El Paso man dies in crash on U.S. 70

■ Two passengers were injured in the one-vehicle wreck on Christmas Eve near Apache Summit, according to State Police officers.

Kaleb Molina, 63, of El Paso, died on Christmas Eve after he lost control of his vehicle going west on U.S. Highway 70, New Mexico State Police said.

Police said they received the call at 10:43 a.m. The accident occurred less than a mile east of Apache Summit in Mescalero.

The roads were snow-covered when Molina lost control of the vehicle and slid off the road, police said.

The vehicle turned over several times before ejecting Molina. He was not wearing his seatbelt and was pinned under the vehicle.

Police said Molina was transferred to University of New Mexico Hospital in Albuquerque where he died at 5:10 p.m.

Passengers Marco Carrillo, 30, and Efrén Vacquera, 30, both of El Paso were injured. Carrillo had lacerations and was taken to UNM hospital and was later released, police said. Vacquera had minor injuries, but did not receive treatment, police said.

HOLIDAY IN LINCOLN

KEITH GREEN/STAFF

Luminarias cast soft light along the main street of Lincoln on Christmas Eve, where residents gathered for two services at San Juan's Church during the evening. Lighted candles sitting on sand in paper bags lined both sides of the street for about a mile. The luminaria display has become a Christmas Eve tradition in Lincoln and Carrizozo.

FBI assisting Ruidoso police in investigating the slaying of George Lore; no arrest made

BY AMANDA WITT

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso police said they are "narrowing down an extremely long list of suspects" in the shooting death of George Lore, whose body was found in his house on Dec. 10.

Lore's body was discovered by his wife, Nancy, with one gunshot wound to his back.

Detective Bob Layher said the investigative team was using all available resources.

"The FBI is helping us out," he said.

Lore's missing vehicle was found on Gavilan Canyon Road near the ballpark two weeks ago.

"We are working steadily at it all the time," Layher said about the investigation.

Ruidoso Police and Lincoln County Crimestoppers are offering a $1,000 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in the case.

Courthouse showdown

Order banning weapons angers county residents

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Using microphones instead of six shooters, Lincoln County commissioners faced off with opponents of a court order banning deadly weapons in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

Tony Seno, policy analyst with the county Libertarian Party, and several other speakers assailed commissioners for backing the ban on weapons.

In November, commissioners decided to ask District Judge Karen Parsons to broaden a court order she already issued prohibiting guns in her courtroom. They asked her to extend the ban to the entire courthouse.

County Attorney Alan Morel said the judge could impose the court order more quickly than the process required for the commission to pass a county ordinance.

But at a meeting last week, Seno accused commissioners of violating his Second Amendment rights.

"When I entered this building, I noticed there was a sign on the door. It was a court order from Judge Parsons, whom I greatly respect and admire," Seno said. "But there is a catch to this sign. You see, it's unconstitutional. It seems like someone is trying to take away or regulate my Second Amendment rights."

"Government can make a lot of laws about a lot of things, but government cannot deny me the right to bear arms."

Seno said he hoped that commissioners would be strong enough to stand by their oath to uphold the Constitution.

Commissioner Rick Simpson responded that he has a weapon, but leaves it outside when he enters the building.

"I'm also a great proponent of the Second Amendment, but the fact remains that none of us want you or anyone else to bring a firearm into our commission meetings and that's that," Simpson said.

County backs reconsideration of school prayer issue

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Supporting the Ruidoso School Board's request for a re-examination of the issue of prayer in the nation's schools, Lincoln County commissioners last week approved a resolution.

They pointed out that in view of the terrorist attacks and a resurgence of religious interest, the time may be right to re-evaluate the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation of the opening words to the First Amendment to the Constitution.

The court has ruled that the words — "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof" — prohibits prayer in school because children are required to attend and don't have the alternative not to participate.

In October, school board member Danny Sisson proposed the move, saying he thought it was necessary that children be given the opportunity to practice their religions.

"If our president can proclaim a national day of prayer, our children ought to have a right to pray in school," he said.

District schools now provide a moment of silence at the start of each class day.

Many elected bodies, such as the county commission, continue to use prayer to start their meetings. Commissioners have pointed out that there are two exits from their chambers and anyone is free to leave and return later.

County commissioners settle on redistricting plan; not all pleased

■ The new boundaries keep most commissioners in their traditional niches.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

By a 3-2 vote, Lincoln County commissioners selected a redistricting plan that balanced population counts and kept most commissioners in their traditional niches.

Chairman Rex Wilson and Commissioner William Schwettmann voted against the selection, opting instead for an earlier plan that would have moved Commissioner Leo Martinez's District 3 south and left his home within District 2, represented by L. Ray Nunley.

Schwettmann contended that the plan adopted, referred to as Nunley's Plan F, would disenfranchise the upscale community of Alto Village by lumping it in with a transition area between Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs called Hollywood.

Nunley pointed out that alignment mirrors the current situation, but Schwettmann said it still isn't fair. More common interests exist with Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, he said.

Wilson insisted the earlier proposal, Plan D, was based on numbers and not political considerations.

"Plan D surfaced early before political input and was pretty much done on the numbers," he said. "It was not done on the presumption the current boundaries were the best to continue to build on. It was built around itself."

Under either of the two proposals, Capitan would be split between two commission districts, with the north and west in District 1, represented by Wilson.

The south would go into Schwettmann's District 4 under Plan F and into District 5, represented by Rick Simpson, under Plan D. Under the plan adopted, Simpson will continue to represent the bulk of Ruidoso Downs and east through the valley.

Redistricting is required every 10 years based on the new census to ensure that a county's population is balanced among its commission districts.

Despite a request from representatives of the county's Democratic Party to delay action for more work on their proposal to create one commission district with the possibility of electing a non-Republican, commissioners acted on Nunley's motion to approve Plan F.

Former Democratic chairman Charles Rennick offered to work with Adair on drawing the other districts around one proposed by his party's leaders. He hasn't been able to access information on census block numbers to do it on his own, he said.

Republicans dominate voter registration at about 52 percent, with 12 percent undeclared and the rest either members of the Democratic Party or minority parties.

The map compiled by demographer Rod Adair shows the new Lincoln County commission district boundary lines under a plan approved last week.

County considers policy change on roadway cuts

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

■ The idea is to have a policy that is fair in the many situations in which it is necessary to cut into a road.

Road cut permit prices and procedures should be different for a utility cutting into a paved road and a rancher laying a pipe for a livestock trough on a dirt road, says the chairman of the Lincoln County Commission.

Commissioners last week reviewed proposed changes to the county's road cut ordinance that would place responsibility for repairs on the county, but would impose a fee sufficient to cover the cost.

"The theory here is to change the responsibility from the contractor back to the county and we recoup our expenses," commission Chairman Rex Wilson said. "There are so many situations, it becomes difficult to make one size fit all. If you're making a cut in a subdivision, that is a significant difference.

"If you're making a cut on a remote county road, to charge all these fees is ridiculous," he said.

"You need to find a way for a guy who is just cutting a pipeline and happens to cross a county road and has to have all this stuff included in the permit process. You put him in a position to violate the law and hope he doesn't get caught."

After a half an hour discussion, commissioners told County Attorney Alan Morel to consult with Commissioner William Schwettmann, an engineer, before the January meeting and come back with modified recommendations.

Schwettmann disagreed with some of the premises of Morel's presentation, specifically that boring under a road is better than cutting across the road or that an inspection is needed. He also contended that cost should be based on actual material needed to do the job.

"They will compact the material and then, once they provide notice, the county is responsible for permanent repair," Schwettmann said. "If it's paved, we would come back in later and fill in the cut. We're only looking at the top 4 inches, or what we are proposing wouldn't be nearly enough."

Schwettmann said no fee should be charged for an inspection. "Then you'll spend all your time on inspections rather than running the department," he told county road superintendent Albert Hernandez.

But Hernandez said when a company is digging, he needs to visit the site and ensure workers are following their plans, because he's issued a permit.

"How will I know, if I don't go out," Hernandez asked. "I don't have time to chase these people."

Morel said he was advised by contractors that boring under the road is less destructive than road cuts. By imposing fees for cuts and not boring, companies have an incentive to bore, he said.

Instead of locking specific fees into the ordinance, Commissioner L. Ray Nunley suggested authorizing the fees and passing them separately by resolution with an annual review.

"We were charging the same fee for a gravel and a paved road," Morel said. "I think we should have separate fees, but it is difficult because we have so many possibilities."

"There are so many situations, it becomes difficult to make one size fit all."

GUNS: Lincoln County commission sparks Second Amendment debate with courthouse weapons ban

Seno told the commissioners, "It'd be nice if everyone could have everything they wanted" and could ignore laws when they are inconvenient. "But my Second Amendment right is inviolate. You can't infringe on that. I think someone needs to get arrested over all of this and it isn't me. All I am doing is exercising my Second Amendment right."

"Any law made contrary to this document has no standing," he said, clutching a copy of the U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Judge Parsons was out of town Wednesday and could not be reached for comment.

Norm Van Gorder of Carrizozo and two other residents of that town backed Seno's objections. One man pointed out that armed citizens often help police officers in life threatening situations.

"I don't care what you think. It's in the Constitution," Van Gorder said. "You are not going to take away my rights to bear arms."

Jerry Carroll of Oscura said the court order doesn't deny anyone their right to bear arms, because they can choose to stay out of the courthouse if they want to carry a weapon.

