similar places. Those folks would have to close at 9 p.m."

Although no money was included to pay for the special elections, Williams said the issue could be put to a vote in connection with other regularly scheduled elections.

Johnson has 20 days to decide what bill to sign into law. While only a dozen drive-up windows operate independently around the state, more than 200 are operated in connection with lounges and package liquor sales, Williams said.

"It got to be pretty contentious," he said. While he heard a great deal of criticism about lobbyists trying to influence legislators, Williams said he didn't see many.

"I didn't feel they caused many problems," he said. "Sure, they talked to some people, but that's their role. We need those people for information. If we find someone is not credible; once we've been given misinformation, we don't listen to them anymore."

As long as there are lobbyists on both sides, legislators can learn about impacts they might otherwise not consider, Williams said, adding, "I've changed my attitude about lobbyists."

Williams ended up on the losing side of the vote to override Johnson's veto of a bill designed to move the developmentally disabled from institutions into community settings. The legislation sets a moratorium on new beds at institutions, although eight new beds will be allowed at the Las Vegas medical center.

It was the first gubernatorial veto since 1970.

"The veto override was very close," he said. "Had there been one more vote on our side, it wouldn't have happened."

A question remains whether the action was constitutional, because it occurred during a special session of the legislature, he said.

"As I read the state constitution, it says veto overrides may be handled in regular sessions," Williams said. "It doesn't say special sessions. We may ask the attorney general or legislative counsel for a ruling."

If the veto had not passed, plans already were in the works for bills to be introduced during the next regular legislative session in January to provide alternative care for developmentally disabled people, Williams said. Many ended up in bad situations after state-operated hospitals were closed — something that happened at Fort Stanton on a directive from Johnson in 1995.

County Commission to review budget again

By DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Lincoln County Commissioners will have another go at the county's proposed $9.9 million budget today, trying to pare it down to reduce the draw on cash reserves.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

Although the agenda is short, the meeting probably will last several hours.

Before they launch into the budget, commissioners will consider a joint powers agreement between the Glencoe-Palo Verde Volunteer Fire Department and the Ruidoso Downs Fire Department allowing the municipal service to answer calls for an annual compensation.

"What's happened is that we're short of volunteers in the area of Glencoe and Palo Verde," said Commissioner Wilton Howell Thursday. "I think some have moved."

"We'll be able to provide better service if we enter into a joint powers agreement with Ruidoso Downs Fire Department."

Although no figure had been submitted by Thursday, $5,000 to $10,000 a year has been mentioned.

"They've been doing about 15 to 20 calls a year," Howell said of the Ruidoso Downs department. "The sheriff's office has called them on several occasions, because they haven't been able to get adequate response from volunteers. I think Glencoe does a good job, but they're just short on bodies."

Using Ruidoso Downs for Palo Verde and Agua Fria subdivision should improve the response time to fires, Howell said.

"They're a few blocks away and the response time should be better than trying to drive in from Glencoe," he said. "At some point Glencoe-Palo Verde may be able to recruit more volunteers and things could change."

During the last budget session, commissioners removed all capital outlay. That category is certain to be the center of attention for the sheriff's office, emergency medical services and some other departments.

The commission also is facing the need to build a new jail, but hasn't budgeted for that project. The proposed annual budget to run the existing jail in the courthouse in Carrizozo doubled from last year's allocation to more than $700,000.

Downs trustees review budget, give fire chief raise in salary

By TONI K. LAKSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso Downs village trustees Wednesday proposed dipping about $50,000 deeper into the general fund for items in their $1.5 million 1998-99 fiscal budget.

Among the budget expenditures discussed during a Wednesday night budget workshop are a 30-percent pay increase for one village supervisor and a payment of about $5,500 to the Humane Society of Lincoln County for past services.

Fire Chief Nick Herrera, the village's only paid fire department employee, will receive $28,500, an increase of about $9,000 from his current salary of $19,500. This was the second time trustees raised Herrera's salary. At a previous budget workshop, his salary was increased to $22,000.

Trustee Margie Morales suggested the additional boost to Herrera's salary.

"He is a supervisory employee," she said. "And even though he does not have the people under him like David (Hightower, chief of police) or Leann (Weihbrecht, village clerk/treasurer), he probably has as many headaches..."

Trustee Jackie Branum echoed Morales' statement, saying the village could continue to expect Herrera, who oversees about 15 volunteer firefighters, to work the hours he does for the village without better compensation.

Also added to the proposed budget was a contribution of about $5,500 in water utilities and maintenance for the Billy the Kid Scenic Byways Interpretive Center, which will also be maintained in part by the village of Ruidoso through a joint powers agreement.

Other expenditures include an increase of about $4,000 to the salary of maintenance foreman Dennis Riddle, whose hourly position will be changed to a salaried position through a new job description. Trustees increased Riddle's salary from $28,536 to $32,500.

Weihbrecht said the Downs would be able to pay off some of the village's debt on equipment purchases. However, the village should not try to pay off all the equipment this year, saying it could possibly leave the Downs with too low of a fund balance.

At her recommendation, trustees agreed to use the utility fund to pay off a $29,000-debt remaining for a rodding machine, used to clean out sewer lines, and a $25,000-debt remaining debt on a backhoe. She suggested the village continue making payments — rather than try to pay off — a $90,000 chip spreader, used to pave streets, and the remaining debt of $56,600 on a fire truck.

