Alleged negligence leads to LCMC suit

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

The mother of a young child treated in the emergency room of the Lincoln County Medical Center is suing the hospital, its management firm and Dr. Stephen Frey for alleged negligence.

In the suit filed July 9, Elizabeth Briggs contends the lack of medical physicians in the emergency room and improper diagnoses of her child's conditions resulted in Falcon Briggs nearly dying. The suit states the child had to be taken by ambulance to a hospital in Roswell, then he was flown to Presbyterian Hospital in Albuquerque. She is asking for compensatory and punitive damages.

Her child's salmonella poisoning was not diagnosed by the physician's assistant who examined Falcon in the emergency room and was discovered only after she demanded a culture, Briggs claims in the suit.

LCMC's "failure to have a medical doctor on call to provide service in the emergency room when needed constitutes negligence," the suit states.

Falcon suffered needlessly for more than three weeks and almost died as a result of the lack of proper medical attention being given, Briggs contends, stating that suffering was due to negligence by the hospital and Presbyterian Healthcare Services, which manages the county-owned facility.

Kevin Chadwick, Presbyterian spokesman, said hospital officials respect Briggs' right to file litigation against the hospital.

"Because the current case is in the court, we can't make comment," he said. "We believe these issues are best addressed by the judiciary and we will abide by their decision."

In her suit filed on behalf of her child, Briggs said in September 1997, she took Falcon, who was feverish and feeling ill, to the emergency

Former lodgers tax chief got bulk of funds

BY JAMES KALVELAGE
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Nearly one-fifth of the more than $200,000 spent from Ruidoso Downs lodging tax revenues the past four years went to a business owned by the then chairman of the Ruidoso Downs Lodgers Tax Committee.

According to village records requested by the Ruidoso News, $41,350 went to MTD, Inc., during fiscal years ending on June 30, 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000. Lodgers tax account information for earlier years was unavailable from the village.

MTD Inc., which operates radio stations KRUI in Ruidoso Downs, and KWMW, licensed to Maljamar, N.M., was, during most of the period, owned and operated by Mike Warren, who also chaired the Ruidoso Downs Lodgers Tax Committee. The committee reviews funding requests for promotion of area events and makes recommendations for final village council approvals.

The promotional funding for MTD totaled $10,600 in the 1996-1997 fiscal year. The line item amounts through the year began at $700 nearly each month, until later in the year when they advanced to the $1,000 level. During the 1997-1998 fiscal year, nine $1,000 payments were augmented with two $2,000 checks to MTD, according to a village ledger. Fiscal year 1998-1999 saw $12,750 paid to MTD. This past fiscal year, after $5,000 was appropriated, the payments ceased at about the time Warren lost controlling interest in MTD.

"We gave them a hell of a deal," Warren said of the advertising dollars. "What they received for that was buy one get one free announcements." Warren said the funding from the lodger's tax pool only went to the Maljamar station. KRUI, licensed to Ruidoso Downs, aired the same ads at no charge he said, "as a public service, to support the community."

Warren said he initially abstained from committee votes dealing with funding his business.

"I asked many years ago. The (village) council said to me, 'Mike, you don't need to abstain.' They said it's not hurting to let him vote because it's only a recommendation." He said the Lodgers Tax Committee only forwarded suggestions with the village council making the funding decisions. Warren also said up until the new village administration this year those requesting funding would appear before the council.

Minutes of the committee meetings, which would detail who voted to fund MTD, were unavailable. Village clerk/treasurer Gladys Dillard said neither minutes nor agendas of the Ruidoso Downs Lodgers Tax Committee had been filed since 1995. Dillard said the lack of minutes from the committee was a problem during the previous village Ruidoso Downs will do without a village administrator for at least the next six months. During a workshop Wednesday village trustees agreed to hold off on beginning a job hunt for an administrator or potentially a proposed projects coordinator. Several village employees voiced opposition to hiring a new administrator.

"I've been here 10 years," said Dennis Riddle, the village's public works supervisor. "My personal opinion, I don't think we need one. We have the people sitting right here in this room. The council, mayor and clerk. That way you can eliminate micro-managing."

Riddle said the first half of this year, when Ruidoso Downs had its first village administrator, wasn't a "good experience."

Dale Woods, the village's mechanic, agreed.

"You have full cooperation right now, which you didn't have before," Woods said. "Everybody's getting along."

Ruidoso Downs personnel/payroll specialist Karen Jones said the village is right now running better than ever.

"Please do not tie our hands with another outsider who comes in here with preconceived notions," she told

Merle Haggard cancels concert

Country music legend Merle Haggard announced last week that he was canceling his August performances, including an Aug. 12 date at Ruidoso Downs Race Track & Casino.

Haggard's agent gave no reason for the cancellation.

"We are very disappointed at this unexpected decision," said Ruidoso Downs Race Track & Casino President Bruce Rimbo. "Tickets for the Merle Haggard concert have been selling very well and he would have been a very popular draw in Ruidoso. Oddly enough, it was Merle Haggard's agent who sought us out for this performance and now they unexpectedly cancel. We apologize to our fans."

Haggard's agent—Bobby Roberts Company of Goodlettsville, Tenn.—had contacted Ruidoso Downs Race Track & Casino earlier this summer saying they had the Aug. 12 date available and were seeking a booking. "We naturally jumped at the opportunity because we knew he would be a hot ticket in Ruidoso," Rimbo said.

After calling on the morning of July 28, the Bobby Roberts Company followed up with a short note faxed to the track. The note read: "Merle Haggard is canceling his August tour. At this point, that is all we know. However, we are attempting to reach Merle for more information. I apologize for any inconvenience."

Rimbo said that he had reviewed a list of other entertainers that could be substituted. "We reviewed a list of possible replacements ... and gave serious consideration to that," he said. "There were actually some very good names on the list but we decided it wasn't fair either to the entertainers or to our fans to try and hurry a replacement at the last minute. We are building a reputation for putting on quality concerts and we want to maintain that reputation and trying to hurry something would have impaired our ability to put on a quality performance."

Rimbo said that refunds will be available to those people who have already purchased tickets beginning immediately. Patrons can contact the ticket office at (505) 378-4140 for an immediate refund.

"We apologize for this sudden and disappointing turn of events," Rimbo said. "We are striving to have quality concerts and we will continue to do so."

The concert series will conclude in September with performances by the Eagles' tribute band Hotel California on Sept. 22 and the grand finale the following night with John K. & Stephenwolf.

County Solid Waste Authority narrows down management list

Rick Simpson and Carol Virden, who stepped in to help when the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority fired its manager earlier this year, are among the five applicants chosen to interview for that position today. Fifteen people, mostly local, applied for the $40,000-a-year post. A committee of four authority board members conferred to narrow the list to:

- Simpson, a county commissioner who also is authority chairman. His background includes a familiarity with heavy equipment and overseeing the county road department as a commissioner. He previously operated a bus line for the Ruidoso school system. Simpson said he will resign from the authority, if chosen, and file a conflict of interest form. Before applying, he consulted the county attorney to determine if the action was legal, he said.

- Virden, former Carrizozo village clerk and now authority interim manager. She has more than 20 years of experience managing municipal government, during which she took extensive specialized training.
- Larry Grasmick, currently employed as engineer with Meadow Valley Construction on State Road 48 and as project coordinator of the work at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport. He has a degree in civil engineering and previously was employed with the Defense Information Systems Agency.

- Lawrence Boss, who works as general manager for Family Dollar. In his resume, Boss listed a career in the U.S. Army from 1960 to 1991, during which he said he handled solid waste management for military installations, among other duties.

• Caron Petty, a former county commissioner. She listed her current employment with the U.S. Department of Commerce census operation. She has background in real estate, and stated that while on the commission, she was responsible for managing county government, including solid waste.

The authority board, composed of representatives from the county and four of its villages, will meet at 5:30 p.m. today at the main office on Second Street in Ruidoso Downs to interview each of the five.

room, but a physician's assistant referred her to Dr. Frey. When she went to that office, a physician's assistant also performed the examination and Tylenol and Motrin were prescribed.

The child's fever spiked that night, Briggs said in the suit. She went back to the hospital and was seen by another physician's assistant, who continued the prescriptions and told her if the child wasn't better by Monday to see Frey. Briggs said she insisted on a culture.

Only after the results of that culture were received days later did the prescription change, still without seeing a medical doctor, the mother stated. After a week since her first trip to the hospital, Briggs' child was seen by Frey, who, the mother claims, advised her it was not necessary to cancel scheduled immunizations.

Although the shots for diphtheria, hepatitis and tetanus and oral polio immunization were moved back a week, her child suffered an allergic reaction after they were given, again necessitating a trip to the hospital, Briggs claims.

The reaction worsened and Frey referred the child to a pediatrician in Roswell, where mother and child traveled by ambulance.

From there, Falcon was flown by jet to Albuquerque, Briggs said, where Falcon was diagnosed with erythema multiforme-minor or Steven-Johnson Syndrome caused by infection and/or immunization reaction.

trustees. "We are recovering from the last one. If it's not broke please do not fix it."

Jones said the village could use a projects manager, to coordinate projects in the village. A job description for a projects coordinator, described as a manager, overseer and administrator of the various capital improvement projects in the village, was presented to trustees.

"As a supervisor I think we need someone to go in to coordinate all the departments," said Tom Armstrong, Ruidoso Downs' code enforcement chief. "My idea is we need an engineer. I feel that person needs engineering knowledge more than anything else. I'm not sure we need someone to ramrod village employees. The last job description doesn't fit what we need."

While several residents at the workshop said an administrator or coordinator was needed, Trustee Ray Hayhurst said he believed the council "jumped too quick" when an administrator was hired in January. Jim Bassett, another village trustee, suggested Ruidoso Downs consider outside engineering assistance be brought in on an as needed basis.

"Have someone on a retainer," Bassett said. "A consultant type person, not a full-time position."

Trustee Margie Morales said the consensus of the board was to put an administrative position on hold for six months and look at the potential again at that time.

"If we don't have a boss we are like a ship without a rudder," said Dan Bryant, the village's legal council. "If we don't have an administrator you are the boss," he told trustees.

Bryant said a "boss" is not specified in Ruidoso Downs' ordinances.

"For six months I could go along with that," Bryant said. "But let's make the mayor our chief officer. It (village ordinances) doesn't say the mayor is the boss the way it's written. There has to be a place at the top where all the strings come together."

TAX: Miller said accurate records of committee minutes have not been kept administration. Village Trustee Judy Miller, who has also been a member of the Lodgers Tax Committee for eight years, said she knew Warren worked for KRUL.

"I didn't know he was the owner," Miller said. "I did not realize that maybe he was getting a commission."

Miller said she learned Warren had a financial interest in the station earlier this year.

Warren, who had been the chairman of the panel during much of the 1990s, was bounced from the committee earlier this year by Bob Miller, the village's new mayor. "I just was not satisfied because there were no records and minutes," Miller said of his reason for removing Warren. "The record system was not good. And that committee should be (comprised of) business people and motel owners."

For years the five-person committee has had just three members, a situation the mayor said was his impetus for naming new members to return the panel to its required level after he was sworn in.

In June the village council approved funding recommendations from the committee which then excluded Warren. The committee turned down three requests, including one where Warren had sought $12,000 for Ruidoso Downs promotional advertising on radio station KWTR, in Big Lake, Texas. The rejected $12,000 was the largest funding request of 20 submissions. The recently approved Big Lake radio station, licensed to Warren, has not yet gone on the air, according to FCC records.

Last year Hubbard Enterprises took controlling financial interest in MTD, reducing Warren's ownership to 25 percent. In August 1999 Warren was removed from MTD's board of directors and as president of the company, said Bruce Rimbo, the current president of MTD.

Merritt, Seno offer new challenges to Sheriff Tom Sullivan in general election

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

After the Republican primary in June, many voters in Lincoln County thought the race was over, but two candidates emerged this month to oppose incumbent Sheriff Tom Sullivan in the November general election.

They are Ray Merritt, running as an independent, and Tony Seno, the Libertarian Party nominee.

Ray Merritt

As animal control officer for the sheriff's office, Merritt worked for passage of a state law making animal cruelty a felony instead of a misdemeanor. He ran unsuccessfully for sheriff four years ago when incumbent James McSwane was at the end of his term and couldn't seek re-election.

Born in Wilmington, Del., and raised in New Castle, he joined the Army at 17. His 26-year-career included stints in Air Defense as an intelligence analyst, in military intelligence, in the military police, as a trainer at the battalion, brigade and division levels, as an Army recruiter and station commander. He served as a background investigator for the Army and as a supervisor of from four to 5,000 personnel with some of those years spent at White Sands and Las Cruces.

After leaving the military in 1990, he was security advisor for three years to the royal family's guard in Saudi Arabia, then worked as a reserve law enforcement officer in Sierra, Doña Ana and Lincoln counties. Locally, he also was civil process server and animal control officer.

At the age of 52 and at his own expense, Merritt graduated from the National Law Enforcement Police Academy last May, passing his examination in June.

When he was hired by Sullivan's office, he was told he would receive academy training to become a certified officer, but that never happened, Merritt said. Leave time to attend was denied, and so he quit his job, was sponsored by Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox and paid his own expenses to attend the academy.

When he returned, he received telephone calls and was stopped on the street by people asking him to run, Merritt said. Support is coming from both major parties as well as other independents, he said.

When he ran for sheriff the first time, he thought there was a lack of leadership and lack of accountability.

"There is no cooperation between the sheriff's office and the state police or village of Ruidoso. It's not a departmental problem, it's a leadership problem. When there's no communications among the leaders of the agencies, then you're not going to have cooperation."

He'd like to see longtime deputies receive additional training and qualify for higher pay instead of bringing in people from the outside and paying them more, Merritt said.

He'd like to see dispatch consolidated in the county to save money and is willing to take over responsibility for the new county jail, instead of the county hiring a management firm.

"We can save money for people in the county by doing things smartly and not spending like there are endless pockets," he said.

He'd ensure money generated from the sale of property confiscated by the county narcotics investigation unit is accounted for in the future. Lack of that accounting contributed to Maddox' recent decision to pull out of the narcotics unit and form his own.

Sgt. Randy Spear of the Ruidoso Police Department and former Capitan chief of police, would be Merritt's undersheriff.

"People who know me... know that I don't give up when I'm looking for someone and when I tell them I'm going to do something, I get it done," Merritt said.

Tony Seno

An activist, and at times an outspoken critic of government, Tony Seno is running as a Libertarian candidate for sheriff of Lincoln County.

"My priority is the safety and well being of our community," Seno said. "But the budget is the first issue to tackle."

Another is to put our inmates to work and offer judges in the community alternative sentencing.

"I want to see a 60-person crew in the forest cleaning our watersheds six days a week. It rehabilitates the prisoners, it rehabilitates our forest and we as a county can log all of those hours and at the end of the year, apply to the state Environment Department for matching funds to help defray the cost of our citizens in custody in the judicial system."

Seno, 46, also wants to take back management of the county jail, saying it is one of the duties listed for sheriffs. Private management doesn't work in the corrections system, he contends.

"A Republican has been in that office for a long time and the budget has increased," Seno said. "I used to be a Republican and I know that a plank in their platform says smaller, more efficient government. And that's what I want to provide for the people and that's what the citizens deserve."

Born in Odessa, Texas, Seno graduated from the American School in Kuwait, because his father was in the oil business.

In 1971, he returned to the United States, attended one year of college majoring in psychology and also studied special metals welding, the job that occupied his early career.

He moved into computers, attaining certification as a network engineer. About five years ago, he moved to the Ruidoso area.

Being active in government-related activities isn't new for Seno, who said in Texas, he helped the mayor of Odessa form a citizens task force on crime and law enforcement that went after corrupt elected officials and law officers.

