Gasoline prices rise for holiday travelers

Thanksgiving motorists to pay 25 percent more than last year

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

If gas prices are any indicator, Ruidoso residents should stay home this Thanksgiving and let their relatives come to the mountains.

Some of the better prices at gas stations around town Tuesday included $1.48 per gallon for unleaded regular and $1.58 for unleaded plus.

That compares well with the rest of the state, according to American Automobile Association of New Mexico.

The pre-Thanksgiving holiday average price for a gallon of self-service regular unleaded gasoline is $1.56, a penny higher than last month and 31 cents higher than last year at the holiday time - a 25 percent increase.

The average price in New Mexico is a penny higher than the national average of $1.55, and that's 29 cents higher than at Thanksgiving 1999.

While gas prices traditionally increase by a few cents before the holiday season, the Middle East unrest and weather concerns across the country are helping to maintain higher prices, said AAA New Mexico spokesman Dan Ware.

The organization listed some of the average prices in the state as:

- Albuquerque, $1.50 for self-serve unleaded, representing a 2 percent increase since last month and a 15.4 percent increase since last year.

- Las Cruces, $1.44, representing less than 1 percent increase from October and a 21 percent increase since last year.

- Roswell, $1.50, representing a 2 percent reduction since last month, but a 17 percent increase over last year.

Ware said AAA projects a record 38.9 million Americans planning a Thanksgiving getaway of 100 miles or more from home, up 4 percent from last year. Of that number, 31.6 million are expected to be in vehicles, a 5 percent increase from Thanksgiving 1999.

AAA officials offered a few suggestions for safer highway travel, including:

- Watch out for danger signs of drowsiness at the wheel, including eyes closing by themselves, difficulty in paying attention to the road, frequent yawning and swerving in lane.

If drivers experience any of the danger signs, they could fall asleep at any time, Ware said.

AAA recommends stopping for sleep, exercise and/or caffeine.

Take a nap, even 20 minutes will help. Exercise after waking up will increase alertness. Try running or walking.

Caffeine can provide an extra boost, but shouldn't be the only solution.

Many offices closed for Thanksgiving

Many offices in Lincoln County will be closed Thursday and Friday to celebrate Thanksgiving.

They include the Ruidoso Public Library, village offices in Carrizozo, Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Capitan, county offices, state offices and senior centers.

Closed only Thursday are most banks and the U.S. Post Office. Schools in Capitan are closed Wednesday through Friday, but students in the Ruidoso district will go a half day on Wednesday and be off Thursday and Friday.

Ski slopes' early opening ushers in winter tourist season

BY JAMES KALVELAGE
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The early opener to the ski season in Ruidoso appears to have triggered the winter tourism season.

At Ski Apache and in town snow is being praised.

On top of the mountain, 1,500-plus skiers took advantage of the first day on Saturday. Sunday registered more than 1,600, said Riker Davis, marketing manager for Ski Apache.

"It was awesome," Davis said. "We are happy campers. We had a snowstorm on Saturday and clear, blue skies on Sunday. That's in contrast to one of the toughest seasons ever last year. We didn't ever ski the top of the mountain last year. Now we're skiing the top."

Ski Apache kicked off the 2000-2001 season with 40 of 55 trails open and nine of 11 lifts operating on Saturday.

"We made a lot of snow last night," Davis said Tuesday. "And we don't stop. It's good to excellent skiing. We're very pleased with the conditions."

In addition to the nightly dose of man-made snow the mountain could get another boost from Mother Nature for Thanksgiving.

The weather forecast suggested a dusting of new snow on the mountain could come late today into Thanksgiving Day and possibly again on the weekend.

The current snow base and the likelihood of additional accumulation is in stark contrast to the past two winters when the ski facility struggled to remain open.

"I think we're going to be very busy," Davis said of the four day holiday. He anticipated a minimum of 2,000 skiers for Friday and Saturday, and up to 4,000 each of the two days.

Below the mountain lodging reservations are filling rooms for the holiday. Over the past weekend sleeping rooms in the Ruidoso area were 60 to 65 percent full, according to information from the Ruidoso Visitors' Center.

"That's pretty good for a non-holiday," said Larry Ayers, a staffer with the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Ruidoso Visitors' Center.

It will probably be even better the coming four days.

"By Wednesday noon I don't think there will be much left," Ayers said. "Monday we had 115 to 120 people and 200 phone calls."

He said the Thanksgiving holiday period normally books up late, but it's already getting tight.

"That snow has really made a difference," Ayers said.

Further out, Ayers said Christmas is looking fantastic, based on inquiries about lodging and reservations already made.

And retailers appeared to benefit from the influx of early skiers.

"It was really a productive event," Erin Berry, administrative assistant at the chamber, said of the past weekend. "From my understanding it was really great."

Ski Apache's Davis said he is hoping winter will keep its grip on Sierra Blanca for months.

"You have to go back to 1972 when we opened early," Davis said. "This is just awesome."

Permit holders meet to discuss issues

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Lawsuits and court rulings tied to problems in other national forests often impact the management and use of the local Smokey Bear Ranger District of the Lincoln National Forest.

About 30 holders of permits for grazing in the district gathered Friday to discuss better ways to ensure compliance with mandated grazing standards and to generate documentation for possible future court challenges.

Unlike many of the areas under dispute, district ranger Jerry Hawkes and his staff maintain a good relationship with holders of permits for grazing and other activities on the forest, said Pete Gnatkowski, Lincoln County extension agent.

And unlike some other areas, the district staff works hard to ensure standards for grazing are met, are documented and can be verified by independent experts in case they ever end up in court, he said.

"I think the pattern of these groups that file lawsuits is that they pick on one resource at a time," he said. "They started with timber and now it's livestock grazing. What people don't realize is that next it could be the hunters and then some other recreational activity. The whole forest system was set up under a multiple use concept and we seem to be losing that."

Hawkes again proved his willingness to keep the 50 allotment permit holders in his district updated on legal action that could impact their operations in the future by requesting a joint meeting Friday.

"I really appreciate that he made the effort to inform those folks in Lincoln County with an economic stake and he came up with suggestions on how they could defend themselves if a lawsuit is filed," Gnatkowski said. "That includes a more conscious effort to monitor conditions on the range to ensure compliance with the 40 percent standard for utilization of available forage, leaving 60 percent for wildlife, particularly for the prey of the endangered Mexican spotted owl.

"We as allotment permittees need to more closely monitor and document our activities so in the event something does end up in court, we have some defense. When a case goes to a judge in Denver, the only thing he looks at is if the Forest Service violated its 1996 forest management plan. If we don't have the proper data, he has to rule in favor of the plaintiffs."

Hawkes called the meeting after getting together with some key agricultural figures in the district and after a lawsuit covering national forests in Arizona and New Mexico was filed by the Earth Justice Legal Defense Fund Inc. last month.

Based in Denver, the fund is composed of the Forest

"We would like people to realize the contribution permit holders have on the range. They create water sources and improve the watershed, which benefits wildlife."

Jerry Hawkes, district ranger

Guardians, Gila Watch, Animal Protection of New Mexico and seven other groups.

The 17-page suit filed in federal district court contends riparian areas — those bordering water — are overrun in Region Three, which includes all of New Mexico and Arizona, and that some allotments are not monitored or exceed allowed limits of grazing activity.

The Forest Service and the Secretary of Agriculture were named as defendants.

The suit claims the Forest Service broke a promise made four years ago to protect the Mexican spotted owl by allowing over-grazing of the owl's habitat. It accuses the Forest Service of "wholesale violation" of the Endangered Species Act.

Rex Wilson, a rancher, said similar lawsuits have resulted in extremely detrimental effects on forest-related industries in other states and parts of New Mexico.

"It hasn't happened here yet," said Wilson, who also is county commission chairman. "We're fortunate to have a local staff that is diligent in trying to do things properly and keep lawsuits out, but this is a big picture and we're included."

"Monitoring forage is part of good stewardship and something most of us do anyway, just not putting it on paper. But just like continuing education in other fields, we should be updated and go over practices with staff.

"When these lawsuits ask for injunctive relief, that means the removal of livestock, so we can't lose sight of that potential," Wilson said.

The meeting Friday allowed staff and permit holders to exchange ideas, talk about the possible future formation of a district permit holders association and about a follow up meeting in January.