Other items in the budget include $100,000 for the purchase of water rights, $25,000 for a 40-year study of the village's water needs, Weihbrecht said.

Village trustees also agreed to spend $30,000 for work to increase water pressure on Wood Lane.

The village will start the fiscal year, which begins July 1, with a general fund balance somewhere between $400,000 and $600,000, depending on revenues from the two remaining months in the year, Weihbrecht told the council.

The proposed budget, set at about $1.5 million, already included a 3-percent across-the-board raise for employees and 100-percent coverage of employee health benefits.

The village's proposed 1998-99 budget, at about $1.5 million, is roughly 60 percent larger than the current fiscal year's budget, not including federal and state grants.

RUIDOSO POLICE

Teacher struck in student fight

Police said a fist fight at the Ruidoso High School resulted in a teacher being punched by a student April 23.

A Ruidoso High School teacher told police in an assault and battery report that he was on his way to the classroom from the office between first and second period when he saw two male students fighting in the hallway.

Police said the teacher told the students to stop fighting twice, but they continued. He then reportedly stepped between them to stop them, and one of the students hit him in the jaw.

Police said another teacher came along at that time, observed the situation and helped the first teacher to separate the boys. They then reportedly escorted the students to the principal's office.

No charges are pending.

Trailer stolen

Donald H. Nickerson told Ruidoso Police that a utility trailer and contents valued at $35,000 were stolen from a construction site on April 28 or 29. In a larceny report filed April 29, Nickerson, the owner of Sierra Mirada Construction, told police the trailer was parked in the lot in the 400 block of Main Road April 28 at 4:30 p.m., and on April 29 at 8 a.m., workers noticed it was missing.

Police said Nickerson reported that someone pulled the trailer over some chock blocks without even moving them. He described the trailer as an old pale green phone utility bed trailer with a ladder rack and six ladders on it. It was also loaded with a generator and an air compressor. Police said Nickerson told them the trailer was hard to tow and might cause a wreck if it was towed very far.

Fishing report

Ruidoso River more off color in recent days. Bead head nymphs producing best. Flows are bankful. Fishing is good and excellent at times.
Bonito Lake the lake has been fairly good fishing. More of a bait program but bubble tips, Pistol Pete's, and dries, caddis and midges working also.
Bonito River flows are great and predominantly clear. Follow a nymph program, especially bead head nymphs. Expect fish to be concentrated.
Grindstone Reservoir the fishing is good. Varied patterns have produced well on calm evenings.
Hurd Ranch flows are great. Because of water color, nymphs will work best for the next few days - lean toward the bigger, dark nymphs.
Lake Mesquero level is rising, but still down somewhat. Beads available sometime in the following week. Evening rises increasing daily. try BWOs and elk hair caddis.
Alto Lake is fishable now for the summer. Stocking programs seemed to have worked. Fly reports appreciated.
Eagle Lake and Silver Lake are now open. A price increase to $6 per day with an eight fish limit. Early season is great at both lakes.
"Fishing has been great. Get out there."

Kammi Sparks and her Warrior teammates will try to leap over the favored Silver Colts for the District 3AAA Track title tomorrow at Cobre. The Ruidoso girls have won their last three meets, including a two-point victory over Lovington at the Ross Black Invitational May 2. The district meet begins at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

DISTRICT 3AAA TRACK

Ruidoso girls take aim at Silver

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Ruidoso track coach Ronnie Maskew made something sweet out of sour situation last Saturday in Lovington.

When two Warrior girls fell ill 10 minutes before the running of the 1,600-meter relay at the Ross Black Relays, Maskew was forced to replace Priscilla Rojas and Amber Green with Kammi Sparks and Erica Romero. It resulted in a new school record, a trip to state for the relay team and a Ruidoso win at the Lovington meet.

"We didn't know that we had those two girls that could run that well (in that event)," Maskew said.

Maskew will use that formula Saturday at the District 3AAA Track Meet in hopes of tasting victory again.

The Warrior track teams leave this afternoon for the district meet hosted by Cobre High School. Saturday's meet begins at 10 a.m.

Maskew discovered more than a new relay order in Lovington. With Sparks and Romero in the mile relay lineup, Green and Rojas are now freed up to run in the 100-meter dash and 200-meter dash, respectively, Maskew explained. Green and Rojas should be able to score points for the Warriors in both of those events.

Add in a week of excellent practice weather and hungry, positive attitudes and the Warriors girls seem poised to make a serious run at the favored Silver Colts.

"Silver has to be the favorite, but I think we're going to go over and get after it," Maskew said. "We're going to have to do our best in everything. We don't have anybody that can slack off."

Maskew said Saturday's district should be one of the better ones in recent years. More teams will bring more talent to the track, which could spread the points among the teams.

Depth makes Silver the favorite in the boys race as well.

"We're right in there with them," Maskew said of the Ruidoso boys' chances. "Cobre is a little bit better than they have been in the past."

"Silver has to be the favorite, but I think we're going to go over and get after it."

Ronnie Maskew,
RHS track coach

The Warriors' performance in Lovington is bit deceiving.

"We had some kids with some sore legs, so we didn't even run the relays," Maskew said.

The Warriors have spent the week making up for what they missed in Lovington.

"We've got some girls and boys who are going to get after it," Maskew said. "Everything has been great."

Ross Black Relays

More school records fell for the Ruidoso girls at the Ross Black Relays on May 2.

