Apache election wrought with confusion

List of presidential, council candidates on ballot changes twice within two days

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

► RELATED STORY, 3A

Four candidates in the Mescalero Apache Tribe Sept. 28 primary, who were removed from the ballot Wednesday, were back on again Thursday.

After meeting with members of the tribe's election board, they were told board members voted to reverse themselves and reinstate Oliver Enjady and Ben Martinez in the race for president, and Betty Smith and Charles Shanta in the tribal council contest.

Members also insisted that the election be conducted with electronic voting machines in line with a process put in place by Rufina Laws while she served briefly as election board chairman. Tribal President Sara Misquez and two other members of a special tribunal removed Laws Monday.

"Right now, I'm really happy," said Enjady, 47, former tribal vice president. "Each of the candidates removed from the list went into the election board meeting individually, so I don't know what the others said, but I went over the minutes of the tribal council meeting" where the council voted that he could run for public office despite his removal from the vice presidency in May.

"They called all four of us back in together. Several election board members told us they had voted and we were back on. According to the election process rules, their decision was final."

The election board and tribal council met jointly in an afternoon closed session.

Council member Harlyn Geronimo said at first, the council almost overturned the election board. But armed with the minutes retrieved by Geronimo showing Enjady attempted to resign when he and former president Paul Ortega were accused of overspending the tribal budget and that the council told him he could run again, the election board refused to budge from its reinstatement decision, Geronimo said.

The voting machine issue also bounced back and forth, he said. Its attorneys advised the council that electronic machines are a legal option.

Geronimo offered a motion to use the machines, which was supported by council members Glenda Brusuelas, Larry Shosh and Christie La Paz. The latter two are candidates for reelection in the primary. Council members Arthur "Butch" Blazer, Dorilyn Simmons and Ray Mendez abstained from voting, Geronimo said.

Contacted Thursday, Laws said she's proud of the decision.

"I feel very strong about the fact that under my leadership, we got electronic machines," she said. Previously, voters marked hand-counted paper ballots.

Laws said before the joint meeting delayed her appearance, she was scheduled to discuss her removal as election board chairman with the trib-

Ruidoso, county clash over prisoners

Contract over housing inmates in question

• Ruidoso and county officials have different views about the existence of a contract to house village prisoners at the Lincoln County Detention Center.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Whether the village of Ruidoso has a contract with Lincoln County to house its prisoners at the detention center in Carrizozo became an issue during the motorcycle rally last weekend, when Ruidoso's holding cells reached capacity.

"On Saturday night, they refused to take some of our prisoners. They said they were out of space. It turned out that they were not out of space," Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson said this week.

Tuesday, the Ruidoso Village Council is to discuss the disputed contract, which Donaldson says exists but Lincoln County Attorney Alan Morel and Mike Borego, detention center administrator, say doesn't.

"We have got room, and we make room for anyone that we have contracts with. We do not have a contract with the village of Ruidoso," Borego said. "And in the absence of any contract, we are not going to take them."

Donaldson declined to discuss details of the dispute, saying he wanted to present the issue to the public and village councilors himself at Tuesday's council meeting, but he was adamant that Ruidoso does have an agreement with the county.

"I will definitely delve into that because I very much remember being at a meeting where we discussed the jail issue and we took care of all of that," Donaldson said. "And I remember Mayor (Manuel) Hernandez from Carrizozo standing up and thanking me for making sure that the same deal we worked out for the village of Ruidoso also included all the other municipalities. So, again, there is a contract."

The issue, he said, is "whether the citizens of the village of Ruidoso are treated equally and fairly as citizens of Lincoln County. And there will be substantial discussion on that subject."

The problem started late Saturday evening, when police officers brought in more than the normal number of prisoners to the Ruidoso

Lankhorst-Ballard murderer gets more than a life sentence

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A stone-faced Charles Martinez was sentenced to life plus 10 years and six months Thursday for his role in strangling a 28-year-old Ruidoso woman in March 1998.

Before 12th Judicial District Judge Karen Parsons pronounced sentence, Martinez apologized for his actions.

But members of victim Elizabeth Lankhorst-Ballard's family were not in the courtroom to hear his words. Martinez's mother and sister sat in the courtroom next to the defense table.

The 40-year-old who often dressed like a woman and took on the persona of "Eva," will be sent to Grants for evaluation to determine where he will serve out his sentence, a court clerk said. He will be eligible for parole in 35 years.

Martinez was found guilty of first-degree murder in June in the strangulation death of Lankhorst-Ballard. The Otero County jury also convicted him of tampering with evidence and conspiracy to commit murder.

The body of the 28-year-old woman was found buried in a shallow grave about one month after her disappearance.

The property outside Tularosa where the body found was owned by the mother of Christopher Faviell, who also is accused in the murder. Faviell dated Lankhorst-Ballard during a break in his long-time relationship with Martinez.

Faviell is scheduled to stand trial Nov. 1 in Lincoln County.

During Martinez's trial, which was moved to Otero County, Public

Most of Ruidoso Downs was without water Wednesday and was again to be without water for about five hours Thursday, a village official said.

Karen Jones, Ruidoso Downs finance officer, said water service from Zia Gas to east of the village was turned off for road work on U.S. Highway 70. A subcontractor for Meadow Valley Contractors Inc. is replacing a main water line next to the road.

"What they are having to do is lower a 6-inch main to accommodate the road construction. The mains are too close to the road surface," Jones said.

Altrusa, LCMC begin reduced-cost mammograms

Lincoln County Medical Center, Presbyterian Healthcare Services, and Altrusa International of Ruidoso are collaborating on a project to heighten awareness about breast cancer prevention and early detection through mammography.

The goals of the project are to educate women about the benefits of mammography and to make the screenings more affordable for local residents during October, which is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Lincoln County Medical Center employees and community volunteers are wearing head necklaces, along with a button that says, "Ask me about my beads," and are educating other women about mammography through one-on-one interactions with them. The beads, sized from 4 mm to 38 mm, symbolize the actual size of breast tumors detected by various methods of examination. The smallest bead represents the average size detected by women who get regular mammograms. The largest head represents the average size of tumor found by women who are untrained in breast self-examination.

The hospital will perform reduced-cost mammograms for $55 during October for women between 30 and 64 years old. Members of Altrusa, a women's service organization, will coordinate the screenings. To schedule an appointment, call Diane Vowel at 258-4210 starting today.

Two of the common reasons women give for not getting mammograms are fear of radiation exposure and concern that the screening will be painful. In fact, the amount of radiation received during a mammogram is very minimal, and the procedure may be mildly uncomfortable, but it is rarely painful. The benefits of early breast cancer detection far outweigh any fears women may have.

"Participating in community health improvement programs is part of Lincoln County Medical Center's commitment to improve the health of local residents," said Dave Blackmon, radiology department director.

Lincoln County Medical Center is managed by Presbyterian Healthcare Services, the state's largest not-for-profit healthcare delivery system. Lincoln County Medical Center provides a wide range of physician services and comprehensive emergency, diagnostic and surgical care. Carrizozo Health Center is also managed by Presbyterian. A local community Board of Trustees governs Lincoln County Medical Center.

County funds improvements to area senior centers

Senior citizens across Lincoln County should notice some improvements within the next few months at county-operated centers.

County commissioners last week approved a series of construction projects for senior centers in Carrizozo, San Patricio, Ruidoso Downs and Capitan.

Commissioners accepted the $18,108 low bid of Sombrero Construction of Capitan for upgrades of the gas line into the Carrizozo Senior Citizens Center and of the bathrooms to meet Americans with Disabilities Act standards.

The contractor will install exit lights, new metal doors and an overhang in back of the building to prevent rain damage and to re-stucco the rear of the building.

The San Patricio Senior Citizens Center will receive new shutters, a disabled-accessible toilet and a 6x6 foot cement pad at the end of the disabled-accessible ramp.

All American Buildings of Capitan, which bid $2,720, will do the work.

ABC Construction of Alto, which bid $3,090, was awarded a contract to replace an existing water heater with a commercial grade and to expand the enclosure for the heater at the Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens Center.

The company also turned in the low bid of $4,416 for work at the Capitan Senior Center.

The project consists of installing a dishwasher and sprayer attachment and three lighted exit signs over doors, and of removing old carpet, repairing the floor and installing a new carpet with no pad.

The money to pay for the work, $36,700, came from the state Agency on Aging for improvements to the buildings. After the four projects are completed, $8,000 will be left, County Manager Tom Stewart said.

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley asked to use some of the remaining money to relieve flooding on the back patio of the senior center in Corona.

JAIL: Butts said there should have been plans made for overcrowding

Police Department. Standard capacity at the jail is nine - three women and six men. On Saturday and early Sunday morning, 15 prisoners were booked into Ruidoso's holding cells, though some were able to bond out, Becky Forster, dispatch supervisor, said.

A Ruidoso dispatcher called Magistrate Judge Butts at about 10 p.m. Saturday because of the overload.

"And she was very worried because they were almost full with more coming in," Butts said. "She said, 'The county refuses to take them until they come see you.'"

Once a magistrate judge arraigns the prisoners, they become county prisoners, which would solve the problem of where they were housed.

However, Butts said the potential for overcrowding at the jail should have been thought of earlier.

He said he does not arraign prisoners on weekends for a couple of reasons: the arraignments are supposed to be done in what is called an "open court," which is not possible on weekends, and without court clerks to handle files, the arraignments become difficult, if not impossible.

"I am not going to come down there to see a bunch of drunks as they are brought in so I can do arraignment orders," he said. "So, I called (County Commissioner L. Ray) Nunley and asked him for help. And I understand that he was up until 1 or 2 in the morning trying to get this resolved."

Nunley said he put County Manager Tom Stewart and Ruidoso Chief of Police Lanny Maddox together to work out the problem, and complimented Maddox for handling the situation. Maddox, in turn, sent a letter applauding a sergeant at the detention center for his cooperation, Borego said.

Though no village prisoners were housed in the Carrizozo jail, Maddox extended appreciation to Sgt. Kenneth Vega, Borego said, adding that in face of the letter, he didn't know what Ruidoso leaders are upset about.

"It seems to me that he was very well pleased," he said.

Maddox said he sent those letters to everyone who assisted his department during the rally.

Morel said Ruidoso is the only municipality in Lincoln County without a contract for housing prisoners at the Carrizozo facility. The village and county have had contracts in the past, but were unable to reach an agreement for the current year.

"And it is just something we need to fix," Morel said. "The county is willing, ready and able to enter into one."

al council. She planned to question the propriety of Misquez's involvement in the election process, because Misquez is a candidate.

Laws said she tried to bring new blood into the election process.

"I was totally blown away" by the strong objections voiced in letters from some of the election board members, many of whom didn't attend meetings while she was chairman, she said.

Misquez issued a letter to tribal members Tuesday detailing the reasons for Laws' removal, saying she showed political bias in her position as chairman.

Laws contended her discussions with election board members were of an educational nature, not advocating particular political action.

The election board is suppose to be autonomous, but that hasn't been the case, she said.

"People are so fearful it paralyzes them and their understanding of what's right," Laws said. "I told (the tribunal) power doesn't interest me, but the welfare of the tribe does."

The primary is five days away, but Enjady said corrected candidate lists are to be posted at eight places in the Mescalero community.

Election board chairman Elizabeth La Paz offered no public explanation about why the four were removed from the list the day after Laws was ejected as chairman. Martinez's residency was questioned at the special interim president/vice president election in July, but the 28-year-old banker who splits his time between Las Cruces and Mescalero, was allowed to run then.

La Paz, Martinez, Smith and Shanta could not be reached for comment Thursday.

"It's been a struggle from day one and a big victory for me, regardless of how the election comes out," Enjady said. "This is what I have been after, to have myself cleared and this is what happened today."

"I urge people to come out and vote," he said. "I'm standing on my open government platform. I fought hard to give them a full field of candidates. Let's get past this and move forward."

The community center polling place in Mescalero will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Other candidates for president are former vice president Frederick Peso, tribal grant writer and consultant Carleton Palmer, housing employee

Peter D. Kazhe, community activist and counselor Joseph Geronimo and Mark Chino, criminal investigator and son of the late Wendell Chino, longtime tribal president.

Others running for four tribal council positions are former Judge Harrison Toclanny, interim Judge Philbert Choneska, police Officer Robert A. Kie, Frederick H. Kanesevah, former council member Berle Kaneseah, Dorene Fernando, who has a bachelor's degree in business administration and has worked 16 years with the BIA in Indian Health Services, housing employee Jackie D. Blaylock Sr., Cordell Balatche Sr., Charles Smith, former council secretary Sandra Platero and Gregory Mendez in the natural resources division.

MURDERER: Martinez could be paroled from prison in 35 years

Defender Regina Sewell pointed to the lack of direct evidence linking her client to the crime and suggested he was framed by Faviell and a mutual friend.

Assistant District Attorney Canon Stevens countered that confessions by Martinez and Faviell to friends were evidence enough of their involvement.

Martinez was jealous and irritated by Lankhorst-Ballard's continuing and often contentious relationship with Faviell, Stevens said.

When Lankhorst-Ballard, who was the mother of a young son, arrived late March 9 at the home the two men shared on Evergreen Street in Ruidoso, Martinez hit her twice with a coffee thermos, according to court records.

As Lankhorst-Ballard laid on the floor, he straddled her, strangled her to unconsciousness with her scarf and then told Faviell to finish her off, Stevens said, adding, "That's calculation, that's deliberation and that's first-degree murder."

road is being dropped as much as 3 feet in places, which means the water lines have to be lowered as well, project officials have said.

Water was turned off Wednesday morning but was to be back on by 6 p.m., Jones said.

Water for the affected area was scheduled to be turned off starting at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

It was scheduled to be back on by noon, Jones said.

She recommended that residents set aside water for the outages, which may continue into Friday.

Ruidoso Downs village officials did not find out about the subcontractor's intention of doing the work until Wednesday, Jones said. About 50 complaints about the water outages came into the village's administrative offices during the day Wednesday, she said.

Ruidoso mayor moves to revamp planning and zoning process

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso Mayor Robert Donaldson has talked with Glen Barrow publicly and privately about a plan to expedite changes to the village's planning and zoning regulations.

"And I respect his opinion," said Barrow, chairman of Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission. "But I respectfully disagree with his opinion."

Tuesday, Donaldson is to present an ordinance amendment that would allow him and Ruidoso village councilors to propose planning and zoning ordinances themselves. Village councilors Tuesday may schedule a date for a public hearing and vote on the regulation change.

Currently under village law, planning and zoning ordinance changes must be presented to the council from the appointed volunteers forming the commission. And before the Planning and Zoning Commission offers those recommendations, it holds public hearings.

Then, the council also holds public hearings on the issues before a final vote that may or may not concur with the commission's recommendation.

Donaldson, at a Sept. 14 council meeting, first suggested changing the rule when he learned village law prohibited the council from voting on a two ordinances proposed by him as part of his efforts to increase the village's "user friendly" quotient.

It was Barrow who pointed out and endorsed the rule. He said the measure afforded the public due process and more review, among other benefits.

"I think primarily Planning and Zoning deals with the issues more so than the council," Barrow said. "I can't say that we know more about what's going on, but we deal with the meat of the issues. When it comes to the council, it is just a summary."

"With all due respect, I don't see that there is that much urgency in the issues before the council," Barrow added. "Government needs to be careful and take its time changing laws. That's the process we have and I think we should stick with it to make sure we don't make mistakes."