However, he hasn't dismissed the possibility of legal action challenging the court order, Carroll said.

Courtsrooms and bars tend to be places where emotions can run high and many innocent people could be hurt if someone started firing a gun and others who are not trained to fire back, he said.

"This is not a place for deadly weapons," he said of the commission meeting. "But we need to do this through legislation by modifying state law."

A better definition also is needed of a deadly weapon, Carroll said. He carries knives and some judges don't consider it necessary to carry a weapon in self defense," he said. "If I did, it would be another matter."

The issue needs "good common sense" applied, Carroll contended. The only snakes at a commission meeting are on two feet, he said.

Commissioners took no action on Seno's request. As he sat down, he reminded them that the sheriff or his designee must attend commission meetings to provide security.

Weekend snow not deep enough to require full-scale street-clearing

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although some residents might have thought employees of the Ruidoso Street Department opted to enjoy Christmas Eve and let the sun clear off snowfall, that's not the case, a department spokesman said.

Deke LaMay, in charge while director J.R. Baumann is on vacation, said crews concentrated primarily on the main arteries during the storm that swept into town late Sunday and continued through most of Monday.

Despite the time period, the amount of snow accumulation was less than 4 inches, which is the cut-off for a full-fledged road-clearing assault after regular hours. Accidents also warranted after-regular-hour responses, he said.

"We do Mechem and Sudderth drives regardless of how much snow falls," he said. "We had two plows and salt trucks out along the main areas. Then we went out into Paradise Canyon and White Mountain Drive."

Wednesday, employees were checking other roads, he said.

"Plow trucks are no good except on snow and most of what we're seeing now is ice from melting, so all three graders went out with two salt trucks and sand trucks," LaMay said.

"We try not to salt residential roads. Instead we first grade them and then apply sand. We'll continue on Thursday cutting ice and sanding where we can. People whose roads still are bad can call and be put on a waiting list."

The street department number is (505) 257-6023.

OUR OPINION

Rational argument offers a road solution

Two sides find some areas of agreement about U. S. 70

County Commissioner Leo Martinez of Ruidoso summed it up well after another meeting on that U. S. 70 reconstruction project last week: "We agreed to disagree, but not be disagreeable."

On the face of it — given that the meeting was behind closed doors — it appears that rationality at last is finding a role in the ongoing debate.

The Hondo Valley Preservation Society, according to board member and sculptor Luis Jimenez of Hondo, has been trying to come up with a more creative approach to the project in order to "minimize the impact on the valley." The valley preservation group had hired its own designer to offer alternative ways to develop the 37-mile stretch through the valley.

And David Pennington, a Parsons Brinckerhoff consultant to the State Highway and Transportation Department, noted that the goal of both groups is to "achieve a safe and efficient highway with minimum impact to the environment."

It might just happen, if this newly achieved rationality continues.

The people of the Hondo Valley deserve all of the above in a four-lane highway from Ruidoso Downs to Riverside.

Striving to understand too much news

Much time is being spent this week by pundits on television's endlessly multiplying channels in assessing the rapidly fading and lamentable year of 2001.

MOUNTAIN
KEITH GREEN

It seems to us that a consensus is developing along the lines that, believe it or not, 2001 actually was two years — pre- and post-Sept. 11. My, how perceptive...and how often repeated, and how safe that punditry.

It seems to us that a better measure of that before-and-after effect is most visible in those little "crawl lines" at the bottom of the TV screen. We hardly noticed them in those antique days before Sept. 11, when by and large we could look at a full picture and actually tune our ears (and eyes) to what was being expounded, without distraction.

No more; now on the CNN and Fox channels, most especially, the crawl is endless — often as not buried under some sort of large caption or headline to the point that the talking head, if there is one, seems to be decapitated at the chin.

If there happens to be any connection at all between the content of the crawl and the subject of the alleged news report, it's mere coincidence. The net result is nearly total distraction. We neither comprehend what's being said by the head above nor the content of the crawl below. The other morning, a fellow news watcher said, "Did you catch that? A man was working on his plane and it took off all by itself and they haven't found it yet."

We said, "Huh?" Up above, somebody was talking about that new bin Laden tape. Or was she?

We don't quibble with the idea, actually. We do occasionally switch to one of the business news channels — on weekdays — and sometimes get a lift, or sudden acid indigestion, watching the stock quotes streaming endlessly across the screen. They, at least, have the virtue of packing essential information (your favorite stock going up or down) in a couple of numbers and an arrow.

The be-all and end-all, maybe, was Thursday morning, when (we think) Rudy Giuliani was delivering his swan song as mayor of New York, on CNBC. Meanwhile, two lines of stock quotes — NYSE and NASDAQ — were crawling, while in the upper right-hand corner a couple of talking heads were commenting on what Giuliani was saying, or something. And at the very bottom of the screen, another crawl was informing the world about the latest non-development in the search for Osama. Oh, yes, at the middle right edge were changing numbers summarizing the ongoing ups and downs of the stock market averages.

And so it goes: These television news guys are so determined not to get scooped by some other TV news bunch that meaning is lost.

So we're forced, to get the news, to revert to the ancient ways of four or five months ago and buy a newspaper.

YOUR OPINION

Naming the elements that make a 'just war'

To the editor:

I would like to respond to Mr. John Brinkman's thoughtful letter in your Dec. 7 (edition).

Mr. Brinkman says there is no sure way to determine the "rightness" of a war.

If I may offer a suggestion: Mr. Brinkman is looking for a definition of "a just war." With this in mind, I would like to quote Paragraphs 2307 through 2309, page 555, of the Catechism of the Catholic Church.

P. 2307: The fifth commandment forbids the intentional destruction of human life. Because of the evils and injustices that accompany all war, the church insistently urges everyone to prayer and to action so that the divine goodness may be free from the ancient bondage of war.

P. 2308: All citizens and all governments are obliged to work for the avoidance of war. However, as long as the danger of war persists and there is no international authority with the necessary competence and power, governments cannot be denied the right of lawful self-defense, once all peace efforts have failed.

P. 2309: The strict conditions for "legitimate defense by military force" require rigorous consideration. The gravity of such a decision makes it subject to rigorous conditions of moral legitimacy. At one and the same time:

- The damage inflicted by the aggressor on the nation or community of nations must be lasting, grave and certain;

- All other means of putting an end to it must have been shown to be impractical or ineffective;

- There must be serious prospects of success;

- The use of arms must not produce evils and disorders graver than the evil to be eliminated. The power of modern means of destruction weighs heavily in evaluating this condition.

These are the traditional elements enumerated in what is called the "Just War" doctrine.

Updating U. S. 70

To the editor:

As to the "two-lane experience" of Dec. 21.

First of all, I feel honored to know that the valley has someone that the highway department listens to. As far as the VCPD members speaking out before the four-lane (U.S. 70) was considered, the people in the group had requested the bypass from the first meetings with the NMSHTD back in 1998.

All of the people in the group started out being in favor of improvements, until they saw what the Highway Department was planning. How do you form an opinion without knowing all the facts?

Yet it is nice to know that without attending any meetings or reading any of the facts, you're able to do so. You say you rely on your experiences; well, so do the people of the valley. They're the ones that have to live with the mess that is left behind, like the church in Glencoe, the access road in and out of San Paricio, or the Ford Ranch where they've had to repair the NMSHTD mistake every year for the last 12 years.

I assume that your experiences are greater than the State Finance Committee, which says we can't afford it. Does your experience tell you why they did all the other projects, including the Alamogordo bypass, the stretch between Riverside and Roswell, starting the Pojoaque project and even the ripping up and repaving of the four-lane of good road in Roswell, before this valley, if they were so concerned about our safety. The only thing the widening is going to do is increase the confidence and speed of those impatient drivers.

Finally, with all the water concerns in the area, the dry years, and what they are going to need to do this road as far as the washing of gravel, dust control and compaction if the shallow wells run dry, or the water table drops...

Will you or the state pay for them to be re-drilled, or restore the loss of their water?

Medicaid children short-changed for dentistry

■ A new study in North Carolina reveals that youngsters suffer from dental problems — with pain and inappropriate treatment in the classroom.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. — Fewer than one in eight North Carolina children ages 1 to 5 who qualify for free dental treatment through Medicaid visit a dentist in any given year.

As a result, they and older poor children, whose visits are not much more frequent, often live with strong physical and emotional pain, according to a unique new University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill study. Cavities can hurt a lot — disrupting sleep and meals — and other children ridicule their unsightly front teeth.

Despite substantial federal funding, barriers to dental care for such youngsters are just too great for many to overcome. The new work was confined to North Carolina, but many parts of the nation and many of the more than 20 million children enrolled in Medicaid face comparable problems, the researchers say.

Their investigation involved forming 11 racially and ethnically diverse focus groups of parents and other caregivers across North Carolina, holding intensive discussions with participants about their experiences and analyzing what they found.

"I could not get a dentist to take Medicaid," one mother said. "I got the book out, the telephone book, and I went through about 10-15 dentists, and no one wanted to take Medicaid. I just gave up."

Another complained about the time it took to have her child treated while paying patients came and went quickly: "You checked in at 10 in the morning and it's 4 before you can get seen because you're on Medicaid. It's just the way it makes you feel. I've sat five, six hours! I'll never do it again."

Atop all life's other pressures, the stress in finding a dentist and subsequent interactions in the dental office can be enormous, forcing some parents to just give up.