The girls 400-meter relay team broke its previous record, knocking 4/10ths of a second of its time. Mandi Lewallen, Priscilla Rojas, Jessica Daniel and Amber Green ran a 50.13 and requalified for state.

That same group established a new school record in the 800-meter relay as well with an effort of 1:46.95. The old record was 1:49.56.

Disagreement between racing commission and Ruidoso Downs ends up in arbitration

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

An arbitrator will decide the fate of a 5 percent simulcast fee in a disagreement between the New Mexico Racing Commission and two race tracks, one of which is Ruidoso Downs.

The commission, Ruidoso Downs Racing and the Downs of Albuquerque agreed to send the matter to an independent arbitrator and former judge, Richard Ransom, at a special meeting of the commission in mid-April.

Ransom will decide who will receive a 5 percent expense fee from interstate simulcasting. The disagreement is over the definition of various entities.

Ruidoso Downs Race Track general manager Rick Baugh declined to comment about the issue until it's resolved.

Julian Luna, executive director of the NMRC, said the issue stems from the interpretation of an older statute.

"We're just so far apart in an interpretation of the statute," Luna said.

Essentially, the commission's position is that the race tracks are not entitled to a simulcast expense fee to feed the simulcast across state lines.

Ruidoso Downs and the Downs of Albuquerque maintain that they are entitled to the expense fee because it allows them to bring in the signal and pump it out to guest tracks where there is no live racing.

Neither side would say how many dollars are involved.

By sending the issue to an arbitrator, both sides agree to accept the final decision of Ransom. Baugh did say he expected a decision sometime in the summer.

Track's owners ante up for allowance races

R.D. Hubbard and Dr. Ed Allred, owners of Ruidoso Downs Race Track, announced that they will supplement overnight and allowance races by $350,000 for the upcoming Ruidoso Downs race meet.

Other news

At the regular April meeting of the commission, Baugh and Harold Payne presented possible race dates for the 1998-99 season.

The proposal included suggested race meets for all the state's racetracks.

"It's just a proposal, something out there for people to look at," Baugh said.

Owners and trainers need the information so they can begin planning for the season, he said. In addition, when the tracks begin operating slot machines, they will be required by law to run races four days a week.

Baugh and Payne's proposal included some overlap of race meets at the state's tracks. The proposal suggested 64 race dates for Ruidoso Downs, starting Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day weekend, an increase of 13 race dates.

SunRay Park officials have begun the process for a license. Formerly known as San Juan Downs in Farmington, SunRay Park will complete its application for a license by July 1.

San Juan Downs has been closed for about four years. Officials are jockeying for position to reopen it in time for the 1998-99 season.

It looks like the Downs of Santa Fe will stay closed. The commission hasn't heard requests for a license from Santa Fe officials, Luna said.

In defense

Ruidoso senior Myra Romero begins her defense of her District 4A-AAA girls singles title at 11 a.m. Saturday at New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell. Romero, who is undefeated in singles play this year at 16-0, will be the No. 1 seed. The rest of the Warriors are in action as well, hoping to earn district laurels and a ticket to the state championships.

DISTRICTS: Coach confident teams can challenge for titles

Amber Green broke Sarah Dix's 1993 record in the long jump. Green cleared 17 feet 8 1/2 inches, two inches more than Dix's mark.

Leah Miller qualified for the state meet in the triple jump with an effort of 32-11.

Finally, Ruidoso's mile relay victory, with Sparks and Romero subbing in, gave the Warrior girls their third meet team victory in a row. Sparks, Romero, Jaymie Paxton and Jessica Daniels posted Ruidoso's best time this season in the 1600-meter relay, a 4:15.32.

"They all ran extremely well. We had to beat Lovington to win the meet," Maskew said.

Seniors conclude bowling season

The Ruidoso Senior Bowling League ended the 1997-98 season with a roll-off to determine league champs. Ed Fleck, Marion Fleck, Joan Hall and Annie Keith prevailed to win the league title.

Anyone over 50 may join the league, which begins its next season Sept. 8, 1998. Those interested should call 258-3557.

For linksters, state tourney is close to home

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

They are used to the unforgiving, narrow fairways and tight greens of the Ruidoso courses.

Hence, the Warrior golfers might think they can see all the way to Texas when they look down the fairways of the New Mexico Military Institute's golf course, home of this year's Class A-AAA State Golf Championships set for Monday and Tuesday.

"It's flat and long for the girls, but it's also pretty wide open," said Ruidoso girls coach Les Carter.

"We played one tournament there and played a few practice rounds on our own," Carter said of the NMMI course.

Ruidoso boys assistant golf coach Eric Eggleston echoed Carter.

"It's an open course, and that's good for us," Eggleston said. "We always have to play it tight and straight up here."

Eggleston expects the Warrior boys to have a better go of it on the NMMI course at the state championships. Ruidoso shot a 340 as a team when it played the course earlier in the year. He wants the Warriors to cut 20 strokes off that team score, which he says the Warriors are capable of doing.

Both Ruidoso golf teams are coming off successful defenses of their district titles.

The Warrior girls, led by seniors Devon Lowe and Heather Stephens, will try to avoid a disappointing finish at the state tourney — something they haven't done the last two years.

Ruidoso was snakebit two years in a row at state, and now this is last chance for Lowe and Stephens.