Once in Lincoln County, he started a chapter of the Libertarian Party.

"I saw overbearing government," he said. "I started with two Libertarians and spent several years party-building."

Seno serves on the county Public Lands Advisory Council and two other Libertarian positions.

"I figured we needed one elected," Seno said.

He decided to run for sheriff because he thought he could have a greater effect on the county and for the community, he said.

"We need to keep the sheriff's department doing sheriff's duties," he said. "Traffic stops should be done by the municipal and state police."

He said he will not enforce "any laws that are contrary to the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, especially victimless crimes," Seno said.

An independent contractor, Seno said his lack of law enforcement training is no detriment in the job.

"I will be a citizen elected to a citizen's post," he said. "If you were dealing with the law, would you rather have a 30-year bureaucrat to deal with or a citizen who knows how you feel and want to be treated?"

Arrested on a drug-related charge while in Texas, Seno was put on a deferred adjudication program that he successfully completed, which means he never was convicted.

The experience has made him a champion of finding a new approach to victimless crimes, he said.

"As for law enforcement experience, there is probably more than 200 years in that force of deputies," he said. "I have intimate knowledge of county government from the past five years and established a record of fighting for rights and freedoms of citizens on every issue."

OUR OPINION

Our west gets a little wilder

Here in the Sacramento Mountains, where deer and elk and bears are next door neighbors, and where cougars have been known to come calling, we tend to have a casual attitude about things of the wild.

But with reports that Africanized bees have been spotted at 9,000 feet on the western slopes below Sierra Blanca, suddenly our wilderness becomes wild, indeed.

The so-called "killer bees" have been advancing northward from Latin America through Mexico and into the United States for a good many years, all because somebody sought to "improve" honey production by crossing African bees with the long-useful European variety.

It wasn't a happy marriage, and beekeepers have been paying the price.

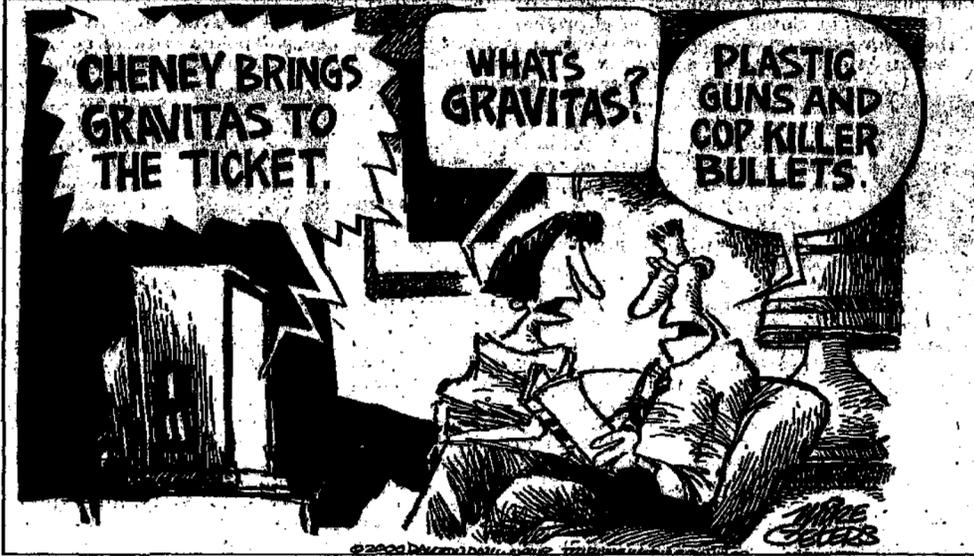

Entomologists at New Mexico State University have confirmed Africanized bee colonies in 10 counties across southern New Mexico, and have found a hybrid colony in the Albuquerque area.

Those bees made the news most recently when a Carlsbad woman was attacked in her backyard, and died. Two other people there did survive an attack. The bees were definitely identified as Africanized.

Lincoln County, it appears now, isn't on the "confirmed" list—but neighboring Otero County is. An NMSU expert noted that about a year ago a beekeeper was called to collect unwanted colonies of bees about three miles from the Lincoln County line. They were Africanized.

Of course, the "domesticated" European bees can be bad enough when they get stirred up, even when they are doing their time-honored job of pollinating flowers and making honey. But with the Africanized variety in our midst, the experts say it is unwise to practice subliminal difference if you're tramping the forest and hear a loud and persistent buzz. Don't get curious, get away.

And if bees do attack, run — don't walk — to the nearest shelter. If you've been stung, don't delay in getting medical attention, especially if you're feeling faint or having difficulty breathing.

YOUR OPINION

Only fire prosecution in the state is here

To the editor:

I disagree with Serafino Carr's Scenario No. 3 July 2. The three minors and one adult did not confess to starting the Cree Fire. A makeshift torch was lit at the mouth of the cave, the torch went out and was dropped on the inside, not outside. Two confessed to smoking pot; President Clinton did too. What happened to the two adult teenagers leaving the fire scene at 2:30 p.m. that day?

They are the only ones in the State of New Mexico that have been charged. Over 400,000 acres of land has burned so far this year. The Los Alamos fire consumed over 48,000 acres with over 250 homes, burned, or destroyed, and damage to the laboratories, and the employee that gave the orders for a control burn which got out of control was given an early retirement with full pay and benefits.

This fire was started intentionally and no charges were filed.

Now the federal government is giving $661 million to the victims and the laboratories in the Los Alamos area. This amount comes from the taxpayers in the United States. This did not make the front page of the Ruidoso News like the repeated information on the Cree Fire. There has also been approved additional millions for the other fire areas, including the Cree Fire.

Now I ask you, or anyone else, are we going to prosecute these children for something that happened possibly accidentally? Since the Cree Fire was on federal land, it was up to the U. S. attorney to prosecute but after reviewing the information submitted by the local police department and the USEFS investigator they declined. Now the state and the district attorney's office decided to file charges, even though the minors were told it would be the jurisdiction of the federal government, not theirs. Now I ask you, where is justice?

Our robust economy isn't Gore's doing

To the editor:

In entering the final lap of this enormously important election, we must take notice that Gore's most persuasive argument is that the robust economy demands his election. The claim is that he and Clinton created our prosperity; without continuity it will evaporate.

This is typical pure Clintonian hogwash. The administration had nothing to do with this creation of wealth by the private sector. The timing was coincidental, and the cause was the ingenuity of private enterprise in brilliantly exploiting electronic sciences in computers and communications, in chemistry, medicine and finance. Had it not been for federal interference by way of over-regulation, over-taxation, threats of government lawsuits against business, NAFTA, GATT, etc., our economy would be much stronger.

Also note, neither the media nor the administration has ever attempted to explain how Gore and Clinton accomplished this remarkable fiscal achievement — because they had nothing to do with it. Therefore, it can't be explained. But Gore's campaign desperately needs this credit. Without it, there's no place to hang his hat.

The other programs and responsibilities of this administration are marginal at best, dismal failures at worst.

Look at the Justice Department, the Energy Department, the National Security Agency, the Departments of Agriculture, Interior and State. Look at the condition of the IRS, the FBI, and the continuous problems of betrayal in the CIA. This administration has given the USA its worst managed 8-year period in history, and without the claim of fiscal triumph, continuation is hardly justifiable.

We, the people, have been manipulated, deceived, and lied to. And we know this. Vote your conscience. But never vote against truth. Never vote for a liar. Never again.

Gore's the opponent

To the editor:

Will someone please tell these Republicans that are running for the White House that their opponent is Al Gore, not Bill Clinton. He has already beat them twice he's not allowed to do it again.

CONSUMER COMMENTARY

Your identity is a precious thing

BY PATRICIA MADRID
NEW MEXICO ATTORNEY GENERAL

When most people think of theft, they think of property theft. While unpleasant, replacing a television is simple, especially when you compare it with what you will go through if you are the victim of identity theft.

If you are the victim of identity theft, it means that someone is pretending to be you, and they may establish credit in your name and then not pay the bills. As the victim of identity theft you can find your credit ruined and creditors believing you are the individual who owes them money.

Identity theft can occur when someone obtains your social security number and date of birth. With this limited information, they can open credit cards, bank accounts, and other accounts in your name.

Identity theft can be completed and obtained, loans taken out, checking accounts opened — all using your identity. What's the problem? When the person doesn't pay, guess who the creditors are going to find? You. And your trouble has just started because you will have to prove you are not the person who did this to every creditor!

You can help protect yourself against identity theft in a number of ways, including:
• Don't carry your social security number in your wallet or purse.
• Don't have your social security number printed on your driver's license or checks.

Because the amount of identity theft is increasing, but the law is slow to catch up, you should take steps to protect your identity. You should:

the malls; they are opportunities to get your name, address, and phone number on marketers lists.

• If you have more than one credit card, try to carry only one.

• Keep a photocopy of your credit cards, account numbers, expiration dates, and telephone numbers for reporting stolen cards in a safe, secure place (not your wallet or purse).

• Take credit cards or ATM receipts with you; don't toss them in the trash without tearing them up.

Don't let anyone steal your identity; it's the only one you have! If you think you have been the victim of identity theft, contact your local law enforcement agency.

You may reach your Consumer Protection Division at (505) 878-1808 or in Santa Fe at (505) 839-2222. You may file a complaint regarding identity theft with the Attorney General at (505) 878-1808.

Mending our fences

Last week in this space I waxed nostalgic about the possible demise of Aspenfest, that traditional October get-together for the local folks that appeared to be dispersing because of changing ownership of midtown property.

That, basically, is what I understood from comments by officials at a July 25 Ruidoso Village Council meeting. But between some erroneous information presented at the meeting and my misreading of part of that information, my interpretation was wrong in some respects.

To set the record straight:
• The tree-shaded property at the corner of Sudderth and Country Club drives formerly used for a crafts show has not been sold, but it is for sale. The crafts show will be moved this year to School House Park, a spot vacated by the annual old car and hot-rod show, which is being moved to Ruidoso Downs Race Track and Casino for the sake of more space.

• The New Mexico Chili Cook-Off, which for years has been a major contributor to the Ruidoso Rotary Club's scholarship fund, will be presented for the last time this October at the Tall Pines RV Park, now owned by Ruidoso's Mark Clark. But that had nothing to do with changing property ownership.

Promoter Paul Crown has acknowledged Clark's total cooperation with the cook-off this year. Clark says he is quite willing to continue the association, but Crown believes the cook-off will do better in the midst of another event — so next year it, too, will move to the race track site.

In fact, at the 1999 cook-off, Crown already was negotiating for a location at the track in Ruidoso Downs.

Not only that, but the track and casino enterprise will take it over (much to Crown's relief), and has promised a donation to the Rotary fund. A track representative will be working alongside Crown during this year's cook-off.

Incidentally, Clark (who also owns the former First State Bank "free parking lot" on Sudderth) has said it too is available for civic use, but nobody has asked. To help keep the property in decent shape, he's putting up a fence.

In the newspaper business, sometimes we become the victims of our own misperceptions.

And so, with this column, I'm trying to mend my own fences.

Local doctor traveled long and winding road to area

BY DREW GOMBER
Special to the Ruidoso News

Frank DiMotta, M.D. has traveled the proverbial long and winding road to get to Ruidoso. A native of Brooklyn, New York, it became apparent to the future doctor at an early age that he wanted to live in less urban circumstances. After graduation from University of Delaware as an Electrical Engineer, he worked in New York City for Leeds & Northrup Corp. for 3 years. It was the Viet Nam war era, so he volunteered in the Air Force and was an F-4 back-seater for 3 years, including a 13 month tour in Viet Nam. Finally able to pursue medical school, he chose New Mexico.

A practicing physician for over 20 years, DiMotta is a graduate of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine. After completing his Family Practice residency at Mountainside Hospital in Montclair, New Jersey, the DiMotta's went west. For 10 years, he based his solo practice in the small town of Lompoc, California, near Santa Barbara. As the demands of a young family grew, Dr. DiMotta decided to join a small Family Practice group in Boise, Idaho. When he arrived in Boise eleven years ago, all the Family Practice doctors were independent. However when the DiMotta's left in March of this year, a mere 10 out of 130 family doctors remained independent, which is a trend Dr. DiMotta finds disturbing. Many doctors, especially in big cities, find the business aspects of medicine time-consuming and less rewarding than caring for patients. Their solution is to become employees of hospitals or insurance companies. This is a good solution for them, but it does take away some independence.

When the DiMotta's began looking at other communities, they wanted a mountain location to be near the activities they enjoy (skiing, hiking, fishing), while the town had to have a good small hospital, a well-trained medical staff, and the growth potential to add another family doctor. Returning to New Mexico was also a priority. Fortunately, long time friend, Dr. Fred French, a gastroenterologist in Roswell, encouraged the DiMotta's to look at Ruidoso. At French's insistence, Frank and his family came to Ruidoso to find its beautiful pines, cool air, and verdant beauty a far cry from a giant desert. The clincher was the opportunity to work with his med school classmate—he and Dr. French are partners in medical practice.

Frank and his wife Susan have produced three daughters in their 30 years of marriage. Christina, a personal banker at Wells Fargo, and Dominique, and MBA student at UNM, live in Albuquerque. Caitlin, the youngest is a junior at Columbia College, Chicago, and is a member of The Cerqua-Rivers Art Experience dance company in Chicago, Ill. The DiMotta's have always loved the mountains and were impressed with the friendliness of the residents of Lincoln County. In fact, Frank states that the reasons he came here are three-fold: for its beauty, for its people and last, but certainly not least, to retain control of his own life... something we all yearn to do.

The friendly staff at the office of Dr. DiMotta consists of nurse Jacques Haddix, R.N. and receptionist Lori Padilla both of whom have been involved with the medical community in Ruidoso for many years. In addition, Susan DiMotta manages the office. In Boise, Susan was the Career Center Coordinator for Centennial High School. She was responsible for guiding high school students in their decision-making for their after high school life—whether it was college, vocational training, or jobs! This included administering various assessments, classes on resumes, cover letters, job interviews; job skills; job shadowing; college searches; scholarship searches, and any other help necessary! This is quite a change from 2200 students to a medical office, but it has proven to be both challenging and interesting.

Dr. DiMotta is Board Certified in Family Practice, and his practice includes pediatrics, gynecology, and general medical care for the whole family. The office is located at 207 Sudderth, next door to Lincoln County Medical Center, and the phone is 630-1214. The hours are Monday-Friday, 9a.m. till 5 p.m. They are striving to become an integral part of the community and to that end are considering flexible office hours—for example, 12 noon till 8 p.m. on some weekdays, and scheduling appointments on Saturdays for those patients who are more available at those times. They take all forms of insurance and Dr. DiMotta has full staff privileges at Lincoln County Medical Center. They're using rented space now, but are actively searching for a permanent home for the practice.

Dr. Frank DiMotta's philosophy is simple. He feels that the relationship between a patient and his/her doctor is a partnership. The doctor can suggest treatment and options, but ultimately, it is the patient who must take control of his/her own life and make the decisions concerning his or her own health. The staff, like the doctor himself, is attuned to people. Their goal is to provide professional, personalized care to both individuals and families. And that is exactly what they do.

Village 'wants' survey brings response from some 1,500 residents

BY JAMES KALVELAGE
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Better than one in five of the Ruidoso surveys sent to residents last month were returned to village hall by the Aug. 1 deadline. "That is a very good response," said Alan Briley, Ruidoso village manager, of the nearly 1,500 questionnaires returned.

