Convenience store robbery ends in murder

Employees deal with loss and a 'ghoulish' public

BY TONI K. LAXSON

Donna Brazeal says she normally tries to greet customers who walk into the Allsup's store she manages at Mechem and Sudderth drives.

Since the brutal stabbing death of John Deibler Saturday morning at the Allsup's on Highway 70, she and her employees are even more aware of who is opening the door.

"I wouldn't say they are scared — just jumpy," Brazeal said.

The impact of the crime has affected other Allsup's employees as well as many members of this typically peaceful tourism community.

Bert Brunnell, who manages the midtown clothing store Brunnell's, said the crime, when he heard about it, shocked him.

"And I feel let down that this sort of crime has come to Ruidoso," Brunnell said. "It's just a crying shame that it happens anywhere. I think it will affect a lot of people."

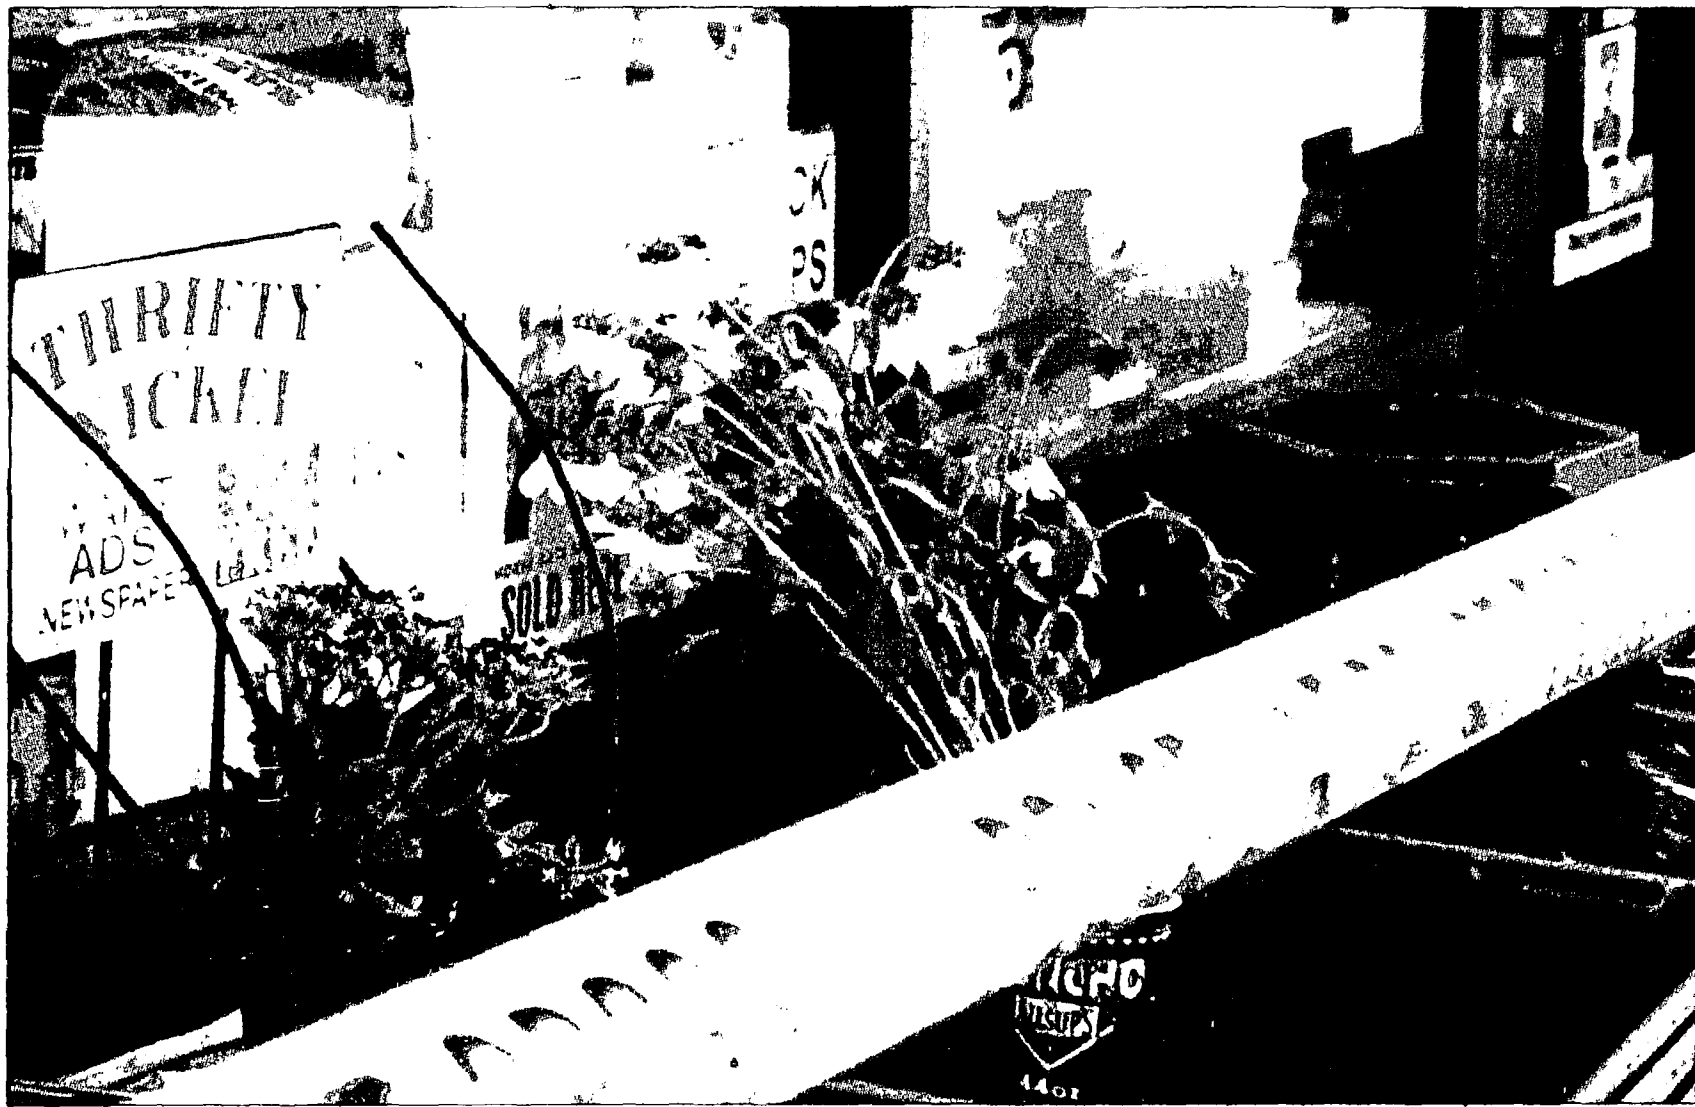

"I moved here from L.A.," said Bonnie Cunningham, a co-worker of Deibler's. "I thought, 'I could go to LA for this.'"

Cunningham, speaking Saturday afternoon from the store's doorway behind a barrier of yellow police tape, wondered about the incident and what may have happened if the store hadn't been short-handed and the work schedules switched.

"I would have been working last night if we hadn't been short-handed," Cunningham said.

Kim Bradd worked the graveyard shift the night of the murder at the Mechem and Sudderth store. She also worked the night after Deibler was killed. The only difference between one night and the next was that the manager from the store at the 'Y' called every few hours to check on her, Bradd said.

Flowers were placed at the doors of the Allsup's Store on Highway 70 Saturday morning to remember John Deibler, a clerk who was murdered there at about 3 a.m. that day. Police are looking for two suspects believed to have committed the crime.

Graveyard was 'the only shift he wanted'

John Deibler preferred working the graveyard shift, a former coworker said.

John Deibler

"That's the only shift he wanted. He didn't like working days, he didn't like working 4 to 12," said Deborah O'Reilly, manager at the Allsup's store where Deibler worked for several years. "I even tried to make him assistant manager one time and he didn't want that, he wanted to keep working graveyards," O'Reilly said.

Deibler, a 48-year-old Arizona transplant, was repeatedly stabbed by robbers earlier Saturday morning while working the graveyard shift at the Allsup's convenience store near U.S. Highway 70 and Sudderth Drive.

When he died, Deibler became Ruidoso's first casualty of a crime associated more with inner city brutality than Ruidoso's peaceful, tourism community.

The divorced father of two boys in their early teens, Deibler lived alone at the Ruidoso Downs Motel. He was a private man and didn't associate with co-workers much outside of work, O'Reilly said. His best friend was Dave Jones, a retired man who lived next door and whom he would take shopping once a week, she said.

Deibler was known by coworkers and people in the community as an affable man, with a sometimes "off-color" sense of humor and a generous

Suspects may have recently moved to area

Police are looking for two suspects who are believed to be involved in the stabbing death of an Allsup's Convenience Store clerk at 127 Highway 70 West in Ruidoso early Saturday morning.

Suspect No. 1

Police arrived at the store after receiving a call about suspicious activity and found Deibler in the men's restroom in a pool of blood, dead from multiple stab wounds on the front and back of his upper torso.

Witnesses described one suspect as a male Hispanic of medium build, in his thirties, about 5 feet 9 inches, 196 pounds, with short black hair (above the ears), and a mole on the lower part of the right cheek; and the other suspect as a white female in her late twenties, 5 feet 4 inches, 115 pounds, with medium-length brown hair.

Both were wearing blue jeans. The vehicle driven by the suspects was described as mid-size with round headlights, according to Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox.

"We got notification from a customer who witnessed people exiting the store," he said. "The witness outside the store at 3:25 a.m. saw people exiting the store in a furtive manner ... carrying out cases of beer." The witness then drove to Allsup's on Mechem

Man killed in accident at school

Tularosa plumber dies when ditch bank collapses on top of him

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF

A construction worker was killed when a sewer ditch collapsed around him at around 9 a.m. Tuesday at the White Mountain Elementary School.

Alex Joseph Romero, 24, of Tularosa, died in the emergency room of Lincoln County Medical Center at 10:10 a.m., according to emergency room personnel.

Romero was a member of a construction crew from Lane Plumbing of Alamogordo, a sub contractor working on a Ruidoso Municipal Schools project that included laying sewer pipe.

Mike Gladden, superintendent of Ruidoso Municipal Schools, said Romero apparently went into an 8- to 10-foot ditch and the earth collapsed around him.

"I don't know this for sure, but from what I heard, he was covered for 15 to 20 minutes before they were able to get him out," Gladden said.

Rescue workers from the Ruidoso Fire Department, the Ruidoso Police Department and New Mexico State Police arrived at the scene, extracted Romero from the ditch, and transported him to Lincoln County Medical Center.

The superintendent said that counselors were brought in immediately in case any of the students had seen the incident and needed help.

Gladden said none of the children seemed affected by it but some of the staff were shaken up.

He said Ubaldo Skinner, a counselor, was shaken up after attempting to help unearth Romero.

"I just want the parents to know that at no time were the children in any danger," Gladden said.

He said that during construction, he has been meeting with architects, contractors and others involved in ongoing projects to see what work is being done and safety precautions that will be taken during the construction.

To keep parents informed of the incident, the school sent letters home with the children explaining what had happened Tuesday.

"I know that you join me in expressing sorrow to the family of the workman," the letter, which was signed by Frank Cannella, principal of White Mountain Elementary School, stated.

State leaves fate of DWI program in hands of county and Ruidoso

BY DIANNE STALLINGS AND TONI LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITERS

State officials who oversee Lincoln County's DWI program say it's up to the county and the village of Ruidoso to decide if the village should take over management.

The Ruidoso Village Council will look at the issue during its 6:30 p.m. meeting Sept. 8 in village hall.

County Commissioners decided in a special session last month to end their involvement with the $117,000 grant and ask the village to take over the responsibility.

"As we told both, it's really a local government decision," said Nick Mandell, who supervises the grant for the local government division of the state Department of Finance and Administration. "If the city agrees, it will sign a memorandum of agreement with the county to serve as the fiscal agent. The county technically still is the administrative body and has the responsibility to provide the service. That kind of situation is not unique to Lincoln County. There are several others in the state that have decided a municipality can perform the job better."

"Once we are approached by the (state) people, the odds are...we may very well find value in the program and pick up it," said Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson. "But until we see what the program is and what it does...I mean, I can't make that commitment (It's a council decision)."