Carter said he'll take a relaxed approach heading into the two-day affair.

"You just kind of let go play. You don't try to put any more pressure on them. You just tell them to go play their game," Carter said.

Business has a taste of Hawaii

• New business owners Pete and Donna Anthony want to spread some "aloha" around Ruidoso.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A little bit of Hawaii has landed in Ruidoso.

Items like Maui Wine Jelly, Chocolate Macadamia Nut Coffee and the rare Pohn Jam (the fruit grows only on Hawaii's volcanic slopes) are now available at the Hawaiian Oasis, 2701 Sudderth Drive.

The store, opened in April by former Hawaiian residents Donna and Pete Anthony, also features kona coffees, Hawaiian shaved ices (during the summer), exotic candies, sauces, cookies, snacks, dressings, gift baskets, etc.

Next week, they will not only sell coffee beans, but brewed coffee as well. The couple wants to put tables and benches in front of the store along with a water fountain and Hawaiian music. Come summer, they intend to offer shaved ice and hot dogs.

She's a former insurance finance accountant. He's a former aerospace field engineer and an "air taxi" pilot. So, how did they become the owners of a Hawaiian gift store/coffee shop in Ruidoso?

"Well, we are both retired, but retirement wasn't in our personalities," Pete said. "So, we decided to start a little gift shop. And we thought the Hawaiian product would be something unique, since we're so familiar with it after 46 years on the islands ... Now, we're working harder than before we retired," he added, sharing a laugh with his wife.

"We thought that we would bring some 'aloha' here, too," he said, explaining that aloha means love and friendship in Hawaiian. "You already have so much aloha here already ... We thought we would just enhance it."

Many of the people coming into the store already know the actual meaning of aloha, he said.

"I'm surprised at how many people from here have been to Hawaii," he said.

For those who have, they can walk about the store and in a small way relive those vacations. The store has photos of Hawaii (such as the aerial shot Pete Anthony took of a plane passing an erupting volcano), memorabilia (such as the 50-year-old magazines about Hawaii during World War II) and, yes, even surf boards and beach towels.

The couple actually didn't start off intending to move to Ruidoso. After decades of living on an island paradise, they decided to retire in a forest wonderland. Ruidoso wasn't a candidate — the Anthonys were passing through the village on their way to check out Flagstaff.

Donna and Pete Anthony, owners of Hawaiian Oasis.

"We came here on vacation, stayed for two weeks and bought a house on the day we were leaving," said Donna Anthony. Though they bought the house about 18 months ago, they didn't officially move here from Hawaii until several months ago.

"We just fell in love" with Ruidoso, she said.

"The choice between Flagstaff and here. Well, there wasn't much choice," he added.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Alto lodge receives AAA top rating

The Sierra Mesa Lodge of Alto recently was awarded a four-diamond rating from AAA New Mexico, according to a company press release.

The rating was given to only five establishments in the state, including two Santa Fe lodgings, an Albuquerque lodging and a Taos restaurant.

This is the second year for the Sierra Mesa Lodge to receive the four-diamond ranking.

The rankings are based on attentive service, top-of-the-line amenities and ambiance, a AAA spokesperson said.

"These establishments are truly in a class of their own, as only an estimated 5 percent of the nearly 24,000 AAA-rated properties and 5 percent of the more than 10,000 AAA-approved restaurants are four-diamond recipients," Deborah Nelson, AAA New Mexico spokesperson, said in a prepared release.

Other establishments in the state to receive the ranking are: the Eldorado Hotel in Santa Fe, the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Albuquerque, the Inn of the Anasazi in Santa Fe and the Villa Fontana Restaurant in Taos, according to the release.

Home construction values jump

Twice as many home building permits in Ruidoso were filed with the village this April as were last year, village reports show. The value of April's home building permits were up 143 percent, from $1,316,747 to $3,200,419.

For the year, all construction permits in Ruidoso are up in value by about 20 percent over last year, according to statistics recently released by the Ruidoso Planning Department.

Tai Chi classes

The Flowing River School of Tai Chi Chuan, located inside the Ruidoso Athletic Club in a downstairs studio, will be offering ongoing Tai Chi classes to all ages beginning June 9. Tai Chi is a slow and meditative martial arts discipline. Classes will be 6:30-7:30 p.m. and 7:45-8:45 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, with beginning classes first. Cost is $35 per month. For more information, call Randy Bruck, instructor, at 257-7854, or the Ruidoso Athletic Club at 257-4900.

Tanning salon adds massage

Eclipse Body Bronzing has moved, remodeled and added a new tanning bed as well as massage therapy services, a company spokesman said.

The salon is still located in the Re/Max Center, but in a different suite, said Kip R. McClellan, a licensed massage therapist who joined the salon a week ago. Eclipse Body Bronzing is at 1009 Mechem Dr., the Re/Max Center, in Unit 2, Suite 2. The cost of a massage is $35 for a one-hour session, $120 for a month of weekly one-hour sessions, or $10 for 15-minute sessions either on-site or at the salon. The three tanning beds are Sun Stars, which allow faster, deeper tans that last for a longer period of time, McClellan said.

Downs vet attends parasite conference

Dr. Warren Franklin of Ruidoso Downs was one of 30 veterinarians to attend a conference earlier this year in California about new advances in parasite control, according to a news release.

He owns Franklin Veterinary Clinic on U.S. Highway 70.