Donaldson said the rule should be changed to expedite ordinance amendments that otherwise could take months to pass into law. Due process is not skipped because the council still holds a public hearing, and more than one if the issue is controversial, he said. In addition, state statute does not require a planning and zoning commission's input.

"I think it is a very reasonable thing," he said of the proposed ordinance. "And, again, it is not taking anything away from planning and zoning."

If his proposal is passed, the council can still send ordinance amendments to the Planning and Zoning Commission for review, public hearings and votes before coming back to the council. But the council also could ask the commission for a recommendation without a prior public hearing.

If the ordinance change was in regard to operations in the planning department rather than regulations, the council also could elect to not defer to the commission at all and take an ordinance directly to a public hearing at the council level, Donaldson said.

The goal, he said, is to better serve the public.

"This isn't about the council, the staff or the planning administration - this is about making the government work for the people," Donaldson said.

Village Councilor Leon Eggleston said Thursday he had not yet seen Donaldson's proposal.

"But I don't have a problem with the way we are doing it right now," he said.

If a minor glitch was found in an ordinance, then he could see the council being able to act quickly to fix it, Eggleston said.

He didn't see any other need for the council to side-step review by the Planning and Zoning Commission, he said.

"Otherwise, we would be doing all the planning and zoning, and I don't want to do that," he said. "That's why we have the commission. They are charged with making recommendations to the council. And I think we should use them."

Barrow, in upholding the status quo, referred to the cliché: "If it's not broke, why fix it?"

"And I can't figure out why the council wants all the power, what are they afraid of, why do they want to take away the process," he said.

Donaldson, who declined to respond to comments, said residents were frustrated with village planning and zoning processes.

Tribal president should be 'disqualified'

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Sara Miquez, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, should be disqualified to run for re-election, because she violated the tribal code, says another candidate for the post.

Joseph Geronimo, a community activist and substance abuse counselor, wrote a letter to the election board Wednesday saying board members have no choice but to remove Miquez as a candidate.

"Tribal employees are required to take leave during the time they file as candidates and must remain on leave until the elections are concluded," Geronimo wrote. "As of today, Sara Miquez has not taken leave. Therefore she must be disqualified as a candidate."

"The laws must be applied equally to all persons in a democracy."

The primary is set for Tuesday and the general election for Nov. 2. Miquez, former administrative secretary to the late president Wendell Chino, was elected as president in a special July vote to serve until the regular election. Eight candidates signed up for the presidential primary, but Wednesday two of the names, former vice president Oliver Enjady and banker Ben Martinez, were removed without explanation from the previously certified list.

Geronimo also challenged an election board decision to allow voters to vote for two candidates in the race for president and for four in the race for tribal council.

The winners in the primary for president are to be the two candidates who receive the most votes. Each voters should cast only one vote in the presidential race, he contended.

Tribal code restricts the number of votes per voter in a primary to four candidates, Geronimo pointed out.

"There is only one tribal president position and four tribal council positions; yet for the election board to allow the voters to vote for two (presidential candidates) and only four votes for the tribal council position is contrary to logic and can only be suspect. It is also illegal," he wrote.

Election board chairman Elizabeth LaPaz did not return telephone calls to the Ruidoso News Thursday.

RUIDOSO AGENDA

The agenda of the Ruidoso Village Council meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday will include:

Mayoral presentations
• Presentation from Rafael "Rifle" Salas, director of the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department, on the upcoming Trek for Trash campaign
• Report by Mayor Robert Donaldson about a proposed community center to include an indoor swimming pool, recreation center, village offices and teen center.

Public hearings
• Hearing and vote on a restaurant beer and wine license for Richard Giro, owner of Le Bistro at 2800 Sudderth Drive.

The company will pay the village an annual lease amount of about $11,000 for the middle tract.

• Discussion and possible action to schedule a public hearing on an ordinance amendment relating to site plan approvals before the Ruidoso Planning Department and Planning and Zoning Commission.

• Discussion and possible action to schedule a public hearing on an ordinance amendment regarding the types of signs allowed.

• Consider scheduling a public hearing for an ordinance regarding sewer issues.

• Discussion and possible action to schedule a public hearing for an ordinance amendment that will allow the council to originate amendments to the village's planning and zoning codes without going through the Planning and Zoning Commission, first.

• Discussion and possible action on issues relating to the Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant Joint Use Board.

• Discussion of Lincoln County Commission actions.

DOWN AGENDA

The agenda of the Ruidoso Downs Village Council meeting at 5:30 p.m. Monday will include:

• Consideration of a resident's request to pay a $201 water bill in installments because of a water leak.

• Consideration of a request to forgive $52 on a sewer bill because of a water leak.

The council also will consider approval to publish an amendment to the village's sewer treatment plant ordinance to accept additional grant money from the New Mexico Environmental Department. The sewer plant, which is operated under a joint agreement with the village of Ruidoso, is undergoing a large renovation project that has increased in cost from $850,000 to $1.2 million, Leann Weibrecht, village clerk/treasurer, said.

OUR OPINION

Just whose business is it, anyway?

People who live on the Mescalero Apache reservation are doubly blessed—or cursed. Surrounded by some of the most beautiful land in the world, they yet struggle to make ends meet.

The people seek the things of the outside world even as they strive to preserve their heritage as indigenous people of the North American continent.

They want a better life for their children, and so eagerly support schools and modern education.

Over the years they have developed industry by using the land's resources. They supply timber that is turned into paper, demonstrating at the same time the right way to protect their mountain environment. Cattle ranching has been a mainstay for generations. They have created jobs for many of their people by learning to mine the wealth of the rest of the world through tourism and gambling.

From their mountain fastness, they have used the tools provided by the state and nation—a federal constitution and the rule of law—to advance their own interests, aided in great part by the backlash of sentiment that came about as America recognized the horrors perpetrated on them in the 19th Century.

Their tribal government today is framed in something resembling democracy—a constitution, a court system, an elected council to set policy, elected executive officers to carry out policy.

But for decades—perhaps forever—in practice there has been no democracy for the Apaches. After the Indian wars of the last century they became prisoners, then wards, of the federal government and therefore found little to admire in our vaunted democratic traditions for themselves.

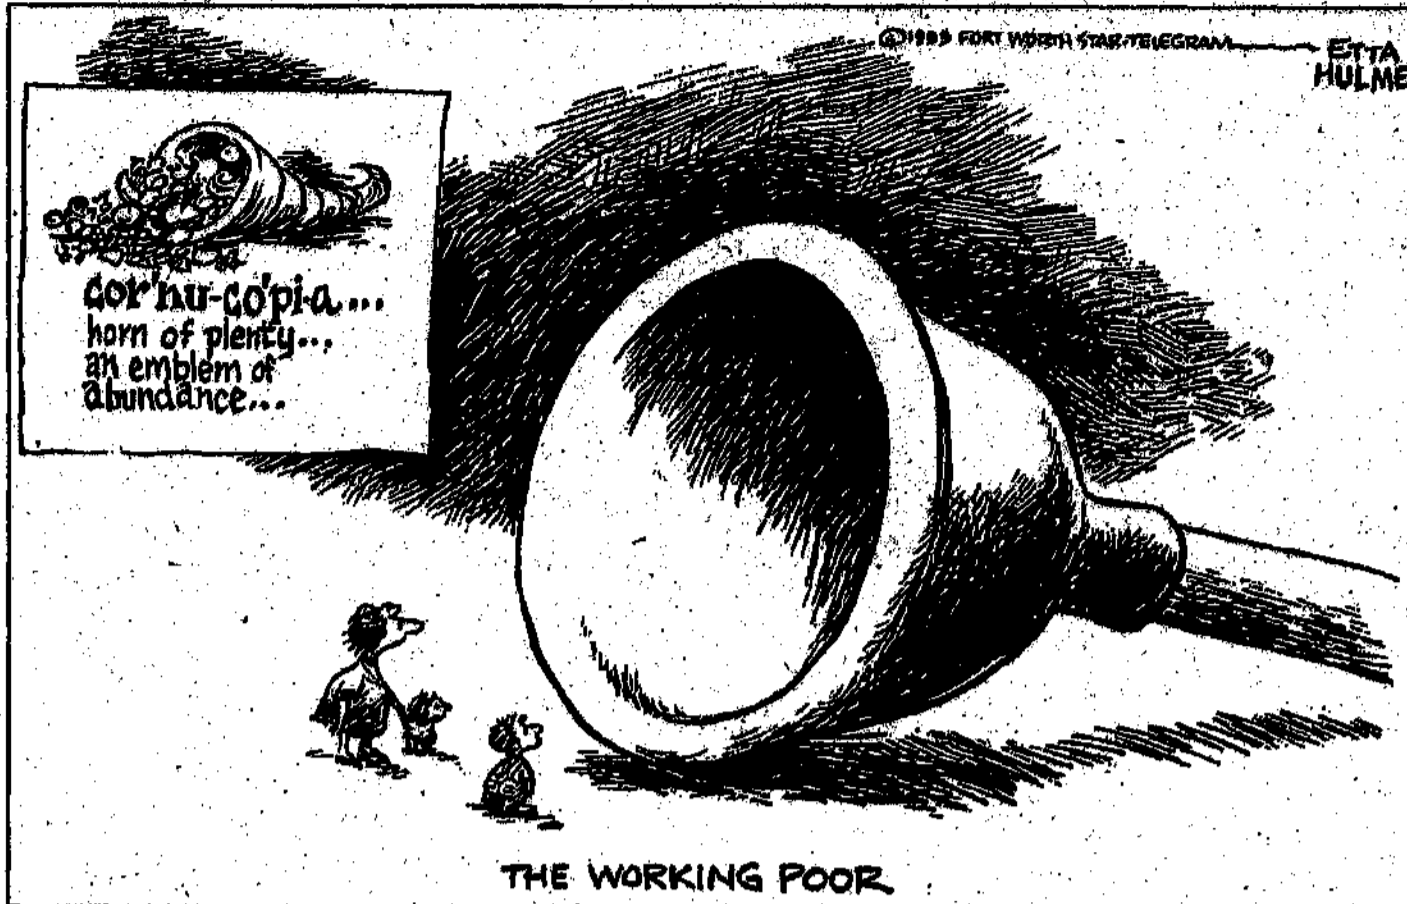

The overt success of long-time tribal President Wendell Chino—never one to let rules block his projects—did little to demonstrate the merit of that messy, inefficient thing called democratic government. Top-down command is so much more efficient.

Since President Chino's death, some Mescalero Apache people have tried to redirect the people toward true self-government—of, by, and for the people.

Yet almost daily it is demonstrated that naked power is the only rule that applies in tribal government.

But, because the reservation is a closed society under United States law, only the people can change it.

And those outside the reservation can only hope that with time the majority will see the value of genuine self-government.

YOUR OPINION

Too many handouts

To the editor:

You and I will never live long enough to see the Mescaleros pay the state the 116 percent of their slot machine revenues they agreed to pay when the compacts were signed. How would the Indians like to pay 25 percent to the state and another 20 percent to the horsemen?

Being how the state has made (itself) an unwanted partner of the racetrack casinos, the least it can do is to give the race tracks table games and the same hours the Indians have.

If I was a legislator I'd feel the racetracks are being cheated and I'd probably give them anything they wanted. At least they are paying the state the amount of money they are supposed to pay. All the Indians are doing is crying wolf. I think this earth was put here for all of us and I don't think any of us should have special consideration because of our race or color.

The trouble with our country is, no one is looking for a job anymore. Everyone is looking for a position. I blame this on our federal government for too many handouts.

Open plea to Mayor

Please do Animal Control Officer Peggy Williams a favor and take the time to examine the pickup truck that she has to drive every day.

Peggy recently assisted me with problems with wild cats and I was shocked when I saw the condition of the driver's seat she has to sit on in her rounds each day. Someone as hard working as Peggy is, and such an asset to the Village as she is, deserves better.

Recently you made the claim that there was such a surplus in the city's budget that we could afford to take on added bonded indebtedness in the form of recreation facilities, etc. If there is money for new recreation facilities, etc., then surely there is money to at least do a re-upholstery job on her truck's front seat.

Posted by: R. Donaldson, Sept. 17
It's in this year's Budget for Peggy. I never stated there was a budget surplus. What I said is that we have the bonding capacity to build the indoor swimming pool/parks and rec office/teen center / community recreation center without raising the current level of property tax millage we pay. We are considering a ten-year bond, which is a short term for a project of this scope. This shorter term will save us hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest charges. If we build this project all in one phase instead in two, we also will save into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. One thing we have done differently than in the past, is to have the project designed up front so as to have accurate construction costs. We did this to be able to build the project that people expect and build it to the budget we have planned for...

Posted by: J. L. Schuller, Sept. 18
Thank you for your courteous reply. And I appreciate you taking the opportunity to explain yourself regarding the taxing authority....

I think that you are going to be fighting an uphill battle getting a bond vote through if you can't come up with a specific plan to pay for this facility that won't be interpreted as an added tax for an already overburdened community. Contrary to appearances, there is a large segment of this community who are NOT well-heeled second-home owners...

Posted by: Just passing through, Sept. 19

I couldn't tell in all the wordy reply if Peggy is getting her truck fixed up or not? It would be nice if the politicians or government representatives would just answer the question.

GUEST COMMENTARY

The Demo slant on Wackenhut

BY DIANE D. DENISH
N. M. DEMOCRATIC PARTY CHAIR

Recently, various issues surrounding the chaos engulfing the privately run prisons in New Mexico have surfaced. My counterpart in the Republican party has made many attempts to distract attention from the Republican administration of Gov. Gary Johnson and his failed attempts to save the state money by bringing private prisons to New Mexico.

The issue surrounding Wackenhut in New Mexico is not one of politics, but of management and accountability. Governor Johnson has broken his promise to save money for the taxpayers. Now, he is spending more taxpayer dollars than before to transport and house prisoners out of state, to fund SWAT teams during riots, to cover liability costs if the State of New Mexico is faced with wrongful death suits, and to fund the much needed inquiries into activities at the privately run prisons.

Why does this situation exist? The explanation is simple. Gov. Gary Johnson, in a poorly thought-out plan, forced private prisons on the state. In his customary fashion, he refused to work cooperatively with a bipartisan legislative conference committee in 1997 to build state-owned and -operated prisons. Then, after Republican Sen. Bill Davis of Albuquerque created a filibuster in the State Senate over the issue, Johnson went to great lengths to insure the badly needed prisons were handed over to Wackenhut, Inc., a private corporation. Now that Governor Johnson's private prison escapade has been a true disaster, the Republican Party chair (John Dendahl) wants to sidetrack the discussion to avoid the truth.

The Republican Party chairman, if he is truly interested in good government, should call for a broad inquiry into all Wackenhut connections in New Mexico. Who is on their payroll? Who profits from land sales in areas surrounding the prisons? Who awarded the contracts? What elected officials have received contributions from Wackenhut and the individuals who run Wackenhut? What candidates receive contributions from Wackenhut lobbyists?

Shouldn't these questions be asked about everyone, including the governor, legislators, and county commissioners?

Mr. Dendahl in his midnight missives would have us believe the pro tem of the senate (Sen. Manuel Aragon, D-Albuquerque) is responsible for everything right down to Hurricane Floyd if it would detract from the real issue of accountability by Governor Johnson. It's an old maneuver, but New Mexicans aren't buying it. New Mexicans want accountability for the Johnson administration disaster of privately run prisons. The only way to achieve this accountability is to support an inquiry that focuses on everyone involved—from start to finish.

NOTE— The writer is a former candidate for lieutenant governor. Aragon, a lawyer, resigned this week from his position as a consultant for Wackenhut Corrections Corp.