STARDATE

On Sept. 6 there will be a Full Moon, called the Fruit Moon. During most years, the full Moon of September is also known as the Harvest Moon, since it is the full Moon nearest the autumnal equinox. This year, however, the full Moon of October is closer to the equinox, so it will be the Harvest Moon.

willingness to lend a hand, she and others said.

"John was a good guy. Everybody liked him — good personality," said Donna Brazeal, the manager of the Allsup's store at Mechem and Sudderth drives. "John was just one of those people who you could not help but like."

Since the murder, Allsup's employees have pulled together "like family," Brazeal said. Employees have started a collection for Deibler's family to help pay for the funeral expenses, she said. Collection cans are now at all the Allsup's stores, and almost $200 had been collected from just one store by Monday, she said.

Deibler had worked for Allsup's for several years in Ruidoso. He recently worked briefly at Family Dollar, then returned to Allsup's about two weeks ago, co-workers said.

O'Reilly said Deibler basically lived for his job. Jones echoed her comment by saying Deibler's work and customers meant a lot to him.

"Taking care of customers — that's what he was proud of. One of them came up here to give his condolences," Jones said.

Deibler collected rare coins and dollar bills and he loved to scan the grocery ads on Wednesdays for bargains and would become excited when spotting one, O'Reilly said.

"I would say, 'John, you are worse than my mother,'" O'Reilly recalled.

O'Reilly described Deibler as a "feisty little man," who was protective of the people he worked with. She recalled a time when she was covering an extra shift because an employee didn't show up for work. Deibler came in and told her to go home and sleep, O'Reilly said.

Wilton Howell, a Lincoln County commissioner and a local business owner, said he often talked with Deibler, who had worked at the convenience store across the street from Howell's business, One-Stop Auto and Garden Center.

Howell said he stopped in the store the night before Deibler's murder. While there, he asked Deibler whether he had any concerns about working graveyard hours.

"He said he liked to work the late shift," Howell said. "He said 'It don't bother me, nobody is going to mess with me.'"

IMPACT: The loss suffered by workers has been intensified by the curious

Otherwise, it was and has been pretty much business as usual, she said.

"It has to be, there's too much work to do," Bradd said.

Like the other Allsup's stores in town, there is no security camera where they work.

Employees wear alarms, called personal alarm lockets, on strings around their necks. When the alarms are activated, a signal goes to an alarm company working for Allsup's. Within a few minutes, police are notified, Brazeal said.

Once, when an alarm was accidentally set off, Ruidoso police arrived at Brazeal's store within two minutes, she said. "And they come in with their guns drawn," she added.

Despite constant requests from customers for information about the robbery and stabbing, Brazeal said she and other employees "don't know what happened. We weren't officially told."

She and other coworkers say the trauma of losing Deibler has only been intensified by macabre community interest in the details of his death.

"They want to know what happened and how it happened. A lot of people are really ghoulish ...," Brazeal said.

Deborah O'Reilly, manager at the Allsup's store on Mechem Drive, unknowingly used the same term to describe the curiosity seekers who have been questioning employees since the murder.

"They are so ghoulish," O'Reilly said, referring to both regular customers and tourists who grill her for information. "Come on, he just died. Let us get over our mourning before you have to get down to the details."

Much of what is being discussed in the community is erroneous information — such as Deibler being gutted by his attackers, that his throat had been slit or that there was another body found in the dumpster outside the store.

According to Ruidoso police, none of that information is true.

It was, however, a cold-blooded murder, said Leo Martinez, owner of the Chileo's restaurant next door to the Allsup's.

"One of the officers told me that in his 22 years of his working here that this is the first time this has happened in an Allsup's store. It was bound to happen, it was just a matter of time," Martinez said.

CRIME: Law enforcement agencies are following leads Drive and called the police, he said.

Maddox said that the two suspects may have moved to the area recently.

"The are most probably local, but they haven't been here that long," Maddox said.

A major crime unit consisting of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Ruidoso Police Department, the New Mexico State Police and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office is following up several leads and interviewing possible witnesses.

Deibler's autopsy was completed Monday, said Tim Stepetic, director of the New Mexico Office of the Medical Investigator.

An official autopsy report should be available in about three weeks, he said.

Deibler did not activate the silent alarm button at the counter or the personal alarm locket, said Rich Guffey, director of loss prevention for Allsup's at headquarters in Clovis.

Guffey said Allsup's would not be changing security measures because they already have strict procedures about robbery, and they train employees to cooperate fully with any assailants. "Our attitude is, you're to give them all the money and ask if they want a burrito to go with it."

Lori Hight, manager of the Allsup's where Deibler was employed, confirmed that he was not wearing his personal alarm locket.

"I'm making it a rule that everyone on all shifts has to wear it," she said.

Crimestoppers is offering a $1,000 cash reward for information leading to the grand jury indictment or magistrate court bindover of the perpetrators. The phone line (257-4545) is operated 24 hours a day and callers need not identify themselves.

Officers take plunge

New Mexico State Police Officer Sam Houston was airborne for a few minutes Friday, but the trip wasn't for pleasure.

Houston apparently hit a water puddle about 11:27 a.m. Friday while patrolling with new officer Paul Bryan on U.S. 380 near Indian Divide between the villages of Capitan and Carrizozo.

According to a report filed by Officer Robert Eshom, the patrol car began to hydroplane. Houston fought for control, but lost it again and went over the edge of the road and down a 40-foot to 50-foot embankment before the vehicle hit a tree.

Neither man was injured. Both were wearing seat belts and air bags did deploy, Eshom reported.

DWI: Magistrate's criticism of county management brought the commission's decisive vote

If the village does take over the program, it will do a good job of managing it, he said. Mandell said the state is not involved in the transfer. If the council approves, the program will go to the village.

Ruidoso Magistrate Judge William Butts' criticism of the county's management of the DWI program prompted the commission vote. Butts has been outspoken about "politics" being involved in the hiring of former state legislator Rick Kloeppel, who has no background in law and court procedures, to head the DWI program a few months ago. Kloeppel, in turn, hired Johnny Montes, the brother of Commissioner Monroy Montes. He also has no background in the field.

Monroy Montes has contended Butts reacted negatively, because they have clashed in the past. Butts claims it's a matter of qualifications, pointing to the coordinator for Bernalillo County, who has a degree in counseling.

Rick Kloeppel says he and Johnny Montes never were given a chance to show if they could do the job. They were willing to learn, he says. He's questioning the legality of the county's decision to drop the grant and his position.

Mandell said the state views the action as proper.

"The two were hired as contractual workers to perform a responsibility," he said Tuesday. That responsibility ended when the county voted to drop the program, Mandell said.

Kloeppel was hired when commissioners decided to open the coordinator's position for applications after former coordinator Charlie White ran into problems with payroll. White, who helped develop the DWI program and ran it since its inception, and his assistant were paid too much money. The salary portion of the grant ran out with two months left in the fiscal year.

They offered to work for two months without pay to equal out the money paid and to keep the program going.

White said he noticed a problem with the grant money and attempted unsuccessfully on several occasions to straighten it out with county finance officials. He pointed to a report submitted to commissioners in the first quarter of the year where he noted problems with financial reconciliation. White, former Carrizozo police chief, applied to be rehired and was among four finalists, but was not selected by acting county manager Martha Guevara.

When Butts criticized the hiring of Kloeppel and Johnny Montes, he also indicated Ruidoso Municipal Judge Mike Line shared his view. But Line said Tuesday he was not dissatisfied with the DWI program.

His lack of use of the program under White's administration was based more on convenience, not dissatisfaction, Line said. He probably would use the program more if the village was in charge, because it may be housed in the same court/police complex as his office, Line said.

"We only made three or four referrals (to White), because what we ran into was - we only handle 70 DWI cases a year - not even a tenth of what Judge Butts handles," Line said. "Because of that, we have a lot more time in municipal court to deal with people, my clerk and I. We have the time to be more personally involved with people. For sheer convenience on our part, we determined we would handle them personally. It wasn't anything Charlie White did or anything I felt lacking in his program."

Line said he wasn't involved in the change over and has never met Kloeppel or Johnny Montes.

"They may be qualified. I don't know," he said. "What I told Judge Butts was that we really didn't use the program simply because it wasn't convenient."

"Judge Butts deals with (the DWI program) a lot more than I do. I'm not saying he's wrong. I told him as a practical matter we probably would use the program more if the office was here instead of in Carrizozo or an off-site building somewhere. It wasn't anything to do with personalities, quality of service or the abilities of anybody involved."

Arabela fire force to go it alone

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Residents of Arabela who wanted to break off from the Hondo Valley Volunteer Fire Department and start their own organization will get that chance.

The Lincoln County Commission decided last week to send back $10,091 to the State Fire Marshal's office, because the county doesn't own the land on which the Arabela substation was built.

"We talked to a representative of the volunteers in Arabela and they want to start their own district," Commissioner Monroy Montes said. "The owners (of the substation land) felt Hondo hadn't lived up to their end (by placing enough equipment at the substation quickly enough), but that wasn't true. It was a matter of time and money."

Property owner Fernando Montoya told commissioners he would only sign over the deed if Arabela residents were allowed to pursue their own fire district for the isolated community about 15 miles north of U.S. 50 and the settlement of Tinnie, Montes said.

"They wanted to keep the equipment, but it isn't theirs," Montes said. "We decided to sever the relationship and send back the money."

In a letter to State Fire Marshal George Chavez dated Aug. 13, acting county manager Martha Guevara wrote that commissioners will work with the Arabela volunteers in seeking approval of a new district.

"The Hondo Valley fire Department has already picked up all of their equipment from Arabela and it is now located back at the Hondo Fire Station (in Tinnie on U.S. 70)," Guevara wrote.

Although Donald Kotowski, who heads the separation move, had hoped to be able to hold onto some of the equipment at the substation, he's glad commissioners decided to allow Arabela to seek its own district.

Kotowski said. Commission Chairman L. Ray Nunley will enter a proclamation at the September commission meeting stating Arabela is going to be an independent district.

Woman's Club season to open with drama Sept. 9

Visitors are welcome to attend; a membership tea and business meeting will follow the presentation.

This is the 66th year the Ruidoso Federated Woman's Club has been in volunteer service for the community. It establishing the first library and the first Women's Chamber of Commerce in the 1930s, the only one of its kind in the United States.

Capitan may try once again to get lower well drilling bid

Capitan trustees may go out for bid again on a contract to drill a supplemental well for the village as part of a water systems improvement project.

Two bids opened during a special meeting last week exceeded a $115,900 estimate put together by city employees and a consulting engineer. The low bid came from H.D. Huey of Alto for $166,988. The high bid was submitted by Beylik Drilling of Rio Rancho for $172,500.

Although the village has enough money for the well, trustees thought some items should to be discussed with the engineer at a special meeting late Tuesday, said Village Clerk Deborah Cummins.

Trustees then can decide if they want to accept the low bid or reject both and rebid the project.

The board approved a bid for Smythco Co. to install 15 fire hydrants throughout the village for $47,420 as part of a Community Development Block Grant project.

OUR OPINION

Night and murder in Ruidoso

It's such a common story, murder in a convenience store in the wee hours of the morning. Such happenings have become the stock in trade of big-city television newscasts and of Hollywood script writers.

But it is not common in Ruidoso.

Not in this exquisite mountain community where people come for a few hours or a few days to relax and rid themselves of the stress and pressure of those big cities where violent death is an everyday event.

John Deibler was keeping the Allsup's store on Highway 70 in Ruidoso in the pre-dawn hours last Saturday. And there the 48-year-old man was stabbed more than a dozen times and left dead in a pool of his own blood in the men's room.

The killer or killers, after taking a life, took $478 in cash and four cases of beer and left the scene in a car described as "medium" with round headlights.

A widespread search is on for two suspects — a male Hispanic of medium build, in his 30s, about 5 feet 9 inches, 196 pounds, with hair cut above the ears and a mole on the lower part of the right cheek; and a white female in her late 20s, 5 feet 4 inches, 115 pounds, with medium-length brown hair.

Somebody nearby saw two people carrying cases of beer out of the store and became suspicious enough to call the police, and provide a description.

And so, the bare bones, sordid outline of a murder for little gain on a weekend night in Ruidoso.

A few other things are known.

Deibler did not activate the silent alarm button at the counter; he wasn't wearing the personal alarm racket all store employees are asked to wear.

Beyond that, details must come from intensive investigation by a crime unit of Ruidoso police, sheriff's officers and State Police.

