Misqueze elected Mescalero president

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

In a special election Monday, Mescalero Apache voters picked Sara Misqueze to lead the tribe for the next few months and selected Fred Chino to serve as her vice president.

Misqueze, who was former tribal administrator under the late president Wendell Chino and who served as acting president after the removal of Paul Ortega two months ago, won with 499 votes to 319 for Arthur "Butch" Blazer, a tribal council member employed by the natural resources division of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Fred Chino, 54, a council member, received 439 votes for the position of vice president and was acknowledged as the winner in that race. The vote total for his opponent, Freddie Kaydahzinne, director of tribal housing, was unavailable Tuesday. All figures were unofficial, a tribal spokesperson said. Slightly more than half of the eligible voters turned out for the election.

Misqueze, 53, said she was eager to thank her fellow tribal members for their support.

"I am honored to be entrusted with the job of president," she said, adding that Blazer "is as dedicated to the success and well-being of the tribe as I am. He is a worthy opponent and he has my respect as a colleague."

Blazer said he respects the wishes of the Mescalero people and will not oppose Misqueze for election during the regular November general election for a two-year term.

"I think Sara and Fred Chino make a strong team," he said. "I will continue to work with the two of them for the betterment of the tribe from my seat on the tribal council. As a result of my respect for the decision of the people, I will not run for president in November. I will allow Sara the opportunity to show the people what she can do."

Blazer said he's glad the election is over.

"I didn't realize how stressful a political race can be," he said.

The special election was called after the tribal council removed Ortega as president and Oliver Enjady as vice president, accusing them of improperly spending money for programs and projects without council approval, as required in the tribal constitution.

Enjady, a well-known artist and former council member whose name was removed from the primary ballot because of his removal for cause, said Tuesday he wishes the new president and vice president "a lot of luck."

Eight announce candidacy for region's district judgeship

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Eight lawyers want to fill a vacancy in the 12th Judicial District created by the retirement of Robert Doughty from the division two position based in Alamogordo.

The judicial district covers Lincoln and Otero counties, but lawyers statewide may apply for the seat. The person selected by Gov. Gary Johnson will run for the position in the next general election.

The list of applicants include Lincoln County lawyers J. Robert Beauvais, former county attorney, and Don Dutton, who lost a bid for a district judgeship in last year's primary.

Others applicants are:

- James Waylon Counts, who once before was appointed to the district court, but lost in the following election.
- David L. Ceballes, assistant district attorney in Carrizozo
- Wayne A. Jordon, an Alamogordo lawyer
- William M. Kinsella, an assistant district attorney in Las Cruces
- Rita Neumann, a Las Cruces lawyer
- Gregory M. Quinlan, an Alamogordo lawyer.

A Judicial Selection Commission will review the applicants and recommend from one to four to Johnson.

"If we send more than five, we might as well send the entire list," said Judge Frank Wilson, chief judge of the 12th Judicial District.

The 18-member commission will meet Friday, Aug. 13, at the Otero County Courthouse in Alamogordo to evaluate applicants. The meeting is open to the public.

To ensure representation on the commission is balanced, members are appointed by different officials. The names of the members were not ready for release Thursday by the Dean of the University of New Mexico Law School, who chairs the commission.

But Wilson explained that one member each is appointed by the chief justice of the state supreme court, the chief judge of the state appeals court and by Wilson as chief judge of the 12th Judicial District. The governor, the speaker of the state house and the president pro-tem of the state senate each appoint one lay person and one lawyer. The remaining members are chosen by the State Bar Association president in concert with other judges to achieve a balance in political affiliation, types of practices, ethnicity and gender, Wilson said. Once Johnson receives the short list, he has 30 days to pick the new judge or ask for more candidates, resulting in a second, 30-day period. If he fails to act within that time frame, the job falls to the chief justice of the supreme court.

"But that's never happened yet," Wilson said.

Costner saddles up at the Hubbard Museum

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Pursuing his interest in Western history, actor-producer-director Kevin Costner spent Friday morning visiting centers of that history in Lincoln County.

At the invitation of R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard, Costner said he flew to Ruidoso Thursday from Deadwood, S.D., to tour the Hubbard Museum of the American West with the museum's founders and to stop at the historic settlement of Lincoln, which spawned the Billy the Kid legend.

"We kidnapped him," Joan Dale Hubbard joked.

Costner filmed his Academy award-winning movie "Dances With Wolves," in South Dakota and has an interest in a casino in Deadwood. The Hubbards and Costner shared a tour of their homes and businesses last week.

The Hubbards stopped at Costner's home in Aspen and then spent some time at Deadwood, before flying into Ruidoso Thursday.

"He (Costner) arrived Thursday evening and came straight out to the (Billy the Kid) casino (at the Ruidoso Downs Race Track), then we had dinner at the Hubbards," Bruce Rimbo, president and director of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track and Casino, said Monday.

As Costner and his working associate, Mimi Schulte, were escorted into the Hubbard museum Friday, he explained why he also planned on visiting Lincoln later in the day.

"I've made three westerns and Western history definitely is one of my interests," he said.

Inside, Costner toured the Race Horse Hall of Fame and then was persuaded by Hubbard to

Rains top average for the month; break record for consecutive days

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The Ruidoso area already is ahead of average for rainfall in August and last Thursday broke the record for consecutive days of rain.

Based on daily readings from the Ruidoso Police Department and a wildlife specialist with the U.S. Forest Service, the area received 5.46 inches of rain since the beginning of the month.

The average for August is 4.44 inches.

Keith Hayes with the National Weather Service said the previous record for consecutive rain days was 17 set in August 1984. Rain continued Friday, pushing Ruidoso two days over the record, but Saturday was dry. Sunday, it rained steadily - about 2.5 inches in the Cedar Creek area, and Monday, more than a half inch was recorded in town.

Hayes revised some previously released data.

"I went back and dug into some more of the statistics," he said. "Normally from January through the end of July, the Ruidoso area receives 9.68 inches, but the observed precipitation this year was 10.39 inches, so the area actually is ahead" despite a meager snowpack that melted about a month early.

At the end of June, the precipitation deficit was 1.02 inches. But in July, Ruidoso received 5.23 inches of rain compared to the average of 3.50 inches, he said.

Firefighters investigate another arson in Ruidoso Downs

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso Downs fire officials are investigating a July 30 house fire as an arson case, Fire Chief Nick Herrera said this week.

"We believe we have found the accelerant they used to start the fire," Herrera said.

The house at 223 Second St. was unoccupied and abandoned at the time of the fire, which was reported at about 2 p.m., he said.

The fire's origin is believed to have been in a bedroom in the home.

Though no one was in the burning house, a home located about 3 feet away was occupied at the time, Herrera said.

Firefighters were successful in preventing the fire from spreading to the adjacent building, though the fire flamed out of windows facing it, firefighters said.

Herrera himself was injured during the fire when a 72-square-foot area of roof eaves collapsed on him while

"...and the next minute the lights went out"

Nik Herrera,

Fire Chief

he was standing outside the front of the home.

Herrera related how one minute he was joking with his brother, a volunteer in the fire department, "and the next minute the lights went out."

He was unconscious for about five minutes and was taken to Lincoln County Medical Center for observation.

While he did not sustain any serious injuries, his firefighter's helmet was irrepara-bly damaged.

Herrera said the interior of the house was in flames at the time firefighters arrived.

Most of the flames were "knocked down" in about 20 minutes, and firefighters had completely doused the fire in 3 1/2 hours, he said.

Because a firefighter was injured while battling the fire, charges made in connection with the arson case could be more stringent, Herrera said.

This is at least the third fire that has been investigated as arson that Ruidoso Downs has had this year.

and to keep a new school and a home for the elderly at the top of the priority list," Enjady said. "The only thing I was trying to do was to work on behalf of the people. I hope Sara will give me a pardon. At this point, I don't know what my plans are. I just want to clear my name."

Fred Chino, who is not related to the late Wendell Chino, has served on the tribal council for six years and as treasurer.

