Nunley confident jail will not be closed

County commission chair meets with state on issue

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although he wasn't able to meet face-to-face with State Fire Marshall George Chavez, Lincoln County Commission Chairman L. Ray Nunley said Thursday he's optimistic the county will be able to continue to use the county jail in Carrizozo until a new one can be built.

"We were given a list of nine things (Chavez) is going to require of us and all of them are do-able — to stay in the jail short term, by — I mean one or two years," Nunley said of his trip to Santa Fe Wednesday.

The county was served notice by registered mail that a recommendation had been submitted to Chavez from state fire code inspector Paul Linville to issue a cease and desist order to the county, which could have resulted in the closure of the jail in 30 days.

Linville based the recommendation on the county's May 18 response to a jail inspection Jan. 28, sent by jail administrator Mike Borrego. On several of his responses to cited non-compliance with code, Borrego simply said the county could not comply because it would require a major construction or renovation project.

"We didn't make it clear that we're building a new jail," Nunley said. "Our answers were pretty vague and we just stated we couldn't correct the problems. That was our fault."

He will return to Santa Fe next week with Pete Emmons of the risk management division of the New Mexico Association of Counties, armed with a packet of information on how the commission is moving ahead with construction of a new jail.

"We hope to clear this thing up then," Nunley said. "I think they will help us."

However, he was given a list of nine items that Chavez will insist are complied with if the county continues to use the jail, Nunley said.

The nine requirements are:

- Remove the wooden cabinets from kitchen.
- Establish a procedure for an hourly fire watch documented in a log.
- Revise the emergency plan.
- Revise to accept mentally or physically disabled inmates.
- Prohibit electrical appliances in cells.
- Survey and eliminate ignition sources.
- Maintain a minimum of three on staff at any one time.
- Station one staff member in bull pen (undivided group) area.

Otero County could take Lincoln County inmates

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

With the future of Lincoln County's jail in Carrizozo uncertain, county commissioners are negotiating with Otero County to take its inmates.

Commissioners Wilton Howell and Monroy Montes met with Otero County officials Wednesday to come up with a price for taking care of Lincoln's inmates, if the state fire marshal doesn't accept the county's bid to keep the old jail open another year or two while it builds a new one.

A report on negotiations is one of 20 business items on the agenda for the special county commission meeting at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

What started as a one-item agenda now looks like a long night for commissioners as they meet in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

The mother-daughter team of Jane Hamill and Allison Hamill, 4, took off with a trip down the slide at the city pool Thursday afternoon. The Hamills are in Ruidoso for the weekend to escape the 100-plus temperatures in their hometown of Albuquerque.

Police nab alleged shoplifters on spree

The defendants are charged with stealing more than $1,000 from several stores

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Four Roswell residents were in jail Thursday after being charged with shoplifting more than $1,000 from about a half dozen Ruidoso stores.

They also are charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, because they allegedly used the backpack of one woman's eight-year-old daughter to hide some of the stolen items, said Ruidoso Police Officers Charles Wolf, T.D. Landavazo and shift commander Eric Woods.

Charged were Roger Carrillo, 33, Alice Camboa, 34, (mother of the young girl), Richard Cheshire, 49, and Melanie Hernandez, 35, who police believe is really Michelle Torres, based on identification she was carrying in her purse. Cheshire also was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, after officers found syringes in the car he was driving with the wrong license plate.

"The car hadn't been registered in a long time," Woods said.

The owner of Mountain Country Store tipped off the police Thursday afternoon after she realized she was the victim of a shoplifter, Wolf said. She called and gave a description of the people she believed stole two dolls from her store at 2603 Sudderth Drive.

"We cruised up and down the street trying to find the people she described and as we were doing that she was talking to dispatch trying to give us a better description," Wolf said. They were looking for a white male with a beard and wearing a cast on his arm.

"Apparently, the man with the cast kept her busy while someone stuffed the red doll in the girl's backpack and another woman she described as Hispanic stuffed a blue doll underneath her shirt," Wolf said.

When the group left the store, the Hispanic-looking couple went in one direction. The older man, another woman and the young girl went back to a car in another direction.

Village, police officer negotiate settlement in alleged sexual harassment lawsuit

• Lawsuit against the village of Ruidoso says female officer was subjected to "vulgar and sexually explicit language" and worse at police department.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The sexual harassment/discrimination lawsuit of a female police officer against the village of Ruidoso may be resolved before reaching a courtroom, her attorney said this week.

"We are in settlement negotiations," said Robert Beauvais, the Ruidoso attorney of Sgt. Ramona Sabo. "I think there's a possibility that there will be a settlement."

Beauvais said both parties agreed to keep the negotiations, which started about two weeks ago, confidential. Earlier this year, a federal judge set June 19 for a conference on the possible settlement of the case.

Sabo, who has been with the department seven years and an officer for 11, filed her lawsuit in mid-August in Albuquerque's federal court.

The lawsuit states she was subjected to "graphic, verbal and visual depictions of human and bestial intercourse, vulgar and sexually explicit language and other similar behavior designed to alienate and intimidate (Sabo) from performing her assigned duties as a female member of the Village Police Department."

Richard Olson, a Roswell attorney, filed the village's response to the lawsuit in October. In it, he said village administrators did not create the hostile work environment Sabo alleges in her lawsuit.

"The basis of our answer is, if something was done, it is certain the village didn't approve of it," Olson said earlier. "And if something was done, as soon as the village was aware of it, (village administrators) took steps to deal with it."

Sabo's lawsuit states she attempted to bring the harassment to the attention of both the village and Police Chief Lanny Maddox, starting in June of 1995. Maddox either refused or failed to remedy the problem, Sabo's lawsuit claims. In the village's response, Olson said Sabo did not notify Maddox of the problem.

Because of her complaints, the department retaliated with discriminatory treatment of her work schedule, assignments and standing in the department, Sabo said in her lawsuit.

In early 1997, she filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the New Mexico Human Rights Commission regarding the alleged discrimination. She received a ruling of non-determination from the commission on July 15, 1997. The ruling basically closed the complaint without taking any action.

STARDATE

On the 27th, the Moon creeps up on Regulus, the bright blue-white star that marks the "heart" of the constellation Leo, the lion. Regulus stand at the bottom of a pattern of stars that resembles a backward question mark, called "the Sickle." This pattern outlines the lion's head, shoulders, and chest. This evening, Regulus stands just above the waxing crescent Moon.

Cat finds itself out on a limb – literally

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The cat began crying Sunday morning.

At first Ruby and Gene Turner weren't sure where the plaintiff meows were coming from, but a sudden movement and the right light finally revealed an adult cat stranded about 40 feet up in the high branches of a Ponderosa pine.

The couple, who live on Center Street tried talking the cat down with no luck. They called animal control officer Peggy Williams, who came out to check the situation and tried talking the cat down.

She called the Ruidoso Fire Department, which has some employees trained to climb trees, but no one responded and Williams never came back to check on the cat, Turner said.

Monday, he turned to Rene Bustamante, owner of Tree Masters Inc., for help. Tuesday Bustamante delivered it in the body of Freddy Serna, who donned tree climbing gear, rope and drawstring bag and headed up the tree in the Turner's back yard.

Rescuing cats is old hat to the compactly-built Serna. Talking about his technique before the climb, he said he tried to sooth a cat and win its trust before grabbing it and putting it inside the sack for the trip back down to earth.

But the tortoise shell cat Tuesday wasn't an easy case.

As Serna approached, it moved as far out on the limb as possible and then leaped passed him and up to a higher branch. Undaunted, Serna followed.

This time, the cat jumped down to the original limb.

As Serna prepared to grab it, the cat – apparently fearing this strange cloud-walking intruder – more than the thought of the long drop to the ground, flung itself in a death grip onto the tree trunk, dropped in a few short downward, claw-driven rappels and then risked it all for a final head first lunge to the ground.

It landed without injury and took off without a backward glance or a sniff at the milk Ruby Turner left at the bottom for it.

"At least it made it down all right and it wouldn't have happened without Freddy and Rene," Turner said.

His words weren't as kind for the fire department and Williams.

"I hunt, but I believe in animal rights and I hate to see one die in a tree, especially with all these animal control regulations the village," he said.

think it's pretty poor that an animal control officer can't do anything or get it done and never checked back."

Williams said she is not trained to climb trees and is prohibited by insurance restrictions even to attempt such rescues. She turned the call over to the fire department.

"It wasn't that I didn't care," she said. "But once I did that, it's out of my hands."

The fire department doesn't have anyone trained to climb trees on staff, assistant fire chief Robbie Hall said Thursday. The department's tallest ladder is 24 feet.

"I don't know what happened in this case," he said. "I wasn't aware of the call. But usually, if it won't endanger any firemen and we're not on calls, we'll do it, if it's within the limits of our ladders."

Bustamante said his outfit has rescued more than a dozen cats from the tall trees and that it's an old wives' tale to believe they'll come down if they get hungry enough. Some become too weak and dehydrated to make their way down, he said.

is a request to scheduled a hearing on proposed sites and construction of the new jail. Ruben A. Perra, market development consultant for Rampar Development, one of the firms working as consultants for the county is coming up with a proposal for a new jail, will update commissioners on the progress of the study.

A joint powers agreement also is up for approval between the village of Ruidoso and the county for housing and care of prisoners.

