BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Eleven people want to be appointed to fill the vacancy on the Lincoln County Commission created by the traffic death Sept. 1 of Wilton Howell.

The names were submitted to Ruth Kelly of the governor's office by last Friday.

But Tuesday, Kelly said in handling five previous appointments in the state, she had not released the names of people vying for seats.

"I don't want to embarrass anyone," she said. "In this case, 10 aren't going to get it."

However, later that day she responded to a request from the Ruidoso News, saying she checked with her attorney and verified that the names are public information.

Gov. Gary Johnson will interview three candidates by Oct. 18, Kelly said. The 11 applicants are:

- Joe Ben "Jodie" Ashby, a county Republican Party official
  - Ruidoso Village Councilor Bill Chance
  - Romeo F. Klein, a member of the local VFW
  - Leo Martinez, who previously ran for a commission seat and was elected to public office in California
  - Lincoln County Republican Party Chairman Doris Nelms
  - Tony Seno, former president of the Lincoln County Libertarian Party
  - Lawyer Ray Sharbutt, a former Hondo teacher and coach, and a former contractor supervisor for Exxon
  - Former Ruidoso Mayor Jerry Shaw
  - Ruidoso Village Councilor Bob Sterchi
  - Lincoln County sheriff's deputy Trinidad G. Zapeda, who is on inactive status and has sued the sheriff's department claiming racial discrimination
  - Rancher and former state representative Ben L. Hall
- Whoever the governor selects will serve until the end of the term, Jan. 1, 2001.

Lt. governor visits county Republicans

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Entertaining Republican Party members with tales of tax reduction and education reform, Lt. Gov. Walter Bradley left his audience laughing despite some serious observations Monday.

The jovial Bradley told jokes, quoted men of history and ended up defining his position on legalization of drugs in contrast to the opinions of Gov. Gary Johnson.

Lincoln County Sheriff Tom Sullivan introduced the subject by saying Johnson's advocacy of legalizing drugs lacks backing from law enforcement officers.

"I don't agree with you on drugs is a disaster," Sullivan said. "We're out there doing our job. He's alienating the law enforcement community. I think he needs to know that."

Bradley said he and the governor don't always agree and debate each issue.

"In this country at the end of prohibition, our country drew a legal line, saying marijuana, cocaine and heroin were illegal. Laws form the society the majority want to have."

His preference would be to beef up the war on drugs, reinstating programs in schools like "Just Say No." He also would use economic pressure such as removing Most Favored Trade status to push countries to crack down on their illegal drug trafficking, Bradley said.

"I suggest to you that this national administration has dropped the ball in the war on drugs and pulled back from initiatives," he said. "I'd like to fight at the source rather than put officers in the position of waiting for the drugs to show up."

While he was debating the issue with the governor, Johnson suddenly took a "quantum leap" during an interview by saying that legalization

Cowboy symposium weekend kicks off Friday

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The annual Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium celebrates the life of the Western cowboy, but this year, a lot of "new" will be mixed with the old.

The symposium will be staged Friday through Sunday at a new location, the Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

For the first time, the 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment will present living history performances. Children will find hours of entertainment at an animal petting area, supervised by members of Lincoln County's 4-H clubs, who will answer questions and care for the lambs, donkeys, goats, a miniature horse and more.

Special activities also are planned for young visitors.

Many new exhibitors will be among the 89 who signed up for spaces, said Sunny Hirschfeld, who's coordinating that part of the symposium. Buffalo bone art, spectacular cowhides, miniature wagons, artwork such as stained glass, pottery, cast iron cookware, leather clothing, tack, jewelry, furniture, custom saddles, antique musical instrument and turquoise decorated knives are just a sampling.

But two things that form the core of the symposium year never change — quality entertainment in the form of cowboy fiddlers, singers and poets and lunch Saturday at the chuckwagons, said Katy Bowen, one of the organizers.

Entertainment will be scattered all over the grounds and building this year.

At the chuckwagons, stage four, Charlie Williams and Kelly Scott

Ruidoso recreation center unveiled

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Architects of a proposed $6.2 million recreation community center in Ruidoso recently unveiled their plans for the civic facility.

A 50-meter indoor swimming pool, a basketball auditorium, locker room, teen center, offices for the village parks and recreation department and even an indoor walking track are included in the center, a project initiated last year by Mayor Robert Donaldson.

"I don't know of any place that is going to have anything like this," Ted Shelton with ASA Architects in Las Cruces, told Ruidoso village councilors during the unveiling last week.

Plans for the two-building facility lean on the success and failures at other community centers, and the center is designed to be ergonomic and low maintenance, Shelton said. With completion of the drawings, the next step in the project is preparation of construction plans.

"We have taken the project up to the design development phase," Shelton told village councilors. "This is a good place for us to stop and let you decide how you want to proceed with the financing for this."

Consultants to the village say Ruidoso could pay for the project through bonded debt without any increase in taxes, Donaldson said. The debt could be paid off in 10 years and the village would regain bonding capacity in three years, he said. In addition, consultants for the village are investigating possible federal and state funding to augment financing. If the council decides to move ahead with the recreation plaza, the next decision will be whether to build at one time or in phases, which would increase the cost, Donaldson and

Texas man fined for 'illegal' bear killing in Ruidoso

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A professional trapper from Texas was fined $400 Tuesday for killing a bear out of season.

Although George A. Creagor, 51, contended he shot the bear last August because he was afraid of being attacked, Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr. told the hunter, "bottom line, you are guilty of illegal killing of a bear."

After the trial in Carrizozo, Creagor said he will not appeal the decision to district court.

Dale Bode with the Game and Fish Department presented the case for the state and Creagor represented himself. The only witness called was Ruidoso Police Officer Eric Wood, who was the first officer to arrive at Creagor's home in Ruidoso and subsequently charged the man with shooting within the village limits.

In his testimony and in oral, audio and written statements to Bode, Creagor said he was sitting on the tailgate of his pickup truck at his home at 119 Chaparral Street when he noticed the bear about 14 feet above him on top of a sheer dirt wall. He was cleaning the carcass of another bear he shot legally while hunting on the Mescalero Apache Reservation. The season in New Mexico didn't begin until Oct. 1.

After hearing the bear growl, he walked to an open window of the truck and pulled out a rifle with a six power scope, loaded it, but didn't fire immediately, Creagor said. He first yelled three times at the bear that was shaking its head in an aggressive movement, he said. As the bruin came over the ledge toward him, he fired without being able to see clearly, he testified at the trial. The bear was struck in the neck and landed at the side of Creagor's truck.

"I didn't set out to kill the bear," Creagor said. "I was reacting to protect myself. I may have over-reacted, but it was out of fear."

He explained that he traps small animals such as raccoons, beaver, armadillo and squirrel, but doesn't deal routinely with large game. He'd already legally killed one bear and didn't need another, he said.

Bode countered that the angle of the bullet entry and path within the body of the dead bear indicates the animal was not coming off the edge to attack Creagor when it was shot. Texas was more consistent with the bear standing on top of the cliff with its head turned, he said.

The path of the bullet once in the body isn't consistent with Creagor's version of events, he said.

"It's the state's opinion that bear would have to be perpendicular (to come down a sheer cliff)," Bode said. "The angle doesn't match if he's committed (to coming over the edge). It works if he's standing there looking down. The angle is critical to me because it determines whether or not the bear is coming over."

