Ruidoso police snubbed in bid to share funds

BY JAMES KALVELAGE

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The Ruidoso Police Department has been turned down in a request for drug seizure fund money to finance the purchase of two new police vehi-

The department sought the money from the board of the Lincoln County Narcotics Enforcement Unit, a multi-jurisdictional drug-busting group from which Ruidoso police withdrew earlier this year.

A representative of the Ruidoso police department was told the request would not be considered because the department was not a task force member, said board member and Lincoln County sheriff Tom Sullivan. The Ruidoso Police Department earlier this month was considering rejoining the task force.

The department had requested $46,500 from the narcotics unit seizure fund, said Lanny Maddox, police chief.

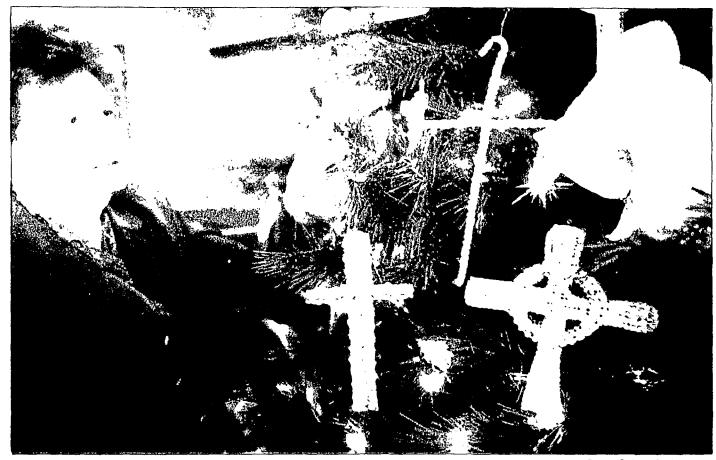

Maddox said Ruidoso had been a member when a large seizure of suspected drug money occurred earlier this year. He said a verbal agreement suggested seizure funds would be distributed among the task force members that provided the manpower and equipment for the force.

The fund contained nearly $125,000 last month, according to records from the Lincoln County

A memorandum of understanding between the drug task force partner agencies had detailed how drug seizure monies would be distributed by the participating law enforcement agencies, according to previous accounts. A review of the MOU however only called for 12 percent of court approved seizures to go to the Lincoln and Otero counties district attorney's office. An April 8, 1998 MOU with the

Mailbox vandals pound neighborhood

BY JAMES KAINELAGE RUIDOSO NEWS STATE WRITER

As many as 20 mailboxes in a Ruidoso neighborhood were vandalized during the weekend.

The latest rash of smashed mail boxes has prompted Lincoln County CrimeStoppers to offer a $200 reward for information leading to a court bindover of those responsible for the vandalism.

Several mailboxes, on Convair Drive and Eagle Drive, were damaged early in the weekend, according to Ruidoso police reports. In one of the vandalism instances a homeowner told police he had heard something around his mailbox about 9:30 p.m. on Satur-

The mailbox vandalism reports began pouring into police Monday, after mail receptacles were damaged overnight in the Cree Meadows area of the village. The activity was reported on Upper Terrace Drive, Lower Terrace Drive and Barcus Road. A Upper Terrace Drive resident told police there had been a noise about 1 a.m. Monday. Mailboxes were described as smashed, with one reported to be in pieces. Other reports of vandalized mail boxes were yet being gathered by the department.

"We are going to really concentrate on it," said Ruidoso Police Department Lt. Wolfgang Born. "We are surprised there have been that many and all in the same neighborhood.

Lincoln supervisor sees little impact of roadless initiative

A preferred alternative to the nationwide Forest Service Roadless Area Conservation Initiative would bring little change to the Lincoln National Forest, opined the forest's supervisor.

A Final Environmental Impact Statement, explaining the impacts of the roadless plan, is currently available for public review.

Subdivision proposals spark debate

County reviews possible revisions to regulations

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

If Lincoln County Commissioners want to stop owners from splitting lots after a subdivision is initially laid out, they should pass a regulation banning the practice, not impose unnecessary requirements for community water systems, says a local surveyor.

Tim Collins told commissioners Thursday that under proposed subdivision regulation changes, if a development is approved for 24 lots and then an owner wants to split one of those lots, the entire subdivision would have to

Commissioners were reviewing changes to county subdivision rules proposed by the county planning commission. The county has no zoning ordinance. They didn't take any action at the review session, but are scheduled to look at suggested revisions during their regular meeting in December.

Road and water requirements accounted for most of the changes, said County Attorney Alan Morel.

Revisions "require all subdivision to have roads built to county standards regardless of the size of the subdivision or if the roads are private," Morel said. "Currently, with a subdivision of under five lots, only an easement is required. You don't actually have to build the

"The other question to decide is at what point does the commission want to require a community water system. Right now it's only on subdivisions with more than 500 lots."

With that regulation, developers come in with proposals for less than 500 lots to avoid the cost of a central water system, he said. Instead of one large well, the county ends up

Village looks at alternatives to tower at police department

BY JAMES KAIVELAGE RUDOSO NEWS STATE WRITER

Ruidoso is looking at alternatives to placing a police communications tower at the new police department complex.

A pair of Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission reviews dealing with placement of a 120- to 140-foot tall tower at the facility at 1085 Mechem-Drive were tabled by the commission Tuesday at the request of the village manager.

"We have been looking at the situation," Alan Briley told the commission. "There have been various concerns about towers around town. We're asking the commission to table this and let us look at other alternatives.'

Following the meeting Briley said there may be other options instead of placing the communications tower at the new police department complex. While declining to specify alternatives that may be looked at, Briley said other locations for an antenna, such as at a village water storage tank, could be considered. High quality telephone lines, microwave links, or other connections could tie the police station's communications center with a transmitter

"If the alternatives that I've heard of are true there is a possibility it could be less expensive. And there's a possibility it could be more expensive.

Neighborhood concerns about putting the tower at the police station may have played a role in the reassess-

The village manager said he understands there have been calls to the planning department about placing a tower at the Mechem Drive facility. He said he did not know if the comments have been lodged in opposition.

But Carl Kelley, a Ruidoso contractor, appearing before the commission on a separate communications tower issue, said the village was "catching hell from everybody up there," on the police radio antenna.

The commission had been scheduled to consider a conditional use permit and an amendment to the commercial site development plan for the former Moncor Bank building and property that was converted this summer into a new police facility. The tower was proposed for the northwest part of the property, behind the former bank's covered drive-through area. Planning staff, in a list of factors for consideration by the commission, stated the tower will go on an already developed part of the property, making the impact negligible. Another factor, while noting the building is in a commercial district, said the commission should consider the reaction of adjoining property owners.

While much of the Ruidoso Police Department has moved into the new station, communications and dispatch staff remain at the old building on Wingfield Street, awaiting the new radio system.

Briley said the communications center could be moved into the Mechen: Drive police station in weeks, if the alternatives that will be explained to the village next week prove to provide op tions. Erection of a 120-foot tower at the station had held a possibility of a longer delay in moving all police operations into the new facility.

The commission tabled the neces sary approvals indefinately.

COUNTY: Commissioners look at changes to subdivision regulations with 499 individual domestic wells that the state must approve for an annual individual consumption of three acre feet of water or about one million

Subsequently, some of those lots also may be divided, mcreasing the impact, he said.

Under the proposal from the planning commission, any subsequent lot split requires a water system for the entire subdivision.

"What we're trying to fix is that we have a situation now where people file for a type three or type five subdivision and almost immediately after approval, there are lot splits of those again," Morel said. "The idea is to let the developer know up front that if he goes over 50 lots, he will need a community water system. If he wants to retain the ability to said with tracts of five acres or must provide a community water system up front."

Type three subdivisions consist of two to 24 lots with some containing fewer than 10 acres. Type five subdivisions are from two to 24 lots, but all are 10 acres or more.