The conference, held in February, examined parasite control for cow-calf and stocker operations in the southwestern United States.

Hand Technologies

Six Ruidoso area women offer one-on-one technology consulting and purchasing services through a national company, Hand Technologies.

"From purchasing a new personal computer to getting on the Internet, we help Ruidoso area home and small-office customers with their purchases while making the technology easy to understand and affordable," said Mary Weaver, spokesperson for the group.

Thrift store expands hours

King's Treasures, a thrift store at Gavilan Canyon Road and U.S. Highway 70, is now open six days a week, the manager said.

Previously, the store had been open based on the availability of volunteer help, said Virginia McCann, volunteer manager. The new hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

Proceeds from the sale of donated items such as clothing are given to Seeds of Life, an Alamogordo non-profit organization to help women and girls going through unexpected pregnancies, McCann said. For more information contact McCann at 378-8113.

Chamber of Commerce elects new board members

Results of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors election released Thursday show the new board members to be:

- Phillis Barnett
- Tim Wierwille
- Eddie Parker
- Cynthia Clayton and
- Bob Lacouture.

Marguerite Ehrig, chamber office manager, said about 425 ballot forms were sent out to chamber members in early April. Ehrig said 198 ballots were returned, a response of about 47 percent, Ehrig said.

The above five chamber board members were elected from a field of eight candidates. They will join the chamber's current 17 board members, bringing the board's total membership to 22, a chamber employee said.

The other board candidates were Van Patton, Gail Dix and Judy Wilkie.

Building fine homes and a reputation since 1976

102 Meadows Dr. Altos - Upper canyon with a majestic view of Sierra Blanca. A level access and lots of curb appeal will surely catch the eye. The exterior is stucco with lots of relief encompassing 44 corners to give the home architectural flair. The entry is especially attractive with the focal point being an oak, hand carved front door with transom and sidelights. This door was carved and signed by the Branson, Missouri artist. The entry door hardware is an exquisite Baldwin mortise lock. Marvin brand wood windows allow for lots of light and a maintenance free exterior finish. The view will be the topic in the home as you enjoy approximately 560 square feet of covered patio at the rear of the home. A three-car heated garage with an electric outlet for recharging a golf cart will be appreciated by the man of the house.

About the interior: approximately 3,900 luxurious square feet of living area includes a master suite, with a large walk-in closet. The master bath includes his and her separate vanities, jacuzzi tub, glassed-in shower, and separate water closet room. The jacuzzi deck, vanity tops and shower are all finished in travertine marble. Featured in this floor plan are three additional bedrooms, 2.5 additional bathrooms, study/music room, large utility room with sink and built-in ironing board, family room with fireplace, living room with fireplace, breakfast nook, formal dining room and kitchen. The kitchen includes a smooth-surface electric cook top, double oven (convection/thermal), trash compactor, dishwasher, disposal and built-in microwave, and reverse osmosis water system. A large walk-in pantry is flanked by birch cabinets with tile counter tops and with a work island in the middle of this well-arranged kitchen. The two gas fireplaces are custom designed to each be one-of-a-kind. Ten-foot-high ceilings are accented with graceful ellipsoid arches in the entry, formal dining room and living room. The floor finishes are ceramic tile, multi-textured cable plush carpet and hardwood floors. Accent lighting is achieved with recessed lighting both inside and out. The closets and pantries are customized European "Classy Closets". A security system will add peace of mind to ownership of this home.

A few extras included are: a full golfing membership, paved circular driveway, custom concrete entry, dual forced-air heat and refrigerated air with programmable thermostats, two 50 gallon natural gas water heaters with recirculating pumps for on-demand hot water, and many more custom features too numerous to mention.

Virgil Stephens ~ this artist can cowboy-up too

RUIDOSO NEWS

Q: How long have you been an artist?

A: Well, you are born with it, I think. I have been a professional for 15 years. (He has been drawing since he was 5.)

Q: What did you do before?

A: Well, growing up I was a cowboy. My dad was a cowboy and worked the ranches. So, I cowboied with him at the spring gatherings ... We had about three or four acres and I had just about everything - chickens, rabbits, horses, cows ...

Q: You do mostly pencil drawings, right?

A: Pencil drawings. I do pastels. Sculptures. I've done about six bronzes, now.

Q: How many pencil drawings have you done in your life?

A: Oh, well. As a professional it really went up. I'm sure it's more than 1,000, but how much over that I'm not really sure it would be.

Q: Do you work from photographs or memory?

A: Photographs, mostly. But you have to know your subject. I grew up with animals. And just being around them ... I know their anatomy. Just to draw a picture of this horse moving ... does a horse really move like that? And to pull it off, you have to understand them. (He uses a file of hundreds of photographs from which he develops a composite for his pictures.)

Q: You seem to feature your daughter in a lot of your drawings.

A: I have two boys and two girls and I've used them all. The one you are talking about is the youngest, so I've used her a lot in the cute poses. She's almost 16 now and she's growing out of the cutesy stage. I've done four or five pieces recently in what you would call the age of innocence, the transition from a young girl to a young lady. And I tie it all in with something western, or something down on the farm. But feminine, not grandma out slopping the hogs ... and it is really taking off.

Q: You always draw her hair covering her face. Is that because you don't want her identified?