In non-jail items, David Hanna of the state Department of Finance and Administration will speak to commissioners about grants for the county's rural addressing program and its Emergency 911 system.

Commissioners will receive an update on the county's drug enforcement grant and be given information about applicants for the position of DWI (driving while intoxicated) program coordinator.

Montes is on the agenda to discuss the management of the county-owned Glencoe Rural Events Center on U.S. 70 and the future of the county as a member of the Lincoln County Solid waste Authority.

Leslie Ellis and family of Lincoln are in the city visiting relatives. He says the political situation is a little mixed in the lower country and if the democrats nominate a good ticket they will elect it.

The Eagle received a letter from Rev. R.P. Oioem of Alamogordo, announcing that that place had secured the location of the Baptist college, to be built by the Texas Baptist Association in New Mexico.

While White Oaks regrets very much that the institution was not located here, there is no ill feeling toward Alamogordo. Considered from a standpoint of climate, water, building materials, etc., White Oaks unquestionably has some advantages over Alamogordo.

New dress code for Capitan students

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Pants can bag, but not sag or drag in Capitan schools. Members of the Capitan School Board passed a new dress code for the 1998-99 school year with some changes and an easier approach for students and parents to reference the rules on different items of clothing, said Superintendent Diana Billingsley.

"We talked about sagging and baggy pants and decided they can wear loose legged pants, but the pants can't drag on the floor," she said Thursday. "It's more of a safety issue. They catch on everything."

Sagging pants are prohibited and overall straps must be kept up and buttoned.

Shirt tails must not be longer than where a child's wrists fall with arms straight at the side.

"The middle school wanted them tucked in and the high school didn't care, so we compromised," Billingsley said.

In the opening paragraph of the code, the school board states that appearance and dress can be a factor in improving student attitudes toward school, and that positive changes in attitude can lead to improvements in school attendance, drop-out rates, performance, as well as avoiding student conflict and confrontation.

Other points in the dress code include:

- Shorts may be worn from the first day of school until Oct. 15 and from April 1 to the last day of school, but they cannot be Spandex or jean cutoff types and must be at least mid-thigh.

- No bare midriffs shirts and no halter tops. Muscle shirts with excessively large arm openings may only be worn over a T-shirt.

- No caps, hats or rags can be worn.

- Chains cannot be worn as belts or connect wallets or purses to clothing or be worn as jewelry.

- Clothing or jewelry is prohibited with sexually explicit or implied obscene messages, to promote tobacco or alcohol, that displays logos or emblems promoting violence or affiliation with gangs, or that are replicas of or refer to illegal drugs.

Students will receive a warning for a first offense, be sent home to change and then return to school. Parents will be contacted as necessary.

A second or subsequent offense will result in the student being sent home for the remainder of the day as an unexcused absence.

The school board also discourages body piercing or tattooing by prohibiting students attending school or school-sponsored activities while wearing rings or jewelry in pierced locations on a student's body other than the ear, and from showing tattoos representing gang membership, presenting violent sexually explicit or obscene messages or promoting the tobacco or alcohol industry.

SHOPLIFTERS: items were allegedly stolen from several mid-town stores

Fortunately, the car had a flat, which delayed their departure from the area behind Cafe Rio and Timbers Mall.

Although the store owner identified the older man, who by then had removed a brace from his arm, the officers thought they might have to let the man go, because they couldn't find the dolls. They did find some cartons of Camel cigarettes and some clothes, Wolf said. But by that time, another call came in referring to a woman and young girl fitting the description of two people in the two-door Dodge Colt.

"We received permission to search the car and found everything wrapped in clothes and fur bags," Wolf said. The red doll was found in a backpack under the passenger's seat.

Cheshire has a criminal record that includes offenses ranging from selling marijuana to burglary and embezzlement, Woods said.

Some of the items taken came from The Covered Wagon, Furrs, the Mountain Country Store and the Fifty Million B.C. rock shop, but officers were calling other businesses to track down the source of goods that included necklaces, makeup, T-shirts, dream catchers, about a dozen glass statues, and a different type statue of a wolf playing with its pups.

J.C. DeBolt of the Ruidoso Police Department inventories about $1,000 of items allegedly shoplifted Thursday afternoon from several stores in midtown Ruidoso. Four Roswell residents were arrested. They are accused of stuffing some of the stolen goods into a backpack worn by an 8-year-old girl.

FUNERALS DEATHS

Calvin W. Wesch

Funeral services were conducted Monday at the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel for Calvin W. Wesch of Midland, Texas, who died June 19.

Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Street Baptist Church officiated. Burial was at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Born Oct. 21, 1926 in New Braunfels, Texas, Mr. Wesch was the eldest son of Hilmar and Rosa Wesch.

He married Judy Haney Wesch in 1973.

After serving in the Navy during World War II, he attended the University of Texas before receiving his law degree.

He was admitted to the Texas Bar in 1951 and the New Mexico Bar in 1984.

He practiced law in Kermit, Texas from 1955-86, when he retired from the law firm of Wesch, Trenchard and Davis.

He served as district attorney for Crane, Andrews and Winkler counties from 1968-77.

He was founder and organizer of First National Bank of Kermit in 1958 and served on its board of directors.

He moved to Glencoe, where he ranched and again practiced law from 1986-95.

He moved to Midland in 1995, where he continued to practice law part time until his death.

Mr. Wesch was preceded in death by his father and one grandson, Mitchell Dare.

He is survived by his wife, Judy Haney Wesch of Midland; his daughters, Sandra Kay Dare of Bryan, Texas, Cynthia Ann Wesch of Austin, Texas, Katherine Rose Wesch of San Antonio, Texas, and Angela Wesch Harlow, an attorney, of Tacoma, Wash.

He also is survived by his mother, Rosa Wesch; his sisters Marcella Stapper and Annie Scates of San Antonio; his brother Vincent A. Wesch of Midland; and four grandsons, Matthew, Michael, Austin and Travis.

Memorials may be directed to the Salvation Army, 360 South Baird, Midland, Texas 79701.

POLICE BEAT

Case of missing dogs in Capitan continues

A state police officer started an investigation earlier this week of the apparent slaughter of 12 dogs in Capitan.

The owner, Romy Lowrance said she returned home mid-afternoon June 9 to find her household pets missing, the door to her home open and blood on the porch and in the back yard.

Lt. William Bower has assigned Officer Sal Beltran to the case that has generated outrage in the Capitan community and many telephone calls to his office, Bower said.

Lincoln County Sheriff Tom Sullivan also said his office would look into the matter.

Lowrance said a few months earlier another dog died and others became ill after someone put antifreeze in a water dish.

Although animal abuse is a misdemeanor in New Mexico, multiple counts could result in a lengthy jail sentence and fine.

Other charges, such as theft, also could be filed in connection with the incident.

Lowrance has had several posters put up throughout the area and has offered a monetary award for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the responsible party.

Lowrance, ironically, is a former Arizona police officer.

Break-in of seniors center attempted

Someone tried to break into the administration office of the Ruidoso Senior Citizens Center over the weekend.

The door was pushed to the point of cracking around the lock and deadbolt, according to Police Officer Travanon Ash, who took the report on the incident.

Center administrator Sandra Jourden reported the attempted break-in and damage to village property off Sudderth Drive in School House Park at 8:40 a.m. Monday.

Ash found no indication of a forced entry into the main building.

Nothing was missing. Jourden said money is not kept in her office.

OUR OPINION

Watching the water

Ruidoso residents can expect to see a bump in their water rates and garbage rates with the Village Council's approval of the increases at their regular Tuesday meeting.

The increase hits residential water rates by $5.62 a month and garbage collection rates by $2.75 for a total of $8.37.

But the initial water rate increase really only tells half the story.

As a means to create a more water conscientious citizenry, the Village also implemented increases in water costs for those consumers who use more than the average amount.

The first 4,000 gallons increases from $12.50 to 18.12, which is the base rate. There's an additional $1.75 per 1,000 gallons used from 4,000 gallons up to 25,000 gallons and an additional $2.25 per 1,000 gallons used between 25,000 gallons up to 35,000.

It's those people who use more than 35,000 gallons a month that may feel the trickle more from their wallet than their garden hose.

There will be a $5 per 1,000 gallons used over 35,000 gallons up to 55,000 gallons, which basically doubles what the current rate is now.

Rates continue to increase as water usage increases. If a household uses between 125,000 to 150,000 gallons of water it will pay $14 per 1,000 gallons of water.

So, if you use 150,000 gallons in a month (which sounds incredible but, according to Mayor Robert Donaldson, there are a few culprits out there who do) and you get that monthly bill of about $1,300, know that it is not a typo!

Donaldson said that these increases based on consumption are really targeted to get people to conserve water. And during these summer months, conservation is critical.

We agree.

Residents need to watch their water usage and be aware of "water days," which are in effect for Ruidoso. If you live on the even side of the street you water on even days and if live on the odd side of the street then you water on odd days.

And if you're using 150,000 gallons of water or more in a month you're a glutton, pure and simple.

YOUR OPINION

Thanks from the shelter

To the editor:

I would like to thank the community of Ruidoso and the residents of Lincoln County for their continued support of Lincoln County Humane Society.

I have been the assistant director of the animal shelter for almost four years now and I am pleased with the steady growth of support, trust and adoption rates.