Speaking in all candor

John F. Kennedy got a big political boost before he attained the presidency with a book called Profiles in Courage.

Now a couple of old Santa Fe hands, Jack Flynn and Charles Cullin, have published one called Profiles in Candor through Flynn's publishing enterprise, Capital Government Reports.

Few people are better equipped than

Flynn and Cullin to pin down such governors as Dave Cargo; Jack Campbell, Ed Mecham and Jack Dempsey. Flynn has been analyzing New Mexico politics and sometimes skewering state politicians since 1959.

Those of our readers who get their electricity from Otero Electric Cooperative will recognize him as the author of a regular column in "Enchantment," the monthly publication of the New Mexico Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Cullin served as Cargo's press secretary in the early 1960s, set up and directed the State Film Commission, and for a time wrote "Inside the Capitol," a syndicated newspaper column started by the late lamented Will Harrison almost at the dawn of creation and now written by Jay Miller.

Now Cullin has produced and directed a just-released documentary piece about a long-famous, unsolved southern New Mexico political murder. It's called The Silence of Cricket Coogler. Cullin was able to get another notable name—John Ehrlichman—on board by having him narrate part of it.

The notoriety of the Cricket Coogler case probably got Mecham elected governor. He was involved as Doña Ana County DA in the late 1940s.

Flynn, in a preface, writes that "too much, if not all, history is so sanitized or propagandized that not only is it inaccurate, most of the time it's downright dull."

Ex-Gov. Bruce King, with some help from a friend, a year or so ago wrote one of those "history" books. Its saving grace was King's own sense of humor and a willingness to lift the veil just a bit from old-time political shenanigans.

Profiles in Candor, if it lives up to its name, should be at least as good. You can get it for $9.95 from Capitol Government Reports, P. O. Box 6703, Santa Fe, N. M. 87520-6703.

Now, if that book would just reveal who killed Cricket Coogler, it would really be a treasure...

But it won't.

The Coogler case is as deeply buried in the sands of time as is possible; it was beyond a reasonable doubt a "political" murder that was never solved.

Audrey Reich and Chelsea Bishop drive bumper cars at Funtrackers with perception-warping glasses, to see what it feels like to drive under the influence of alcohol.

Event to emphasize the danger of drunk driving

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A free evening for teens is planned at Funtrackers, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Monday, compliments of the Village of Ruidoso/Lincoln County DWI Prevention Program.

The event is open to middle school and high school age people in the county, said Vicki Hise, DWI Prevention Program assistant and organizer.

"Tell them there's free food," said Audrey Reich, a Ruidoso High School senior who on Wednesday volunteered to test out a pair of "fatal vision glasses" that simulate the visual experience of being intoxicated.

A volunteer in the office of Maternal Child Health office called local businesses and persuaded them to donate food to feed 500-1,000 young people, Hise said.

Hise said one of the purposes of the FunFest is to let youth know that the community is concerned about them, and to help bridge the gap between them and the community. The other goal is "to show teens through our prevention program that you can have a good time without intoxicants."

Admission and food are free and T-shirts will be given to the first 75 participants to arrive, Hise said. Throughout the evening T-shirts and other items will be given out.

Hise will have "fatal vision glasses" (DW-Eyes) for people to try on while they're at Funtrackers. The lenses distort vision and simulate a state of drunkenness.

Reich and Chelsea Bishop, who also is a senior at Ruidoso High School, put on the glasses and tried to drive bumper cars at Funtrackers. They also attempted some of the sobriety tests used by police officers.

"Your feet are not where they're supposed to be," said Reich. "When you look at other people they're standing at an angle."

Reich said walking with the glasses on feels like walking on a tight-rope, but driving was "really scary because all of a sudden I ran into something. It came out of nowhere, and I thought, 'Where did this come from?'"

Bishop said she thought it would be scarier with real cars coming at her from the opposite direction.

"I felt I was not close to the rail, and all of a sudden I hit it," Bishop said. "It's scary. I never really knew how much of a difference there is. When you're intoxicated, you don't have the chance to take off your intoxication glasses and see what it's like."

Hise said DWI prevention videos will be shown during the evening - of young prisoners whose lives were ruined when they killed somebody while under the influence of alcohol. The videos also will show parents who have lost their children.

"We want them to hopefully grasp the message that underage drinking and driving can be deadly," Hise said.

Hise encouraged parents and community members to get involved and "to come down and help. In doing so, our teens will no longer be able to say that no one cares about them, and you'll have a great evening too."

For more information, contact Hise at 378-1366.

The DWI Prevention Program is the sponsor of the event. Funtrackers owner Ray Eidson gave the group a "good deal" for the evening, Hise said.

Weight Loss

Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA - Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000 lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat-reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446, www.phillipsgulf.com.

Commission reviews landfill site proposal off of Airport Road

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Everyone needs the service provided by Sierra Contracting Inc., but few people want the company for a neighbor, co-owner Van Patton said last week.

He asked Lincoln County Commissioners during their regular monthly meeting to consider leasing the company a portion of a 125-acre closed landfill site off Sierra Blanca Airport Road.

The proposed location for the company's oxygen-fed, accelerated incineration process is more accessible to residents of Capitan, Lincoln and Alto than its land east of Ruidoso Downs, Patton said.

Because of the long drive to the existing burn site, much of the yard material and construction debris from those areas ends up in arroyos and along back roads, he said. He proposed using about 25 acres of the old landfill site about one mile east of the Spencer Theater for Performing Arts.

Commission Chairman Rex Wilson suggested that during the next month while Patton talks to the state Environment Department and other agencies, he also try to line up support from the theater operators.

Patton said he wants to excavate to form a six to eight-foot tall earthen berm around the burn site and to put up a three to five-foot fence to catch blowing debris.

Commissioner William Schwettmann said the county might be interested in swapping the company's five-acre tract east of Ruidoso Downs for some of the acreage on the airport road. Patton said he'll discuss that option as well as a long term lease or the company buying some of the land.

"It will require more investigation. We wouldn't want to take on the liability of a closed landfill, if there was some kind of contamination," he said. "We're now in the growth pattern and as more building takes place, our neighbors will like us less and less. This move would put us across the street from Tommy White's gravel pit and backed up to Bureau of Land Management land. No one is around."

Noting that Peter Blanchard also wants to use some of the property, he said, "There's plenty for everybody."

Blanchard of Mountain Blues Corporation said he wants to build an amphitheater on a 15-acre tract, initially for a once-a-year performance, but eventually for multiple seasonal performances. With more than 100 acres available, he told commissioners he saw no problem for the amphitheater to be at one end of the landfill property and Sierra Contracting at the other.

Responding to a question from Schwettmann, Patton said his company grossed $171,000 at the incineration site last year, generating about $8,000 in gross receipts taxes.

Schwettmann then questioned if the smoke produced by the concentrated burn would cause a problem for the airport, several miles east. Patton said the amount of smoke is insignificant compared to what's generated during a prescribed burn in the forest.

"You'll need security there on the weekend or everyone will be trying to dump everything at your front door," Schwettmann said.

Patton said he wants to start the process right away, talk to Magistrate Judge William Butts about putting teeth into the illegal dumping law and arrange with the state Highway and Transportation Department for signs.

But Schwettmann said Patton first probably will need an environmental assessment on the land, because part was used as a landfill.

"I don't think it's a neighborhood friendly project with high dollar homes going up in the area," he said. "We need to have public hearings to hear from those people out there. But there's nothing wrong about negotiating."

Patton pointed out that the company doesn't have to move. He's trying to help the people in the county, he said.

"In a three-month period, we diverted more yard waste from Ruidoso than the village produced in household garbage in a whole year," Patton said.

The company also decreased the impact at the village-owned garbage transfer station by about 500 truckloads of material, he said.

"We pay our own insurance and maintain our own equipment," he said. "We're diverting 50 percent of the waste stream, but we seldom get support from anyone."

Commissioners told Patton to move ahead, collect information and come back with an update.

County Attorney Alan Morel said he could advise commissioners about leasing public property, but not about this particular issue because he owns a five percent interest in the company. Whether the county is obligated to seek other proposals for the land depends on if the lease is for more than 25 years and if the value of the lease is more than $25,000.

Case of accused drug smugglers goes to district court

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Two accused drug smugglers, one an 80-year-old man, were bound over to district court Wednesday and their bond set at $50,000.

Mateo Grado, 80, and Saul Muñoz, 23, were arrested last week after a Ruidoso Downs police officer allegedly discovered drug paraphernalia and 83 pounds of marijuana in a car the two were traveling in.

Magistrate Court Judge William R. Butts ruled that the prosecution proved probable cause that a crime was committed and they committed it prior to their arrest on Sept. 17 by Ruidoso Downs Police Officer Kelly J. Calicoat.

Defense attorney Shawn Boyne, from attorney Gary Mitchell's office, argued that there was no evidence to connect her client, Grado, an El Paso man, with the 79 bindles of marijuana found in a compartment under the floor board of the vehicle.

"If all they had to do was deny knowledge, they would all go free," Butts said. "Just because both denied knowledge is not enough reason to deny probable cause."

Assistant District Attorney Bruce Burwell argued that Muñoz, the driver of the 1986 Isuzu and also from El Paso, had given conflicting stories to officers about why the two were headed toward Lubbock

"I think it's incredibly tragic that we have an 80-year-old man incarcerated for something he knows nothing about."

Shawn Boyne,
defense attorney

at 1:30 a.m. Muñoz was nervous, in physical control of the vehicle, and that someone "must have had confidence in him."

The two were charged with possession of controlled substances with intent to distribute and conspiracy with intent to distribute, both fourth-degree felonies.

Calicoat had stopped them on Highway 70 for a minor traffic infraction, and after questioning them, allegedly found a syringe under the drivers' seat.

Muñoz was arrested for possession of paraphernalia and Grado for being intoxicated, and a more thorough search revealed a hidden compartment containing 83.9 pounds of marijuana.

In the case of Grado, Burwell said, it was harder to prove probable cause, but Calicoat had testified that he was fidgety and trying to get out of the car.

"The pot was not visible, he was intoxicated and has to go to the bathroom, the officer said he was helpful, he couldn't see the pot, and the two of them happen to work together at this car lot," Boyne said. "Conspiracy is the weakest charge of all."

Muñoz's attorney, Cindy Turcotte, asked Calicoat if Muñoz had said that someone in a black Buick Regal or Riviera was following them.

Calicoat confirmed this, saying after further questioning that he did not look for the vehicle or put out an alert to law enforcement agencies to look out for the vehicle.

Calicoat said he did notice another vehicle pull into a parking lot near where he stopped the two defendants. When they were taken into custody, Calicoat said, the car pulled out and left eastbound, but he didn't pay attention to the color of the vehicle.

Butts, who initially set the bond at $100,000, said that because the defendants live in El Paso, in close proximity to Mexico, and have been charged with two fourth-degree felonies, there was "some initiative for the defendants to flee."

He reduced the bond to $50,000 upon protests from Turcotte that Muñoz was indigent and has no money for bond and from Boyne that Grado earns $10 per day parking cars in El Paso.

The judge ordered a bond study to investigate the defendants' prior records, local contacts, and reasons they might or might not flee, to be given to the district judge and the prosecuting and defense attorneys.

"I think it's incredibly tragic that we have an 80-year-old man incarcerated for something he knows nothing about," Boyne said after the hearing. "I was watching him when evidence was being introduced and he was in a state of shock."

An interpreter was present during the hearing translating the testimony into Spanish for Grado.

COMMISSION BRIEFS

LCMC work delayed

The completion date for the first phase of renovation at the Lincoln County Medical Center may be March, 2000, instead of late December, said hospital assistant administrator Julie Sterchi.

Reporting to county commissioners on construction at the county hospital in Ruidoso, Sterchi said excessive rain this summer and subcontractors not showing up on time delayed the project.

To save on operation costs, the hospital board decided to create a laundry on the premises instead of contracting for the service. That should cost the hospital 23 cents per pound of wash, a drop from 50 cents, Sterchi said. The move was based on a department-by-department comparison of costs at other hospitals, she said.

Package of bids approved

Lincoln County commissioners approved several bids last week during their regular monthly meeting including:

- The $12,050 bid of Ruidoso Paving to pave the Ruidoso Downs Senior Citizens parking lot. It was the only bid submitted.

- The low bid of ADOC Oil in Roswell of 80.1 cent per gallon for unleaded and 73.3 cents per gallon of diesel for the county's annual fuel supply

- The low bid of AWC Propane of Roswell of 80.5 cents per gallon for the county's annual propane supply.

- The overall low bid of Bonnell Sand and Gravel in Lincoln County of $7.36 per cubic yard for the annual base course supply of the county.

- The low bid of MCT Industries of Albuquerque for one bottom loader for $15,000 and for two salt spreaders at $6,900.

- The low lease figure from Russ Tractor of Albuquerque of $1,419 per month per each of six road graders and $2,390 per month to lease/purchase a bulldozer. County Manager Tom Stewart noted that by not piggybacking on a state bid from DeBaca County, the county saved $6 per lease piece per month. Last month, the late Wilton Howell, a commissioner who died Sept. 1 in a traffic accident, urged the commission to bid on its own and open up the process to other companies.

For the voting Mescalero Apache Tribe I am a candidate for Office of Tribal President

I am a graduate of Tularosa High School and attended both the New Mexico Military Institute and Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado. I am a trained U.S. Army Officer and have worked in different programs for the B.I.A., as well as for other Tribal programs. I have served on several local and state organizational boards of directors and was in the private business sector for awhile. More important, I have served on the Tribal Council and was the Tribal Vice President in past years. My experience in all levels of government enables me to have understanding knowledge of how these governments work.

I have concerns about our Cattle Growers Association, Education, Apache Culture, Elderly, B.I.A., Indian Health Service, Tribal Enterprises and both State and Federal Governments. All these issues must be addressed to ensure that the future of our Tribe is developed so our present and future generations have something that is still the Mescalero Apache Tribe. We must educate, train, dedicate ourselves and be willing to work for our beliefs and protect them. Our past leaders worked to give us. Let us give something to the future to protect the past and continue our Apache traditions with new technology for a new beginning for our people. I dedicate my efforts to our cause to be a greater nation and thank you for your support in doing this.

SPECIAL TAX TREATMENT FOR LUMP-SUM DISTRIBUTIONS.

The distribution must qualify as "lump sum." The IRS defines a lump-sum distribution as a payment in one tax year of your entire balance from all of the employer's qualified plans (of one kind) in which you have funds.

The distribution must have been made for one of the following reasons:

- You have reached age 59 1/2.
- You no longer work for the employer.
- You have become totally and permanently disabled.
- You have died.

Taxpayers who were born before 1936 and were participants in a plan before 1974 are eligible for a 20 percent capital gain tax rate on the distribution.

The rules on lump sums are very specific. However, you can postpone paying tax on all or some of your lump-sum distribution by rolling it over into an IRA.

Holiday shopping gets an early start at Aspenfest

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Savvy shoppers slip a few extra dollars into their pockets before paying their admission to stroll among 80 booths at the fair across from the Gazebo Shopping Center on Sudderth Drive.

"This is our 14th annual fair," said organizer Bonnie Richardson. "It's become very popular. I think the artists and the shoppers enjoy the good weather and the festive, but laid-back mood. It's fun for both groups. Almost half of the spaces are for returning artists."

"We don't jury the show, but we do require that everything be hand-crafted. No manufactured items can be shown."

Artists and crafters bring seasonal decorations, clothing, jewelry, pottery and, in the last few years, special food products such as goat cheese and salsa. Hand-made toys and crafted wood always are a big hit.