A: No, it creates an interest. It draws their attention without saying everything 100 percent. And you can picture your daughter, yourself, your granddaughter. And that's who I sell them to ... If it's a straight on picture of somebody else's daughter, it's more like a portrait. And I wouldn't sell it necessarily. But when it's just a hint, it tweaks your interest.

Eagle Ranch features work by local artist

The gallery at Eagle Ranch is featuring the work of Sue Nichols, stained glass artist from La Luz, and potter Vicki Conley of Ruidoso Downs through the month of May.

Vicki Conley shares the spotlight in the gallery during the month of May. Her thriving pottery business began as a hobby. After graduating with a degree in chemistry and a master's degree in physiology, she took a pottery class just for fun while looking for a job. She became hooked on it, and while she did medical research related to diabetes, she continued to take more pottery classes and expand her knowledge of the medium.

She named her business Pinon Pottery after her favorite tree, and her work is displayed in specialty shops in towns throughout New Mexico.

Nichols decided to become an artist while still a grade school student. She began working in stained glass in 1983 and took her basic instruction from Teresa Ham. Afterward she began working and experimenting on her own and developed her present expertise.

Her work is widely collected by private individuals, and she offers a wide array of objets d'art in glass as well as windows and murals. Examples of her artistry in stained glass can be found in numerous churches around southern New Mexico.

Her work was chosen by the New Mexico Fine Arts Commission for two public collections in Santa Fe and Cuba.

Nichols has donated some of her time and materials to show children at La Luz Elementary School how to make art glass "slump bowls." Another important part of her life is helping her husband Bob with the family fruit orchards. Nichols Ranch in Cottonwood Canyon has been in business since 1940.

Gallery hours at Eagle Ranch are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week. Eagle Ranch Gallery is located at 7288 Highway 54/70 (Tularosa Highway), 434-0035.

Take your best shot for photo contest

Commerce during December. It will also be on display on Ruidoso's Internet site for one year.

Committee members are seeking winter scenes that truly represent Ruidoso or the Lincoln County area. All photographs or slides must be the original work of the exhibitor. The minimum print size is 4 inches by 5 inches or a 35-mm slide. The maximum print size is 16 inches by 20 inches. Images can be delivered or mailed to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. All entries must be received by May 26, 1998. Contact the Chamber of Commerce for a complete list of guidelines at 257-7395.

Natural History Museum hosts a creepy, crawly exhibit from the Smithsonian Institution

Would it surprise you to know that there is probably a spider in every dwelling throughout the United States, and for that matter, the world?

You can learn more about the many mysteries and wonders of these eight-legged animals in "Spiders!", a traveling exhibition that will be on display at the New Mexico Museum of Natural History and Science in Albuquerque through June 28.

"Spiders!" was organized by the National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C. The Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service will circulate the exhibition a total of 10 cities. "Spiders!" is the winner of the American Association of Museum's 1995 Curator's Award. The honor is given to an exhibition that successfully communicates complex scholarship to general audiences.

Specimens, interactive displays, web-like graphics, prose, poetry and spider myths give visitors a better understanding of basic spider biology and how these creatures play and indispensable role in the maintenance of the ecosystem. Visitors will learn about four deadly spiders in the exhibit: the brown recluse, black widow, Australian funnel web spiders and tropical wandering spider.

Pictures, videos and interactive games reveal the ways in which these small but voracious creatures obtain food and use their venom to immobilize prey. Spider venom usually evokes fear in humans; the exhibition reveals, however, that a spider would rather dodge than fight. Researchers are finding that this deadly substance has a positive side as they investigate its effectiveness in the treatment of epilepsy and Alzheimer's disease.

"This exhibition will ask people to learn something about a group of animals that is about as different from humans as you can get," says Jonathan Coddington, National Museum of Natural History research scientist and co-curator of the exhibition with Petra Sierwald of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

Dancers reach out in Spencer's opening summer act of 1998

The Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble, showcasing the best young dancers of the next generation, opens the Spencer Theater summer season May 15-16.

With balletic, theatrical moves full of funk and energy, the Ensemble performs classics from renowned choreographer Alvin Ailey and new works by emerging choreographers. The Spencer Theater is Alvin Ailey's only stop in New Mexico this year.

In addition to two 8 p.m. performances Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16, the Spencer Theater has scheduled two master classes with the Ensemble, available at no charge to intermediate and advanced intermediate students of dance. Classes are scheduled for 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Thursday, May 14 at the Spencer Theater. Master classes are taught by senior members of the Ensemble, incorporating movements which reflect the unique nature of the Ensemble's style.

The Spencer Theater will invite area school children to a free lecture/demonstration at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 15. A unique combination of commentary and dance, the demonstration includes excerpts from the repertoire followed by a question and answer session.

The program for the two Spencer performances features two Ailey-choreographed favorites - ISBA and Reflections in D - and new works by Tony award-winner Lar Lubovitch (with Marimba) and Homer Avila and Edisa Weeks (collaborating on Caught in Thermidor's Twilight).

Musical scores include Duke Ellington's jazz, technomusic combined with opera sung by Maria Callas, George Winston's swirling piano score "Autumn," and melodic percussion with organ by Scott Reich.

The Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble comprises the finest students of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center, featuring 12 young dancers under the artistic direction of Sylvia Waters. These dancers are consistently hailed as no ordinary second-string company.