The animal shelter, with the cooperation of our board of directors, existing governments, law enforcement and veterinarians has been able to grow into a facility that each and everyone should be proud of.

Nearly everyday I hear generous compliments as we adopt out healthy companion animals to our local residents as well as Roswell, Alamogordo, Las Cruces, Carlsbad, Magdalena, Texas, Colorado, Arizona, California and even New York City.

The Society has taken on the responsibility of the tragic companion animal overpopulation in many ways besides just the housing and caring of these unwanted pets.

Over the past few years we have been able to give our schools the education materials so sorely needed, and we have started a spay and neuter fund to help anyone with the cost of sterilization.

Last year alone we were happy to pay out more than $5,000 in spay and neuter vouchers. Money that came from the people of Lincoln County in the form of donations and fund-raising efforts. It is nice to see that it goes directly back into the caring and compassionate community it came from. It appears to me that everyone is trying to make a difference and soon.

Our largest and most successful fundraiser of the year is coming up on July 25, the annual rummage sale.

Every penny of the proceeds goes directly into the spay and neuter fund so please stop by and support us this year and call us to pick up all that unwanted stuff in your way.

Thanks Lincoln County, I wouldn't work at any other animal shelter.

Did I read it right?

To the editor:

Did I just read Mr. (District Attorney Scott) Key right (in a June 24 edition article)?

Court-appointed and/or legal guardians DO NOT have to provide medical care or clean safe, living conditions for those placed in their care.

"Good News!" All those people who have been convicted of abuse or neglect of human life (ie... child, elderly, etc.) must be looking forward to being freed and gaining restitution from the state.

Also those people who have been convicted of cruelty to animals will be looking for restitution and freedom, after all, they were guardians of life.

Common sense tells us that inmates, (people being held against their will), have a court-appointed guardian; the jail, in this case, the County Commissioners who control the jail, and that the guardian must provide for the inmates.

This guardianship is not an if, and, or, maybe, it is a legal obligation.

Common sense also tells us that inmates cannot of their own accord seek medical treatment (go to the doctor). They cannot go to the medicine cabinet (bars and locked doors). They cannot call the exterminator to get rid of the bugs. They cannot even have a local paper to read.

The inmates cannot provide for themselves due to being jailed, then their guardian, who is court appointed, must provide for them.

In the real world when a legal guardian does not provide a clean, safe environment, medical treatment, or enough food, criminal charges are brought against the guardian. So why is the jail no less criminal?

I charge, ye who holds keys (as guardians), with abuse, neglect and reckless endangerment of human life.

I urge all who read this to call and voice your opinion of the jail conditions to all elected officials.

Taking the 'B' roads

If you want to know how big Lincoln County really is, take the "B" roads.

Forget U. S. 70, 54 and 380; asphalt miles just don't put size in the proper context.

We found that out the other day, on the way from Ruidoso to Santa Fe. Wisely, we started with lunch at Spanky's in Capitan, then thought it was a bit ridiculous to go west 20 miles to Carrizozo just so we could go northeast on U. S. 54.

Why not head north, swing west to Ancho and pick up 54 there? Nice bit of paving for a while on State 246 before it turns east behind the Carrizos and makes a beeline for Roswell. But keep going straight on graded dirt, like the state map says and pretty soon you turn west toward Ancho. No mile markers on county roads, and lots more animals than people.

But it's a huge country of rolling slopes, dry washes and distant mountains as we stir up dust on Lincoln County Road B001. Looking west, we see the road apparently disappearing at a ranch tucked under some hills, never to be seen a gain... Ranch road, apparently; no other markers in sight.

So, on we go north on B001 under a brassy sky; more cows, then sheep. No people, and considerable wind. We'd gassed up in Ruidoso, and set the odometer, which now read 56 and counting. At last, a man and his son fixing a piece of fence somewhere north of Capitan and south of the North Pole. Well, if we wanted to go to Ancho we should have turned on that road back there; don't know the number. Way back there. But we're actually going to Corona and Santa Fe. Well, keep on going, and the road will swing east and connect with B007, which goes north and finally runs into paved State 249; head west and Corona is about 17 miles.

We did, and it was. And we were real proud of that coating of Lincoln County dust we took to the state capital, all from Lincoln County's "B" roads.

such companies to select their own leaders. The First Missouri volunteers picked Alexander W. Doniphan, a lawyer and militia commander, to be their colonel, and he successfully led them on a military campaign that covered more miles than any before it.

The First Missouri was a group of men from all walks of life. Most of them were farmers, and most lived in Missouri; but many had recently arrived there.

Throughout the history of the young country, farmers who had depleted the nutrients in their home soil struck out to the west, where they felled trees and plowed rich new land. When that soil played out they moved again. Those closest to the frontier, which itself moved inexorably westward, were most likely to move on.

Missouri was that frontier in 1864, and it was full of impatient men longing to see new lands.

Kearny led this diverse group from Independence to Santa Fe, and when the situation was stabilized there he sent Doniphan and the First Missouri south.

The force went from Santa Fe to Socorro, and then down the Jornada del Muerto to the Mesilla Valley near what is now Las Cruces. There it encountered a superior force of the Mexican army and routed it, suffering only eight wounded while the Mexicans lost 71 and had over 150 wounded.

Doniphan moved on to El Paso, which surrendered peacefully, and then proceeded to Chihuahua, where another battle resulted in the loss of 304 Mexicans and only one Missouri major. It was a huge victory for the United States.

that impelled others to come.

One of the volunteers of the First Missouri was Captain John Rall, who was Grand Master of Masons in Missouri. He authorized the formation of several military lodges during the campaign, and some of these became permanently established. Several continue to exist today, having changed their allegiance from the Missouri Grand Lodge when the New Mexico Grand Lodge was formed.

The Masons were a powerful fraternity. Of the eight men Gen. Kearny chose to lead the civilian government, six, including Gov. Bent, were Masons. Many others joined, during and after the war, and the Masons helped keep the connection between Missouri and New Mexico alive and well.

Because of the war, Missouri has had more influence on New Mexico than any other state.

Council appointment

Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson on Tuesday is expected to name an appointment to the council seat left vacant when Councilor Ovella Estes died.

Confirmation of his appointment by the council is not scheduled on Tuesday's agenda.

In an earlier interview, Donaldson said he would name his appointment in early July. He said he would try to name a woman to the council, since Estes was the only female councilor.

This will be Donaldson's second time to make a council appointment since he was elected mayor on March 3.

His first appointment, to fill the seat he left vacant on the council, was Ron Anderson.

Animal control ordinance

Dogs that have been picked up three times in three years by animal control officers would have to be restrained to the owner's property, according to a proposed amendment to Ruidoso's animal control laws.

Ruidoso village councilors are scheduled to vote on the amendment Tuesday following a public hearing.

Currently, there is no village law that requires owners to restrain their dogs to their property.

This is the second time for an amended animal control law to come before the council. A proposal to restrain all dogs to their owners' property either by a fence or a tether was rejected by the council in mid-May.

At this time, Mayor Robert Donaldson said the law would be too restrictive.

"The problem I have with this ordinance is that even when you are playing with your dogs in the front yard you would be in violation," Donaldson said.

The council first requested an ordinance revision in March when a homeowner told councilors village law did not protect her from a dog next door.

Jordan Cameron said the dog would try to attack her when she walked from her house to her car.

But the animal control officer could do nothing because the dog was back on its owner's property when the officer investigated Cameron's complaints, she said.

Loan for garbage department

Ruidoso village councilors on Tuesday are to consider one of two financial institutions offering to loan the village roughly $900,000 for the lease/purchase of garbage collection equipment.

After seven years of garbage collection service through the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, the village is re-assuming its own garbage collection, beginning Sept. 1.

On Tuesday, the council approved a $2.75 increase to the monthly residential garbage collection rate of $7.50.

The increase will pay for pick-up of yard waste, such as pine needles and tree limbs, as well as recycling services.

The equipment would be paid for in seven years.

Based on the equipment's condition, the village would either continue using it or lease/purchase more, said Village Manager Alan Briley.

About $300,000 of the loan would be used to buy two right-hand side garbage collection trucks.

The village has received a $200,000 state grant from the Environment Department for new equipment at the transfer station on Gavilan Canyon, where trash is collected before being hauled to the Otero/Lincoln County Landfill.

Briley said about $1 million worth of new equipment and renovation is needed at the transfer station.

The council is also to consider scheduling a special meeting July 2 to award bids for the purchase of equipment for the garbage department, including a trailers for hauling garbage to the landfill, trucks to pull the trailers, a loader/backhoe, a grapple truck and chassis (for picking up yard waste) and pick-up trucks.

Life at high tide in the mountain land

This is being sent to you at mid-morning of June 24 and the temperature is 92 degrees and will more than likely reach 96 degrees around noon.

The sun is near it's highest point of the year, and new life comes smiling through heat, and drought and driving wind.

After spending the night in the hills, the cows and calves appear at the cedars on the edge of the meadows about sunrise. Then the young calves lead the way down in a top-speed foot race, as if overjoyed at seeing open ground after walking the dusty and rocky trails down through pinon, cedar, pine and oak brush.

Even this early tree shade begins to look good, and soon the grown cows are under the cedar trees, while the calves continue running races and butting heads. The heat

Little Chocolate Baby

Years ago we had a pure black calf here on the place. I called the calf "The Tar Baby."