All the activity is aimed at benefiting the Ruidoso Gymnastics program, Richardson said.

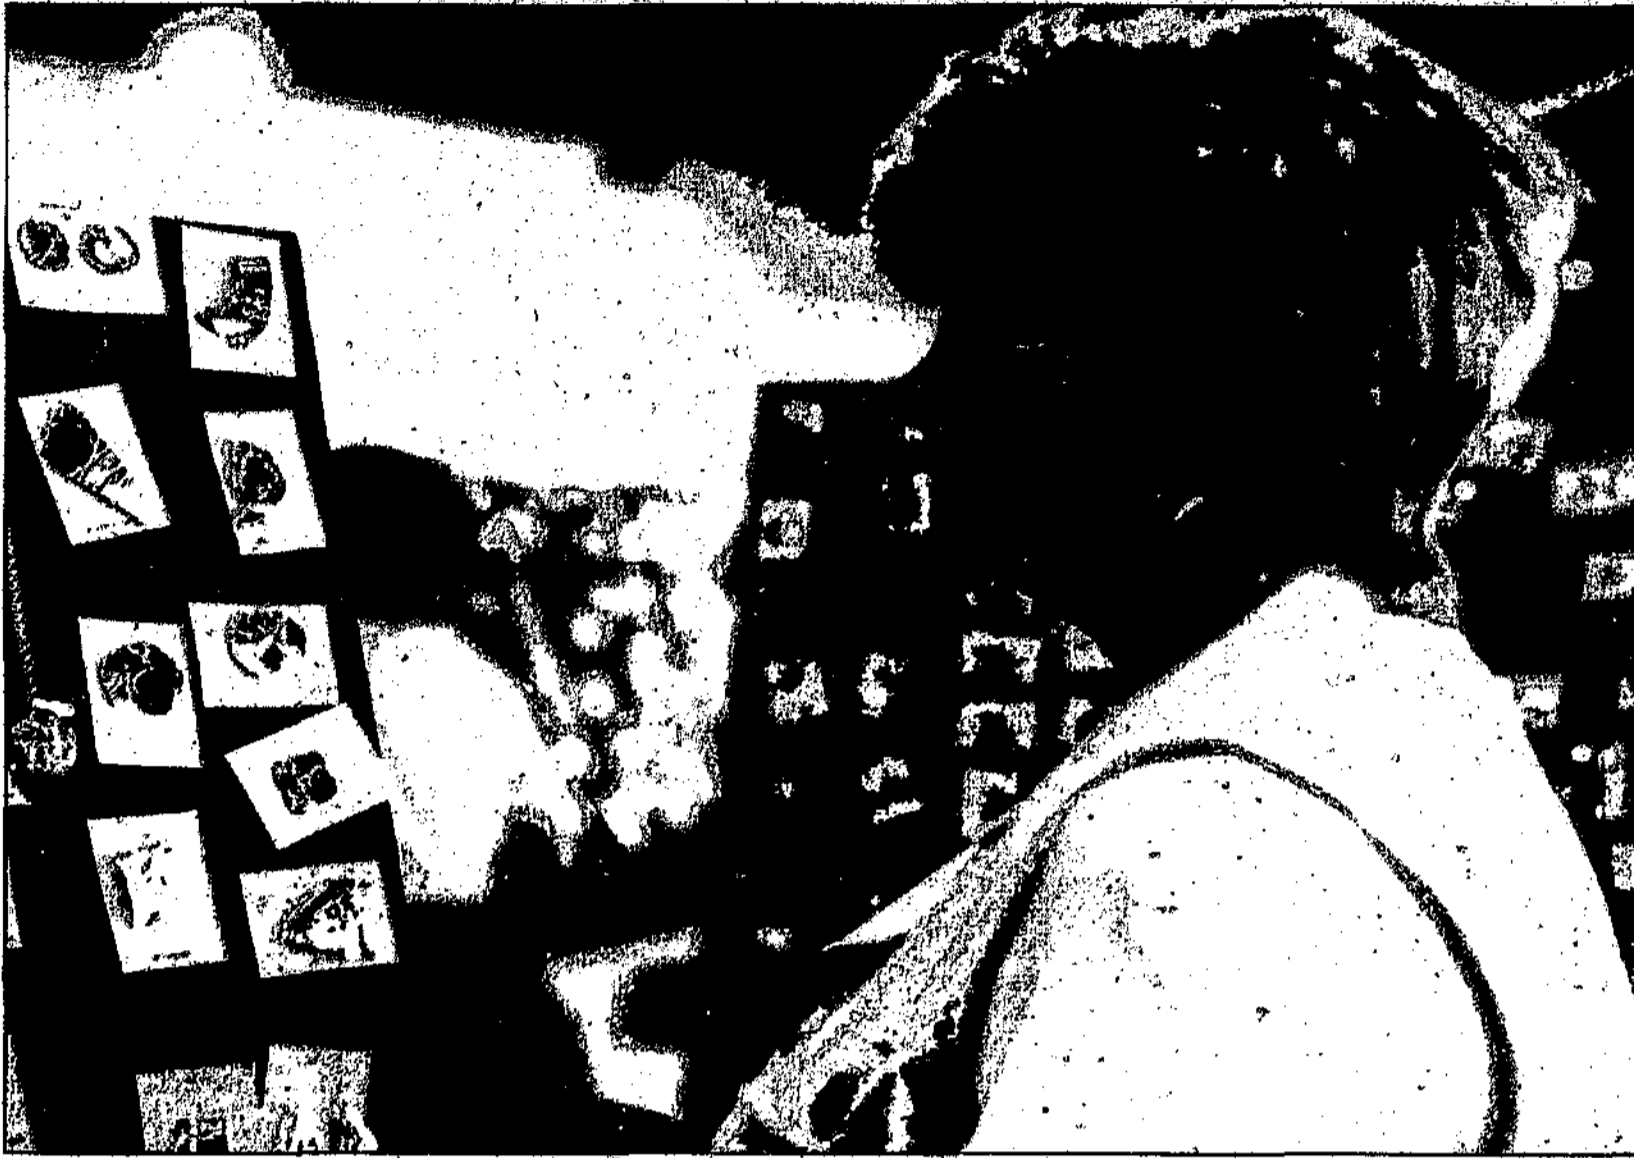

Gate receipts help pay off the gymnastic building, buy equipment and subsidize the program to keep gymnastic participation fees for those in the Ruidoso gymnastics program possibly the lowest in the state, Richardson said.

Program boosters man the food vending carts outside the arts and crafts fair gate. Money raised there helps pay the traveling expenses for children who attend meets.

Begun four years ago, a silent auction also is conducted to generate money for four college scholarships annually awarded to graduating seniors in Lincoln County.

The arts and crafts fair, as part of the Aspenfest celebration, will offer a wide variety of home-made goods — from clothing to food — that are unique to the area.

Saturday and Sunday for items donated by artists participating in the fair. At 3 p.m. Sunday, the highest bidders will take home their treasures. Donated art and craft work will be displayed outside the entrance gate.

The show runs from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct.

3, at the vacant lot on County Club and Sudderth Drive, across from the Gazebo Shopping Center. Admission is $1 for ages 13 and over.

Tigers out to defend Classic title

• Seven other teams in the Capitan Classic will attempt to dethrone the defending champion Tigers. Pool play begins at 1 p.m. today for the two-day tournament.

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Teams that think to stop Capitan is to stop its 6-foot, 2-inch middle hitter Lindsey Bush might want to take into consideration Tuesday's match in Hagerman.

There, the Hagerman Bobcats sent three to the net in an attempt to stuff Bush, the junior Tiger hitter. The Bobcats found out the hard way that Capitan is hardly one-dimensional on the volleyball court.

"They triple blocked in the middle on Lindsey and covered the dink right over the middle person," Capitan coach Bryan Massé said. "She was smart and didn't get frustrated. She just tried to score the points the way they were giving them."

Add in the play of outside hitters Crystal Roybal and Jessica Castaneda and the Tigers swept past the Bobcats in three straight 15-3, 15-13 and 15-3.

Castaneda and Roybal recorded 10 and seven kills respectively in the victory, hitting over, around and through solo block attempts. Shawna Schreengost added seven in the winning cause.

The win improved the Tigers to 6-2 overall as they head into their Capitan Classic Tournament today and Saturday.

The Tigers will be out to defend their 1998 Capitan Classic title, Massé said.

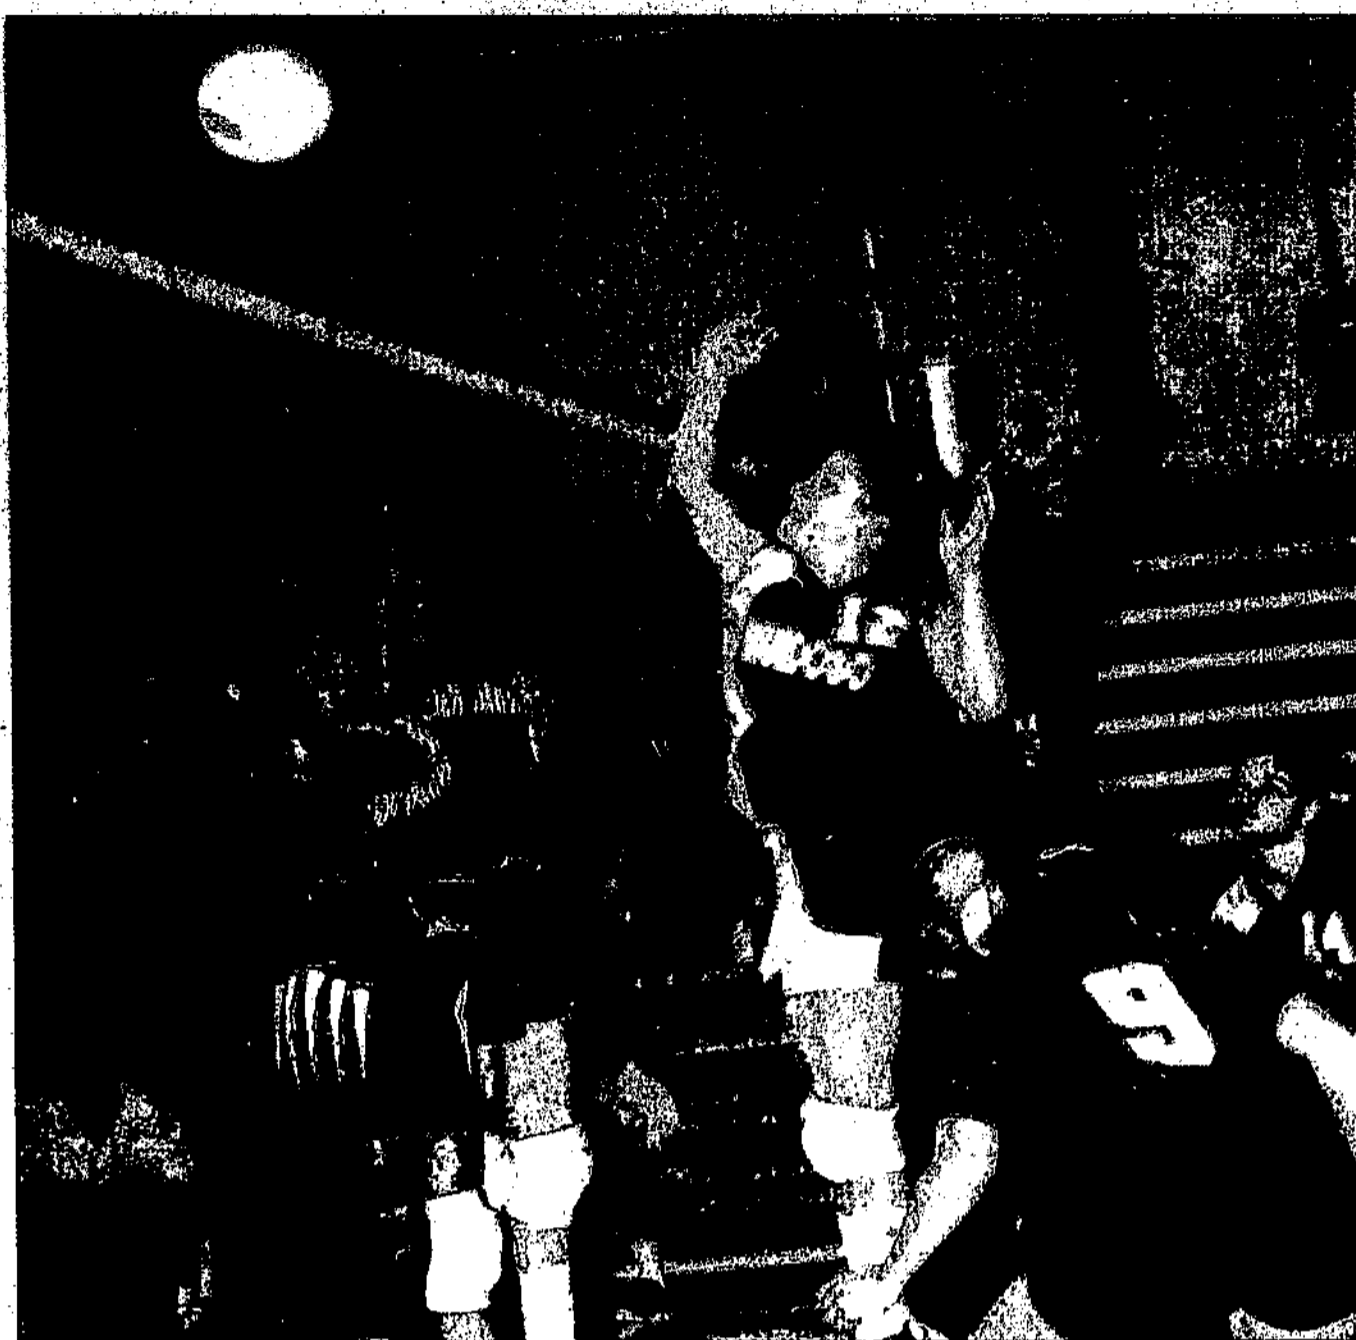

Tournament officials have placed the eight teams entered in the tournament into two pools. Pool A features Capitan, Carrizozo, San Jon and Elida, while pool B has Cloudercroft, Grady, Aztec and last year's tournament runner-up Magdalena.

Teams will play a round robin within their pool and then be seeded into a tournament format.

Quarterfinal matches are set for 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. today. The third-place game is slated for 5:30 p.m. followed by a 7 p.m. championship match Saturday.

"We're getting more consistent. We're learning how to control our emotion so it's not so up and down and more on an even keel," Massé said. "We've just got to grow between the ears. Physically we've got the skills, when we concentrate and read the play."

WARRIORS HEAD WEST

Ruidoso's Julie Miller (No. 12) will face the challenging task of trying to match Silver's Julie Whetton hit for hit today.

Round 1 of Julie vs. Julie

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Ruidoso's District 3AAA volleyball campaign begins in the decidedly unfriendly confines of the Silver High School gym today.

The Warriors (7-2) meet up with Silver's Colts, a preseason favorite to win the Class AAA state volleyball title, and Ruidoso coach Fran Webb figures the match to be a "Battle of Julies" — Julie Miller of Ruidoso versus Silver's all-everything Julie Whetton.

Whetton, who is finally a senior, has been the Warriors' nemesis ever since she's dressed out for the Silver varsity. The Colts' leading hitter makes up for any lack of height with an incredible leaping ability.

"We've got to really block. If we can block Whetton a few times, it gets her rattled," Webb said.