The study also found that language is a particular frustration for Latinos, and some minorities perceive prejudices against them that make them want to stay away.

"Why do they work like this?" a potential patient asked. "If they don't work with Medicaid, or if they don't want Latinos, they should put a sign on the door — 'No Hispanic people.'"

A report on the study, the first peer-reviewed investigation to document perceived discrimination against young Medicaid dental patients and related problems, appears in the January issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

Authors are Drs. Mahyar Mofidi, a dentist and doctoral student in health behavior and health education at UNC, R. Gary Rozier, professor of health policy and administration, and Rebecca S. King, a dentist working with the oral health section of the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services' public health division.

Local acquisition of center solidifies future of nursing

■ The local nonprofit group bought the center, which was appraised at $1.7 million, for $688,000.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The future of a nursing care center in Ruidoso looks solid now that a nonprofit community group owns the facility, a spokesman said.

Steve Kreins, vice president of Lincoln County Care Center Inc., briefed county commissioners at a meeting last week on how the group acquired the building and business on Resort Drive.

Kreins said the community group paid $688,000 for the center, which was appraised at $1.7 million. The local organization took over Dec. 1. Members and staff are trying to increase the patient count that dwindled since last May when officials with Integrated Health Services Inc. announced the closing first of two wings of the operation and later, the entire center.

Kreins, a local pastor, contended that an engineering report declaring the building unsafe and cited by IHS was "bogus." Subsequent inspections by village employees and an independent engineer resulted in a different conclusion, he said.

After Friends of the Ruidoso Care Center formed in an attempt to try to keep the center open, Kreins said no response was received from IHS about selling the center.

The local group hired an attorney from Clovis and the governor's office opened lines of communication with Secretary of Health Alex Valdez, who told his division representatives to try to help.

Faced with a lawsuit filed by the state Attorney General's office calling for a halt to patient transfers and with claims by family members that elderly patients transferred were harmed, an IHS official finally called, Kreins told commissioners.

"They knew our city, county and state governments were all behind us and that there was good reason to believe the court would rule in our favor," Kreins said.

Permanent financing is being sought through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, he said. Board members are not paid, Kreins said.

By saving the center, 107 jobs will be retained locally, as well as allowing families to keep their elderly members close to home. The average $4 million per year grossed by the center will stay in the county and not be shipped to Delaware, as it was under IHS, he said.

Other communities in New Mexico soon may face a similar situation, because medical costs are jumping and for-profit corporations aren't making enough money, he said.

He thanked Commissioners L. Ray Nunley and Leo Martinez for attending some of the advocacy meetings and predicted that in the future, the center will be able to help the county-owned hospital meet new needs.

Kreins is chairman of a subcommittee on elderly health care as part of the county-appointed Health and Wellness Council.

In the near future for the Ruidoso center, Kreins said the goals are to develop a day care program for Alzheimer patients being cared for at home and to initiate an occupational therapy program for victims of conditions such as stroke.

Martinez commended Kreins for not expecting help with taxpayer money and suggested he be appointed if a vacancy occurs on the governing board of the Lincoln County Medical Center.

NMMI honors Justice Sandra Day O'Connor

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Sandra Day O'Connor was named by the New Mexico Military Institute in Roswell to receive the prestigious Will Rogers Award, according to a press release from the school.

The formal award will be presented during a ceremony on the school campus in January. Lt. Gen. Robert D. Beckel, NMMI Superintendent, said that O'Connor's accomplishments and government service reflect selfless and honorable dedication to the nation.

The Will Rogers Award honors great Americans and recognizes the importance of identifying nationally and internationally prominent individuals.

It also recognizes those who have distinguished themselves through individual talents, contributions and willingness to serve humanity.

Warriors go 0-3 versus Artesia

Hot start for Ruidoso not enough, as Bulldogs pull away in the second half for a 78-49 victory Saturday

"We had our opportunities at times in the first half. ... It's got to be five on the floor working together in unison, like a fist."

FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

The Ruidoso Warriors boys basketball team (1-7) was looking for its second win of the season Saturday night. The Warriors hosted the Artesia Bulldogs (6-2). The Warriors have lost to the Bulldogs by double digits in their first two meetings earlier this year.

The Warriors were hoping to put together a winning streak, coming off their first victory of the season over the Socorro Warriors in a close game, 61-59.

The Bulldogs surrendered the lead to the Warriors before the clock even started. The Bulldogs were assessed a technical foul for dunking the ball in pregame warm-up, and the Warriors converted to take a 1-0 lead.

The Warriors maintained the lead through most of the first quarter. The Bulldogs were forced into the full-court press to keep up with the Warriors. But three minutes in the game the Bulldogs took the lead for the first time, 11-10.

A block under the basket by Warrior sophomore Chance Hooper ignited the Ruidoso defense and the Warriors had regained the lead at 14-13 with one minute left in the first quarter.

The Bulldogs answered with a seven-point run. Warrior sophomore Cody Small was fouled in the paint with just seconds left in the first quarter, and converted two free throws from the line to cut the lead of the Bulldogs to 20-16 at the end of the first quarter.

The Warriors started the second quarter where they left off, closing in on the Bulldogs. The Warriors pulled within one point, 20-19, before the Bulldogs went on a 10-point run, putting Ruidoso down 29-19.

Turnovers and lack of rebounding by the Warriors allowed the Bulldogs to take a 41-25 lead into the locker room at the end of the first half.

"This is by far the worst game we have played all year. We had a lot of turnovers," said Warrior head coach Billy Page. "Guys didn't step up and play the way I wanted them to. I know they didn't play like they expected to play. They know they are better than what they showed."

With Christmas around the corner and school letting out for the holidays, the Warriors could not seem to get their heads in the game. Ruidoso started the second half the way it ended the first, committing mental errors, throwing the ball away and letting the Bulldogs get several shots on the offensive boards.

The Warriors committed three team fouls in less than a minute to begin the third quarter. The Bulldogs continued to build their lead, outscoring the Warriors to take a dominating 62-38 lead at the end of the third quarter.

Page said he was disappointed in his team's cohesiveness.

"We had our opportunities at times in the first half," he said. "The second half the offense didn't click. It's got to be five on the floor working together in unison, like a fist."

The second half belonged to the Bulldogs as they built on their lead to take home a 78-49 victory.

"I think we played really well. The press started taking effect and we started getting some steals off of it," said Bulldog head coach Paul Kirkwood. "Coach Page is doing a great job with them (Ruidoso). They are going to be ready by district."

Page said rebounding was the key to the game.

"On the defensive end for us, the rebounding, they got three, four, five looks at times. You can't have that," he said. "We are definitely going to work on boxing out. We will get better."

Ruidoso had two players in double digits. Warrior Kendall Bishop scored 14 points and Christie LaPaz had 11.

Artesia had three players post double digit numbers, as Bulldog Kole McKamey had 15 points. Jonathan Fernandez and Justin Clark had 10 points each.

The Warriors are currently in Las Vegas to compete in the 48th Annual Stu Clark Tournament.

Wrapping up the highs and lows of local sports in 2001

■ Two team state championships highlighted the year.

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

2001 was a wild year for area sports teams, filled with playoff runs and postseason heartbreak, chances missed and opportunities made. Let's take another look before 2002 arrives.

Winter 2001

January and February were kind to several local hoops teams, as three squads made the postseason. The Carrizozo Lady Grizzlies put together a strong regular season, compiling a 21-3 record before the district tournament. But that success did not carry over, as the Grizzlies fell to Tatum in the Region D Championship, 42-40, keeping them out of State.

It was a similar story for the Mescalero Lady Chiefs, who came up just short of the state tourney. The Chiefs fought through a back-and-forth season to make the Region B playoff. But Grady was too much for them, winning 71-27.

Things were even better for Ruidoso High School, as the Warriors were involved in a pair of title hunts.

While the basketball girls continued to improve, the boys were as good as it got, winning their first district tournament in 20 years by defeating Portales for the third time that season. The Warriors went on to thump Crownpoint in the regional and then got by St. Michael's in overtime to advance to the state championship game. Portales, their opponent yet again, got the upper hand this time, overcoming a late 11-point deficit and winning the title in OT, 53-50.

Ruidoso's big splash in the basketball tourney, somewhat overshadowed an impressive year by the Warrior wrestlers, who won their first-ever district title. The grapplers went on to State, where they easily defeated Grants, but fell to Las Vegas, Robertson and Cobre, ending up fourth in the state. Ruidoso heavyweight Patrick Hodges brought home an individual title, and the Warriors had four other wrestlers in the top five of their weight classes.

Spring 2001

High expectations were placed on several Lincoln County spring sports teams, as Ruidoso's boys golf and track teams were coming off state titles in 2000. Capitan's track boys were aiming for their 10th straight district title and the Carrizozo girls runners were loaded with talent.

But perhaps the biggest surprise of the spring was the Ruidoso softball team, which came from 3-1/2 games back of second-place Portales to force, and win, a one-game playoff for a regional postseason spot. The Lady Warriors won five games in five days, including four in a row over Santa Teresa, to move on to regionals, where they lost a 2-1 nailbiter to Shiprock. The Warriors led most of the way, but allowed two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and failed to rally in the seventh.

Meanwhile, some other teams saw equal or greater success. Capitan and Carrizozo each won their respective boys and girls district titles, and the Lady Grizzlies went on to grab the Class 1A team title along with six individual gold medals.

Capitan's boys and girls each finished ninth without winning any individual events.