The Village of Ruidoso Community Survey, which was mailed out July 7, sought opinions in five categories. They dealt with parks/recreation/arts/culture, public facilities and infrastructure, public services and administrative services, land use/environment and economic development/business/tourism. The responses, which Briley said village officials have not assessed, will be sent to the BRW Group, a planning firm, for tabulation and analysis. "I understand there's a lot of written comments on the side of the survey questions," Briley said. "When the results come back we'll see how in tune with the public we are." The village manager said the results will probably be delivered around the beginning of September. "Then we'll take it and if it says 78 percent of the public wants stricter rules on the quality of life, we'll work in that direction," he said. "It will tell us here's the highest priorities the public wants." The resident views will be included in the village's comprehensive plan, a long-range planning tool for Ruidoso. "We will put an action plan together," Briley said. "It's also for future councils, a guide for them on what we need to address." BRW Group, which assembled Ruidoso's comprehensive plan in 1988, developed the opinion queries on the recent survey.

COUNCIL PREVIEW

The Ruidoso Village Council, during a regular council meeting Tuesday, is scheduled to consider three consent agenda items, hold a public hearing on a new restaurant beer and wine license, and discuss three possible amendments to municipal ordinances.

The Aug. 8 council meeting begins at 6:30 p.m., in the council chambers of the Ruidoso Administrative Offices, 313 Cree Meadows Drive. On the agenda are:

- Approval of a contract with the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce for the chamber's Regional Business Survey. The chamber requested $8,000 from the village to help finance the survey. The funding has been set aside in the village's budget.

- Approval of a contract with R and S Enterprises for professional services for the village's water/wastewater department. Richard Sanchez, the department's director has retired, and Village Manager Alan Briley said Sanchez' knowledge could be needed at times until a new director is hired. Sanchez has established a business, R and S Enterprises, which would be paid $40 per hour, as needed by the department, if the contract is approved.

- A public hearing and vote on granting a restaurant beer and wine license will be conducted. Clare Bay Trading Company has applied for the license to be used at the restaurant at 2710 Sudderth Drive.

- Discussion is scheduled of an ordinance amendment that would allow the Planning and Zoning Commission to grant variances to allow access to commercial lots from residential streets. The council could set the ordinance amendment for a public hearing on Sept. 12.

- Discussion and setting a future public hearing for an ordinance change regulating individual car sales.

- Discussion and setting a future public hearing on a proposed ordinance that would reduce the amount of cuts in village streets and instead encourage the boring of tunnels for the placement of new utility lines.

OBITUARIES DEATHS

Richard Wardlaw

Services for Richard "Dick" Wardlaw, 72, of Ruidoso have been tentatively set for Monday, Aug. 7 at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount.

Mr. Wardlaw died Thursday, Aug. 3, 2000 at his home. He was a retired administrator for the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

Survivors include his wife Ruth, three daughters, a granddaughter, and a brother and sister.

Services are pending with LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

ENMU-Ruidoso orchestra seeking musicians for concert

Musicians in Ruidoso can revive their music talent by performing in the Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso Community Orchestra.

All instruments are needed, especially violins and other strings.

Rehearsals begin Aug. 29 to prepare for the Dec. 4 concert at the Spencer Theater.

This semester the orchestra will rehearse Vivaldi's "Concerto in C Major for Guitar and Strings" with local classical guitar performer Tomas Vigil. The orchestra also plans to repeat its presentation of "The Cat and the Fiddle," musical-narrative that was crowd-pleaser at the 1999 winter concert. Another special presentation will be "The Songs for Soprano, Alto and Orchestra" arranged by the conductor Ugo DiDio.

The orchestra rehearses 7 p.m. every Tuesday at the Ruidoso High School Fine Arts Building.

Scholarships are available to help pay tuition. For information, call ENMU 257-2120 or (800) 934-3668.

Rules for inmate work-release revised

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Public entities won't have to pay if Lincoln County jail inmates work for them, but private business owners will be required to pay minimum wage.

Out of their pay checks, the inmates will give $10 per day back to the county to cover administrative expenses connected to the work release program.

Commissioner Leo Martinez last week urged commissioners to funnel another portion of the inmates' pay into a fund to buy a van to take them to their jobs, many of which will be in the Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs area. The jail is in the county seat, Carrizozo.

Initially, commissioners discussed removing the pay provision entirely to ensure that groups such as the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, which Commissioner Rick Simpson chairs, could benefit from free labor.

But they decided instead to add a sentence allowing the fee for public entities to be waived, said County Manager Tom Stewart.

While commissioners back the idea of work release and work crews for community projects, transportation and supervision pose a problem. Martinez said a van could solve part of that problem.

Under the work release agreement, inmates are not allowed to drive any vehicles, can't use the telephone or visit family and friends during working hours.

Among other provisions, they can't work on weekends or holidays. They must be picked up and returned to jail by the employer on schedule unless a change is approved by the jail administration.

Inmates can't leave the county or leave the work place without authorization.

Immediate notification to the jail is required if an inmate becomes ill or is injured and if the inmate is fired or leaves the premises without permission.

Work-related injuries fall under the employer's workman's compensation insurance.

Senator Bingaman to visit Lincoln County on Sunday

U.S. Senator Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., will be in Lincoln County Sunday to tour areas damaged by the Cree Fire in May, to visit historic Fort Stanton, and to dine on barbecued brisket with his constituents.

The Democrat from Silver City is scheduled to arrive at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport in the early afternoon.

He will tour the 1865 fort that many county residents hope will become a national monument or be taken under the wing of another federal agency for development into a living museum.

Next he will meet with U.S. Forest Service officials from the Smokey Bear Ranger District to discuss the recent fire and other forest issues.

At 5 p.m., he is scheduled to be the guest of honor at a reception and dinner at the Capitan schools.

Dinner will be $5 a plate and will start at 4 p.m. The menu is barbecue brisket, cole slaw, baked beans, dinner rolls, peach cobbler, coffee and tea.

People who want to meet the senator are invited to attend the reception at the school cafeteria, which will conclude at 6 p.m.

RUIDO POLICE

Vehicle vandalized

A vehicle parked at the Ruidoso Bowling Center on Mechem Drive was vandalized late Aug. 1 or early Aug. 2.

The owner of the vehicle told Ruidoso police when he returned to his vehicle just after midnight he found a rear tire slashed and a scratch running the length of the passenger side. A damage assessment pins the vandalism expense at $2,100.

The case have been classified as felony criminal damage to property.

Selective theft

A vehicle title and owner's manual were removed from a glove compartment of a vehicle parked on White Mountain Meadows Drive between July 30 and July 31, according to a police report.

The reporting party said the vehicle doors had been left unlocked. The incident is considered a felony auto burglary and misdemeanor larceny.

The value of the missing items was listed at $30.

Wheels removed

A vehicle parked overnight

at Cruise World on Mechem Drive had its wheels removed between July 30 and July 31.

The owner of the vehicle discovered all four wheels and tires missing in the morning. The incident is under investigation as felony larceny and misdemeanor injuring or tampering with a vehicle.

The value of the wheels and tires was $1,800.

Gas-skip reported

Police are looking for a driver who reportedly put $28.90 in gasoline in his vehicle and left Club Gas on Mechem Drive without paying.

The incident occurred about 9:30 a.m. on July 29. If found, the driver of the SUV would face a misdemeanor charge of falsely obtaining services.

Mailboxes vandalized

Mailbox vandals were active overnight July 28 - 29. Police received two reports of mailboxes damaged.

One incident occurred on Barcus Road, the other on nearby Lower Terrace Drive. In each of the cases of criminal damage to property the value of the damaged mailboxes was posted at $20.

Growth pounds Ruidoso Downs

Village beginning to talk about creating an extraterritorial zone to help regulate water run-off

Unincorporated areas bordering Ruidoso Downs are creating problems that the village council is seeking to solve.*

BY DIANNE STALLINGS AND WENDY WIDENER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITERS

More cooperation is needed to regulate and monitor development along the border of Ruidoso Downs village and adjoining unincorporated portions of Lincoln County, say residents plagued by drainage from property being developed above their homes.

During a recent county commission meeting and a Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees session, they related how mud seeps into houses and water washes down debris from gashes in the mountain-side above Colorado Lane, Utah and Nevada streets.

The east side of Colorado Lane lies outside Ruidoso Downs city limits.

They described the dangers associated with children playing around boulders at the edge of sharp drops on the land being developed above them.

Although it won't help them, some called for the formation of an extraterritorial zone in a one-mile strip around the village to prevent problems in the future.

Such a zone exists around Ruidoso and is supervised by an ETZ Commission and ETZ Authority, which has the final vote on related issues. The authority is composed of two county commissioners and one village councilor. The rules governing the ETZ area tend to be less restrictive than village zoning, but protect village residents against uncontrolled development adjoining their land.

The county has no zoning regulations.

County commissioners said the request to create an ETZ should come from Ruidoso Downs.

"We'd welcome a joint ETZ to handle these strips in between," said Tom Armstrong, head of code enforcement for the village. "For the current problem, I feel there's nothing that can't be fixed. It's new construction and there's been a lot of rain."

Bob Miller, Ruidoso Downs mayor, has said that he favors an ETZ, because coordination between the village and the county is needed.

"I left it up to Tom Armstrong and the village planning and zoning board to come back with a recommendation and I hope it includes an ETZ," Miller said. "That's what I'd like to see, particularly in that area."

County Manager Tom Stewart also is conferring with Carl Stubbs of the state Environment Department about the situation.

Dan Bryant, Ruidoso Downs village attorney, has recommended to his board that the contractors, residents, and county commission get together and discuss the most reasonable actions to take.

Trustee Margie Morales told residents the council may have a special meeting with all parties by the end of this week.

"The county needs to require site plans," Susan J. Garrett, who lives on Colorado Lane, told county commissioners Thursday. "It's not fair to ruin property by changing the course of the water (above it)."

Surveyor Tim Collins told commissioners that village officials must decide how much control they want.

"You can do anything without a site plan in the county," he said. "You can put in RVs, houses, storage."

Commissioner Rick Simpson said when Colorado Lane was developed, it was the only paved street in the area and the forest was behind it.

"It was the top, so no one thought about drainage," he said. "That's no longer the case."

Camille Baca, who is developing one of the tracts above Colorado, asked residents below the work to be patient.

"It's an on-going project," she said. "We purchased with the anticipation of developing the land for our business. We plan to place trees, but it will take a little time."

Another developer above

Colorado cut a road into his property that has no culvert or diversion structures.

Garrett presented a petition signed by 30 residents to Ruidoso Downs trustees calling for the conditions to be corrected.

"As a homeowner, I could solve my problem," Garrett said, "But then the run-off would go on to my neighbor, and so on."

The day after the contractors above her property began work, Garrett dug a trench and a hole to catch water before it reached her home, she said. But that only worked temporarily.

Bryant said he drove Colorado Lane in the vicinity of Utah Street, and the pavement is hidden by mud as a result of the run-off.

Trustee Judy Miller said she's worried about growth in the village when there is "no code to protect residents."

AERC riders pull an all-nighter

BY RHIANNON REYES
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

The American Endurance Ride Conference commenced on Tuesday at Fort Stanton and the Lone Tree Bible Camp. Riders from all around the United States and Canada had gathered for the Second Annual AERC to engage themselves in fierce and demanding competition, both with other riders and Mother Nature.

Most riders and spectators found the environment to be beautiful, but others admitted that although the scenery was breathtaking, the trail was potentially exhausting. In spite of a few of the obvious obstacles, many of the competitors enjoyed the ride immensely, and seemed to feel right at home.

Organized and competing by weight divisions, riders ranged from Juniors and Featherweights to Lightweights and Heavyweights. Ages ranged widely also, with a few parent-child entries trekking alongside each other.

There was also vast diversity among race and origin to add to the wide array of competitors. The competing equines themselves were mostly Arabians, but any member of the equine family was eligible for competition. "Murr the Blur" from Northern California, for example, was a competing mule in the ride.

Riders had previously competed and triumphed in their own local region out of a total of seven regions. Competitors had to qualify in certain rides to make it to Fort Stanton and the Lone Tree Bible Camp on Tuesday for the 100-mile ride, as well as for today's 50-mile ride. However, some of the riders that had entered in Tuesday's competition will ride again today in the 50 mile, as well as those who had entered but were pulled for the condition of their horse.

At checkpoints—eagerly awaited by competitors at the end of a long, rocky ride and heat—equines were the chief concern for inspection. There are two pull conditions for the horses (and one mule) and only one, all covering rider option for the humans—if the rider simply does not feel that he or she can continue, then he or she is pulled from the ride. As for the equines, the animals must have a steady 60-beats-per-minute pulse, as well as passing a check for soundness and hydration.

The conference was founded in 1972 in California "for people who wanted to do endurance rides," said Randy Eiland, president of the AERC. "It was only 100-mile rides, but we've added the 50 since then."

Eiland said the ride was "fashioned after the cavalry tests of cavalry horses," meaning that the cavalry tests were held to see what type of breeding, what height, what weight of a horse worked best for endurance.

"The horses that did pass were built

Another day at Ruidoso Downs race track

BY EMILY HOWE
RUIDOSO DOWNS RACE TRACK & CASINO

It was a normal race by all accounts to jockey Adan Fuentes, until the home stretch when a hard bump by a rival horse threw him off balance and out of his stirrups. With years of experience behind him and a bright future still to come, Adan had to make a split second decision to hang on for dear life or let gravity take its due course. Knowing all too well the reality of pain experienced by a fall off a horse traveling at average speeds of 36 mph, Adan wrapped his legs tight around the 3-year-old colt and hung on not only to finish, but to win.

"I saw the seven (horse) coming in and I had the choice to go out and push my horse, but the rider (of the seven) used the whip and he came in," explains Adan.

"I prepared for the bump and immediately lost my balance and thought I would come off. I have had bad spills and sometimes (I) am able to prepare before I go down. One second I thought I would come down and the next, I thought I could try to settle my horse and I hold with my arms and legs tight and push him several jumps to win."

What sounds like a fish tale of proportions to many is the every day job description of a jockey. Fitness and strength are required for the rigorous work. The average life of a jockey entails 6 a.m. wake up calls, strenuous exercise the majority of the morning and a short nap before race time when the real work begins.

"When it's every day coming in to gallop, some-the quarter horse and thoroughbred standings at Ruidoso Downs Race Track & Casino.

A cinch bet; there is no absolute

"The only cinch at the track is the one that keeps the saddle on the horse."

A very wise man, John Baker, track superintendent at Ruidoso Downs, told me that. I've tried to remember it. But you know how it is when you're looking through the program and BANG! there it is, the perfect bet, the absolute cinch.

The horse just happens to have my name as part of his. Plugugly Bob-but while that may have attracted me in the first place, it is of course the handicapping that makes him my bet of the day. Serious players will agree that there may be a tiny amount of juju, in this case a name fetish, in playing the ponies. But one mustn't succumb to unscientific choices.

Plugugly Bob is so clearly a winner that you wonder what the rest of the folks are doing, betting on the other seven horses in the race. You calm yourself and look around. Don't tip anything off. Act casual. Those 15-1 odds won't hold if the crowd catches on.

But they don't. Most of them are betting the 3-horse, a 6-year-old mare, Hillary's Quest, that has been hot lately but is due for a bad race. All horses have them. The beauty is, my pick has had his. More than his share, actually. Hmmm. But he's prime today. It virtually shouts from the program, "THIS HORSE IS PRIME."

Yet even in this mystical moment of absolute surety, I'm a serious player. My emotions thoroughly in check, I review all my information. I'm well-supplied with data, as serious players always are.

Here's the Racing Form, the track program and selections from Dale Wood. Plus a note or two I took when this horse ran last month. (In fact, he ran a disappointing sixth, but the jockey change and the drop in class will take care of that.)

Post time is a good 15 minutes away. Plenty of time to look over my info again.