The other three types of subdivisions covered in the county ordinance require planning commission review and county commission approval.

Subdivisions starting with more than 24 lots require state review and most developers try to avoid that, Morel said.

"We need to make sure the infrastructure is there to serve if the lots are to be split again," he said. The smaller the lot sizes, the greater the density and the associated demand for services and water, he added.

Mark Mobley, one of several Realtors in the audience, split lots or allow buyers to, he less, a more efficient approach could be to split the cost of drilling one large well to serve several homes. Subdivisions of 25 lots or more, a size requiring a state study of available water, are the logical starting point for requiring a central water system, Mobley asked. The developer could include the expense in the cost of the lots.

The buyer will either pay then or later, if an individual well is drilled.

Harvey Foster, president of the Multiple Listing Service, suggested instead of going with 25 separate wells, the State Engineer's office should allow that amount of water usage to be dedicated to a central water system so that a developer doesn't have to go outside of the area to buy water rights.

Rose Peebles, representing the Ruidoso Board of Realtors, said the county still has no factual information on water availability in the county and when a community water system would be economically fea-

"What's good for Ruidoso may not be sufficient for Carrizozo or Corona," she said, adding that if more costs are tacked onto the price of lots, nothing will be available for the working class, yet they provide services essential for a commu-

Chris Denne, chief of the Bonito Volunteer Fire Department, reminded commissioners that when reviewing water plans for a new subdivision, access to water for fire fighting should be considered.

"One of the major subdivisions in this county doesn't have water for us to protect it," he said. "I think safety should be government's first concern so I applaud your effort for community water systems."

The Ruidoso Police Department withdrew from the LCNEU in May after Maddox complained his department was never given an accounting of the fund. Maddox said Ruidoso had, for six years, provided the task force with a full-time village officer at an accumulated cost of $180,000 and only received $15,000 in asset sharing during the period.

Ruidoso Downs Police Department and the Mescalero agency are new participants.

The agreement names Ruidoso as member, but the police department has not signed on.

In a Nov. 20 letter to the enforcement unit Maddox said there are several concerns that needed to be addressed before his department signed the agreement. One of the issues raised by Maddox was "equitable sharing." The Ruidoso po-lice chief said the purchase of two police vehicles for his department was requested "from the asset sharing fund acquired during our six years of 50/50 participation."

The new accord makes no mention of forfeited property disbursement, but does say such assets shall be distributed or expended only on approval by the board of directors. Maddox said his department will not return to the regional task force.

Betty Edmondson faced two major challenges in her life this year.

With the help of more than 20 other members of the First Christian Church on Hull Road, she tackled the assignment of creating 200 Chrismon ornaments and of tracking down the history, meaning and patterns for the special gold and white dec-

County postpones action on seeking proposals for clinic services

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

County Commissioners agreed to table the request from County Manager Tom Stewart until they have clarification on the status of the Hondo Health Clinic.

Lawyering and administering

Lawyers, of course, are purveyors of argument in support of clients. Lincoln County's lawyer, Alan Morel, now finds himself undone by a new lawyer in the state Department of Finance and Administration over the issue of the recently dedicated health clinic in Hondo.

That new counsel for DFA, Morel found, has thrown out practically everything formerly approved by DFA in establishing the health clinic - joint powers agreement, lease agreement, sole source provider of services.

As Morel says, "It's an absolute reversal." All of which reminds us of what has been happening in Florida over the past three weeks — a reversal of fortune for George W. Bush, for Al Gore ... back and forth.

A pretty good argument can be made that in Florida, lawyer judgment has replaced canvassing board judgment in determining the Presidency. But that is the price we pay for living under rule of law, not men.

And the people of the Hondo Valley, who merely have been hoping for a community health clinic are getting an been hoping for a community health clinic, are getting an up-close, personal view of that rule right now.

May they and the nation survive.

Fire and water

To the editor:

When I moved to this village eight years ago everybody was talking about the possible disaster a forest fire could do. I have suffered three different city councils and all that has been done is TALK. The subject of water has also been a continuous topic. It is amazing to me that the two items have not been connected but to me they are Siamese twins.

All trees need water to grow little water, dry trees, high fire danger. We require someone on the city council that has the intestinal fortitude to bring to fruitation an act that limits the trees on all property, for all time and not some poorly conceived commercial tree coverage schedule, that was passed as a placebo, to satisfy those of us who think that YOUR trees are a danger to the entire village.

I believe an ordinance tis needed) that specifies distance for tree to tree depending upon diameter or circumference of the tree trunk, at a specific distance from the ground.

Example: Three inches or ess, two foot spacing; three inches to eight inches, ten foot spacing; above eight inches, 20 foot spacing.

This example is for ponderosa pine. It allows for crown growth and preserves open spaces for deer and critters.

Spruce, poplars, aspen would require similar tables, but an intermix of trees would be governed by the species that affords the greatest spacing.

You may have noticed that I have not mentioned Chinese elm trees. This variety is the most prolific, self-seeding, water-thirsty, power-line destroying, sewerinvading pest that exists throughout the village.

A simple ordinance stating that this tree may not be grown within village limits would raise our water table and we would see our small streams begin flowing again, and the return of some of our wildlife that require some flowing water to survive:

On divining votes

To the editor:

Every citizen has the right to vote, but each voter has the responsibility to follow directions in exercising this right. There should be no law that allows some board to divine the intent of the voter. This would endanger fair and free elections. I certainly do not want any board, partisan or non-partisan, to determine how I meant to vote. I trust the machines to count my vote.

I am less concerned with the ballots rejected by machines than the military ballots rejected by a canvassing board because the U.S. Government delivered the ballots without a postmark, a technicality over which the voter has no control. Harold Inman

After the vote, pain

To the editor:

Well, the voters were misinformed, misled and outright lied to again! And I don't mean just in Florida — I'm talking about the hospital property tax levy here in Lincoln County. We were repeatedly told by numerous "authorities" that "continuation of a mill levy is not a 'new' tax, simply a continuation of the old one at a lower rate" and "approval of a 3-mill levy to replace the expiring 4.25 mill levy will result in a net reduction of taxes." But the News' headlines on Dec. 1 proclaim loud and clear that the new levy will BOOST taxes, not reduce them! This has been an educational experience for all of us now everyone can understand what a woman feels when she has been date-raped, and how the rape happened. First, the rapist gains the victim's confidence, then convinces her that she "needs" him, invokes fear of the consequences of resisting his advances, and after the deed is done, places the blame for his actions on others. In this instance, all the property owners in Lincoln County have been collectively violated by our elected officials, and it

If my old memory serves me correct, there were numerous spokespersons who vigorously denied any connection between the mill levy issue and having Presbyterian Healthcare Services administer the hospital. I find it intriguing and suspicious to now read statements regarding implementing the millage its expected yield Gibson, PHS's hospital administrator.

Since I very vocally opposed the new mill levy, but no one listened, let me be the first to tell the world "I told you so!"

Global warming cooling off as an issue?

BY STEWART TRUELSEN

AMERICAN TARM BUREAU TUDERATION

Near the end of the hardfought presidential campaign, Vice-President Al Gore accused Governor George W. Bush of not being committed to stopping the Earth's rising temperature. Of all the charges traded back and forth, this had to be the most novel. Politicians used to make more modest pledges like promising "a chicken in every pot." They didn't promise cooler temperatures.

While the election was still in dispute, a conference at The Hague to settle on a plan to deal with global warming ended without agreement. One of the issues it faltered on was whether nations should be credited for the carbon dioxide soaked up by agricultural croplands and forests. The United States, a big country with a lot of land in farming, would benefit tion. The European Union and other countries argued against it.

American Farm Bureau Federation government relations specialist Jon Doggett attended the conference as an observer. Doggett believes the Kyoto Protocol to reduce greenhouse gas emissions is dead. It was signed by President Clinton in 1999, but was never submitted to the Senate for ratification.