"We have key locations set aside and we're asking the permit holders to help in monitoring," Hawkes said.

Permit holders also will go out to allotments with the range conservationist, who will advise them on condition and any needed changes, Hawkes said.

"We would like people to realize the contribution permit holders have on the range," he said. "They create water sources and improve the watershed, which benefits wildlife."

RUIDOSO COUNCIL

At its meeting last week, the Ruidoso village council took the following action:

- Selected Holloway Construction of Roswell for renovations at the Ruidoso Senior Citizens Center. The firm was the lower bidder of four for the roofing and exterior improvements project at the senior center. Holloway's bid was $61,311 plus applicable gross receipts tax. The other three bids ranged from $80,730 to $86,877.

Ruidoso special projects coordinator Cleatus Richards said there were sufficient funds in the village's parks and recreation's capital projects budget for the work.

- Voted to approve a new restaurant beer and wine license for Cafe Rio, 2547 Sudderth Drive. The license endorsement, which yet requires state approval, followed a public hearing without comment during the meeting.

- Set a public hearing for Dec. 12 on an ordinance change that would restrict banners advertising community and civic events to 32 square feet. While business banners have such a size limitation, nonrestrictive banners are presently unrestricted. Village planner Darrell Bremser said some banners in the past have been as large as 60 square feet in size, leaving little room for other signs. The village's Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval on Nov. 7, following a public hearing before the commission.

- A public hearing was scheduled for Dec. 12 on an ordinance amendment that would allow permitted uses in R-3 (multi-family residential) districts in R-4 (high-density residential) zoned areas. The uses would be single and two-family dwellings, multi-family dwellings, and public parks. The Planning and Zoning Commission had requested a public hearing be scheduled for the Dec. 12 council meeting.

- Another public hearing, to rezone five lots on Vision Drive from C-2 (community commercial) to C-1 (neighborhood commercial) was also set for Dec. 12. The owner of Shadow Mountain Lodge is attempted to add units to the lodging establishment. The rezoning would address lots behind the current lodge property.

- A zoning change for two lots, at 103 and 105 Reese Drive, will be considered at another public hearing on Dec. 12. The requested change seeks to amend the current R-1 (single family residential) zoning to R-2 (two-family residential).

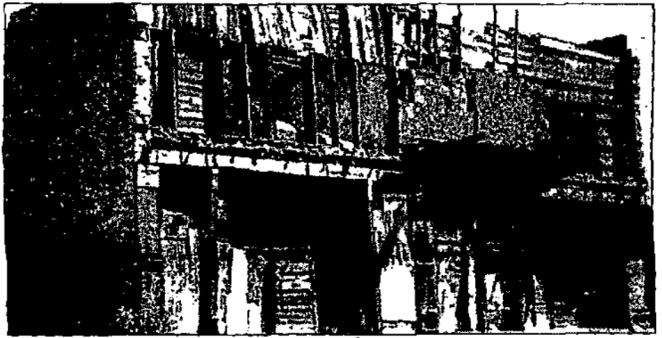

- Approved allowing staff to prepare a request for proposals for engineering services for phase two improvements to the solid waste transfer station. Ruidoso has been approved for an additional grant of $200,000 for the phase two improvements. The village has been unable to reach an agreement with the engineering firm of record for the solid waste transfer station, Molzin-Corbin, Inc., regarding needed improvements or the firm's fee for the phase two services.

- Approved an amendment of a loan with the New Mexico Environment Department to reflect a reduction in the loan's interest rate. The rate would drop from 4 percent to 2 percent. The 20-year loan, issued in 1996, was for improvements to the wastewater treatment plant used by both Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs. The annual payment would drop from $88,298 to $73,388, to reflect the interest change. Ruidoso pays 85 percent of the payment, with Ruidoso Downs picking up the remaining 15 percent.

- The council awarded a bid for installation of a water system pressure reducing valve to Carl Kelly Construction of Ruidoso. The firm was deemed the low bidder of two, with a bid of $44,759 plus gross receipts tax. The valve, to be installed on Glade Street, will be funded through the water department's capital project budget.

- A mayoral proclamation has designated November as National Home Care and Hospice Month in Ruidoso.

The Missouri News in Lincoln County, Missouri admonishes young men not to swear. There is no occasion for it outside of a printing office, where it is useful when the paper is behind. It also comes in handy in proof reading, and it is indispensable when the ink works bad and the press begins to buck. It is sometimes brought into use when the foreman is mad, and the lower case "e" won't drop on the machine, and it has been known to entirely remove that tired feeling of the editor when he looks over the paper after it is printed.

Outside of the printing office it is a foolish habit. Aguinaldo and the Apache Kid are both dead again. Should they be really dead, what a slam on newspaperdom!

Ruidoso is 'one huge mall'

And it's a community designed for Christmas shoppers

BY JAMES KALVELAGE
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Consider the Ruidoso area as one huge mall.

That's the message from the executive director of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce as the holiday shopping season is about to shift into high gear.

"People go to the big city, the big malls. And it's overwhelming," said Joan Zagone. "One of the big things I see here that I don't see there — we have a lot of original, handmade items you don't see anywhere else."

With the large number of shops in Lincoln County, Zagone contended there are more shopping opportunities in this area than in Alamogordo or Roswell.

"As shoppers, we benefit from an abundance of retail choices here," the chamber director said. "It's not just the Midtown area. But Midtown is essentially an open mall."

Zagone said residents who feel they've seen all the retail sector has to offer in the past need an update. She pointed to new shops that have opened with new shopping venues. And the established stores have changed and updated a lot of merchandise.

"I think the first comment that comes to mind is the choice and variety and uniqueness of things we have right here," Zagone said. "There is a huge misconception about Ruidoso being a small community so things are more expensive. That's just not true."

Zagone said there's also the cost of gasoline involved with driving to a big city, and then "driving all over creation" once you get there. She also points to the "economy of time" factor in driving hours to shop.

"And Ruidoso answers the challenge with getting that special individual that individual gift. It's not in the big mall. It's here in Lincoln County."

PLANNING ZONING

Property swap OK

Ruidoso's Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday has endorsed a property swap in the Pinecrest Addition subdivision. The exchange of 2,746 square feet of Glade Drive right-of-way for 2,746 square feet of a section of private property along Signal Peak Road would solve the encroachment of Signal Peak Road onto the private property. The property fronts both Signal Peak Road and Glade Drive.

In making a motion to approve the exchange, commissioner Bill Hirschfeld called the landowner's request "a great idea." The vacation of public right of way and acquisition needs the approval of the Ruidoso village council.

Sidelot carport allowed

A variance for a La Luz Lane residence will allow for construction of a carport within a side lot setback. The applicant is in a wheelchair, and the handicapped van he owns does not fit in the dwelling's attached garage, the commission was told. A neighbor spoke in support of the carport and village staff said there had been no opposition presented.

OUR OPINION

Upgrading Midtown

It does appear that Ruidoso's Midtown merchants are willing to put their money where their mouth is, as the saying goes. Of course, it took something of a crisis to bring about such a positive development: The threat of reduced business as some "traditional" events pulled up stakes and headed east to Ruidoso Downs.

Bert Brunell, with stakes deep in the Midtown merchant community, has agreed to take the lead role in developing a new merchants organization, something of a takeoff from the former Main Street Merchants Association. (That group in the early 1990s saw the widening and improvement of the primary Midtown strip.)

The new association wants to develop parking, green space, events areas — all feasible, but potentially expensive. At the outset, they're even willing to consider being assessed for the work.

But everybody knows the devil is in the details, like "how much will it cost" and "when will I get hit?"

Yes, and large questions about what happens with changes of ownership or leaseholders...

Good luck, Bert.

YOUR OPINION

Generations of wimps

To the editor:

Two hundred twenty-four years ago, the American majority was outraged at excessive taxation and arrogant leadership; they dropped the plow and grabbed the musket; they rebelled and endured 7 years of and suffering. But in the end, their sacrifices confirmed their self respect, rewarded their bleeding, and delivered their country to them. These were iron men, devoted patriots and high-principled zealots.

Today, their descendants seem to be either unconscionable manipulators or condescending weaklings.

Any American with an ounce of intelligence, an ounce of common sense and an ounce of patriotism is now very much aware that the vote recounting in Florida has become a transparent scam.