Ruidoso finished second on both sides in the toughest district in Class 3A, behind Lovington. The Warrior boys turned it on at State, though, coming within three points of a repeat title. They ended up second behind the New Mexico Military Institute, and were one good relay exchange from first.

Ruidoso did bring home six golds individually, and the Lady

Warriors finished eighth overall, with one individual win.

The Warriors boys golf team had no such problems, taking home its third straight state championship, albeit by a narrow margin. Ruidoso finished one stroke ahead of Grants after easily winning its district.

The Ruidoso girls team also won district and finished fifth at State, with golfer LeeAnne Henson coming in second overall. Colton English was the top Warrior boy, ending up in a tie for fourth.

Not everything was roses, though, as small numbers hurt the track programs in Corona, Mescalero and Hondo, and the Ruidoso baseball team showed its inexperience, putting together just a 9-12 record.

There were a couple more bright spots, however, as Warrior tennis siblings Paul Brown and Christine Brown made the state tourney. Paul, who has since transferred to NMMI, was knocked out in the second round, while Christine, and eighth-grader made the semifinals.

Fall 2001

The expectations weren't quite as high in the fall, but the season was not without its surprises or successes.

The biggest of these was the Ruidoso volleyball team. The Lady Warriors started off fairly slow, but their hard work paid off as the season progressed. After a 2-7 start, Ruidoso put things together, taking second in district and earning a spot in the regional playoffs.

There, the Warriors won a hard-fought five-game road match over Grants and moved on to State. Ruidoso continued to win, beating St. Michael's in five before being swept by a powerful Portales team in the title match.

The other big story this fall was the Capitan Tigers and, more specifically, Raymond Zamora. During Capitan's Oct. 5 game at El Paso-Anthony, Zamora was hit returning a punt. While Tiger coach Ed Davis said he never saw Zamora take a blow to the head, Zamora passed out on his way back to the huddle and had to be taken to Thomason Hospital in El Paso. Doctors removed a blood clot from his brain that night, and his prognosis was sketchy. But the young Tiger survived and recently returned home, where he continues rehabilitation.

Capitan struggled to a 2-8 record on the year. The other three gridiron teams also failed to make the postseason, as Carrizozo and Mescalero each posted 2-6 marks, and Ruidoso dropped its final two games to finish at 5-5.

The Ruidoso boys cross country team tasted some success, taking home the district crown after it was determined a NMMI runner was ineligible. Two girl runners also made State, but all the Warriors struggled at the big meet in Gallup.

Grizzly Ariel Vallejos (32) led her team to a 21-3 regular season record.

The Capitan boys track team won its 10th consecutive district title this year, but didn't have a strong showing at the state meet.

Gavilan Canyon Road due for makeover

■ If plans can be coordinated with the village, the entire length of the road could be redone.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Using a different process of surfacing, Lincoln County will be able to cover all 3.7 miles of Gavilan Canyon Road lying outside of Ruidoso, instead of less than one mile.

The cost will drop even more and the complete road can be resurfaced if the village joins the project, county officials said last week.

Following up on a suggestion by Commissioner Leo Martinez, the commission approved changing the scope of two cooperative projects partly funded by the state and already designated for the road.

State highway officials already indicated they will approve the change, Martinez said.

The change will not take money away from other roads, Commissioner William Schwettmann emphasized.

Gavilan, which connects State Highway 48 to U.S. 70, was used heavily as a detour during more than two years of construction on major highways surrounding Ruidoso.

As explained by county road superintendent Albert Hernandez, instead of tearing up the existing surface on nine-tenths of a mile, the surface on the full 3.7 miles will be patched, heated, scored and then overlaid with 2 inches of hot mix. The state Highway and Transportation Department will pay 75 percent of the cost on the county portion and the county road department will pay 25 percent.

"With $238,000, we can do the entire portion belonging to the county," Hernandez said.

He talked to J.R. Baumann, village road superintendent, and he indicated the village will try to come up with the money to cover its portion of the road, Hernandez said.

"If Ruidoso goes in with us, our cost per square yard will go down," he said.

The project will be covered under a state bid contract awarded to the Cutler Machine, whose representative Tom Card from Belen was at the commission meeting.

"I see no problem, except there's no warranty here," Hernandez said.

Card told commissioners the state doesn't ask for a warranty because of the years of dealing with the company. If a warranty is required by the county, a new bid would have to be submitted.

Acting on a recommendation from Martinez, the county specification will be for 2 inches of overlay material instead of the usual 1 1/2 inches. Card said the surface will last longer, but acknowledged not as long as tearing up the entire road and relaying the base and surface. He estimated the life of the work at about 10 years.

Martinez said he watched the process on U.S. 70 going through Mescalero and was surprised at the speed and quality of the job. He proposed doing the entire road with the Cutler process instead of leaving almost 3 miles in poor condition until more money was available.

Hernandez said the state "is contracting this kind of work and they are happy with it."

Card said the company, doing business in New Mexico since 1966, completed 22 projects last summer under the state contract.

The state is doing more preservation work and maintenance overlays than construction, he said.

Part of the difference is that a road doesn't have to be closed for long, Martinez said. Card estimated the project will take six to seven days for the county portion, depending on the weather.

Hernandez said shoulder work will be performed by county road crews.

County: Jail company should recruit workers

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Lincoln County would be better off legally if all employees at the new 100-bed county jail in Carrizozo worked for the jail management company, the county attorney says.

But county commissioners last week insisted they won't force anyone to switch from county employment to the private Correctional Systems Inc.

"It creates a situation with CSI providing management and supervision, but if something goes wrong, Lincoln County gets sued because they're our employees," said attorney Alan Morel.

But Commissioner Rick Simpson recalled that all of the county jail employees attended a meeting while commissioners were in negotiation to award the management contract to CSI.

"I believe we promised they could do whichever way they wanted to," he said. "I think we're bound by our word."

Commissioner Leo Martinez agreed.

"It may not be a good legal situation, but we made the pledge," he said.

Chairman Rex Wilson told CSI president Bill Garrison, "We can't make it clearer than what was said. Make it worth their while and they'll go. It's not a commission decision, it's theirs."

County Manager Tom Stewart said out of 17 original county employees at the jail, six left. Two transferred to CSI employment at the jail and the others found different jobs.

"I think we're headed in the right direction," Stewart said. "In seven months, we're down from 17 to 11. We've just got to continue."

Garrison told commissioners the plan from the start was that all jail workers would be CSI employees eventually.

However, the current situation of split employment hasn't been a problem, he said. The big issue in the minds of county employees appears to be that a private company exercises different disciplinary procedures.

Each employee will receive a written statement from CSI about their pay and benefits, if they consider coming with the company, he said.

RUIDOSO POLICE

Pair arrested

Able Joshua Reyes 21, of Ruidoso Downs was arrested at 11:46 p.m. Dec. 23 in the 800 block of Sudderth Drive for an active warrant and allegedly concealing identity. Police also arrested Brandy M. Gutierrez, 22, of Ruidoso Downs, for allegedly concealing identity.

Police stopped the vehicle for a seat belt violation and Reyes did not have his driver's license.

Reyes and Gutierrez allegedly lied to police about Reyes' name because he had an active warrant.

Police arrest driver

Police arrested Gil R. Sarinopolous, 27, of Ruidoso, on suspicion of DWI-second offense, reckless and no insurance at 12:30 a.m. Dec. 17 in the U.S. Highway 70 and Sudderth Drive area.

Police alleged Sarinopolous was involved in a motor vehicle accident and fled the scene.

He failed the sobriety tests, police said.

Man hospitalized

Police investigated Juan Olvera, 41, of Ruidoso, for disorderly conduct in the 100 block of Sudderth Drive at 6 p.m. Dec. 26.

A woman walking her dog reportedly found Olvera lying on ice and snow and thought he was dead.

Police said he was extremely intoxicated and was transported by ambulance to Lincoln County Medical Center intensive care unit.

Police said charges would be filed against Olvera in municipal court.

Customer arrested

Police arrested Darrell Wheeler, 51, of Mesalero for alleged disorderly conduct at 4 p.m. Dec. 21 in the 100 block of Sudderth Drive.

Police said they located Wheeler in McDonald's where he was slurring his speech and swaying.

Police said this was Wheeler's third arrest in one week for disorderly conduct.

Vehicle burglarized

Police investigated an auto burglary at 3:02 p.m. Christmas Day in the 200 block of Yellow Pine.

The owner reported parking the vehicle Dec. 24 and leaving his wallet on the passenger seat.

The next day he found the driver's side window had been broken and the wallet was taken from the vehicle.

The wallet included a New Mexico Driver's license, military identification, social security card and an ATM card, police said.

Stolen truck found

Police reported a found vehicle at 11:31 a.m. Christmas Day in the 700 block of Mechem Drive.

Police said they noticed a 1966 Chevrolet truck that matched the description of one that had been stolen from the Family Dollar parking lot a few weeks ago.

Police checked the plates and found them to be stolen. No prints were found because of the cold weather, but paper with notes, a resume, cough drops and an empty beer can were found.

The owner of the vehicle was out of town and the truck was impounded.

Eagle Ranch starts new exhibit

The photographic works of Rafael Vega will be exhibited at the Eagle Ranch Gallery for the month of January, with a reception to meet the artist from 7:30-9:30 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 4.

Vega is a native of Havana, Cuba, who came to the United States 40 years ago, practicing physical therapy at the Fort Bayard Medical Center in Grant County for 25 years.