Doggett doubts it could ever pass. The purpose of the meeting at The Hague was to clarify rules and guidelines in the treaty, and make it more acceptable.

The issue of climate change and what to do about it, however, is far from dead. International organizations and U.S. environmental groups are continuing the pressure to do something, and there are tentative plans for a conference next year in Bonn one just ended.

U.S. agriculture's stake in all this is important. While farmers might reap some rewards from sequestering carbon in soil, Doggett points out that agriculture is a net emitter of greenhouse gases. A recent study at Michigan State University made the same point. Carbon dioxide is the most notable greenhouse gas and certain crops and notill farming help to absorb it. But, the researchers at Michigan State found small amounts of other gases produced by farming have more "gross warming potential."

Even without a climate change agreement, progress will be made on global warming issues. For agriculture, this means better application of fertilizer to reduce the amount of nitrous oxide in the atmosphere. Many businesses and utilities also are making plans. Doggett thinks new from a favorable interpreta- to pick up the pieces from the technology and preventive measures may accomplish what's needed, and we won't have to resort to drastic curbs on energy use and other economic activity.

The news media will make sure this issue doesn't die. simply because there are new studies and predictions almost daily. Some of the public attention may be predicated on the weather itself. A normal winter may ease some of the fears. And there is another factor, according to the British Medical Journal. Researchers who analyzed climate and death statistics for people between the ages of 65 and 74 found there are 10 times more deaths related to cold than to heat. They concluded a little global warming isn't so bad.

Crowd packs county meeting in Ruidoso

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Advocates of conducting some Lincoln County Commission monthly meetings In Ruidoso were pleased Thursday with the heavy turnout for a special meeting at the convention center.

But near the end of the session, two incidents nearly killed their point.

County Treasurer Joan Park was questioned about how she calculated interest owed by Presbyterian Healthcare Services on money the county would have retained if it had not been billed twice for the same piece of equipment several years ago.

According to documenta-tion Park submitted to the commission last month, the interest worked out to 2.74 percent over 30 months. Based on the opinion of county auditors, because the original money was deducted from the special property tax fund established to provide support for the county-owned hospital managed by Presbyterian and three county health clinics, the interest will be returned there.

Commissioner William Schwettmann wasted no time in pointing out that because the meeting was in Ruidoso and not the county seat of Carrizozo, where all regular meetings now are conducted, Park couldn't easily access her records to answer the question.

Commissioners who disagree with scheduling regular meetings in Ruidoso often cite the lack of access to records as a major problem.

Then near the end of the meeting, Commissioner Leo Martinez, who has pushed for more meetings in Ruidoso, the population center of the county. said he was upset to learn that the county was charged $75 to use the convention center.

Charles Rennick, assistant village attorney, said the charge was a mistake. Contacted Tuesday, Mayor

Robert Donaldson concurred.

"The convention center belongs to the village," he said. We set the pricing and the policies. It was a mistake that Tom (Stewart) received a bill."

He explained that a Hawthorn Suites Golf and Convention Resort sales person books events and therefore, the center may not be available at times for county meetings, but village hall would be another free option.

"It's up to us to determine if the fee should be waived, which we will do when we think a government meeting is in the best interests of the village,' Donaldson said.

At the Thursday commission meeting, former Ruidoso village council member Al Junge suggested commissioners conduct two regular meetings a month. On the second Thursday, the meeting would be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Carrizozo and on the fourth Thursday, from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

That schedule would give people a chance to attend during the day or evening and bring government closer to the largest population in the county, he said. But it would require that a time limit be applied to people who speak on agenda items to ensure the sessions only last four hours each, Junge said.

Some time, you'll do this," he told Chairman Rex Wilson. "If you do it now, it will be a feather in your cap.'

Palo Verde road work aired

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUDOSO NEWS STATE WRITER

Seventeen years after residents say the work initially was scheduled, the Lincoln County Commission is trying to widen and improve roads in the Palo Verde Slopes subdivision east of Ruidoso Downs.

"Our road department is grading the roads now and in April will work on Mesa Loop and Arrowhead Drive as a state cooperative project, widening and chip sealing (an oil and rock surfacing application)," County Manager Tom Stewart told commissioners Thursday.

"The roads have long been in need of improvement. In one bad area, widening it will require removing culverts. What we're doing now is a stop gap measure to make sure school buses can get through."

Palo Verde resident Dewey Keller told commissioners about a school bus driver who let children out at the top of a hill on a snowy day because the bus might not have been able to navigate the road with another were attacked by dogs, he said, emphasizing the need for road improvements for the safety of school children in the area.

The developer had provided 50-foot easements along the roads and the county won't have to obtain the right to work on land adjoining the road, Commissioner Leo Martinez said.

One resident said people in the community were told in the middle 1980s that the work would be paid for with a frontfoot road assessment collected since 1967. The assessment was eliminated several years ago by commissioners when they found out that it was to apply to extraordinary work and that money collected in a specific area had to be expended there.

The resident said since county equipment started working in the area, more problems have surfaced and he's worried about flooding. He and several other residents also questioned why the county is widening on the east side of the road where 18-inch culverts were installed according to county specificavehicle coming up. The children tion, instead of the west side where culverts of varying sizes were haphazardly done at angles and are ineffective.

"In any case, you have more than enough property to straighten it out," the resident

"We don't want to spend $50,000 on a road and do it wrong," Martinez agreed.

Commissioner Rick Simpson said the subdivision's road problems were discussed when he previously served on the commission 10 years ago, "but we didn't get it done. Time ran out."

Drainage problems were never solved, he said.

"Any time it rains, there's a large flow and the ditches silt in. The road crew has been out there three times this season. I suggest while they're working on the roads, they look into concrete ditches in key areas to carry the water," Simpson said.

The commissioner said he will confer with county road manager Albert Hernandez to come up with some figures by the commission's Dec. 21 meet-

USFS, county to upgrade two roads

An agreement between the U.S. Forest Service and the Lincoln County Commission will pave the way for improvements to two roads in the Smokey Bear Ranger District of the Lincoln National Commissioners approved the joint project Thursday during a special meeting.

FR 131 begins at New Mexico Highway 37 north of FR 488, also known as County Road 017, and runs for about 5.52 miles to the Loma Grande Ranch.

The work will include placement of a sub-base material on the first 1.52 miles because the road has a clay base that when wet, is slick and makes it difficult to control vehicles, County Manager Tom Stewart said. The material will help stabilize the roadbed.

Three culverts will be installed by the Forest Service to drain water from the road sides.

The second road is FR 105, also known as CR 013, beginning at NM 37 at the top of Nogal Hill and running north for about 5.78 miles to the junction with U.S. 380. Because the road has the same clay-related problems, a sub-base material will be applied.

The Forest Service will buy the material for about $4,000, will provide and install the culverts and a steel wheel grid for compaction of material, and will obtain the required biological and cultural clear-ances. The county will provide equipment and labor to load, haul, dump, spread and roll the material, will provide a dump truck for hauling back fill material for the culverts and will provide traffic control and signing.

Officer injured in chase

A Ruidoso Downs police officer was injured, after going down a 60-foot-high cliff with a suspect he had been chasing.

Officer Kelly J. Calicoat received a minor concussion and two fractured ribs in the fall on Dec. 2. The suspect, Filbert Ramon Herrera, 36, of Ruidoso Downs, complained of aches but refused treatment.

The pursuit began after Ruidoso police attempted to locate a vehicle reportedly taken about 9 p.m. About an hour later a New Mexico State Police officer notified Ruidoso Downs officers that he had located the vehicle in the village, and it would not stop.

An effort by Calicoat and another village officer to stop the vehicle at North Parnell Drive and U.S. Highway 70 was unsuccessful, and patrol cars followed the vehicle to a Hilltop Lane residence. The driver fled on foot into an undeveloped area and Calicoat jumped on Herrera. The two men went down the 60-foot drop-off.

