Community Update sparks commitment to combine efforts

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

No easy solutions to problems facing Lincoln County materialized Tuesday during the annual Community Update session sponsored by the Ruidoso News.

What did become apparent is that any solution will require the sharing of information and cooperation of communities within the county, said News publisher Tamara Montes.

As discussions of problems facing Ruidoso, Capitan and Carrizozo and the county proceeded during the day-long session, participants acknowledged that each decision could have ripple effects, that no single action resolves a dilemma and that communities should look at the benefits to the whole county and be less parochial.

"The biggest challenge is not money in Lincoln County," said Joan Bailey, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. "It is our lack of ability to work and play well together."

She cited animosities that surfaced between Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs when Wal-Mart decided to move from the former and build its super center in the latter.

Now the most contentious issue seems to be where to build a new county jail. Carrizozo village officials and supporters want the jail to

Lincoln County must find juvenile detention alternative

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The committee studying alternatives for construction of a new Lincoln County jail found out last week that after mid-May, local juvenile defendants will not be accepted at the Otero County Detention Center.

"Scot (Key, district attorney) called me to say we have to make other arrangements for our juveniles by mid-April," said Gary Mitchell, chairman of the committee. He was speaking during a special meeting of the committee on Sunday.

Other options include driving for four hours to take juveniles to the Quay County detention center in Tucumcari. The Chaves County detention center has only 10 beds and probably won't have vacancies, he said.

Mitchell raised the possibility that a juvenile center may have to be built as part of a criminal justice complex proposed by the jail committee to house both the adult jail and the district and magistrate courts.

County Manager Frank Potter said the county now spends about $24,000 a year on incarcerating its juveniles, compared to $200,000, which is the norm for many other counties.

"We may have to consider building a juvenile center with the new jail," Mitchell said. "Children's probation tells me we need 20 juvenile beds in this county to make the system work."

Boy and girl defendants must be separated and can't be housed with adults, Mitchell said.

Juveniles also must be handled by a different staff than those who oversee adults inmates, he said.

"We've tried to avoid building one, now it looks like we may have to do something," Mitchell said.

One Carrizozo resident suggested renovating the existing jail into a juvenile detention center when the adults are moved into a new jail.

Those at the meeting Sunday also discussed the possible relocation of the current adult detention center.

Estes fights cancer again

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

At her third meeting as a Ruidoso councilor, Ovella Estes announced Tuesday doctors had found a reoccurrence of the cancer she had thought beaten.

"And the significance of my telling you this tonight is because it is extremely important to me that you know the truth," said Estes, who was on an oxygen tank during the meeting.

She has a cancer in her chest that is not curable, Estes said. "But you can be sure that we are going to give it hell," she said.

In an often comical vein, Estes briefly explained how she had found out about the cancer. She concluded by saying she only had a few hours before her oxygen ran out, so the council should quickly resume business.

When she finished, about 20 people attending the meeting stood and applauded her.

Estes told other councilors and Mayor Robert Donaldson she was not resigning from the council, but might miss a few meetings.

"Our goal now is to control the cancer ... and to make sure the cancer does not control me or my life," she said.

Estes, a local real estate agent, won her first-time position on the council March 3 with an overwhelming percentage of the vote.

She had carefully considered whether to run for office in light of her year-long battle with breast cancer starting in October of 1996. She went through a very aggressive treatment and had emerged several months ago without signs of the cancer.

Even so, she wasn't sure if running for public office was the thing to do, she said.

"Just four weeks ago today, 846 voters honored my decision — and I felt like a million dollars," Estes said.

One week after that election, a numbness in her right hand increased, she said. Next, she experienced trouble breathing, an unpleasant condition she said was as bad as chemotherapy.

She underwent a series of tests, including an x-ray of her chest which showed the cancer had returned, Estes said.

"I have absolutely no regrets," she said about running for office. "My hope and my prayer is that the voters have no regrets."

Donaldson makes council choice

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ron Anderson, a Ruidoso business owner, may soon join the Ruidoso Village Council.

Mayor Robert Donaldson nominated the Ruidoso business owner and longtime resident Tuesday night for the council position he left vacant when elected mayor on March 3.

The council is expected to vote on Anderson's appointment on April 14.

"So, think of the questions you might want to ask him," Donaldson told the council. "We have a lot of issues coming up."

In addition, residents with questions for Anderson may contact either Donaldson or a member of the council before a confirmation vote, he said.

"We will also accept written questions addressed to the mayor or council from the public the night of the meeting or before," Donaldson said.

Anderson said Tuesday night he did have some hesitation before accepting Donaldson's nomination, adding that the council position came with a significant commitment of time and work.

"But I've been involved with the community for awhile now and I've been enjoying it," Anderson said. "And the group they have in there right now is a real easy group to work with, so I didn't have to weigh it for very long."

If confirmed, Anderson said he would join the current push for a united community in which local entities work cooperatively. Another focus of his is the quality of life for local youth, Anderson said.

He would be stepping on to the council during its most strenuous activity of the year — the budget process.

"It's a learning experience," he said of the possible council seat. "It's not just a position that you step into ... But I think I can pick it up quickly."

Donaldson said the question of who would replace him on the council was a consideration when he first weighed running for mayor. One important factor, he said, was to find someone who would enhance the community's representation on the council.

"I do believe it is important for all groups to feel that they have representation that has walked in their shoes," Donaldson said. "Others may see it differently, but I see the group that should have representation on the council is (made up of) the small business owners in Ruidoso. I come from this group, but I no longer sit on the council."

Donaldson thanked the people who had written or called him with suggestions for the appointment.

"I did take a hard look at each and every one of these suggestions before making my decision," he said. "I decided I wanted a person that is connected to this community. The person I was looking for would have already served our community by being on various village committees. They will be involved with other com-

Mechem and Sudderth construction starts today

BY TONI K. LAXSON

Concerns, questions and comments about the $8.3 million Mechem Drive road project to begin today may be expressed to those in charge in a variety of ways.

From a Ruidoso village liaison committee, to state officials, to monthly "gripe sessions," residents are being provided opportunities to be heard about the project to widen almost 4 miles of Mechem Drive.

However, specific questions requesting action or a response should be written and submitted to the Phoenix-based contractors of the project — Meadow Valley Contractors, Inc.

"The best way we can address these issues is if someone will bring us something in writing," said Bill Loomis, project manager for Meadow Valley. Otherwise, he said, there is no guarantee his company or state officials will be able to respond.

The project is one of three to widen State Road 48 from Sudderth to the turn off to Bonita Lake. Turn lanes will be added and certain portions of the road will be expanded to four lanes. Sidewalks will be added along the majority of the first phase, which ends at White Mountain Drive.

Loomis, at a community meeting Monday night about the project, said his company already has received about 30 written inquiries, mostly mines in operation.

The iron and marble will be advertised, and the building stone, which is of the very finest quality known in the west, will be put on exhibition.

Downs shooting victim may lose sight permanently

The 9-year-old Downs boy found Feb. 21 with a gunshot wound to his head might return home as soon as next week, police said.

BY TONI K. LAXSON RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Jesse James Del Rio, who survived after a 22 bullet went through his head on Feb. 21, may be home as soon as next week.

However, the 9-year-old Ruidoso Downs boy is returning home without sight, and doctors are not overly optimistic he will regain it, said Ruidoso Downs police Cpl. Chris "Corky" Condon. "He's still in guarded condition," Condon said Tuesday of Del Rio, who is in Albuquerque's Carrie Tingley Children's Orthopedic Hospital.

Pending another medical procedure, Del Rio will be released from the hospital sometime in the next few weeks, possibly as soon as the week of April 6, Condon said.

Condon and another Downs officer are going to Albuquerque today to question Del Rio about the shooting, he said. Officers have been waiting for physicians' approval before interviewing him, Condon said.

Police continue to investigate the shooting. Del Rio was discovered alone in a bedroom of his family home about 10 p.m. on Feb. 21, Condon said. Lying near him was a .22-caliber pistol.

Within hours, Del Rio was air-lifted to University of New Mexico Hospital in Albuquerque, where he spent one week in critical condition. He was then upgraded to satisfactory condition and moved to Carrie Tingley, where he was reportedly talking to doctors about his school projects, police said.