The socialist democrats are not concerned about counting. They are concerned about changing the votes, defeating the laws, trashing the Constitution, and stealing not only the election but our country. If the perpetrators were foreign enemies, perhaps our anesthetized rank and file would, somehow, become galvanized.

But after 40 years of creeping acquiescence we seem numb. There is no outrage. No revolt. We seem to have been conquered. We seem ready to accept whatever the end result of this mass fraud will be.

If, in truth, the iron men, the patriots, and the zealots are all extinct, if wimps are all that is left — his lies, manipulations, his rush into socialism, his rewriting of our Constitution, and his distorted view of our destiny.

LOOKING ASKANCE

A foreign encounter in Ruidoso

BY NED CANTWELL
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

My friend Jack in Carlsbad is a patriotic American whose values hold that anyone who does not favor the John Wayne movies, who does not condemn the ACLU, or who is a bureaucrat of any stripe is probably a dirty commie.

Jack, then, was not pleased with the report when he called to find out how things were going in my adopted town of Ruidoso.

"Are you settled up there," he asked. "I'd like to say you are missed in Carlsbad, but I have made a resolution not to lie for the rest of the year."

I thanked Jack for his encouragement. "Actually," I told him, "I am not sure how it is going or how long I will remain a resident of Ruidoso."

"What are you talking about?" he wondered.

I told him it was a strange story. "For starters, no sooner had we moved in than the Ruidoso building inspector visited to say he had a report that we had an illegal deck."

"Dirty commie," Jack yelled.

"No, not at all," I explained. "This fellow Fred Knapp is really a nice guy. It is his job to investigate such complaints. Fred was very gracious. He looked at my deck and said it was perfectly legal according to the building code."

Jack pondered this awhile. "So who do you think snitched on your deck?"

"Now there is the million dollar question and I am without a lifeline," I admitted. "Thing is, as I told Fred, the deck has been here for more than 20 years and I just moved in. So who, all of a sudden, is so concerned about my business? I certainly haven't been here long enough to get anyone mad at me."

"Whoa, hold on there, hoss!" Jack interrupted. "You wear thin on people a lot quicker than you ever realized."

Again, I thanked him for his encouragement.

"So, let me get this straight. Just because someone reported your deck you are thinking of leaving Ruidoso?" Jack asked.

"No, I didn't say that." I explained what happened next.

The next week I visited city hall where a lady in the building inspector's office explained they get a lot of anonymous calls reporting violations, and that they must investigate each one. Apparently, despite special events nearly every weekend, a lot of people in Ruidoso who need to get a life drive up and down the street inspecting their neighbors' property for suspected no-nos.

My conversation with the city hall lady went something like this:

Me: So you investigate every complaint even if it is anonymous?

She: That is our job. The workload is staggering. We are way behind.

Me: So, say, if I were to make, like, 30 reports about a neighbor's property, you would investigate each one?

She: Yes.

Me: Well, wouldn't that put the city in a position of cooperating in possible harassment?

She: People can go to court on that. It is not our business. It is our business to investigate complaints.

"Well, Jack, here is where I went wrong. I suggested to the lady the policy stinks, and maybe the newspaper should know about it. That was a mistake, because here is what the lady told me, and I am not exaggerating."

What the lady said was that I could go to the newspaper, I could go see the city manager, or, if I didn't want city officials visiting my property I could have my property declared "not part of the United States."

"Not part of the United States?!" Jack echoed. "That's what she said," I confirmed. "I am thinking of having my property declared part of Florida. The winters are so pleasant there."

"Yea" Jack said, "but they can't count votes any better than New Mexico."

He had a point. Actually, I explained, I would resist the lady's suggestion that I take my home and leave the country, her way of telling me to shove it where the sun don't shine. Welcome to Ruidoso city hall.

"So you are done with this thing?" Jack concluded.

"Pretty much," I said, "but I am still considering legal action to find out the name of the person who ratted on my deck. I think it might be a job for the ACLU."

"Dirty commie," he yelled, slamming the receiver in my ear.

GUEST COMMENTARY

Rural America needs the Electoral College

BY STEWART TRULSEN
AMERICAN FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

Hillary Clinton says it is time to do away with the Electoral College and move to the popular election of the president of the United States. That's an excellent position for her, but not for people living in rural America.

"I think it would be a catastrophe for rural voters, particularly for farmers," according to Hyde Murray, a retired Farm Bureau lobbyist and historian, who also had a distinguished career of more than 80 years in federal government.

"There are certain things that are woven into our Constitution that are the fabric of a republic as distinguished from a pure democracy," said Murray. Each state has two senators regardless of size. There also is a seniority system in Congress that allows representatives and senators from rural states to achieve positions of power in the legislative process. The third example is the Electoral College.

"The Electoral College gives the rural constituency in big states the leverage to affect an election, and if that is taken away by a popular vote provision, it will cause hardship for rural America," said Murray.

The American Farm Bureau supports retention of the Electoral College and opposes making the popular vote the sole determinant of presidential elections.

If Mrs. Clinton chooses to give up her senate seat in four years to run for president, she wouldn't have to campaign in rural areas to win a popular vote election. She could ignore rural areas and rural issues and concentrate on large cities and the most populous states. She wouldn't be the only candidate to do this, of course. Her opponent or opponents would be forced into the same sort of campaign.

Murray points out that rural Americans wouldn't be the only ones to suffer from scrapping the Electoral College. Any minority group, ethnic or religious, or any third party would have less clout in a popular vote system of choosing the president.

James Madison, the father of the U.S. Constitution, had a thought about pure democracies in which the people rule directly, and under which the president would be elected by a popular majority. Madison wrote,

"Pure democracies have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention." Some might say we have reached that point now with the election of 2000. But the worst would be yet to come.

A system of electing the president by popular vote would lead to big city and big state politics totally.

Millions of Americans living in small states or rural areas of large states would feel they don't count.

"If we had a popular vote, the saying goes, who would ever go to North Dakota to campaign?" said Murray. The answer is no one.

Stewart Truelsen is the director of broadcast services for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Pit bull dog owner appeals

Local sentence 90 days and $500 fine

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The owner of a pit bull dog who was sentenced in municipal court for allowing his animal to run at large is appealing his conviction.

Reginald Scott, 28, was given a suspended sentence of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine by Ruidoso Municipal Judge Michael Line in October.

The sentence also required restitution within one year to cover damages to the home of Richard and Rhonda Albers and the medical costs of their rabies inoculations, $3,352.

On Aug. 4, the dog bit three people after entering the Albers' home to attack a cat. The 85-pound dog was strangled to death with a belt by Albers and a friend in an attempt to release a cat from the female pit bull's jaws.

Line ordered Scott to remove from the village his second dog, a male that also was running loose when the other dog broke through a screen door after seeing two cats inside. Scott now lists his address as Alamogordo.

Although he apologized to the Albers, Scott said his entire life was rearranged because of the incident and his family lost a valued dog.

At the time of the sentencing, Scott said the behavior didn't sound like his dog.

On Oct. 27, Scott appealed his conviction to the 12th Judicial District Court in Carrizozo and asked for a jury trial, according to court records.

Shoplifting charged after chase by Wal-Mart employees, police Officer Kelly Calicoat saw a man running across the highway by the Wal-Mart Super Center Monday night, with two other people in pursuit. After determining Wal-Mart employees were chasing down a shoplifter, Calicoat joined in.

About a quarter-mile later the suspect, along with about 36 digital video discs, were in custody. Timothy Padillo, 32, of Alamogordo, was charged with felony shoplifting, conspiracy to commit shoplifting, resisting police and criminal trespass. He had been ordered to stay off the Wal-Mart property after a 1999 shoplifting incident.

An Alamogordo woman was charged with felony shoplifting and conspiracy to commit shoplifting. Juanita C. Sandoval, 49, was accused of waiting in a van in the parking lot of Wal-Mart for Padillo.

Fifth DWI violation

A Ruidoso Downs woman has been charged with her fifth drunk driving violation.

Marie Cly, 52, was arrested by Ruidoso Downs police on Nov. 19. Cly was reportedly driving west on U.S. Highway 70 when stopped by an officer. A police report said the woman's speech was slurred and she smelled of alcohol.