To counter Whetton, Ruidoso's top middle hitter,

Miller, will have to be on as well.

The Warriors enter today's match having won four of their last five. Ruidoso posted Socorro Tuesday in its first home match of the season 15-3, 15-4, 15-6.

Even though the win was easy, the Warriors got some much needed work against a decent hitting Socorro team.

Webb said her Warriors did a good job blocking the Socorro attack.

"Crystal Rojas did a really good job of setting the block and Julie closing it, and Leah Miller, too, did well closing it," Webb said.

Webb also expects blocking help from junior Kammi Sparks who, Webb said, has a natural sense of play at the net.

Webb will stick with the starting rotation that has fashioned a 7-2 record so far: setters Aquilina Herrera and Cassie Bednorz; middle hitters Julie Miller and Leah Miller; and outside hitters Sarah Fromknecht and Carrie Line.

"This weekend is going to be big. I have heard real mixed things about Silver. I've heard they are real strong and I've heard that all they have is a setter and Whetton," Webb said.

After Silver today, the Warriors turn around and play Cobre Saturday in Bayard.

Webb would have preferred to have Cobre first and then Silver, but the schedule didn't work out that way.

Cobre is an unknown quantity.

"I've been trying to find about them but nobody really knows much," Webb said of the Indians.

DRUMBEATS: The Ruidoso freshman and junior varsity teams set the table for the varsity to clean up on Socorro Tuesday. The Warrior freshmen won 15-1 and 15-2. Ruidoso's JV team then triumphed in three games, taking the third game 18-16.

State coed softball tourney in town

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Crisp fall air and the scenic setting of the Eagle Creek Sports Complex have lured 31 teams to Saturday and Sunday's Fall Coed State Softball Tournament hosted by the Ruidoso Parks and Recreation Department.

Parks and recreation sports coordinator Claudia Branum said the 16 teams in class B/C and 15 teams in class D break the record for a coed state tournament and is more than double the size of the Summer Coed State Softball Tournament in Rio Rancho which drew 13 teams.

"Everybody likes coming up here," Branum said.

And, local teams have thrown their support behind the tournament as well.

Eight teams from Ruidoso's coed league will play; seven in class D (recreation) and one in class B/C (open).

This is the first time in 10 years that Ruidoso has hosted a state tournament. The last time was in 1989 when the women's state tournament started in Ruidoso but ended in Roswell because of torrential monsoon rains.

Branum shouldn't have to worry about that happening this year. The weekend forecast calls for sunny skies with highs in the mid-70s.

Local teams participating in the state tournament include Mescalero's Hit n Run in the open division. Hit n Run already has one title under its belt, the recreation division Ruidoso Coed Classic first-place trophy, which it won in August. Hit n Run will move up a class for the state tournament.

In the open division, players are allowed to hit home runs. Each team can hit up to three home runs, but can't hit another until its opponent has hit three.

In class D of recreation division, players are out and ejected for hitting home runs. Seven local teams will compete in that division, including the Ruidoso silver division league champ, the Regulators. Also playing in class D are CoNads, Homies, Kings and Queens, Guns and Roses, Lounge Lizards and The Dawgs.

Tournament play begins at 8 a.m. Saturday. Championship games for both classes are set for 1 p.m. Sunday.

A simple plan is on the chalkboard for the Warriors

Thomas Schiele leads the Warriors in touchdown receptions with five.

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Ruidoso's defense will be ready for whatever the Albuquerque Academy Chargers might throw its way and that could be anything.

Ruidoso's No. 3-ranked Warriors (4-0) take on the Chargers at 7:30 p.m. today at W.D. Horton Stadium.

Experimentation has been the offense and defense of choice for the 0-3 Chargers. Ruidoso's scouting staff has seen Academy try three offensive sets in the last three weeks and a couple of defenses as well.

"They are young and pretty inexperienced," Ruidoso coach Les Carter said. "They're searching for an offense."

With a multitude of possibilities for which to prepare, Warrior defensive coordinator Rodney Webb has opted for the simple game plan.

"It's just a matter of being technically sound and fundamentally sound," Webb said.

Linebacker Thatcher Hampton leads a no-name Ruidoso defense that week after week is making a name for itself. Hampton has more than 60 tackles to his credit. Senior Frizzell Frizzell has wrapped up 45 opponents over four games. The Warriors yield 14.25 points an outing.

"We're young, but we're getting better every week — just like we knew we'd have to," Webb said.

Meanwhile, Ruidoso's high octane offense is averaging 28.7 points and 395 yards a game.

Junior quarterback Todd Schrader has completed 55.8 percent of his passes for 1,317 yards, nine touchdowns and just two interceptions.

Schrader has two main options when dropping back to pass, junior J.R. Floyd, 25 catches for 617 yards, and senior Thomas Schiele, 23 catches for 540 yards.

The Warriors' leading rusher, Frank Dorame, will miss his second game with a sprained knee. Dorame was averaging 6.2 yards a carry before taking a helmet to his knee in practice a couple of weeks ago.

T.J. Montoya gets his second start in the Warriors back field. Montoya has 58 yards on 19 carries and two touchdowns to his credit.

Sticking to what they do best will be the key for the Warriors.

"We feel like if we play sound on both sides of the ball, we'll be fine," Carter said.

Winning Warriors

The Ruidoso High School volleyball team returned from Dering with the first-place trophy in the Wildcats' freshman tournament. The Warriors defeated Alamogordo, Hot Springs and the Mesilla Valley junior varsity team en route to the win. Rachel Loya was named Most Valuable Player and teammates Jennifer Clawson and Simona Ramos made the all-tournament team. Team members (from left) are: Simona Ramos, Jaclyn Castañon, Rachel Loya, Angela Zagone, Jenelle Clawson, Timea Eckerdt, Sarah Williamson, Althea Powers, Melissa Crites, Courtney Dillard and coach Jennifer Johnson; front row: Jennifer Cannella and Jennifer Lewicki.

Grizzlies to see if they are for real in Floyd Saturday

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

The Carrizozo six-man football team passed its first real test last week and now faces a tougher exam when it travels to Floyd Saturday for a 2:30 p.m. contest with the 3-1 Broncos.

The Grizzlies (3-0) have yet to play a full game thanks to their ability to overwhelm their opponents. Last week coach Pat Ventura's team ended Tatum's misery midway through the third quarter with a 66-20 victory. In six-man football, games are ended when one team is 45 points ahead of the other.

"Every week they're stepping it up," Ventura said of his Grizzlies. "They have the talent, the speed and they're getting the know-how. They can go as far as they want to."

Behind the arm of senior quarterback Ryan Roper and the speedy legs of sophomore running back Joe Pawloski, the Grizzlies have outscored opponents 178-38. In last week's win over Tatum, Roper rushed for 85 yards and a touchdown and passed for 90 yards and two TDs. Pawloski scorched the Coyote defense for 175 yards on the ground and two touchdowns.

Ventura thought Tatum would give the Grizzlies their first test of the season after they cruised to wins over Corona (56-6) and Imanuel Baptist (56-7).

He was right — sort of. "I knew we would make some mistakes on pass defense and we did," Ventura said. The Coyotes weren't afraid to pass the ball unlike run-oriented Corona and Imanuel Baptist.

The Grizzly defensive breakdowns were good, however, Ventura said. "It gave us something to work on."

Namely, pass defense, and that should come in handy for the pass-happy Broncos.

"They spread it out and just throw," Ventura said.

Ryan Roper

Floyd beat the Grizzlies 22-12 last year in Carrizozo. The Broncos lost two players off a team that finished 6-3 and made the state quarterfinals.

Ventura described the Broncos as quick, well coached and experienced.

"They're aggressive. They don't go away. They kind of hang around like a fly. They just hang around and hang around and hang around," Ventura said.

Depth has been a Grizzly strength this season and it figures prominently this week. Carrizozo junior fullback and cornerback Chris Margis broke his wrist in practice Wednesday and could miss the rest of the season.

Senior Wayne Franck will step in for Margis, Ventura said.

The Floyd/Carrizozo junior high teams will play at 11 a.m. followed by the varsity match-up at 2:30 p.m.

Capitan hosts high school rodeo

Local participants enjoy chance to compete in own back yard

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

High school team roper Dale Cillessen gets to "sleep in" on a rodeo day Saturday.

"Last year we left for some rodeos at 5:30 and 6 in the morning," said the Capitan senior.

Not this weekend. Thanks to the efforts of Craig and Connie Whipple, Capitan will host a high school rodeo Saturday and Sunday at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds.

Connie Whipple said she's expecting about 150 high school contestants from across the state to participate in the two-day event that begins at 10 a.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday.

An open bull riding competition at 7 p.m. today will be used to help raise money to pay the stock contractor for the rodeo, Whipple said.

After the teen-agers get done bull riding, roping, barrel racing and the like, they can attend dances after the festivities today and Saturday.

Dustin Danley and the Wild Bunch Bulls will play from 8 p.m. to midnight today.

The County Line Band takes the stage Saturday.

Admission to the rodeo is $3.

Colton Moor, a sophomore bull rider from Capitan, will participate in the open bull riding competition today.

"It's a lot better than having to travel," Moor said about competing locally.

Whipple said as many as two dozen Lincoln County rodeos will compete this weekend, representing Capitan, Hondo, Mesalero, Ruidoso and Corona schools.

For more information, call Whipple at 354-2005.

Santa Teresa boots Ruidoso kickers

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Santa Teresa delivered a lesson in humility Tuesday to a cocksure Ruidoso soccer team.

In a District 4AAA match, Santa Teresa's Desert Warriors blanked Ruidoso's Warriors by the football score of 7-0.

The loss was the second straight for coach Dave Anderson's Ruidoso team which is now 7-4-1 overall and 1-1 in district play.

Anderson said he tried to warn his Warriors about Santa Teresa, a team Ruidoso upset earlier in the season.

"They wouldn't pay attention in practice," Anderson said. "You don't understand, I told them. This will be a different team."

By halftime of Tuesday's game, the Desert Warriors had jerked Ruidoso to attention. Santa Teresa led 6-0.

The second half was just a matter of playing for guts and pride, Anderson said.

The whitewashing could be beneficial in the long run.

"It can pay off if the kids wake up and realize that they're not as good as they think are and improve," Anderson said.

The Warriors seemed to bounce back from the defeat at Wednesday's practice. They came back with strong effort, Anderson added.

"We're going back to basic of fundamentals and tons and tons of repetition," he said. "These kids will be able to pass the ball and go to the ball in their sleep."

The Warriors travel to Las Cruces for their next contest, a 2 p.m. match Saturday against the Las Cruces JV team. Ruidoso picked up the game because Mesilla Valley, which it was supposed to play, didn't field a team this season.

Tigers take consolation at Roadrunner

BY LAURA CLYMER
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

At their first tournament of the season, the Tigers won the consolation bracket at the Roadrunner Tournament.

Capitan split with Loving and Dexter in pool play and swept Fort Sumner to earn the No. 2 seed. The Tigers met Tatum, the No. 3 seed from other pool, in the quarterfinals.

After cruising to 15-4 win in the first game against Tatum, the Tigers lost their momentum, coach Bryan Masse said.

Capitan dropped the next two games, won the fourth before falling in the fifth game. That sent the Tigers to the consolation side of the bracket.

"We just made too many mistakes. We didn't read well, didn't react," Masse said.

Capitan salvaged fifth place with victories over Fort

Sumner 15-13, 15-12, 15-2 and Hagerman 15-4, 10-15, 15-11, 15-10.

"We're usually a little behind as far as match-count time when we go to the Roadrunner. But I was pleased. We still have a far way to go," Masse said. "Most everybody at the Roadrunner had already played in one tournament. You get to play back-to-back and correct a lot of problems."

FISHING REPORT

For fly fishing —

RIO RUIDOSO: The river is fishing well throughout the day and evening. The best we found this past week has been prince nymphs or pheasant tail nymphs. Streamborn caddis and henryville caddis flies have working well late afternoons and evenings.

BONITO CREEK: There is water flow below Bonito, however few fish are found here. The south fork has fished well with numerous small native fish. The fish are not picky on the south fork so grab the best of what your fly box holds and toss it.

BONITO LAKE: Water level is good with reports of early and late fishing good on dry flies. Best reported patterns are blue wing olives and light cahills. The spin caster will do well with a bubble rig and a propeller fly tied on the business end. The hot propeller flies the past few weeks seem to be one with a pink body and white hackle, gold and silver have caught fish. Try a dry fly on the surface and a nymph dropper trailing about 18 inches behind.

GRINDSTONE LAKE: Late evening fishing will produce the better fishing here. Several evenings this past week dry flies such as light cahills, parachute adams, gray midges and griffin's gnats have provided numerous surface takes. Toss a few streamers at dark thirty and hold on to the rod grip, a few big boys have cruised the shorelines at dusk. A 20-inch rainbow was reported caught on a #20 midge right at dark.

LAKE MESCALERO: The lake level is good. Shoreline and boat fishing have produced nice fish in the evening hours. Dry flies that have been working are parachute adams, hendericksons, mosquitoes and midges.

EAGLE LAKES: The fishing has been spotty. Propeller flies behind a bubble will do well for the spin casters. It's hard to beat a parachute adams or a blue wing olive during the last hour of the day. Eagle Lakes are always good for one of the county's best nature shows. Sightings of elk and deer usually help keep you entertained.

Tight lines to all. Check out our website at www.flysfly.com

Jim Shoop, Fly's Etc.

For bait fishing —

RIO RUIDOSO: Fair on worms and salmon eggs.

GRINDSTONE RESERVOIR: Fishing is slow. Try the late evenings using a fly and a bubble.

BONITO LAKE: Fishing is slow. Try the late evenings using a fly and a bubble.

The Silver Lining
by Daniel Agnew Storm

This is being sent to you on Sept. 23, the first day of fall, the glorious harvest season — the time of purple and gold autumn flowers by the wayside, apples ripening on the trees, and the leaf colors becoming more and more delightful to the sight, day by day.

This morning the day dawned bright and clear with a warm wave in the air, and throughout the morning the sky shone blue all around the mountain horizon.

By noon the temperature was up to 80. Bees were working in the golden autumn daisies and the New England Asters, and there was a honeyed incense in the air floating on the breeze from the countless gold and purple flower sin the fields and along the hill-sides...

Very few signs of fall are to be seen here in the vale, except the very slight turning of some leaves in the box elders along the river. The apricot tree out in the little field south of the house is all emerald green, and the oak brush on high shines in a matching color to the brilliant green of the oak trees on the river...

Diane Cohen, left, and Danette Howard seek solutions to Howard's struggle to recover from an automobile accident.

Coming back from the darkness: Help for those with head injuries

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

She doesn't remember anything about the accident that changed her life, Danette Howard said. But last week she repeated what she's been told by her mother about that winter day in 1995.

Howard was on her way to work in the small town of Norwood, Mo., when a road grader pulled out in front of the car she was driving. The car went under the truck, slicing off its roof. Somehow Howard survived, but bones all over her body broke and the impact bruised her brain.

She laid in a coma for seven weeks.

"The doctors wouldn't give me a prognosis," said her mother, Cindy Hobbs, who owns the Sunset Canyon Lodge on Park Avenue in Ruidoso. From Oct. 9 to Jan. 24, she stayed at the hospital with her daughter.

For weeks, in a semi-awake state, Howard couldn't speak, walk, control her bodily functions or feed herself. Then one day after a nurse removed a catheter, Hobbs told her daughter she should say thank you — and she did.

Hobbs and the nurse burst into tears.