He thanks voters for their support, but added, "We still need their confidence. I hope they'll give us a chance to put our programs in place for the next two years."

Kaydahzinne said while he respects the vote of the people, "I am who I am. I'm a leader and will continue to be a leader and fight on behalf of Native Americans. It still remains to be seen if I do that by remaining in the Mescalero housing program" and continue working with national and regional housing organizations.

"I love the people in Mescalero," he said. "I have dedicated 28 years of my life to bringing in good quality housing, but we still are 30 years behind the rest of America."

"I support Sara 100 percent and will stand behind her and also Fred Chino. The people selected them and they need to take a serious look at the tribe's goals, objectives and economy, especially the school project."

Misque said she campaigned on putting a higher priority on education and on providing care for the elderly.

"Our children deserve a safe environment for learning and should be able to attend school on the reservation," she said. "By the year 2004, we expect to have around 1,600 children in grades K-12. We must plan and invest for the long term to provide our kids the best and safest environment for learning. I also think our elders should be able to stay on their homelands rather than go away to nursing homes. I want to provide for their needs right here at home."

Misque has worked for the tribe all of her career and during her time as tribal administrator was responsible for managing the day-to-day business of tribal government. She earned a business degree from Haskell Indian Junior College in Lawrence, Kan. Other than her years as a student, she has lived on the reservation and speaks fluent Apache. She and her husband, Gilbert, have three grown children and six grandchildren.

THE FACE OF RUIDOSO NEWS, THE FRONT OFFICE

In this issue, "Inside Look," will explore some aspects of the front office of the Ruidoso News.

The front office includes staff who answer the telephone and work compiling and arranging the classified section; employees trained to sell display advertising; an administrative assistant who handles accounts receivable, payables and the insertion of advertisements; and a publisher who determines the scope, range and financing of special projects and weekly issues.

Although these four departments can be located anywhere in a newspaper office, they are located right inside the front door at the Ruidoso News.

The first smiling face a visitor to the newspaper usually sees is that of Suzanne Reed. Not only does Suzanne handle classified ads, she also answers and directs calls, takes subscriptions and accepts payments.

Although she has a full schedule of duties each day, she is often required to find back issues for customers and also answer a variety of questions from callers. "It makes the job very challenging, and I love it," Suzanne admits.

Many readers consider the newspaper office as a source of endless information. The front office is constantly answering questions from callers ranging from, "What has the rainfall been in August so far?" and "Where can I find the Wall Street Journal?" to "When are the New Mexico quarters being minted?"

Occasionally, the staff at the newspaper is unable to answer queries, especially if the questions do not pertain to a story printed in the paper, the local community, or simple general information about Ruidoso. Most questions can be directed, though, to the proper entity.

One of the questions most frequently asked about the newspaper is: "What is the difference between classified and display advertising?"

Display advertising is located in the main section of the newspaper; it is measured by columns across and inches down. Classified advertising is measured by the word, and is represented in line ads in the classified section of the newspaper.

The entire front office works together to insure that each customer, whether advertiser or reader, is served in the most efficient way possible.

Classified display advertising is also available. Classified display is measured in a similar way to display advertising, but in smaller column widths. Classified display ads are located at the bottom of the classified section pages.

The advertising staff of the Ruidoso News handles all Display and Classified Display advertising. Clients often comment that the salespeople are rarely in the office—it is because they spend most of the work day on the road.

The newspaper's three advertising salespeople, Linda Wallace, Christine Volquardsen and Reilly Neill, visit with an average of 10 clients a day. They help companies and individuals design and create ads that will interest Ruidoso News readers in their businesses.

When all the advertising is compiled for an issue, ad sizes and cost specifications are turned in to Karen Payton, administrative assistant. Karen enters each advertisement into the accounting system and creates a manifest, or full listing, of advertisements for each issue.

If errors are made in the placement of an advertisement, it is Karen who catches them. Among Karen's many duties is the auditing of the newspaper. Karen checks each printed issue from cover to cover, and matches the advertising with the billing. If something doesn't add up, she can catch the mistake before a client is billed for it.

The front office staff works together to insure that each customer, whether advertiser or reader, is served in the most efficient way possible.

Another aspect of this service to the customer is performed by the publisher, Tamara Hand. Tamara directs the focus and finances of the newspaper. She deals with constant feedback from the community, and utilizes the information to create a product that serves Ruidoso and Lincoln County in the best way possible.

The publisher manages a number of tasks while overseeing direction of the newspaper. But she is also a front office employee, making herself available to the public on a daily basis.

The face of the Ruidoso News is the front office, and each employee within that department strives to put a smile on that face every day to better assist our advertising and reading customers.

► COUNCIL ACTION

Village salutes Willie Nelson

Mayor Robert Donaldson has proclaimed Aug. 15 as Willie Nelson Day, the date the popular western entertainer is scheduled to perform at the Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

His proclamation was made Tuesday night, as the Ruidoso Village Council also took the following actions in a regular session:

- Unanimously approved a resolution to add provisions for firefighters to the village personnel policy.

- Unanimously approved rescheduling the Aug. 31 regular council session to Aug. 24.

- Unanimously approved an agreement with the New Mexico Highway and Transportation Department's Aviation Division to accept 5 percent funding for the $8 million crosswind runway under construction at the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport.

- Unanimously approved a request from John Gray for a restaurant beer and wine license at Señorita Chiquita, 2205 Sudderth Drive.

- Unanimously approved preliminary and final plats for a 10-acre subdivision located south of the midtown area. The plat calls for a 20-foot-wide gravel road with 2 feet of shoulder on each side of the road.

- Unanimously approved renewal of an annual agreement for legal services with H. John Underwood at a cost of $72,000.

- Unanimously approved scheduling a public hearing and possible vote Sept. 14 for a proposed ordinance change regarding submissions to the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission. Instead of paying for a surveyor, applicants would be allowed to prepare their own sketches of proposed work, thus reducing costs if the request is either denied or changed. Applications would receive final approval after a surveyor confirms the first sketch to be correct.

- Unanimously approved scheduling a public hearing and possible vote Sept. 14 for a proposed ordinance that would allow administrative approval of minor design variances without going through the application process before the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission.

- Unanimously approved a public hearing and possible vote Sept. 14 for a proposed change to regulations regarding the use of banners in the village. Under the proposal, a single entity may put up a banner for a total of eight weeks a year, which is the same as current law, but in any incremental time period desired.

- Unanimously approved scheduling a public hearing Sept. 28 on a proposed ordinance amendment to give Texas-New Mexico Power Company greater authority to trim and cut back trees near electrical lines. The hearing will be the first of at least two before the council votes on the issue, Donaldson said.

- Unanimously approved seeking consultants to find federal and state grants for the village. If approved, the consultants would be paid only when grants are acquired, except for costs.

- Unanimously approved scheduling a public hearing and possible vote on Sept. 28 on a proposed ordinance amendment to allow parking space requirements at a commercial building to be "grandfathered". Under the proposal, if a retail shop was converted into a restaurant, parking space requirements would not increase.

Village to be 'first responder' if waters rise

• Without accepting any blame for flooding problems, the village of Ruidoso proposes an initiative to help out when property is endangered by floodwaters.

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

With recent rains and resulting floodwaters, the village of Ruidoso on Tuesday offered to be the first to respond when residents face flooding problems.

"It doesn't matter if it's our fault, your fault or God's fault," Mayor Robert Donaldson said at Tuesday's regular council meeting. "We will try to protect your property."

The village should be the first to respond when residents need help, regardless of where the blame belongs when flooding occurs, Donaldson and Village Manager Alan Briley said.

An emergency vehicle, such as a trailer, will be equipped with materials to help in flooding situations, such as sand bags and dewater signs, to respond quickly when a call comes in for help, Donaldson said.

Briley said his office has received 10 to 12 calls recently either to report flooding problems or to express concern about potential flooding. To the best of his knowledge, water has entered only two homes in the village, Briley said after the meeting. The area hit with the most floodwater so far as been the Alpine Village neighborhood, village officials said.