After failing a standard field sobriety test, Cly was taken into custody. She reportedly registered a .26 blood-alcohol content, more than three times the legal New Mexico maximum of .08.

In addition to felony DWI, Cly was charged with driving with a revoked license. She was ordered to remain in custody in lieu of a $6,000 cash-only bond by Magistrate Court Judge William Butts.

Village man charged

Ruidoso Downs police charged a village man with aggravated DWI - first offense, after a traffic stop for allegedly weaving. David Miranda, 23, Ruidoso Downs, was stopped Nov. 18 at 1:51 a.m. on North Central Avenue. Miranda was also charged with not producing a drivers license.

CAPITAN - Buckle up, especially if your travels will take you into Capitan during Thanksgiving week.

The Capitan Police Department will be participating in a seat belt blitz, said Carrol Durbin, the village's police chief.

The special effort looking for those not using safety belts will run from Nov. 20-26, Durbin said.

The program, using police officers on overtime, is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

In New Mexico the lack of seat belt use is considered primary enforcement, meaning motorists can be stopped and cited for not buckling up.

Multiple counts filed

A Ruidoso Downs woman was arrested Nov. 19, charged with second offense driving while under the influence, battery to a police officer and speeding.

Chez R. Douglas, 35, was initially stopped after a Ruidoso patrol vehicle observed a vehicle quickly pass two other vehicles in a no-passing zone on Mechem Drive near University Drive. The auto was clocked at 60 miles per hour in a 25 zone, according to a police report of the 6:30 p.m. incident.

After the officer said he detected an odor of alcohol, Douglas reportedly told the officer she had had two beers. Douglas was asked to perform a series of standard field sobriety tests, which she reportedly failed.

While Douglas was being arrested, the report states, she tried to flee. She was placed on the ground and handcuffed.

While at the Ruidoso police station Douglas was accused of being unruly, and kicking the police officer in the knee.

In addition to the local charges, Douglas is wanted on a bench warrant from Lea County, police said.

Injury follows collision

Ruidoso police arrested Melvin Cilluffu, 54, of Ruidoso Nov. 18 on a DWT charge, after seeing Cilluffu drive around two police vehicles that were blocking traffic while another vehicle was being towed from a slippery stretch of Resort Drive.

The police vehicles had their emergency lights on, according to a police report. After Cilluffu reportedly went around the police squads he slid into the vehicle being pulled from a curb area. After trying to back out of the collision Cilluffu allegedly struck the stuck vehicle again.

No injuries resulted from the collision, though Cilluffu broke an ankle after he got out of his vehicle and slipped on the icy Resort Drive near Oak Grove Place. After treatment at the hospital Cilluffu was charged with DWI, failing to produce proof of liability insurance and operation of a vehicle on approach of an emergency vehicle.

Driving charges mount up

A Ruidoso woman was arrested Nov. 17, following a tip of an intoxicated driver. Ruidoso police found the reported vehicle had slid off a road near the corner of Reese Drive and Walnut Drive.

Shelli R. Matz, who was in the driver's position of the station wagon, was charged with aggravated DWI-third offense, driving with a suspended or revoked license, operating an uninsured vehicle, and for a vehicle registration violation.

A check of the registration plates on the station wagon indicated they belonged to another vehicle, according to a police report. Matz, who police said failed a standard field sobriety test, was charged with aggravated DWI for refusing to submit to a breathalyzer test.

Felony at condo probed

A felony burglary case is under investigation after a kicked-in condominium door led police to an assumption that furniture and other items had been taken from the unit.

The Nov. 17 incident on Crown Drive was noted as being similar to a Nov. 5 kicked-in door in the same condo complex. In the first event a residential alarm apparently scared away the perpetrators.

The more recent incident suggested that furniture and bedding had been removed from the unit. An alarm at that unit was not turned on.

Las Cruces youth arrested

A Las Cruces youth was arrested Nov. 17, after he allegedly broke a sign outside the Quarters nightclub on Sudderth Drive. Asa P. Allen, 18, was charged with criminal damage to property, being a minor and allowing himself to be served alcohol, and presenting a false identification. Ruidoso police were called about 11:45 p.m. on a report of trouble with a person at the nightclub.

Allen was reportedly unruly, and when asked to leave allegedly broke a sign outside the bar. He and two other people then allegedly tried to pick a fight with security personnel from the bar. Allen was found with another person's identification card, according to police.

Property damaged

An employee of Ruidoso Ice and Water Co. reported damage to the business' Sudderth Drive building. A front door was broken, apparently by a rock, some time between 5 p.m. Nov. 16 and 8:30 the next morning. The incident is being investigated as a misdemeanor criminal to damage property case.

Criminal damage to property was reported to Ruidoso police after a panel window of a vehicle was broken on Nov. 17. The owner of the vehicle told an officer that a hole in the window occurred between 12:10 p.m. - 1:50 a.m. When the owner of the vehicle closed his door the broken window shattered. Police have categorized the case as criminal damage to property.

Unpaid towing

A Texas man was charged by Ruidoso police with falsely obtaining services after he allegedly had his vehicle towed from a village street and failed to pay for the service.

Neil R. Mitchell, 21, of San Angelo, Texas was booked on the charge after his vehicle was towed by Dale's Wrecker Service. Mitchell reportedly told officials he was unable to pay and fled after his vehicle had been towed on Nov. 7.

HELP OUR COMMUNITY LEAD THE NATIONAL WORLD WAR II MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN

The National World War II Memorial is a long overdue tribute to the individual Americans who helped win World War II. The Memorial honors the veterans who bravely fought to defend freedom, those on the home front who contributed to the war effort, and those who gave their life for our country. We have made a commitment to help create a national Registry of Remembrances for the National World War II Memorial located in Washington, D.C. To enroll yourself, a family member or friend in the Registry, or to make a financial contribution to support the World War II Memorial, contact your local Dignity Memorial provider. There is no cost to register.

Numbers key to Chiefs success

MESCALERO — Speed and numbers could be the keys to success for the Mescalero boys basketball team this season.

For the first time since the program began four years ago, coach Christy La Paz has 15 players suited up and ready to play.

Those 15 include a mix of experience and youngsters, with only one player missing off last season's 3-20, 0-6 team.

Senior Tony Chimal, a star in whatever sport he plays, will lead the squad. Phillip Pike, another returner, is also expected to help with the attack.

"He's our 3-point specialist and he can shoot the ball," La Paz said. "He's coming along as more a team player. He likes to shoot but now that he's a senior, he and Tony are picking up the slack in leadership."

Although a senior, Ryan Torres has only played organized ball for two years, but La Paz said he's "coming along," and should help the team.

Junior Raymond Bigmouth is back from Ruidoso, where he spent last season and was missed, La Paz said. Terrance Rocha spent most of his sophomore year on the sidelines with a broken leg, only getting to play in the season's final four games.

He should be a help as a junior. Then there's eighth-grader Darron Valdez.

If the youngster decides to play high school varsity rather than junior high ball, La Paz said he'll be a big asset.

"If he ... goes ahead and chooses varsity, he'll be starting a lot of games," the coach said. "He's pretty well experienced. He played a lot of ball when he was younger and he learns quickly."

Other members of the team are

The Chiefs, top, and Lady Chiefs are both hoping for improved season records this year. Numbers and youth mark both squads.

Ladies hope speed can overcome youth

MESCALERO — Only one word can describe the Mescalero girls basketball team this season: young.

The Chiefs graduated three players from last year's 7-14, 2-5 team: Ophelia Prins, Jessica St. John and Deena Dolan. Then, one experienced underclassman moved away and two didn't come back for personal reasons.

That leaves the Chiefs with three returning players — senior Sasha Aragon, junior Rosie Smith and sophomore Nicole Dolan — a sophomore who hasn't played in years, Ilena Lang, and seven freshmen: Deidre Dolan, Emily Blake, Terri Coonie, Sasha Enjady, Augusta Lang, Charlotte Tahnito and Tamara Enjady.

Coach Roland Bradford will have to rely on his returners — Smith and Aragon have been with the team for three years — to lead the team while the younger players learn the ropes.

"Hopefully, the three girls I've got coming back will carry us early and the young girls will just kind of progress along," he said. "Hopefully in the beginning we can just be competitive."

Bradford said his goal for the season is to create a future for Mescalero girls basketball.