Herrera was charged with resisting a police officer and battery upon an officer.

Aggravated assault

Police arrested a Ruidoso Downs man Dec. 1, charging him with felony aggravated assault with a deadly weapon against a household member, felony false imprisonment and misdemeanor battery against a household member.

Jerry Chavarria, 40, was ordered held in lieu of a $25,000 cash-only bond by Magistrate Court Judge William Butts, following an initial appearance on

According to police reports, Chavarria and another person had argued, followed by the victim being struck several times in the face. He is also accused of blocking the victim's exit from the residence. A knife was victim, with the back end of the knife reportedly placed to the victim's back.

Aggravated assault

A Mescalero woman was arrested Dec. 2, charged by Ruidoso Downs police with firstoffense driving DWI. An officer stopped Diana L. Enjady on U.S. Highway 70, after allegedly observing the driver weaving on the roadway. Enjady was said to be unsteady on her feet, had a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage, and failed a field sobriety test, according to a police report.

Burglary reported

A Utah Lane burglary was reported to Ruidoso Downs police on Dec. 3. A door to the residence had been broken when forced open. Missing from the residence were an estimated $150 in currency and a black jewelry box with items of reportedly used to threaten the unknown value.

Tower? What tower?

Cellular structure to be green to blend in with surroundings

BY JAMES KALVELAGE RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A new cellular communications tower, to be sited near Midtown Ruidoso, will be painted pine needle green, to match the environment.

While the color, height and design of the Verizon Wireless were conditions the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission signed off on Tuesday, the pending tower may not end cellular phone problems around all of Ruidoso.

"It won't make up for what we really need in Ruidoso," said Carl Kelley, the tower contractor for Verizon. "What we really need is to get back on the property Willard's." near Barbara

Kelley is also the owner of the property, at the Radio Shack store on Whitlock Street near Sudderth Drive, where the 120-foot tower would be located. The location is north of a site considered earlier this

The optimum location, called Squaw Trail, is just outside Ruidoso's village limit. Approval to place a tower at Squaw Trail never came from the Extraterritorial Zoning Commission after opposition was voiced and zoning issues were raised.

A Verizon official said the tower by the Radio Shack store would cover the eastern part of Ruidoso to about the middle of the village.

"If we're going to put up the new tower is it going to enhance service?" quipped Bill Hirschfeld, a member of the commission.

"It's not going to except for the east part of town. Verizon answered an FCC (Federal Communications Commission) complaint and said it would take care of all the problems,"

Kelley said the new tower would help, but not resolve cell phone service on Ruidoso's north side. Hirschfeld said Verizon wasn't telling the FCC the full story.

'Apparently not," Kelley "Verizon's trying real hard. If we get one more tower site then we'll be all right.'

Kelley said most of the problems with the Verizon cell phone system locally was the result of conventional telephone line connections.

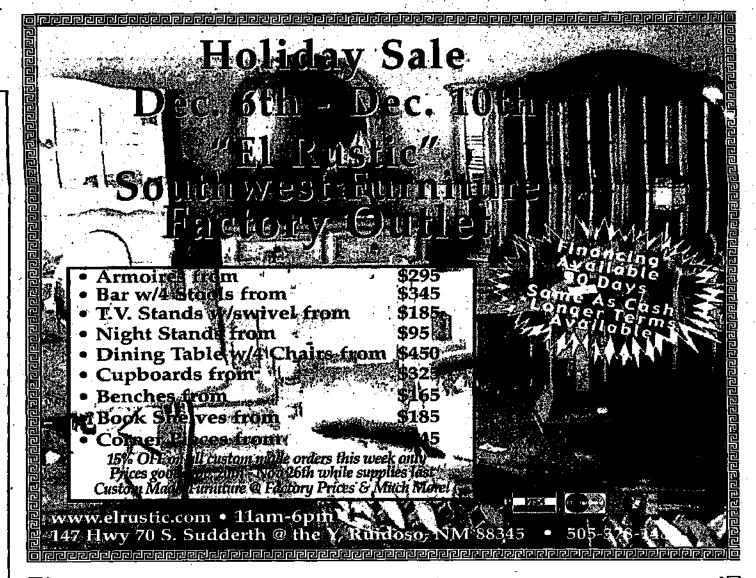

The new tower will have a round base instead of the typical angled, three or four sided framework. It could be in place and operating later this month, weather permitting, Kelley

The commission, seeking to restrict the number of antenna elements on the tower, backed off a restriction that would forbid Verizon to rent tower space to other companies, including other wireless phone compa-

Kelley said permitting another cellular provider to use the tower could alleviate requests for more cell tower placements.

The commission did however place another condition to the previously approved conditional use, requiring Verizon to come to the commission if additional cell phone elements were ever proposed.

Aggravated battery report investigated

Ruidoso police are investigating a reported aggravated battery case.

Police were dispatched to an Evergreen Drive residence on a call of a battery.

The resident told officers that after answering a knock at the door about 1 a.m. Nov. 29, an unknown man wearing a ski mask entered the dwelling and put a shotgun to her face.

The man allegedly threatened to kill the resident.

The resident knocked the gun away from her face, and was then struck several times with the butt of the gun. The suspect reportedly fled the

The case has been turned over to a detective with the Ruidoso Police Department.

Woman arrested on check charges

A Ruidoso woman was arrested Nov. 30 on charges of issuance of worthless checks.

Kristen Emily Waddell, 26, was taken into custody after a motel manager called Ruidoso police, claiming a woman who had written checks that were returned because of a closed account was in the parking lot of the Super 8 Motel on Cliff

A police officer stopped the woman before she was able to drive from the motel. The checks returned to the motel were for $106.65, $95.94, and

ney told police there was probable cause to arrest Waddell.

In addition police had been looking for the suspect in con-nection with a $157.42 worthless check that was returned to a Ruidoso grocer.

Three of the four worthless check charges lodged against Waddell are felony counts.

Fraud alleged

An arrest warrant was issued Nov. 28 for a Ruidoso man accused of felony fraud. Police were called to a Sudderth Drive apartment after a tow truck driver was told he could not take a vehicle the pick-up truck's owner wanted removed.

The suspect told the tow truck driver he had a court document showing the vehicle had been released to him for payments due, according to a police report.

A judge said the document ordered the return of the vehicle to its owner.

The suspect is facing a charge of fraud to intentionally misappropriate or take something of value by fraudulent conduct.

The morning after performing for the Community Concert Series at the First Christian Church, the quintet gave a workshop to band director Robbie Stephens' high school brass "quintet" (there are actually eight musicians). The Ruidoso musicians performed for the professionals, and members of the Monumental Brass gave tips on techniques.

Warriors start season with split

The Warriors (1-1) opened the hoops season with a pair of close games: a season-opening win against AAAA Roswell Goddard Friday and a last-half loss to West Las Vegas Saturday. Ruidoso 57, Roswell Goddard 55

The Warriors and Rockets (0-1) played seesaw throughout the season opener for both squads Friday, with Ruidoso holding off Goddard at the end to take the victory, 57-55.

The match was not pretty, with both teams making their share of early-season mistakes.

"A win's a win, no matter how you get it," said Warrior head coach BIlly Page. "I'll take that one.

Ruidoso led 13-10 after a back-and-forth first quarter, but went into the locker room trailing the Rockets 25-21, mostly on the strength of Goddard's outside shooting. That's the strength of our team," said Rocket coach Hayden Hill. "Our biggest kid is 6-2, and a lot of times we're playing with five guys under six foot. We've got to offset things by doing

Goddard tallied seven 3-pointers overall, with four coming in the first half.