As measured by a rain gauge at Ruidoso Village Hall, 313 Cree Meadows Drive, more than 5 inches of rain have fallen in Ruidoso since the beginning of August, Briley said. The normal rainfall for the same period of time, based on the village hall rain gauge for the previous three years, is about 1.17 inches.

"We have recorded about 5.28 inches so far at village hall. So, yes. It's way above the norm," Briley said.

Briley will be meeting with department heads, urging them to be more responsive when residents call the village with requests for help.

He also will instruct employees on how to deal with complainants who threaten lawsuits against the village, and to not accept blame automatically for flooding problems, Briley said.

"People need to understand that just because we are out there helping them, it doesn't mean they can sue us," he said.

When people feel they do have a legitimate claim against the village for flooding problems, Briley asked that they first contact their own insurance agent about damages, and then have them repaired. A tort claim form along with invoices should then be submitted to the village, which will pass that information along to its insurance agents, Briley said.

He also pointed out that while the village of Ruidoso wants to help out in emergency situations, that offer does not extend to helping clean carpets after flooding has occurred.

Cedar Creek residents: Keep boiling your water

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Water samples from a Cedar Creek water supply this week again showed E. coli contamination, and residents of the area should continue to boil drinking water, a state environmental official said Tuesday.

Notice of the contamination was announced last week after initial samples from the Cedar Creek Cabin Owners Association Water Supply showed E. coli/fecal coliform bacteria. Results of a second round of testing came back late Tuesday afternoon.

"Two of six samples remained E. coli positive," Jim Edwards, environment specialist with the New Mexico Environment Department, said. "So the boil-water notice is going to remain in effect until they get the problem resolved."

The water supply provides service to as many as 450 people, though many of the area's houses are vacation homes and not necessarily inhabited at this time, Edwards said.

He advised that people in the affected area use either bottled water or water boiled for 10 minutes before drinking, preparing food or washing dishes.

Symptoms of E. coli infection include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, possibly jaundice, headaches and fatigue. The bacteria is typically associated with sewage or animal waste.

Four cases of gastrointestinal problems have been reported at Lincoln County Medical Center in the past week, but none of those cases were from the Cedar Creek area, Jule Sterchi, assistant administrator, said Tuesday.

Ernest Keily, president of the board of directors for the Cedar Creek Cabin Owners Association, said the source of the contamination was still unknown as of Tuesday. However, the number of positive water samples had dropped from two out of three last week to two out of six this week, he said.

"We just got that information 10 to 15 minutes ago. And we are trying to reason out why these two particular places and not the other four were positive," Keily said. "We are just going to have to keep working until we find out what's causing it. We don't know if we have a broken line, or if we are picking up some surface water ... we just don't know."

His family is buying bottled water and boiling water for rinsing off dishes, Keily said.

Edwards said he has received some inquiries whether or not water filtration systems will remove the bacteria. He said an effective filtration system will be equipped with the proper membrane for removing bacteria, which will damage or destroy other membrane types. Edwards recommended checking a system's rating of with its manufacturer to be certain.

Bacteria contamination is a relatively common event during the monsoon season, Edwards said. He said the Cedar Creek water supply underwent a similar problem last year.

State environmental officials may review the classification of wells in the Cedar Creek water supply, he said. The wells may be more affected by surface water than previously thought, which could mean a different level of water treatment would be required.

OUR OPINION

Rain and other curses of summer life

Don't you love all that rain? Sure, unless:
• You live at the end of one of those vertical mud roads so prevalent in some parts of our forest.
• You are a farmer or rancher who can't do much at all to work a crop or find a lost calf.
• Your livelihood consists of standing at an intersection wearing a slicker and holding a "stop" and "slow" sign... unless it's so wet the road work totally stops.

So how wet is it?
Very wet, comparatively, in New Mexico, even if there is a drought back east. The weekly Ag Update from the New Mexico Agricultural Statistics Service reported for the week ending Aug. 8 that swollen rivers, swampy fields, muddy roads and cool temperatures continued to wreak havoc for the state's agricultural producers. Farm and ranch activities were almost brought to a halt as continued precipitation allowed an unusually low average of 3.6 days suitable for field work.

Rain topping 40 to 50 percent of the yearly norm was the case in much of New Mexico for the first week in August alone, as the monsoons arrived with a vengeance.

Ag Update reported 2.08 inches of rain for the first eight days of August in Ruidoso, more than half the 4.04 inches recorded typically for the whole month. Carrizozo, with 2.61 inches, was just a sprinkle short of the normal 2.69 inches in August.

In Ruidoso, of course, total rainfall depends on just where you live. A sprinkle in Alto can turn into a downpour in Ruidoso Downs.

But rain has been prevalent enough to result in major delays for those miles of road construction on State Road 48 (Mechem Drive) and U. S. Highway 70.

Once upon a time, it was predicted that Mechem might be completed in October, Highway 70 in November.

Now, says a spokesman for the New Mexico Highway and Transportation Department, whatever time the contractor has lost because of rain must be given back through extended completion deadlines.

That doesn't thrill those of us who contend with standing water, blocked access and ill-tempered costumers. And there's little we can do in response except gripe.

But, my, have you ever seen the mountains so beautiful, the meadows so green? Where can you find a sight grander than wispy rain clouds sliding off the slopes of Sierra Blanca?

And, says the statisticians, Ruidoso still is 3.72 inches short of the average for the first eight months of the year.

The rest will no doubt hit this weekend, or maybe already has.

YOUR OPINION

Ecological what?

To the editor:

Some of us folks think of the national forest as a place where we can cut a little firewood, a few logs, run a few cattle, do a little prospecting, and take our grandkids camping.

But that has changed. It is now a place where the U. S. Forest Service scientists say that "consumptive uses will not even be considered until after the ecological sustainability of the forest is assured."

And who will do this "assuring?" You are right. A USFS committee of scientists.

The preliminary draft of USFS regulations replaces the old familiar "multiple-use" with the politically correct "ecological sustainability."

...It must be great to be a... Forest Service employee and not have anything to do but sit and worry — and get paid a good salary for sittin' and worryin'... those dumb old taxpayers always come through with that monthly check.

Enjoy the River Walk

To the editor:

I would like to announce to our tourists the completion of the Rio Mechem River Walk! No longer will one have to travel to enjoy a peaceful river walk. Why risk costly vehicular damage when you can cruise down the rapids to your destination? Be sure to notice the clarity of the water, thanks to the muddy Rio Ruidoso which collects runoff sediment.

Please frequent the hardy businesses that survived the previous months of road obstruction.

Don't forget to visit the Greater and Lower Lake Smokeys on either side of the road, near the ranger station. Here concrete barriers and orange barrels provide a lovely backdrop for a photo opportunity, if you can find a place to pull over out of the flow of traffic. Winter guests may enjoy ice fishing there, next year.

Visitors will appreciate that here, as in midtown, few stoplights or crosswalks will hinder their travel. Doesn't everyone agree that pedestrians walking into traffic at every point along the street are safer than those crossing in maintained crosswalks?

I'm sure we can all take comfort in the fact that this new and exciting attraction is still growing in costs of money and time, with months to go! Please enjoy the beautification of Ruidoso — Your Year Round Construction Ground.

GUEST COMMENTARY

Mescalero Apaches pay their taxes, too

BY SARA MISQUEZ
INTERIM PRESIDENT, Mescalero APACHE TRIBE

It is a myth that Indians don't pay taxes. We do, just like everyone else.

As the region's largest employer — second only to military installations — the Mescalero Apache tribe is a good corporate citizen by any standard. In 1998 we had a total of 3,277 employees, more than 1,800 of whom were full-time employees with excellent benefits. The tribe paid about $8 million last year in employee taxes and benefits like health care and retirement.

In fact, the Mescalero Apache tribe for the last 40 years has voluntarily paid state workers Compensation premiums — something we are not required to do. Last year we paid nearly $750,000 in state Workers Compensation premiums alone. By choice.