"Our main goal is building a program here at Mescalero," Bradford said. "If they want to work to be the first girls to set the mold to be a winning team, then they've got to make up their minds to do it. That's our major deal: to get a winning attitude. Believing we can go out and compete with the Hagermans and the Mesilla Valleys and the Hondos and play basketball. I told them when we get to the point where we can beat those teams, then we've got a program here."

But in the beginning, Bradford will stress the fundamentals.

Lady Warriors run over Bears on road

CLOUDCROFT — After a slow start, the Lady Warrior basketball team put everything together Monday, pulling off a 58-38 third-quarter win over Cloudfcroft.

"I'm pleased with the girls' effort," said Warrior coach Albert Ronquillo. "We still have some things we've got to work on, but we're getting there."

Playing their first game of the season against a Bears squad (2-2) that finished third at the Anthony, Texas Invitational Saturday, the Warriors had a rough first half.

Although the effort was definitely there, the baskets weren't, either from the floor or the free-throw line.

Ruidoso was 6-for-11 from the charity stripe in the first quarter, while the Bears were 8-for-10. The Warriors also had a hard time getting the ball in from the floor.

"I think they were a little timid," Ronquillo said. "We were shooting the ball just to shoot; we weren't shooting to score. Once we started shooting to score and our defensive pressure picked up, we started getting some easy buckets."

The Warriors led 14-13 after one quarter, and went into the locker room tied at 25-all.

But it was like a whole new team came out on the floor in the second half.

Ruidoso outshot Cloudfcroft: 20-2 in the third quarter to take an almost insurmountable 45-27 lead.

The Warrior defense put pressure on the Bears throughout the quarter, allowing only one bucket with 1 minute left in the stanza.

"We got stupid. Just completely stupid," he said. "We must have thrown the ball away 15 times in the third quarter. It shouldn't have been like that. We're better than that. I was ticked off at the girls and they know it, and they'll get better."

The Bears also appeared worn out.

While the Warriors never let up, you could see the exhaustion on the faces of the Cloudfcroft in the second half.

"These girls are in shape, and it paid off in the second half, because Cloudfcroft ran out of gas, and we just kept going," Ronquillo said.

The game was physical throughout, with both teams in the bonus early in the second quarter.

The Warriors drew most of the fouls in the second half, with Carrie Line, Kammi Sparks and Jenna Carrasco fouling out.

Ruidoso had a tough time managing 6-foot Bear Jayme Adams in the first half, but held her to four of her 13 points — two from the free-throw line — in the second half.

Warrior freshman Clarissa Silva led the scoring with 16 points while Mindy Brunell tallied 15. Both put the ball in from the outside. Adams was the only Bear in double figures.

The Bears started the evening with a 38-27 win over the Warrior junior varsity.

All American winner gets back on track

All American Futurity winner Eysa Special, the top-ranked juvenile in the country, broke a step slow, but still posted a swift win Nov. 11 in the Texas Classic Futurity Trials at Lone Star Park in Grand Prairie, Texas.

Eysa Special, ranked No. 10 among all American quarterhorses, ran 400 yards in a swift :19.851 — his first race since the All American on Labor Day.

He was one of 120 juveniles seeking a berth in the $911,311 final Saturday.

Dash for Cash Futurity winner Pivotal Decision was the fastest qualifier after coasting home in the fourth trial in :19.679 — just four hundredths of a second off the track record.

Eysa Special trainer Jack Brooks, who posted his first win of the Lone Star Park meeting, had been battling a problem with Eysa Special's left front foot. The Texas-bred had been training with glue-on shoes, but used regular shoes Nov. 11.

"There's a lot of pressure to train a horse like this," Brooks said, who seeks his first Texas

Classic Futurity win. "He wasn't quite as sharp away from (the starting gate) as he should have been. And even down the racetrack, he wasn't quite as tough as I would have liked. (Jockey) Jacky (Martin) was sitting pretty tight on him, but still let him run. On the turn (after the race), he tried to run off again and that makes me feel real good."

The 2-year-old Mr Eye Opener colt defeated Hems Classic Dash by a neck. It was the filly's first loss in three starts. Celeb, the Remington Park Futurity winner, was another 1-1/4 back in third after bumping with Did a Streak to his inside at the start.

"He didn't break at all, really," Martin said. "He wasn't near as sharp as he was in the All American, but he's been off a long time and this race will help him."

The Nov. 11 score was the fourth win in five starts for Eysa Special, who boosted his bankroll to $1,008,995. His final time of :21.097 for 440 yards in the All American was the fastest time in 42 runnings of the prestigious race.

CHIEFS: Coach hopes numbers, speed will help hoopsters

senior Elwin Peabashy, junior Adolph Morgan, sophomores Warren Sago and Terrance Blake, and freshmen Bart Garcia, Randy Fulsom, Josh Valdez, Rowan Yuzos and Emmett Botella.

The coach's only concern is keeping the numbers up: keeping the team healthy and not losing any players to academic suspension.

"As long as I don't lose any kids, I think we'll be fine," he said.

The numbers should help with the team's other asset: speed.

While not tall — Blake is the tallest Chief at 5-11 — La Paz said his squad is fleet of foot.

"We're pretty short, so we're going to try to run everybody as much as we can," the coach said. "I've got a lot of young guys who can run. They run all the time and they're used to running. That's the thing we need to do with teams we play this year. Every team we play (will be) taller than us."

The home-court advantage should also come into play, especially against teams from off the mountain who aren't used to the altitude. With 15 players, La Paz can substitute freely when his players get tired and simply wait for the opposition to wear out.

That said, the coach knows things won't be easy.

The Chiefs are in what may be the toughest Class A district in the state, with Mesilla Valley picked by many to win it all.

So he's modest with the goals he's set.

"I think second or third (in the district) I'll be fine with," he said.

Still, he has confidence in his squad, even when it comes to the toughest teams.

"If we can give Mesilla Valley (a good game), I think we can beat them here," La Paz said. "We've never played them in our home town."

The last two years, Mescalero only played the Blazers in Las Cruces in non-district games. (Mesilla Valley moved into District 8A this year.) La Paz thinks things could be different on the reservation.

"Hopefully we can get them here," he said. "We can run with anybody, especially here in Mescalero. These kids are used to the altitude and everything. I think we've got a good chance as long as we play them in our gym."

The Chiefs' preseason schedule will get them ready for district, with foes including Alamo Navajo, Community Christian, Carrizozo and several strong teams at the Menaul tournament.

"We have some good games," La Paz said. "By the time district comes, I think a lot of these kids will experience some good playing time."

LADIES: Height and speed should overcome inexperience

He has team members working to improve their shooting on a daily basis. Last year, the Chiefs shot a mere 25 percent from the field.

"That's the biggest thing we're working at," Bradford said. "Every day we come out and tell them, 'The most important thing in this game is making a basket.'"

If the Chiefs can get the fundamentals down, they do have an advantage they've never had before: height.

"This is going to be the most height we've ever had, so we're feeling pretty good," Bradford said.

Ilene and Augusta Ling actually look like basketball players, and Bradford laughed when asked how tall the sisters are.

"My thinking is about 6-10," he joked. "But that's 'cause I'm used to those 4-11 players."

Actually, the pair are about 5-10, which is tall for a team that averages around 5 feet.

"Both are young girls who've never played before and need to be developed," Bradford said. "Hopefully we'll bring them along slowly and try not to push them too much. I've got some pretty high hopes for Augusta. I think she's going to be a pretty good basketball player by the end of the year."

Bradford said he'll key the team's offense around the Lings, using everyone else as guards.

"If we can get Augusta to rebound and can kick the ball out, I know at least three of (the other) girls are going to get Corona — to give his squad confidence.

"All the games are going to be good experience," Bradford said. "Hopefully we can win a few and kind of get that (winning) feeling going. We've just got to play fundamentals with those schools that have programs established."

Then comes district, and with the addition of Hondo and Gateway Christian, the coach hopes his team will be ready.

"It'll make district more fun (having Gateway and Hondo), but you've still got to deal with Mesilla Valley and you've got to deal with Hagerman," he said. "Our high point last year was the last game of the year. We really played a great game in the district against Mesilla Valley. Of course, we lost a lot of those girls so we just start over again. But it's the attitude we're working hardest on. And this bunch of girls is really working hard."