Crimestoppers is offering a $1,000 cash reward, no questions asked, for information leading to the indictment or magistrate court bindover of those who committed this murder and robbery. The phone number is 257-4545.

Meanwhile, somewhere out there, a man and a woman who took a life are running for their own lives, whether they believe it or not.

Before long they will be afraid of their own shadows, and of each other, and the realization of their deeds will begin to haunt them.

And they will come to remember Ruidoso, not as a joyful vacation spot, but as the beginning of the end, the place where their own lives became worthless.

YOUR OPINION

An open letter to area citizens

We at Allsup's Convenience Stores would like to express our thanks to you for your support and understanding during our time of grief in the loss of our friend and colleague, John Deibler.

Fortunately, tragic and senseless events such as this are quite rare, especially in our area. We wish to extend our special gratitude to all area law enforcement agencies for their special support and their unending efforts to bring criminals to justice. Please help them, in any way you can, to locate the two individuals now being sought. (A very special thanks to the good citizen who first reported a problem and was able to give descriptions of suspects.)

John was a special man, loved by many in the community and valued by all of us at Allsup's. This time is very difficult for all of us and we wish to ask your cooperation in easing our pain somewhat by not asking us too many questions regarding our loss. We have few answers and will not share any information that might impair any efforts of the police. Again, we appreciate any efforts you may make to help law enforcement do its job, including not spreading rumors that are often harmful.

We are in touch with the (victim's) family and all Ruidoso stores would be happy to accept donations for them. The family knows how much John enjoyed his association with Allsup's and how much we enjoyed them.

Thank you, again, for your continuing support and understanding.

One logical site

Regarding the proposed County Detention Center and court expansion, I offer the following: In the past I have been heavily involved with political issues relating to demographics and governmental fiscal policies. Applying my past experience to our present political dilemma, it appears to me that based on economics there should be no doubt as to location. The town of Carrizozo has offered land with major capital improvements present, such as paved streets, water and sewer, etc.

Further, because of Carrizozo's location relative to Highway 54 and Otero County, any further cooperative endeavors between counties would be enhanced.

Our county seat, Carrizozo, is the only logical site for the expansion. (An) expeditious decision in this direction will avert protracted citizen action and anxiety, and save the taxpayers untold sums of money.

'Party organ'

To the editor:
 The Republican fraction of Lincoln County, it seems to me, must have become awfully worried lately. Because one must wonder why the Ruidoso News uses the same dirty tricks that became so prevalent during the Nixon administration: "Baca volunteer charged with possession of marijuana."

When a friend of mine gets a traffic ticket, that does not mean that I got one and I cannot be blamed that he violated the law. Should I do something that is against the law, morally or whatever, that does not mean that all those who have associated with me are equally responsible for the fact that they have liked me, been my friends.

It needed really a somewhat mean-spirited party-political mind to write the above headline! Needless to say, Shirley Baca had nothing to do with the whole matter.

I am sorry to see that the former independence of the Ruidoso News is now downgraded to a Republican party organ.

GUEST COMMENTARY

Questions about solid waste and Wal-Mart

BY J. A. "AL" JUNCE
 F. & O. E. / RUIDOSO RESIDENT

The village Mayor in his opinion letter of 8-7-98 did a thorough job in detailing why the points made in my comments of Aug. 5 ... were somewhat out of line with reality. His staff, in two days, accomplished what my staff (me and a 40-year-old Underwood typewriter) will take many days to research what I consider as facts — not conjecture and irrational conclusions.

As Jack Webb used to say in his radio show, "Dragnet," many years ago — "Facts, ma'am, just the facts."

My comments, to date, are related to actions taken by the Mayor which seem to restrict local citizens from a voice in the Village government.

As a former councilman (now called a councilor) my two ventures on the council were most interesting and productive. Many objectives, including the construction of the Grindstone Dam and a profitable solid waste collection system. We were fortunate to have a strong council. The Mayor led but did not control the actions taken by the council. We worked well together.

During that time I was the only elected official to receive the Ruidoso "Key to the City," which I have always treasured as proof that our council did something right.

As we look back, facts begin to emerge. Had our former Mayor, Jerry Shaw, not assumed a personal responsibility to retain the Wal-Mart operation and pressed the council along with local businessmen for help in her endeavor, the Wal-Mart move might have been stopped. The move to Ruidoso Downs by Wal-Mart, in itself, was the loss of one operation, but, in doing so, other stores have been attracted...to build in the same location. Future sales tax losses to Ruidoso will be enormous. Concerted effort by a lot of people in Ruidoso would have averted this big mistake.

Now, about solid waste (trash) collections. The subject of solid waste collection has become an enigma for the citizens of Ruidoso.

Questions concerning the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority operation over many months have been unanswered.

On 5-20-98 the Ruidoso News published an article "Answers needed in Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority divorce" in which I asked a host of questions about the county operation, including the plans for Ruidoso to break away from the authority. Apparently there was little interest, including the Ruidoso News, in learning the facts concerning Ruidoso's problems and the need to leave the association. Had the operation been conducted as a business instead of a governmental agency, many of those in control would have vanished in short order.

Perhaps our Mayor will furnish some answers to the enigma we must face relative to the handling of solid waste.

As a councilor, along with being a member of the 11-member LCSWA board of directors and the chairman of the four-person committee which drew up the separation agreement, the Mayor played a prominent part in the LCSWA operation and partition.

It is a matter of record that the Village handled all of their trash collections at a profit before joining the LCSWA in a joint effort. The collection rate was $7.50 per month. If Ruidoso had not joined the association and had continued to handle their own collections we would probably still enjoy the same service and the same rate.

So—if Ruidoso wants to just continue trash collections as in the past:

1. Why is it necessary for Ruidoso to borrow $1 million to start up again in September?

2. Why is a rate increase from $7.50 to $10.50 per month ($250,000 per year estimated) necessary to perform the same service? It has been said that we have more trash. If so, we have more customers and more monthly fees.

3. Why did the "separation" committee agree to a separation whereby Ruidoso did not receive one penny in return, when the LCSWA is reported to have more than $250,000 in cash and assets?

4. Why was the separation agreement not publicized?

5. In view of the foregoing, why didn't the Ruidoso representatives take action to protect the interests of the Village?

This matter can be put to rest by answering these questions. The taxpayers deserve no less.

Tigers take their explosive offensive show on the road

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Except for a few mental breakdowns in the third quarter, Capitan coach Ed Davis had nothing but praise for his Tigers season opening performance against Hatch Friday.

Capitan, after flirting with the Bears for nearly two quarters, scored two quick touchdowns for a 28-12 halftime time and then added two more in the second half to post a 42-12 win over the visitors.

"I think this is probably one of the better opening game performances that we've had since I've been here," Davis said. "I hope that's a good sign."

Davis is hopeful because his Tigers will find themselves in some major fracas for the next month. It starts Friday with defending Class A champ Fort Sumner and continues from there with few letdowns and little room to breathe.

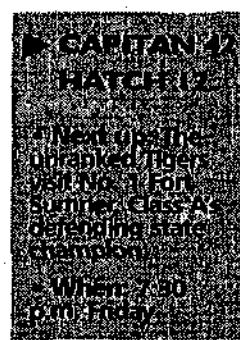

"Our opening schedule is a barometer for us," Davis said. "After Fort Sumner we've got Eunice (a Class AA semifinalist), then we've got Cloudcroft (longtime rival) and then Dexter (Class AA state champs)."

Fort Sumner's Foxes opened the season with a 29-14 victory over Tucumcari. They return 20 lettermen from last year's championship team, including the talented, junior running back Larry Roybal (8-1, 215).

Much of Capitan's success Friday will depend on an untested offensive line that returns only two starters in tight end Patrick Hansell and center Fernando Saiz.

"We've still got to rebuild our line," Davis said. "We used all of them Friday night and analyzed the film to see exactly what we need to work on to make them better."

Davis has settled on his guards with J. D. King and Clay Jones, and Robert Page will handle one tackle position, but battling for the other tackle spot will be Nash Godinez, Jarrod Joy and Shawn Wilson.

The offensive line's load is heavy because the Tigers have a plethora of speedy running backs itching to run with the ball. The Tiger running backs can seem like impatient bargain hunters waiting for the sliding glass doors to open at their favorite store.

Seniors James Tracey and Raymond Harris along with classmate Justin Joiner at quarterback give the Tigers a lightning quick backfield. Spelling that trio are the equally fleet of foot James Robinson, Patrick Kennedy and Joey Saiz.

"We can put a lot of speed on the field," Davis said.

All kinds of hoopla going on

Sixty teams participated in the Hoopla 3 on 3 basketball tournament at the Ruidoso Convention Center Saturday and Sunday. Two local girls teams battled it out on the asphalt for top honors in the 12- to 13-year old division. Mountain Sting beat the Blue Blazes, 13-10. At right, Clarissa Silva of Mountain Sting looks for an opening while Timea Eckardt defends. In other action, Ruidoso's A.J. Richardson (lower left) uses a pick to drive to the basket, and Simona Ramos (lower right at right) scrambles for a loose ball. Saturday, WNBA player Michelle Edwards of the Cleveland Rockers spoke to the fellow cagers and signed autographs.

Ruidoso runs roughshod over Capital

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

For the second time in two weeks, the Ruidoso Warriors' performance on the gridiron has left their coach spouting praise and searching for constructive criticism.

"We were real pleased with the kids' performance. They were ready to play," coach Les Carter said of his team's season-opening romp over Santa Fe Capital, 44-0. Behind the running of fullback Adrian Herrera, who gained 174 yards and scored four times, the Warriors rolled to a 30-0 halftime lead.

"Adrian runs hard. He moves a lot better than people think he does. He's hard to tackle," Carter said.

The only element lacking from the Ruidoso offensive attack was a solid passing game.

"We didn't throw the ball as well as we wanted to," said Carter, blaming adrenaline and timing for the lackluster passing effort. "We were running the ball well, too, so we didn't come out throwing the way we do a lot of the times."

Quarterback Corey Saenz finished 3-of-10 passing for 41 yards.

Ruidoso took opening kickoff and drove it 80 yards for the first of six touchdowns. "We were able to run inside and outside," Carter noted.

The Warrior defense was just as dominating. It yielded a mere 37 yards to Capital.

"We can't say enough about the way the kids played defensively," Carter said. "Brett (Meyer), Rony (Reidhead) and Jason (Leadingham) did a great job. It was just a solid defensive game."

Ruidoso's second game was just as successful moving the ball on offense and shutting down the Capital attack on defense. Sophomore Todd Schrader saw his first varsity playing time of his Warrior career.

The Warriors face their second Class AAAA opponent in a row when they travel to Albuquerque for a meeting with Rio Grande. It figures to be a battle of the backs featuring Ruidoso's Herrera and Rio Grande's Eloy Nevarez, a 5-8, 220-pound senior.

"He's a big strong fullback, with a lot of size," Carter said of Nevarez.

Rio Grande runs the wishbone option when it has the ball.

"Defensively we've got to swarm to the ball," Carter said.

Kickoff Friday is 7:30 p.m.

Trainer's patience pays off 24 years after first All American Futurity hopeful failed

BY TANYA LAIB-SHIPLEY
RUIDOSO DOWNS PUBLICITY

Trainer W.O. Bergeron waited 24 years to try his luck again in the trials of the world's richest quarter horse race. Bergeron's patience paid off when Party Girl Affair, the little filly he bred, owns and trains, earned herself one of 10 coveted spots in the final of Monday's $1.9 million All American Futurity.

Party Girl Affair, the daughter of Streakin La Jolla out of Demanding Native, is the first Louisiana-bred horse ever to make the finals. She got her chance only after Bergeron paid the late supplemental fee of $50,000.

"I saved up 48 Social Security checks to get here," Bergeron said jokingly.

She is the only supplement of seven that qualified to the finals.

In her trial race Aug. 20, Party Girl Affair stumbled away from the gate, but recovered to finish a half of a length behind Chicks Infinity, the second fastest qualifier. She enters Monday's All American as the co-sixth fastest qualifier with a time of 21.755 seconds for the 440 yards.

Party Girl Affair's record of five wins in seven starts, race earnings of nearly $52,000 and two stakes victories told Bergeron his 24-year wait was over. Bergeron saw something special in his filly.

"It wasn't anything to brag about at the time but I could tell I had a good horse. I mean even before she ever got in a race I could tell that she could run," he said.