Vega and his wife retired to Alamogordo following retirement and he used his time for travel and photography.

Vega has won numerous ribbons and honors in photography competitions, most recently in the 10th Annual Fall American Photography Competition at the Hubbard Museum of the American West in Ruidoso Downs, where eight of his photographs were juried in by National Geographic photographer David Buckley.

Vega's subjects include architecture, Southwestern, scenic, still-life and products of different methods of colors and light.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. The gallery is located at 7288 Highway 54/70, between Alamogordo and Tularosa. The public is invited to see this collection of works.

Jazzercise is back in Ruidoso Downs

Jazzercise classes are starting up again in Lincoln County, this time in Ruidoso Downs.

The classes will begin Jan. 2 at 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. and will be held at 1660 Hwy. 70, Building 2.

The cost is $35 per month, but the first class is free. For more information or to sign up, contact Rebecca Truchan at 257-0690.

Get enlightened about the moon

The Tombaugh IMAX Dome Theater and Planetarium will offer a free "First Saturday" planetarium show at 10 a.m. on Jan. 5.

January's program is "Top Ten Disputable Facts About the Moon," and it will answer such age-old questions as: Why do we always see the same side of the moon? Was the moon formed by an asteroid impact on the earth? Does the moon have seismic activity like earth?

Accompanying this program will be a tour of the constellations of the January sky. The public is invited to come and learn about the moon and what's in our night sky during this time of the year.

Free planetarium programs are offered on the first Saturday of each month.

The Jan. 5 program begins promptly at 10 a.m. There will be no late seating. For more information about the "First Saturday" planetarium shows, contact theater manager Victoria Davis at (505) 437-2840 or (877) 333-6589.

Lecture series starts at IMAX theater

The New Mexico Museum of Space History will inaugurate its new monthly free lecture series Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. with a presentation by John W. Briggs, assigned to the national Solar Observatory at Sunspot.

Briggs was featured in the October issue of Smithsonian Magazine and will discuss "Early American Telescopes and their Makers" at the Tombaugh IMAX Dome Theater and Planetarium in Alamogordo.

For more information on the second-Tuesday lecture series, contact the museum at (505) 437-2840 or (877) 333-6589 or visit its Web site, www.spacefame.org.

Ruidoso artist didn't take art classes until she was 35, making her a

LATE BLOOMER

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Billie Long began drawing as soon as she could write — and spent many an hour in school drawing. But it wasn't until she was married and had a young child that she took her first art class, with Emilio Caballero at West Texas State University, and it wasn't until five years ago that she was free to paint full time.

The native Texan moved to Ruidoso in 1981, after 20 years of visiting from Friona, Texas.

"Like everybody else, I always wanted to live here," she said. "My husband and I were into farming and when he died, I moved up here and burned my bridges."

No art classes were offered when she was going to school, so she was 35 before she took her first class.

She went to Caballero, "and I got addicted," she said.

She went to Cloudcroft nearly every summer, though, and took art classes at the Froman School of Art. Although she took a watercolor class with Gary Pierce there and has tried acrylics, she prefers to work in oils.

"I love watercolor, but you have to do watercolor constantly," she said. "The part I like about oils is I can scrape off my mistakes. With watercolor, if you don't get it right, you have to throw it away and start over. With oils, I can work better with it."

Long began teaching art classes in Friona, and she taught in Ruidoso beginning in 1981 at the Carrizo Art School, where she also took some classes and workshops.

"The last five years was the first time in my life that I could devote to painting," she said. "All I've got to worry about is me and two dogs and painting. I do what I want to when I want to. I can be up all night painting."

Most of Long's paintings are landscapes, although she's commissioned to do portraits of pets. She said she'd intended to do portraits of people, but her eyes aren't good enough for the details, so she went on to landscapes.

In the process of working with oil paints, Long discovered that oven cleaner will take oil paint out of clothing. Spray it on, let it set and wash it; that's it. It even worked on a silk blouse once, she said.

Her paintings are exhibited at The Adobe Gallery and prints of her work are available at Josie's Framery, but she also exhibited at the co-op gallery in Four Seasons Mall when it was going and her work has been shown throughout the Southwest. Besides working on her unfinished paintings, Long has agreed to paint a mural in the Alzheimer's Unit of the Ruidoso Care Center in January — of a woman at different stages of her life, beginning in infancy and continuing to an adult sitting in a rocking chair.

In addition, with her son from Roswell, she's started a business of painting on old plow discs. He does the metal work from patterns she draws and then she paints scenes on them, allowing the rest to show through.

She also continues to work on unfinished paintings.

"I may break Leonardo Da Vinci's record on time. He worked on the Mona Lisa for 15 years," she said. Pointing to a large landscape on an easel, she added, "I've been working on that one three years and may work on it two or three more. I'm not going to put it out there until I like it."

To see her work, visit The Adobe or Josie's Framery or her Web site at www.4southwestart.com.

Barbisol Bandit was dumb, but cleanly shaven

Dave Barry
DAVE'S WORLD
TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

We continue to see evidence of an alarming decline in the quality of our nation's criminals.

Consider the man who attempted to rob a mini-mart in the town of Vernon, Conn., as reported in a Journal Inquirer story sent in by alert reader Dan Thompson. The robber elected to wear a disguise, which was a good idea, since he was a regular customer of the store. The problem was the particular disguise he picked.

Shaving cream.

Yes. According to police, the man walked into the store with his face lathered in shaving cream, apparently believing that this made him unrecognizable. Of course the only place where that disguise would work is Metropolis, the city where Superman lives. The citizens there are so stupid that, in 50 years, they have not figured out that Clark Kent is actually Superman wearing eyeglasses. They would be totally baffled by shaving cream.

Brain Teaser: Suppose that, one day in Metropolis, Clark Kent loses his glasses. What can he do to prevent the citizens from realizing that he is Superman?

Answer: He can announce: "I'm wearing contact lenses!"

But getting back to the attempted robbery in Vernon: Despite the disguise, the store-owners instantly recognized the shaving-cream bandit, who ran away and was later captured by the police. The story does not say whether he tried to make himself invisible by putting his hands over his eyes, but we would not be surprised.

Another example of a criminal not being the sharpest quill on the porcupine was reported in an Associated Press story from Jackson, Miss., sent in by alert reader Bill Goggin. The story concerns a man who was arrested for robbing a restaurant and two banks. See if you can guess what clever detective technique the police used to figure out who he was. Do you think they found his fingerprints? Or do you think maybe they analyzed the banks' security videotape? Wrong! The police figured out who he was because, while he was waiting for a bank teller's line to shorten so he could rob her, he filled out a credit application.

Our point is that the nation's criminals are becoming so incompetent that pretty soon they will need some kind of federal subsidy to stay in business. But this does not mean that we citizens should not be vigilant. For an excellent example of citizen vigilance, we turn to an amazing story from the Oklahoma City, Okla., Oklahoman (motto: "Located in Oklahoma").

This story, written by Ryan McNeill and sent in by alert legal attorney Jim Webb, describes a crime spree by a man who robbed three businesses by threatening cashiers with an ax. The third business was a Wal-Mart, and when the man entered the store, he was spotted by a Wal-Mart employee. We all wonder how we would respond if we faced such a situation — a man walking into our store, carrying an ax — and we just hope that we would show the presence of mind of this employee, who, without regard for personal safety, walked up to this man and ...

... and ... and put a sticker on the ax. This was to show that the man had the ax when he entered the store. If not for this display of quick thinking, there could have been a major misunderstanding during the robbery, as we see by this hypothetical scenario:

ROBBER (brandishing the ax): Hand over the money!

CASHIER: Wait a minute! Did you steal that ax here?

ROBBER: No! I had it when I came in!

CASHIER: Oh, really? Then where is your sticker?

ROBBER: Dang! (He leaves, empty-handed.)

We conclude our National Crime Report with the following police blotter item from the July 3 issue of the Tomahawk, Wis., Tomahawk Leader, sent in by alert reader Sylvia Linton, which we swear we are not making up:

"An elderly Merrill woman stated that a bear on a bicycle had vandalized her birdfeeder Friday. She suspected that the bear, described as big, had fled from the circus because an ordinary bear could not ride a bicycle so well."

So if you own a birdfeeder, be on the lookout for a bicycle-riding bear described as "big."

Of course, all bets are off if it gets hold of shaving cream.

The very deadly confrontation of Huston Chapman and Billy Campbell

BY DREW GOMBER
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Lew Wallace claimed, right up until the day he died, that Billy Campbell was really an alias for none other than Jesse James! Well, Lew was never exactly known for his grasp of frontier personalities.

Wallace once went down to Lincoln where he interviewed many of the citizens, including the Kid himself. The Kid was handy for the Governor. Wallace needed a witness to the murder of a man named Huston Chapman, and the Kid had been on the scene. In return for his testimony against the killers, Billy was promised a pardon by the Governor.

At the time, in letters to friends back east, Wallace referred to the Kid in a disparaging fashion, calling him a "precious specimen." He marveled at the fact that the "local minstrel serenaded the fellow in his prison," the obvious significance of which eluded him entirely. Many years later, Wallace would describe a much more romantic sounding meeting with the famous outlaw, but at the time, he clearly held nothing but contempt for the young desperado.