That's what makes Bradford hope his young team may be able to make a showing in the district.

"When we get down to the end of the season, we (want to be) ready to play with (the district teams) when we get down there," he said. "(The girls) might surprise us."

The team has some speed, but that's also going to have to be developed.

Coming next year to Ruidoso High

Work has begun to add a new full-fledged theater, seating up to 388 people at a time, to the fine-arts building

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

With a ground-breaking event planned for the spring, a theater at Ruidoso High School could be completed 8 to 10 months after that, according to Mike Gladden, superintendent of schools.

Architect Scott Stafford of Greer Stafford in Albuquerque showed the school board blueprints of a plan for a theater to be added onto the existing fine-arts building that would seat 388 people and possibly be expandable to the north for additional seating. Another option brought up by members of the district's Fine Arts Committee is to build a balcony that would seat an additional 100 people.

Danny Flores, principal of Sierra Vista Primary school and chairman of the Fine Arts Committee, said staff had been discussing the need for a theater for about five years and the committee started meeting to talk about it almost three years ago.

"This is going to be the first auditorium we'll have in Ruidoso ever," Flores said. "It'll be a working classroom — that's one of the neat features."

In 1999, the committee was hoping for a theater that would seat at least 500 and have a balcony to increase seating for an additional 200-300 people, but expectations have been trimmed down.

Bruce Eldredge and Sam Swearingin offered at the Nov. 14 school board meeting to try to raise funds for an 800-seat auditorium, but Gladden said the district will "go ahead and work with this plan because we need to get everything started and it will take five to six months (to prepare for ground-breaking in the spring).

Gladden said he thought it would be difficult to fill and heat an 800-seat auditorium.

"And I'm not sure that this site right here would be able to carry that capacity," he said. "This being close to 400 seats, it could serve us very well."

Cathi McIntosh, the drama and dance teacher at Ruidoso High School, said the current plan for the theater will be fine.

"I'm thrilled to death that we're finally getting a classroom for my drama students and my dance students, both for a place to perform and a place to rehearse," she said.

McIntosh said that although the Spencer Theater was a beautiful facility to perform in, her students had no place to rehearse, and transportation was a real problem.

"It's a liability having them drive back and forth at night, and the fact that we don't have enough rehearsal time before the show (has been a problem). We're only allowed in there Monday through Wednesday before we have dress rehearsal. I don't know how we pull it off," she said. "Even larger professional companies have a place where they can rehearse. We don't have."

She said a musical is a lot of work involving a large cast and many rehearsals and at the Spencer the students have only been able to perform it two nights. With a theater at the high school, the drama classes will be able to perform their shows for two weekends — and not have to transport all the sets and costumes.

McIntosh said that between 200 and 300 people attend the high school musical in the spring at the Spencer Theater.

"The new theater plan will be fine for what we're doing," she said, "but I think that because of the location, we'll get a lot more people to attend... with it being so easily accessible, I think we'll have larger and larger turnouts, especially people with small children."

"The only drawback is everyone will want to use it," she said, "so we'll have to have an activity calendar and book the shows according to priority or first-come, first-serve, the activities at the high school being first, then the elementary schools."

McIntosh said her two choreography classes — which are both "jammed full" — dance on concrete now, but would be able to dance on stage. She said a dance floor was approved for the drama room, but was put on hold pending the theater project.

Gladden said the Fine Arts Committee will meet with Stafford again between Thanksgiving and Christmas to get "more definite as to the directions we want to go and the input that's needed to design a facility like this."

"The architect needs to get the elevations to see what direction we need to go in," he said. "When we have that information, we'll know more of what we can or cannot do."

Gladden is in discussion and meetings with the U. S. Forest Service, which controls 1.23 acres of land to the northeast of the proposed theater; one corner of the proposed theater extends into that area.

"What we are trying to do is purchase or receive a users permit for that area," Gladden said.

The estimate for the theater is $1.33 million, according to Stafford. The school district has $1 million

"That's doable for us," Gladden said. "What we're pursuing right now is an application with the state Critical Outlay Committee requesting funds, and we'll see if we're one of the ones chosen for any type of funding."

If Eldredge and Swearingin were successful at finding grants, Gladden said, "I'm certainly willing and would like to see that and what it would allow us to do is get this scheme to the point where it really works, and possibly with that area that is for future expansion. I would never want to discourage that."

"If we expanded it another 100 seats, then we would need in the construction to be sure that those mechanisms were put in place for future expansion — it might be a balcony or an extension on the Warrior side of the seating."

Flores said he's glad that the years of discussion finally are coming to fruition.

"For the first time this past Monday, I suddenly caught a glimmer in the choir director's eye and in the band director's eye and in Ms. McIntosh, the drama teacher's eye," he said. "We finally have agreed on something that we feel is workable and is going to be good for the kids."

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Rebecca Conley at Austin College

Ruidoso Downs resident Rebecca Conley, daughter of Doug and Victoria Conley and a graduate of Ruidoso High School, is a member of the 2000 freshman class at Austin College.

Austin College, 60 miles north of Dallas, Texas, is a private liberal arts college related by covenant to the Presbyterian Church. The college has been included in numerous college guidebooks and national rankings including U.S. News and World Report's America's Best Colleges and the Templeton Honor Roll for Character Building Colleges.

Eastern recycles

In 1994, the New Mexico government mandated that landfill wastes in Portales and Clovis be reduced. According to Eastern New Mexico University Physical Plant Director Lewis Reeves, Eastern has been doing its part.

"We recycle the Office Pack," Reeves said, referring to white to pastel paper. The Physical Plant has expanded to newspapers and cardboard, and recycles 30-40 tons in the fall and in the spring.

The Physical Plant makes a collection from the university and in the city of Portales. Clovis also delivers its Office Pack to ENMU to be recycled.

New NEA-NM executive

B. Kay Brilliant is the new executive director for the National Education Association-New Mexico.

Brilliant, the first woman to serve in this position, arrives with the grounding of a vision for the 2000-2001 academic year: "We Measure Up for Children & Public Education."

New Mexico's children deserve the best," Brilliant said, "and I want to impact the lives of our members in their day-to-day work."

Public schools have changed dramatically since Brilliant began a teaching in 1971.

"Today, we have a high expectation that more kids graduate," she said. "When I started teaching, there were what we called 'drop outs.' When those young people didn't finish school, there used to be jobs for them. That's not true now. It's critical for us to design systems so that all children learn. That's our work. We must make certain we have good quality teachers and support personnel so this is the outcome."

Brilliant graduated from Coronado High School in El Paso in 1967. She graduated from New Mexico State University in Las Cruces in 1971 with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. Her first teaching position was with the Tucson Unified School District in 1971 where she was a third-grade teacher. In 1982, she was elected president of the Tucson Education Association. By 1998, she had spent 27 years teaching with the Tucson Unified School District, a solid foundation she believes launched her in the direction of learning about service to school employees on different levels.

In 1988, she started working at the NEA Western Regional Office as an organizational specialist assigned to Utah, New Mexico, South Dakota and other states. In 1999, she assumed the job of senior policy analyst and program consultant in the NEA Teaching and Learning Unit, which included the position of co-director of the NEA Charter School Initiative and the Keys to Excellence team.

Through the work of this unit, she was assigned to New Mexico and Ohio, two of six states selected for the Baldrige in Education Initiative, a partnership among business leaders in the National Alliance of Business with major education groups. Her specialized trainings through NEA national programs have been extensive. Her appointments to various task forces and study committees represent a varied cross section of alliances and movements addressing important contemporary social issues.

"I will be going through a whirlwind period of speaking to members, leaders and staff, as well as community leaders," Brilliant said. "I'll be evaluating issues and our organization. And I'll be looking for ways to have our advocate's voice heard at all levels... One major emphasis will be to have public schools create teaching and learning environments that are supportive, as well as make sure quality people are paid well and have a voice."

Our Top Technology The Century's Big Changes

It's hard to imagine what life would be like without such things as cars, planes, radios and computers.

What would it be like without technology or inventions that have made our lives so much safer, healthier, more convenient and fun? What are the top inventions that have brought great changes? Engineers are the people behind these inventions. Leading engineers from across the country made up a list of what they think are the great engineering achievements during the 20th century, from 1900 to 2000.