Ruidoso came back with a solid third quarter, outscoring Goddard 18-9 to retake and hold-

The Rockets kept things close in the final stanza, closing the gap to two, but Sean Sebastian put Ruidoso back up by four with a pair of free throws, and Jason Britt and J.R. Floyd followed that with a pair of field goals to seal the

A 3-pointer with no time left by Rocket Chad Barke made the final score as close as it was.

For the season opener, Page seemed pleased. "We actually looked better than I though we were going to look," he said. "It was sloppy at times, but crisp at times. We executed some plays like we wanted, some others not quite like we wanted. But all in all, the kids played great Initially, it looked like a repeat of the previous night's game.

Ruidoso jumped out to a 13-7 first-quarter lead, and stretched its edge to 25-18 at the half. But the shorter, quicker Dons came out of the locker room looking for blood, and a 3-pointer by Geno Mathis to open the final stanza gave Las Vegas a lead it wouldn't relinquish. "Our defense collapsed in a few spots, and that was the difference," Page said. "We weren't playing our man like we should have been They were a little quicker than us, so we took a step back, and that allowed them to have a better shot; a better look at the basket. We didn't have as much ball pressure as I would have liked." "I was very happy with being down seven at the half because I knew we hadn't shot the ball very well," said Dons coach David Bustos. "We committed some turnovers early, so I really felt like our best basketball would be played in the second half, and that's what happened. Warrior Solomon Barnett and Mathis each had 13 points. Don Estevan Urioste was the only other player in double figures with 10. Page said the loss lets the Warriors know what they have to work on.

"This early in the season, you can't really complain," he said. "The thing for us is they're AAA, they're in our class and we have to be able to beat those teams when the going gets tough."

Capitan has rough time at Roadrunner

The Tigers had a rough weekend at the Roadrunner Tournament in Dexter and Hagerman, with both the boys and girls failing to win a game. Lady Tigers

For the Lady Tigers (0-4), it was close but no cigar, as three points separated Capitan from victory in both the opening and closing games of the tourney.

The difference throughout the tournament, said coach Cindy Terry, was turnovers, with the squad averaging 39 plus a game.

"We had enough in the tournament for the whole season," she said.

Facing Loving in the opening round, Capitan fell 53-50 against a team that fielded nine seniors.

Except for the turnovers, Terry said her squad played well, led by Jessica Tully-Mitchell and Patty Terry with 13 points each, and Ginger Cupit with 10.

Ruidoso and Robertson were the only AAA schools at the tournament, and Ruidoso was by far the smallest school in attendance. Still, Perry was pleased with the squad's effort.

"I think everything went extremely well," he said. "We did extremely good until about the fourth round, and that's when we started becoming extremely fatigued. That's when we started losing our focus a little bit."

Perry said with only a week's practice under its belt, and only two days of that conditioning, the team held its own, with only Butte totally dominating the Warriors.

"Everybody else we hung tough with," the coach said. Overall, the Warriors had 102 matches in two days of competition. Individually, heavyweight Patrick Hodges was Ruidoso's star performer, going undefeated in eight matches. He was the only Warrior to defeat a wrestler from the Butte team. "He was amaz-

Friday, the Eagles came within a whisker of topping tough eastern school Grady. The Bronchos took a 66-65 win that came down to a missed shot by Hondo in the last 30 sec-

"We made some mental mistakes," Barela said. "That's what's hurting us more than anything else. Young ball players just lose a little concentration there.'

Still, he was pleased that the Eagles hung in with the 15man Grady squad.

They all stuck in there and played hard defense; went up and down the court with them, he said. "We played pretty good defense, the transition game. We had a pretty good fight under the boards."
Lering led the scoring with 28 points, including six 3-pointers. Carlos Miranda tallied 18.

The Chiefs (1-2) and Grizzlies (2-2) gave their fans a lot of excitement Thursday, competing in the first overtime game of the season.

After the smoke cleared, Zozo had taken a 73-70 win.

We made too many mistakes right toward the end," said Chiefs coach Christy La Paz. "Threw the ball away and took some shots we shouldn't have shot."

With eight seconds left in regulation, Zozo cut the Chief lead to two.

Mescalero brought the ball in, but Grizzly Brandon Lang-ley stole the ball. He missed his shot, but Lane Dixon got the backside rebound and, with the clock reading 0:00, sent the ball into the hoop to tie the match.

Many from county make 'Who's Who' listing

In all, 162 students from this area were included in the 34th annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1999-2000.

This is the largest recognition program and publication in the nation honoring highachieving high school students. Students are nominated by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches and educational organizations based upon students' academic achievement and involvement in extracurricular activities. Who's Who students also compete for $200,000 m scholarship awards and participate in the publications' Annual Survey of High Achievers, an annual opinion poll of teen attitudes. Traditionally, 99 percent of the students selected have a grade-point average of B or better and 97 percent are college bound.

Teacher pay hike sought

The New Mexico State Board of Education will recommend to the Legislature in January a 10.13 percent increase in total teacher compensation, and expanding the number of professional development days.

On Nov. 29, the SBE approved legislative policy and support proposals, including $3 million to assist low-performing schools in developing school improvement plans, $8 million to develop new criterion-referenced tests and $300 million over three years to ensure safe school buildings. In all, the SBE will recommend an increase of $249.7 million for education and $313.7 million in capital outlay, of which $300 million is for upgrading and correcting deficiencies in public school buildings and $13.7 million is for maintenance.

The proposals seek funding to ensure a sufficient supply of quality teachers in New Mexico; provide the second year of funding for full-day kindergarten; support family literacy programs for Native Americans; ensure accurate and complete tests to measure student progress on New Mexico's Content Standards and Benchmarks and performance standards; and increase counseling services for high-need students.

The SBE voted to recommend to the Legislature the continuation of a public educational governance structure that includes a constitutionally-created State Board and elected local boards of education and changes to the public school code to provide additional flexibility to local school districts to increase student performance.

Kids share reading with their parents

At White Mountain Elementary, 'anytime we get extra funds, we put them into books.'

'Cows are cool' - Frank Cannella

BY SANDY SUGGETT RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

amily Reading Nights bring families together and help students meet their reading goals at the White Mountain Elementary School.

An average of 100 family members show up for the evening reading sessions and snacks are served. School librarian Linda Hamilton said she sees parents she never sees otherwise.

"They bring their dads and moms; one girl brought her mom, her grandmother and her aunt — and there are four people reading to this one girl."

White Mountain principal Frank Cannella said the Family Reading Nights are scheduled twice each nineweek period for the Accelerated Reading Program that WME initiated about three years ago.

A "Star Test" is given to each stu-dent at the beginning of the school year, which establishes a reading level. Individualized reading goals are determined by students' reading levels and the number of school days in a nineweek period, Cannella said. After read-test on a computer in their classroom or in the library. This measures their reading comprehension.

At the end of the nine weeks, those who have met their reading goals receive a reward. For the last nineweek period, high school football players lunched with the avid readers. For the period before that, students received "Proud Reading Warrior" Tshirts donated by Wal-Mart.

The next incentive is a Kiss-a-Cow Concert with musician Dan Crow. After the concert, the principal will be seen kissing a cow in the White Mountain gymnasium.

Cannella will apparently do anything to inspire children to read more.

'Cows are cool," he said. In the past, he kissed a pig to reward his readers, but the pig became agitated around so many well-read children.

"They wanted me to kiss this thing and it was like jaws," he said. "Plus pigs don't have any lips, so you don't know where to kiss it."

The Accelerated Reading Program has grown over the last two years, Hamilton said, with a grant allowing

We have really hit that hard and we've got one of the best libraries in the state," Cannella said. "We have so many new books we had to buy some new bookshelves. Anytime we get extra funds, we put them into books. We've really been addressing that over the past five to six years since we implemented the program."

In addition, the school has offered in-service time to teach teachers how to use the Accelerated Reader Program, with two one-day in-services and two two-day in-services over the past couple of years.