Police are not leaning toward any conclusions about the shooting until their investigation is complete, Condon said. Officers are investigating the case as either an accident, an attempted suicide or as foul play.

They are waiting for a state crime laboratory to finish processing the gun for evidence, Condon said. The department has received reports from the crime lab about the shirt and underpants Del Rio was wearing at the time of the shooting. Neither item showed any evidence of foul play, he said.

The department is still waiting for information from hospital personnel regarding the investigation, Condon said.

Officers interviewed Del Rio's two oldest brothers Sunday night about the shooting, he said, adding that neither was a suspect.

An account, No. 000470813, has been set up at Ruidoso State Bank to assist Del Rio's family.

munity groups. I wanted a leader, someone others have looked to for guidance. Most basic of all, I wanted someone whose personal success is tied to Ruidoso's successes. I have found such a person."

Anderson, co-owner of three local businesses, is board president of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. He is also on the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Commission, the Ruidoso Visioning Committee and chairman of the Mountain Summit marketing committee. He is also on the board of the Ski Apache Disabled Skiers Program.

He is a partner in the Wild West Ski Shop, Ski Ruidoso shop, and the Wild West t-shirt shop. Anderson also intends to open another business soon, Donaldson said.

His wife, Karen Anderson, is a member of the Ruidoso Municipal School Board.

Anderson, said Donaldson, is informed and concerned about the issues facing Ruidoso, yet his stand on issues is not anchored and inflexible.

CONSTRUCTION: there will be monthly meetings on the construction

from residents and business. The letters will be responded to in the order they are received, Loomis said, adding that state approval must be given to the contractor before changes to the construction design may be made.

His company would like to start construction today on the intersection of Sudderth and Mechem Drives, he said. The work would involve about 400 feet on the south side of the intersection. The south lane would be closed and both lanes of traffic pushed to the north side of the road, Loomis said.

However, that work may be delayed since weather forecasters are predicting another storm system.

"If the man upstairs will just dry things out, we will certainly try," Loomis said. "We have all the manpower and equipment here."

Loomis has said his company will work on several portions of the road at one time in order to finish the project by fall. That goal may be difficult to achieve without good weather and considerable cooperation, Loomis said Monday.

Temporary exits will be created when road crews block driveways, said Alan Briley, Ruidoso deputy village manager and a member of the liaison committee.

Meadow Valley will hold weekly meetings to determine two-week construction schedules, and each week, an up-to-date schedule of the construction will be printed in the Ruidoso News.

The meetings, the first of which will be at 3 p.m. Thursday, will be at Meadow Valley's temporary offices at 1206 Mechem Drive.

The meetings will include the contractor, state highway officials and members of the Ruidoso liaison committee. Though open, the meetings are for the purpose of establishing a schedule of construction and are not "gripe sessions," Briley said.

Monthly community meetings will be held for those wishing to express gripes, he said.

If residents do not receive satisfactory responses to their questions or requests, they may contact the local state office in Ruidoso, Steve Turner, project manager for the state, or Virginia Lorenz, district manager.

Ruidoso liaison committee members are: Mayor Robert Donaldson, Councilor Ovella Estes, Truman Barnett, Briley, and Cynthia Clayton. Briley said a couple of members will be "on-call" every week.

For information about highway construction, contact Briley at 258-4343, Meadow Valley at 258-4400, local state office at 257-1182, Turner at (505) 585-2090 or Lorenz at 257-1182.

OUR OPINION

Extreme, not mean

Perhaps there is something positive in the rather extreme positions being taken these days on two disparate issues — land use and jail location — in Lincoln County.

The county commission, acting on material put together by its Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, has approved a non-binding resolution that puts it on record in support of traditional rancher-based public land use attitudes — and, therefore, in perceived opposition to the environmental protectionists who have attained considerable notoriety in recent years.

The commission's resolution, it has been pointed out, doesn't carry the weight of law, and therefore is no more than a "guideline" to agencies in dealing with the county on land use issues.

However, it also carries with it some of the ideas expressed in the "sagebrush rebellion" of the 1980s and more recently in the Arizona and New Mexico grass-roots movements seeking to put county government in the catbird seat on land use issues. (Catron County, N. M., has been a leader in that movement.)

A member of the county's Public Lands Use Advisory Council argued the "multi-use" doctrine of the federal government, and the idea that the land belongs to everybody, and must be preserved for future generations.

And so the die is cast on a major policy issue in another election year.

The same county commission, considering recommendations of another committee appointed to come up with a solution to the county's outdated jail, is looking at building a jail somewhere other than at Carrizozo.

This naturally brought strenuous objections from Carrizozo and most of its residents.

It appears to be a battle between long-term fiscal efficiency and economic protection for the county seat's residents. The conspiracy theory has been invoked, with some assuming simply that the politicians want to move the county seat out of Carrizozo to Ruidoso.

An initial public meeting on the issue was a civil discussion, essentially an exchange of information, and had many aspects of a negotiating session. Carrizozo was prepared to strike a deal; the commission was prepared to listen.

It was pretty clear that while everybody recognized a problem few were to the point of surrendering their positions. Adding to the jail issue was the word that juvenile offenders soon won't be accepted at the Otero County detention center — and Lincoln doesn't have one.

So, two issues of civic concern.

Two issues with potential long-lasting consequences. And we can offer no solutions; not on April Fool's Day.

THE DREAMER

A very active 'retirement'

BY DAN STORM
COLUMNIST

This is being sent to you on March 29 and will reach you on April 1, the birthday of my life-long friend and down-the-creek neighbor, Ernest McDaniel.

He was born April 1, 1911, in Muskogee, Okla., to Ernest McDaniel and Leontine Whitehead McDaniel.

Later the family moved to Austin, Texas, where he and his brother Robert became acquainted with the Storm brothers in Austin High School and the University of Texas.

At the university, Ernest was outstanding both in studies and athletics. He was a member of three championship swimming teams.

Later he and his brother moved to their present home near San Patricio, where they are retired after many years in cattle ranching.

When the subject of his birthday comes up, Ernest laughingly remarks, "I am the original April fool."

The irony of this is that he is one of the most intelligent and well-informed men I have known.

During retirement, he is active in several lines of study, especially archaeology, specializing in Native American history and culture.

Among his many other interests are soil conservation, wildlife (especially birds) and wood carving, at which he is an accomplished artist.

Above and beyond his many talents and accomplishments, Ernest is a good neighbor and trusted friend, and we wish him many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

sky that dost not bite so nigh as benefits forgot. Though thou the waters warp, thy sting is not so sharp as friend remembered not.

The leaf parade

The steady day-and-night west winds of the last four days have blown out the weeping willow, globe willow and Chinese elm into near full leaf, starting the annual leaf parade.

soon to follow will be the giant willow, cottonwood, box elder, walnut, oak and wild cherry.

Well, it is mid-afternoon now, and I am heading up the way into a springtime snow flurry.

Until next time, let us be ever more grateful to our Lord for the arrival of April the month of flowers, and all our other blessings.

Remembering friends

As the years go by, the circle of friends to be sent cards at Christmas and Easter grows wider and wider.

Remembering this and gazing up the valley at the advancing snow clouds, I am thinking of some lines by Shakespeare in which he tells us there are worse things than winter weather:

Blow, blow, thou winter wind. Thou art not so cutting cruel as man's ingratitude.

Thy tooth is not so keen because thou art not seen, although thy breath is rude.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter

Clinton and taxes

To the editor:

I'm sitting here figuring how much I owe the Internal Revenue Service, and I hear on the TV that Bill Clinton is over there promising to give the Africans $850 million, not out of his pocket, mind you, but out of the income taxes you and I pay.

I don't remember giving him the authority to do this, do you?

I know some families here in the U. S. A. that need some help. The fathers are working two jobs, Mom works, and both parents worry about what their kids are doing after school. They have to work to make ends meet, and to pay their income taxes.

I think President Clinton needs to come back home and look around.

First Lady is right

To the editor:

First Lady Dee Johnson's statements concerning women (Ruidoso News, 3-27-98) are amazingly accurate. She states that "the Republican message now is aimed at a male audience" and that "it's traditionally been created by men for men."