(You remember the stories in "Uncle Remus," about B'r'er Fox and B'r'er Rabbit.)

While still a half-grown calf she took over leadership of the herd, and would come running through the deep snow leading the bunch to the feed ground.

On June 8 a favorite young cow named Spot Eye came in with her first calf, a tiny Heifer completely chocolate brown without a speck of white anywhere on her body. All the other calves are red or orange and a white face, or white somewhere. She's so completely brown that there is no white to her eyes. The other calves treat here as a calf from Mars, someone special.

When she calls out for her mother, the other calves come running and keep her company.

Lack of indigent fund puts strain on some health care facilities

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Anyone could be in need of medical treatment someday, but short of cash.

Members of the Lincoln County's Health and Wellness Board fear if the county commission doesn't establish a regular indigent fund, many people will not be able to receive proper medical care or will avoid that care when they need it the most.

"Because the county doesn't have a regular indigent fund, it's difficult to get people who come to the health clinic any treatment outside of this county," said County Public Health Director Theresa Luna. "I can get diagnostic work done here in the county and in Roswell, but no further diagnostic or treatment, because the county is not part of the state's system of indigent eligible services."

If a physician or laboratory performs work for an indigent patient, they may end up not being paid for the work, she said during a recent interview with some health and wellness board members.

The scenario isn't theoretical. Luna recently ran into that situation with a woman suffering from breast cancer, she said.

Lincoln and Socorro counties are the only two out of 33 in the state without a working indigent fund tied into the state and supported by a tax — either property or gross receipts.

Because the Lincoln County Medical Center, a county owned, but privately operated, hospital is the only major medical facility in the county, it has been declared a sole provider for indigents for the past few years.

But with new Medicaid provisions, disallowing the use of hospital emergency rooms for regular medical care, requiring admission through a primary care physician, and other new restrictions, hospital administrator Valerie Miller, who also serves on the health and wellness board, has warned commissioners the arrangement can't continue for much longer. Miller now satisfies the state requirement for an indigent fund by sending it a portion of a special property tax dedicated to the hospital.

The lack of access to an indigent fund by which some money for indigent care could be recouped by other agencies and physicians in the county also has hurt some health providers not directly connected to the hospital, health and wellness board members say.

If providers fold, everyone in the community suffers, because they won't be there to serve others who may need them and could pay or who have insurance, they point out.

However, spokesmen for some providers, such as Frontier Medical, a home health care business, say they are doing fine under the existing arrangement even with the changes in Medicaid. Some aren't pushing for a separate indigent fund as long as the hospital can cover the county's indigent requirement with the state.

But health and wellness board chairman Ann Baumann said the group is reflecting what they heard from communities across the county.

"When someone from Lincoln County tries to get in touch with the mental health unit at (the University of New Mexico Medical Center), they won't be seen unless they have money," said board member John McGrath.

"The indigent fund (now) always stays within the hospital," Baumann said. "If we had a true indigent fund, the wealth would be shared. Home health and mental health could access a little of it, as could the new health clinic in Hondo.

"But our board is only advisory. We gave (county commissioners) a proposal (on how to establish a true indigent fund), because of all communities really stating they needed indigent care. It's now becoming a top priority."

Only a small percentage of clients can pay privately for home health care after Medicaid or Medicare stops paying, because many are homebound or have no other family members to care for them, she said.

Yet, it's far less costly overall than other care options, she said.

Board members are scheduled to meet with commissioners again July 14.

Options proposed by the board to the commission last year to finance an indigent fund included:

- Imposing up to a 3/8th of one percent gross receipts tax.
- Imposing a property tax.
- Combining the two, creating two funding mechanisms, and allowing greatest flexibility and control for the county.
- Seeking sources of private funding.

"I know that a sales tax is considered a recessive tax in public administration, because the poor pay higher percentage of their wages," said board member Wanda De Figueroa. "But in a resort town, it has a different spin."

Dumped

Tom K. Larson/Ruidoso News
No one was injured earlier this week when this unoccupied dump truck accidentally rolled backwards down Dewey Drive off of Carrizo Canyon Drive, rolled off the road, up an embankment and then tipped onto its side. The truck, which had a full load of dirt, began rolling because of apparent equipment failure, police said.

EMS trains for shot in the arm

The Ruidoso Emergency Medical Services is actively participating in a new Integrated Immunization Program that will pave the way for more Lincoln County area children to be immunized against disease.

The New Mexico Public Health District IV, the Injury Prevention and EMS Bureau in Santa Fe, in conjunction with EMS Region III in Clovis have formed a partnership to provide much needed trained personnel to provide more immunizations in this area.

Specially-trained EMS personnel will work under the supervision of the county health nurses to complement the 13 health offices that make up the nine counties of Public Health District IV, and will go into the community and schools and day care centers to provide immunizations.

Jane Batson, manager of Public Health District IV, Evan Nelson, MD, Public Health District IV medical officer, Time Fleming, MD, former state EMS medical director, and Brian J. Hecht, executive director of EMS Region III, have worked to design and implement this integrated immunization program, which integrates emergency medical technicians and public health nurses in providing immunizations at local health clinics, schools and health fairs.

David Granados of the Ruidoso EMS attended the Train-the-Trainer program last month at Eastern New Mexico University - Roswell. Granados now will conduct training for local emergency medical technicians in this area.

Upon implementation of this program in July, the Lincoln County Health Offices will have expanded capabilities to provide more immunizations for the children of this area.

Capitan schools search for architect for expansion

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Moving toward a solution to alleviate crowded conditions in Capitan schools, members of the School Board are looking for an architect to offer alternatives and guide the district.

Responses to the board's request for proposal are due in by July 17. The board will meet with the top three contenders in late July and early August, said Superintendent Diane Billingsley. The board will select an architect at its meeting in August.

"We'll start working then with the architect looking at alternatives on campus for meeting the physical growth of our student body as far as the classrooms, whether it's a new high school or other ideas the architect may have."

"We want an architect who can take a look at our site and say you can do this here. Because they're going to have to take a look at parking and watering and children's play space and that needs to be looked at before can decide to add on," she said. "We definitely do not want portable classrooms."

Two boards met four times on the growth issue and conducted two community meetings, she said.

"As soon as the architect is hired, we can put him before the community and let the public ask questions and offer ideas," Billingsley said.

The district's enrollment has increased 33 percent since 1990 from 487 students to 647. Storage rooms and part of the teachers' lounge have been converted for classrooms, but all existing space has been exhausted in the elementary grades. The high school also is stretched to the maximum.

In connection with enrollment growth, the district has hired an additional third grade teacher, creating three third grade classes. The new teacher is Sandra Slaton, who has 30 years of elementary teaching experience in Texas and worked last year as an aide.

The district will wait to see how many children sign up for kindergarten before deciding to hire a fourth teacher needs to be hired at that level, Billingsley said. The classroom has been created out of the elementary school teacher's lounge and will be ready if the number of students requires another class.

A substitute teacher may be used until a permanent employee can be brought on board if the fourth class is created, Billingsley said.

It's difficult to project what the demand will be, especially because of the state Legislature's mandate for open enrollment, she said.

The state now requires school districts to develop a waiting list and policy for students who live outside of a district where they want to attend. Capitan previously had a policy against accepting any new out-of-district student, because of crowding.

"We must allow an out-of-district student to enroll if there is a vacancy," Billingsley said. "We have to design a board policy with criteria for students to come into Capitan schools."

The proposed policy will be reviewed at the board's meeting in July.

COURT BRIEFS

Lerma arraignment postponed

The arraignment of Rene Lerma on a vehicular homicide charge was postponed Thursday until July 10.

Lerma's attorney, Richard Branch, asked for the postponement of the formal entering of a plea for his client in Lincoln County district court in Carrizozo.

The 20-year-old Lerma, a Mexican nationalist apparently in the country illegally, is charged with causing the death of his 17-year-old brother, Mauro Lerma in the early morning hours of May 29.

Lerma is accused of drinking while driving and flipped his car near Arabela on the east side of the county.

Lerma's parents work for ABC news personality Sam Donaldson on a ranch he owns near Arabela.

Downs receives funding for Agua Fria Water

A check for $425,000 that will allow the village of Ruidoso Downs to provide better water service to the community, will be presented Tuesday by representatives of USDA-Rural Development.

The money will be used by the village to purchase the privately-owned Agua Fria Water System and the associated water rights.

"Buying the water system and water rights will help the village provide better water service to that growing community," said acting state Rural Development Director Gil Gallegos.

"The funding for this project is very important, because this community is growing and it needs an increased supply of good clean water."

The Agua Fria system now serves 71 residential users. The village serves 535 water users.

By combining the systems, both communities agree this transaction is in the best interest of their users as it will protect and preserve the water supply and allow for expansion.

The Rural Development agency, through the Rural Utilities Service, is committed to water system purchase as one mean of allowing new business to locate in the community, Gallegos said.

The check will be presented to Ruidoso Downs Mayor Joe Hayhurst at 10 a.m. in village hall at 122 Downs Place.

Clubs give away Hurd prints for good causes

Aggie Figueroa held the winning ticket and won the Peter Hurd print recently given away by the Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions Club in the club's attempt to raise money to combat eye diseases.

Sam Adams, Lion Treasurer, said the contest netted about $2,000 "thanks to the generosity of the people."

Club President David Rallsbock said it was the "greatest outpouring of local support ever witnessed by the club."