But it was the Kid's testimony that Wallace needed. The widow Susan McSweeney had been fussing and carrying relentlessly on about the murder of the lawyer (Chapman) she had hired to prosecute Jimmy Dolan and Colonel Nathan Dudley. Susan held these men responsible for the death of her husband, Alexander McSweeney, who had also been an attorney, the previous July. Dudley, she felt (and with much justification), had stood idly by as her husband and others had been murdered by men in the employ of Jimmy Dolan. Susan knew that a conviction for murder would be extremely unlikely, so she went after them for arson. No one could deny the fact that her home had been torched. Susan employed lawyer Huston Chapman from Colorado in the hope that he would legally smite her enemies.

Huston Chapman only had one arm, but he was a dynamo of energy and made up for it in spades. From his first moments in Lincoln, Chapman had made himself a thorn in the side of Jimmy Dolan, who was not known to tolerate such things for long. By the middle of February, 1879, Dolan had taken to musing aloud - in front of his hired guns - about how much more pleasant things in Lincoln would be if that pesky lawyer Chapman would just go away. And that brings us to the night of Feb. 18, 1879.

Huston Chapman

On the night of Feb. 18, Huston Chapman had just finished putting up his horse and buggy and was about to go down to the Tunstall Store for some bread to make a poultice. He had a toothache that would, in a very brief time, become the least of his problems.

It had been one year to the day since the murder of John Tunstall and the beginning of the hostilities that became known as the Lincoln County War. Billy the Kid had put out peace feelers, and earlier in the evening of Feb. 18, the Kid and several other Regulators had a tense meeting in the street with Jimmy Dolan and others of the Murphy/Dolan faction.

After making their treaty, the new friends elected to go on a tour of the numerous drinking establishments that Lincoln had to offer. Talk about a bad idea...

Most of them (the Kid was more or less of a teetotaler) were extremely drunk when they spied Huston Chapman coming up the street toward them. Chapman was a brave man; he could have crossed to the other side of the street, but elected to keep on, and in so doing sealed his own fate. Brave, but terribly foolish.

When he came face to face with the drunken revelers at a point a few yards east of the Torreon, Huston Chapman found himself facing a very drunk Billy Campbell (remember him?).

Billy Campbell

History has not paid much attention to Billy Campbell, but he was certainly well-known in the Lincoln County of the late 1870s. George Coe related a rather chilling story about Campbell's behavior a few years prior to the Lincoln County War. It seems that, at a dance one night, Campbell was dancing with a young lady when an older man named Thomas King came up and jabbed his thumbs into the lady's sides, causing her to make an un-lady-like exclamation and embarrassing her in the process. Infuriated, Campbell was restrained from attacking King, who was older than most, having been a 49er. He was described by Coe as an "interesting old freak."

King was in the employ of George Coe at his ranch at modern-day Glencoe and both men were working in the fields a day or so after the dance when Billy Campbell rode up. Coe inquired as to Campbell's business, and Campbell, clearly in no mood for discussion, fingered his pistol and asked Coe if he "wanted any." Coe rather emphatically assured Campbell that he most definitely did not "want any" and without further ado, Campbell rode over and shot Tom King dead.

The confrontation

Huston Chapman stared levelly into the murderous eyes of a very drunk Billy Campbell. "Who are you and where are you going?" demanded the drunken desperado. Chapman knew none of these men. Despite the fact that he had been pursuing Jimmy Dolan, legally, he had no idea that Dolan was one of the men now confronting him. "My name is Chapman and I am attending to my business," he replied. "Then you dance?" snarled Campbell as he rammed his fully-cooked revolver into Chapman's midsection. Chapman apparently never fully realized the extent of the danger that he was in. "I don't propose to dance for a drunken mob. You can't scare me, boys. I know you, and it's no use. You've tried

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

KEEP THE "HO HO HO" IN THE HOLIDAYS

It never fails that chiropractors get an increase in visits after the holidays. It is easy to overdo it by taking long trips, lifting heavy gifts, lugging the Christmas tree too far and bending the wrong way to put together Tommy's new bicycle. When you take a long trip to your friend's or relative's house, stop the car and take a break every few hours to stretch your legs. This will reinvigorate the blood and restore your normal posture, helping to prevent any neck or back pains. Adjust the car's seat, so they are less than two inches behind the center of the head. Millions of people would not get whiplash injuries if their automobile seat headrests were correctly adjusted.

No one likes making many trips back and forth to the car with small packages. However, your back will fire much better than if you try carrying a heavy suitcase, package or box. Also, be careful of how you get that huge turkey in and out of the oven. Bend your knees and pull out the oven tray rather than putting a strain on your back. Once you settle down at Aunt Kay's or Grandpa Jim's house after that huge, delicious spread, you will probably want to relax. Take a leisurely walk and burn off some of the calories. Stouching on the sofa or recliner may hurt your back. After the holidays, chiropractors see many patients because they get muscle aches from falling asleep in awkward positions.

GOMBER: A fatal meeting in Lincoln

that before. Am I talking to Mr. Dolan?" asked the courageous-to-the-point-of-being-insane lawyer. At this point, the equally-scary Jesse Evans spoke up. "No," he drawled, "but you're talking to a damned good friend of his."

And that was where the conversation ended. It ended because, in the back of the group, Jimmy Dolan, ever the instigator, fired his weapon into the ground. No one expected a shot to come from back there and it startled them. More specifically, it startled Billy Campbell, whose trigger finger reflexively tightened. The two reports sounded almost as one.

Chapman, exclaiming "My God, I am killed!" slumped to the ground. He was right. His lifeless body lay on the north side of the street, in front of the house the Baca family was occupying, his clothes ablaze. "I promised my God and General Dudley I'd kill him and I've done it!" crowed the triumphant Campbell as he holstered his pistol and led the group to the nearest saloon.

My, wasn't that an interesting statement? Man has been blaming countless murders on God since the beginning of time, but Campbell's mention of Dudley is interesting - to say the very least. We can only imagine Susan McSweeney's outrage when she heard of it. In her mind, it undoubtedly proved, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that Dudley had been involved as more than just a spectator in the murder of her husband.

Wallace

And that was the killing that finally brought Lew Wallace down to war-torn Lincoln County. Putting out feelers, Wallace found exactly what he was looking for in the Kid: An eyewitness to the killing who was willing to risk his life to clear his name. It is difficult not to notice how cynically Wallace used the trusting young outlaw, telling Billy what he wanted to hear, namely that he would be cleared and be permitted to go on with his life. Wallace placidly allowed the young man to risk his life trying to keep his part of a bargain that the Governor never had the slightest intention of honoring.

As for Billy Campbell, the killer popular history has forgotten? Campbell, correctly realizing that his welcome in Lincoln County had entirely worn out, drifted over to the new boomtown in Arizona called Tombstone. And it was in Arizona that he finally pushed his luck too far. He was run to ground by vigilantes and lynched for still more depredations - a fitting end if ever there was one.

Opportunities for local artists are numerous

BY MARY LEA LANE
RUIDOSO ARTS COORDINATOR

Many opportunities are now available for visual artists in new projects of the Ruidoso Arts Commission, including the three items which follow.

Build artist resumes

Do you have a body of work to exhibit? Have you been part of a one-person exhibit before? The Arts Commission can offer you the perfect opportunity to have a one-person show, helping you to build a strong artist resume. Just call us at 378-4302 to schedule your exhibit.

A committee of local artists, under the leadership of Beth Braid, is further developing the Private Art in Public Places project of the Arts Commission. The committee is focusing on scheduling the work of artists based in Lincoln County and Mescalero in three major public venues: Ruidoso Village Hall, Ruidoso Public Library, and the Ruidoso Senior Center. Shows currently scheduled will continue as planned, but the committee is working to have a common calendar for all locations. Artists will be able to schedule the months of June through September for one-month exhibitions, with the remainder of the year for exhibitions of a two-month duration. No exhibits will be held during December and January.

Also planned will be a combined reception for all venues on the second Friday of the month. With exhibitions in three venues, these receptions will create an "arts event," worthy of the attention of all those interested in the arts.

On Friday, Jan. 11, from 4:30-6:30 p.m., a reception will be held for the opening of exhibits of Jack Schuller, painter, in Village Hall; the Lincoln County Photographic Society in the Ruidoso Public Library; the ceramic work of Todd Shelby and Karen Prichert also in the Public Library; and youth work in the Children's Department. There is no charge and the public is invited to attend.

The Great Bear Hunt

The Great Bear Hunt is under way. It is an outdoor exhibit of painted and otherwise enhanced bears scheduled for the summer of 2003.

Two exciting sculptures have been selected for The Great Bear Hunt, and will be displayed at the Ruidoso Public Library during January and February 2002. They are the work of Jim Mauritsen and Anacleto Loyola.

A call for artists is being issued for Lincoln County and Mescalero artists to begin submitting designs for painting and otherwise enhancing the bears. Although submissions will be accepted until Oct. 1, 2002, those received prior to May 1 will be included in the first portfolio from which sponsors will select the bear they wish to have created. For the artist, this means a greater chance that your design will be selected, so early submissions are recommended.

Artists whose designs are selected by a sponsor for creation will receive $500 for their work plus 10 percent of the sale price when the bear is sold at the end of the exhibit.

Holiday celebration

Thanks to the generous participation of many performing artists and the Midtown merchants, our first Village Holiday Celebration on Dec. 15 was a wonderful evening of the arts. The Midtown merchants provided free sleigh rides, Santa visited with the kids, and the Grinch spent the evening. Chamber Greeters filled bags for the children with treats provided by the Rotary Club, and the merchants provided cherry greetings with warm drinks and cookies for all. To those omitted here, we must apologize, because every participant added to the event.