"It all comes down to whether Mr. Creagor was in any danger. I can't testify to his state of mind. The state can only go with the physical evidence and the angle of the shot tells us things just weren't right."

Arena events Friday lead off at 1 p.m. with a demonstration by the Cowboy Mounted Shooters, a group skilled in horse training and control, said Bruce Eldredge, curator of the Hubbard Museum of the American West.

They will ride through a course while shooting at balloons, he said. Several championships in the sport will be among competitors.

They saw this demonstration six to eight months ago at Lone Tree Bible Ranch," Eldredge said. "It's very impressive."

Other events in the arena also are demonstrations designed to education the audience about cowboy skills, he said.

Cattle cutting, wagon team driving, cattle sorting and penning are on the schedule.

A performance by the U.S. 4th Cavalry Regiment Memorial Association Inc., a reenactment group based in Lubbock, Texas, will perform at 10:30 a.m. Saturday and at 1 p.m. Sunday. Visitors also can stop at the encampment area where camp life will be demonstrated at 11:15 a.m. Saturday, with emphasis on the life of cavalry wives at 2:15 p.m. and 3:15 p.m.

The non-profit group is dedicated to enlightening the public about the true history of the celebrated regiment from 1869 to 1876, emphasizing the role played by Col. Ranald S. Mackenzie in bringing peace to Texas and much of the American West.

Horse trainer Craig Cameron, known for his gentle approach, will demonstrate his techniques at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 1 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Food will be sold at the race track concession stands and a buffet is available at the Billy the Kid Casino.

Admission to the symposium is $10 per day or $5 for members of the symposium or the Hubbard Museum of the American West. Children 12 and under are free.

CENTER: The planned facility could come before voters next year in March

Shelton said. The Village Council is to hold more public discussions about the project starting this month, Donaldson said.

"If we want to put it on the March election, we have until just after January to get it on the ballot," he said.

Councilor Bill Chances said the price for the 50,000-square-foot facility is more realistic than a previous council's plans for a recreational center, which Donaldson has described as a "Taj Mahal," estimated at $12-14 million.

Shelton said the recreation center, if approved, could be built in six months to a year, depending on weather. Construction could begin this summer, Donaldson said.

The architectural drawings and cost estimates solidify the project's price tag before a bond election is sought — "to make sure that we know the up front dollars," Donaldson said. Combined state grants totaling $250,000 are covering the cost of the architectural drawings as well as future construction plans.

Design of the center will include an exterior of split face block, the color to be determined later, Shelton said. Inside the 20,000-square-foot swimming pool building, piping will not be encased in concrete for easy maintenance, and building materials will be compatible to a pool environment, he said.

Walls between some areas of the center will be movable, allowing groups to use the center for meetings and community events, Donaldson said. Some recreational activities, such as racquetball, are not included because the village would be in competition with local businesses.

One question Donaldson said he is frequently asked about is what will happen to the village's outdoor pool. He said it will be used for recreation until maintenance of the aging pool becomes too expensive.

The indoor pool could be used by area schools, aquatic aerobic classes and for public recreation/exercise. Because of the pool's size, many of these uses could occur simultaneously, he said.

BRADLEY: Governor Johnson 'trapped' by drug statement

could be expanded to cover all drugs.

"I think he got trapped in that statement," Bradley said. "He doesn't want kids to have them and he doesn't think drugs are good. Look at the man, he eats a sugar-free diet. He admitted to me he knew it was a bad statement, but it gets worse to try to explain yourself out of it."

"I think he's accomplished what he initially said he wanted to do. The debate is started. Now it's time to reel it in."

Earlier in his speech, Bradley criticized government over-regulation, noting that electric linesmen now must wear cotton underwear.

"I never thought in my wildest dreams, my government could tell me what kind of underwear I could wear," he said. "Who's going to be the inspector?"

He quoted Presidents

Thomas Jefferson - "As government grows, freedom recedes," and Ronald Reagan - "Government bureaucracy is the closest thing to eternal life you'll ever see." He then added his own, "All men are created equal, but not everyone takes advantage of their opportunities."

"All men are created equal, but not everyone takes advantage of their opportunities."

Walter Bradley, New Mexico lieutenant governor executives' salaries would be taxed, he said.

Other tax incentives by the governor to look for include:

- Getting rid of the $5 per employee annual administration fee for worker's compensation
- Creating an incentive to establish telephone call centers outside of Albuquerque
- Establishing a tax credit for the creation of new jobs in rural areas
- Reducing or eliminating the state capital gains tax
- Eliminating inter-business gross receipt tax so that business owners aren't forced to pass through taxes to customers for services essential to their operation

"Under this governor for five consecutive years, no new (state) taxes were passed," Bradley said. "That's never been done before."

The governor wants to give back to residents part of the $150 million in new (state) revenue this year," he said.

Bradley also plugged Johnson's proposal to start a voucher education system in New Mexico, allowing parents to choose their children's schools. After verifying that few in the audience know the function of the state school board or the names of any of its members, Bradley said the board should either be eliminated or made accountable for the state of New Mexico education, which ranks 48th in the nation. He cited other figures for fourth and eighth graders who can't read or do grade level mathematics and science, and lamented a decline in requirements for high school graduation.

"Shame on all of us, every single one of us," he said. "I'm a parent and didn't see it."

E. Coli hits Tall Pines area

BY TONI K. LAXSON
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

coli bacteria, then the "boil water" notice will be lifted, she said.

E. coli bacteria turned up last week in water samples from a north Ruidoso subdivision, a state environmental official said.

Though a second round of water samples from the Tall Pines subdivision came back clean Tuesday afternoon, residents on the subdivision's water supply this week should continue to buy bottled water or boil water for drinking, cooking and cleaning dishes.

"The samples were good, all of them were good," Becky Crown, a state drinking water specialist, said Tuesday. "But I am requesting that they take additional samples. I want to be sure."

The third samples should be back by Thursday afternoon, Crown said. If those samples are free of E.

John Burns, manager of the Tall Pines supply, said about 25 homes are on the system, which is separate from the Ruidoso water supply. He said the subdivision includes homes on Tall Pines Road and Sierra Blanca Trail.

Burns said Tuesday he did not know of any health problems resulting from the contamination.

Fecal coliforms and E. coli are generally not harmful themselves, but can indicate the presence of harmful bacteria, and they are associated with contamination from sewage or animal waste. Symptoms of infection can include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, possible jaundice, headaches and fatigue.

OUR OPINION

Rooks and kings on the Ruidoso chess board

That strange ongoing chess game between the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission and Mayor Robert Donaldson might reach some sort of culmination this month—maybe with checkmate, maybe with a draw.

On Oct. 26, the village council will let the public sound off before voting on an ordinance amendment that would give councilors the option to bypass public hearings by the P&Z Commission on proposed new planning ordinances.

Heretofore, rules changes originated with the P&Z Commission and were presented to the council as recommendations. But about 18 months ago the council passed an ordinance that it says allows the council to amend rules without P&Z recommendation on any ordinance passed within 18 months.

The chairman of the appointed commission, Glen Barrow, more than once has expressed reservations about changing a system that does what it is supposed to do—enforce the rules governing developers and property owners in order to provide for orderly and fair growth.