This will go a long way in the discovery, treatment and cure of eye disease in this community," he said.

Apache Run against alcohol and drugs planned

The Mescalero Apache Reservation will be the site of the Apache Nations Unite Run Against Alcohol and Drugs this year.

The event, which previously has been in Whiteriver, Ariz.; Dulce, N.M. and Ft. Sill, Okla., will draw participants from the Jicarilla Apache Tribe, White Mountain Apache Tribe, Cibola, San Carlos Apache, Tonto Apache Tribe, Yavapai-Apache Nation, Fort Lowell Mohave-Apache Indian Community, Fort Sill Apache Tribe, Anadarki Kiowa-Apache Tribe, and the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

This year, the run will lead into the Mescalero's Fourth of July celebration.

Mescalero will welcome about 500 runners, who departed from their own communities earlier this week and will arrive in Mescalero June 30.

Support for the runners and the anti-alcohol/drug campaign can be shown by welcoming them to Mescalero. The purpose of the run is to unite various Apache Nations in an effort to fight against alcohol and drugs.

Various "alcohol and drug free" activities are scheduled during the event for participants, beginning with the celebration blessing at 8 a.m. June 30 to kickoff the run.

Keynote speaker at 10 a.m. July 1, will be Wes Studi, Native American actor and musician. Several workshops are scheduled at the Mescalero Community Gymnasium July 1. A concert featuring "Drew" and "Jackie Bird" is set for the same day.

Health Science Center warns of poison danger

According to the New Mexico Poison Center, there is an increased chance for accidental poisonings during the summer. The Poison Center, based at the University of New Mexico Health Sciences Center, specializes in poison emergencies and education about prevention.

People spend more time outdoors in the summer, which can lead to insect bites and stings as well as exposure to chemicals and pesticides. Bites and stings from insects are usually just a nuisance. However, bites and stings from snakes, scorpions and certain spiders, such as the black widow, may be more serious. The Poison Center is available 24 hours-a-day to provide first-aid information about any bit or sting. Stings from insects such as bees, yellow jackets, wasps and hornets are of particular concern, according to the UNM Health Sciences Center. These stinging insects account for far more human deaths than snakebites or other insect bites and stings. In some people, this venom can cause severe allergic reactions that require immediate medical attention.

For all insect stings, examine the skin for any remaining portion of the stinger. Do not squeeze the skin or grasp the stinger. This may further inject the venom. Remove it by gently scraping the skin with the edge of a credit card and then wash with soap and water. Immediately apply a cold compress to control the swelling. Most importantly do not panic if approached by a flying insect. Move away from the insect without waving your arms and hands or trying to swat it.

The New Mexico Poison Center can be reached 24 hours-a-day, toll free at 1-800-432-6866.

Fishable waters
Streams: Ruidoso, Bonito, Hondo, Penasco
Lakes: Alto, Bonito, Lake Mescalero, Grindstone, Eagle-Lakes.

Stream flows will be decreasing on a daily basis until the beginning of monsoon season — hopefully sooner than later.

Fly selection for streams:
• Sizes 14 to 18
• Dries — stimulants, elk hair caddis, adams, goddard caddis, blue olive and, doves hoppers.
• Nymphs — pheasant tails, gold ribbed hairs, green rock worms, princeps.

Lake levels have been stable or dropping slightly since the end of runoff.
Fly selections for lakes:
• Sizes 12 to 22
• Dries — griffiths gnats, black, cream and olive midges, elk hair caddis, adams, mayflies-cream, rust and black.
• Nymphs — large pheasant tails, dark wooly buggers, pistol peters.

Best times — Evenings are a strong favorite for both lakes and streams with early mornings next best. Streams have been productive mid-morning.

Attend festival for the forest health of it

THE WILD SIDE
BY MIKE HYMAN
RUIDOSO NEWS OUTDOORS
CORRESPONDENT

Saturday is the annual Lincoln County Forest Festival. This event starts at 8:30 a.m. and continues until 2 p.m. at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

Seven environmental speakers, including local rancher Sid Goodloe and state forester Toby Martinez, will offer their views about forest health. Also on tap are special events for children, chainsaw carving and forest byproduct displays. Two carved bears will be raffled off as well.

Topics on the agenda will range from insect infestation, fire danger, water production, public safety and overall forest management techniques. This is one the most beneficial and enlightening events to take place in the area annually. I consider it a must attend for all property owners, realtors and local politicians.

Forest health is a straight forward approach to answering many of the environmental problems that we face today and will face in the future.

Many of the problems we see in this community can be solved by an active forest management program, but many of the people who can make a difference on these issues have looked at this as just another environmental group sounding off. But in all actuality, this is a proven technique that will increase ground water retention, reduce the annual wildfire threat and insure the presence of a fully functioning ecosystem for generations to come.

Our current forest health problem is the cumulative of 50 years of little or no forest health knowledge. This trend has to be reversed at all costs; and can only be done if everyone has at least a basic knowledge of this principal. It is quite alarming to watch a community like ours, stare at eventual destruction, and yet not take the initiative to change the out come.

The Lincoln County Forest Festival is open to all. Bring your eyes, ears and an open mind; you'll be glad you did.

TRAIL TALK BY JOHNNY HUGHES

Loop suits those who like the trail less travelled

Oak Ridge Loop

The hike begins by ascending Nogal Canyon Trail #48 for 1.2 miles to the intersection with Tortolita Canyon Trail #54. This segment of trail climbs over 800 feet but the grade is gentle.

Turn north onto Trail #54 and begin dropping down a ridge into Tortolita Canyon. Two trails are shown on the map but the best route is the western trail that follows the ridge.

After descending for about 2.5 miles the trail emerges at the upper end of a large green meadow where Tortolita Spring is situated. A pipe sticks out of the ground and water usually flows out of it at several gallons per minute. Even when the remainder of Tortolita Canyon is mostly dry, this spring continues to flow.

The return hike utilizes Oak Ridge Trail #43 which generally follows the divide back to the head of Tortolita Canyon. This trail is what I refer to as a "ghost trail". It's one of those now you see it now you don't trails. Regardless, you will guarantee yourself not to see any other hikers along it and it generally follows the route shown on the USFS topo map.

No maintenance and very little use make distinguishing this trail from gauruishing a challenge. Some map reading and compass skills will prove useful but not essential to navigate it.

Oak Ridge Trail #43 can be picked up at the head of the green meadow at Tortolita Spring. This trail ascends the canyon rising to the west as shown on the topo map for about 2/3 mile and emerges on the high divide in a saddle between two small peaks. At this point veer south and just stay on the divide. This segment of the hike is by far the most difficult. Not only does it require significant climbing along a marginal trail, but it occurs along the last half of the hike.

Upon intersecting Tortolita Canyon Trail #54 again, just retrace the route back to the trailhead.

As I mentioned earlier, water can be sparse along Tortolita Canyon during dry seasons with the exception of Tortolita Spring. Receptil canteens at the spring prior to the return hike because you will relish it before you get back to the trailhead.

The best camping locations are along the trail in the bottom of Tortolita Canyon with the best spot near the spring. Small flat areas are present on the ridge along Oak Ridge Trail #43 but the lack of water presents a problem.

HORSE RACING

Top races feature plenty of contenders

Today's $10,000 All American Gold Cup race for quarter horses is as wide open as the west Texas prairie. The eighth race should be a delight for fans because any one of the 10 entered has shot of winning the 400-yard sprint for 4-year-olds and up.

Remarkably, trained by Jose Dominguez and ridden by Salvador Estrada Jr., upset several of the starters when he captured the Mr Jet Moore Handicap June 7. Chicks Ryon from the Martin Orona barn, is also coming off an upset victory against a few of the All American Cup participants. Chicks Ryon captured the Higheasterjet May 25 against Remarkably, Secret Cash Runaway, Six Delights, Dean Miracle and Namehimastreake.

Both Dean Miracle and Namehimastreake are eligible for major improvements. Namehimastreake, from the Fred Danley stable, finished a disappointing fifth in the Mr Jet Moore Handicap from the inside post. In his race prior to second, Namehimastreake ran second to Chicks Ryon despite a rocky beginning. With Dean Miracle lacking gate speed in his outings, Namehimastreake should come away with an adequate start.

Streakin On The Moon has proven to be a consistent runner. The 5-year-old has the combination of jockey Christopher Zamora and trainer Jimmy Jones in his corner. Zamora had a stellar riding performance last Sunday, visiting the winners circle on four occasions — the most of any rider this meet. Devine Wind has been rested nicely and has a couple of fast workouts for his return. Trained by Timothy Cross and owned by James Lewter, Devine Wind runs well fresh and contend for the All American Cup.

Power Of Authority, Six Delights and Getting It Gone might be considered long shots in the race. However, after sweeping the Ruidoso Quarter Horse Sales Derby and Futurity a couple of weeks ago, trainer Dwayne Sleepy Gilbreath might have Six Delights ready for the task.

Delas Diamond seeks to defend First Lady Handicap

Johnnie Nall's Delas Diamond will make her first start this summer at Ruidoso Downs in Saturday's $10,000 First Lady Handicap, a six-furlong race for fillies and mares 3-years-old and up.

The 5-year-old New Mexico bred will meet eight others in her attempt to capture the First Lady Handicap for the second year in a row. She won last year's event totting 124 pounds. This time around, Delas Diamond will carry 120 pounds and jockey AJ Martinez.