Bergeron calls Port Allen, La. home. He retired from the construction business and entered the racing world in the '60s. He first came to Ruidoso in 1974 with Jet Injun Jr, who failed to qualify after bad luck away from the starting gates.

TIGERS: Coach says team is off to a flying start

The key Friday will be controlling the trenches and in turn, hanging on to the football.

"I think we have to block their big men up front and we've got to control the football," Davis said. "We'll go up there and give it a 110 percent. On a scale of one to 10, we'll operate at an 11."

Capitan moves to a new neighborhood as well

Ruidoso isn't the only local football team with new rivalries to develop.

The Capitan Tigers find themselves competing in District 4A, a shift east from its previous District 3A.

The Tigers join Jal, Hagerman and Loving, leaving behind longtime rival Cloudcroft and Reserve.

Of the New Mexico Activities Association's realignment, Davis said, "I have a hard time trying to understand separating us and Cloudcroft - sending us one way and Cloudcroft the other way."

It could have been reversed. The new 3A features two teams which moved down from the AA level to help form the district. Animas and Lordsburg drop down a class to join Cloudcroft and Reserve. The 3A will grow to five teams in 1999 when Mescalero joins the party Capitan and Cloudcroft will still get their blows at each other, however. It just won't be for bragging rights and the district championship, as was the usual case.

be a rivalry."

SUMMARY: James Tacey's 87-yard kickoff return for a touchdown sparked the Tigers and defeated the Bears, who had just pulled within two points. Tacey's score put the Tigers ahead to stay, 21-12.

Capitan quarterback Justin Joiner scored three touchdowns and passed for another. Tacey finished as the Tigers' leading rusher with 105 yards on 11 carries. TRAINER: Bergeron back after absence win the Louisiana Bred Futurity at Delta Downs. I had been making payments on him to come up here," Bergeron recalled. "He got wiped out at the gate."

The rest of the Louisiana contingency includes Lorna Sue Miller, who has worked on the backside and ponied horses for Bergeron for close to 30 years, and veteran jockey Pat Watson.

"I went by to wish him good luck at the track and he offered me a deal that I couldn't refuse," Miller said.

Watson, a jockey of 16 years, is Party Girl Affair's regular rider. He'll go into Labor Day with the same plans as always.

"I'm going to ride her according to the way she wants to be rode that day. She has a little attitude," Watson said of his charge. "She had it the first time I got on her and the last time I got off of her."

A victory in the All American could prompt Watson to hang up the boots and crop.

"I always said I was going to ride until God showed me a sign. I believe in my heart that that's the sign," said Watson, pointing to Party Girl Affair.

Yearlings for sale

Three days of quarter horse yearling sales begin Thursday at the Ruidoso Downs Sports Complex. Many of the industry's leading trainers and owners will be on hand to bid on the yearling they think might become the next Refrigerator. Last year, trainer Carl Guillory, who had All American Futurity finalist Runaway Fortune, took time out to check out the new crop of racehorses. Above, Guillory looks at a yearling's conformation. At left, he and an assistant sneak a peak at another quarter horse. The year's three-day event features more than 400 yearlings — the most quarter horses up for sale in awhile. Thursday's sale starts at 1 p.m. with action Friday and Saturday beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Find holiday gifts at arts and craft fair

BY TONI K. LAXSON

With 86 vendors, the All American Arts and Crafts Show this weekend isn't small fry.

"It's just folkay," said Shirlene Roberts, coordinator of the 14-year-old event, where the of admission is still $1 for adults and free for children.

The show, which starts at 1 p.m. Friday in the All American Park in Ruidoso Downs, offers a comfortable setting and a range of refreshments, crafts and artwork from hand-crafted buckles and clothing to furniture and watercolors, Roberts said.

"We have some vendors who have been with us the whole 14," said Roberts, who is overseeing the fund-raising event for the fourth or fifth year in a row for the Ruidoso Downs Auxiliary.

Proceeds from the event are used by the civic club for scholarships and to provide community support, such as Christmas baskets for the elderly and funding for the Ruidoso Downs Senior Center, Roberts said.

A dining tent will be set up at the show. The food booths will offer standard fare such as hamburgers and barbecue and possibly even steak k-bobs, Roberts said.

On Saturday and Sunday, the Ruidoso Downs Auxiliary will give away television sets, again with proceeds from the raffle going to community projects.

The All American Pie Contest also will be at 3 p.m. Saturday at the arts and crafts show. Contestants may bring their entries to the contest by 2:30 p.m. to enter.

"And we would love for anyone to enter it," Roberts said. "It just has to be a fruit pie."

The arts and crafts show attracts people from as far as El Paso, Roberts said. Many, like herself, peruse the selection for possible Christmas gifts.

"I get a good portion of mine from there," Roberts said.

THE DREAMER

BY DAN STORM
COLUMNIST

'Shall we gather at the river?'

Under blue skies, with the river surging by under a giant oak tree, this old favorite hymn was sung on Aug. 30, as members and friends of the Episcopal Church in Lincoln County gathered for services at the Paul Jones picnic ground at Glencoe.

The Rev. Canon John W. Penn expressed thanks on behalf of the 100 or more present, to Paul and Nellie Ruth Jones for this beautiful spot, for holding church services and picnic.

The Rev. Anna Gaddy read from the Gospel according to Saint Luke: "But when you give a feast invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed because they cannot pay you."

The Rev. Cindy Worthington read the Prayer of the People.

Serving as acolyte was Annaliese Huessler.

Danny Flores directed members of the choir, and Stan and Sandy furnished music on the bass fiddle and guitar, while Dr. James Fenimore played hymns on the keyboard.

Canon Penn based his sermon on the Gospel for the day, according to Saint Luke, in which our Lord tells us the true gift is the one for which the giver cannot be paid.

The youngest person at the gathering was Ayden Rupp, age 3 months. This smiling little angel cast a blessing on the day.

We thank all those who helped make this day something to treasure in memory.

Happy birthday Mark

Marcus Kennedy Storm was born Sept. 4, 1911, in Valdez, Alaska, to Lynn Whippo Storm and Bertha Kennedy Storm.

He was baptized in the historic little Episcopal Church of the Epiphany in his natal village. He is named after his grandfather, John Calvin Kennedy, a captain of cavalry in the Civil War, and Major Marcus Reno (a great uncle), also of the Civil War.

He remembers his grandfather Kennedy for his courage, devout nature and fondness for horses.

Mark's 80-odd years of Western paintings and sculpture, mostly of horses, began in Valdez when he was less than 3 years old.

Our groceries were brought to the house by Mr. Perkins in his one-horse wagon. Mark would be waiting at the window for the approach of the horse and wagon, and would be carried out to pet the horse, meanwhile laughing with delight.

At this early stage in life, he began drawing wagons, dog sleds, seagulls and horses with pencil and crayon, remarkably accurate for so young a child.

At the University of Texas, Mark studied architecture and was on the track team. It was here that he met his wife-to-be, Fernie Sweeney. They were married in 1936. They have two daughters, Tammie Lou Schene of California and Carol Jane Elliott of Houston. Also, six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Now we look forward to Brother Mark spending more time in the land of his youth, and we wish him many happy returns of the day and all the Lord's blessings.

Their HOME away from HOME

• The romance of the road plus the lure of the cool pines draw RV-driving retirees to Ruidoso.

STORY AND PHOTOS BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Tuesday morning Jerry and Helen McNeese pulled up the tent stakes and started packing for their next stop — a bluegrass festival in Andrews, Texas.

Hitting the road is easier these days. All they have to do pack up their belongings, push a couple buttons which retract the two "sideouts," hitch up their 1994 Travel Supreme fifth wheel RV to their one-ton Dodge dually and head out.

The McNeeses, a retired couple from Jal, have vacationed in Ruidoso since their first visit to the cool pines, a honeymoon trip in February 1953. They are among a growing number of visitors who land in Ruidoso from behind the wheel of a RV. Some of those visitors stay for a couple of weeks, others, like the McNeeses, spend two months up here.

Carol Rickman, a retiree who works for the Las Cruces office of the American Automobile Association, and her husband visit Ruidoso several times a year for shorter stays. Ten-year veterans of RVing, the Rickmans have stayed at three of the some 15 RV parks located in Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, the Hondo Valley and Alto.

Rickman said it's obvious that many of RVers stopping in Ruidoso are in for the long haul.

"You could tell by the way their rigs were set up that they were there for a few months and not for a few days," Rickman said.

For the McNeeses, the RV is their home away from home.

"We've come every year for at least 35 years," Jerry said. They used to camp in Cedar Creek or at the city park where the municipal pool now lies, or stay in cabins where their favorite RV park, Tall Pines, is now situated.

These days, when they arrive in Ruidoso for their annual two-month stay they "rough it" in a 33-foot RV. With sideouts extended, the RV expands to 11 feet wide. It's cozy inside — complete with a kitchen, dining table, living area with a couch and two lounge chairs, TV/VCR, bathroom and bedroom.

This is hardly camping, but it beats staying in the chilly cabins the McNeeses rented 35 years ago.

"We don't like to go anywhere without that trailer behind us," Helen explained.

In many ways, they are the "typical"

RV owners. Jerry, 66, is retired from El Paso Natural Gas. Helen, 64, is a retired homemaker.

Gene Everett, president of Coast to Coast Resorts (a network of 1,000 campgrounds and RV resorts), said during the 1980s a confluence of forces brought about changes and huge growth in the industry, which was a $15 billion producer in 1997. Improved highways, campgrounds and RVs, plus the love of being on the road made it an attractive retirement lifestyle, Everett said.

"Back in the 1980s you had a whole generation of people who were basically in the age bracket of being parents of baby boomers ... folks that were able to retire at a young age, like in their mid-50s," Everett said. "They were the type of people for whom the appeal of the freedom of the road was very strong to them."

Industry growth has been a steady, 10 percent annually over the last 10 years, and is projected to continue growing over the next decade, Everett said.