Our employees pay federal income taxes, FICA, Medicare and state income taxes. We pay New Mexico gross receipts taxes on off-reservation business just like everyone else. Those tribal members who live off the reservation pay state income taxes, property taxes and the like. Our government doesn't pay taxes, but state government (or any other government for that matter) doesn't pay taxes either.

The tribe provides the same kind of services for its people as other community governments. We support our own fire patrol, court system, roads, buildings, schools and so on. But frankly, after decades of poverty, we don't have the tax base to support all our needs. It's not like we can assess property taxes: our people don't even have adequate housing yet.

Contrary to what some may believe, not all of our enterprises are profitable, but they do provide employment and get people off welfare. That eases the federal tax burden for all of us.

Indian tribes, with their unique status as sovereigns, just want to achieve economic parity after years of oppression and neglect. Gaming proceeds can only be used for governmental or charitable purposes — in other words, unglamorous things like roads and sewers. This isn't Monte Carlo; we pay our taxes just like you.

For the past three weeks I've been spending some time at El Defensor Chieftain, a sister paper in Socorro, as the interim editor.

BLEEDING
BLACK INK

BY TERENCE VESTAL
EDITOR, EL DEFENSOR NEWS

In that time I was able to get to know that town a little better.

I also got to know Highway 380, particularly that stretch that runs between Carrizozo and San Antonio, a whole lot better.

It felt like I spent a good two weeks in two hours traveling that 60 miles of asphalt that, as with most highways in New Mexico, is perpetually under construction.

There are some interesting signs running along that road as well.

There is one in particular — the one that says "Yield To Opposing Traffic" — that I've never seen before on any stretch of highway anywhere.

Yield to opposing traffic? The very laws of physics dictate that one would have to yield to opposing traffic. Something would have to yield anyway.

The "Pass With Care" signs are fairly common. But what makes life a little more interesting on Highway 380 is that these signs are spaced toward the top of a hill or on the approach of a blind curve.

You never see a sign that says "Pass With Extreme Indifference Toward Your Fellow Human Beings" although at times that seems to be the philosophy of some of the travelers.

But Mother Nature has a way of making people drive a bit more carefully, or at least making them consider it.

About three miles west of Bingham, which is almost the mid-way point between Carrizozo and San Antonio, a wall of water seemed to fall from the sky.

Visibility was zero and the faded yellow lines that divided the highway simply did not exist.

The only way a driver would know that he or she was not the only one left on the planet was the dim "eyes" of passing cars that felt their way through the deluge for a lane.

That's the type of situation that makes me wonder if someone might be out there who is venturing through the murk without their headlights on.

Traffic was at a crawl by then so it might not have mattered anyway.

In similar New Mexico meteorological fashion, the rain suddenly shut itself off like a faucet about the time I reached Bingham.

That rock shop in Bingham, one of the few items of interest in all those miles of high desert, clearly viewed through an unblurred windshield never looked so sweet.

On your way back to Ruidoso, in between Carrizozo, and the turn-off to State Road 37, there is another highway oddity worth noting.

Look carefully and you will see a mile marker that has no number on it. It's just a solid panel of green, which can make it difficult to see from a passing vehicle.

Would you report an accident at "Mile Marker Green"?

But those are just some of the quirks that make life on the road that much more interesting.

That's what makes the miles go by a little faster.

Maybe that next time I make that two-hour drive it will only seem like it takes a week.

IDENTIFYING VISUAL IMPAIRMENT

There are many causes of low vision or visual impairment. The most common causes in the adult population are age-related macular degeneration (AMD), cataracts, glaucoma and diabetic retinopathy. AMD is one of the leading causes of legal blindness among people over the age of 60 in America. It is a disease that damages the cells at the center of the retina, called the macula, thereby affecting central vision. "Dry" AMD, in which the cells at the back of the retina atrophy, is more common than "wet", which is identified by an abnormal growth of new blood vessels beneath the retina.

While there is no cure for AMD, exciting surgical techniques to repair the damaged retina are in the early stages of research. Current management strategies include magnification, visual training and use of prisms. In the future, nutritional factors may play a role in prevention and treatment. The National Eye Institute of the National Institutes of Health is supporting an ongoing study on the relation between macular degeneration and certain antioxidant vitamins. The hope is that the vitamins can lessen the occurrence and severity of the disease. Amsler grid testing is used to detect early signs of AMD.

We invite you to stop by Family Vision Center, 159 Mescalero Trail, if you have questions concerning AMD, cataracts, glaucoma or diabetes and your eyes. Take care of your eyes, they're the only ones you'll ever have.

All-day kindergarten, uniforms ahead?

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso school officials have agreed that the district should make all-day kindergarten a goal and that the district and community will study the possibility of uniform student dress for next year.

Administrators, school board members and student council representatives looked over last year's goals and forged new ones at the annual retreat on Aug. 7 at Supt. Mike Gladden's home.

The consensus was that the curriculum needs revision to suit the needs of those going on to college as well as those joining the work force. Board Secretary Jackie Branum said feedback she has received from some graduates was that they have to take

- Board goals
- The Ruidoso school board seeks to:
- Create an all-day kindergarten program
 - Improve the curriculum for both work- and college-bound students
 - Control fund-raising remedial math when they get to college.

Discussion also was about enhancing techniques to make learning "exciting" without decreasing classroom hours, possibly with several in-service days at the beginning of the term.

One of the strengths of the district, many participants said, was the partnerships with Eastern New Mexico University, the Hubbard Museum, Spencer Theater, Region IX, and partnerships between schools and businesses. The Kennedy Center arts partnership between the schools and the Spencer Theater and Hubbard Museum was discussed as an opportunity to give teachers new teaching tools through fine arts.

Student Council Secretary Leah Miller said more academic-related activities are needed to balance with the existing sports activities. Talk ensued about students getting out of class to decorate for the prom or for fundraising, and Gladden said this year fundraising would be done only after school.

Capitan school board complete; session starts Tuesday

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

CAPITAN - Gary Tregembo was sworn in by the Capitan School Board on Aug. 5 and will take his place on the board at the regular meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday, President Tom Trost has announced.

Tregembo ran for the school board in the Feb. 2 election against Ervin Aldaz and Joel Crossno and lost. Board member Jack King retired from the board June 10. Tregembo will continue King's term, which ends in February of 2000.

At a special meeting July 29, the board awarded Bill Cupit of Cupit Construction the contract for paving a bus loop, a new parking lot, and Yard Road, which runs behind the school, Trost said.

"People are working on the bus loop now, and we're hoping to have it completed with gravel by the time school starts (Tuesday, Aug. 17)," Trost said. He said mud is causing problems and a containment pond is being built for the run-off between the school's Agriculture Building and the bus loop. School buses may park at the containment pond in dry weather.

"Bill's talking that he's going to be two weeks ahead of our schedule," Trost said, because he started two weeks early. "He was out there with equipment the next day."

Trost said it's going to be messy if the rain keeps coming, "but it's better than getting a kid hurt." He added that the new parking lot will not be ready when school starts.

Teachers will return Monday, Aug. 16, for an in-service day and to meet with board members, Trost said. Dawn Goodrum, administrative secretary, said 12 new teachers will join the staff.

The first two sessions of school for students will be half days, Goodrum said. School will start at 7:55 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17, and students will leave on buses at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday is also a half day with the same hours.

This month the residents at the care center have been really busy.

The Garden Club is working results from their hard work. The tomatoes are ripening, as well as the Habanero peppers. The strawberries are also starting to come along well. Carrizozo parade brings in the crowds, floats, and mayors

BY PHYLLIS SCHLEGEL
RUIDOSO NEWS CORRESPONDENT

Parade watchers lined Birch Street on July 31, to view a parade celebrating Carrizozo's 100th birthday.

Many towns people noted it was "the first parade ever on the East side of town" and that it was appreciated. This Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event had some 30 teams led by the honor guard from Holloman Air Force Base.

Then followed the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse and Sheriff Tom Sullivan.