Let's see... This jockey's winning percentage is 14, a major improvement over the last guy who has gone to the ostrich circuit. Same trainer, who works out of his horse trailer for all I know. Plugugly Bob's his only horse. Speed ratings are average for these horses, but a-hah, there's that 79 sparkling amidst the lesser numbers, and only five races, two tracks and four months ago. Serious players take note of these buried nuggets.

And then there's the drop in class from $3200 claiming races to $2500 claimers. Just enough to tip the scales. Track conditions are the same. Headwind in his last race; today there's a tailwind. Bar shoes on the 5-horse. Handicapping requires precision analysis of all details.

Comments regarding a horse's performance are always informative. Plugugly Bob's are fairly consistent: "Pressed pace, faded; Weakened turn; Set pace, faltered; Stalked, tired," etc. But shining in the middle of these remarks, alongside that 79 speed rating, is this gem: "Best of the rest." He finished second that time in a $2500 claimer-six furlongs, the same as today's race—to Quotether-avenuevermore, who distinguished himself with a third-place finish in a $5000 claimer two weeks later.

Oh the logic of it! The clarity of the pieces of information, each its own messenger, combining in your mind to present a composite of knowledge which is your horse, his destiny. This horse, in this race, at this time,

Use betting to enjoy the races

As I said in my last column, most of you at the races are not going to spend the time and effort that it takes to learn to handicap the races. It's time consuming and you aren't that sure about what factors are most likely to produce a contender. Your main objective is to enjoy the races and if you control your losses at a level you are comfortable with. You might even turn a profit, which is an added bonus for a fun day at the races.

WOOD WORK

BY DALE WOOD
RUIDOSO DOWNS

If you have limited handicapping experience and spend more than just a few days at the races and do any serious betting, you should follow the information available to you from a proven handicapper. If he has a record of success he is worth following until you develop your own plan. A paper plan is better than no plan and a proven plan is best.

Start with a limited bankroll that you are willing to risk at no return. Manage your bankroll so you can do everything your plan calls for and not exceed it. Start with win wagering only. It is difficult to pick one horse to win let alone having to have a second or third horse, as in exacta and quinella. Usually your first horse will win and your second or third horse will not light the board. You can have a ticket with the winning horse but can't cash it. I have a limit on how low the odds can go (2-1) before I will make a win bet on a horse.

Then I start looking at one of the other four contenders in the race. For this wager I want 5-1 or better odds. There are times when I will bet two horses in a race to win. If two of the four contenders are 6-1 or better I have no hesitancy to bet both horses to win. Wagering is a feeling not a science. If you follow basic guidelines, don't hesitate to let your feelings guide you if they are strong.

There are many other things that are helpful in learning to wager wisely. We will try to cover as many as possible before the meet ends. Try following the above for a while and see if it doesn't save you money and give you a chance to win by cashing some tickets at a good return on your investment.

Join us each race day one hour before post time at the east end of the grandstand on the ground level. We will be happy to answer any of your questions. Don't miss our prediction show "The Winners Circle" at 9:18 a.m. each race day and the results at 6:18 a.m. and 8:18 p.m. on KWES-FM 93.5 and at 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. on KRUI-AM 1490 and W105-FM. Good Luck.

BOBTALES: On the backstretch

against this competition, is unbeatable. Even Dale Wood's Way Out Willie picks him. They come onto the track, looking every bit as beautiful as their expensive brothers and sisters at Santa Anita, Belmont and Arlington Park. True, a Secretariat looks different, but most Thoroughbreds look pretty much alike... except maybe Plugugly Bob. If you weren't just rock-sure that he was going to win you'd turn your back on that slouching, goose-rumped, cow-hocked animal before the sight of him made you uneasy in your stomach.

In contrast, Hillary's Quest is sleek and lively and, while maybe a bit thick in the barrel, carries herself as though she knows who she is.

It's a good thing I know for certain which horse is the cinch bet. Only disciplined handicapping by a serious player can overcome the powerful influence of appearances.

Well, off they go and right away Plugugly Bob gets jammed to the rail with six horses in front of him. The trailer, Billy Bullet, has already given up the race and is contemplating his golf game or something. Hillary's Quest is in second place and challenging the leader.

Plugugly Bob's jock decides it's now or never and pulls a blind switch taking the horse to the center of the track with the first turn coming up. He's wide there and he's wide at the top of the stretch, but by that time he's in a race of his own and nothing can stop him. He flies past the mare at the eighth pole and never looks back. So you see, there's more than one cinch at the racetrack. It's a lead-pipe cinch that every day of the meet someone will pick a horse for no good reason and it will win.

And that's horse racing.

Fishing report for Ruidoso, surrounding area as of July 30

Rio Ruidoso: The fish that were stocked three weeks ago are nearly gone. The fishing pressure on the river is up considerably from years past. Remember the NMGF Department stock only Rainbow trout, if you should catch a native Brown trout please carefully return it to the stream, for these guys do reproduce in the river. Again, if you fish the river, please practice catch and release on any Brown trout you should catch, for the river system can not take a large percentage of catch and kill on this species. The best subsurface fly selections are still Green Rock Worms, Bead head Pheasant Tail nymphs or Bead head Prince Nymphs. If you find surface feeding fish, we would suggest BWO's, loop wing BWO's and Dark Hendrickson pattern. On a trip into the reservation in upper canyon we found a few large stone fly nymphs, so did through your fly box and find one and toss it. Stimulators and Hopper patterns have taken a few fish off the top as well.

Bonito Creek: Water is finally coming over the spillway. However, due to the long lasting drought conditions fishing is very spotty. Place efforts on pools using what ever you find in your fly box. The fish that are here are hungry and not choosy.

Bonito Lake: The rains have help put a bunch of water back in the lake. Late evening fishing will be best here. Look for rising fish. Use Humpy's, Hendricksons, or Wulff patterns. Tie a nymph dropper behind your dry fly offering and see what you can dredge up. Spin casters will do well with propeller flies behind a bubble rig.

Eagle lakes: Early morning and late evening fishing is usually tops here. Small BWO's, Pale Morning Dan and Light Cahills usually produce action. Tie on a nymph dropper to enhance your presentation. It's deer fly season and there are a lot of them around the Eagle Lake area. Take plenty of insect repellent and wear long sleeve shirts and long pants to avoid the bites.

Grindstone Lake: The lake has gained about 12' in depth since the rains have started. The lake is spotty for fishing even though a good stocking took place three weeks ago. Late afternoon and early evening fishing will produce the best fishing here. Woolly buggers in brown and black have been the ticket the past few weeks. Rainbow trout and Brown trout streamers have been effective near dark. Bubble rigs and propeller flies will do well for the spin caster fisherman. Remember to squeeze the hook bars down if you are planning to catch and release.

Lake Mesacalero: The fishing has been very good late afternoon and evening. Dry flies have been working toward evening. Patterns that have been producing are, Hendricksons, Wulff patterns, Humpy's and Parachute Adams. Bead Head Brown and Black Woolly Buggers have been productive. Place a dropper fly behind you dry and see what happens. Black, Brown and Olive propeller flies with a bubble rig have been doing well for the spin casters. Remember to purchase your day pass at the reception desk at the Inn.

Please practice catch and release methods wherever and whenever you can.

Bait fishing conditions are:

Bonito Lake: Fishing is fair on powerbait and salmon eggs.

Grindstone Lake: Fishing is good on power bait.

Rio Ruidoso: Fishing is slow.

Eagle Lakes: Fishing is good on power-bait and super dupers.

Here fishy, fishy

Kevin Wood, 11, and Daniel Parker, 11, display their dinner as they caught two 18" and three 17" trout. The two fishermen were fishing on the Rio Ruidoso in Upper Canyon as they visited friends and family. Kevin, AKA "Fisher man, man, man" hails from Roswell and Daniel "Fisher dude" is visiting from Lake Dallas, Texas. The secret to their success: salmon eggs and worms.

very much like these horses," Eiland said. "About 16 hands average, about 850 to 900 pounds, flat muscled...that in itself is kind of interesting that what we're doing now is what the cavalry was doing then with very similar types of horses."

Eiland said he became involved with the American Endurance Ride Conference because "I used to always ride long distance; I mean we just got out and rode. And so I figured there must be something we can do like this."

Eiland said he always thought of himself as an athlete, but he said he was horrible at conventional sports. "He said he realized he was good with horses, however, and when someone told him about this sport, he decided to try his hand at it."

"I rode my first ride in 1983 called the Tall Pines Ride in Silver City," Eiland said. "It's the oldest ride in New Mexico - and I rode the 25 which is a limited distance, kind of a novice ride, and I won the ride and won best condition."

Now Eiland helps run one of the most prestigious endurance rides in North America. The AERC is held in one region for two years. After that time period, the conference selects one of the other regions to hold the ride for the next two years. After this year, the AERC will hold the ride in Kentucky.

MAGISTRATE COURT

The following cases were recently adjudicated in Lincoln County Magistrate Court with Judge William R. Butts presiding.

• Larry A. Norman, 51, Roswell, entered a plea of guilty to charges of aggravated DWI second offense and having an open container in a motor vehicle.

Norman was sentenced to seven days at the Lincoln County Detention Center, placed on 357 days probation, and assessed $763 in fines and costs.

He was also ordered to perform 48 hours of community service.

• John Apodaca, 21, Corrales, through a plea agreement, entered a no contest plea and was found guilty of misdemeanor aggravated battery against a household member.

A charge of felony aggravated battery was dismissed. Apodaca was put on probation for 364 days and charged $51 in court costs.

As probation conditions, Apodaca must remain in counseling, attend an AA program and become employed or enrolled in college. Compliance with the probation conditions would remove the conviction.

• Stephen W. White, 35, Ruidoso, tendered a no contest plea and was found guilty of battery against a household member, a petty misdemeanor.

White was sentenced to 179 days probation and required to pay $51 in costs.

• Cameron M. Williams, 23, Ruidoso Downs, through a plea agreement, entered a no contest plea and was found guilty of a reduced charge of battery, a petty misdemeanor. Williams received 182 days of probation and was ordered to pay $51 in court costs.

Williams received 182 days of probation and was ordered to pay $51 in court costs.

• George Olivas, 35, Fort Stanton, through a plea agreement, entered a no contest plea and was found guilty of misdemeanor aggravated battery.

Charges of aggravated assault, false imprisonment, battery against a household member and criminal trespass were dismissed by an assistant district attorney.

Olivas was placed on 364 days probation and assessed $51 in costs.

• Charles Fred Dean, Jr, no age or hometown listed, entered a plea of guilty to misdemeanor battery against a household member.

Dean was sentenced to 90 days in jail, placed on probation for 274 days and ordered to pay $51 in costs.

• Jody Welch, 30, Ruidoso Downs, through a plea agreement, was found guilty of DWI third offense and violation of probation.

Counts of aggravated DWI and open container were dismissed.

Welch was sentenced to 57 days in jail, to be followed by a minimum of 30 days rehabilitation, placed on probation until Oct. 19, 2001, and ordered to pay $949 in fines and costs.

Welch must also attend AA meetings four times weekly while on probation and was made eligible for the ignition interlock device.

• Billy Brandy, 39, Ruidoso, through a plea agreement, was found guilty of aggravated DWI first offense. Charges of aggravated DWI second offense and a lane violation were dismissed.

Brandy was sentenced to two days in jail, put on 88 days probation, and assessed $499 in fines and costs. He was also made eligible for the ignition interlock device.

• Christopher M. Jeffcoat, Ruidoso, entered a plea of guilty to aggravated DWI first offense.

Jeffcoat received two days in jail, 88 days probation, and a fine and court cost amount of $499.

He was also made a candidate for the ignition interlock device.

• Tommy J. Rager, 22, Ruidoso, entered a guilty plea to a charge of DWI first offense.

Rager was placed on 90 days probation, ordered to pay $399 in fines and costs, and made eligible for the ignition interlock device.

DO YOU HAVE A SLIPPED DISC?
Discs in your back can be compared to shock absorbers in a car. Like soft cushions, they absorb and cushion between adjacent vertebrae to lessen the ongoing stresses that these bones encounter. A disc may rupture, bulge or tear following heavy lifting, repeated bending, or even sneezing and coughing. These small bulges may produce temporary symptoms or none at all. However, sudden stress on an injured disc may cause it to rupture even further, putting considerable pressure on a nearby nerve. This condition is called a slipped disc. Symptoms may include severe low back pain and a feeling of heat in one buttock and leg. Numbness and tingling of the foot may occur as well. There may also be a weakness of the leg and foot muscles.
Chiropractic adjustments will often release the vertebrae from its locked position, allowing the disc to return to normal and relieve the pressure on spinal nerves. Chiropractic care has an excellent record for helping disc sufferers. According to one study of 1,536 lumbar-spinal-problem patients who were under chiropractic care, nearly 97 percent had satisfactory results. Only a little over 3 percent of the patients had to resort to surgery. Make an appointment with your doctor of chiropractic if you are in pain and suspect a slipped disc. It may make all the difference.

Glencoe News
 by Sydney Bonnell

Had the pleasure of seeing many friends from far away places at the Square Dance Festival in Ruidoso, Saturday night. There was a large crowd and the ladies were very attractive in their dance dresses and the gentlemen were dressed gay too.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bolton of El Paso, with their friends Mr. and Mrs. Young, visited the Bonnell Ranch Sunday. Bob was in the store here in 1950 and is well known around.

Open house at Coe Ranch

Louise Coe will be autographing copies of "Ranch on the Ruidoso" by her late husband, Wilbur Coe, at an open house which will be held Aug. 16 from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Coe ranch in Glencoe.

"Ranch on the Ruidoso" is the story of the Coe family, pioneers in New Mexico and Lincoln County. It deals mainly with the escapades of Frank Coe, Wilbur's father, and Frank's cousin, George Coe, during the Lincoln County War.

Mrs. Coe told the News that the Coe ranch is now on the market for sale, and she is holding the open house to give the people of the area one last chance to visit the historic ranch before she sells.

Reagan/Bush headquarters to open

A Reagan/Bush campaign headquarters will open in Ruidoso Aug. 15, organizer Maureen Ware said Wednesday.

The headquarters will be in the Lee Ware office at the intersection of Riverside Drive and Sudderth Drive.

A parade is being planned in connection with the opening, with details to be announced, Ware said.

White Oaks bar possible

R. A. "Bud" Crenshaw of White Oaks is a step closer to establish a store and bar in the "ghost town" of White Oaks, following a public hearing in Carrizozo Tuesday.

The hearing, held in conjunction with the regular meeting of county commissioners, drew a large crowd of both protesters and supporters of Crenshaw's plan.

Sarah and E.J. show off their fair steers, with their father, Elmond, outside their grandmother's home in San Patricio.

FAIR TIME

Lincoln County's ranches are alive with the voices of young people preparing animals for showing a next week's county fair...including a brother and sister from San Patricio.

BY WENDY WIDENER
 RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Sarah and E.J. Sanchez spend at least three hours a day tending to their fair animals, and are entering of them in the Lincoln County Fair next week (Aug. 7-12).

Sarah, 16, and her brother, E.J., 13, have three steers, three pigs, and two goats at their San Patricio home.

The Sanchez family treats the annual event as a family affair.

"My dad helps us with the animals and my mom helps (E.J. with) the leather craft," says Sarah, a soon-to-be Hondo High School junior; through the school system she is also involved in 4-H and FFA.

Besides being involved with the fair for four years, E.J. is active in 4-H. E.J. chose leather craft as his annual project, currently making saddle bags. Buying the leather in Albuquerque, E.J. said it takes about four weeks to complete a bag. Their projects are judged at competitions throughout the year.