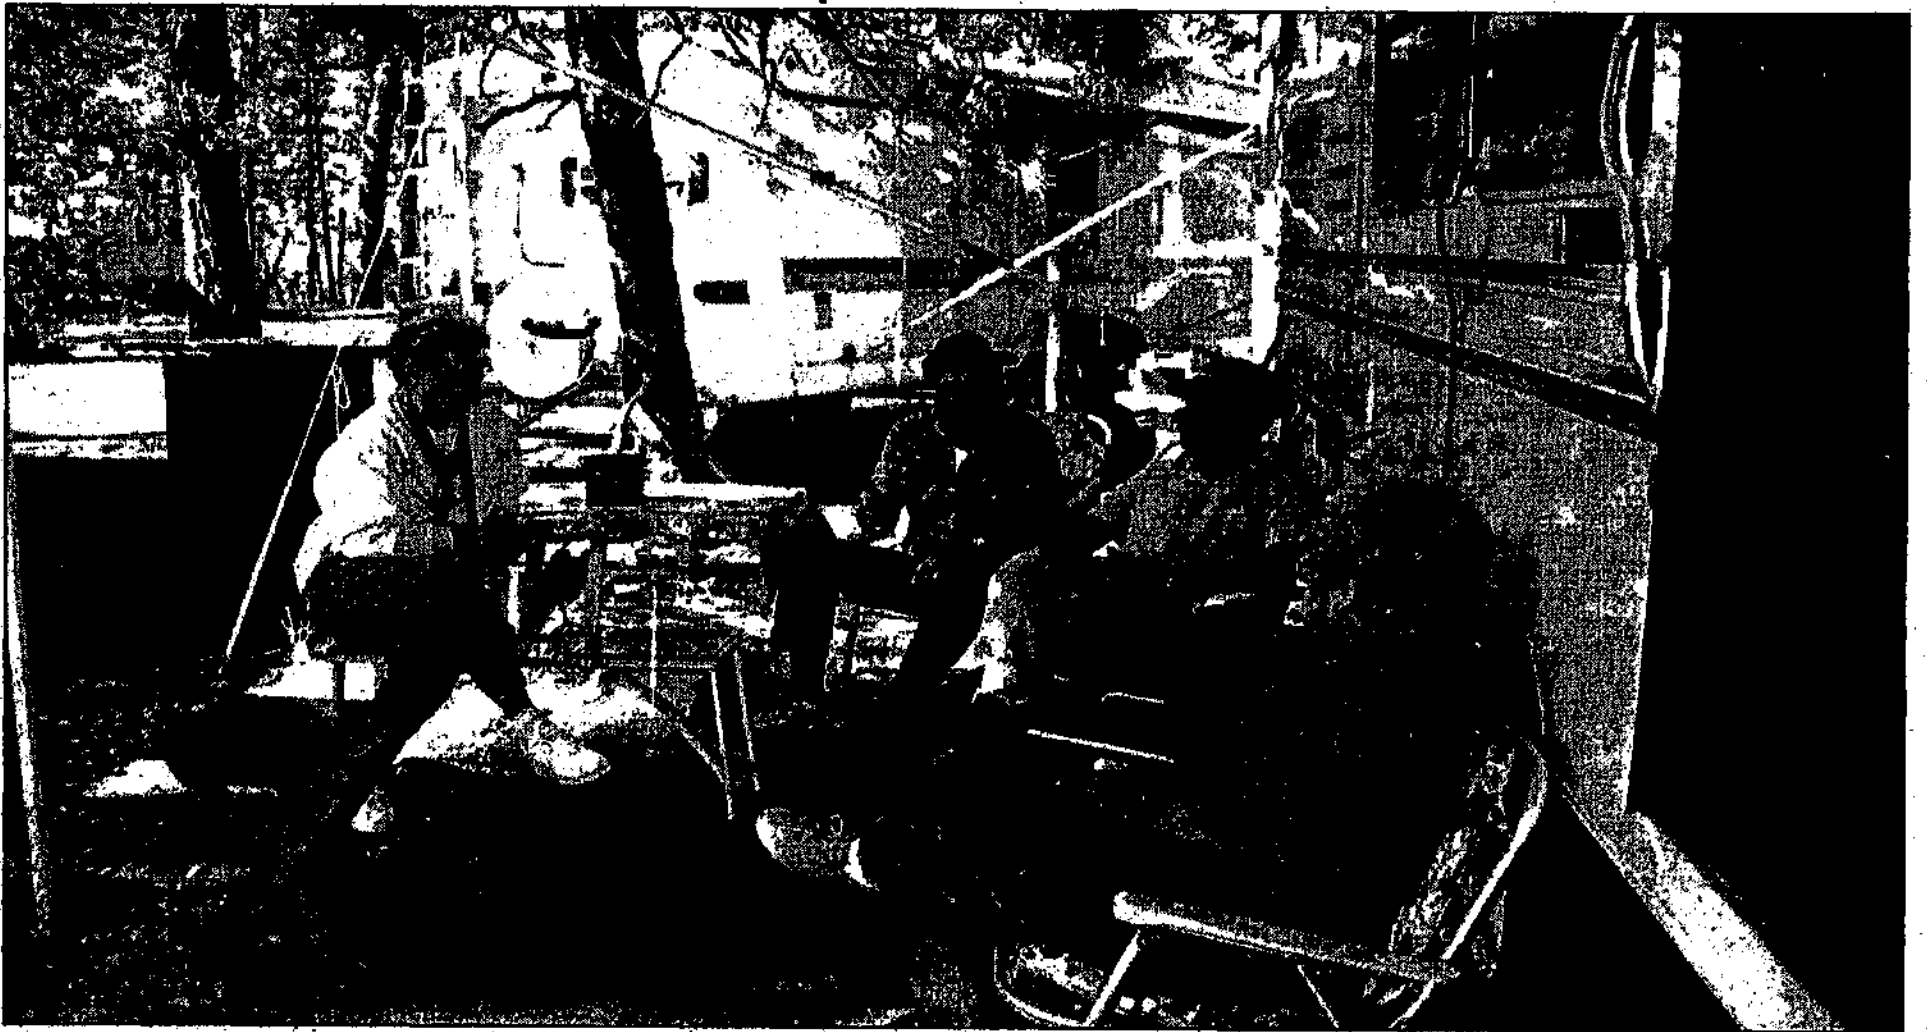

RV manufacturers estimate that 9 million people own RVs, or one in every 10 households has a RV parked on the property. Of that 9 million RVs, about half are travel trailers, motor homes or fifth wheels, like the McNeeses.

The McNeeses enjoy RVing because it connects them with others their age.

"We keep in touch with people in our own generation this way," Helen said.

Added Jerry, "We can go anywhere we want to."

Jerry and Helen spend about seven months on the road — two months in Ruidoso, several months in the Texas valley near Brownsville and sometimes in places in between.

Jal retirees Helen McNeese (far left) and Jerry McNeese (with baseball cap) visit with Charlie and Hazel Sessions of El Paso. Both couples spend their retirement traveling in RVs.

After an afternoon of socializing, Cleo and Chatchie Haynes bid goodbye to the McNeeses and hello to new visitors, the Sessions.

"We've made acquaintances with people from all over like Missouri, Canada," Jerry said.

Community is never far away, however.

In Ruidoso, as many as nine Jal residents hook up at Tall Pines every summer.

"We all park in the same spots reserved year after year," Jerry said.

Activities in their temporary home include playing golf or cards, sharing arts and crafts ideas with other campers, attending church services, participating in activities at local senior citizens centers and going to "Wallyworld" (aka Wal-Mart), Jerry said.

"We play cards," Helen said. "We take in everything that's here."

Added Jerry with a laugh, "And we eat out a bunch."

"We live a relaxed life," Helen noted.

Jerry, nodding in agreement, said, "We try to have a ball, go home and see the kids every once in awhile."

Helen insisted that she never gets homesick.

"I love traveling around." With a smile she said, "You don't have as much housework to do, and meet some of the nicest people in campgrounds."

Helen McNeese in the comfortable confines of her kitchen in the 33-foot RV.

BIDDING QUIZ

1. ♠ J 9 7 5 3 ♦ A K J 9 4 ♣ Q 8
2. ♠ K 9 3 ♥ J 9 2 ♦ 6 ♣ K J 8 2
3. ♠ Q J 7 2 ♥ 8 ♦ A Q 3 5 ♣ Q 5 7 3
4. ♠ K 9 6 4 2 ♥ 7 ♦ K 8 6 3 ♣ 6 4

Your partner deals and bids One Spade and the next player passes. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1. Two hearts. Despite the better quality of the diamond suit, the hearts are mentioned first, this is in line with the basic principle of bidding the higher-ranking of two five-card suits first, planning to bid the lower-ranking suit next. It is also consistent with the policy of seeking a major-suit game rather than game in a minor suit.

If you were to name diamonds first and hearts second, partner would naturally assume that you had only four hearts and the wrong contract might be reached.

2. Two spades. This is better than bidding two clubs, even though you are at the very top of the range for your raise. The trouble with a two club response is that a rebid problem would arise if partner next bid two notrump, leaving you in the awkward position of having to choose between a pass and three spades (forcing).

By bidding two spades, which limits the strength of your hand, you can circumvent future problems. The raise tells partner you have six to ten points and trump support, which is as accurate a picture as you can paint under the circumstances.

3. Three spades. The jump bid (forcing to game) shows 13 to 15 points including at least four trumps. your singleton diamond, plus the 11 high-card points, bring the hand into that range. With a diamond more and a club less, two diamonds would be a good alternate choice, intending to support spades at your next turn.

4. Four spades. This bid serves two purposes. First of all, there is a reasonable possibility that game can be made even though you have only six high-card points.

Secondly, and even more importantly, there is the hope of silencing the opponents. With you holding so many spades and so few high-card points, there is a serious danger that the opponents can make a game or find a profitable sacrifice in hearts or clubs, and the four spade bid may succeed in shutting them out.

Day care center location opposed

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Two neighbors of a proposed day care on Virginia Canyon Road recently unsuccessfully fought village approval of the facility.

Outside a meeting of the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission last month, Garret Trent said he will appeal the unanimous decision by that board to allow a Montessori preschool at a house across the street from him.

The commission approved a conditional use permit for the school with little discussion. At one point, Chair Glen Barrow asked Chay Rennick, an attorney for the village, to clarify the village's zoning laws that allow day care facilities in residential areas. Residential zoning allows operations such as day cares and churches, though conditional use permits are required, Rennick said.

Trent said the preschool would disrupt the neighborhood and create traffic problems.

Another neighbor, Begee Allen, told the commission the road to the school would be dangerous during inclement weather in winter. "I just think there are better neighborhoods for this type of business," Trent told the commission. He later asked them to consider whether they would want a day care near them, lowering their property values.

Richard Cull, who operates the day care with his wife Shaula, told the commission traffic congestion near the school would be considerably less than it is now at the school's location in the nearby Starlight Cabins.

Artists raise funds for arson relief

• Local artists raised money for students whose art works were damaged in a June 10 arson fire.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Most of the art work burned by an arsonist this summer was done in colored pencil.

Which is why Karen Reeder, art teacher at Ruidoso High School, is using much of the money raised in a recent benefit to purchase colored pencil sets for her victimized students.

Seven local artists participated in the impromptu benefit last month at Wayne's Place, a bar at the intersection of White Mountain and Mechem drives. Though it only lasted a couple of hours, the art sale raised about $950, Reeder said.

"It's just to let the kids know that there are adults out here in the community who care about them ... To boost their spirits," said Gail Campbell, one of the organizers.

While community support of the schools' athletic programs, such as football and basketball teams, is abundant, support of the art programs may not be as obvious to the students, she said.

"It was just very, very nice," Reeder said. "There were a lot of local artists who were very generous with both their time and the proceeds from the sale of their art works."

Artists donated a percentage from the sale of their works to the high school art students. One artist, Teri Sodd, donated 100 percent, organizers said. Sodd also has been re-matting students' fire-damaged work for free, Reeder said.

Besides boosting students' spirits, the benefit was to help Reeder build back the volume of art work that she used as sample works for her classes, organizers said.

Reeder said the students receiving the colored pencil sets, which range in price from $40 to $100, will use the supplies to put art works back on her shelves.

The type of pencil set a student receives will be in inverse proportion to how much they lost in the fire, Reeder said.

A fire that started June 10 in a storage room off of the art classroom damaged and destroyed many years of collected art work, including pieces students were planning to send to the state fair competition this month.

Besides 20 years of art work, the fire ruined art supplies and props. Reeder is still seeking donations of items such as airtight glass jars, to be used for paints, old newspapers as well as unusual items that would make good still-life subjects.

Police continue to investigate the arson, in which someone entered the Ruidoso High School arts building, broke into Reeder's room and set fire to the storage room. Though fire damage was concentrated to the storage room, smoke damage affected the entire building.

School has been in session for some two weeks, but repairs to the building and Reeder's room are still in-progress.

"It's just to let the kids know that there are adults out here in the community who care about them ..."

Mescalero forms honor society

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

At 4 a.m., Sunday, Oct. 4, 1981, Frank C. Dukepoo woke up from a dream and wrote down the words, "Indian, education, happiness, success."

Four days later while eating breakfast, he realized what the words meant.

"The idea hit me, why not an honor society for Indian people?" Dukepoo said at a recent assembly with high school students at Mescalero High School.

Eighteen years later, he still has that scrap of paper and still encourages the formation of new chapters of the society in Native American schools throughout New Mexico and Arizona.

The geneticist with Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff uses magic in his presentation to capture the interest of students. During his appearance, he asked a shy sophomore named Camille Martinez to stuff a torn up letter "F" into a cylinder, then later after using "magic" words, had her pull out a colorful string of "A"s, symbolic of how a student who tries can change their grades.

Dukepoo uses his own past as an example. He flunked out of medical school, but eventually earned a 4.00 grade point average (GPA) to earn his doctorate. He told students they can do the same thing, but adds as an aside, it would be better to leave out the flunking part.

"We struggled in the beginning," Dukepoo said of efforts to form a National Native American Honor Society. "We were requiring a 3.00 GPA for membership."

"I met with some people looking for advice and they told me I was asking too much. They said, 'Remember, you're working with Indian people.' They said to lower the requirement to a 2.00 GPA. That was the first time in my life I nearly became unglued. Instead of following their advice, I upped the requirement to a 4.00 GPA."

The idea caught on and the society now has 2,000 members and growing, he said.

"We have 500 to 600 inducted each year," said Dukepoo, who is Hopi.

If Mescalero is successful in forming a chapter, it will be the third school in New Mexico. Other chapters exist in Acoma and Laguna pueblos.

Teachers Sarah Ball and Jennifer Byers are co-sponsors of the local group. Besides the straight "A" grade point average, the teachers have added a requirement for community service project participation.

Members will receive an eagle pin after joining the society and another eagle pin for each subsequent 4.00 GPA.

In his presentation, Dukepoo uses body language. In one sequence, he extended his thumb and said he saw too many Mescalero Apaches on the side of the road trying to hitch a ride.