Centennial grand marshals, a family group, rode in a 1928 Ford Roadster, owned and driven by Dee McDaniel. Brother J. N. "Snooks" McDaniel, sisters-in-law Frances Degner and Agnes Degner Hein were his passengers. Following in the Zia Senior Center van, driven by Leroy Zamora, Jr., center director, were more grand marshals: Inice Hust, Pat Reil Baker and Claude Hobbs.

Of the 10 living mayors who have served Carrizozo, five were present to ride in the parade — Wayne C. Withers, 1956-60; Johnson S. Stearns, 1968-74; Robert D. Crenshaw, 1976; and Robert E. Hemphill, 1984-90. Mayor Manuel R. Hernandez, elected in 1998, was also present. Hernandez is serving his second term having been Carrizozo mayor from 1980-82.

The Sierra Blanca Drill Team was led by Jude Michael Vega of Carrizozo.

Vega is director of operations for Wilderness Dorm at Camp Sierra Blanca. The team was dressed in navy blue shirts inscribed with white letters, "Camp Sierra Blanca Drill Team," navy pants and berets, and black boots. Santa Rita Fiesta Queen René Rael, was accompanied by the church Youth Group.

Next, life-size Smokey Bear and helpers were followed by his admirers, kids on bicycles, including Valerie Thomas of White Oaks, a roper who entertained as she walked in parade formation. Rick Virden and friends thrilled viewers with his team of Belgian horses and wagon, plus two mounted riders, Carol Schlarb and Kay Portillo.

Norwest Bank of Carrizozo was represented by Lucy Rickman and Scott Shafer. They paraded in a golf cart decorated with balloons in company colors, blue and green. Some Malpais 4-H Club members decorated and rode in the vehicle of their leader, Martha Bond.

New Horizons Developmental Center, celebrating its 20th Anniversary, adorned a van with crepe paper roses and banners under the direction of staff member Judy Nash. Staff Beatrice Beltran and Kezia Sanford accompanied 14 resident passengers. Joe Lane of Tularosa Basin Telephone Company provided a ride for Coach Tydie Jackson and the "Zozo Volleyball Girls."

Riders on the Lincoln County Historical Society float were attired in clothing reminiscent of the late 1800s and chatted amidst a setting of white wicker and flower beds.

The Ruidoso Instructional Center of Eastern New Mexico University also was represented in the parade.

The last entries were from the Chamber of Commerce, the EMS ambulance, White Oaks and Carrizozo fire trucks.

In Fred Chavez Park following the parade, grand marshals and mayors, past and present, were introduced.

Withers said jokingly, "Everyone remembers me, because I spent all of the town's money! Back then, all the town had was receipts from utilities." He was referring to sewage costs and the expense of drilling a water well, three miles south of town. It eventually produced 400 gallons of water per minute.

Johnson Stearns said, "I am honored to be here in Fred Chavez Park talking to you... We served on the Carrizozo school board together during the 1950s." Stearns, a local historian, spoke of Henry Lutz, Carrizozo's first mayor in 1917. "Lutz was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1864. He was engaged in the ranching business and owned Carrizozo Trading Company. After reverses suffered during a livestock panic in 1920s, he became night marshal for the town. The Lutz Building on 12th Street, built in 1917, was later acquired by Frank A. English." Today it houses Carrizozo Hardware.

Parade chairpersons Ruth Birdsong and Phyllis Schlegel thanked participants in the centennial celebration.

Fishing report

For fly fishing -
The Game and Fish Department has stocked the river and the fishing action has picked up and down the river frontage. With the periodic rains, however, the fish are a bit confused as to when they should feed. The barometer is up and down continuously.

RIO RUIDOSO: The best patterns are pheasant tails, green rock worms and prince nymphs. Late afternoons until dusk are producing scattered dry fly action along the vegetation lines of the riverbanks. The best dries have been parachute adams, blue wing olives and hendricksons. Upper canyon on the reservation has been fishing well. Toss what you got here.

BONITO CREEK: Not any change from last week. There is water flow below Bonito, however few fish are found here. Above Bonito on the South Fork has been good with numerous small native fish.

BONITO LAKE: Water level is good with reports of early and late fishing good on dry flies. Best reported patterns are blue wing olives, hendricksons and light cahills. The spin caster will do well with a bubble right and a propeller fly tied on the business end. The hot propeller flies last week and this week seem to be the one with a pink body and white hackle, gold and silver have caught fish.

GRINDSTONE LAKE: Late evening fishing will produce the better taking here. Take advantage of midge and damselfly hatches. Several evenings this past week dry flies such as light cahills, parachute adams and griffin's gnats have provided numerous surface takes. Toss a few streamers at dark thirty and hold on to the rod grip. A few big boys have cruised the shorelines at dusk.

LAKE MESCALERO: The lake level is good. Shoreline and boat fishing have produced nice fish in the evening hours. Dry flies that have been working are parachute adams, hendricksons, mosquitoes and midges.

EAGLE LAKES: The fishing has been steady but spotty. Propeller flies behind a bubble will do well for the spin casters. It's hard to beat a parachute adams or a blue wing olive during the last hour of the day. Eagle Lakes are always good for one of the country's best nature shows. Sightings of elk and deer usually help keep you entertained. The stocking of Eagle lakes is questionable because of the hatchery disaster in Mescalero.

RIO RUIDOSO: It has been pretty good when it's clear. Use salmon eggs and panther mormon.

GRINDSTONE RESERVOIR: Fair to good, mostly morning and evening fishing. Powerbait, worms and pistol peps.

EAGLE LAKES: Not much word since stocking stopped because of the Mescalero Fish Hatchery disaster last month.

New activities director seeks a 'balancing act'

Ruidoso Warrior coach Ron Wall will wear more than his golf hat this year for Ruidoso High School.

The Warrior boys' golf coach, Wall assumed duties as full-time activities coordinator for the high school and Ruidoso Middle School on July 1. He'll be in charge of scheduling, transportation, student-athlete drug testing, the hiring of coaches and student eligibility, among other responsibilities.

"We've just added so many activities and athletics," said Ruidoso Schools Superintendent Mike Gladden explaining the need for an activities director.

Gladden recommended that the Ruidoso School Board consider a full-time administrative position to oversee athletics and co-curricular activities at both RHS and RMS.

Wall became interested in the position because he saw the district's need for one and because he believes that it is possible to find a balance among academics, athletics and activities.

Wall, who is a Canada native, started teaching 30 years ago. He took a break from the classroom when he and his wife, Carole, moved to Ruidoso to operate a lodge. When a mid-year vacancy at Ruidoso Middle School opened up 10 years ago, Wall filled in and he's been back in the classroom ever since. For nine of his 10 years with the school district, Wall has served as boys' golf coach and led the Warriors to two state championships.

He plans to draw on his experience in the classroom and success on the golf course in his new position.

"If you keep in mind the best interests of the student or the athlete, and you make sure that they have fun, that you have a plan that you focus on... if you keep those things in priority than usually success on the field takes care of itself," Wall said.

Wall's goals include an evaluation of activities and keeping those co-curricular activities in perspective.

For example, Wall said, students won't be in the community raising money for their clubs or teams during class time.

"We need to look at how those activities detract from classroom time," he said.

Wall said he's not afraid to put his foot down and rein in activities that put students out of the classroom.

"The only time when we sometimes get out of whack is when we sometimes take precedent and the academics suffer," Wall said.

A number of responsibilities fall under the activities coordinator's umbrella. Wall will oversee the schedulprocess for coaches, but won't evaluate them.

Gladden said Wall "will supervise" coaches and counsel student-athletes and their parents.

"We don't do formal evaluations of coaches. We want to keep informal and verbal," Gladden said.

That's what Wall, who said, "If there's a problem, we'll deal with it."

Wall described himself as a strong advocate of a "no-cut" policy. He said there's no reason to humiliate a student-athlete.

"If you have to do a chewing (out), you do it with a purpose and a lesson behind it," Wall said.

Another of his responsibilities will be to attend all home games and activities, which Wall said he enjoys doing already. New high school principal Bill Green has offered to help out as well.