Information on all of the above projects is available by calling Mary Lea Lane, Arts Coordinator, at (505) 378-4302. Also, by mid-January, printed information and call-for-artists brochures on the visual arts projects will be available for pick up at the Ruidoso Public Library, Ruidoso Village Hall, Capitan Public Library, and Carrizozo Joe's.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Bill Stroud

ZONING AND THE LANDOWNER

QUESTION: How carefully should a landowner, who intends to build a home on that land, look into local zoning laws?

ANSWER: Very carefully! You may find it's impossible to build the home you plan. Zoning laws may require a specific amount of acreage for one-family zone. If you own a smaller lot than required, you may not be able to build the house you want on your lot.

Also, look into the type of home which is allowable in your zoning area. You may plan to build a second floor apartment, possibly for another member of your family or for rental purposes. If the property is a one-family residential zone, you may be out of luck.

CHECK ZONING carefully before building. An after-the-fact zoning check may be a costly error.

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The champagne will be flowing in Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs to celebrate the end of 2001 — or the beginning of a new year. Bands will be playing at various clubs and restaurants around town, with plenty of special chow being served.

Two bands will perform at the Cree Meadows Country

Club from 7:30 p.m. until 1 a.m., with two separate buffets. Randy Jones with Special Guests will play country music in the Las Montañas Room, and the Band of Enchantment will play classic rock and country rock in the Ponderosa Bar. The dinner buffet will be served from 7:30-10:30 p.m., and a complete breakfast buffet from 12:15-1:30 a.m. Free party favors and a champagne toast will also be available, for $99 per couple or $50 for singles. For information, call 257-2733.

At the Texas Club, country singer Mark Remington will perform, tables can be reserved for dinner all evening and special menu items will be available. Party favors will be given out and there will be a champagne toast at midnight. For reservations, call 258-3325.

The Screaming Eagle Lounge

at the Four Seasons Enchantment Inn will have The Gorillas, a local rock 'n' roll band, performing from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Tickets are $25 per couple or $15 for singles and include party favors, a miniature bottle of champagne per person, dancing and pool. For information, call 378-4051.

Weber's Grill at Pub 48 will have a special party menu all day New Year's Eve and until shortly after the new year begins, with complimentary champagne with and after meals and party favors.

At the Quarters, The Convertibles will perform, and there will be free party favors and a free bottle of champagne at each table: first-come, first-served, $15 at the door per person.

Wildcard will play at Win Place & Show, $15 at the door; free party favors and a free bottle of champagne at each table.

At the Inn of the Mountain Gods, Weazel and Company will perform at the West Conference Center, with dancing from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m., hors d'oeuvres from 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., party favors, a champagne toast at midnight and a cash-only bar. Doors open at 8:30 p.m.; tickets are $75 for couples and $40 for singles. For reservations call 464-7440. You must be 21 years of age and show valid identification.

At Mesalero Inn Nightclub, DJ Juan Velasco brings music for dancing from 9 p.m.-2 a.m., light hor d'oeuvres from 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., party favors, a champagne toast at midnight and a cash-only bar. Tickets are $15 per person. For reservations call 464-7673. You must be 21 and show valid identification.

For more contemplative folks, the Ruidoso Labyrinth Project will have a New Year's Eve Circle of Renewal at Sierra Vista Primary School Multi-purpose room from 6 to 9 p.m., with a Sacred Walk on the Chartes Eleven Circuit Labyrinth. For more information, call the Ruidoso Labyrinth Project at 258-5086.

Keeping holiday weight off

I kept my eye on the calendar. My presents, decorating, and meals made the Christmas holiday a success. I made certain that every project was completed. I didn't get nervous and upset. This was the greatest holiday season ever. No hassles, no headaches. It was a period of fun and merriment.

And then I awoke in my bed! It was a great dream.

The end of the year is the peak season for overindulgence. You probably heard the following at some of the parties you went to. You probably said the following at the party you hosted: "If I eat just one serving, I'll be able to wear my black dress for New Year's Eve. ...I will pig out tonight and fast tomorrow. ...I'm going to be good this season — no bread, cookies, candies or pies whatsoever. ...But only the dressing is fattening. ...If I don't have seconds they'll think I didn't like it. ...With so many people to talk to, I won't even know I'm hungry. ...A little egg nog on empty stomach won't hurt me."

If you insist on declaring a diet moratorium, here are some strategies for facing food and not let it go to "waist." Don't go to a party ravenously hungry. Move away from the buffet table as soon as you've filled your plate. Pass up hors d'oeuvres that are buttered, breaded, fried or covered with sauces. Don't skip meals, even on the party day. Have help with the kitchen cleanups to avoid one more opportunity to nibble leftovers.

Keep a pair of snug pants to try on every morning. This way you'll notice any weight gain and take immediate action. Like, resolve in the coming year to eat only boiled and baked foods flavored only with herbs or spices and to eat lots of raw vegetables and fruits until Thanksgiving 2002.

Holiday company can be fun. This year my holiday company included 12 grandchildren — from toddlers to teens. You have to know some creative ideas to have an organized house without really trying. The following tip tidbits are tried and true.

- You need lots of large, heavy-duty plastic trash bags in every room in the house.
- Make up a guest container for little visitors. The container should include art supplies, games, and books. Present on arrival.
- Don't put the dishes away after washing dishes. Set the table for the next meal.
- Place a big, large cardboard box in the hall. Dump everything that is lying around into this box. When someone can't find a sock, toy, book, a wrist-watch, keys, crayon, mitten, just say, "Look in the box."
- "Commission" specific drawings from the children. Like the seven continents. Or have them make chains or snowflakes from left over gift wrapping paper. Or tell them that it is nap time.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Dubois honored

Secretary of Agriculture Frank A. Dubois was presented with the first "Bud's Contract Award," at the Joint Stockmen's Convention in Albuquerque on Dec. 8.

The award was created by the late Bud Eppers, past president of New Mexico Public Lands Council and carried on by Mike Casabonne, the new president.

The award is presented annually at the convention. A large bronze featuring the engraved names of the recipients will be displayed at New Mexico State University Joe Skeen Building in Las Cruces.

Advocacy report issued

Lt. Governor Walter Bradley has released the 2001 New Mexico Small Business

Advocacy Council's final report.

Bradley said in a press release that small businesses are the backbone of the 2001 economy.

The full report has been posted on the Web at www.gov.state.nm.us/lrgov.

Jobless rate steady

Unemployment for Lincoln County was 4.9 percent in October 2001, a slight increase from September, when it was 4.8 percent, according to a New Mexico Labor Force estimate.

The county's unemployment rate for October 2000 was 5.2 percent.

Unemployment numbers have increased statewide, with 5.6 percent for October 2001 from 4.9 percent in the same month a year earlier.

Looking ahead at 2002

Economists aren't impressed with federal stimulus ideas

WASHINGTON — In remarks delivered recently to the National Association of Business Economists (NABE), American Economics Group Chief Economist Michael K. Evans outlined the reasons the federal government's fiscal stimulus package will have little impact on boosting economic growth and forecasted the length and depth of the current recession.

"By now we all know there is no free lunch. Economies cannot return to perfect health simply by ordering the central bank to print more money, or deciding to have the government spend more or tax less," said Evans.

In his remarks and in a new American Economics Group report, Evans described how the federal government's fiscal stimulus program will be offset by tax increases and cutbacks at the state and local level. Further counteracting the effects of increased federal spending, a perceived return to "deficits are forever" could worsen business confidence and lead to a decline in the stock market that would retard the recovery in capital spending necessary for self-sustaining growth. Evans expects real GDP to decline at an annual rate of about 2 percent in each of the next three quarters. He forecasts it will rise at an annual rate of 2 percent to 2 1/2 percent in the second half of next year, followed by a gain of 3 1/2 percent in 2003.

Evans also outlined the percent change in annual rates in personal income levels for the main regions of the country, forecasting to 2005. He predicts small positive or negative changes over the next year for all regions. When the economy does begin to recover, it will probably be perceived as a "jobless recovery," as Evans expects the unemployment rate to increase to 7 percent by the end of next year, declining only slightly to 6 1/2 percent during 2003.

Workers surveyed not optimistic

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Along with the usual predictions from politicians, professors and psychics comes a 2002 forecast from the frontlines of the American workplace. A new survey from American Express Incentive Services, L.L.C. reveals that employees don't expect a stable economy for the coming year.

In fact, 50 percent of employed Americans polled predict a questionable economy in 2002; only 22 percent expect a stable economy. And, after surviving the job cuts of 2001, an overwhelming 83 percent of those surveyed say they are not making any New Year's resolutions related to their current jobs.

However, 68 percent of those surveyed said that if their company sponsored an ongoing incentive program, they would be "very likely" or "somewhat likely" to set and work toward job-related goals.

"American workers were battered by the 2001 economic downturn, and this survey tells us they're unmotivated and skittish about 2002," said Darryl Hutson, AEIS chief executive officer. "Now that the work force has shrunk, employers will need to focus their efforts on keeping their smaller, harder-working groups of employees motivated. In a recession, employers may be tempted to cut back on incentive budgets, but as the survey shows, incentives are a critical factor in keeping employees motivated and productive."

The new survey is a part of AEIS' ongoing market research to ensure that its incentive products match the needs of employers and employees. Past AEIS surveys have revealed that people value rewards that are personally relevant, and that the most effective incentive programs give employees choice in the rewards they earn.