The Ensemble was created in 1974 to introduce the Dance Center's top talent to the tour circuit and to build future audiences for the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater. Passionate, balletic, athletic, powerful, these performances have been touted by critics across the country as "vibrant," "accomplished," full of "funk and spirit" - in short, a tribute to the legacy of Alvin Ailey, one of the most gifted choreographers of his time.

If you love dance, don't miss this opportunity to see the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble in action. To sign up for a free master class, contact Margaret Lahey, outreach coordinator for the Spencer Theater, at 336-0017 (or 888-818-7872 ext. 117).

To purchase tickets to a performance by phone, call ProTix at 800-905-3315 (tickets are $35, $30 $12; curtain is at 8 p.m. May 15-16). Or call the Spencer Theater Box Office for fax-order information.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

A fine declarer makes not only the contracts he's supposed to make, but also some that appear impossible to make.

Whenever a contract seems hopeless on the surface, the careful declarer will burrow beneath to see whether a particular distribution of the adverse cards will permit the hand to be made. There may be no solution in some cases, but declarer is duty-bound to look for one.

Here is an illustration. The hand was played many years ago by Louis

P. Frank, New York attorney. He got to four spades and West led the queen of clubs. Apparently, two spades, two diamonds and possible a heart had to be lost.

But Frank made the contract, despite the bleak outlook, by adopting a line of play that gave him a chance. He ruffed the club in dummy and finessed the queen of hearts.

When the queen held, he ruffed another club and finessed the jack of hearts. He then cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed his last club, the ace. Now he led dummy's established heart.

If East trumped with the ace, South would have discarded a diamond and made the contract without further ceremony. But East made the more natural play of discarding the eight of diamonds, whereupon Frank discarded a diamond and West ruffed.

West then led king of diamonds, followed by the jack. Declarer ruffed and returned a spade, the king and ace falling together. That was the third trick for the defense and also the end of the hand.

Of course, Frank had to be lucky find East with the king of hearts and the hearts divided 3-3, and to get a favorable trump division besides. But if you don't play for miracles in such hands, they won't happen. You'll also never wind up with your name in the newspaper.

IN THE STARS

• ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although some business can be done, it's best to do it with a clear head. Watch careless spending mid-week. Share and exchange ideas with family members over the weekend.

• TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A friend keeps you waiting or is indecisive early in the week. Be sure to attend to a pressing domestic responsibility. Others count on your ability to be truthful, particularly in the work place.

• GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're sharp mentally, but don't speak out of turn. You have a broad and tolerant outlook, but you could be somewhat hard on a family member. Avoid small disputes during the weekend.

• CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Try to avert arguments about career goals. You still have some last-minute tricks up your sleeve. This weekend, you exhibit your originality.

• LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You'll be hearing from friends at a distance. Social life is a plus. If you curb a tendency to be critical this weekend, you'll find romance and leisure activities to your liking.

• VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on business, but remember you needn't keep everyone up to date on your progress. You'd do well to forget a past slight. Enjoy the weekend to the fullest.

• LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)

Driving a hard bargain is not the answer, but you shouldn't be too accommodating either. Don't abandon a project at work, even if the answers you seek are hard to ascertain.

Johnny, Dick & the Lincoln County War

There is no lack of obscure players in the drama that is known as the Lincoln County War. And, thanks largely to the world's fascination with Billy the Kid, we know more about the personalities of the Regulators than we do about those of the Murphy/Dolan men.

It is easy to assume that the Regulators were the "good guys" and the Murphy/Dolan adherents the "bad guys." Things are never that simple, though. It is difficult to think of loud, blustering, bullying Regulator Rob Widenmann as a hero.

PAST TENSE

Historian

I, personally, also have a hard time imagining Alexander McSween in any sort of heroic role. To me, he was a self-serving, manipulative frontier yuppie.

Run, Dick, run

Dick Lloyd was a man who fought for the Murphy/Dolan contingent and had more than one close call. It was not in the Lincoln County War that Dick met his fate, however, but later near another famous frontier town. He was ultimately gunned down by not one, but two of the more famous gunmen to inhabit Tombstone, Arizona Territory, during its boom days.

Little is known of Lloyd's early years. His stepfather, Stephen W. Lloyd, was a military man who was honorably discharged at Fort Stanton. Stephen married Irish-born Eliza, who had a son from a previous marriage named Dick. Eliza's first husband appears to have been named Kelly, as Dick was alternately known as Dick Kelly and Dick Lloyd. As time passed, he used the name Lloyd more and more frequently.

Dick was present on March 6, 1878 — the day the Regulators got their first taste of revenge for the death of John Henry Tunstall. On that day Dick was working cattle with Billy "Buck" Morton and Frank Baker, two of the actual triggermen in Tunstall's death. When a contingent of Regulators came into sight and headed, at a gallop, right for Lloyd and his two hapless companions, all three knew that their fate was sealed if the Regulators were to catch up with them.

The trio attempted to flee, but they had been working their horses pretty hard all day and the Regulators had fresh mounts.

Dick Lloyd's horse was the first to give out. When the animal collapsed, Dick pulled his rifle from its scabbard and prepared for the worst. It was definitely his luckiest day, though, because the Regulators were hell-bent on apprehending Morton and Baker and considered Lloyd to be too small a fish with whom to bother. As the Regulators' eyes were fixed on Morton and Baker, they thundered past him.

The fate of Morton and Baker

When Morton and Baker's horses gave out, they too, expected to be summarily dealt with — in other words, they expected to be killed on the spot. Much to their amazement, they weren't. Instead, they were taken prisoner. Neither man, however, expected to reach Lincoln alive.