Respecting Democrats, she says "many feel the Democratic platform speaks to women's issues." She is right on both points.

The interesting thing is that she wants the Republican Party—her party—to pay more attention to women's issues. Indeed. That is precisely what the Democratic Party has been saying for years, as it has worked for women's rights over Republican resistance.

The First Lady's solution is tax breaks for women business owners. Just how such breaks will benefit the majority of non-business-owning women is unclear. Since the republican platform opposes such beneficial programs as universal health care and minimum wage increases, it's difficult to see how the average working woman will see much benefit from her boss's windfall.

For those women who genuinely care about real women's issues—women's health care, prenatal care, child care, educational opportunity, livable wages, domestic violence—you are invited to join the women of the Democratic Party as we continue to work for the interests of all women. As Mrs. Johnson said, "the Democratic platform speaks to women's issues."

Gym suggestion

To the editor:

If the Ruidoso Downs village officials can't find another place where they want to build the basketball facility, my suggestion is to build it onto the Senior Center. This will give the seniors a useful thing to do, (and) help the kids with their wisdom (and) experience, unless...the seniors, don't want to help our youth and their parents by being there for the kids when both of the parents are having to work.

Something like the "mentor" program done in the bigger cities' schools, it would stop some or most of the juvenile crime me if the kids have something to do, some place to go and visit with their friends, versus the streets with no supervision except for maybe a police officer driving by on the street once in a while.

Come on Ruidoso Downs and the Village of Ruidoso councils, get off your butts and pull your heads up and think. It's time for action now! We're done talking about it. This is from someone who knows about this dilemma, first hand.

Prices increase

To the editor:

...I own T. L. C Construction and Painting, and I have run advertising in the Ruidoso News for over 30 years. I get most of my work from ads in the Ruidoso News classified.

Today I came in to place a spring ad. I was informed that prices have increased over 77 percent. I run ads all summer.

This huge price increase will eat up a lot of my profits.

COMMUNITY: a question of whether Ruidoso should annex Alto and what impact it would have on both towns

remain in their town, which is the county seat. To remove it would devastate their economy, they say.

But County Commissioner Monroy Montes said to satisfy the needs of the entire county in the most economical way long-term, the new detention center should be built closer to the population center of Ruidoso.

"We should be thinking what is best for Lincoln County," Bailey said. "We are residents of the county first and then residents of our communities."

During a planning session residents and representatives agreed that cooperation was the key to the overall success of each entity.

The afternoon portion of the Update focused on the "visioning" process of the village of Ruidoso. The village council is reaching into the community to find the most important issues to its residents, possible solutions and approaches to problems, and to assemble a grassroots impression of what Ruidoso is and where it is heading.

They asked people attending the session to participate in brainstorming about questions to be included in a community survey. The focus for the afternoon was environment and growth.

By the time Village Manager Gary Jackson put down his marker, he had written 20 questions on a flip chart.

The emphasis started with environment as Ross Dingman of the Forest Health Coalition of Lincoln County, suggested the survey ask people to define the role of government in maintaining and improving forest health and in providing wildfire safety.

His wife, Ginny Dingman, pointed out that when water-guzzling trees are removed from an area, more water remains in the underground supply.

How wildlife can be protected and tolerated as the population increases and infringes on its habitat was added to the list of questions, as well as whether current animal control laws are sufficient or if they need to be revised and enforcement stepped up.

Jackson noted that an April 28 Ruidoso council hearing will deal with a proposal to require animals to be restrained on private property.

Under the issues of river maintenance and water, Mayor Robert Donaldson said communities are going to be consider the use of "gray water" to irrigate public land such as football fields and golf courses, as an alternative to the use of treated water. Such a move would require changes in state statutes.

Participants also suggested asking for public response on whether a combination of diversion points should be used to bring water to Grindstone Reservoir to ensure a consistent river flow in the Upper Canyon area of the village.

Cindi Clayton, a member of the Ruidoso Visioning Ad Hoc Steering Committee, said she'd like to see more aggressive recycling.

But Donaldson said recycling has to be approached as a business. If money can be made and waste removed from the stream headed to the regional landfill, that's great. But if the market isn't there for a product, such as glass, it's better to put it back in the waste stream than allow it to build.

"You have to be honest about it," he said.

Now that Ruidoso has decided to break away from the garbage collection aspect of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, the village may qualify for grants to help establish its own recycling program, Jackson said.

The village also will consider contracting with a private company to provide all or a portion of the collection, which will include trash, slash, yard debris, appliances and garbage, he said.

Donaldson said the village now will be in control of its own destiny. If there's a mess around dumpsters or sacks full of pine needles sit until they split, the village will fix it.

Those receiving the survey also should be asked about their attitudes toward annexing areas into the village, session participants said.

The mayor said he's worried about housing developments around the village that were granted before the county approved subdivision regulations. Many of those previously dormant areas are beginning to develop as the county grows, but it is too late now to go back and insist the lot owners conform to new requirements, Donaldson said.

The cost of bringing roads in those subdivisions up to village standards would be enormous, he said.

But if the community of Alto Village attempted to incorporate as a municipality, Ruidoso would have to object, because Ruidoso's boundaries would then be defined by Ruidoso Downs on the east, Alto on the north and the Lincoln National Forest elsewhere. Councilor Bill Sterchi explained that Alto would need the village's approval to incorporate under state law, because Alto lies within a five-mile radius of Ruidoso. The village already provides building inspections in Alto.

"We don't want to annex them without being able to provide services, but we don't want to lose that tax base," Sterchi said.

Donaldson said the village would not actively seek to annex Alto.

"Most people in Alto do not want to be annexed, but that's not always why you do something," he said. "It doesn't make sense from a regional standpoint (and in view of the effort to consolidate services) to have three communities. I think Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs should consolidate, but I suspect you would get a different answer from Ruidoso Downs."

"It may be the time to have a discussion, no matter what the outcome."

Chamber director Bailey said she was disappointed that the Ruidoso Downs mayor and the council did not attend the Update meeting.

Other questions suggested for the survey include:

- How to best finance the infrastructure costs of growth; whether to put fees on developers as impact fee, to spread them out in rate increase or other approaches.

- How to protect the hillsides in Ruidoso from development that would cause erosion and degrade the landscape and land. Village law already includes replacing removed vegetation (for wild fire prevention) with other plants or grass. But that also translates to the need for more watering, Donaldson pointed out.

- Whether a fund should be established to purchase land with grades in excess of 35 percent.

- Whether the village should become involved in providing affordable housing for those employed in community service industries or leave it to the private sector, and if so, whether incentives should be offered. Bailey suggested changing the term to "employee housing," or something with less stigma, and asked whether people have the right to live in the community where they work.

Schools struggle with rising enrollment, while county's problem is jail crowding — and taxes

BY DIANNE STALLINGS AND TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITERS

Looking for suggestions on how to meet growth pressures without breaking their pocketbooks, officials from Lincoln County communities outlined their challenges during the annual Community Update Tuesday.

Sponsored by the Ruidoso Together, the Update brought together representatives from the village of Ruidoso, the Capitán and Ruidoso school districts, the town of Carrizozo and Lincoln County for a session of information-sharing and issue airing.

Leading off the morning portion of the program, Capitán School Superintendent Diana Billingsley narrated a program prepared by the district's student mentors with guidance from media center administrators Becky Borowski and Sherry Gowen.

She reviewed 20 years of growth in the district starting with construction of a new elementary school in 1978 with grades first through fifth. That year 15 seniors graduated from high school. This year 42 will collect their diplomas, for a 180 percent increase, she said.

The high school opened in 1980, adding a new library in 1986, a cafeteria in 1989 and a mid-school in 1994. Twenty years ago, only one classroom was needed for each first and second grade. Today, there are three each and four full-day kindergarten classes.

The district projected 605 students for the current school year, but signed up 649, despite closing enrollment to out-of-district children. From 1991 to 1998, enrollment has jumped 33 percent, Billingsley said.

While the district has added advance math and science classes, food labs, fine arts, choir, music and language courses, and can offer high school and college credit for some classes through Eastern

New Mexico University-Ruidoso, it has run out of space in all but its middle school. Classes are meeting in closets, she said.