With his hand forward as if on a steering wheel, he asked students if they wouldn't prefer to be driving that car. He then paused, folded his arms and said he'd go a step further and prefer to be chauffeured in a car.

When he was unsuccessful trying to coax someone from the audience to come down and share their future plans, he told the students they missed out on the $20 he would have paid the person brave enough to come forward.

"I don't give anything for free," he said. "Neither does the society. You have to be willing to take chances. You never know if that person you're talking to has something valuable to offer you. Dare to be different. It doesn't matter if they laugh at you. You may be $20 or a scholarship richer."

"You like gangs?" he asked the students. "I have a gang called the National Native American Honor Society."

Before the day was over, Dukepoo presented programs for two more assemblies with elementary and middle school-age children.

He'll be back in the spring for another visit to see how the society is progressing.

Med student 'practices' in rural program

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

She's only a first-year medical student, but already Lori Lucero has been seeing patients, assisting with surgeries, working in radiology and the emergency room, and observing deliveries in Ruidoso.

Lucero is one of 74 students from the University of New Mexico's School of Medicine placed in 36 rural communities to work alongside physicians, or preceptors, and apply the medical training they've received in their first year.

Lucero's preceptor, Dr. Stephen J. Frey, who's worked with first-year students since 1993 when he was partner to Dr. Arlene Brown, said this type of medical training is unique in the country and in the world.

In a traditional medical school the first two years involved sitting in lectures on science taught by pure researchers who had nothing to do with patients.

"The University of New Mexico is unique and one of the top rated in the country for putting basic science with clinical applications, so when they come here, they are a lot more tuned in to getting information from patients and turning it into a medical plan," Frey said. "Early on they're building the clinical diagnostic skills and putting together mental processes of medical diagnosis and treatment."

The UNM's School of Medicine was chosen for an international conference, "Partnerships for Community Health," sponsored by the Network of Community-oriented Educational Institutions, headquartered in the Netherlands, said Aleksandra Ola Counsellor, manager of the preceptorship program and the Area Health Education Center.

This is the first time that the conference has taken place in this country and this year UNM will be hosting it because of the recognition the preceptorship program has had internationally for taking students into rural communities.

Lucero was expected to work three half-days at the hospital and to see a few patients and then study up on them. She, however, took the initiative to seek out other doctors to broaden her experiences, Frey said.

"It's been great. I've had a lot of fun here. People are really receptive in the community," she said. "They kind of feel like they're your teachers. They're always really nice; they want you to learn about the problems and be as empathetic as possible."

Unlike third- and fourth-year students, first-year students aren't expected to have broad clinical knowledge, and they're supervised much more closely.

Lucero explained that one of the reasons for the program is to try to get doctors to stay in New Mexico, in the smaller towns and rural areas where there is a shortage of primary care physicians.

Lucero, whose mother lives in Ruidoso, thinks she'll return here to practice medicine when she's finished with her training.

The Back-to-School Boat

The Back-to-School Boat

The same feelings

At the beginning of school, almost everybody tries to look cool and calm. However, inside each back-to-school student is a special person who is wondering what the new year is going to be like. It helps to know that most kids feel the same way. It's normal to feel a little uneasy and a little anxious. But it won't take long for you to settle in and feel at home at school.

The Mini Page thanks Brenda Kahan, school counselor, Long Branch Elementary School in Arlington, Va., for help with this issue.

Everybody is special

It helps you to realize that you are special to your parents, friends and family. You will be meeting other kids who are special to their parents, friends and families, too. You will have to learn to share the spotlight and attention with others.

Learn people skills

It is your job to do your best in reading, writing, math and other "study skills." Your "people skills" are most important, too. How well you get along with others is a key to success.

Be flexible

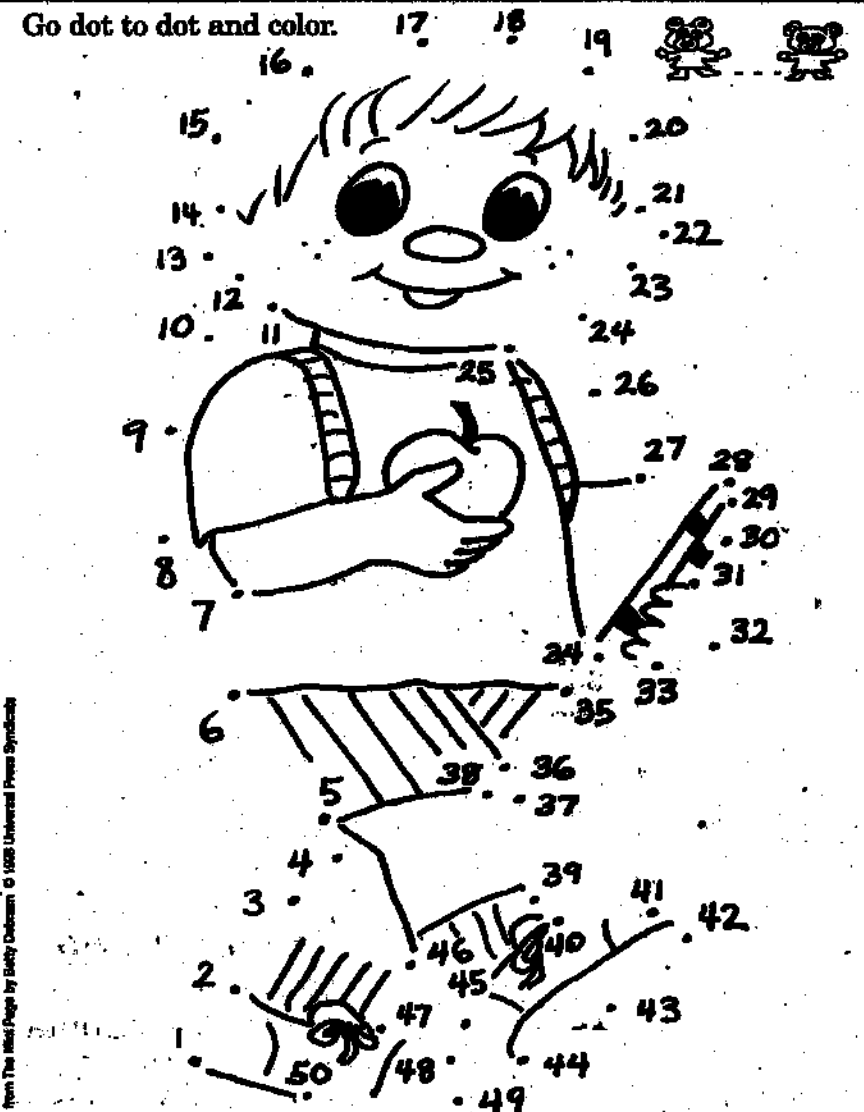

Things will not always go your way, but try to adjust and bounce back. If something goes wrong, don't let it ruin your day. When something at home really upsets you, talk to your parents or an adult at school about it. Get it off your chest.

Be positive

Try to be a positive-thinker and talker. Look on the bright side of things.

The Mini Page Dinosaurs From A to Z Poster-Plus is ideal for classrooms or kids' bedrooms at 21 1/4" by 32" with information on both sides. To order, send check or money order only, for $3.00 plus 75¢ postage and handling per copy to: Dinosaurs From A to Z Poster-Plus, P.O. Box 418242, Kansas City, Mo. 64141. Talk about problems with dogs barking and I run for one of my favorite books on all sorts of behavioral problems, a gem called "Raising Rover" by Judith Halliburton. The author happens to live in Albuquerque and her book can be ordered through The Aspen Tree Bookstore.

Last week, I reviewed some of the reasons she lists for barking and started discussing the way to correct or control in each case.

Let's pick up with barking to alert. Halliburton says this is one type of barking you don't want to stop. Just make sure you don't encourage your dog to bark more than is necessary by asking him what he hears or sees.

If your dog is talking to the neighbor's dog down the block or across the canyon, it's time to intervene.

I suggest a collar out on the market that emits a high frequency beep as one way, but Halliburton prefers reinforcing a preestablished "quiet" command.

Put about eight to 10 pennies in a soda can and when the dog barks unnecessarily, throw the can in his direction - not to hit him, but to break the chain and say "quiet." Have another can handy in case your four-legged friend decides to grab the first and run off with it, Halliburton suggests.

Dogs barking out of frustration also will respond to a can's "quiet" command, but the best way to handle the situation is to eliminate the source of the animal's frustration, she writes.

If the urge to bark comes from protecting territory, assert yourself as the Head Honcho. The stronger you are, the more he can relax and let you take over.

If the barking is for protection, your dog needs to learn the difference between barking at people on the street and barking at a possible intruder. Asserts yourself as Head Honcho. To get a better grasp of that role, grab the book.

All you have to do to stop compulsive barking is to alter the pattern, Halliburton writes.

It will take time. You need to desensitize your dog to the sound of the doorbell by ringing it over and over until he doesn't react. Do the same with opening and closing the door.

"With Rover beside you, open the door a crack. If at any moment of he makes any movement, shut the door," she writes, emphasizing "any" movement.

As you're able to open the door wide without getting a reaction, tell your dog to stay back. If he makes the slightest movement toward the door, shut it. Eventually you'll be able to open the door all the way with Rover at a stay back.

LEWIS & CLARK

The Journey of the Corps of Discovery

Lewis & Clark: The Journey of the Corps of Discovery — the story of the most significant expedition in American history and of the extraordinary friendship between two exceedingly different men — encores on public television in September.

Nearly four years in production, the four-hour documentary tells the dramatic story of the momentous journey that began May 14th, 1804, when Meriwether Lewis — the troubled 29-year-old personal secretary to President Thomas Jefferson — and his trustworthy friend, William Clark, a 33-year-old Virginian, headed up the Missouri River on what would be the United States' first official exploration into unknown spaces.

With them was a remarkably diverse crew: soldiers from every corner of the young nation; French-Canadian boatmen; sons of white fathers and Indian mothers; Clark's slave; and eventually, a Shoshone woman named Sacagawea, who brought along her infant son. Together they comprised what Jefferson called the Corps of Discovery.

In their two and a half years traveling from St. Louis to the mouth of the Columbia River and back, Lewis and Clark would become the first U.S. citizens to experience the immensity, splendor, and rigors of the Great Plains, and the first of their nation to reach the Pacific Ocean by land. But they would ultimately fail in finding what Thomas Jefferson and others had imagined existed far beyond the Mississippi: a Northwest Passage, an easy water route that would link the Atlantic and the Pacific.

While they failed to find a Northwest Passage, they discovered much more in its place: a vast territory with wildly varying climates; 122 animals and 178 plants never before described by science; and a dizzying diversity of Indian tribes. Their journey began a legacy of exploration that stretches all the way to the modern space program, and became one of the greatest adventure stories in American history.

Lewis & Clark: The Journey of the Corps of Discovery will be broadcast Sunday and Monday, September 6th—7th at 8:00 p.m.

Surviving Ovarian Cancer

Tuesday, 8th, 11:00 p.m.

Ovarian cancer is labeled a silent killer because it strikes without warning and is often discovered only after it has spread beyond the ovaries, making it far more difficult to cure. Over the past decade, though, the chances of survival have increased notably through new and effective treatments. For many women it has become a chronic rather than fatal malady. New combinations of chemotherapy drugs as well as aggressive surgery are making a major impact in extending lives. Despite these improvements, however, the lack of diagnostic tools to detect the disease during early stages contributes to roughly 14,000 deaths in the U.S. every year. Four survivors tell their stories in the new documentary,

Living in Captivity gives Diane English wide canvas

"It's about, you know, what is the American dream in the '90s? What's going on in these subdivisions? And in a comedic way, what are we afraid of? Why are we in these gated communities?"

Actress Melinda McGraw (Melissa Scully, The X-Files) is raising the issues that her status-conscious lawyer character, Becca Marek, faces in Living in Captivity. The fall sitcom premieres Friday, Sept. 11, on Fox.

"(Affluent Americans) retreat into the suburbs," she continues. "And do we bring our fears with us? Can we really get out?"

That's a lot of questions for a half-hour sitcom to answer, even if it has the creative powers of Diane English (Murphy Brown, Love & War, Double Rush) at its disposal.

English is switching channels this fall. After a decade's association with CBS, she is nurturing the comedy conceived by her husband, Joel Shukovsky, and written by protégé Tom Palmer.