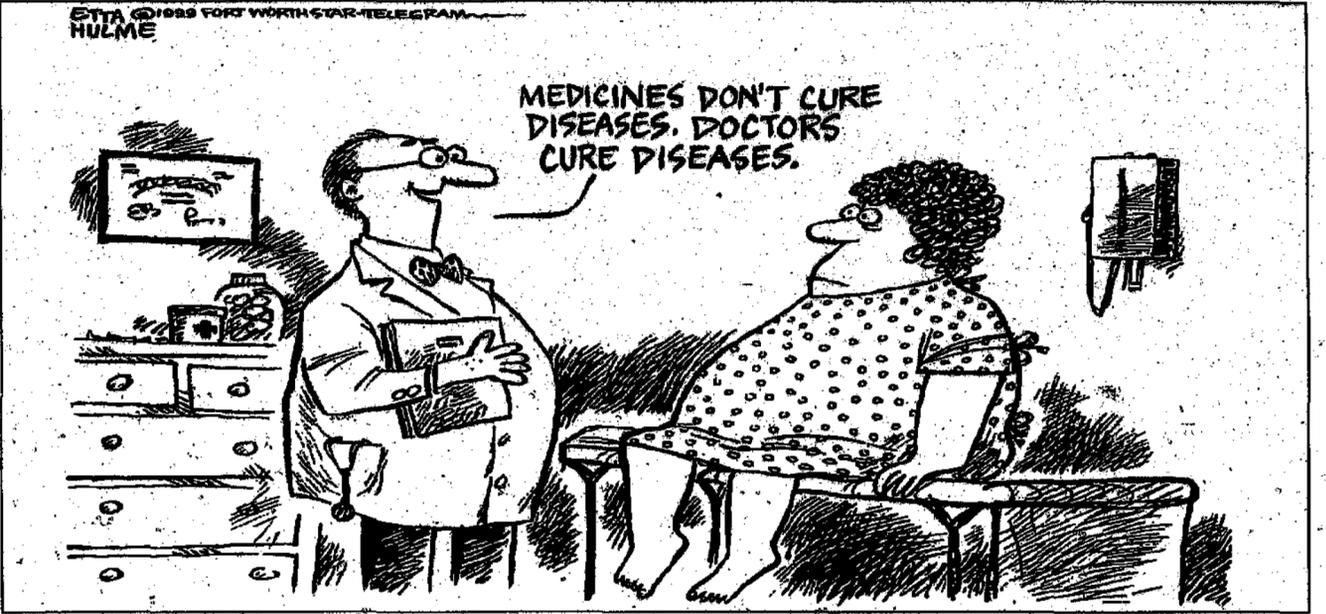

If this little contretemps sounds like a bureaucratic yawner, consider that the village's P&Z Commission probably has more direct impact on Ruidoso's thousands of property-owners, and a good many developers, than any other body.

The change wouldn't eliminate the P&Z process, but would apparently let the council act on its own—bypassing it, in effect—if desired. The mayor says all the rules change would do would be to allow the council to react if a problem arises, and to cut the time in half (to six weeks) to change the rules.

That could be scary indeed, if you're of a mind set that is somewhat distrustful of the motives of politicians now and in the future. On the other hand, if you're convinced that every elected official always has—and always will—put the public good above private (or special) interests, then let it rip.

It's always interesting when somebody in public office decides to make changes in the way things are done. The mayor has said his administration only wants to make the process easier for the public. But questions do begin to bob to the surface like bubbles from a leaky submarine; very basic questions, like "What's the hurry?" and "Who's getting the advantage?"

What is most disturbing is the Donaldson administration's apparent effort to remove some of the checks and balances, designed to protect against abuses by those in power, that has served the public well over many years.

YOUR OPINION

Why not recycle?

To the editor:

In a recent article on the village recycling program, Mayor (Robert) Donaldson said that cardboard and aluminum would continue to be collected, but glass and plastic would be dropped.

Apparently, no one at the meeting pointed out that glass had not been collected at least since May, 1997...if it ever was collected. And evidently no one asked about the fate of two other materials currently being collected, steel cans and newspaper. From this I conclude that no one at the meeting recycles.

I grew up in York, Pa., an extremely conservative town with very low environmental awareness. Pure economics was the motivation behind the mandatory recycling program, enacted in 1991. (York has curbside trash pickup; each household puts recyclables in a separate green plastic bin.) At first there was the usual whining and complaining, and a few fines were imposed. Now everyone recycles. According to the York Daily Record, in 1997 more than half of the county's trash was recycled. More than half.

The recycling market, like every other market, is driven, by supply and demand. In the West, transportation costs are another factor. But even a cursory search of the Web pulls up many recyclable brokers, agents who buy and sell recy-clered materials. The largest metal recycling company in the country, IMCO, is in neighboring Texas. They handle aluminum and steel cans as well as car batteries.

Recycling takes a bit of effort on the household level and on the bureaucratic level. But if we could reduce the amount of trash piling up in our landfill by half, wouldn't that be worth a little effort?

Traffic signals

To the editor:

It would be a great device that regulated auto traffic at street intersections...do they really; well, it would be nice if the village of Ruidoso had such devices at major intersections...we do? Well, it would sure be nice if they worked.

A little courtesy helps

To the editor:

Over the past four years I have written many letters...on behalf of the Lincoln County Forest Health Coalition regarding forest health and fire danger. This letter is written as a citizen. An incident occurred at the Sept. 28 meeting of the Village Council which deserves attention, and I believe Mayor (Robert) Donaldson owes Mr. John Morton and the Forest Health Coalition an apology for his behavior.

Mr. Morton, following the rules, was placed on the agenda to bring the suggestion that Ruidoso should consider hiring an urban forester to assist the village make important decisions regarding forest issues. When it came his time to talk, his remarks were met with interruptions and an unfortunate attempt by the mayor to dominate the presentation. As the mayor made his points, the problem worsened and he became so overbearing that Mr. Morton simply refused to continue and returned to his seat. Thanks to the cooler head of Councilor (Bob) Sterchi, the situation calmed and Mr. Morton was, with continued interruption of the mayor, able to conclude his suggestions.

Perhaps the mayor needs to change his conduct; this modus operandi has been witnessed frequently at council meetings. One of the great things about democracy, when it is allowed to work, is that even the smallest voice can be heard echoing up the hallways of democracy.

If the mayor would start listening, and allow an individual or group to address the council without interruption, perhaps citizen visits to the council would be more productive and less stressful. Attempts to impose preconceived notions or inject personal opinions from a bully pulpit are not only discourteous but inappropriate during public hearings or citizen presentations to the council. It would be a sad day indeed if citizens stop coming to their elected officials with suggestions.

Too much for COPS

To the editor:

After reading (Sen.) Jeff Bingaman's attempt to justify another $335 million spent on the COPS program, I had to shake my head in disgust. Here's just one more elected official promoting a larger, more powerful police state. In his travels he claims to hear the same comment from law enforcement agencies: "The more resources we have, the better we can protect the community." This statement does not ring true when we read the headlines: "Officer accused of excessive force. Officer convicted of burglary. Officer found guilty of embezzlement..."

Perhaps Mr. Bingaman would be better informed if he listened to the people who elected him, not law enforcement bureaucrats...