School board members are asking for help from students, parents, teachers and other community members to come up with suggestions on how to meet growth demands.

To build a new high school would cost more than the district's bonding capacity, but bonds must be approved and sold to tackle any type of construction, because no other state money is available, Billingsley said.

Students and parents queried said they need more classrooms, better heating, air conditioning, parking, more variety in classes, a computer center separate from the library, a girls' weight room, an after school program for latchkey children and possibly, a new high school.

Capitán School Board President Beverly Payne-Calaway and board members Freda McSwane and James Hobbs received plaudits from people in the audience for the quality of the district and its students.

Hobbs said parents deserve a lot of the credit, because they are involved at all levels, from volunteering in schools to attendance at meetings.

County issues

Speaking about the most controversial issue in the county, Commissioner Monroy Montes argued the need to build near Ruidoso a new criminal justice center, including a jail, a juvenile detention center, dispatch, the sheriff's office, alcohol and drug counseling program, and the magistrate and district court system.

However, former Carrizozo trustee Ruth Armstrong said she's like to see some figures proving the savings, balanced against Carrizozo's offer of free land and existing infrastructure for a jail in its industrial park.

Commissioner Wilton Howell spoke on a tax cap proposal and urged residents to demand a commitment from their state and county elected officials to support a state constitutional amendment on the general election ballot that would allow the imposition of a tax cap based on limiting increases in taxable property value each year.

Ruidoso Schools

Safe Schools are the No. 1 goal for Ruidoso Municipal Schools.

"We believe that in order to educate students, you must have a safe environment," said Superintendent Mike Gladden, who outlined the district's goals, student growth, special programs, staff, bond projects, organization and finances.

The district has grown by about 9 percent in the past five years, Gladden said. In the 1980s, the district growth rate was sometimes as much as 12 percent in a year.

Gladden spoke of programs forged with assistance from Eastern New Mexico University, local businesses, parents and the village of Ruidoso to enhance educational opportunities for students.

Donaldson commits to youth commission

Impressed with the the message and the messenger Tuesday, Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson says he will appoint a mayoral youth committee to join with local students in efforts to create a community center for all ages.

After listening to the presentation of Ruidoso High School seniors Adrian Wallen, Myra Romero and Katie Lukens during the Ruidoso News' annual Community Update luncheon, Donaldson said he approached the students with the offer. The committee will be created before a Youth Summit planned by the students for 7 p.m., Monday, April 27 at the Civic Events Center.

The three students, representing a group called Youth Empowerment, said they want more interaction between the community and young people in Ruidoso. They are soliciting ideas and suggestions to work toward that objective and the ultimate goal of an inter-generational community center.

Ski school director left a legacy, colleagues say

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

The Ski Apache family lost one of its longtime members when ski school director Rick Vincent died of a heart attack Monday.

Vincent, 56, was 30-plus-year employee of Ski Apache, where he served as instructor and assistant director of the ski school before taking over as its director in 1972.

"He was an outstanding technical skier, and he was good director and manager of the ski school," said Ski Apache General Manager Roy Parker.

Co-worker Denny Grover, mountain manager, knew Vincent for 33 years. Grover said Vincent had a knack for teaching the sport he loved.

"He had an ability to bring out people's potential and develop it," said Grover, noting that Vincent had mentored ski instructors who are now teaching at ski areas across the Rocky Mountains and nation.

Ski school head supervisor Scott Goeller trained under Vincent and worked for him for 21 years.

"He was the ski school," Goeller said. "He dictated everything 4-10 nut and bolt that comprised the ski school. He was an inspiration to the instructors, as well as their leader."

Vincent's presence extended beyond his own shop and Ski Apache. He served as board president of the Ski Apache Disabled Skiers Program (SADSP), and was an instrumental support in its formation.

"We wouldn't be here without him," said SADSP Director Lisa Maue.

"He was the kind of person who did a lot of stuff in the background that a lot of people didn't know about. He was from the get-go always there, always one to help," Maue said, her voice cracking with emotion. "We're not part of the ski school, but he always made us feel welcome."

Maue also said she could always depend on Vincent for unconditional support.

"He was a very special human being, and he will be missed by all of us," she added.

Vincent's influence included work with the junior Olympic ski development program and reached beyond the Ski Apache slopes to the Professional Ski Instructors Association, with which he was an examiner.

Rick Vincent

"His name will ring a bell in any ski school, at least in the Rocky Mountain Division, in the industry," Goeller said. "Skiing was his life. He loved to get out there and talk about technique as well as teaching. He was just in hog heaven when talking about technology, ski technique, teaching methodology."

"His legacy is the organization he leaves behind and the people he's been associated with."

Parker said Goeller will manage the nearly 100 instructors of the ski school for the last 12 days of the 1997-98 ski season.

Vincent, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., grew up in the East where he attended prep school at Lenox Academy. There, he raced on the ski team. Vincent eventually enrolled in forest management school before attending the University of Montana.

He joined the Army, which brought him to New Mexico where he was stationed at White Sands from 1964-66.

Shortly after his assignment to White Sands, Vincent could be found on the slopes of Ski Apache.

"He was a friend for many, many years," said co-worker L. B. Davis. "Before that, I knew him when he skied up here when he based there ... He will certainly be missed."

Survivors include his wife of 31 years, Ingra Lynn, and their daughter, Wendy Lynn Vincent.

A memorial service has been scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center.

Warrior Cassie Bednorz (right) and her Ruidoso teammates head to Bayard Thursday to participate in the eight-team Cobre Tournament. The Warriors take a 3-4 overall record into a 9:30 a.m. showdown Friday with St. Pius X.

The other teams playing in the tournament are El Paso Parkland, the Cobre varsity and JV teams, Lovington, El Paso Riverside and Hot Springs.

Brian Baca's Ruidoso team will try to shake a three-game skid at the Indians' two-day tourney. The Warriors split a doubleheader with Alamogordo last Thursday, winning the first game, 23-10, before dropping the nightcap, 4-3. In Roswell Saturday, Goddard got the best of Ruidoso twice, 9-6 and 19-9.

Two Warriors shoulder the load

Behind the one-two punch of Brett Meyer and Brad Davidson, the Warrior baseball team split its doubleheader with Socorro Saturday.

Ruidoso lost 10-6 in the first game, before rebounding for a 17-15 win in the nightcap. The Warriors improved to 2-5 with the weekend split in Socorro.

Both Davidson and Meyer have put up gaudy numbers at the plate in the last three outings for Ruidoso. Unfortunately for coach Rodney Webb, they are the only two swinging the bat consistently at this point in the season.

"Right now we have two guys absolutely carrying us," Webb said.

Here are the numbers to back Webb's statement:

• Davidson, who had never hit a home run in his varsity career, has five batters since Thursday. He's batting .718 with 19 runs batted in.

• Meyer is hitting .655 as the Warriors' leadoff man. He's rapped out 20 hits with no strikeouts through last Saturday.

With no dominating pitcher in its bullpen, Ruidoso must rely on scoring bunches of runs, Webb said.

"We're kind of at the crossroads of the season. Some of our kids are playing well right now, especially defensively," Webb said. "We've got different guys in different slumps. We just need more consistency in the bottom of the order."

Webb is counting on senior shortstop Scott Sebastian to start swinging the bat better.

"Scott is going to come around. He got out late from basketball. When he gets there, he going to really start driving in runs," Webb said.

Webb's young, inexperienced pitching staff is making strides. The third-year Warrior coach simply wants his pitchers to throw strikes. "They are developing control and we're trying to get them to develop their curve balls," Webb said. "But velocity is what gets batters out and they just don't have it yet."

Webb found a pleasant surprise in freshman Tristan Torres. Torres picked up a save in his first varsity appearance Saturday in Socorro.

"He gets a lot of movement on the ball," Webb said of Torres. "He's a typical side-armed - the ball tails and breaks down. It's tough to hit."

Ruidoso played Tularosa Tuesday (scores were too late for press time), and was slated to play Cobre Saturday in its home opener. But that district doubleheader was pushed back to May 5 because the ACT college entrance exam was also scheduled for Saturday.