The changes are listed in the order of their importance. With the help of an expert, Dr. Henry Petroski, we added a little something about what life was like:

- before these changes took place (before 1900);
- and what we might expect in the future.

Without electricity there would be no modern cities. Here Times Square in New York City is lit for a New Year's Eve celebration.

This issue is based on the project, "Greatest Engineering Achievements of the 20th Century," by the National Academy of Engineering, with the American Association of Engineering Societies, National Engineers Week, and other engineering groups.

1. The spread of electricity

Before 1900

In the city, well-to-do people might have been connected to electric power sources, but most people still used gas lighting. In rural areas, most people used candles, kerosene or whale-oil lamps.

The 20th century
Connecting the world with electricity was the top change of the last 100 years.

Without electrical power, much of our modern life would not be possible.

The future
Better batteries will enable our cars to travel long distances and our computers to work for long periods.

2. The automobile

Before 1900

Most people used horses and buggies or they walked. The automobile, or "horseless carriage," was usually thought of as a toy for the wealthy.

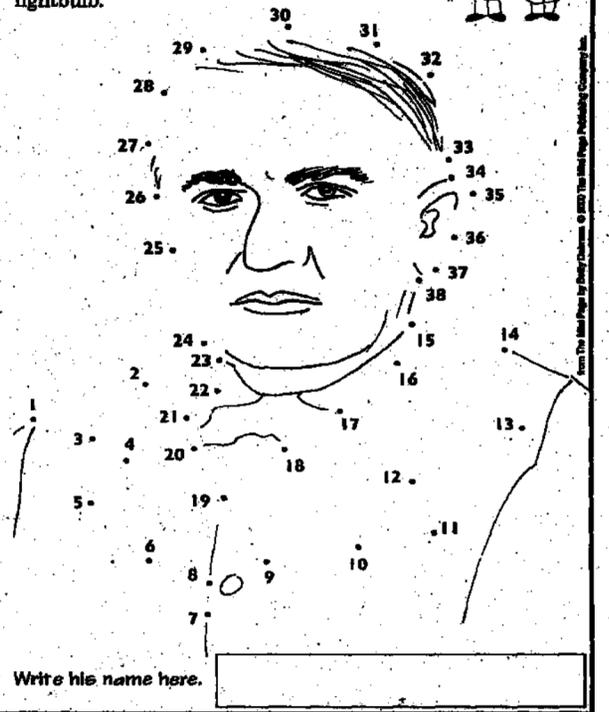

Travelers took the train or boats for longer distances. The average person did not travel far from home.

The 20th century

Cars have given us the freedom to move from place to place. Today the average adult travels by car about 10,000 miles each year.

The future
Cars will be much safer. The entire car will protect the driver as if it were a giant air bag.

Go dot to dot and color this famous inventor of the lightbulb.

MIGHTY FUNNY'S FUNNY PHONICS

It's fun to learn phonics, or the way letters sound. This fun's target sound is the one made by the ST blend, as in stick.

Q: What is a mountain range?
A: A cooking stove for use at high altitudes!

Mom: What does this O on your paper mean?
Bob: It think it's a moon. The teacher must have run out of stars!

Q: What is the difference between a postage stamp and a woman?
A: One is a mail fee and the other is a female!

Go on an ST word hunt. What other words can you find that use the ST blend? What sound do you hear?

More Big Changes of the 1900s

3. The airplane

Before 1900
A few people traveled by hot-air balloons but had to go the way the wind blew.

The 20th century
In 1903, Wilbur and Orville Wright made their historic flight and changed travel forever.

Today, we can fly anywhere in the world, and receive goods from all over.

The future
Air travel will be so fast and cheap that many of us will be able to afford to hop to another continent for a weekend.

4. Safe and abundant water

Before 1900
Water-caused diseases such as typhoid fever and diarrhea were the third-biggest cause of death in the U.S.

The 20th century
Today we can turn on the faucet and get safe drinking water. However, about one-sixth of the world's people still do not have a safe water supply.

The future
Many experts worry that there will not be enough safe water for everyone as the world's population keeps growing.

5. Electronics

Electronics are the equipment or parts that make electrical products work, such as vacuum tubes, transistors and microchips.

Before 1900
Electronics did not even exist. Human, horse or water power operated many machines. For example, adding machines had to be cranked by hand.

The 20th century
Today microchips operate clocks, calculators, CD players and hundreds of other products.

The future
Machines will get smaller and faster.

6. Radio and television

Before 1900
A few people had gramophones, which would play music when they were cranked.

The 20th century
We can watch events as they happen thousands of miles away. We can hear music or watch shows with the click of a button.

The future
TV pictures will be very sharp and there will be many more choices of shows.

7. Farm machinery

Before 1900
Horses and mules were used to plow fields. It took four farmers to feed about 10 people.

The 20th century
Today a single farmer can feed about 130 people!

The future
There will be better control of the climate. Big domes over fields might let farmers control the weather.

8. The computer

Before 1900
A "computer" was a word used to describe a person who solved math problems using a pencil and paper.

The 20th century
In the last 50 years, computers have changed our lives. Today, thanks to the computer, we can solve math problems very quickly and can communicate quickly and cheaply.

The future
Computers will be so small we will wear them. Information and commands will be given by voice.

9. The telephone

Before 1900
Only about 1 in 13 homes in the United States had a phone. Calls were often hard to hear. To contact others far away, people wrote letters or sent telegrams.

The 20th century
We can talk to someone clear across the world as easily as we can talk to our neighbors.

The future
Phones will be even smaller and clearer.

10. Air conditioning and refrigeration

Before 1900
People put blocks of ice in ice boxes to keep food fresh. They often carved these blocks of ice out of frozen lakes.

The 20th century
Today, fresh food, cool rooms, computer manufacturing, space travel and a lot of medical research would not be possible without proper cooling.

The future
Different parts of a room will automatically adjust to temperature, humidity and dust.

The Mini Page thanks Dr. Henry Petroski, civil engineering professor, Duke University, for help with this series. We also thank Chuck Blue, American Association of Engineering Societies.

Cynthia Clayton Economic Development 18"

Economic developers in Ruidoso are pressing ahead with plans to present the community as a college town. The initiative seeks to assist the community in adding to the labor pool, especially the service sectors employment needs, by bringing college students to Ruidoso.

"I think we can attract employees who are students through the college," Cynthia Clayton, vice president of economic development for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce said. "Eastern New Mexico University - Ruidoso is thrilled with the idea."

Clayton, who also chairs the village of Ruidoso's Economic Development Committee, said the need for workers is acute in town.

"There would be a double advantage," Clayton said. "It would help the workforce and fit into the economy. We're not after the student going to Yale. But those planning to go to a community college, or still looking at a career. We could get those just starting (a college education)." Clayton said the economic development effort is looking for ways to address employer needs both short and long term.

Housing for students in Ruidoso, where affordable rentals has been a problem, could be eased with leasing seasonal homes to students. Clayton also noted that attending a two year course of studies at ENMU-Ruidoso could be attractive to the children of those in New Mexico and western Texas whose parents have part-time homes in the Ruidoso area. The homes could be used by the college attending offsprings.

In that direction, Clayton said her group is looking to develop a Web site that would provide ENMU-Ruidoso's class schedule, as well as scholarships that are available and a listing of houses for rent in town.

"But the Web site needs to be dynamic, updated each day," Clayton said. "That's the biggest hurdle, finding someone who can keep the Web site current. Incorrect information would be bad because with the Internet they can move on in a moment to another site." For businesses to retain employees, especially in an increasingly competitive job market, Clayton said businesses need to pool together, by perhaps offering a 'blue benefit card' that would provide discounts at numerous businesses.

"The smaller employers will be hard pressed to compete with larger businesses like the Hawthorn Suites (a new, upscale hotel set to open in Ruidoso next year). They'll have health insurance, which some smaller businesses can't afford to offer. We all need to come together to deal an employee benefit plan, even if it's 10 percent off here and a dollar off a movie there. We can be as limited or as creative as we can be. We need to work together as a business community."

Saying she hopes the college town concept comes to fruition, Clayton added the Web site proposal will be an important piece of the puzzle. "It will need a catchy Web page name," Clayton said. "If anyone has ideas, we want to hear. And we're hoping other businesses will come together as a business community to help each other out. If we did our accomplishments would be endless."