"People have said, 'I don't know whether to give you my congratulations or offer my condolences,'" Wall joked.

Regardless, Wall figures he'll find fulfillment in the new job, even though he said he'll miss seeing the "light clicking on" in a student's head.

"From a staff standpoint, you have a more rewarding career if you don't just focus on the classroom," he said. "It makes you more well-rounded and have a more rewarding career as a teacher."

ing and transportation for athletic teams and co-curricular groups. Wall will administer the district's drug testing program and student-athlete eligibility. He'll be in charge of team budgets as well as serve as the district's voting member for the New Mexico Activities Association and as the district's representative on the Mayor's Sports Council.

He'll have a hand in the hiring

The Warrior football team embarked on a new season Monday

BY LAURA CLYMER

They don't have the swagger of last year's seniors.

But this year's Ruidoso Warrior football players have the same great attitude and work ethic that propelled Ruidoso to the state title game in '98, said Ruidoso coach Les Carter Tuesday.

The Warriors started the '99 campaign Monday with two-a-day workouts. They'll put on the pads beginning Thursday. The first week of practice culminates with an intra-squad scrimmage at 7 p.m. Saturday at Horton Stadium. Then, the Warriors will host Rio Rancho for a scrimmage at 7 p.m. Aug. 20.

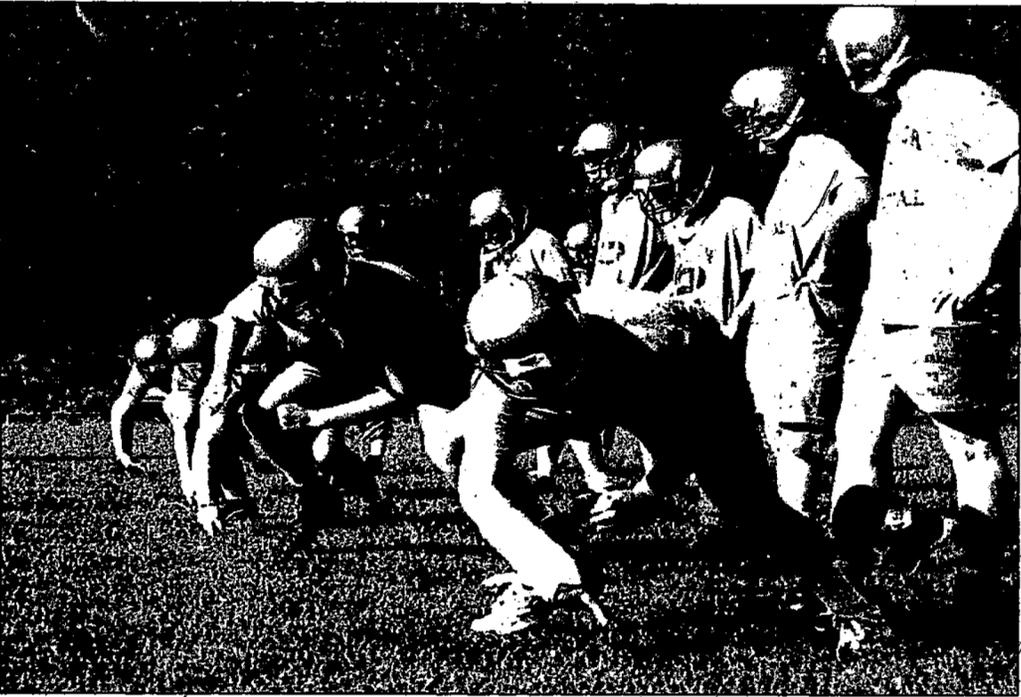

"We're real excited about their attitude," Carter said. "We've got a great attitude and work ethic."

Gone from last year's 11-3 state runner-up are 19 letterwinners; the majority of those were starters, including the Warriors' quarterback, fullback, leading receiver, a number of offensive and defensive linemen and linebackers.

Those numbers, or lack thereof, haven't changed Carter's goal.

"If we're going to be quality, we've got to play December football. And there's only one game in December," he said.

"We don't feel like we're starting over."

Longshot wins the right to represent area at Challenge

It was a wet weekend at Ruidoso Downs Race Track. Cray Number was one racehorse who knew how to manage the mud.

JJs Featurett will represent the New Mexico region at the Juvenile Challenge Championships at Los Alamitos in October.

The 2-year-old quarter horse earned that trip with a quick trip down the 350-yard straightaway at Ruidoso Downs Race Track in Sunday's American Airlines New Mexico Challenge.

The longshot, who left the gates at 21-1, proved to like the sloppy track and scored a one-length victory over Bashful Dash, who finished a half-length in front of Winner Takes Cash. JJs Featurett stayed out of trouble and completed the 350 yards in 21.40 seconds.

Ridden by Larry Payne and trained by James E. Lacky, JJs Featurett was bred and raised by owners Sandra L.

Erwin and Bob Putt. "She was tremendous. She blasted down the track," Erwin said. "She did better than we thought she would."

Trainer Lacky said his filly had a better start in the finals than in the trials, where she was the ninth-fastest qualifier.

"She didn't get away as well in the trials, but today she stepped away from there just like she should," Lacky said. "The way this slop is, if you can just get away from the gate and get out in front it's hard to chase you down."

Lacky said he plans to prep his charge for the Dash For Cash sprint at Lone Star Park in Texas before heading to Los Alamitos in October.

RACES: The weekend's winners are the 'mudders'

"She didn't show it in the trials, but she likes to make her run at the end," Lacky said. "I'm tickled to death with her; she's showed all year that she has a lot of potential."

The MBNA American Quarter Horse Racing Challenge is a $2.75-million series of 46 races run in 10 regions at racetracks across the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The winner of each of the 46 regional events earns a starting position to the Challenge Championships to compete in the final of that particular race. The Challenge is racing's only series with a championship finale. ESPN will have tape-delayed coverage of all Challenge Championships events Oct. 31.

The next MBNA American Quarter Horse Racing Challenge Races at Ruidoso

Downs be the $15,000-added Professional's Choice Claiming Stakes Trials Thursday with the finals slated for Aug. 28.

Crafty Number trumps the mud

Crafty Number, grandson of the great Secretariat, slogged through the slop to capture Sunday's Ruidoso Thoroughbred Handicap for 3-year-olds. Crafty Number won by a neck in a time of 1:48.80 for the mile and 1/16th race.

Breaking from the No. 1 post, Crafty Number, with Adan Fuentes aboard, slipped inside behind front-runner Acquistador. Running in the second position throughout the race, Crafty Number cut through a lane in the home stretch to win by a neck. Acquistador finish second, a half-length ahead of third-place finisher I.D. Minted.

Pampered Pirate wins Fern Sawyer

A wet track didn't slow Pampered Pirate from claiming the Fern Sawyer Handicap Saturday at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

The one-mile race for 3-year-old fillies and mares was covered in a time of 1:42.20 by Pampered Pirate. The odds-on favorite at post time, Pampered Pirate moved inside after breaking from the No. 8 post and built a six-length lead heading into the stretch.

She then held off Lotus Pride for a two-length victory at the wire. Miss Hot Chek finished third. With the win, Pampered Pirate pushed her lifetime earnings to more than $54,600.

How to dress for success at Ruidoso public schools

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

No half-shirts, see-through shirts, torn or ripped clothing, excessively short skirts or shorts, chains, profanity, sunglasses or hats indoors.

These are just some of the rules about dress for the Ruidoso Municipal School District. While there is a district dress code, individual schools have modified it to suit their own needs.

At the youngest level, said Roger Sowder, principal of Nob Hill Early Childhood Center, dress codes are not emphasized.

"We do not consider dress a big issue at this level," Sowder said. "We definitely want them dressed."

All the principals expressed gratitude that students and parents cooperated so much on appropriate dress for school. Helene Kobelnik of White Mountain Intermediate School said there were no major issues last year, although a few students "tried the baggy pants, but they were cooperative and didn't come back with them."