Living in Captivity focuses on three couples who are neighbors in a gated suburban community. Becca and Will Marek (McGraw, Matthew Letscher) are a childless, two-career couple. She's a lawyer; he's a blocked writer. Carmine and Lisa Santucci (Lenny Venito, Mia Cottet) acquired their piece of the

In addition to an expected 75 million TV viewers, this year's Jerry Lewis MDA Labor Day Telethon may have millions more logging on to the Internet for performances by Celine Dion, Drew Carey, Bill Cosby and Pam Tillis.

The telethon, a benefit for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, airs for 21 hours from Sunday, Sept. 6, to Monday, Sept. 7 (check local listings). In addition to the TV coverage, the 33rd annual event will be available to online users at home and abroad at www.mdausa.org, with live streaming audio and video contributed by Real Networks Inc.

"This is an important first for MDA's telethon, which was the first telethon to raise a million dollars, the first to be broadcast in color and the first to be networked," notes Robert Ross, the telethon's executive producer. "Millions of families will, for the first time, enjoy the telethon and learn about the rapid progress being made in the battle against neuromuscular diseases."

Perennial host and MDA national chairman Jerry Lewis is enthusiastic about this year's telethon. "We've got a fantastic performance lineup, a terrific group of national show co-hosts, and top television personalities in virtually every U.S. city helping me reach the hearts and pocketbooks of the world to help 'my kids,'" he says.

Serving as Lewis' second chair for the 31st time is Ed McMahon, former announcer for The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson. McMahon is aided by five Hollywood co-hosts — Entertainment Tonight correspondent Jann Carl, VH1 and Fox personality Cynthia Garrett, comics Max Alexander and Kevin Meaney, and Walter Anderson, editor of Parade magazine.

This year's telethon originates from CBS Television City in Hollywood, with satellite feeds and taped segments from New York, Chicago, Las Vegas, Miami, Nashville and Charenton, La.

If Charenton doesn't seem to fit in with the rest of the list, it's because it's the home of the Chitimacha Indian reservation, where Tillis is performing.

Tillis' hourlong segment — the longest MDA has shown on a telethon — came because the reservation is "very supportive of us and our programs," says producer Lee Miller, returning for his eighth telethon.

If country music isn't your thing, a segment produced by the cable TV music channel VH1 features the B-52s, Boyz II Men, Gloria Estefan, Hanson, Billy Joel, Sarah McLachlan, the Spice Girls and Ringo Starr.

For Broadway fans, live performances include the television premiere of material from Fosse: A Celebration in Song and Dance; songs from The Sound of Music; and an appearance by Broadway composer Jerry Herman.

The telethon's goal this year is to surpass the 1997 pledge total of $50.5 million. The funds support such MDA programs as worldwide research, medical and community services, and professional and public health education.

MDA's national youth chairperson for the second year in a row is Amanda Van Benthuyzen of San Diego, a 17-year-old high-school senior who will travel the country with her family to address youth groups and recruit volunteers for the MDA.

Van Benthuyzen has limb-girdle muscular dystrophy, a progressive neuromuscular condition that affects the muscles of the shoulders, lower trunk and upper legs. She also has juvenile arthritis.

A brother and sister from Pine City, Minn., are this year's national goodwill ambassadors for the association.

Aubrey Olson, 11, and brother Nicholas, 9, will represent families served by MDA by making appearances across the country and will be featured on the telethon and in MDA promotional materials.

Both youngsters have Friedrich's ataxia, a disease of the peripheral nerves that causes muscle and heart weakness and impaired limb coordination. It's one of 40 diseases being fought with MDA dollars.

The Olson family has been personally touched by research made possible by the organization and its telethon.

In 1996, MDA-funded scientists discovered two types of chromosome mutations that can lead to Friedrich's ataxia, the condition Aubrey and Nicholas fight daily. Discovery of the mutations may be the first step toward eliminating the disease.

The music group Hole is scheduled to perform at the MTV Video Music Awards. The three-hour ceremony, hosted by Ben Stiller, airs Thursday on MTV.

Stiller stalks out MTV Video Music Awards

MTV knows there's something about Ben Stiller. That's why the network has gotten the actor-director-Hollywood scion to host the 15th annual MTV Video Music Awards, airing Thursday, Sept. 10.

The three-hour ceremony, being held at the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles, will feature performances by Madonna, Master P, the Dave Matthews Band and Hole.

"In between the music, awards will be given out in a variety of categories, including best video of the year, best male video and best video from a film. Stiller and his There's Something About Mary co-stars did not receive a nomination for their rendition of 'Build Me Up Buttercup.'

All the same, Stiller is glad to be hosting the awards.

"It's always interesting to be back in the halls of MTV," he says. "Just because I go back to 1989 with them, and so it's almost like going back to your parents' house or something like that. It has those old memories that kind of sends you back to that time. And when we were doing the show for them, The Ben Stiller Show for them, it was like this real by-the-seat-of-our-pants production — no money. It was a really fun time."

So what does Stiller intend to do during his hosting stint?

"I plan to drag out the show, make it incredibly long, slow and boring," he says with a laugh. "No, I think honestly that one of the most important things is to keep the thing moving. As a host, you can only hold up your end of the bargain."

"I'm not going to go out there and tell the Backstreet Boys to hurry up their acceptance speech, because I don't know what would happen to me if I did that. They seem like they're well-built guys. But seriously, I'm doing everything that I can to keep things short, funny (and) quick."

Stiller is looking forward to several of the performances.

"I love the Beastie Boys. I'm a huge Beastie Boys fan, so that's like the band I'm most excited to see. And I also like Madonna a lot, and I like Hole, too."

After 30 years, AMC returns to Planet of the Apes

By Cynthia Werthamer
CTVData Features Syndicate

Thirty years ago, Planet of the Apes hit the American screen and made movie history. As an anniversary present to longtime fans and new ones, American Movie Classics is airing the complete Planet of the Apes saga in a two-day marathon Sunday and Monday, Sept. 6 and 7.

In addition to the five films, AMC has produced Behind the Planet of the Apes, a two-hour special hosted by Apes star Roddy McDowall.

The special offers highlights from the films, including some never-before-seen screen tests and outtakes — and interviews with key actors Charlton Heston, Kim Hunter, Linda Harrison, Ricardo Montalban and Natalie Trundy. The special premieres Sunday and repeats Monday.

Makeup artist John Chambers, who received a special Academy Award for the moving faces the ape characters wore, also is featured in the special. Richard Zannuck, the 20th Century Fox executive who took a risk by accepting the first Apes film, as well as art director William J. Creber, film historian Eric Greene and three directors of Apes films, weigh in with their opinions and recollections.

Behind the Planet of the Apes gives an insider's look at the often tortuous journey, from concept to screen, of a film that hadn't been imagined before in the realm of science fiction. It details the 1968 film's grueling production process — including an opening sequence shot in 120-degree heat — and its makeup techniques, astoundingly innovative at the time, which required actors to sit through six-hour makeup sessions (later streamlined to three) and wait between takes in refrigerated trailers to preserve their apelike appearances.

The first film made history by spawning an unheard-of four sequels, a television show and a cartoon, not to mention the first merchandising blitz connected to a film concept.

Fans of the Apes films tuned in to watch the season-long CBS series in 1974 and the NBC animated version in 1975.

Ironically, the concept for the first film was turned down consistently until 20th Century Fox said yes.

"Talking monkeys? You're out of your mind. ... Get outta here," Heston recalls as the response.

Heston (Ben-Hur, The Ten Commandments) stars in the original Planet of the Apes as astronaut George Taylor, who discovers a futuristic planet where apes rule and humans are mute slaves. In the first sequel, Beneath the Planet of the Apes (1970), he reprises the role.

Kevin Burns, executive producer of the AMC special, says making the retrospective was "like climbing Mount Everest — because we could."

Burns and the special's director and editor, David Comtois, are friends and longtime Apes fans, which shows in the trivia they include about the movies.

For example, the orangutan Dr. Zaius in the original screen test was played by Edward G. Robinson, who turned down the role because of the lengthy makeup process.