BUILDING A STRONGER BUSINESS COMMUNITY.

Joan's View From Two Rivers...

For this Chamber of Commerce, the intent goes to the Villages of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs. It should also be noted, however, that this intent often goes put into the county as well.

Our Chamber, which is a non-profit (501c6), survives through the generous support of our members, those special individuals who represent business and non-business interests and recognize the importance of having a non-partisan, non-special interest entity to champion pro-business issues and activities. In smaller communities such as ours, this program of work can be quite expensive causing us to develop a multitude of partnerships because there is so much to accomplish and so few of us to do it.

Other than a few paid staff, everything of importance is done through the dedication of believers we lovingly refer to as our volunteers. They take the time to serve on our Board, on various committees and wherever there is a need. It is a system that has served this community well for over 50 years.

Last week the Membership Services Committee met to have their first meeting. These dedicated volunteers will be meeting on a regular monthly basis to discuss ways this Chamber can better serve to support our 600+ members. We want to make sure that the program of work we presently are following is effective in meeting our business community's needs. We realize that not only are these needs varied, they also change frequently. We will have your best interests at heart, but we are not mind readers. Help us help you by giving your suggestions and your input. A Chamber can only be as strong as the involvement of its members. It's much the same as what we've found out these last few weeks...our individual votes really do count. So goes the same for individual involvement. You know what "indifference" can lead to..... NOTHING, ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. Now go have a "Mountain Kind of Day"....

NMSU launches state water initiative

Federal grant opens door for project

ALBUQUERQUE — New Mexico State University's College of Agriculture and Home Economics is forming a universitywide water task force that will supply objective, scientific data about water issues in New Mexico.

The task force will include about 75 NMSU specialists on water-related issues, who will provide rapid responses to public requests for studies, white papers, expert testimony at public hearings and proposed solutions to water problems.

"Water is hands down the No. 1 issue in New Mexico, but some decisions are being made on emotion rather than science," said Billy Dictson, associate dean of the college and director of the Cooperative Extension Service.

"This is an effort to inject unbiased science directly into the debate. As the state's land-grant university, people look to NMSU for solutions, so we're going to unite our expertise and become more involved in one of the biggest issues facing New Mexico."

The federal agriculture bill signed Oct. 28 by President Clinton provides one-time funding for NMSU to address irrigation efficiency programs, and some of those funds will be earmarked for task force initiatives, Dictson said.

Both the college and NMSU's Water Resources Research Institute (WRRI) will request state funding when the Legislature meets next year to help provide long-term financial stability for the initiative.

"We can begin working with soft money, such as the newly approved federal funds, but we'll need state funding to give us the stability to consistently address water issues in the future," Dictson said.

The need for impartial scientific data has grown more urgent because some fundamental policy decisions affecting water use are being made without sufficient research into the benefits, Dictson said. He cited the controversies surrounding the silvery minnow and blunt-nosed shiner as prime examples.

"Water is being diverted down river to address issues surrounding the minnow, and yet there is not conclusive scientific evidence to show that those policies are benefiting the silvery minnow," Dictson said. "Some biologists think it may even be contributing to their demise because it interferes with the natural reproductive cycle."

Such issues have become critical because of the current drought in New Mexico. Extremely dry conditions continue to afflict about 70 percent of the state.

"The timing is perfect for the formation of a water task force," Dictson said. "A lot of people have been saying that water was going to get scarce someday, but someday is now. The state engineer has indicated that the water supply in New Mexico is rapidly becoming more critical."

Once the Task Force begins operating early next year, it will form a variety of working groups to address specific water issues, said Craig Runyan, extension water quality specialist who will coordinate the initial Task Force efforts. Subcommittees may address such issues as drought mitigation, in-stream flow requirements, interstate compacts, total daily maximum load orders, endangered species regulations, adjudication of water rights, groundwater allotment

Billy Dictson, associate dean and director of New Mexico State University's Cooperative Extension Service, speaks Friday to members of the recently formed water task force. The task force will supply scientific expertise about water issues in New Mexico. Jennifer Schlotfeldt/NMSU and special tribal claims to water.

The state's irrigation districts, several legislators and other water entities have endorsed NMSU's decision to establish the Task Force.

About 85 faculty and staff members from the college, the Water Resources Research Institute and the New Mexico Department of Agriculture attended a meeting Nov. 1 to discuss the initiative, and Runyan said about 70 NMSU experts have already agreed to participate and other scientists are expected to join.

Despite its size, Runyan said the task force will be organized as an agile body that will rapidly respond to public requests for research and information.

"There will be a core working group that will act as a clearinghouse to quickly respond to public needs," Runyan said. "The core group will put together interdisciplinary teams of experts to rapidly deal with water issues as they arise."

Runyan and other task force members are organizing a comprehensive, online directory of NMSU expertise on water issues, plus a listing of water-related studies either available or underway.

"Once it's fully functioning, it will provide New Mexico with a broad body of experts who can collectively and consistently identify and address water issues on an academic and scientific basis," Runyan said. "We expect it will provide nonbiased, research-based information on water policies and procedures throughout the state."

Santa's Helpers go whole HAWG

Bikers of Lincoln County, left, roll along Ruidoso streets Sunday on their way to deliver toys and more than $3,500 in donations to Santa's Helpers. Gary Goff, right, gave his donation a place of honor on the back of his motorcycle. Santa's Helpers is continuing to accept donations for holiday gifts.

More than 35 motorcycles plus 15 hot rods and cars made their way through Midtown Ruidoso to J's Club on Mechem Drive Sunday as Bikers of Lincoln County delivered many toys and more than $3,500 for Santa's Helpers. "These donations are a wonderful start to our effort this year to carry on the Santa Cops tradition," said Stacey Miller, chairman of Santa's Helpers. "We've changed the name to reflect the communitywide support received, but we're trying to maintain the procedures put in place by Freda McSwane, who kept this effort going for so many years for Lincoln County children.

Applications for Santa's Helpers assistance can be picked up at the Ruidoso Police Department, area schools and the Santa's Helper Workshop, which opens Monday at radio station KIDX 101.5 FM, 1086 Mechem Drive to receive donations of food and non-perishable food.

Applications, to be screened for eligibility and need, must be turned in at the workshop by Dec. 11.

Gifts will be distributed to People who want to participate also can look for Santa's Helper tags where they shop, eat or worship.

In addition to donations of toys and food, volunteers are needed to sort, wrap, box and deliver toys.

Workshop hours will be 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday until Dec. 20.

People who would like to volunteer several hours or a whole day can contact the Ruidoso Board of Realtors at 257-4750 or Stacey Miller at 630-4039.

Precipitation near normal

Ruidoso's year-to-date precipitation as of Sunday was 19.45 inches — just short of the 19.72 inches the area normally receives by this time of year, according to the latest figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Carrizozo had received 11.83 inches; its normal amount is 12.07.

Alamogordo is lagging farther behind with 7.98 inches compared to normal of 11.92 inches. Roswell's 9.71 inches compares to a normal of 12.31.

The Angel Tree, decorated with the names of children who need help, will be put up Friday at First Federal Savings and Loan.

It is the third year volunteers from the Child Abuse Prevention Task Force has gathered the names of children whose families have genuine needs, the organization said.

The Task Force suggests these steps for people who want to help:

- Go to First Federal at 398 Sudderth Drive and choose an angel from the tree. It will have the child's name, gender and age with a suggested or requested gift.

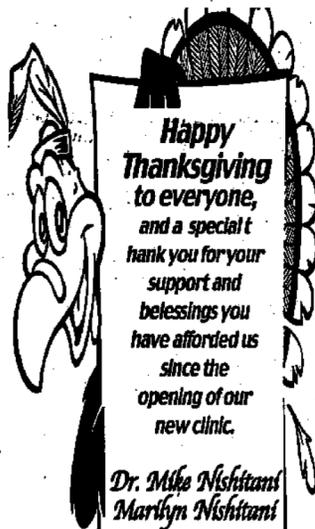

- Sign your name and put your telephone number and the name of the angel you have chosen on the sign-up sheet.

- Buy the suggested present and wrap it, taping the angel to the package as a gift tag.

- Return the gift to First Federal.

Cash donations also are welcome.