I'll be the first to say we need law enforcement to protect our families, our communities and our rights. But when the protectors become the aggressors, I must also...say we need to carefully examine where we spend our money. In my opinion, more funding for COPS will only exacerbate our existing, growing and embarrassing problem running rampant in...law enforcement...

BLEEDING BLACK INK

BY TERRANCE VESTAL
EDITOR, RUIDOSO NEWS

Florida has much sharper teeth than New Mexico when it comes to public records law.

The organization, a watchdog group that concerns itself with compelling government bodies in this state to comply with public records and open meetings laws, reports that Florida Gov. Jeb Bush suspended a county school board member indefinitely for violating Florida's public records laws.

The board member, a Vanette Webb, was suspended after spending seven days in jail.

In May, Judge Pat Kinsey sentenced Webb to 30 days in jail and ordered her to pay a $1,000 fine for knowingly withholding public records from a parent who had been critical of the board member.

Kinsey then disqualified herself, saying she concluded

Webb lied under oath.

Judge William White took over the case and released Webb on $2,000 bond pending her appeal after she spent seven days in jail.

In New Mexico, if a district attorney or the attorney general were to prosecute a violation as a misdemeanor, a district court could "issue a writ of mandamus or order an injunction or other appropriate remedy."

The law in New Mexico, as far as public records are concerned, calls for damages of not more than $100 a day for as many days as the public documents were withheld from the requester.

Even with the damages outlined under the law, they are rarely assessed on those who violate them.

Most of the time "custodians" of public documents who do not comply with the law plead ignorance and get a stern letter from the New Mexico Attorney General's Office regarding the violation.

To be fair, open government laws, sometimes referred to as "Sunshine Laws," are fairly new as far as the concept goes.

The state statute covering the issue in New Mexico was established in 1978 and some important clarifications have been made since its inception.

Before, some local governments around the state had stringent requirements about people who wanted to inspect public records identifying themselves, having to be a resident of New Mexico, and explaining why they wanted those documents.

In recent years, the Attorney General's office has clarified these issues. None of those issues pertain to inspecting public records.

While the media may be the primary users of open government laws but they're certainly not the only ones.

The state recently agreed to pay $41,000 in attorney's fees to settle a lawsuit alleging Traffic Safety Bureau officials withheld DWI records to try to avoid negative publicity.

The lawsuit was filed by the DWI Resource Center Inc. in Albuquerque, which claimed the state had systematically violated the Inspection of Public Records Act for more than two years.

With some rare exceptions, most documents generated by government are public.

All the public has to do is ask.

Roy Warren is on crutches in front of the wreckage of a hit and run accident on River Lane in Ruidoso Downs Sunday.

Hit and run driver smashes cars, flees

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A Ruidoso Downs man was injured when he tried to give assistance to a driver that had run through two fences, bashing a neighbor's car and almost hitting a 5-year-old girl Sunday afternoon.

Roy Warren, 17, woke up from a nap when he heard a crash next door at 522 River Lane in Ruidoso Downs at about 4:30 p.m. Oct. 3. Recognizing the driver, he ran out to where the car had stopped to see if he needed help.

"I thought I better check and see if he was all right, and he put it in reverse and ran me over," Warren alleged. "I just remember him running over my leg."

Warren said he grabbed the driver, who looked dazed, and the door of the car. The driver "looked right at me.

Then he took off backward.

Janice Wood, who lives next door, said her five-year-old granddaughter was playing in the front yard, heard a skidding noise and yelled, "There's a wreck." Wood heard a crash and said the car had come "whizzing through my neighbor's fence, through my fence, then hit my son's car, which was totaled, but that stopped it from hitting my granddaughter."

Warren was taken to Lincoln County Medical Center and released the same day with muscle and tissue damage and bruises and scratches to his lower stomach, upper chest and shoulder and right leg.

Warren's mother, Susan Warren, said her son, who works for Napa Auto Parts, knew the driver as a customer. She said the driver backed the rest of the way into the street, drove half way down Parker Road, into a ditch, and took off on foot.

Warren said a Ruidoso Downs police officer measured 281 feet of skid marks.

"There are so many little children out on the road playing and the skid marks are like he had to be flying," Wood said. "The fence is torn up, the cars are sitting there totaled out up against my fence because when he hit one car it knocked it into the other car."

Warren said there were two to four people in the vehicle and that a young woman took off running before the driver drove off.

The Ruidoso Downs Police Department is still investigating the case but did not have a report on the incident available late Tuesday.

Trek for Trash to end here

Governor Johnson to lead 430-mile ride across state

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Officials in Carrizozo, Capitan and Ruidoso are sprucing up their towns for the visit of Gov. Gary Johnson on his Trek for Trash bicycle ride to focus attention on cleaning up New Mexico's highways.

The 429.5 mile trip begins in Chama, Friday, Oct. 8, and ends in Ruidoso, Tuesday, Oct. 12.

In Carrizozo, Lincoln County Manager Tom Stewart plans a patriotic welcome for the governor with the help of members of several clubs and civic groups.

Rotary members will line U.S. 54 with American flags for Johnson's arrival about 5 p.m., Monday, Oct. 11, Stewart said.

Before Johnson rolls into town, a children's bicycle rodeo is set for 4:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club on D Avenue, where pint-size pedalers will learn about safety issues.

At the same club house, Johnson will meet members of six groups that each sponsor one mile of highway for litter pickup: the Carrizozo Woman's Club, Wells Fargo Bank, Rotary, the Carrizozo Fire Department and employees in the offices of the county clerk and county manager.

"I'm looking for volunteers to pick up trash the day of the governor's visit," Stewart said. "People should contact me for the pick up and to attend the dinner with the governor."

Tickets are $6 for the dinner at the Woman's Club.

Johnson will leave the morning of Oct. 12, and head to Capitan on U. S. 380, where he'll be greeted along the highway by school children and residents. When he pulls up to village hall, he'll see a large container supplied by the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority that Lonnie Lippmann hopes will be full of trash.

Lippmann, who is organizing the Capitan welcome, said both approaches to the town from State Road 48 and U.S. 380 will be cleaned the Friday before Johnson's visit with the help of supervised boys from Camp Sierra Blanca rehabilitation center.

Residents also can haul trash to the container over the weekend, he said.

A reception at village hall is set for 9 a.m., Oct. 12. Besides local officials, the governor will say hello to some outstanding students from the Capitan school district and from the nearby rehabilitation camp, Lippmann said.

The last stop on the tour is Ruidoso, where Ellen "Buzz" Bizzell of the village parks and recreation department will be waiting to serve Johnson a barbecue lunch.

The clean-up campaign for Ruidoso will begin Oct. 9, three days before Johnson's arrival.

Volunteers should come to School House Park on Sudderth Drive to register, grab some bags and receive gloves to protect their hands, she said.

"Last year, 700 miles of roads and highways were cleaned and 13,400 bags of trash were removed," said Joseph Lobato, director of New Mexico Clean & Beautiful.

At 10:30 a.m. Oct. 12, people on bicycles can join the governor on the last leg of his trip. Meet at the Alto Store at the intersection of State Road 48 and Gavilan Canyon Road. The route will continue down Gavilan to Hull Road, then Paradise Canyon to School House Park.