But the fight had just begun. Even after her daughter recovered many skills, Hobbs continued to battle for services to help her daughter live more independently.

"I'm conflicted, because I want her to be more independent, but I'm fearful for her," Hobbs said.

After qualifying her daughter to receive services toward that goal, Hobbs learned nothing was available in southeast New Mexico. She started a writing campaign to state and federal officials. Eventually she saw a response, first with a representative driving up from Carlsbad.

But within the last few months, the situation has taken a giant leap forward with the hiring of Diane Cohen. She's on the staff of the Southern New Mexico Center for Independent Living, heading its local life skills program for the traumatic brain injured, dubbed The Ability Center of Independent Living.

Cohen serves clients in Otero and Lincoln counties. Four clients have signed up, but Cohen hopes to spread the word about the Las Cruces-based center, which includes one-on-one sessions and connecting clients to the right services.

Cohen is no stranger to life adjustments. As a young woman, she was thrown through a windshield, damaging her eye and face. She spent six months in a hospital and six months in rehabilitation.

"I've been in the mental health field for more than 20 years," she said. She specializes in dual diagnoses, where a client with brain trauma also has other physical problems such as seizures or being wheelchair bound, having emotional problems, being a victim of domestic violence or suffering from addiction.

"You name it and we deal with it," Cohen said.

Services include setting up respite care for family members. The client can receive vocational training, speech therapy and physical therapy, including Tai Chi for improved mobility. Cohen prepares treatment plans, write assessments and makes progress notes.

A client can receive up to 20 hours a week of life skills training for up to one year free. The training can be one-on-one or in small groups.

Clients must be at least 21, New Mexico residents, live outside an institution and have written medical diagnoses of traumatic brain injury.

They can learn household chores such as cooking, cleaning, use of appliances designed to accommodate specific physical limitations, nutrition, personal care and safety skills. They may be referred to anger management counseling, told how to find community resources — or Cohen may focus on educating family members and care givers.

Howard, a former third-year pre-med student, said Cohen helped her.

"I felt like I had quit going forward and now I feel like I'm moving forward again," said Howard, who co-manages the Sunset Canyon Lodge with her mother.

While some of those strides were produced by teamwork with Cohen, at the same time the mental health worker is helping Howard regain her independence. They set short-term goals of three to four months to reinforce the feeling of success as each one is accomplished, Howard said.

Cohen said Howard will be a big asset when a support group is started, because she wants to help others going through the transition of accepting their new lives.

"There's a lot of denial," Cohen said. "You have to accept the me today. Danette is out of denial and that's where she can help others. They need to grieve their old selves and get on with new selves."

Howard doesn't remember the year leading up to her accident, has no memory of the accident itself or the two years after the trauma.

"I only know what I've been told," she said. "The accident demolished the car and almost demolished me. I still struggle to remember last week."

"But I can remember the frustration. Breathing was the only thing that came naturally. Had to relearn how to walk, talk and feed myself."

Howard wants to go back to college, but suffers from short-term memory loss — something she helps control with the use of a daily planner. She'd like to improve her speech and her gait, which is somewhat stiff. Although she drives short distances, she wants to hone her skill at the wheel despite some physical reactions to the car, as if her body, if not her mind, recalls the accident.

Although she's 27, Howard said she sees herself as still being 24. Her mother said the family is blessed, because unlike some brain injured, Howard retained her sweet nature and, after some initial depression, her positive outlook on life.

The program for Howard will include testing to determine possible future jobs, but she already has a plan. She'd like to be a therapist for people who are facing tomorrow what she faced yesterday and still faces today.

Export economy up

The New Mexico export economy continues to bounce back from the Asian crisis. Exports are up 95.5 percent in the second quarter of 1999 compared with 1998, according to a release from the New Mexico Economic Development Department.

The increase is lead by major gains in electronic equipment, chemicals and industrial machinery and computer equipment. This is compared to a worldwide decrease of 1.6 percent in U.S. export levels during the second quarter.

"This trend is encouraging. New Mexico is bucking the export trend nationally, and is stabilizing after some hard hits in the manufacturing sector over the past couple of years," Economic Development Department Secretary John Garcia said.

Exports to Korea increased 284.9 percent. Malaysian exports are up 187.6 percent and exports to Chile are up 174.3 percent. Chinese exports increased 160.4 percent.

"These increases can be traced to greater stability in Asian currencies, and a continued semiconductor ramp up by China," Trade Division Director Roberto Castillo said.

Exports to Mexico continue to be problematic with a 6.7 percent decrease. But the overall gap in Mexican exports is narrowing, and may level out by the end of the year.

Bat festival in Carlsbad

The annual International Bat Festival is this weekend in Carlsbad, a release from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics at New Mexico State University said.

Several thousand Mexican free-tail bats will return to Carlsbad Caverns during early morning hours.

"The sound made by bats returning by the thousands to their summer roosting area inside Carlsbad Caverns is very eerie, especially at 5 a.m.," said Mike Cook, director of the Rural Economic Development Through Tourism (REDTT) project. "The bats circle several hundred feet overhead and then dive-bomb in clusters into the cave opening."

Other activities at the festival include a sheriff's posse barbecue, arts and crafts, an International Bat Festival Parade and a sunrise balloon launch on the Pecos River. There also will be a lantern tour of Carlsbad Caverns and educational programs about bats. Related displays at the Living Desert State Park in Carlsbad also are scheduled throughout the festival.

Guide to invasive weeds

As part of a statewide effort to stem the spread of invasive weeds, the New Mexico State University's Cooperative Extension Service is distributing free copies of a pocket-sized identification guide.

"New Mexico's Invasive Weeds" was written by Richard Lee, NMSU Extension weed specialist, with funding from several state and federal land management agencies.

The spiral-bound booklet contains color photographs and descriptions of 25 invasive weeds found in the state, from filed bindweed to dyer's woad.

"The plants we talk about are all non-native," he said. "When they came into this country, they came in without their natural checks and balances."

Copies of the guide are available at country extension offices throughout the state or by calling (505) 646-3228. The goal is to help farmers, hikers and other New Mexicans identify the fast-spreading weeds so they can be contained.

Invasive weeds have been compared to a biological wildfire that's out of control and spreading in Western states. Between 1985 and 1995, weeds quadrupled their range on federal lands in the West, Billy Dictson, NMSU interim extension director, said.

"We estimate that invasive weeds are spreading at the rate of about 200 acres per hour throughout the West on public lands," he said. "Weeds have invaded approximately 17 million acres of public land in the West, and in New Mexico we have lots of public land and also a lot of private land where invasive weeds are a problem."

Economic Development Department Secretary John Garcia says, "I encourage community and business leaders to get personally involved in setting up a strong health network across the state. Businesses looking at moving to New Mexico look at available health resources in local communities when they make their decisions about where to locate." Garcia says a good health care system is an important infrastructure building block for communities who want to thrive and grow.

The conference will provide specific recruitment and retention information, and allow discussion of the community role in that process.

Substance abuse job related

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Many people drink alcohol or smoke cigarettes or marijuana to cope with the fact that their jobs are either too complex or not demanding enough in relation to their cognitive abilities, according to a new study conducted by Greg R. Oldham, Ph.D., and Benjamin I. Gordon at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. When individuals' cognitive abilities match the demands or requirements of their jobs, they use relatively small amounts of illicit and illicit substances," say Oldham and Gordon. "But when a job complexity-cognitive ability mismatch occurs, individuals respond by using greater amounts of substances."

The researchers base their findings on data collected from more than 7,000 people interviewed as part of the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth.

Happy DOGS

Not all dogs are champions, but a good grooming makes them healthier and happier, says the experienced owner of a new dog-grooming business.

• A former show dog handler, Barbara Yates and husband Charley Yates offer a professional grooming service that puts a priority on their clients' comfort.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF REPORTER

Andy the Airedale wore a long-suffering but resigned expression last week while Barbara Yates cleaned out his ears.

Although Andy may not have enjoyed the ministrations as much as, say, a good belly scratching, he has undergone grooming before and knew what to expect.

"The biggest problem is when we get them in and they have never been groomed before," said Yates, who with her husband, Charley, recently opened Paw Prints Grooming in Ruidoso Downs.

"They have to be taught that we are not going to hurt them," she said. "And the way we do that is through time, patience and a lot of TLC (tender loving care)."

Barbara Yates ought to know how to handle a dog — she's been working with them for more than 27 years, both as a dog breeder and handler at championship shows and as owner of a dog grooming business in El Paso.

Although the couple opened their shop on U.S. Highway 70 in late July, it was only a few weeks ago they began operating here full-time. For about two months, they worked weekends in Ruidoso and weekdays in El Paso, where they recently sold a successful dog grooming service, Barbara Yates said.

Their decision to relocate to Ruidoso started as an idea two years ago while the couple was honeymooning here. They were tired of city life, traffic and what Barbara Yates described as "rampant crime."

"We said, 'Wouldn't it be wonderful to live up here?'" she said.

She and her husband already have a clientele list in Ruidoso and the list is growing by word of mouth as well as referrals from local veterinarians, Barbara Yates said.

They want people to get to know them and the type of service offered at Paw Prints. So, the couple encourages pet owners to watch as dogs are groomed, a process that typically takes about two hours to complete.

They have perfected a team approach to dog grooming — he bathes, dries and brushes out the dogs, and she cuts the coats, trims the nails, cleans the eyes, cleans the ears and all the other "detailing" aspects.

Barbara Yates also wants people to know how the dogs are treated while at the shop. Other than a large cage that acts as a doggy hair dryer, the Longtime dog owners themselves, the couple believes a clean, well groomed dog is happier and healthier, she said. Based on that philosophy and an altruistic spirit, the Yates offer 25 percent off on the first grooming of any dog adopted from the Humane Society of Lincoln County. They also provide free grooming on a regular basis for tenants at the animal shelter, Barbara Yates said.

"If you can make the dog look a little prettier and smell a little prettier, hopefully, they will be adopted more quickly," she said.

They charge a little more than some dog groomers, but offer a professional grooming, which Barbara Yates learned as a breeder and handler.

"I used to raise and show Great Danes on my own," she said while brushing out Andy's coat. "And, actually, I got so good at that I had people approaching me asking me to show their dogs."

People next were asking her to groom their dogs before a show. Soon, she was in the professional dog grooming business.

"This is not a dog torture chamber, this is a dog grooming shop," she said, adding that owners picking up their dogs have commented that their pets, while happy to see them, did not appear scared

Could Y2K lead to another market freeze?

BY SUNG WON SOHN
CHIEF ECONOMIST, WELLS FARGO

Good economic news abounds. Thanks to massive government deficits, Japan is out of a long recession. Europe has become more vibrant due to low interest rates and the weaker currency. America has bulked up, shrugging off higher interest rates. Demand for labor is strong and corporations are on a borrowing binge. Both domestic and foreign demand are healthy.

Jobs and the stock market are the two pillars of U.S. economic strength. As long as the job market remains strong, consumers will continue their spending spree. During the second quarter of this year, consumer spending accounted for 160 percent of economic growth rather than the historical average of 85 percent. A setback in the stock market would cut household wealth and damage confidence, but the equity market has improved since Chairman Greenspan began to raise interest rates. The Oct. 5

FOMC meeting will be the last chance to cool inflation before the Y2K season approaches. The central bank fears a replay of last fall when the financial markets began to freeze, forcing it to slash interest rates.

Look at tax-exempts again?

The red hot economy, buoyant private credit demand and the whiffs of inflation are both eroding bonds. In addition, the weakening value of the dollar is playing havoc with bond yields because foreign investors are big buyers of bonds. What the bond market needs is an economic setback precipitated by a major stock market correction, but it is wishful thinking for the moment. The peaking of bond yields will be a drawn-out process given the slow motion and cautious monetary policy. The massive supply of corporate bonds is adding to the upward yield pressure.

The ratio of munis to treasury yields is around 95 percent, far above the 85 percent average since 1986. First, Uncle Sam is not selling too many bonds anymore and is stingy with interest rates. Therefore, investors in high tax brackets have been leaving treasuries for greener pastures. Second, the booming economy means that the default risks of high quality bonds have evaporated. However, the rising supply of tax-exempts has kept yields high. Third, the raging bull market in equity with lofty total returns make the 6 percent interest rate on munis look puny. With the top combined tax rate at about 45 percent, munis should not be overlooked. Tax-exempts are more stable than treasuries because the ebb and flow of foreign demand is less important here.

Tide turning for stocks?

Despite the forecast of 36,000 on the Dow in three years by a couple of analysts at the AEL, the market is vulnerable due to sky high valuation (P/E ratio), rosy earnings expectations, the dollar depreciation and the ongoing monetary squeeze.

Higher interest rates will lower the valuation and hurt earnings. Since stock prices are the product of the valuation and earnings, prices could fall.

The dollar depreciation could raise inflation and interest rates, hurting stocks including the interest-sensitive financial sector. S&P 500 earnings per share rose about 14 percent in the second quarter. Wall Street expects another 20 to 30 percent gain for the second half of 1999. However, First Call says that upward earnings revisions have slowed. The retail sector, which is constrained by limited pricing power and the rising cost of labor and energy, is a good example. Recently, Sears, Dillard, Office Depot and DJ Saks have disappointed the market. The key is the central bank which is determined to wear down the economic strength and the market.

Wolves kill third cow in Arizona

A third cow was killed last week by the eight wolves of the Gavilan Pack in the Apache National Forest in Arizona.

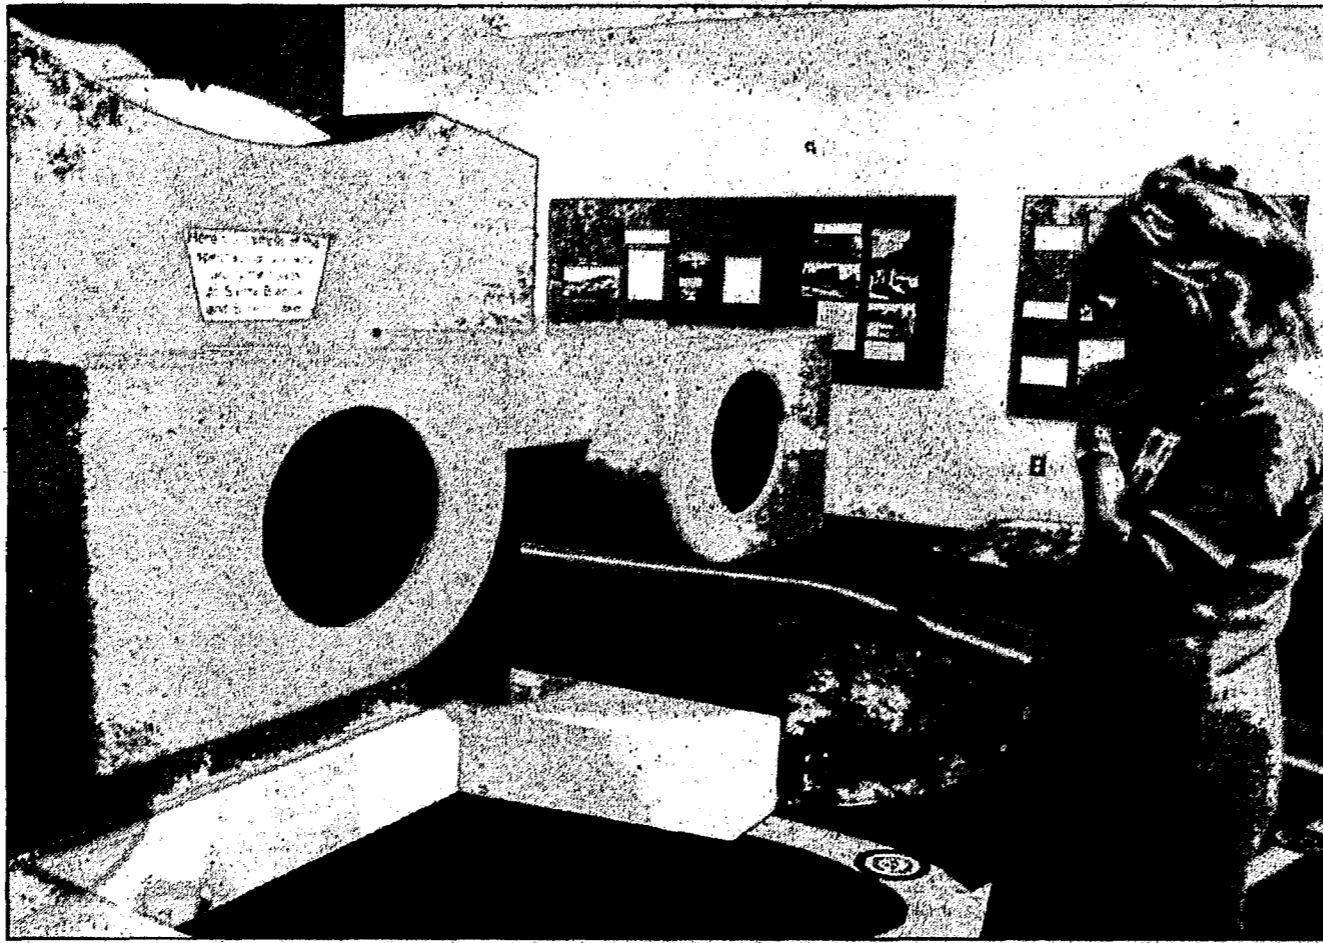

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service team monitoring the wolves is reviewing management options for the pack, including relocation or return to captivity, said Hans Stuart, Service spokesman.