The tests are loaded onto a computer server and then networked with all the computers in the building, allowing teachers to track how well their students are doing, no matter where they take the tests. If students aren't doing well, the teacher can then suggest books more appropriate to their reading levels.

The classrooms of six teachers at White Mountain Elementary qualified as "model classrooms" by the Accelerated Reader Program, by having all students reading at or above their reading level and scoring 85 percent or above on the computerized tests, Hamilton

Family Reading Nights are designed to help students meet their reading goals — and they're successful: More than 10,000 books were checked out of the library during the first nineweek period of school this year, Hamilton said.

We only have 380 students," she said. "That was just truly amazing. One ' kid took over 100 tests in nine weeks."

About 240 children met their reading goals this past nine-week period, Cannella said, so he can expect a fairly large audience for his cow-smoothing Kayakers paddle past one of the 100,000 glaciers in Alaska. Glaciers are giant pieces of ice that move over land.

Glaciera cover about 1/20th of the state and are the biggest tourist attraction. They range in size from 1 to 50 miles long and 300 to 10,000 feet thick.

Alaska is our largest state. It is onefifth the size of the entire United States. Only Wyoming has fewer people. Alaska has a population of about 500,000 people. It became a state in 1959.

Alaska is 500 miles across Canada from Washington state and the "lower 48." In 1867 the United States bought the area from Russia for $7,200,000, or about 2 cents an acre. The purchase proved to be a wise one. Alaska is rich in natural resources, including oil, gold, fish and wood. For years, there were many disagreements between the U.S. government, the Alaskan state government and the native peoples about who owned what lands.

In 1971, the U.S. government gave the state's Inuits (once called Eskimos). Aleuts and Indians $962,500,000 and millions of acres of land. Other land claims have also been settled.

More About Alaska

The Forgetflower.

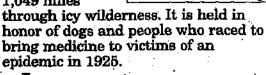

Gold rushes in 1897, 1898 and 1902 attracted thousands of settlers.

Alaskan Heritage, or background, comes from a wide mixture of peoples. More than one-fifth of the population is descended from native people, the Inuits, Aleuts and Indians. There are also descendants of Russian fur traders and farmers, Norwegian fishers, and gold and oil miners.

The worldfamous Iditarod (eye-DIT-uh-rod) dogsled race is 1.049 miles Juneau, the capital, has about 25,000 people. It is the second-biggest city in area in the U.S. The city of Sitka, also in Alaska, is the biggest.

Kodiak Island, in the Pacific Ocean, is home to a national wildlife refuge famous for its bears.

It is also home port to the largest fishing fleet in the world.

The Land of the Midnight Sun is one of Alaska's nicknames. In the far north of sunlight to grow giant vegetables such as 100-pound cabbages.

The Northern lights are streams of colored light stretching thousands of miles across the Arctic skies.

Oil and gas bring in about 85 percent of the money needed to run the state. This income is so great that Alaskans do not pay income or sales taxes. Most citizens also receive a yearly payment as their share of the oil profits.

But oil has also caused many problems for the environment. In 1989, the tanker Exxon Valdez caused the biggest oil spill in American history. Nearly 11 million gallons of oil polluted Prince William Sound.

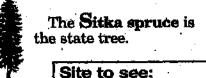

The willow Ptarmigan is the state bird.

Quiet beauty fills the Alaskan landscape. About onefourth of all the land is in the National Park system. Forests cover about onethird of the state.

Auto club offers tips for safety on scooters

They're everywhere, those sleek little twowheeled scooters that are destined to be one of this holiday season's most popular gifts for children.

But because the Consumer Product Safety Commission has reported more than 4,000 scooter injuries this year, AAA New Mexico is offering safety tips for scooter owners

"Scooters are like skateboards or inline skates, and similar safety rules need to be followed," said Brenda Yager, public affairs manager for AAA New Mexico. "Kids need to wear proper safety gear and be aware of safety rules."

Yager said AAA recommends the following safety measures.

• Wear a helmet, knee and elbow pads.

Wear sturdy shoes;
 no flip-flops or bare feet that could get caught in the braking system. Not wearing proper shoes also could lead to injuries if the child should fall off the scooter.

• Watch scooter speeds. Going too fast on uneven pavement could cause a crash.

• Don't ride on the street. Scooters belong on approved paths or sidewalks.

• Cross streets only at stop signs, traffic lights or crosswalks.

 Don't ride scooters around parked cars.
 Motorists might not be able to react quickly if a rider darts out in front of them.

A serious head injury or broken bones can turn fun into disaster, Yager said, adding it's better to take a few precautions and be safe while having fun.

AAA New Mexico is an affiliate of the American Automobile Association, a not-for-profit federation that provides members with roadside assistance, a full-service travel agency, a diagnostic center, autorelated services, traffic safety programs, legislative advocacy and insurance and financial products.

Roswell's UFO Museum slates monthly VIP talk

'Above Black' author to relate 'insider account'

Dan Sherman, who spent almost three years as an intuitive communicator while serving in the U.S. Air Force, will deliver the Monthly VIP Lecture at the International UFO Museum and Research Center in Roswell, according to a news release from the museum.

The lecture will be at 7 p.m. Saturday at the museum, 114 N. Main St. in Roswell, Doors will open at 6 p.m. The lecture is free, but donations are accepted.

Sherman's lecture is titled "Project Preserve Destiny Insider Account of Alien Contact and Government Cover-up."

In his book, Above

Black. Sherman tells of his training and things he learned from alien contacts, the museum said in announcing the lecture.

These events led Sher-man to seek a discharge from the Air Force at all costs, the museum said.

Having served more than 12 years, Sherman has been recognized for heroism and has been decorated with the Air Force Commendation medal and Air Force Achievement Medal with two oak leaf clusters.

He also received the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award with three oak leaf clusters and was honored for his service in the Persian Gulf War.

State ag secretary to receive award

New Mexico agriculture Secretary Frank A. DuBois was to receive the "Dream-Maker Award" today as one of three individuals who have "reached beyond the boundaries in the fight against multiple sclerosis.

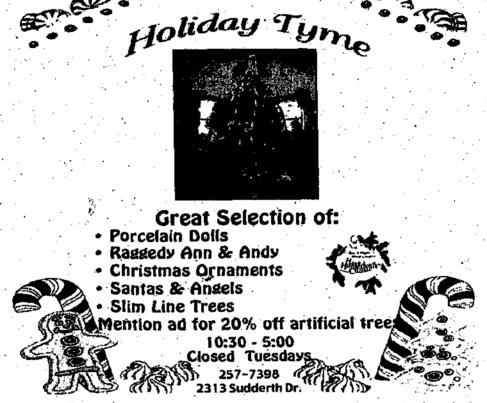

The award was to be presented by U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., at a tribute dinner sponsored by "Going the Distance for MS Research" in Washington, D.C.

About 400 guests were expected to attend the dinner. DuBois was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in 1990, two years after his appointment as agriculture secretary. DuBois is a New Mexican from a ranching family near Corona. Throughout his career, he has been a player and supporter in the agriculture industry and rodeo athletics.

New pictures suggest 'dynamic' Mars buzzle we have these

Michael C. Mahlin,

Science researcher

lavered rocks..."

SAN DIEGO, Calif. – Layered geologic outcrops on Mars, described in Tuesday's issue of the journal Science, may be composed of sedimentary rock that dates from the earliest span of martian history, between 4.3. and 3.5 billion years ago.

Images of these sedimentary rock expoble to have sures, captured by the Mars
Orbiter Camera (MOC), sugmost that parts of ancient Mars
"In the center of the orbiter Camera (MOC), suggest that parts of ancient Mars may have resembled a land of lakes, and that the geology of early Mars was much more dynamic than previously suspected.

If life existed on Mars during this time period, researchers believe that the fossil remnants of that past life may be sandwiched within the sedimentary rock layers, just as they are on Earth.