Once the entourage reaches the park about 11:15 a.m., a bicycle rodeo with fourth-grade students will be staged. Advisers will talk about riding safety and the need for helmets, and children will run a course around traffic cones. Extra bicycles will be available, Bizzell said.

To join the governor for a barbecue lunch Tuesday, volunteers should sign up with Bizzell on Saturday. A $2 to $3 donation would be appreciated, she said.

An incentive for volunteers may be the chance to win free Southwest Airline tickets to anywhere within that company's service area.

To register for the free tickets, volunteers must sign up for the Saturday cleanup. Pledge forms for bags of trash for every mile the governor rides will be available through local sponsors and community beautification programs.

For more information, contact Stewart at (505) 648-2385, Bizzell at (505) 257-5030 or Lonnie Lippmann at (505) 354-2316.

Burglars hit many village businesses

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Rumors that Sierra Glass was running out of window glass because of the rash of burglaries proved false: Gaston Lackey, owner, said he sold four more windows than usual last week but he was "by no means running out of glass."

Although the burglar or burglars haven't been taking much money, they've caused considerable damage to the businesses visited in the past couple of weeks.

Last week, Simon Gomez Goldsmiths of Ruidoso and Perfect Ten Hair and Nails each lost a picture window that'll cost $700 to replace. Domino's Pizza also has a $700-$800 window to replace and about $1,000 in damages to a door and lock.

"Let's stop chasing after animals and start stopping criminals..."

Bruce Dietrich,
Domino's Pizza owner

At the Brandin' Iron, the intruders entered through a window, without breaking it, and took $900 from the cash register, taking the time to microwave a plate of chicken tenders before leaving.

Fast Print had about $300 in damages from a broken window. In several cases, the doors were kicked in, damaging the trim moldings and the door jams.

Fast Print owner Bill Snow, who's been in that location for three years, said the burglars broke a hole in the center of a large window, but didn't enter the business.

"That kind of thing kind of wakes you up," Snow said. "It's an eye-opener."

Mona Scott, owner of Perfect Ten Hair and Nails said the break-in was a surprise because nothing like it has happened in the five years she's been at that location. She said the burglars broke a hole about a foot in diameter in the large picture window and didn't get into the business.

"I don't keep money here anyway, so all they could have done was get shampoo," Scott said. "It makes me mad ... it's so senseless."

Bruce Dietrich, owner of Domino's Pizza said there was glass everywhere when he arrived the morning after the break-in. He said he had to shut down the store to make sure there wasn't broken glass on any of the serving or eating surfaces and blocked off the front window that still has shards of glass hanging.

"I'm wondering what's going to happen to my house next," Dietrich said. "This had to have taken some time — they hit 10, 15 businesses. Where were they (the police)?"

"Let's stop chasing after animals and start stopping criminals," Dietrich said.

Mayor Robert Donaldson said the Ruidoso Police Department is doing everything it can and is "right on top of it," adding that he believes the perpetrators are professional criminals.

Minor vandalism was done at about six other business in the area at the same time.

Equipment stolen

About $6,000 worth of equipment was stolen from a GTE company truck tool box between 6:30 p.m. Sept. 27 and 8:30 a.m. Sept. 28, according to police reports.

The report states that the equipment is specialized, and useless except for testing of telephone equipment.

Drug offenses noted

Police arrested Juan C. Pacheco, 20, of Roswell about midnight Oct. 2 and charged him with possession of under an ounce of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, having an open container of alcohol in a vehicle, and disobeying the "No left turn" sign at Carrizo Canyon Road and Sudderth Drive.

Pacheco was driving a vehicle and made a left turn westbound onto Sudderth Drive.

Police also arrested several passengers in the car, including Javier Rodriguez, 18, of Ruidoso, who was charged with possession of under an ounce of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and having an open container.

Daniel Cimosz, 26, of Ruidoso and Christopher Ward, 20, of Ruidoso were also arrested and the same charges were made against them.

Vehicle theft on Sudderth

Police report a '91 Chevy Silverado truck was stolen from 1811 Sudderth Dr. Sept. 27.

Police are investigating leads and the vehicle identification number was entered into the National Crime Information Center database.

Criminal damage

About $1,000 of criminal damage was done to the metal gates, rock wall and the padlock at McGary Studios, 2002 Sudderth Drive between 2 p.m. Oct. 2 and 11 a.m. Oct. 3, police report.

Sometime between Sept. 10 and Sept. 20, someone apparently threw a rock and broke several double-paned window in a vacant office at 1085 Mechem Drive. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

Burglary on Fern Trail

A necklace valued at $800 was taken from a rental home in the 100 block of Fern Trail between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sept. 21, police report.

Someone messed up the interior of the building that was rented for the night.

Police also noticed a window removed from another home in the 100 block of Fern Trail and checked it out.

All other windows were locked, but a door was unlocked and the home had been rummaged through, police report. Police are following leads on both of these cases.

Some 500 Lincoln County youth live it up at Funtrackers, with no problems reported

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Hundreds of youth gathered at Funtrackers last week for a night of go-carting fun sponsored by the DWI Prevention Program.

More than 500 children from the Hondo Valley, Capitan, Carrizozo, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs attended the event, with 29 parents and other volunteers supervising. There were no incidents of violence or drug use, said Vicki Hisel, administrative assistant for the DWI program.

"The older kids went away from the area so the younger kids wouldn't see them smoking," Hisel said. "I thought they were all real respectful of us. They were happy to be there."

There was a food crisis at first, though, because one of the businesses that agreed to provide food for the event backed out at the last moment, said Joyce Romig, a volunteer who had lined up the food ahead of time.

Ruidoso Wholesale saved the day by donating 18 pounds of chips and a gallon of salsa, and Manny Martinez, owner of both Pizza Huts in Ruidoso, donated 10 pizzas, which were ingested within moments of their arrival. Circle J BBQ and McDonalds also donated food for the event.

Hisel said she was overwhelmed that there were that many young people, yet no problems.

Barbara Reyes, DWI coordinator, said there was no problem with the middle school and high school students being at the same event.

"It was beautiful," Reyes said. "The children of Lincoln County are so way-cool; they were very gracious to the younger children and to us."

Reyes said there's difficulty in running such a large event and in the future events might be planned by age-groups to keep the number of participants down, but not because the children don't work well together.

"They did work well together," Reyes said. "It was impressive."

Both Hisel and Reyes said their pairs of DWI-emulation glasses were nowhere near enough for the demand.

"The DWI glasses were such a hit and the kids were amazed," Hisel said. "We're hoping to make it an annual thing and make it part of Aspenfest."

Another organization is planning a Halloween event and DWI program personnel will help with that, Reyes said.

"What we're hoping is that in November another group would like to be responsible for thinking up another event, and then our organization and the October group would lend a hand to the group in November," Reyes said.

"That way it becomes a community collaboration, not everything falling on one's shoulders, but with one group helping the next group."

Baptist pastor honored by people of Carrizozo

CARRIZOZO - The First Baptist Church honored Hayden Smith recently, marking his 10th year as their pastor.

A meal was served after morning services. Fun and fellowship and gifts were enjoyed, especially by Pastor Smith, wife Cheryl, daughter Lauren, 6, and son Johnathan, 3.

By 6 p.m., other pastors and members of other churches came to a regularly scheduled "6th Sunday Sing" hosted this time by First Baptist Church.