The first cow was found dead Aug. 9, the second on Aug. 29 and the third, Sept. 7, Stuart said. All were adults, ranging in age from six to 10 years and were grazing on a livestock allotment near Coalson Peak.

The pack, consisting of two adults, a yearling and five pups, was released in the national forest about 18 miles northeast of Clifton, Ariz.

The research team is trying to move the pack away from livestock, Stuart said. They have stepped up monitoring activities and are providing supplemental food to the pack—carcasses of elk and deer—away from the area where the cows were attacked.

Heavy equipment training delayed, but not dropped

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Lack of an instructor and lack of a facility postponed the new heavy equipment operators' training program planned by Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso (ENMU) to start Aug. 26.

"The State Highway Department has yet to come through with their part of the partnership to use their facilities in Capitan, and with no one applying to be the instructor we couldn't go through with the class," said Jim Miller, director of ENMU-Ruidoso.

The engineer for the Roswell District of the State Highway Department said he did not get approval from his supervisors for use of the facility and the equipment.

"There's a lot of issues; we have to ensure the legality," said Mohammad Moabed. "We did not hear anything for a long time and then all of a sudden heard that the class was going to happen, and did not have enough time to get (liability) issues taken care of."

Moabed said he would have to meet with his supervisors and the general counsel in Santa Fe to work out legal documents that will be necessary, such as a contract between the State Highway Department and ENMU. He said the State Highway Department had initiated the idea of the program by meeting with colleges in Socorro, after which Miller requested a meeting with the training staff.

"We provided him with literature and training materials we use," Moabed said.

The one-year program was to be for 12 high school students and eight non-high school students from New Mexico Works Program or the apprenticeship program, Miller said. All the non-high school slots were filled and students were waiting for the classes to start.

Miller said the School-to-Work and Region IX Cooperative received a small grant and hired a consultant last year to write the training program. The partnership spent about $9,000, and School-to-Work bought hard hats and safety belts for the students. Instructors were lined up for the technical math and communications segments of the course, he said.

Miller said an experienced heavy-equipment instructor who is relocating to Ruidoso from Carlsbad walked into the ENMU-Ruidoso facility on Wednesday afternoon and may apply for the position with the program.

If an instructor is hired and the State Highway Department facility in Capitan can be used, Miller said, the program could start in January, and students can begin registering Dec. 1 for the spring term.

Moabed said the need for heavy equipment operators is going to be there for a long time, with all the highway projects going on throughout the state.

"I'm hoping to get this program going so we can answer the needs of some of the contractors," he said. "We're still supporting the program. I want to make sure everything is taken care of before committing ourselves to the program—liability and legal issues."

RABKE PERFORMS at Fort Sumner.

Dianne Stallings

RABKE USES A COPY of an 1853 British Infield rifled musket as a prop.

Rabke, a ranger at Lincoln State Monument, gives visitors a glimpse of a Civil War soldier's life in an hour presentation tied to articles of clothing and pieces of equipment. In a reverse strip, Rabke adds one piece at a time until he is fully outfitted for an infantry march.

A native of San Antonio, Texas, Rabke performed the living history enactments for seven years at Fort Sumner, developing more of an interest in history with each book he read.

Rabke started his professional career looking for a job in wildlife management about nine years ago. What he found was an opening with the State Monuments Division in New Mexico.

His first assignment was Fort Sumner, where seven years ago, he and the monuments supervisor started enactments.

"At first, we were trying to get enough material to last 15 minutes," he said. "Now I'm trying to cut down the time, because it runs about an hour with questions from the audience."

"People, especially kids, seem to have an interest and I like the hands-on approach. They get to watch the rifle being loaded and fired, to put on the wool coat and see how heavy it is and to imagine walking on the boots held together by wooden pegs."

When Rabke was transferred eight months ago to the historic settlement of Lincoln, he brought his trunk full of Union Army Infantry equipment with him.

The items mostly are replicas, because for preservation reasons, the real ones are in sealed glass cases.

The clothing in the presentation reflects the rank of a private and is relevant to a Union soldier in 1855, who may have served at nearby Fort Stanton, Rabke said during a demonstration Tuesday.

Most of the soldiers in the Civil War were infantrymen, because of the higher cost of fielding cavalry. Most couldn't read or write and they ranged in age from 18 to 20, he said.

They wore brogans, a short boot held together by wooden pegs in front. The pegs often were driven into the feet of the marching soldiers as they crossed the rocky terrain, so double socks and other padding were worn. When possible, stitched boots were substituted.

Boots for the right and left foot were constructed from the same pattern. To form them to individual feet, soldiers would stand in a stream until the boots were soaked and then let them dry while wearing them. To distinguish between the two shoes in the dark, notches were cut in the soles.

Surprisingly, a light wool jacket called a sack coat worked as well in the summer as the winter, because it wicks off sweat and cools the body, Rabke said. Back bags for equipment often were discarded in favor of a lighter method of hauling items by rolling them in a blanket slung over the soldier's shoulder and across his torso.

Rabke's audience enthusiastically handled equipment and clothing as he covered the rest of a soldier's clothing, marching equipment, hats and firearms.

AN AURA PHOTOGRAPH of Davis, her first, "blew her away."

The colors of life

by Sandy Suggitt
VAMONOS STAFF WRITER

DIANE DAVIS began her study of colors, auras and chakras when she had her photograph taken by an aura photographer at a metaphysical fair in Arizona a year and a half ago. Now she's an aura photographer herself, using a special Polaroid camera, film and a sensor that reads the electromagnetic energy fields that surround people.

"The special camera is based on Kirlian photography, which sees the energy around animate or inanimate objects," Davis said. "A sensor on the floor that is heat sensitive reads the energy."

Davis said most people are aware of energy fields of other people when they're especially strong — a very angry person, or a very welcoming, accepting person, whom she describes as a "rainbow person."

"You know when you walk up to some people who are angry you run up against an energy block. Or rainbow people who you feel you've known for ever," she said.

Aura photography gives people an opportunity to see the colors they are working with at this point in their lives — the issues and anxieties they're confronting.

"It blew me away," Davis said of the interpretation she was given during her first exposure to aura photography. "Because the interpretation of the colors fit exactly what I was going through at that time and it was something that intrigued me."

She began picking up books on auras, colors and chakras, she said, feeling ready to try and understand how they all fit together.

"Color plays a tremendous role in who we are and what we do," Davis said. "It's one of those unseen forces that people don't really understand. The basic aura is your electromagnetic energy field that is around you."

Davis said the aura extends out from the body in varying distances, depending on the person. The colors indicate where a person is spiritually, physically and mentally at the time. People have a tendency to try to change how their aura photograph will come out, but they can't do it, Davis said.

"It will read exactly where they are at that moment — and normally they will work with those colors for the next four weeks.

unless there's a death or something traumatic, like an accident," she said.

Only three distributors sell the aura cameras and the special 640 film by Polaroid, Davis said.

Kathleen Cotton, an employee of Desert Sky Health Food Store where Davis set up her camera Sept. 17 and 18, had her aura photograph taken twice and the resulting photographs were very different, but she said both fit "absolutely."

"It rang very true for me," Cotton said. "In the midst of all the people in here, what I was feeling before she took my picture turned out in the interpretation."

Davis gives clients the color photography with their auras, gives them a detailed intuitive interpretation and a brochure explaining the significance of various aura colors for $25. Anyone interested in having an aura photograph taken can call for an appointment at 257-1713.

Carrizozo students share art at state fair

Sixty-six Carrizozo art students have their work on exhibit at the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque. The work includes pencil drawings, paper weaving, watercolor, scratch board, crayon resist and mixed media (colored marker, crayon, yarn, paper).

Their work joins that of about 4,000 entries from elementary, middle and high school students from around the state. The art of Carrizozo students in grades one through six will remain on exhibit for the duration of the fair through Sept. 26.

Polly E. Chavez, art coordinator for Carrizozo Schools, was in charge of preparing the art booth for Carrizozo students. This year's booth theme is the 100th anniversary (1899-1999) of Carrizozo and its railroad beginnings.

The School Art Building where the displays are located is next to the Flower Building near Indian Village and Villa Hispana on Heritage Avenue. Visitors to the Student Art Building can view the drawing and the daily hands-on activities.

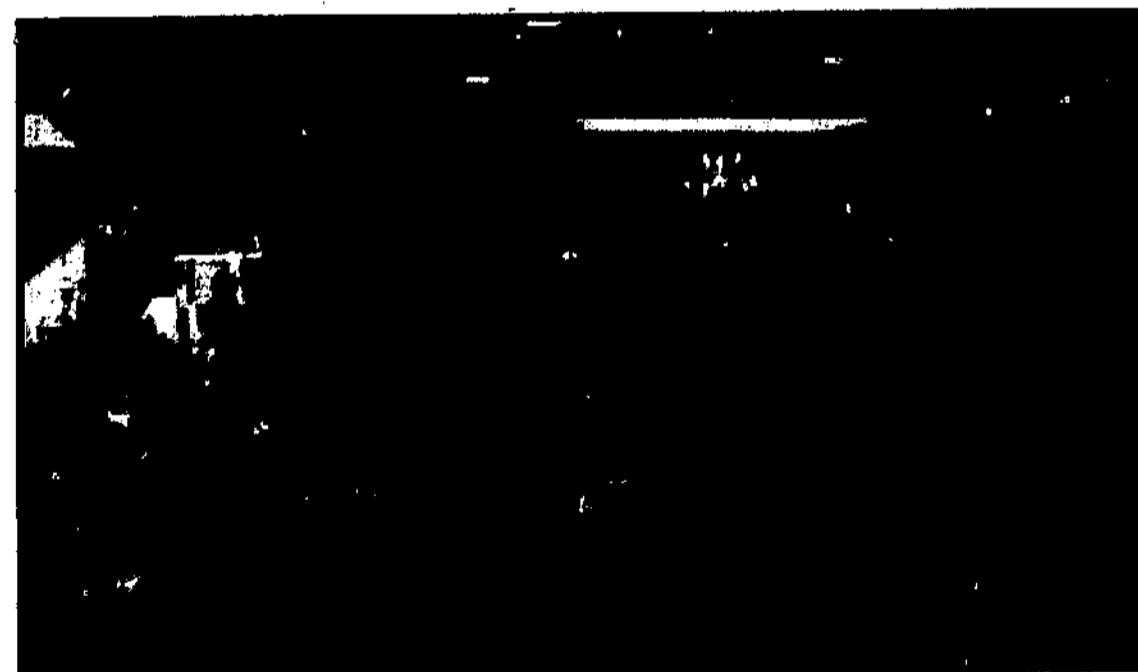

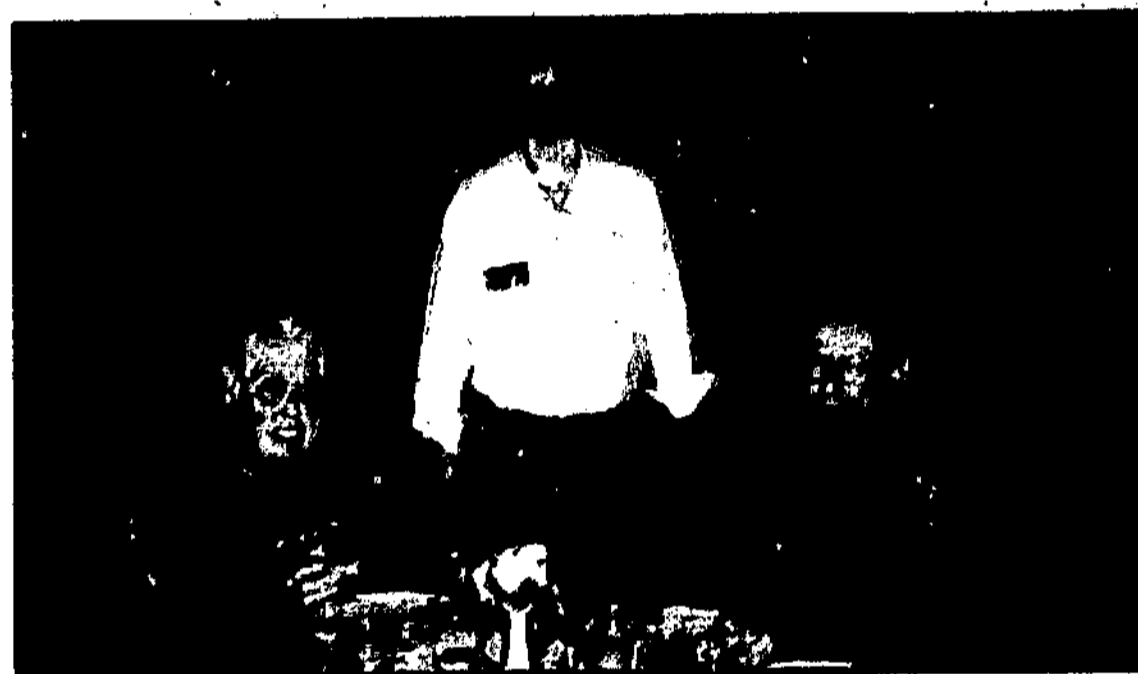

The New Mexico State Department of Education collaborates with the Fair to host this school exhibit. This exhibit is an educational tool to share with New Mexico parents, students, educators and other community members, the creativity of the state's students.

Whoopi Goldberg's art to be shown in Albuquerque

Actress/Artist Whoopi Goldberg will showcase her art at Weems Artfest in Albuquerque. The nationally recognized juried show, now in its 17th year, is also ranked as New Mexico's No. 1 Fine Arts and Crafts Fair. More than 250 artisans from throughout the country will exhibit their work. Goldberg will follow in the footsteps of Anthony Quinn, who was the fair's celebrity artist in 1998.