Every day, Sarah and E.J. exercise the animals by leading them along the back roads of San Patricio as they ride their bikes. When the bunch gets to a point where they can turn around, E.J. and Sarah turn the animals loose so they can run back home.

Chores are shared among the family, but pens must be cleaned, pigs must be walked, goats must be fed and steers must be washed.

The 1,200-pound steers must be washed daily, E.J. said. When the family purchased the steers more than nine months ago, they weighed about 500 pounds. The other animals are bathed every other day—or, basically, Sarah said, "When we feel like it."

Elmond Sanchez, Sarah and E.J.'s father, commented that when purchasing a steer, they see how old it is by looking at its teeth. Elmond said that if the steer still had its baby teeth it was just about the right age for the fair. Usually the steer is one and one half years old at the time of purchase.

At the fair, judges look at the steer's overall appearance and how much actual "meat" the animals have, said Sarah. Trying to comb the steers to look like a box, Sarah said that sometimes she cuts a fatter steer's hair shorter to make it look skinnier and keeps the thinner steer's hair longer to make it look fatter. It is also beneficial if the steer stands square in the front and the back so that its hooves are aligned with its shoulders and hips.

She has not placed in the fair for the three years that she has participated. Referred to as "farm girl" by cousin, Billie Maldonado, Sarah knows that by placing first, the long, hard work that she has put into her steers will pay off.

"My friend won on a 1,300 pound steer," Sarah commented. "And she got four dollars a pound for it."

A steer usually costs around $500, said Sarah, so if it places first, the profit can be up to $4,700. Even if the animal does not place first, or is not named grand champion or reserve champion, money is still gathered from the animal. Whether the animal is sold at the sale after the animals are judged or to a butcher, the Sanchez animals are gone, and the family can start fresh the next year.

"We would rather get the animals in the sale," said Sarah. "Because the animals sell for more."

According to Elmond, all seven animals going to the fair are what are called "market animals," meaning they will be used for food.

"We haven't had any breeding animals," said Elmond. "Or we haven't yet."

This will be the first year that the Sanchez' are entering goats in the fair. Elmond said that goats are judged on which "hangs the best carcass." E.J.'s goat was purchased for $75 and Sarah's goat was given to her by an uncle.

Pigs are also judged based on overall appearance and meat. The Sanchez' possess three pigs; two are pink and one has auburn hair. E.J. leads them in a circular pen everyday, so they can get some extra exercise. According to E.J., they were purchased for $225 and also pay off by the pound.

As the Sanchez' enter their fifth

Walking the pigs in a circular pen, E.J. exercises his three pigs, prodding them with a stick.

Lincoln's big weekend is here

Pageant grounds are ready

LINCOLN TRAILS

ROSALIE DUNLAP
 Ruidoso News

The Old Lincoln Days pageant grounds are shaping up and looking great for this weekend's annual presentation of the "Last Escape of Billy the Kid."

Rehearsals have been well attended in spite of other meetings scheduled at the same time.

Planning for the first annual reunion of the pageant performers is coming along.

News articles recently have brought a lot of information and materials for use during the reunion.

Everybody will be ready for the pageant and parade when it all comes together today, Saturday and Sunday.

The Spinning Bees had a workshop on dying fibers at the La Placita recently.

Participants were using cotton and wool with natural dyes. The dye materials used were cranberry and cabbage, among others.

Spinners from Ruidoso, Capitan, Vaughn and Lincoln attended.

The next meeting will be on Aug. 19 at the La Placita. At that time plans will be finalized for another workshop in September.

WEDDINGS ENGAGEMENTS

Collins/Miranda

Michelle Miranda, the daughter of Fernando and Ina Jean Miranda of Ruidoso, will marry Walter Collins of Albuquerque in Alamogordo today, Friday, Aug. 4.

Chamber conducting business climate survey

Merchant surveys, in an effort to gauge the business climate in the region, are in the mail.

The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce initiated the survey, which asks eight questions. One of the queries seeks to determine if a "merchants association" would be supported by businesses.

The brief questionnaire also asks merchants about the business climate, compared with last year, two years ago and three years back.

Chamber officials said the survey is separate from the Regional Business Survey 2000 which will take place later this year. That review will be a comprehensive assessment of the business community as well as an inventory of what businesses are out there.

Digital cable service coming to Ruidoso

Digital cable television access is coming to Ruidoso. Charter Communications, the cable TV provider in Lincoln County, is now offering its "Charter Digital Cable" to Ruidoso subscribers, said Paul Crown, the local system manager for Charter.

"Charter Digital Cable means more new special interest channels, more new premium channels and more pay-per-view movies and events," Crown said.

More than 120 channels, including 32 screens of free movies and commercial-free music channels are on the fiber optic cables installed in Ruidoso this year. The Ruidoso changes are part of Charter's nationwide upgrade program to bring broadband communications across the United States, company officials said. The national effort has a price tag of $3.5 billion.

Charter Communications serves 6.2 million customers in the nation.

State Film Office preparing new directory

The New Mexico Film Office is readying its 2001 New Mexico film directory.

The directory lists the names of filmmakers and businesses that provide services to the motion picture industry. Copies of the directory are sent in response to inquiries from production companies worldwide. The directory is also distributed at trade shows, in other film related venues and in direct-mail marketing campaigns.

The directory provides a way for casting agents and producers to locate local talent and services. An applicant may purchase up to three listings. Each listing costs $50. Applicants must be New Mexico residents.

The deadline for submissions is Aug. 11. Those interested in an application may call the New Mexico Film Office at (505) 827-9810.

New living center for Alzheimer's patients

Alamogordo is getting a new Alzheimer's living center.

The facility is scheduled to be built near the Aristocrat Assisted Living Community, at 252 Robert H. Bradley Drive, said Wes Handy, owner of the center.

The unit will house 30 residents who suffer from mild to moderate memory loss. The facility will have 20 employees.

The cost of the new unit is estimated at $750,000, Handy said. Plans call for construction of the facility to begin in late October.

Magazines, Web site bolster Ruidoso

Ruidoso has gotten the kudos in at least two magazines this summer.

In New Mexico Journey, a bimonthly publication of the AAA-New Mexico, a three-page article recommends a way to "beat the summer heat in refreshing Ruidoso."

The feature describes the cool pines and amenities of the resort community. Written by Lynn Kidder, she tells of her and her husband's quest for a location to settle down: A place with a moderate, four-season climate, a nearby ski area and a house they could afford. The Kidder's moved to Ruidoso three years ago, she featured in the article.

The feature, titled Escape to Noisy Waters, details midtown Ruidoso, the Spencer Theater for the Performing Arts, horse racing in Ruidoso Downs, the Hubbard Museum of the American West, horseback riding, and more.

The article appeared in the July/August edition of New Mexico Journey.

Another Ruidoso feature, in the July issue of nationally distributed Southern Living magazine, kept the Web page for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce busy.

The article, in the magazine's weekend section, pointed out that much of New Mexico is a furnace in July. That is reason enough to ascend to the 7,000-foot elevation of Ruidoso.

A proposed weekend agenda outlined what to do in the mountain community, from the Inn of the Mountain Gods to the Ruidoso Downs Race Track and Casino, Sudderth Drive galleries and shops to dining options. The article also toured the Billy the Kid Scenic Byway, and the villages around the scenic route.

The feature probably helped connect Internet users with the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Web site. June Web site "hits" soared to 1.3 million, said Joan Zagone, the chamber's executive director. "Visits," where more than just a glance of the on-line information transpired, totaled 89,000. Zagone said Web site visitors spent one hour, on average, on the site.

DOL names top public, private employers in LC

Thirty-four employers in Lincoln County are listed by the state as "large employers," according to the New Mexico Department of Labor.

Of the total, 10 are government entities, such as the county, municipal or school district employers. Two federal operations in Ruidoso are also on the list, which is made up of businesses and governmental operations that hire 35 or more workers.

"The state cannot disclose the number of employees or annual wages," Dan Hall, with the New Mexico Department of Labor said. "We can disclose those listed as large employers."

Hall cautioned that the information may not be completely accurate because of incomplete accounting by some employers. He added that other large employers may be headquartered outside of Lincoln County. One example of a large employer, that impacts Ruidoso, but it outside Lincoln County is the Mescalero Apache Tribe with its gaming and lodging enterprises.

The data is gathered by the labor department's Bureau of Economic Research and Analysis.

 Lane Adams and Nancy Scott, of the First National Bank of Ruidoso, were recently promoted at the financial institution. Adams was named the bank's senior vice-president. Scott is a vice-president and loan officer.

Bank promotes officers

First National Bank of Ruidoso has promoted two officers.

Lane Adams was recently advanced to the position of senior vice-president of the bank at 451 Sudderth Drive. In his position Adams is the bank's senior lender and oversees all borrowing.

He has been with First National Bank for six years, initially being hired as a vice-president, loan officer. His new title places him as the number two in command at the bank.

Nancy Scott is a loan officer with First National. The bank's longest-term employee, Scott began her banking career as a teller with the former Moncor Bank in 1982. She began her employment with First National in 1985, when the bank opened its doors. In addition to being a loan officer, she also is in charge of Visa and Master Card accounts at the bank.

Airport managers convene here

Airport managers from around New Mexico will gather Monday at the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport for an aviation conference.

U.S. Senator Jeff Bingaman is scheduled to address the conference, said Tim Morris, manager of Sierra Blanca Regional. He anticipates Bingaman will discuss federal aviation legislation.

More than two dozen airport managers are expected to attend the session at the Ruidoso airport.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

The critical income statement

BY ROSALYN ROBINSON
 PIONEER BANK

Depending on the business, the financial data needed to make an informed decision varies. In a prior article, I discussed the balance sheet (B/S). The other most common pieces of data are the income statement and/or federal tax return (FTR). There are times you might need to see an accounts receivable ageing, inventory detail, equipment listing, or works in progress report.

In reviewing the income statement, you might consider the following:

• Consistency. If sales/expenses vary greatly year to year, obtain an explanation. Sales might increase 50 percent in the most recent year, yet the increase might be a result of one project that is not recurring. The drastic of a sales trend can place a company out of business. Can expenses keep up with sales?

• Different accountants. If there is a different accountant preparing the books each year, find out why.

• Cost of goods. This figure should be consistent if inventory was handled appropriately. If there is an increase in COGs, but inventory has not increased, ask why. Is the owner taking advantage of discount/terms?

• Depreciation expense. Check back to the balance sheet and verify there are assets to be depreciated.

• Interest expense. Check back to the balance sheet to see what liabilities require interest to be paid. Generally, liabilities do not transfer with the acquisition of a business so interest expense can be added back to cash flow.

• Extraordinary expenses.

Check for non-recurring expenses. Sellers will replace a car purchase, roof replacement, or origination fees paid on a loan. There might have been litigation requiring attorneys fees. Prior to adding back expense to cash flow, verify first the reason for the expense.

• Future expenses. Determine if staffing is where it should be or if there is deferred maintenance. Even if past expenses seem reasonable, both of these issues could drastically affect future expenses. Further, deferred maintenance could be an indication of cash flow problems.

Refer to the B/S to see how accounts receivable is turning over to meet expenses. An increase in interest expense on the income statement should correspond to an increase in liabilities on the B/S. If there is lease expense on the income statement, check the B/S to see if there is equipment and ask if that equipment is tied to a capital lease.

A lender will usually require FTRs to determine cash flow. The seller will be required to sign a statement that data provided is accurate. The seller will probably also be asked to sign a form 4506 to verify FTRs. There is cause for concern if they refuse to do so. If you have the income statements, you should check for inconsistencies.

Buying a business is a major commitment. There is "free" expert assistance surrounding you. Ask for help from your local bank, or contact the SBA, SBDC.

Alan Greenspan for Nobel Economics Prize?

BY SUNG WON SOHN
 CHIEF ECONOMIST, WELLS FARGO

Is the recent economic slowdown a spring flirtation? Higher interest rates are bearing some fruits. Some of the earlier hikes by the central bank are still in the pipeline. The stock market is no longer providing the kind of oomph it used to.

The Wilshire 5000, the favorite of Chairman Greenspan, has barely budged; the net worth in equities have dipped by $900 billion during the second quarter. The price of crude oil has tripled from its low, levying a tax burden of $75 billion and shaving economic growth by 1 percentage point. Higher prices have eroded consumers' buying power. The phasing out of census workers will reinforce the slowdown. Chairman Greenspan is on the verge of pulling off another soft landing, qualifying him for Nobel economics prize.

If I could ask God an economic question, it would be the sustainability of productivity gains that come from two sources: cyclical and structural. Cyclical gains slacken as economic growth ebbs. In this drum-tight labor market, businesses are reluctant to cut back employment and wages leading to higher labor costs and pinching profit margins. The bulk of productivity gains seem to be coming from long-term structural forces. The Old Economy, over 90 percent of the economy, is a primary beneficiary of the technology revolution. Heavy tractors now use a plug-in computer to diagnose engine problems. It used to take days to determine the cause and repair the problems; now it takes hours. Businesses continue to invest in efficiency-enhancing equipment.

However, it is premature to declare victory. Economic growth could rebound later this year. Higher energy costs might thread through the economy. Labor costs, which constitutes about two-thirds of the CPI, will surely rise. If the stock market rallies based on the mistaken belief that no more tightening is on the horizon, the economic temperature will rise leading to higher interest rates.

Credit spreads generous

Bonds are priced for a recession; stocks for a continuing economic boom. Neither market is completely right. However, the valuation is better in bonds now that a soft landing is likely. Credit spreads over Treasuries are likely to shrink. Tax-exempts, which gave us one of the highest returns over the last six months, low-coupon GNMA Passthroughs, Government Sponsored Enterprises and high-quality Corporates, are attractive.

The primary risk is that economic growth could reaccelerate later this year forcing the Federal Reserve to slam on the brakes. Higher interest rates and a recession should not be ruled out. Buy high-quality products.

Stock earnings concerns

A soft landing, a pause in monetary policy and the possible cresting of bond yields are music to equity investors. No wrenching market correction is on the horizon. Attention will shift to earnings from interest rates. A soft landing does not necessarily mean poor earnings. Economically sensitive sectors of the economy including basic industries, retailers and other consumer cyclicals are only about 8 percent of S&P 500 earnings while economically non-sensitive areas such as technology, healthcare, financial services, consumer staples, etc. account for more than 55 percent.

The gains in S&P 500 earnings this year will approach 20 percent. But a rotational correction will continue based on earnings disappointments from excess valuations and the ongoing economic slowdown.

Alto couple to launch weekly travel column in these pages

Beginning Aug. 11, locally based freelance travel writers/photographers Ellen and Hank Barone will publish a weekly travel column exclusively for the Ruidoso News. Appearing every Friday, the column will feature destinations in and around the Southwest as well as places further afield such as Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean, Alaska, and Europe. Included in the column will be helpful advice such as recommended accommodations, activities, restaurants, and other useful information.

The Barones

The Barones moved to Alto in June of 1998 from Pennsylvania, after discovering the area during a year-long hiatus spent exploring western North America: Canada, the U.S., and Mexico. While wintering in Mexico along the banks of Lake Chapala, Mexico's largest and most scenic inland lake, they met Glencoe residents Ann and Doug Templeton. Upon returning to the States and inspired by the Templetons' glowing descriptions of the area, the Barones came to Ruidoso. Planning to stay just a week, they ended up staying two months, quickly falling in love with the area. A year later, they moved here permanently.

Ellen, already an established photographer, teamed up with the award-winning pair of travel photographers, Dave and Jan Houser, who operate a prosperous travel stock-photography business from their home in nearby Nogal. In addition to owning the stock agency, Dave Houser is an accomplished travel writer.