District policy on "sagging" or "baggy" clothing states that underwear must not be visible, pants must be worn at the waist line, and there must be no chains.

Kobelnik said she has students demonstrate what is appropriate and what is inappropriate during orientation, so students know from the start what the rules are. The major elements are that they be neat, with nothing relating to gang affiliation, no hats, and no baggy, saggy clothes.

Linda Robison, the high school counselor, said that in the seven years she has been counselor the dress codes have stayed much the same.

"Basically, all we've tried to do through the years is not allow any clothing that is distracting or intimidating because we want our students to feel safe," Robison said.

Distracting items include nose rings, lip rings, and tongue rings. Much of the high school dress code refers to gang-related attire and the need to have students feel and be safe, she said.

"This is a professional environment," Robison said. "The dress code sets the atmosphere for the student body and for the staff.... It ensures we treat one another with respect and care."

The dress code may be an issue for a few days for students new to the district, Robison said, but it's not a problem otherwise.

Frank Cannella, principal of White Mountain Elementary said he has few problems with the dress code at the third- and fourth-grade levels.

Sometimes students will come in wearing T-shirts promoting alcohol or drugs, and sometimes they will wear pants that are "just way too big. I know they're in style now," he said, adding that interpreting the dress code is subjective.

"You kind of have to look at the child and make a decision whether he's too baggy or too saggy. There aren't any hard and fast rules," he said. "Occasionally you have to call the parents and say, 'Hey, we've got to do something with these pants.'"

Although baggy, saggy pants weren't a problem last year, the year before some fourth graders were being "recruited by older kids to wear 'baggy-saggy,' and part of the dress code for gangsters is the baggy-saggy look," Cannella said. "It depends on the kids you have in a given year."

Parents are good about working with the schools and making sure their children are presentable, Cannella said.

Some of the district-wide dress codes don't apply to the younger levels, such as rules against exposed sports bras, but occasionally in the later part of the year, girls who are starting to develop will wear something that was fine in the third grade and the early part of the fourth grade, but toward the end is "not okay," Cannella said.

The year before last, the district had to do away with a rule that shirts be tucked in.

Clothing once again on the minds of students gearing up to go back to school.

Laura Clymer/Ruidoso News

"That seemed to be a struggle," Cannella said. "They'd go out on recess and would run around and come in and they wouldn't be tucked in and we had to remind them. As a district we decided to do away with the tucking in; (although) we encouraged it, we didn't require it."

Abbie Figueroa, now a senior, remembers that at the high school level a lot of students were going to student court and were sent to Saturday school because the administration was enforcing the tucked-in-shirt policy.

"It was too hard to enforce and it wasn't really meant for our school," Figueroa said. "It wasn't working. Our school was doing fine without it, so they just dropped it."

New high school principal Bill Green said dress codes are the hardest policies to enforce because there's so much gray area, even though the Ruidoso code is pretty specific.

Green said he will enforce the dress code because it's what the school board and administration decided.

"The words 'dress code' send fear into students, so it's going to be a hard-sell for us no matter what we do," Green said. "As long as we give them some options within the dress code, we're going to be all right."

Figueroa said she thinks students feel fine about the dress code, since the tucked-in rule was removed.

Where and when to register

Capitan

New students can register for school until Aug. 17, and will have a good chance of meeting their teachers. Immunization records and birth certificates are needed for registration. Out-of-district students must bring a report card from the last school and must fill out an out-of-district agreement.

Returning high school students need to stop by the office and pick up their schedules.

Tuesday, Aug. 17 and Wednesday, Aug. 18 will be half-days of school, from 8:05 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 19 will be the first full-day of school.

While the middle school will have an open house for new students and their parents at 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 16, the elementary and high schools will have assemblies the first day of school to introduce the teachers to the students.

The parent organization will schedule a district-wide open house after Labor Day.

Nob Hill Early Childhood Center

The first day of school for kindergarten students will be Monday, Aug. 30. Morning kindergarten is 8:30-11:15 a.m.; afternoon kindergarten is 12 noon-2:45 p.m.

The first day of school for preschool and Head Start students is Tuesday, Aug. 31.

New students need to come in as soon as possible to register and make arrangements for a home visit.

Sierra Vista Primary School

Orientation for first graders will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 17 and 18, by teacher appointment. Orientation for second graders will be held on Tuesday, August 17 at 9:30 am and at 1:00 pm.

Full-day classes begin on Wednesday, August 18 for second-grade classes and on Thursday, August 19th for first grade classes at Sierra Vista Primary.

To register new students not previously enrolled in the Ruidoso Municipal Schools, bring all immunization records, prior school records, birth certificate and social security number.

Class lists are posted on the front door at all times. To see which teacher and class a child will be in for the coming year, parents may come by Sierra Vista Primary on Wednesday, August 4th. Please do not ask for class or teacher changes at this time. If you have questions, please call Sierra Vista Primary Office at (505) 258-4943, M-F 8 a.m.-12 noon and 1-3:30 pm.

White Mountain Elementary School

Students new to the district need to register any time between 8 a.m.-noon or 1-4 p.m. before Aug. 13, bringing shot records, birth certificates, social security numbers and a report card from the previous year or school transcript or withdrawal form.

Orientation is Tuesday, Aug. 17 in the cafeteria. All third and fourth grade students and their parents need to attend one of two orientation sessions: 8:30 a.m. or 12 noon. The orientation session will last about an hour and is a very important first step in establishing the lines of communication between home and school. It will give parents an opportunity to learn of teachers' expectations, school policies and procedures, answer parents' questions, fill out information cards, buy lunch tickets, and determine bus routes.

The first full day of school will be Wednesday, Aug. 18. To help celebrate the beginning of the school year, each child is asked to bring flowers from their garden to decorate their classroom on the first day of school. Classes begin at 8:20 a.m. and dismiss at 3 p.m.

White Mountain Intermediate School

Orientation for fifth grade is from 10:30-11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 17; for sixth grade 1:30-2:30 p.m. It's important for parents to be there that day because all paperwork will be completed that day, including emergency information.

New students need to register before orientation because they need to be entered into the computer and need to pick up an enrollment packet at the Central Office in the Administration Building or at the school site.

The first full day of school will be Wednesday, Aug. 18 and buses will be running that day.

Ruidoso Middle School

Registration for new students: pick up new-student packets at the middle school office. New students can register at the office and returning students can just come in on the first day of school.

First day of school: Tuesday, Aug. 17. School begins at 8:07 a.m. and ends at 3:05 p.m.

Orientation will be a half-day for each grade during the first day of school. Schedules, handbooks and locker assignments will be given out at this time. Homeroom teachers will be posted the first day of school, not before. Parents are encouraged to attend with their students. Buses will not be running on this day.

Seventh grade students will have orientation in the gym from 9-11 a.m. Eighth grade students will have orientation in the gym from 1-3 p.m.

Parents who received a letter from the school nurse on immunization should take care of this prior to the start of school.

Watch for changes to this schedule on Channel 56 or the local radio station.

Ruidoso High School

Seniors, juniors and sophomores can pick up their class schedules any time. Freshmen schedules will be available starting Friday, Aug. 13. Students are encouraged to pick up their schedules before school starts.

Tiny Bird Champions

Hail to the Hummingbird!

Hummingbirds are the top record breakers of the bird world. They are:

- the smallest birds;
- the only birds that can hover continuously;
- the only birds that can fly backward, upside down or sideways for more than a few seconds;
- the only birds with so many extremely bright, vivid, shiny colors;

- the second-largest family of birds in the world, with 318 types, or species.

Itsy-bitsy birds

Hummingbirds are so tiny that one of their enemies is an insect, the praying mantis.

The smallest bird in the world is the Cuban bee hummingbird. It is less than 2 inches long from the tip of its beak to the tip of its tail.

It weighs about 6/100ths of an ounce. You could put 16 in an envelope and mail them all for 33 cents! They are so small, people often mistake them for insects.