Artesia 21, Ruidoso 7

The Bulldogs put up a football-like score to score the win over Ruidoso in Artesia Thursday, 21-7.

Artesia, which has three of the last five Class AAA state baseball championships, hit the stitching off the ball against the Warriors.

"They're the best hitting high school baseball team I've ever seen," Webb said. "Top to bottom in the order they could just absolutely hammer hit."

The Warriors did manage to score seven runs against the Bulldogs' top two pitchers, but it wasn't nearly enough.

"As strange as it sounds, we really didn't play bad. They were just a lot better team than us," Webb said.

► FISHING

Looking for a big catch?

BY MIKE HYMAN
RUIDOSO NEWS OUTDOORS CORRESPONDENT

April 1 is synonymous with the beginning of fishing season in the Sacramento, and it marks the opening of Bonito Lake - one of anglers favorite fishing holes.

The following is a descriptive guide to fishing in the area.

Bonito Lake

Located five miles off Hwy 37, Bonito Lake is a favorite because, in part, of a regular stocking program throughout its fishing season, which runs April 1 to Nov. 30. (No boats or floating devices are allowed, however.) The lake is stocked with rainbows, complemented by a fair number of native brook trout.

The fishing is good on a wide variety of flies, lures and baits. Of course power bait and salmon eggs are big producers, but to add a little adventure to your next outing try bubble rigs dragging streamers nymphs, Pistol Pete's and spinners or kastmasters or some type of spoon at varied depths and speeds.

Fly fishing here is somewhat challenging - the hard part is finding the back cast space. Some of the more common fly selections are caddis, heatis and midge patterns. This lake is a consistent producer and worth the trip.

Bonito River

The Bonito creek above and below the lake is a demanding fishery. It is small and overgrown for the most part with a fair population of resident brook trout and an occasional rainbow. Some spinners work well but the lion's share of the catches are on flies with the same flies working in the lake as in the stream.

Eagle Lakes

The Eagle Lakes off Ski Run Road are on the Mescalero Apache Reservation, and will open some time in May. To fish Eagle Lakes, a daily fishing permit is required from the tribe, but not a state license.

These lakes are a visual treat with the fishing just as good as the view. Holdover and new arrival rainbows dominate these waters, and fairly mossy bottoms make the lure and bubble rigs the top producers. Don't rule out dry flies

Ruidoso little league needs a contractor

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Progress on improvements at the Gavilan Canyon baseball field will come to a standstill if a contractor doesn't step to the plate for the little league baseball association.

Members of the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Commission learned at their Monday meeting that the old concession stand has been razed, but plans for the new concession building are on hold indefinitely.

PARC had earmarked $15,000 of its $68,000 share in recreation money from Lincoln County to go toward the concession stand/restroom facility.

Parks and recreation director Rafael Salas told commission members that he hasn't received a bid on the project yet. Salas said he needs a contractor in order to pull the permit and build the stand.

"It's hard to believe there's not a contractor who has some kids playing little league, who would be willing to do so," said commission member Ron Anderson.

Salas is seeking bids on the 19-foot by 19-foot structure. For more information, call Salas at 257-5030.

Fishing report

Ruidoso River flows are excellent. Off and on clear and muddy. Fishing is sporadic, but highly productive at the right times. Wide variety of nymphs and a few dries.

Bonito Lake opens today, April 1. Should be good between weather fronts. Try pheasant tails and green rock worm - will know more by the weekend.

Bonito River flows are excellent, and expect this stream to be sporadic also. Baetis and caddis larva are strong suggestions. Grindstone Reservoir lake is filling nicely. Fishing is improving. Lots of evening risers.

Hurd Ranch flows are great. Fishing is sporadic also. Streamers are a good choice.

Lake Mescalero is virtually full. Bank fishing only. Midges and adam's and varied nymphs are best bets.

Closed waters include: Eagle Lakes, Silver Lake and Upper Canyon on the reservation. "Runoff should last at least 90 days. These flows generally produce the best fishing of the year. Go fish!"

FISHING: Find the fish in these local rivers and lakes

either in the evenings - BWO, caddis, Adams are good to start with.

Alto Lake

Alto Lake, after the drought of '95, has refilled but true to the nature of things, lakes generally take two to five years to stabilize before the lake can support a fish population again. The oxygen, PH and nutrient levels must reach even ground before stocking can take place.

Ruidoso River

The Ruidoso River can be looked at in five sections - the reservation, the Upper Canyon, midtown, the Downs and the valley. The Ruidoso has the most diverse population of trout in the Sacramentos with rainbow, German Brown, brook trout and a few hybrid cutthroats.

The reservation area along the Ruidoso River generally opens in May. It is a tight, overgrown stream where patience and skill will determine success. Here, spinners, dries and nymphs are the ticket. This section has brookies, browns and rainbows. These will be small fish in small water.

The Upper Canyon portion of the Ruidoso primarily holds browns and some rainbow. This section begins to open up and contains some good-sized, bedrock pools with some casting room. These two sections are best fished catch and release, with spinners and flies. The mainstays are stone fly nymphs, caddis larva and hoppers in the summer.

Ronnie Tafoya of Clovis braved last year's wet opening day conditions.

In midtown and the Downs, the river opens up more, and it contains good pools and good casting space. Browns and rainbows are evenly distributed here with spinners and flies producing best. The insect population begins to diversify as well with the addition of beaties, mayfly and scuds.

The lower end of the midtown section contains Ruidoso's own quality water section where artificial flies and lures are the rule. This area is a great place for fly fishing with plenty of back cast room.

The valley section includes the Hurd Ranch and other private waters. More browns can be found here; even some large browns at times. The previously mentioned tackle and flies will work alone with the addition of the streamer class for the fly fisherman. Muddlers, dace minnows and other streamers will produce some respectable trout here throughout the year.

Grindstone Lake

Grindstone Lake, because of its proximity to town, receives its share of pressure, but it's a consistent fishery for rainbow mostly, with a few scattered browns. Boats and float tubes are allowed, but you must get a safety inspection from the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department before launching your craft.

The tackle for this lake is the same for Bonito. Bait is the top producer, but the lures and flies, which are overlooked by most anglers, can be just as productive of the right days.

Lake Mescalero

Lake Mescalero, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, is fished on a daily permit basis. Rental boats are available in the summer. Browns, rainbows and some Cutbow live in this fishery. Bait is also a top choice, but try some dare devils and kastmasters. Fly selections include hornbergs and irresistables. Try fishing from a boat.

Silver Lake

Silver Lake, between Ruidoso and Cloudcroft, is less frequented, and usually a good lake to try during the dog days of summer. Evening hatches of midges and tossing lures will surprise most anglers with their results. This lake also is fished on a daily permit from the reservation.

Penasco River

Access to private water along the Penasco River is available from several landowners.

It is one of North America's nicest spring creeks, and one of the hottest hopper waters around in mid-summer. It's mostly catch and release for the serious fisherman and a wonderful stream to fish. (There will be more on this stream in future articles.)

Here's one last bit of information about fishing in the Sacramentos: The fish are where you find them on this mountain range, including small streams and tributaries. However, most of the running water should be fished respectfully, and catch and release is greatly appreciated.

New license year opens with fishing season

A new license year begins today for New Mexico anglers and sportsmen. Before casting away, anglers must purchase a fishing license from the New Mexico Game and Fish Department. Fishing enthusiasts can buy their licenses at two places in the Ruidoso area, Western Auto and Wal-Mart.

Cost for licenses are:
 • One-year resident license is $18.50
 • One-year non-resident license is $40
 • One-day license is $9
 • Five-day license is $17

(Please note - Anyone fishing on U.S. Forest Service or Bureau of Land Management lands must buy a $5 Wildlife Habitat Improvement validation as well. For example, fishing the streams above Bonito Lake in the White Mountain Wilderness requires the $5 habitat stamp.)

Western Auto's Jim McGarvey said his shop is prepared for the onslaught of anglers.

"We're loaded up and ready to go," said McGarvey, who sold thousands of fishing licenses last year.

Carrizozo residents and officials push to keep detention center

Carrizozo Mayor Manuel Hernandez at a meeting Sunday in Ruidoso Downs argues to keep the county detention center in his town.

By DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The discussion was civil, but about 40 Carrizozo residents who attended a special Sunday meeting in Ruidoso Downs, didn't mince words about their contention a new Lincoln County jail should be built in their town.

The existing jail, understaffed, crowded and out of compliance with some state and federal standards, is part of the county courthouse in Carrizozo and adjoins the Sheriff's Office.

County Commissioners voted last month to build a new jail and directed members of an ad hoc jail committee that recommended construction, to draft a request for proposals (RFP) for management of the existing jail until construction is completed on a new detention facility, which may include a juvenile section.

The proposed time frame for the contract is one year with options for two, six-month extensions.

What responsibilities will be borne by the company and by the county will be left up to the management firms to propose. The fee can be negotiated after the responding companies are ranked in terms of preference by commissioners.

Responses to the advertisement for management proposals of the existing jail are due back by 10 a.m. April 9, because the county's contract with Corrections Systems Inc., already extended twice, runs out April 14.

"Help us solve the problem, don't be part of it," Gary Mitchell told people attending the meeting. Mitchell, a Ruidoso attorney, chairs the ad hoc committee appointed by the commission to study the jail situation and to help draft a request for proposals to build a new one.

Carrizozo Mayor Manuel Hernandez and the town's trustees submitted a letter outlining the municipality's proposal to donate 12-acres for a new jail and, possibly, land for a mobile home park to house additional jail staff hired to operate the new and larger jail.

The acreage is part of the town's industrial park, a few miles away from the courthouse. Utilities and roads are in place.

Specifically, Carrizozo officials offered:

- To give a site at no cost and large enough to include district and magistrate courts, lightening the cost to taxpayers.

- To line up businesses and ranchers, as well as public service projects, to create a work release program for inmates.

- To offer continuing education and college classes through Carrizozo Municipal High School.

They also reminded the committee that keeping the jail close to other county offices would be a plus. For instance, the county treasurer manages the inmates fund and the assessor's office is involved in arranging property bonds for inmates.

If a life-threatening incident occurred, in Carrizozo, the sheriff's office would be nearby, as would the Carrizozo Police Department, they pointed out.

The town also has an airport close to the proposed site and a newly constructed medical facility built by the county.

"The town of Carrizozo is the only realistic location for the new detention center facility," Hernandez wrote in the letter.

But Mitchell said the Carrizozo Health Clinic does not have a trauma center; only the Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso could offer that service.

The county also needs more than 12 acres to allow the criminal justice center, encompassing the courts and jail, to grow, he said.

At a previous meeting, Mitchell recommended the jail be built somewhere between Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Capitan.

"I made the recommendation based on the cost of transportation and programs," he said. "The jail ought to be centralized closer to the population (for access to work programs, families of inmates, counseling and continuing education).

"But if we can build and operate it for less cost in Carrizozo and all things add up, we'd have to see if that works. Having the infrastructure in place could save $300,000."

However, if Ruidoso spends $300,000 to $350,000 maintaining its small jail and transporting prisoners to Carrizozo or picking them up for court dates, and centralizing would save $500,000 a year in operating money, the money difference would have to be made up somewhere else, Mitchell said.

"Ninety percent of the people using the courts and jails come from Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Alto, and now Capitan and Hondo."

"If it's not centralized, there must be other incentives," he said.

The projected cost of operating a 100-bed jail is $2.6 million a year, but that could be cut to $1.5 million with work programs, he said.

The cost of keeping inmates who are on a work program is as low as $10 a day compared to $26,000 a year for inmates kept in their cells, he said.

Long term cost effectiveness and safety are factors for putting the new jail and the courts in the same complex, he said.

But county employee Walter Hill of Carrizozo pointed out it would save $300,000 if the court system was left in the courthouse.

One site mentioned for the jail is county-owned property on Sierra Blanca Airport Road, but one woman pointed out that would be a drive for everyone, including people from Capitan, Ruidoso and Carrizozo.

"If the cost analysis says Ruidoso is a more efficient site monetarily over Carrizozo, you as taxpayers have to decide—do we give more social value to Carrizozo than to Ruidoso," said District Attorney Scot Key, a jail committee member. "Does that override all of the other concerns?"

Although Commissioner Rex Wilson and Chairman L.

Ray Nunley were in the audience, they didn't speak during the meeting.

When he left, Nunley told the crowd, "It's too early to panic. This is a fact-finding committee and we're hear to listen to your concerns."

Commissioner William Schwettmann serves on the jail committee and also was in attendance.

The meeting had been advertised as a commission meeting, because the county anticipated more than two commissioners might show up.

Schwettmann questioned if the county was asking too much out of the possible bidders by requiring programs the jail doesn't currently provide such as a library and recreation.

But Mitchell said limited exercise time is provided in an enclosed yard and some books are provided. Both programs would be expanded in a new jail.

"We want to be as close to compliance as we can get," he said, adding that most of the inmates in county jail are not convicted felons and have a right to vote in elections, another accommodation that must be met.

"People can live in a facility that's in bad shape, but if you take some of these privileges away, it could provoke a lawsuit quickly," Mitchell said.

Former jail administrator Wayland Hill's willingness to work with defense attorneys and the courts in trying to resolve issues and to keep the jail population under control for the past decade is the major reason the county hasn't already been sued, Mitchell said.

Hill also saved the county $5 million by not forcing it to have to build a new jail earlier.

In the end, no matter what the committee recommends or companies propose, county commissioners will decide who and how the old jail will be managed, and where the new jail is built and how it will be run, he said.

Several spectators asked that the next meeting be conducted on a Saturday and in Carrizozo to promote better attendance.

Fighting AIDS on the front line, and winning

New Ruidoso doctor happily trades high-profile role for 'a wonderful time'

• From national AIDS conferences and a Washington, D.C., lifestyle to a small town medical practice, Janet Arrowsmith-Lowe has happily shifted gears.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

On her last day of medical residency, Janet Arrowsmith-Lowe admitted a patient with AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) to the hospital where she worked.

It was the first case of the deadly disease at the University of Alabama hospital, which has since become one of the top AIDS research centers, Arrowsmith-Lowe said.

"AIDS kind of became the big issue of the center," she said.

The disease also became a big issue in Arrowsmith-Lowe's life.

Arrowsmith-Lowe, who recently began practicing internal and family medicine in Ruidoso, went on to be one of the nation's leading physicians in the early fight against AIDS.

When facts about the disease and how it is transferred were still sketchy at best, Arrowsmith-Lowe was busy educating other physicians as well as the public.

She spoke at conferences, traveling constantly. She was on national panels about the issue. She was interviewed by CNN. She drafted national guidelines for AIDS treatment while with the U.S. Public Health Service. And she reviewed a drug for the FDA which is now a cornerstone of AIDS treatment.

"We knew it was going to work," she said of the drug 3TC. "We just didn't know in what dose."

Now, 3TC is used in combination with AZT and what is known as the HIV cocktail with considerable success in fighting AIDS, Arrowsmith-Lowe said.

Whether researching, reviewing, educating or working with patients, Arrowsmith-Lowe was on the national AIDS front lines for more than a decade.

"It is just so fascinating," she said, referring to the many different medical and scientific studies encompassed by research of the disease.

What makes it so rewarding are recent results, she said, adding that the national mortality rate from AIDS has dropped.

"Finally, it's a whole new ball game — it's become more of a chronic disease and not a deadly disease," she said recently at an interview in the Ruidoso office where she practices internal and general medicine with Dr. Chris Robinson.

Her AIDS fight is not Arrowsmith-Lowe's only claim to national recognition. The physician, who is a board certified specialist in internal medicine, has testified before Congress about Versed, a drug that allows conscious sedation during certain medical procedures.

She established a reduction in Reyes Syndrome, when children suffer negative reactions to aspirin, because of the increase in use of acetaminophen when treating children.

She was editor of the government's weekly epidemiologic publication, Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. And she has written more than 20 articles for publication in professional journals.

Arrowsmith-Lowe also served as a faculty member at the Georgetown University Medical Center in Washington, and as a clinician at the Whitman-Walker Clinic's Elizabeth Taylor Medical Center in Washington.

However, "The most important part of my accomplishments are those two up there — my little bunnies," she said, indicating several pictures on top of a bookcase.