Seizing the opportunity for a new challenge, Ellen began writing self-illustrated travel articles, with Hank joining in shortly afterwards. Before long, the two found themselves traveling the globe on writing and photography assignments. Together and separately, their work has been published in guide books, and regional, national and international travel publications. Keen to share their love of the Southwest, the Barones frequently feature local events and destinations. In fact, you may have seen Ellen's feature story and photographs of The Last Great Cattle Drive in the May 2000 issue of American Cowboy or her article on Las Cruces' Farm and Ranch Museum in the March/April 2000 issue of New Mexico Journey Magazine.

Traveling nearly every month of the year, upcoming trips will include a 200-mile, six-day rafting adventure through the Grand Canyon, a scuba diving trip to Bonaire, off the coast of Venezuela, and a spa in the Caribbean.

Whether you're an ardent armchair traveler or off exploring the globe yourself, you're bound to enjoy the Barones lively and informative travel column, bringing the world to Ruidoso.

County's firefighters learn to cope with blazing LP gas

BY JIM KALVELAGE
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Firefighters from four Lincoln County communities Monday night trained on battling a liquid propane gas tank blaze.

The training session, at the Ruidoso Fire Department's Station No. 2 on White Mountain Drive, brought dozens of fire crews and a crowd of spectators.

"It teaches the guys how to approach it (the flaming tank)," said Virgil Reynolds, Ruidoso's fire chief. "It teaches them that they've all got to be in sequence. The object is to get up to the tank and turn off the gas."

Fire crews from the Bonito, Nogal, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs departments were part of the exercise.

The LP gas training was one of several learning exercises firefighters are involved with annually. It's been about two years since a training session involving a propane tank, Reynolds said.

A contingent of firefighters, wearing protective gear and self-contained breathing apparatus, inched their way closer to the flame-geysering tank using water to make their advance. Once next to the tank valves would be closed to stop the escape of flame-feeding gas.

MAGISTRATE COURT

The following cases were recently adjudicated in Lincoln County Magistrate Court with Judge William R. Butts presiding:

Larry A. Norman, 51, Roswell, entered a plea of guilty to charges of aggravated DWI second offense and having an open container in a motor vehicle. Norman was sentenced to seven days at the Lincoln County Detention Center, placed on 357 days probation, and assessed $763 in fines and costs. He was also ordered to perform 48 hours of community service.

John Apodaca, 21, Corrales, through a plea agreement, entered a no-contest plea and was found guilty of misdemeanor aggravated battery against a household member. A charge of felony aggravated battery was dismissed. Apodaca was put on probation for 364 days and charged $51 in court costs. As probation conditions Apodaca must remain in counseling, attend an AA program and become employed or enrolled in college. Compliance with the probation conditions would remove the conviction.

Stephen W. White, 35, Ruidoso, tendered a no contest plea and was found guilty of battery against a household member, a petty misdemeanor. White was sentenced to 179 days probation and required to pay $51 in costs.

Cameron M. Williams, 23, Ruidoso Downs, through a plea agreement, entered a no-contest plea and was found guilty of a reduced charge of battery, a petty misdemeanor. Williams received 182 days of probation and was ordered to pay $51 in court costs.

George Olivas, 35, Fort Stanton, through a plea agreement, entered a no-contest plea and was found guilty of misdemeanor aggravated battery. Charges of aggravated assault, false imprisonment, battery against a household member and criminal trespass were dismissed by an assistant district attorney. Olivas was placed on 364 days probation and assessed $51 in costs.

Charles Fred Dean, Jr., no age or hometown listed, entered a plea of guilty to misdemeanor battery against a household member. Dean was sentenced to 90 days in jail, placed on probation for 274 days and ordered to pay $51 in costs.

Zesty trio dazzles

by Sandy Suggitt
¡VAMOS! EDITOR

The three "girlfriends" that make up the Eroica Trio plan a "meat-and-potatoes" program for their Aug. 12 performance at the Spencer Theater.

Accomplished musicians Erika Nickrenz on piano, Adela Peña on violin, and Sara Sant'Ambrogio on cello, will open the evening with a selection from their baroque CD, Sonata in G major by Antonio Lotti.

"It's a charming piece," said Nickrenz. "It's light, melodic, a great way to start a program."

The trio will perform Brahms' Sextet in B-flat major, Op. 18 — for the first time, Nickrenz said, and they're excited about it.

"We've been wanting to play it for several seasons and are thrilled to get to play it for the first time," she said.

Known for expanding the repertoire of classical music, the ensemble's programs often include a wide range of classical works spanning the last 300 years, and stimulate interest by adding contemporary music. Although none are scheduled for the Spencer, Nickrenz said, one of the encores will be contemporary — perhaps a tango.

The three musicians have known each other since they were nine, and formed the Eroica Trio while still students at Juilliard in 1986.

"Sara and I had musical families, so it was very natural to play instruments," Nickrenz said. "My father, Scott Nickrenz, was a violist, so I heard chamber music played before I was born."

Nickrenz and Peña studied with Sant'Ambrogio's grandmother, Isabelle Sant'Ambrogio, and Peña coached chamber music with John Sant'Ambrogio, principal cellist of the St. Louis Symphony, Sara Sant'Ambrogio's father.

Accomplished award-winning soloists, in the last couple of years, the trio's performances have mostly been ensemble, Nickrenz said.

"Solo life is not nearly as much fun as traveling with a friend," she said.

The trio performs about 100 concerts a year, and has toured the United States, Europe and Asia.

In 1997, the trio was Carnegie Hall's official representative for the "Distinctive Debuts" touring series, which they opened at Weill Recital Hall. A consortium of European halls sponsored the series with performances at Konzerthaus in Vienna, Concertgebouw in Amsterdam, Philharmonie in Cologne and Kunserthus in Stockholm.

The Wall Street Journal lauded the trio's performance: "Just as in their successful Carnegie Hall debut and smash-hit CD release, these three women demonstrate that on musical merits, they have earned their foothold on the very highest rung of the profession."

"Passion" and "excitement" are words used by many reviewers to describe their performances.

The New York Times says they are all at a very high technical level "and share an ardent, energetic and tightly-coiled approach to playing."

Billy the Kid escapes Old Lincoln Days

by Sindy Suggitt
MONOSI EDITOR

Billy the Kid is growing up — and it's about time.

John Shrecengost plays the famous outlaw for the sixth year. He started when he was 15, and with this year's performance of "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid," Shrecengost will be just about the right age.

Shrecengost's brother played Billy the seven years previously, and his father for 15 consecutive years before that, said Kent McInnis, president of the Pageant Committee.

"Peter Hurd was the first Billy the Kid," he said. "I'm in my 23rd year and I play five different parts, and have for the last 10 years," he said.

The reenactment of Billy's jailbreak goes from the killing of Tunstall to the escape from the courthouse, McInnis said.

"The last scene is everybody's favorite scene, and there are three or four different versions of how he escaped," he said. The script followed by the 100 or so people involved in the performance (not including the real horses) is the "romantic" version:

Deputy Bell and the Kid are playing cards and the kid throws a card off the table. Bell reaches down to get it for him and the kid pulls Bell's pistol out of his holster.

Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox plays Sheriff Pat Garrett and has for the past 15 years, McInnis said.

"We use real weapons and Lanny loads the blanks. They make real fire and a loud pop," he said. Part of the reason for having the Friday and Saturday performances at 8:30 p.m. is so it'll be dark enough for the viewers to see the gunfire.

People sit on bleachers in the Pageant Grounds and some bring lawn chairs. In the 58 years of the pageant tradition, the performance has never been canceled, McInnis said, even though one year it rained and the actors were all performing in the mud.

"We had 75 to 100 people with umbrellas," McInnis said. "We went ahead and put on the show."

Eddie Money plays at casino

Eddie Money will perform at the West Conference Grounds in Mescalero next week in what promises to be "the biggest light show we've ever had," according to Dawn Davidson, in charge of advertising. A canopy for the stage ensures a performance, no matter the weather, she said.

Eddie Money is famous for such hits of the '80s as "Two Tickets to Paradise," "Take Me Home Tonight," "Shaken," and "Baby, Hold Onto Me." He is celebrating 20 years in the industry and has recently released a new CD and video.

The outdoor performance starts at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 12 and people can bring coolers, but no alcohol, glass containers, video equipment or recording equipment, Davidson said. Food, beverages, beer and margaritas will be available for purchase as well.

Zesty trio dazzles

was released on an independent label). The first, "The Eroica Trio," features works by Ravel, Benjamin Godard, a commissioned arrangement of the Gershwin Preludes and Paul Schoenfield's "Café Music" and won the Debut-Recording-of-the-Year award from NPR and was named in the Top Ten Recordings of 1997 in Time Out New York.

All the CDs — and a fourth, "iPasión!" is due out in October — have been produced by Nickrenz' mother, three-time Grammy-Award winner Joanna Nickrenz.

The trio arrange music themselves and have original music commissioned, considering that important to expand the piano repertoire for groups that come after them, Nickrenz said.

In fact, their success bringing classical music to a wider audience is due in part to what they've done to shed the image of middle-aged male classical musicians.

Most exciting for them, Nickrenz said, is going to "far-flung places."

They recently returned from Hanoi, Vietnam, where they were extremely well received, although advertising was not allowed there. Hennessy-Cognac makers could put banners up all over the city announcing the concert at the historical opera hall.

"It was exciting because the people were just starving for music," Nickrenz said. "They distributed all the tickets in five minutes and had Sony-surround screens outside the theater and the whole concert was televised. We had thousands of people in the street stopped on their bicycles."

The trio plays for schools and colleges and donates a week of concerts "that allow people to hear music where they can't come to us," Nickrenz explained. They perform for the homeless in homeless shelters, for low-income seniors, families without fathers, and go to all the burroughs of New York to bring the inhabitants the gift of music.

"The kids are so into it; they want to come up and touch our instruments, and we let them," Nickrenz said. "They'll start out scared in the back of the room, not interested and not focused on the music, and then as we're playing, they'll start coming to sit near us and they go from disinterest to wonder and amazement."

The rapport between the trio and the audience is one of the aspects of their performance often noted.

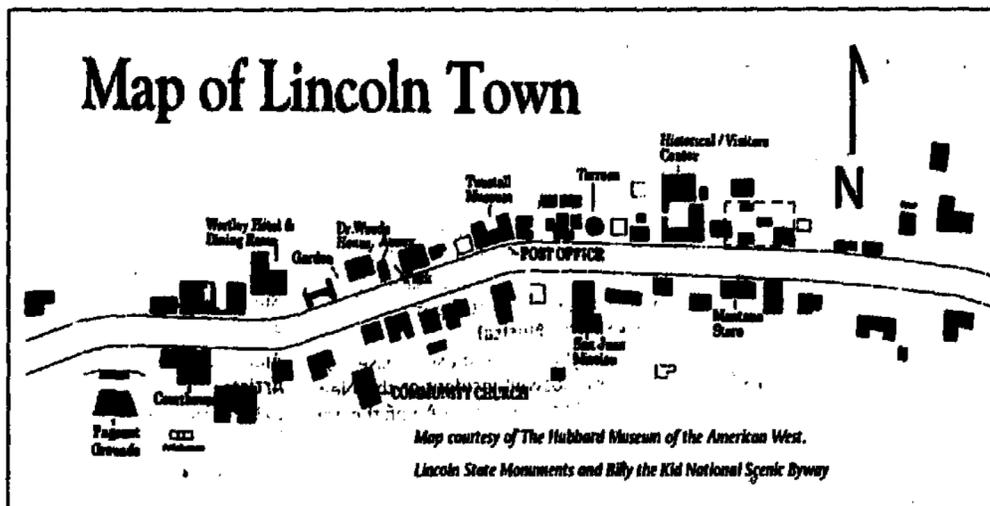

"We joke that playing concerts is kind of like a quartet instead of a trio, because it's a trio plus the audience, and that makes it a quartet," Nickrenz said.

She said they sense the energy level of the audience and then play to it to enliven the experience for everyone. Sometimes they focus in on one person who seems particularly tuned in and moved by what they're doing, which can in turn be moving for them.

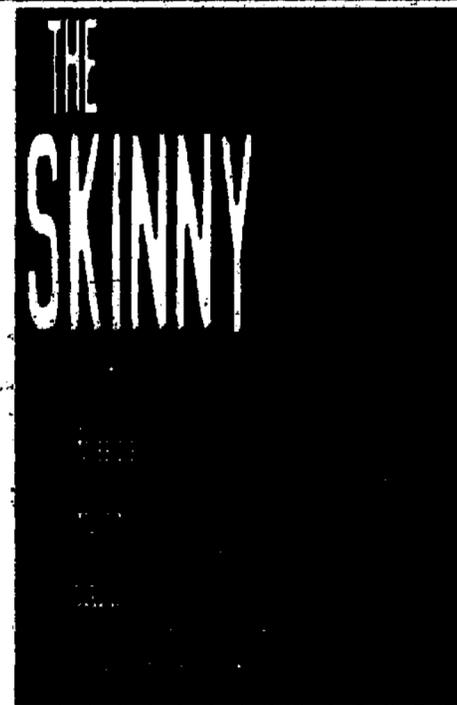

The Eroica Trio doesn't mind at all when the audience responds to their music with excitement and enthusiasm or claps between movements.

"Some artists hush them up with a scowling face, and I think that's terrible," Nickrenz said. "It's making them feel like idiots for liking the music and wanting to respond and then they're afraid to clap at the end of the piece."

"I think (disapproval) dissuades people from coming to concerts. So we acknowledge if the audience claps, we thank them by smiling. We never want them to feel alienated from being an audience member."

Directed by Peter Segal. Distributor: Universal Pictures

Synopsis: Lovable Sherman Klump (Eddie Murphy) thought he had seen the last of his alter-ego, but Buddy Love is back, and trying to make it on his own. Having done his best to keep Buddy buried in his subconscious, the portly and painfully shy professor is horrified to find him resurfacing in untimely outbursts, and threatening his marriage plans to colleague Denise Gains (Janet Jackson). Utilizing Denise's cutting-edge DNA research, Sherman decides to rid himself of his monstrous nemesis — and his disruptive outbursts — once and for all by extracting Buddy's DNA from his system. But Buddy will not go quietly. He bursts full-bodied into Sherman's world and lays claim to the professor's astounding invention — a revolutionary youth serum. Desperate to keep it from Buddy, Sherman hides the serum in the Klump family home, thinking it will be safe. But Buddy finally locates the lucrative "youth juice," and steals away. And so begins a race against time, as Sherman battles to reclaim his formula, restore order to his family, and marry the woman he loves — before all hell breaks loose.

Spencer reveals winter season

Photos courtesy the Spencer Theater for the Performing Arts

With grace and gusto, the Spencer Theater articulates the full breath of the human experience this winter season 2000-2001, presenting its fullest programming schedule to date.

The star-studded season of 21 performances, running September through April, opens with the sweet and sultry voice of Rita Coolidge in two concerts, 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, September 9. Ms

"ELLIS ISLAND," part of the Outreach/School Shows

Coolidge will sing her classic R&B/Pop hits ("Your Love Has Lifted Me) Higher and Higher," "Don't Want To Talk About It," and "Fever."

Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" at 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 18 and again at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19, is the first of the season's touring Broadway shows, bringing marvelous music, dancing and vaudeville hilarity to the Spencer.

Ushering in the first of three Russian performance groups this season, the Chamber Orchestra Kremlin, 8 p.m.,

Friday, Oct. 13 presents some of Moscow's finest young musicians in an 18-string ensemble that will captivate listeners with their exquisite control, unique sound and personality.