Optimists sponsor kids' picnic

Headstart classes, teachers and parents came from Hondo, Carrizozo, Capitan, and Ruidoso to meet each other at the annual Optimist Club Signet Picnic last week at Nob Hill Early Childhood Center.

The multi-purpose room of the school was the scene of 139 youngsters plus parents and teachers sharing a picnic lunch before heading outside for the carnival of games and activities.

Face painting, colorful glittery-gel, and games of skill kept children entertained.

Police officers were present to keep the peace, and children hung close to McGruff the Crime Dog, holding his paw. One child, when asked to identify the canine detective, answered, "Doggie Cop."

1999 Aspenfest marches into memory...

A historical theme highlighted the Lincoln County Medical Center float, which tied for third in the float competition. Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News

The last Aspenfest of the 1990s wrapped up last weekend, and by Monday all traces were gone, except the memories of good times, good food and a colorful parade.

From car shows to chili tasting, arts and crafts sales to entertainment under the pines, it was a show to fill a dozen scrapbooks with pictures. Here are a few.

Winning floats in the Aspenfest Parade were:

- First place, $100 prize — The First Baptist Church of Ruidoso
- Second place, $75 prize — a tie between the Village of Ruidoso and Pioneer Savings Bank
- Third place, $50 prize — a tie between State National Bank and Lincoln County Medical Center

Youngsters love a parade, especially if they can be part of it. Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News

Bands like this one added to the excitement of the Aspenfest parade, the last of the 1990s decade. Dianne Stallings/Ruidoso News

CARRIZOZO: Grizzlies return to their winning ways in District 1 opener

TDs, including the Pawloski run, for the win. Grizzly coach Pat Ventura said he told his players they needed to play with more heart.

"They made a pact at halftime that they were going to come out and play together and communicate," he said. "We weren't going to give anything to (Ramah)."

Quarterback Ryan Roper said that's exactly what happened. "We played together as a team," he said. "We felt like we needed to come out and do something. We did it. We made a statement finally."

The two teams looked evenly matched through most of the first half with one exception: defense. While Ramah managed to stop several Grizzly runs, the Mustangs, especially Austin Clawson, ran roughshod through the Carrizozo line.

"We weren't playing," Ventura said. "We weren't reading our keys and communicating with each other."

The Mustangs scored on their first two possessions and the Grizzlies on their first.

Both sides then traded possessions before Ramah stretched its lead to 22-6. Carrizozo came back with a touchdown, Ramah matched that and Carrizozo came back again. It looked as though the half would end with a one touchdown difference, 30-22 Ramah, but a pass from Collin Henio to Tyler Morsback with no time on the clock let the Mustangs celebrate while Carrizozo got serious.

"I (told them) they worked too hard to give it away," Ventura said. "We're a better team and there's no reason we should lose this game."

"We were concerned (at the half)," Pawloski said. "I didn't have that great of a first half, but we pulled it together at halftime and came back and took it back from them."

Carrizozo goes for district win number two Friday when it hosts Reserve at 7 p.m.

"I (told them) they worked too hard to give it away. We're a better team and there's no reason we should lose this game."

Pat Ventura, Carrizozo football coach

Therapy by a horse can change a person's life for the better

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Five years ago, a mother of a disabled child asked Terry Bogle if she would teach her daughter how to ride. Bogle, who lives on a farm and works with horses, but had no training with the disabled, didn't know where to start. She was about to say "no," when the mother asked the Dexter woman to drive to Las Cruces to observe a new program called hippotherapy. Translated from Greek, the word means "treatment with the help of a horse."

What Bogle saw changed her life and the lives of many others.

As therapists placed a rigid child with gnarled limbs on the back of a horse, Bogle saw the child's arms and legs loosen.

"It broke my heart," she said. "I thought, 'I can do that.'"

For the past two years, she has—under the name of Reins for Life, a non-profit entity that seeks not only to help children within its geographic range, but to spread the word to other areas.

Bogle and her staff were in Ruidoso Downs last week, introducing the therapy to local families with the hope that someone will want to develop a program in Lincoln County. The demonstration of therapeutic riding was staged at the Hubbard Museum of the American West.

"I think there's a woman there who wants to start one," she said. "It would be nice to work together. If we could get 10 programs working in this little area, it still wouldn't be enough. But it would be nice to be able to bring some of my clients here sometimes."

Affinity between horse and boy is something that a therapist finds beneficial.

Bogle and one other person volunteer their time, but the rest of her staff is paid, because the work is potentially dangerous. An emergency physician is on hand for sessions three days a week.

"This is all I do," she said. "I've been real fortunate. We seek grants to help out with a building, but we charge very minimal fees. A lot of the kids can't afford much with all of their medical expenses. We also solicit sponsorships."

No other form of therapy supports the whole body, said Bogle, who is a certified therapeutic riding instructor.

The swinging motion of the horse is transferred to the rider, creating a sensory and neurological stimulation that can be used to treat autism, brain trauma, stroke, Downs Syndrome, cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, blindness, deafness and development delays.

"We work a lot with abused and neglected kids," she said. "It brings out their confidence. This is finally one thing bigger than any adult and yet they're in control."

For those having trouble relating to people, a bond more easily is formed with a horse.

Fifty-three students from Roswell's public school system already have benefited from the Reins For Life program, Bogle said.

One boy injured in a motorcycle accident started two years ago. He was despondent from multiple operations and treatments. Both legs and arms were crushed.

"He came to us in January, 1996, in a wheelchair and with the attitude that he wanted to die," Bogle said. His self-confidence was zero. Four staff members struggled to get him on the horse.

A month and a half later, only two staffers were needed and by late March, the boy was mounting a horse alone with the support of spotters, Bogle said.

"This is finally one thing bigger than an adult, and yet they are in control."

Terry Bogle,
Hippotherapist

Brain trauma from the accident slowed the boy's thought process, but he is learning to make decisions and carry them through, she said. He won two blue ribbons in the

New Mexico State Special Olympics in September, 1997, and just this week, discarded a walker for a cane.

In another case, an autistic child, who was experiencing violent episodes, began to repeat horse training phrases after his first ride, and now is talking with the staff while riding, and he laughs and holds hands.

Therapeutic riding represents multi-task learning and can help a disabled person achieve daily living skills, according to publications about the program. It teaches independence and allows a disabled person to participate in a complex activity normally reserved for the able-bodied.

"We can use riding as means of teaching vocabulary, spelling, reading and math, increasing attention span and improving problem solving," Bogle said.

The movement of the horse helps create a more normal movement in clients, helps relax tight muscles and improves strength, coordination and motor skills, she said. It activates the respiratory system, which stimulates speech and normalizes muscle tone.

But the healing goes beyond just the physical, she said. It's a therapy for the mind and soul.

A midwesterner finds happiness as a fast-draw gunman for hire

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Jim Dunham is the first to admit he never grew up. But he's one of the few who are able to live a fantasy while earning an income.

A fast-draw competitor, Western historian, performer and film consultant, Dunham showed off his talents this week during nightly Chuckwagon of the West Jamboree shows at the Flying J Ranch north of Ruidoso.

"Of all the people who handle guns (professionally), I feel I combine history the best," he said Monday. "It's not just a gun demonstration, it's an hour show. I tell stories about Billy the Kid and Wyatt Earp and I tell jokes."