Cuban bee hummingbird

Because they can hover, hummingbirds can feed from flowers that have no place for them to land. Sticking their long beaks inside the blossom, they drink up the nectar. The bills of many hummingbirds are the longest in the bird kingdom.

This broadbilled hummingbird is one of many types that nest in Arizona.

The Mini Page thanks H. Ross Hawkins, president, The Hummingbird Society, Newark, Del., for help with this story.

Flying fast

The hum from hummingbirds comes from the super-fast beat of their wings. The smallest ones beat their wings the fastest, up to 80 times per second. Even the slower beat of bigger birds, 20 times a second, is so fast that people see only a blur.

A hummingbird's flight muscles make up about one-third of its weight, a bigger amount than in any other bird.

They are so good at flying that most don't ever walk. They use their feet only to perch. Even when they are just changing position on a branch, they fly.

While they can do special things such as fly backward or hover, they cannot glide or soar.

Nesting

The mother binds plants together with spiderwebs to make a tiny nest about as big as a golf ball. She sticks bits of leaves and other matter around it for camouflage. The male does not help with the nest or the babies.

Hummingbirds usually lay two eggs about the size of small jellybeans. They live in the wild three to five years.

Meet Phylcia Rashad

Phylcia Rashad is starring in her second TV series with Bill Cosby. She plays Ruth Lucas on the show "Cosby." For eight years she played Clair Huxtable on "The Cosby Show." Phylcia has been on other shows, including "Touched by an Angel" and "A Different World."

In addition to acting, she also sings and has performed on Broadway and in shows around the country.

Phylcia grew up in Houston and graduated from Howard University in Washington, D.C. She studied fine arts. She lives in Mount Vernon, N.Y., with her husband, sportscaster Ahmad Rashad, son, Billy, and daughter, Condola Phylea. Phylcia works with several charities.

Food

Hummingbirds are so active they have to eat lots and lots of food. If an awake hummingbird does not eat at least every 30 minutes, it could starve to death.

Small insects make up part of their food, especially when they are babies.

Their main food is nectar from flowers or trees. Water makes up about three-fourths of nectar. Sucrose, or ordinary table sugar, makes up the rest.

They need to eat 2 1/2 times their body weight in nectar every day. This is the same as eating about one-half their body weight in sugar, and two times their weight in water.

To get enough nectar they must feed from hundreds of flowers every day. During the night, and if there is not enough food, they can go into a kind of hibernation.

If humans moved as much as hummingbirds, a 75-pound child would have to eat 163 pounds of potatoes a day. If soft drinks were as rich in sugar as nectar, a child would still have to drink 250 12-ounce cans of soft drink every single day.

Insects don't see red, so they often pass by red flowers, leaving them for hummingbirds. Hummingbirds know a red flower might mean food just for them. They will check out anything red, even lipstick or clothes.

Location

Hummingbirds are found only on the American continents and Caribbean islands. The areas near the equator have the most species. Ecuador has 160 species, the most of any country. Mexico has 40.

Sixteen species nest in the U.S. They are in every state except Hawaii.

Only one species, the ruby-throated hummingbird, nests east of the Mississippi River. The best place in this country to find hummingbirds is southeastern Arizona. They come there from many different areas.

Ruby-throated hummingbird

The rufous is the only hummingbird to nest in Alaska. It might migrate 2,000 miles to Mexico each winter, and then back to Alaska in the spring.

Ruby-throated hummingbirds migrate about 600 miles across the Gulf of Mexico, flying for about 20 hours.

To keep from starving on the journey, they go on an eating binge for two weeks before leaving. By the time they reach land again, they will have burned up almost half their body weight.

Glorious color

Famous bird artist John Audubon called hummingbirds "glittering fragments of the rainbow."

Hummingbirds often have beautiful, bright, shiny colors.

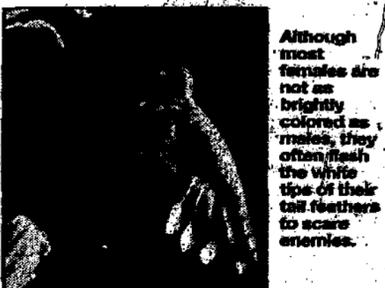

Most bird feathers have chemical colors, or pigments, that always show the same color. For example, a blue jay is always blue, no matter how the light hits its feathers.

While hummingbirds do have feathers colored with pigments, they get their brightest colors in a different way. Tiny layers of feather cells break the light into brilliant colors, just as water breaks light into a rainbow.

Unless the light hits the bird just right, you can't see any color at all. It just looks dark.

The ability to display colors when they want is a great help to hummingbirds. A male flashes his bright colors to attract a female or scare off an enemy. Even a hawk can be scared off if it sees a sudden burst of color.

Only about 5 percent to 10 percent of hummingbirds are adult males. The rest are females or young. Usually the males are the most brightly colored.

Although most females are not as brightly colored as males, they often flash the white tips of their tail feathers to scare enemies.

Look through your newspaper for stories and pictures about animals.

Next week, in an ongoing series about the millennium and the century, The Mini Page looks at education through the ages.

PUBLIC NOTICE The Cedar Creek Cabin Owners (WSS#52-14) Public Water Supply System wishes to advise its consumers that The Maximum Contaminant level for Fecal Coliform / E. Coli in drinking water was exceeded during its most recent reporting period of August, 1999. The New Mexico Environment Department (NMED) and the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) set drinking water standards and have determined that the presence of fecal coliforms or E. coli is a serious health concern. Fecal coliforms and E. coli are generally not harmful themselves, but their presence in drinking water is serious because they usually are associated with sewage or animal wastes. The presence of these bacteria in drinking water is generally a result of a problem with water treatment or the pipes which distribute the water, and indicates that the water may be contaminated with organisms that can cause disease. Disease symptoms may include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, and possibly jaundice, and associated headaches and fatigue. These symptoms, however, are not just associated with disease-causing organisms in drinking water, but also may be caused by a number of factors other than your drinking water. EPA has set an enforceable drinking water standard for fecal coliforms and E. coli to reduce the risk of these adverse health effects. Under this standard all drinking water samples must be free of these bacteria. Drinking water which meets this standard is associated with little or none of this risk and should be considered safe. State and local health authorities recommend that consumers take the following precautions: BOIL ALL DRINKING and culinary water for at least Ten Minutes, or obtain all drinking and culinary water from some other safe source (such as bottled water). POOP SCOOP BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER A brochure from the Wildlife Land Trust of the Humane Society of the United States recently was dropped on my desk. The organization operates along the line of ranch conservation easement trust groups that are springing up around the West, including two in Lincoln County. The HSUS protests about 40,000 acres where hunting, trapping, logging and development are prohibited, according to Executive Director John F. Kullberg. Two New Mexico trusts are featured in the eight page publication, 280-acre Road Forks owned by Tina Handick, and a 12-acre tract in Fairview owned by Pat and Jan McCreary. Much like Lincoln County's Sid Goodloe, who formed a ranch trust and who on his own land removed water hungry and invasive one-seed junipers to allow the return of natural grasses, the McCrearys transformed ground barren from overuse into acres of natural grasses and beneficial trees. They never used a plow, but decided 20 years ago to let Nature heal the land. They planted a variety of trees and chose not to trap gophers, allowing the animals to create tunnels, enabling water to spread out so more plant life could take hold. Quoted in the publication, Handick said she chose the conservation easement option for her land because, "This place is so special to me. I wanted to be certain it would be preserved in its natural state in times to come, not chopped up into housing subdivisions. To contact the trust, Kullberg's direct line is 301-258-8088. The toll-free number is 1-800-728-SAVE and the email address is wlt@hsus.org. Goodloe may be reached at (505) 354-2378. Summer precautions People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals sent seven tips for keeping your pets safe this summer. - Never leave a dog or cat in a parked car. On a 78-degree day, the temperature inside a shaded car is 90 degrees, while a car parked in the sun can reach 160 degrees in minutes. Animals can succumb to heat stroke in just 15 minutes. - If you see a dog in a car, have the owner paged or call local humane authorities or the police.