"I predict the trend of employers offering stored-value reward cards will continue," Hutson says.

AEIS develops and delivers business-to-business solutions designed to help with employee motivation, loyalty and recognition as well as for partners, sales representatives and customers.

AEIS is headquartered in Fenton, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis. For more information, log on to <http://www.aeis.com>.

Midtown pedestrians enjoyed the sunshine this holiday season, attracted by the good weather, snow on the mountain and — in some instances — sale prices in the shops.

Midtown merchants study the numbers

Not everything is picture-perfect during this post-terrorism holiday season in Ruidoso

BY AMANDA WITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Despite economic hard times and the events of Sept. 11, some business people in Ruidoso say that they had a good shopping season.

Vernon Keith, owner of 50 Million B.C. Inc., said that his business was up 30 percent from last year and has been increasing throughout the year. The shop has been open in Ruidoso for six years and its customers are "50 percent tourists and 50 percent locals," Keith said.

But a number of other Midtown merchants have a different story to tell: Declining sales and fewer customers.

They are trying to make up at least some of the difference in the days remaining in 2001.

Keith, whose store primarily sells items for jewelry-making, said since the Friday before Christmas there has been a "major increase since last year" in sales.

Keith's goal is to attract local residents, and he has seen an increase in the number of locals. "We're one of the very few open seven days a week," Smith said, citing one of things he believes has increased his sales.

Keith said his shop was one of only four businesses open in Midtown on Christmas day.

"We were open in the afternoon. A lot of people like to enjoy town and Christmas day was their only chance," he said.

Another reason the shop has done well, Keith said, was because it stays open later than other shops in Midtown. Most shops close at 5 p.m.; he stays open until 8 p.m. when people are in town.

But Keith did note that this year was the first in which 50 Million B.C. has had a sale. "We wanted to help the economy and make it easy for people to spend money."

Despite the increase in sales, shopping started later this year than usual, Keith said. "The snow hurts us more than helps us."

People come to ski and don't want to spend money shopping, he said.

Tim Wierwille, owner of White Mountain Pottery, said business this holiday season stayed about the same as last year. "It's not over yet. I haven't tallied up the numbers."

He said before Christmas his store and gallery got a lot of local business. After Christmas it's mostly tourists.

Noisy Water Artwear also reported that business was good, said a staff member, Rusty Gull. The store was full on Christmas Eve. The store gets many repeat customers — Mexican nationals and snowbirds.

"When you talk about a tourist town, Ruidoso isn't like other tourist towns. Lots of people own homes and are part of the community. They just don't live here all the time," Gull said. She said that's why Ruidoso had steadier business.

But for other merchants in Midtown, business hasn't been so good.

Donna Bassett, owner of Sky's the Limit, said her business has been down compared with last year. She said there just haven't been as many people in her store as in previous years.

"Hopefully, this week we'll make up the difference," Bassett said.

Ruth Ann Crumpton, owner of Ruth Ann's Originals, said that the year so far is "not anything like it is generally."

She said that the store has not been moving merchandise, and even sale prices of 1/2 to 2/3 off haven't helped — people who do come into the shop aren't buying.

"Everything has changed since Sept. 11," Crumpton said.

Another business reporting that sales are down is Hosanna's Glass Works Inc.

Sonya Loya said business has been "awful."

"I think people are afraid to spend money because they don't know what's going to happen," Loya said.

As of November, the store had seen a $3,000 drop from the prior year, Loya said. But even from January to May business was down.

Loya said she represents 14 artists in her shop, and they all say that sales are down.

International trade poised for improvement

BY TOM STEEVER
AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

The United States is poised for great improvements in international trade as we enter 2002. A number of developments took place late in the year that could translate into trade gains in the near future.

"We're at that point where we can improve," says trade specialist John Skorburg with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"I don't think I can say right now that we have improved this past year," says Skorburg in response to questions about whether trade is better or worse than it was at the beginning of 2001. "We needed to put in place the rules-based systems to get improvement in trade," says Skorburg. "Now that we have House passage of the Trade Promotion Authority and we have China in the World Trade Organization we're at that point where we can make great advances."

The narrow House passage of Trade Promotion Authority, the launch in Doha, Qatar, of a new round of trade talks and the accession of China and Taiwan into the World Trade Organization are three of the most significant trade developments. All three took place late enough in the year that the effects were not apparent before the close of 2001.

Getting China into the WTO will have a huge impact on trade, according to Skorburg. "You're talking about the largest country in the world in terms of population and in terms of crop production," says Skorburg. "If you're talking about supply and demand, you certainly want to have the largest country in the world following the same rules that everybody else follows."

It's important to consider China a producer of commodities as well as a market for goods exported from the United States. "China is probably going to be able to be about 95 percent food-sufficient in the future," says Skorburg. "But then, that other 5 percent gives you a quarter of the population that we have here in the United States." Even without China in the WTO they have been a huge export market for the United States. "Easily, over the next five years we could see that market double," says Skorburg.

"So certainly that's going to be a very good market for farmers and ranchers in the United States."

WTO membership also brings China under a common rules system in settling trade disputes. "If we feel that something's being dumped into the United States from China, we can take care of that with trade law," says Skorburg. "All those disputes that we had in the past where we were really working under Chinese rules, now they will have to follow WTO rules."

According to Skorburg, it's important to show the facts to farmers and ranchers so that all commodity interests can feel comfortable that they have a share in this. "If I look at this as an economist, we export anywhere from 20-25 percent of our agricultural commodities into the world markets," says Skorburg.

"I guess you can make a case that one out of every four farms or one out of every five farms is in business in the United States because of trade."

HOME & FAMILY

Dorn and her niece and nephew made this Hansel-and-Gretel gingerbread house for Dorn's sister, Sharon. The roof is made of colored vanilla wafers and the chimney bricks are caramels and fudgies mortared together. For Denise Dorn, the holiday season means

Gingerbread

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

For the past 22 years, batik artist and master builder Denise Dorn has constructed gingerbread houses for the Christmas holidays.

"What started this was the year my son was born, 22 years ago. I made a traditional Hansel-and-Gretel house, then it became a family tradition," Dorn said.

About seven years later she and a partner, Clark Collier, started making the houses to sell, and she designed the adobe gingerbread house — making 50 houses in one season and selling them in Taos and Santa Fe as well as locally.

"We had kind of like an assembly line going," she said. "It started in my garage and moved to his barn. Then when we were sitting around relaxing we made the luminaria bags and all the chiles."

One year Dorn made a barn with horses for friends. Her oldest still-standing gingerbread house is one commissioned 14 years ago by friends of L.B. Davis, a replica of his own house, Casa Chuaca. He had a wooden box built for it and stores it there every year. This year, Dorn is doing some major renovations on the house. Another year, she made a replica of Midtown's La Lorraine restaurant.

"When Holland (Dorn's son) was in kindergarten in 1987, in Eva Clarke's class for Christmas holidays, one of the crafts we did was divide the kids into six groups and we built a house for Mrs. Clarke," she said. "One group would do the roof, another the candles and lights. She had that house until four years ago when she brought it out and set it up in the classroom."

Then a squirrel got into the classroom and nibbled away at the house.

During Clarke's last year of teaching at Nob Hill, 2000-2001, Dorn went to her class again and she and the students built her another gingerbread house to take home with her.

About 13 years ago, Dorn's gingerbread house appeared in Good Housekeeping Magazine, which has a contest every year. Dorn's house came in sixth.

Working from the "blueprints," Dorn makes the house out of cardboard, puts on a cardboard roof with holes for the string of lights and wires the whole house inside and outside. Then she starts baking the gingerbread.

SANDY SUGGITT/STAFF

Dorn gets close to her work as she applies frosting to a graham cracker house.

The fireplace inside the house "burns" with a Christmas light painted red with fingernail polish, as does the horno in the yard. A rug on the floor in the house is a coaster, and the window glass is yellow cellophane. Snow in the yard is made of egg whites and powdered sugar, which dries as hard as concrete, Dorn said. The luminarias all have ridged tops because she cuts them from the tops of grocery bags, and they are lit with Christmas lights.

Dorn uses molasses in the gingerbread for her adobe houses and corn syrup or light molasses for lighter-colored houses. The completely-edible, traditional, Hansel-and-Gretel houses have vanilla wafer shingles, gum-drop lights, candy cane corner posts, piñon nuts and peanuts as rocks in the walkway. The doorknobs are allspice balls.

In front of the adobe house is an original, signed miniature Jemez Pueblo ceramic pot. The ladder on the side of the house is made of cinnamon sticks, as is the wood in the woodpile and the vigas.

It takes two to three days to complete a house.

Dorn also makes smaller, graham cracker houses and Christmas tree ornaments. This year, she made several commissioned gingerbread houses and worked with her niece and nephew to make a traditional house for her sister in Ruidoso.

Although the days of assembly-line house-building are over, the tradition shows no sign of fading.

Rash of dumpster fires reported

Dumpster fires have been epidemic in Ruidoso this week, due to people dumping live fireplace ashes.

When a dumpster caught fire in the 300 block of Hull Road yesterday morning, flames ignited dry grass and burned a good sized area. High winds at the time might have caused the blaze to spread further, but it was spotted by a policeman, who called in duty firemen.

Besides the danger of flames starting in the metal refuse containers and spreading, fires do extensive damage to the dumpster units, said village fire prevention officer Ollie Cuddy.