November is headlined by more great Broadway when Tony-Award winner Ron Holgate stars in "Man of La Mancha," at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3. Sponsored by KRUI — 1490 A.M., the musical adventure is a blend of biography, romance and spirit — Don Quixote's pursuit for the impossible dream.

Ring in the most enchanting holiday music heard in years, Kurt Bestor's Orchestral Christmas reverberates in two concerts, Saturday, December 16 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Bestor's contemporary instrumental arrangements are presented with a full compliment of musicians — six band members and an orchestra of 18.

Just days before Christmas, Handel's Messiah — the most sublime of choral performances — is presented in a full, authentic Baroque version. Performed by the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra and Chorus on Friday, Dec. 22 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 23 at 2 p.m. This oratorio is a resounding masterpiece of universal appeal.

A very first happens at the Spencer Theater in February: the stage is transformed into an ice skating rink hosting the 34 ice dancers of the St. Petersburg State Ice Ballet. In two performances of "Cinderella on Ice" at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, February 10, the Russian skaters glide with the grace and grandeur of classical ballet and lift with the stunning spirals that make ice ballet so theatrically sensational.

Classical Russian ballet follows in two performances of "Swan Lake" at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, February 17. Performed by the Moscow Festival Ballet, the 12-year-old independent company (under the direction of its founder, the legendary principal dancer Sergei Radchenko) incorporates the highest elements of the great Bolshoi and Kirov Ballets into this historic masterwork.

Perhaps the greatest actor yet to star on the Spencer stage, Hal Holbrook masterfully assumes the curmudgeonly character of one of America's greatest novelists, essayists and raconteurs in "Mark Twain

COLE PORTER'S "Anything Goes"

Tonight! 8 p.m. Saturday, March 10

The enduring theater piece launched Holbrook's career over 40 years ago, winning him a Tony Award and a New York Drama Critics' Circle Special Citation.

Great American theater is juxtaposed by great musical theater when one of New York's biggest hits, "Jekyll and Hyde" seizes the stage at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 21 and 8 p.m. Thursday, March 22.

Romance resonates in this epic battle between good and evil as absolute horror, gothic lighting, costumes and sets evoke the shadow side of the soul in this musical odyssey.

Center stage gives way to a musical comedy that is sexy and riotously entertaining when "Crazy For You" is performed in two shows at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. March 30. The winner of the 1992 Tony Award, Drama Desk and Outer Critics Circle Awards, this loveable and absurd musical delights with its boy-meets-girl plot.

The Allegro Chamber Trio brings the audience the lovely tone colors of a rarely heard combination of flute, viola and harp at 8 p.m. Friday, April 20 in a poignant and rich performance. The trio is composed of outstanding soloists who, together, create a marvelous music.

Families and friends will know the stars on stage in the 7 p.m., April 22 performance of "Peter Pan." More than 30 local children join the cast of the Elgin Children's Theater in this adventurous musical tale about three children who fly away from their nursery and enter the wonder of Never-Never-Land. Sponsored by the Ruidoso News, this is the first children's theater workshop offered during the winter season.

And what about John Bayless? The dynamic piano virtuoso anchors the Winter Season 2001, when he returns by popular demand for a concert 8 p.m. Saturday, April 28. Innovative and personable, Bayless was first introduced to Spencer Theater audiences in 1998 with an encore performance in 1999. He is now a favorite.

For more information about the Spencer Theater's Winter Season 2001, call the box office toll free at 1-888-818-7872 or visit www.spencertheater.com on the world wide web. The Spencer Theater Winter Season 2001 is sponsored in part by Sierra Blanca Motor Company, Dale Chihuly Studio, Seattle, Salon Red, The Ruidoso News and McGary Studios/Expressions in Bronze Gallery. Media sponsors are The Ruidoso News and KRUI-1490 AM.

Tickets for Spencer Theater events are available at the box office at (505) 336-4800, (888) 818-7872 or through tickets.com at (800) 905-3315. The Spencer Theater is on-line at www.spencertheater.com.

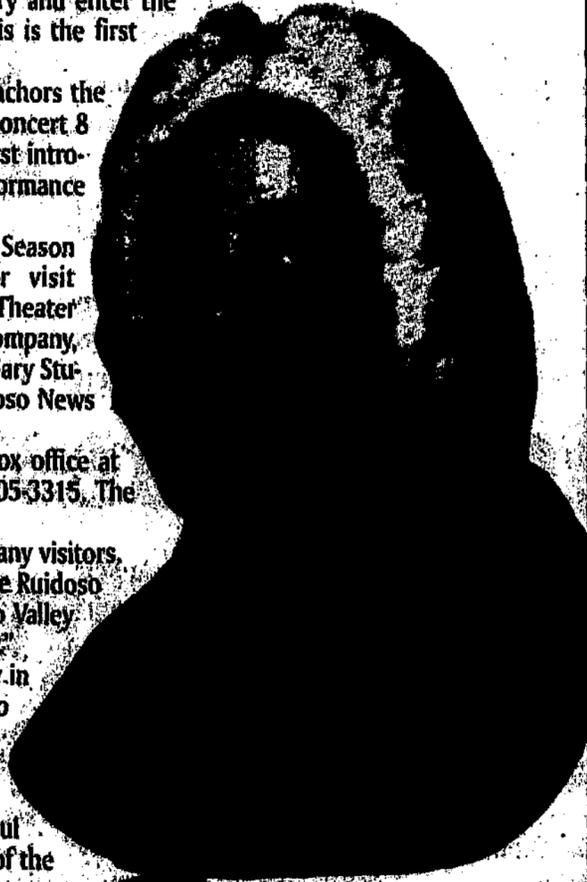

The Ruidoso Art Festival has become a summer tradition for many visitors. "We find that people are planning their vacation time around the Ruidoso Art Festival," says Joan Zagone, executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce. "... art is a great qualifier for a community."

By that, she means that having a nationally acclaimed art show in town shows people that Ruidoso has integrity and culture. Ruidoso is an unknown area to many people, Zagone said, but seeing the caliber of event that the art show is convinces them to come.

Many of the local artists that have attended in past years are returning this year, along with others from around the country. Paul and Becky Crown, a local art duo, have attended the show for 28 of the 29 years it has been held. They feel that this event is much more personal and enjoyable than others they have attended.

Another local duo, Georgia and Lee Van Pelt, say that the organizers of the show cater to the artists, bringing them drinks, providing an artists' dinner, and manning the booths when they need to take a break.

Ruidoso, says Zagone, is "very much like Santa Fe, except it's much more accessible. It's not just for the collector," says to Zagone. "It's open for everyone to enjoy and participate in."

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH" is on tap for the holiday season.

HAL HOLBROOK will assume the curmudgeonly character of Mark Twain in a one-man show.

TONY-WINNER Ron Holgate as Don Quixote.

THE SPENCER THEATER stage will be transformed into a professional ice rink when it hosts the 34 ice dancers of the St. Petersburg State Ice Ballet performing "Cinderella On Ice."

Suanne Wamsley displays at Chamber

Suanne Wamsley has spent her life riding and drawing horses. Working in colored pencil, she specializes in racing art and commissioned portraits of horses.

A former graphic artist, Wamsley has a BFA from the University of Wisconsin and has continued independent study of the horse through her love of the animal. In 1985, she settled in Ruidoso with her horses, who have served as models for various pieces.

Wamsley's work has appeared on the covers of many major equine publications, including the Quarter Horse Journal, Paint Horse Journal, Appaloosa Journal, Speedhorse, Quarter Racing Record and Southern Horseman. Both the American Quarter Horse Association and the American Paint Horse Association have commissioned her to produce posters for their World Championship Shows.

Owners of race and show horses have commissioned her, and her drawing, "The Break," won the Sprint Award sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association. Golden Gate Field commissions her annually to portray the winner of the California Derby. Her work was used on a credit card in conjunction with the Appaloosa Horse Club, and also this year with MBNA Bank.

Wamsley's work is displayed at Fenton Gallery and Mountain Arts in Ruidoso and with Cowhorse Gallery in Canyon, Texas.

A reception is scheduled for the cowboy art of Gary Niblett

Gary Niblett rode along on the Cattle Drive as the official artist, a job offered him by R.D. Hubbard, and that he referred to as "a labor of love." He photographed many scenes which he later turned into the paintings that are now on display at the Hubbard Museum of the American West.

The cattle drive was a long, cold six days, and since that experience, Niblett says, "I have a new appreciation of what cowboys had to go through. It was interesting eating from a chuck wagon every day." The cattle drive was a "historical reenactment" sponsored by R.D. Hubbard and the Triple B Cattle Company of El Paso.

The exhibit at the museum opened July 28, and will run through September 10. An opening reception will be held August 12 at the Museum. There will be hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar, admission will be $5 for non-members, and museum members are free.

Niblett's art has been displayed all over the world, including places like the Central Artists House in Moscow, Beijing Exhibition Center in Beijing, and the Royal Watercolor Society in London. He has been featured in several television shows in the U.S. and England including, "The South Bank Show" in London, and "The Enduring West" on PBS.

"I enjoy painting Western scenes, it's what I've always done," says Niblett. He was born and raised in Carlsbad, where the "Wild West" was a part of everyday life. He has been painting since his high school years, when he was paid by local ranchers to create portraits of their horses. After high school, he moved to California to attend the Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles. He moved back to New Mexico in 1973 to resume his Western painting, after working for Hanna Barbera Studios as a background artist for eight years.

Niblett is a member of the Cowboy Artists of America (CAA) and the Santa Fe Watercolor Society. He first participated in the CAA art show in 1977, and won his first silver medal that year. He has won several awards in the CAA show, including two more silver medals and one gold medal.

Babies and restaurants are the Chernobyl of parenting

Dave Barry
DAVE'S WORLD
TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

If you're a new parent, there will come a time when either you or your spouse will say these words:

"Let's take the baby to a restaurant!"

Now, to a normal, sane person, this statement is absurd. It's like saying: "Let's take a moose to the opera!"

But neither you nor your spouse will see anything inappropriate about the idea of taking your baby to a restaurant. This is because, as new parents, you are experiencing a magical period of wonder, joy and possibility that has made you really stupid. You are not alone: All new parents undergo a sharp drop in intelligence. It's nature's way of enabling them to form an emotional bond with a tiny human who relates with other humans exclusively by spitting up on them. Even very smart parents are affected, as we see from these two quotations:

Albert Einstein Shortly Before The Birth Of His Son: "To know that what is impenetrable to us really exists, manifesting itself as the highest wisdom and the most radiant beauty, which our dull faculties can comprehend only in their most primitive forms - this knowledge, this feeling, is at the center of true religiousness."

Albert Einstein Shortly After The Birth Of His Son: "Daddy's gonna EAT THESE WIDDLE TOES!"

After a month or so of bonding with their baby, the typical parents have the combined IQ of a charcoal briquette. This is when they decide it's OK to take the baby to a restaurant. I know what I'm talking about: My wife and I have a baby daughter, and we have repeatedly taken her to restaurants, even though by now experience should have taught us that it would be far more pleasant and relaxing for us to stay home and play tic-tac-toe on our foreheads with a soldering iron.

But we cannot help ourselves, and neither can you, if you're a new parent. That's why today I'm presenting these Helpful Tips For Dining Out With A Baby:

1. THE INSTANT YOU GET TO THE RESTAURANT, ASK FOR THE CHECK. You want to be able to pay and get out of there as quickly as possible when your baby screams, or decides - as babies instinctively do, in restaurants - to grunt out an impossibly large output, such that you experience a dreaded condition known to diaper scientists as Projectile Huggies Leakage (PHL). So it's best to pay your bill as you enter the restaurant, adding a little extra (say, $800) to compensate for the fact that after you're finished, your table may have to be burned. Some parents never actually enter the restaurant: They simply drive up to the front door, hurl money out the car window, then speed off, their baby wailing like an ambulance siren in the night.

2. REQUEST A TABLE IN A LOCATION THAT WILL NOT DISTURB OTHER DINERS. For example, if you want to eat at an elegant restaurant in New York City, you should try to get a table on the roof. Or, better still, at a Bob's Big Boy in Cleveland.

3. SELECT AN APPROPRIATE CUISINE. Of the wide variety of cuisines available today - Italian, French, Chinese, Tiny Portions Of Meat With Some Kind Of Inedible Decorative Stuff Dribbled On The Plate In A Pattern As If It Were An Art Project Instead Of A Meal - I would say that the best kind of cuisine, for the parent of a small baby, is a cuisine that you can eat with one hand.

You of course need the other hand to keep putting things into your baby's mouth, so your baby can spit them out (a baby is not happy unless it is emitting something from somewhere). In fact, you may need both hands for this activity, so you might want to order an entree that you can eat with no hands, sporadically lunging your face down to your plate and snorking up food Labrador-retriever style. You will not have time to taste anything. Restaurant employees know this, and sometimes, for fun, they serve prank entrees to new parents, to see if they'll notice. A Boston restaurant recently got a new father, distracted by a small baby, to eat a whisk broom covered with melted cheese.

At least he ate something. Sometimes I spend the entire meal carrying my daughter around the restaurant, crossing paths with other nomadic parents carrying THEIR children around, each of us leaving a trail of drool. Our big night out! It may not sound like fun to you, but we parents of newborns are able to enjoy it, because of our philosophy of life, which can be summed up by the immortal words penned by William Shakespeare shortly after the birth of his first child: "Woogum woogum WOOGUM WOOGUM WOOGUM!"

Fun with the "High Fives"

*It took the bandits three tries with dynamite
before they were able to open the door of the express car. Once inside, they dynamited the Wells Fargo safe, and proceeded to dump many thousands of dollars into a large sack (it has never been ascertained exactly how much they got away with.)*

There are many legendary bandits from the Old West. The James/Younger gang, Butch Cassidy's Wild Bunch and several others come immediately to mind. In the Southwest, in the 1890s, there was a bunch who called themselves the "High Fives." Not as notorious as those mentioned above, they did, in fact, have quite a reputation at the time. Composed primarily of members of the Will "Black Jack" Christian gang, the High Fives came into existence after the sudden – very sudden – death of Black Jack himself at the hands of the authorities. Named after a popular card game of the time, they were, as bandits went, quite busy and, in fact, quite successful.

The gang

At the time of the robbery at Grants, New Mexico Territory, the leader of the High Fives was 20-year-old Jeff Davis, aka Jess Johnson, aka Jesse Miller, whose real name was George Musgrave. George was destined to lead a lawless, and ultimately, lonely life that was not destined to end until 1947. Amiable and generally well-liked, Musgrave was known for his sometimes dark sense of humor and, at 6 feet and 200 lbs., his large build.

With George was Bob Christian, brother of the late and unlamented (at least by the authorities) Will "Black Jack" Christian. Twenty pounds lighter and three inches shorter than Musgrave, Christian had the reputation of being bold and reckless, which came in rather handy in his chosen profession.

Sid Moore, who had been known to Pecos Valley ranchers as Ef Hillman, was, except for his blonde hair with the noticeable bald spot and his piercing blue eyes, non-descript. Last was Van Musgrave, older brother of George. Thanks to his alias of Theodore James, only gang members were aware that he and George were related. Van had been an on-and-off outlaw for at least a dozen years and until recently had operated a lucrative rustling operation in Texas and New Mexico.

On the evening of Sunday, October 24, 1897, the gang rode into Fort Thomas and bought supplies, arousing suspicion by purchasing over a hundred pounds of feed for their horses and then buying a bandana for each man. Despite the fact that the clerk deduced that they were about to take a long trip and were buying materials that could be used for the purpose of disguising themselves, he felt that his suspicions were too flimsy and failed to notify the authorities. After making their purchases, the outlaws sauntered across the street to the saloon where they treated the inhabitants to a couple of rounds of drinks. Then they left town.