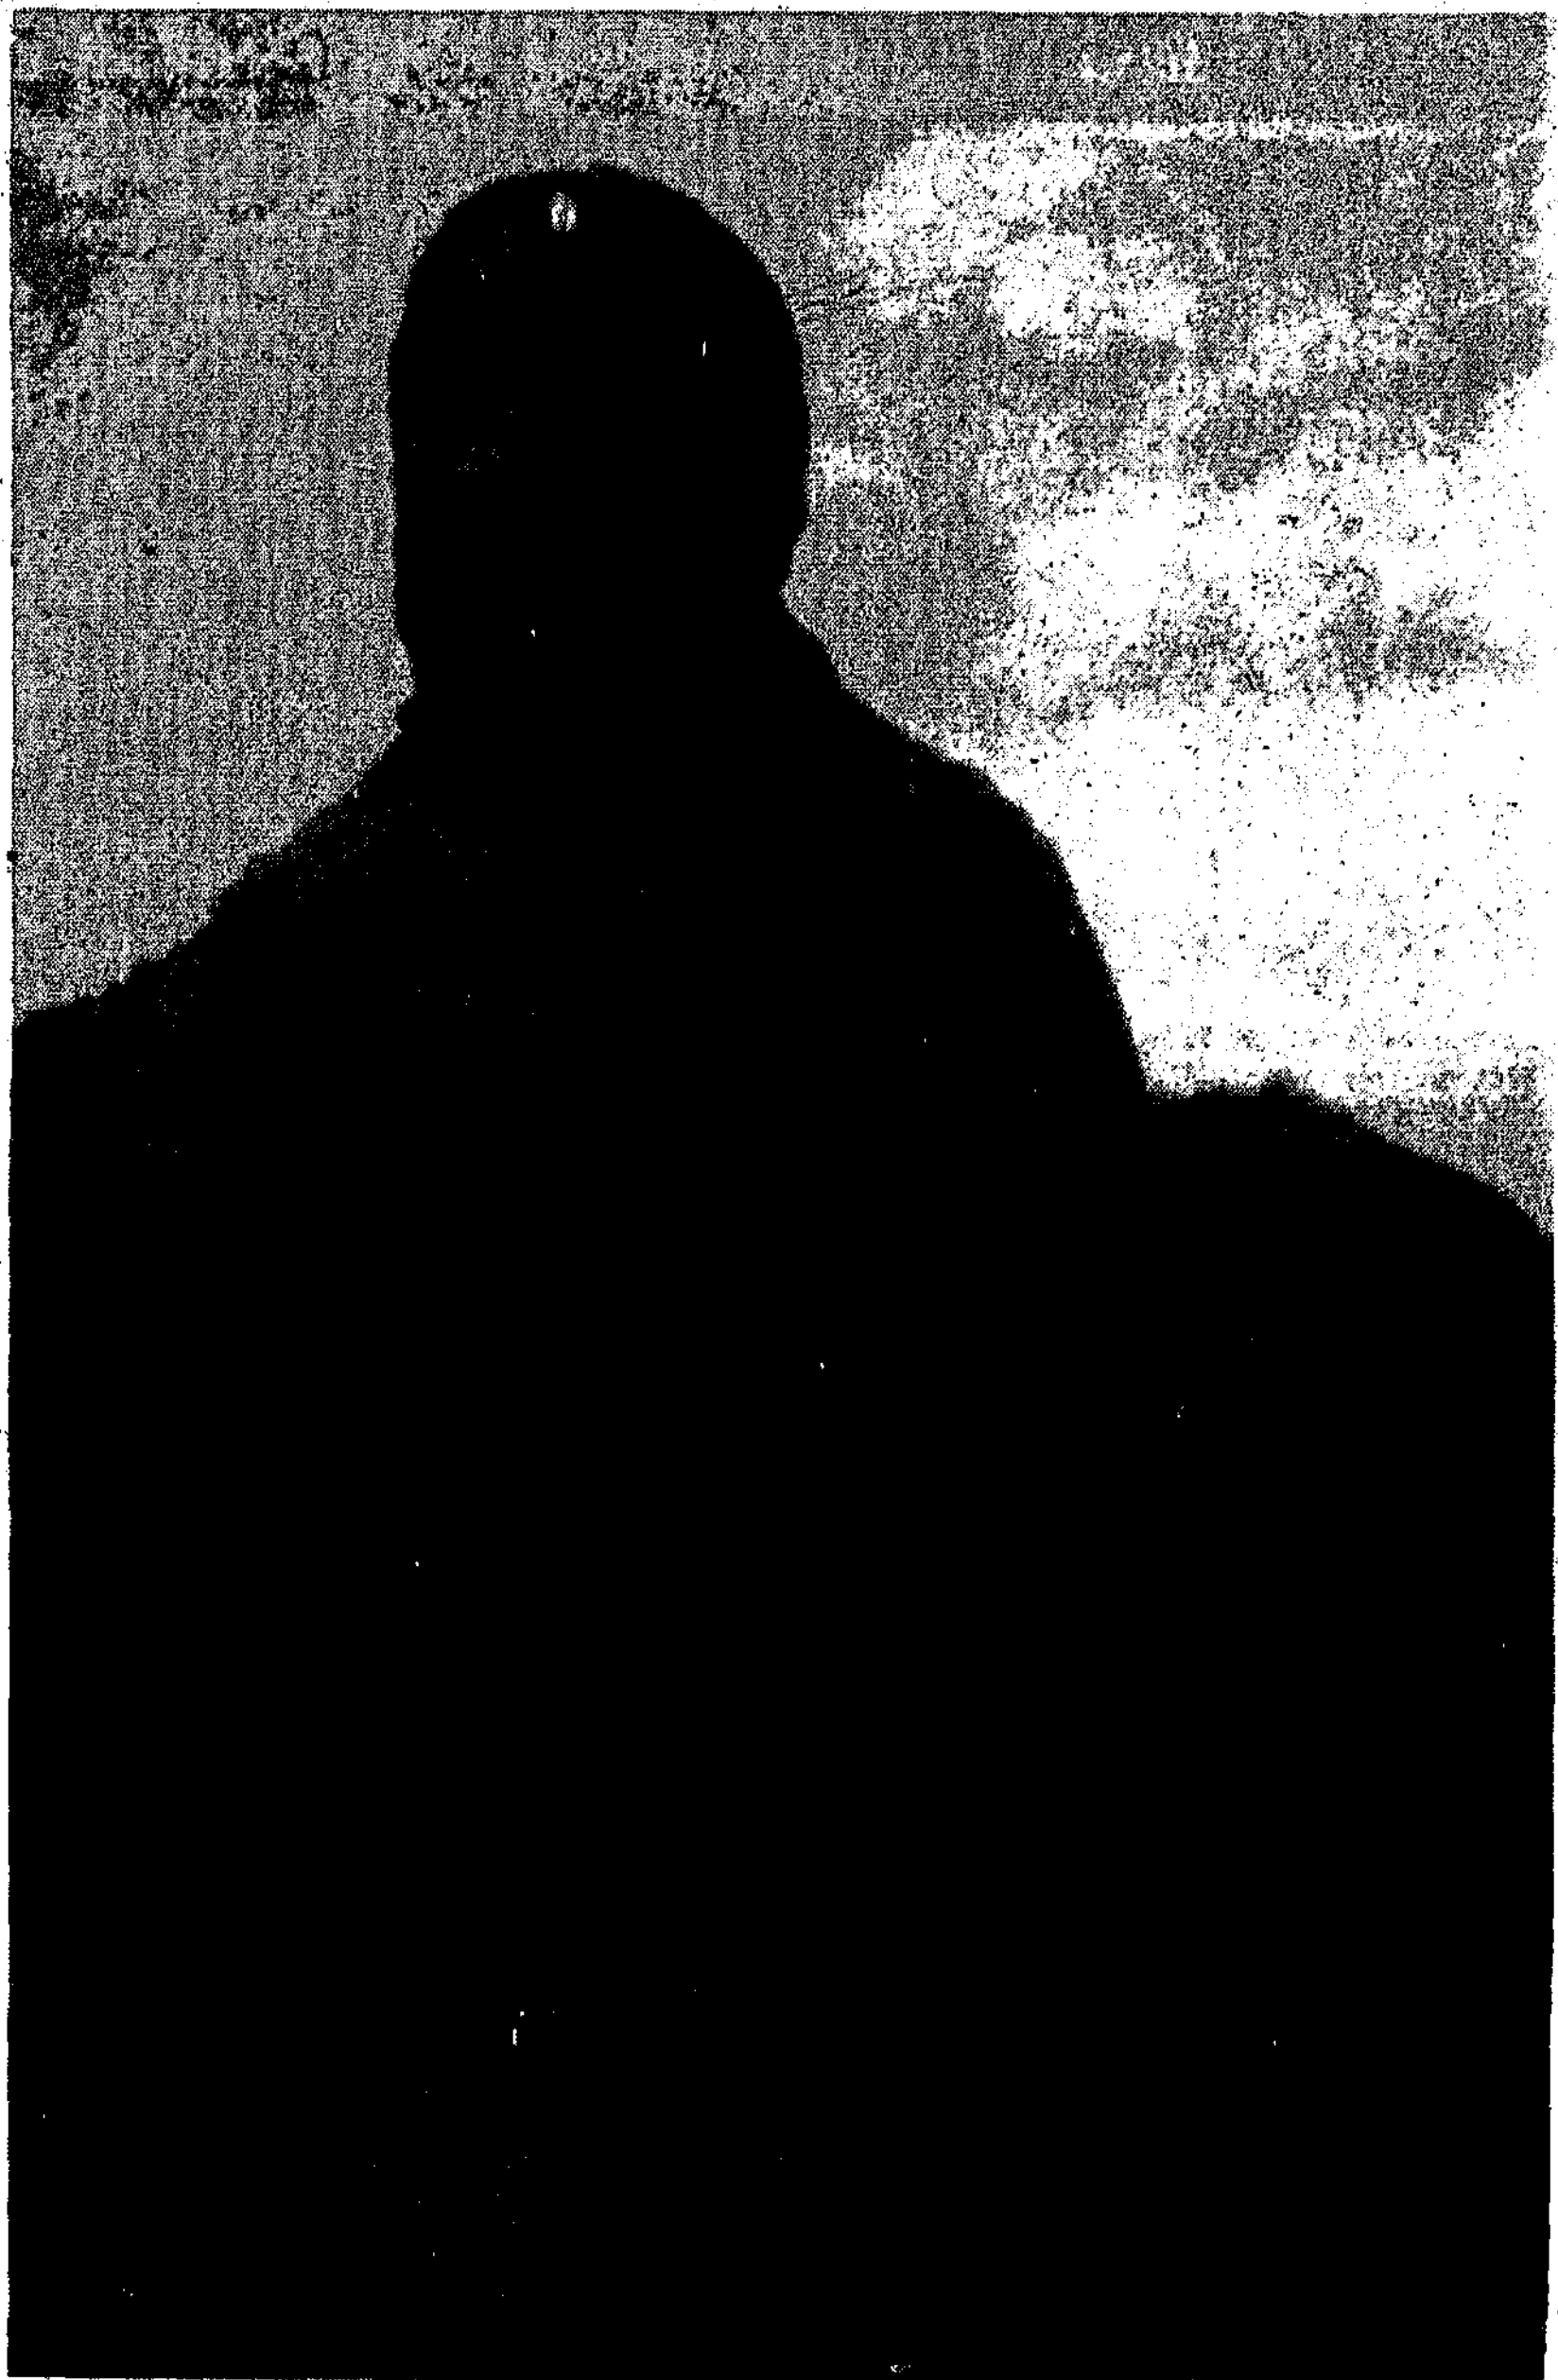

Other interesting tidbits: It took 80 makeup artists and other stylists to create the more than 200 apes for the original film, which delayed the studio's other films because they couldn't get makeup personnel. And Heston got the flu during filming, giving a crusty quality to his voice when he yells, "Get your stinking paws off me, you damn dirty ape."

The films make veiled references to events of their day, from anti-war protests in Beneath to the riot scenes in Conquest of the Planet of the Apes (1972), which were modeled on the 1965 Watts race riots in Los Angeles.

McDowall appears in all but one of the five Apes films, as the sympathetic chimpanzee Cornelius in both the original and Escape From the Planet of the Apes (1972), then as his character's son, Caesar, in Conquest and Battle for the Planet of the Apes (1973). He brings a unique perspective to the role of narrator in the special.

"He's a guardian of the gate," Burns says. "He's very active in film restoration and preservation and is very articulate and interpretive. He is one of the last people around who could talk about this."

AMC plans another showcase of the five-film epic during an all-day festival on Saturday, Sept. 12.

Roddy McDowall, who appeared in four Planet of the Apes films, hosts Behind the Planet of the Apes, a special American Movie Classics presentation premiering Sunday as part of a two-day Apes marathon.

Sofer and others hit prime time

By Candace Havens
OTVData Features Syndicate

Don't expect Rena Sofer to return to her popular role as Lois on General Hospital.

Aaron Spelling has added the actress to the cast of Melrose Place. She plays one of Amanda's (Heather Locklear) friends from the past.

Several other daytime stars have made the move to prime time this season. Sydney Penny (ex-Julia, All My Children) and Dylan Neal (ex-Dylan, The Bold and the Beautiful) are appearing on Hyperion Bay. Spelling tapped T.W. King (ex-Danny, Loving) for his series Charmed. Grayson McCouch (ex-Morgan, Another World) stars in Legacy. Charlotte Ross (ex-Eve, Days of Our Lives) portrays one of the sisters on Trinity. And Shawn Christian (ex-Mike, As the World Turns) stars in Wind on Water.

Dear Candace: I work in a Pennsylvania district attorney's office, and although I'm not an attorney, I have a fair understanding of the law. I'm absolutely appalled by the courtroom scenes on All My Children.

It's obvious that the writers did not consult an attorney. The hearsay testimony is so blatant, plus the order of events for the trials aren't followed properly. I noticed gross errors with Erica's (Susan Lucci) trial several months ago, and now with Brooke's (Julia Barr) case, it is even worse.

The story where Ryan (Cameron Mathison) tried to get into the jury was absurd. It makes me wonder whether people in the medical profession feel the same way about soap hospital scenes. —Jackie Dahlen, Audubon, Pa.

Dear Reader: You are right; reality isn't always the focus of a soap opera story. The writers usually concentrate more on the emotional drama.

Consulting legal counsel could have made a difference, though.

Dear Candace: Does Tyler Christopher (Nikolas) on GH have a fiancée in real life? Is he engaged to another GH star? —Sharon on the Internet.

Dear Reader: Christopher is engaged to Vanessa Marcil (Brenda, GH).

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
OTVData Features Syndicate

Q: What is the story and background on Alberta Watson, who plays Madeline on La Femme Nikita? She's certainly one of the sexiest women on TV, but I've never seen her in anything else. —Rich via e-mail.

A: I'm glad you asked. As the master strategist of Section One, Watson consistently gives one of the most fascinating and unjustly overlooked performances on TV.

Born and raised in Toronto, Watson dropped out of school at 15 to pursue a career in theater. After initial studies in Toronto, she moved to New York for 14 years.

Independent film audiences know her from her award-winning turn in Spanking the Monkey and the Oscar-nominated drama The Sweet Hereafter, both available on video. She also appeared in 1998's The Girl Next Door, another drama.

Since Nikita is filmed in Toronto, Watson is back in her native city, where she writes song lyrics in her spare time.

Q: Can you give me any information on an early 1970s CBS TV series called Sons and Daughters? —Randy Hartman via e-mail.

A: Emmy winner Gary Frank (Family) starred with Glynnis O'Connor in this short-lived drama about young love in a California town during the 1950s. Apart from the two stars, as well as Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman regular Debralee Scott and Barry Livingston of My Three Sons, there were no other readily recognizable faces in this Peyton Place wannabe, which lasted only two months in 1974.

Q: My husband and I are arguing about this: Is Jack Wagner of Melrose Place the same guy who sang the Top 40 hit "All I Need"? —TM via e-mail.

A: Yes.

Alberta Watson

Q: Is it my imagination, or did actor Morgan Freeman appear as a regular on the '70s children's show The Electric Company? —Scott Stanley via e-mail.

A: Yes, Freeman played Easy Reader on that landmark children's program.

Q: Is it true that Strife (Joel Tobeck), who was killed off on Hercules: The Legendary Journeys, will never be on that show again, but will star in the series Young Hercules? —Sarina E. via e-mail.

A: Tobeck will make recurring appearances as Strife on Young Hercules — and executive producer Rob Tapert says he hopes to bring Strife back to Hercules and Xena as well. But don't look for Callisto (Hudson Leick) to return from the dead for the umpteenth time.

Also, you'll see less of Joxer, Autolycus and Salomeus (Ted Raimi, Bruce Campbell, Robert Trebor) as new characters are introduced.