Assigned the top weight of 122 pounds is Maitlin from the Ramon Gonzalez barn. Maitlin and Delas Diamond met each other on three different occasions at Sunland Park earlier this year with Maitlin taking two of three races.

Others to consider are: Rising Express, Saratoga Six Pack and Charlottes Ego.

Fishing report

Fishable waters
Streams: Ruidoso, Bonito, Hondo, Penasco
Lakes: Alto, Bonito, Lake Mescalero, Grindstone, Eagle Lakes.

Stream flows will be decreasing on a daily basis until the beginning of monsoon season - hopefully sooner than later.

Fly selection for streams:
• Sizes 14 to 18
• Dries - stimulants, elk hair and god-dard caddis, blue winged olive, daves hoppers
• Nymphs - pheasant tails, gold ribbed hairs ears, green rock worms, princes. Lake levels have been stable or dropping slightly since the end of runoff.

Fly selections for lakes:
• Sizes 12 to 22
• Dries - griffiths gnats; black, cream and olive midges; elk hair caddis; adams; mayflies-cream, rust and black.
• Nymphs - large pheasant tails, dark wooly buggers, pistol pates.
Best times - Evenings are a strong favorite for both lakes and streams with early mornings next best. Streams have been productive mid-morning.

Attend festival for the forest health of it

THE WILD SIDE
BY MIKE HYMAN
RUIDOSO NEWS OUTDOOR CORRESPONDENT

Saturday is the annual Lincoln County Forest Festival. This event starts at 8:30 a.m. and continues until 2 p.m. at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

Seven environmental speakers, including local rancher Sid Goodloe and state forester Toby Martinez, will offer their views about forest health. Also on tap are special events for children, chainsaw carving and forest byproduct displays. Two carved bears will be raffled off as well.

Topics on the agenda will range from insect infestation, fire danger, water production, public safety and overall forest management techniques. This is one the most beneficial and enlightening events to take place in the area annually. I consider it a must attend for all property owners, realtors and local politicians.

Forest health is a straight forward approach to answering many of the environmental problems that we face today and will face in the future.

Many of the problems we see in this community can be solved by an active forest management program, but many of the people who can make a difference on these issues have looked at this as just another environmental group sounding off. But in all actuality, this is a proven technique that will increase ground water retention, reduce the annual wildfire threat and insure the presence of a fully functioning ecosystem for generations to come.

Our current forest health problem is the cumulative of 50 years of little or no forest health knowledge. This trend has to be reversed at all costs; and can only be done if everyone has at least a basic knowledge of this principle. It is quite alarming to watch a community like ours, stare at eventual destruction, and yet not take the initiative to change the outcome.

The Lincoln County Forest Festival is open to all. Bring your eyes, ears and an open mind; you'll be glad you did.

TRAIL TALK BY JOHNNY HUGHES

Loop suits those who like the trail less travelled

Oak Ridge Loop

The hike begins by ascending Nogal Canyon Trail #48 for 1.2 miles to the intersection with Tortolita Canyon Trail #54. This segment of trail climbs over 800 feet but the grade is gentle.

Turn north onto Trail #54 and begin dropping down a ridge into Tortolita Canyon. Two trails are shown on the map but the best route is the western trail that follows the ridge.

After descending for about 2.5 miles the trail emerges at the upper end of a large green meadow where Tortolita Spring is situated. A pipe sticks out of the ground and water usually flows out of it at several gallons per minute. Even when the remainder of Tortolita Canyon is mostly dry, this spring continues to flow.

The return hike utilizes Oak Ridge Trail #43 which generally follows the divide back to the head of Tortolita Canyon. This trail is what I refer to as a "ghost trail". It's one of those now you see it now you don't trails. Regardless, you will guarantee yourself not to see any other hikers along it and it generally follows the route shown on the USFS topo map.

No maintenance and very little use make distinguishing this trail from game trails a challenge. Some map reading and compass skills will prove useful but not essential to navigate it.

Oak Ridge Trail #43 can be picked up at the head of the green meadow at Tortolita Spring. This trail ascends the canyon rising to the west as shown on the topo map for about 2 1/2 mile and emerges on the high divide in a saddle between two small peaks. At this point veer south and just stay on the divide. This segment of the hike is by far the most difficult. Not only does it require significant climbing along a marginal trail, but it occurs along the last half of the hike.

Upon intersecting Tortolita Canyon Trail #54 again, just retrace the route back to the trailhead.

As I mentioned earlier, water can be sparse along Tortolita Canyon during dry seasons with the exception of Tortolita Spring. Refill canteens at the spring prior to the return hike because you will relish it before you get back to the trailhead.

The best camping locations are along the trail in the bottom of Tortolita Canyon with the best spot near the spring. Small flat areas are present on the ridge along Oak Ridge Trail #43 but the lack of water presents a problem.

HORSE RACING

Top races feature plenty of contenders

Today's $10,000 All American Gold Cup race for quarter horses is as wide open as the west Texas prairie. The eighth race should be a delight for fans because any one of the 10 entered has shot of winning the 400-yard sprint for 4-year-olds and up.

Remarkably, trained by Jose Dominguez and ridden by Salvador Estrada Jr., upset several of the starters when he captured the Mr Jet Moore Handicap June 7. Chicks Ryon from the Martin Orna barn, is also coming off an upset victory against a few of the All American Cup participants. Chicks Ryon and jockey J.R. Valenzuela captured the Higheaster-jet May 25 against Remarkably, Secret Cash Runaway, Six Delights, Dean Miracle and Namehimastreaker.

Both Dean Miracle and Namehimastreaker are eligible for major improvements. Namehimastreaker, from the Fred Danley stable, finished a disappointing fifth in the Mr Jet Moore Handicap from the inside post. In his race prior to that, Namehimastreaker ran second to Chicks Ryon despite a rocky beginning. With Dean Miracle lacking gate speed in his outings, Namehimastreaker should come away with an adequate start.

Streakin On The Moon has proven to be a consistent runner. The 5-year-old has the combination of jockey Christopher Zamora and trainer Jimmy Jones in his corner. Zamora had a stellar riding performance last Sunday, visiting the winners circle on four occasions - the most of any rider this meet. Devine Wind has been rested nicely and has a couple of fast workouts for his return. Trained by Timothy Cross and owned by James Lewter, Devine Wind runs well fresh and contend for the All American Cup.

Power Of Authority, Six Delights and Getting It Gone might be considered long shots in the race. However, after sweeping the Ruidoso Quarter Horse Sales Derby and Futurity a couple of weeks ago, trainer Dwayne Sleepy Gilbreath might have Six Delights ready for the task.

Delas Diamond seeks to defend First Lady Handicap

Johnnie Nall's Delas Diamond will make her first start this summer at Ruidoso Downs in Saturday's $10,000 First Lady Handicap, a six-furlong race for fillies and mares 3-years-old and up.

The 5-year-old New Mexico bred will meet eight others in her attempt to capture the First Lady Handicap for the second year in a row. She won last year's event totting 124 pounds. This time around, Delas Diamond will carry 120 pounds and jockey AJ Martinez.

Assigned the top weight of 122 pounds is Maitlin from the Ramon Gonzalez barn. Maitlin and Delas Diamond met each other on three different occasions at Sunland Park earlier this year with Maitlin taking two of three races.

Others to consider are: Rising Express, Saratoga Six Pack and Charlottes Ego.

Sudderth store isn't just KIDZ stuff

Cindy Bumgarner's store carries children's clothing and related items

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Though the name of her store makes it seem obvious, Cindy Bumgarner is having trouble getting the word out about KIDZ.

"What a lot of people don't know is that I carry new (clothing), and it's comparable to Wal-Mart. I'm not real high (in price)," said Bumgarner, owner of the 8-month-old children's clothing store at 2807 Sudderth Drive.

Bumgarner opened her shop about eight months ago in the small shopping strip next to the Texas House Cafe.

She sells both used and new clothing for children ranging in age from infants to teens.

Bumgarner, who says she's been in the retail business since the age of 11, also sells many used items including furniture such as bassinets and children's car seats.

"I've always carried used. I started carrying new when I opened this second time around," Bumgarner said.

She closed a previous children's clothing store, Twice for Tots, about three years ago when one of her own children became very sick.

Her new store still has a 25-cent rack of used clothing at the back, but the front window features her lines of new clothing.

After being in the retail business for so long, Bumgarner knows the importance of diversifying, she said.

"I have a little bit of everything," she said of her used stock. "Knick-knacks, baskets ... I've tried to make it so that people who don't have kids still want to come in."

"What kept me going this winter was by selling ski stuff," she said. "So, I will be doing more ski stuff (this coming winter) ... I'm determined to make it."

The decision to go into business for herself was an easy one for Bumgarner.

"I just wanted to get into retail. And I love children," she said.

Thrift store raises money for abortion alternatives

• The money made by King's Treasures funds Seeds of Life, a non-profit organization that provides women alternatives to abortion.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Virginia McCann doesn't work for money.

The volunteer manager of King's Treasures, a thrift store at Gavilan Canyon Road and U.S. Highway 70, took her position because she felt strongly about the cause behind the store.

"The merchandise we get through donations. And all of it (that is sold) goes to support our crisis center and hotline," said McCann, a Cloudford transplant whose only compensation is use of the apartment above the shop.