"Did you ever notice that for the 20 years James Arness played Matt Dillon in the series 'Gunsmoke,' he never changed clothes. No wonder he and Miss Kitty never got together."

Surprisingly, Dunham said his most enthusiastic audience isn't children—it's adults, who seem to enjoy the nostalgia. Many of them probably listened to the same radio programs that Dunham remembers from the age of six, The Cisco Kid, Hopalong Cassidy and the Lone Ranger.

But while fictional characters initially stirred his fascination with the American West, real people and events kept his interest.

"Why not read about someone who existed instead of a fictional character?" Dunham asked.

Although he was born in Oak Park, Ill., Dunham headed west for college, attending the University of Colorado in Boulder from 1961-66. Active in theater, he was awarded a Colorado Shakespeare Festival scholarship in 1964.

Following the advice of a professor in his sophomore year, Dunham wrote a script for a program mixing his knowledge of history with fast-draw and gun tricks, he had honed since he was a teenager.

"Although my father didn't like firearms, he bought me my first gun, a real Colt 45, when I was 16," Dunham said. "He said he would get one for me if I would be responsible and take the proper safety training."

Dianne Stalling/Ruidoso News
Fast-draw gunman Jim Dunham started with wax bullets, but has graduated.

Dunham joined a fast-draw club in Franklin Park, Ill., just in time to catch the wave of a new sport that amassed a following in the 1950s. Participants step up to a firing line and, using wax bullets, compete for speed in drawing and shooting balloons.

In college, he performed before church and club groups until 1965, when he discovered a chuckwagon western show in Estes Park, Colo. He worked there each summer until 1976, the year he attended the very first Chuckwagon Jamboree at the Flying W Ranch in Colorado Springs. The event coincided with the national Bicentennial. Dunham was spotted performing by Russ Wolfe, the owner of the Bar D Ranch show in Durango, Colo., who hired him. Their association lasted seven years.

But those were summer jobs. While banquets and conventions helped round out his income off-season, he needed steadier employment. A friend arranged an interview with Barry Coe, a producer at 20th Century Fox, Dunham said.

He soon was employed with the studio tour operation, and stunt show, as well as being called on to train film stars on how to use guns.

In 1979, Dunham married and eventually the couple settled in Arizona, where wife Sue worked for a bank and he performed in Western shows for 12 years. By that time, his wife earned a master's degree in business finance and was offered a lucrative new job in Atlanta, Ga.

He stopped working in summer shows, but flew to California to film two television programs for the History Channel's series, "Tales of the Gun," which taped in Hollywood. He also continued to act as consultant for an episode of the "Quantum Leap" television series, for a special called "Blind Justice," starring Armand Assante and for the film "Tombstone."

He's headed to Branson, Mo., later this month for a modern version of a Buffalo Bill Wild West Show, where he will perform and emcee.

When he's traveling by airplane, Dunham uses replica Colts made in Italy that cost about $400 each. He leaves his antique guns, worth from $1,200 to $3,000 each, in a safe.

"I own 26 guns; some are collectibles and date from the early 1800s to the Civil War," he said. "Five or six I use regularly and are second-generation Colts made after World War II."

In the last 15 years, Dunham also has found a new fascination—single-action shooting competitions, in which competitors dressed in traditional Western garb, walk, climb, duck and dodge through a course, shooting real bullets at moving targets from rifles, shot guns and pistols. About 20 competitions are staged each year.

"It's more fun than fast draw," Dunham said. "It has an emphasis on history and is a family kind of a thing."

When a Camp Sierra Blanca student graduates, it is just the beginning

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

FORT STANTON - Sept. 28 was graduation day at Camp Sierra Blanca, just east of here, but only one student - Adrian Davila - graduated.

The camp takes time out once a month anyway to hand out awards to students for showing most enthusiasm, responsibility, improvement and other positive behaviors.

Camp Sierra Blanca is a juvenile correctional facility for young men in the custody of Children Youth and Families Division for non-violent delinquent acts.

The facility received full accreditation by the State Department of Education in August this year, and students earn course credits in standard academic subjects such as algebra, history, science, and literature.

Phillip Adams, executive director, said youth can cut their sentence in half by meeting the requirements quickly and progressing through the program. To graduate, their behavior has to change, he said. Some have to work on anger, others communication skills, or learning to get along with a stepfather.

Students don't miss school time by being at Camp Sierra Blanca, and those who graduate and re-enter school in their home towns return to their appropriate grade-levels.

Camp Sierra Blanca is a family, not a boot camp, says executive director Phillip Adams.

"I'm not the commandante, I'm the father. God designed families, but ... in a lot of cases families were not able to take care of these young people," he said.

"The only way to really change somebody is to have a personal relationship with them," Adams said. "That's what makes our educational and counseling work here. It is a family."

Most of the youth do not have supportive families and have never been encouraged academically, Adams said, and they end up in gangs because nobody else will accept them.

As far as discipline is concerned, Adams said, although there's no barbed wire, the students are not allowed to disobey the rules or to "cuss."

A youth named Abe, who was supposed to graduate Sept. 28 but broke a rule, explained the disciplinary technique at Camp Sierra Blanca. Anyone who refuses to obey the rules is put to sawing logs until his attitude improves. Abe said other students sometimes will help saw and talk to the person being disciplined to encourage him, and counselor Zim Khazal said this is a time when counselors can talk with the youth one on one. (The logs are then donated to the needy as firewood.)

Camp Sierra Blanca accepted its first students in August of 1997, Adams said. Since then 170-180 young men have lived there. About 120 of them finished the program and went through "aftercare" in their home communities. About 55 got GEDs and 56 went on to college after they left Camp Sierra Blanca.

Camp Sierra Blanca's recidivism rate is just 20 percent, Adams said, unlike other correctional facilities where it's closer to 80 percent.

That is partly because of the aftercare program. A staff member keeps in contact with the graduate until he's freed by the court system. The aftercare staff is available at all hours of the day or night and visit the young men at different locations to make sure they're following the rules.

There are six full-time aftercare staff members, one each in Farmington, Albuquerque, Clovis, Hobbs, Ruidoso and Roswell, checking up and helping out. Aftercare can last from two to six months, depending on when the Parole Board is satisfied with the behavior.

To prepare for graduation and aftercare, students go on "Life Improvement Missions" back to their families and maintain contact with the aftercare staff member in their area. Abe said that he's been talking to his aftercare counselor since he arrived in March.

Counselor Zim Khazal said each staff member is assigned two or three advisees or "little brothers" that he or she gives more attention to, taking them on field trips to meet business people "and show them how to establish their dreams, by showing them the right way," Khazal said.

Part of the success of the program is due to the low student-teacher ratio. There are 65 staff members working with 50 young men 24 hours a day, with a four-to-one student-teacher ratio.

The students also do much community service, Khazal said - cleaning the river, helping out at the Smokey Bear Museum, at the Lincoln County Fairground, the Valley of Fires park, the rodeo grounds in Capitan, and other places. Adams said this is part of the "values training" of Camp Sierra Blanca, and that it "feels good to the kids to help out the community."