The martian outcrops, in some cases a few kilometers thick, appear to be made of fine-grained materials deposited in horizontal layers, the hallmark of sedimentary rock. These outcrops are found inside craters, between craters, and within chasms, said Michael C. Malin and Kenneth S. Edgett of Malin Space Science Systems in San Diego, California.

The Science researchers identified three main outcrop types from the MOC images: layered units, massive units and thin mesa units.

Layered units, as their name suggests, consist of relatively thin rock beds – some only a few meters thick – stacked on top of one another in distinct groups. Massive units appear as one bulky rock layer with no clearly defined horizontal bedding. In a few cases, these types appear together, with the massive unit always perched on top of the bedded unit like a thick, indistinct coat of frosting on a layer cake.

Thin mesa units, with surfaces ranging from smooth to pitted to ridged and grooved, are almost always found on top of eroded massive or layered sedimentary rock.

While sediments can be deposited in a variety of ways – including wind, water, volcanic activity, and even cosmic impact – the prevalence of the martian sedimentary outcrops within basin-like features suggests that they were deposited by water, perhaps in lakes that formed within the craters and chasms, said Malin and Edgett.

Under this scenario, sediments may have been transported into the lakes in regular, swift pulses, building up thin layer units. Massive units may have been deposit-

SAN DIEGO, Calif. - Layered geologic ed when the lake became stagnant or deep crops on Mars, described in Tuesday's enough to cause sediments to sift down the journal Science, may be comtained through the water over longer intervals.

"Some of the MOC images of these outcrops show hundreds and hundreds of identically thick layers, which is almost impossible to have without water," said Malin.

The sedimentary units show no telltale signs of wind deposition, and the researchers concluded that explosive volcanic eruptions and impact cratering probably could not have produced enough sediment to create the large-scale and geographically widespread outcrops seen on the martian surface.

Although Malin and Edgett favor water as the sedimentary suspect, they also offer an alternative model that involves changes in atmospheric pressure on early Mars. They suggest that periods of relatively high atmospheric pressure – caused by fluctuations in the amount of solid carbon dioxide on the planet's surface – could have increased the atmosphere's ability to carry dust produced by heavy cratering.

To confuse matters, the Science researchers don't know where the original sediments came from, or how they were transported to their final resting places, since there are no traces of gullies or streams or other channels associated with the outcrops. They think that erosion may have wiped out both the source of the sediments and their travel routes.

In some cases, sedimentary rock has eroded out of the crater in which it formed, also vanishing without a geologic clue.

To Malin, the history of martian geology looks like a jigsaw puzzle.

"In the center of the puzzle, we have these layered rocks, which are good evidence of an extremely dynamic environment. On either side of this well-developed puzzle piece, we have mysteries."

In any case, Mars' sedimentary rocks suggest a very active early history for the planet.

"This makes Mars more complicated and more exciting. This record is going to tell us a lot about what early Mars was like, and maybe the early Earth as well, since we don't have a lot of rocks on our own planet from this time period," said Edgett.

This research was supported by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration through the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Standard Web browser design feature leaves opening for privacy attacks, scientists discover

PRINCETON, N.J. – Princeton computer scientists have discovered a trait of Web browser design that allows Web sites to cull private information about the recent browsing histories of visitors.

While there is no evidence that any Web sites use such a snooping tactic, the researchers believe the method could pose serious risks to privacy. The technique is undetectable and defeats nearly all available privacy measures, although design changes in future browsers could reduce the problem.

Edward Felten, professor of computer science, and graduate student Michael Schneider described the technique in the proceedings of Association for Computing Machinery Conference on Computer and Communications Security, a major conference held Nov. 1-4 in Athens.

The researchers have dubbed the technique a "timing attack." It works by exploring the contents of the visiting browser's "cache" of recent activities, a log all browsers compile to increase their speed. In a timing attack, a Web site times how long it takes a browser to respond to queries about other sites. Company X.com, for example, could test how quickly visiting browsers are able to access information from competitor Y.com's site. A quick response indicates that the Web user recently visited Y.com. The test is very reliable, the researchers found.

Timing attacks could allow malicious Web site designers to create a more invasive form of Web "cookies," which are bits of data that Web sites store on visitors' browsers. Cookies are often used, for example, to allow a Web user to return to a password-restricted Web site without having to type in a password each time.

Felten and Schneider created a variation they call "cache cookies." Web sites could force a browser to store cache cookies without the permission required of normal cookies. (Web users have the option of instructing their browsers to reject conventional cookies.)

Any number of unrelated Web sites could then access these cache cookies and use them as a tool for learning whether a Web user has recently visited other Web sites. The scheme presents troubling opportunities to aggregate large amounts of information about Web users who do nothing more than visit sites

"These qualities make cache cookies very dangerous to the privacy of Web users," the authors assert.

While no countermeasures would completely protect people from such invasion, the authors propose a method for redesigning browsers to prevent the majority of timing attacks. The redesign would employ a device called "domain tagging." It would allow information to be retrieved from the browser's cache of recently visited Web addresses only if the information pertains to the exact site the Web user is currently viewing.

Even that solution, however, is imperfect and does not prevent maliciously designed sites from inserting some forms of dummy addresses into a Web browser's cache and looking them up later.

Nonetheless, the researchers believe that domain tagging could work sufficiently well to assure Web users a reasonable level of privacy. "We think we understand what the solution is and we now are working to implement it," said Felten.

Felten said he felt compelled to publish a description of the potential problem to encourage positive discussion about resolving it.

Belief in dangers of secondhand smoke deters teen smoking, study finds

SAN FRANCISCO – Teenage smokers are more likely to quit because they are concerned about hurting others from secondhand smoke than because they har for their own health, ac ording to results of a survey published in the journal Pediatrics.

The study, by researchers at the University of California, San Francisco and the University of Pennsylvania, concludes that educating young people about secondhand smoke's harmful effects and encouraging nonsmokers to speak out should be key elements of anti-tobacco pro-those 14 to 22 years of age in the U.S., believing that secondhand smoke harmed nonsmokers more than doubles the chance that a smoker plans to stop or already has stopped smoking.

'Our study found for the first time that among teens, concerns about secondhand smoke's harmful effect on others are far more likely to influence smokers to guit than are worries about their own health," said Stanton Glantz, PhD, lead author on the study, a professor of medicine at UCSF and a researcher in the UCSF Institute for Health Policy Studies.

"These results show that ms. teens behave just like grown The study found that among ups," Glantz continued. "In the past, tobacco control programs have identified clean indoor air shows that it is an equally important element of prevention programs directed at teens." Co-author on the study is Patrick Jamieson, MS, Ed, a graduate student at the University of Pennsylvania.

The survey interviewed 300 smokers and 300 nonsmokers between the ages of 14 and 22 in the United States.

. It found that nonsmokers were more likely to consider smoking risky than were smokers, and also were twice as likely to consider secondhand smoke dangerous than smokers.

Equally important, the only statistically significant predictor of smokers' planning to stop or as an 'adult' issue; our work having actually sopped smoking was believing that secondhand smoke harmed nonsmokers.

> The authors note that the results are from a one-time, cross-sectional study, and so cause and effect should be interpreted more cautiously than with longitudinal studies, which follow people over time.

Nonetheless, they conclude, the findings are consistent with results of longitudinal studies of similar questions in adults, as well as econometric studies and focus-group studies of anti-tobacco advertising in teens, which indicate that secondhand smoke is one of three highly effective messages for reaching teens. The other two effective messages are educating people about addiction and about the antitobacco industry's dishonest behavior - such as the advertisements run in the California and other state tobacco control campaigns.

"Encouraging nonsmoking teens - as well as adults - to object to breathing secondhand smoke and encouraging creation of smoke-free homes is a productive tobacco control strategy for youth," the authors conclude.

The study was funded by the National Cancer Institute, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, and the Annenberg Public Policy Center of the University of Pennsylvania.