The crisis center belongs to Seeds of Life, a non-profit organization founded in Alamogordo by Mike and Mary Robinson about 10 years ago, McCann said. The organization provides counseling and assistance to girls and women with unplanned pregnancies — the goal of which is to offer those women alternatives to abortion.

"He was working for UPS ...," McCann said of Robinson. "And God laid it on his heart one-day to start this."

The organization would like to eventually have a King's Treasures thrift store and a corresponding crisis center in cities throughout the state, McCann said. There are two stores now — here and in Alamogordo.

Though King's Treasures has been in Ruidoso for more than a year, the store has only opened for regular hours in recent months, she said.

Previously, volunteers would man the store as their schedules allowed.

Now, the store is open six days a week, McCann said.

Besides running the cash register, she sorts through and arranges the goods brought to the store.

Saturday afternoons are typically busy. That's when people bring in all the unsold items from garage sales, McCann said.

She has three volunteers who help out at the store. "And we will accept any kind of help," McCann added.

She told of a young man who walked in the store one day looking for books.

"There are lots of books, she told him, but no place to display them."

The young man came back later and built two bookcases for her, McCann said, indicating the bookcases along one wall.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Local receives development loan

Michele Lufkin of Ruidoso has been approved for a New Mexico Community Development Loan, which means she also will receive technical assistance with business planning, according to a press release from New World Education, Inc.

The loan fund helps finance companies and community organizations which make an economic and social contribution to their communities and are unable to obtain financing from other institutions.

Loan fund clients should be locally-owned and operated businesses that provide jobs with sustainable wages and opportunities for advancement. For more information call (505) 622-1638.

EYE ON THE ARTS

Allsup's Convenience Stores and Ruidoso State Bank recently made generous donations to the Museum of the Horse. The donations will help with funding for the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium and the current featured show at the museum, "The Cowboy Boot: Soul of the American West," as well as community events throughout the year, said museum director Bruce Eldredge.

THE SPARKLING CLEAN POOL. That's what everyone wants. Growing up none of us associated water and magnets. But magnets keep particles suspended in water so they pass out of the system. That means way cleaner water, no matter where magnets are in your house. (Since this writer got them, I haven't had to clean bathtub ring. And that was amazing.) In the swimming pool it's like a whole new clean place. Try it free in your pool in June. No multi-level funniness. No hype. Just direct from the factory high powered ceramic magnets that quickly attach to your water pipes to make the water that comes out a way better friend to you, your pool and the rest of your house. You owe it to yourself to check this out. In June call for a free installation of clean water by the best magnet source you will find. If after 30 days you don't love it, you owe nothing. Clean, to way cleaner water. Call now to get an appointment. Ask for Jim at Magna-Soft, 1-888-531-3638, or leave a message.

THE ENTERTAINER

by Meredith Keaton
VAMONOS STAFF WRITER

Q&A

The man behind the music of "The Way We Were" and "The Sting" makes his way to Ruidoso to teach local music fans. The "Sweet Smell of Success" musical is also on the agenda. By Meredith Keaton, a Vamomos Staff Writer

Q. What first drew you to music?

A. I guess it was the fact that my father was talented in music and at age 5 I started banging out notes on the piano. It had a lot to do with environment, but I also think there are genes for music in my blood somewhere.

Q. How do you imagine your life had you not started working in music?

A. I don't. It's a profession that has bequeathed itself on me because of the talent I have. It's like a magnet that draws you in.

Q. How would you describe yourself?

A. A type triple A personality who likes to work a lot.

Q. What has been the main influence in your life?

A. My parents, who are from Vienna, and a good family life.

Q. What do you feel is your greatest accomplishment?

A. That I've made contact with people.

Q. What makes a performance a success?

A. If the audience is really liking it and having a great time. If at the end of the performance they're glad they came out to see me.

Q. What advice do you give others on accomplishing their dreams?

A. There are two steps. First, people have to be able to realize that a moment of truth is coming when a big break is ahead of them. Then they have to step up and meet the challenge.

Q. How was it working with so many big names in the music profession at such a young age?

A. It was wonderful because I learned a lot. They're stars for a reason. If you're good at watching and listening it's a great learning platform.

Q. What was it like to win three Oscars in one night for "The Way We Were" and "The Sting"?

A. Wildly exciting, lots of fun, and the next day I went back to work.

Q. What do you hope to do in the future?

A. Exactly what I'm doing now.

Marvin Frederick Hamlisch was born in Manhattan June 2, 1944. He began his career in music at an early age. Hamlisch's career took flight after his acceptance to the Julliard School at age 7. By 18, he had written the hit song, "Sunshine, Lollipops, and Rainbows" which was performed by Lesley Gore.

The list of Hamlisch's accomplishments is extensive. He is the composer of more than 40 motion picture scores, including his Oscar-winning score and song for "The Way We Were" and his adaptation of Scott Joplin's music for "The Sting" for which he received his third Oscar. The following year, in 1975, Hamlisch won four Grammys for Best New Artist, Best Pop Instrumental performance for "The Entertainer," Best Song of the Year and Best Album for "The Way We Were." Each year following brought more awards and recognition.

In 1994, Hamlisch became the Pittsburgh Symphony principal Pops conductor and the Dallas Symphony premiered his symphonic suite "Anatomy of Peace," which was also performed in France commemorating the 50th anniversary of D-Day. Hamlisch has accompanied Barbra Streisand in her tour of the U.S. and England as Musical Director and arranger for which he was awarded two Emmys.

In September, 1999 "Sweet Smell Of Success," a musical written by Hamlisch, will open in Chicago. Hamlisch and his wife, Terre, reside in New York City.

ON TOP OF THE BLUES

photography by Laura Clymer & Meredith Keeton

The sun shined and the wind whipped at the first Mountain of Blues Festival last weekend. The turnout was "great" according to organizer Cheryl Blanchard. More than 3,000 people attended the event. No obvious problems arose during the two day festival, and the crowd seemed thrilled to have the opportunity to hear some great music. It proved to be a hit with lots of promise.

SAMPLE SOME TRADITION

CLASSICAL GUITARIST TOMÁS VIGIL

The Lincoln County Historical Society will present "Traditional Hispanic Music Of New Mexico," featuring the local talents of Tomás Vigil and Patty Brimberry at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the Museum of the Horse. Admission is free to the public.

Vigil, a native New Mexican, began playing guitar at age 12 and later, while in high school began playing classical guitar. From 1976 to 1980 he studied music education at the University of New Mexico concentrating on classical guitar under the famous Cuban guitarist Hector Garcia.

Vigil has participated in several masters classes including one held in 1979 with Hector Garcia and Mario Abril at the University of New Mexico, and also in 1990 in Lerida, Spain.

Vigil has taught guitar privately and at U.N.M. and had performed in concerts in Spain including Almacelles, Lerida and the famed Montserrat Monastery Church.

Vigil has also taught Mariachi music at the University of New Mexico and ENMU Ruidoso. Recently, Vigil released a CD titled "Tomás Vigil Classical Guitar". Music from the CD has been included in the Spanish for Business Professionals, an interactive multimedia tutorial in Spanish for international business professionals. Vigil also arranged and performed music for the film "The Outfitters," starring Dana Delaney and written, directed and produced by Revere Anselmo.

Brimberry, also of Ruidoso, has played violin for more than 30 years and has a master's degree in music in violin performance from Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff. She opened the Dancing Bear Music Studio in 1997 and teaches violin and piano lessons.

Musical premiere lands for Roswell's UFO festival

The premiere of "Roswell, the Musical," is scheduled to highlight Roswell's July UFO Encounter '98 festival. The musical production, written by Gene Murray, is produced by Roswell Community Little Theatre, with Reece Blake and Vonnice Gross serving as co-directors.

The musical light heartedly reviews the UFO events of the area in 1947. It takes a good-natured poke at officials in such hilarious musical numbers as, "Trust Your Government, We'll Never Lie To You!" and "Cover Up." In addition, the play incorporates a bit of romance and includes several sentimental songs.

In the leading roles are local vocalists Brad and Brandy Bullock, formerly of Artesia.

Five performances are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. July 2 and 3 and a final show at 2 p.m. on July 4 at RCLT, located at 12th and Virginia Streets. Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for full-time students. They may be purchased at the Roswell Civic Center or ordered using credit card number by phoning 1-888-ROSWELL.

Cool Caribbean sounds highlight next jazz concert

Let the sounds of Tucson's Steel Jam transport you and your friends to the Caribbean with their calypso, reggae and samba music at the second Tailgate V Jazz concert series, 8:30 p.m. Sunday at the upper parking lot of the Space Center, Alamogordo.

Steel Jam is a steel drum band that plays music ranging from Harry Belafonte to Miles Davis to Bob Marley.

Tickets are $18 per carload and are available at the gate. Call 437-2202 for more information.

LYNCHON HERITAGE
TRUST HISTORIAN

THE BANDITS WERE BEATEN
AND THEY KNEW IT. BOTH BOB YOUNGER AND JESSE JAMES RUSHED FROM THE BANK, LEAV-ING ONLY FRANK JAMES INSIDE.
FRUSTRATED, FRANK — WHO WAS ALWAYS CONSIDERED TO BE THE MORE DANGEROUS OF THE
JAMES BOYS — TURNED, AND
PLACING HIS PISTOL TO THE HEAD OF THE COURAGEOUS TELLER
HEYWOOD, PULLED THE TRIGGER.