And about that, at least, they were right. At some point between Roswell and Lincoln, the Regulators decided the fate of the pair. It had to have occurred to the Regulators that to turn over Morton and Baker to the legal authorities would be an act of futility at best. The legal authority was Sheriff Brady, the very same sheriff for whom the posse that killed Tunstall was riding. He would, of course, have immediately released both Morton and Baker on their own recognizance. As one can easily imagine, this was unacceptable to the Regulators.

One of the Regulators was William McCloskey, a former Murphy/Dolan man who had changed sides. Because of that, the Regulators had always been suspicious of him and when he apparently attempted to defend the two prisoners, he sealed his own fate.

The Regulators later claimed that one of the two prisoners had seized McCloskey's pistol and shot him with it. The Regulators had then killed both Morton and Baker during a desperate attempt to escape. Then, as now, few believed them. A more likely scenario was that all three were simply executed. Billy the Kid later told George Coe that, "You know George, I never intended for those two birds to reach Lincoln alive."

The end of Dick Lloyd

Dick Lloyd managed to survive the Lincoln County War, but was eventually done in by his own bad habits. Dick's idea of having a good time was to get completely plastered and then "hoorah" the town of Lincoln. By March 8, 1881, he had drifted over to Arizona, where, in a place called Maxey, he thought it might be fun to try the same trick.

After wounding a bartender by the name of Ed Mann, Dick helped himself to someone else's horse and rode it right into O'Neil and Franklin's Saloon.

His timing could have been a little better. When Dick's confiscated horse plunged through the bathing doors of the place, he disturbed what was apparently a very serious poker game. Among the poker players that day were Billy the Kid and Johnny Ringo.

LINCOLN seems like it was a quiet town in this picture, but looks are deceiving.

Brocius and Johnny Ringo, two men not known to suffer fools of Dick's caliber lightly.

Ringo and Brocius, along with everyone else seated at the card table, pulled their guns and opened fire. And that was the end of Dick Lloyd.

Johnny Hurley

Johnny Hurley, another of the Murphy/Dolan men to survive the war, also met a violent death. But his was much more honorable than Lloyd's.

Hurley was a native New Yorker, who, at the time of the Lincoln County War, was all of 23 years old. Writer Emerson Hough, who knew him, stated that Johnny was "a very pleasant fellow" and exceedingly brave. George Coe, in his remarkable autobiography, "Frontier Fighter," reminisced that Hurley, who had been Coe's friend before the festivities, came riding up to the Coe Ranch one evening some five or so years after the war. George had just returned to Lincoln County and Hurley wanted to speak with him. At the time, Hurley was serving as Deputy Sheriff of Lincoln County under John Poe.

According to Coe, "I went out, wondering what I had done now, and he said: 'Hello, George, is that you?'"

"Yes, Johnny," I admitted, "It's me all right."

"Well, George," he said seriously, "I've come to have a talk with you."

We've been through enough grief, and I'm sick of it. Let's bury the hatchet right here and be friends once again."

"I grasped his hand warmly, and so it was agreed."

As Coe tells it, "Hurley and (George) Peppin were the only two men who came and discussed the old trouble pleasantly, and the bitter feeling gradually wore away with time."

A dangerous place

Lincoln County was still Lincoln County, however, and despite the fact that the war had been over for some time, it was still a place where one could get killed with the greatest of ease.

In January of 1886, Hurley was one of several lawmen that pursued escaped rustler Nicolas Aragon to Chaperito where Aragon had decided to make a stand. During the course of the siege, Hurley went to question a local woman and unknowingly made himself a target standing in her doorway with the light behind him. Aragon was not one to pass up such an opportunity, and he killed Deputy John Hurley with one shot.

The Good Guys & the Bad Guys

For anyone interested in categorizing men in the Old West as being either "good" or "bad," it is recommended that you stay away from the study of the Lincoln County War.

With few exceptions, it is extremely difficult to fit any single person into either category. The Lincoln County War was fought to satisfy the greed of a few, and most of the participants were never completely aware of the motives of their leaders. And even after it was clear that no one was going to profit in the end, the war still dragged on. After the first few months of violence, the war seemed to take on a life of its own.

It was revenge killing for the sake of killing. A situation unlike any before or since had come into existence in Lincoln County. And to anyone who thinks that they can find "good" in the midst of such evil, well, I wish you luck.

"The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones."

—from Wm. Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar"

COMMUNITY EDUCATION PROGRAM

The program strives to fulfill that part of Ruidoso Center's mission which is "to make inexpensive, high quality educational services available at convenient times for the residents of the Ruidoso School District and the surrounding area of Lincoln and northern Otero Counties." Programs are also designed to be of interest to visitors to the Ruidoso area. The program is oriented toward lifelong learning and the fulfillment of the individual.

DON'T KEEP IT TO YOURSELF. SHARE YOUR KNOWLEDGE!!

Our instructors are a diverse and talented group of people, each with something very special to share. If you would like to propose a class or workshop, for ENMU consideration, just give us a call. Whether you would like to teach in our program or just recommend an activity, we'd love to hear from you!

COURSE FEES

The Ruidoso Center Community Education program is a self-sustaining program with course fees covering all program-related expenses. Fees are based on an estimated minimum number of students.