Drug trials show lymphoma impact

SAN FRANCISCO – IDEC Pharmaceuticals Corporation announced the final results of two pivotal trials of Zevalin (Ibritumomab Tiuxetan), an investigational radioimmunotherapy, during oral presentations at the 42nd Annual Meeting of the American Society of Hematology (ASH).
Thomas E. Witzig, M.D. of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., Tuesday delivered an oral presentation of a Phase III randomized, controlled study of 143 patients with relapsed or refractory low grade, follicular, or CD20-posi-tive transformed B-cell Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma (NHL). Dr. Witzig said that 30 percent of the Zevalin patients achieved complete responses to therapy. Sixteen percent of Rituxan patients achieved complete responses. To date duration of response estimates between Zevalin plus Rituxan and Rituxan alone are not statistically different but further analysis will be conducted as data matures. Zevalin associated toxicity was primarily hematologic, transient and reversible. The most common adverse events / associated with Rituxan were infusion related, consisting mainly of mild to moderate flu-like symptoms, for hematransient tologic, reversible.

In a second poster presentation on Dec. 4, Dr. Witzig summarized the safety results of four clinical trials which showed that Zevalin is very well tolerated, even in a refractory population at risk for toxicity. Dr. Witzig noted that toxicity in all four trials was primarily hematologic, transient and reversible.

On Dec. 4 Gregory A. Wiseman, M.D. of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., gave a poster presentation that showed that Zevalin treatment results in a statistically significant improvement in the NHL patient's self-assessment of quality of life.

Zevalin is a monoclonal antibody that targets the CD20 antigen and is stably linked to the radioisotope yttrium-90. This investiga-tional agent is in late stages of development for the treatment of certain NHLs.

Young, healthy smokers lose more time, Army study finds

BROOKS AFB, Texas -Young healthy people who smoke are likely to take more time off work than their nonsmoking colleagues, finds research in Tobacco Control. Men smokers took more time off. than women smokers, the study showed.

Almost 88,000 men and women on active duty in the U.S. Army were monitored for over two years. The average age of those assessed was 28, and the sample included men and women of diverse ethnicity, race and Army occupation.

The smokers took more time off work and were admitted to hospital more frequently than their nonsmoking colleagues. Among the men, smoking increased the risk of being admitted to hospital for causes other than injury by almost a third; in women the equivalent increase in risk was 25 percent. The research showed that former smokers also had higher admission rates than nonsmokers. Current smoking could be directly implicated in 7.5 per cent of hospital admissions in men and 5 percent of those in women.

The risk of taking time off work, excluding injury and pregnancy, was increased to 60 percent among men who smoked and to 15 percent among women smokers. More than 14 percent of lost workdays among men and 3 percent of those among women were directly linked to smoking. The risk of time off work as a result of injury was also higher among smokers, at 7 percent among men and 54 percent among women.

The authors point out that most employment research on smokers has focused on older populations, but that this study shows the adverse effects among young smokers, with the consequent cost implications for employers. "It is remarkable that a single risk factor could account for such a large proportion of hospitalisations and lost workdays, particularly over such a short period of observation," they conclude.

POOP SCOOP

BY DIANNE STALLINGS RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

As President Bill Clinton passed landmark bills protecting companion animals.

To ensure the country gets the best of future presidents, maybe we should limit them to one, four-year term so they wouldn't be worried about reelection.

The first bill bans the import, export and sale of dog and car fur products in the United States. The other allows the option of adoption for retired military working

The dog and cat fur ban was part of a trade package passed by both houses last month and signed by Clinton in early November. Originally introduced by U.S. Sen. William V. Roth (R-Del.) and U.S. Rep. Jerry Kleczka (D-Wis.), it garnered broad bipartisan support. The legislation provides penalties of up to $10,000 per violation, along with forfeiture of seized goods, and the possibility of being prohibited from further relative to the second bill was guided through Congress by U.S. Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-Md.) sales of any fur products for repeat violations,

US political leaders took notice after Dateline NBC aired the results of a two-year undercover investigation by the HSUS that exposed the in-ternational trade in products such as clothing, accessories, figurines and novelty items made from the fur and pelts of cats and dogs.

The items often are not labeled or are mislabeled. The investigation traced the products from their manufacturing sites, many in China and other parts of Asia, to prominent retailers in this country, includ-ing Burlington Coat Factory and Hallmark.

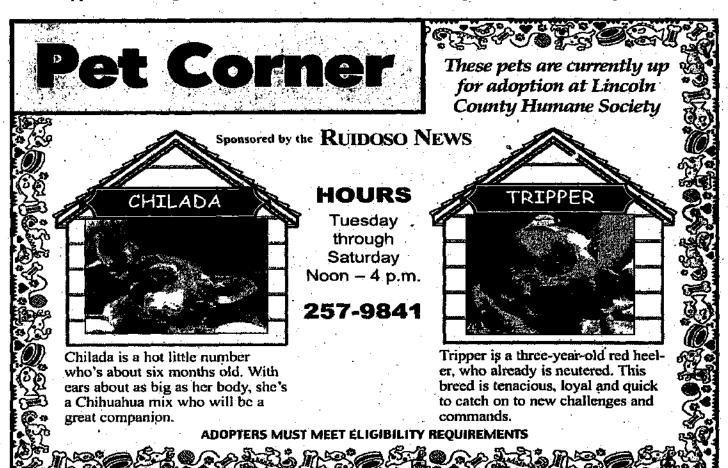

An estimated two million dogs and cats are killed for their fur each year, suffering such violent deaths as hang-

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-Md.) and U.S. Sen. Bob Smith (R-NH). The bill provides adoption as an alternative to mandatory euthanization upon retirement,

With the new law, the U.S. Department of Defense can change its policy forbidding the adoption of these dogs because of possible danger they pose to the public.

The law resolves this concern with a "hold harmless" agreement that released the government from any liability for a retired military dog's actions once it is transferred to a new guardian.

The Defense Department will be responsible for keeping an annual, detailed record of each dog who is adopted or euthanized with justification.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

Judith L. Christopher

Week of Dec. 6 ~ Dec. 12, 2000

Sagittarius: (Nov 22- Dec 21) Wish upon a star, but THIS time make it come true because you'll BELIEVE IT to be true! Make your dreams come true ...because of You.

TV GUIDE

Capricorn: (Dec 22 - Jan 19) Reflecting on the past is good, but living in the past isn't! Make the most of what is important in your life and go after it.

Aquarius: (Jan 20 - Feb 18) Don't hide yourself away from others - come out of your shell and let the sun shine through you... YOU DO have a GIFT!

Pisces: (Feb.19- March 20) Open the door to a new life. You have to go through it to see it! Dreaming about it won't make it come true. Wake Up and LIVE it!

Aries: (Mar 21 - Apr 19) Money will show up in the strangest places. Don't spend it on unnecessary items. Use it Let the love begin. for what it was intended for. Go with Faith!

Taurus: (Apr 20 - May 20) Something strange is happening. You're starting to go into another phase of your new life. Look very closely at what you want.

Gemini: (May 21 - June 20) Dust off your heart...of love... It's time to let love flow freely into your life. Hugs are a great way to start. Forgive and for-

Cancer: (June 21 - July 22) You have better things to do than to worry about things you can't change. Go with what you CAN change for the better Leo: (July 23 - Aug 22) Look up old friends and make new ones too! Be happy by just smiling and saying something nice - even to a stranger.

Virgo: (Aug 23 - Sept 22) Freedom doesn't come cheap! Especially when you're in a prison in your own mind. It isn't as bad as you think. Start enjoying the good.

 Libra: (Sept 23 - Oct 22) Tying up loose ends will make you feel more complete. Start enjoying the holidays with people you're around. It's time to get out and about! Have Fun!

 Scorpio: (Oct 23 - Nov 21) Take time for yourself because no one else will do it for you. Watch your money. Don't spend what you don't have in hand.