For more than a decade they held the nation spellbound. Countless books and films have been made about their exploits. And yet, their motivations are still obscure. Their detractors claim that they were ruthless, cold-blooded killers. Men who would kill at the drop of a hat and for just a few dollars. Their supporters say that they were victims of circumstance, that their lives were shaped by the Civil War that exploded all around them and that if it were not for that war, they would have all been upstanding citizens. That, of course, is strictly conjecture.

The fact is that neither their supporters or their detractors are correct. They were not always ruthless, cold-blooded killers, but sometimes it is hard to argue the fact that they did some cold-blooded and ruthless things. On the other hand, there were many occasions where they acted honorably, even nobly. Cole Younger may be the only outlaw in the history of the Old West to gain the respect of townspeople that he was robbing at the time that he was robbing them.

At the time that the citizens of Northfield, Minnesota were doing their best to kill him, Cole Younger performed an act of such notable bravery that even his enemies took note. He was the last of the Northfield raiders to gallop out of town that September day, and he left the citizens of Northfield mightily impressed with his bravery. More about that later.

Prelude

Throughout its career, the James/Younger gang had stuck pretty much to their home territory: Missouri, Iowa, Kentucky — the Midwest. They had never been far from this area, but in 1876 Jesse got the idea to rob a fat Yankee bank way up in Minnesota.

Bad idea.

The gang, now including not only Frank and Jesse James, Cole, Jim and Bob Younger, but also Charlie Pitts, Bill Chadwell and Clell Miller, rode into Northfield, Minnesota on September 7, 1876.

It had been decided that Bob Younger and Jesse James would be the ones to enter the bank, but at the last minute Frank James offered to accompany them. It was an addition that was destined to have fatal consequences for at least one bank employee. The other bandits, as always, would stay out in the road, firing their pistols and yelling to keep the locals off of the streets.

At approximately 2 p.m., the three bandits entered the First National Bank of Northfield. The other outlaws had stayed a distance behind the first three so as to not arouse too much suspicion with a large group of men. The end of an era was at hand.

When Cole, Jim, Pitts, Chadwell and Miller got to the bank, they noticed that the front door had been left ajar by Bob and the James boys. Dismounting and pretending to adjust the girth on his saddle, Cole instructed Clell Miller to go over and close the door. Miller had no sooner accomplished this task, however, when a local hardware merchant approached the bank with the innocent intent of entering it. When Miller blocked his way, the merchant put two and two together and raced around the corner shouting, "Get your guns, they're robbing the bank!"

Northfield

Almost immediately, the hitherto quiet street erupted in gunfire. Hardware stores began handing out weapons to anyone who wanted them. The bloodbath had begun.

Clell Miller and Cole remounted their horses immediately and, joined by Jim, Pitts, and Chadwell, began galloping up and down the street, yelling and firing their pistols. It was a tactic that had never failed them, but there's a first time for everything.

Despite the sound of many guns from the street, the three bandits in the bank did not rush. Even when their compatriots in the street began to shout that they were beaten and that it was time to go, the three still dawdled in the bank, apparently unwilling to leave without any loot after having come so far.

When Frank James stepped up to the vault to inspect it, cashier Joseph Heywood attempted to push him in and close the door behind him. Bob Younger leapt forward and seizing Heywood, threw him to the floor. At the same time, Jesse rushed up to the fallen man and put a knife to his throat. "Open the safe or I'll cut your damn throat from ear to ear" he announced. Whether or not Jesse, who was never particularly bloodthirsty, meant this threat is a moot point. Heywood had only moments to live anyway.

While the bandits' attention was occupied with Heywood, one of the other employees, a man named Bunker, made a break for the back door.

Bob Younger snapped a shot in his direction which took effect in Bunker's shoulder. Far from debilitating the man, the bullet seemed to give him extra strength. Bunker picked up speed, crashed through a closed door and disappeared around the corner. He survived.

By now, there was a veritable battle occurring in the street. Cole Younger, still galloping up and down the road, shouted at an immigrant named Nicholas Gustavson to get off the street. Gustavson, it turned out, did not speak English and was completely confused by all the commotion. Cole is frequently "credited" with the death of Gustavson, but that is primarily because Younger was seen shouting at the man. In actual point of fact, there were so many bullets flying around the street that day that Gustavson may actually have been hit by a bullet fired by a citizen. No one will ever know.

The bandits were beaten and they knew it. Both Bob Younger and Jesse James rushed from the bank, leaving only Frank James inside. Frustrated, Frank — who was always considered to be the more dangerous of the James Boys — turned, and placing his pistol to the head of the courageous teller Heywood, pulled the trigger. It was the only cold-blooded murder of the entire debacle in Northfield.

JESSE JAMES

The Escape

Out in the street the bank robbery had become a disaster for the bandits. Bill Chadwell had been shot from the saddle and lay dead in the street. Clell Miller had also been shot from his horse. Cole Younger galloped up, dismounted and checking to make sure that Miller was in fact, dead, pulled off Clell's gunbelt and remounted his own horse.

However, as the gang attempted to gallop out of town, Cole heard his little brother Bob calling for help. Bob had been seriously wounded and was pinned down by fire from the irate citizens. Cole, ignoring his numerous wounds (he was shot an almost unbelievable 11 times at Northfield) galloped up the street and picked up his little brother. Swinging onto the back of Cole's horse, Bob held on for dear life as he and his brother clattered across the Cannon River Bridge and out of Northfield — the last of the outlaws to escape. The entire gunbattle had taken eight minutes.

But the outlaws' escape was only temporary.

For the next two weeks the outlaws played a deadly game of cat-and-mouse through the Minnesota countryside with the authorities never far behind. During that period, the gang split up, with Jesse and Frank going one way and the rest of the gang the other. Jesse had thought that the authorities would follow he and Frank, the only two bandits that were not wounded, and that they might be able to keep the posses busy long enough for the others to escape. Unfortunately, not everyone in pursuit fell for this ruse and it was only a matter of time before the Youngers and Pitts were cornered at a place called Hanska Slough.

"Let's get it done"

Just before that final gunbattle began, Charlie Pitts, realizing the hopelessness of their situation — they were completely surrounded — turned to Cole Younger and said, "Captain, I can die as game as you can. Let's get it done."

Pitts' statement was prophetic. When the gunsmoke finally cleared, Pitts lay dead in the mud. The Youngers, while still alive, didn't fare much better. Cole and Jim were both down with multiple wounds. Bob, while himself badly wounded, was still on his feet. When he attempted to surrender, one of the possemen shot him. The young outlaw (he was only 18) was completely astonished. "I was surrendering," he called out weakly. "Someone shot me while I was trying to surrender." The sheriff, a decent man named Glispin, announced that he would shoot the next man that attempted to fire on the prisoners. No one did. It was over. The James/Younger gang had finally been stopped.

Loyalty

The Youngers were all sentenced to 25 years in Stillwater Prison. Despite repeated offerings of leniency if they would name the other outlaws — the two that had escaped — they never would turn traitor.

Bob, the youngest Younger, never got out of prison alive. While in Stillwater, Bob contracted tuberculosis and died in prison on September 16, 1889.

On July 18, 1901, Cole and Jim Younger left Stillwater Prison as parolees. A condition of their paroles was that neither man ever return to Missouri. This was hard on both men, but particularly on Jim, who was given to fits of melancholy.

The fact of never being able to return to his home state, coupled with a failed love affair, proved to be too much for Jim Younger. On October 19, 1902, Jim shot himself, ending his pain.

Cole, the last of the Younger brothers, lived on. He was involved in various business deals, the most notable being as a lecturer and as a showman. Cole and old friend Frank James ran a Wild West show for a time that was less than successful.

Cole's lectures must have been something to hear, though. His loyalty to the men he rode with back in those days of blood and thunder was quite remarkable. Right up until his death at the age of 72 on March 21, 1916, Cole stated repeatedly, both in print and orally, that he had never met Jesse James.

WE'VE GOT ONE THING TO SAY TO ABC'S 20/20: THANK YOU!

On May 11th ABC's "20/20," one of the country's most respected news magazines, reported on the results of an investigation that showed that over 50% of glasses made in American today were made wrong.

Filling prescriptions properly and making lenses is a science, yet maximum profits for large national chains and eyewear retailers is often gained by hiring untrained personnel on the cheap. That's being really short-sighted.

This is not to say that small, personalized optical services like Lincoln County Eye Clinic is mistake-free, but we do have an edge towards perfection.

As 20/20 noted...the public's first line of protection is to demand that your next pair of glasses is fitted by and made by an expert certified by the American Board of Opticianry (ABO), or the American Optometric Association...a licensed optician.

"ARE YOU CERTIFIED?" is the first thing you should ask the person fitting your next pair of glasses ABC reported.

'YES, I AM CERTIFIED.'

Wendy Black is believed to be the only Board Certified member of the American Board of Opticianry (ABO) practicing full time in Lincoln County today. She is a veteran with 12 years of dispensing and lab experience. She is also a member of the National Academy of Opticianry.

A cleverly hidden waste area is convenient.

SINK FRONT TRAYS

Store cleaning items right where you need them most in a stainless steel compartment below the sink.

PANTRY

Swing-out shelves make items stranded at the back of ordinary cabinets a thing of the past.