Two days later, they were seen with an apparently newly-acquired packhorse in the vicinity of Cedar Springs and Cottonwood Canyon. They were headed for the Malpais country — the Badlands.

On Saturday afternoon, November 6, 1897, the gang rode into Grant, New Mexico Territory (the town would not become "Grants" until 1935). One of the men, Bob Christian, wandered over to the local general store, bought a bottle of tonsil paint, and walked out.

The train

When Santa Fe locomotive No. 67 had departed Los Angeles, it had lost some time and had been struggling, all the way across the Arizona Territory, to make it up. It was about to be delayed for considerably more than the 30 minutes that they had been concerned about ...

When the train pulled into remote Grant's Station to take on water, the fireman jumped off the train and, from the other side, Sid Moore and Bob Christian jumped onto the locomotive. At the same time, the train's passengers heard a fusillade of some 20 to 25 shots and saw a number of hobos fleeing into the night. Both passengers and crew assumed that the hobos were being routed by railroad employees. Not quite.

Engineer Henry McCarty (no, he was not related to Billy the Kid) jumped off the train, too, once he realized what was going on. The bandits were now in complete control of the locomotive. Catching up with the fleeing fireman, the robbers had him detach the passenger cars and then pull the train about a mile ahead where he was ordered to stop it. Luckily for the railroad, the express messenger did figure out what was happening and managed to hide a good deal of the valuables in the car. He then fled, locking the car as he left.

The robbery

It took the bandits three tries with dynamite before they were able to open the door of the express car. Once inside, they dynamited the Wells Fargo safe, and proceeded to dump many thousands of dollars into a large sack. (It has never been ascertained exactly how much they got away with. Wells Fargo routinely played down the amount of money to discourage future bandits, and the San Francisco earthquake in 1906 destroyed many of their records. Therefore, the amount remains a matter of conjecture, although people at the time theorized that it was at least $40,000).

The outlaws were amiable about it ... finding the vanished messenger's lunch bag, they shared it with the fireman whom they had pressed into service. After that, they offered him a drink of whiskey and, after shaking hands with him, tipped him $15. One of them, probably Bob Christian, told him that "if anyone asks, tell them that old Bill Dalton has come to life again!" The outlaws then vanished into the darkness, singing the song "Little Brown Jug" as they did so.

Unfortunately, one of the dynamite blasts had set the express car on fire. The fireman, in a panic, slammed the engine into reverse, which sent the engine, mail, baggage and express cars hurtling back toward the passenger cars. Luckily, the roar of the oncoming engine alerted the passengers to their plight and they all departed the train at a speed approaching Mach 1. And, while some mail and baggage was salvaged, the resulting crash completely destroyed at least two cars.

The culprits

There was never any real doubt as to the identity of the bandits.

Everyone knew the "High Fives" and it sounded like their sort of play.

At a place called Separ, New Mexico Territory, a group of outlaws, among whom was George Musgrave and possibly others from the Grant robbery, rode into town one night, rounded up the inhabitants, marched them down to the saloon and forced them, at gunpoint, to buy round after round.

They then, according to a local paper, "took everything available in sight." Separ never recovered. Today the town consists of a gas station and a convenience store.

Approximately two weeks later, on December 10, 1897, newspapers reported that a robbery had taken place at Steins Pass, New Mexico Territory, the night before and that in a wild gun battle, there had been several fatalities. Very little is known of this incident. If it was the High Fives, none of the four Grant robbers was killed. Also, about the same time, Tom Ketchum began to be known as "Black Jack" Ketchum and so began a lot of confusion as to who was who. Many could not understand that Will Christian and Tom Ketchum, both of whom went by the sobriquet "Black Jack," were not the same man. Accordingly Ketchum was blamed for many crimes that he did not do and there is a good possibility that many of these crimes were committed by the High Fives.

In December, Secretary of State John Sherman began to attempt to extradite the High Fives from Mexico, where they had wisely fled. In April of 1898, the Mexican government refused to surrender George Musgrave, maintaining that there was not enough proof. There was no mention of the other Grant robbers.

Finale

For all intents and purposes, the investigation into the Grant train robbery and the pursuit of the bandits was over. Only George Musgrave remained on the proverbial "owhoot trail." His brother Van shows up periodically along the border and on both sides of it, at times working as a cowboy and at least once in the hotel business. Bob Christian vanished into the mists of time and history, although there was at least one account that had him remaining in Mexico, where he lived out his days as a law-abiding citizen. Sid Moore seems to have completely vanished off the face of the earth. There is no record, letter, or anything to tell us what became of him.

And George Musgrave? Well, it seems that George was inordinately fond of being an outlaw, and he remained in that line of work until the end of his days. Shifting effortlessly into the 20th century, George adapted from horses to automobiles and was occasionally mentioned as an associate of such 20th century outlaws as John Dillinger. He operated all across South America before returning to North America, where he continued his illegal enterprises. The law, of course, was always interested in whatever George's undertakings happened to be, but were no more successful in bringing him to justice in the 20th century than they had been in the 19th.

George Musgrave remained an outlaw — across six countries and two continents — for an incredible 50 years. But in the end, he died penniless and alone, in 1947.

Note to Hollywood: Should you ever want to do a film on "The Last Outlaw," George Musgrave may well be your man.

As your local University Off-Campus Center, we serve more than 1500 credit and non-credit students through a wide variety of academic programs. Our instructors and staff are talented, experienced professionals in their respective academic fields, friendly and ready to help you. That's why we have designed this schedule to make enrolling and registering at the Ruidoso Center as convenient as possible. Inside, you will find a list of afternoon and evening classes scheduled for the Fall Session. You will also find information on how to enroll and how to register for class, and what student services are available. But, if you still have questions, call us at 257-2120 or 1-800-934-3668. Or visit our offices at 709 Mechem.

¡BIENVENIDOS!

Bienvenidos a la Universidad del Este de Nuevo Mexico en Ruidoso, como Universidad local, servimos a mas de 1300 estudiantes acreditados y no acreditados con una extensa variedad de programas academicos. Nuestros maestros y personal administrativo son amistosos y estan listos para ayudarle. Por eso es que hemos disenado este programa, para hacer el ingreso en ENMU-Ruidoso tan conveniente como sea posible. Encontraran una lista de clases por las tardes o en la noche. Tambien encontraran informacion en como ingresar y que servicios estan disponibles para los estudiantes. Si tiene alguna duda o pregunta, puede llamar al telefono 257-2120 o 1-800-934-3668.

ADMISSIONS

The Ruidoso Center has an "open" admissions policy which means anyone with a high school diploma or GED Certificate may attend. Applications are available at the Center office.

ATTENDANCE

Attendance is required at all sessions for each course for which the student is enrolled. When circumstances make attendance impossible, such absences should be reported to the instructor. Possibilities for makeup work should be discussed with the instructor on an individual basis. No extensions of vacation periods are given to a student. Nonattendance of classes due to late registration is considered the same as absences incurred after registration.

CANCELLED-LIMITED SIZE CLASSES

The Ruidoso Center reserves the right to cancel any classes which do not attain the minimum enrollment requirement. The Center also reserves the right to close enrollment in those classes where the maximum capacity is reached.

COURSE REPEATING

If you are repeating a course, be sure to fill out repeat forms at the time of registration.

EDUCATIONAL PROMISSORY LOANS

Educational Promissory Loan contracts are available to students who are taking a minimum of six (6) credit hours. A $10.00 contract fee plus 30% of the total amount of tuition and books is due at the time of registration. Students who have a balance due on a Educational Promissory Loan Contract from previous semesters will be required to make financial arrangements with Office Coordinator Pat Counts prior to registering. Failure to make these arrangements may result in voiding of your registration.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

The Ruidoso Center has financial aid counseling available on an appointment or walk-in basis to assist you in making the correct financial decisions to support the accomplishment of your educational and career goals. Many grants, loans and scholarships are available through the assistance of our Student Affairs Office. Make your appointment as soon as possible with either Cheri LaCounte or Sue Kluthe; call 257-2120 or toll free 1-800-934-3668.

HIGH SCHOOL OR HOME SCHOOL STUDENT ENROLLMENT

State law allows universities and high schools to operate a dual enrollment program, enabling students who need to earn additional credits to attend college while also in high school or home school. The following high schools presently participate in the dual or "concurrent" enrollment program: Ruidoso, Hondo, Capitan, Mescalero, Tularosa, Carrizozo, Corona, and area Home Schools. For more information on this opportunity, please contact your high school counselor or principal, or the Lincoln County Home School Association, or call 257-2120 or toll free 1 - 800-934-3668.

ENROLLMENT IN MATH or ENGLISH

Degree seeking students planning to enroll in any classes for the first time, particularly the above subjects, are required to take the college's COMPASS, computer-based placement test prior to registration to avoid registering for the wrong class. High School or Home School concurrent enrollment students taking Math or English must also take the COMPASS test. The COMPASS is given at no cost each week during office hours in the Ruidoso Center Office, 709 Mechem Drive. Please call the Student Affairs Office to make testing arrangements.

WAITING LIST

During registration, the College Office maintains a waiting list for classes which have already filled. If a course is closed by the time you register, please put your name on the Waiting List at the office. Be sure to list a phone number where you can be easily reached. Every effort will be made try to get you into a class or classes.

LIBRARY/MEDIA SERVICES

The Ruidoso Center Library, located at 709 Mechem Drive, is open during the regular semester; please check for posted hours. The Library is staffed by a professional librarian, Jim Pawlak and library assistant, Ida McGrath. Available resources include: a growing reference collection; automated access to the book and periodical collections of the Golden Library (Portales); and over sixty (60) electronic data bases indexing nearly 35,000 popular and scholarly journals. The use of the Internet gives students access to information worldwide!

ENMU library services through the Ruidoso Center are also available via the Internet at the following regional libraries: Corona Schools; Carrizozo Schools; Hondo Schools; Capitan Public Library; Cludcroft Schools; and, the Mescalero Community Library. Drop in for a visit or call (505) 257-2158. Let us show you what we can do for you!

PARKING AND SECURITY ESCORT SERVICES

The Ruidoso Center provides security escort services at Ruidoso High School for evening students. Students are encouraged to park on the side and behind Ruidoso High School in lighted areas for their classes. The fire lane adjacent to the Fine Arts building is not for parking and should be left open for police and fire vehicles. Security escort services are available from the ENMU Custodian/Security Escort each evening from the central point at the cafeteria for students wishing to be accompanied to their car.

RUIDOSO SCHOOLS TOBACCO USE POLICY

It is the policy of the Ruidoso Board of Education that there is to be no tobacco in any form used on school property, including both buildings and grounds. This policy includes college students in evening and weekend classes. Please respect this policy by not using tobacco products inside facilities or on school grounds.

Special Registration for Ruidoso ITV Classes: Monday - Thursday, August 21 - 24, 8:00 ~ 2:00 PM and Friday August 25

COMMUNITY EDUCATION PROGRAM

The Ruidoso Center Community Education Program is designed for people who are not interested in formal credit programs of study. The program strives to fulfill that part of Ruidoso Center's mission which is "to make inexpensive, high quality educational services available at convenient times for the residents of the Ruidoso School District and the surrounding area of Lincoln and northern Otero Counties." Programs are also designed to be of interest to visitors to the Ruidoso area. The program is oriented toward lifelong learning and the fulfillment of the individual.

CLASS CHANGES AND CANCELLATIONS

The Ruidoso Center reserves the right to cancel any course with insufficient enrollment. Locations, dates and times of classes and instructors are also subject to change. A class will be closed when it reaches maximum enrollment, so you are encouraged to register early. Classes with insufficient enrollment will be cancelled, and you will be notified by phone. To make contacting you easier, please give day and evening phone numbers with your registration. Refunds will be automatically processed on courses which the Ruidoso Center cancels.

COURSE FEES

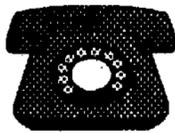

The Ruidoso Center Community Education program is a self-sustaining program with course fees covering all program-related expenses. Fees are based on an estimated minimum number of students. Unlike credit programs of study at ENMU-Ruidoso, the Community Services Program does not depend on state and local taxes for support. Honored Americans (ages 62+) will pay half fees unless otherwise specified.

REGISTER EARLY - MOST CLASSES BEGIN AFTER SEPTEMBER 5 !!!

We offer continuous registration up to the starting date for each class but emphasize the importance of early registration. If you wait until the last minute, you risk the possibility that a particular class is full or has been cancelled. We do not take on-site registration at class and instructors cannot accept your payment in class. We also cannot allow anyone who is not registered to attend class. Once you have registered, no further acknowledgment will be sent to you! You are automatically enrolled as soon as we receive your registration form and payment.

Lifelong Learning at ENMU!

SIX EASY WAYS TO ENROLL FOR YOUR COURSE!

BY PHONE (the easiest way)

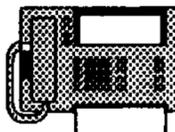

You can enroll over the phone. Call the Ruidoso Center office at (505) 257-2120. If you live outside of the Ruidoso area, call 1-800-934-3668. HOW TO FIND YOUR CLASS

If your class location is not designated in this schedule, please call the Ruidoso Center office on or before the day class is scheduled to obtain the class location. The Community Education program holds classes in a variety of Ruidoso locations. The course instructor will meet you at the class location and signs will be posted directing you to your class.

REFUND POLICY FOR COMMUNITY EDUCATION COURSES

We want you to be 100 percent satisfied with your Community Education class. If for any reason your class isn't exactly what you wanted, simply come by the office, and we will be happy to assist you. If you prefer, we will refund your money under the following conditions:

1. Registration fees are refunded in full only when:

- the class or workshop for which an enrollment was submitted is already full; OR
- the activity is cancelled; OR
- the Ruidoso Center rejects the enrollment application.

2. If after the first class meeting, you find the class isn't exactly what you wanted, 50% of the registration fee will be refunded. It is your responsibility to notify the Center Office prior to the second class of your intention to withdraw if you want a refund.

3. There will be no refund for withdrawals after the second class meeting. If you haven't withdrawn even though you are not attending class, you still have a financial obligation to complete payment for that class.

PLEASE REVIEW THE COURSE REFUND POLICY BEFORE REGISTERING

REQUESTS FOR REFUNDS

Requests for refunds must be received by the Ruidoso Center office during weekday office hours before the deadlines stated above. Requests may be presented in person at the Business Office or may be mailed to 709 Mechem Drive, Ruidoso New Mexico 88345. Please allow 15 days for processing any refund.

3. Have a current application to ENMU on file in the Admissions and Records office
4. Have a 2.0 or higher GPA in the preadmission course requirement (excluding developmental courses)

By April 1 of each year, the Program director will notify the Director of Admissions of the number of positions available to be filled. The Director of Admissions will form a Nursing Admissions Committee to review applications. Applicants will be notified by June 15 of their acceptance or nonacceptance into the Nursing Program

The ENMU Teacher Education Program

Deadlines and New Application Information

The following requirement will take effect for the Fall 2000 semester for students seeking admission into the ENMU Teacher Education program: students will be required to pass the Basic Skills component of the New Mexico Teacher Assessments as one of the requirements for admission into the teacher education program and to be allowed to enroll in 300 level professional education courses.

The following requirement will take effect for the Spring 2001 semester for students seeking admission into the ENMU Teacher Education program: Students must pass all sections of the New Mexico Teacher Assessments - Basic Skills, General Knowledge, and the Teacher Competency - as one of the requirements for admission into student teaching. The COE faculty strongly recommends that students take and pass the General Knowledge component prior to enrolling in 400 level education methods courses.

At the time of publication, meeting and other Teacher Education program application information had not been finalized. Please consult your Student Affairs Advisor at the Ruidoso Center for more information.