"We were afraid that no one could bring the same excitement to the show as Mr. Quinn, but Ms. Goldberg's appearance has thrilled Albuquerque's art audience. We are expecting another sell-out this year because of her attendance," said Laurie Fernandez, artfest director.

Goldberg will present her artwork at Preview Night, Nov. 4, and then will return to the show on the afternoon of Nov. 5. Her work will be for sale and will continue to be exhibited throughout the weekend.

with the world loving her so."

"Spooky things" and coincidences connected to Cline seem to happen to Harding, she said. Like unintentionally booking her return flight from a performance in Washington with a stopover in Nashville on Patsy Cline's birthday, Sept. 8. The weather was great, she said, then suddenly the pilot said they were coming into some rough weather just as they were flying over Kansas City. (Patsy Cline died in a plane crash between Nashville and Kansas City in 1963.)

"We landed at 11:30 p.m., Sept. 8," Harding said, "half an hour before 9/9/99 when Y2K problems were predicted for midnight. She's (Cline's) definitely sitting or standing beside me a lot of the time."

"A Tribute to Patsy Cline" is a benefit concert for Guardians for Animal Refuge Therapy and Healing (G.A.R.T.H.), an organization out of Tinnie, to create a rescue operation for abused horses, retiring racehorses and other wildlife. The organization plans to bring troubled teens to the refuge to help care for animals at Mystic Springs Guest Ranch, learning nurturing skills and giving them distance from home tensions. Long-range goals include creating a buffer zone for wildlife in the Capitan Mountains.

The concert is at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 2 in the Ruidoso Convention Center. Tickets for the concert are $15. Order tickets by calling 1-800-490-3392 or purchase tickets at The Alto Store in Alto, The Aspen Tree Book Shop in Ruidoso, The Tinnie Silver Dollar in Tinnie, or Fat Dog Sound & Light in Roswell.

"Patsy" will appear in the Aspenfest Parade earlier on Oct. 2. Organizer Deborah Vanderleelle of G.A.R.T.H. expects 1,500-1,800 people at the concert.

Harding, who will perform Oct. 2 on a raised stage at the Ruidoso Convention Center, has been performing as country great Cline for about three years, although she started singing the star's songs when she was a child.

"It was a natural progression from singing in cruise ships and bars," Harding said. "I had a band and people would request Patsy. Then I told my band I wanted to do a tribute to Patsy, with looking like her and everything, and it was so amazingly successful that I continued to do that."

Harding, who grew up in a home filled with country and gospel music, said her performances have earned her the thumbs up from Cline's daughter as well as Cline's band members.

She said she hates to call herself an impersonator because she only imitates Cline.

Adopting the dress and gestures of the famous country singer, Harding has performed as Cline at the Grand Ol' Opry —

She also has opened for Ray Stevens, worked in Las Vegas and performed in Cline's hometown in Winchester, Va. for the past two New Year's Eves.

Harding said what she likes most about "being Patsy" is that people smile so much during her performances.

"The fact that I take them back to a wonderfully nostalgic period," Harding said. "She was popular between the late '50s and the early '60s and she died in 1963 at the peak of her career

Exhibit chronicles "Generations" of agriculture

Lincoln County ranchers featured in program

LAS CRUCES, N.M. - The New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum unveils its first main gallery permanent exhibit during a celebration on Sunday, Sept. 26.

"Generations" chronicles 3,000 years of agricultural history in New Mexico. The 3,100-square-foot exhibit uses the biographies of 33 people to tell the story.

A pair of Lincoln County Ranchers, John Chisum and Fred "Peg" Pfingsten, are among those featured in the exhibit. Chisum (1824-1884) was called the "Cattle King of the Pecos" when Lincoln County covered most of southeastern New Mexico.

Pfingsten, born in 1913, still manages his ranch in Lincoln County. He represents many 20th century ranchers who have had to change with the times to continue this treasured way of life.

Among the others featured in the exhibit are Lea County lawman and cattleman Bob Beverly and African-American cowboy George McJunkin.

A special invitation-only program is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Sept. 26 to honor museum foundation members and the exemplars featured in the exhibit and their families. The exhibit will be open to the public, beginning at 2:20 p.m.

Elvis Fleming of Roswell will portray Chisum in a living history demonstration in the museum's theater at 3:30 p.m.

Beverages will be served, along with homemade cookies. Old-fashioned children's games are scheduled throughout the afternoon.

Admission to the museum on Sunday, Sept. 26 is free.

Years of planning and hard work by many people have gone into the making of "Generations."

"The exhibit is filled with a tremendous amount of information presented in the form of imagery, artifacts, audio and video excerpts, computer touchscreens and interactive displays, all intended to get the visitor involved with the exhibit," said Toni Laumbach, the museum's curator of collections.

"There is more information packed into this exhibit than currently is in the rest of the museum combined," said Bob Hart, the museum's curator of interpretation. "The story is told using groups and individuals in order to make history come alive."

The exhibit begins with the state's "first farmer" and takes visitors on a tour through 3,000 years, ending with our state's future agriculturalists. It includes a replicated section of a wall from a Chaco Canyon storage room, used to store surpluses of crops, a chuckwagon, saddles and hundreds of artifacts.

Visitors can practice grinding corn, using a mano and metate, learn how to use a rope and saddle, listen to oral history interviews, or watch videos about subjects such as the cowboy way of life or how Native Americans used rock mulch to increase their crop yields.

A division of the state Office of Cultural Affairs, the New Mexico Farm and Ranch Heritage Museum opened in May 1998 and is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens (60 and over) and $2 for children 6 to 17.

The museum is located at 4100 Dripping Springs Road. Take the University Exit off Interstate 25 and go east 1.5 miles. For more information, call (505) 522-4100.

ENMU finds new season with 'Lost in Yonkers'

PORTALES — The ENMU Department of Theatre and Dance raises the curtain on its 1999-2000 season with Neil Simon's "Lost in Yonkers." The play, directed by Dr. Patrick Rucker, runs Sept. 30 through Oct. 2, at 8 p.m., in the University Theatre Center. Tickets go on sale Wednesday, Sept. 22, in the UTC Box Office, (505) 562-2710. Tickets are $7 general admission, $6 senior citizens, $5 pre-college, and $4 for ENMU students with a current activities sticker.

Filled with infectious laughter and genuine tears, "Lost in Yonkers" is a story of an eccentric New York family whose crimes, dreams and memories collide one fateful summer.

Set in 1942, in Yonkers, N.Y.,

the story is told from the viewpoint of two young brothers, Jay and Arty. The boys' mother has recently died, and their father finds it difficult to make ends meet; he racked up a mountain of debts trying to pay for his wife's medical bills. He takes a job selling scrap metal, which requires him to hit the road for a year. He's forced to leave his sons in the strange household of their cold, seemingly unfeeling grandmother.

Grandma lives in an apartment over her candy store, along with her thirtysomething daughter Bella, who is rather eccentric and whose childlike behavior is encouraged by her mother. Jay and Arty work in the candy store, get into general mischief and begin a treasure hunt for Grandma's hidden stash of cash (hoping to find enough to bring their father home).

Bella, firmly planted in her own little world, goes to the movies a lot, escaping into the fantasies of the big screen, and begins a tentative romance with a slow-witted theater usher who also lives with his parents. They all find their lives disrupted when Bella's brother Louie, a small-time hood who is never without his handgun or his mysterious briefcase, drops in for a brief stay and opens new vistas to the boys.

More information is available by contacting the Department of Theater and Dance at (505) 562-2711.

The Murphy Men

Part 2 in a series

Drew Ginher
HISTORIAN,
THE HUBBARD MUSEUM
OF THE AMERICAN WEST

Historian Frederick
Nolan describes him
[William Brady] as
'obviously another
tough character who knew how to bounce
his knuckles off the skulls of his knotheaded fellow soldiers.'

W.T. Hiestor, ca. 1877

WILLIAM BRADY, age forty-eight, shortly before his death.

Even though they worked for Jimmy Dolan, they were still, during the Lincoln County War, commonly referred to as Murphy men, or just "Murphys." Often considered the villains of the Lincoln County War, most of them were no different than their counterparts with the Tunstall/McSween faction. There were, of course, more hired guns on the side of Jimmy Dolan than McSween and Tunstall. But there were also plenty of working men, who, for various reasons, had thrown their lot in with that of Jimmy Dolan.

William Brady

He was the Sheriff of Lincoln County, and due to the manner of his death and who was involved in it, he may well be the best-remembered Sheriff that Lincoln County ever had, with the possible exception of today's Tom Sullivan. (Hey, I'm no fool!)

Born August 16, 1829 in Cavan, County Cavan, Ireland. At the age of 21, he left Ireland for America in early 1851. In July of the same year he signed on with the U.S. Army for 5 years. This was not uncommon for Irish immigrants — it got them away from the horrors of the New York ghettos in which the Irish were forced to live in those days, giving them a chance to travel and, in addition, to learn the customs of their newly adopted country.

William Brady served in Texas for the major part of his tour, being discharged in that state as a sergeant. Historian Frederick Nolan describes him as "obviously another tough character who knew how to bounce his knuckles-off the skulls of his knotheaded fellow soldiers." This was undoubtedly the case, and in Texas, he re-enlisted for another five years in the First Regiment of Mounted Rifles.

Discharged in March of 1861 at Fort Craig, he then enlisted in the Second New Mexico Volunteer Infantry as a lieutenant and adjutant to the commanding officer.

On November 16, 1862, he married a widow — Maria Bonifacio Chaves Montoya, with whom he had many children. In fact, she was pregnant at the time of his death, a fact that did not go unnoticed by the public that disapproved of what the Regulators had done to him that April morning.

And that, unfortunately, is where his niche in history lies. Despite his war record and his record as Sheriff of Lincoln County, William Brady is chiefly remembered for the manner of his death. He was gunned down by the Regulators from ambush as he walked down Lincoln's street. And while the Regulators considered this to be a great coup, it was a public relations disaster. One just doesn't gun down the Sheriff in the middle of the street.

And most of them were shooting at the Sheriff that morning. Of the four deputies with Brady, two of them weren't even hit. Another was just scratched. Sheriff Brady, however, went down with anywhere from 9 to 16 bullets in him. Clearly, the Regulators were all shooting at the Sheriff, although it was Billy the Kid alone who would later be blamed for his death.

William Brady was buried east of Lincoln, near his home. He still has many descendants in Lincoln County today.

George Hindman

George Hindman's claim to fame, historically speaking, is that he was the deputy who died in the street in Lincoln, along with his boss, Sheriff William Brady, on April 1, 1878.

But who was George and where did he come from?

There have, at this time, been no records found pertaining to the birth of George Hindman, although there is a school of thought that his name may actually have been spelled Heine-mann. Whatever the case, he first comes into historical ken in the year 1875, when he arrived in Lincoln County he was a trail hand bound for Arizona, working for a man named Jordan.

In what would prove, ultimately, to be a bad decision, George decided to stay in Lincoln County where he was employed on the Robert Casey Ranch, near modern-day Picacho. The co-owner of the Jordan herd, a man named Bill Humphreys, took umbrage at Hindman's career move, and, as was frequently the case in those days, a gunfight ensued. Humphrey's bullet struck Hindman's pistol, shattering it and embedding some of the metal pieces in George's hand. Hindman's bullet inflicted a scalp wound on Humphreys, and the honor of both men seems to have been satisfied, as that was as far as it went.

Later, George worked a farm with Sam Bass, quite possibly the same Sam Bass that would become famous as a train and bank robber in Nebraska and Texas, but the jury is still out on that one.

Described by Lily Casey as a "good, quiet and inoffensive person," George didn't have the best of luck. According to Lily, he was attacked by a grizzly bear, and although he survived, he was badly mauled. Again, according to Lily, the bear crippled one of his arms and hands and, in addition, tore off half of his face.

Frank Coe confirmed Lily Casey's version, saying that "Hindman was a crippled man, as a bear up in the mountains had chewed him up, tearing his hands and legs." Frank also made remarks that indicated that there was some sort of grudge between George and Regulator Captain Frank MacNab, and that it was MacNab's bullet that brought Hindman down on that April morning.

It is a good bet that George didn't care whose bullet laid him low that day, and, for what it is worth, MacNab himself didn't live out the month of April, 1878. It has also been claimed that George died on the steps of the San Juan Mission, which would be a good trick, as the church had not even been built at that time.

George Hindman lies buried next to his boss, Sheriff Brady, a few miles east of Lincoln.

Johnny Hurley

John Hurley was a native of New York, and, like many young men of his day, came west seeking adventure. He found plenty of it. At the time of the Lincoln County War he was 23, which would place his birth about 1855. Author Emerson Hough described Hurley as being exceedingly brave and "a very pleasant fellow."

A self-described "laborer living in Lincoln," Hurley may have had no other reason to side with Jimmy Dolan other than the fact that Dolan was his employer. Whatever the case, he rode with the Murphy-Dolan faction throughout the Lincoln County War.

He was not, apparently, the type to harbor ill will. After the war was over and things had quieted down somewhat, Johnny, in the company of George Peppin, rode over to see former Regulator George Coe. George, as may well be imagined, was a trifle apprehensive when these two former enemies appeared at his door. His worries were for naught, though, as the two men had come to "bury the hatchet" — and not in George's head, as he had feared.

Johnny married the daughter of one of Lincoln County's more infamous sheriffs — Ham Mills. With the former Juanita Mills in tow, Johnny operated a saloon near Fort Stanton and was later the manager of DeLany's billiard hall at that place.

John Hurley met his death in 1886 at the hands of a dangerous gunman and horse thief by the name of Nicolas Aragon.

Shortly before, Aragon had killed another Lincoln County deputy by the name of Jasper Corn at Chaperito. Sheriff John Poe then decided that the matter of Nicolas Aragon needed his personal attention. With deputies Jim Brent and Johnny Hurley, Poe set out for Chaperito.

Upon their arrival, the three lawmen tentatively located Aragon and surrounded the house in which they believed him to be hiding.

Unfortunately, and an old hand like Johnny should have known better, he set himself up when he attempted to question a woman in a house nearby and framed himself in her doorway. This did not go unnoticed by Aragon, who, seeing the deputy highlighted in the doorway, drew a bead and opened fire. Aragon's bullet killed Hurley instantly, ending the life of one of Lincoln County's more noted citizens of the time.

Later, when reinforcements showed up, Aragon realized the hopelessness of his situation and surrendered. He was tried for the murder of Johnny Hurley, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Anyplace Wild Special

"Adventuring in Canada: Lewis & Clark's Inspiration"

The historic transcontinental treks of explorer Alexander Mackenzie come to life in an Anyplace Wild Special "Adventuring in Canada: Lewis & Clark's Inspiration," led by series host John Viehman and his brother, Tommy. The pair undertake an expedition in British Columbia along part of Mackenzie's 1793 route across North America. Accomplishing his feat 12 years before the better-known exploits of Lewis and Clark, Mackenzie was the first European to record a journey across North America. In fact, it was Mackenzie's account of his adventures, published in 1801, that inspired President Thomas Jefferson to commission the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Following in Mackenzie's path, Viehman uses the explorer's journal and those of Lewis and Clark to bring the pioneering spirit to life and to compare the experiences of both parties.

Anyplace Wild Special "Adventuring in Canada: Lewis & Clark's Inspiration" will be broadcast Wednesday, September 29th at 8:30 p.m. Anyplace Wild, a new 13-part series, begins in October.