She and her husband, Dr. Thomas Arrowsmith-Lowe, adopted their two children, Eliot, 4, and Victoria, 5-1/2, in 1994 and 1992, respectively.

About two years ago, Arrowsmith-Lowe made the decision to change lifestyles so she could spend more time with her family. She and her husband came to the Ruidoso area, where his parents live. Within a week, she had taken a job with the Mescalero hospital, the couple had found the house of their dreams and had begun the moving process.

"I am committed to Ruidoso, and I love my in-laws," Arrowsmith-Lowe said.

In February, Arrowsmith-Lowe decided to open a practice with Robinson.

The question: "What are you doing here?" is one she hears often.

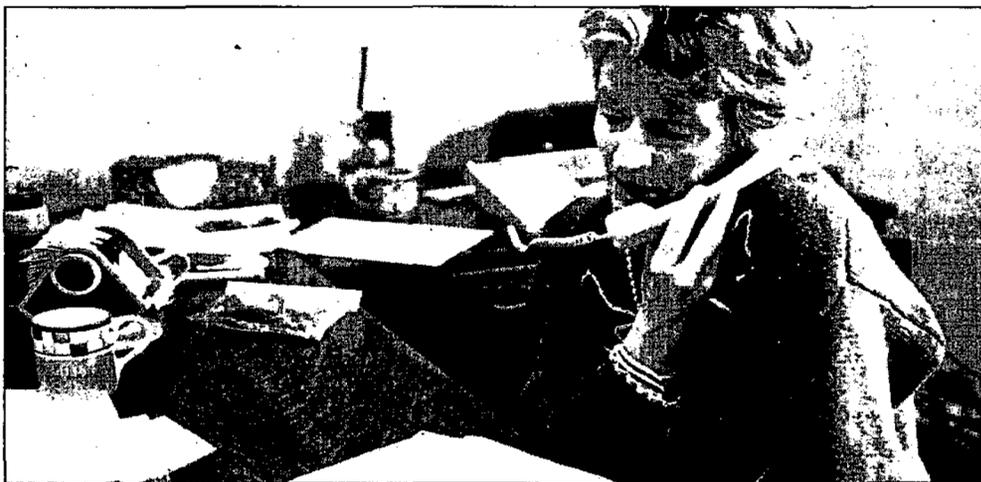

"I answer that I am having a wonderful time."

"We knew it (the new AIDS drug) was going to work. We just didn't know in what dose."

Dr. Janet Arrowsmith-Lowe,
New doctor in Ruidoso

Dr. Arrowsmith-Lowe and office assistant Suzie Malis prepare a patient's medication at the Ruidoso office. Arrowsmith-Lowe shares with Dr. Christopher Robinson. She came to Ruidoso after a busy, high-profile career with the Public Health Service.

After years years in the Public Health Service, Dr. Arrowsmith-Lowe is finding happiness in a new private practice in Ruidoso.

Area 'road warrior' runs the gauntlet to Bosnia for the Army

BY RAY GOMEZ
ARMY/AIR FORCE NEWS SERVICE

TAZAR, Hungary — They are known as "road warriors," and they most definitely live up to their name. These truckers look no different than any other young men and women who drive their 18-wheelers along the highways of America.

But the son of a Ruidoso man and an Alamogordo woman is a road warrior of the truest sense, making sure their trucks, loaded with critical supplies, get through to their destination in Bosnia amid such uncommon distractions as land mines, shelled roads, confrontational border guards and, at times, armed factions dotting the hills along the way.

Army 1st Lt. Donovan O. Fuqua, son of Douglas Fuqua of Ruidoso and Mary Fuqua of Alamogordo, is a member of a transportation station based out of Brucke, Austria, which serves as a Bosnian staging base for the movement of supplies into the unstable Balkans.

With just over 100 soldiers supporting the mission out of Kaposjulak, Hungary, Fuqua's work tempo is high. If the unit isn't supporting supplies into Bosnia, commonly called the "box," then it's traveling to Austria to pick up supplies brought in from Germany.

Fuqua and his unit play more than one role in the organization. They are trained in a variety of areas of the mission and must be ready to move at a moment's notice.

"I am currently the stabilization forces liaison officer to the Austrian military. I coordinate movement of traffic going from the balkans to Germany and vice versa. I am also an assistant operations officer for the transportation battalion," Fuqua said.

"This is my third tour in the Balkans and my 16th month in the theater of operations. In all that time, I have seen the theater, especially Bosnia, go from a war zone in ruins to a country on the mend. It seems that now it might have a bright future," he said.

Fuqua and his fellow truckers share a bond that goes beyond long hours traveled down lonely highways, often separated from family and friends. Their uniform and the dangerous conditions they often face make them road warriors in the truest sense.

1st Lt. Donovan Fuqua is responsible for ensuring convoys of supplies and equipment make it to troops in war-torn Bosnia.

'Distinguished Warrior' named

Honoring their best

* Ruidoso High's best and brightest, 102 strong, were recognized at an annual academic awards banquet last week.

Approximately 16 percent of the Ruidoso High School student body received awards at the annual Academic Awards Banquet March 25 in the Teepee Lounge at the school. Each of the 102 students honored had a grade point average of 3.5 or higher.

Awards were presented in three categories which included Academic, Principal's List and the prestigious Distinguished Warrior Award. To qualify for the Academic Award, students need a 3.5 grade point average or higher. The Principal's List Award goes to students with a grade point average of 3.8 or higher.

This year's Distinguished Warrior Award went to Myra Romero. Only seniors are eligible for the award, and the teaching staff votes on the recipient who must achieve excellence in academics, extracurricular activities and athletics.

The Academic Award Banquet was started by James Sanchez, Sandy Gladden and Dub Williams about 17 years ago when they wanted to honor students who had achieved excellence in academics in the same way students in sports and other pursuits were recognized.

The banquet itself is prepared by high school students whose sponsor is Deborah Durham. Businesses also help sponsor the event and this year included Aramark Corporation, First National Bank, First Federal Savings and Loan, Monte Sherrill, Josten's Representative, Norwest Bank, Pioneer Savings Bank, Rotary International, Ruidoso State Bank, Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Sierra Bank, Zia Natural Gas Company, the Evening Lions and an anonymous donor.

Each class has one teacher and one student who speaks for it at the banquet. This year the speakers for the freshman class were teacher Galen Farrington and student Saras Sharma; sophomore class, teacher Donna Willard and student Alexis Hoff; junior class, teacher Mike Morris and student, Miranda Diaz; and senior class, teacher Raymona McAdams and student Max Beatty.

After the dinner, the National Honor Society Installed two seniors and 19 sophomores. New members are Fernando Bonilla, senior; Veronica Roybal, senior; and sophomores Alexis Hoff, Charles Flanary, Monica Keyes, Ben Andrews, Collin May, Stephan Hardeman, Jeremiah Simmons, Cassie Bednorz, Dustin Justus, Evan McClendon, Selina Steed, Stacey Genta, Irene Enriquez, Deanna Morrison, Juan Arreola, Tara Cluff, Amber Green, Anna Sutton and Margie Mazurek.

A student may become eligible for the National Honor Society after the freshman year by first having a 3.5 or above grade point average. Then he or she goes before the Valiant chapter, the Ruidoso chapter of the National Honor Society, which evaluates the student on four criteria—scholarship, character, leadership and service.

Myra Romero was all astonishment when she was announced as the Distinguished Warrior Award winner last week during a banquet at Ruidoso High's Teepee Lounge.

Local summer science camp open to students

BY ELAINE HOBBS
 RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Recruiting has begun for the fourth annual free summer science camp in Ruidoso, entitled "Intergalactic Explorations: Summer Science in the Mountains."

Co-sponsored by the Ruidoso Center of Eastern New Mexico University and NASA, the three-week day camp is for students going in grades 7 and 8 in August and will take place at Ruidoso Middle School from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, June 22 through July 17 with a break for the July 4 holiday. Facilities and computer labs at ENMU also will be utilized, and frequent long field trips to scientific installations all over New Mexico are scheduled.