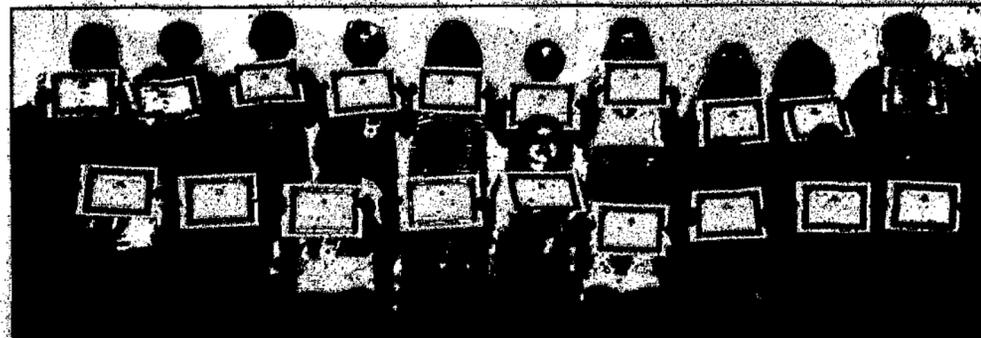

That is just part of making their lives the way they should have been all along, Adams said.

"We show them respect and love and discipline," Khazal said. "That's what was missing from their lives and why they were confused and why they ended up here."

Camp Sierra Blanca is a nonprofit organization governed by a volunteer board of trustees living all over New Mexico. The camp is operated by Associated Marine Institutes, Inc., a nonprofit organization that operates 51 juvenile programs in eight states and the Grand Cayman Islands.

Textiles Woven Into History

The Story of Fabrics

Take a look at the clothes you are wearing. Clothes are made from fabrics, or textiles. People have made textiles from:

Fabulous fabrics

Flax
Flax is probably the oldest natural fiber to be made into fabric. It is used to make linen. The strands of the flax plant are like the stringy bits of celery. Because the fibers are very strong, linen does not tear easily. For thousands of years, people used it to make clothes and things needing extra strength, such as sails. Early ocean voyages might have been impossible without it.

Cloth of gold
The pharaohs of ancient Egypt wore garments made with thin threads of beaten gold. Some fabrics had up to 500 gold threads per one inch of cloth. Not even the very finest Chinese silk had this many threads. Egyptian slaves spent hundreds of hours tapping out gold to make fine threads no thicker than a hair.

The Mini Page celebrates the millennium with a two-part series about the history of fabrics.

Asbestos
Asbestos (as-BES-tuh) is a mineral found in rocks. When the rocks are broken apart, it is easy to pull the asbestos into fibers. It is special because it does not burn. It has been used in thousands of ways, including for firefighter's clothing, in cars and airplanes.

However, asbestos can cause serious health problems to people who mine it or make things with it. If people breathe it in, it can choke their lungs or cause cancer.

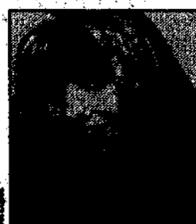

People have been making cloth out of asbestos for thousands of years. Ancient Egyptians wrapped dead bodies in it before burial.

About 1,000 years ago, people in the present-day area of Afghanistan, Iraq and Iran wore asbestos clothing. They didn't wash their clothes in water; they threw them in the fire. This burned off the dirt and left the clothes white.

The Mini Page thanks R. Alan Donaldson, professor of Textiles and Apparel, Technology and Management at North Carolina State University, for help with this issue.

Meet Lila McCann

Not many teenagers have No. 1 recording hits. Country singer Lila McCann had such a hit when she was just 15 years old, "I Wanna Fall in Love."

Last year she was nominated for a Best New Female Vocalist award at the Academy of Country Music Awards.

The first time she performed was at age 4, with her father's band. Lila, who lives in Tacoma, Wash., is a junior in high school. She has four older brothers. She likes in-line skating and shopping. Her mother, who used to be a beautician, now travels with Lila. Her father works for the Department of Defense. He also plays in a country band.

History-Making Fabrics

Silk was so important that it changed the course of history. Other fabrics have played a role in history, too.

Silk
Silk is a beautiful, soft, shiny fiber that can be dyed in rich colors. It is lightweight and warm, and the strongest natural fiber.

About 5,000 years ago, a queen in China discovered how to make silk from silkworm cocoons. For about 3,000 years, the Chinese kept her discovery a secret.

The silkworm's cocoon is made of fibers hundreds of feet long. Chinese women put the cocoons in hot water to loosen the silk strands. Then they pulled out the long strands and wound them onto a bamboo cane. They had to be very, very patient.

Silk copies
Because poor people could not afford real silk, they tried to make other cloth look silky. Women beat on cotton with sticks to soften the fibers. Then they rubbed and rubbed it against a big stone to make it shiny.

This shiny cotton was called "chintz." Because chintz was a cheaper copy of silk, calling something "chintzy" means it is cheap and not of good quality.

Look through your newspaper for ads about clothes. What fabrics do you think they are made of?
Next week, in the last in our series on textiles, The Mini Page looks at the history of cloth-making.

The Silk Road

Merchants traveling the Silk Road had to travel for months across harsh lands. They had to deal with bandits, scorching deserts and mountain blizzards.

Because silk was so beautiful, and the Chinese were the only ones who knew how to make it, it was very valuable.

It was so popular in the Roman Empire that it was against the law for men to wear silk clothes. The Roman emperor thought people were paying too much money for it.

Several roads from China to the Roman Empire were built to handle the silk trade. These became known as the Silk Road.

In exchange for their silk, Europeans traded the Chinese such things as horses and glass.

People also shared ideas. Buddhists brought their religion from India to China across the Silk Road.

An Italian explorer, Marco Polo, traveled across the Silk Road from Italy to China in the late 1200s. He gave Europeans their first eyewitness report on China, including Chinese inventions such as paper money, the compass, printing and paper-making. He told about wonders such as the use of coal (which Europeans didn't know about), baths with hot and cold running water, and kites that carried men in the air.

His stories were so amazing that at first no one believed them. They wanted to see for themselves. The Silk Road opened doors between two very different cultures.

Cotton

Cotton comes from the cotton plant. It can be strong enough for blue jeans or soft enough for baby clothes. The Aztecs were growing it 8,000 years ago in Mexico.

In 1793, Eli Whitney invented the cotton engine, or gin. It separated cotton fiber from seeds about 50 times faster than humans could. Cotton growers could now make more money than ever, so they wanted to plant more and more.

Raising cotton took a lot of workers. As growers planted more cotton, they needed more workers. In the United States, Southern cotton growers depended on slaves to do the work. Their fight to keep slavery legal was one of the main causes of the Civil War.

Raising cotton was back-breaking work.

Modern fibers

Rayon, the first human-made fiber, was invented in the late 1800s. Its name comes from "ray," to show how it shines, and "on" because it is like cotton. It is made from the tough, stringy fibers in wood pulp or cotton stems. These fibers are dissolved in chemicals. Rayon fibers are made from the sticky liquid this makes.

Nylon, made in the 1930s, was the first artificial, or synthetic, fiber. Synthetic fibers are not made entirely from plants or animals. They might be made from coal or petroleum. Nylon is made with oil and chemicals.

Nylon gets its name from New York and London, where the first manufacturers were. It is a strong, stretchy fiber used for everything from nylon stockings to parachutes, to the mesh parts of running shoes.