The camp is designed to encourage students to remain in school through high school graduation; to choose science, mathematics, engineering or technical courses throughout middle school and high school; to develop student and parent awareness and knowledge of science, mathematics, engineering and technology career opportunities in the U.S. Space Program and other organizations; to encourage students to become interested in a science, mathematics, engineering or technology career; and to encourage more students to go to college and major in these fields.

Jim Miller, director of ENMU-Ruidoso, said "Minorities and girls are especially encouraged to attend because they are not usually well represented in these fields; but of course boys are always welcome too."

He said a website, designed by a local sixth grader, will be available on the internet on April 1 on the Eastern Home Page at enmu.edu/Ruidoso. Students may visit the website to obtain more information about the camp. Transportation also is free outside the Ruidoso area.

To attend, students need the recommendation of one teacher; express an interest in mathematics, science or computers; and be able to attend all three weeks of camp every day without exception. Students are required to bring sack lunches.

Brochures and applications are available from most Ruidoso area middle school science teachers or counselors or from ENMU-Ruidoso. Application deadline is May 1. For more information, call the Ruidoso Center at 257-2120, 1-800-934-3668, or Carla Burns, Ruidoso Middle School at 257-7324.

150th Anniversary of the Beginning The Fight for Women's Rights

150 years ago a group of women and men began the long, hard fight to change women's lives. On July 19 and 20 of 1848, about 300 people came together in Seneca Falls, N.Y., for the first Women's Rights Convention.

We celebrate Women's History Month with a story about this meeting.

Back in 1848, these women of today would never have had the career opportunities women and girls have now. Do you know who they are?

Declaration of Sentiments

"We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men and women are created equal..."

According to the declaration, unjust treatment included:

- Under the law, married women were not treated as independent people.
- Women could not vote.
- Women had to obey the laws, but didn't get to make the laws.
- Married women could not own property.
- Husbands could beat women or lock them up.
- Divorced women could not keep their children.
- Women had to pay taxes, but did not have a say in setting those taxes. This was called "taxation without representation."
- Women were not allowed to work at most jobs.
- When women did work, they earned only a small part of what men got.
- Most colleges refused to enroll women.
- Women had to depend on men for everything.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, leader of the convention, modeled the women's demands after the Declaration of Independence. They were called the Declaration of Sentiments.

Drawing based on plaque at the Women's Rights National Historical Park, Seneca Falls, N.Y.

Answers: 1. Astronaut Shannon Lucid, 2. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, 3. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

Meet Amy Grant

Singer and guitarist Amy Grant has been performing for more than 20 years. In that time she has won five Grammy awards and sold more than 18 million albums. Her latest album, "Behind the Eyes," came out last September.

Amy started her career as a Christian singer.

Her first pop album came out in 1985. One of her biggest hits, "Baby, Baby," was written for her daughter.

Amy grew up in Nashville, Tenn., the youngest of four children. She now lives on a farm near Nashville with her husband, singer and songwriter Gary Chapman, their son and two daughters. She likes playing golf.

The Women's Revolution

Start of the struggle

Women leaders first battled other wrongs before they fought for their own rights. They fought against the sale of alcohol and against child labor. Most were abolitionists, or fighters against slavery.

In 1840, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and her husband Henry Stanton went to a worldwide anti-slavery convention in London. But organizers refused to let women into the conference. They made women sit behind a screen and told them to be quiet.

This unfair treatment made Elizabeth Stanton and another woman, Lucretia Mott, angry. They realized they had to fight for women's rights, too.

The first women's rights convention was held near the Stanton house in Seneca Falls, N.Y. This house is now part of the Women's Rights National Historical Park.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton

Elizabeth Stanton was unusual because she was very well-educated. At that time, no colleges let women take classes.

She was the mother of seven children.

For years she gave speeches and wrote articles about the rights of women and black people. She and Susan B. Anthony edited three books on women's fight for the vote. She died 18 years before women throughout the United States finally got the vote.

(1815-1902)

This woodcut appeared in a story about the first Women's Rights Convention in Seneca Falls, N.Y., in 1848. Elizabeth Cady Stanton is reading the Declaration of Sentiments to people attending the meeting.

The convention of 1848

Elizabeth Stanton and Lucretia Mott were in charge of the first women's rights convention in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

The people at the convention all agreed to fight against many injustices against women. But they could not agree about women's right to vote.

Women voting was such a strange idea then that even these people at the meeting did not agree about it. The convention split into two sides. It was not until Frederick Douglass spoke out for the women's vote that many changed their minds. He said women and slaves all had the right to be free. You were not really free unless you could choose your own rulers and make your own laws, he argued.

After he spoke, a majority of the delegates agreed to work for the right of women to vote.

Lucretia Coffin Mott

Lucretia Mott taught school for two years. She became a Quaker minister and led groups fighting against slavery. She worked for world peace, and was the mother of six children.

She fought for years for the rights of women and black people. The Mott home was a stop on the Underground Railroad, where escaping slaves could find safety.

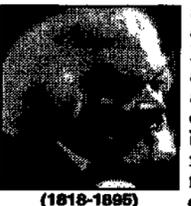

(1792-1880)

Frederick Douglass

Frederick Douglass was born a slave. His owner's wife taught him to read and write. At the time it was illegal to teach slaves to read.

When he was 20 he escaped to freedom. He became an important author, newspaper editor and speaker. He spoke out against alcohol abuse, and in favor of women's and black people's rights. He was the father of five children.

(1818-1895)

The Mini Page thanks the National Park Service, Women's Rights National Historical Park, Seneca Falls, N.Y.; and the National Woman's History Project, Windsor, Calif., for help with this issue.

Next week The Mini Page explores "Star Wars," and modern myths.

Update

Lincoln County considers its future

At the invitation of the Ruidoso News, several dozen elected officials and community leaders gathered at the Ruidoso Civic Events Center on Tuesday.

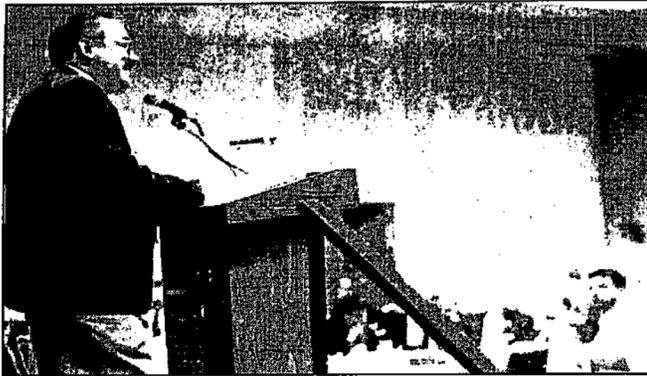

The officials gave a picture of where they stand today, their plans for the near term, and — yes — their hopes and dreams for the future of people living in Lincoln County.

In morning and afternoon sessions, those attending listened closely to each other, offered suggestions, and developed plans that they hope to implement in the months and years ahead.

Of particular interest during the luncheon, to several, was a presentation by a trio of Ruidoso High School students seeking to establish an inter-generational community center designed to enhance communication between students and the community's adult population.

That was enough to get an immediate promise of support from Ruidoso's Mayor Robert Donaldson.

Toni K. Laxson/Ruidoso News
Ruidoso Village Manager Gary Jackson describes the "visioning" being undertaken by residents and village officials.

Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News
Those attending the luncheon dined on roast beef from The Village Buttery, and listened to short presentations by representatives of Ruidoso, the county, the public schools, ENMU-Ruidoso and Lincoln County Medical Center.

Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News
Environment and growth issues occupies attendees during an afternoon session conducted by the Village of Ruidoso. It is part of the village's ongoing "visioning" process aimed at developing a unified plan for growth.

Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News
Capitan Schools' Diane Billingsley describes the struggle the district is having to keep up with growth.

Tuesday's Community Update was the 5th annual event sponsored by the Ruidoso News. Publisher Tamara Montes, on behalf of the staff of the newspaper, expressed thanks to all who participated and otherwise attended the event.

Toni K. Laxson/Ruidoso News
Ruidoso schools' presentation draws an attentive group of listeners during a morning session.

ABOUT

There's nothing quite like the charm and elegance of an older home. But before you buy, there are some potentially shocking things to look for -
